(6) The threat of adverse comment at trial may increase the risk of confused or vulnerable suspects making false confessions.

We felt at the time, and we continue to feel, that those are powerful arguments. Not that we endorse or condone or suggest that, in relation to one of the points that was made about the abuse by the police, that we fear that that is actually happening in Gibraltar –

Hon. D A Feetham: For the avoidance of doubt.

Hon. G H Licudi: – for the avoidance of doubt that that maybe happening in Gibraltar. I was simply reading what the arguments put forward by the Royal Commission, but that is not a concern that we have but we believe, on balance, there is a powerful argument.

So those are the reasons why we are removing those provisions which relate to the right to silence and inferences from silence. So our position at the second Bill, and subsequently in Government at the Second Reading of the Bill, subsequently in Government when we were considering the amendments that needed to be made to this Act in order to put our policy in place, was that we should simply remove those five or six sections that relate to inferences from silence.

We felt, well, that is what we fundamentally disagree with, then we remove those provisions. It was then, during the course of the process of the amendments, it was brought to our attention that there are these other provisions relating to the disclosure obligations. What do we do with them? Do we leave them; do we require the defence and provide that balance that the hon. Member has alluded to? We did not consider, as I said in my intervention earlier, that there were independent arguments why that balance does not need to be addressed, there is no objection in principle to the defence putting forward a defence statement... But we felt these provisions would simply be unworkable.

I explained earlier the provisions, they arise in relation to a response by the prosecution, which is a 2625 statutory requirement and duty by the prosecution, because it says that ‘the prosecution must’. Therefore, we must work on the assumption and the basis that the prosecution will in Gibraltar comply with all statutory duties and therefore this will also arise. What we felt was that it was simply unworkable where there is a right to silence and no inference can be drawn from that fact.

2630 It is unworkable because, if the person has that particular right, the right not to say anything at all and no inferences can be drawn from that exercise, how can he then be obliged to set out his defence in advance? He has a right to silence, he has a right to be silent throughout the whole trial process and, in relation to the defence, he even has a right to say, ‘Well, I don’t say anything at all, I simply put the prosecution to proof’. They have the burden of proof: the standard, as we know, is beyond reasonable doubt, and it is – not often the case but it is certainly not unusual – that the defendant simply gets up at 2635 some stage during the trial process, sometimes in the middle of the case or when the prosecution has finished his case, and says ‘The prosecutor’s case simply doesn’t stand up to scrutiny: it doesn’t add up to prove beyond reasonable doubt. I didn’t have to say anything, I don’t say anything and I just leave it in the hands, first, of the court in a submission at half way, or leave it in the hands of the jury.’

2640 We consider that the changes we are making in relation to disclosure are merely consequential but necessary because of the removal of the inferences from silence.

We do not consider that, in Gibraltar, we have a system which is so unbalanced as to be an unfair system, a system which creates an unfair advantage to those who are charged with criminal offences. We all want to see the guilty convicted, but it is a very, very serious matter for innocent people to be found 2645 guilty as a result of something which they may have said, or an inference that can be drawn or an act which they may have taken, and we believe it is absolutely necessary and fundamental that we protect those rights of the innocent who may be falsely charged, who may have said something perhaps out of order, perhaps because of the circumstances. It is fundamental that those rights also be preserved and, for all those reasons, Mr Speaker, we will stick with the amendments that we have proposed.

2650 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 and the Crimes Act 2011 be read a second time.

Those in favour. (Government Members: Aye.) Those against. (Opposition Members: No.) Carried by Government majority.

2655 Clerk: The Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2012.

2660 Criminal Justice (Amendment) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be 2665 taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

2670 Mr Speaker: The Committee Stage and Third Reading will be taken today.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am conscious of the fact that Members are able to come in and out of the Chamber, but that you and the Clerk are not. Is that a convenient moment to recess for a few minutes.

2675 Mr Speaker: That is very convenient and very considerate of the Hon. the Chief Minister. The House will recess for 10 minutes. Thank you.

The House adjourned at 7.10 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 7.25 p.m.

2685 Broadcasting Bill 2012
Births and Deaths Registration (Amendment) Bill 2012
Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act Bill 2012

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2690 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills, clause by clause: the Broadcasting Bill 2012; the Births and Deaths Registration (Amendment) Bill 2012; the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act Bill 2012.

2695 In Committee of the whole Parliament.

Broadcasting Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

2700 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to make provision for the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation and to transpose into the law of Gibraltar Council Directive 2010/13/EU of 10th March 2010 of the European Parliament and of the Council on the co-ordination of certain provisions laid down by law, regulation and administrative action in member states concerning the protection of audiovisual media services, Supplementary Directive 2007/65/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 11th December 2007, and for connected purposes.
2705 Clause 1.

2710 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I would move to place before the House and hon. Members in Committee the amendments set out in my letter of 26th September 2012. I think all of them have been ventilated in debate and I would move to move the Bill with all of those amendments.

Mr Chairman: Is the Opposition content with that procedure to avoid having to read each one?

2715 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker.
The Clerk has already spoken to me about this and we are content for the proposed amendments to be read as if they are part of the Bill, not only in relation to this one but also in relation to the Hon. the Minister for Justice's Bill later on.

2720 Mr Chairman: Thank you.
In that case, all the proposed amendments contained in the Hon. the Chief Minister's letter to me dated 26th September will be deemed to have been formally tabled at the Committee Stage and Hansard will record the letter as part of the record of Hansard. Correct?

2725 Hon. Chief Minister: I am obliged to the Members opposite.

Mr Chairman: Great.

Dear Mr Speaker

AMENDMENTS TO BROADCASTING ACT 2012 [B. 11/12]

I beg to give notice that I shall be moving the following amendments to the Bill for a Broadcasting Act 2012 during Committee Stage, the amendments serve six main purposes.

In order to assist members, I am setting out the reasons for the most important amendments in this letter in anticipation of the debate on the Bill on Friday afternoon. Although there are quite a number of amendments they are mostly technical in nature and driven by advice of draftsman for the reasons more specifically set out below.

First, they provide for the revocation of the current AVMS regulations by importing provisions contained in those regulations into this Act and harmonising the language used in this Act with the drafting style of those Regulations. It has been decided to do this in order to ensure that there is no confusion as to whether in a particular circumstance a person is covered by the Act or the regulations and at the same time to maintain a sense of continuity regarding the use of language which has been proven to work. The majority of the amendments fall into this category both in terms of numbers and volume.

Second, the amendments remove references to the Transmission Standards Directive and to issues relating to conditional access. On further consideration it is the Government's view that these areas would, due to their technical nature, be best dealt with by subsidiary legislation.

Third, the amendments provide for a greater transparency and independence in the appointment of the GBC Board. There is a proposed amendment which requires that the Chief Minister consult with the leader of the opposition before making any such appointment and there is a further amendment which removes from the Minister the power to appoint a particular auditor himself.

Fourth, further to there being a distinct possibility that operators outside Gibraltar may wish to use Gibraltar as a base for their broadcasting amendments are included making it clear that use of the Digital Terrestrial Network falls within the scope of the Bill.

Fifth, there are amendments included which either move powers and functions currently drafted as being in the hands of the Minister or the Minister and the Authority to being directly under the sole control of the Authority. This includes removing the need for the Authority to require the consent of the Minister before it acts in certain circumstances. It is intended that this will allow for greater independence in the regulation of the Act.

Sixthly, and finally, there are amendments which correct certain typographical, formatting and grammatical issues which have been noted since the Bill was first published. It is not intended that any of the amendments which fall within this category substantially change the content of the Bill, rather that they make it clearer.

The amendments are-

- (1) in the long title after "11 December 2007" insert "amending Council Directive 89/552/EEC on the coordination of certain provisions laid down by law, regulation or administrative action in Member States concerning the pursuit of television broadcasting activities";

[This amendment corrects the reference to the Directive in the Long Title to include its full name.]

- (2) in clause 2(1) insert the following definitions in the appropriate place in alphabetical order-

""DTT" means the national Digital Terrestrial Television network;"

""Non-European works" means works other than works within the definition of "European works";

"TFEU" means the Treaty on the functioning of the European Union";

[These amendments insert definitions which are used elsewhere in the Bill.]

- (3) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "audio media service" for paragraph (b) substitute-

"(b) audio commercial communication;"

[This amendment and amendment (4) correct a formatting error where two definitions were merged into one.]

- (4) in clause 2(1) for the paragraph which appears after paragraph (b) of the definition of "audio media service" substitute the following definition (which should appear in alphabetical order before the definition of "audio media service")-

"audio commercial communication" means sounds which are designed to promote, directly or indirectly, the goods or services or image of a natural or legal entity pursuing an economic activity and includes radio advertising and sponsorship;"

- (5) in clause 2(1) delete the definition of "audiovisual commercial communication" and insert after the definition of "audio commercial communication" the following definition-

"audiovisual commercial communication" means images with or without sound which are designed to promote, directly or indirectly, the goods, services or image of a natural or legal entity pursuing an economic activity where such images accompany or are included in a programme in return for payment or for similar consideration or for self-promotional purposes and includes television advertising, sponsorship, teleshopping and product placement;"

[This amendment imports a definition from the AVMS Regulations.]

- (6) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "AVMS Directive"-

- (a) for "Directive 2010/13/EU of The European Parliament and of The Council of 10 March 2010" substitute "Directive 2010/13/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council of 10 March 2010";

- (b) after "audiovisual media services" insert ", as amended from time to time";

[Amendment (a) corrects typographical errors relating to the use of capital letters. Amendment (b) makes clear that the use of the term AVMS directive includes any future amendments that may be made to it.]

- (7) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "Commission" for "Commission of the European Communities" substitute "European Commission";

[This amendment and amendments (8) and (9) correct typographical errors.]

- (8) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "editorial responsibility" for "election" substitute "selection";

- (9) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "European works" in paragraph (b) for "sub-regulation" substitute "subsection";

- (10) in clause 2(1) in the definition of "media service provider" after "audiovisual media service" insert "(including but not limited to DTT services)";

[This amendment makes clear that provision of DTT services falls into the definition of "media service provider".]

- (11) in clause 2(1) delete the definition "Transmission Standards Directive";

[This amendment relates to the matter I mentioned above regarding the preference to deal with matters under that directive by means of secondary legislation.]

- (12) after clause 2(1) insert the following-

"(1A) For the purposes of the definition of the term "European works" in subsection (1), the following provisions shall apply–

- (a) the application of the provisions in paragraphs (b) and (c) of the definition shall be conditional on works originating in the European Union not being subject to discriminatory measures in the third country concerned;
- (b) the works referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) of the definition are works mainly made with authors and workers residing in one or more of the places referred to in those paragraphs provided that they comply with one of the following three conditions–
 - (i) they are made by one or more producers established in one or more of those places;
 - (ii) the production of the works is supervised and actually controlled by one or more producers established in one or more of those places;
 - (iii) the contribution of co-producers from those places to the total co-production costs is preponderant and the coproduction is not controlled by one or more producers established outside those places;
- (c) works that are not European works but that are produced within the framework of bilateral co-production agreements concluded between Gibraltar or Member States and third countries shall be deemed to be European works provided that–

(i) the co-producers from the European Union supply a majority share of the total cost of production; and

(ii) the production is not controlled by one or more producers established outside the European Union.

(1B) All media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall comply with this Act and with all other laws in force in Gibraltar applicable to media services intended for the public.

(1C) For the purposes of this Act, the media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction are any of the following—

(a) those established in Gibraltar in accordance with subsection (2);

(b) those to whom subsections (3) or (4) apply.”;

[This amendment imports provisions from the AVMS regulations as to the definition of “European works” and makes it clear which media service providers fall within the Act and within Gibraltar jurisdiction.]

(13) in clause 2(2) for paragraphs (c) and (d) substitute—

“(c) if a media service provider has its head office in Gibraltar but decisions on the audiovisual media service are taken in a third country, or vice-versa, it shall be deemed to be established in Gibraltar, provided that a significant part of the workforce involved in the pursuit of the audiovisual media service activity operates in Gibraltar; or

(d) if the media service provider is established in a third country and is licensed under the provisions of this Act (including where it has been licensed to provide a broadcasting service on DTT (which may include Non-European works)).”;

[This amendment corrects a typographical error in (c) and clarifies that (d) includes providers of DTT services licensed in a third country.]

(14) in clause 2(4) for "EC Treaty" substitute "TFEU";

(15) after clause 2(5) insert the following-

"(6) This Act does not apply to audiovisual media services which—

- (a) are intended exclusively for reception in third countries; and
- (b) are not received with standard consumer equipment directly or indirectly by the public in Gibraltar or in one or more Member States.

(7) For the avoidance of doubt the GBC is a media service provider under Gibraltar jurisdiction within the meaning of this Act and as such is subject to the provisions of this Act subject to any exemptions included within this Act.";

[This amendment clarifies the scope of the Act to (a) exclude certain broadcasts intended for third countries only and not receivable in Gibraltar or a Member State and (b) include the GBC.]

(16) in clause 6(1) for "respectively upon them" substitute "upon it";

[This amendment and amendments 17, 18, 19 and 20 correct typographical errors etc.]

(17) in clause 6(1)(a) for "either of them" substitute "it";

(18) the formatting of clause 8(1) shall be as follows-

"8.(1) Subject to the following provisions of this section, no information with respect to a particular business which—

2740

(a) has been obtained under or by virtue of this Act; and

(b) relates to the private affairs of any individual or to any particular business, shall during the lifetime of that individual or so long as that business continues to be carried on, be disclosed without the consent of that individual or the person for the time being carrying on that business.”;

(19) in clause 8(2)(e) for “Community” substitute “Union”;

(20) delete clause 12(2) and remove the label “(1)” from the remaining subsection;

(21) in clause 13(1)-

(i) in subsection (1) for “, the Minister may, after consultation with the Authority,” substitute “the Authority may”;

(ii) in subsection (1) delete “the Minister or”;

(iii) in subsection (1) delete “or both, as the case may be,”;

(iv) in subsection (1) for “their respective” substitute “its”;

(v) in subsection (2) for “the Minister may, after consultation with the Authority” substitute “the Authority may”;

[These amendments remove powers and functions from the Minister and allow them to remain solely in the hands of the Authority.]

(22) in clause 13(2) for “Community” substitute “Union”;

(23) in clause 14-

(a) delete “, with the consent of the Minister,”;

- (b) for "Community" substitute "Union";

[This is an example of an amendment where a requirement for Ministerial consent in the operation of a power by the Authority is removed.]

- (24) in clause 15(1) for the words upto and including "Gibraltar" substitute "A media service provider under Gibraltar jurisdiction";

[This amendment is to bring the Bill closer to the language used in the AVMS regulations.]

- (25) in clause 15(2) for "the Act" substitute "this Act";

[This amendment and amendments 26-33 correct various typographical, grammatical and formatting issues.]

- (26) in clause 15(5) for "Licence" substitute "licence";

- (27) in clause 16(2) for "The provisions of" substitute "For the avoidance of doubt,";

- (28) in clause 18(1) for "do all that it can to secure" substitute "ensure";

- (29) in clause 18(2)(a)(i) delete "(a)";

- (30) in clauses 18(2)(c) and (d) for "them" on the three occasions it appears substitute "it";

- (31) in clause 18(2)(c) for "(a)(iii)" substitute "(a)(ii)";

- (32) in clause 18(2)(d) the words which appear after sub-paragraph (ii) should be reformatted to be text following from sub-paragraph (d);

- (33) the formatting of clause 18(3) shall be as follows-

"(3) Where the Authority-

- (a) revokes the award of any licence in pursuance of subsection (2)(b), or

- (b) determines that any condition imposed by him in relation to any licence in pursuance of subsection (2)(c) has not been satisfied, any provisions of this Part relating to the awarding of licences of the kind in question shall (subject to subsection (4)) have effect as if the person to whom the licence was awarded or granted had not made an application for it.”;

- (34) in clause 18(7) for-

- (a) "the Minister" substitute "the Authority";
- (b) "they" substitute "it";

[This is an example of a power invested in the Minister being transfessed to the Authority.]

- (35) in clause 19(4) for "This section" substitute "For the avoidance of doubt, this section";

[This amendment and amendments 36-38 correct various typographical and grammatical issues (including bringing the provisions closer to the language used in the AVMS regulations.)]

- (36) in clause 20(6) for "Subsections" substitute "For the avoidance of doubt, subsections";

- (37) in clause 21(6) for "licence holder" substitute "licensee";

- (38) in clause 22-

- (a) in subclause (1) for "licensed or authorised under this Act, including the GBC," substitute "under Gibraltar jurisdiction";
- (b) in subclause (2) after "shall apply" insert "as if the failure to comply with the code of practice were a failure to comply with a licence condition";

- (39) in clause 23 for "codes of practice issued under that Schedule shall be incorporated into any issued under section 22 of this Act" substitute "code of practice issued under that Schedule shall be deemed to have been issued under section 22 of this Act";

[This amendment clarifies the effect of a code issued under a Schedule rather than under section 22. It was thought that the previous language was confusing.]

- (40) in clause 27 for "licensed or authorised under this Act, including the GBC," substitute "under Gibraltar jurisdiction";

- (41) after clause 28 insert the following clause-

"Accessibility.

28A. The Authority shall encourage media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction to ensure that their services are progressively made accessible to people with disabilities affecting their sight or hearing or both."

[This is a requirement under the AVMS directive.]

- (42) for clause 29 substitute-

"Audiovisual commercial communications.

29.(1) The following are prohibited in Gibraltar-

- (a) surreptitious audiovisual commercial communication;
- (b) all forms of audiovisual commercial communications for cigarettes and other tobacco products;
- (c) all forms of audiovisual commercial communications for medicinal products and medical treatment available only on prescription.

(2) Media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall ensure that the audiovisual commercial communications they provide-

- (a) are readily recognisable as such;
- (b) do not use subliminal techniques;
- (c) do not—
 - (i) prejudice respect for human dignity;
 - (ii) include or promote any discrimination on grounds of sex, racial or ethnic origin, nationality, religion or belief, disability, age or sexual orientation;
 - (iii) encourage behaviour prejudicial to health or to safety;
 - (iv) encourage behaviour prejudicial to the protection of the environment.

(3) Audiovisual commercial communications for alcoholic beverages shall comply, in addition to subsection (2), with the following criteria, that is to say, they shall not—

- (a) be aimed specifically at minors ;
- (b) encourage immoderate consumption of alcoholic beverages.

(4) Audiovisual commercial communications shall not cause moral or physical detriment to minors, and shall therefore comply with the following criteria for their protection, that is to say, they shall not—

- (a) directly exhort minors to buy or hire a product or a service by exploiting their inexperience or credulity;
- (b) directly encourage minors to persuade their parents or others to purchase the goods or services being advertised;
- (c) exploit the special trust minors place in parents, teachers or other persons;

- (d) unreasonably show minors in dangerous situations.

(5) The Authority shall encourage media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction to develop codes of conduct regarding inappropriate audiovisual commercial communications, accompanying or included in children's programmes, of foods and beverages containing nutrients and substances with a nutritional or physiological effect excessive intakes of which in the overall diet are not recommended, and such nutrients and substances shall include, in particular, fat, trans-fatty acids, salt/sodium and sugars.

Basic requirements on television advertising and teleshopping.

29A.(1) Television advertising and teleshopping shall—

- (a) be readily recognisable and distinguishable from editorial content; and
- (b) without prejudice to the use of new advertising techniques, be kept quite distinct from other parts of the programme by optical, acoustic or spatial means or any combination of those means.

(2) Isolated advertising and teleshopping spots, other than in transmissions of sports events, shall remain the exception.

Insertion during programmes.

29B.(1) Television advertising and teleshopping may be inserted during a programme provided that they are inserted in such a way that—

- (a) the integrity of the programme, taking into account natural breaks in and the duration and nature of the programme ; and

- (b) the rights of the rights holders, are not prejudiced.

(2) The transmission of films made for television (excluding series, serials and documentaries), cinematographic works and news programmes may be interrupted by television advertising or teleshopping once for each scheduled period of at least thirty minutes.

(3) The transmission of children's programmes may be interrupted by television advertising or teleshopping once for each scheduled period of at least thirty minutes, provided that the scheduled duration of the programme is greater than thirty minutes.

(4) No television advertising or teleshopping shall be inserted during religious services.

Teleshopping for medicinal products or treatment.

29C. Teleshopping for medicinal products which are subject to a market authorisation within the meaning of Directive 2001/83/EC of 6 November 2001 on the Community Code relating to medicinal products for human use, as the same may be amended from time to time, as well as teleshopping for medicinal treatment, shall be prohibited.

Television advertising and teleshopping for alcoholic beverages.

29D. Television advertising and teleshopping for alcoholic beverages shall comply with the following criteria, that is to say, they shall not—

- (a) be aimed specifically at minors or, in particular, depict minors consuming these beverages;
- (b) link the consumption of alcohol to enhanced physical performance or to driving;

- (c) create the impression that the consumption of alcohol contributes towards social or sexual success;
- (d) claim that alcohol has therapeutic qualities or that it is a stimulant, a sedative or a means of resolving personal conflicts;
- (e) encourage immoderate consumption of alcohol or present abstinence or moderation in a negative light; and
- (f) place emphasis on high alcoholic content as being a positive quality of the beverages.”;

[This amendment imports provisions from the AVMS regulations.]

(43) for subclauses (3) to (5) of clause substitute-

“Teleshopping windows.

30A. Teleshopping windows shall be clearly identified as such by optical and acoustic means and shall be of a minimum uninterrupted duration of 15 minutes.

Television broadcasts intended only for Gibraltar.

“30B. Without prejudice to section 72B, and with due regard for European Union law, the Authority may lay down conditions other than those laid down in section 29B(2) to (4) and section 30 in respect of television broadcasts intended exclusively for reception in Gibraltar and which are not capable of being received, directly or indirectly, in one or more Member States.”;

[This amendment imports provisions from the AVMS regulations.]

(44) in clause 31

(a) after subclause (1)(a) insert the following paragraph-

“(aa) viewers shall be clearly informed of the existence of a sponsorship agreement.”;

- (b) in subclause (1) for “it” the first time it appears in paragraphs (b) and (c) substitute “they”;

- (45) in clause 33-

- (a) the words up to and including paragraph (b) shall be renumbered as subclause (1) of that clause with its corresponding paragraphs (a) and (b);

- (b) for paragraph (c) substitute the following subclause-

“(2) Sections 29B(2), (3) and (4), section 30 and section 30A shall not apply to these channels.”;

[This amendment corrects a formatting error.]

- (46) in the newly numbered clause 33(1)(a) for “teleshopping, and advertising ;” substitute “teleshopping and advertising;”;

[This amendment corrects a formatting error.]

- (47) in the newly numbered clause 33(1)(b) for the semi-colon substitute a full-stop;

- (48) in clause 35

- (a) in subclauses (1) and (2) delete the words “under this Act, including the GBC,”;

- (b) in subclauses (1) and (2) for “licensed or authorised” substitute “under Gibraltar jurisdiction”;

[This amendment changes the language used to that in the AVMS regulations.]

- (49) in clause 36(1)(b) for “jurisdiction” substitute “Member State”;

[This amendment corrects an error in terminology.]

- (50) in clauses 36(1)(b), 36(1)(c), and 44 and in the explanatory memorandum for "Broadcasting Directive" substitute "AVMS Directive";

[This amendment corrects an error in terminology.]

- (51) after clause 36 insert the following two clauses (as part of Part IV)-

"Proportion of distribution and production of television programmes.

36A.(1) Broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall ensure, where practicable and by appropriate means, that they reserve for European works a majority proportion of their transmission time, excluding the time allotted to news, sports events, games, advertising, teletext services and teleshopping.

(2) Having regard to any responsibilities of broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction to its viewing public in respect of information, education, culture and entertainment, the proportion referred to in subsection (1) shall be achieved progressively, on the basis of criteria judged suitable for this purpose.

(3) Where the proportion referred to in subsection (1) cannot be attained, the proportion of transmission time, as defined in subsection (1), reserved for European works shall not be lower than the average for 1988.

(4) Broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall ensure, where practicable and by appropriate means, that they reserve at least 10% of their transmission time, excluding the time allotted to news, sports events, games, advertising, teletext services and teleshopping, or alternatively, at the discretion of the Authority, at least 10% of their programmes budget, for European works created by producers who are independent of broadcasters.

(5) Having regard to any responsibilities of broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction to its viewing public in respect of information, education, culture and entertainment, the proportion referred to in subsection (4) shall be achieved—

- (a) progressively, on the basis of criteria judged suitable for this purpose by the Authority;
- (b) by earmarking an adequate proportion for recent works, that is to say works transmitted within five years of their production.

Reporting to the Commission.

36B.(1) Notwithstanding the repeal of section 10B(6) of the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation Act, the Authority shall continue to ensure that the Commission is provided every two years with a report on the application of section 36A.

(2) The report required by subsection (1) shall include, in particular, a statistical statement on the achievement of the proportions referred to in sections 36A(1) and (4) for each of the television programmes provided by broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction, the reasons, in each case, for the failure to attain that proportion and the measures adopted or envisaged in order to achieve it.”;

(52) for clause 37 substitute—

“Exclusive rights to major events.

37.(1) The Minister may draw up a designated list of events (“the list”) which he considers to be of major importance for Gibraltar and which shall not be broadcast on an exclusive basis in such a way as to deprive the public in Gibraltar of the possibility of following such events by live coverage or deferred coverage on free television.

(2) The Minister may prescribe that events on the list shall be made available by whole or partial live coverage or, where necessary or appropriate for objective reasons in the public interest, whole or partial deferred coverage.

(3) The list shall be drawn up in a clear, transparent and timely manner.

(4) The Minister shall ensure that the Commission is immediately notified of the list and of any additions or amendments thereto, and, subject to any legal challenge, shall revoke such elements in the list, including listed events and any additions or amendments to the list, as the Commission rules to be incompatible with European Union law.”;

[This amendment and amendments (53) and (54) import provisions from the AVMS regulations which were transposed differently in the Bill.]

(53) in clause 38 for subsections (2) to (5) substitute-

“ (2) The requesting broadcaster shall have access on a fair, reasonable and non-discriminatory basis, to the events referred to in subsection (1).

(3) The requesting broadcaster may freely select short extracts from the transmitting broadcaster’s signal with, unless impossible for practical reasons, at least the identification of the source, and use such extracts in short news reports.

(4) The requesting broadcaster-

(a) shall use the short extracts solely for general news programmes;

(b) may use the short extracts in on-demand audiovisual services but only if it offers the same programme on a deferred basis.

(5) The transmitting broadcaster shall be entitled to compensation from the requesting broadcaster in the amount of the additional costs directly incurred in providing access.

(6) Where a broadcaster under Gibraltar jurisdiction makes a similar request from a transmitting broadcaster in a Member State, the Authority shall, if requested, ensure that the equivalent rights of the transmitting broadcaster under Article 15 of the Audiovisual Media Services Directive are upheld.

(7) The Authority may issue guidelines regulating access conditions for the purposes of this section and such guidelines shall cover the following matters-

- (a) the establishment of a procedure, other than the one set out in this section, which achieves access on a fair, reasonable and non-discriminatory basis ;
- (b) the modalities and conditions for the provision of short extracts, including--
 - (i) compensation arrangements;
 - (ii) the maximum length of short extracts;
 - (iii) time limits regarding the transmission of short extracts.”;

(54) for clause 39 substitute--

Right of reply.

39.(1) All broadcasters under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall provide to any natural or legal person, regardless of nationality, whose legitimate interests, in particular reputation and good name, have been damaged by an assertion of incorrect facts in a television programme, a right of reply or a remedy judged by the Authority to be an equivalent remedy to a right of reply.

(2) Where a person (in this section referred to as “the complainant”) is of the view that he is entitled, by virtue of subsection (1), to a right of reply or equivalent remedy, the complainant may require the broadcaster to make the arrangements necessary for that right to be exercised.

(3) The arrangements referred to in subsection (2)–

- (a) shall be at no cost to the complainant; and
- (b) shall not be of such a nature as to hinder the actual exercise of the right of reply, or equivalent remedy, notably, by the imposition of unreasonable terms or conditions.

(4) Where the request for a right of reply or equivalent remedy is justified, the broadcaster concerned shall transmit the reply within a reasonable time after the request was substantiated and at a time and in a manner appropriate to the broadcast to which the request relates.

(5) The broadcaster may refuse to provide a right of reply or an equivalent remedy if such a reply–

- (a) is not justified by reference to the provisions of subsection (1);
- (b) would render the broadcaster liable to prosecution;
- (c) would render the broadcaster liable to civil proceedings; or
- (d) would transgress standards of public decency.

(6) Where–

- (a) the broadcaster refuses to give a right of reply; or
- (b) the complainant is dissatisfied with the arrangements in respect of the exercise of his right of reply, the complainant may, within 28 days of the broadcast or the failure of arrangements, as the case may be, about which he is complaining refer the matter in writing to the Authority who shall itself or, in the event that it is unable to meet in the required time, by three persons appointed by the Authority for this purpose, consider any written representations made by the complainant and by the broadcaster.

(7) The complainant, at the time that he makes a complaint to the Authority, shall pass a copy of the complaint and any materials attached thereto to the broadcaster and the broadcaster shall provide any written representations it wishes to make to the Authority within 14 days of having received the complaint.

(8) The decision of the Authority shall be given and conveyed in writing to the complainant and to the broadcaster within 14 days of the receipt by the Authority of the written representation from the broadcaster or within 28 days of the receipt by the Authority of the complaint, whichever is the sooner.

(9) The broadcaster shall comply with the decision of the Authority within 14 days of the receipt of that decision.

(10) The provisions as to time set out in subsections (5) to (9) may be varied by the Authority where it is satisfied that it is appropriate to do so in order to give an effective right of reply to persons resident or established in a Member State.

(11) The Authority may require the broadcaster to provide a right of reply or a remedy equivalent thereto in respect of material broadcast by a programme contractor where in the opinion of the Authority such action is the only effective way to provide a right of reply and in such case the provisions of this section shall apply by substituting the broadcaster for the programme maker.”;

(55) for the heading for Part VII substitute-

"REGULATION OF EUROPEAN UNION BROADCASTS";

[This amendment and amendments (56) – (59) import provisions from the AVMS regulations and amend clauses of the Bill in order to ensure consistency.]

(56) for the section heading to clause 40 substitute-

"European Union Broadcasts.";

(57) in clause 40(1) for "other Member States" substitute "a Member State";

(58) in clause 40 for subclauses (2) to (7) substitute-

"(2) The Authority shall have the power to take measures provisionally derogating from subsection (1) in respect of television broadcasts from Member States if the following conditions are fulfilled-

(a) in the judgment of the Authority the broadcast includes-

(i) any programmes which might seriously impair the physical, mental or moral development of minors, in particular programmes that involve pornography or gratuitous violence;

(ii) any programmes which in the opinion of the Authority are likely to impair the physical, mental or moral development of minors, except where the Authority is satisfied that by means of the time of the programme concerned or by any technical measure, including any acoustic warning or visual identification, minors will not normally hear or see such programmes;

(iii) no incitement to hatred at all whether on grounds of race, sex, age, sexual orientation, religion, nationality or otherwise;

- (b) during the previous 12 months, the broadcaster has infringed paragraph (a) on at least two prior occasions;
- (c) the Authority has notified the broadcaster and the Commission in writing of the alleged infringement and of its intention to restrict retransmission should any such infringement occur again; and
- (d) consultations with the transmitting Member State and the Commission have not produced an amicable settlement within 15 days of the notification provided for in paragraph (c), and the alleged infringement persists.

(3) The measures that the Authority may adopt pursuant to subsection (2) shall include the provisional suspension of retransmissions of television broadcasts or any restrictions on such retransmissions.

(4) The Authority shall, as a matter of urgency, put an end to any measure it adopts pursuant to subsection (2) if the Commission informs it, in accordance with Article 3 (2) of the AVMS Directive, that the measure is contrary to European Union law.

(5) Any person who continues to retransmit broadcasts contrary to a measure adopted by the Authority pursuant to subsection (2) commits an offence.

(6) A person who commits an offence under this section is liable—

- (a) on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both; or
- (b) on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or to a fine or both.”;

(59) for clause 41 substitute-

"Special provisions in respect of on-demand audiovisual media services."

41.(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, no person shall interfere with the freedom of reception in Gibraltar of on-demand audiovisual media services from Member States for reasons which fall within the fields co-ordinated by the AVMS Directive.

(2) The Authority shall have the power to take measures provisionally derogating from subsection (1) in respect of a given on-demand audiovisual media service if the following conditions are fulfilled—

(a) the measure is necessary for one of the following reasons—

(i) public policy, in particular the prevention, investigation, detection and prosecution of criminal offences, including the protection of minors and the fight against any incitement to hatred on grounds of race, sex, age, religion, nationality and violations of human dignity concerning individual persons;

(ii) the protection of public health;

(iii) public security, including the safeguarding of the security and defence of Gibraltar;

(iv) the protection of consumers, including investors;

(b) taken against an on-demand audiovisual media service which prejudices the objectives referred to in paragraph (a) or which presents a serious and grave risk of prejudice to those objective; and

(c) is proportionate to those objectives.

(3) The measures that the Authority may adopt pursuant to subsection (2) shall include the immediate cessation of the service or its cessation within a stated time frame.

(4) Subject to subsection (5), the Authority shall take a measure pursuant to subsection (2) where the following conditions are satisfied—

- (a) the Member State under whose jurisdiction the provider falls has been asked to take measures and that Member State has not taken such measures, or, if it has, they were inadequate;
- (b) the Commission and the Member State under whose jurisdiction the provider falls have been informed of the Authority's intention to take such measures;
- (c) where the reason for the intended adoption of a measure is the safeguarding of the internal security or defence of Gibraltar and is of such a nature as to fall within the Governor's constitutional responsibilities and the Governor has informed the Minister that the measure needs to be taken who so directs the Authority.

(5) The Authority may take a measure pursuant to subsection (2) without complying with the requirements of subsection (4) (a) and (b) where it deems the matter to be of urgency, but shall, in such cases, ensure that the Commission and the relevant Member State, are notified as soon as practicable of the measure taken, and indicate the reasons for the urgency.

(6) The Authority shall—

- (a) put an end, as a matter of urgency, to any measure it adopts pursuant to subsection (2);
- (b) refrain from adopting a proposed measure pursuant to subsection (2), where the Commission informs it, in accordance with Article 3(6) of the AVMS Directive, that the measure, or proposed measure, is contrary to European Union law.

(7) Where an on-demand audiovisual media service provider under Gibraltar jurisdiction is in breach of a legislative or administrative provision in a Member State which is equivalent to subsection (2) above, that on-demand audiovisual media service provider commits an offence under this Act.

(8) Any person who continues to provide an on-demand audiovisual media service contrary to a measure adopted by the Authority pursuant to subsection (2) commits an offence.

(9) A person who commits an offence under subsections (7) or (8) is liable—

- (a) on summary conviction, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale or to both; or
- (b) on conviction on indictment, to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 2 years or to a fine or both.

European works (on-demand audiovisual services).

41A.(1) On-demand audiovisual media services provided by media service providers under Gibraltar jurisdiction shall promote, where practicable and by appropriate means, the production of and access to European works.

(2) The promotion referred to in subsection (1) may relate, in particular, to the financial contribution made by such services to the production and rights acquisition of European works or to the share or prominence of European works in the catalogue of programmes offered by the on-demand audiovisual media service.

(3) The Authority shall ensure that reports are sent to the Commission in accordance with the AVMS Directive on the implementation of this section.”;

- (60) in clause 42(1)(a) for “Government of Gibraltar” substitute “Government”;

[This amendment and amendment 61 correct typographical errors. In respect of Section 41(4)(c) wording is inserted to clarify how the Authority will act when the Governor considers a measure should be taken for internal security purposes; which will require the Minister to communicate that requirement to the Authority]

- (61) in clause 42(4)-

(a) in paragraph (b) for “applied” substitute “be applied”;

(b) in paragraph (d) for “Community” substitute “European”;

- (62) delete clause 43;

[This amendment and amendment (63) are made as it is thought that such matters if legislated for would be best suited to secondary legislation.]

- (63) delete Part VIII (Conditional access consisting of clauses 45 and 46);

- (64) in clause 47(2) for “the Minister” substitute “the Chief Minister, after consultation with the Leader of the Opposition,”;

[This amendment is to impose a requirement on the Chief Minister to consult with the Leader of the Opposition before making any appointment to the GBC board.]

- (65) in clause 53(2) for “corporation” substitute “GBC”;

[This amendment and amendments (66) and (67) correct errors in terminology.]

(66) in clause 54(1) for "corporation" substitute "GBC";

(67) in clause 54(4) for "GBC" substitute "the GBC";

(68) for clause 57(2) substitute-

"(2) The accounts of the GBC shall be audited by an auditor who shall be a person or firm registered in Part I, or II in the case of firms, of the Register maintained under the provisions of the Auditors Approval and Registration Act 1988.";

[This amendment provides for greater independence of the GBC in that the Minister will no longer be able to impose his choice of auditor upon them.]

(69) in clause 61 for "of the Authority under this Act or any Regulations made under it" substitute "of this Act";

[This amendment is to clarify the language used in the original Bill.]

(70) in clause 67-

- (i) in subsection (4)(b) delete "the Minister or";
- (ii) in subsection (6) for "the Minister" substitute "the Authority";
- (iii) in subsection (9) for "the Minister or the Authority, as the case may be," substitute "the Authority";

[These amendments are examples of the transfer of powers from the Minister to the Authority.]

(71) for clause 69 substitute-

"Offences.

69.(1) It is an offence for any person to be responsible for any act or omission contrary to the provisions of this Act or required to be done by the Authority pursuant to the provisions of this Act.

(2) Any person found guilty of an offence contrary to subsection (1) is punishable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twice level 5 on the standard scale.”.

[This amendment and amendments (72) to (74) import provisions from the AVMS regulations.]

(72) after clause 70 insert-

“Continuation of the offence.

70A. Without prejudice to the right to bring separate proceedings for contraventions of this Act taking place on separate occasions, a person who is convicted of an offence under this Act shall, where the offence continues after the conviction—

- (a) be deemed to commit a separate offence in respect of every day on which the offence so continues; and
- (b) be liable on summary conviction or on conviction on indictment as the case may be, together with such liability as may be stipulated in this Act, to a fine not exceeding level 5 on the standard scale for each such day.”;

(73) after clause 71 insert-

“Civil proceedings.

71A. Subject to Part XII, nothing in this Act shall limit any right of any person to bring civil proceedings in respect of any act or omission rendered unlawful by any provision of this Act, and, without prejudice to the generality of the preceding words, compliance with the provisions of this Act, contraventions of which are declared to be offences under this Act, shall be enforceable by civil proceedings by the Authority for an injunction or for any other appropriate relief.”;

(74) after clause 72 insert-

“Regulatory Co-operation.

72A.(1) The Authority shall cooperate with the regulatory bodies in the Member States which are responsible for ensuring compliance with the AVMS Directive in their Member States, particularly when necessary—

- (a) to carry out its duties under this Act;
- (b) to assist the regulatory bodies in the Member States in the exercise of their duties pursuant to the AVMS Directive;
- (c) to provide each other with the information necessary for the application of the AVMS Directive and in particular Articles 2, 3 and 4 thereof.

(2) The Authority shall notify the Commission of any information it provides pursuant to paragraph (c) of subsection (1).

72B.(1) Where the Authority—

- (a) receives, under Article 4 of the Audiovisual Media Services Directive, a request from a Member State relating to a relevant broadcaster, and
- (b) considers that the request is substantiated, it must ask the broadcaster to comply with the rule identified in that request.

(2) The Authority shall enforce the rule referred in subsection (1) as if it were a rule provided for under this Act.

(3) In this section "relevant broadcaster" means a broadcaster who is under Gibraltar jurisdiction.";

(75) after clause 73(2) insert-

" (3) The Audiovisual Media Services Regulations 2011 are revoked.";

[This amendment revokes the AVMS regulations, the necessary parts of which have been moved into the Bill itself.]

(76) in Schedule 1 for "Section 16" substitute "Section 17";

[This amendment corrects a cross referencing error.]

(77) in Schedule 1 delete paragraph 1 and renumber the following paragraphs as paragraphs 1 to 9;

[This amendment is consequential on the removal of references to the Transmission Standards Directive.]

(78) in Schedule 2 for "Section 17" substitute "Section 18";

[This amendment corrects a cross referencing error.]

(79) in Schedule 2 in paragraph 3 for "the Minister" substitute "the Authority";

[This amendment and amendment (80) are consequential to the passing of powers etc from the Minister to the Authority etc.]

(80) in Schedule 2 paragraph 6 delete ", in consultation with the Minister,";

(81) in Schedule 3 for "section 22" substitute "Section 23";

[This amendment corrects a cross referencing error.]

(82) in the explanatory memorandum delete the second sentence.

[This amendment removes references to certain directives no longer relevant to the Bill from the explanatory memorandum.]

I shall look forward to the debate on Friday.

With best wishes, as ever,

2775 Clerk: Shall I read out clause 1 to clause 75?

Mr Chairman: Sorry, did you say to 75 or 25?

2780 Clerk: Clauses 1 to 75.

Mr Chairman: Does any hon. Member on either side of the House wish to raise any particular clause – in that entire Bill, virtually?

2785 In that case, clauses 1 to 75, as amended in terms proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister in his letter to me of yesterday's date, stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Schedules 1 to 3.

2790 Mr Chairman: Schedules 1 to 3, again as amended, if indeed there are any amendments there – yes, there are. Schedules 1 to 3, as amended, stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: The long title, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Criminal Justice (Amendment) Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

2815 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 and the Crimes Act 2011. Clauses 1 to 3.

2820 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Chairman, in clause 3 –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): The whole thing stands.

Hon. G H Licudi: So I do not have to move the – 2825 Mr Chairman: No, unless there are any –

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, I am just moving the amendment –

2830 Mr Chairman: Formally.

Hon. G H Licudi: – formally for the record.

Hon. Chief Minister: For all of them.

2835 Hon. G H Licudi: I am certainly not going to read them all out, but after clause 3.(4) we insert the provision which is set out attached to my letter to you, Mr Chairman, of 21st September 2012.

Mr Chairman: In that case, we will treat the amendments proposed in the Hon. the Minister for Justice's letter to me of 21st September as having been formally tabled and, again, Hansard will record the letter as part of its record.

Tribute to the Speaker

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2890 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, before I move the amendment this afternoon – this evening (Several Members: Adjournment.). Sorry, before I move the adjournment this evening – (Interjection) No more amendments! I think it is apposite to say a few words about the service you have given this Chamber.

2895 Today will be your last day in the Chair as a matter of your own choice, expressed to us after the election, that your wish was to have done eight years in that Chair. Perhaps that is a salutary message for those who occupy the Chair I now occupy.

Mr Speaker, I can say no more about the way that you have discharged your functions to all of the Members of this place and to this place and our community, other than to record the history of your appointments. From this side of the House, when we were opposite, when you were first proposed as Speaker, we abstained on your appointment for the reasons that are set out in the Hansard. When you were next proposed as Speaker, we were very happy to explain why we would support you. And on the third appointment, I was actually honoured to recommend you.

2900 Mr Speaker, if we had any concerns at the time that you were first appointed, you quickly allayed them, treating every Member of this House fairly and bringing your honesty and integrity to the discharge of your functions for Gibraltar, not just in this place but everywhere that you represented this Parliament and the people of Gibraltar abroad. Your conduct as Speaker has been, I am sure, despite the many disagreements you may have had with Members of both sides of the House, everything that the House expected from you and that any House in the Commonwealth can expect from a Speaker appointed for the purpose that holding that Chair requires.

2910 The reasons that you leave Parliament are totally unconnected in our minds to the matters which were ventilated in the press, in our view, so unfairly, earlier this year, and those do not in any way mar the service that you have given this community and this Chamber. You leave, Mr Speaker, of your own volition, I trust with the support, I am sure, of all Members of this House and with recognition of what it is that you have managed to do, and if I may say so, important in that context that you are the first Hindu person in our community to be appointed to the chair and I trust that you will not be the last.

2915 Mr Speaker, for those who are listening I think it is important to explain that, with the guidance of yourself and the Clerk, we have agreed that you will remain Speaker of this Parliament until after the deadline for submitting Questions for the next session so that there is a Speaker in place who can rule on the admissibility of Questions; that you will vacate the chair on the eve of the next meeting; and that Mr Adolfo Canepa, whose name I have already consulted the Leader of the Opposition on, will assume the chair, subject to the vote of this House, on the next sitting of this House in October.

2920 All I can say, Mr Speaker, on behalf of the Government and of the people of Gibraltar, and I trust on behalf of all Members in the Chamber, is thank you, not just for what you have done but also for how you have done it. (Applause)

2925 Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Deputy Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much.

2930 Mr Speaker, it is not often – and I wish that it were different – that myself and the Hon. the Chief Minister are ad idem and are in agreement in relation to something, and this is certainly one of those issues.

2935 We have had our disagreements, Mr Speaker. I have taken one or two raps on the knuckles myself – perhaps some less gracious than others. Some I have felt that perhaps they were not merited but I am absolutely certain that every comment that you have made has always been made in good faith and that you have discharged your duties in good faith to the best of your abilities and in a way that you have believed to be impartial and fair, and on the whole, certainly, the Opposition agrees with that.

2940 It only leaves me to associate myself entirely with the words of the Chief Minister and certainly, on this occasion, he not only speaks on behalf of the Government but he speaks on behalf of the entire House. (Applause)

Mr Speaker: If I may, I gratefully acknowledge the very kind and generous sentiments expressed both by the Hon. the Chief Minister and by the Hon. the Deputy Leader of the Opposition.

2945 If I may be permitted a few words for the last time in this Chair before I formally accede to the motion for the adjournment... if I may say a few words.

Rarely, if ever in life, does the unsolicited opportunity present itself quite out of the blue to serve one's country at its highest level, but that is precisely what happened to me when the then Chief Minister, the Hon. Peter Caruana, telephoned me on 3rd August 2004 to ask whether I would be willing to accept appointment as Speaker of the House of Assembly, as this august body was then known. Needless to say, without a moment's hesitation, I gratefully accepted the huge honour that had unexpectedly been bestowed upon me and I set off with relish to face what I perceived would be the greatest challenge of my life.

Although the Opposition, at the time led by the Hon. Joe Bossano, had its reservations as to the suitability of my appointment and voted accordingly, in keeping with the best traditions of our parliamentary democracy, the office to which I had been appointed was at all times treated with the utmost respect and deference by all the elected Members, and it goes without saying every kindness and courtesy was extended to me at a personal level.

I was particularly gratified when the Opposition, having kept an open mind during the three years that followed, were able to support my reappointment in 2007, and I was humbled when the Hon. Fabian Picardo, as Chief Minister, proposed my further reappointment last December.

While I had some theoretical general knowledge of the workings of parliaments based on the Westminster model, I will always be indebted to the late Dennis Reyes, who, as Clerk, guided me in my early days through the practices and procedures of our own legislature, and to Melvyn Farrell, who has since continued in that office to provide invaluable support and assistance to me in the performance of my duties. (Applause) I am also grateful to Kevin Balban, Frances Garro, and before her Audrey Gomez – I think she is now Lopez – and to Stephen Bonich, who make up the rest of our parliamentary complement, for the courtesies extended to me as they have cheerfully and efficiently gone about their work largely behind the scenes.

Apart from my duties here, I have had the honour to represent Gibraltar at no less than 10 Commonwealth Parliamentary conferences – plenary, regional and of Speakers – around the globe, when I have had the privilege to meet hundreds of parliamentarians from 55 countries and the heads of state of Kenya, Malta, Nigeria, India, Trinidad and Tobago and Sri Lanka, and of course our own sovereign, Her Majesty the Queen. My attendances at these conferences have enabled me to learn something about how other parliaments conduct their business, but what has given me the greatest pleasure and sense of purpose was the opportunity to tell those out there about Gibraltar, its institutions and the mature and stable parliamentary democracy that we enjoy.

To summarise, in the words of a well-known song, 'I've had the time of my life', but as with everything else in life, there must come a time to call it a day. Although our Constitution confers upon a Chief Minister the choice, subject to consultation with the Leader of the Opposition and approval by the Elected Members, of Speaker following the election of a new Parliament, we follow the convention that has long prevailed at Westminster that, in order to avoid politicising the office, the incumbent is usually reappointed as often as he is willing and able to carry on in the Chair. The onus, therefore, is upon the Speaker to ensure that he does not overstay his welcome. In that context, I have long held the view that the Speaker should serve about two parliamentary terms, and certainly no more than 10 years, if the incumbent is not to become too closely identified with the office. That is the view I expressed to the Chief Minister last December and I believe the time has now come for me to relinquish this distinguished office, which I do on the eve of the next sitting of Parliament.

I conclude by invoking, as it has been my honour and privilege to do in the prayer recited by me at the commencement of each sitting of this House these last eight years, divine guidance on all your deliberations for the good of our City. (Applause and banging on desks)

Hon. Chief Minister: If I may be allowed to add, Mr Speaker, I am sure that your service to Gibraltar has not ended today.

MOTION FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF THE SPEAKER

Mr Adolfo John Canepa, GMH, OBE appointed Speaker of the Gibraltar Parliament

Clerk: Government motion: motion for the appointment of the Speaker of the Gibraltar Parliament, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Presiding Member, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

‘That Adolfo John Canepa, GMH, OBE be appointed Speaker of the Gibraltar Parliament.’

Mr Presiding Member, let me start by saying that I have appointed you in keeping with the provisions of section 26(2) of the Constitution to preside over the motion of the appointment of the new Speaker in this Parliament, because your appointment today as Presiding Member follows the absence of the Hon. Mr Joe Bossano, the Father of this House, who is travelling in pursuit of his ministerial responsibilities for inward investment.

In deciding who should be appointed today as Presiding Member, in the absence of the Hon. Mr Bossano, I have had regard to the practice previously established in this House. Before the new Constitution, it was common for one of the two ex officio Members to be appointed to the Chair in the absence of Mr Speaker. After the new Constitution, when the ex officio Members were removed from this place, there have only in my recollection been two instances when we have required a Presiding Member. The second was the instance of Mr Bossano presiding over the appointment of Mr Budhrani as Speaker, just after the recent General Election. The first was the appointment of Mr Budhrani as Speaker after the 2007 General Election. In that case, on 8th November 2007, the Hon. Mr Joe Holliday, then the Deputy Chief Minister, as you are today, was appointed as Presiding Member.

Enough though, about the mechanics of appointing a Presiding Member.

The motion standing in my name reads, as I have just said:

‘That the House do appoint Mr Adolfo Canepa, GMH, OBE as Speaker of this Parliament.’

What can I say of Mr Canepa’s trajectory of public service that this place is not already alive to, given that he spent most of his time in public service here?

From 1972 – the same year and in the same election as the Hon. Mr Joe Bossano – Mr Canepa served in this House as a Member for the Association for the Advancement of Civil Rights (AACR), a historic party in the politics of our formation, if ever there was one. For 16 years, Mr Canepa was both a Minister and, from 1987 to 1988, Chief Minister. From 1988 to 1992, Mr Canepa was Leader of the Opposition. I am delighted to propose that he now return to this place, no longer a House of Assembly but a Parliament, as its own Speaker.

The community as a whole knew Adolfo Canepa as one of the teachers who turned to politics when his country needed him, a grammarian who took great pride in doing everything just right. In a career that led him to the very top of politics, no-one has ever suggested that Adolfo – as he is affectionately known to his many friends – has been anything other than a gentleman at every turn.

Indeed, in whatever role he has fulfilled to date in this House, Adolfo Canepa has never been found wanting. I am sure that he will be more than up to the role of Speaker of this Parliament now, and I know that the whole House will want to support him in the important function he will discharge in the Chair.

Indeed, I think that for ex-politicians in particular, taking the Speaker’s Chair must in some ways constitute exquisite torture of a sort, given that the role involves much listening and very little intervening, however strongly one may feel on a subject. However hard a role that may be, there is no doubt in my mind that Adolfo Canepa has all the attributes necessary to discharge the functions of Speaker of this House.

Mr Presiding Member, the politics of 1972 to 1992 was very different to the politics of today in many ways. In some ways, the politics of those years appears in hindsight better than today’s, in the respect there was among Members and the decorum of the House, something which may appear to have been lost, perhaps through no fault of the previous incumbent of the post of Speaker, who did a sterling job himself in that seat.

If the appointment of Mr Canepa serves to re-establish some of that respect and decorum, by a sharing of his experience of the better politics of the 1970s and 1980s, then that alone will be a good thing. In that respect, Mr Canepa will be assured of the respect of this side of the House for his Rulings, even and perhaps most importantly, when we might vehemently disagree with a determination of his, unusual though I expect that to be.

Moreover, I am sure I speak for the whole House when I say that his political trajectory and his personal integrity is such that Mr Canepa will no doubt command the respect of the whole community in the discharge of his functions as Speaker. I am equally sure that he will be able to represent Gibraltar internationally at Commonwealth Parliamentary Association Conferences and other events perfectly, with the benefit of that experience which I have alluded to earlier.

Finally, Mr Presiding Member, in terms of sweet ironies, you will recall that the launch of our own political party in the early 1990s coincided not providentially with the announcement of the 1992 General Election by the Hon. Mr Joe Bossano, who triggered, as a result, the retirement from active politics of Mr

Canepa. What a pleasure it is for us on this side of the House, therefore, to now move the motion for Mr Canepa's return to Parliament. (Applause)

Mr Presiding Member: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Chief Minister.

Hon. P R Caruana: It is a great privilege for me on behalf of the Opposition Members of the House to indicate our intention, as we have done publicly before today, to support this motion. Indeed, I am able to endorse everything that the Hon. the Chief Minister has said about the candidate, Adolfo Canepa, even though we have a disagreement with him about what he said about the mechanics for the appointment of the Presiding Officer, which we will not air on this occasion, so as not to tarnish or spoil, not just for Adolfo, but indeed for his family here present and indeed for this House, for which it is also a special occasion, the happy occasion that is his elevation to the Bench. Whatever we have to say on that mechanical matter can wait for another day.

As I say, I endorse what the Chief Minister has said about the attributes that so eminently qualify Adolfo Canepa to preside over this Chamber. It is not just because he has been a past Chief Minister and as such a leader of the Gibraltar Government and has held ministerial office, therefore not just because he has been an important part of the Executive of Gibraltar and has all the experience and all the understanding of Government and how Government works and will therefore be able to bring that to bear in the rulings and in the assessments that he makes, when this House tries to hold the Government to account as is its function; but also because, whilst a Member of this House, as a Member of Parliament, as opposed to a Member of the Government, he has sat on both its sides, both on the Government side and on the Opposition side. He therefore intrinsically understands both the needs that the Government side has for its work to be successfully done in this House, but he also I suspect has an intrinsic understanding of the needs that the Opposition side of the House has, in its no less important task of holding the Government to account. I have no doubt that Adolfo Canepa, when those political qualifications are added to his personal qualities, will be more than able to ensure that the way that he presides over this House will reflect that Parliament is not the Government; that Parliament is a different and separate institution from the Government; and that within this Parliament, the Government is not entitled to particular special treatment, even though, of course, the Speaker has to ensure the Government can do its business effectively, in steering its legislative programme through this House, but that the Parliament is a different and separate institution, in which both sides are entitled to the same equality and even-handedness of treatment, because what this House is is a Chamber of Members of Parliament. It is not a House of the Government and the Opposition; it is a Chamber of Members of Parliament, some of whom sit on the Government benches and others of whom sit on the Opposition benches.

In a more enlarged, indeed more developed Parliament, there would be a back bench on the Government side and they would be ordinary Members of Parliament, thereby emphasising the difference, which is sometimes lost in the context of our very small Parliament, where all the Members on the Government side are in the executive – that is to say, in the Government and all the Members on the Opposition side are on the Opposition front bench and there is no back bench on either side. That leads to a subconscious blurring of the essence that Parliament is a Chamber of Members of Parliament, each of whom is equal and each of whom is equal in the eyes of the duties of the Speaker to each other, because nobody is here other than in the capacity as a Member, some with executive responsibilities and others with the responsibilities to hold the executive to account.

Of course, it is inevitable that, whenever two parliamentarians have a disagreement, both feel that they are correct with equal measure of passion and certainty, and that it falls upon the Speaker to adjudicate between them, and that the person on the receiving end of an unfavourable Ruling is almost certainly left feeling a sense of grievance and a sense of wrong. That is fine. That is fine, so long as there is a balance in which the same party does not always end up on the losing side and the same party does not always end up on the winning side. I have not the remotest doubt in my mind that Adolfo Canepa is a man that is not only capable of presiding over this House in a way of which we will all approve, but that indeed will do so, as a matter of personal conviction and as a matter of personal desire.

I should just add, in conclusion, that we ourselves, I myself, tried to nominate Adolfo for the post of Speaker during a past term. It coincided with a less felicitous part of his life, in terms of things going on within his family, and he felt unable at that time to accept the invitation, but nevertheless, it is therefore a double delight for me to be able to support his appointment, at a time that is more convenient to him and his family circumstances.

I support the motion. (Applause)

Mr Presiding Member: If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, I will call on the mover to reply.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Presiding Member, a lot has been said by the hon. Gentleman with which I agree. I think the most important aspect of what he has said with which I agree, having sat on the Opposition Benches for eight years, is that all of us in this House are equal. All of us are Members of Parliament and nothing else, and I am delighted that that realisation has now alighted upon him and that we have no doubt also, on this side of the House, that because he has been on both sides of the House, but perhaps most importantly, because of his personal integrity, Adolfo Canepa will know how to rule on each occasion on which he is called upon to rule, in a manner that is in keeping with the Rules of this House, whoever and wherever the person that may be the subject of his Ruling may sit.

Mr Presiding Member, I think that the best way to approach the appointment of Adolfo Canepa is to thank the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition for confirming that this motion will pass with unanimity, because I think in that way we show in this Parliament that Adolfo Canepa enjoys the respect of the whole of the community for the job he is going to discharge from that Chair.

I would ask all Members of the House to note that, when we get a little bit hot under the collar and Mr Speaker, has to intervene, we should perhaps have less regard to how he rules, but rather to the fact that we have made him rule and perhaps we should have more pause for thought on those occasions ourselves.

Mr Presiding Member: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. Chief Minister. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

The Presiding Member took his place on the Government benches.

Clerk: Mr Speaker.

There was applause as Mr Speaker, took the Chair.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH OF ALLEGIANCE TO THE SPEAKER

Clerk: Oath of Allegiance of the Speaker, to the Hon. Adolfo John Canepa.

The Chief Justice administered the Oath of Allegiance to Hon. A J Canepa as follows:

Mr Speaker: I, Adolfo John Canepa do swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second, Her Heirs and Successors according to law, so help me God.

ADDRESS BY THE SPEAKER

Mr Speaker: I wish to thank all hon. Members for, as it were, elevating me today to this high office, to a position that I had thought some years ago would never come my way. It is really a case of 'third time lucky', and I am overwhelmed by the realisation that I am here today amongst you, after an absence of nearly 21 years.

May I also thank very specially, the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition for their kind words when speaking on the motion.

All Members of Parliament are servants of the people and, to some extent, the Speaker is the servant of the servants of the people. I will therefore do everything that I can to help hon. Members in the conduct of their business in this House, whenever they seek my help and advice.

But I also have an almost sacred duty to the august institution that is Parliament. In this regard, I will strive to protect and defend the powers and privileges of Parliament and its Members, whenever that might become necessary. Above all, I pledge myself to uphold the dignity of this House and not to allow it to be brought into disrepute.

An important factor in this connection is, of course, the requirement to enforce the observance of all Rules and Standing Orders for ensuring and preserving the orderly conduct of its proceedings. I am confident that, in this respect, I will be able to count on the support and help of all hon. Members.

In conclusion, may I say that I count it a privilege to have been born in a democracy; a greater one to have already served in this place for 20 years; but the greatest privilege and honour is to be given the opportunity by hon. Members to preside over the business and deliberations of our Gibraltar Parliament.

Thank you. (Applause)

City Fire Brigade GHA Medical Priority Dispatch System

Clerk: Question 835/2012, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

240

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with the responsibility for the City Fire Brigade commit himself to state when the Medical Priority Dispatch System of the GHA, linked in with the City Fire Brigade, will go live?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, discussions are currently in place between the Ministers of Health Service, Justice and Fire Brigade to discuss the best way forward to set up the Medical Priority Dispatch System.

250

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, was not the aim to implement the system and go live in October of this year? Could he explain, what has been the delay?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I am not aware that it was supposed to have been in October that it should have gone live.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Hon. Minister explain what the delay is in the system going live?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, as far as I am concerned, there is no delay at all.

260 Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Lady have any other supplementary?
Next question.

265 International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’ Government sponsorship

Clerk: Question 836, the Hon. E J Reyes.

270 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Culture and Heritage provide details of his Ministry’s sponsorship of the International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’ held in Gibraltar during the month of October 2012?

275 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Ministry’s sponsorship for the International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’ is £28,000. Government will be in a position to provide a breakdown and further information in due course.

280 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I ask the Minister, when he says this will be provided in due course, is it something he hopes or intends to publish on the web-site, or is it something that I should seek as a question in a future meeting?

285 Hon. S E Linares: Both, Mr Speaker, if he wants to. It will be on the website and I can even, if he asks the question in the next Parliament, I will answer it.

290 Parson’s Lodge
Works carried out

Clerk: Question 837, the Hon. E J Reyes.

295 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Heritage provide details of all works carried out at Parson’s Lodge since January 2012, indicating the type of work, by whom undertaken and breakdown of costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

300 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Member opposite a detailed schedule of works carried out in Parson’s Lodge since the start in January 2012.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 837

Works carried out at Parson’s Lodge since the start of January 2012.

CONTRACTOR	INV.DATE	AMOUNT	DESCRIPTION OF WORKS
J BALBAN ELECTRICAL	03/04/2012	£30.00	CHECK HEATER SUPPLY
K DESOIZA (PLUMBER)	16/04/2012	£1,270.00	REPLACE WATER HEATER & INSTALLATION OF INDIVIDUAL SHOWERS
GJBS LTD	20/07/2012	£140.00	REPAIRS TO WATER LEAK
J BALBAN ELECTRICAL	25/07/2012	£217.00	CHECK PORTABLE GENERATOR & AUXILIARIES, CHECK INSTALLATION & REPAIRS
GREENARC	30/07/2012	£350.00	SUPPLY POTS , DISHES, COMPOST & PLANTED FERNS ETC.
CIAP	13/08/2012	£125.00	SUPPLY & REPLACE DOOR LOCK - ENTRANCE
ABC CLEANING COMPANY	15/08/2012	£536.76	DEEP CLEANING PREMISES
ETB 1	15/08/2012	£550.00	REMOVE FLAKING PAINT & REPAINT EXTERIOR WALLS
	29/06/2012	£4,550.00	PAINT TERRACES, RAILING, WALL & REMOVE GRASS & BRANCHES - PHASE 1
	26/07/2012	£4,550.00	PAINT TERRACES, RAILING, WALL & REMOVE GRASS & BRANCHES - PHASE 2
	29/06/2012	£4,850.00	REPAIR RAILINGS & LOCKS,MANUFACTURE NEW STAIRS, PAINT ROOMS, DOORS, RAILING & REPLACE LOOSE TILES ON TERRACE
TOTAL		£17,168.76

305 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can I ask the hon. Member as well, I notice one of the items being the removal of flaking paint and repainting exterior walls and so on: have these works been carried out under a licence issued, as required by legislation, by the Minister for Heritage?

310 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, because the actual scraping and re-painting is not on heritage walls. They are the actual place where all the people stay below, so it is not the actual Parson's Lodge, the one that needs painting, so there is no need for that.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, for clarification, those repair works entail parts of the site which are not necessarily the heritage building, strictly speaking?

315 Hon. S E Linares: Absolutely.

Gibraltar Music Festival Payments to Axel Media and Word of Mouth

Clerk: Question 838, the Hon. E J Reyes.

325 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to Question 708/2012, can the Minister for Culture now provide details of payments made, or committed to make, in favour of Axel Media and Word of Mouth in respect of the production and organisation of the Gibraltar Music Festival?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

330 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, full details of payments have not been finalised.

Government will be in a position to do so before the next Parliament session, if not before.

Cultural Grants Details for financial year

Clerk: Question 839, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to Question 709/2012, can the Minister for Culture now provide details of Cultural Grants made, or committed to make, this financial year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Member a schedule of the detailed information.

Victoria Stadium
Football pitch resurfacing works

355 Clerk: Question 840, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of the football pitch resurfacing works which are currently taking place at Victoria Stadium, inclusive of costs and completion dates?

360 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the works to resurface the synthetic turf pitch at the Victoria Stadium with a FIFA 2 Star system have already commenced. Expected duration of the works, weather permitting, is between four to six weeks.

365 The total cost of these works is estimated at approximately £300,000. Exact costs are not possible until the extent of the repairs, etc of the current turf is assessed.

The turf going to be installed is Limonta, the same supplier as the existing one.

370 Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

When the Minister says that the completion date is estimated to be between four to six weeks, four to six weeks I take it probably from the commencement date and I would like a bit of greater detail on when it actually commenced.

I have seen for myself that the works have commenced, but I do not know when they actually commenced.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the contractor has assured us that it would be four to six weeks from the commencement, so therefore we are now two weeks, the second week into the works. So I am hoping that it will then take two to four weeks as from now.

380 Hon. E J Reyes: May I add and ask the Hon. Minister, as an inevitable consequence of this, there has been obviously a delay in the commencement, for example, of the football league and so on. Would the Sports Authority be willing to contemplate greater use during weekends, for example Sundays, when traditionally there has not been as much use of the pitch, so that sporting associations do not lose out in the amount of time available by the end of the season?

385 In other words, if the football league has not been able to commence, in order to be able to squeeze in extra matches in the remaining weeks, would there be an extension of time available when the pitch may be booked?

390 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I hope that does not happen and the pitch is done on time. But should it happen, I am sure that if the associations make representation to the Sports and Leisure Authority, the Sports and Leisure Authority will be willing to accommodate whatever these sporting associations' needs are.

Europa Sports Ground
Development exclusively for football

400 Clerk: Question 841, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure confirm to this House that it is Government's intention to develop the Europa Sports Ground exclusively for the sport of football?

405 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Government is currently considering with stakeholders the different uses to which the Europa grounds may be put.

410 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I have read in public statements from the Football Association, whereby they claim that the Europa Sports Ground will be exclusively developed for them. Is the Minister in a position to give or to confirm the veracity of that statement or otherwise?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman, having been Minister for Sport for some time, will understand the sensitivities of some of these issues. They are UEFA issues there, in relation to whether there will be an exclusive football facility at Europa.

I am quite happy to give him the information I have about that, behind the Speaker's Chair, at any time this morning, if he wishes.

Hon. E J Reyes: I will take up the Chief Minister's offer and will discuss later.

Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority Centre Manager vacancy

Clerk: Question 842, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure say as from when the post of Centre Manager within the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority has been vacant and by when it is expected that this position will be filled?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority will soon be publishing an advert for a vacancy for the post of Centre Manager. It is expected to be able to fill this post by no later than the end of January 2013.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, the first part of my question was 'as from when the post of Centre Manager of the Sports Authority has been vacant'. Perhaps the Minister has omitted that part in his reply?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the post of Centre Manager has been vacant... I think it was around June, when we took over the GASA swimming pool. Therefore, the Centre Manager at the time was moved to the pool and he became the Pool Manager. Therefore the vacancy started from when he moved to the pool and I think it was in June.

I can give him the exact date later on, but it was around June, when we took over the pool.

Hon. E J Reyes: Is the Minister in a position to confirm that there has been at least another GSLA employee acting for the post of Centre Manager, since this vacancy arose in June?

Hon. S E Linares: As I understand it, yes.

Cricket and rugby
Discussion with associations re renewed facilities

Clerk: Question 843, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. Hon. E J Reyes: I am very grateful for this schedule, which obviously requires some time to look further, but it has come to my notice in a quick perusal, Mr Speaker, in the Estimate Book, there is a responsibility assigned to the Sports and Leisure Authority for the Old Garrison Gymnasium and yet there is no schedule here that comes under the heading of the Garrison Gymnasium, therefore I have no first sight of indication of any allocation made in respect of that particular asset.

Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, the fact is, as he well knows – he was the Minister for Sport – that the Garrison Gymnasium is under the auspices of GABA and therefore all the allocations that are appertaining to the Garrison Gymnasium are to do with GABA.

He has asked for the allocations; he has not asked for specific amounts as to how much the expenditure is. This is a completely different question. Had he asked what the expenditure was and where that money goes – and I am sure he already knows where it does go – I would have supplied it to him.

530 But the fact is that the Garrison Gymnasium is under the auspice of GABA and all the allocations, which is the question that he has asked, are GABA's.

535 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, my question was, I wanted details of fixed bookings and allocations. What I now interpret from the supplementary answer offered by the Minister is that the Garrison Gymnasium, lock, stock and barrel, is assigned to GABA who then in turn may sub-allocate out or whatever. At least, I think I now have that confirmation that the Garrison Gymnasium is a fixed allocation given to GABA – is that not the case?

540 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, it continues to be, from many years ago, actually – I think it was transferred by the previous administration, way back in 1998 or 2000. So yes, it does continue to be.

Mr Speaker: I take it that 'GABA' means the Gibraltar Amateur Basketball Association.

Hon. S E Linares: Gibraltar Amateur Basketball Association.

545 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I am not trying to [inaudible] I think I now have the reply. It continues to be, therefore I can confirm or I take the Minister is confirming that for the 2012-13 season, as in previous years, it is allocated to GABA. (Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Sir) That suffices, Mr Speaker.

EQUALITY AND SOCIAL SERVICES

Care Agency

555 New Chief Executive Officer

Clerk: Question 879, the Hon. J J Netto.

560 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services confirm that Mr Albert Bruzon is the new Chief Executive Officer of the Care Agency and if so, whether this is on a permanent basis or for a specified period in time?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

565 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, Mr Bruzon has been seconded to the Care Agency to carry out the functions of the CEO for a period of 12 to 18 months.

570 Hon. J J Netto: Is it the view, perhaps, of the Minister that, following the secondment between 12 to 18 months, Mr Bruzon will then perhaps become the permanent Chief Executive Officer; or perhaps the Minister is thinking that the position itself will be trawled either internally within the Care Agency or perhaps even externally as well?

575 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, any post for any permanent appointment position, Mr Speaker, would be advertised. It would not be assumed that anyone would fill any permanent post.

Hon. J J Netto: Can I just clarify when the hon. Lady says 'advertise', it means advertise within the Care Agency or advertise in Gibraltar PLC?

580 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, at this stage, it is too early to say.

Hon. J J Netto: Can I just ask a further supplementary question, Mr Speaker?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

585 Hon. J J Netto: Given that we have a situation where there was somebody acting on that particular post, I think almost round about the time of the last Election, so obviously that particular person... Sorry, it seems that my voice needs to get a bit...

I am just thinking that given the fact that there was somebody already acting on the job, presumably that person has now reverted back to their substantive position and Mr Bruzon is now acting on a seconded purpose.

Is there any particular reason or review that Mr Bruzon will be conducting over this particular period for which he has been seconded, that perhaps the other person who had been acting for round about 12 months could not have done?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the person who was acting in post when we came into Government has been acting for a period of approximately 10 months. I understand, when that person was appointed to be acting was asked to act for a couple of months. There was then a transition in Government and I asked that person to stay on a little bit longer for purposes of continuity.

That person approached me and said that she wanted to stand down from the post and, on that basis, Mr Bruzon was seconded to cover.

HOUSING AND THE ELDERLY

Empty flats

Breakdown of repairs awaited

Clerk: Question 880, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing state how many flats are currently empty and awaiting repairs, giving a breakdown in respect of: (a) pre-war and post-war homes; (b) flat size composition; (c) dates from when these homes have been empty; and (d) nature of repairs required to be undertaken?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Yes, Mr Speaker, the information requested is available in Tables H30 and H31 on the Government's website as part of the On-Line Monthly Statistics.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I may require a bit of guidance from you in this respect. When the deadline arose to give notice of Questions for this session of Parliament, that table was not actually available then. So therefore, Mr Speaker, I had of necessity to pose this Question, in order to obtain the answer.

The publication has appeared since I gave notice of the Question, so is it not the case that, although they are available on line, the Hon. Minister is obliged to provide that information now in this House?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may be of assistance. The Government would accept that the moment when information is deemed to be public for the purposes of whether or not an Opposition Member can ask a question about publicly available information in this House is the moment when the deadline for putting Questions expires and that if a table has not been published on-line by then, then the hon. Member is entitled to ask the question and he is entitled to have that information given to him in the House.

So if that makes your role easier in respect of this Ruling, the Government would accept that. It is only matters which are public at the time that the deadline for posing Questions expires, that you cannot ask questions about and you do not get the information on, so if that particular table was not uploaded in the lexicon at the time that the deadline for Questions passed, then the hon. Gentleman should have it in this House. If it is not available here today – which it appears it is – he would have it brought to him.

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, as it happens, I have the information which we drew out of the website. I am happy to pass it over to the hon. Gentleman.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that – the problem being that unless the Minister tables it now and I have a look at it, had there been a need to make a supplementary, then I cannot legitimately introduce some sort of questioning that has had no due notice given.

So I will have a quick look at the tables and confirm to you in a second, Mr Speaker, whether there is a need or not for a supplementary.

650 Mr Speaker: The only problem is of course that information will not be recorded in Hansard. The information which has just been handed over by the Hon. the Minister may not be recorded in Hansard because it has not been as scheduled to the answer.

655 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I may be of assistance, when this has happened in the past – and I think it is before our time – when the hon. Members used to pass tables, much more frequently than we do now because now the information is published, there were occasions when the tables were passed not in answer to a Question, but in answer to a supplementary. I believe the practice of the House then was to have a copy made available to it of the table and to record it as part of the Hansard when published with the supplementary, unless the Leader of the Opposition has any views to the contrary, I am happy for that process to continue.

660 Mr Speaker: If that continues to be, I am sure there will be no problem in trying to arrange for that to continue to be the case. It makes sense.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker. The information provided suffices for now.

Clerk: Question 882, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing state how many applicants on the Government's Housing Waiting Lists have, since his answer to Question 773/2012, been allocated a flat, giving a breakdown of the size of home as well as indicating if they pertained to either the Social or Medical Waiting Lists category?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

680

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, since the answer given to Question 773/2012, 31 applicants have been allocated a flat, of which two pertained to the Medical List and eight to the Social List.

I will now hand over to the hon. Member the details on the printed sheets that I am offering him.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 882

Since the answer given to Question No. 773 of 2012, 31 applicants have been allocated a flat of which, two pertained to the Medical List and eight to the Social List.

The breakdown of the 31 applicants who have been allocated a flat is as follows:-

2RKB	6
3RKB	12
4RKB	11
5RKB	-
6RKB	-
TOTAL	31

The breakdown with regards to the Medical and Social Lists is as follows:-

Housing Waiting Lists
Applicants buying own homes since Q774/2012

Clerk: Question 883, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing state how many applicants on the Government's Housing Waiting Lists, since his answer to Question 774/2012, – been removed from the Waiting Lists due to purchasing their own homes and if any, indicating if they pertained to either the Social or Medical Waiting Lists categories?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, since the answer given to Question 774/2012, two applicants have been removed from the Waiting Lists due to purchasing their own homes. Neither pertained to the Social or Medical Lists.

Government rental housing units
Plans for construction

Clerk: Question 884 the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing update this House by signifying the number and size of rental housing units Government intends to construct, indicating the location(s), estimated commencement of construction and completion dates, as well as estimated costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, the Government intends to construct a sufficient number of housing units to be able to fulfil its manifesto commitments on housing. The details will be announced when we are ready to do so.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, when the Hon. Minister says that they intend to build 'sufficient', is that all in respect of rental?

Hon. C A Bruzon: It is in respect of our manifesto commitment which says that everyone on the Housing Waiting List as on 11th December 2011 will be housed within our first term in office.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I am homing in now on the number of houses that will be made available for the rental system. Despite their commitment that everyone will be housed, from a previous announcement made, I believe the Government intends to offer options of purchasing and rental. Does the Government have any commitment of how many rental homes it is envisaged will be constructed in their term in office?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, there will be a blend of rental accommodation and also 50/50 purchase. Those who buy 50/50 will obviously make available homes for rental for people on the waiting lists. So there will be a mix of both rental accommodation and affordable housing made available.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, but although some may wish to buy on the 50/50, not all those who are buying the 50/50 are going to release Government rental accommodation. Despite that, can I have some sort of indication towards figures of how many rental homes are projected to become available?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, that information will be made available when we are ready.

Bath-to-shower conversions
In-house technical estimates

Clerk: Question 885, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister for Housing provide me with the information to my supplementary question in Question 776/2012, which relates to the total sums of money reflected in the in-house technical estimates carried out by the Ministry's own civil servants with regard to the 44 bath-to-shower conversions mentioned by my hon. Colleague, Mr Reyes in the original Question?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Yes, Mr Speaker, I understand that I wrote to the Minister and I trust he has received my letter, but I am happy to give him a copy of the letter now, if he wishes.

HM GOVERNMENT OF GIBRALTAR
OFFICE OF THE MINISTER FOR HOUSING AND THE ELDERLY
The City Hall
Gibraltar

10th October 2012

The Hon J J Netto MP
Parliament House
156 Main Street
Gibraltar

In response to your letter requesting information concerning Question No.776/2012, I am now able to provide you with the following additional data which has been forwarded to me by the Technical Department for your attention.

Forty-four requests was the historical list but some tenants have either passed away or others require OT specifications. Only 35 conversions have been carried out at a total cost of £114,183, so the average cost is approx £3,262 each. Therefore the sum of £185,817 will be used for OT requirements.

Please note that the total amount will be in the region of £300,000 but we will not know for sure until GJBS invoices us.

Yours sincerely

Charles Bruzon
Minister for Housing and the Elderly

Telephone No.: (350) 20075039, Centrex 3794; Fax No.: (350) 20043887, Centrex 2454

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, yes I do have the copy of the letter which he stated, which I received on Thursday, 11th October, round about one o'clock, which was obviously outside or beyond the cut-off time for me to submit Questions.

But in any event, Mr Speaker, with respect to the Minister, I do not think that the letter answered my questions. I think for the sake of clarity, I should say what I have been asking for and why I think that the letter does not answer what I have been requesting.

What I have been requesting, Mr Speaker, was not the breakdown as he seems to have given me from the 44 bath-to-shower conversions, which we now know, 35 of which have been done by the Housing Works Agency and nine will be done externally by the specifications of the OT Department in the Health Authority. What I was asking for is not what the Government has invoiced or is going to pay for... Sorry not Housing Works Agency; by GJBS. GJBS was the one that did the 35, not the Housing Works Agency.

I was not asking, because we know that figure and we know that figure was what the Government seems to have been paying for the 35 of the 44 to GJBS, but what I was asking was, what was the civil servants' in-house estimate in relation to those particular works? Unfortunately, the answer is not reflected in the letter.

I think I make my point quite clear, both in my supplementary question and in my letter to him and this is what I am asking.

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, the reality is that it is GJBS who actually does this work and that is why there is no specific estimate given per case, because obviously, it is a Government owned company and they know what they are doing. We trust them and they do not over-charge us, so that is my understanding, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I cannot accept that answer. I cannot accept that answer because estimators and it does not have to be the estimators with a TG1; you can be an estimator and be a PTO1 or a PTO or a HPTO and it is routine work for them, whether they are building surveyors... They normally, or habitually, do estimates which are then carried out. They are carried out either in-house by their own staff or somebody else out there in the private sector providing those services, so it is something that certainly happened when I was there and I was the one... At that time, we employed so many building surveyors, structural engineers, quantity surveyors and all the rest of it, so I know how the system operates.

In fact, we even went to the extent that in order to corroborate that we had value for money – which is at the end of the day what we tend to scrutinise in Parliament, which is accountability of public funds – we even went to the extent of having a recognised schedule of rates which was the UK Carillion schedule of rates to ensure that the works that get done in terms... and what we have to pay matches, more or less, what our estimate is. So I cannot accept the answer that the hon. Gentleman is providing.

In fact, the Hon. Minister seems to be saying to Parliament that we trust GJBS because it is a private company. Well, I do not think, Mr Speaker, that the Housing Ministry as such should have a policy where you say, 'We trust whatever amount of money GJBS, or any other contractor for that matter, may wish to invoice the Government.' I think the Government has to have, like in any other place in the world but particularly in developed countries, a system which gives us value for money and is accountable against an in-house estimate. It seems to me, Mr Speaker, that perhaps... I do not know whether I have been saying this previously and perhaps the Hon. Minister has not understood what I am saying, but I do know, Mr Speaker, that, as a matter of course, it happens.

Now, I am willing to sit down and perhaps even discuss it further with him outside the realm of this question-and-answer session, so at least there is clarity between me and him as to what I am talking about, and I am sure, that the people that work for him would have done the estimates.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may say, I think that helps to clarify what it is that the hon. Gentleman is getting at. I think that what we are saying is, because this work is done by GJBS and not done by the Housing Works Agency, there is not a Housing Works Agency estimate. There is a GJBS estimate and the hon. Gentleman will know, from his time as a Minister, that when something is being dealt with by GJBS, the estimators that we will rely on, much as they would have relied on them also, are the estimators in GJBS who we would trust – not as if they were a Government Department because they are not a Government Department; they are a wholly owned company of the Government – but he will know, I am sure, from his time in Government, that you would not have a Government estimator checking a GJBS estimate.

So if what he wants is what is the estimate that was given and relied upon at the time by the Ministry, the answer I think he has been given is it was the GJBS estimate and if that is the information that he wants, that is not the information that is available here today, and perhaps we can obtain that for him.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, again with respect to the Chief Minister, I do not think it is right and proper to go and say... or have a system in place where we say –

Mr Speaker: If I may, the hon. Member has asked that he should have a meeting with the Hon. the Minister. Surely that should be the end of the matter. You have an opportunity to have a meeting with him and thrash the matter out.

I have been liberal with the hon. Member, but really, he is supposed to be asking supplementary questions and not making a speech or a statement. I do not wish to curtail him, particularly in my first morning, but I would commend to him the practice of asking short and sharp questions.

I really think that he has received as much of an answer as he is going to get in the House today and he has been given an opportunity to pursue the matter further outside the House. I would commend him to that course of action.

Next question.

Housing Works Agency and Ministry for Housing Comprehensive review

835 Clerk: Question 886, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide this House with details of the comprehensive review currently being undertaken of the Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing, inclusive of specific matters being reviewed and by whom, as well as the dates by when he expects this exercise to be completed?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

845 Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, not yet.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, not yet in respect of, for example, by whom the review is being undertaken and so on? Is that what the Minister is referring to?

850 Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, an announcement will be made when we are ready.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, Mr Speaker, is the Minister not in a position to disclose by whom the review is being undertaken?

855 Hon. C A Bruzon: I think that subject was covered some months ago, Mr Speaker. There was a review being undertaken by people within my staff who were asked to report back to the Minister and to the Cabinet, and when we are ready to announce the final conclusions, we will do so.

860 Hon. E J Reyes: So Mr Speaker, am I correct in assuming that the review is being undertaken in-house, internally, by a member of staff without any external consultations and so on?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, I have already answered the question, in the Parliament before, when we have spoken about this and I have been asked about it.

865 Hon. E J Reyes: And what I am asking now, Mr Speaker, is confirmation that the review is just being undertaken internally by those working within the Housing Works Agency, Ministry for Housing and that there are no external consultants being brought in for that purpose?

870 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has asked a question which was answered. Then he said 'Can I assume that the answer you have given is correct?' So the answer is, 'Well, the answer has been given.' Now he asks for confirmation again of the answer he has been given twice. That is not a new question.

875 Hon. E J Reyes: I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I may have said it, I do not quite recall having said, I assume it is correct. What I am asking, Mr Speaker, perhaps I can put it quite clear. If in a previous answer I have been told that an exercise is being carried out by those within the Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing, that has been said before. What I am asking now is, can the Hon. Minister confirm that there are no external consultants or advisors also being involved in the exercise?

880 Hon. C A Bruzon: Yes, I can confirm that, Mr Speaker.

HEALTH AND ENVIRONMENT

885 Urban green areas around Gibraltar
Government maintenance contracts

Clerk: Question 855, the Hon. S M Figueras.

890 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, would the Minister for the Environment please provide details of all Government contracts currently in place for the maintenance of urban green areas around Gibraltar, but excluding the Upper Rock Nature Reserve broken down by area, contractor cost, term of contract and the nature of work contemplated by said contracts?

895 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

900 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government does not currently have any contracts for the maintenance of what we term 'urban green areas'. The Department of the Environment has a number of agreements for planted areas in Gibraltar. Other green areas have until now not had any form of management, resulting in issues related for example to safety arising from trees. Government has recently passed responsibility for these areas to the Department of the Environment from Land Property Services, which have no budget for it, and the Department will now be monitoring these areas and assessing whether any works are necessary.

905 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, would the Minister be able perhaps... and there is a Question further along the Order Paper in relation to trees that I have asked. I recall that in May this year, in a similar Question, the Minister answered that there had been something in the order of a hundred trees planted since they had taken office, or rather since January of this year. Could the Minister confirm whether or not there are management plans or agreements or contracts in place for the maintenance of at least those trees?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, those are the areas which we refer to as planted areas. Urban green areas we tend to refer to as those areas which have not up to now had any formal maintenance. Those are planted areas.

915 The situation there is as it was in December last year at the time of the Election, in which there are a number of agreements but the contracts that had existed had all expired some time ago and therefore they are now on a month-to-month basis for the most part. In fact, my information tells me that all three contractors involved are on month-to-month agreements. This is not satisfactory for the contractors and it is not satisfactory for the Government, and we are looking at reviewing the way that planted areas are managed, with a view to entering more formal contracts with the contractors. But the situation at the moment is as we inherited with no formal contract any longer in place, because they expired some time ago and they were not renewed by the last Administration, which dealt with it on a month-to-month basis.

925 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the purpose of the Question is to elicit information in the context of concerns that have been articulated to me by concerned individuals, in relation to the maintenance of all these planted areas – planted and urban areas. Obviously, there seems to be a difference in our definition of those areas and perhaps we can agree one, moving forward, in order to make things easier.

930 Is the Minister able to provide the House with any kind of timeframe in relation to when... because obviously, this is a matter which is rather urgent, because obviously, as the concerns raised are that there are certain planted areas which are not taken care of. This is something that, obviously, the longer it goes on, the worse it gets and I acknowledge that the Minister has said it is unsatisfactory.

Is he able to provide this House with any kind of timescale to which we might be able to hold him?

935 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, those problems that the hon. Member is referring to are exactly the problems that have been in existence for quite a number of years now and it is certainly not of this Government's making. I am aware that there are certain concerns by certain people who work in this area as to the way that the planted areas are divided up.

I share those concerns and therefore, the Department of the Environment is engaged in re-assessing them all.

940 I hesitate to give a date, because this is a process that will involve different contractors looking at all the planted areas in Gibraltar and setting up a process for them to be managed. I would have hoped that the logical date would be the beginning of the coming financial year. That would be the aim, but I cannot hold myself to that. If it is able to do it before then, then well and good, if it slips slightly, but I think that the logical time to introduce a new system would be the beginning of the next financial year.

945 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer from the Minister and obviously, subject of course to the fact that he has had the opportunity of course for the last 10 months of revisiting the situation, it is a situation that has been his responsibility for the last 10 months. Will he confirm that he will deal with this as a matter of some priority in his portfolio for the Environment?

950 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have a huge number of priorities that I have to deal with as a result of matters that have come to my attention over the last 10 months, and this is one of them.

955 Clerk: Question 856 –

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, with your indulgence, may I just intervene at this moment in order to answer fully the Question 844, of which the hon. Member asked me for some information, and I said that I would provide it to him this morning. I just... but I would like this to be noted in Hansard, if anything. (Interjection) Or should I wait until he comes into the Chamber? It is up to you, sir.

960 Mr Speaker: I have no problem really in allowing it. It is going to look odd in Hansard, but then hon. Members should know the reason why. So I will allow him to provide the information.

965 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, could I just invite that we wait for Mr Reyes to return to the Chamber, in the event that he might want to say something?

Mr Speaker: Okay.

Trees planted in Gibraltar
Details since May

975 Clerk: Question 856, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Further to the previous Question, which I foreshadowed, can the Minister for the Environment provide details of trees planted in Gibraltar since he last answered a similar question in May this year, with a breakdown of cost, suppliers and tender processors relevant to them?

980 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Health and the Environment.

985 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the only trees that have been planted since May 2012, as part of this programme – I hope that other people, Mr Speaker, are planting trees otherwise! – are those that had been replacements for a few trees that may have been vandalised or perished, the replacement trees have been planted at a cost to the contractor and not to the Government.

Coastline survey
Details

Clerk: Question 857, the Hon. S M Figueras.

995 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say whether the Government is conducting a coastline survey and provide this House with details?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1000 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir. At present, Government is not conducting a coastline survey.

Commonwealth Park proposals Government's intentions

Clerk: Question 858, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1010 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in light of the breaking of ground at the site of the proposed Commonwealth Park, can the Minister for the Environment confirm that it is his Government's policy to deliver said park in accordance with the Budget established as part of the costing of the GSLP/Liberal Alliance manifesto for the 2011 Election campaign? If so, will the Minister for the Environment now provide this House with such figures, in the context of the commencement of works?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the concept of the Commonwealth Park as proposed in the manifesto will be delivered and is being realised.

Some elements of the original design have changed since then as we are not afraid to improve the features, provided it enhances the experience it will provide for the public.

Regarding the costs, the situation remains as stated in my reply to Question 740/2012.

May I remind the hon. Gentleman that we are not answerable in this House for a budget that we may have assigned to something during the Election campaign.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, two issues arise out of that answer, which I would like to deal with in turn.

Firstly, he refers to the previous Question which he answered. This Question was phrased precisely as it was because at the time when I last asked the Question, works had not commenced and no contractors were in place and therefore the Government was nervous about disclosing any figures, according to the answer given back then, because he did not want potential contractors to get greedy in the tender process and I understood that and I left the issue there as it was.

I phrased the Question purposefully this time round, because there has been breaking of ground at the proposed site and C K Transport were at the site, conducting some kind of works in relation to what will eventually be the Commonwealth Park. It is therefore for that reason that I am now asking whether the... and I think I will deal with the second point before he rises, simply because I think it all comes together. So in relation to that issue, works have begun and I think it becomes relevant.

In relation to the second issue and whether they are bound by the costing of the manifesto, I would ask the Minister is the Government willing to adopt the figures that they say they have, in relation to the costing of the whole of the manifesto, as the Budget or as certainly an indicative figure for the budget for the creation of the Commonwealth Park?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think I will start with the second part first, if I may.

The budget for the Commonwealth Park or the estimate for the Commonwealth Park is being assessed now and in Government, one has knowledge of more of the detail – for example, enabling works that may require the diversion of a pipe and so on. Therefore the budget has to be reassessed in that knowledge.

To the first part, absolutely, I understand and accept the difference. Works have in fact started, but let me just explain that the works that have been started are enabling works, of which I will give details. The full costing of the construction – if you can construct a park – is the figure that I am still not able to provide, but certainly the enabling works which are the breaking of the ground and the removal of the tarmac and digging down to a level, the complete works and start, have been carried out over approximately 50% of the existing area. The cost of this, which was carried out by GJBS, was £87,952.11.

But that is not, Mr Speaker, part of the final contract; it was a separate enabling work contract.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I really would rather avoid this exchange becoming any more technical than it has to, because the point I am trying to make really is very simple. The Government has contended on many occasions in this House before, in respect of many other projects, that their manifesto was fully costed. The issue that I am raising and have raised publicly, and raise again in this House, is that the Government seems unwilling – to be generous – to provide that figure in any kind of way that the public may be able to consume, in order that they are not held to it.

Now, whilst I understand the point that the Minister has made, that upon entering Government they have had a number of realisations – one of which is that perhaps what they had considered would be an appropriate figure for the Park may no longer be the case – in the context of the Chief Minister's mention of the fact that the project was proceeding ahead of schedule and under budget – also bearing in mind the contributions from the Kusuma Trust which the Hon. Minister referred to in the previous answer – does the Minister not concede that it is entirely reasonable for the public to think, 'I would like to know what the budget is before we conclude the contract, so that I can then make an assessment of whether or not we were genuinely under the budget'?

Does the Minister not concede that point?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, neither the Government nor the Minister concedes that point, because what the hon. Gentleman wants to do is ask questions about what the GSLP/Liberal's views when they were preparing their manifesto was. We are here as a Government to answer questions as a Government.

The hon. Gentleman is perfectly entitled to ask questions about whether we are within the budget that we assigned to this in the Budget Book. There has been a Budget, an Appropriation Bill and a debate on the Appropriation Bill since the last Election. That Appropriation Bill and the Budget Book, as it is called, have been published and debated in this House and he can ask us about that.

At no Question Time, when I have been a Member of this House, have we asked the hon. Members when they were in Government, 'How much did you think it was going to cost when you were preparing your manifesto?' That is not a question that we are going to answer in Parliament.

Mr Speaker, it may be that the hon. Gentleman wants to insist on this. There have been a number of public exchanges on the subject. We are going to tell the public, because we are accountable to them, in press releases or in answers from the hon. Members opposite in this House, exactly what everything costs, because that money that we are spending which is not ours to spend other than as representatives of the Taxpayer.

When it comes to budget, the questions on budget that we are going to answer in this House are the ones which relates to the Estimates Book published by the Government. That is a fairly straight forward way of proceeding in my view; it is the honest and appropriate way of proceeding and is the way that they proceeded in Government.

I do not believe that we are under any obligation whatsoever to share with the hon. Members our working out to be able to put before the people of Gibraltar the magnificent manifesto which we put before them, to deliver the equally magnificent projects that we will deliver before the next General Election to them. Therefore, if he carries on asking this question, he is going to get the same answer.

He is of course going to be told what everything costs. He will of course also be told how that compares to the budget assigned to cost at the beginning of each financial year. He is not going to get the information that he seems to hanker over so much, which is 'What did you think in GSLP Headquarters it was going to cost before the Election?'

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, with all due respect to the Hon. the Chief Minister, it has been, there have been, a number of occasions in this House where the Government has adopted for its own policy, matters that were alluded to in their manifesto. They have done that specifically in relation to specific initiatives.

Is the Government adopting their costing, which is surely part of the manifesto which they have spoken of so much in this House; is the Government happy to adopt the cost as they estimated, as the GSLP/Liberal Alliance in Opposition before the 9th December 2011, as the original budget for the construction of the Commonwealth Park, in office?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has been in Parliament now almost for a year. He has lived through at least one Budget debate. The Budget that we have adopted in respect of Commonwealth Park is the one that we have brought to this House and voted on, on the Appropriation Bill. Is that the same Budget that we had assigned to it when we were sitting in our political offices, not as Members of this House but as candidates in the campaign? Well, Mr Speaker, that is for me to know and for him to guess.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I think the analysis of the Chief Minister is in respect of him, fundamentally flawed for this reason. It is not in relation to every single project, every aspect of Government spending that is budgeted to the last penny in the Estimate Book; it does not work that way and I will just give him one example. In relation to the cladding on the so-called forgotten estates, the Government's estimate in the budget was £1 million. I told him across the floor at Committee Stage that I thought it would be closer to £50 million. Sometimes there are token figures, so it does not necessarily... you cannot just simply say, 'Look at the Budget Book.' In this particular instance, my understanding is the Budget Book does not actually give us the answer, otherwise the hon. Member would not be asking the questions that he is asking.

But of course there is another point and it is this: that it is Members on that side of the House – the Government – that keep on saying the public finances in Gibraltar are a disaster and that we left a disaster. Well, look, if you are making a point that the public finances of Gibraltar are a disaster – and I am coming to my question in a moment – then of course we are entitled to ask, 'Well, hang on a minute!' and we are entitled to put to people, 'Well, they can't be a disaster if they are spending all these millions of pounds on these projects.'

But can he answer this: is this a project that is going to be undertaken by GJBS or is it a project that is going to go out to tender?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has not pursued further what the Hon. Mr Figueras was asking about, and I think I will take it from that that he understood my answer.

Of course, in some instances in the Budget Book, there will be a token put in because a project is not going to be completed in a particular year. In fact, we are now very close to the end of the financial year, April is just around the corner and at Commonwealth Park, what has happened has been the breaking of 1140 ground, which has cost £87,000, as the hon. Gentleman, the Minister for the Environment has told the House, and not the development of the whole project, Mr Speaker.

1145 This is not a question of trying to avoid the scrutiny of the Opposition or the public, because we are giving exactly the information, down to the penny, of the cost. I know that is what they want to pretend it is for their own political purposes and each one is entitled to pursue their politics as they wish; but we are giving pounds, shilling and pence of every penny that every project is going to cost.

Whether or not this project is going to be dealt with by tender or otherwise – and the hon. Member has just asked, ‘Will it be done by GJBS or by tender?’ – they will be alerted to that as soon as decisions are made about it.

1150 Hon. D A Feetham: So is the answer, then, that no decision has been made as to whether this project will be dealt with by GJBS or going out for tender? Is that the answer?

1155 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, we are currently looking at the options. There is a lot of specialised work which has not been carried out before in Gibraltar, so we have to be absolutely sure that we know how these works will be allocated and both – and possibly more than those – are possibilities for the actual laying out of the Park.

1160 Street cleaning
Details of contracts

Clerk: Question 859, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1165 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of contracts currently in place for street cleaning in Gibraltar for the last 18 months, identifying the contractor, the length of the term, the cost and date of renewal?

1170 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd has the street cleaning contract for a period of 10 years. The cost of the contract for street cleaning is £5 million for this financial year, and the date of renewal is 1st April 2017.

1175 Mr Speaker, although I am providing the information, of course, this is a contract entered into by his Party a few months before the 2007 Election, so if he has any concerns about the terms of the contract, he may wish to raise them elsewhere.

1180 MINISTRY FOR THE ENVIRONMENT
Trainees on placements

Clerk: Question 860, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1185 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide details providing a breakdown by age, gender and nationality of all trainees on placements within the Ministry for which he has responsibility, indicating the Department, Agency or Authority where they are placed, as well as showing the type of work that they are engaged in?

1190 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, for the avoidance of doubt I have a similar question in relation to the GHA, which I will answer later, so this answer does not include the GHA.

1195 So, Mr Speaker, there are presently no trainees on placement within the Environment Ministry or its Departments, Agencies and Authorities.

Barbary Macaque Management Plan
Details and costs

1205 Clerk: Question 861, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment confirm that the Barbary Macaque Management Plan is now in place and provide details of the cost to the taxpayer for the application of this new plan?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): No, sir, it is not yet in place.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister now confirm – in the context of, of course – the statement issued by his office last week, not more than a few hours after I had filed the Question in Parliament, announcing that an announcement was imminent to the public about the Barbary Macaque Management Plan? Could he now confirm to this House when that plan is expected to be put into operation once and for all?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, sir, I am not able to say that at this point in time.

Hon. S M Figueras: Well, Mr Speaker, I would ask the Minister what the point of the press release then was, because it seems really rather suspect that I file a Question at 9.30 last week on Thursday, and not a few hours later, there is a statement out in the public domain which is, literally, that an announcement is imminent.

Why is it the case then, Mr Speaker, that the Minister has issued the press release – (Interjections) I do not need to read anything about the last 16 years; we are talking about today and moving forward, thank you very much. (Interjections)

1230

Mr Speaker, the question I am asking – (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: Order!

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the question I am asking is what was the point of that announcement, when he cannot in fact, in this House – this House to which he is answerable – tell us when the plan is due to be put into operation?

1235

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not absolutely sure that I am familiar or aware of the specific press release that he is referring to.

1240

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, whether it was a press release or an announcement, it is not something I have imagined. There was an announcement that an announcement is imminent for the Barbary Macaque Management Plan, on the Thursday. (Interjections) There was an announcement by the – (Interjections) I will be happy to look for it and come back. Obviously, I do not have it with me right now – (Interjections)

1245

Mr Speaker: Since the hon. Member is going to check on the source of that and he is responsible for the statements that he makes, I think that this is a convenient moment for us to have a short recess, for 10 minutes.

1250

The House adjourned at 11.05 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 11.20 a.m.

1255 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Selwyn Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

The Hon. Minister and myself have already had an exchange across the floor, whilst we were in recess which was of mutual benefit to both of us.

The announcement was published in GBC, but the point really of the question, Mr Speaker, is to understand why there is no end in sight, or rather no specific date by which the Management Plan will be published and put into operation. That is what I would like the Minister to provide some more information about.

1265 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I confirm that we had a chat about it during recess. I do not recall... Certainly, I think the hon. Member concedes that there was not a press release. I do not recall talking to GBC about the macaques in recent weeks, so I do not know where this report came from, whether it was radio or television or whatever. I honestly do not know and I do not recall. Maybe they thought they were referring to the Barbary Macaque Management Plan going to be eminent and not imminent. (Laughter) Be that as it may, I do not recall that.

1270 However, let me say that the completion of the report is likely to be very, very soon. However between completion of the report and then it being implemented, or rather the Plan and it then being implemented, could take time because obviously the Plan has to be translated into action. That is the reason why I do not want to commit myself to an implementation date.

1275 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, could the Minister confirm to this House whether, at the time when the Plan is complete, it will be made public?

1280 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think that the concepts of the Plan and the main tenets of the plan can be made public without doubt. Perhaps its translation into being carried out would be a more detailed consideration of how this is being done, but in principle, I think that with the main Plan, actually, it would be beneficial to the public to be aware of the plans in place.

1285 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I do not want to be drawn – and thankfully the Hon. the Chief Minister is not in the Chamber at the moment – into a further discussion about the Budget Book, because I do recall that there was some reference to costs in relation to Barbary... the management of the population.

Is the Minister in a position today to provide any detail whatsoever in relation to the additional cost which this Plan might represent?

1290 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, as I explained, the Plan will deal with concepts and the way things have to be done. That – and there is a parallel process – has to be translated into exactly what costs would be applied as for personnel, equipment and so on, and that process is not complete.

1300 I just want to ask the Minister whether he is not concerned about the frequency of the unwanted interactions with the apes and the impact that has on people's everyday lives, and also in relation to the impact it might have on tourism in Gibraltar, simply because they are very fun to look at, but not as fun when they are trying to latch onto a plastic bag, when you are walking in and out of the Caleta Hotel.

I would ask the Minister to comment on that, but also specifically on whether he is able to tell us if the Barbary Macaque Management Plan contemplates the local experts participating in its application?

1305 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I share those concerns, some of them have come to my attention. Certainly, I did answer this question some time ago. Local experts have been and will be involved and what I can say is that we are not working in a vacuum. I have had discussions with the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic over recent weeks, with a view to in advance of the Plan enhancing the amount of contraception provided for female macaques and slight enhancement of monitoring, so we are working.

1310 The reason why we are enhancing contraception at this point of time in advance of the Plan is because this is the mating season and if we miss this mating season and we do not implant any contraceptives, then obviously there is going to be a large birth rate again next year. So with my encouragement, the Veterinary Clinic is actually enhancing the amount of contraception to females, in advance of the plan.

1315 Hon. S M Figueras: One final question Mr Speaker, is the Minister still satisfied that his Party's policy of not resorting to culling as a measure of last resort is the responsible one? Will he be open to reconsidering it, if the measures that he and his Government apply, in the attempt at resolving the issue, do not yield the solution acceptable to the community?

1320 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Government's policy remains one of not culling. I have, however, said in the past that, on occasion, particular individuals, for a number of management reasons, have to be put down; but the policy remains that there shall be no culling on a large scale.

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

Question 844

Supplementary information

1330

Mr Speaker: I call upon the Hon. Minister, Mr Steven Linares.

1335

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, it is in relation to Question 844, which the hon. Member asked me specifically if I could give him more details in 25, Hosting of Special Sports and Leisure Events, Virtual Promotions.

I can confirm to the hon. Member that this relates to catering services for the event of the Strong Man League. It relates to catering at the Retreat Centre for the competitors and judges and there were 15. I can assure the hon. Member that they are people who eat a lot and therefore the amounts there might seem a lot, but they are strong men and the amount they eat is exorbitant.

But that is what the breakdown is of that.

Hon. E J Reyes: I am most grateful for that.

Mr Speaker, can I, just for the sake of clarity, this £1,950 is in addition to the figure he provided last time, which I think was £20,000 for sponsorship contributions.

1345

Hon. S E Linares: Yes Mr Speaker, in fact there are two figures there. There is the Virtual Promotion, which is for the catering service and also, the Strong Man accommodation, which we hoped we did not have to pay for, but unfortunately, the men were so big that they did not fit in the bed and could not get in the shower in the Retreat Centre, so we had to put them up specifically, all of them. They were not happy; they could not sleep, so we had to get them double beds.

1350

These are things I hope that we learn for the next year, so it does not happen. But yes, they are two costs, over and above the £20,000.

1355

HEALTH AND ENVIRONMENT

Environmental Feedback Unit

Details of reports made

Clerk: Question 862, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1365

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker can the Minister for the Environment provide details of the number of reports made to the Environmental Feedback Unit since its creation, with details of the nature of the reports made, response time and action taken?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1370

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there have been 91 reports logged up to 9th October, ranging from nesting of birds, noise pollution, dog howling, roaming cats, dead or injured seagulls and pigeons, street cleaning, smells, graffiti, accumulation of bulky items, loose paving stones, water and sewage leaks, refuse collection, street lamp hazards, public toilets, rat infestation, roads and fencing, abandoned vehicles, mosquitoes, palm weevil and tobacco-related litter.

Response time has been within 24 hours in all instances reported during the working week and the action taken has varied depending on the matter and the related service provider. Details are provided in the schedule which I now hand over to the hon. Member.

May I add, while the schedule goes across, that the action taken is not included in that schedule because of the large number of different agencies involved who are tasked with them, with carrying out the responses and not all of them have reported back on them and therefore that is information that will have to follow.

Queensway car parks
Solar powered lighting

Clerk: Question 863, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment confirm whether any issues have arisen out of the installation and operation of the solar powered lighting at the new car parks in Queensway?

1395

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, two of the lights were not functioning earlier this week. However, as they are within the warranty period, they will be replaced or repaired at no cost to the Government.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker. The reason for the question was I had received representations that there had been, at least on the one occasion, an issue in relation to the power being stored by the unit not being enough for the lights to be on throughout the duration of the night. Is the Minister aware of any of that?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it appears that on one particular day after a succession of cloudy days, there seems to have been an issue, but because it is within the warranty period, the Electricity Authority is looking at the batteries. It may be that the batteries have to be slightly different, so that they retain more power. That issue is being addressed.

Climate Change Forum
Meetings 2012

Clerk: Question 864, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment provide details of meetings of the Climate Change Forum during 2012 and information about its work so far.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Climate Change Forum, which had not met since 2008, has met on three occasions this year, with the next meeting already scheduled for early January. It has been expanded to include the Technical Services Department and a representative of the Health Authority, two organisations with a crucial role to play in this team.

The forum is concentrating on a revision of the 2008 Climate Change Programme to reflect the new initiatives that this Government is spearheading, in terms of climate change mitigation, as well as to include a section on adaptation to climate change.

The forum is also working on the calculation of a carbon footprint for Gibraltar and is in contact with a number of universities and research bodies to develop this idea.

Clerk: Question 865, the Hon. –

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I may, (Mr Speaker: Yes.) just a quick supplementary on this particular question.

I do not know whether the Hon. the Minister for the Environment can tell us, as a result of the meetings he has held during the course of this year, what are the climate change challenges that he foresees – the major ones not the smaller ones – which need to be addressed?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Presumably, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is referring to in Gibraltar?

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, of course.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, this is something that obviously is not prepared in response to the Question, but I can answer that some of the challenges include the possibility of sea level rise, which is probably the biggest immediate threat and how that would affect our coastal areas; and also how a possible, if not expected, increase in weather issues such as heavy rains might increase in frequency and how that would affect things like drainage and possible flooding.

Those are the two main areas that affect us directly in Gibraltar.

Hon. J J Netto: Could I ask a further supplementary question, in relation to the first example that the Minister cited, which is a possible rise to sea water level on the coastline. Is there any particular area within the coastline in particular which is vulnerable to any possible expectation of sea water level rises?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is one of the matters that is being addressed by the Forum. I would not like to speculate now on what the response would be. I may have my own personal views, but I think I would rather wait until the Forum responds in the programme it is developing.

Thinking Green Conference
Costs

1465 Clerk: Question 865, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1470 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in light of the publication of the identity of the sponsors and ticketing arrangements for the forthcoming Thinking Green Conference, can the Minister for the Environment now provide full details to this House of the anticipated cost of the conference, broken down by gross costs including, but not limited to, the fee payable by the Government for the guest speakers, costs associated with travel and security detail for said speakers and anticipated revenues from ticket sales and sponsorship, broken down into ticket revenue and sponsor revenue, identifying the extent of the participation of each sponsor, and the total anticipated amount of contribution by the Government to this initiative?

1475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1480 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 866 and 867.

Thinking Green Conference
Sponsorship

1485 Clerk: Question 866.

1490 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment confirm the process by which sponsors for the Thinking Green Conference were identified and approached, the amount of their contribution and details of the contractual arrangements entered into in respect of that sponsorship, including, but not limited to, information about terms relating to access during and after the event, to the guest speakers and in particular, former Vice President Al Gore and Juan Verde?

1495 Thinking Green Conference
Visit of former Vice-President Al Gore

1500 Clerk: Question 867.

1505 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment tell this House how long former Vice-President Al Gore is expected to remain in Gibraltar during his visit for the Thinking Green conference this month and whether he will be hosting a press conference in Gibraltar for local and international press during said visit? If not, why not?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1510 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the financial information requested is not yet available, as the event has not taken place and final arrangements are still to be confirmed. This information will of course be available sometime after the event.

In relation to the sponsors, it was they who made contact with the organisers. There have been no final contractual arrangements for the sponsors, who have, however, been given complimentary tickets to the seminar and dinner.

1515 The visit by Vice-President Gore, a former US Vice-President and former presidential candidate, clearly has security implications so that details of his travel, length of stay and other such information cannot be divulged in public in advance of the visit.

He will not be specifically hosting a press conference during his visit, as has already been stated. This is his usual practice. He will, however, be answering questions as part of the seminar itself.

1520 Hon. S M Figueras: It strikes me as peculiar that, even at this late stage – and the conference is on Sunday and I am hoping to get my tickets from the hon. Member in the House this morning – but, it strikes me as peculiar that, even this close to the event, there are no final contractual arrangements in place with the sponsors, that we might reasonably be expected to receive the information that I am asking 1525 for in relation to the contribution from the sponsors. Does the Minister not concede that it is peculiar that, at this late stage, there is no such arrangement in place?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the sponsors are sponsoring the event and the only thing they are getting is access to the tickets to the seminar and the dinner. There is no complicated contract, therefore.

1530 As to the closeness to the event, because of the security level of a former Vice-President and a current campaigner in the US presidential campaign, which is only several weeks away, the travel arrangements are liable to change up to the last minute and that will have a bearing on costs.

Similarly, some of the sponsors are sponsoring in kind, providing services which they are not charging for and until those services have been provided, we are not sure what the value of those will be.

1535 Those are some of the reasons in which giving any figure now would be inaccurate and therefore I think would be irresponsible of me.

Hon. S M Figueras: In relation again to the sponsors, in light of the comments made by the ESG publicly in relation to specifically the Nature Group's participation in the event, does the Minister have any concerns that their participation might have any kind of reputational impact on the event?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. S M Figueras: Further in relation to the sponsors, Mr Speaker, the Minister has told us that the sponsors involved in the event approached the Government to offer their sponsorship of it. Would the Minister agree with me that it might not have been a bad idea, in terms of generating even more sponsorship and reducing even further the contribution the Government would have to make to this initiative, to have approached the wider business community in Gibraltar?

1545

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, some other possible sponsors were approached, but did not express an interest in time for them to be included in the advertisement and so on, so there were other approaches; but the successful sponsors were all ones who approached the Government.

1550

Hon. S M Figueras: Would the Minister – not publicly certainly, because I can understand that there might be an issue relating to the sensitivity of the information – be happy to confidentially share the information of who the sponsors they approached were?

1555

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: I am not sure that it would be appropriate, because I do not know if I am at liberty to give information of sponsors and of conversations with entities without their permission, so I would seek their permission before I would share that information. If they grant me that permission, then I have no problem.

1560

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I would be grateful for that, simply because there have been concerns raised to me, in relation to the fact that a fair crack of the whip was not had by the wider business community, and it is an issue that I think is worth pursuing.

1565

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, certainly. The business community has been very supportive in participation in the Trade Fair, so I suspect that those that may have expressed concern are those who are not participating in the Trade Fair. But they, I think, would have known that if they had an interest in sponsoring the event, they could have approached the Government and, obviously, they would have been considered.

1570

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I disagree with the Minister in relation to the point that he makes about willing sponsors could have approached the Government to offer their sponsorship of the event, if they were not aware that it was happening or no public announcement was made. We will agree to disagree and I will look forward to receiving the information, or rather confirmation of whether he is able to disclose that information confidentially.

1575

However, moving on to the issue of the press conference, or rather the non-event of the press conference here in Gibraltar by Vice-President Al Gore, does the Minister not consider it peculiar that such a high profile figure as is former Vice-President Al Gore and indeed a presidential candidate, who has spent the best part of a decade travelling the world, spreading the climate change message, that he should not host a press conference on the occasion of his visit to Gibraltar?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not find it peculiar, but perhaps the hon. Member will put it to him himself at the dinner, where I am sure he will have the opportunity to speak to him.

In any case, the speaker will be answering questions at the end of his lecture for anything between 30 and maybe 45 minutes, I cannot remember exactly what the programme has allowed, and therefore, that in itself can take the place of a press conference, in the sense that not only members of the press who may be sitting there in the audience, but also members of the public will have the opportunity to put questions to him.

So I think that is not as big an issue as the hon. Member seems to suggest it is.

Hon. S M Figueras: But, Mr Speaker, yes, I will look forward to having the opportunity to speak to Vice-President Al Gore. I would be a fool if I did not concede that it is of course a very good opportunity to speak to a personality such as Vice-President Al Gore.

Whilst I will be happy to ask him that question on a one-to-one basis, I asked that question in this House merely to give voice to concerns that have been raised to me as part of my responsibility in this House.

However, in relation to the point that the Minister has made that at the end of the speech there will be a question-and-answer session which is scheduled, is it not the case that the press is required to leave the premises after the first five minutes of the speech?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, it is cameras that have to leave the premises after five minutes. Reporters can remain sitting in the auditorium, making notes and participating like any other member of the public. It is cameras that are asked to leave.

I suspect one of the reasons is that these are lectures which could then find themselves on U-tube or one of these things. I think it is standard procedure that in events of this nature, people are asked not to take cameras into the auditorium. On this occasion, we felt and Vice-President Gore's team responded that there was enough media interest to warrant some filming of the initial bits of the talk, very much as cameras are here in this House at the beginning of sessions, but do not necessarily have to stay, but nevertheless reporters can sit in through the whole of the proceedings. There is no difference.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I suspect at expensive events of this nature, that would of course be the case and I am grateful for the clarification, as I was not aware of it.

One final supplementary, Mr Speaker, does the Minister consider that this represents – whatever the cost may be and I am not meaning to press him any further, because I am obviously not going to get the answer, I am not one to embark on a fool's errand – does he consider that whatever the cost of this event – which we will eventually know about after it – represents a value-for-money initiative of the kind that is necessary, appropriate and called for in the current climate – if you will pardon the pun – and in particular in the context of the ruinous state of public finances that the Government appeared – so they say – to have inherited on 9th December 2011?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we cannot understate the significance of a personality of the stature of Vice-President Gore. Whether you agree with him or not, whether you agree with what he says or not, whether you agree with his lifestyle or not, we cannot understate the significance of former Vice-President Al Gore coming to Gibraltar and speaking to us. That in itself has a value. Sometimes, unfortunately, the way that the economy of the world is calculated, monetary value is not placed to matters of such value. That I think is sad, but nevertheless, that is the way the world is.

However, the generation of interest that this has already delivered in companies wanting to take part in the Trade Fair, in companies who may not be taking part in the Trade Fair but who have contacted the Department with an interest in bringing new initiatives to Gibraltar in relation to sustainability and renewable energy as examples, the interest that that has led in myself personally having been asked to a number of meetings and had a number of meetings requested by people in International business and by people in International politics, because they are quite impressed about the way that Gibraltar is moving forward with a green agenda will most likely bring large economic benefits to Gibraltar in the future.

Therefore, I think, Mr Speaker, that answers the hon. Member's question.

Anti-smoking legislation Cigarette-end bins outside buildings

Clerk: Question 868, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state whether the Government will be placing more cigarette-end bins in town as a result of the increase in smoking that is taking place outside buildings after the implementation of the 1st October legislation?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1650 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government has commenced a pilot programme in this respect and a small number of cigarette-bins in the town area will be installed and monitored over the course of the next few weeks.

1655 Primary Care Centre one-month advance appointments
Improvements to system

Clerk: Question 869, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1660 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain how the new one month advance appointment system will be improved in order to avoid the scenes witnessed on 1st October at the Primary Care Centre?

1665 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the new advanced appointment system was – as was clearly stated in public – a pilot system, subject to improvement. Following the implementation, a number of multi-disciplinary meetings have been held, involving GPs, nursing and administration staff and a number of further measures are being planned.

1670 It should be noted that this system – while inconvenient to some of those who attended – has seen many positives. For example, as from the afternoon of 1st October, appointments have been available with most of the doctors and no ‘did not attends’ have been reported. This was one of the main aims of the pilot, as it in effect releases more slots.

1675 The need now is to ensure that so many people do not feel they need to queue up or call first thing in the morning on the first of the month. We will now attempt to reassure the public to this effect.

In addition, patients requiring repeat prescriptions and patients asked by the GP to return on a given date will not be restricted to the month of open appointments. They will be able to either present their last complete prescription or a note that the doctor will provide and the appropriate appointment will be given. This means that these patients will not have to present or call on the first of the month.

1680 This, Mr Speaker, is a developing process. Inconvenience to our patients is deeply regretted. but it is the first time that a concentrated multi-disciplinary effort is being made to solve this long-standing problem once and for all, and I would like to pay tribute to the hard working staff at the Primary Care Centre for all their efforts and hard work.

Additional GP support for winter
Arrangements

1690 Clerk: Question 870, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the Minister for Health be arranging for additional GP support for the winter months to come?

1695 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, at present the GP workload is being regularly monitored.

1700 An additional locum GP has been employed already to assist with the increase in attendance to the emergency clinics and will probably continue over the winter period.

Unlike previous winters, we now have two fully prescribing nurse practitioners and hope to recruit a third one, which is in complement. These competent practitioners will assist with emergency clinics and provide additional appointment availability.

1710 Primary care clinic for children
Establishment

Clerk: Question 871, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1715 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise when the primary care clinic for children will be established in the Rainbow Ward at St Bernard's Hospital, as per the Government's manifesto?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1720 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the passage of children through the health system is a subject of discussion with the professionals concerned, as I stated in my Budget speech. Recommendations will be considered at the end of the process.

1725 A&E Department Changes and improvements

1730 Clerk: Question 872, the Hon. I M Ellul-Hammond.

1735 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health outline the changes and improvements to the A&E Department he said in his Budget speech would be 'seen very soon' and to which, according to the Gibraltar Senior Citizens' Association he said 'that the system needs reviewing but is already looking into ways of improving the service'?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1740 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as announced during my Budget speech, the GHA has already commenced a series of works to the Accident and Emergency Department, in order to improve the services offered to our patients. Works have been planned fully involving Nurse Management and other clinicians.

1745 The works entail the following aspects: (1) improved triage facility for patients presenting through the main reception waiting area; (2) a new triage area for patients brought in by the Ambulance Service; (3) new Charge Nurse/Sisters' office within the Majors zone; (4) new reception counter to improve the privacy afforded to patients whilst presenting at A&E – this will also enhance the communication and co-ordination between the reception and A&E staff base; and (5) enhanced clinical storage facilities, which releases more space.

1750 The above measures have also been considered from the perspective of enhancing staff security. It is expected that these works will be concluded before the end of November.

An additional non-consultant hospital doctor was engaged on 6th June 2012; and the manning of the reception is being reviewed.

1755 Stroke unit within St Bernard's Hospital
Establishment

Clerk: Question 873, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1760 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise when the establishment of a stroke unit within St Bernard's Hospital will take place, as per the Government's manifesto?

1765 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the matter is currently being considered by the professionals concerned and we are awaiting recommendations.

GHA's Zero Tolerance Policy Effectiveness

1775 Clerk: Question 874, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, what will the Minister for Health be doing in order to make the GHA's Zero Tolerance Policy more effective, given public concerns raised by GHA medical staff that it is ineffective in protecting employers against harassment and intimidation?

1780 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, a policy, however well drawn up, will never be able to stop the public harassing or intimidating staff.

1785 The principles set out in the Zero Tolerance Policy are ones which I support.

Management has my full backing in the implementation of this Policy. I am not aware that the policy has lost its effectiveness, since it was first introduced.

1790 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, has the Hon. Minister not looked into the allegations and concerns raised by the GHA's medical staff in the media?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: My point is that the existence of the Policy will not stop people harassing. That, sadly, is in the condition of the harasser. The Policy will deal with harassment, but will not necessarily stop it. The fact that there may or may not be one, two, three or four, on any particular period of time, instances of harassment, does not reflect on the Zero Tolerance Policy.

1795 The Zero Tolerance Policy is zero tolerance. We cannot have a 'minus five' tolerance policy or something like that. There is no tolerance of these sorts of events and any events that concern harassment or intimidation are regretted, but it is not the Policy that is at fault.

1800 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, so is the Hon. Minister not concerned that some GHA medical staff feel the GHA Zero Tolerance Policy is ineffective? Will he not be taking their recommendations on board and speaking with them?

1805 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the GHA staff know very well how concerned I am about their work conditions, their safety and so on. Of course, if any member of staff raises any issue at all with me, including particularly when they may be concerned about harassment and intimidation, they will be listened to very seriously and whatever action can be taken will be taken. That is absolutely the case.

1810 There have been several instances in the last 10 months, and I can assure the hon. Member that they have all been dealt with very, very seriously. However, I repeat, any member of staff who wishes to raise any matter is more than welcome and will be listened to.

GHA waiting lists
Table 24 on Government website

1815 Clerk: Question 875, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1820 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain the GHA Table 24, as updated on 2nd August 2012, obtainable on-line from the statistics section of the Government website, namely 'Number of people on the GHA waiting lists for operations at St Bernard's Hospital with a breakdown by the type of surgical discipline', and whether the numbers are cumulative over the months; and where is it indicated how many cases are awaiting surgery by type and for the one month only?

1825 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the numbers are not cumulative.

The total waiting list is based on the last month in the tables shown, those are the active figures.

1830 The totals given are – were – a mathematical calculation – maybe I can call it an artefact of tabulation – which is not significant in real terms and no longer appears on the table.

The columns, Mr Speaker, had been added up, but it made no sense because it was not cumulative. Every table represents that month's waiting list.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, if I may refer to... I do not know if the Hon. Minister has the –

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: I may have it.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I have a copy if the Hon. Minister would like... (Interjection by Hon. Dr. J E Cortes) Mr Speaker, if I may go to the table that the Hon. Minister now has a copy of, for example in July 2012, is the Hon. Minister saying that 316 people were still on the waiting list for general surgery?

Perhaps, could the Hon. Minister explain, what is that figure of 23 in brackets next to the 316?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, yes, it is correct. That means it is 316.

What was an artefact of tabulation – if I may use that term again, because I think it sounds absolutely marvellous! – is the total at the bottom... Clearly, you cannot add the months together to give you the figure at the bottom of that. It in fact no longer appears on the website.

I believe Mr Speaker, that the 23, the number in brackets – but subject to confirmation, as I do not seem to have those notes with me – are new cases in that particular month. But I will have to confirm that and I will be happy to give that information to the hon. Lady within the next day.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

So Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister, then... is it true to say that, in July, there were 316 waiting for general surgery; in June there had been 321 people waiting for general surgery? Does this mean that only five general surgeries took place in that month?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, because if you add the 23 – if that is new cases – those then will be added to the figure and then are cancelled out, because they have been done. I think that is what it means – but as I say, I will confirm that later.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: One last supplementary, Mr Speaker.

Can the Hon. Minister confirm then that in total for the month of July, there were 934 people waiting for surgery?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is what the table says. I think this is a totally unsatisfactory level of people waiting. It is an issue and it is very similar to what was inherited, when I took responsibility for the Health Authority. It is something that I am actively working on with management and with the professionals to try and cut this waiting list drastically and I hope we will be able to succeed.

Staff Nurse vacancies GHA actions to fill posts

Clerk: Question 876, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in response to Written Question 109/2012, 27.5 Staff Nurse positions are identified as vacant. Can the Minister for Health explain how those vacancies are being filled at present and what the GHA is doing to fill those positions on a permanent basis?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, some of the staff nurse positions above are being filled by officers in the nursing bank; others are covered by officers carrying out overtime, whilst some posts remain vacant.

The GHA wishes to fill these posts and has recently undertaken interviews for all of these positions. Successful applicants have, in the main, been informed. It is a process ongoing, and it is envisaged that the positions will be covered within the next three months.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the vacant positions that the Hon. Minister has identified, are those or can those be filled by agency nurses?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, agency nurses are extremely expensive, particularly as they would have to be recruited most likely in the United Kingdom and there are horrendous charges for them.

1895 Therefore, we... I seem to recall one exception in that it was a particular specialty, it may have been children but I do not recall, when I authorised agency cover because of the critical responsibilities of that post.

1900 We feel that we can at the moment cover, on the understanding that the bank and the overtime will be short lived, in the sense that we hope that the nurses interviewed will be able to take up their posts shortly. But, agency nurses we do resist because they are extremely expensive, although when they are necessary for the safety and care of our patients, we will obviously engage them.

1905 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Finally, Mr Speaker, I know I have not given notice of this question, but does the Hon. Minister know how many positions remain vacant, after bank nurses and overtime?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, I am afraid I do not have that information with me.

Dr. McCutcheon, previous Chief Executive Officer of the GHA Compensation awarded

1915 Clerk: Question 877, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health inform this House how much Dr. McCutcheon, previous Chief Executive Officer of the GHA, was awarded as compensation for having cut his employment contract short by three years?

1920 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Dr. McCutcheon resigned as CEO.

1925 As the GHA has already announced, Dr McCutcheon resigned on 11th September. He himself announced his resignation and explained that he had resigned for personal reasons.

The Question seems to imply that the GHA cut short his employment contract. This is not the case.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does that mean that there is no compensation?

1930 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that means that the appointment was not cut short. The terms of the, shall I say, termination of contract have to remain – (Interjection) yes, yes, let me finish – have at this moment to remain confidential.

However, I would be happy to discuss with the hon. Member outside the House.

1935 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes, but why is it to remain confidential at this stage?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Dr. McCutcheon's lawyer requested confidentiality and this was agreed.

1940 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, that may be the case, but the Government is accountable to this House for its use of public funds and how much it has paid a public servant for the termination of that service is not a matter that can be kept from this Parliament on the basis that one of the parties to it prefers that it be kept confidential. On that basis, this Parliament's ability to scrutinise the Government depends on other people's desire not to prevent it from doing so.

1945 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, in this context, we are talking about a specific individual and a remuneration package related to that individual which has led, on his resignation, to a payment to him, based on the contract entered into with the hon. Members when they were in administration.

1950 Let me say that I will look at the confidentiality clause, because it seems to me that the confidentiality clause cannot exclude our obligation to be answerable in respect of public funds, and come back to the House on that basis.

I think it is correct to say that there is a confidentiality clause there. I have not seen it, and we may have to take advice on how we can answer such questions in the House.

1955 At the end of the day, a payment will have to be accounted for and it is possible that we may just have to direct hon. Members to where that payment is going to be accounted for and they can then see the amount as a result of that, in whatever part of Estimates or whatever it is that we put out, so that they can see the exact figure in a public way.

1960 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I would confirm that the reasons I have not divulged them are purely because of my concerns as to confidentiality and that clearly, if that is cleared by the Chief Minister, I would have no problem at all.

1965 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes Mr Speaker, I have to say I am much more interested in the generality than in the specific case, but it also has to be said that the Hon. Dr. Cortes carefully worded his answer which would lead a less inquisitive listener to conclude that there was no compensation payment, which is a wholly different position to the one that we are in, in which there has been one, but he feels bound by confidentiality.

1970 Can I just say in answer to...if I can just ask the Hon. the Chief Minister – and I am grateful to him for what he has said on the question of confidentiality and all of that, and I await to see what conclusion he comes to – but when we were in Government, would he bear in mind that we were frequently invited by counterparties, whether it was in commercial agreements or in other situations, to submit to confidentiality clauses, which we often did agree to, but worded in terms that excluded from the confidentiality clause the Government's obligation to account to Parliament and any other... So some wording of confidentiality clauses is okay, but not an absolute...

1975 Anyway, I am happy to wait until his review of the matter.

1980 Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, and I am sure that no confidentiality clause can exclude such disclosure as may be required by operation of law or other requirement. Of course we have a requirement to account to this House for the spending of public money, therefore it must be that we are able to give that information. That is why I am going to look at it.

1985 The question that the Hon. Minister was answering was also very carefully worded and a less inquisitive person might not turn their attention to the detail of how it was phrased, suggesting that somebody had had their employment cut short. I think that is why he was very careful to answer correctly exactly the question that had been posed, as is our obligation when answering questions.

1990 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Member is right. The Hon. Minister for Health correctly corrected the false premise of the question, which was the assumption that the contract had been cut short and he correctly pointed out that it was not; but then he stopped short there, therefore giving the impression that because he had terminated it himself and it had not been terminated on him, ergo it must necessarily follow that there was no compensation. It is true that those words were not added, but it is implicit.

1995 If I ask if the contract was terminated, how much compensation was paid and the answer is the contract was not terminated, he resigned of his own accord, the implication is 'and therefore no compensation was payable or paid'. I am not saying that is what the hon. Member intended to convey, that false and misleading impression, but that is what it did.

2000 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I just say that I am conscious that we have had a very good morning and it is often when we think that we are collaborating in exchanges like this and the words 'false' and 'misleading' creep in, that we then have an explosion. So can we just leave it there and I will come back with the information when I have it.

Mr Speaker: I would very –

2005 Hon. P R Caruana: The words 'false' and 'misleading' are perfectly okay when they are preceded with the words 'I am not suggesting that the hon. Member intended it'. It is only when they are not proceeded by those words that they might be aggressive!

2010 Mr Speaker: May I invite the Government to ensure that a statement is made here in Parliament, because it is a matter of public importance. I think the whole question of Dr. McCutcheon is one of great public importance and for the record, having regard to the question that has been made, I think for the record, some answer should also go into the record of our proceedings.

2015 Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, for that invitation.
I think in the process of finding the information that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has asked for and looking at how we deal with this confidentiality aspect, I am quite happy to bring such information or give such explanation as to the operation of the confidentiality clause, by way of a statement, with your leave.

KGV Mental Hospital
Persons admitted below the age of 18

2020

Clerk: Question 878, the Hon. J J Netto.

2025

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister say if any person or persons below the age of 18 has been admitted to the KGV Mental Hospital and if so provide details of reason or reasons for the admission, the age, sex, duration and whether the decision for admission has been by sectioning, voluntary, or on any other account?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2030

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the request for information regarding patients aged under 18 years admitted to the acute ward did not specify the period required. I have gone back as far as 1st October 2007, five years, in the admissions Book. Information is provided in the schedule I now hand over.

2035

Answer to Question No. 878 of 2012

SCHEDULE

Sex	Age of Admission	Date of Admission	Date of Discharge	Status	Reason for Admission
M	14	10/10/08	13/10/08	Inf	Assessment
F	17	24/08/09	28/08/09	Sec 5	Anxiety Low Mood
M	17	14/05/10	28/05/10	Inf	Assessment
M	17	15/05/12	08/06/12	Sec 5	Assessment
F	17	21/09/12	01/10/12	Sec 5	Suicidal ideation

2040

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Mr Speaker: Yes? Does the hon. Member wish to ask a supplementary?

2045

Hon. J J Netto Yes, please. If I can...

Mr Speaker: Yes, please do.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to the figures being provided, in particular to the two last ones – and I would not necessarily want to, across the floor of the House, give particulars of the particular individual – could I ask, have they been admitted by sectioning or was it a voluntary decision between all the professionals and the families?

If the hon. Gentleman wishes, I might even withdraw the supplementary question and perhaps have it confidentially, I do not mind.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is in the table under 'Status'. The second last column provides the information.

2060

Hon. J J Netto Could I also ask, Mr Speaker, in relation to those two cases at the bottom of the chart, whether given their ages, are they being segregated from adults or not?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, absolutely, as the hon. Member will know, the facilities in KGV are not ideal for this, but they are completely separated and supervised very closely at all times. The new mental facilities will provide much more satisfactory conditions for dealing with young people with this type of problem.

Hon. J J Netto: Could I also ask, Mr Speaker, presumably clinical diagnosis would have been made either by local professionals or perhaps given the circumstances of the cases, even by professionals from abroad. Is that the case Mr Speaker, in terms of diagnosing the condition of those particular individuals?

2070 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I would assume so. That specific information was not requested and therefore it is not included in the table, but I would assume so.

2075 Hon. J J Netto: Could I also ask in relation to those two whether... are these two in the care of the Care Agency or are they in the community prior to admission?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am afraid I do not have that information.

2080 Hon. J J Netto: And does the Minister know, given their ages, has their education been hampered in any particular way and whether there has been any multi-agency meeting to discuss amongst professionals if this is so and whether it is possible to try and put it back on track?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, they may not even be in school at that age, because it is past the compulsory school leaving age.

2085 Mr Speaker, I will have to have notice of that question. I have answered the specific points listed in the question. Any further information, I am afraid I do not have and that could follow, if the hon. Member wishes to write to me.

2090 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, probably, and perhaps my last supplementary question, although I take on board what he has just said, that he might not be in a position to provide me with information, but in relation to the last one, the one at the bottom there, it seems to me that there may be some underlying psychological issues there. If this is so, will the hon. Gentleman know whether there is a continual assessment, as a result of that, and any particular treatment as a result of that?

2095 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, again, I do not have any information, but in view of the professional abilities of the staff, I am sure that whatever has to be done will have been and will be done. There is no holding back in helping young people with this sort of problem.

2100 As to specifics that were not in the question, it is not part of my day-to-day duties and therefore I do not have it. It is not the same as asking me about climate change, which I tend to know about, so I cannot answer that question.

Hon. J J Netto: I will take the offer from the hon. Gentleman and write to him to see.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: I will be delighted to respond.

Recess

2110 Mr Speaker: I understand the Chief Minister would like the House to recess now until three this afternoon.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Recess or adjourn, Mr Speaker, whichever you prefer. The practice until now has been that I move an adjournment until three.

2115 Mr Speaker: I honestly do not think that it is necessary. The word 'adjournment' refers to another day. You adjourn to another day. To this afternoon at three, there is no need for an adjournment. What the House should have is a recess until three o'clock this afternoon.

2120 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in Court –

Mr Speaker: It may be a practice which has been adopted in the last 20 years –

Hon. Chief Minister: Indeed, Mr Speaker –

2125 Mr Speaker: – but it was not in the previous 20.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think perhaps the influx of lawyers has brought in this new terminology of adjournment and what more salutary way to start your first day than to take a recess 2130 Mr Speaker: The word 'adjournment' is self-explanatory.

Hon. Chief Minister: So Mr Speaker, I am delighted that we should recess in fact until 3.00 p.m.

2135

Invitation by Mr Speaker Members may approach the Speaker's Chair

2140 Mr Speaker: Before I do that, there is another matter I wish to mention.

When I was a Member of this House 20 years ago, the Hon. Sir Alfred Vasquez invited Members who might wish to have a word with the Speaker to approach the Speaker's Chair – obviously provided it is not a controversial matter – but there may be instances when a Member needs to come and have a word with the Speaker and not wait for the House to recess. So I would invite hon. Members to do that. I am available, it is a practice that I always found very useful myself, as I said, when Sir Alfred Vasquez was Speaker.

Obviously a controversial or a difficult matter is another matter, but a small routine matter that they wish to come and talk to me about, there is no problem. Please approach the Speaker's Chair, whenever you feel necessary.

2150

The House will now recess until three this afternoon.

The House recessed at 12.20 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 3.00 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

CHIEF MINISTER

Civil Service AA vacancies
Details and status of applicants

Clerk: Answers to Questions continue.
Question 852/2012, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government state (a) how many AA vacancies have been

5 created within the Civil Service; (b) how many people applied for those vacancies; (c) how many have been employed in that grade; (d) of those employed in the grade how many were on the unemployment list and for how long and/or employed by ETCL under the Future Job Strategy scheme?

10 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Chief Minister

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, forty vacancies have been advertised. One new AA vacancy has been created within the Civil Service. 603 applications were received. None have yet been selected.

15

Redevelopment of Ragged Staff car park

20 Clerk: Question No. 915 of 2012.

Hon S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Chief Minister confirm whether the Government has any plans for the redevelopment of the Ragged Staff car park?

25 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government has no such plans at present.

30

Development of East Side reclamation

35 Clerk: Question 916, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Chief Minister provide this House with his Government's plans and policy in respect of the development of the East Side reclamation?

40 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker the position remains as set out in answer to Written Question 142/2012.

45 Hon. S M Figueras: And am I to take it, Mr Speaker, that there has been no change in that position whatsoever and no further development since he gave that answer?

50 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, if I have said the position remains the same as set out in the answer to that Written Question then, unless I have been misleading him, it must be that there has been no change.

Official car 'G1'
Use of intended replacement

55

Clerk: Question 917, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether the intended replacement for the Chief Minister's official car 'G1' is anticipated to be used for both daily duties and ceremonial occasions or 60 whether the Government intends to separate the two activities.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

65 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 918.

Official car 'G1'
Hybrid/alternative energy replacement

70 Clerk: Question 918.

75 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Chief Minister state whether he has now identified a hybrid/alternative energy replacement for the Chief Minister's official car 'G1' and, if so, what it is and when he expects it will enter service.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

80 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government is pursuing various options for the replacement, not just of the Chief Minister's official car but also for the replacement of much of the staff car fleet.

85 This involves the analysis of the specifications of various vehicle types, including hybrids and fully electric vehicles. No final decision has yet been taken in respect of the model or type, given that it is anticipated that new vehicle types will very shortly become available for testing. That will be followed, where relevant, by a procurement process.

90 The Government is aiming to start the roll out of a more environmentally friendly vehicle fleet during the course of the next financial year. Whether or not the replacement of the Chief Minister's official car will be for both daily duties, ceremonial occasions or both, will depend on the type and model of the replacement vehicle.

Government advisory councils
Membership and details of meetings

95 Clerk: Question 919, the Hon. D J Bossino.

100 Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 315/2012, can the Government advise whether the membership of the tourism, ports, business, e-commerce and e-government advisory councils have been reconstituted and provide details as to who comprises their respective memberships and how often they have met, if at all?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

105 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I hand the hon. Member a schedule with the information requested in respect of the advisory councils on tourism, ports and small businesses. The e-commerce and e-government advisory councils have not yet been constituted.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 919

Tourism Advisory Council

1. The Minister for Tourism
2. Chief Executive of the GTB
3. Franco Ostuni
4. Mrs. Lyana Armstrong-Emery
5. Mr. John Perez

12. Mr. Suresh Mahtani
13. Mr. Craig Fortunato
14. Mr. Felix Alvarez

The Small Business Board met on 11 April, 31 May, 18 July & 3 October 2012.

110 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, whilst I receive the schedule in relation to the e-commerce and e-government advisory councils, if I could just refer the Chief Minister to the reply he gave to me in relation to a supplementary I asked in connection with Question 315 on the last occasion in March. He did say that these – I think if I could paraphrase or summarise – councils would not be available until the infrastructural work – and I am quoting him –

115 ‘to put the government in a position to be ready to do e-government and e-commerce’ had not at that stage been done and that is an aspect of the work that he said had to be given priority. Is the position, therefore, that the infrastructure work has not yet been completed and therefore, the Chief Minister has not yet had an opportunity to constitute a membership of these boards?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the infrastructural work is ongoing and, therefore, I have not yet considered it appropriate to constitute these boards because there is no substantive issue to consider with them in respect of where we go thereafter.

125 So we are still at that stage. I expect to be in a position to constitute the boards sooner rather than later, when we really start to roll out the e-government programme.

Monument to the women of Gibraltar
Plans to honour previous administration’s pledge

Clerk: Question 920, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

135

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government say what plans, if any, it has to continue the previous administration’s pledge to erect a monument to the women of Gibraltar on the sundial roundabout?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

140

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government is already in advanced discussions with the individuals who gave life to this idea at the time that Members opposite were in Government.

It is my wish that this should advance as soon as possible to recognise the immense contribution of the women of Gibraltar to the community in which we are so privileged to live.

145

Health-related charities discouraged by GSD Government claims

Clerk: Question 921, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

155 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister provide this House with the list he promised me of health related charities that the Government claims the GSD discouraged the work and contributions of, and the circumstances under which this happened?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

160 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Lady to my last answer to her in this House and my last e-mail to her of 29th September 2012. The position, despite her many press releases on the subject, remains the same.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister be providing me with a list? He did state, at the last meeting of the House, that he was delighted to give particular examples and then, 165 in an e-mail to me, he did say 'I do have a list but will cross-check it with the Minister for Health'. So has the Chief Minister cross-checked it with the Minister for Health and can he provide me with a list?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, exactly as I said... the position remains exactly as I said in answer to the last question in the House and in my last e-mail to her. I am not yet in a position to give it to her for the reasons I set out in my last e-mail to her.

170 Since then, of course, she has issued a number of press releases. The position that I put to her in this House was that I would share the information with her confidentially. That remains the position.

I have just, as she will know, landed yesterday, from the month I told her I was going to be travelling extensively and not concentrating on that subject because I had other more pressing things to do. Now that I am back, I will do as I said I would in answer to her question.

175 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister is willing to share that information confidentially later on?

180 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as I told her in the answer to her question and in my last e-mail once I have had the opportunity of checking that list with the hon. Member, I will be writing to her on the basis set out in the answer, in other words, confidentially to share that information with her.

185 British Gibraltar territorial waters
Incursions by Guardia Civil

Clerk: Question 922, the Hon. D A Feetham.

190 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state how many incursions have occurred into British Gibraltar territorial waters by the Guardia Civil, excluding innocent passage, since 1st January 2012.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

195 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 923 and 924.

200 British Gibraltar territorial waters
Number of arrest warrants against Spanish fishermen

Clerk: Question 923.

205 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister state how many arrest warrants have been issued against Spanish fishermen for illegally fishing in British Gibraltar territorial waters this year?

210 British Gibraltar territorial waters
Number of incidents involving Spanish fishermen logged by RGP

Clerk: Question 924.

215 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state how many warnings, reports for process and arrests have been made or issued by the RGP this year in relation to Spanish fishermen's activities in British Gibraltar territorial waters?

220 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there have been 208 incursions by the Guardia Civil into British Gibraltar territorial waters since 1st January 2012.

225 This year 24 Spanish nationals were reported for process, however. Twenty-one of these persons were reported for process for fishing from the No warrants or arrests have been issued against Spanish fishermen for illegal fishing in British Gibraltar territorial waters. beach and all were cautioned for the offences. Three fishermen were reported for process for using illegal nets: they are currently being judicially processed, with one of the fishermen already having been summoned to appear in court.

230 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Question Withdrawn

235 Clerk: Question 925, the Hon. D A Feetham.

240 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am withdrawing this question. This is a question that I asked in a different format. I was asked by the former Speaker to cut it down because I referred to a preamble and, in fact, over the telephone, we discussed a new formulation of the question. Unfortunately, it does not actually reflect what I believed had actually been agreed between himself and myself and therefore rather than ask this on this basis, which is not the question that I wish to ask, I am withdrawing it and I am going to ask it of the Chief Minister next time round.

Flexible working hours for the Civil Service

250 Clerk: Question No. 926 of 2012, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon D A Feetham: Can the Minister with responsibility for the Civil Service please state whether the Government has made a decision on the detail of flexible working hours for the Civil Service and in particular (a) how these hours will be monitored; (b) the hours themselves; and (c) whether these hours will be rolled out across the entire public service including the GDC?

255 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no such decision has been made.

260 Clerk: With the Chief Minister's leave, may we proceed to Questions which are going to be answered by the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services or... The Deputy Chief Minister.

DEPUTY CHIEF MINISTER

Aerial Farm Proposed residential development

270 Clerk: Question 909, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Deputy Chief Minister tell this House whether the Government is proceeding with the proposed residential development at the Aerial Farm?

275 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 910.

Elliott's Battery/Europa Point
Proposed residential development

285 Clerk: Question 910.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Deputy Chief Minister confirm whether the Government will be proceeding with the proposed residential development in the area of Elliott's Battery/Europa Point?

290 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, the Government has not yet taken a final decision on this matter.

295 Hon. S M Figueras: For the avoidance of doubt, Mr Speaker, in light of the answer that the decision has not yet been taken, is it safe to assume, or would the Hon. Deputy Minister agree that it is safe to assume, that there is a possibility however remote and I do not know the extent to which they are in negotiations in relation to the project, that the project may not go ahead.

300 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: The position is that the project may go ahead or it may not. That is why we have not come to a decision so either thing could happen.

305 Hon. S M Figueras: And just one question further, Mr Speaker: is the Deputy Chief Minister able to enlighten us as to the reasons why this determination has not yet been made. Is it perhaps in relation to, or is it perhaps as a result of, pending consultations being completed and the like?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: I think that the answer is yes.
Part of it is that it is pending consultations which need to take place and part of it is the overall strategy of the Government to provide so many houses in four years.

Trainees on placement
Details and nature of work being undertaken

315 Clerk: Question 912, the Hon. S M Figueras. (Interjection by Hon. S M Figueras.)
...It is going to be answered by another Minister.

320 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Deputy Chief Minister provide details, providing a breakdown by age, gender and nationality of all trainees on placements within the Ministry for which he has responsibility indicating the Department, Agency or Authority where they are placed, as well as showing the type of work that they are engaged in.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

325 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, there are none.

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

Sewage infrastructure

Necessary improvement works identified by Government

Clerk: Question 887, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Technical Services provide details to this House of the works identified by the Government as required to modernise and strengthen sewage infrastructure as well as its policy in this regard, with specific reference to the level of investment it plans to make into this initiative?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Technical Services Department have produced a six year strategic plan for the rehabilitation of the main trunk sewer and associated infrastructure.

The exact details of the extent of the works required and the programme will be determined once a first stage of the project involving the silting and subsequent structural inspections using man entries and CCTV equipment is completed.

The Government is committed to investing in our sewage networks in line with our manifesto. There is £100,000 allocated in this financial year's Improvement and Development Fund to allow a start to be made on this first stage.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am very grateful to the Minister for his very helpful answer, particularly reference to the allocation made.

Residents only parking
Implementation by Government

Clerk: Question 888, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Government explain how it intends to administer the 'residents only' parking as referred to in its manifesto, whether it is already doing this in respect of the new car parks in Queensway and, if not, why not?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Government has still not made a policy decision regarding how parking will be managed, be it continuing down the route of providing parking for residents of specific areas, as had been done by the previous Administration, or by adopting a totally different approach.

The decision on this will be made taking into account the recommendations arising from the sustainable traffic, transport and parking plan. The new Queensway car park has, therefore, not been allocated on any basis. It will, at present, continue to be available for free public use as an alternative to the Commonwealth Car Park now that works to convert that into a magnificent green park have started.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the answer certainly but isn't the provision of the – well, I will preface this in this manner – the Commonwealth Park was originally, according to your manifesto, going to have an underground car park which was illustrated in that manifesto very clearly as being for residents only. Is it not the policy of this Government that, in respect of the parking it is providing in place of the underground car park, it will not be offering it 'for residents only'?

385 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am going to clarify that even though it relates to the manifesto and despite our discussion this morning. (Interjection by Hon. S M Figueras)

'Residents Only' in that context – I think it is further explained in the manifesto – means residents of Gibraltar, not residents of the area. I think we have had this exchange before in answer to questions from Mr Bossino – I may be wrong – or whether it has been outside of this House, that in order to implement such a policy we first have to get over the hurdle of the implementation of the policy in relation to the identity card.

390 The identity card with a chip will then enable residents to use that card to access the car park so, therefore, it is a process of having both the development, the ID card reaching its next stage, and then being able to implement that particular policy in that way so that the car park can then be used by people who are not residents but on a paying basis and those who are residents will be able to access it on a non fee-paying basis.

395 Hon. S M Figueras: Just by way of additional clarification, if any were needed, is it – and this is an open question, I just wonder whether perhaps the Government is seeking to draw any correlation in respect of what it does in relation to the parking, as it has done in relation to the buses. Is that where the Chief Minister is saying they are going with this, as well?

400 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, that is not presently on the cards but it may be that, in discussions, that becomes relevant or something that we are considering doing. It is not presently on the cards. At the moment, the issue is, or rather the idea of the Government is, to have those types of car parks only for residents, in other words for local vehicles. But it may be, in the future, that there is a development of that idea, either before or after we implement.

405 Clerk: Question...

410 Hon. S M Figueras: I just cannot help but rise to my feet and ask the Minister responsible for Traffic, given that, in his prepared response to my hon. and learned Friend, he made a reference to – and I do not recall the full title of the plan but I will summarise it as 'the traffic plan'... Is he in a position now to advise this House when he, the Hon. Minister, thinks that the process will be complete and we will have the benefits of reading the Government's traffic plan?

415 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am not in a position to actually know, as yet, when that process will be complete. We are actually arriving at the stage whereby a consultant will be appointed and, once that is done, then the whole process will begin in earnest with the traffic plan – so it is going to be quite a while.

420 Reclamation Road multi-storey car park
Government plans for continuing use

Clerk: Question 889, the Hon. D J Bossino.

425 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services advise this House what plans the Government has in relation to the continuing use of the multi-storey car park at Reclamation Road?

430 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Government intends to continue to use it as a car park for the time being. No future use has been determined.

435 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is the Minister aware that – and I say this without necessarily any authority – whether there are health and safety issues which impact on the continuing use of the multi-storey car park and, if so, will that determine its continuing use? That is really where the question was coming from.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I happen to have the information for a simple reason, 440 namely, of course, that the car park is in the place of a development, the progress of which is a matter that is being negotiated with my office, not with the hon. Gentleman. I can tell him that I checked as recently as last week whether there are any issues with that car park.

445 He may recall that car park used to have a roof of sorts, which was removed. My understanding, from the technical advice I have at No. 6, is that the roof had health and safety issues with high winds – that was removed – but that the rest of the structure is perfectly safe.

Queensway Quay Car Park
Details and running costs of solar-powered street lamps

450 Clerk: Question 890, the Hon. D J Bossino.

455 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services provide details of the setup and running costs of the solar-powered street lamps which have been installed at the new Queensway Quay Car Park alongside Kings Wharf?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

460 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the cost of the solar powered lamps in the first phase of the Queensway Car Park amounts to £41,242.44, inclusive of installation.

465 This is for a total of twelve lamps. These units are self contained and therefore do not incur any daily running costs as such. There will, however, be a need to carry out scheduled maintenance in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendations. The total cost of this will be accurately determined once the car park has been completed and all fittings are in place.

Hon. D J Bossino: May I ask which company or individual was the beneficiary of the installation of these street lamps?

470 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, again because it was an issue that was negotiated with my office and not the office of the Minister for Traffic, the people who own that plot of land – and I say 'people' because I cannot remember the name of the company – those individuals have a number of different companies for their own purposes – one of them may be King's Wharf Limited, from memory. They are the people who developed the car park so, therefore, we do not have that information.

475 The information the hon. Gentleman is asking for, we do not have. From plain sight he will know that there were AMCO vehicles there during the second half and there were AMCO vehicles there during the first half. I think, therefore, it is likely that it may have been AMCO that did some of the works, but I am talking to him as a layman in that respect because it was not the Government that did those works.

480 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am asking specifically in relation, as the Chief Minister and the Hon. Minister for Traffic knows, to the installation of the solar powered lamps, so just for clarification, is the Chief Minister telling this House that was contracted with the company which owns the site and not directly with the Government because that is certainly not the impression that I had from reading the press reports on the subject when, it seemed... In fact, it was a Government's spokesman that in fact spoke to the press on that occasion in relation to the wonderful street lamps.

485 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes. It is, Mr Speaker, a project that has been made available to the Government and the Government required that there should be solar powered lighting in any new such facilities that are open, but it was not the Government that carried out the works or did the works.

490 It was to the Government's requirement, as part of what I told him, where the negotiations were with the individuals – actually a company – that owned the site.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the cost of £41,000 odd is a cost to the Government, clearly, and, in that 495 context, if we are going to scrutinise the Government in relation to this particular item of public expenditure, I would want to know which company or individual was the beneficiary of those particular public funds.

500 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, actually, I think I have told him on a number of occasions in earlier meetings of this House that how that cost is going to be borne is still the subject of negotiation with the company but we have been able to give you the cost of it, I think... I assume by asking what the cost of it was. But it was not the Government doing that redevelopment of the car park.

505 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, if this was a private... if this was something that the owner of the site did on his own site, simply as a matter of planning or other direction by the Government, using solar lamps, in what circumstances could it conceivably fall – the cost of it – upon the Government? Why is it for discussion?

510 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, this is why I am saying to the hon. Gentleman, I have said, on a number of occasions in this House, when the hon. Gentleman has asked about this, that that plot remains in the ownership of a group of individuals who signed an agreement with the hon. Gentleman, when he was Chief Minister, about it. I have said also in this House, I believe in Hansard, that they wanted a longer period to be able to develop that site and they were shortly going to be, if not already, in breach of the period which they had for development.

515 I think that, before the Election, they may also have made representations to the hon. Gentleman about wanting an extension of that period. What I have said before is, in the context of those negotiations for an extension, the Government is in the process of finalising an agreement with these individuals for an extension and part of those negotiations, included in the part that is agreed, is that they would develop a car park there for public use – which is what the Government required.

520 Who will pay for that, and for what period it will be available for public use etc, is the issue that is not yet resolved but we know what the cost of part of that redevelopment has been and we demanded, as part of the negotiation, that any lighting put there should be solar powered lighting.

Hon. P R Caruana: So the cost of... who would bear the cost of all of that, or part of that, including the lamps, is a matter yet to be negotiated with the owner. So, at the moment, the Government has not incurred that cost?

525 Hon Chief Minister: I believe that is the correct position, but we know what the cost is –

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I know you know what the cost is.

530 Hon. Chief Minister: – because in the negotiation the issue is who should bear the cost of the preparation of it and therefore knowing the cost I think has become relevant.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, well, we now know that you know what the cost is, but we appear also to be finding out that you do not know whether the Government has borne it yet or not.

535 Hon. Chief Minister: What I can tell the hon. Gentleman is that those who are providing the land, if you want to call it that, expect the Government to pay but that they want – and you can read all of this into what I have already said – the longer the period of the extension, the less the Government will be inclined to be paying for the cost of the redevelopment of the car park.

540 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I understand that and I hope that the negotiation goes very well and that they end up paying for it all and you end up paying for none of it.

All I am trying to find out at the moment is whether, in fact, it is the case that, as we speak today, the Government has not paid for it.

545 Hon. Chief Minister: And I am telling him that I believe that to be the case. If that is not the case, I will tell the House tomorrow, but I believe that is not the case.

Hon. P R Caruana: And even though you do not know... although you think it is them who have paid it 550 – and you are going to check just to be cautious, whether the Government may have paid it or not – although you think not, does the hon. Member happen to know, or any of his colleagues sitting around him happen to know, who provided these lamps to whoever fitted them, regardless of who is going to pay for them?

Hon. Chief Minister: That is where we started, Mr Speaker.

555 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, and I was rather hoping to get to the point!

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, if he had listened to all of the debate rather than just the bits he found interesting he would have heard me say to the hon. Gentleman, because we have not done the works, we do not have that information.

560 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can I take it from that reply that Government's only intervention in relation to this particular discrete issue is only in relation to the insistence by the Government that there ought to be solar powered lamps and that there has been no Governmental intervention, insofar as who should secure that particular sub-contract, for want of a better word?

565 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, certainly, I have not been involved, Mr Speaker. Whether officials have been involved, on the part of the Government, in discussion with the company that has done the redevelopment, I cannot say because they have not had the conversation about it. I have not been consulted. I do not know if the hon. Gentleman has, because the Minister for Utilities, who was responsible for electricity, is not here. He may have been involved – I doubt it – or some of his officials may have been involved because of technicalities of which type of solar lighting may or not be best.

570 The hon. Gentleman will know that, during their time in office, there were one or two types of solar lighting being tested in different areas and some may be better and some may be less good but I cannot tell him that nobody has been involved in the Government, either at a political level or an official level, in discussing that with the contractor. My Office certainly has not been involved.

575 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, if there has been any Governmental decision in the context of choosing the particular successful contractor, could I ask the Chief Minister to also make a statement in relation to that tomorrow morning because, really, what I want to get to the bottom of is who the beneficiary was. If there was Governmental intervention in relation to that particular point then, perhaps, the Chief Minister or the Minister for Traffic could divulge that information and provide that information to me.

580 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, except that it is not a question of divulging information as to a beneficiary. From what I have told him, I think it is just a question of trying to find out whether there has been any involvement in determining who got the contract, which is not a Government contract. I will look into that for him and will give him the information that he seeks. I don't think I have to make a statement about it but I will give him the information that he seeks.

Government street cleaning campaign
Cost of derelict car removal

595 Clerk: Question 891, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 782/2012 is the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services now in a position to advise this House what the costs of the removal of derelict cars in the context of the Government street cleaning campaign is?

600 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since commencement of the Government's street cleaning campaign, which started at the beginning of September, a total of 63 abandoned vehicles have been removed at a cost of approximately £3,800.

Trainees on placement

Details and nature of work being undertaken

Clerk: Question 892, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services provide details, giving a breakdown by age, gender and nationality, of all trainees on placements within the Ministries for which he has responsibility, indicating the Department, Agency or Authority where they are placed and the nature of the work they are undertaking.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the Schedule which I now hand over to him.

Answer to Questions 892

Trainees – October 2012

Age	Gender	Nationality	Placement	Nature of work
23	Male	British Citizen	Technical Services Department	Civil Engineering
22	Male	British Citizen	Technical Services Department	Civil Engineering
22	Male	British Citizen	Technical Services Department	Civil Engineering
24	Male	British Citizen	Technical Services Department	Civil Engineering
28	Male	British Citizen	Technical Services Department	Civil Engineering

Mr Speaker: May I ask whether the hon. Member has any supplementary.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, may I ask a supplementary?

Mr Speaker: Yes, certainly.

Hon. J J Netto: I note in the last column that the nature of the work is 'civil engineering'. Could the Hon. Minister perhaps expand as to the type of work that they are doing?

Hon. P J Balban: As in? Is the hon. Member asking whether the nature, whether I can expand on the nature of the work of a civil engineer?

Hon. J J Netto: No, the civil engineering works.

Hon. P J Balban: What it entails, what it involves, you mean?

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, for the sake of clarity, I am not saying that the trainee is going to do civil engineering work because, obviously, as a trainee, he is not qualified. What I am asking is, given that the placement is in the Technical Services Department and the nature of the placement is something to do with civil engineering, what I am asking is what aspect of the work –

Mr Speaker: If the hon. Member looks at the actual Question, the last few words in that Question are ‘and the nature of the work they are undertaking’. I take it that civil engineering is the answer to that last part.

The nature of the work is civil engineering and whether they have further information is another matter but that, I would imagine, is the nature of the work: it is civil engineering. Whether they can go any further than that...

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as part of what the hon. Gentleman is getting at, I presume, because civil engineering is quite a big field, these gentlemen will actually be rotated throughout different departments so they will gain an experience in the highways engineering, infrastructure engineering, which is sewers etc, so they can gain experience within all the relevant areas of that profession.

Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker. Can the Hon. Minister provide information looking at the age, it could well be that these individuals are already graduates or are they sort of undergraduates or school leavers. Do we have any information in that respect?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes. These gentlemen are actually graduates; they have finished their degrees and have come as graduates.

Inspections, Site meetings and Advice Details for May and June 2012

Clerk: Question 893, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety now provide me with a breakdown of figures for the month of May and June 2012 in relation to Inspection/Site Meetings/Advice which he so kindly promised me in reply to Question 555/2012 and 790/2012 but has not yet done so, and again for the breakdown of information as asked for in Question Nos. 788 and 789/2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member to Questions 788, 789 and 790/2012 is contained in the Government website.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am afraid not so because – and I would not want to regurgitate all the previous questions and supplementary questions and answers.

It is not the case, as the Hon. Minister has just said, that if you go to the Government website – you can go straightaway now – you can desegregate inspections from site meetings and advice. We have discussed this before and, when I raised it before, even the hon. Gentleman has acknowledged that is the case. So, basically, I am entitled to ask the question and he is entitled to put the answers in the format that he wishes to do so but I think I am entitled to be able to deduce, in the manner that he provides the answer, what were apples and what were pears.

But if the hon. Member provides the answer in a manner which I cannot know how many numbers were apples and how many numbers were of pears, even though he acknowledges that I am right, and even the fact that, as he just said, looking at the Government website – which he can do it now – cannot provide me with the answer, I think it is quite reasonable for me to expect that, given what I am seeking, in terms of information, is so low in figures – because normally it does not go beyond the number of 20, 30 or 40, or even 50 – it is something that can be reasonably provided for.

I would not want to ask the same supplementary which I have asked now for three months, because he already answered that it is reasonable for me to get information – but he is not providing information.

700 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in fact we have been discussing this for more than three sessions. This is something which has been going on for much longer than that.

As I have explained in other meetings of Parliament to the hon. Gentleman, is that at the moment site inspections, site meetings and advice are classified under one. So, at the moment, the Health & Safety Inspectorate claim that they cannot split them up. This is why what you get in the Government website is one figure which encompasses the three things.

705 Obviously, this will, hopefully, make the hon. Member happy because we have spoken about the computer programme and how it is being progressed for a long time now. As from 1st October 2012, things will change, as the Health & Safety Inspectorate have now successfully managed to acquire this very much needed software which has become the subject, as I have said, of many debates in this Parliament. Various different suppliers have been contacted in order to acquire this software.

710 This very software has not existed within the Department ever since the licence agreement was discontinued by the previous administration and yet the hon. Member has 'hounded', if you like, this side of the House to provide him with statistics which only, I am told, a programme of this type could provide. So it gives me great pleasure to actually inform the hon. Member that this Government has, as promised in Parliament, put right the deficit which his Party, when in Government, created, by irresponsibly discontinuing the said licence agreement.

715 Hon. J J Netto: The hon. Gentleman has tried to score what, basically, is a cheap political point, without realising that the answers to my question has got nothing whatsoever to do with having a software programme.

720 The fact of the matter is that, when I asked the question in February, for January, he gave me the answer in a manner in which I wanted the information and there was no software programme. When I asked the question in March, for February, he gave me the answer in the manner that I wanted and there was no software programme. You do not need a software programme to extract the information I have been wanting!

725 All you need to get – and I am repeating myself – is the log book of the factory inspector and say, in a simple spreadsheet, how many inspections have been done, given that there is not more than three inspections in a month, and how many site meetings and advice have been given, which is not more than even ten on location. You do not need any software programme. There is no 'deficit'. It is just nonsense, the hon. Member saying that there is a 'deficit' when there is no deficit.

730 All you need is a bit of imagination in doing a spreadsheet programme. It can be done and has been done for the months of January and February by the Government. So the question is, given that he has done it at the beginning, he was not doing it later on, he now says that, from 1st October, he is going to provide it... I have looked this morning at the Government website and he still does not provide the information in the manner I have wanted him to. So the question is, when is he going to do it, given that he recognises that it is entirely legitimate to ask the question?

735 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as from 1st October means for the complete month of October so, by the next meeting of Parliament, he is more than welcome to ask that question and these three items should be divided into the sections that he requests.

740 I have had numerous meetings, as you can imagine, because obviously having had the same question over and over again it does make me want to know exactly what is going on. I have had meetings with the Inspectors and they say to me, they have categorically stated, that it is impossible to provide the information, as the hon. Member requested. This is why we have been pushing with the acquisition of this computer programme, which the Inspectors' guarantee that, from now on, from the end of the month, we will be able to provide the statistics as you request them.

745 So, obviously, at the end of the month we will see.

Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, as any person with a bit of common sense will tell you, it can be done without a new software programme.

750 But let that be the case, Mr Speaker, given that he says that, with this new software programme, he will be able to extract the information in the manner that I have been asking the question, will this new programme be able to go on the months that he has not been providing me the information in the manner with which I have been asking the questions, retrospectively.

755 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I sincerely doubt that we will be able to go backwards. This is something which, as from now on, the information requested by the hon. Member will be presented in this format. That is to say, it will be split up into site visits, advice given and inspections but to actually correct what has happened will be impossible, otherwise it would have been done by now.

760 Hon J J Netto: With respect to the Hon. Minister, the only thing he needs to do to get the information for the months he has not been providing the answer, is to get the log book of the Factory Inspector and simply say, in those days of the month in question, to be able to simply jot down how many inspections have been done and how many site visits have been done and how many advice have been done. You do not need a Houston space station software programme because, if you do, you really have got a problem.

765 The question is it can be done: it can be done within probably half an hour for all those months and you do not need a software programme. I just do not see why the Hon. Minister seems to have taken for granted what he alleges that the Factory Inspector is telling us, that they cannot go backwards. It is a very simple thing that I am sure students from Bayside can do it.

770 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will ask the Inspectors – who have now been compared to students from Bayside – to please read the Hansard because you have very clearly been given instructions on how this can be done in the future.

775 So just by reading Hansard, next time I am going to ask them specifically to read Hansard, follow the instructions and come back with the statistics that the hon. Gentleman is asking for. Let us see if that will help them in that respect because I have been asking for this information and they say to me that it is impossible. So, once again, I will ask them to read Hansard and follow the instructions and come back next month with all the impossible...

780 Hon D A Feetham: Can I just ask the hon. Gentleman – it may be that he has already answered it, I do not know, in a previous session – why was the information provided, according to my hon. Friend, on two occasions, the information which he requested in the format that he requested, and then it was ‘impossible’ to provide it on subsequent occasions? That is something that I personally do not understand.

785 Hon. P J Balban: The questions, as asked, have been asked continuously and these are the questions posed to the officials that reply. Why they were answered correctly, so the Gentleman says, the first couple of times and why they were answered so incorrectly subsequently, to that I have no idea.

790 Hon D A Feetham: Yes, but surely, if the issue is – and this is why my Friend is vexed by this – that it is not possible for them to actually provide the information in that format, surely it was not possible at the beginning.

What we have here is a situation where it was possible on two occasions but subsequently became impossible. Can the hon. Gentleman perhaps go back to his Ministry and ask his officials why that was the case – why they provided the information on two occasions and now they cannot?

795 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I recall the hon. Gentleman saying that it had been given correctly once, not twice.

Hon. J J Netto: Twice

800 Hon. P J Balban: Twice.

The only thing I can, I will go back to the relevant, to the officials and ask them why exactly that has been the case. The only thing I am wondering what could be a possible reason is that, prior to the inclusion of the other two factory inspectorates, the relief – (Interjection by Hon. J J Netto) No, prior there was only two. What we inherited was a staff complement of two.

805 If you look at the statistics for monitoring activities, there were a lot less in that month, unless it was – because it was possible that it was less monitoring activities done in that month than had been done subsequently. Again, I am shooting in the dark. I will find out and I will let the hon. Gentleman know at the next meeting of Parliament.

Site meetings and advice
Details for January and February 2012

Clerk: Question 894, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Can the Minister for Health & Safety now provide Parliament with an answer to Question 793/2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the question that the hon. Member is referring to appears to date back to March, in fact Question 311/2012. The hon. Member, in said Question, asked

‘How many site meetings and advice were given during the months of January and February 2012, broken down by month and by industry group?’

The table that I now hand over to the hon. Member was provided as an answer.

Answer to Question 894 of 2012

Month	Site Meetings/Advice	Industry
January	1	Sea Transport and related activities
Total	1
February	2	Retail
	1	Manufacturer
	2	Sea Transport and related activities
	1	Public Administration
Total	6

In September the hon. Member asked the following question at 793/2012:

‘Can the Minister for Health and Safety provide an explanation as to why the figures recorded in Hansard for the month of February 2012 in relation to the number of Inspections/Site Meetings/Advice, vary with the figures in the Government website for the same month as updated on 1st September 2012 or, indeed, with other subsequent figures recorded in Hansard.’

The total figure for the monitoring activities of the Factories Inspectorate during the months of January and February were as follows: in January there were 15 and in February there were 35.

In his March question (311/2012) the hon. Member asked for statistics pertaining only to site meetings and advice and not the whole of the monitoring activities of the Factories Inspectors – that is, he did not ask to include inspections.

The table, as posted on the Government website, reflects all monitoring activities of the Factories Inspectorate and not only site meetings and advice, as the hon. Member requested in his March question. Therefore, if we subtract the figures that the hon. Member asked for in March, site meetings and advice, from the total figures, as posted on the website, the rest of the figures reflect other monitoring activities carried out during the month of February by the Factories Inspectorate, not just site meetings and advice, as requested by the hon. Member. Hence there was no discrepancy with the figures on the Government website.

Hon. J J Netto: To be honest, Mr Speaker, I am a bit lost by the answer given but I will try to bring it down to my original Question.

When I asked him Question 308, which was the March session of Parliament, I said – and I quote – and we know, by the answer given, that it was two.

‘Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety state how many inspections during February 2012 did the Factory Inspector conduct?’

I then asked, in Question 311, how many site meetings and advice were given in January and February and the answer given was six. Now six and two is eight. The Government website said 35 and I asked ‘Can the Minister provide an explanation?’ So can he clarify the statement he has made?

860

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I have explained in much detail the reason why these figures did not seem to tally previously.

Hon D A Feetham: Could you please repeat the answer? We did not hear it.

865

Hon. P J Balban: Because it is a lengthy one, if the hon. Member requests I will give him a copy of the answer.

Hon D A Feetham: No, the answer he has just given.

Mr Speaker: The answer to the supplementary?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, the very last remark.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the only thing I mentioned, as a reply to the supplementary, was that the answer the hon. Member is requesting I have already given in the reply I gave. The original reply.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, with respect to the Hon. Minister, I do not think that the reply or the answer given actually answered the question.

My question is a very simple question. He said 8 and the Government website said 35.

I am asking can he provide an explanation for the difference. Is it 8, is it 35...? Is it anything between 8 and 35? What is the answer, or which one is correct of the two?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman had understood the reply to the answer originally, then he would not be asking the same question again.

Hon. J J Netto: I don’t think [inaudible] has understood what you said.

Hon. P J Balban: Okay, what we are saying is, what the hon. Gentleman asked for in the original question, back in 2012/311, was how many site meetings and advice were given.

Hon. J J Netto: No.

Hon. P J Balban: He did not ask how many site meetings, advice and ...

895

Hon. J J Netto: No, no, no. Mr Speaker, with respect... My answer... I mean read from the Hansard. My Question 308 says:

‘Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety state how many inspections during February...’

and Question 311 says:

900

‘Can the Minister for Health & Safety state how many site meetings and advice...’

Both put together equals 8, the Government website says 35: so he is not even quoting Hansard correctly.

905 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I still stand that the question has been adequately replied but, once again, Question 793 specifically asks in relation to the number of inspections, site meetings and advice, whereas Question 311 asks specifically for site meetings and advice but not inspections, so the discrepancy there must be the inspections.

910 Inspections are something which are carried out very frequently so it could be from 8 to 35 is due to the inspections.

Inspection of Hospital kitchens Report of findings

915 Clerk: Question 895, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

920 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety provide this House with the report of the findings from the inspection of the hospital kitchens?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

925 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Health & Safety inspection of the hospital kitchen was carried out on 11th April 2012 as a result of the joint request from my colleague, the Hon. Dr. John Cortes and myself, following a visit to the site.

The report confirmed the sorry and unacceptable state to which the kitchen had been allowed to deteriorate. Of the twenty-five recommendations made, all of which had been outstanding for years, nineteen have already been completed, three are in process, two have been re-assessed due to plans to relocate the kitchen and one is pending as it requires actions from a neighbouring business.

930 These are as follows: fixing of water leak on main dish washer – this was considered high priority and it was completed; corridor, false ceiling fixing – high priority, completed now; male toilets, false ceiling fixing – high priority, completed; cables hanging from the ceiling frame needed tidying – high priority, completed; insulation fibres needed evaluation and fixing – high priority; emergency fire exit, east facade, needs to be unobstructed – high priority and has now been completed; replenishing of First Aid boxes was of high priority and has now been completed; ‘push bar to open’ notice to be removed – medium priority, completed; wastage products, instruct not to park signage outside the emergency exit was of high priority and is still in process; emergency fire exit hinges require fixing – high priority, completed; scaffold blocking access to the exit – high priority, now completed; evacuation plan of high priority and in process; health and safety training – medium priority, in process; electrical switchboard room cleaning – high priority, completed; health and safety signage – high priority, completed; the commissioning of old generator – high priority, completed; cleaning warning signs to be used as per purpose – high priority, completed; cleaning adjacent to the new generator – high priority, and has been completed; warning signage to new generator area – high priority, completed; removal of highly corrosive SF 210 oven cleaner from inside the generator cage – high priority, completed; wooden pallets were obstructing traffic – high priority, this has been completed; speak to one of the neighbours for outside traffic arrangements – medium priority, still pending; manual handling training – high priority, completed; maintenance plan – high priority, has been suspended due to relocation plan.

940 So, Mr Speaker, it is clear that what we inherited on 9th December was a hospital kitchen which was in a very bad state and was of a severe health and safety concern. As the hon. Lady has requested whether a copy of the Health and Safety Inspection Report can be handed over, I will do so – there is one copy for her – and it is graphical with pictures of all the things that were found as part of the inspection.

EDUCATION, FINANCIAL SERVICES, GAMING, TELECOMMUNICATIONS & JUSTICE

Free optional nursery education
Details of scheme

Clerk: Question 896, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Education now in a position to explain how the policy for free optional nursery education, where private nurseries are to play a role, will work as per their manifesto commitment?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the policy for free optional nursery education has been implemented through the Department of Education, which was able to offer all applicants either a morning or afternoon placement in a Government nursery. There was, therefore, no need to involve private nurseries this year.

The Department of Education will monitor and will consult, as appropriate, with private nurseries should there be any equal involvement by private nurseries next year.

Gibraltar College of Further Education and Sacred Heart School Details of possible relocation

Clerk: Question 897, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education inform this House if there is any veracity that the Gibraltar College of Further Education will be moving to the old St. Christopher's School site and Sacred Heart School will be moving into the vacated College site and, if so, when will these moves take place?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker no firm decision has yet been taken as to the possible relocation of either Sacred Heart School or the Gibraltar College. A number of options are presently being studied.

South District catchment area
Planning for increased numbers of children

Clerk: Question 898, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education inform this House how he will cater for the increased number of children in the South District catchment area, given the new family residences at Bayview, Cumberland Terraces and Nelson's View?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1015 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, an evaluation exercise of the existing catchment areas will commence shortly. It is envisaged that this will help the Department of Education to redefine the districts and neighbourhoods feeding particular schools.

1020 The feasibility of extending the capacity of both St. Joseph's Middle and First Schools is also being studied. I would add, Mr Speaker, that the increase in the number of children in the South District catchment area, given the new family residences at Bayview, Cumberland Terraces and Nelson's View has been known for some time.

It is unfortunate that the previous administration appears to have given no thought to this and certainly took no steps at all to deal with this issue.

Westside catchment area
Planning for increased numbers of children

1030 Clerk: Question 899, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1035 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education inform this House whether it will cater for the increased number of children in the Westside catchment area, given the new family residences at Mid Harbours Estate, in addition to the already densely populated Westside area?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1040 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker the Mid Harbours Estate has been assigned to St. Mary's First School and to Sacred Heart Middle School, given that the area of the Mid Harbours Estate was already heavily populated and the First and Middle Schools traditionally serving this area could not cope with the increase in numbers.

1045

Adult learning programme
Implementation details

1050 Clerk: Question 900, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education commit himself to inform this House when the adult learning programme, as per the Government's manifesto commitment, will roll out and how it will work?

1055 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1060 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I presume that the adult learning programme the hon. Member opposite refers to is the 'National Institute of Adult Continuing Learning' mentioned in the Government's manifesto. The Gibraltar College already has a clear involvement in the provision of programmes aimed at enhancing employment and academic opportunities. The Institute would develop these programmes further.

1065 The establishment of the Institute is currently being worked on. The Government is not yet in a position to give further details on this.

GCSE results
Disparity of announcements

Clerk: Question 901, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education explain why Year 10 Bayside Students get their GCSE results, for some of their subject modules, on the same day all Year 11 Students get their GCSE results and the Year 10 Westside Students receive their GCSC results for some of their subject modules two weeks later, at the beginning of their new academic year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, until now each school has released modular examination results independently, given that these do not represent a terminal grade at the end of an examination. However, I can confirm that from now on both schools will be issuing the full GCSE and modular results on the same day.

I would add, Mr Speaker, that this is in line with the policy adopted by this Government which appeared not to exist previously that, where you have discrepancies as to how each school operates, then those discrepancies should be eliminated so that no-one can say that, because you go to one school or the other, you have a particular benefit or another.

The hon. Lady will recall that she asked a question recently in relation to repeats provisions in Westside and I gave exactly the same commitment that Bayside would do that. This, again, is in line with that policy, to make sure that both schools offer the same services to both sets of children, which was not their position.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Then Mr Speaker, will the Hon. Minister also be committed to equalising the offer of the same subjects to both schools because, at the moment, there is a discrepancy in terms of Sociology, Economics, ICT and Technical, Woodwork, Metalwork and so on.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the subjects are a different proposition because that depends on the interests of the particular children that go to these schools.

There has been a difference in the subject offering. What we try to do, particularly at the higher levels, because of the way the consortium works, not just with Westside but also with the College, is that, where children want to study a particular subject that is not offered in their school but is offered in one of the others, then the children will be able to make use of that and attend the other school for those particular subjects.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, that is at AS and A2 level. What about for GCSE's?

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, for GCSE that is a different proposition, because the timetabling is different.

There has to be a certain element of flexibility given to the Headmasters so that they set the curriculum in accordance with the needs of the children that the school teaches and there will be some discrepancies. What I have explained previously, in terms of policy, is that where it is seen that a particular benefit is given to one, because of either release of results or the availability of re-sit programme, where it is seen that a particular benefit is given to one because you are a boy or you are a girl, then that we are intending to remove. But Headmasters, in conjunction with their staff, will need to consider which subjects are offered in that particular school for the students in that particular school and which subjects best cater for the curriculum requirements of the particular school.

There will be an element of difference in that regard but not in regard to any particular benefit that is perceived.

Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012
Possible extension to non fraud cases

1125

Clerk: Question 902, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1130

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state whether he has any intention of extending the Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012, or similar rules, to complex or exceptionally difficult cases other than fraud cases?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government is looking at reforming the rules for Legal Aid and Legal Assistance generally and will make an announcement when a decision has been made.

1140

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I quite understand the Government is looking into a reform of the Legal Aid Rules and, indeed, the Government has a benefit of a draft doing precisely that. It was prepared when I was holding his office. That is really not the question. The question is in relation specifically to complex or exceptionally difficult cases.

1145

The Hon. the Minister may recall that, in answer to a question earlier on this year, he actually conceded that you can have complex or exceptionally difficult cases that were non-fraud cases. Can the Hon. Minister justify the differentiation in treatment between complex and exceptionally difficult fraud cases and complex and exceptionally difficult non-fraud cases?

1150

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am not sure that the supplementary arises from the answer that I have given but I will respond.

What the Government will not do is make reform on a piecemeal basis. Every time the hon. Member asks questions he says 'Why don't you add this or why don't you add that, then we make a decision and make a reform on that basis.' That is not the way this Government conducts business.

We are looking at the whole area. We made a decision earlier this year to provide a new rule in relation to these provisions – Rule 8 in particular – which covers a particular category of cases because we felt, at that time, that it was appropriate in the circumstances to make that change. But there will be no piecemeal changes to the rules, going forward on a case by case basis or an ad hoc basis. We are reforming the whole thing generally and, once we take a view as to what the makeup should be of the entire rules for Legal Aid and Legal Assistance, we will make that announcement and the hon. Member will have his answer.

1160

Hon. D A Feetham: With respect, does he not recognise that, actually, that is precisely what he has done? He has reformed the Legal Aid system piecemeal, favouring just simply complex and exceptionally difficult fraud cases. In fact, that was the entire basis of my criticism when we exchanged press releases earlier on this year, when I criticised him for doing precisely that – but he has not really, with respect, answered the question.

1165

Can he justify to this House the differentiation in treatment between the complex and exceptional fraud cases and the non-fraud cases? Is there a particular policy reason or any other cogent reason why there is this differentiation in treatment between these two types of cases?

1170

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am extremely surprised and, in fact, very, very disappointed, that the hon. Member should ask this question because I have had conversations with him and he knows exactly what the answer is. Even today we have had a private conversation out there and I have given him the answer to the question. I have explained to him why that was a private conversation and I was not going to reveal that in the context of this House. Therefore, I am very disappointed and very surprised that he should ask this question on the floor of this House.

1175

Hon. D A Feetham: I am equally surprised that you should give me that answer.

I do not recognise anything that he says – that he has just said – appertaining to the question that I have just asked him. If the answer is that the Government somehow has felt compelled to make the change, for 1180 whatever reason, and there are legal reasons for the Government being compelled, the reality is that if you are going to have a situation where you change the law because, for example, one feels that, in relation to....

Hon. G H Licudi: Point of Order.

1185 Mr Speaker: What Standing Order are you referring to?

Hon G H Licudi: I am referring in particular to Standing Order 45(4): it says references shall not be made to any matter on which a judicial decision is pending in such a way as may prejudice the interest of parties thereto.

1190 Mr Speaker: There is a judicial decision pending on the matter, then?

1195 Hon. G H Licudi: There are judicial... there are ongoing cases. In fact, there are other questions which will make clear what the position is but, in relation to the aspect that the hon. Member talks about, about the changes in the rules, the case that he is referring to, that is an ongoing case, that is a judicial decision that is pending. It is not in the interest of the parties, or for the public interest, that this matter should be aired.

That is why I answered before in the manner that I had, to say that I have provided the information publicly. Therefore, I would ask you to rule that this question is out of order.

1200 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, on the Point of Order, it is true that there are prosecutions before the courts of a fraud nature which now enjoy the benefit of this Legal Aid Rule. But that is not what is being asked about. We are not asking about those cases. We are saying, given that the Government has done this for complex fraud trials – we are not asking the reason why the Government has done this –

1205 Hon. G H Licudi: That is exactly what he did.

1210 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, he clarified and he said if the Government has felt compelled to do it, given that, for whatever reason, the Government has done it in that category of cases, does the Government not feel compelled, or does the Government not feel it is appropriate, to extend the same Rule to complex and exceptional cases in other areas of the Law, other than the one in which you have done it. That is the question.

1215 This is not a question about the cases that are sub judice, it is not even a question that asks you why you did it in the case of fraud. It is a question that says, having done it in the case of exceptional fraud and exceptional cases, is the Government comfortable with doing it only in exceptional fraud and not also in other cases, not fraud, which are also exceptional and complex? That is the essence of the question. Is there a policy reason, can the Government explain whether its policy is to do it just for that and is content that there are other complex and exceptional subject matter trials in which the defendants do not have the same facility that the defendants have now? I think I know the reason. I can guess it. I think I remember enough of –

Hon. G H Licudi: He knows.

1220 Hon. P R Caruana: Alright, but that is not what has been asked. That is not what has been asked.

I am speaking to the Point of Order, not to the original question. The Point of Order is do not let the question be asked because it is out of order because the subject matter of the question is sub judice. I am not defending the question or the answer, I am defending the Point of Order.

1225 The question, whatever the Hon. Minister might think of it, is not objectionable on the grounds that it is sub judice because this is not a question about a matter which is before the courts for resolution or determination by the courts. It may be the case that these Rules were introduced in the context of a particular situation, which is the subject matter of a case before the trial, and it may well be that the Government did it of its own motion, or did it under advice, or did it for whatever reason. I suspect it was done on advisement. Right?

1230 That is not the issue. The issue is, having done it, for whatever reason, motivated by whatever, the propriety of which I am not questioning, does the Government feel that it is right that defendants in complex fraud trials should now have this Legal Aid benefit but that defendants in other trials, complex and exceptional but non-fraud, do not have that benefit. I do not think that question, with respect, is objectionable 1235 because it is sub judice because it is not about anything that is before the courts.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, just responding on the Point of Order, the question that was posed by the hon. Member was not what the Leader of the Opposition has just asked.

1240 The question that the hon. Member has just asked was answered by me already in response specifically to the first supplementary. In other words, 'Are you going to extend it to these other cases?' I said 'No, we will do it, because we are considering Legal Aid and Legal Assistance reform generally and we will do it at that time'. So that is the answer for that.

The hon. Member has then delved into why the Government felt –

1245 Hon. P R Caruana: If the hon. Member will give way for five seconds... I understand that. I heard the exchanges between them and he may well have that point available to him in his ongoing exchanges with my hon. Colleague after the Point of Order has been adjudicated.

1250 I am not speaking to the merits of the question or the answer. I am simply speaking to the hon. Member's invitation to the Speaker to rule the question in breach of Standing Orders on the ground that it raises an issue which is sub judice because all I am saying is that the issue is not sub judice and, in my view, would be an inappropriate curtailment, which does not then oblige the hon. Member to say anything about it that he does not want to say. He might then still want to give the same answer that he has just begun to give me when I have interrupted him, for. I am grateful for the opportunity.

I am not speaking to the merits of the exchange, simply to whether it is genuinely sub judice.

1255 Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, I understand the point.

In a nutshell, the question relates to certain changes which affect a case which is ongoing before the courts. There are pending decisions – judicial decisions – in respect of that case, and we consider that, in those circumstances, that matter generally is sub judice and should not be the subject of discussion in this House.

1260 Mr Speaker: Well, let me say this, that –

Hon. D A Feetham: May I say also –

1265 Mr Speaker: Yes, I will allow you one further supplementary.

1270 Hon. D A Feetham: No, no, not a supplementary, may I also say this that it cannot possibly be the case that this is somehow confidential information that the hon. Gentleman has passed to me in the corridor outside, because it has actually been reported in the Chronicle. I have an article here, 'New Rules Expand Legal Aid for Complex Fraud' by Brian Reyes and it actually states the reason for the changes to the Legal Aid Rules.

1275 Then there were exchanges between myself and the hon. Gentleman in the context of my criticisms of the Rules precisely because it was piecemeal. Again, the reasons why it was done was actually ventilated by my hon. Friend and myself. This is a matter of public record so I just cannot see how on earth there could possibly be any question, on my part, of breaching any confidence that he may have imparted to me in the corridor outside – when it is already a matter of public knowledge.

1280 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, if I could just deal with that last point. I have not suggested that he has breached a confidence: what I have said is that because he knows the answer I am surprised that he has asked. I am not saying that, in his question, he has breached any confidence, he has been given the answer to what he was asking, privately, and because he has been given the answer – which he has not divulged and therefore not breached any confidence – that is why I was surprised by the question.

Mr Speaker: Let me say that, in the legal world –

1285 Hon. P R Caruana: Too many lawyers!

Mr Speaker: – legal practitioners know a great deal about what is going on which the rest of us do not know about. Therefore, my inclination would always be, in such an instance, to be cautious.

1290 I have to be cautious and, if the hon. Member is not satisfied, there is always a mechanism which the House – the Rules – provide. He can raise the matter on the adjournment and, in fact, they can even then debate the matter without a vote being taken.

1295 But as to questions and answers I think I have to rule in favour of the Hon. Minister, that he seems to think that this is a case that is sub judice and I therefore think that, in this House, nothing should be said which could prejudice a case.

1300 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, and of course we accept your Ruling and that is fine but it really cannot be the case that Ministers can just get out of answering questions by alleging that it is sub judice, so it does call for a judgement by the Chair as to whether the sub judice ground that he considers it established in this case – an assessment to which I submit –

Mr Speaker: But the Chair is not privy to the private conversations which have taken place behind the Speaker's Chair and the hon. Member will appreciate that. I do not know what has gone on, what the Hon. Minister and the hon. Member have discussed in private. I am not in a position, therefore, to rule otherwise.

1305 Hon. P R Caruana: Fine and, therefore, the Chair may be saying, Mr Speaker, that you just lack the information to make an objective assessment yourself ...

Mr Speaker: And therefore, I have to be cautious.

1310 Hon. P R Caruana: That is one approach. Another approach –

Hon. G H Licudi: That is a Ruling.

1315 Hon. P R Caruana: – Another approach to a Ruling. (Interjection) Yes, but this could happen again... Mr Speaker, it is the Speaker's role to adjudicate on whether Standing Orders have been breached. It cannot simply be asserted by an MP and the Speaker says, because I am not informed, as a matter of caution I go with the objection. On the other hand, I fully understand that the Chair may feel it has insufficient information to make the assessment, in which case an alternative approach – the approach that Mr Speaker chooses to take is a matter entirely for his decision and his selection – but another approach is to simply sort of adjourn, not adjourn, defer, Mr Speaker's consideration of the Ruling on the Point of Order, ask the matter not to be debated further and make a decision in slower order, when he has had an opportunity to obtain the facts in confidence if they cannot be aired in public.

1320 I am not on my feet because I have any objection to the Ruling that Mr Speaker has made on this occasion, simply to the suggestion that, in cases where the Speaker lacks the information to make his own assessment, he goes with the Minister's assertion because that is a very powerful weapon in the hands of a Minister because a Speaker will very often be unsighted.

1325 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may just try and be of assistance.

1330 It is important that the House not become a court room and assessing whether a matter is sub judice or not could turn, Mr Speaker, into a judge of issues of fact and law. What I think we have an obligation to do, on both sides of the House, is to try and ensure that we do not raise matters which are sub judice and if somebody raises a matter which, on the Government's side, there is a belief that the issue is sub judice or, indeed, on the Opposition side, an issue is raised by the Government which the Opposition considers to be sub judice and Mr Speaker is not able to be given the information in the Chamber because to disclose that information in the Chamber would in effect be to breach the Rule on sub judice, I would agree that the best answer is to recess so that Mr Speaker can have the information and make a more informed Ruling.

1335 But I think the main issue is this, absent bad faith, and I think that, apart from saying, as we sometimes do and should to each other, you are only saying that for your own political purpose – this is a political Chamber – absent bad faith, a Minister is not going to get up and say that something is sub judice, knowing that it is not, neither is a Member of the Opposition going to allege sub judice in relation to an issue. I say this because I raised the sub judice concern when I was in Opposition about something that the then Chief Minister was saying, so I think, Mr Speaker, it is an area where we have to tread very, very carefully –

1345 Mr Speaker: Let me add –

Hon. Chief Minister: – otherwise it may lead to problems.

1350 Mr Speaker: Let me add that, in my meetings with my predecessor, I made it the point of asking him for advice on questions of, matters being, whether they might be sub judice and how he dealt with them. I took advice from him. Of course, being himself a legal practitioner, he said ‘I sometimes knew, had heard talk in legal circles which may have placed me in a position where I knew a little bit about a particular case’. I am not in that position. I do not move in such circles and therefore I would know nothing about what is going on in the courts and, therefore, my tendency, therefore by nature, would be to be cautious.

1355 I am quite happy, outside the House, to meet with the Hon. Minister and the Hon. Mr Feetham and have a chat with them about the matter and see whether we can make any further progress. Other than that, I think we should move on.

1360 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I find that a perfectly satisfactory outcome and can I just say, separately to that, in relation to this sub judice, that we Members of the House have grown used to simply referring to the matter as being sub judice, as if that were sufficient to rule it out of order.

Actually, the Rule is not that, the Rule is not that you cannot refer to a matter that is sub judice, in the sense that it is before the courts, the Rule says ‘it shall be out of order...’ I beg your pardon, Rule 1:

1365 ‘...references shall not be made to any matter on which a judicial decision is pending, in such a way as may prejudice the interests of the parties thereto.’

It is not a simple sub judice, in the sense of if the matter is before the court therefore you cannot comment on it. It is a little bit more complicated than that: it also has to be prejudicial to the parties. So –

1370 Hon. Chief Minister: Can I just assist there, Mr Speaker, because the hon. Gentleman may not recall, in fact, that Rule is interpreted in quite a lot of detail in Erskine May. There is a lot more about it and there is a ruling of your predecessor, Mr Speaker, that dealt with my assertion that a matter that was being raised which was sub judice which may be helpful in understanding how to deal with it. It also relates to which courts the matters are being dealt with and at what stage they are. So I think all of those things need to be taken into consideration.

1375 I understand from the hon. Member that he took all of those things into consideration before making the assertion and actually said the words, that further debate could be prejudicial to the parties.

1380 Hon. P R Caruana: I understand that. This may be a case where there is a jury involved and it is quite easy to see how that may cause... but if there was a case, for example, which was a civil matter which was being tried by a judge, it is not possible for the interests of the parties to be prejudiced in the minds of a judge by what I might say in this House or what he might. The idea that judges are swayed by what politicians say – juries are another matter: juries... I understand that juries are another matter. All I am saying is – and I really do not want to try the Speaker’s patience too far on the subject – that this sub judice area, and the extent to which sub judice curtails the freedom of Parliament to discuss, is a very sensitive issue which requires a case by case assessment but the assessment has got to be by the Speaker. If the Speaker, as is obviously the case in this case, is not sighted, he cannot be expected to make a rational ruling un-sighted and I think that, in those circumstances, the better practice is to say ‘no more debate until I have had an opportunity to consider the facts in private, if necessary, so as not to spill the beans, and I will make a ruling later.’

1390 Mr Speaker: That is what –

1395 Hon. Chief Minister: I agree with that except for one thing, which is that what we cannot do is open the door to the sub judice rule not applying to civil matters. There are other rules that also curtail, not just that the adjudicator might in some way be influenced.

Hon. P R Caruana: [Inaudible].

1400 Mr Speaker: Okay, let us move on to the next Question.

Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012
Beneficial impact of changes

1405 Clerk: Question 903, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice state how many (a) people and (b) unrelated cases, have benefited from the changes introduced by the Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1415 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the answer to this question remains the same as the answer given to Question 562/2012.

Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012
Details of payments made

1420 Clerk: Question 904, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1425 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state, as at Friday 12th October 2012, how much has been billed and paid in legal costs in relation to any case covered by Rule 8 of the Legal Aid (Fees and Expenses) Rules 2012, identifying (a) the case or cases; (b) the legal firm or lawyers retained in Gibraltar; (c) any overseas lawyer retained in the case or cases and (d) in each of (b) and (c) the amount billed and paid?

1430 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member relates to ongoing cases. It would be inappropriate to provide this information at this stage.

1435

Supreme Court Act (B15/12)
Consultation with Family Judge

1440 Clerk: Question 905, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice state whether he consulted the Family Judge before publishing the amendments to the Supreme Court Act (B15/2012)?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice

1450 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the matter was discussed with the Chief Justice.

Hon. D A Feetham: But you have not discussed it directly with the Family Judge?

1455 Hon. G H Licudi: The answer is that I have discussed the matter with the Chief Justice.

Hon. D A Feetham: I know that you have discussed it with the Chief Justice but unless, of course, you are asking me to imply from the answer that you have not discussed it with the Family Judge, only the Chief Justice, I am asking you have you discussed it also with the Family Judge?

1460 Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker I have discussed the matter with the Chief Justice. (Interjection) Maybe with other people, but...

1465 Sections 306 and 307, Crimes Act
Numbers affected by changes in notification procedure

Clerk: Question 906, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1470 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state how many people would have been subject to the notification procedure in Sections 306 and 307 of the Crimes Act before he introduced the amendments to that Act in the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2012?

1475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker I will answer together with Questions 907 and 908/2012.

1480

The Crimes Act
Details of convictions under section 3

1485 Clerk: Question 907

1490 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state how many people currently residing in Gibraltar have been convicted and sentenced for offences listed in Schedule 3 of the Crimes Act, broken down in the categories set out in the first column of the table in section 307 of the Crimes Act (headed 'description of the relevant offender') identifying the date of conviction and/or the date of any relevant fine referred to therein?

1495 The Crimes Act
Details of convictions requiring notification under section 306

Clerk: Question 908.

1500 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state how many people are currently serving a sentence in Gibraltar or are being treated in hospital pursuant to a sentence or a finding in respect of any offences listed in Schedule 3 of the Crimes Act and which would require notification under section 306 of that Act, as amended, when it comes into force?

1505 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice

1510 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, 21 persons would have been subject to the notification procedure in section 306 and 307 of the Crimes Act before the introduction of the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2012. When I say 'before the introduction', this necessarily applies when the Crimes Act came into effect.

1515 In answer to Question 907, I now hand to the hon. Member a schedule containing the information in the Question.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION 907/2012

Description of relevant offender	Date of conviction
A person who, in respect of the offence, is or has been sentenced to imprisonment for life, or to imprisonment for 30 months or more	1. 1976 2. 1976 3. 26/06/82 4. 01/07/02 5. 15/11/10 6. 14/11/10 7. 25/04/12
A person who, in respect of the offence or finding, is or has been admitted to a hospital subject to a restriction order	Nil
A person who, in respect of the offence, is or has been sentenced to imprisonment for more than 6 months but less than 30 months	8. 12/03/08 9. 14/07/10 10. 30/11/11
A person who, in respect of the offence, is or has been sentenced to imprisonment for 6 months or less	11. 14/11/08 12. 05/10/10
A person who, in respect of the offence or finding, is or has been admitted to a hospital without being subject to a restriction order	Nil
A person who, in respect of the offence, is cautioned	Nil
A person in whose case an order for conditional discharge is made in respect of the offence	Nil
A person of any other description	13. 12/07/10 14. 01/12/10 15. 30/03/11 16. 30/06/11 17. 17/08/11 18. 17/08/11 19. 21/10/11

1520 Can I say, in relation to the schedule, Mr Speaker, that I am now handing over, the question which that schedule relates to refers to a table in section 307 of the Crimes Act. That table provides for an indefinite period of notification in certain circumstances. As a result of developments in the European Court of Human Rights and in England, it will be necessary to introduce the possibility of a review of the indefinite notification requirement. I therefore anticipate, and I give notice to the hon. Member, that we will be bringing an amendment to Parliament to deal with this. There will, however, be no need to delay the commencement of the Act whilst we draft and bring to Parliament this particular amendment.

1525 In relation to Question 907, there are currently three persons serving a sentence in Gibraltar HM Prison pursuant to a sentence in respect of offences listed in Schedule 3 of the Crimes Act which would require notification under section 306 of the Act. I would also add, Mr Speaker, that all of the persons on the list that the hon. Member has, are known to the Royal Gibraltar Police and are subject to existing vetting procedures.

1530 The Government wishes to reiterate and provide further assurance that there is no risk to the public in Gibraltar, and is satisfied that no risk to the public in Gibraltar arises from the amendment to the Crimes Act in the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2012.

1535 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I was aware about the case in the European Court of Human Rights. In fact, I think I alerted the hon. Member to those cases when I wrote to him, I think it was two weeks ago. In fact, I invited the hon. Gentleman to take stock of public opinion here in Gibraltar to reconsider his position, perhaps in the light of a review associated with a consideration by the Government of those Human Rights cases.

Do I take it, from the answer that he has given me, that the Government stands by these amendments and, despite the public outcry in relation to the amendments that the hon. Gentleman brought a number of weeks ago, that the Government has no intention to reverse its policy?

1540 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member refers to a public outcry. The Government deeply regrets that the outcry, the part of the outcry – if there is any outcry – has been caused by them unnecessarily and irresponsibly and, by continuing to mention that today, they appear to be intent in continuing to cause unnecessary public alarm.

1545 When I say it is being done by them unnecessarily and irresponsibly, I say that advisedly, Mr Speaker, because they have done so by putting out a press statement which actually contains false information and it is false information to the knowledge of the hon. Member, who considers himself –

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, Point of Order.

1550 Hon. P R Caruana: That is a very serious allegation.

1555 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, Point of Order. He knows that what he cannot do in this House is actually accuse a Member of this Parliament of intentionally lying and intentionally misleading. That is precisely what he is doing. So I take objection on that. That is the Point of Order that I raise, but I have to say that it is really surprising that the hon. Gentleman should just simply attempt to brush under the carpet public concerns by deflecting attention from an ill advised, ill conceived policy of protecting 21 sexual offenders at the expense of the public.

1560 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have to deal with the Point of Order because the hon. Member says that I accuse him of providing misleading information. I do not accuse him of providing misleading information, I accuse him of providing false information. Information that he should know is false.

Hon. P R Caruana: [Inaudible] that he knows [inaudible].

1565 Hon. G H Licudi: Well, he knows because he proclaims himself to be the architect of the Act. Therefore, he is perfectly aware of what the Act says, of the provisions of the Act... he is perfectly aware of what he has said to the public and, therefore, it has to follow that he must know that the information that he has provided is false. But given that the hon. Member raises – (Interjections)

1570 Mr Speaker, it is obviously true and the hon. Member takes exception to suggestions that he is misleading or not giving true information, I certainly have not said that he has done that in this Parliament under our Rules in relation to that, but there is absolutely nothing wrong – and, specifically to address the Point of Order – there is absolutely nothing wrong to say that, in a press statement that they issued, they actually gave false information and, therefore, they misled the public.

1575 The hon. Member asks what false information? Well, let me read exactly what the hon. Member, dealing with this issue of whether they had been misleading or not... (Interjection)

Mr Speaker: No, let him conclude, please.

1580 Hon. G H Licudi: The Leader of the Opposition has asked what false information and the false information relates, in particular, to the effect of the amendments that we made on persons outside Gibraltar who have committed sexual offences in Gibraltar because, in their press statement – their original one – it says that the Opposition's biggest concern – not just a concern, their biggest concern – was not with locals, because obviously the hon. Member knows there is a list, the Police are aware of that list, there are vetting procedures, so their biggest concern is not with locals but rather that the amendment created a loophole for foreign offenders moving here to live and he goes on to say – and this is a quote of the hon. Member –

'We could have the situation where a potentially dangerous individual convicted of a serious sexual offence abroad could relocate to Gibraltar and the Authorities here cannot now subject him to the notification requirements associated with the Register because the offence occurred prior to the commencement of the Act'.

1590 Hon. D A Feetham: And I stand by [inaudible].

Hon. G H Licudi: That is the statement that the hon. Member makes and I would invite him to look 1595 closely at the provisions of which he was the architect, in particular section 321 of the Crimes Act, which talks about Notification Orders: ‘Whereby I, as Minister for Justice, can direct the Attorney General to make a complaint to the Magistrates Court to make a Notification Order...’ That relates to people who are outside Gibraltar.

1600 We have not made any amendment... Under the Criminal Justice Amendment Act, we have made no amendment at all to those provisions – and it was never our intention to make that amendment – so whatever the effect of those provisions were under the enactment that they put forward, in other words it applies to sexual offenders abroad who have committed offences before the commencement of the Act, that continues to apply. Therefore, the statement that he has made is false.

1605 It is even worse than that, Mr Speaker. It is even worse than that because there are provisions in the Act, which he is perfectly aware of: when he talks of people who have committed ‘serious sexual offences’, there are provisions for the court to make what are known as Sexual Offences Prevention Orders. That is all part of the provision relating to these requirements and that, as the hon. Member mentions in his press release, arises when I, as Minister for Justice, give a direction to the Attorney General to make an application to the court, to seek a Sexual Offences Prevention Order.

1610 And as if clarity was needed, section 327 says that

‘these provisions relate or apply to acts, behaviour, convictions and findings, including those occurring before the commencement of the Act.’

1615 Mr Speaker, in a press release he said there is a ‘loophole’ because these provisions no longer apply to those offences which occurred prior to the commencement of the Act. We have made no amendment to this which expressly says that these provisions apply to those occurring before the commencement of the Act. And if that was not enough, Mr Speaker, we have subsection 3, which talks about these specific provisions and saying a person is within this subsection if – and I will read it again so that he understands it – or has done any other of the heinous matters that these matters protect from.

1620 ‘if before or after the commencement of the Act, under the Law of a place outside Gibraltar he has been convicted of a relevant offence...’

1625 In other words, a serious offender or sexual offender that falls within these provisions, that has committed an offence outside Gibraltar, comes to Gibraltar and those offences have been committed before the commencement of the Act, it is extremely mind-boggling, Mr Speaker... What part of the Act, which he was the architect for, and which says before the commencement of the Act, which part does he not understand? In order to issue a press release alarming the public saying their biggest concern is with sexual offenders, serious sexual offenders who have committed offences abroad and who come to Gibraltar and these provisions will no longer apply to it. Of course, it is false. Of course, it is misleading and, of course, he should have known about it. He did know about it.

1630 But it gets even worse, Mr Speaker. It actually gets even worse because there are other provisions in the Act which relate to Foreign Travel Orders, in other words the powers, these greater powers that the hon. Member talks about and which he says now no longer apply retrospectively as a result of the amendment that we have done. And these provisions, relating to Foreign Travel Orders, at section 335, says a person is a ‘qualifying offender for these purposes’ – Foreign Travel Orders and restrictions on travel and movement and all that – if before or after the commencement of the Act, before or after the commencement of the Act... In other words, these provisions apply retrospectively and as if, again, the matter was not clear as to whether this applied only to locals or applied to foreigners, subsection 2 says

1640 ‘a person is a qualifying offender for the purposes of section 333 if before or after the commencement of this Act under the law enforced in a place outside Gibraltar, he has committed...’

1645 one of these heinous offences. Again, these provisions apply to foreign offenders who have committed offences, whenever they may have committed it, and come to Gibraltar.

If the hon. Member wants more about the falsity of his statement, I can give him more because there are other provisions which relate to Risk of Sexual Harm Orders – separate Orders to protect the public from sexual predators – and that provision relates to applications to the court where the offenders have done certain of these heinous things, whether before or after the commencement of the Act.

1650 So there is a whole raft of provisions here which he well knows about: Foreign Travel Orders, Risk of Sexual Offenders Orders, Sexual Offenders Prevention Orders. All of those apply to foreign offenders who come to Gibraltar and who have committed offences prior to the commencement of the Act. It could not be clearer that they have given false information, they have raised public alarm unnecessarily and their behaviour is reprehensible. (Applause).

1655 Hon. D A Feetham: My, my, Mr Speaker, he really had a lot of pent up anger inside him over the last two weeks.

1660 I have to say, on the Point of Order, Mr Speaker, because this is what we are talking about at the present moment, the Point of Order... On the Point of Order, the hon. Gentleman can stand up and can say 'The hon. Gentleman is incompetent'. He can say 'The hon. Gentleman was wrong'. He can say 'The hon. Gentleman does not know what he is talking about, he has not read his own Act!' What he cannot do, in my respectful view, in accordance with the Rules in Standing Orders, is actually say that I have 'lied', that I have 'misrepresented' and that I have 'knowingly misrepresented'. That is the Point of Order I have raised and that, succinctly, is the Point of Order before you today, but, look – (Interjections)

1665 Mr Speaker: Please!

Hon. G H Licudi: That is not what I said.

1670 Hon. D A Feetham: I have listened very patiently to the diatribe that you have –

Mr Speaker: May I say this. Members are now debating. We are in Question Time and supplementaries are intended to elucidate information, to press Government for a particular line of action or policy.

1675 This issue of the Sexual Offenders Register is a matter of serious public importance and, therefore, I am prepared to be liberal to a certain extent but we are not going to have, during Question Time, the kind of debate that should more properly be held with a substantive motion on the Agenda or the hon. Member raising, under Rules 24(a) and 24(b), which I would commend to the House because they seem to have fallen into desuetude, where the hon. Member can raise the matter on the adjournment and there can be a forty minute debate on which no vote is taken.

1680 That is the line of action that I would enjoin hon. Members to take, where matters are controversial, such as of this nature, and not to do so under the guise of Question Time.

Hon. P R Caruana: Indeed, Mr Speaker.

1685 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, may I just deal with something you said, in this way. I think it is salutary that we should take up, from either side of the House – because the motion on the Agenda can be from either side of the House – that opportunity which you alert us to, to raise issues of controversy and debate them and, therefore, in that way, spare listeners and ourselves each Question becoming a debate.

1690 I believe, Mr Speaker, there is a Rule that, before such a debate can be had, Mr Speaker has to be given notice of it –

1695 Mr Speaker: I have to be given notice before five o'clock on the day on which the... but the House is going to adjourn today until tomorrow. The House, presumably, is going to adjourn to another day and, therefore, there is an opportunity tomorrow on the adjournment to have not one, but two, debates lasting forty minutes each.

1700 When I was a Member of this House it was a practice that was very often followed by the Opposition. I would commend it to the House; I am not aware why, in the last twenty years or so, it has hardly ever happened. Where a Member of the Opposition, in particular, raises a matter on which they feel that they have not had satisfactory answers from the Government they can give the Speaker notice and the Speaker – invariably in my experience in the past – was liberal and allowed matters to be raised on the adjournment.

Hon. P R Caruana: I take absolutely no issue with the excellent advice that the Hon. Speaker gives to the House but, of course, we are not in Question Time, we are not debating the virtues or lack of virtues 1705 Mr Speaker: We are on a Point of Order.

Hon. P R Caruana: We are on a Point of Order which arises not from the merits of what the Government has done or the merits of the Opposition's criticism of what the Government has done in relation to the Sexual Offenders Register at all, but rather on a Point of Order... My learned friend, Mr Feetham, has just raised a Point of Order.

1710 The last Member to raise a Point of Order was the Hon. Minister for Justice, who stood up, Point of Order, everybody had to sit down, whilst he insisted that the Rules were on a Point of Order, a consideration of a breach of the Rules. That is what we are discussing now. The hon. Member has just made a fifteen minute speech justifying what he considers to be, not a defence of his Government's policy but a justification for having said of a Member of this House that he has given information in public, knowing that it is false, for the purposes of causing unjustified alarm to members of the public.

1715 There is a Standing Order that says that no Member shall impute improper motives to any other Member. We are not debating the merits of the Government's policy, we are debating whether a Member of this House has infringed a Rule of this House by applying an improper motive to another and that cannot be resolved by an emergency adjournment.

1720 Mr Speaker: And because I allowed the Hon. Minister ten or fifteen minutes to deal with that matter I am also quite prepared to allow the Hon. Mr Daniel Feetham the same time so that he can answer. But after that, after I have done so, we are going to move on to the next Question.

1725 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I may just deal with what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has said. I think it is very important that the House not be deviated from what has been its practice for many years and what is the practice set out in its Rules and in Erskine May – and I know that you will not want to deviate us from that.

1730 It is not appropriate parliamentary language – this has been established on a number of occasions but it has been deployed from this direction in that direction and backwards – to say that an hon. Member is misleading the House or is lying in the House. It is acceptable, but unfortunate, parliamentary language when it has to be used to say that an hon. Member has lied to the public or has misled the public outside the House. That is the established principle in English parliamentary procedure and Gibraltar parliamentary procedure.

1735 I will refer the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition to his acerbic remarks towards me in July 2010 during the course of a Budget debate, where he expressly and repeatedly said that I had lied to the public and I refer him to that Hansard and to the rulings there about what it is appropriate and not appropriate to say. If a Member says of another that he has misled the public outside of this House, then that is outwith the Rule that says that one cannot allege against another Member improper motive in this House, or that he has misled the House or called them a liar. We should, in any event, in my view, seek to avoid such situations but there are some situations, such as this, where the Hon. the Minister for Justice has felt it absolutely necessary to highlight that issue in answer to the Supplementary that was put.

1740 That is the Rule, Mr Speaker. It is an established Rule. All Parliamentarians know it, the Hon. Leader of the Opposition knows it and I am not going to say that he has tried to mislead you by pretending the Rule is something else, but I am going to say that we all know that the Rule does not apply to things said outside the House.

Mr Speaker: I will, therefore –

1750 Hon. P R Caruana: May I say one more thing, Mr Speaker. The hon. Member is talking nonsense.

We are not discussing here the Standing Order that talks about not using unparliamentary language, we are not talking here about the Rule that says you cannot call people a liar because it is unparliamentary language, which is all that he has just spoken to. We are talking about a quite separate... nothing to do with the unparliamentary language Rule. We are talking about a quite separate Standing Order, which says that no Member shall impute improper motives to any other Member.

1755 We are not talking about imputing improper motives outside of this House. (Interjection) The imputation of improper motives has taken place in this House, this afternoon, here. The Hon. Minister for Justice has stood up and, in this House, has imputed to the Hon. Opposition spokesman for Justice – in one of his public statements – but the allegation made in this House... the imputation of improper motives has been in this 1760 House, yes, in this House. The Hon. Minister for Justice has imputed to the hon. Member the motive of seeking to alarm public opinion through the use of false information, which he knew to be false.

That is an imputation, made in this House, of improper motives to another Member and there is no rule in Erskine May or previous practice in this House about the quite separate Rule about calling people liars or use of other unparliamentary language. This is a quite separate Rule – 45.6 – and, fine, I do not mind what the 1765 Rule is so long as we all live by the same one.

If it is not imputing improper motives to any other Member to stand up and say that you have, through the use of false information that you know to be false, misled and sought to alarm and mislead public opinion, if that is not an imputation of improper motive, I cannot think of anything that would fall foul of this Rule.

1770 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I may, because that now takes us to another Rule and I will be very brief and not test your patience.

That is exactly the Rule that would have been offended by the hon. Member in July 2010, and the Rule of not calling people liars because both, unfortunately, tend to go together. That is exactly the same. I refer the hon. Gentleman to the debate we had at Budget time in July 2010.

1775 I must also tell him that I would prefer his interpretation, were it not that we had visited upon us a different interpretation by him when he was Chief Minister.

Mr Speaker: I will invite the Hon. Mr Danny Feetham to explain to the House why he considers that the statements which he made publicly are accurate. Perhaps accuracy is not an unparliamentary term.

1780 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I can be very short with that but let me say that this is a very... The issue of the amendments that the Government have brought which, effectively, means that twenty-one individuals who were convicted of serious sexual offences will now not go on the Sexual Offenders List, this is a very serious issue (Interjection by Hon. G H Licudi)

1785 May I please – I sat very quietly...

Mr Speaker: I would be grateful if there are no interruptions from the other side. Please –

1790 Hon. D A Feetham: This is a serious debate and, quite frankly, I think that it demeans the debate if I call him incompetent, if he calls me incompetent, if he says that I am misleading, if I say that he is misleading.

The reality of the situation is this, as I see it. I have provided a bona fide view as to the amendments and the effect of those amendments in relation to foreign offenders. I do not believe that you will be able to sustain, in a court of law, either through construction of the scheme, by just simply construing the scheme or, indeed, because it falls foul of discrimination provisions if we are talking about an EU national, yes. To have 1795 a situation where, effectively, the scheme does not apply retrospectively to local sexual offenders but, lo and behold, it applies retrospectively to anybody convicted of a sexual offence outside Gibraltar in the past but chooses to come to Gibraltar to reside.

You will find that, if that is the position of the Government, it will open a can of worms. The Government will eventually get legally challenged and I hope that the hon. Gentleman will, at that stage, if I am right on that, that he is big enough to stand up in this House and, at the very least, apologise to me for saying that I have misled the House.

My honest view, as a lawyer, as the architect of the reforms last year, is that it is not sustainable to have a situation where the law exempts locals but does not exempt people living outside coming to choose to live in Gibraltar. I do not accept that. That is the view that I have expressed in good faith and I stand by that view, despite all the criticisms of it by my hon. and learned Friend.

Let me say this, the hon. Gentleman's position is inherently contradictory because he came to this House on that Bill and he justified the Bill by saying that it is not right to apply the law retrospectively to people who have been convicted of a sexual offence in the past (Interjection) – Hang on a minute! – and it is not right to apply the Sexual Offenders Register retrospectively to people convicted in the past.

1810 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker –

Hon. D A Feetham: No, no, please –

- 1815 Hon. G H Licudi: No, give way.
- Hon. D A Feetham: Please, I have listened to you intently and –
- 1820 Hon. G H Licudi: Please!
- Hon. D A Feetham: – carefully. Please pay me the same courtesy that I paid you.
- Hon. G H Licudi: I do not want to accuse him of misleading the House –
- 1825 Mr Speaker: Please!
- Hon. G H Licudi: – but the information he has given as to what I said in that way is actually wrong.
- 1830 Hon. D A Feetham: He justified it on the basis that –
- Hon. G H Licudi: To Locals only –
- Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, to locals. Right, okay, let's take the statement as he makes it now.
- 1835 It is not right to apply the Sexual Offenders Register retrospectively 'to locals'. Well, how can it be right not to apply it retrospectively to locals but apply it retrospectively to somebody who is convicted of an offence outside Gibraltar but chooses to come and emigrate to Gibraltar? That cannot be right because the principle that he relies upon he said was the principle of law, a well known legal principle of not applying penalties and punishments retrospectively.
- 1840 I do not accept for a moment that, in fact, somebody who goes on a Sexual Offenders Register is actually either a penalty or a punishment. It is an administrative measure taken as a consequence of it. It is inherently contradictory.
- Those are the points that I have been making and I do not think, with respect to the Hon. the Minister for Justice, it really has justified the almost explosionary reaction that he has given to this House today, with all the name calling, and I think that it demeans the debate.
- 1845 Mr Speaker: Will the Hon. Minister accept that the Hon. Mr Feetham has made those statements in good faith? He is saying that he has answered in good faith.
- Hon. G H Licudi: Yes.
- 1850 What I have accused him of is not understanding the legislation of which he was the architect and having made statements which were false, factually false, forgetting –
- Mr Speaker: But not deliberately false?
- 1855 Hon. G H Licudi: Factually false –
- Mr Speaker: But not deliberately false?
- Hon. G H Licudi: No, but in circumstances where he should have known... Not deliberately false, but in circumstances ...
- 1860 Mr Speaker: But he says he was given a legal opinion: he was giving a legal view, a legal opinion.
- Hon. G H Licudi: What I have read, Mr Speaker, is not a legal view, it is simply a factual statement by the hon. Member that we now have a loophole because the authorities in Gibraltar cannot now subject these foreign offenders to these provisions. That is factually incorrect because of the relevant sections that I have quoted.
- 1865 The hon. Member now goes even further and asks a question, presumably of me: how can it be right to apply these amendments to locals only and not to foreigners? The answer is very simple and has been stated

1870 very simply. The Royal Gibraltar Police have a list of locals and, therefore, that information is already available. They do not have information about all sexual offenders abroad and, therefore, to the extent that people have committed offences abroad and they come here and they are a risk and they are identified as a risk, the hon. Member knows that, for those people, there are no automatic notification requirements, it requires an application to the Court. That application can be made in respect of those offences.

1875 To answer your query, I accept that the hon. Member has acted in good faith but what I do accuse him of is of not having understood the law that he passed himself.

Mr Speaker: Right.

1880 Hon. P R Caruana: I am very attracted by your approach [inaudible] to assist in establishing peace and I think the Hon. Minister may just have made an enlightened remark.

I think that the assumption... the Hon. Mr Speaker asked whether the Hon. Minister accepts that the statements were made in good faith, the Hon. Minister has replied 'Yes, but he should have known better', effectively. I honestly think, Mr Speaker, that they are at cross purposes. The hon. Member thinks that, from his long explanation a few moments ago – a 15 minute intervention – that what the Hon. Mr Feetham was saying was somehow that they had amended the Act to make it statutorily impossible for this to happen whereas, in fact, what the Hon. Mr Feetham has just explained is that, in his view, it would be unlawful so to apply the legislation because it would amount to a challengeable discrimination of locals, as opposed to... and the hon. Member has answered a question that the Bill is not incapable of being applied retrospectively to foreigners, where that is not the point that the Hon. Mr Feetham has been making was that it cannot be applied, as a matter of law, because having been disapplied from locals it cannot be disapplied...

1890 Now if it does not help, it does not help. I will settle for the hon. Member's last statement, that he is not attributing the motive of premeditatedly seeking to alarm public opinion by the use of information which he knew to be false. If he wants to say that the Hon. Mr Feetham is incompetent, that is his privilege. That is very different to saying that he is a liar.

1895 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have not said that and I do not want it to be left in any doubt. I am not suggesting that he is a liar but I am suggesting that public alarm has been caused unnecessarily as a result.

1900 Mr Speaker: Well the problem is that members of the Legal Profession never agree, unlike our school teachers, who do tend to come to an agreed position. I think we shall now move on.

1905 ADJOURNMENT

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1910 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn until 9.30 tomorrow morning.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that the House do now adjourn to 9.30 tomorrow morning.

1915 I will now put the question which is that this House will now adjourn to 9.30 tomorrow morning. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Passed.

The House will now adjourn until 9.30 tomorrow morning.

The House adjourned at 5.07 p.m.

Gibraltar, Friday, 19th October 2012

The Parliament met at 9.30 a.m.

Agreement laid before the House

Clerk: Papers to be laid. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

25

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the table an Agreement between Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar and the Ministry of Defence of the Government of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland relating to the provision of Education Services.

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

Questions for Oral Answer

TOURISM, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

Heritage, Culture, Tourism and Environment inter-Ministerial Committee Meetings and issues covered Clerk: Answers to Oral Questions continue.

Question 819/2012, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise when the inter-Ministerial Committee comprising the Heritage, Culture, Tourism and Environment Ministries was set up, how many times it has met, what issues it has deliberated on and what conclusions have been reached?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, the Committee was set up on the 21st February of this year and has met three times, on 21st February, on 21st March and 4th May. The Committee deliberates on all the manifesto commitments in respect of Environment, Tourism, Transport, Heritage and Culture. The conclusions are ongoing and are published as they are implemented. The hon. Gentleman may have seen some of the announcements already.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I was interested to find out how matters were progressing in relation to that inter-Ministerial Committee, because as far as I am aware, there was only one initial announcement which was featured in the Gibraltar Chronicle back in January. Now the Minister refers to other announcements having been made. I am not necessarily aware of those.

In respect of that particular article, the Minister is aware that reference was made to a new thematic Neanderthal Park as being on the cards. Is that still on the cards? If it is, can he give this House any reports as to progress in relation to that particular project?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I should add that in addition to the official meetings that have been held on the dates that I have just said, there have also been bilateral meetings with different Ministers, in order to progress different projects through.

It does give me great pleasure to list some of the matters that have been discussed and already delivered: the Jazz Festival; more planting of trees; the Green Procurement Seminar; support to event-led Tourism; the exploration and implementation of solar street lighting; encouraging the use of Gibraltar as a cruise port; the work with industry tourism operators, the re-providing of the Moorish Castle Estate park; the Museum's Spring 2012 lecture series; an environmental feedback session; the refurbishment of John Mackintosh Hall Library; Summer Nights; preparations for major excavations at Gorham's and Vanguard Caves; Gibraltar National Week classical concert, the Mega Concert; Gibraltar National Week events; Gibraltar Fair; free travel for Route 5 for old age pensioners; the Rock of Gibraltar designated as a special area of conservation; the Thinking Green Trade Fair; the improvement to bus routes; the Calpe Conference; new tours for cruise ship passengers; and the campaign against dog fouling.

Those are a list of matters on manifesto commitments that have been discussed at the meetings that I have just said, and bilaterally, and have already been delivered.

Tourism, Public Transport and the Port Trainees on placements within Ministries

Clerk: Question 820, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details giving a breakdown by age, gender and nationality of all trainees on placements within the Ministries for which he has responsibility, indicating the Department, Agency, and Authority where they are placed and the nature of the work they are undertaking?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman the information requested as of 12th October 2012.

Investment programme on tourist sites
Detailed breakdown

95

Clerk: Question 821, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise how the Government intends to spend the £1,000,000 as set out in the Approved Estimates of Revenue and 100 Expenditure 2012-13 which has been allocated in this financial year in respect of the investment programme on tourist sites, by providing a detailed breakdown?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

105 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, once again, it gives me great pleasure to inform the hon. Gentleman that the intention is to spend the funds allocated as follows: public toilets refurbishment at Jews Gate, £96,543; the bridge replacement at St Michael's Cave, £72,431; extensive refurbishment at St Michael's Cave, estimated at £348,180; public
110 toilets refurbishment at Apes' Den, £33,237; new sewer line at Apes' Den, £127,053; installation of new sewer and staff toilets at Great Siege Tunnels at £148,068; rock fall risk assessment, phase 1 at Great Siege Tunnels, £11,510; repairs to the viewing platform at the Great Siege Tunnels, £20,779; ticket office extension at Moorish Castle, £21,885; public toilet refurbishment at the 100 Ton Gun, £19,118; repairs to Waterport Fountain and a new pump system, £14,628 and a new viewing platform at the end of Holy 115 Land Tunnel in the Great Siege Tunnels £86,567. That comes to a total of the £1,000,000.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the Minister giving me that list and I would be even more grateful if he could perhaps provide me with a schedule or a copy of his answer in written format.

Now, as best as I have been able to, I have done a list of the items which he has provided to this House this morning. In relation to that list, can I ask the Minister, Mr Speaker, whether he is prioritising 120 any of the items he has just listed and what the programme of works are in relation to that particular list?

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, as the staff of the staff of the GTB will tell him, as far as I am concerned, my hope would be for all works to start at the same time all over the place, but I am advised that things do not quite work that way. There are development and planning issues to be taken on board 125 and those that do not require planning can start straight away.

The projects that have started are the Waterport Fountain, which started on 17th October; the work to the toilets at the 100 Ton Gun will begin on 23rd October; and the viewing platform will begin on 5th November. Those are works that can proceed without development and planning permission.

All of the other projects that I have listed require to proceed through the planning process, but having said that, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman can rest assured that I will ensure a fair wind on all of these 130 projects, so that they are completed within this financial year.

135 Marketing promotions and conferences
Estimated expenditure 2011-12; forecast outturn 2012-13

Clerk: Question 822, the Hon. D J Bossino.

140 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide a breakdown of the estimated expenditure for 2011-12, as well as the forecast outturn for the same period, for marketing promotions and conferences, as set out in the Approved Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure 2012-13?

145 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as the financial year 2011-12 has already passed, we can in fact provide the hon. Gentleman with the actual figures, instead of estimated expenditure.

150 In respect of the forecast outturn, as set out in the Approved Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure for this financial year, it is as set out in the schedules which I now hand over to him.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, from a very cursory check, there is quite a lot of information I would like to go through and I will do so with a bit more time, when this sitting finishes.

The reason why I asked this Question, Mr Speaker, is because it is clear from the Budget Book that there has been an increase from the estimated figures 2011-12 to the forecast outturn for the same period of in fact I think to the penny, £88,000. The information that I have, given that that period straddles both administrations, from the predecessor in post, is that as at the time of the General Election, the expenditure was very much in line with the estimated figure.

Now, that is just by way of a general preamble, Mr Speaker, but if I could ask these specific questions in relation to the list which I have just been provided. The first one is: there is an entry here, which is described as 'Other Costs', where there is a figure of £11,000 which was voted for 2011-12, whilst the actual expenditure – and I think this is the item which has been the subject of the greatest increase – increases to a figure of £71,425. I cannot do the maths very quickly, but that just seems like a lot of money. I would ask the Minister for an explanation for that.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, I suppose that we can call it an ecumenical year, given that the financial year did straddle both administrations.

In respect of the 'Other Costs' which I anticipated is what the hon. Gentleman would ask me, it relates to £20,000 being allocated to the production of the film La Roca and £42,000 for the Gibraltar film. I hope that satisfactorily answers the question of the hon. Gentleman.

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

I also have another question and that is that there appear to be, certainly in the first section, three items entitled 'Consumer Advertising'. If I just very quickly look at it... Yes, they have each been the subject of, I would say, considerable increases. If I can ask the Minister what that relates to and why it is split into... it features on three occasions?

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, I cannot agree with the hon. Gentleman's preface that they amount to considerable increases. For example, in respect of Consumer Shows and Fairs, there is in fact a reduction from £34,000 to £21,000, so that is less money spent on that.

Trade Shows and Fairs is £38,000 voted, and what was actually spent was £41,000. When you take into consideration, the less money spent on the previous item of expenditure, it more than definitely makes up for it.

And the same I would say in respect of Consumer Advertising, which goes from £187,000 voted and £199,000 spent.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I can give the Minister another example, under the title 'Consumer Advertising' where, if he goes further down the table, he will see that £10,000 was voted in relation to that particular item, and £36,000 was in fact spent.

But my question, Mr Speaker, is not that at this stage. My question is why is it that 'Consumer Advertising' features on three separate occasions in the top block – and I have not counted it in the second block, but I think it also repeats itself there, again on three separate occasions?

Maybe I am not understanding the table, and I would be grateful for an explanation from the Minister in relation to that point.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, I think it is fair to point out to this House that nine out of ten months were – (A Member: Twelve.) nine out of twelve months, sorry, were passed under his administration, so the vast majority of the expenditure would in fact relate to when they were in Government, and only of course, the three other months relate to us.

Whereas I have the breakdown as requested in the notes of the Question, that is what I can provide him. If he wants me to tell him exactly what was spent when, that is an entirely different question, which would require my officials to investigate at that level of detail, which he will, I am sure, agree with me is not a fair question, because it has not been provided as notice.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am really not pursuing the increase at this stage. I am really not pursuing that. All I want to know is – in my view, it would be in fact a simpler question – why it is that the item of expenditure described as 'Consumer Advertising' appears on three separate occasions in each table. That is all.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, as I have already told the hon. Gentleman, the table and the way it is set out, in terms of the detail of the breakdown of the costs, is exactly the same form that has been provided since they were in Government. As I say, that has been done for nine out of the twelve months of the financial year, so I cannot go any further, other than to say that was the form that was used by them and we simply have followed the form when providing the hon. Gentleman with the answers.

In relation to the specific question he asks, one is Consumer Advertising, the other one is Consumer Shows and Fairs and the other one is Trade and Consumer Shows.

For instance, for the Trade and Consumer Shows, it relates to the London Boat Show; in respect of Consumer Affairs, it relates to the Wedding Show at Earl's Court; Consumer Road Shows, Manchester Consumer Road Show.

That I hope provides the differentiation to him, but those were during the time that they were in Government.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I do not want to be unfair on the Minister, and if he does not know that is fine and maybe we can speak about this later –

Hon. N F Costa: I just answered the question.

Hon. D J Bossino: Well, no, he needs to... I would ask him, I would urge upon him, not to be unfair on me. I was not in Government personally, and none of those who have governmental experience on either side of me had charge of this particular Ministerial Portfolio, so other than conferring with them now a la a quiz show, (Laughter) I would just ask the Minister whether he knows – fine, he inherited this system, but whether he can tell us now, on 19th October, after being almost a year in Government – whether he knows why there are repeated references, three in each table, to ‘Consumer Advertising’.

With respect Mr Speaker, I appreciate that there are other sections in the table which have the word ‘consumer’ in it, but I am not concerned about those at this stage. In the cursory check and the limited time I have had available to digest this information, this is one of the features which strikes me, and I just wanted an explanation from the Minister who is responsible for these matters to elucidate me.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker –

Hon. D J Bossino: If he does not have the information, I do not want to be unfair on him –

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, it is not about whether I do not have the information and that I have not answered. I do understand perfectly the question that he is asking me, but with all due respect to him, he is basically asking me to divine through telepathy why the officials who prepared this table when they were in Government decided to call certain things and label them in the way that they did.

Now, I have told him that I cannot for the life of me tell him why, when this table was first prepared by their administration when they were in Government decided to label certain things the way they did. However, I have gone towards an explanation of the question that the hon. Gentleman has asked me, by telling him what the different labels – which the officials, when they were in Government, decided to describe them as – contained, in order to give them an idea what the officials then decided to include, and I will do so again by way of clarification.

In respect of Trade and Consumer Shows, what appears on the breakdown is London Boat Show. London Boat Show: the label put is Trade and Consumer Shows. That I imagine happened at some point when they were in Government and they would know why they put that label. I cannot divine as to the reason why.

In respect of Consumer Shows and Fairs, I have already told the hon. Gentleman too, Consumer Road Shows, Wedding Shows, Manchester Consumer Show. The label attached by officials then working with the GSD Government was ‘Consumer Shows/Fairs’.

Now Mr Speaker, I imagine that it is conceivable and within the realm of possibilities that different labels and different nomenclature could have been put to that, but those are the labels that were attached then and I cannot assist the hon. Gentleman in telling him why those labels were used.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I do not want to labour the point but –

A Member: Don’t then.

Hon. D J Bossino: No, but Mr Speaker, the explanations which the Hon. Minister is giving me in this House are unacceptable to this extent, in the sense that yes, there are civil servants and officials who devised the system, but he cannot get away from the fact that he has been in office and holding this office for the last nine to ten months. So he ought to have been at least put on enquiry, when he was given this table, to have asked his officials why it is that there are – which is the question that I am particularly interested in asking – three different references to Consumer Advertising. That is all I want to know Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: I think the Hon. Minister may be in a position to answer the reason why, if he is given sufficient notice and time to try to go and find out. (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.) But he may not have the information with him here today.

Hon. D J Bossino: I accept that, that’s right.

Mr Speaker: And having been a Minister for many years, I can tell the hon. Member, that is a fact of life. When a Minister stands up in the House to answer a question, he may not have with him all the information that the hon. Member of the Opposition is seeking.

So I think it is fair for you to ask the question. I think what the Minister obviously should do is to go back to his officials, try to find out if there is a reason and inform you at a future date.

Other than that, I do not think we are going to make any more progress today.

290 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, unless I misunderstood the Minister, I hear the Chief Minister say that is what the Minister is offering to do and I accept that offer. Of course I accept that recommendation. (Interjection) Maybe we have been speaking at cross purposes. I did say that we wanted to be fair to the Minister and, by all means, that is indeed the way that I wanted to progress and pursue matters.

295 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, with all due respect to the hon. Gentleman, the first thing I said was that if I had received written notice of the question, I would go and find out.

300 But to further assist the hon. Gentleman, I imagine that it is taken as given that the reason why there are these different heads is because we do not just do marketing in Gibraltar, but we do marketing in the UK and in Spain and in Gibraltar. I assumed that he knew that, which is why I have not stated the obvious, which is that marketing is done in Gibraltar, in Spain and in the UK.

Marketing and official visits
Estimated expenditure 2011-12; forecast outturn 2012-13

305 Clerk: Question 823, the Hon. D J Bossino.

310 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide a breakdown of the estimated expenditure for 2011-12 as well as a forecast outturn for the same period for marketing, promotions and conferences, as set out in the Approved Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure 2012-13?

Clerk: The Question is 823. I think there may be some...

315 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide a detailed breakdown of the forecast outturn figure for 2011-12, as well as the estimated figure for 2012-13 in respect of Head 29, sub-head 2(2)(b) – ‘Marketing and Official Visits’ of the Approved Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure 2012-13?

320 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, the breakdown of the expenditure for 2011-12 is contained in the schedules I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman.

325 The estimated figure for 2012-13 in respect of Head 29, sub-head 2(2)(b) is £45,000. This includes £15,000 allocated for the purposes of promoting the Gibraltar Yacht Registry.

Official visits
Costs incurred; purpose

Clerk: Question 824, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details of the visits on Government business he has undertaken out of Gibraltar, with details of each destination, costs incurred and the purpose of each visit since he assumed office?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member knows by this stage, the information is already available on the Government's website.

Flight recording service
Accuracy of telephone information

Clerk: Question 825, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: I always forget to check the Government website before coming to the House.
(Laughter)

Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise the House what arrangements are in place to ensure that the flight recording information, advertised through telephone number 8998, is accurate and current?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, the system was temporarily suspended due to technical reasons. The 8998 telephone service has now been restored and I am confident it is accurate and current.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, there are two reasons why I ask this question. One is that I did come across press reports – in fact they were letters to the Chronicle – which raised serious concerns about the impact that false information or dated information provided by this telephone service could have on Gibraltar's reputation. The second reason is that I, myself, called the number and there was simply no reply. Can I ask the Minister whether he can advise this House when it was that the service was reinstalled?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is correct to say that the telephone service was temporarily suspended because it was not working properly and, as a result of the malfunction, it was suspended from Friday, 28th September to Tuesday, 16th October.

The reason for the malfunctioning of the service is essentially due to the transfer from one air terminal to the other. The new telephone system in the new terminal works over the internet and the service provided works on an analogue system. This has now been resolved and the way that we ensure that it is updated, so that there is no serious risk to the reputation of Gibraltar by virtue of a malfunctioning telephone service. I can assure the hon. Gentleman that it will be updated every morning, every time there is a change and then at the end of the operational day. To be doubly sure that there is nothing wrong, a duty manager will check it as well.

Monarch Airlines
Details of incentive scheme

Clerk: Question 826, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise whether any incentive was offered to Monarch Airlines in order to secure the Gibraltar to Birmingham route?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, all commercial discussions are sensitive, as these are part of the Government's continuing drive to increase air connectivity and the hon. Gentleman will, I hope, agree with me that to publicly announce across the floor of this House whether or not an airline enjoys an incentive scheme, if at all, will be to obliterate any negotiating advantage of Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar in any such discussions.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am sensitive to what the Hon. Minister has said.

As I understand the position from my own personal intelligence gathering, given that I have not held office previously, there was in fact an established incentive scheme which entailed things like, for example, offering reduced landing charges, and that is fine. The reason why I ask this question is whether this particular airline was offered anything over and above the established incentive scheme and if that entails an expenditure on the public purse, I think, Mr Speaker – and I say this with some trepidation because I am not aware of the ins and outs of how these things work – as an Opposition Member I am entitled to scrutinise the Government in relation to that.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, to answer the first part of the hon. Gentleman's question, there is an incentive scheme which was devised by the GSD when in Government, an incentive scheme still today that continues to exist.

Now, in respect of whether any particular airline does enjoy an incentive package or not, I will need to insist to the hon. Gentleman that I will not provide any details because such discussions are confidential in nature.

But let me also remind the hon. Gentleman, in order that he appreciates that we are simply following a custom which was certainly practiced by the GSD when in Government, that the Hon. Mr Holliday, when Minister for Tourism, when asked by my hon. Friend, Dr. Joseph Garcia, 'Can the Government say how many airlines are interested in flying?' – forget the fact about commercial discussions and incentive schemes etc – 'how many airlines are interested in flying?', the then Minister for Enterprise said:

'The Government continues with its contacts and discussions. However, in common with my response in previous Parliamentary Questions, for reasons of commercial confidentiality it would not be appropriate for me to provide further information.'

And this relates to simply the number of airlines with which they are in discussions and not even such sensitive details in my submission as would be a commercial discussion on an incentive scheme.

Oil pollution Contracted services expenditure

Clerk: Question 827, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details as to what the contracted services expenditure under the 'oil pollution' Head set out in the Approved Estimates of Revenue and Expenditure 2012-13 relates to, to include to whom the services are contracted and the terms of the contract, including its duration and costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, in the recurrent expenditure under Contracted Services, Item 21 states an estimated expenditure of £75,000. This amount relates to the contracts in place between Oil Spill Response Ltd (OSRL) and the Gibraltar Port Authority.

OSRL charge an annual fee for 'Associate Membership'. The contract is valid until 31st May 2013 and caters for OSRL's response for Tier 3 incidents.

OSRL charge the GPA an 'Annual Equipment Access fee'. The contract is valid until 22nd October of this year and caters for OSRL's response to Tier 2 oil spills.

OSRL also charges a 'Maintenance fee' for servicing and maintenance of GPA oil spill equipment.

Hon. D J Bossino: I did not quite take, Mr Speaker, full note, but I think there is a separate contractual relationship with OSRL in respect of one particular item and that is something to do with equipment, I think.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, the Annual Equipment Access fee.

455 Hon. D J Bossino: That is right. In relation to that particular service, Mr Speaker, as I understand it, if I have understood the Hon. Minister correctly, that is due to end at some date in October. I have got a note of 26th October; it may have been 22nd October, this year. So this is next week.

Can I ask the Government what its intentions are in relation to that particular contract and whether the Minister intends to renew or perhaps look elsewhere.

460 Hon. N F Costa: Subject to any advice that the Captain of the Port may give me to the contrary, his advice to date has been that we renew the contract.

465 Gibraltar Ship Registry
New registrations

Clerk: Question 828, the Hon. D J Bossino.

470 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise this House how many of the new ships, which he has previously indicated would be registered during the course of the next year or so, have in fact already been registered?

475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, during my Budget speech in July of this year, I informed this House that given the global downturn in the economy, the number of ships on the Gibraltar Ship Registry had fallen by 3% from 316 in April of last year to 306 in April of this year, but that there had been an overall increase in the gross tonnage from 2.12 million to 2.37 million.

480 However, I said at the time of my Budget speech that the schedule for new ships indicated that 35 new ships, totalling over 700,000 gross tonnes would be registered with the Gibraltar Maritime Administration during the course of the financial year.

485 I am very pleased to inform the House that since 1st January of this year, exceeding the expectations that I noted in the Budget, 48 new ships have been registered, bringing the total number of vessels to 329 with a gross tonnage of 3.12 million. This, Mr Speaker, represents an increase of 7% in the number of vessels and 31.6% in gross tonnage and exceeds in six months the projected figure for the year by 13 ships and approximately 300,000 gross tonnage.

490 The above, Mr Speaker, certainly vindicates the Government's policy, announced in the Budget, in the marketing of Gibraltar as a safe, robust and reputable maritime administration.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I, of course, welcome the very good news which – 495 Hon. N F Costa: I am sure you do.

Hon. D J Bossino: Of course, I do, which the Minister has just given this House.

500 Because the reference to the 35 new ships was made, as the Minister correctly mentioned earlier in his answer, in the context of his Budget speech, it was also made in the particular context of the marketing exercise, if I can put it in those terms, which the GMA made to Germany, I think was what he said. (Hon. N F Costa: Yes.)

Can I ask of the 48 new ships, whether they all come from the same... or as a result of that particular marketing initiative?

505 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, I will get for the hon. Gentleman the exact number... Well, no. I can tell him in fact that yes, they have been as a result of the marketing; but it is not just in relation to Germany because I said that the new ships had been registered from January of this year.

510 But in addition to the point that the hon. Gentleman makes, which is entirely correct, that the GMA went to Germany to meet existing clients and possible new ones, there was an innovation, once we came into Government, which was a visit made to Norway to meet new owners and, as I say, potential new owners. That is the answer to the question.

Gibraltar Port Authority Job vacancies

Clerk: Question 829, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise this House how many vacancies are currently available at the Gibraltar Port Authority and what the Government's intentions are in relation to the filling of these vacancies, if any?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the three vacancies currently available at the Gibraltar Port Authority are Admin/Finance Officer, Port Maintenance Fitter and a Bunkering Superintendent. It is the Government's intention to fill these vacant posts.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, might I refer the Minister to the Budget Book. There is, under Heading 29, which is entitled 'Ports and Shipping', there is a reference, as the Minister well knows, under the particular caption 'Establishment' and in fact there was provision made for 2012-13 for one more staff member. Are these posts, which he has just referred this House to, included in those 18? Does he know?

I know I am being unfair to him in a sense that I have not given him notice of a rather specific question; but maybe he can assist. If he cannot, then I can always either write to him later or ask the question at the next sitting.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, certainly given the very specific nature of the question, if he could either ask the question, with written notice, or correspond with my office and I will be sure to give him the answer immediately.

Tourism, Public Transport and the Port
Meetings held with Captain of the Port

Clerk: Question 830, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details as to the occasions he has met with the Captain of the Port since his appointment, to include the dates of these meetings?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman will recall, Captain Roy Stanbrook took post on 27th February of this year. It does give me great pleasure, once again, to be able to advise the House, and the hon. Gentleman opposite in particular, the frequency with which I meet the Captain.

I now read to him the number of times I met with the Captain on pre-scheduled meetings on a whole variety of different port-related subjects as follows: 21st March, 4.30; 22nd March, 9.00; 22nd March, 10.00; 22nd March, 3.30; 30th March, eight o'clock in the morning; 10th April, 4.30; 16th April, 4.00; 18th April, 5.30; 24th April, 9.30; 25th April, 3.30; 2nd May, 4.00; 2nd May, 4.30; 11th May, 9.30; 18th May, 11.00; 30th May, 5.00; 31st May, 2.00; 1st June, 9.00; 1st June, 10.00; 13th June, 3.00; 24th July, 4.00; 31st August, 9.30; 4th September, 3.30; 27th September, 3.00; 28th September, 4.30; 2nd October, 3.30; 10th October, one o'clock – I missed my gym session then! – 11th October, four o'clock.

Although, Mr Speaker, of course it goes without saying that I do meet with the Captain on more occasions, in impromptu unscheduled meetings, and that I talk to the Captain by telephone every other day, if not daily, in addition to e-mail and other correspondence.

It did occur to me, Mr Speaker, as I read the question, that perhaps the hon. Gentleman would suggest to me that I install a GPS on the Captain so he knows where he is. (Banging on desks)

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Availability of buses

580 Clerk: Question 831, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry there was a cough. Is it Question 831?

Clerk: Question 831.

585 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise how many buses of the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited are currently unavailable for use, with reasons for their unavailability?

590 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

595 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, at the time of preparing this answer, which was on the 11th of this month, the following vehicles were off-road as follows: one bus was undergoing a routine service and was back in service at the end of business on that same day; one bus is waiting for the transmission cable to arrive from the contractor supplier, and as from the 11th of this month the part should be in Gibraltar in two weeks' time and the fitting time is one day; one bus was undergoing a minor repair to rectify an air leak and was back in service on the same day.

600 Hon. D J Bossino: Can I ask the Minister, who is conducting the repairs of the buses? I am just basing myself on a press statement, which the Government issued back on 27th June, to the effect that the contract with A M Capurro and Sons Ltd had been terminated. I am just wondering who is – is that the case...?

605 Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, if I may just give way before he finishes the question. We have not issued a press statement to say that the contract with the Government's mechanics has been terminated. Just to rectify the hon. Gentleman before he asks me the question.

610 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the premise of the question may have been based on incorrect information or misunderstanding of information provided by the Government because the question was going to be: which company was providing the maintenance service for the buses, assuming that A M Capurro were no longer providing it? It is the same company, is it?

615 Hon. N F Costa: It is the same company, Mr Speaker.

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Bus Route 7 set-up costs

620 Clerk: Question 832, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details of the set-up costs for Bus Route 7?

625 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

630 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, yes, the total cost was £1,057.84, broken down as follows: £5.00 to effect the change of ownership transaction of bus G 8364A – this bus formerly belonged to the Gibraltar Bus Company and had been donated to the Elderly Care Agency by the previous administration when the three Mercedes were purchased; £50.00 to amend the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited operator's licence to include route 7; £627.84 paid to Argus Insurance for the vehicle to be included in the Fleet's Global Insurance; approximately £20.00, inclusive of in-house labour to affix the GBCL decals to the bus; £355.00 for a full mechanical service, that included replacing the alternator that was faulty.

635 It does give me a great pleasure, Mr Speaker, to be able to tell the hon. Gentleman that since the inception of the route, which started on 30th September of this year, there have been a total number of passengers of 1,944.

Hon. D J Bossino: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

That information is, in any event, on the Government's website.

Hon. N F Costa: I have seen it. (Laughter)

Hon. D J Bossino: I did check that one! I am glad that all my questions are giving him so much pleasure in answering them. (Interjection)

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Qualifications of recently appointed managers

Clerk: Question 833, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 692/2012, can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise what qualifications the recently appointed managers to the Gibraltar Bus Company Ltd hold which results in the Government being satisfied as to their promotions?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member will undoubtedly be aware, as a result of Question 692/2012, an extremely lengthy debate ensued as to the selection of two gentlemen as Administration Manager and Operations Manager.

As was made eminently clear, I would have thought, during the course of that question-and-answer session, it was an independent board of senior civil servants that were satisfied and made recommendations to me, as a responsible Minister, which I accepted.

Ruling by Mr Speaker

Mr Speaker: Before we proceed with supplementary questions, there is something that I wish to make absolutely clear.

This matter was debated at great length at the last meeting of the House. In fact, it was debated for over an hour and a half – a record, I am sure, even for this Parliament – and something that certainly would not be allowed in any parliament that is based on the Westminster model.

Accordingly, I have no intention of allowing a similar debate in the House today arising from questions and answers.

If the hon. Member is not satisfied with my Ruling, there are two courses of action that he can take. He can bring a substantive motion to the House, which we will debate in due course, or he can give notice under Standing Orders 24A and 24B of his intention to raise what is a matter for him, and perhaps for the public, of urgent public importance at the time when the House adjourns. That would mean in practice that he could have an opportunity to do so, perhaps if the House is going to adjourn to next week for Bills.

When Bills are introduced they are on the Agenda. After the Bills, I imagine that the adjournment of the House would be to the following month. If the Bills are taken next week, he would have an opportunity to debate this matter for 40 minutes at that time.

Hon. D J Bossino: I fully understand, Mr Speaker, why you have thought that you were pre-empting a situation –

Mr Speaker: No. I am not pre-empting anything. I am pre-empting a debate. I am making clear under what circumstances I will allow supplementary questions to be raised, but I am not going to allow the debate anywhere near what happened at the last meeting of the House.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I can assure the Chair, and Members opposite, that it was not my intention to go down that particular route. My question is very specific and the Speaker will appreciate, when I do ask my supplementaries, that it really relates to one particular issue, which is really the issue of qualifications. In fact, I was going to preface my question with the expression of my personal intention not to go down the more political debate, which this issue has engendered both inside of this House and outside.

700 I can assure you –

Mr Speaker: I am very grateful.

705 Hon. D J Bossino: – Mr Speaker, that was my intention.

Mr Speaker: I am very grateful for that assurance.

710 Hon. D J Bossino: Although I take, Mr Speaker, your point, that was certainly not my intention, but let us see how matters proceed.

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Qualifications of recently appointed managers
Supplementary questions

715 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I simply read the written reply given, or the prepared reply given to me, by the Minister where he said that the Gibraltar Bus Company therefore now has two specialised managers. Can I ask the Minister whether either one or both of these successful applicants are transport managers, as set out in the relevant statute provisions?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer that I just gave.

725 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the reason why I raise this point is because under the Transport Act, as the Minister I am sure is very much aware – and certainly I am because I was for many years in the Transport Commission – every transport undertaking, and I do not have the full technical jargon, but basically the Gibraltar Bus Company is a licensed undertaking, licensed by the Transport Commission pursuant to the Act, requires to have amongst its staff, transport managers. That is really why I am asking.

730 A ‘transport manager’ is a defined term in the Act, and I can take the Minister to the relevant provisions. This is precisely why I am asking the Minister whether the Gibraltar Bus Company has... Whether either of these two are considered the transport managers of the Bus Company or whether there is another or more than one individual who will be assigned a transport management role as the company is statutorily obliged to do? Because this then gives rise, Mr Speaker, to issues of qualification.

735 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, once again, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave a few moments ago. The board comprised of the Senior MOT Examiner of the Government and it was partly on his recommendation that these two gentlemen were appointed.

740 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I can well understand that the Minister follows a recommendation of the board; but as the elected individual who has political responsibility over this Company, he ought to have been on notice on an enquiry.

If a recommendation is made, he is entitled, surely, to say, ‘No. This chap or this person does not fit the bill because he is not sufficiently qualified to act as a transport manager.’

745 So it is not good enough for the Minister to simply stand up in this House and say, ‘I simply follow the recommendation of the board,’ if the recommendation which the board made could give rise to a situation, Mr Speaker, where the Gibraltar Bus Company is in breach of Gibraltar’s legislation.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I repeat what I have said in two supplementary questions.

750 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, regardless of who has recommended and who has appointed, and regardless of the degree of interest that the Hon. Minister claims he took or did not take, can the Hon. Minister say whether he is aware what, if any, qualifications these people possess? And that is nothing to do with how and why they were selected or whether he accepted.

755 I am asking for information. Does he know whether... and if so, what qualifications the successful candidates appointed – however they may have been appointed, I do not care – possess?

760 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this is all based on the premise and that supplementary from the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition is based on the premise of the question as asked by the hon. and Learned Mr Bossino, who referred to the definition of ‘transport manager’ under the Transport Act.

I think it is important that the House, if it is going to have this exchange about what qualifications, etc the Minister believes or checked the transport manager had, given that the transport manager is a defined term under the Act, that the House should know what the defined term actually is. It does not talk about qualifications or anything else. The Act says:

“Transport manager”, in relation to a business, means an individual who, either alone or jointly with one or more or other persons, has continuous and effective responsibility for the management of road passenger transport operations or road haulage operations of the business as the case may be.”

So the only reference to ‘manager’ is in the definition of ‘transport manager’, which then appears throughout the text as the person who is responsible for the management of that undertaking. There is no definition and in fact that could not be given, who is appointed as a transport manager in many of the transport companies that I have dealt with, in my many appearances before the Commission of which the hon. Member was made a member by the previous Administration, of any qualification required for somebody to be a transport manager.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Members want to ask the question that they seem to be wanting to pursue for the purposes that has become apparent in the press releases that they have issued on the subject and the exchanges that we have had in this House, then they need to accept that there is no pre-requisite of qualifications set out in the legislation which they are relying on in respect of transport managers.

Hon. P R Caruana: That is all very interesting, but completely inapposite to my question. I have not... My question is not premised on the assumption or even the insinuation that there is a requirement for qualification. I have asked a simple question. Regardless of the appointment and the methodology and all this, is the hon. Member aware whether these individuals possess qualifications and if so, what they are?

Regardless of whether they are necessary, unnecessary, properly or improperly... it is a perfectly simple factual question. I just do not see why there is such obtuseness in the attitude towards answering it. The answer could be, ‘Yes, they have qualifications and they are these’, or ‘I do not know whether they have qualifications or not’, or ‘They have no qualifications’. It is a factual question. It is not couched in any context of whether those qualifications are needed or not needed, whether they are sufficient or insufficient.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think the position has been made now very clear by the Minister to date. I am grateful that the hon. Member has now taken a step back from this issue of qualifications and he now accepts that there is no question of qualifications –

Hon. P R Caruana: With respect, Mr Speaker, I am not taking any step back –

Hon. Chief Minister: The position has been made increasingly clear in this House, at the last Question Time; it has been made clear in exchanges of press releases; and it is clear now. The Minister has acted on the advice of a board that recommended that these gentlemen had –

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): The necessary criteria.

Hon. Chief Minister: – the necessary... they fulfilled the necessary requirements to be recommended for these posts and the Minister, quite unlike perhaps Ministers in other governments who might have interfered in who gets the job, simply accepted the recommendations of the board.

So the answer given on a number of occasions previously and now, Mr Speaker, is that the Minister has accepted the board’s recommendations that these gentlemen were qualified to take those posts – full stop.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, does the Speaker now have an idea of why there are debates for an hour and a quarter which he is not willing to tolerate, because a perfectly simple question does not get a perfectly simple answer? Instead, Ministers resort to distorting the question, putting the question in a context in which the questioner did not put it, lecturing the Opposition about what is relevant and what is not relevant.

It is a perfectly simple question! Does the Hon. Minister know what, if any, qualifications these individuals possess? I am not interested... I do not know whether the Hon. the Chief Minister is right or wrong about whether qualifications are needed or not needed. The answer to that is not germane to the question that I have asked, which is a simple factual question.

Does the Hon. Minister know, regardless of whether they are necessary or not, whether these two individuals have any qualifications and if so, what they may be? (Interjection) Really, Mr Speaker, if he does not want to answer the question, which is becoming increasingly apparent, let him just say so! But 825 this smoke screen about whether the qualifications are necessary or not is wholly irrelevant to my question.

A Member: [Inaudible].

830 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I gave as the Minister had given, a straight answer to a crooked – (Laughter) That is why debates go on so long.

835 Mr Speaker: If the question is as simple as I understand it to be – ‘do these gentlemen have any qualifications?’ – as a school teacher, I would say that the Minister can investigate, can find out what qualifications they have. For instance, they may have NVQs, they may have a number of GCSEs or O-level or A –level – all those are qualifications. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Whether they are relevant or not is another matter and surely, that is information which the Government can obtain.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much.

840 Mr Speaker: That kind of information, the Government is in a position to obtain and provide to this House.

845 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am going to deal with the issue that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has raised, before dealing with your much more eminently sensible suggestion.

The hon. Member said, in the course of his intervention... and if he were to listen instead of sitting there making remarks, whilst I try to answer this question, or indeed as he did yesterday, taking a phone call within the Chamber, then we might be able to resolve matters more quickly. (Interjection) Yes it was – absolutely right, Mr Speaker. Mr Feetham is absolutely right, it was outrageous that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition took a phone call in the Chamber, twice. (Interjections)

850 Anyway, Mr Speaker, as I was saying –

Mr Speaker: Order!

855 Hon. Chief Minister: I gave and the Hon. the Minister gave a perfectly straight answer to a crooked question. The position, Mr Speaker, in the question as asked and the answer as given, is entirely clear. You see, Mr Speaker, the question asks about what qualifications the recently appointed managers to the Gibraltar Bus Company hold, which results in the Government being satisfied as to their promotions.

860 Now, that question, Mr Speaker, is perfectly fully answered in the first answer. What the hon. Gentleman is now saying is ‘Well, what qualifications do they actually have?’ You are absolutely right, of course, Mr Speaker, that is a factual question, which does not relate to how the Government makes a determination about satisfaction as to promotions Mr Speaker.

865 The whole tenor of the debate in this House, since the hon. Members opposite decided that their direct system of appointment of people to be directors of company was better than an independent system which saw a board determine who should be qualified to do this, is to try in some way put those who have been appointed, or the qualification of those who have been appointed to take these roles, into question.

Of course, Mr Speaker, (Laughter and interjections) we are able to find out, but disconnect from – (Laughter and interjections)

870 Mr Speaker, you cannot have a debate with people talking over you. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana)

Mr Speaker: Clerk, would you please call the next Question.

875 Further Ruling by Mr Speaker

Clerk: Question 834, the Hon. D J Bossino. (Interjection)

880 Mr Speaker: No. We are proceeding with the next Question. The matter is degenerating into a debate which is not appropriate to Question Time, where supplementaries should be short, sharp and to the point.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker –

885 Mr Speaker: I warned hon. Members 15 minutes ago that I was not going to allow a debate of the nature that took place at the last meeting. I can see definite signs that it is heading in that direction and therefore I am exercising my right to call the next Question.

Clerk: Question 834.

890 Hon. P R Caruana: [Inaudible] because they time us out.

Mr Speaker: That is another matter. Whether the kind of information which the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition – which I think my common sense tells me, that it is within the realms of the Government obtaining that information – I think –

895

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): We will provide it...

Mr Speaker: My view is that that information should be provided to the House.

Hon. Chief Minister: And we will provide it, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Whatever O-levels in Spanish, English or whatever, let us have that information, by all means.

905

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: Other than that, I will not allow the matter to deteriorate further into a slanging match.

910

Gibraltar Airport taxi service
Negotiations with Gibraltar Taxi Association

915 Clerk: Question 834, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port provide details of the negotiations which he is currently holding with the Gibraltar Taxi Association, in order to address the problems being encountered in connection with the taxi service at Gibraltar Airport?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, meetings are held regularly with the GTA, where issues regarding the taxi service are raised.

925 As I stated in answer to Question 597 of this year, the problems that are presently encountered at the Airport are no different to the problems that were encountered in the past under a GSD administration and unresolved.

930 Notwithstanding, the Government, in an effort to address common problems, has demarcated and placed proper signage to ensure that there is a dedicated lane for taxi pickup and drop-offs. Furthermore, in an effort to provide a more efficient taxi service, Government and the GTA are working solidly for the improvement of common scenarios that are constantly causing obstructions to the flows of traffic.

Let me add also, Mr Speaker, as I noted recently in a GBC interview that, given that negotiations are well advanced and progressed with the Gibraltar Taxi Association, I will be making a full statement in due course, once these are concluded.

935

Mr Speaker: Could I commend the Hon. Minister that he makes such a statement here in the House?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Thank you.

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

There was just one word which I missed in his response. I am grateful to the Minister for his reply, but I think he mentioned, he said improvements of ‘something’ in our roads. Is it problems, did he say? I did not quite catch that particular word.

Hon. N F Costa: Is the hon. Gentleman referring to obstruction to the flow of taxis?

Hon. D J Bossino: Well, he itemised a list and the first reference was to proper signage; I think it came second.

Hon. N F Costa: Oh yes, I said ‘has demarcated and placed proper signage to ensure that there is a dedicated lane for taxi pickups and drop-offs at the Airport.’

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is the dedicated lane already in place or is it something that forms part of the negotiations and the Government is working towards alongside the Gibraltar Taxi Association?

Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, as I am advised, the dedicated lane already exists.

Small boat marina
Plans to build; consultation

Clerk: Question 911, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker can the Deputy Chief Minister confirm whether the project to build a small boat marina will be going ahead and whether he has consulted with the residents of Europlaza in this context?

By way of clarification, I addressed the question to the Deputy Chief Minister, although I understand that it is the Minister for Tourism who will reply.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman will remember, I have already answered both parts of this question in answer to Question 689/2012.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, yes, however, I would be grateful if the Hon. Minister would be able to confirm whether there are any issues in relation to the access road for the proposed site of the marina itself and whether any other issues arise in respect of the ownership of that road, access, any of those details in particular.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, it was in answer to a supplementary by the hon. Lady opposite that I explained that all interested parties will be consulted.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, I recall that supplementary and that reply indeed.

However, I merely wanted to clarify whether the Europlaza management company has been consulted since that question was asked last month, or at all?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I am aware, there has not been communication yet, but most certainly as an affected party, there will be communication and consultation. (Interjections) If they are affected, I should add.

Hon. S M Figueras: And the one final point which was the purpose of originally drafting the question, asking it of the Deputy Chief Minister: is there any chance whatsoever that this project will not proceed, in light of any consultations that may be made with the public and other interested parties?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, that is, by its very nature, a hypothetical question.

Hon. S M Figueras: No, it is a matter of policy.

Hon. N F Costa: No, it is not.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): As a result of the consultation.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes.

Hon. S M Figueras: Perhaps I can clarify it for the hon. Member.

1010 Is it the Government's policy that, in the receipt of sufficient public consultation against the project, it will give way to that consultation and not proceed with the project?

1015 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, if I may just clarify to the hon. Gentleman that I prefaced my remarks by saying that 'if there are any rights or issues affecting', so it is conditional on there in fact being... There may not be any issues at all, so I cannot answer the question the way that he has posed it, because he is predicated a hypothetical question on a conditional issue that may never arise.

1020 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, can I just add or clarify a particular point. It is the Government's full intention to proceed with the project as set out in the manifesto and to build a marina for small boats for at least 700 berths before the end of this current term. That is the Government's intention and that is what the Government is going to do.

1025 Hon. S M Figueras: Well, I am grateful for the answer and in light of the fact that the hon. Member has said that there may be no issues, I am happy to wait to see whether in fact any arise. So I am grateful.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, if there are issues they will be dealt with, but this marina will go ahead.

1030 Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, I just thought the underground parking by the Commonwealth Park was also going to go ahead.

1035 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker, that is a snide remark which is unnecessary, because the hon. Gentleman has had explained to him a thousand times that the underground car park at the Commonwealth Park, which he likes to refer to constantly, if he checks the manifesto – which he does not like to do; he only likes to talk about the bit which is convenient to him – we say 'or will be provided elsewhere', which is what is happening.

I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I have a very high regard for the hon. Gentleman, but he just does not seem to get it.

1040 Hon. S M Figueras: I get it, but since we are not going to have a debate on the issue, Mr Speaker, I shall not entertain the Chief Minister's comments.

1045 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, then, don't make snide remarks about the Commonwealth Park.

Gibraltar Airport Service level agreements

1050 Clerk: Question 913, the Hon. D J Bossino. (Interjections)

1055 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Government provide details of the service level agreements which have been entered into with different contractors in relation to Gibraltar Airport to include the services to be provided and costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

1060 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Gentleman a schedule with information requested.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION NO 913/2012

The Service Level Agreements that GATL has negotiated are:

New Air Terminal
Further planned works

1065 Clerk: Question 914, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Government provide details of the further works which are planned at the new Air Terminal in order to enhance, as the Government has described it, the passenger experience, to include details of the costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the planned works involve airside weather cover for passengers transiting between parked aircraft and the terminal and a landside weather cover between the terminal and the forecourt for passengers and airport users who are entering or leaving the building – none of which, I must say surprisingly, was provided for in the original design.

These works are at the design stage. The costing for these works will not be ready until these are finalised.

1080

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the obvious supplementary is does the Minister have any indication as to when he thinks they will be finalised?

Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, I cannot give the hon. Gentleman an estimate at this point.

Procedural

Mr Speaker: Could I ask Members, when asking or answering questions, to try to speak up, because in some cases, particularly if you are fairly tall, there is a distance between yourself and the microphone, because those are meant for people speaking when they are sitting down. So there is a problem and I think you need to raise your voice slightly.

1090

Clerk: Thank you.

Future Job Strategy
Numeracy, literacy and IT courses

1105

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to the answer provided to Question 720/2012, can the Minister for Training say when he will be in a position to confirm whether numeracy, literacy and IT courses that were on offer at Bleak House for those on the VTS will be offered to trainees on the Future Job Strategy?

1110

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, before I answer the question, can I just put on record my welcome and congratulations. I am sorry I missed your 'enthronement' yesterday.

Mr Speaker: Thank you very much. I much appreciate seeing that we both go back to 1972!

Hon. J J Bossano: Absolutely, we arrived at the place at the same time! Mr Speaker, I am not able to provide the date.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in last month's Parliament session, the Hon. Minister said he was looking into how he could provide the equivalent to those in the new system. Could the Hon. Minister perhaps update us on how they are looking into providing these courses for the new trainees?

Hon. J J Bossano: There are a number of factors. One of these is, for example, that some of the trainees are very... There are a number of factors, because all these trainees really have got periods in ETCL, which are negotiated with the prospective employer.

So, for example, if we have got people who are only three months, then it would be a matter for where the employer is interested in them being there and continuing to be in the course after the three months. So we are really looking primarily at those who have got an 11-month period under training, or more.

A lot of them are people that are in apprenticeship courses of the ETCL, and a big chunk of those coming in, in September and October, are going to be people primarily in the construction industry. Again, there has to be an analysis of whether taking time out of the construction training to do this would be of benefit to them or not.

We are looking at the early school leavers to give them priority and the ETCL employees who for example are identified as needing English, Maths or ICT because of the nature of the job for which they are being trained will also be in the selected group.

So we actually expect that when this is ready to start for the ETCL, it would probably start earlier for those in supported employment, where these considerations do not apply and that could happen quite soon. But in the ETCL, once this gets going, what we expect is that it will be covering much bigger classes than used to be the case before, when it was limited to the VTS.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, would the Hon. Minister consider evening classes perhaps for those who are working during the day and who would wish to do a numeracy or literacy course?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, I am quite happy to have a look at that. I do not think it is something that has been considered.

Thank you.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, with your leave, may I... because I did offer last time round and if the Minister for Employment wanted to, I could have a coffee to exchange some views with him (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.)

What I recall, in my days as a civil servant with a certain responsibility for the trainees undergoing NVQs, validated by City and Guilds, which I know the Hon. Minister very much favours that awarding body, (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) those doing the construction trade, there was a recommendation, if not a statutory obligation – I am not absolutely certain – from City and Guilds that apprentices undertaking Levels 1 and 2 in their craft should undergo some literacy and numeracy training, which made a lot of sense. A trainee carpenter should at least attain a Level 1 in numeracy, when it comes to measurements and so on.

So it is more perhaps advice than a question. Perhaps the Hon. Minister may wish to have an opportunity of us having a coffee together, so I can further explain how we can enhance the NVQ qualification, more so, because we are both mutually agreed that the City and Guilds still carries a very good reputation by name and would be beneficial for our future workers.

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, I am grateful to the hon. Member for his offer to share his knowledge and experience with me in this area. He knows I have just got back, but I promise him we will have the coffee as soon as I can make it. I promise him that.

Future Job Strategy employees Employers who have signed contracts with ETCL

Clerk: Question 847, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Is the Minister for Employment now in a position to provide a list of names of employers who have signed contracts with Employment and Training Company Limited in respect of the Future Job Strategy employees?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D A Feetham: We had some exchanges last time round. What I would like to know is, how does the Government differentiate, as a matter of policy, between the provision of this information – in other words – the identities of these companies who have entered into contracts with what is a wholly owned Government company and the provision of all the other information that the Government gives, in terms of who has entered into contracts, with either the Government or other Government-owned companies? How do you differentiate where in the former you have explained that you are going back to all these companies, but in the latter you provide the information? How do you justify not providing the information to this House?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, these companies are companies that are co-operating with the Government in the introduction of training opportunities. They may wish or they may not wish their names to be public.

What I told the hon. Member opposite in the last question was that the companies would be contacted and asked, and if they say they are quite happy for their names to be published, we will publish them. I have not yet got the information of those who are happy to have it published.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I have seen the letter and I am not going to go into the letter, because it will be subject to a statement outside this House next week. But you still have not answered the question because...

Is the answer this, then: that what you are saying is that these types of companies are in a special category of case and therefore there is no obligation on the Government to provide that information? That is the question, but surely, that cannot be right, can it, on the basis that these are, after all, companies that are having their labour subsidised? It is not that these companies are doing a favour to the Government, according to how the scheme works. They are having their labour subsidised by the Government actually paying for these trainees.

So again I ask him, how does he justify it?

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, given that the hon. Member first asked the question and gives himself the answer and now wants me to explain, 'How do I justify the answer that he has just given himself?', well, because that is not the answer that I give him.

The answer that I give him is that, as far as we are concerned, we are very grateful to the 140 of over 1,000 that have come forward and accepted taking trainees on, which they normally take in addition to their workforce, not in substitution of. This is not that somebody says, 'Well look, I need 10 workers: send me 10 free workers.' This is the same as was happening before with the VTS, but fundamentally, with a requirement that the training will carry with it a job guarantee – something that the hon. Member first of all claimed was not going to happen and then claimed the guarantee was worth nothing.

So given the fact that it he has been hyper-critical of the scheme, I am not very sure that the people that have been good enough to enter into partnership agreement... and I welcome that they have done that, because they are helping us to replace having to import workers, by giving opportunities to workers in Gibraltar that have been unemployed, in some cases for years. Therefore, with their agreement, I will make their names public and if they prefer that their names should not be made public, I will not make them public.

The fact that the hon. Member thinks that I am subsidising their businesses, which presumably is now a new interpretation to make the scheme capable of being criticised on different grounds, presumably the next thing will be to tell me that it is against EU competition policy. So the answer is that I do not agree with the answer he has given himself and therefore I do not need to justify his own answers.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I always rise in trepidation when I ask questions of him, because the hon. Gentleman is likely to go 'supernova' on me any minute. (Interjection)

Does or does he not accept that these companies are having their labour subsidised to the extent that the Government is actually paying for these trainees and it is not the company that is paying for their training, it is the Government that is paying for their training? Does he not accept that?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, I do not accept that.

Hon. D A Feetham: So is it his position that, effectively, these companies are doing a favour to the Government by taking on these trainees?

Hon. J J Bossano: My position is that the 140 employers out of the 1,100 that are in Gibraltar are being public spirited and public minded in accepting giving Gibraltarians the opportunity to obtain skills which will enable them to obtain employment. I regret that the 900 that are not being as civic minded and as civic spirited are still continuing to import labour from outside and discriminating against our own people. Therefore, he should be welcoming the fact that this is happening, instead of trying to pick holes in it.

Future Job Strategy trainees Government contracts

1255

1260

Hon. D A Feetham: Is the Government in a position to state how many employers who have signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited in respect of the Future Job Strategy trainees have the benefit of a contract with the Government, any public authority or Government-owned company for the provision of goods and/or services with a value of £2,000? I should have said 'or over'. It does not say that, but that is really the intention.

1265

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1270

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I am informed by the Procurement Department and other Government Departments that out of 140 employers with a partnership agreement, there are only 10 employers who benefit from Government contracts which are in fact 10, instead of eight that I mentioned in my answer. So outside the construction sector there does not appear to be any of the 140. That is the information I have got. It is not...

Hon. D A Feetham: So the answer is 10 within the construction industry?

Hon. J J Bossano: The last time the hon. Member asked there were eight and now there are 10 in the construction industry. According to the information that has been provided to my Department from others there do not appear to be in any other areas, just the 10 in the construction.

Hon. D A Feetham: Could he please identify these 10 employers?

Hon. J J Bossano: I have not got the information with me; but I will only identify them if they are employers that say they are not in the area of having trainees. That is to say, there will be people who have no longer got the trainees and have got construction, but until they tell me 'yes' or 'no' on the letters that I have sent, I will not identify them. I do not have the names here anyway.

1285

Hon. D A Feetham: I have to say that I really do think that it is an offence to this Parliament that you should make your answers dependent and conditional on whether somebody outside this House actually consents to you providing the information or not; but you see, in relation to this particular aspect, this is one step removed from the previous.

1290

Hon. J J Bossano: I accept that.

Hon. D A Feetham: In the previous, I asked you if these are just trainees. The reason I ask –

1295

Mr Speaker: Hon. Member, I have noticed that sometimes you address the Chair and sometimes you address the Hon. Mr Bossano directly. Will you please address the Chair, because that is a requirement of Standing Orders, and it helps to keep the temperature down.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, perhaps the –

1300

Mr Speaker: The hon. Members should not address each other directly across the floor. They should do so through the Speaker.

1305

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, absolutely. I have been speaking into my microphone because you have been telling me earlier that the microphones have not been working properly. (Interjection) But I will ask the question from the Chair.

The previous question that I asked was one step removed. Those were about companies that have taken on trainees. This question is companies taking on trainees that have the benefit of Government contracts in the construction industry. What possible reasonable explanation could there be for the non-provision of that information to this Parliament? That is the question I am asking the Hon. the Minister.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member must know that the fact that he or any other Member of the Opposition asks a question – the same as has been the case for the preceding 39 years – does not require the Government to provide the information that the hon. Member is seeking. That is to say that to say I will not give the answer that the hon. Member wants is to answer the question.

I have already told the hon. Member that everybody that has trainees has been approached by me on the basis that I do not believe the fact that they take trainees on is something that imposes an obligation on the Government to publish the names of those. There might be somebody who is willing to take on trainees, but does not want his name to be known and will not take them on if I produce the name. So that is a policy decision that we have taken in the ETB, that the request for the publication of the names is something that we will only do if the person consents and has no objection to the names being published.

As regards which are the 10 of the contractors on the approved list that have got contracts with the Government when the question was being asked, I accept that there is a difference in the sense that the persons concerned have got the benefit of a contract with the Government; but nevertheless, what I have told the hon. Member is that I will decide what to do in answer to this question once I hear from the 10, and by that time, they may not have a contract with the Government.

The hon. Member has to understand that these are not people who have got long-term contracts to produce anything; they are people who put tenders. That is to say the fact that they have got a trainee does not automatically mean that they have got the contract; it means that they are allowed to submit bids for the work. Therefore the ten that have got it today may not have work next month, or may do. Just to put the matter in its proper context.

The answer that I am giving him – whether he likes it or he does not, it is a matter for him – is that when I have heard from the 10 employers, in addition to all the others, then I will decide whether in the case of a person who has got a contract I should inform the person that I will make the information – about the fact that they have got a contract – public, independent of whether they think their names should be made public as regards their giving trainees an opportunity.

Hon. D A Feetham: I have to say that if these companies did not have trainees and I asked about the contracts, it would be disclosable in this House anyway and habitually, Governments on both sides of the House and of both political persuasions, have actually provided that information. I do not understand why the hon. Gentleman does not want to provide it.

But can he answer this: is the Government's policy to look more favourably upon companies when it comes to, for example, the provision of contracts, particularly actually in the construction sector that may employ Future Job Strategy trainees, than those who do not?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, the policy is that we look more favourably to those who employ resident workers, irrespective of whether they take on trainees or not. But of course we ask the people in the construction industry to take on trainees otherwise we would not be able to improve on the dismal record of having produced, for example, this year, two painters and one bricklayer as a total of output of training of construction workers. That has got to be dramatically increased and it can only be dramatically increased with the cooperation of the employers, who have got no obligation to take on trainees.

Future Job Strategy Number of trainees employed permanently

Clerk: Question 849, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state how many Future Job Strategy trainees have been employed permanently since the 1st February 2012, broken down by month and indicating whether these have been employed in the private or public sector, including the Civil Service, any Government Department or Authority and the GDC.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, there are 37 former GRAD employed in the private sector and zero in the public sector.

The breakdown by month is: February, three; March, two; April, seven; May, four; June, six; July, five; August, five; and September, five.

1370 Hon. D A Feetham: Thirty-seven out of a figure of 450 odd that started on the scheme is obviously a low figure. I am not criticising the scheme by saying that. It is, I think, a fact. Is that because the 11 months' training period has not actually expired and that the Minister would expect, after 11 months, that that number from 37 would shoot up considerably?

1375 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, yes, of course, that is indeed the case because there are many more people that are covered by partnership agreements than the 37. The 37 are the result of the fact that this started in February, and in February three were taken on, which in fact was the employer taking on people when they had no obligation to do so and really the take-up would only have started after the first month.

1380 Even in March, which was when the first agreements were signed, two were taken on. In fact the reality of it is that initially, when we had less people coming in, we were giving 11-month agreements and now we are trying to get employers to commit to an earlier period in areas where the training does not have to really last 11 months simply because we want to be able to put more people through the system.

1385 Hon. D A Feetham: What about the trainees in the public service, because the majority of the trainees were in fact placed in the public service, as I recall from answers that the Hon. the Minister gave me earlier on this year?

1390 How do you think that those trainees are going to fair? Is it envisaged that a number of them are going to be employed within the public service – at the moment it is zero – for example, via the newly introduced AA grade or is the intention of the Minister to try and eventually move them on to the private sector via partnership agreements with the private sector?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, there is no public sector partnership agreement, that is to say –

1395 Hon. D A Feetham: No, private sector partnership agreements, in other words –

Hon. J J Bossano: No, the trainees that are at the moment within the public sector do not have a partnership agreement and do not have a job –

1400 Hon. D A Feetham: I understand that.

1405 Hon. J J Bossano: – and they will not be put in partnership agreement with the private sector because in fact they have already been given training. They will be offered to employers who open vacancies on the basis that the experience that they have gained in the employment departments where they were placed will in fact no longer debar them, as it was the case before that people were saying, 'Well, look, I want somebody to be a receptionist, but they have never worked on a reception before.' Well, now they have worked in a reception before and now the employer can no longer say, 'I do not want them because they have got no experience.' That is the methodology that will mean that the employees will be available for vacancies that come to the Department, where we have now got a proactive system where employers are actually called up individually when a vacancy comes in. We make sure that the vacancy is a real one and that they have not got somebody in the pipeline already and therefore we do not want them to waste our time or to have people being discouraged by going to place after place after place and getting nowhere.

1410 Where the employer says, 'Yes, I really want somebody,' then we send him some of the people that we have got and some of the people who are unemployed that we have not trained, and that is how they come off the list. They are also, of course, on their own initiative, able to apply for anything that comes up advertised like everybody else in Gibraltar.

1420 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, he has dealt with the situation of a trainee who is based in the public service, who has been trained in the public service, and then if a vacancy arises in the private sector, you are effectively moving that person into the private sector, having, according to you, trained them in the public sector – but, of course, there are a substantial number of people within the public sector.

1425 Is the intention of the Government to effectively have a situation where all those within the public sector will be eventually moved to the private sector; or does he envisage that some of the ones that are in the public sector will actually be employed within the public sector?

1430 Let me tell you why I ask the question; because obviously it is a matter of interest; but there are some trainees who are in the public sector who are suggesting that when they were placed in the public sector, they were told, 'If you are good enough for the job that you are being placed in within the public sector, you will then be eventually taken on within the public sector.' I just want some clarity in relation to this issue, so of course the trainees out there that may be listening to this debate or maybe reading the press know what their position is very clearly.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I think the position is crystal clear. Whoever told them that had no authority to do so and they are employees of a company called ETCL. It is their employer who tells them what the terms are under which they are being employed – except, of course, where people are being trained for specific jobs like the carers in the Care Agency. There, we are training them to be carers and, therefore, you cannot say to them, ‘And now, you go and be a receptionist’, or the people who are in fact in the School of Nursing, where again we are training them to be nurses, and we are the only employer of nurses in Gibraltar. But where they are being given generic administrative skills, the answer is there is no guarantee of employment and they should not expect a guarantee of employment, because it is not there. What they have got is in fact a better opportunity of obtaining a job, when they apply for a job, because they are able to put in their CV the time that they spent in different Government Departments. They spend a few months in the Treasury...

This was going on, on a limited scale, under the VTS scheme for people who are doing a course on business studies. Effectively, what we have got now is a much bigger pool of people doing it.

Future Job Strategy New placements since 1st March 2012

Clerk: Question 850, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Divided by month, can the Minister for Employment state how many people have been allowed onto the Future Job Strategy scheme for the first time since the 1st March 2012 and (a) placed with a private company with a signed contract between the employer and ETCL; (b) placed with a private company without a signed contract between the employer and ETCL; and (c) placed in the public sector?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the breakdown of the persons employed by month is as follows:

(a), that is placed in the private sector with a contract, March, 19; April, 20; May, 35; June, 31; July, 19, August, 19; September, 9; and October, 12.

In the private sector without a partnership agreement yet being signed: March, 4; April, 3; May, 9; June, 4; July, 5; August, 4.

In the public sector the placements are: March, 17; April, 19; May, 21; June, 11; July, 15; August, 4; September, 8; and October, 14.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will you please give me the totals for (a), (b) and (c)?

Hon. J J Bossano: It is not on the paper, I am afraid, down here. I will have to calculate it by adding them up.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not have a schedule containing the answer, so I cannot –

Hon. J J Bossano: If somebody brings me a calculator, I will do it for him.

Mr Speaker: It is 302.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, 302 in total; I asked for the total in (a), the total in (b), and the total in (c).

Mr Speaker: They are 164, 29 and 109.

Hon. D A Feetham: I am very grateful, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Bossano: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D A Feetham: In relation to in fact any of these, I presume that some of these were in fact trainees that were already on the VTS scheme as at the 1st February 2012 or am I wrong? Are they new intakes on the scheme?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, they are people who were not in the scheme already in January, but there were people who were already on the waiting list in January. That is in January, when the new scheme was started, there were people who had been in the old scheme for a number of months and were now coming to their termination date, then they were transferred to the new one and effectively given... We ignored the period they had spent previously and they were given a second opportunity in February.

Then, in March, we started taking the people who had been on the Bleak House waiting list, who were not included as part of the unemployed and were due to enter the old VTS. Those, of which there was something like 90, I believe, from memory, are included in this list.

Hon. D A Feetham: Could the hon. Gentleman explain why there are 29 placements with companies and there is no contract between ETCL and that company, bearing in mind that the Government's policy is to require a repayment of the training of... effectively, the training subsidy, if that individual is not taken on at the end of the training?

Hon. J J Bossano: The answer is quite simple, that the people in the system that should have made sure that the partnership agreements were signed overlooked these cases and that is now being put right. There is no reason why they should not and if they do not, they will have the trainees removed.

Future Job Strategy scheme Waiting list

Clerk: Question 851, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state whether his Department keeps a list of people waiting to go on to the Future Job Strategy scheme and if so, what is the number of people waiting to do so?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, there is no separate list.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, how does the Hon. the Minister and his Department actually decide who goes onto the Scheme in any particular month, and who does not? There must be a system for actually determining who are the meritorious cases or... either it must be done by some merit based on the amount of time that person may be on an unemployment list or some other method.

I am just asking, how does he determine it?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I do not determine it, obviously Mr Speaker. This is something that... I am not sitting there, sifting who gets on the list – and who does not get on any list. (A Member: [inaudible]) I employ people to do that.

I take it that the laughter is that the hon. Member does not believe me, but then I never believed anything he ever said, when he was in Government, so I will not recriminate him for it.

Mr Speaker, the methodology is quite simple, it is demand led. I have explained that to him before, that is to say, when somebody comes into the system requiring labour, we approach him on the basis of meeting his future labour requirements. We are going to be doing this in different areas. Predominantly, it is still the construction industry, because this is where the greatest opportunity exists, but we want to do it in retailing and in other areas.

We therefore talk to the employers. That is, we the Department, the employment officers in the Department, talk to the employers about the possibility of taking on trainees and send them suitable candidates – that is, candidates that the Department... When somebody comes and registers as unemployed, the procedure that has always been followed is that they give an indication of the area of work in which they consider that they would like to work, and we also take into account the area of work in which they have worked previously, so a combination of three factors operate: the previous history of employment of the person; the area of interest of employment of the person; and the selection by the employer. Sometimes we will get approached by employers who may know of unemployed people that they would be willing to take on as trainees, to the extent that it is possible, we try and encourage employers to give an opportunity to people that have been either unemployed for a long time or that have come out of having had convictions or that have got... So we try, but we cannot in fact force employers to do [inaudible] but we do try to persuade them to take those on, wherever it is possible, as trainees.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I wish the hon. Gentleman all the luck in the world in relation to the placement of these individuals within the construction industry, and I hope that the construction industry will be buoyant in the future, because I am told that at the moment, it is rather flat.

But there must be some form of – perhaps not, but there must be some form of list that the ETB must keep that effectively lists individuals with... for example, in relation to the construction industry, the majority of people that you would place in the construction industry are probably people who are interested in training in construction skills. They may have no skills, a lot of them may have no qualifications in terms of O-Levels. There is a profile to those kinds of individuals.

But does that list exist, so that the people within a particular profile, one chooses them off a list in accordance with how much time, for example, they are spending or is this effectively done rather less systematically than that, by some official who may say, ‘Well, look, I remember that there is this individual here that we have got and we interviewed last week’? What is the system that is in place?

Hon. J J Bossano: The case of the construction industry, which is the one on which, as I have mentioned in the past, we are putting greater emphasis on and when we make progress there, we hope to move to other areas, there is a dedicated officer, who was previously in the construction industry training centre, who keeps the list of everybody that has either worked or is interested in working in the construction industry. He sends a number of people from that list and the employer then picks the person that they want. So we may send 10 and they take one, as a trainee. That is the way it is done.

Gibraltar Development Corporation Board meetings since 1st January

Clerk: Question 853, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many times the board of the GDC has met since the 1st January 2012, with the dates of those meetings?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker, the board of the GDC has met on six occasions since the 1st January, on the following dates: 21st May, 16th July, 31st August, 17th September, 28th September... I will read that again. I had not switched it on!

The board of the GDC has met on six occasions since 1st January 2012, on the following dates: 21st May, 16th July, 31st August, 17th September, 28th September, 9th October.

Hon. D A Feetham: Did you just say 19th October?

Hon. J J Bossano: Ninth.

Hon. D A Feetham: I notice on the Gazette that the composition of the board has recently been changed and that now the position is that there are four or five Government Ministers on the board. What I did not notice from the actual Gazette is, who is the secretary of the board, which is a statutory requirement. Is the hon. Gentleman able to help me with that?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, the secretary is the Acting Head of the Employment Service.

Hon. D A Feetham: Which is who?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it is the senior civil servant in the Department, Denise Chipolina.

Guaranteed Superannuation Fund Number of employees opting in

Clerk: Question 854, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Has the Government now set up the Guaranteed Superannuation Fund and how many (a) public service employees and (b) private sector employees have opted to take advantage of it?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1620 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Guaranteed Superannuation Fund has been in place since 1st January 2012.
Up to 30th September, 464 public service employees and seven private sector employees have joined it.

1625 Clerk: That completes answers to Oral Questions.

Questions for Written Answer

1630 W178/2012 withdrawn

Clerk: Answers to Written Questions, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, before the hon. Gentleman rises to give the answers to Written Questions, may I withdraw Written Question 178.

1640 Answers to Written Questions tabled

1645 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the answers to Written Questions numbered W143/2012 to W179/2012 inclusive, except for W178/2012 which I have removed from the bundle after the withdrawal of it.

1650 Adjournment

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

TOURISM, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

GibiBikes Further roll out of scheme

25

Clerk: Question 927/2012, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Public Transport advise the House whether the Government is now committed to the further roll out of the GibiBikes scheme?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker.

The Government is committed to making a success of the GibiBike scheme, as being both environmentally friendly and as part of the general plan for traffic management.

35

This Government identified certain problems with the scheme as originally envisaged under the previous administration, but has now resolved these problems so that the scheme can go ahead to the advantage of everyone.

40

It is expected that the remaining bike stations will be in place within the next few months and it is intended that the whole scheme will then be transferred so that it is under the full control of Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar.

45

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, if you would permit me to be slightly party political in what I am about to say, I obviously welcome the Government's commitment to the scheme. Given that it was started by us, we always thought it was a good scheme and even though I think on the first occasion that we raised questions in relation to the scheme, we got the sense that the Government was not really behind it, but I am very glad that matters are now afoot.

50

If the Minister would recall, I think the last time that we, as an Opposition, posed questions in relation to this matter on 21st June, the Minister did say that one of the areas in respect of which he said was making progress was in relation to addressing the concern which the Minister had, Mr Speaker, as to any further problems that the scheme may encounter. Does he have these assurances at the moment?

55

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, in the first place, let me start by replying to the preface to the question, which is to say that, at the time that I answered the original question on GibiBikes, what I told the House was that the Government had some serious concerns on the scheme and, in fact, in answer to Question 352/2012, I set out, for instance, the number of stations that were out of action – there were five – and I also listed the many other myriad issues that arose from a product essentially, Mr Speaker, which had only been rolled out on 27th November, so one would have expected that, during the very first year of its first phase having been rolled out would have worked perfectly well.

60

I therefore proceeded to list the fact that there were 45 locks which were broken; that out of a bike availability of 130, that had decreased significantly; that anti-tilt tags had been broken; and that the spares to make them roadworthy had not turned up in Gibraltar.

65

I also made the point, at the time, Mr Speaker, that the original contract entered into by the previous Government was just for the provision of the scheme and it did not include a contract for maintenance – as a result of which, I am told by the UK company, some of these issues arose, with all due respect and without wishing to agree with the hon. Gentleman, one would have thought that a product in its first year would not have had any of the issues, without the need for maintenance or otherwise. So I am not in any way putting the blame there on the hon. Gentleman, but certainly given that the scheme had so many problems, one could not then throw even further taxpayers' money without properly considering whether or not this was a product which should be rolled out. That is in answer to the first part or rather to the preface of the question.

70

The reason why, Mr Speaker, it has taken all of this time to be able to come to a position where the Government is happy to roll out the second phase is precisely because we have been – well, me and my officials – locked down in very detailed negotiations, until we have been satisfied that the issues that have arisen on the roll out of the first phase will not happen again. We now have those written assurances. Whether or not they do arise in practice will remain to be seen, but as I have also told the hon. Gentleman in the last part, when answering his question, what we intend to do is to source locally the maintenance of the bikes and the repairs of the bikes, so that we will not have to endure the delay of time, for instance, that it has taken for spares to arrive in Gibraltar or indeed to have a situation where, because there is a commercial dispute with the UK company, we cannot progress on other fronts.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in his first answer the Minister made reference to the... I cannot remember exactly the word he used, but I think basically the running of or the ownership of the scheme was going to be transferred into Government's hands. Can he expand on that?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman knows, the scheme is operated by the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited. It is hoped that... (Interjection) Well, what is intended is that as part of the transfer of the operation of GibiBikes to Gibraltar, the Gibraltar Bus Company would be able to train employees within the Gibraltar Bus Company to be able to carry out the repairs and the maintenance, rather than have to rely on an overseas operator, which of course has within it (Interjections) its inherent problems.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in terms of a further roll out, can I ask him a specific question. Can he tell this House how many bike stations remain to be installed? Does he have that information or am I being unfair in posing this question now without any notice?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not have the information before me. I will get it for the hon. Gentleman, but we will roll out the exact number of stations that was foreseen in the original contract.

I hope that answers the question, but if he wants the specific number or the location, I will be happy to provide it to the hon. Gentleman.

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, and I am very grateful for that. I take this opportunity now, Mr Speaker, given that we are posing questions in relation to GibiBikes, I have been approached only recently by a part owner of a gaming company, who tells me that his employees are very fond of this scheme and the one issue that they are finding, the one problem that they are finding is the unavailability of bikes. Is that also an issue which is being addressed, given the popularity of the scheme?

Hon. N F Costa: Well, yes, Mr Speaker, in my first answer, I reminded the hon. Gentleman of the series of problems that the scheme was experiencing when we inherited the same, when we came into office. Because we have been in commercial discussions – to describe it in one particular way – because we have been in such discussions, we have not been able to progress on a critical matter, such as the repairs because of this commercial negotiation that has been ongoing.

We have now come to a satisfactory resolution of all of these issues and we are now waiting for the spare parts to arrive in Gibraltar, to be able to fix the bikes so that there are more bikes available.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, would the Minister be able to confirm whether there is going to be an increase in the number of bikes available as you roll out to the remainder of the stations as planned?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is the intention.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Employees' promotions, demotions and earnings

Clerk: Question 928, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Public Transport provide details of the individuals employed by the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited, as at 9th December 2011, and what the position is now, with details of the promotions or demotions since 9th December 2011, and the earnings of the individuals, both before and after the promotions?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with the information requested as at 8th November of this year.

The hon. Member should note that the schedule does not include the salaries of the employees, but that I am happy to provide these details in confidence to him.

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member have any supplementaries?

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, [inaudible] (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: That is a separate issue.

160 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, by way of clarification, this is a rather long... or rather, the information contained in the schedule is quite lengthy. I am trying to get my head round this as quickly as I possibly can.

Now, as I understand it, Mr Speaker, this is basically a snapshot of the employee situation as at 8th November 2012. I did ask as well, Mr Speaker, in the first limb of my question, what the position was as at 9th December, with the idea that I would also get information not only of promotions and the movements, but also of any new employees that have come in.

If I look at this now, I am not sure what the position was, as at 9th December 2011, unless I have misread or am not reading the schedule in its entirety. Perhaps the Minister can explain?

170 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman asked me to provide details of the persons employed in the Bus Company, which I have set out in a page-and-a-half schedule. He has asked me for the details: the positions are also listed on the third column. (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.) He has asked me about promotions: those that have been promoted have, on the fifth column, a citation to the new positions to which they have been promoted. He has also asked me for any demotions. There are no demotions; therefore, he will find none in the schedule. He has also asked for earnings, which, as I told him in my original answer, I will not provide across the floor of the House, but that I will provide it to him in confidence.

180 Mr Speaker: If you look at the question again, it is about... He is asking initially for details of the individuals employed as on 9th December 2011. Were all these people employed (Hon. N F Costa: Oh, I see.) on 9th December 2011 or were they not?

Hon. N F Costa: Oh, Mr Speaker, I would not have the answer to that. I will have to go back and find out. I see the point that the hon. Gentleman is making.

185 I do refer him to a previous answer that I gave, when I noted the number of people that had been dismissed, but I will have to go back and obtain that information for him. I see the point.

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful for that clarification, Mr Speaker. That was precisely the intent of the question.

190 Mr Speaker, if I had an opportunity to read the schedule which has been handed over to me in respect of the supplementary to Question 833/2012 and ask supplementaries in relation to that?

Mr Speaker: I am going to allow you to ask any question for clarification as if this were a statement that has been made. Clarification only.

195 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether what I am now about to ask is a clarification but no doubt, Mr Speaker, you will no doubt reprimand me accordingly or stop me.

200 Mr Speaker, the question I was going to ask in relation to the answer to supplementary to Question 833/2012 is: is the Minister satisfied...? He has given me a list of qualifications which are held by Mr Alfred Traverso and Mr Clive Martinez, who are the recent appointees, but really the point I was driving at, at the last sitting, but I was not permitted to continue by yourself, Mr Speaker, was whether he is satisfied that these qualifications are the qualifications required pursuant to the Transport Act 1998. I am not sure whether I can ask that question, Mr Speaker.

205 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have already answered the question, which was that the board that selected these candidates were satisfied.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited
Provision of advertising

215 Clerk: Question 929, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Public Transport advise the House which company, and if not a company, the individual who now provides advertising on the bus fleet of the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited?

220 Clerk: Answer, the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, advertising on the bus fleet of the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited is now being undertaken by Big Publications Gibraltar Limited.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am not sure what process was carried out before this particular company was able to secure this contract. Can I ask the Minister that specific question: what process was carried out before this company was chosen?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, of course, Mr Speaker. The process was carried out by the former Head of Procurement, Ms Cynthia Eagle, who is my Principal Secretary. The way that it worked was that Ms Eagle requested for the Bus Company to obtain proposals from different companies and therefore different companies were approached. These companies – four in total – provided proposals to the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited. The persons involved in discussing and reviewing the proposals were Ms Cynthia Eagle, another civil servant and the two managers of the Bus Company. Out of the four proposals received, the most favourable proposal and the one recommended to me was Big Publications.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can I ask the Minister whether the choosing of the new company... I am assuming Big Publications did not previously enjoy the benefits of this particular contract and, if that assumption is correct, I will predicate this question based on that assumption.

Mr Speaker, can the Minister tell me whether the requirement to appoint a new company arose as a result of the previous company's contract having finished?

If I can assist, was the company which was the beneficiary formerly of this contract... was that contract terminated as a result of Government action or did it just reach the end of its contractual life?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not know exactly the answer, but I doubt that the former Head of Procurement would have advised me that they had to initiate a process to procure the services of advertising for the buses without the contract having expired, but because I do not know the answer, I do not want to say that that is the answer.

I can check and revert to him, either in writing or at the next session of the House.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have a further supplementary. (Mr Speaker: Yes.)

The Minister, Mr Speaker, has said that he has relied on this, if I can put it in those terms, 'board' which has dealt with the procedure. Is the Minister who is politically responsible for this company satisfied that this company which is called Big Publications Limited has a required pedigree and requisite experience to deal with advertising?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman always prefaces by saying 'they do have political responsibility for these responsibilities'. I always accept that I do have ultimate political responsibility for my constitutional responsibilities and therefore am answerable in this House.

I did not personally either interview or review the proposals. I accepted the recommendation that was made to me by the selection board that advised me.

I do have, however, a chart that explains to me the reasoning why this particular company was chosen and in the first place, it sets out that the printing will be carried out in Gibraltar; that the Board did themselves attend to make sure that the printing would be carried out in Gibraltar; and it proposes to generate net revenue for the Gibraltar Bus Company, through the advertising, of £60,000.

The proposal in terms of artwork, etc was seen as the most exciting and dynamic, and because the hon. Gentleman knows that I have been very keen to stress in the past that we need to start to knuckle down on costs, the fact that this company did provide revenue generation for the Company is obviously something that would have been looked at favourably by the Board.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is the Minister able to confirm whether there was a net revenue arrangement with the previous contractor? As far as I have been made aware, I was certain there was such an arrangement in place.

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, I would need specific notice of that question, but the table that has been prepared for me says that the offer of revenue to be generated for the Bus Company of the other companies stands as zero pounds, and this company stands as £60,000.

Hon. S M Figueras: Zero pounds versus £16,000?

285 Hon. N F Costa: Six zero – net six zero – sixty.

Hon. S M Figueras: For the new company – sixty?

Hon. N F Costa: For the new company, sixty.

290 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer, just one final supplementary, certainly from me in this respect.

Is the Minister satisfied and I suspect that he will say that he has because he has already said that he has accepted the Board's recommendations. Is he satisfied that the quality of the product offered by the new contractor will match the quality of the work that was produced by the previous contractor?

295 I say this because, as a user of the bus service, Mr Speaker, I have become concerned about the appearance of the publications on board and the general state of the buses. I was wondering whether perhaps he is satisfied that that will indeed be the case?

300 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I just answered to my other hon. Gentleman, Mr Bossino, the Board did personally inspect the quality of the production, as I said before. I was only shown the artwork once the Board had made their recommendation and it looked quite vibrant, modern and dynamic to me. But I did not physically go to inspect it, as I keep repeating.

Trade licensing for supermarkets
Government policy

310 Clerk: Question 930, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Mr Speaker, advise the House whether it is the Government's policy to continue with the Direction issued by the previous Government in relation to the trade licensing of items sold at supermarkets other than foodstuffs, domestic consumables, beverages and tobacco?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, no, it is not our policy to continue with this Direction and the Authority has been accordingly advised.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, that is a very clear answer.

Can I ask the Hon. Minister why that is the case? We took a view, when we were in Government, that in order to protect particularly businesses in our main commercial thoroughfare, which is Main Street, and in other areas of Gibraltar, it is important, Mr Speaker, that this Direction ought to have been followed, pursuant to the provision in the Trade Licensing Act which basically requires the Trade Licensing Authority to consider, in connection with the public interest consideration, which they have to take into account before coming to the decision, the public interest in Gibraltar plc or Gibraltar inc, in having the commercial entities in Main Street protected.

This really arises, Mr Speaker, because it has come to my notice, it has been advertised in the Gazette, that there is an application by a company, I think it is Rotunda Holdings Ltd, to sell items which include things like televisions and radios, all kinds of audio and video equipment, DIY goods. The ambit of the application is indeed very wide and in fact overlaps in respect of those items which we, when we were in Government, were very concerned to protect.

330

So I appreciate, Mr Speaker, it is a long preamble. I normally do not like to give them, but it is a really short question and the question is why?

335

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am a little surprised about the supplementary, not least because the hon. Gentleman, before he asked me the question in this House, in fact called the Trade Licensing Secretary to ask that very question, and there was an answer provided to him by e-mail, which was:

340

'Good morning Damon.

Sorry for the delay. I have attached the Direction in question and I have confirmed that the Direction was issued ultra vires.'

345 That answers the question straightly and simply, so he does already know the answer. It is interesting he should have asked me the question after he had asked the same question to the Trade Licensing Authority (TLA).

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I appreciate if that is the reason why, presumably if I can interpret the answer, it is because the Government has received legal advice and it is ultra vires.

350 I appreciate that I would be breaching, I think, the Rules of the House, if I would ask him for his view as to whether that is in fact the case. Certainly, my view as a professional – and not only as a politician; as a professional – I do not think it is ultra vires. I think the Government does have the authority to do so under... I can take him to the precise section. It is in relation to the matter we will hopefully be dealing with in this sitting of the House, the amendments to the Trade Licensing Act. I do have a copy of the substantive Act and there is a provision, Mr Speaker, which allows the Government to issue Directions in order to assist the Trade Licensing Authority, in relation to public interest matters.

355 I personally do not think it is ultra vires, the provisions of the Act.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, without wishing to make this into a legal submission in reply, may I answer my hon. Friend by saying that, of course, I did receive legal advice from Peter Rodney, who is the legal adviser to the Trade Licensing Authority on all matters. He in fact sits with them at hearings and his view was that the Ministerial Direction that the hon. Gentleman describes, the one that we are talking about, was issued in good faith by the previous Government, but in his view, it appears, on consideration, that it may have been issued wrongly, in that the correct legal powers to issue it were not used.

360 That was the advice that he gave the TLA and, as a result of that advice, it was the TLA that decided to disregard the Direction, since the problem was brought to its attention. So, in other words, it is not that the Government took a look at the Direction, decided that it was ultra vires and directed the Licensing Authority; it was that, as a result of a hearing, advice was asked for, advice by Mr Rodney was proffered, the advice being that he did not think it had been issued appropriately; and it was the TLA which is entirely independent that took the decision that, as a result of the advice, it would disregard that Direction. Of course now we, the Government, are considering whether or not we have any Direction in relation to supermarkets.

370 I hope that clearly sets out the sequence of events that led to this Direction being disregarded by the Authority, rather than by the Government deciding that it was not to follow that Direction.

375 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether I am able to ask this question and no doubt –

Mr Speaker: I will allow you one last supplementary.

380 Hon. D J Bossino: Not just because of, perhaps, the length of the exchange; it is simply to ask for your advice, Mr Speaker, across the floor of the House, as to whether I can ask the Minister –

Mr Speaker: I think there is a limit to the extent to which you can get involved in purely debating legal questions. There is a limit to that.

385 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, the question is whether the Minister would be able to provide me with details of... If the advice has been proffered in writing, whether he would be able to provide me with that advice.

390 Mr Speaker: Very well.

Hon. N F Costa: With your indulgence, I could give him the answer in one sentence, to avoid the need for me to have to write later and we can finish this legal argument.

395 Mr Speaker: Do so and then we will leave it at that.

Hon. N F Costa: The specific advice given to me by Mr Peter Rodney was that section 48 of the Gibraltar Constitution notes of the delegation from the Governor to the Government of certain powers, but that through oversight or otherwise, the powers were not properly delegated from the Governor to the Government and that therefore the Direction was not properly issued, as a result of this.

400 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Old Ice Box building
Resurfacing works progress

410 Clerk: Question 974, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port advise us as to progress of the resurfacing works being undertaken at the site of the old Ice Box building?

415 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as the Government announced by way of Press Release 314/2012 on 23rd May, the works to carry out repairs and improve the condition of the surface along several areas of the Western Arm were completed in June of this year.

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

425 Fire station
Installation of new smoke extractor system

Clerk: Question 931 the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

430 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the City Fire Brigade inform this House when the new smoke extractor system for the fire station was installed and if not yet done, when it will be installed?

435 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the extractor system installers, Independent Air Conditioning Ltd, have advised us that the installation works commenced last Tuesday, 13th November, two days ago and estimate that the system will be fully installed and operational by mid-December.

440 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Hon. Minister advise when did this service go out to tender?

445 In January's Parliament, he said that it would not be going out to tender because there were only two companies that could provide the service, i.e. Nederman from Sweden and Ecovent from Germany. When did the service go out to tender and why were those two companies that he mentioned back in January then not considered?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I would need notice of that question, because as I understand it...

450 Mr Speaker: But have you not said that it did not go out to tender?

Hon. S E Linares: No, it did not go out to tender

455 Mr Speaker: It did not go out to tender, because there were only two –

Hon. S E Linares: Right, that is the first thing but yes, I understand what she is saying, because it seems that it is the name of a different company than the two stated.

460 I will go back to the City Fire Brigade and ask them whether they have any relationship. Maybe some of the companies are subsidiaries to the two that I mentioned, but I will give her the answer, Mr Speaker.

City Fire Brigade
Full audit costs and findings

465 Clerk: Question 932, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with the responsibility for the City Fire Brigade state when the full audit of the City Fire Brigade was completed, how much it cost and what the findings from it were?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the full audit of the City Fire Brigade will commence on the 25th November, therefore the costs and fundings are not yet available.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

New Fire Station
Commencement and location

Clerk: Question 933, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the City Fire Brigade state when Government will be starting work on the new Fire Station and where it will be located?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the answer to this question is the same as the reply given to Question 354/2012. Government is not in a position to state where the new Fire Station will be located.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister confirm that this is because a decision will be made after the audit is completed?

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, as has been stated before. I have mentioned that before in the House, that we are waiting for the audit, but not necessarily just straight after the audit will we have a location. What we are looking at is the whole thing holistically.

Clerk: Question –

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I am grateful for that. I just only ask the question because you did state in the manifesto that within three months of the Election, as a priority, would commence work on the new Fire Station. I just wanted to establish the answer.

Hon. S E Linares: Was that a question, Mr Speaker?

Mr Speaker: She can rephrase it as a question.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Is that so?

Mr Speaker: ‘Did the Hon. Minister not say –?’

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes, exactly – did the Hon. Minister not say that?

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Gibraltar Cricket Association and/or Gibraltar Rugby Football Union Discussions re renewed facilities

Clerk: Question 934, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure state if he has, since his answer to Question 843/2012, held discussions with the Gibraltar Cricket Association and/or the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union, in respect of providing renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of their respective sports and if so, provide details of any agreements reached?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, since my answer to Question 843/2012, barely a month ago, I have had the pleasure of meeting the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union, where we discussed the provisions for the renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of their respective sports.

No agreement has been reached.

Sports Grants Details of payments

Clerk: Question 935, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provided details of payments made since his answer to Question 844/2012 in respect of Sports Grants for the following: (a) Grants to Sporting Societies; (b) International Competitions; (c) Sports Development Projects and (d) Hosting of special Sports and Leisure events?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Member opposite the details requested in relation to the payments made since my answer to Question 844/2012 in respect of the Sports Grants.

ANSWER TO QUESTION No: 935/2012

(22) Grants to Sporting Societies

Pool – Competition UK	£7,250.00
Tenpin Bowling – World Cup	£1,053.22
Darts – Pro Players Grants	£6,000.00
Athletics – Competition in Barcelona	£ 264.74
Darts – Competition UK	£1,725.00

(23) International Competitions

Nil.

(24) Sports Development Projects

Triathlon Association Electronic Systems	£2,500.00
Athletics – Congress Malta	£ 595.00
Pool – Professional Coaching	£ 872.96
Rowing – National Rowing Champs	£4,809.90
Triathlon – Congress New Zealand	£ 389.50
Football National Squad Competition	£7,500.00
Climbing – Competition UK	£1,169.50
Badminton – Schools development	£2,363.63

(25) Hosting of Special Sports and Leisure Events

Gibraltar Masters Darts - Deposit	£30,000.00
Tenpin Bowling Rock Masters	£10,000.00

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. Minister have slightly more information on the penultimate item listed here, the Gibraltar Masters Darts? I see there is £30,000 allocated as a deposit. Would he perhaps expand a bit further – a deposit in respect of what event?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, this is about a European circuit darts competition that will be held in June next year. The organisers want us to commit ourselves to doing that, therefore they have asked for a

565 deposit of £30,000. They will be bringing all the world champions to Gibraltar, a very exciting... I am very excited about the tournament they are doing. They will be bringing television in. It will not be beamed live, but it will be another programme like we did with the Strongman Competition, in which a 570 50-minute programme will be beamed on Sky Sports. As everybody knows, darts is becoming an up-and-coming sport. We are then bringing them over here and this will be one of the European circuits. That means that they are developing a circuit where they already have a championship in Vienna, they have one in Berlin, they have one in Ireland and Gibraltar will be part and parcel of that European championship. Therefore, because it is important that we are part and parcel of this ranking tournament, they ask for a deposit of £30,000.

575 Hon. E J Reyes: And Mr Speaker, if the deposit is £30,000, does the Minister have any sort of estimated figures of what are the further payments that will be made, ending up in which grand total?

Hon. S E Linares: Not at this stage, because it is a thing that we need to evaluate with production and all that, so it is a deposit of £30,000. Obviously, it will be more, but I cannot, at this stage, give the hon.
580 Member an exact figure. But I can tell you it is not a bottomless pit.

Hon. E J Reyes: I was going to say, Mr Speaker, we have made a deposit of £30,000. Surely somewhere within the budget, there must be a figure saying, 'Look, more or less, with a 10% or 20% margin up or down.' Is this going to be a £100,000 contribution at the end of the day or just £50,000? Can 585 I at least have some sort of indication of what figure we are aiming towards?

Hon. S E Linares: We are talking about the range of £100,000.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Victoria Stadium, Pitch Number 1 International Rugby Board approval for use

595 Clerk: Question 936 the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure confirm if the new playing surface recently installed at Pitch Number 1 at the Victoria Stadium also enjoys or will very soon enjoy, full approval and 600 certification by the International Rugby Board (IRB) for the playing of international rugby matches?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Yes, sir, I can confirm that the new playing surface installed at Pitch Number 1 at the Victoria Stadium will enjoy full approval by 605 the International Rugby Board for the playing of international rugby matches.

Hon. E J Reyes: And just for the sake of clarification, Mr Speaker, may I ask the Minister to confirm that that means that if it carries the full approval, therefore scrums and so on will actually be permissible on the new playing surface, as opposed to that having been curtailed in the previous version of the pitch 610 that was available?

Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, I am not an expert in rugby but if the International Rugby Board is happy that an international rugby match can be played there, I am sure they are not going to now abolish the scrums. So I am assuming that is the case.

Hon. E J Reyes: Would it at some stage be possible for the Minister to be able to confirm to me...? I accept the honesty that all he can say at the moment is that he assumes, but I would like to know as a reality whether it will or will not.

Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, in the answer I say I can confirm that the new playing surface installed on Pitch Number 1 will enjoy full approval by the International Rugby Board. Now, what I am saying is that if the International Rugby Board is happy that international rugby matches can be played there, it would have to be a change of the rules in rugby that scrums are now allowed.

So that is why it is an assumption, because I doubt very much that any rugby international match will 625 not have a scrum.

Victoria Stadium, Pitch Numbers 1 and 2
Gibraltar Rugby Football Union use

Clerk: Question 937, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure explain why no allocations have been offered to the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union at either Pitch Number 1 or 2 within the Victoria Stadium Complex during weekdays after 6.00 p.m. so that adults can attend to coach junior players or train in the sport themselves?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union (GRFU) has not, in past years, ever been granted allocations after 6.00 p.m. in either the Victoria Stadium Main Pitch or Pitch Number 2.

Allocations for junior rugby coaching are made available to the GRFU in Pitch Number 2 on Wednesdays at 3.30 p.m. and on Sunday mornings and in the range area, during the week after school hours.

An allocation in the Westside School synthetic turf area was offered during the weekday evenings, as in previous years, but this was rejected by the GRFU, as they considered that the surface was not suitable for their current needs.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, thank you for the analysis of previous allocation and so on. My question was specific for this time round based on information that the Hon. Minister has provided me in the schedule in his answer to Question 845.

What I am asking for is weekdays, that is Monday to Friday, after 6.00 p.m. there is no allocation for example Pitch Number 2, which in the past there had been. So I am asking why this year that is not provided, because that curtails then the ability for the coaching of junior players and so on.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the question has been answered. It has not in the past ever been granted allocations and therefore if it has not been granted, I am assuming again that the GSLA will not grant those allocations this year.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can I propose that the Hon. Minister actually checks and he will find that in the past, on weekdays after 6.00 p.m., the Rugby Union has enjoyed the use of Pitch Number 2, and then perhaps we can carry on the discussion of that, because at the moment he thinks, given the information he has, that has not come across, and I recall that allocations have been granted. So otherwise we will just be talking at cross purposes. I think the Minister deserves an opportunity to check on the information.

Hon. S E Linares: Well, I will check with the person who has answered the question!

Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth
Trainee placements and accredited qualifications

Clerk: Question 938, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to his answer to Written Question W144/2012, can the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth state the following: (a) until when will the training periods in which the various trainees placed within his Ministries last; (b) what training has been provided within the 'Job Description' undertaken by the trainees; (c) what accredited qualifications, if any, will the trainees attain at the end of the training period/placement?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, further to my answer to Written Question W144/2012, the answer is (a) the training period for the trainees with different Ministries will last as and when the Employment and Training Board notifies us that they will be moved to acquire further skills; (b) the training provided depends on the trainee, department and job description; and (c) the trainee will obtain experience on the job that will serve for their personal CV and their future job applications.

690 Hon. E J Reyes: In reply to section (b), he has given me a very general type of answer, without specifically saying what training is being provided, just saying that training is being provided. I have asked what training is being provided within the job description. I was expecting at least a bit of meat on the bone.

695 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I think I need to remind the Member that the people who are in the public sector are not being trained for public sector jobs. They are being trained to... because we have got them placed there pending an opportunity to move them to the private sector, when there is a provider, in line with the answer that I gave before.

700 So really, (Interjection) they are used in the public sector in many cases, because there were people from the VTS on 1st February. We gave everybody the commitment that we would take them on and when employers who had them placed with them said they did not need them, they would not sign a partnership agreement and would not give them employment, since we were paying them anyway, we have shifted them somewhere else, where we would get some return on the investment we are making in their skills. But they are all available to be moved at any time. (Interjection)

705 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, the Hon. the Minister for Sports says that is the answer that he has given. May I ask the Hon. the Minister for Employment: so therefore the answer that the Hon. the Minister for Sports gave me a few months ago, that in fact placing them in the public sector was designed to actually give them an edge in case any vacancy arose in the public sector, that is not the case and that is inaccurate.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I think if the hon. Member remembers the answer and the question, he remembers the comments that were made at the time.

715 In case he has forgotten them, which apparently it suits him to forget, the reality is that it is not an unreasonable assumption that, when people go for an interview and they have been in a department, they will have some knowledge of the work with a department, which may assist them, but as he knows from other questions that he has put, when people are selected, that is a factor that may or may not be taken on board by the interview board. That is the decision of the interview board.

720 Clerk: Question 939, the Hon. –

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Reyes.

725 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I just wanted to ask one other small matter. On part (c) of my question, I asked about accredited qualifications. I know that in the past – and I hope that it still continues to do so – that the GSLA offers courses that allow both members of GSLA and other sports lovers to attend and get accredited qualifications, in respect of sports development, introduction to coaching and so on. Is the Minister in a position to confirm if any trainees who may be within the Sports and Leisure Authority, of which in the past he has confirmed that there are, are they attending these courses and therefore he could fall under the category that he has reason to expect that they will attain accredited qualifications?

735 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, as I understand it, there is only one trainee in the GSLA and that trainee is doing administrative work – or at least administrative training.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I looked at the answer that you gave during the last session of the House –

Mr Speaker: ‘Mr Speaker, I looked at the answer that the Hon. Minister gave.’

740 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I looked at the answer that the Hon. Minister gave last month to the questions of how many trainees were receiving training within his Department. Now of course, we have now heard the Hon. the Minister for Employment say the policy of the Government is to actually hopefully shift those trainees from the public sector, where they are receiving training, into the private sector.

745 May I ask him what relevant training is a 64-year-old trainee receiving within his area of responsibility, his Department, as a librarian to be shifted into the private sector?

750 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I think we would need to look into it, but I can tell the hon. Member opposite that probably no more sophisticated training than was being received when the GSD was in power and they had somebody in the Home who was 65 and was a trainee in the VTS –

A Member: On the Youth Training Scheme?

755 Hon. J J Bossano: As part of the Youth Training Scheme.
So I suppose a young 65 was probably being treated no differently from a young 64 – and the question is being answered by a young 73!

Mr Speaker: Next question.

760
International Symposium on ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’
Breakdown of expenses

765 Clerk: Question 939, the Hon. E J Reyes.

770 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to his answer in reply to Question 836/2012, is the Minister for Culture now in a position to provide a full and detailed breakdown of expenses in respect of his Ministry’s £28,000 sponsorship of the International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’, which was held in Gibraltar during the month of October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

775 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, full details of payments have not been finalised. Government will be in a position to do so, once the organisers of the International Symposium have received all invoices appertaining to the said event.

780
Gibraltar Music Festival 2012
Payments to Axel Media and Word of Mouth

Clerk: Question 940, the Hon. E J Reyes.

785 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to his answer in reply to Question 838/2012, is the Minister for Culture now in a position to provide a full breakdown of payments made, or committed to make, in favour of Axel Media and Word of Mouth in respect of the production and organisation of the 2012 Gibraltar Music Festival?

790 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, payments in respect of the production and organisation of the 2012 Gibraltar Music Festival are: Axel Media, £25,000; Word of Mouth, £30,000.

795 I must add that these payments appertain to two individual invoices only.

Mr Speaker: ‘To two individual invoices only’.

800 Hon. E J Reyes: Does the Minister have any breakdown of how the £25,000 adds to that total and likewise for the £30,000?

805 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, that is why I said that there were two individual... This was the fees that they were asking for the organisation of the Festival, and that is one payment. There is no breakdown as such; it was the whole works that they did.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just to clarify one question I have in my own mind, is the Minister expecting to receive more invoices, or would that be an incorrect interpretation of his answer?

810 Hon. S E Linares: I think there are a few invoices still left, but I would need a little bit of notice for that. But I think nearly all of them have come in already, but there might be one or two still pending. I am talking about different issues of maybe somebody who has covered the surface or some other small invoices that need to come in.

Cultural Grants
Details of awards

820 Clerk: Question 941, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture provide details of further Cultural Grants awarded, if any, since his answer to Question 839/2012?

825 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, there have been no further Cultural Grants awarded since my answer to Question 839/2012.

830 I must add that this information is posted on the statistics page of the H M Government of Gibraltar website, and updated as and when required.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

835

Clarendon Fine Art Gallery, Mayfair, London Government's financial contribution

Clerk: Question 942, the Hon. E J Reyes.

840 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture state what financial contributions, if any, Government has made towards the exhibition held recently at Clarendon Fine Art Gallery in Mayfair, London?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage And Youth.

845 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the only contributions made by Government towards the exhibition held recently at Clarendon Fine Arts Gallery in Mayfair, London are: (a) the cost of air freighting the artworks to London, £2,534.25; (b) flights for a Clarendon representative to visit Gibraltar, which was £465.48.

850 Mr Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all those involved in this venture and helping in fulfilling the Government's policy of exporting our artworks abroad.

855 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, when the Minister said that he paid towards the flight of a representative from Clarendon to come over to Gibraltar, for what purpose did that person come to Gibraltar?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the person who owns the Clarendon had to view the artwork before taking it over. She did not know what type of artwork she was going to take over, so she flew to Gibraltar in order to assess the artwork, before she packed them to take them over.

860 Hon. E J Reyes: To choose the...?

Hon. S E Linares: To choose them.

865 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, for the sake of clarification, can the Minister then confirm that those artists whose works were chosen and therefore were so proudly shown at the Clarendon Gallery, those who attended did so under their own financial resources, without any grants in any respect being offered?

870 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, apparently most of them attended the opening and were there and they went of their own accord. The Government did not sponsor anybody to fly over for the opening or for the duration of the exhibition. As I understand it, the only expense was the one that I have just stated.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for the clarification, Mr Speaker.

HEALTH AND ENVIRONMENT

New power station Progress made

880

Clerk: Question 943, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker.

885

Can the Minister for the Environment provide details to this House about progress, if any, made in relation to the building of a new power station and any steps it is taking to provide Gibraltar with a stable and predictable source of power for the future?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

890

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, an interim solution has been devised which will not only instantly improve local air quality, but will also provide security of supply during the coming winter months. This was announced publicly last week.

895

To this end, the Government has entered into a two year-arrangement (with the option to extend to three) with Energy International Inc of the United States, for the supply of temporary, electrical power using rental turbine power, dual fire generating sets which will allow the servicing of existing generating plants to be undertaken, whilst increasing the resilience of the installed generating capacity. The units will be fuelled with diesel.

900

The turbine units will be installed at the north-western end of the North Mole, away from residential areas. These units operate on proven technology and are extremely reliable. They also incorporate 'SoLoNox Low Emission Technology', which is considerably more environmentally friendly compared to the diesel engine technology that has been used in Gibraltar for power generation for the last 80 years.

905

The new temporary units will each provide up to five megawatts of generating capacity and are designed to run 24 hours a day. The 12 skid generators imported by the previous administration (eight rented and four bought outright) were capable only of one megawatt generating capacity each and were not designed to be run continually. These skid generators may soon become surplus to requirements.

910

The Government envisages that the new temporary power plant will be fully operational by mid-December this year. This is just before the winter peak demand. The new facility will enable Government to improve security of supply during peak demand periods when power cuts have previously occurred as a result of a lack of generating capacity.

915

The advent of the new temporary power station will also, importantly, permit for variations in the operating regimes of all three existing power stations in Gibraltar, resulting in an overall lowering of emissions. In particular nitrogen oxide (NOx) emissions are predicted to reduce by 40% immediately.

The aim is also to reduce the operational running of the power stations in the South District and in the Waterport area, whenever demand allows during the silent hours, without the security of supply. This will immediately massively lower the emissions and reduce the noise levels in these areas during these periods.

920

The Government is also continuing to identify alternative ways of further reducing the emissions arising from the production of electricity in Gibraltar. To this effect, Government is already working with Energy International on the fitting of catalytic reduction technology (known as 'scrubbers') to these turbines. The fitting of such scrubbers will further reduce emissions by another 97%.

925

The Government's first priority, however, has been to secure the reliability of electrical supplies for the winter peak demand and to service the existing engines to improve their reliability and performance, which in turn further increases security of supply and reduces emissions.

Mr Speaker, I must state at this point that this does in no way suggest that we are, for one moment, not giving the long-term solution its due attention. We, the Government are all too aware of the fact that investing in a sustainable power solution for Gibraltar needs a long-term solution and we are working hard to ensure this is achieved as quickly as possible. Unfortunately, due to the seriousness of the situation, we had to provide an interim solution, something that was not being contemplated by the last administration.

The Government of Gibraltar also continues to engage with main players in the energy industry, exploring alternative technologies to determine a permanent solution to Gibraltar's electrical needs. This solution must provide secure supply and reduce Gibraltar's carbon footprint. To this end, reduction of consumption, or at the very least reduction of the rate of increase in consumption, remains our aim.

As stated by the Chief Minister last week – and I quote:

935

'The next step is to finalise our determination on the long term solution by the decision on what permanent power solution is to be chosen. Again environmental, noise and cost issues will be relevant alongside security of supply in the final determinations we have to make in this respect. At the same time, we are at a very advanced stage in the introduction of renewable energy sources from different types of technologies. These are the right decisions for our community and I am delighted to have led the Committee in its deliberations to date and going forward to the stage when we announce the permanent solution for power generation for the future.'

940

I am of course quoting the Chief Minister, and I end the quote there.

945

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the reply.

Might I suggest – I do not know how appropriate it is – that the Minister consider answering Question 951, which is in relation to alternative energies, perhaps, to deal with this whole matter together, if he feels it is appropriate. If he does not, then... It is just because, obviously, the conversation will take us naturally in that direction and it may well be – (Interjections) Well, there is obviously going to be a conversation on as important a matter as this.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am happy to answer the question put to me; that is your prerogative, not mine.

955

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I will just carry on and I will just ask the supplementaries in respect of this particular Question.

Does the Government consider...? In the first place, actually, I should say that, obviously I welcome the statement. It is a statement which the Opposition notes with some satisfaction, certainly, because a temporary solution is one that we are all very keen on... Well, the issue of power generation in Gibraltar is a very important one and the announcement of this temporary solution is, certainly in our view, a positive one.

In respect of the temporary power plant, the Minister has said that the agreement is for two years, with an option to extend to three. Is the Government satisfied that three years, at the long end of the agreement, will suffice for the delivery of a permanent solution for power generation for Gibraltar?

965

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I lead the Inter-Ministerial Committee on power generation. This question has been prefaced to the Minister for the Environment, assuming that the main issue that the hon. Gentleman is concerned with, given his shadow portfolio, was the Environment, but I rise to answer this question, which deals with the detail of the agreement entered into.

970

Mr Speaker, of course we consider that, in three years, we should be in a position to have a permanent solution, otherwise we would have done a temporary deal for longer.

975

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, before I ask my next question, just to clarify that power generation and environment, frankly, go so hand in hand that it is a matter that I am dealing with. I do not see that there is any controversy in that whatsoever, Mr Speaker.

Further, in the Government's answer to the Question, the Minister has referred to the new generators incorporating SoLoNox technology, which reduces emissions significantly. Is this technology, however, in the diesel-fuel context to which it will be applied, in the specific Gibraltar application, as effective in delivering those emissions savings as well?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: I have no reason to think it is going to be any less efficient in Gibraltar than it would be anywhere else in the world. As I said in my answer, it is proven technology and we are satisfied that this is what will be delivered.

985

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, perhaps I will clarify for the Minister: I was referring to the SoLoNox technology being known to be very effective in reducing emissions in the context of gas powered turbines; obviously the Minister has made reference to the fact that these turbines will be powered by diesel. I am asking the question – he may or may not have the answer, but I am just keen to understand.

990

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the details were given to us and the calculations and the figures given were based on diesel being the fuel.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for that answer, Mr Speaker.

995 Is the Government satisfied that the proposed location of the temporary power plant is appropriate in the context of existing infrastructure, which we are told is currently in that area?

Hon. Chief Minister: Obviously, Mr Speaker.

1000 Hon. S M Figueras: Grateful, Mr Speaker.

How many sets, perhaps the Minister can provide me, are being installed as part of the temporary power plant?

1005 Hon. Chief Minister: That matter has been fully set out in the press release, that dealt with the matter, Mr Speaker, that they are five.

1010 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I reviewed the press release and I asked the Question in Parliament – obviously, a Question that was asked before the press release was issued and therefore a matter that I certainly feel should be discussed, or should be the subject of questions in this House, simply because our question preceded your release. (Interjection) Yes, it may be public, but it was made public after I asked the Question in this House. If the Chief Minister wants to take that issue...

Mr Speaker: Has it not been made public now, that it is five that we are talking about? (Interjections)

1015 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, yes, yes. I am grateful. Yes indeed.

Hon. Chief Minister: [Inaudible] before the supplementary.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the answer.

1020 Mr Speaker: Fine.

Hon. S M Figueras: In relation to the temporary power plant again, Mr Speaker, does the Government have a total amount of the cost of this project?

1025 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the total amount of the cost of the project has also, I think, been set out publicly, but if the hon. Gentleman wants me to repeat it, I am not going to simply rely on the fact that it is public. It is £4 million, over the period of the contract, from which the hon. Gentleman would be wise to deduct the cost of rental of the skid generators and the capital value of the generators bought – or the realisable value of the generators bought – which will mean that the difference between the temporary solution that did not work and the temporary solution that we hope – I hope, across the floor of the House – will work, is £200,000 in the period of the contract, in the two-year period, and that is without including the fact that these engines, or these turbines, are so much more efficient in the way that they burn fuel, that it is very likely, although an actual figure cannot yet be provided, that we will save well in excess of those £200,000 because of the fuel efficiency that these turbines will bring.

1035 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, whilst I of course disagree with the premise that the solution brought in by the previous administration in the shape of the 12 skid generators failed to do the job it was designed to do, I am grateful for the answer in respect of the other aspect of the question.

1040 Is the Chief Minister able to provide this House with a net cost of this project for the community, bearing in mind what he has said in relation to the savings of the rental of those eight skid generators which were rented and the capital return on the four bought outright?

1045 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman cannot have it both ways. He cannot get up and say, 'We're very happy that you have done a temporary solution, because we are all very concerned about the security of supply' and tell us that the temporary solution that they did was working, now in the preamble to his paragraph; but I will not dwell on that in trying to deal with what the hon. Gentleman has asked at the tail end of that intervention.

1050 The answer is very simple and it is again to refer to him exactly the figures I have given to him. The net saving – not the net cost, but the net saving – to this community, as a result of the temporary solution that we have now brought, cannot yet be calculated, because the fuel efficiency of these engines has not yet resulted in a calculation. In fact it could not, other than on hedged fuel prices as at today, because we have not yet started to see the efficiency in action and we would be working on somebody else's figures and we have not yet done that calculation.

1055 But from what I am telling him, we should be able to work out that there could be here a net saving for our community, not a net cost.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, again I disagree entirely with premise the Chief Minister raises in the first part of his answer, that I cannot do both – that I cannot welcome this solution and also say that we had a solution that had worked at the time when it was brought to Gibraltar. I entirely disagree with that premise.

The Chief Minister is now saying that that saving cannot be calculated; yet he has been perfectly happy to say that we are going to have savings and he mentions figures. I would be grateful if the Chief Minister... Well, the Chief Minister has indeed confirmed that he is satisfied that there will be a saving; the extent of that saving he cannot offer this House, and I acknowledge that.

Moving on from this particular issue, have any consultants been taken on in respect of the planning of this temporary power plant? Can the Chief Minister provide further details as to how the arrangement with Energy International has come to pass, how they were identified and the process in the build-up to entering into the agreement with Energy International Inc?

Hon. Chief Minister: The hon. Gentleman runs the risk of falling into ridicule. He cannot say in the premise to his supplementary a moment ago that he shared the concern about power generation and was therefore very happy to see that we had done a temporary solution and then tell us that the temporary solution that we inherited was working perfectly well. He can say it – of course he can – because we believe in freedom of speech, but he cannot be consistent in his understanding of the issue, if he does that.

Mr Speaker, as to what I have said about potential net savings here, I have already given an answer and my answer is that reflected in Hansard and not the way that the hon. Gentleman has chosen to paraphrase it – in case that needs to be said.

As to the other issues, as I understand it – and this is a matter, of course, being handled by the technicians in the Gibraltar Electricity Authority – there is no consultant engaged in respect of engaging these entities. The Electricity Authority has engaged with the number of entities around the world that do these type of solutions, which is not a great number, has brought to the Inter-Ministerial Committee all of the options and Inter-Ministerial Committee has worked with the technicians to choose which is the best option for Gibraltar.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, if I could just ask the hon. Member, for speed and convenience, two supplementaries together, I am sure he will be able to disentangle them.

The first is pursuant to his answer to the hon. and learned Mr Figueras, the concern that the Opposition has about power supplies is the same one as we had in Government and that is that there is a long-term threat to the continuability of power in Gibraltar, which in our judgement – and we think that they will come to the same conclusion, if they have not already done so, when they have finished reviewing the options or re-reviewing our options – which can only be resolved by building a new power station of some sort. Therefore, to that extent, both our temporary solution and their temporary solutions were both interim, to tide over until the concerns could be addressed – which could only be addressed by building a new power station. We can have a debate – I am not sure how –

Mr Speaker: No, you cannot! You cannot have a debate.

Hon. P R Caruana: We could have a debate at some different time! I could invite the hon. Member for coffee downstairs. I will not suggest we should have it now here, but I could invite him to coffee downstairs and we could there and then have a debate about whether this or that tiding-over solution is the best.

But will the hon. Member firstly share with me the view that, whatever we debate about interim solutions, the real concern is the long-term replacement of the electricity generation supply capacity, in one way or another, in one place or another, by one project or another? We had ours; they are reviewing it and others and will come up with their own conclusions.

The other question that I would ask him is this: is he aware that the reason why we bought two of those little machines was that it was part of Gibraltar's accumulation of civil contingency planning resources? In other words, it was thought appropriate that we should have two small and easily transportable generators that could be put anywhere in Gibraltar, that might be temporarily cut off from supply by a landslide, or a rock fall, or a fire, or anything like that.

So when he speaks of the realisable value and netting the realisable value, as he did in answer to my friend, my colleague, Mr Figueras, about... to work out the net cost, it was not the intention that those two purchased units would be dispensed with, once the transitional need for temporary power was over, but rather that they would be retained as physically deployable around Gibraltar, generating capacity when bits of Gibraltar by some, unenvisageable now, civil contingency might be disconnected from the traditional source of supply.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, let me deal with both of those issues.

We have had an exchange across the floor of the House – let us not call it a debate – before, on these issues, and he knows that we agree, Mr Speaker, that the finalisation of a permanent solution in respect of power is one of the most important issues facing our community. I have said it on a number of occasions.

Indeed, Mr Speaker, he will recall that I referred him to the 1999 Manx Report, which I know he had commissioned, which talked about Waterport Power Station and the Gibraltar electricity generation infrastructure generally being seriously doubtful after 2003.

So of course we understand those concerns and as I said before, the review that we are doing, relates both to technology, geography, fuel, emissions and costs of what the new facility should be. We are confident, Mr Speaker, that we will come up with a solution that I hope will be welcomed by Members on both sides of the House, if we are able to deliver on all of those in a more satisfactory manner than the previous proposed permanent solution might do.

Mr Speaker, I hope that, if we do, Members will say, ‘Look, fair enough, you have found a better solution.’ It may be a better solution that was not findable then – technology is changing in these respects in many ways – at the time they entered into the arrangements which they sought to make permanent.

In respect of what he calls ‘the little machines’, my concern about those little machines at the moment is that (a) they are not designed to run 24 hours a day, (b) that they run only for one megawatt, if they were to run to full capacity – and nothing in electricity generation, as he will have learnt in his time and I have now learnt, runs at full capacity, but closer to 80% or 90% capacity – and that where these skids, as they are known, are presently located means that they are not as easily redeployable as they should be for emergency purposes. We are looking, Mr Speaker, at other options for easier-to-deploy generating capacity around Gibraltar.

Some of these skids are in the northern part of Gibraltar in the area of Waterport. I think some of them are also at the New Harbours area – at the entrance to New Harbours – but I am advised, not so easily redeployable as might first have been thought. So we are also looking at how to better deal with those civil contingency issues which – the hon. Gentleman is right – these skids were also designed to deal with and in fact which he referred to in this House, when he explained what the two that were being bought for were essentially being bought for.

Mr Speaker, I hope that deals with the issues that he has raised.

Mr Speaker: The hon. Lady was going to ask a supplementary.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the £4 million include recruitment of staff to man the station, the cost of the diesel to power the temporary station and the maintenance of these generators?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have already said on a number of occasions, when I got on my feet this morning, it does not include fuel. I do not know why the hon. Lady has not picked that up.

Secondly, this is an operation and management contract so it is a contract price that includes operation and management, meaning that we will not have to be involved in paying any individuals, or finding individuals to run the station. It is literally a contract where we buy electricity from the operator.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I will ask the Chief Minister to forgive me, if he did answer this, but I am not certain I picked up whether there was a tender process, or equivalent to it in terms of the assessment of the options, of the cost of the various options that he did refer to, that he did say the Inter-Ministerial Committee had considered.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in the sense that I explained to him that there are very few operators in the world that do this business and the GEA went directly to those that they considered to be reputable, received some others and considered all of them and presented the Inter-Ministerial Committee with the options as to price and emissions, which are the two things that were most important to the Committee, as well as the reliability of the technology being provided. The GEA – the Chairman of the GEA and the Government’s Chief Technical Officer as well, with the Financial Secretary – made recommendations to the Government, to the Inter-Ministerial Committee and those are the recommendations that have been accepted.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for that answer, Mr Speaker.

I wonder if perhaps, the Chief Minister will be able to provide us with some details of how the Government is planning to finance this particular project?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the financing of a £4 million commitment over two years is not something that causes the Government of Gibraltar any serious concern that requires us to go out to seek funding from third parties. Commercial entities do not have to lend to the Government of Gibraltar for it to be able to afford £4 million over two years.

1180 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, I just wanted to be sure that we can in fact afford that kind of activity, on the basis of their Election slogan in 2011.

1185 However, I will carry on, Mr Speaker, with another supplementary in relation to the building of the permanent power station. I note that the Chief Minister and my hon. and learned Leader of the Opposition have had a discussion about this. Has there been any progress in the determination of the location of the permanent power station, at this stage?

1190 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, our Election slogan at the last Election was 'Change'. I did not mean loose change; I meant change of the characters that were in administration and the party that was in administration. I specifically said, during the General Election campaign... although the hon. Gentleman likes to ignore it in all of the material that he puts out, that we were somehow alleging that Gibraltar was bankrupt. I have to remind him that the only person who has ever alleged that Gibraltar was bankrupt, was the now Leader of the Opposition, during the course of the 1996 General Election campaign.

1195 I have specifically said, even when complaining about the levels of net debt and gross debt that Gibraltar was finding itself in, which was the issue that we discussed during the General Election campaign, that Gibraltar was not bankrupt. So if he wants to be honest with the electorate, he should reconsider making statements such as that, which – if he did not already know were untrue, he should have known were untrue, he will after today, no doubt, remember after I have told him – are untrue, because I never said that Gibraltar was bankrupt.

1200 What I said, Mr Speaker, was that we had too much debt and that we were wasting money and what will not happen under this administration is that we will overspend on projects like an airport terminal by £60 million. We will not spend, Mr Speaker, £10 million making a hole in the ground where the Theatre Royal was. Those are the things that mean that when we need money to do things which are necessary, like pay for a temporary generating facility like this one, over a period of two years, Gibraltar has the money to pay for it.

1205 Mr Speaker, as to geography, the hon. Gentleman will know more when we make an announcement on the permanent solution.

Clerk: Question –

1210 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I have further supplementaries on the power station.

Mr Speaker: Yes, go on. Make sure that they are relevant.

1215 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, indeed, absolutely, Mr Speaker. I will endeavour to do so and obviously I have seen the famous podcast. I also paid –

Mr Speaker: I am making that point because I am not prepared to allow a debate on the Government's debt situation. Okay.

1220 Hon. S M Figueras: I accept that, Mr Speaker and I will be happy to move on.
Is the Government able to offer its view of the anticipated cost to the community of the permanent power station?

1225 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker.

1230 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the Government said in its press statement to which I am making reference – because I am not certain that the Hon. the Minister for the Environment referred to that specific point when delivering the answer to the Question – Government explained that they were speaking to the unions in order to ensure that current operatives in the current facilities would not be victims of these developments in the new power station.

Is the Chief Minister – or the Minister, indeed – able to provide more details as to how they are working on this and how they are seeking to avoid this from happening?

1235 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we are in contact with the union on these matters. It would be inappropriate for me to give more information at this stage.

Hon. S M Figueras: And finally, Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister confirm that the permanent power station will be delivered within this term of office?

1240 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is certainly our intention, and I trust that, if the permanent solution that my Government proposes to the people of Gibraltar provides for the same or more megawatts than was planned under the previous administration, at less cost and for less emissions, they will applaud our choice.

1245 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: One final supplementary, Mr Speaker.

1250 Mr Speaker: Yes, this is the last supplementary on this subject.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes. Can the Government confirm that the utility bills will still remain frozen throughout this term of office?

1255 Hon. Chief Minister: I am tired of telling them, but delighted to repeat, the Government is committed to all the matters that it committed itself to in the General Election campaign with the general population, including those – although I do note, having been elected, that the solution that was proposed by the Members opposite had they returned would have included, I believe – correct me if I am wrong – in the order of a 5% increase per year for the next 20 years, which even the hon. Members opposite will be able to calculate would have included a 100% net increase in the cost of electricity to the consumer.

1260 The Speaker: Next question.

1265 Commonwealth Park
Expected completion date

Clerk: Question 944, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1270 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment tell this House when the Government expects the Commonwealth Park to be completed?

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1275 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 945/2012.

1280 Commonwealth Park
Award of works contract

Clerk: Question 945.

1285 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say, in light of the extension of works on the Commonwealth Park to the rest of the Commonwealth Parade, whether the contract for the works has now been awarded?

1290 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, excavations have continued on the southern half of the Commonwealth Parade car park site as part of the work being dealt with by GJBS. No award has yet been made on the other works for the project.

1295 A definitive project completion date cannot be provided at this stage, but the aim is to plant the mature trees in autumn 2013, as this would be the right time of year to do so.

If I may explain, Mr Speaker, the trees have to be planted in the autumn and therefore there would be certain disturbance to the ground, so the laying of lawns and so on would have to follow that, so that the completion should be perhaps several months after that.

1300 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the reply by the Hon. Minister.

I suspect I know the answer to this question, but I am going to ask it anyway, because I think it is relevant in the context of the answer that he has given us.

1305 Mr Speaker: It is always advisable to know the answer to supplementaries! (Laughter and interjections)

1310 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister advise this House of the Government's estimated cost of the Commonwealth Park at its completion, so that we may be better able to assess when that comes to pass, whether in fact this project was delivered under budget?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I suspect the hon. Member will realise that he did know the answer, because I am not able to provide that information.

1315 Clerk: Question –

1320 Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, one more question, Mr Speaker – and perhaps by asking this question, I am going to limit myself in future sessions of this Parliament, and I do not do it lightly – is the Minister happy that at any point...? Thank you. Will the Minister, at any point before the completion of the Commonwealth Park, be happy to provide for this House details of their anticipated cost of that project?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, when I have that information available, I will certainly be happy to provide it. I do not have it as yet.

1325 Mr Speaker: But is the Hon. Minister clear what the question is – before completion of the project? At some stage, before completion of the project.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Precisely. If I had that information available, but it is clear that with any project, before completion, there can always be things that happen which do affect the actual final costs.

1330 I could, if we had an actual accurate enough estimate before completion of the project, that is something I will be happy to share, but it is speculation because we do not know where we are with that.

Hon. S M Figueras: And will the Minister ever be able to share with this House and the public what their estimate for the building of the park was?

1335 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, every meeting of this House, since the Election, the hon. Members opposite... the hon. Member in particular has wanted to get from us what it was that we as Opposition – well, even then, not Opposition Members; as candidates – attributed as costs to each project in our manifesto in the offices of the GSLP.

1340 Look, Mr Speaker, he and I can go downstairs and have a coffee and talk about many things. When we do we usually have a right riot of a laugh, because we have known each other for many years and enjoy our company a lot. But what we are not going to do, Mr Speaker, in this House is break the tradition of parliaments around the world and become answerable for things that were not our responsibility as Ministers. Here we answer questions for our Ministerial responsibilities – not for what we thought before the people of Gibraltar saw fit to elevate us to office.

1345 Mr Speaker: That is the correct constitutional position, as I understand it.

1350 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but does the Chief Minister not accept, Mr Speaker, that of course that is true that you are not responsible in this House for something that you may have said before you entered into Government; but of course, once you became the Government of Gibraltar, does he not accept that any prudent Government, deciding whether to embark on a project that had been, according to them, costed before they entered into Government... does he not accept that it would have been prudent for you to obviously conduct the necessary enquiries as to how much this project would cost you as a Government? Did he do so and what is the cost?

1355 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Gentleman has taken leave of his political senses. How is it that he gets up to ask me that question, when he sits with a Government which is responsible for perhaps the grossest overspend in history – ?

1360 Mr Speaker: No, with respect, I am now drawing this matter to a close.
Next question.

1365

Car parking spaces Provision

1370 Clerk: Question 946, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment confirm when double the number of car parking spaces which were available at Commonwealth Parade will be made available to residents of Gibraltar?

1375 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, this will be provided during this term of office.

1380

Procedural Ruling by the Speaker

1385 Mr Speaker: Before the next question is called, may I make clear to hon. Members that I am perfectly happy to sit for any length of time that is required for the House to debate any motion on the subject that we were dealing with a moment ago. That is the correct procedure. I invite Members to do that if they want to, but I repeat what I have said previously.

1390 Under the guise of Question and Answer, I am not going to allow a general debate, on what was said in a manifesto or what was not said, to allow a general debate in this House on such issues. If they want to have such a debate, a motion can be tabled and I will sit here until doomsday for that motion to be debated.

1395 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker I am grateful for that which is clearly a statement and an obvious one of the position. That is not the aside comment that the Speaker may have heard that prompted him to make that remark, which was this. My learned colleague, Mr Feetham, asked a supplementary which Mr Speaker obviously did not consider to be inappropriate, because he allowed the Hon. the Chief Minister to get up to answer it. Mr Speaker, therefore, then clearly did not like something that the Chief... or a direction in which the Chief Minister was going and called the Chief Minister to stop, the effect of which was that the supplementary which the Speaker had allowed was not answered.

1400 Instead of saying to the Chief Minister that is not the question that you were asked.

Mr Speaker: With respect to the Leader of the Opposition, he must know that I am prepared to be reasonably liberal, but when matters begin to degenerate, I will put a stop to the situation.

1405 I allowed a supplementary. (Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.) It was answered –

Hon. P R Caruana: No, it was not.

1410 Mr Speaker: I am not going to allow another supplementary, another answer and then a debate.

1415 Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker, it is not the most important issue in the world, but a supplementary was asked on a question that had not been asked before – namely, regardless of what the position is in terms of responsibility of pre-election position, once you become a Government, is it not reasonable to expect – or words to that effect – that the Government will then have an estimate of the cost of its projects? That was the thrust, if not the wording of the supplementary, a perfectly proper one, since Mr Speaker allowed it. Instead of answering that question, the Hon. Chief Minister went off at a tangent, which the Hon. Speaker, in my humble estimation, rightly stopped – but in stopping him, he in effect prevented the question that he had allowed from being answered. That has got nothing to do with debates.

1420 Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister said that over a long period of time, no doubt since the last Election and I was not here, this is a matter that has been continually coming up. It was the first time that it has come up, during my time as Speaker. It did not come up at the last meeting. It has come up now. That is why I allowed it.

1425 But if I had been sitting here since January 2012, I would not have allowed any supplementary on that issue, because I would have felt that it had been more than amply vented, and I would have made my position clear beforehand.

I am making it now and that is the end of the matter, with all due respect. We will now proceed to the next question.

1430 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I had another supplementary on another line – (Interjections)

Clerk: Question 947 the Hon. S M Figueras.

1435 Mr Speaker: No, you can ask a supplementary certainly, yes. Please do. I am not going to...

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful.

Mr Speaker, in relation to the question of the car parking spaces, is the Minister able to provide the number of car park spaces that have already been provided. Does he have that information with him at this time?

1440 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have a recollection of the number, so if the hon. Gentleman will not hold me to it, I will tell him that it is already 20 more than there were at Commonwealth Parade. Twenty more, from memory – it may be 23, but about 20 more.

1445 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful.

Just one final supplementary: the Ragged Staff Gates car park – which, I have been observing over the last few weeks, is nearing completion – can the Government confirm that this is part of that provision?

1450 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think that the hon. Gentleman asked another question about Ragged Staff car park last time and he was given an answer, because Ragged Staff car park as far as we know –

Hon. S M Figueras: If he will give way, I will explain.

1455 Hon. Chief Minister: Let me just tell him how we answered the question and how I would answer his question now. The car park where what we all know as El Patio Chico used to be and that is not included in the calculation and was not up for redevelopment.

1460 Hon. S M Figueras: So, just to clarify, I have perhaps unhelpfully referred to the parking I am thinking of as the Ragged Staff car park. There is a new car parking facility nearing completion, from what I can observe, past the Ragged Staff roundabout on the Queensway in the direction of the New Harbours area. Can the Minister confirm whether that is a Government initiative or entirely unrelated to Government activity?

1465 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, right now I get it. Well, Mr Speaker, that is actually called the Gun Wharf car park. It was a car park which was started during their term in office and it is part of the provisioning for the MOD at Rooke and other areas. So, Mr Speaker, that car park when completed will be handed over to the Ministry of Defence, who will then have this parking area closer to the Tower, which will be their presence in town, so to speak, after they give up Rooke.

1470 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer, Mr Speaker.

1475 Hon. Chief Minister: And if I may say so, just to answer the reason for his supplementary, as he expressed it, before we got mixed up with names, that is not included therefore in the count.

Barbary Macaque Management Plan Completion and implementation

1480 Clerk: Question 947 the Hon. S M Figueras.

1485 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment confirm, further to his indication in the October session of Parliament of the imminence of its completion, that the Barbary Macaque Management Plan is now in place and provide a date by when he expects its implementation will begin?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1490 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the plan is not yet in place. However, aspects of it are already being implemented, such as contraceptive implants in females, procurement of trapping devices to improve management, clearing of vegetation on the Upper Rock to provide greater foraging habitat.

It is likely that for the next few months, aspects of the Plan will be introduced in stages.

1495 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Minister for his reply.

Can the Minister confirm whether or not it is the plan to publish this Plan any time soon? I note that the Hon. Minister is saying that parts of it are being implemented. I do not understand why it is not at a sufficiently complete stage that they can publish it, but could the Minister perhaps shed some light on why it is not yet public in its revised form?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is not yet finally completed. It is going through a process which includes consultation with experts outside Gibraltar and which include involvement by experts and universities outside Gibraltar and those arrangements have not yet been agreed. Therefore, it would be premature to publish it.

1505

I have every intention of publishing the Plan once it is ready, but because these things take time which are outside my control, certain aspects of it, as I said, have already been started in order not to delay things. For example, the implanting of contraceptives in females had to be done now, because this is the mating season. That could not have awaited the completion of the Plan. Also, the opening up of habitat within the Upper Rock to increase the foraging areas on the Upper Rock also was something that did not need to be delayed and therefore the aspects that could have been implemented have been implemented; but the Plan has yet to be finalised.

1510

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say how soon... and I will understand if he finds difficulty with the answer. Can he say whether he has a view of how soon this Plan as implemented, whether published or not, will start to have an effect or a reductive effect on the unwanted interaction with these apes? I can just say to this House that my personal observations are that apes are all over the Portland House area, in the Trafalgar Cemetery area now as well, and just yesterday, there was an ape bite incident reported of a passenger from a cruise ship. It is something that is obviously extremely important and certainly extremely urgent, because it can cause not just the physical harm that an ape bite incident might cause to the person who suffers it, but a reputational damage to Gibraltar as well.

So I would be grateful to understand from the Minister what his view about how soon the success of the plan will be able to be measured in real terms on the ground.

1525 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I clearly share those concerns and this has been a situation that has been ongoing for decades – at least decades. There are reports in the 1800s of similar instances.

Some of the effects will be seen clearly if we are implanting contraceptives in females: next breeding season there will be that number of decreased births. The strategy of clearing undergrowth on the Upper Rock to allow the monkeys to have foraging habitat – because now it is so dense that they have very little foraging habitat – will be an ongoing process which will increase. There are other aspects that also have to be implemented.

1530

As to how soon we will see a direct effect, nature is very hard to predict, so I would not like to hazard a guess, but I am confident that certainly, we will see things happening in the coming months.

1535 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say whether he has been in touch or in discussion before with Police authorities in respect of the enforcement of the provisions that make feeding apes illegal?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, in fact my diary has a meeting, I believe, next week with the Police and other interested parties, with a view to discussing how we can enforce the law.

1540

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am not going to venture down the road that will make them think that, whatever they say, they will be damned if they do, damned if they do not, in respect of the enforcement of it, but it is obviously a provision, the application of which one would expect would have a significant impact on the management of apes generally.

1545 Will the Minister confirm that he will be happy to report on the findings of that or the discussions in that meeting in subsequent sessions or privately with myself?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Privately, certainly. I think discussing a Police Enforcement Plan publicly, depending on what that is decided to be, might not be a wise move. I think we have to see how this discussion develops. I am not going to commit myself.

1550

Barbary macaques
Exportation

1555 Clerk: Question 948, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment confirm whether or not there has been any progress with the exportation of Barbary macaques from Gibraltar?

1560 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

1565 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. Minister expect that there will be any kind of progress in this context in the short to medium term? Is this in fact an initiative which he considers worth exploring? Does he consider that this is an initiative worth exploring further?

1570 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am confident that there will be much more progress than there has been over the last 16 years. This is an issue which is complex, but I am convinced that the contacts that we have will deliver a destination for these monkeys within this term.

Hon. S M Figueras: It appears that the Hon. the Chief Minister is unable to get out of his electioneering mode because obviously I disagree with the premise that there was no progress in this matter over 16 years. It is an important matter of interest to the community today and I am seeking to move forward.

1575 In that context, Mr Speaker, do we have the Hon. Minister's assurance that this is a matter, along with other initiatives relating to the management of the Barbary macaques, that he will be pursuing as a matter of priority?

1580 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, first of all, I must say that the progress that there was over the past 16 years was progress thanks to the work of yours truly, who was involved in the only successful exportations, (Laughter and interjections) but that is something for the past. Certainly, the Government gives great importance to obtaining successful exportation of the Barbary macaques.

Barbary macaque population
Details

1590 Clerk: Question 949, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Mr Speaker: Has the hon. Member realised – perhaps we should have realised here – that in the Question, there is a reference to Question 207/2012 and that, in fact, is incorrect.

1595 Hon. S M Figueras: It is 507, I seem to recall it as 507/2012.

Mr Speaker: Question 207 was a question from the Hon. Mr Feetham, on the superannuation scheme.

1600 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes the number strikes me as odd.

Mr Speaker: The number is wrong.

1605 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes in my recollection is that it was 507 when I was drafting it, so unless it was a typo which was not identified.

Mr Speaker: Anyway, just to make the point.

1610 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, yes of course. I am certain it was 507, and I am happy to ask the question in that context. I am happy to concede that there was a typo certainly.

I will ask the question anyway just in case the Minister has in fact spotted that it was not that question and that it was a question further to the discussion of the population.

So can the Minister for the Environment provide details to this House of the population of Barbary macaques in Gibraltar, further to Question not 207/2012 – the question relating to the population asked earlier this month?

1615 If he feels uncomfortable answering the Question, then he can just say so, and I will ask it again next month.

Mr Speaker: Let us hear the main answer.

1620 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Question 207 was in relation to the Guaranteed Superannuation Fund and it was asked by the Hon. Mr Feetham.

1625 Mr Speaker: Now, does that mean that the Hon. Minister does not have the information about the population of Barbary macaques?

1630 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have had to assume what information he wants, but if he wants to be more specific, then perhaps he can ask it on another occasion.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I think the information I am looking for is rather obvious, although I will concede that the typo has made the Question wrong in content, certainly. But it is an update to the number of apes, as far as the Government is concerned.

1635 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, in order to be helpful and to assist, the official tally of the number of monkeys is actually tallied on 1st January, where we summarise all deaths and all births and that is when we officially change the figure.

1640 Clearly, if he asks it again either in December, when we will be closer, or in January, then I can provide that information. From memory, in order to be helpful, I believe there have been about 40 births and probably of those, maybe half a dozen died young and there have been a number of road traffic accidents. That is a general figure, but I will be happy to provide the accurate figures at the next meeting, if he asks the question again.

1645 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Minister for his helpfulness.

Feral cat population on Upper Rock Policy re culling

1650 Clerk: Question 950, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1655 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment say whether it is extending its policy decision against culling of wide life to the feral cat population on the Upper Rock?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): No, sir.

1660 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: May I?

1665 Mr Speaker: Yes certainly.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, well, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister then inform this House how he intends to protect the iconic species of the Barbary partridge, which he conceded earlier on this year has been decimated by feral cats?

1670 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not certain whether the hon. Member understood my answer. My answer was that the Government is not extending its position to culling of wildlife to the feral cat population.

1675 Hon. D A Feetham: Oh, I beg your pardon. So it is culling.

Alternative/clean energy production
Exploring solutions

1680 Clerk: Question 951, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1685 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment say whether the Government is currently exploring any large scale alternative/clean energy production solutions for Gibraltar?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1690 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government is currently exploring a number of potential projects for different renewable sources. For reasons of commercial sensitivity, details cannot be at this point revealed.

However... Sorry I have skipped because a line has been repeated.

However, they include solar thermal, solar photovoltaic, marine ocean currents and energy from waste.

1695 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister provide some information as to whether these projects that they are pursuing are large or small scale generation projects?

1700 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, some of them are pretty new technology, so we are looking at relatively small scale initially, but if successful, they could deliver potentially a great deal more energy. I think that is about as much as I can say at this point in time.

We are talking about a potential of some of the projects could deliver perhaps 10 to 15 megawatts eventually, but I will not be held to that, because some of them are fairly new technology.

1705 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, perhaps it might assist the Hon. Minister if I say that, when I refer to 'large scale', I am referring to projects that the Government or other entities invest in the development of to deliver power to the grid for use by the community; and by 'small scale', I am referring, in my mind, to Government initiatives that allow home owners themselves to generate alternative energy from alternative sources.

1710 Allied to that issue, there would be an additional question, which I was going to ask him in the discussion of the power station, and that is whether the permanent power solution will bring with it an enhanced power grid that can take plugging in for solutions such as feed-in tariffs, despite the debate on how useful those are, and whether such solutions will indeed be available on a small scale?

1715 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is quite a complex question. The answer then is correct, in the sense that my interpretation of 'large scale' was the hon. Member's former interpretation, which means that they will be plugging in to the distribution system.

Micro-generation will also be encouraged in other ways, but that is not the thrust of my answer nor, from his explanation, the thrust of the question.

1720 Regarding the robustness of the grid, that is a fairly technical question, Mr Speaker. Having a new power station in itself would not provide that robustness and that is something that, as I say, is more of a technical question. I would need notice and possibly it would be the Hon. Minister for Utilities who would answer that, if it is asked again.

1725 Hon. S M Figueras: I will be happy to ask that question, and since I also shadow Utilities, then certainly there will be no issue there. I will look forward to asking that question in January.

The Hon. Minister makes no reference to wind as a source of alternative energy. Is he able to provide any indication as to why this is the case?

1730 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, at the moment, none of the renewable sources that I can recall at this point in time include wind. One of them was going to, but then they changed the technology, so at the moment, we are not looking at wind.

1735 Hon. S M Figueras: Is wind turbine technology something the Government would be happy to consider as an option, if proposed by a commercial entity?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, in the right location, certainly.

Hon. S M Figueras: Are there any locations that the Minister would discount as appropriate locations for the erection of certain wind turbines for the production of that energy?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not an expert in wind turbine technology, so I cannot answer that question.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, but you are an expert in respect of migrating sea birds and I suppose you could arguably be said to have an opinion on whether there is any particular location in Gibraltar that would cause difficulty in that context.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is partly hypothetical and partly straying from the original question. Therefore, I do not feel I have to answer it.

Hon. S M Figueras: I will be happy to pose a question on this...

Thinking Green Conference
Tickets, sponsorship, transport and business generated

Clerk: Question 952, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment tell this House how many tickets were sold for the Thinking Green Conference, broken down by tickets, class and not including tickets allocated to sponsors as part of the sponsorship arrangements, nor the seats allocated to pupils from schools who attended free of charge, as well as tickets issued by Government to employees in the Civil Service and other community representatives?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 953 to 959.

Clerk: Question 953.

Hon. S M Figueras: Will the Minister for the Environment now provide this House with details of the extent of the sponsorship of the Thinking Green Conference by the Nature Group and Hassans?

Clerk: Question 954.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment provide a full account to this House of the expenses incurred by the Government in the hosting of the Thinking Green Conference in October?

Clerk: Question 955.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment provide details of those companies which have expressed an interest in establishing or investing in Gibraltar as a direct result of the Thinking Green Conference held in October this year?

Clerk: Question 956.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment confirm the cost of the Gibraltar-registered Toyota Priuses – although there is some controversy about how you say the plural of that word – for the purposes of ferrying dignitaries and guests from and to Gibraltar Airport and the Tercentenary Hall and St Michael's Cave on the occasion of the Thinking Green Conference and Gala Dinner?

Clerk: Question 957.

Hon. S M Figueras: Would the Minister for the Environment please provide details to this House of the deployment of the Gibraltar-registered Toyota Priuses first seen on the occasion of the Thinking Green Conference within the Government's fleet and in what capacity they will be deployed?

1800 Clerk: Question 958.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment confirm the tender process through which the Gibraltar-registered Toyota Priuses, first seen in Gibraltar, were acquired and when the acquisition occurred?

1805 Clerk: Question 959.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment explain why the Gibraltar-registered Toyota Priuses seen on the occasion of the Thinking Green Conference were emblazoned with the logo of an Algeciras-registered Toyota dealership, namely Automoción Tomax, despite being registered on Gibraltar number plates?

1810 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1815 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the information on the tickets requested by the hon. Member is contained in a schedule which I will hand over to him now.

I will refer to other schedules, so I will hand them altogether, if that is alright, Mr Speaker. So I will now hand him that, when I have finished my answer, as there are other schedules as well.

1820 Mr Speaker: That is in respect of Question 952?.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Question 952 I have a schedule, and I have another schedule for the later Questions, and I would like to hand them altogether, so that the question can be taken together, if that is alright.

1825 Mr Speaker: Okay.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: In relation to Question 953, sponsors contributed a total of £100,000 towards the event. The sponsors' relationship with the event extended to its financial support as well as agreement with the philosophies behind the subjects that were raised at the Conference – that is, the impact of climate change, the importance of an environmentally sustainable economy and the changing habits towards sustainable living. Once this successful event closed, there were no further links or commitments from any of the parties in this context.

1830 Other sponsors supported by not charging for their services, although preferring to remain anonymous.

1835 In relation to Question 954, the processing of outstanding invoices is still being finalised, so a full account of expenses cannot be provided. It is anticipated that the final accounts will be available as from the first week of December, but I will now be handing over to the hon. Member a schedule of the projection of the total cost.

1840 In answer to Question 955, in relation to companies wishing to set up, invest or extend the kind of activity of services delivered in Gibraltar as a result of the Conference, I cannot disclose these details for commercial reasons. What I can say is that interest has been created from companies local and from abroad from a variety of business sectors. I have a list of 28 companies, ranging from ones already in Gibraltar to those interested in trading here.

1845 In relation to Question 956, Mr Speaker, I can confirm the following costs paid to Bassadone Motors: (a) hire of three Toyota Priuses, £1,125; (b) fuel costs, £28.33; a total of £1,153.33. There were no other costs directly related to this.

To Question 957, the Toyota Priuses in question were rented for the Thinking Green event and will not be deployed for other events.

1850 Question 958, quotes were sought from various local car dealers, namely Mercedes and Toyota, for the renting of hybrid cars for the Thinking Green event. The only car dealer which responded was Toyota.

The final Question, the reason why the Toyota Priuses were emblazoned with an Algeciras-registered Toyota dealership is because these cars were not available locally and had to be rented out for the occasion. They were registered with Gibraltar number plates.

1855 I now hand over the schedules to the hon. Member in relation to those two Questions.

Hon. S M Figueras: So, Mr Speaker, perhaps the Minister can explain: if the vehicles were rented and sourced from a Spanish dealership, can the Minister identify whether there was any requirement for them to be registered with Gibraltar plates on a temporary basis? I assume from the answers that the Minister has given that those vehicles are no longer in Gibraltar.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Government has, I believe, three number plates which it uses for special occasions when cars are obtained from abroad. I believe the last time they were used was for the Royal visit and I am informed that, on other occasions, these number plates are placed on cars from abroad. That is information I have been given by the relevant Department.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer. It is quite intriguing because certainly the previous event which was the occasion of the visit to Gibraltar of the Earl and Countess of Wessex, certainly given my track record as a petrol head and fascination for all things motor cars, I observed were locally sourced vehicles and that in this case, they were foreign sourced vehicles. I have asked the question, Mr Speaker, because, frankly, I simply cannot see the point of re-registering vehicles on Gibraltar plates, when they are already registered.

In relation to the other Questions, Mr Speaker, if I am given an opportunity to review – there were many Questions – the Minister in relation to Question 955 has said that he has a list of 28 companies local and foreign. He has the list, but will he provide it to me, even on a confidential basis, certainly, because I am interested to understand what interest has been generated by the Conference?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, personally, I would have no problem with that, but I do think it would be fair, as I said in answer to another question on the same lines last time, that I would need the permission of these companies for me to share it. They approached Government in confidence and I feel that there may be commercial reasons. If anybody else finds out, there may be competitors who are interested in coming in. I would be uncomfortable in just giving the list.

I can show him that I have a list, but I would hesitate, without the permission of those companies, so I would have to consult them. Some of them will have been clear and public, because some of them did exhibit in the Trade Fair, but there are others that did not and therefore perhaps they feel that they have commercially private discussions with Government and I do not think I should share this.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am particularly interested in those companies from outside Gibraltar that have expressed an interest in investing and trading here as a result of, as the Government themselves have claimed on a couple of occasions, the Al Gore Conference and I think it is a relevant point to make.

I shall not take too much offence at the suggestion that providing me with this information in confidence could cause any jeopardy whatsoever to those companies, because it was handed to me on that basis, and they would certainly be kept on that basis, in the same manner as the fees for Al Gore were shared with myself confidentially and have remained so to this day, despite the account.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I was in no way implying that the hon. Member was going to divulge confidential information. I was just expressing my discomfort at sharing it, but I would be happy to have a conversation outside this House and certainly to indicate, certainly at least in broad terms, the areas in which these companies are working. If then the hon. Member is not satisfied with our private discussion, then obviously he can always ask a question again.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for that. Sorry, [inaudible] Yes, I have other supplementaries on the other questions.

Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. D J Bossino: With the Speaker's permission? Mr Speaker, in answer to Question 955, the Hon. Minister for the Environment mentioned 28 companies I think he said 'ranging from those already in Gibraltar and those interested in trading here'. What we are interested in to find out as an Opposition is what international interest this Conference has elicited. In those circumstances, is he able to tell this House, Mr Speaker, provide a breakdown, of the 28, which of those are in Gibraltar and which of those are from outside?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, certainly that information can be provided. I cannot do it now because I would have to go through them one at a time and see which are already trading here and which are not; but I will undertake to provide that information as a breakdown.

What I can say is that some of the companies are actually already in Gibraltar, but are considering bringing in other products or other services as a result of this green initiative and, therefore, the fact that they are already here does not imply that they may not bring other activity to Gibraltar.

Hon. D J Bossino: And can he also say – I am interested to find out, Mr Speaker – of the 28 who have expressed an interest, have any of them entered into any formal contractual commitments?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, not as yet. We have had discussions and meetings – certainly, I recall on the list, I have personally been involved in two of them, but no contracts have yet been entered into. This is only about a month ago, so it requires a bit more than that.

1935 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 953, the Hon. Minister kindly offered the answer that £100,000 was the total sponsorship contribution from Hassans and the Nature Group. Is he able to provide a breakdown of that contribution?

1940 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, if you would bear with me, I have my notes here. Hassans provided £50,000; the Nature Group, £25,000; and an associate of the Nature Group, Burando, £25,000; Gibtelecom provided certain services in kind and another provider of services in kind has requested that they remain anonymous.

1945 Hon. S M Figueras: Not to be mischievous, but I cannot help myself: is there any particular reason why they have requested this remain in confidence?

1950 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I offered them acknowledgement in the material and they said that they preferred to make the contribution in an anonymous manner. There were services in kind, but I feel that I have to honour that request. (Interjection by Hon. S M Figueras) It was their decision, certainly not mine. I would have only been too happy to acknowledge their contribution, but they preferred that it should not be aired publicly.

1955 Hon. S M Figueras: Far be it for me to suggest that the Minister should betray confidence in that manner, though it does strike me as odd that a company that provides services to the Government should do so anonymously, as there are implications and other issues surrounding the general provision of services to the Government.

1960 However, moving on to Question 952, which is in respect of the ticket sales, I note from the schedule that there were 192 total ticket sales. How many were in attendance at the Conference and how many seats were available at the Conference? I know that you may need notice, but just in case.

1965 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is speculation. I have not had anybody actually count, but from the size of the venue the various estimates that I have been given are between 700 and 900 people present. That is the estimate that I have been given by people who, I suppose, know how to estimate these things.

1970 I am capable of estimating the size of a flock of migrating Honey Buzzards, but I am not as good at estimating the size of people in a hall.

1975 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the offer, but I do not think it will be relevant in this specific context.

1980 I believe there was one more supplementary I wanted to ask – but no, it has slipped my mind. I am grateful for all the answers the Minister has provided.

1985 Mr Speaker: Yes.

1990 Hon. D A Feetham: Just returning back, Mr Speaker, to the issue of the anonymous provider of services in kind, is there any particular commercial sensitivity on the part of the Government, in relation to this particular company or individual for the non-provision from the Government, or is it just a request by the service provider? That is one supplementary.

1995 And if it is, does he not accept that the Government is obviously under an obligation to provide an account to this House for information, particularly inclusive of service providers that provide services to the Government, and that it is quite improper for the Government to actually agree to anonymity, when of course the Government knows that it is accountable to this House, and therefore that it is likely to have questions of this nature?

2000 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I would need to take counsel on the second part of that question. Certainly, there was never any intention that that should be. If it were that kind of situation, then I feel that I would be obliged to divulge the information and obviously, I would have to do so.

2005 However, I spoke to the Chairman of that particular company and I offered that, because of the contribution that was being made by that company, it should be included in the publicity and he said that he preferred that it should not. So, it was entirely at their request.

2010 I will now take back the comments of the hon. Member and if I feel that it can be seen to have been... there has been any impropriety of any sort, then I will clearly discuss it once again and I am certain, knowing the person that it is that I spoke to, that he would not wish this to cause any embarrassment to the Government and then, obviously, the name would be revealed.

2015 I think we should not make too much of it. I can assure the hon. Member there is nothing that we want to keep from anybody – purely out of respect of a conversation that I had with the Chairman of the company, but I will take advice.

- 1995 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am not for one moment, in fact, suggesting any impropriety nor am I suggesting that there is any improper motive. In fact, I am not concerned about it personally, although my hon. and learned Friend, Mr Figueras, has asked the questions. Personally, I am concerned about the principle of someone who is providing services to the Government to then claim, 'I am providing you services, but please do not reveal my name in the House.' That is the principle.
- 2000 Indeed, I go further, if it assists – so that I can formulate it in terms of a question – will he when he goes back to this particular company, if there is no problem after you have discussed it, could he reveal the information on a confidential basis to us, because it may well be that, after you reveal the information outside, we really have no interest in it?
- 2005 It is the principle that concerns me, nothing else.
- Hon. Dr. J E Cortes. Certainly, Mr Speaker, I accept the concern and, as I say, I will look into the matter formally, but I will have a conversation with the hon. Member and I am sure that we will be able to reach some understanding.
- 2010 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, working in a very collegiate fashion, I have had brought to my attention another couple of questions which are actually quite pertinent and I had not had an opportunity to assess.
- In the answer to Question 954, the schedule of expenditure, the Hon. Minister will see that in that schedule, there is a reference to the Chrand contractual payment of £166,000. Is the Minister able to confirm now, publicly, what the fee paid to the speakers was?
- 2015 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I did provide that information confidentially to the hon. Member. I do not have my notes here, but I think it was in the region of 140,000 – but I stand to be corrected – and that is for speakers' fees.
- 2020 Let me just say that this company –
- Mr Speaker: Is that 140,000 pounds, euros, dollars? (Interjections)
- 2025 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: That is 150,000 euros. (Mr Speaker: Euros.) I need to confirm that, because I do not have that information. That was included in the fee to the company who were the agents of Vice-President Gore and acted also for Mr Juan Verde, and that included everything, which included deployment from the United States. In fact, Vice-President Gore was going to address a conference in Barcelona the day before. That was cancelled because of the situation in Catalunya. It had involvement of the Generalitat, and because they were in an electoral process, that was postponed actually. So Vice-President Gore actually flew from the United States exclusively to come to Gibraltar, but we were not charged additionally for that. That was assumed by their agents.
- 2030 So I just wanted to point that out, even though, in a way, we were going to be sharing with the Barcelona event, the fact that that was postponed did not incur us in any additional expense.
- 2035 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful. I am happy to hear that that was the case.
- Just one more observation that was made by my hon. Colleague, there is a reference to transportation here of £1,953 and the cost of the three Priuses was in the region of £1,125, in accordance with the detail given in answer to Question 956. Now, I am certain £1,953 in the schedule does not cover the costs of the private jet to fly out of Gibraltar, certainly, by Vice-President Al Gore. Is the Minister able to explain what that cost was? It is rather insignificant, to be perfectly honest, in the grand scheme of things, but it is a point that was referred to me that I thought worth raising.
- 2040 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is the breakdown that I have been provided. I would have to look into that. There may have been other transportation costs of other participants or collection, perhaps, from the airport. I am not sure. I would have to seek advice on that and I will do so.
- 2045 Clerk: Question –
- 2050 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I also have a supplementary in relation to the schedule that we are now considering. There is a fee for Legal Services of £1,755. Can the Hon. Minister tell me which firm provided those fees?
- Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Again, I would have to seek the information and I would be happy to provide once I have sought it. I do not have that information.
- 2055 Mr Speaker: Yes?

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, coming back to Question 952, in supplementaries, I think I understood correctly that the Hon. Minister said that between 700 and 900 people attended. If those were the number of attendees, what were the number of seats that were available?

2060

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Once again, I do not know the seating capacity of the Tercentenary Hall. In addition, there were seats on the ground level, but again that is information that has not been specifically requested and therefore I would have to find out.

2065

Hon. E J Reyes: I ask, Mr Speaker, because I do not know if the Hon. Minister is aware, I do recall in my capacity as the then Minister for Culture, I actually issued the licence, because conferences, stage performances and so on, where people have to pay for entrance, that establishment has to be licensed. I remember having issued the licence in favour of the Tercentenary Sports Hall, but there was a clause there that there was a maximum number of people who could attend in that venue, because that had to be certified by the Chief Fire Officer.

2070

Can the Minister, at some stage, find out what certification was given as a maximum number by the Chief Fire Officer, just to make sure that we have not contravened the rules of what has actually been licensed for under my tenure as Minister for Culture?

2075

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my hon. Friend, the Minister responsible for Sports has just advised me that he can obtain that information and certainly that will be obtained.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I have absolutely one final –

2080

Mr Speaker: There is a point which I think the hon. Member, if he looks at Question 952, he will realise that, other than in the case of allocations made to pupils from schools, the question dealt with tickets sold, a question of tickets. Therefore, in the supplementary you are not asking about tickets now; you are asking about the number of people actually attending and the capacity of the hall. They are different issues.

2085

Hon. E J Reyes: I accept that, Mr Speaker, and I was asking a supplementary following a reply to a supplementary that the Hon. Minister had given, where he said... I know it is stretching a bit much, but I just asked, in case the Hon. Minister....

2090

Mr Speaker: It is a very straightforward thing to get the information and it will be obtained.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, absolutely one final supplementary. Again, I am grateful and I suspect that the Hon. Minister will need to go back and get more information on this.

2095

It is just that it strikes me that there is an entry under PR and Logistics on the schedule of expenditure. I will give the Minister an opportunity to look at it. Under PR and Logistics, electrical supply, £5,300: it just strikes me as an inordinate amount of money, which I suppose will only be explained if we were... I do not know what we were powering that evening, but it is quite a significant amount of money for that particular event. Does he have any further information on that?

2100

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not. I believe that there was an issue with power supply in St Michael's Cave and there was a back-up generator going to be on site, but I am not certain that that is that.

2105

But again, I will need to go back and get the information and I will. I will write to the hon. Member with all the information that has been requested today, which I have made a note of.

GHA trainees Length of training and qualifications attained

2110

2115

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, before asking my Question, I would like to through the Hon. the Minister for Health congratulate the Primary Care Centre Staff for an excellent job done on 1st November for managing the new advance appointment system and that there was no repetition of the scenes that we witnessed on 1st October. We are on this side of the House very happy that the new system is working so far.

2120 Now if I turn to my Question 960, Mr Speaker, further to his answer to Written Question 156/2012, can the Minister for Health state the following: (a) until when will the training periods in which the 13 trainees placed within the GHA last; (b) what training is being provided within the type of work undertaken by the trainees; and (c) what accredited qualifications, if any, will the trainees attain at the end of their training period or placement?

2125 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2130 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, first of all, if I may thank the hon. Lady for thanking my staff, I too am very satisfied and proud of the work that has gone into it. We held a number of inter-disciplinary team meetings, tweaked it after the October difficulties and I must say that I have to pay tribute to them and to the public in Gibraltar for responding so positively to various initiatives. I am very satisfied that the Primary Care Centre is now a place where people can go in the comfort that they can be given an appointment in time and the whole atmosphere has changed. I would like to state that publicly as well. I am very proud of the commitment of the staff there.

2135 Mr Speaker, I will now proceed with the answer to the question and I provide the following information in relation to the 13 trainees: firstly, part (a), there is no fixed training period, the employing company can redeploy the trainees elsewhere at any given point in time; secondly, training is provided on the job; and thirdly, point (c), no accreditation or qualifications will be obtained at the end of the trainees' training.

2140 Mr Speaker: Any supplementaries? Next question.

New Mental Health Facility Alterations to former Government plans

2145 Clerk: Question 961, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2150 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health provide this House with an inventory of any alterations made to the former Government's plans for the new Mental Health Facility and the cost of these changes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2155 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, an early priority for the Government was to review the working plans for the new Mental Health Facility that were in existence with the lead clinicians. The main area of concern related to compromises that had been made because of a requirement to locate all existing and new Mental Health Services within a confined footprint located on four floors in the block allocated at the former Royal Naval Hospital.

2165 The overwhelming advice was that the patients in KGV had already waited far too long for civilised living conditions and this could not be delayed any further. Therefore, by their own choice, some of the improvements they would have wanted could not be affected as a result of their not having been consulted in the past.

2170 Changes to the plans as they were developing that were made included a decision not to build a day facility in what was to be a garden area between the blocks and instead provide an area in one of the blocks that had been identified to provide accommodation for staff. That is, had been identified; I do not want this to appear that we have provided accommodation for staff. The block that would have provided accommodation to staff will now have the facilities that were going to go in the garden area.

Therefore the garden could now be designed to accommodate needs including therapy and recreation for the uses of the complex. This building would have cost about £500,000.

2175 Further to the drafting of this answer, I am told that the garden will cost about £200,000 to provide in the way that I have described.

Other changes relate to layout of rooms, types of furnishings, etc which are considered largely cost neutral.

Other specific changes include those related to sustainable technology. These are – and they are construction budgets only; they do not include fees, the figures that I am about to give:

2180 Change to LED lighting for the buildings and associated external areas: the benefits of LED lighting are cheaper running costs and longevity. Anti-ligature LED fittings have had to be researched and developed with the lighting industry to obtain a suitable solution. This cost will be £70,000.

2185 A water-heating solution: this is where the generated waste heat in powering the air conditioning condenser is recovered and linked to a hydrobox as the primary heating source for water. Additional system resilience is built in by re-locating one of the two calorifiers that were intended for Block B to C. This is at a cost of £20,000.

Solar panels, 10 in number, linked to the thermal storage circuits, offering additional resilience to the system adopted in item 2 above: that is £54,000.

These will all result in considerably lower running costs for the site.

2190 In addition, following professional advice, a central pharmacy will be provided and created within the existing Block C footprint, having the ability to dispense medication to Block C occupants, visiting community attending Block D and the Dementia Block residents. This is expected to cost around £30,000.

2195 One thing that I have learned from the clinician colleagues is that there is a lot more to plans than merely the building itself, crucial though these are, given the cramped conditions at KGV. Where the Government is making the greatest changes is with respect to the philosophy of care for mental health patients and the crucial work we have to do with respect to de-stigmatising mental illness in our society. With this in mind, there are a number of important alterations to and development of the former Government's plans.

2200 This includes more commitment to work in the community and rehabilitation, including exploring opportunities to encourage employers across Gibraltar to do the same. The GHA will also be working to ensure that the rehabilitation flats, which will house seven residents within the new facility... that the occupants are helped to move out into the community as soon as possible, once the rehabilitation programme is completed.

2205 Finally, the Government is encouraging young people to view careers in Mental Health as rewarding and fulfilling.

Clerk: Question 962 –

2210 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker...

Mr Speaker: Yes?

2215 Hon. D A Feetham: The Hon. the Minister... I think there are two areas in relation to changes, as I understand it. One is in relation to the garden area, where effectively, the Government is making a cost saving because it has decided not to go ahead with the building; he said that was £500,000. The cost to the changes to the landscaping, the garden itself is £200,000, so they are making a cost saving in relation to that. Now, in relation to the building itself, am I right in saying – and my maths is not particularly good – that the total cost of the alterations to the mental hospital is £100,000?

2220 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the maths are certainly not good. If we add what I have said, it is more in the region of £170,000, if we go by the list that I have costed, and that is information that I have at the moment.

2225 Hon. D A Feetham: And can he confirm that apart from this... I calculated £100,000; he says £170,000. It makes no difference for the purposes of the information that I am trying to elicit.

Can he confirm that, apart from this, the original cost of the mental hospital which was £10 million, that continues to be the cost at present, as far as you are aware?

2230 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Question specifically asked the cost of the alterations. It did not ask the general cost of the project. I have no information to suggest that it is different to what the hon. Member has said, but I cannot confirm it, either. I will have to have the specific question and then I could come up with the overall cost of the project. I have costed, in reply to the specific Question, the specific alterations.

2235 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes. Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Minister accept that, in the context of a project of £10 million – that was the original cost of this project – that alterations of between £100,000 and £170,000 – the £170,000 is the figure that the hon. Gentleman says that these alterations cost, and in fact given that the alterations, which are fairly minor, in terms of lighting and the like – sit simply does not justify the way that the hon. Member has characterised the project in the past as having been rubbish and subject to a plethora of changes?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: I do not think I have ever used the word ‘rubbish’ in this context, Mr Speaker. It is a word that I rarely use anyway, so I think my recollection will be correct.

2245 Mr Speaker, as I have explained, there have been other changes which I said were cost neutral, or largely cost neutral, which includes the alignment of the rooms, the setting out of the rooms, where the furniture is placed, the type of furniture and so on, which has responded more to what the clinicians have said is wanted. The second, very significant part is how Mental Health is going to be taken forward in the new facility and, again, that is a considerable consideration.

2250 So there have been changes. Some of them will be cost neutral, others will not. Remember that we are talking about, if the project is indeed £10 million, we are talking about a large project that regardless of what you do to it, the general enabling works and the general converting the fabric of the building into one that will sustain a mental unit, or any other facility, will be the main cost. Therefore, you would expect that the main cost would be similar. What you do to it inside will usually be less expensive and therefore we cannot use the ratio of £100,000/£170,000 to £10 million as an indication as to the significance of what that money has been spent for.

St Bernard’s Hospital seafront garden
Opening up for patients and visitors

2260

Clerk: Question 962, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2265 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise whether he will consider the request by the Gibraltar Senior Citizens’ Association to open up St Bernard’s Hospital seafront garden to patients and visitors?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2270 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the garden is already open to visitors, patients and staff. What the Senior Citizens’ Association requested was to improve access, for example for the elderly or persons in wheelchairs. This does not need any consideration and was clearly supported immediately.

Plans are being developed to facilitate this and funding has been identified.

IVF clinic
GHA services and referral system

2280

Clerk: Question 963, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Health now in a position to say which IVF clinic will be offering their services to GHA patients and how the referral system will work?

2285

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the tender for the provision of IVF services to the GHA was awarded to the Medrano Clinic. The details of the referral system and procedures are being finalised with the professionals.

The service is expected to commence on 1st January 2013.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister tell us where the Medrano Clinic is?

2295

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I believe it is in Algeciras.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: And, Mr Speaker, will patients be referred through the Sponsored Patients Scheme as part of Tertiary Care?

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I say, the actual procedures are being finalised. We are not sure that Sponsored Patients is the correct way; it might well go through that, but as I say it is being finalised, we are talking to the professionals to see what the best way of streamlining this is, but we will be ready to go – at least we expect to be ready to go – on 1st January. But certainly, when we decide how it is going to work, we will make it public so that everybody is well aware, including the hon. Lady.

Health records
Tender for electronic health technology

2310

Clerk: Question 964, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker can the Minister for Health inform this House when the electronic health technology for health records will be going out to tender?

2315

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2320

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, a number of presentations from various suppliers of Health Information Systems have been made to myself, clinicians, managers and staff of the GHA over recent months. These included earlier this week a presentation from representatives on the technology used by the Basque Health Services.

All of these presentations will now be evaluated against the needs of the GHA, with a view to preparing the tender documents.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, have all the clinicians submitted their views on this new project?

2330

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, clinicians were involved in a committee that was discussing the various options and clinicians have been present at the presentations. There was one several weeks ago which included clinicians; and the one by the Basques was in fact earlier on this week and there were clinicians across the range, including doctors, nurses, therapists, laboratory staff, so they have all been involved in the process, yes, sir.

2335

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Finally, Mr Speaker, when will a final decision be made as to which company to hire for this technology and who will be making that decision?

2340

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not sure when the final decision will be made. Their intention at this point in time is to go into a selection procedure and there will be a board appointed, which will of course include clinicians, which will take the decision and make their recommendations.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

GHA Board
Next meeting in public

Clerk: Question 965, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2350

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise when the next GHA Board meeting in public will take place?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

2355

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the next GHA Board meeting in public will take place on Wednesday, 19th December this year.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Good wishes to the Minister for Housing and the Elderly,
Hon. C A Bruzon

Clerk: Question 966, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2370

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, if I may, I see from a note here that the Minister for Housing and the Elderly will not be in Parliament today. May I take this opportunity to convey him my best wishes and I hope he recovers well. I take it that he has recently undergone some surgery and he is a very, very old friend of mine. I certainly wish him all the best and I think I speak as well on behalf of all Members on this side of the House. (Applause)

2375

Mr Speaker: I would like to associate myself with those remarks.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you Mr Speaker.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, can I, on behalf of the Government, also wish our colleague a speedy recovery. We've heard it's gone well and we are hoping to see him soon with us in this House.

2385

HOUSING AND THE ELDERLY

Housing and the Elderly
Details of trainees and placements

2390

Hon. E J Reyes: Now, Mr Speaker to the Question: can the Minister for Housing and the Elderly provide details, giving a breakdown by age, gender and nationality, of all trainees and placements with any of the Ministries for which he has responsibility, indicating the Department, Agency or Authority where they are placed and indicating the type of work they are currently undertaking?

2395

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services, on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 966

The Ministry for Housing currently has four trainees on placement from the Construction Training Centre, as follows:-

Placement	No. of Trainees	Age	Gender	Nationality	Type of Work
Housing Department	None	-	-	-
Housing Works Agency	4	19 & 20	Male	British	Carpentry and Masonry

2405

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I wonder if the Hon. Minister can clarify something for me. I gather from the schedule that there are four trainees. Between the four of them, they are the ages of 19 or 20 – it does not really matter all that much if three are 19 or only two – but when it says the type of work is carpentry and masonry, does he happen to have any information whether these individuals are actually, for example, enrolled within the construction training centre and are therefore carrying this out as placements working towards their NVQs or are they not in any connection to the Training Centre?

2410

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the former is in fact the case: they are actually placements from the Construction Training Centre.

Hon. E J Reyes: Working towards the NVQs?

2415

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is correct.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for the clarification, Mr Speaker.

Housing and the Elderly
Trainee placements and qualifications attained

2420

Clerk: Question 967, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2425

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing and the Elderly state the following in respect of all trainees, if any, currently in a placement within any Ministries for which he has responsibility: (a) until when will the training periods in which the various trainees placed within his Ministries last; (b) what training is being provided within the 'Job Description' undertaken by the trainees; and (c) what accredited qualifications, if any, will the trainees attain at the end of the training period/placements?

2430

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2435

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the trainees currently in placements with the Ministry for Housing will: (a) be in training with the Housing Works Agency for a period between three and six months, as requested by the Training Centre; (b) The trainees are being trained to undertake the complete range of duties associated with their chosen trade with adequate supervision. They are being jointly supervised by members of the Housing Works Agency and their instructors from the Training Centre; (c) The trainees are training towards obtaining a National Vocational Qualification in a building construction trade and their placement in the Ministry forms part of their programme of studies.

Government rental accommodation buildings
Scaffolding

2445

Clerk: Question 968, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2450

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide an updated list of all Government buildings used for rental accommodation which currently have scaffolding, including dates when the scaffold was first erected, the cost incurred to date and estimated date of dismantling?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2455

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

Alameda House, Alameda Estate
Lift breakdown and repairs

Clerk: Question 969, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2465

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing say how many times any of the two lifts at Alameda House within Alameda Estate have broken down since 1st October 2012 and provide details of how long the repairs have taken to be fully completed since the report was first lodged?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2470 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, during the period 1st October 2012 to 9th November 2012, the lifts at Alameda House required to be attended nine times as follows: the north lift on six occasions; and the south lift on three occasions.

However, due to the rainwater penetration, the north lift has had to be stopped on 30th October 2012 and is awaiting spare parts.

2475 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, is he able to offer me any information towards the latter words of my sentence, how long the repairs have taken to be fully completed since the reports were first lodged?

2480 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, unfortunately, I have not been provided with the information requested by the hon. Member, so I am happy to pass this information to him at a later date.

Hon. E J Reyes: I will be very grateful, I accept, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member can write to me as soon as possible with the information.

2485

Bow Wave House, Mid-Harbour Estate
Lift breakdown and repairs

2490 Clerk: Question 970, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing say how many times any of the two lifts at Bow Wave House, Mid-Harbour Estate, have broken down since 1st October 2012 and provide details of how long the repairs have taken to be fully completed since the report was first lodged?

2495 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2500 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, during the period 1st October 2012 to 9th November 2012, the lift at Bow Wave House required to be attended on four occasions: both lifts on three occasions; and one lift on one occasion.

All corrective action is undertaken within the time the lift is attended by the service provider, which is OTIS.

2505 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I did not quite catch the last words, something, whatever preceded...

Mr Speaker: OTIS.

Hon. E J Reyes: What preceded OTIS?

2510 Hon. P J Balban: I will repeat, Mr Speaker: all corrective action is undertaken within the time the lift is attended to by the service provider, who is OTIS.

Hon. E J Reyes: I do not quite understand, 'within the time' – what length of period is that?

2515 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, what it is saying is that when the lifts are reported, obviously the problems need to be reported, the service provider comes down and they are repaired there and then.

2520 Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker, perhaps I need a bit of your guidance. I am very conscious sometimes when I ask these questions that some information is provided by the Government on the website. If I can refer to Table H.28, which is on the website, that was last updated on 2nd November and referred to the breakdown of lifts and so on. Therefore it did not mean that I had to ask a very long question: most information was there.

2525 Just for future reference, Mr Speaker, at the top of Table H.28, under the heading of 'Lifts and Government Estates 2012', it lists in one column the estates and then it says 'faults reported up to October 2012'. Unlike other tables, where in other tables it says if it is 31st October or whatever – there is a specific date, that then allows me to clarify whether 'October' means the beginning or the end of the month – may I humbly ask the Minister to convey to whoever compiles these details that, to allow me to even reduce the number of questions asked that when we have tables like this that say 'faults reported', like the Hon. Minister has so nicely done today – he has given me a period 1st October to 9th November, 2530 I can actually home in on the number of days or weeks – that likewise the published tables say whether it is 31st October or 1st October. Therefore it could save me a lot of future questions.

2535 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that message was in fact conveyed to the Ministry for Housing and in fact, in the future, you will notice that the statistics will be for the complete month. So it will be for the whole month of October, whole month of November, etc. At the moment, the questions are being asked and they include part of one whole month and part of another month; but the way they will be represented in the future is as whole months, and I will convey that message to the Housing Ministry.

2540 Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful for that and will look forward to the future.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

2545 Harbour Views Estate
Extension of lifts

Clerk: Question 971, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2550 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing state when the works to extend the reach of lifts within each block of flats at Harbour Views Estate into the parking garages will commence, together with estimated completion dates?

2555 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this matter and all matters relating to Harbour Views are being discussed with the Management Company.

2560 Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful to know that they are being discussed, Mr Speaker, but does he have any indication of when the works will commence and any possible indication of completion dates?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, unfortunately not. An announcement will be made in due course, when this information is available.

Government rental homes
Maintenance/repairs to lifts

2570 Clerk: Question 972, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2575 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of the number of times lifts pertaining to Government rental homes have required corrective maintenance/repairs since the information provided at Table H.28 on the Government's website updated 2nd October, indicating who carried out the maintenance/repairs, together with a full and detailed breakdown of costs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2580 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information the hon. Member is requesting is updated on a monthly basis.
I now hand over the schedule containing the information.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 972

Estate	Faults reported	Number of times the lifts required corrective maintenance/repairs
Alameda Estate	72	72
Penney House	6	6
Varyl Begg Estate	54	54
Glacis Estate	94	94
St John's Court	2	2
Mid Harbour Estate	82	82
Knight's Court	1	1

2585 Mr Speaker: I think that for the sake of accuracy, the schedule I think really, strictly speaking, is a Table – for the sake of accuracy, because there is then including who carried out maintenance repairs together with a full and detailed breakdown of cost.

I think that the hon. Minister should read out the other two sentences, which will then form part of the main answer.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will do. In attendance –

Mr Speaker: All attendance.

2595

Hon. P J Balban: Oh sorry! All attendance, maintenance and repairs, when required, have been carried out by OTIS, who is the service provider.

OTIS submits invoices on account on a quarterly basis. Therefore, a full breakdown of costs will not be available until the end of December 2012.

2600

Mr Speaker: Any supplementaries.

Hon. E J Reyes: No, Mr Speaker, I think the Minister has already sort of hinted: what he is saying is 'Wait until the end of December'. That is the only time when he can legitimately provide an accurate picture of cost.

2605

I will take that on board and pose it after December.

2610

Affordable homes
Agreements with developers

Clerk: Question 973, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2615

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide details of any agreements Government may have entered into with developers in respect of building affordable homes, on a scheme of purchases guaranteed by Government, as previously signified it is their intention to do, and stated through Press Release No. 530/2012, dated 22nd August 2012.

2620

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Government has not entered into any agreements with developers in respect of building affordable homes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I take it that the Government has still not entered... Can he clarify, are they in the process of discussion, with a view to entering, or is he able to enlighten me with any pertinent information?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, tender documents are being prepared.

Mr Speaker: Yes.

2635

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the hon. the Minister – I know it is not part of his portfolio, but there are others perhaps who can provide the information if he cannot – can he assist the House in relation to the nature of the guarantee that the Government is providing these developers? Can he provide us with more information in relation to that, please?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this is actually one of the issues that is being finalised at the moment.

2640 Hon. D A Feetham: I accept that – ‘finalised’ – but does he have an idea of what we are talking about, when one talks about a guarantee? Is the Government looking at a guarantee that the developer will receive the contractual price? For example, if a developer tenders £30 million for a particular project, is the Government considering guaranteeing that the developer will receive that £30 million, bearing in mind that we are talking about flats that are going to be sold to members of the public. Is that what is meant by the guarantee or does the guarantee mean something else?

2645 Mr Speaker: Given that the hon. Minister with responsibility is absent and that another Minister is answering on his behalf, there is no need to channel the answer through him. If one of the other Ministers knows the answers, then it is perfectly proper that he should stand up and give the information, if he so wishes.

2650 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, it is difficult to elaborate at this stage. The Government is still negotiating. When we have a clearer picture, it will be easier to come back to the House and to answer the hon. Member’s question.

2655 Hon. D A Feetham: The Government has come out with a press release saying that they are going to out to tender on these particular projects, and they have said that it will be backed up by a Government guarantee. I am not asking for a huge amount of detail; just the outline of the policy. The Government must have had a policy, when it actually issued a press release saying that this would be backed up by guarantee. I am just asking for an idea, a general picture of what that guarantee entails – not the detail.

2660 Mr Speaker: Would hon. Ministers like to check on the details and perhaps, if they are not in a position to do so now, whether they are able to do so later today and then provide the answer?

2665 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, we do not need to check. The position is that the documents are being finalised. The whole issue is being discussed at Government level at the moment before it goes out to tender. A press release has been issued announcing the matter and referring to the issue of a guarantee.

The hon. Member is now seeking details –

2670 Mr Speaker: No, he is saying that in the press release, there was an indication given that the purchases would be guaranteed by Government. I think what he is asking is: what is the nature of that Government guarantee?

Hon. D A Feetham: In general terms.

2675 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, it should be self-evident that what the press release is is what our intention is, in terms of the successful tenderer coming up with a number of properties at the sort of prices that we consider is within reach of people as affordable housing. When that materialises and if it materialises in the quantities and the prices that we want in order to meet the commitment to have everybody rehoused, it means that the developer will not be told, ‘If at the end of the day you cannot get people to buy the property, that is your problem, or we will go on the open market.’ These are properties that we do not intend should go on the open market, and therefore the Government would guarantee to step in, if the time comes.

2680 But we do not know whether it will or it will not, because that is the intention at the moment, and therefore, until we see what is available, at what prices... and in what numbers and sizes, because the whole idea is geared to the market that will be made up of people on the waiting list or people who release existing rented accommodation.

2685 But the final picture will not emerge until we see what is on offer.

2690 Hon. D A Feetham: I am very grateful to the hon. Gentleman. That answers my question.

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

Dudley Ward Tunnel Opening to the public

2700

Clerk: Question 975, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2705

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just before I formally pose the Question –

Mr Speaker: Question 975 or 974?

Clerk: It is 975, because the Hon. Mr Costa answered 974 at the end of his batch of questions.

2710

Hon. D J Bossino: That's right.

Clerk: I recall the matter clearly.

2715

Mr Speaker: Okay.

2720

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, before I formally pose Question 975, after I submitted the Question to Parliament, there was a press release issued in the Gibraltar Chronicle, which states that the Dudley Ward Tunnel is, in fact, open. I will nevertheless have supplementary questions. Shall I pose it, Mr Speaker, formally?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

2725

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic advise the House when the Government expects that Dudley Ward Tunnel will be open to the public?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2730

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Dudley Ward Tunnel was re-opened on Tuesday, 13th November 2012 at 13.00 hours.

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, as indeed I stated a few moments ago and that was reported in the press, but after I had filed the Question in the House.

2735

I ask this supplementary, Mr Speaker: can the Minister advise this House what remedial works were undertaken in order to ensure the opening of the tunnel?

2740

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, what happened in this case, is that the engineers actually went on site to have a look at whether they could actually see where the rock had come from, to try to assess whether there were any further hazards of further rocks falling. They declared to make safe, once they saw where the rock had come from. They cleared up and ensured... they, obviously waited until the bad weather ended – because obviously, living in a place like Gibraltar, with 400-odd metres of rock face, anything close to the rock face is obviously a hazard – and then decided it was prudent to reopen the tunnel.

2745

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I take it from that answer that no works were undertaken and therefore there was not any cost to the Government?

Hon. P J Balban: The removal of rubble was carried out and that was the end.

2750

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is the Government and the Minister, in particular, satisfied as to the safety of the area now? I know it is probably implied by the fact that the tunnel has been opened, but I will ask him to confirm that he is absolutely satisfied, and we can all lay our minds to rest in respect of that particular issue.

2755

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as I mentioned earlier in the previous supplementary, a rockfall hazard will always exist, when we have a 450-metre-high rock, which is Gibraltar, so obviously it is impossible to state. It is something within reasonable... it is reasonable to suggest that it is as safe as can be.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say, whether in future instances of bad weather, the Government will be required to close Dudley Ward Tunnel again, as a precautionary measure at all?

2760 I ask it simply because the Minister has said that, on review, it was declared safe and the bad weather had passed. I am merely asking the Minister to exclude the possibility of this happening again as a precautionary measure.

2765 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, no, the closure of Dudley Ward tunnel will not recur just because there is bad weather.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the hon. Minister confirm who conducted a risk assessment of the area and said that the area was now safe?

2770 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it was Technical Services engineers, who were on site and actually went to see where the actual rock had fallen from. It was Technical Services staff, in conjunction with one of the consultant experts who they work with, and they are pretty certain they have found where the rock came from. They assessed as to what the probability was that that could recur, and obviously results show that it was okay to do so.

Solar powered lamps by the frontier
Costs

2780 Clerk: Question 976, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic provide details of the cost of the installation and any other related costs of the solar powered lamps in the area by the frontier?

2785 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2790 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the solar lighting project in the area of the frontier was led by the Gibraltar Electricity Authority. I have, however, obtained the information that the hon. Member is requesting, which I will now provide.

The cost of the units was £27,216.90 and the installation costs were £4,800.

Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry, the £27,000-odd figure that the Minister has given, is that in relation to all the units or is it for each unit?

2795 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the figure quoted is for all the units.

2800 Hon. D J Bossino: I am not sure how this actually works in practice, Mr Speaker. He did say that it was handled by the Gibraltar Electricity Authority. I am not sure, whether, in that context, there is a tender process. Was this a subject of a tender process? That is my question.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): As Minister for Utilities, this Question was directed to the Minister for Traffic. It should have been directed to me, so I will answer the Question.

2805 There is no need for a tender process for this amount of money and this project anyway. What happened was that we decided, because it is a Government authority which did the works themselves, it does not need to go out to tender. The fact is that if it had been outsourced, then yes.

2810 The thing is that the cost was much less than was envisaged, had they needed to... because the lights were needed to be put there and all the infrastructure work to put the lights there, putting solar powered lamps was cheaper and the running cost is zilch, because it is only the maintenance and the batteries.

So at this point, what I am saying is that it was decided to do this because it was more cost effective.

2815 Hon. D J Bossino: I have not fully understood. That is the argument that was put to me in connection with the other sort of lamps at the other car park. (Hon. S E Linares: Yes.) But Mr Speaker, is the Hon. Minister saying that... or can he tell me which – if there was a company... The Minister is saying it was not outsourced, but can he tell me which company provided the infrastructure?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, GEA did the infrastructure. What you are probably asking is, who is the company that sold the solar panels, not the infrastructure. The infrastructure was done by GEA. (Interjection by Hon. D J Bossino) I need notice of who exactly they bought the lamps from.

Hon. D J Bossino: To see if my maths are correct, how many units were there, Mr Speaker?

Hon. S E Linares: I understand there were four.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if I may come in there, in fact, the units installed: there were seven units were bought and six were actually installed.

Procedural
Question 977 deferred

Clerk: Question 977, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, may I interrupt? In view of the next Question, if we recall the next question will be posed by the hon. Member, back in Question 890/2012, this Question's supplementaries led to discussing the actual issue of King's Wharf. In fact, that is actually dealt with by the Office of the Chief Minister with the Chief Technical Officer, so I am suggesting that if that is where the Question will lead, if we could maybe pose this Question again in the presence of the Chief Minister later on?

Hon. D J Bossino: I am not sure where the Question necessarily will be leading until I get the answer from the Government, but I am happy to delay this until Chief Minister's Questions, given that, in fact, I think the majority of the answers were indeed supplied by the Chief Minister on the last occasion, so I am happy to oblige, Mr Speaker.

EDUCATION, FINANCIAL SERVICES, GAMING, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

Department of Education Training placements and qualifications attained

Clerk: Question 989, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Further to his answer to Written Question No. 177/2012, can the Minister for Education state the following: (a) until when will the training periods in which the six trainees placed within the Department of Education last; (b) what training is being provided within the 'Type of Training' undertaken by the trainees; (c) what accredited qualifications, if any, will the trainees attain at the end of their training period/placements?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the trainees receive familiarisation with administrative procedures whilst deployed to the Department of Education. Their training will last until the company that employs them requires them to be deployed elsewhere.

Training is provided on the job. No accredited qualifications as such will be issued at the end of the training period.

Teachers
Process for handling underperformance

Clerk: Question 990, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2880 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise how the Department of Education streamlines the process for handling teachers who underperform or are inadequate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2885 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the underperformance of teachers is addressed by using a staged approach going from the informal to the formal. The informal stage is addressed at an internal school level and will be directed by the school's senior management who will identify areas for development. If required, the headteacher will invoke a more formal stage in conjunction with the Department of Education's Advisory Service, who will provide support and mentoring for the teacher in question, examine all of the factors and circumstances of the case, including the teacher's expertise, experience and appropriateness of the present placement.

2890 If this process does not result in improvement, then the case is reviewed by the Director of Education and the advice of the Government's Human Resources Department will be sought. The GTA would be consulted at all stages.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, would the Minister consider the setting up of an independent unit like Ofsted, to provide assessment to monitor progress and to offer support?

2900 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Lady will know, from a recent television programme in which we both appeared, one of the issues we are considering is the whole issue of school inspections. That is a matter that is actively being considered and discussed and we are not at the stage where we are in a position to announce where that will take us. If the school is inspected, then all these procedures will be looked at by the independent inspector – it would be an independent inspector, not an internal inspection – and this is an area which would be included in the whole area of procedures for such an inspection.

2905 Mr Speaker: Any other questions?

2910 Well, I think this is a convenient moment to recess until 3.00 p.m. this afternoon, when we shall be dealing with Questions addressed to the Chief Minister.

The House recessed at 12.40 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 3.00 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

AFTERNOON SESSION: 3.00 p.m. – 5.45 p.m.

Gibraltar, Thursday, 15th November 2012

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.00 p.m.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

Standing Order 7(1) suspended to proceed with Emergency Statement

10

Clerk: Suspension of Standing Orders, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to move under Standing Order 7(3) to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with an Emergency Statement.

15

Mr Speaker: Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

EMERGENCY STATEMENT

British Gibraltar territorial waters
Incursions by Spanish naval and customs vessels
Emergency Statement by Hon. Chief Minister

25

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the House will want to know that today Simon Fraser, the Permanent Under-Secretary of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office summoned the Spanish Ambassador to the United Kingdom, His Excellency Federico Trillo, in order to underline the British Government's concerns regarding recent incursions into British Gibraltar Territorial Waters.

A statement has been made by the Foreign Office in London setting out what the Ambassador was told in no uncertain terms by the Permanent Under-Secretary. The statement reflects a quote from the Rt Hon. David Lidington MP, the Minister for Europe, who states:

'The UK has repeatedly made diplomatic protests to Spain over attempts by Spanish state authorities to exercise jurisdiction in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters. Yet on 13 November there were two further serious incursions. A large Spanish naval ship conducted a prominent patrol through British Gibraltar Territorial Waters lasting several hours. Later on the same day a Spanish customs vessel sought to apprehend a Gibraltarian civilian boat in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters, forcing the Royal Gibraltar Police to intervene in order to safeguard the welfare of the four occupants.'

Mr Lidington says:

'I condemn these provocative incursions and urge the Spanish Government to ensure that they are not repeated. We believe that it is in the interests of Spain, as well as Gibraltar and Britain, to avoid any incident that may damage the prospects of developing a harmonious and collaborative relationship between Gibraltar and Spain. It is also in all parties' interests to avoid incidents which could put at risk the safety of those operating in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters. We remain confident of UK sovereignty over British Gibraltar Territorial Waters and fully committed to protecting the interests of the people of Gibraltar and their wish to remain under British sovereignty.'

Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar considers that calling in Mr Trillo reflects the seriousness of these attempts by agents of the Spanish state to exercise jurisdiction in what are indisputably British Gibraltar Territorial Waters. (A Member: Hear, hear.) It is appropriate that the diplomatic response to these belligerent acts should have been upscaled as it has. It is equally important for Gibraltar, as much as it is for the credibility of British diplomacy, that these diplomatic steps should be backed up by actions designed to usurp the indisputable British sovereignty of the waters in question.

There will therefore, no doubt, be unanimity across the floor of this House in the call for the Ministry of Defence to be able to deploy in Gibraltar as soon as possible the assets necessary to ensure the defence of these waters against the armed vessels and agents of the Spanish state. Throughout the past days, as previously when two Gibraltarian fishermen in Gibraltar Waters were illegally detained and transferred to a Spanish port, the Deputy Chief Minister and I have been in contact with the Minister for Europe and His Excellency the Governor and members of the Foreign Office staff in London and Gibraltar.

It is important that the House and the public should know that all have been hugely supportive of Gibraltar, not just in their attitude but in their actions, leading to the public call of the Spanish Ambassador today. It is just as important that their support for Gibraltar now be followed up by those with whom responsibility lies for the deployment of the assets necessary to ensure the perimeter of our nation is safe and secure and not susceptible to the illegal activities we have recently been witnesses to. Insofar as these state agents of the Kingdom of Spain are attempting to take executive action in our waters, the fact is that they are not only in breach of international laws, but also of Gibraltar laws.

The House knows and will welcome that one of the larger vessels being acquired for the Royal Gibraltar Police will soon be arriving at our shores. Our Police will therefore finally have the resources to be able to deal with such acts of criminality, as well as any other.

Finally, Mr Speaker, I want to add, and I am sure that the whole House will want to thank the officers of the Royal Gibraltar Police for the work that they do in these very difficult circumstances. The House will also want to recognise the work being done by members of the Gibraltar Defence Police and the naval ratings aboard the Royal Navy patrol boats presently stationed in Gibraltar, as well as the individuals up at Windmill Hill and the Port Department that help us reflect that these actions are occurring within what are co-ordinates of British Gibraltar Territorial Waters.

The time to back up their work with the necessary assets is now. Gibraltar has taken the steps necessary; others must also do likewise. (Applause)

Clerk: Answers to –

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, I rise to support and endorse the Hon. the Chief Minister's remarks in welcoming the upgrading of the diplomatic reaction of the British Government by calling in the Ambassador and presumably communicating to the Ambassador in strident terms the same robust message that UK Ministers have been giving us over the last few months.

I also wish to join and add the Members of this side of the House to the congratulations to the RGP and other law enforcement agents in Gibraltar and also the GDP that assists in generally dealing with this provocative behaviour.

Particularly, I think the RGP is to be congratulated for its rapid and courageous intervention on Tuesday afternoon in risking an unforeseeable Spanish reaction by actually boarding the boat that they were about to unlawfully arrest and cutting it loose from the Spanish Customs boat. I think that those are noteworthy acts of courage that deserve the praise and recognition of this House.

This House will wish to note and record the fact, I am certain, that welcome as the upgrading of the diplomatic representations are in the form of summoning the Spanish Ambassador into the Foreign Office, it cannot be the end of the line should these unacceptable incursions persist.

There are incursions of two types: simple presence in our waters, which are serious enough; and then of the sort we saw on Tuesday where they actually tried to carry out executive action, which is a wholly different type of incursion, namely usurping the actual powers and authorities that are the manifestations of sovereignty, law enforcement, judicial etc. That is wholly unacceptable and I can but express the view from the Opposition Benches that I used to express from the Government Benches, when I occupied the job now done by my hon. Friend across the floor, and that is that whilst the Opposition does not believe that a recourse to physical engagement on the waters is in anybody's interests, nevertheless the deployment by the Royal Navy of more senior, larger, permanent assets on the water will serve to act as a deterrent to Spain from engaging in these incursions in the first place. Therefore, we support for deterrent purposes the deployment by the UK of the Navy in vessels that can more effectively serve as a visible and effective, if I can repeat the word, 'deterrent'. We will see.

We have to balance the desire that I am sure we all have in Gibraltar for peaceful co-existence with our neighbours, upon which everybody's quality of life depends on the one hand, with upholding our vital sovereignty interests on the other, and that peace and stability cannot be purchased by turning a blind eye to the most outrageous and damaging usurpation and therefore damage and violation to our sovereignty.

So therefore, whilst Spain persists in these unlawful and politically unacceptable acts, the Government will stand... the Opposition rather – old habits die hard – will stand shoulder to shoulder with the Government in the Gibraltar position that these things must stop, without losing sight of the fact that it is the United Kingdom and not the Gibraltar Government or any Gibraltar agency that is responsible for defending and upholding Her Majesty the Queen's sovereignty of British Gibraltar Territorial Waters and that they are legal obligations as set out in the Constitution of Gibraltar, which is a piece of United Kingdom law that binds the UK as much as it does the Government of Gibraltar.

I am grateful to the hon. Member for bringing this news to the House. I think it is welcome, as indeed is welcome the news that broke, I think at the tail end of last week, that the Petitions Committee of Parliament in Europe had thrown out the ex-Mayor of La Línea's petition in relation to the waters and the East Side reclamation. (Applause)

Questions for Oral Answer

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

Queensway Quay car park Solar powered lamps; payment of costs

Clerk: Answers to questions continue.
Question 977/2012, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Following Question 890/2012, is the Government now in a position to advise this House whether the payment of £41,242.44 made in respect of the setting-up costs of the solar powered lamps at the Queensway Quay Car Park was made by the Government?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the cost of the lamps and the installation has been included within valuation payments made for works carried out on the first phase of the car park. The issue of who will be responsible for the cost of the car park is presently the subject of negotiation.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, that is precisely one of the issues which vexed us at the last sitting of the House. I think the Chief Minister was not sure and was going to be providing information the following day; but for whatever reason he did not, and there was uncertainty as to whether the payment of the £41,000-odd had in fact come out from Government coffers. The point being that if it had, then we were entitled to scrutinise the Government further in relation to that payment and if it had not, then presumably the matter would remain there. I think that was the issue.

I can refer the Hon. the Chief Minister to the particular points in Hansard, where he said that he was going to revert to us and get back to us the following day in relation to whether the payment had in fact been made from the public purse.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Sorry, Mr Speaker, I thought I had said that we were going to provide the information in this House, but it may be that we said the following day.

As far as I understand it, the payment has been made by the owners of the site and the issue is whether that will be included in any amount paid by the Government or not, and that is still to be negotiated.

Hon. D J Bossino: Given that, Mr Speaker, he starts the answer with 'as far as I understand it', presumably there is no certainty as yet. Is that correct?

Hon. P R Caruana: [Inaudible] You must be certain –

Hon. Chief Minister: No, the certainty is that the Government has been invoiced for it, but there is no certainty that the Government has paid it because any payments that have been made do not relate, in my view, to that particular expense. The whole expense of that car park, which involves a lot more than has yet been invoiced, is still a matter that is being negotiated. There are issues as to premium there and on other sites in respect of that consortium.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am not sure, the Hon. the Chief Minister may recall, but there was another sort of line of questioning which I was posing as to whether there was Government involvement in respect of the choosing of the corporate entity that would have provided the solar lamps. I think he was also going to check that and revert to me in relation to that. Is he able to enlighten the House in relation to that?

Hon. Chief Minister: I am able to enlighten the House in that respect. The lamps were not chosen by the Government; they were chosen by the party that own the land.

Hon. D J Bossino: That own the land.

Hon. Chief Minister: That own the land.

Hon. D J Bossino: More than the structure themselves, what I was concerned about is to which company the contracts had been given and presumably the answer is in the same vein, is it?

Hon. Chief Minister: Not a company to which the Government gave any contract. The Government has seen this land developed as a car park. That development has been dealt with by the parties that own the land and they have determined who does the work, whether it is the asphaltting, the painting of lines or the installation of lamp posts.

CHIEF MINISTER

Chief Minister's official car Details of use

Clerk: Question 991, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, good afternoon, Mr Speaker.

Can the Chief Minister say whether the Government is willing to publish details of the use of the Chief Minister's official car, registration plate G1 and provide details to this House in respect of same?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker I can confirm that the Chief Minister's official car, the G1, continues to be used for exactly the same purpose as by all previous Chief Ministers. I am advised that publishing any such details would create serious issues of security.

Referendum on the 2006 Constitution
Act of self-determination

Clerk: Question 992, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Chief Minister accept the United Kingdom's publicly expressed position that the referendum on the 2006 Constitution constituted an act of self-determination?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, my position remains exactly as set out in paragraph 8 of the Motion unanimously passed by this House on 30th October 2006 which I had the pleasure to support.

Hon. D A Feetham: So I take it that the position is that you do agree with the United Kingdom's position that the referendum on the Constitution was an act of self-determination?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I agree as set out in paragraph 8 of the Motion as follows: that subject to the final paragraph of paragraph 7, the House noted and welcomed the statements made by the British Government publicly in Gibraltar in the House of Commons on 4th July 2006 and in the United Nations on 5th October 2006, that the referendum, being the referendum to which that Motion related, in which the draft new Constitution was put to the people of Gibraltar for their decision, will be an exercise of the right of self-determination by the people of Gibraltar in the context set out in those statements.

That is the end of the paragraph. Mr Speaker, I know he was not in the House then, but that is what all of us who were here then supported.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but the reason why I have asked this question is because it struck me as very curious use of language, which I thought perhaps could not be coincidental, when he actually referred to, before the United Nations, that it is the UK's view that the referendum on the Constitution constituted an act of self-determination. He appears to be drawing the same distinction there. In other words, on the one hand it is the UK's view and you welcomed the UK's view, but I am not asking whether you welcome the UK's view or about the UK's view; I am asking whether you agree that it was an act of self-determination. That is the question, really. It requires no more than a yes or a no, if it is one or the other.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it might, but I am not going to answer in the terms that the hon. Gentleman wishes me to answer; I am going to answer in the terms that I think are appropriate. (Laughter) There is a lot of law here. (Interjections) (Mr Speaker: Order! Order!)

The hon. Gentleman may not know enough about self-determination to know that there is a lot of doctrine in international law that deals with when an act of self-determination is occurring and what are the pre-requisites of that and he may have forgotten enough of the issues which are relevant in Gibraltar to know that, at the time of that referendum, whilst in the House of Commons, these statements were made which were very clear and unequivocal, there were also some comments made outside the House of Commons with which all Members of this House were not so happy and which might have suggested that the exercise of the right of self-determination by the people of Gibraltar were somehow curtailed by the Treaty of Utrecht.

I am delighted by the statements that Mr Hoon made in Parliament in relation to these matters and those are, in my view, the statements that matter the most, but there were other statements made by Mr Hoon at the time, which called into question exactly what rights the people of Gibraltar enjoy and I am sure that there is unanimity across the floor of this House that the people of Gibraltar enjoy an unfettered right of self-determination.

Hon. D A Feetham: Again, I am not asking about whether the people of Gibraltar enjoy an unfettered right to self-determination. I accept that in fact the UK, whilst recognising that the referendum on the new Constitution was an act of self-determination, may say that the right of self-determination of the people of Gibraltar is constrained by the Treaty of Utrecht and therefore independence is out of the question. I understand all that. That is not the question. What I am asking is whether the Government accepts that the referendum – the act of the people of Gibraltar adopting and agreeing to the new Constitution – was an act of self-determination. It is a very simple question.

I am not going to ask it again, save to sit down and invite the Hon. the Chief Minister to answer it.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman saying that he is not going to repeat the same question for a third time. I refer him to my original answer and to paragraph 8 of the Motion approved unanimously by this House.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister prefixed his last but one answer to my hon. Colleague here by saying he may not know enough about self-determination. Assuming that means that he does, knowing what he knows about international definitions of self-determination, can he then say whether in accordance with what he knows about self-determination, the referendum was 'an act'? The question is very specifically phrased not to be a political trap. We are not saying it is the act; we are not saying it is the definitive act; we are not saying it is the act of self-determination that delivers de-colonisation or any particular form of de-colonisation. The question is whether the referendum is an act of self-determination.

Even if the Hon. the Chief Minister is wanting – for reasons that I do not understand – but even if he were wanting to be cagey about not wanting to be drawn on that question, it is not the question he is being drawn on. The question is whether a referendum, convened by the Government of Gibraltar, in which it asks the people of Gibraltar 'Do you support, do you want this Constitution, yes or no?', whether that is an act of self-determination.

The question is not as deep and as wide as he may have assumed it was at the time that he put together the answer that he did.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful I should not have assumed that the question had depth or width of knowledge, then.

Well, Mr Speaker, put it this way: what he and I know about the international doctrine of self-determination is that for an act of self-determination to be in keeping with the United Nations doctrine on de-colonisation, all relevant options have to be put to the people of the territory that are being asked, to determine in a referendum which choice they make.

I do not want to say anything in this House which in any way damages the position of Gibraltar and therefore I will limit myself to say that the referendum in 2006 asked people whether they wished to adopt a Constitution or not; the referendum in 2002 asked people whether they wished to proceed down the road of considering joint sovereignty; and the referendum in 1967 asked people whether they wished to remain British or not.

By the hon. Gentleman's definition that each of those is an act of self-determination (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) by the definition of the United Nations on what constitutes an act of self-determination, which can lead to de-colonisation, it is very likely that the definition of self-determination is not made out by the referendum of 2006.

The hon. Gentleman will know that there was an issue as to legal advice then from an Attorney General, as to whether even some Gibraltar referenda might or might not be binding.

So, Mr Speaker, I do not believe this is a question that is susceptible or wise to answer with yes or no, because there is a lot more depth to it than might be appreciated.

Constitutional development Chief Minister's vision

Clerk: Question 993, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what further devolution, if any, did the Chief Minister envisage when he said in an interview with Canal Sur that Gibraltar can take further steps down the road of constitutional development?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I did not envisage any particular model when I replied to the question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, there must be some model that he had in mind, when he made the statement. It may well be that he had a number of models in mind. Is he in a position to at the very least enlighten the House in relation to that?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, once again, I can enlighten the House as to what the very many options available might be. One of them, for example, Mr Speaker, is the result of the Select Committee on Constitutional Reform of the House of Assembly, as this House then was, dated 2002, which in a report set out what this House believed the new Constitution to be negotiated with the United Kingdom should be, which was not exactly what came back from London, when the team returned with the Constitution that we have today.

So this model, Mr Speaker, signed by those who were members of that Committee, is one such status and there are many others. I do not want to stand here and give the hon. Gentleman a tutorial in international law.

Hon. D A Feetham: I did not think the hon. Gentleman is in a position ever to give me a tutorial on any aspect of the law.

Does the Chief Minister think that there is an inconsistency with the statement that he gave to Canal Sur in the statements that he has made in the past, and indeed to this House? I will just read the statements he has made, for the benefit of the Chief Minister. On 19th January 2012 in this House, he said this, on page 3 of the Report in Hansard, line 110:

‘The important thing is that we believe’

– in other words you, the Government –

‘that we have achieved the maximum possible level of self-government...’

– end quote. He then drew the distinction between that and delisting, which I agree is a separate issue. He then said in an interview with La Razon – and I am quoting the translation that the Government itself provided of that interview – he then said this:

‘Gibraltar has achieved in its Constitution a self-government which is very close to independence whilst we remain under the British Crown. Since 2006 the internal battle has been for the United Nation to recognise that Constitution.’

Now does he not accept that there is an inconsistency between the statements that he gave to Canal Sur and those statements that I have just read to the Chief Minister?

May I also ask him this – can he deal with this supplementary as well: is his new position – because I do believe it is a new position – as expressed to Canal Sur, a reaction to our statement that the Government appear to be converging with the Opposition’s view in this area?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, first supplementary no, second supplementary no, for this reason.

Let me start by saying this Mr Speaker. There are some universities that have very high entrance grades and requirements. If I had a university, it would have such high grades and he would never get the chance to be tutored in law by me, as a result!

Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has spent the past six months, I assume, in an attempt to try and ingratiate himself with those in Gibraltar who have never been able to identify with his party, trying to pretend that he can represent Nationalists and those who are not Nationalists at the same time. I think that he felt – and I am not imputing any motive; I am just giving him my thoughts as to what I thought he felt – when he saw Casemates brimming full of proud Gibraltarians, that he needed to do everything possible to ensure that if he ever becomes the Leader of the GSD – and we know what chances deputies in the GSD ever have of becoming Leaders of that Party – that he should be able to sit on that stage and see the crowds of people before him.

He is therefore, Mr Speaker, trying to achieve that which he accuses me of: namely, he is trying to converge with us. Our position, Mr Speaker, has been consistent and clear for many years. The GSLP’s position, under the leadership of Mr Bossano and under my leadership now has been consistent and clear, and the position of the Liberal Party with us in coalition has been consistent and clear.

I believe, Mr Speaker, that of all people in this House, the last one to get up and give lessons in consistency is the Hon. Mr Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am afraid that his position is as clear as mud, with respect to the Hon. the Chief Minister, as to the university that I attended. It is the same university that our senior partner from our firm, Mr Levy attended, Manchester University.

Mr Speaker, he also, in an interview with GBC – if he requires notice of the question, I will provide it next time round – he said – which was after we had come out with a press release saying that their position appeared to be converging with ours – that there was ‘an opportunity for further slicing of the salami in constitutional terms’.

Can he tell us what he meant by ‘further slicing of salami in constitutional terms’, because certainly on this side of the House we are interested in real progress for the people of Gibraltar’ not the exercise of self-determination to slice salami?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, they did very well when they let James Levy in, but I do not know what they were thinking when they let him in.

Mr Speaker, there are clearly many statuses between where we are today and independence. This was the issue that, in a clearly co-ordinated step between him and Mr Xiberras who lives beyond our shores and perhaps one other individual, they were trying to corral into different articles in different places in the past few weeks.

How is it that he does not know that there can be many different shades of political status between where we are and independence? There are thousands of possible permutations, each of them a step forward for the people of Gibraltar. Indeed, Mr Speaker, I have no hesitation in saying that no sooner was the ink dry on the existing Constitution than one of the things that his present Leader, then Chief Minister was accused of doing, was trying to take the Constitution further by what is not written in the Constitution – and quite right that he should have done that too, and hasn’t every Chief Minister under every Constitution always tried to go further?

If there is any nuance in any Constitution, Mr Speaker, in our view, it must be resolved in favour of the people, in this case the people of Gibraltar. I think the position is crystal clear. There are thousands of potential steps forward, different permutations of how the Royal Prerogative is exercised.

Mr Speaker, it is so clear that I think it would be impossible for me to sit down and give him every possible permutation which would make up the slices that I mentioned in that salami. There is just too much and in legal theory, it is sometimes impossible to cover every possible permutation. Would some of those permutations be in the interests of the people of Gibraltar? Of course they would. Would some be not in the interests of the people of Gibraltar? Well, they might not be or we might disagree as to whether they are or whether they are not. But this is not a place to debate legal theory, Mr Speaker. This is a place for information to be provided to the Opposition.

If they want to debate with me what are the possible next steps for Gibraltar constitutionally, let them bring a Motion and let us have the debate.

Hon. D A Feetham: But does the Hon. Chief Minister not accept – and he thinks that I am trying to catch him out but I am not, I am genuinely trying to see whether it is possible... and we were genuine when we came out with the press release welcoming what we felt was a change of position. We are trying to establish whether it is possible to have common ground and unity across the floor on this particular issue. Now, does he not accept that there is a distinction between saying on the one hand, as he did in Canal Sur, that there is potential for further constitutional models – by which any reasonable person would understand, what by constitutional models, you are dealing with, either free association or independence or something else – and slicing of salami in constitutional terms, which I understand as tweaking the Constitution, for example, trying to claw back some of the residual powers that the UK Government has in constitutional terms. I am just trying to get to the bottom of what is Government policy? Is Government policy the salami or is Government policy looking for a new model, by which I understand, a new model to mean, a new status from what we have today?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker look, the hon. Gentleman – I am going to forgive him – just obviously does not understand. He does not understand these issues and, therefore, he does not see that there cannot be a conflict between those two positions that he has put. But of course, I do not accept anything that he has said, even the quotes that he attributes to them, unless I read them myself and he has not seen fit to give me the material and I have not had the opportunity to research it.

So just based on the premise that he puts and assuming that he is actually reading the quotes that are there, I do not accept that there is conflict. If he cannot see the way out of that dead end that he has got himself into by saying there is a conflict, then look, he is either not wanting to understand it or not understanding it.

But Mr Speaker, I have to address the premise of the question. If he wants common ground and unity in the interests of Gibraltar, all he needs to do is pick up the phone and let us have a chat about it. Let us write to each other about it, but let us not debate it across the floor of the House, because Mr Speaker, anybody who says, ‘I am trying to find common ground in the interests of Gibraltar’ and does it across a parliamentary floor is not really interested in doing anything other than scoring political points and pretending that he is the man for unity, when in fact, all he is trying to do is to shimmy his way into the political ground that, by being in that political party, he has lost.

Mr Speaker, there is a huge advantage to be gained by Gibraltar having, on the important political issues, real unity between its political leaders. If he ever becomes one of our political leaders, I will open the door to him to have the debate or pick up the phone from him to have the discussion; but if he is serious about it, he would not do it across the floor of the House. This is just a cheap attempt to score political points with those that he thinks he needs to impress.

If he wants to do that, my view is that he should do it by way of Motion, not by way of a pretend question.

Potential investors to Gibraltar
Details

Clerk: Question 994, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Is the Chief Minister in a position to provide details of the potential investors to Gibraltar which he said prior to the Election he was in discussions with, together with the investment they will be making, bearing in mind that in answer to Question 81/2012, he said that those discussions had already borne fruit?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the answer remains as set out in answer to Question 81/2012.

Hon. D A Feetham: Is there any particular reason why, having said to me earlier on this year – in fact I think it was the beginning of this year – Question 81 must have been January, latest February – that those discussions had borne fruit, that he is not in a position to provide some further information to this House about those investors?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, because although they may have borne fruit and discussions may be ongoing, it is not yet appropriate for the Government to make a public statement. I also told him that we would make a public statement when the time came.

Census Act (2012 Census) Order 2012
Constitutionality

Clerk: Question 995, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Did the Chief Minister obtain advice as to whether the Census Act (2012 Census) Order 2012 was constitutional before enacting it?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, indeed, I sought advice on the constitutionality of the Census Act (2012 Census) Order 2012 and was advised that the Order was constitutional.

The 2012 Order only differs from the 2001 Order in that certain further particulars are to be stated in the returns. The Member seems to be concerned in particular about the new questions being asked on a person's health and that these may infringe a person's right to privacy contrary to sections 1 and 7 of the Constitution.

I say that, Mr Speaker, because in a statement issued by the hon. Member, he explained that this was why he was asking the question.

The Member should note, first of all, that virtually every question and not just those on health asked in the Census may constitute an interference with a person's right to privacy. It is the very purpose of the Census to ask 'intrusive' questions of such nature.

Unsurprisingly, therefore, the matter has come before the European Commission of Human Rights in complaints filed under Article 8 of the European Convention of Human Rights. Strasbourg has ruled that:

'where the information gathered by the means of a census is treated with care and confidentiality, the interference thereby occasioned with the applicant's rights to respect for his private and family life is necessary in a democratic society.'

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Civil Service jobs
Details of AA grade vacancies

Clerk: Question 996, the Hon. D A Feetham.

530

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government please state out of the 40 AA vacancies advertised in the Civil Service (a) how many have been employed in that grade; (b) of those employed in that grade, how many were on the unemployment list and for how long and/or employed by Employment Training Company Limited under the Future Job Strategy scheme?

535

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the position remains as stated in my answer to Question 852/2012. The selection process has not yet been finalised.

540

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, in answer to that particular question, the Hon. the Chief Minister said 40 vacancies had been advertised, one new AA vacancy has been created within the Civil Service. Is that because the other 39 have been created within the GDC? Is that the position?

545

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman's question is just completely out of the ball park. How can Civil Service vacancies be for the GDC? These vacancies are for the Civil Service.

550

Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely, look, the Hon. the Chief Minister... I have been very, very patient this afternoon. He seems to think, he seems to take offence to me standing on my feet and asking him a question. I am going to be here for a very long time (Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely!) (Interjections) and he had better get used to answering questions! (A Member: Hear, hear!) (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: Order! Order!

555

Hon. P R Caruana: Three years is a very long time!

560

Hon. D A Feetham: The answer that he gave me was 40 vacancies had been advertised, one new AA vacancy had been created within the Civil Service. My understanding of the position was that the grade AA has been created... is a grade that has actually been revived by this Government, hence why I have interpreted the answer in this particular way.

If the answer is no, all 40 have been created within the Civil Service, that is the answer. It is just that the answer that he gave me last time was actually quite confusing.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will pass that on to the Head of the Civil Service.

Mr Speaker, if it is of any assistance, for however long he may be there – and I trust it will be very long indeed and after many elections – I can tell him that by the next Parliament, I will have more information about those vacancies, if he wishes to ask again.

570

Hon. D A Feetham: Am I right that all 40 vacancies have therefore been created within the Civil Service? Is this the revival of the AA grade, with all those 40 vacancies being created within the Civil Service? Why did he, on the last occasion, say one new AA vacancy has been created in the Civil Service? This is what I do not understand.

575

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, because there are other posts that AAs fill, Mr Speaker, and there are vacant AO posts that may be filled by some people who hold AA or equivalent vacancies today in the Civil Service, Mr Speaker. It may have been that no AAs have been recruited for some time, that the entry grade was not AA for some time, but there were still people within the Service who were at AA or equivalent grades. I am assured that that is the position, Mr Speaker.

580

Hon. D A Feetham: Well no, Mr Speaker, there were no AA grades; it was AO. We abolished the AA grade.

Now unless, of course, the Government... The answer has been written obviously by a civil servant: the Chief Minister does not understand the answer that has been written by a civil servant. It has two interpretations: either they have created an AA grade and all 40 vacancies are within the Civil Service; or alternatively, as he appears to indicate, one of them was in the Civil Service, 39 were in the GDC, because... Indeed there is another question in the Order Paper about this, I do not know what the answer is going to be, but the answer could be that, in fact, there is going to be an attempt by the Government or a policy of the Government of actually equalising the grades between the GDC and the Civil Service. Therefore the AAs – those other 39 – are within the GDC, hence why I have asked him.

What I would like to know is what the position is.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not that I do not understand the answer; it is that apparently the hon. Member cannot read and understand what has been given to him, even when he reads it for a month in Hansard. One new AA vacancy has been created. It could not be clearer, Mr Speaker. The position is very clear. (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham) Mr Speaker, there are, whether the hon. Gentleman likes it or not – and he needs to listen to what I say and not hear what he wants to hear – AA equivalent grades still in the Government. There are people who are holding those posts, like word processor typists. Mr Speaker, therefore some of them may fill up other grades of employment in the Service and people who are recruited now fill those grades at the equivalent of AA.

Mr Speaker, I have tried to be helpful by saying that there will be more information available in the next Parliament, which is what I am told by the Head of the Civil Service. If he is genuinely interested in the information, if he asks then – sorry?

Hon. P R Caruana: The next Parliament, so the next meeting?

Hon. Chief Minister: The next meeting of Parliament, yes. I know before there used to be very few meetings of Parliament, but by the next meeting of Parliament, which is in the next month, it will be available.

Hon. D A Feetham: So the answer is, so that I understand it, that when I asked about the AA grades, and indeed there were no AA grades in the GSD Government, (Interjection) what you are saying is that there were typists or other people occupying certain posts that were the equivalent of the old AA grade, because they were not AOs, and when you answered last time round, 40 vacancies had been advertised, one new AA vacancy has been created within the Civil Service, what you are telling me is that you are treating those posts as if they were AA. Is that what you are saying?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, what I am saying is what I have said. I am not going to... This is not about me getting up and saying the same things all over again in the way that the hon. Gentleman may find more appropriate. I think I have been as clear as crystal, he will think the opposite and Question Time is about eliciting information. I have given him the information that I have and I have told him I will have more information at the next meeting of this Parliament.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Public debt Details as at 30th September and 31st October 2012

Clerk: Question 997, the Hon. P R Caruana. (Interjections and laughter)

Hon. P R Caruana: I have been waiting here patiently for a while now.

Now, Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say what was (i) the gross public debt; (ii) the cash reserves; and (iii) the net public debt at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 998 and 1000.

Clerk: Question 998.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister give a breakdown, by bank and amount, of that part of the aggregate public debt which comprises bank debt, as at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Question 1000.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister give a breakdown, by debenture issue, of that part of the aggregate debt which comprises Government debentures, as at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a statement with the information requested.

Answer to Question 997/2012

Figures for October 2012 are not yet finalised by Treasury. The gross public debt, cash reserves and net public debt position for September was as follows:

	30-Sep-12
	£'M
Gross Public Debt	487.69
Cash Reserves (tentative)	197.14
Net Public Debt (tentative)	290.55

Answer to Question 998/2012

The aggregate public debt position which comprises bank debt was as follows:

Bank Loan Revolving Facilities	30-Sep-12	31-Oct-12
	£'M	£'M
Barclays Bank	150.00	150.00
Natwest Bank	50.00	50.00
	200.00	200.00

Answer to Question 1000/2012

The aggregate public debt position which comprises Government debentures was as follows:

Government of Gibraltar Debentures

Summary of the Public Debt as at :	30-Sep-2012	31-Oct-2012
Pensioners' Monthly Income Debentures (3.5%)	£46,785,700	£46,631,700
Monthly Income Debentures (2%)	£7,180,700	£7,046,800

Hon. P R Caruana: Ah, the figures for October are not yet final. Mr Speaker, can the hon. Member offer an explanation why the Government is not able to say, 16 days after the date that I have asked for, what the gross public debt in the cash reserves are?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, because the Treasury does not yet have the information to give. It is not a figure that we have ever resisted providing, neither did he, I think, so it is a Treasury –

Hon. P R Caruana: But it is unusual, 16 days. Normally you can.

Hon. Chief Minister: Fourteen days, isn't it? (Interjection by Hon. J J Bossano) The hon. Gentleman may know that the Financial Secretary has been away: I do not know whether that might be one of the issues.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the hon. Member say, given that he is aware from the General Election campaign and subsequent exchanges that, in our view, the real measure of indebtedness is the net public debt. The gross public debt can be reduced simply by transferring cash from the cash reserves and paying it back to the lenders and indeed, when the Government was issuing debentures in its own name, the gross public debt would rise every time somebody went in and bought a debenture from the Government.

So it is really the net public debt that measures the uncovered debt liability of the Government. Can the hon. Member say in respect of the net public debt, therefore, whether the Government has any target for its reduction or is its target limited as he has said in the past...? Well, I will restructure that question to make sure it is not leading.

We know that there is a target in the manifesto for the reduction of the gross public debt. Does the Government have a target for the reduction of the net public debt during this term of office or in any period within it?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think we have dealt with this issue before. In fact, I think we dealt with it just after the General Election in the Hansards for January and February, when we had some debates on this issue.

Mr Speaker, our position has been that both need to be reduced.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, but you have a target?

Hon. Chief Minister: We have not given a figure. That is the debate we have had before.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am asking now whether you have a target.

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, not a cash figure.

Hon. P R Caruana: Given that I was never able to persuade the hon. Member that affordability of debt was a product of its percentage of the size of your economy, which I am sure the previous leader of that party understood, when the hon. Member says it should be reduced and therefore, although he has not got a number target, a cash target for the reduction of net public debt, he has expressed the view that it should be lowered or lower, is that in absolute terms or as a percentage of GDP?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is a lot of material on this in the manifesto, and I am sure that we have had this debate in this Chamber before about this figure. I think we have said more than once that there is no figure in absolute terms that we are looking at which is connected in any way as a ratio to the GDP, so not a percentage figure.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, the reason why I am asking is this: that he says in this House that he thinks that the net public debt should be reduced. Well, of course, it is always better to owe less money than to owe more money, but of course most people would interpret a reduction as being, 'I used to owe £290 million – owing less means that I owe less than £290 million' – £270 million; £250 million or £230 million. But in economic terms, you can lower the net public debt as a proportion of GDP whilst actually raising the number. In other words, £290 million may be a proportion of GDP and that a higher amount – £320 million – may be a lower percentage of a higher sized economy, of an increased GDP figure, so that is the relevance of asking.

Three years from now, is he going to hopefully be able to boast that he has reduced the figure of £290 million to some lower figure than £290 million; or is he going to say, 'When I came into office, net public debt was 21% of GDP and it is now 19% of GDP', even though it is a higher figure in cash terms?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker. The position I think is clear. We are going to come to this House, hopefully, to say – no doubt to say – that it is a lower figure in cash terms. Mr Speaker, there is a very clear statement about what we think the definition of net debt should be and how it should be changed, actually, to be more prudential on page 27 of the manifesto. It was around that definition, I think, that we had the debate previously.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries?

Next question.

Cash balances of Government Agencies
30th September and 31st October 2012

Clerk: Question 999, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say what were the cash balances held in each Government Company, Agency or Authority as at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, Government Agencies and Authorities have no cash balances as their expenditure is funded by way of contributions from the Consolidated Fund as and when required. Similarly, the annual current net expenditure requirements of Government Companies are funded by way of contributions from the Consolidated Fund, as and when required.

I am therefore advised by the Treasury that details of cash balances held by each Government Company or Agency are currently not available, as these depend on capital inflows and outflows, the allocations of which will not be finalised by the Treasury until the financial year end, when I assume they can be published.

Hon. P R Caruana: So there are cash balances but we cannot work them out at the moment, or the net figure of money in, funded in or funded out.

I will tell you the reason why I am asking, Mr Speaker – perhaps I will phrase it by way of a supplementary. The hon. Member will recall that at the time of the Budget debate, we argued about whether the real surplus was around £50 million or around the £30-odd million that was reported. I said to the hon. Member that he had artificially reduced the size of the Budget from what I thought it should have been reported at, nearly around the £50 million –

Hon. Chief Minister: The surplus.

Hon. P R Caruana: The surplus. Sorry what did I say? I beg your pardon.

Hon. Chief Minister: The Budget.

Hon. P R Caruana: The surplus, thank you, the surplus – and that he had artificially reduced this I challenged by what subsequently transpired, which I think he accepted, which was that they had charged to this year's expenditure account provisions in respect of previous years' deficits in the Companies. Now, given that previous years' deficits in the Companies did not mean that the Companies had an overdraft at a bank; the Government had funded... Those deficits from the Company for previous years arose because they were doing projects and the Government was funding that expenditure.

Well, if the Government was funding that expenditure, the Companies have no liability. There may have been a book-keeping entry between the Government and the Companies, where the Companies owed the Government, or a suspense account of the Government, money.

So when the Government says 'in this year's Budget' or last year's Budget, basically for the year ending 31st March 2012, I am charging £17 million for previous year Company expenditure, that capital, that expenditure... Well, that is what I said happened and that is what I think you accepted. I think you accepted that the capital expenditure involved for Companies involved more than one year. (Hon. J J Bossano: No.) Yes, he did. This is common ground, Mr Speaker. This is common ground by what the Chief Minister said in this House.

The Chief Minister said in this House, and he gave me a breakdown of the figure of what was... yes. (Interjection by Hon. J J Bossano) Yes, yes what was capital. That capital had already been funded and therefore, where is that capital now? Did it stay in the Consolidated Fund? Was it just a book-keeping entry so that it was not really money that the Government was spending this year – which was the point that I was trying to make in the Budget?

Either the Government was spending that £17 million or so – I do not remember what the net figure was between the £50 million and the £30-odd million... Either the Government was not spending that money out of the Consolidated Fund, in which case it should have been reported, it had not spent that money out of the Consolidated Fund and therefore, it should have been in the Consolidated Fund as at 31st March, and therefore reported, as part of the surplus; or the Government was in settlement of some deficit or some advance account liability or whatever the Companies owed, paying it out of the Consolidated Fund, in which case he was right to debit it. But then that money has to be paid somewhere, there has to be a recipient of the money and given that the Companies had already been funded in the expenditure – (Interjection) Yes, the Companies did not owe a contractor £17 million in respect of previous year profits. It had already been paid for by the Government and therefore that £17 million, I would expect to be sitting, if it has left the Consolidated Fund as of 31st March – remember we are talking about expenditure sitting in the Companies.

So the hon. Member is saying to me now, as I understand his answer to my question, there is no cash. There are no cash balances in any of these Companies because they do not maintain cash balances. What happens is that when they have liabilities, the Government sends money in and when they have revenue, the Companies send the revenue up to the Government, so there is never any cash balance in any of the Companies or Agencies. That is the tenet of what the original answer to my question has been. There are no cash balances because it is all funded by the Consolidated Fund.

I am asking the hon. Member, first of all, to confirm that there are no cash balances in the Companies and if there are no cash balances in the Companies, what happened to that part of the charge on the Consolidated Fund that was reported, in our view, to reduce the surplus for last year by a figure which included not that year just ending's expenditure by the Company, but by the hon. Member's admission, previous years' expenditure by Companies which had already been funded by the Government.

(Interjection)
Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member... Let us at least agree that if the facts as I... If the Hon. the Minister for Employment is suggesting that my factual explanation is incorrect, well fine. Let us at least agree that if my factual explanation is not incorrect, which can be established later, then those £17 million have got to be somewhere, and I am asking whether they are in the Companies?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we had, he is right to say, a very lengthy debate about these issues and I want to say that this was a debate which involved very detailed consideration of the figures that were before the House at the time, which is reflected in Hansard and which I do not recall led us to agreeing on anything.

So, Mr Speaker, the position of the Government is as set out in my reply to his Budget address then. I think the figures reflect very accurately what the position is and there are today, as I have said in my first answer, no cash balances in these Agencies or Authorities for the reasons I have set out.

Despite the length of the question, which I accept was intended to help us understand why it is that the hon. Gentleman wanted the information, I do not recognise that he is right in what he is saying. But Mr Speaker, if he wishes, Mr Speaker, I will review the Hansard of the reply to the Budget debate and his points, and see whether it is possible to distil from that and this question, some information which is available and which he can have and which may enable him to have what he wants to have, to do the calculation that he wants to do.

Hon. P R Caruana: Okay, Mr Speaker, I accept that offer, but what the hon. Member is saying to me now is that there is not... I have mentioned the figure of £17 million, but I am not suggesting it is £17 million. I cannot remember how much was in dispute. I thought it should be around £50 million and he reported £30-something million. So it is... Whatever that figure is of around about £17 million, the hon. Member is saying to the House today that there is no Company, Agency or Authority that has that degree of money available to it outside of the control of this House. In other words, that there is not a Company or Government Agency with an equivalent amount of cash, sitting in it which is available to be spent by those Companies outside of the appropriation mechanism of this House.

That is really the question that I am asking.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, and I have answered it, I believe, (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) as clearly as I have. I have set out, Mr Speaker, (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) and I will repeat it, if the hon. Gentleman wants, that Government Agencies and Authorities have no cash balances, as their expenditure is funded by way of contributions from the Consolidated Fund and then went on to read the rest of it and especially, Mr Speaker, the issue about when the information will be available to the Treasury about allocations, etc, which are made in respect of these Companies, which will not be until the financial year end.

Hon. P R Caruana: I accept that as the answer then, if that is what he means to say –

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, if what he is saying is, 'Is your answer, your answer?' then yes, Mr Speaker, my answer is my answer.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, but Mr Speaker, this is why I wanted clarification. The answer is the Companies have no cash balances, and if he had stopped there, it would have been clear. If he had stopped at 'the Companies have no cash balances because they are funded by the Consolidated Fund' – full stop – that would have contained the answer to my supplementary as well. But he then went on to say about the Treasury not having the figures and I want to know if that derogates from the part of his answer

860 which is clear. In other words, is he saying the companies have no balance because they have got no cash or are they saying, 'It is all about reconciling figures and we will not know if they have got any balances until the Treasury does some work, which it has not been able to do yet', which is the second part of his answer, which is less clear than the first.

865 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, the first part is the position that accurately and succinctly reflects the position.

Hon. P R Caruana: Then that gives the answer to my supplementary.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Gibraltar Savings Bank
Details of debt security and investments

875 Clerk: Question 1001, the Hon. P R Caruana.

880 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister give a breakdown by nominal value and issue of the debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank and outstanding as at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

885 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 1002.

Clerk: Question 1002.

890 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister give a breakdown of the investments, including cash advances, if any, of the Gibraltar Savings Bank as at each of 30th September and 31st October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

895 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a statement with the information requested on the value of debentures and the debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

As regards the breakdown of corresponding investments, these have not yet been finalised by the Treasury.

900 Hon. P R Caruana: How is it possible for the Treasury not to know, as at a date nearly three weeks ago, where its money was invested?

If you said to me that they had not had time to type out the list, I could understand it. There is nothing for the Treasury to finalise. As at the date, which has passed some days ago, the question is, where was the Government's money invested in or the Savings Bank's money invested in. I do not see that there is anything for the Treasury to have finalised or not finalised.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is the answer which I have been provided by the Treasury, so I will be very surprised if they had been able to finalise things and had not been ready to provide it to me.

910 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, is the Government able to say whether all the monies representing debentures issued by...? (Interjection)

The question is a bit technical, so I thought I would wait until I was certain that he was hearing it.

915 Mr Speaker, is the Hon. the Chief Minister able to confirm that all the money represented by the issue of these debentures by the Savings Bank is held either in cash or in near cash by the Savings Bank, either in floating rate notes or in debentures, market instruments of that sort?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is what the Savings Bank Act provides that the investment must be held in. So unless somebody is in breach of the Savings Bank Act, then yes, I can confirm that.

920 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, these questions are designed – I do not mind telling the hon. Member what the questions are designed to establish – whether, and if so when, the Government should ever – and they are designed to see whether it has happened already and if the answer is no, then to see if it happens in the future... It is designed to establish whether the Government is procuring that the Savings Bank – which is nothing more than a special fund of the Government – whether the Savings Bank is lending money to the Government, either directly in cash or through the investment by the Savings Bank in Gibraltar Government debentures. That would just be a way of lending Savings Bank debenture holder monies to the Government.

930 In other words, if I go to the Savings Bank and I buy £100,000 worth of Savings Bank debentures and the Savings Bank uses that money to buy £100,000 of Government debentures, as an investment for the Savings Bank, then my £100,000 has been lent by the Savings Bank to the Government. I make no comment about what view one should take on that; I am just trying to find out whether it is happening or not happening.

935 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, given that he was the one that removed the 10% buffer in respect of the Savings Bank, on the basis that it was a Government bank underwritten by the Government in the Consolidated Fund, I would expect him to make no point about that.

But Mr Speaker, my position remains exactly as I said a moment ago. As far as I understand it, all investments of the Bank are in cash or near cash, which is what the Savings Bank Act requires.

940 Hon. P R Caruana: And therefore have not been used either to lend cash to the Government or to purchase Government debt instruments, like Government debentures.

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, if those things are neither cash nor near cash, they have not.

945 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, look this is an important enough issue for me to be entitled to a clear answer. (Interjection)

950 Either the Government allows and procures... Given that it controls the Savings Bank, either the Government allows the Savings Bank to lend its money to the Government, so that Savings Bank's debentures are subject to the financial viability – thankfully, healthy – of the Government; or the Savings Bank debenture monies are ring fenced, kept in separate accounts in the Bank of England and not ever subject to the Government's ability to repay public debt.

Mr Speaker, I am not making a comment that it would be right or wrong, or how right or how wrong it would be. I am simply asking a question which I think is important enough just to attract a simple yes or no answer from the Government.

955 Is the Government allowing debenture Savings Bank monies, which represent monies paid to the Savings Bank in exchange for Savings Bank debentures by savers... is the Savings Bank allowed to use that money to buy Government debentures or to cash lend to the Government, both of which would represent using Savings Bank debenture holders' money to fund public debt? As they do in England, by the way – there are lots of countries where this is exactly how the public debt is funded.

960 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think this is a very important point and I think it is very important that I deal with the point that the hon. Gentleman first made. Are the Savings Bank's investments in cash or near cash? Yes, they are. Does that investment include the Government's debentures or lending to the Government? Well, Mr Speaker, I have, a moment ago, answered the question as to what Government debt is. The answer is that Government debt is going down, he has seen it and he has seen what the revolving facilities are and he will see that there is there, not disclosed, the Government Savings Bank as a lender to the Government. It would have to be disclosed there, if there were any Government lending or any Government debt to the Gibraltar Savings Bank. It is not there.

970 So if he says it is that important, well, Mr Speaker, so be it that he thinks it is that important and if he looks at the answer in respect of Government borrowing, he will see that there is no lending from the Gibraltar Savings Bank, either to the Government directly or through debentures.

975 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, that is the answer to my question, which he could have given me, without adding the inaccurate preamble. His preamble is inaccurate, because the answer to the previous question tells me not what he has just said it tells me.

If I look at the total amount issued by the Government in Government debentures, I have not got a list of the debenture holders, I do not know who the investors in those debentures are. (Interjection)

980 Well, Mr Speaker, there is churn. A lot of people may have sold those debentures, bought Savings Bank debentures and the figure is the same or a little bit lower because others may be buying it and those others could include us. It does not tell me – knowing that the Government has £x million in outstanding Government debentures – anything about whether any of those debentures are held by the Savings Bank or whether they are all held by citizens who are still in the Government debentures, because they have not yet had an opportunity to be migrated or to migrate in due course to the Savings Bank.

985 But I have now had the answer to my question, which is no. No Gibraltar Savings Bank debenture proceeds are used to lend to the Government directly in cash or through the medium of the investment in Gibraltar Government debentures. That is all I was asking for and I am grateful to the hon. Member.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

990 Hon. Chief Minister: I answered, I think, not trying in any way to steer the hon. Gentleman away from the information that he wanted. I think I have set out clearly in my answers what the position is.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

995

Government staff Employment costs

1000 Clerk: Question 1003, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, further to Written Question 128/2012, will the Chief Minister say what is the cost in one full year of the employment since 10th December 2011 of the following persons – then the Hon. Chief Minister will recognise the information that he gave me in that question, in that 128:
1005 (a) 58 civil servants; (b) 35 GHA staff; (c) 9 GDC staff; (d) 23 Care Agency staff; (e) 6 Gibraltar Bus Company staff; (f) 3 Gibraltar Defence Estates & General Services Ltd staff; (g) 3 Gibraltar Cleaning Services Ltd staff; (h) 54 Gibraltar Research and Development Co. staff; and (i) 531 Employment Training Co. staff.

1010 Now, I recognise that items (h) and (i) are the employment training scheme things and the graduate schemes, which are in a different category to (a) to (g).

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1015 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the requested information is of a hypothetical nature and can therefore not be provided, not least of all because the full year has not yet elapsed. In some cases, the employees were engaged seasonally and the cost of one full year is not applicable and in others, employees will have moved on and are therefore no longer in post.
The full year cost is therefore not a real one.

1020 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, that answer I think is typical of the obtuseness that the –

Mr Speaker: Will the Hon. Leader of the Opposition... When I saw this question, I was myself somewhat perplexed. 'The following persons: 58 civil servants' – 58 civil servants in what grade? Is it 58 hypothetical civil servants that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition is talking about or is it...? I hope –
1025

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: Just a moment. I hope he does not get exasperated with me, because I think that when I received the question, I was perfectly entitled, if I had so wished, to find out, to endeavour to find out from him whether these 58 civil servants were real, who they were, what grades were they; or were they just 58 hypothetical civil servants?
1030

If they are just 58 hypothetical civil servants, an answer cannot be provided. If eight of them are EOs on the maximum of the scale and another 50 are HEO at the bottom of the scale, perhaps figures can be given.
1035

So perhaps he might care to clarify what the exact position is, before we proceed any further.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, with respect to him, the Hon. Mr Speaker should have been perplexed only to ensure that the question was within Standing Orders. It is not a requirement of the Opposition in asking questions that the Speaker understands the political significance.
1040

Mr Speaker: Well yes – because otherwise the persons referred to are hypothetical.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker –

1045 Mr Speaker: Of course there exists in Government employment 58 civil servants, but who are they? What 58 civil servants are we talking about?

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker –

1050 Mr Speaker: And therefore unless I were to know, I cannot properly give a Ruling.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, you have given a Ruling: you have allowed the question to enter the Order Paper, so the question is perfectly in order. What we are discussing is his answer, not my question. The fact that the question is in this Order Paper after Mr Speaker has considered it, before today, means that he has already decided that it is in order. So why I am now being cross-examined about whether my question is in order or not is beyond me.

But Mr Speaker, I do not know why Mr Speaker gets the impression that I would waste my time concocting questions around hypothetical non-existent people! These are the numbers that the Government, the Hon. the Chief Minister or some Minister, provided in answer to a question last time in Parliament as to the number of people that had been employed in new additional jobs in the Government since 10th December. I am simply regurgitating the information that the Government has given me in answer to a previous question, where I have asked how many new people – not people being transferred from other jobs – how many people have been newly employed in the Government or in any Government Agency since 10th December, and this is the list that the hon. Members gave me.

Having given me the list, I am now asking, ‘Well what is the cost of employing these people that you have told me you have employed?’ to which the answer appears to be from the hon. Member opposite, ‘I do not know’, and from the Hon. the Speaker is ‘Are these hypothetical?’

Well, I do not know if they are hypothetical or not; I only know of their existence because the Government has informed the House that they exist!

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I have not said I do not know; what I have said, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman cares to look at his question – and this is what makes it impossible to... This is what makes his question... (Interjections) Is he interested in the answer, Mr Speaker?

What makes his question impossible to answer is that he has asked what the cost –

Mr Speaker: Just a moment. (Hon. Chief Minister: Sorry.) When the question was first received, there was no reference to ‘Further to Written Question No. 128/2012’. The question that I saw started, ‘Will the Chief Minister say what is the cost’. There was no reference to... I did not see any question with reference to Written Question 128/2012 – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) – that I could then have reference to myself.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well I am sorry, Mr Speaker, (Mr Speaker: That is what happened.) The question was amended to read that at the request of the Clerk, after you had made that point to him and he had made it to me, and this is how we agreed it would be corrected. Hence my surprise when the matter is raised by you again!

It reads ‘Further to Written Question 128’ at your suggestion, put to me through the Clerk!

Mr Speaker: I asked the Clerk that the matter should be clarified with you. That is what I did.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the issue for us is that the way that the uncontroversial part of the question, if I can put it that way, is worded, assumes one full year of employment since 10th December 2011 in respect of these individuals. Therefore, there is nobody – I know we were quick off the mark, Mr Speaker, but there was nobody here that we could identify employed on 10th December 2011, and in any event the full year has not expired.

So if what the hon. Gentleman wanted to know is what is the cost going to be of a full year of employment of these individuals from the relevant date in which each of them have been employed, then Mr Speaker that is something that I suppose we could provide –

Hon. J J Bossano: But not in a week.

Hon. Chief Minister: But just to take the point that Mr Speaker has taken and develop it, so that the hon. Gentleman can understand what the next issue may be – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) What the next issue may be, Mr Speaker, and I think it is an important point, is that these 58, we will need to find their level in the Service and we will need to identify where it is that they finally are deployed and then trace forward if he wants, what salary it is that they are going to enjoy for that year, Mr Speaker – for the year from the date when they start. It is not information that we would have been able to provide within a week.

If he gets the point and he understands what I am saying, Mr Speaker, then perhaps he can put the question in a way that enables us to give him the information. For example, it may be easier if he asks us what is going to be the yearly salary for each of them, and then he can work out for himself, Mr Speaker, what the relevant totals may be.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I know the hon. Gentleman has it as a policy and a tactic to try and belittle and ridicule everybody on this side of the House, but I have been doing the job that he has been doing for eight months for 16 years. The chances of him understanding anything about the affairs of Government that I do not grasp or understand are worse than zero.

Mr Speaker, that is precisely the question that I have asked. That is precisely the way that I have formulated the question. I have not asked him how much has it cost and I have not asked him any of the things that he has told me he could not answer. I have said, 'What is the cost in one full year?' It is a perfectly normal way to economically analyse the cost of something: you have done something, what is the annualised cost of what you are doing?

If you employ 47 teachers what is the annualised cost of those people – not in this year, because there is not a full year for them all, unless you employed them all on 1st April. That is why the question is precisely worded as he is recommending to me: what is the annualised cost? What is the cost in one full year, not what is the cost this year – in one? In any year, what is the annual tally of the monthly salaries? You get the salary for the first month of their employment and you multiply it by 12, and that is the cost in one full year of that employee – and you could not have done that for these people! How can the Government employ –

Hon. Chief Minister: You need to ask me a question.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I am asking, several. How can the Government employ people without knowing what the cost is going to be?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I really think that he needs to go back and see what I said to him because I have not attempted (Interjection) – because when I attempt, I usually achieve – to belittle him at all. In fact, I have been quite careful in the way that I dealt with the issue, because I know that Mr Speaker had taken the point in relation to the question, and I wanted simply to assist.

In fact, Mr Speaker to people who have fulfilled the post that he fulfilled for 16 years and that you fulfilled and that the Hon. Mr Bossano filled, I am, where possible, courteous to a fault. It is only when he – previously, usually – provokes me by kicking me in the parliamentary proverbials that I have to react and try and put him in his place. So this question of trying to belittle him (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) is really otiose.

Second, Mr Speaker: look, he thinks that my chances of understanding employment or anything else are less than zero, because he seems to have much less regard for me than I have for him, and all I am trying to do, Mr Speaker, in answering this question, in being generous in the way that I am putting to him we might be able to answer the question, is to say that the way it is set out is wrong.

So first of all, Mr Speaker, of course the Government knows what the annual cost of every person it employs is. It is not just the Government that knows it, Mr Speaker; it is actually set out in the Estimates Book, Mr Speaker.

Second, the problem is, Mr Speaker, that the way he has phrased his question... and there are two ways of answering it, and one in particular which would be very problematic is to ask us what is the cost in one full year of employment, which is the part of the question he quotes, but then he does not quote this bit – 'since the 10th December 2011, by the following persons'. Now many of these people Mr Speaker were not employed by the 10th December 2011; they were employed afterwards.

Some of them, Mr Speaker, additionally, were employed seasonally so there is no full year of cost, so we would have to give him in that respect, Mr Speaker, the total salary charged by that individual, say for example, lifeguards that may be some of the people set out in the list that he is referring to.

It is for that reason, Mr Speaker, that I have given him the answer that I have given him. I know that what usually happens to the hon. Gentleman is that when he sees he is wrong, he gets upset and hopes that by the bluster, he will be able to hide his mistake. But I think we have all seen through it today.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister is a master at the waffling of rubbish in order to cover his plain ignorant – (Interjection) Yes, Mr Speaker, and I am going to demonstrate it. Even to the point of pretending that the question reads something which it does not read, in order to try and wriggle out of the room.

Look, Mr Speaker, the reference to the 10th December is a reference to the date as from which people were employed in respect of which I want the cost of for a full year – not, as he has just tried to pretend to everyone listening in this House and everybody listening, that he cannot give me one full year's cost because not everyone was employed from the 10th December.

Look, Mr Speaker, it is perfectly simple English. The question reads: 'Further to Written Question No. 128/2012' – in which he gave me all this information of the number of people they had employed since 10th December – 'Further to Written Question No. 128/2012, will the Chief Minister say what is the cost in one full year since 10th December 2011 of the persons employed?'

1175 In other words, we know they were not all employed on 10th December but they have all been employed since 10th December, and because they have all been employed at different dates, obviously they will each have, their costs in a year will not be 12 months between now and March 2013, because they will not have served for 12 months between now and 2013.

1180 So I have said, never mind when they were employed, what is the cost in one full year? I doubt that there is anybody listening to this debate inside or outside of this House who does not understand the simple purport of my question, which is (a) that the Government has informed this House that since 10th December, it has employed 58 additional civil servants, 35 additional GHA staff, nine GDC staff, 23 Care Agency staff, six Gibraltar Bus Company staff, three Gibraltar Defence Estates... 54 Gibraltar Research Assistants who were presumably graduates, 531 Employment and Training Co. staff; and I am asking what is the cost of all that payroll in one full year to the Government. If the Opposition is not entitled 1185 even to basic information about accountability of public finances, as obviously relevant as the cost of the employment of public employees, and even to such simple questions, we have to be put off and fobbed off with obfuscation and insulting answers from the hon. Member opposite, I do not know what he thinks this Opposition is in this House to do!

1190 The question is: will the Government tell me what these people would cost in a year, yes or no? If he does not know, I will have it from him in writing at his convenience.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very sorry to say that this is what often happens in this House and I am sorry that you are having to see a display of it this evening.

1195 Hon. P R Caruana: Get on with it! For God's sake. (A Member: You are the one who started it today!)

Hon. Chief Minister: I have not said anything to the hon. – Sorry, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is using some unparliamentary language from a sedentary position. Perhaps he wants to share it with us.
1200

Hon. P R Caruana: I am perfectly entitled to address myself to my neighbour in unparliamentary language.

1205 Hon. Chief Minister: Well you do what you like, but I think it demeans this Parliament when you do.

Mr Speaker: I think that matters are beginning to degenerate and I may soon have to move on.

Hon. P R Caruana: Again, without my getting an answer.

1210 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is no question –

Mr Speaker: There may be no answer, whether he gets it or not, but if hon. Members are going to degenerate in making this what they have been doing for a hell of a long time, I am then going to bring matters to a head and go on to the next question! I think I am entitled to do that – or am I not?
1215

Hon. P R Caruana: Of course you are entitled –!

Mr Speaker: Right then, sit down and let us carry on.

1220 Hon. P R Caruana: The question is whether I get an answer or not.

Mr Speaker: Sit down and let us carry on.

1225

Mr Glyn Ford
Engagement by Government

1230 Clerk: Question 1004, the Hon. P R Caruana.
Question 1004.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member can filibust until Mr Speaker's patience is exhausted, he will not have to answer this question either.

1235 Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say whether Mr Glyn Ford, previously a Labour MEP for the South West and Gibraltar region, has been or is engaged by the Government or any Government entity, for any consultancy or other work?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1240 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker I will answer clearly and straightforwardly, as I have every single other question asked in this House, (Laughter) and I will remind the hon. Member that this Government is putting publicly on its website more information than his Government ever provided even in this Parliament.

1245 I answer him, Mr Speaker, by saying that Mr Ford is engaged by the Government for lobbying activities in Brussels.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the hon. Member say whether this has been made publicly known by the Government before?

1250 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, much as was the case in respect of the expenditure under the Lobbying Head at No. 6, this has not been made public before and neither did he make public a number of the things that he entertained under that Head.

1255 I have information if he wants it about the cost of Mr Ford per month and the details of his contract, which I am happy to share with him privately.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I am going to ask for it publicly. The difference between the lobbying engagements that I did and the lobbying engagements that he does out of public funds is that I never employed somebody who campaigned for me at the General Elections.

1260 Mr Glyn Ford MEP campaigned for the GSLP at the last Gibraltar General Election, or the second one, I cannot... Yes, the last and the previous, the one before that. That is the relevance of the matter and I am not prepared to accept the information from him privately. I think that the public is entitled to know how much Mr Glyn Ford MEP, member of the GSLP and campaigner for the GSLP at the last Elections, has been paid by the Government out of taxpayers' funds, for lobbying for the Government of Gibraltar in Brussels. And if he is not willing to provide me with that information publicly, I do not want it in any form.

1270 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, then Mr Speaker, he is not going to get it, for this reason: the hon. Gentleman knows that the Lobbying Head which he introduced in the Estimates Book is designed to enable the Government of Gibraltar to achieve the purposes of the people of Gibraltar through lobbying and other campaigns. He has spent in one year up to, I believe, £1 million or £2 million in respect of that Head. When we asked him to provide that information, he would not provide it, so if he was funding – (Interjection) That is exactly true. He can go back and look at every Hansard and he would not give us one piece of information as to what was being spent, what the money was being spent on and if he does not remember, it is because he is having selective amnesia.

1275 Mr Speaker, it is fundamentally important that he should understand –

Hon. P R Caruana: May I raise a Point of Order?

1280 Mr Speaker: Yes, which Point of Order?

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, there is no need for you, Mr Speaker, to lose patience – it may be a very good Point of Order for all he knows.

1285 Mr Speaker, I want the hon. Member to just confirm to me whether he is asserting in this House, that he has asked me when I was Chief Minister, or the Government, questions about the expenditure by the Government on lobbying and that he is saying that I refused to give him the information. Is that what he is saying?

1290 Hon. Chief Minister: That is not a Point of Order, Mr Speaker, but I will deal with it, simply by saying that although he used to give us a general breakdown of the Head, he would not give us what the detailed expenditure was and therefore, if he had been funding people who had been campaigning for him – not that that is relevant – then we would not have seen it in this House and therefore he is now accusing us of doing exactly what it was that he did.

1295 And what he likes to do, Mr Speaker, because he is trying to re-run the 1996 General Election campaign with all of his lieutenants, is to throw aspersions as widely as possible in an attempt to persuade people that something untoward is going on.

What is going on, Mr Speaker, is that somebody who is very well connected in Brussels is doing a job for the people of Gibraltar and it has achieved some results already. And if he thinks there is something wrong with that, then he has lost his compass and he does not want to achieve the best for the people of Gibraltar; he just wants to score cheap and basic political points.

Mr Speaker, the fact is that Glyn Ford was recognised for many years as representing not the GSLP, but Gibraltarians in the European Parliament, even before we had the right to vote there. He is widely recognised as a friend of Gibraltar. He has recently found that he was not returned to the European Parliament, but is still very well connected with people there. Therefore, Mr Speaker, he is a resource that we believe it is right to retain for the people of Gibraltar and we are delighted to be working with him.

What he needs to understand, Mr Speaker, is that for us as a Government, whether somebody was a GSLP supporter before the Election or a GSD supporter before the Election or a PDP supporter before the Election, whether they remain of that political persuasion after the Election or not, the only issue for this Government is how well can they do the job for which they are going to be retained, what value do they add for Gibraltar? That is what every Government should have been about.

But remembering – because memories are not as short as he might want – what life was like before 9th December 2011, people will be forgiven for thinking that if he is putting his question in this way, it must be because that was exactly what was going on before, when he had control of the purse strings and he used to refuse to give us the detail of the Head in respect of Lobbying and some of the million-pound contracts which we have seen and made public since we were elected reflect exactly that sort of behaviour in respect of that Head and others.

Hon. P R Caruana: So, Mr Speaker, we shall simply have to assume that Mr Glyn Ford, campaigner for the Government at the last Election, is just by coincidence... It is just a coincidence that all the early beneficiaries of the hon. Members alleged even-handedness amongst all Gibraltarians all happen to be people who prominently helped the GSLP at the last Elections. We have debated, we have discussed, asked questions about other situations in the past and now Mr Glyn Ford.

My supplementary is this, Mr Speaker: the question is not whether Mr Glyn Ford is qualified or unqualified. The question is not whether he won or lost the last European Parliamentary Election. The question is how much taxpayers' money has he been paid?

I would have thought that if Parliament is not entitled to know that information, then the rules of parliamentary accountability are being re-written in front of our very eyes. Mr Speaker, the question is apparently the hon. Member's position appears to be, 'I will not tell you because I alleged' – wrongly, I charge him – 'that when I asked you similar questions in Parliament you never answered me.' So where is this alleged greater transparency?

What the hon. Members do is publish on their website the innocuous Government financial information, whilst refusing to give in this House the uncomfortable inconvenient financial information that we ask. That is the game that the hon. Member is playing or why has he not put in his transparent Government website (a) that he was employing Mr Ford at all, which it has required an Opposition question to elicit – I would have thought it was a matter of public interest given that they put out five press releases a day on almost everything else that moves – and (b) how much he is being paid? Why has he not put that information on his Government website, if his commitment to transparency and accountability is everything that he claims that it is?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I really think that the hon. Gentleman is past his prime.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am past my prime! Of course I am past my prime! (Laughter and interjections)

Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely right. It is time that you recognise it, get up and go. (Laughter)

Hon. P R Caruana: The question is not whether I am past my prime; the question is whether you are hiding information from the people. That is the question.

Hon. Chief Minister: There is no question, Mr Speaker, of this Government hiding information from the people. (Interjections) This Government is providing (Mr Speaker: Order!) – and I know that it is uncomfortable for them, Mr Speaker – without them being needed to elicit the information for the public to have access to it, all the information that we sought from them. We are providing, Mr Speaker, in those 'five press releases a day' that the hon. Gentleman pejoratively refers to, the narrative of excellence and the magnificence of a year in Administration that deserves to be writ large and brought to the attention of the public. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

That a man has been contracted – not employed, but contracted – to work for Gibraltar in a place where he has huge influence and contacts –

Hon. P R Caruana: How much are you paying him?

Mr Speaker: Order! Order!

Hon. Chief Minister: – is not something, Mr Speaker, that would make sense to advertise if what we wanted him to do was advance our cause. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) But of course, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has asked a question and we are now having this debate.

1365

But to go into further detail, in our judgement, is not going to advance the interests of Gibraltar. That is why we are not providing the information. Have we rewritten the rules on parliamentary debate and transparency? Absolutely, we have, Mr Speaker: he is right to give me the opportunity to score this goal, straight, without a keeper.

1370

The fact is that the public now have at their fingertips at home, all the information that they can want access to in respect of Government spending, in respect of Government activity... (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) (Mr Speaker: Order, please.) ...in respect of just about everything that it is prudent for Government's to disclose.

Have we rewritten the rules on parliamentary debate? Absolutely. Now there is a debate whenever the hon. Gentleman wants to put a Motion, once a month and there is a Question Time once a month.

1375

Have we rewritten the rules on openness and transparency? Well, Mr Speaker, you just have to look at how open and transparent the debates even of the Development and Planning Commission are, where anybody can turn up and see what is going on.

The secrecy is over, Mr Speaker. Government behind the curtain for the privileged few that enjoyed his largess before 9th December is over, Mr Speaker.

1380

Mr Speaker: If the hon. Chief Minister would... I think the matter is getting completely out of hand. This is a convenient moment to have a short recess.

1385

The House recessed at 4.40 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 5.05 p.m.

GBC's funding Becoming self-sufficient

1390

Clerk: Question 1005, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say how the Government expects that GBC's funding will become 'entirely self-sufficient'?

1395

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, by the profits of the joint venture it has created, namely Gibraltar Entertainment Network Ltd.

1400

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I hasten to say that if GBC can fund itself from any legitimate commercial activity or advertising in any way that reduces the charge on the Consolidated Fund for its annual operating budget, that is to be welcomed.

1405

In return, would the Hon. the Chief Minister accept that it would be undesirable that GBC's funding should be from private commercial interests that are able to exert editorial influence over it?

Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely right, Mr Speaker, and there is no question, in respect of what is being planned, that anybody would have any editorial influence over GBC at all; it is quite the opposite. The Gibraltar Entertainment Network is a subsidiary of GBC, not in any way above GBC.

1410

Hon. P R Caruana; So that if, contrary to all our hopes, this commercial venture subsidiary should not be profitable or sufficiently profitable, the Government would continue to fund in accordance with its annual budgetary decisions.

1415

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is the position and in fact it may be that we do not... I imagine that everybody would wish that the profitability of the subsidiary should be such in the early years, that when it dividends up any profits to the GBC, those will be sufficient to extinguish the subsidy. I do not think that is going to happen.

1420 I think what is going to happen is that slowly the subsidiary is going to start coming into profit and it will reduce the amount of the subsidy. One of the things that I am very clear about is that, if the time comes when GBC becomes commercially viable by its subsidiary's activities, then GBC should stop competing in advertising with other entities that may be in the advertising space, like other television stations.

1425 The hon. Gentleman knows that there is now a digital network being established which will allow other television stations to be licensed, other media, newspapers etc, so that the entity that enjoys public funding or has enjoyed public funding to set itself up should not then, once it is becoming a commercial actor, also through its subsidiary, enjoy competition in the advertising space with those that have not enjoyed that largess.

1430 So in a moment or at a time in the future when the subsidiary is making profits sufficient to dividend up the amount of the subsidy, the subsidy disappears.

1435 Hon. P R Caruana: And those commercial activities, can the hon. Member say, in summary and in broad brush, what are the nature of those activities? Are they programme production? Are they hosting other people's broadcasts to their infrastructure? What sort of things.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think I gave an indication of what they would be when I gave my Budget address.

1440 Gibraltar Entertainment Network Ltd will produce either music, television or film productions in Gibraltar. That will mean that those are owned in Gibraltar with the commercial advantages those will give the people who produce them, namely Gibraltar's corporate structure, Gibraltar's treatment of royalties etc. So they will be producing programmes for other networks in the world or for private production companies. So in effect, it is a studio in Gibraltar to do much as studios do elsewhere in the world, with the production agents here making profit from that work and, in some instances, perhaps enjoying a share in the royalties that are paid in respect of what is produced. That should produce the profits to minimise the subsidy.

Hon. P R Caruana: But producing programming for GBC or always for third parties?

1450 Hon. Chief Minister: Producing programming for third parties. It may be that part of the contract to produce the film or the serial may also involve, in some instances, an opportunity for GBC to put that programme on, at some stage in the future, usually not as the first party to transmit it. That would be the commissioning station and it may be possible, by negotiation, for GBC to obtain rights to transmit that programme at lower cost than if perhaps they went and bought those in these media fairs where they buy TV series and TV films.

1455 But the idea is to use Gibraltar to produce for third parties and to give GBC an opportunity to be part of the company that does that.

1460 Hon. P R Caruana: So they are not doing any of the things that GBC does now – not producing local programming, not taking over responsibility for example for news production à la ITN in England, which then sells it out to other broadcasters?

1465 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, but what I would say and only as a result of his question, is that it is possible that GBC may use the studios in some instances for its own productions. So if there is a splendid studio which is not being used on a particular night and GBC want to film something, a viewpoint for example or an audience participation programme which they might not have room to do where they are, they may use the studio – but that would be GBC itself, happening to use the studios that belong to GEN and there might even be an agreement in respect of an internal accounting procedure for that and it may be that GEN is commissioned by GBC to produce something for it, but in those instances, I would imagine it would have to be at arm's length.

Internet photographs of Spanish policemen Request for removal

1475 Clerk: Question 1006, the Hon. P R Caruana.

1480 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say if the Government has requested of those that posted them, the removal from the internet of photographs of Spanish policemen on duty at the Spanish side of the frontier and if it has not, does it intend to do so?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have personally made the request.

1485 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, two supplementaries: firstly, was that, as reported in the Spanish and local press, at the request of Campo Mayors and things; and has his request been heeded?

1490 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it was not as a result of a letter which the Mayor of Algeciras, I have read, says he has sent me, although I have read the letter that he purports to have sent me in the media and no such letter has arrived at No. 6 Convent Place.

1495 But before then, I had taken the step of writing to one of the members of the group and asking for this. I am not yet aware of whether or not all of these pictures have disappeared. I think some of them have, but given the nature of the internet, I think there has been a proliferation of them and even if the main source picture is now pixelated, others may not be, so I cannot give him any certainty in that respect.

Dispute with Spanish fishermen Matters relevant to resolution

1500

Clerk: Question 1007, the Hon. P R Caruana.

1505 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say what matters, other than (i) the supposed re-establishment of the rule of law and (ii) environmental sustainability, does the Government consider relevant to the resolution of the current fishing dispute with Spanish fishermen?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1510 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, those are the two issues to which we will have primary regard.

1515 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member will of course recognise his last answer to me in my question, in which he said that he would take into account the supposed – no, the ‘supposed’ is mine, of course – the re-establishment of the rule of law which he believes to be at stake and also environmental sustainability. Then he went on to say, ‘and such other considerations as the Government considers to be relevant’. So I am asking him what those other relevant considerations are. Obviously, these two are the primary ones, but since he chose to add the limb ‘and other relevant considerations’ to his last answer to me, I think it is legitimate to which I asked for a written answer because I was away from Gibraltar, I am now asking him what they are.

1520 He should not assume that I do not believe that there are others that he should take into account. I believe there are others that he should take into account.

1525 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, what I said in my written answer was that the Government would also have regard to such other matters that it may consider appropriate. Now, the fact is, Mr Speaker, that, as the hon. Gentleman may know we are awaiting any day now the report from the expert in fisheries that was commissioned by the Government some time ago, which will address the issue of environmental sustainability. We do not need much more to persuade us of the importance of re-establishing the primacy of the rule of law and other matters may become relevant, Mr Speaker.

1530 At the moment, although there are issues which may appear to be relevant, we are not yet at decision point, because we do not yet have the report. A number of other issues may of course be relevant.

1535 I will tell him what will not be relevant, Mr Speaker, because I think it is important that we set this on the record. What will not be relevant will be the length of the frontier queue. What will not be relevant will be the belligerence with which Spanish politicians decide to address their remarks to Gibraltar. I think it would be common ground across the floor of the House that the incumbent of the office at No. 6 Convent Place and his Ministers in Cabinet should be making decisions about what they think is in the best interests of Gibraltar, with all of the considerations that are relevant to that – and we may disagree on that, on what those are, but certainly with those considerations in mind – not under any pressure, actual or ostensible, from people who may be sitting in Madrid, fiddling their fingers and deciding that there should be a longer queue or otherwise.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I entirely agree. Leaving to one side our difference of opinion about how this issue arose and whether it should have arisen, having arisen I accept that there is no question of the Government of Gibraltar being dictated to under pain of border queues. That is unquestionably correct.

But Mr Speaker, can I recommend to the hon. Member that when they have found a solution to this, they should not underestimate the importance to Gibraltar in the past, as a by-product of good cross-border relations, of the support that a large body of Spanish citizens in the Campo area have been to Gibraltar on many issues even with their own government. There have been issues like border queues and things of that sort and other issues, where the degree of support for the Gibraltar position, because it coincided with their interests, was important to Gibraltar. He ought not to overlook that fact, when he comes to implementing a solution – because as he must be aware, to the extent that this is being sold in a certain way in Spain, or this is being projected in a certain way in Spain, the victims are from that very community that has, in the past, been the most helpful one to us, namely the Campo and they are reading that as lack of friendliness from Gibraltar to the Campo population – which I do not say it is, but that is how it is coming across.

So one of the relevant factors that he may take into consideration, in addition to allegedly establishing the rule of law and environmental sustainability to the extent that arises, is a desire which I think is in Gibraltar's interests to re-establish good will with the people of the Campo area at the earliest opportunity.

Hon. Chief Minister: Can I tell him, Mr Speaker, that actually there is a lot of good will for Gibraltar in the Campo, despite what it may appear in some pages of newspapers that may have their own agenda to fulfil with the government that is finally paying the amount that was due in respect of historic debts of advertising. So it is not everything that one reads in the newspapers in the Campo area that reflects the feeling of people in the Campo; there is actually a large constituency of people that are in touch with us who reflect that actually we are doing a very good thing in respect of fishing. That may be not the majority.

There is also a very large number of people in the Campo who consider that whatever the issues between Gibraltar and Spain, they should not be resolved in the manner that the Madrid Government appears to want to try and resolve them. He will know, and I think it is no secret, that I enjoy a very strong relationship even with the Mayor of the town most purportedly affected by the issue of fishing and who is able to see beyond that issue and the common interest between Gibraltar and the Campo. The figures speak for themselves, whether there are 7,000 or 10,000 Spanish cross-frontier workers in Gibraltar – because of the numbers of non-registered workers being something that we can only ever guess at – the fact is that there are many more than 53, and there are only 53 fishing boats in La Línea that are purportedly affected by this. I am reliably informed that of those 53, there are actually only 10 in operation and not all of those 10 have ever wanted or needed to come to Gibraltar.

Setting it in its proper context like that, as some of the people across the way who are mature and look at this carefully and understand the issue, is not one simply for rhetoric but one for co-operation in everything where it is possible to work together, then I think one comes to the conclusion that there are opportunities for understanding well beyond those that the emptiest and loudest vessels across the way may suggest.

Length of Questions Ruling by Mr Speaker

Clerk: Question 1008, the Hon. –

Mr Speaker: Before the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition asks this Question, I want to draw the attention of hon. Members to the Rules and in particular Standing Order 17(1)(i), where it is stated that a Question shall not be of excessive length.

In my view, this particular Question is not of excessive length. I repeat it is not of excessive length, since it contains a lengthy preamble. However, I would not want this to be cited as a precedent, should any hon. Member in the future wish to ask a Question of similar length.

Gibraltar's interests, rights and responsibilities 'New ways' of co-operation with UK

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

1605 Hon. P R Caruana: I am obliged, Mr Speaker.
Mr Speaker, the United Kingdom Permanent Representative at the United Nations recently told the Fourth Committee that:

1610 'The United Kingdom therefore stands ready to explore new ways of taking forward dialogue and co-operation on issues of mutual importance by any means that fully reflects the interests, rights and responsibilities of the people of Gibraltar'.

1615 The question: will the Chief Minister confirm that it is the policy and position of the Government that to be acceptable to the Gibraltar Government such 'new ways' would have to be (i) trilateral, in the sense that the Gibraltar Government would have to be present in its own right, (ii) not expose Gibraltar to the possibility of agreements being reached against the Gibraltar Government's wishes, and (iii) not be pre-determined on any issue of Sovereignty?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1620 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I can confirm that (i) and (ii) are among those that we would consider a 'sine qua non'.

1625 As for (iii), the policy and position of the Government is that we will not engage in any negotiation, dialogue, discussion or co-operation on any issue of sovereignty, whether or not pre-determined or otherwise. The policy and position of the Government is that we will only ever discuss the sovereignty of Gibraltar with the UK Government.

I would also remind this House that the United Kingdom has also repeatedly stated that it remains strongly committed to the Trilateral Forum for dialogue. That is also the position of Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar.

1630 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I accept that the first two are the important ones and the third, which is an important part of the architecture of the trilateral process, reflects what the trilateral process came out of, in terms of succeeded, which is a process that was said to be about sovereignty and not so much the Hon. Chief Minister, but certainly the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister will recall that in those days the complaint about Brussels was that it was pre-determined about sovereignty. The position then was not that we would never talk about sovereignty, not that we said that we would, but Gibraltar's position was certainly we will not take part in any pre... That is why that language persists, that it was a policy of the Government not to discuss sovereignty in any architecture of dialogue and regardless of the purpose even if...

1640 The danger with that position of course is that you forfeit the opportunity to persuade Spain to drop its sovereignty claim, because of course that would require you to get too involved in a discussion about sovereignty. But still, I get the drift and it is I think a position on (i) and (ii) and, subject to my last quip, also on (iii) across the House.

1645 Can I just ask a supplementary about the United Kingdom's choice of words, 'that fully reflect the interests, rights and responsibilities of the people of Gibraltar', which I think first emerged at the United Nations, if I am not mistaken.

1650 Mr Speaker, the 'interests' is a careful choice of word, as opposed to the 'wishes', because the United Nations language, at Spain's insistence is 'interests', whereas we think that what needs to be reflected is our wishes, not just our interests. The second is 'rights'. These are things which would have to be present, reflected in the architecture of this new way as far as the UK is concerned. The second is 'rights', so I urge the hon. Member to exercise caution with the use of that word, because we do not know what 'rights' means. 'Rights and responsibilities', if they mean constitutional rights and responsibilities, then of course we do not have a constitutional responsibility for external affairs; but that is not to say that it will be acceptable that the new way of dialogue should leave the UK and Spain free to discuss between themselves, for example, sovereignty because it is an issue of external affair for which Gibraltar is not responsible.

1655 Thirdly, 'rights' is a matter of course that is rights as per the Constitution presumably, which is a less controversial one. The difference between us and the UK on that is limited to the question of whether Utrecht curtails the right to independence or not.

1660 But specifically, the UK's decision to use the word 'interests' and not 'wishes', and 'responsibilities', which exclude external affairs for which the people of Gibraltar are not responsible, I think is something that we need to just keep an eye on, to make sure that no process of dialogue... Of course we have the overarching and very valuable commitment never to discuss sovereignty against our consent, which is a pretty important block, but that there should be no question that a new way could be found and implicitly acceptable to the UK which was bilateral in respect of those matters that were not the responsibilities of the people of Gibraltar, because that is precisely what we do not want them to talk about.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I think that we have all taken the view in this House and I am sure it is common ground that any contact between the United Kingdom and Spain on any matter which relates to Gibraltar is a matter on which there must be consultation with the people of Gibraltar, even if it is tangential. There can certainly be no bilateral engagement on anything meaningful, but because of the European Union being as it is, you cannot say to the United Kingdom, 'You cannot have a bilateral engagement with Spain on any matter involving Gibraltar,' because every EU matter involves Gibraltar. Therefore, there is that element of nuance, with the very clear caveat that anything that is going to affect Gibraltar must be consulted with the Government of Gibraltar and Gibraltar must lead on all the aspects that relate to that issue.

But I think we have said on a number of occasions across the floor of the House – and it is important to say it as often as we can – that bilateralism is dead. That does not just mean in relation to sovereignty; it means in relation to all matters which are relevant.

Now, the hon. Gentleman has not referred to the word 'aspirations' and I will come to that in a moment because it is going to be relevant when I answer his next Question, but it is also going to be relevant to this. The fact is that I think he said that sovereignty is an external affair. Did he say that? Did he say sovereignty is an external affair? Because if he did, I do not agree that sovereignty is an external affair; I think that sovereignty is actually a very internal affair, because it affects the architecture of the state and therefore the idea –

Hon. P R Caruana: It is vested in the UK.

Hon. Chief Minister: That is right. It is vested in the United Kingdom, but as we have discussed earlier today and people will see us say –

Hon. P R Caruana: Do they agree?

Hon. Chief Minister: – the Queen in this set-up is the Queen of Gibraltar, as our coins reflect, and therefore nobody would be able to do anything in relation to the sovereignty of Gibraltar without consulting the people of Gibraltar, however spurious the argument they might be able to come up with, that it is a foreign affair.

I recognise the need to be careful with these three words. They are very important words and they are not put there by the United Kingdom for nothing. There is a more important word than 'interests' and that is 'aspirations', and that is a different word for 'wishes'. That word has made its way into the consensus decision that was put in the full Committee. I think it made its way into that wording post the Trilateral. The hon. Gentleman will recall that the consensus decision has really been the same for many years; the Trilateral was the thing that changed it, after the 1984 Brussels Declaration.

That change into the wording imputed the word 'aspirations' into the consensus decision and that is really a very, very important reference because 'aspirations' means 'wishes' and therefore the General Assembly, since 2007 I believe, has been talking about 'wishes' by using the word 'aspirations'. That is the overarching principle and I think nobody will ever be able to persuade any Member of this House, current, past or future, that anything other than the wishes and aspirations of the people of Gibraltar were going to be relevant to the future of Gibraltar and if anybody thinks in London or New York – and I do not think that there are such officials nowadays in the Foreign Office – but if anybody thinks that by introducing words like 'interests, rights and responsibilities', that it might be possible in some way to conjoin a doctrine that allows anything to go on without the Government and the people of Gibraltar being involved, then they are, in my view, taking a long walk off a short pier, because the people of Gibraltar are the ones who are going to determine who is the Sovereign in Gibraltar. That is very much an internal constitutional matter in Gibraltar and now even the United Nations in its consensus decision is imputing the word 'aspirations', which is to bring in, finally, the concept of the wishes of the people of Gibraltar into the equation.

That is in my answer to his next Question. If he likes, if I answer that, then we have got that language in and we can carry on... I was going to say the debate, but I had probably say the questions and answers.

Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, my concern is not... Clearly, current ministers in the United Kingdom would not countenance any outcome based on the clever interpretation and use of these words, but because they are now enshrined in the United Nations, we just do not know what governments of what political colours, advised by officials different to the ones that are in post today, might make and it is very important that it should not be said in the future, by a different set of ministers and a different set of officials, that this formula of words allows, for example, the United Kingdom and Spain to restore a bilateral process of dialogue, because they are limited to things that are not the constitutional 1730 responsibility of the people of Gibraltar. I accept, by the way – as I always did to the UK and it is obvious – that the Foreign Secretary is responsible for our external affairs and, therefore, there will be many occasions on which, in the margins of other bilateral ministerial meetings between the UK and Spain, the question of Gibraltar will arise and the Foreign Secretary cannot be prohibited from talking bilaterally to Spain about Gibraltar.

1735 But this statement is not about casual ministerial amongst many other issues... It talks about:

1740 In other words, they are willing to do it by any means that fully reflect the interests, rights and responsibilities of the people of Gibraltar, so that in the future, someone might seek to interpret that to mean that in respect of something that is not the responsibility, we do not need to... we are not constrained into what architecture of dialogue the UK might agree.

1745 I agree with the hon. Member’s assessment that any such concern is completely premature and unfounded today, but in establishing this new doctrine, doctrinal language, I think it would be good that we record in Parliament and, perhaps, as the Government of the day, record that this interpretation would not be available and is not what these words should be thought to mean.

I hope it is of some help to him.

1750 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think it is important to record the unity of this Parliament in that respect. I think it is fundamentally important that whoever came up with that phrase understands that if they did intend that it could ever give rise to such an eventuality, they are absolutely wrong to think that the Government and people of Gibraltar and this House united would not seek to prevent them from doing so.

1755 And can I also say, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman has said that, of course, there are instances when the Foreign Secretary may find himself speaking to the Spanish Foreign Secretary in the margins or during the course of a European meeting and cannot be expected to not be able to engage to that extent with his counterpart; but when he does so, Mr Speaker – and I am sure this was his position – he does so as our Minister for Foreign Affairs in the same way as the Minister for Defence engages on all matters also as our Minister for Defence, with responsibility for the United Kingdom and Gibraltar, etc.

1760 That is the constitutional position. It is not that we do not have a Minister for Foreign Affairs or Defence; it is that those matters and Ministers are people who advise Her Majesty. On those matters Her Majesty is advised by Mr Hague and Mr Hammond today. Now –

1765 Hon. P R Caruana: If the hon. Member will give way. If he will allow me to interpret him, that that was one of the points that we were unable to succeed on in the constitutional negotiation. In other words, we wanted the Constitution to reflect that the Foreign Secretary would conduct our foreign affairs in accordance with the instructions, or words to that effect, or wishes of the Government of Gibraltar and they said no, no, no. So that was one of the few failures on things that we were unable to obtain. So they are unlikely to agree now on the basis that the hon. Member is in effect saying the same thing now!

1770 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, that demonstrates one of the important steps there still could be for us to take constitutionally of course which brings us to an earlier debate but Mr Speaker, whether or not it is enshrined in the Constitution that that is the position, that is actually the position because what a Minister does, of any Crown, is advise the Crown in respect of the matters for which he has responsibility. So the Foreign Secretary would be advising Her Majesty directly and I think we see it in the way that Warrants are done for Judges etc where in the old days, I do not know whether it is still the position, the Foreign Secretary would sign a Warrant on the advice or as a delegated power from Her Majesty. So that constitutionally must fit into this framework but there is no question, Mr Speaker, of anybody being able to pretend that this language is going to advance the cause of those who might be able to wind a way round the double lock that has already been secured or the Trilateral Forum that has already been secured and which the United Kingdom, Gibraltar and the principal party of opposition in Spain remains strongly committed to. I tell you one party, one of the principal parties in Spain that does remain strongly committed to the Trilateral Forum.

1785 Hon. P R Caruana: And Mr Speaker, if I can just conclude by saying that that last articulation by the hon. Member which I will not repeat, is the position around which this House and Gibraltar’s politicians should unite as being our common position. And I think that is a position that fully fits into the policies of both parties and I think is a strong position for Gibraltar to stand on and defend together.

1790 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I think it is something which has been clear for some time. It is not anybody having to change their position for us to achieve that convergence, so I am delighted that it is possible to now distil from our position (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) (Interjections) a prominent position, because of course when a position is common, it is possible to do it across the floor of the House and distil it, but when it is stretched and trying to serve a party political purpose, you know people who try and do that should really at least take the precaution of picking up the phone to try and do it.

1800 United Nations consensus decision on Gibraltar
Text this year

Clerk: Question 1009, the Hon. P R Caruana.

1805 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, finally, Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say what has been the text of this year's consensus decision on Gibraltar in the United Nations and will he lay a copy of it in this House?

1810 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker the text of this year's consensus decision on Gibraltar in the United Nations is as follows – and I am going to read things that I do not like, so nobody should think that this is my position or the position of anybody in this House, but here we go:

1815 'The General Assembly, recalling its decision 66/522,
(A) Urges the Governments of Spain and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, while listening to the interests and aspirations of Gibraltar, to reach, in the spirit of the Brussels Declaration of 27 November 1984, a definitive solution to the question of Gibraltar, in the light of the relevant resolutions of the General Assembly and applicable principles, and in the spirit of the Charter of the United Nations;
1820 (B) Takes note of the United Kingdom's desire to continue with the Trilateral Forum for Dialogue on Gibraltar;
(C) Takes note of Spain's desire to replace this Forum with a new mechanism for local cooperation in the interests of social wellbeing and regional economic development, in which the people of the Campo de Gibraltar and Gibraltar are represented.'

That is the text of the decision.

1825 Mr Speaker, I believe that this has been aired publicly in New York. (Interjection) No, I agree. I even believe there might have been an article in one newspaper that reflected it. We have not been able to find it in the source material of the United Nations and therefore making it publicly available by laying it in this House is an option I considered at the invitation of the questioner, but I have no document to lay in this House other than simply the text of this which is now in Hansard because I have read it out and is therefore available for anybody who may want to have regard to it. (Interjection) Absolutely. Anybody who may want to have regard to it.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker... Sorry, did he finish there? (Hon. Chief Minister: Yes.)
1835 Mr Speaker, I presume the consensus decision has now been adopted at the United Nations. Is it not most unusual? Is he aware what the reason might be? I know it took much longer to negotiate this year, for obvious reasons – the spat about the Trilateral Forum and the references to it – but it is most unusual that it is just not available... I have not been able to find it on the UN sources; it is not reported in the Gibraltar press, by which normally it has been. (Interjection) Yes, in other years, it has been reported and I just wonder whether the hon. Member can cast any light on what might be the reason for the lack of visibility about the decision this year.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, he may find this peculiar, but in the time available, I have not been able to get a clear indication of what the failure of publication relates to.

1845 One can speculate with a thousand different reasons why this may be the case, but if it is any consolation, I am endeavouring to find out why this is not already available on the UN website, as would usually be the case, and I am quite happy to share with him that information when I have it, because I think our common experience has been that, in the week after we have returned to Gibraltar, there is usually a press release from New York that deals with a lot of the representations made and the consensus decision is usually carried in that press release and is then accessible, as are all the previous years' consensus decisions accessible. So as soon as I know why this has happened, I will share that with him.

1850 I know that the United Nations itself has had a difficult time with shut-downs because of storms and you know that there is a refurbishment now going on in the building, etc. I do not know whether that is the issue because the Security Council still continues in operation, but whatever it is, we need to know why this has not been published and whether in fact more of the work of the Fourth Committee has not seen the light of day.

Hon. P R Caruana: And my final supplementary with your indulgence, Mr Speaker, is this: when I was doing the job that he now does, I used to be intrinsically involved, not always getting my own way, but certainly heavily consulted and participated in the negotiation with the UK of the language of this whenever any change was produced, or when Spain wanted change and proposed it to the UK. In other words, the UK, by smokes and mirrors, would involve us.

Can I ask the hon. Member whether he has been involved in the re-jigging of the language this year, following the PP's unilateral withdrawal from the Trilateral Forum? Can he say that – aside of his disagreement, which I share, with the continuing reference to the Brussels Declaration which I was never able to obtain the removal of – that he is satisfied with it? Clearly, it does not reflect the Gibraltar Government's position, which is that the Trilateral Forum is still extant, even if one party of it is refusing to approach its Chair and therefore cannot be convened.

Was there an attempt to continue to leave the reference to the Trilateral... or did Spain simply refuse? Can he say something about the degree and extent of his involvement in the language that has ended up on this piece of paper?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the position has not changed. The United Kingdom has continued to consult the Gibraltar Government on these issues.

These are issues which leave a very bad taste in the mouth, because one is asked one's opinion and one's opinion is clear and then that is not reflected, of course, in what emerges. From what I am about to say now, please, nobody should for one moment read any happiness with the text as it is, because it has so many hostages to fortune in it – not just the reference to the Brussels Declaration, but simply the structure of the whole thing, the contradictions between references to aspirations and then the letter of the Brussels process and then just talk of the spirit of the Charter etc. This is not a document that any Gibraltarian would draft or would want to see drafted. It is the product of diplomacy.

I can tell him that we were consulted on it. I can tell him that one of the issues was – and I imagine this could have been the subject of conjecture, it does not require me to confirm it in this House – that Spain no longer wanted there to be a reference to the Trilateral, but of course the United Kingdom's position in respect of the Trilateral has been made very clear and is exactly the same position as the position of the Government of Gibraltar, as our continued strong commitment to it, and there was the benefit as he will know, of the previous consensus decisions that already referred to the Trilateral and which the General Assembly had adopted.

Therefore, our view expressed to the United Kingdom was that if Gibraltar and the United Kingdom felt strongly about something and Spain felt strongly about something else which might be contradictory, then the best way to deal with it might be by way almost of having preambular paragraphs that set out the position of each of the parties.

To an extent, that is what is reflected there by, in (B) and (C), setting out the position of the UK and the position of Spain. But even the position of the UK is not as he and I would have drafted it, because we would have liked to have seen it drafted in much more trenchant terms and I am sure that they could not stop us if they gave each of us a red pen, writing in the unqualified right of the people of Gibraltar to self-determination, etc.

This is unfortunately not that sort of document, but it reflects consultation with us and, despite that, does not reflect what we would have liked to see, even in a diplomatic compromise.

Adjournment

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn to tomorrow at 4.00 p.m.

Mr Speaker: I will now propose a question that this House should now adjourn to tomorrow at 4.00 p.m.

I will now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to tomorrow at 4.00 p.m. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

1915

This House will now adjourn to tomorrow at 4.00 p.m.

The House adjourned at 5.45 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

5

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT

10

Defence Transfer Advisor Advertisement; academic qualifications

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Friday 16th November.
Answers to Questions continue. Question 978/2012, the Hon. D A Feetham.

15

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state why the vacancy of Defence Transfer Advisor was advertised externally to the GDC and why no academic qualifications were a necessary requirement for the applicants?

20

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 979/2012 to 984/2012.

25

GDC employees
Vacancies; grades, terms and conditions; HR Manager
Question 984/2012 withdrawn

30

Clerk: Question 979.

35

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment confirm that a selection board interviewed candidates and made a recommendation in relation to the vacancies advertised earlier on in the year in the GDC in respect of four information officers, one vacancy in accounts and one of coach park attendant?

Clerk: Question 980.

40

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Minister for Employment state whether the Government has made a decision on whether GDC and former GDC, Civil Service, ring-fenced staff will be able to apply for each other's vacant posts?

45

Clerk: Question 981.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state whether GDC employees working in the Housing Department will be offered the same package as civil servants have been offered for surrendering their status if the Department or parts of it transfer into an agency?

50

Clerk: Question 982.

Hon. D A Feetham: Is there any intention on the part of the Government to replace GDC grades with the same grades that are currently used within the Civil Service?

55

Clerk: Question 983.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state when the GDC is likely to appoint a Human Resources Manager for the GDC?

60

Clerk: Question 984.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment explain why he refuses to recognise... In fact, Mr Speaker, I am withdrawing this particular Question, so it is only until Question 983.

65

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

70

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, existing posts are normally filled by internal promotion. The practice over the last four years has been to advertise vacancies both internally and externally. Newly created positions are recruited externally when there is a specific requirement, which in this case was previous experience of dealing with MOD transfers of assets and services. To my knowledge there is no academic qualification on such MOD transfers. The recommendation of any selection board that interviews candidates is an internal matter for the GDC.

75

As regards GDC staff, the situation remains as communicated to them in a meeting held at the John Mackintosh Hall on 30th January 2012. The GDC employees deployed to the Housing Department do not have Civil Service status. The grades have been the same in the GDC and the Civil Service since the GDC was reinstated on 9th December 2011.

No decision has been taken in relation to the position of a GDC HR Manager.

80

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just dealing with Question 978 and the answer that the Hon. the Minister for Employment has given me in relation to that Question, can the Minister please confirm that, in fact, he undertook, to a meeting in the John Mackintosh Hall of GDC employees, that all advertising for vacancies within the GDC would be advertised internally and that it would not go externally to any high flyers? Can he confirm that that was an undertaking that he gave to the GDC employees?

85

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, not as the hon. Member has expressed it, because as far as I am concerned, I do not know anything about high flyers or low flyers.

What I did tell them was that the policy was that all internal vacancies that are promotions... That is to say if we have a job in the GDC and the person who is there goes, and we decide that that post is required, then provided the number of posts at that grade remains the same, before anybody is brought in from outside to fill such a post it will be advertised internally.

Of course, the GDC does not have and has never had an existing establishment like jobs in the Civil Service have, nor do any of the agencies or authorities created by the former administration, as has been stated by them publicly in this House. So the position is that, for example, if somebody who is occupying a position in the GDC is placed in another Department, it is not that the position has become vacant; it is just that the person takes the post to somewhere else. So there are, for example, persons who were in the Employment Service now somewhere else and the post is still filled, but somewhere else. That is not a vacant post that would be advertised, but if the person were to leave the service a decision would be taken as to whether we require that number of people at that grade, and if it was required, initially it would have to be filled internally, and I would expect it to be the case that there will be sufficiently experienced internal applicants to fill it.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I think I have understood the answer, but so that I understand it, by way of clarification, is the Hon. the Minister for Employment drawing a distinction between a vacancy that arises as a consequence of an internal post, an existing post that becomes vacant, and a vacancy that is created as an additional post? Is he saying that, effectively, in relation to the former, that goes internally to the GDC, and in relation to the latter, that will be open to applicants from the outside, depending on the nature of the post? Is that what he is saying?

Hon. J J Bossano: For example, there are a number of posts that have been added to the GDC. I think the hon. Member has to remember that the GDC itself is a supplier of labour. That is to say there are people who are employed in the GDC but do not carry out a function for the GDC; they carry out a function either in the Tourist Office or in the Treasury or in the Education Department or the Financial Services.

So a number of posts have been created recently in the GDC, which are to do with regulatory work in relation to gaming, and the people who have been brought in have been brought in filling those posts, but not from internal recruitment in the GDC. I would expect that the people in the administrative structure – where effectively they are generic skills and you can move somebody who is an HEO from one area to another area, doing HEO work, and basically there should be no problem in the work being done – that if one of those posts became vacant, you would expect that the next level up, of EOs, throughout the GDC can apply, independent of where the HEO is. We have an example in the Tourist Office, where the person who took the job was an EO in the Employment Service, but it was a GDC HEO which was open to GDC EOs only. I would expect that it would be extremely unusual that for any of those posts we could find nobody internally, because I am told people act up all the time and they are experienced and they know the job.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister confirm that, in fact, there is a minimum entry requirement to the GDC of a couple of O-levels or GCSEs?

Hon. J J Bossano: I cannot confirm that. I do not think that, when we recruited AAs recently, we put a minimum entry requirement.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, my understanding – and of course I am not going to push it if he is not aware of it – is that, for Grade 1s within the GDC, the minimum entrance requirement is a couple of GCSEs or O-levels. But the question is this: if there is such a requirement – I would say there is; the hon. Member is not aware, but if there is –

Hon. J J Bossano: I am saying more than that: I am saying I do not think there is. I can certainly say with certainty that there has not been, because I know a lot of the people they have got in the GDC who have not got them, who were there already when I arrived.

Hon. D A Feetham: If there is a minimum entry requirement for Grade 1s within the GDC, does he not agree with me that it makes very little sense indeed for there to be a minimum entrance requirement for Grade 1s of a couple of O-levels, but then no minimum entry requirements, in terms of academic qualifications, for somebody for a post such as this, as Defence Transfer Advisor?

I take the point that you have made, that Defence Transfer Advisor may have... one was looking for other (Hon. J J Bossano: Skills.) skills, but the point that I am making is if you have a minimum entry requirement for Grade 1s, shouldn't it also apply across the board, or certainly higher than Grade 1s?

Hon. J J Bossano: I do not think it necessarily follows. It depends on the nature of the content of the job. If you had a guy who was an excellent musician but had no O-levels, then you would not say, 'Well, I am not taking him,' and therefore he cannot enter into the Culture Department without O-levels, even though you may have somebody else who does not know how to touch an instrument but has the O-levels. It depends on what you are looking for, because what you are paying for is the work that is required of the incumbent of that post.

In any event, I have not introduced a requirement for two O-levels or two GCSEs, and I know beyond doubt that of the 160-odd persons who were there, there were very many who did not have them. They managed to get in before without them, so clearly it has not been the case that between 1996 and 2011 there has been such a requirement; otherwise, those people should never have entered into employment. I have not introduced them, so it is not an irrational deduction that if they were not there and I have not introduced them, then they do not exist.

Hon D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I think that there were O-level equivalents – HND or NVQs.

Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman was in fact here when I asked a Question about the Defence Transfer Advisor to the Chief Minister, and asked him– this was before there had been a public announcement that the individual had been chosen – whether he was aware of the talk about town that an individual had already, even before the selection process had concluded, been earmarked for that particular job and that, in fact, that talk was rife about town. His answer to me was, 'Well, I am aware of the rumour, but you have just elevated it to the House.' Is the Hon. Minister satisfied that the recruitment for the Defence Transfer Advisor was undertaken completely and utterly transparently and properly?

Hon. J J Bossano: I was not involved in selecting the person, nor appointing the board that selected them. All I can tell the hon. Member is that I imagine it is no less transparent and accountable than what has been happening in the last 15 years when similar rumours were rife every time somebody got a job in the Government.

Hon. D A Feetham: Moving on, Mr Speaker, to the Answer that the hon. Gentleman has given me to Question 979, where I asked him about whether a selection board had interviewed candidates and made a recommendation in relation to the vacancies advertised in the GDC in the Tourist Office in respect of four information officers, accounts and also the coach park, his Answer, as I understood it, was that recommendations of the board are an internal matter. With respect, does he not agree with me that there is an inconsistency in the approach that the hon. Gentleman is adopting before this House today, and the approach that the hon. Gentleman, the Minister for Tourism, adopted certainly a month ago in relation to the recruitment of other officers within the bus service company, where he had absolutely no qualms in saying, 'This was a recommendation of the board and it was all done transparently, and all I was doing was, in fact, accepting a recommendation of the board'?

How does he correlate the approach by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, which I commend, and the attitude or the response that the hon. Gentleman has given me today?

Hon. J J Bossano: I can tell him that the fact that he commends one approach as opposed to the other will have no influence on me, except to think that mine is probably the right one if he commends the other one. But I do not see any contradiction anyway, because as far as I am concerned, if I choose to make public something that is internal to the GDC, I will do it, and if I choose not to, I do not.

So what I am telling him is he is not entitled to that information, and I choose not to give it to him.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can I put this to the hon. Member, Mr Speaker, that in fact what happened was this. The selection board interviewed over 200 candidates. The board made a recommendation to the Hon. the Minister for Tourism in relation to the four vacancies for information officers. The Hon. the Minister for Tourism endorsed that recommendation, sent it to you, to the Minister for Employment at the ETB, and you, as Minister for Employment, overrode that recommendation and insisted that only one information officer would be recruited from the recommendation of the board and three of them had to be Future Job Strategy trainees. That is what I am putting to the hon. Gentleman. What does he say about that?

Hon. J J Bossano: I say, Mr Speaker, that that is a hypothetical question, which under the Rules I do not have to answer.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, Point of Order.

Hon. P R Caruana: No, just rephrase it.

Mr Speaker: You can rephrase your question, surely.

Hon. D A Feetham: Did it or did it not happen in that way? That is the question.

215 Hon. J J Bossano: The question is, Mr Speaker, that he is making an assumption about something happening, and that assumption is based on hearsay, unless he tells me that he has a mole inside the system who has told him that story. Therefore, I do not have to tell him what goes on in the 220 recommendation of a board, and I am not telling him. If tomorrow a board recommends that I employ 20 people and I choose to employ one, it is my prerogative, as Chairman of the GDC, to do that, and he is not entitled to question me why the 19 were not selected or why they were not appointed.

Throughout their 15 years, the policy of the previous administration was that they were here to give answers for the things that they did and not to give explanations of every detail of the internal machinery of the workings of the Government, and now they seem to have moved from a very clear concept of what the limits were, to trying to say there is no limit.

225 You can ask me what is [inaudible] in the estimates, what is approved, what is rejected, who applies, who does not apply, but the answer is they are not going to get any more information from me than the one they were prepared to provide themselves.

230 Hon. D A Feetham: I could not help but... One of the points that you made was that you are perfectly entitled to override the recommendation of a board, that that is a recommendation – (Interjection by Hon.
J J Bossano) No, I understand that. The point that you made was, ‘I am perfectly entitled not to accept a recommendation that a board makes.’ (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) Indeed, I would not disagree with that.
All I am asking is is that what happened in this particular case?

235 He seems to be implying that that is what happened, and I am just trying to get to the bottom of what the facts are.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I am entitled to do two things – I am entitled not to accept the recommendation, and I am also entitled not to tell the Member whether I accepted it or I did not – and that is what I am doing.

240 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does he not think that again there is an inconsistency in the approach adopted by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism before this House on the last occasion, and the approach that the Hon. Minister is adopting today, where the Hon. the Minister for Tourism actually defended the selection of the recruitment of the managers and... well, certainly of the managers, on the 245 basis of, ‘Well, look, I am sorry, but it was the recommendation of the board. I am the Minister, I am accepting the recommendation of the board, and it is not a political appointment.’ Now you today come to this House and you say, ‘I am not giving you that information.’ So, when it suits the Government, it is alright to say that it is the recommendation of the board, but when it does not suit the Government, because of course the Government has something to hide, the hon. Member obfuscates and confuses the 250 situation.

Does he not believe that there is an inconsistency in the approach between yours and the Hon.
Minister?

255 Hon. J J Bossano: No. The only inconsistency, Mr Speaker, is in the approach of the Member when he was in Government and the approach that he has in Opposition, but that should surprise no-one given the dramatic shift in his approach to politics in general, public debt in particular, and a thousand other things when he moved between 2003 and 2007. So he is the expert of inconsistency in the entire 300-year history of Gibraltar and that may mean that he feels he is qualified to determine what is an inconsistency and what is not.

260 What I am telling him is if I have the discretion to give him information as to what a board recommends or not, then I am entitled to exercise that discretion in either providing it or not providing it.
If he thinks that when I do not provide it I have something to hide, he can well think what he likes; he is not going to change what I am going to say.

265 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, does the hon. Member accept that his lucid statement a few moments ago – that he is not willing to provide any information that the previous Government were not willing to provide him when the boot was on the other foot – finally betrays what we have been saying from this side of the House, that the pretence of the hon. Members opposite to have transformed the degree of transparency and openness in Government is the farce that we have been saying that it is,
270 because if all they are willing to do... if their measure of transparency is simply to match and not exceed the measure of transparency which they allege afflicted the previous Government, then they, by definition, cannot have any inclination to be more transparent.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, in this particular case that analysis is flawed, (Hon. P R Caruana: Oh, I see.) and I will tell him why: because in the 16 years that I was there I never attacked him for being untransparent when he said, 'This is an internal matter and I am not prepared to share it.' I never attacked him once in 16 years, so I am not being inconsistent at all. There might have been attacks in other areas of inconsistency, but certainly I can tell the hon. Member my judgement in whether I should say or not say something, or do or not do something will not be determined by wanting to be more transparent than him.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, everybody in Gibraltar knows that there is a government within a Government, and that the Government is led by the Hon. the Chief Minister and that the government within the Government is led by him, which he has just demonstrated by saying, 'I am not subject to the Government's transparency policies because I, Joe Bossano, in the 16 years that you, Peter Caruana, were Chief Minister, I never accused you of not giving me information.'

Mr Speaker, the question is not what I did to him or what he chooses to do now. The question is that he is a Minister of a Government that pretends and asserts to have hugely elevated the instinct and willingness and transparency, and all I am saying to him is whether he thinks that he is complying with that policy by saying, 'I am not willing to give you any information that you were not willing to give me,' because that is the same degree of transparency, for good or for bad, and ergo, by definition, does not equal and cannot equal a greater degree of transparency, which is the policy of his Government.

I would have thought, Mr Speaker, the hole into which he has dug himself is self-evident, but no doubt he will try and bluster his way out of it.

Hon. J J Bossano: I do not need to bluster. It is self-evident that it is not a hole. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) It is only evident to him because he would like it to be so, and therefore the hon. Members opposite spend their lives inventing things and then questioning why their inventions do not conform to reality, and this is one example.

Of course, the policy of the party in the Election campaign was to improve on the level of transparency or to reduce the lack of transparency in the performance of the previous administration, but if in 16 years I never considered what he was doing to me untransparent, then clearly in this particular area that was not one of the areas that we had identified. There are so many other areas that there is no reason to stick to this one. There are many many more areas where the transparency has been transformed overnight, and in all those areas we are all doing the same thing.

In this area, where I accepted the legitimacy of the argument from the hon. Member, I only asked him then to be consistent and accept the same legitimacy to me, and they should be consistent with their previous position and accept that we should be accorded on this side with the same discretion that we accepted from them, because I do not remember... I certainly did not do it, and I do not remember other people saying, 'Well, you should be telling us what goes on inside the Government,' whenever that Government was paraded by the hon. Member. The hon. Members were transformed shortly after the Opposition... not at the beginning, because they could not get over the shock of not being in Government, but once they had realised they were in Opposition, they were transformed –

Hon. P R Caruana: Not years, that's for sure.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I do not think it took me years to be transformed. If the hon. Member accuses me of the fact that... of not being transformable –

Mr Speaker: Can we try to make matters relevant, please, to the questions?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes. Well the relevance to the question, Mr Speaker, is that I believe they ought to be consistent with the level of information that they thought was reasonable, and therefore not seek more. But in any way, if they seek it they will not get it.

Hon. P R Caruana: On a wholly different dimension now, going back to the original answer, Mr Speaker, I think I correctly understood the hon. Member to say that he was free, if 12 people were recommended, to choose to accept only one, and I think that is the proposition to which my hon. and learned Friend, Mr Feetham, agreed. But was this a case of not having had 12 recommended and having chosen to accept one, or any other number less than 12, but rather of having employed people different to the people who were recommended; in other words, employing people who were not recommended by the board?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. Only three jobs were filled and therefore only three people were employed, so it is not a question of employing them differently or employing different people.

335 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, that in fact is –

Hon. P R Caruana: Not the people recommended by the board.

340 Hon. D A Feetham: Exactly. Isn't it the case that the board recommends four for the information officer vacancies, another one for accounts and another one for the coach park, and you in fact –

Mr Speaker: No – and the Minister.

345 Hon. D A Feetham: – and the Minister only accepts the recommendation in relation to one information officer and the other two, because what he does is he says, 'No, the other three information officer vacancies, we are not going to fill them because I am going to have three Future Job Strategy trainees working there'? That is what has happened, and in fact all the answers that he has given us during the course of this afternoon, anybody listening to this debate will have come to the conclusion that that is precisely what actually happened.

350 Mr Speaker: Anybody listening to this question and answer session.

Hon. D A Feetham: Question and answer session.

355 Mr Speaker: If you say that it is a debate, I will step in!

Hon. D A Feetham: So he might as well just simply confirm that that is the position.

360 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the position was that three jobs were filled. The GDC is free to fill one job, two jobs, three jobs, or however many jobs it wants, and it has to give no explanation to the hon. Member as to how many more we would have filled had we taken a different decision. It is as simple as that.

365 The fact that there are existing trainees deployed there, like they are deployed in many other parts of the Government... are people who were there before the vacancies existed and people who can be moved tomorrow to another area of employment, and people who eventually will finish up in the private sector, not in the public sector, (Hon. P R Caruana: I understand.) so his analysis is incorrect.

370 Hon. P R Caruana: Wait a minute. So what the hon. Member is saying, in fact, is that the two or three jobs that were being covered – let's put it that way – by trainees, were not filled at all. They ceased to exist as posts because the trainees could move on, and if they move on either the jobs are not filled, or they would then be filled permanently by a recruit.

375 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, they do not cease to exist as posts, because as the hon. Member ought to know, since he is the one who created the system, there are no posts in the GDC or in the agencies or – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Yes, posts. There is no structure of posts in the way that there is in the establishment of the Civil Service, and that indeed was one of the arguments that he used to persuade me of the greater flexibility of what was being done with this idea of employing people outside the Civil Service.

380 Therefore, whereas the Civil Service structure is cast in tablets of stone, and every time there is... We are now filling posts in the Civil Service that have been empty for 10 years. The fact that somebody leaves a job empty for 10 years, one would think normally would be an indication that perhaps there is not a need for it. He knows as well as I do that in the Civil Service a post stays there for however long it is. In the GDC and in all the agencies and all the authorities, this is not the case because there is not an agreed complement of posts. So tomorrow you can have five information officers and the day after you can choose to have one or to have 10, and at the moment we have chosen to have three.

385 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, I understand that and I understand that the Government has got management discretion to decide whether to fill posts or not fill posts, but doesn't he understand that we are premising our questions on the fact that the Government made the governmental executive decisions to advertise these posts, and therefore the Government had made the decision that it wanted to fill four information officer posts?

390 The Government did not say, 'I advertise for the job of information officer – I will decide later how many I want, or one'; the Government said, 'I want four information officers.' Somebody in the Government, presumably the Minister for Tourism, made the decision that the Government needed and wanted four more information officers and advertised for four more information officers. So the board then considers applicants for four posts, it makes a number of recommendations, and the hon. Member only puts one of those people into those four posts, and the other three it fills with trainees who had not been recommended by the board, and all we are saying is...

400 Look, he may want to defend it as being perfectly okay – that would be a different debate – all we are saying is that four advertised posts have been filled, as to one from amongst the people recommended by the board for that post, and as to three by trainees who had neither applied for the posts nor been recommended for them. That must be an incontrovertible statement of fact.

405 That the hon. Member may wish to say, ‘Well, so what? I reserve the right to assist trainees into real jobs in their... and covering for real...’ That is a policy decision which he is perfectly free to take, but at least let’s agree on the basic facts of what has happened.

410 Hon. J J Bossano: No, we cannot agree on the basis facts. He is wrong and it is not a fact, but for me to agree on the basic facts I would have to tell him what I do not want to tell him, because he is not entitled to have that information, which is to say to him exactly what was recommended, and that is what he is trying to get me to say and he is not going to succeed in that, Mr Speaker.

Secondly, these are generic posts. You may title it ‘information officer’, but if it is a grade 1, it is a grade 1 that tomorrow I can switch with a grade 1 anywhere else in the GDC, so it is not the case that you can go in and say, ‘I am an information officer and you cannot move me from here.’

415 Hon. P R Caruana: They have a separate job description.

420 Hon. J J Bossano: No. People are graded in grades. There is a question about the grading structure and either they are in a grading structure or they are not in a grading structure, and are people in grading structures interchangeable or are they not. So, either the hon. Member is saying somebody can be a grade 1 or an AA, working as an information officer, which is true; or he is saying no, an information officer is a job that requires specialist skills, which is not transferable, like the MOD land transfer. Well, he is wrong, they are not the same thing.

425 Hon. D A Feetham: Just finally on this part and I will move on, does the Hon. the Minister for Employment have anything to say to those three individuals who were selected by the board and that he has effectively vetoed from employment as information officers?

430 Hon. J J Bossano: No, I do not have anything to say, because I do not accept any of the statements that the hon. Member makes here, for which he is making himself responsible on the basis of hearsay and on things that they have told him in the street.

But I can tell him one thing: if those three were unemployed, they would have a far better chance of getting another job now than they had before 9th December. That, I can tell him.

435 Mr Speaker: Is the hon. Member asking now supplementaries on –

Hon. D A Feetham: On a different point.

Mr Speaker: On others?

440 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.

Mr Speaker: Please do.

445 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I apologise, but of course he has answered –

Mr Speaker: No, carry on.

450 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister for Employment appeared to say that the Government has taken the decision not to have a situation where GDC employees will be able to compete for Civil Service posts that become vacant that are occupied by former GDC employees. Can he confirm that is a Government decision as a whole? Can he confirm that?

455 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not know what he means by ‘a Government decision as a whole’. If any Minister takes any decision, then effectively the Government supports the decision of the Minister. I do not know if it was any different when he was there.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes [inaudible].

Hon. J J Bossano: Then let me explain the situation. When the hon. Members decided to discontinue the existence of the GDC, they sent a list to the Public Service Commission of all the people who were in the GDC, and the Public Service Commission was asked to uphold the Civil Service status without the normal requirements of the academic qualifications, vetting, or anything else – just a list, rubber stamp it – and the Public Service Commission rubber stamped it. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) I am assured –

Hon. D A Feetham: They made a recommendation to Government.

Hon. J J Bossano: I am assured they rubber stamped it because they did not say... It was not that the GDC said to the Government, 'Would you do this?'; it was the Government saying to the GDC, 'We want you to do this.' I have it from high authority and it is not anybody in the GDC.

When we came in, we found that there were a large number of GDC employees who had refused to sign the letter accepting the transfer, even though in fact they were told, according to them – I do not know whether it is true; the Members opposite may know better than me, but they were told by Unite – that either they signed or they were without a job, that's what they claim. I do not know if it is true or not. I do not make a habit of saying it is true because it is in the street. I am telling him that is what I was told before the Election, and what I was told after the Election by people who came to see me with letters.

When they came to see me before the Election what I said to them was, 'Look, I believe that if they sack you that will be an unfair dismissal in breach of the TUPE rules, but there is a problem because if the GDC is discontinued and you say, 'I do not want to go to the Civil Service,' your employer has ceased to exist.'

Immediately after the Election, the same people who had not wanted to move came to see me and I said, 'Well, look, I think to be fair to everybody, on the premise that the people who signed and accepted transfer might have done it because it was a no-choice position – that is to say the GDC is going to be closed down – either you are a civil servant with better conditions, or you have not got a job because you have not got an existing employer.'

If that is the story that I was told before, as a Member of the Opposition, and the story that I was told afterwards, as the Minister responsible for the GDC... I said I think it is only fair that not only those who did not want to move should be able to stay in the GDC, because now the position is that there are two options: there are those who said they did not want to move, who are staying; and there are those who said they wanted to move but they might have wanted to move in the scenario where there was no alternative.

Therefore, I explained everything to them and I convened a meeting in Mackintosh Hall, which lasted three and a half hours, to give them the opportunity of discussing this. I told them, 'Look, you are free to continue with what was offered to you before and we will respect you. What you had was ring-fenced Civil Service jobs and you can stay there – all of you can stay there, if you all want – or all of you can stay in the GDC if you all want, or some of you can go one way and some of you can go the other. Those who go into the ring-fence will have the monopoly of the ring-fenced jobs, and those who stay in the GDC will have the monopoly of the GDC jobs.'

That is the offer that I made to them and it was an offer that was accepted by the majority. There were some people who said they needed more time, and I said, 'Look, you have had several months on something that before you were given 24 hours, and I think you know we have been reasonable with you.'

They then went to the union, where in fact I think they had a letter signed by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, in which he said that the legal position was that they were civil servants on 1st October, whether they liked it or they did not and whether they had accepted or they had not. So, on the basis that that was the legal view given to the union and which the union put to me, I said, 'Well, in that case, you are all in the Civil Service, ring-fenced, according to this legal opinion of the Leader of the Opposition, accepted by Unite. So now any of you that want to come out of the ring-fence and come back into the GDC can do that, but once you come out you cannot go back.'

That is where we are today and that is where we were when the decision was made, and the decision was made on the basis that people were given the opportunity to keep everything that they were given by the previous administration, or to have an alternative, but it was a decision that they had to make one way or the other once, and we could not have people changing their minds because, obviously, in a situation where different people have different retirement ages and so forth, you could have people doing numbers and saying, we are [inaudible] now, the chances of promotion are greater on this side, so now we will go to the other one,' and then, if the odds change, then 'I want to go back to the other one.' Therefore we thought once the decision is made then that is the decision that you make. I actually said to them, 'Look, in my view, you have got better prospects for the future in the GDC because the ring-fenced jobs are finite.' The ring-fence can only shrink and eventually disappear because eventually all those jobs will go back to the normal non-ringfenced Civil Service.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, in fact, in fairness to the hon. Gentleman, you had explained this in the past, but of course the hon. Gentleman will recall – again in exchanges that I had with the Chief Minister and, I think, with yourself – that the GDC, through their union, were seeking meetings with the Government in order to discuss precisely this system of cross-fertilisation between the GDC and the Civil Service, and what I am trying to get at is whether the Government has actually now made a decision in the light of the representations that were made to the Government.

I take it, therefore, that in fact the Government is not for changing its position and its decision on what the Hon. the Minister has explained this afternoon to me – that the position will stay the same; having heard those representations, the position will stay the same and no cross-applications will be allowed, despite those representations. Or is the matter still open for discussion with the Government?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, as far as I am concerned, it is not open. I have made that clear. It is not open, and indeed I think, in my view, if it were open it would be in breach of the whole concept of the ring-fence, because the ring-fence would never shrink, it would constantly be replenished from the GDC side because the GDC is not ring-fenced. So, if there are new people coming into the GDC, and from the GDC they can go into the ring-fence, then the ring-fencing would be meaningless, in my estimation. But it is not an issue, as far as I am concerned, that has been re-addressed since the lines were drawn in my original meeting, when frankly, to be honest with the hon. Member, I think he should understand that, as far as I am concerned, we had no obligation to do any of this. We were perfectly entitled as a Government on 9th December to say, ‘Well look, that is what was negotiated by your union with the previous administration on 1st October: you were all made civil servants and you were all made ring-fenced and therefore you stay like that.’

It was because people made representations to us that they did not wish to be in the Civil Service that we gave them the option to get out. Now, clearly, if anybody of the people that came to me and said, ‘I now want to go in’, I would say, ‘Well, look, you were in and what you cannot do is be coming out when you think you are better off out and then wanting to be in, when you think you are better off going in’! Otherwise, no public administration can operate on the basis of people changing their minds.

I think the only justification that there was for giving them the option was that the previous administration had decided – as they had a right to do – that they did not want to keep the GDC. Therefore, they could not give people the option of staying in something that was bound to disappear. If we decided tomorrow, for example, that we did not want to have a Culture Agency, then clearly, you could not say to people, ‘Who wants to go into the Civil Service and who wants to be in the Culture Agency?’ because there will be no Culture Agency to be in.

That was the position on 1st October. That was the position on 8th December. People between October and December made representations and I agreed that when we came up, we would give them an opportunity – because I did not think it was a good idea anyway to have people in a situation... People unhappy about being in an organisation are likely to be less useful. After all, at the end of the day, they are really working in the same places doing the same work, whether you call them ring-fenced or civil servant and they are on the same pay and on the same conditions.

Hon. D A Feetham: That is what they say, yes.

Hon. J J Bossano: They are.

Hon D A Feetham: Thank you very much for that. I will not push the point. It is loud and clear from the Hon. the Minister that the Government is not going to change its policy in relation to it.

Just in relation to the next question about the Housing Department transferring, if it converts into an Agency. I did not quite catch the answer, but the supplementary is effectively this –

Mr Speaker: The answer was that the GDC employees deployed to the Housing Department do not have Civil Service status.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, exactly. Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

They do not have Civil Service status, absolutely not, of course; but will they be offered the same terms and conditions if there is a transfer? Of course, there are GDC employees that are working in this particular Department. Will they be offered the same package effectively, if the Department actually converts into an Agency or is it the intention of the Government to just simply offer that package to civil servants and not the GDC?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the reason why the answer is that they do not have GDC status is because the package that was offered to people in the part of the Housing Department that was responsible for the maintenance, the Government chose to split the two and then they said, ‘Half of you are going to go into the Housing Maintenance Agency, which is not part of the Civil Service and because you give up Civil Service status, I will pay you 12%.'

To my knowledge, no GDC employee in any other Department has ever been told, 'If you give up Civil Service status, we will give you 12%', because they do not have the status to give up. The people who are in the GDC in the Housing Department are deployed there and tomorrow I can take them out of there and put them in the ETB or anywhere else in the Government where people are deployed.

This is a situation which I think it would be desirable to correct over the passage of time, so that eventually all the people who are GDC are all in one area and we do not have the kind of mixture we have got together which complicates... like sometimes, in some places there is a majority of GDC with a minority of civil servants and in other places, a majority of civil servants, with a minority of GDC. Now, at the very least, they are all graded the same and paid the same, so that is one area of friction that has been removed. It is still, I think, an untidy situation but it is not something that can be corrected overnight.

In this area, there are a couple of GDC clerical officers in the Housing Department, but they are not civil servants; they are GDC employees and therefore they are removable from there and deployable anywhere else because their employer is the GDC, not the Housing Department.

There is a great deal of discontent and resentment in areas of the Housing Department at the division that was made, because clearly, if people are sitting at one desk as opposed to another and they do not know that that desk is going to get 12% and this one is not, then when it happens, they say, 'Well if I had known that, I would have gone for being at that desk where the 12% was going to be.' That is the source of the problem.

I do not know exactly how or when the possible re-merger – because that is what we are really looking at... It is not a question of a third Agency; it is a question of bringing the two bits back together and then, inevitably, you have to offer to those who did not get it before what you offered to the first group of people.

But it is in that scenario that there is a problem affecting those who are not civil servants, because the element of the package that says, 'If you give up your Civil Service status, we will pay you so much', obviously requires that you should have the status in the first place to give up.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes, in fact if we had been returned to Government, of course, this would not have been a problem, in relation... I am just talking about GDC Civil Service because they would have all been civil servants and being civil servants, they would have been able to take advantage of any package the Government offered civil servants. But in fact the hon. Gentleman is right: he has alluded to friction, but there is, of course, a friction between the GDC employees that chose not to move to the Civil Service and those that moved to the Civil Service, effectively within one organisation. Now does he not accept that there is that friction and that, effectively, you are dealing with a situation where – and I realise that in fact the way that it panned out, usually those that chose to remain in the Civil Service of the GDC were in blocks, effectively. So for example, Human Resources went to the Human Resources Department, etc.

Does he not accept that there is this friction and that it is unfair, in circumstances where you do have GDC employees working within the Department and really all that distinguishes them is a policy decision that the Government took of reinstating the GDC, but that they are not offered the same terms as their brothers and sisters within the Civil Service – former GDC employees – when the time comes of transferring to the Agency?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, if the people in the GDC had been previously in the Civil Service, they would have not have been able to give up their status, because it would have meant moving outside the ring fence.

The people in the ring fence are frozen where they are. They cannot move in and they cannot move out. As far as I am concerned, that is what they accepted because the hon. Member must understand the number of anomalies that they created, when they were in office, with this negotiation. First of all, they promised everybody that they would integrate them unconditionally into the Civil Service and then the civil servants rebelled. Then because the civil servants rebelled, the Government changed their conditions and in order to seek the support of the clerical union and their members, they made this concession by saying, 'Well look, okay, all the people from before will not be able to move outside the jobs that they have got at the moment and therefore, this is not the only anomaly we have got.'

There are many areas with these Agencies, where the hon. Member must understand that – I do not know whether he had anything to do with any of this, but I would have thought anybody with a background of negotiations and working conditions and so on would know that the moment you start tampering with conditions and you give people more money than others, you are creating problems for the future and there is a lot of that. You have paid people to leave the Civil Service a premium in one area, and you have paid another group of people a premium to come into the Civil Service in another area. Well, unless you try and introduce some order into this chaos, you finish up with a leap-frogging exercise for which there is no end, because every time you try to correct one anomaly, you create another anomaly. It is not an easy problem to solve, I can assure the hon. Member. If it was easy it would have been done.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker I accept some of it; I do not accept the way that he characterises what we did.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I would not expect you to.

Hon. D A Feetham: Indeed, I would like to remind the hon. Gentleman that in fact the union took the unprecedented step of writing to the hon. Gentleman and also to the Chief Minister and the Deputy Chief Minister, actually accusing the Government of having forced these individuals under duress to transfer out of the Civil Service into the GDC. So in fact, I could make exactly the same point that the hon. Member has made, but in reverse: (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) that the problem has been created by this Government, not by the previous Government.

But moving on to the answer that he has given to the question about the grades, in answer to some of the previous questions – it was not in answer to the original question, but in some of the supplementaries – he mentioned the AA grades. Yesterday, we had a conversation or an exchange about the AA grades and the hon. Gentleman today has said that, effectively – by my understanding and correct if I am wrong – that the grades for the Civil Service and also for the GDC –

Hon. J J Bossano: Are the same.

Hon. D A Feetham: – are the same. Are the AA grades something that the Government has now introduced, this year? Of course, my understanding of the position – and in fact, I have gone back, having heard the Chief Minister yesterday – is that we abolished the AA grades in the late 1990s or certainly the now Leader of the Opposition, then Chief Minister did. Is that something that has been introduced now, this year?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, there are still people in grades, because... Well, the hon. Member, in his questions, put that there are 40 AA vacancies. Well, how can he say that there are 40 AA vacancies, but there are no AA grades?

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, can he give way? I will tell him.

In fact, I had drafted two questions. I had drafted the question, ‘Has the Government decided to create an AA grade?’ and then I thought, ‘Well actually, I know that they have created an AA grade, because here is the advert.’

But simply because there is an advert advertising 40 AA vacancies does not mean that the Government has not decided to create those AA vacancies this year. There were not any AA vacancies prior to... well, certainly when we were in Government. What there was was AO at Civil Service level and then below that – or quite a different job, actually, and perhaps it is even improper saying ‘below that’ – you had Personal Assistants and also Secretaries.

Now, unless what the Government has done here is that it has decided that all those –

Mr Speaker: Why don’t you ask: what is it that the Government...?

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, what is it that the Government has done? Has it decided to bung... to effectively rename all those people? What has it done because I do not recognise this AA grade from the time that I was a Government Minister.

Hon. J J Bossano: First, I would like to deal with the point the hon. Member made about whether one can say, and the union wrote to me saying, that we had forced them to do something and that that was in fact a parallel to the criticism that I have made of the fact that they forced the employees into accepting Civil Service status on 1st October. The difference is that, before, people were given the choice and given a general meeting; on 1st October, they were informed that from the 1st October, they were no longer in the GDC which was no longer going to exist and there was no alternative.

Now, the same union that accepted being told, ‘Whether you like it or you do not’ and saying so to me in writing... The position is that the Public Service Commission made everybody a civil servant on 1st October and therefore, whether they had agreed to it by returning the letter signed or not, they are civil servants. Right? That same union says when three months later, I give people the choice of remaining like that or having something else if they wanted, then that is forcing them.

710 So giving them an option is forcing them and forcing them is okay. If we had told them, 'You cannot move, you are stuck', the union would have accepted that, according to the hon. Member opposite. Well, it is a very strange way – but then, the union became a very strange animal, just before 9th December. (Hon. D A Feetham: Ooh!) Yes, a very strange animal. I think it is now recovering some of its former consistencies! (Interjections and laughter)

A Member: [Inaudible] Exactly!

715 Hon. J J Bossano: As regards his latest point, can I remind him, Mr Speaker, that his question is in one area, dealing with the grades in the Civil Service and the GDC being the same. Well, perhaps he can ask himself – because I cannot ask him a question! – if indeed he supports and believes that the grades should be the same as they are – and I have told him they are – then the Grade 1 is an AA in the Civil Service. If the Grade 1 is an AO, then the Grade 2 must be an EO, the Grade 3 and so on and beyond 720 Grade 5, there is nothing except Senior Officer, and then we have got people up the Rock who will be Senior Officers on £70,000.

Hon. D A Feetham: With respect, Mr Speaker, he has not answered the question.

725 Hon. J J Bossano: I have.

Hon. D A Feetham: Has the AA grade been introduced by the Government this year?

730 Hon. J J Bossano: No. Mr Speaker, I have just informed him that in the letters sent to people on 1st October, informing them that they were now civil servants and not GDC employees, there were people who were told they were AAs on 1st October 2011. That is what I am telling him.

735 Mr Speaker: But I think the hon. questioner is referring to the adverts that came out for 40 vacancies at AA, advertised by the Gibraltar Government. Do I understand the position correctly? Nothing to do with 1st October.

740 Hon. D A Feetham: Nothing to do with 1st October. In fairness to the hon. Gentleman, I understand that the answer that he has given. I do not accept it, but I understand it. What he is saying is that, effectively, we re-introduced somehow the AA grade. Now, I take issue with that, but let me ask him this: is the re-introduction of the AA grade an attempt to dumb down entrance requirements into the Civil Service?

745 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, he uses 'dump down' methodology in his speeches in this House, in his questions in this House. It is not 'dumping down'. Is he saying then that since time immemorial civil servants were 'dumped down' because they were allowed to enter the Civil Service at the grade of Clerical Assistant?

Several Members: Dumbing down! (Laughter and interjections)

750 Hon. J J Bossano: The entry grade of AA in my view is a very competitive rate at which to recruit, given that for one vacancy we have 603 applicants, which includes bank managers from the private sector. So if the hon. Member is saying we are going to have to reduce the qualifications or reduce the... We have got people with masters degrees applying to be AAs, dumped down! (Laughter and applause)

755 Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Mr Feetham have any supplementary on the question of the GDC HR Manager? Then, next question.

760 Future Job Strategy trainees
Termination of training since 1st February

Clerk: Question 985, the Hon. D A Feetham.

765 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state how many Future Job Strategy trainees placed with the private sector since 1st February this year have had their training terminated by those businesses?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker: 86.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can he inform the House as to what happens to those 86 when there is a termination?

In other words, what I am trying to extract from the hon. Gentleman is information as to whether they are placed in any Government Department or alternatively whether their contracts are held effectively on freeze until they are placed in another private company on placement?

Hon. J J Bossano: Of the 86 that had their training terminated, it was terminated because it was completed and they then entered full-time employment on higher wages, in the businesses where they were being trained. So 51 of them were... That is to say, they ceased to be trainees on the Friday and they became full-time employees of the employer on the Monday: 51.

Of the 35 remaining, they were removed from the training, because the employer was not willing to guarantee employment, because there was no such requirement when they were taken on before 1st February. They have now been provided with a new employer who has signed an agreement and who will give them employment at the end of the training.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I am surprised by that, because I have had a gentleman who has come to see me this week. He did not mind my telling you the name across the floor of the House, but I think it is inappropriate and I will tell the hon. Gentleman in the lobby of the House. After three months, his contract was terminated by the company and now he has effectively been told, 'Well look, we cannot do anything for you until there is another private company that is willing to take you on.'

I am asking the hon. Gentleman – there is certainly one that I know of – how many of these cases are there that the hon. Gentleman knows about?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the cases that I have quoted are the cases of the termination of the training. (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.) Yes, and the cases of the termination of the training are where the training is either discontinued because there is no guaranteed job or there is a situation where the training has been completed for the period that was agreed with the placement provider.

The people are employed by ETCL; they are not employed by the business. The business agreed to take them on before, without any commitment and therefore, when the six months were up, they were just told 'Goodbye and send me another one.' That is no longer the case and therefore people who breach the agreement have to repay the money. That so far has not happened, because so far the ones that have reached the agreed period have been taken on.

There were 35 which we could not persuade to take on a commitment which they had not entered into originally and there was no way that we could force them to do it, and frankly, practically all of them argued that it is not so much that they did not want to be helpful; it was that they had really taken on somebody they did not need, because at the time, in 2011, they thought they were being 'good businesses' in helping to take on young people to get some work experience, but they did not have a slot to put them into, so they told us, 'Look, it is not that we are being difficult, because we did not sign an agreement; it is that had we been asked previously to take somebody on for a job, we would not have been able to take them on on this basis, because there is no job for them to go to.' They have been doing sort of chores in the office or in the shop or whatever, but they are extra to what the requirements of the business are, and that is where the 35 come in.

That does not mean that there have not been other people whose employment has been terminated for reasons that are... that they did not turn up for work or that they just disappeared and did not give any explanation or that they went off to study to the UK. We do not think they fall into the category of termination of training, because it is really like any employer: if there is a misconduct reason, then there is a dismissal.

I will certainly look. There are 500 people in the system: that does not mean that I have got an accurate explanation of each one of the 500, much as I try to keep my eye on the ball. But certainly, I am happy to investigate the case that the hon. Member has or any other that may come his way.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, well, I am grateful for that answer.

Perhaps if I may, Mr Speaker, ask the Hon. the Minister for Employment, what is the policy of the Government in respect of a situation whereby a company terminates the placement? They are not terminating the employment because these individuals continue to be employed by ETCL. (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) It is the termination of the placement. Is it the Government's policy that, where that happens, the Government will assume responsibility for these individuals and either continue to pay them, ETCL, or alternatively continue to pay them with a placement somewhere in the public sector?

Obviously, there are only two choices. Well, in fact there are three choices: either ETCL terminates the contract, because there is no longer a placement; ETCL continues to pay, but there is no placement or no training anywhere; or ETCL continues to pay and the Government undertakes to actually place them within a Government Department. I just wonder, as a matter of principle and policy, what the Government's position in relation to this is.

Hon. J J Bossano: I have actually given him that information before, Mr Speaker, because I told him that most of the people that were distributed throughout the public sector were distributed precisely because the business where they had been placed would not commit itself to taking them, and since we were already paying them, rather than pay them to be not very useful in a business that did not want them, it was better to put them in a Department where at least we would be getting some return for the money we were paying them, until we obtained a place for them in the private sector – and I am using practically the identical words that I used in the last meeting of the House to give that explanation.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, well, I am grateful and I will in fact provide the Hon. the Minister for Employment the details of this particular individual, because this particular individual was told that he will have to wait without pay until he is placed. I do not chastise or criticise the hon. Member or the Government in relation to this, because it may well be that there is somebody at the ETB that is giving out the wrong information.

Employment Training Company Limited
Contracts with companies having trainees

Clerk: Question 986, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment confirm that those companies who had not signed contracts with ETCL, despite having trainees placed with them, have now signed such contracts?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker.

Future Job Strategy trainees
Employers with Government contracts

Clerk: Question 987, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Further to Question 848/2012, is the Government now in a position to identify the employers who have signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited in respect of the Future Job Strategy trainees and have the benefit of a contract with the Government, any Public Authority or Government-owned company for the provision of goods and/or services with a value in excess of £2,000?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I am informed by the relevant bodies that the following companies have contracts with the Government in excess of £2,000: El Ouahabi Butchers; Saccone & Speed; Globe Travel; Caterpac Gibraltar; EWMS; Euroship Supplies; MiniMarkets; Bonmilk Ltd; Restsso; Gibmaroc; Fastafod Ltd; Gibtelecom; Gibraltar Chronicle; ITMS; Rock Cool; Ambrosio Edery; Upsmeier; Thomas & Betts; Gib Oil; Versetec; Austco; Schneider; Mifsud Electrofreeze; Braithewaite; British Gas; Emblem Strategy; Europort; Medsys Ltd; Monteverde; GOHNS; Animal Welfare Centre; Environmental Agency; Land Property Services; Detective & Security; Greenarc; Wildlife; Aquagib; Master Service; Gibraltar Vet Clinic; Amco; LC Groundworks; In Line Framing; Leed Transport; Wastage Products Ltd; ABC Services Co. Ltd; Gibsun Club; Icon; A to Z Supplies; TTS Group; Charnwood; Midtown Books; MCS; Newton Systems; Pageant Media; Portman Ltd; ESSL; Group 5; 501 Construction; W&N Work Company Ltd; Clive Chichon Services; SFA Interior Refurbishment; SA Construction; Koala Construction; Proseal.

Of these companies, the following five have raised no objection to being identified as training providers: Acehoba Ltd; Hammonds Music Copyright (Gibraltar) Services Ltd; SFA Total Refurbishment; A&K General Builders.

A further three are willing for the information to be given to the hon. Member opposite, as long as he treats it in confidence, as stated in the answer to Written Question 226/2012.

Hon. D A Feetham: So, the number of companies that enjoy those contracts and have subsidised labour via the Future Job Strategy by my reckoning is eight, not 10, as the hon. Member indicated on the last occasion.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, there are five that have said they have raised no objection (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.) and there are three that say, 'You can have the information if you treat it in confidence' – and that is what the hon. Gentleman has got in the Written Answer.

Mr Speaker: Are there another two?

Hon. J J Bossano: There are another two that have said that they will not agree with this.

Hon. D A Feetham: Have they not agreed or is it that they have not responded?

Hon. J J Bossano: I cannot be 100% sure, but they have not written in saying yes, because then I would have it here. (Interjections)

I think, perhaps, the hon. Member will realise that what he calls subsidised labour is not in fact a factor in the position of being a Government contractor. That is to say, I want to make it crystal clear that all these companies that have contracts have got contracts which they had before they had what we call subsidised labour. (Interjections) Well, only the ones that are coming into existence since. Presumably, the fact, Mr Speaker, that the policy has been introduced, which I hope they will see as a welcome development and support, that there are unemployed people made redundant who are being helped by the Government to set up their own little business is a good thing and is a way of dealing with the unemployment situation, which I think myself is a very good thing, because it gives people an opportunity to have a future and those people have entered into the list of contractors since we have been in and were not there before because they did not exist before. I think there are three or four of them, out of several hundred. (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham)

Gibraltar Savings Bank Regulatory oversight

Clerk: Question 988, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, will the Minister with responsibility for the Gibraltar Savings Bank please state whether in considering the proposed extension of activities of that institution, it has taken into account the relevant EU Directives and does the Government consider that those Directives impose an obligation in respect of independent regulatory oversight or licensing?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the EU Directives are not relevant to the activities of the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, they are not relevant to the Gibraltar Savings Bank at the present moment, but is the hon. Member saying that when the Gibraltar Savings Bank actually extends its activities, for example becomes a credit institution for the purposes of the Capital Requirements Directive, that still it is not covered by the Directive? Is that the Government's understanding of the position?

Hon. J J Bossano: The position is that it will not be a credit institution as defined in EU law and therefore the Directives will not apply and that, in any event, given the level of the liquidity of the bank, it is well in excess of all the requirements and all the ratios of the Basel II, Basel III and all of them.

Clerk: And with that, we come to the end of Answers to Oral Questions.

Questions for Written Answer

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the Answers to Written Questions Number W180/2012 to W238/2012 inclusive.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

965

Standing Order 7(1) suspended to proceed with Government Statement

Clerk: Suspension of Standing Orders, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

970

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to move under Standing Order 7(3) to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with a Government statement.

Mr Speaker: Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT

980

Sum paid to former CEO of Gibraltar Health Authority Statement by the Minister for Health and the Environment

Clerk: The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

985

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, following discussion consequent to the reply given by me to Question 877/2012, the Chief Minister undertook to consider making a statement in relation to the sum paid to Dr David McCutcheon, former Chief Executive of the Gibraltar Health Authority, at the time of his resignation in September.

The matter having been considered, I am now able to make the following statement.

990

Dr McCutcheon was originally engaged on 19th October 2004 on a three-year contract that was signed on 6th August 2004. This contract included a number of specific performance indicators with time limits setting a number of targets that had to be fulfilled during the term – that is by 18th October 2007.

995

A second three-year contract was signed on 18th July 2007 to run from 19th October 2007 to 18th October 2010. The performance indicators were largely the same as in the 2004 contract, except that most of the time limits for the target were removed, except one that set the limit at April 2006, even though the contract ran from 2007 – clearly a typographical error. Aspects such as the elimination of waiting lists and the introduction of electronic patient records remained as targets.

1000

A further contract was entered into on 9th November 2010, with retrospective effect from 19th October 2010, this time for five years, due to expire on 18th October 2015. Once again, performance indicators remained, including the typographical reference to April 2006, and those requiring the elimination of waiting lists, now with the added condition of being, and I quote, ‘subject to the resources provided’, and introducing the electronic health record.

1005

At the time of Dr McCutcheon’s resignation, effective from 11th September 2012, his salary, inclusive of tax-free gratuity and on-call allowance, was approximately £204,000 per annum. Given that the contract had approximately three years and one month to run, he would have been paid around £629,000 to end of term.

1010

The contract signed by the last Government provided for the following payments to be made on termination before term: six months’ notice – approximately £79,240; six months’ pay – approximately £79,240; 50% of the remaining pay due to the end of the contract to October 2015 – £204,704; Repatriation Allowance on arrival from Canada to Gibraltar – £8,000; Repatriation Allowance on termination of contract – £8,000; Outplacement Allowance – £8,000; full gratuity payable to end of term October 2015 – £124,728 which makes a total which would have been payable of £511,912. This would have been in addition to adjustments of outstanding pay reviews, gratuity payments for time already worked and other outstanding allowances.

1015 The payment made to Dr McCutcheon, excluding these adjustments, was £243,498.34, which is about a quarter of a million pounds less than it could have cost and £380,000 less than would have been paid to him, had he stayed to the end of the contract term.

1020 Mr Speaker: That being a statement, I will allow Members of the Opposition to ask any questions that they may wish, for clarification.

Hon. P R Caruana: Is the Minister able to say anything as to the reason why the contractual relationship was terminated? In other words, I think the essence of his statement is that it was cheaper to terminate than to pay him through to the end; but of course that ignores the fact that if he had stayed to the end, you would have had the benefit of his services.

1025 So is the hon. Member able to say why it became necessary to be discussing severance pay in the first place?

1030 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, Dr McCutcheon made a statement at the time of his resignation and I feel that I do not want to add to that. I think that is all I have to say, at this point.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, that is a very awkward answer for the Opposition to be able to accept.

1035 If what the hon. Member is saying is that Mr McCutcheon resigned, then he is not entitled to anything and it begs the question why they paid him half a million pounds of taxpayers' money! Presumably, it was an agreed termination on terms, because if the man simply resigned, which is implicit in his last answer to which I will not hold him unless he repeats it... If he resigned and what Mr McCutcheon said is true, then he is not entitled to compensation because his contract has not been terminated; he has terminated it.

1040 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it was a resignation. I think I have to add that, clearly with a resignation, there would have needed to be a time of notice, which I do not think would have served the organisation and, therefore, these terms were agreed.

1045 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, whilst the Opposition is therefore grateful for the hon. Member coming back to the House with the information that they agreed to consider coming back to the House with, I have to tell him that much as he makes it sound like a saving, assuming that it was a genuine resignation and not the sort of resignation that you are left with no option but to do – which is, in effect, a constructive dismissal – unless that is the case if it is a genuine resignation, then much as the hon. Member makes this sound as money saved, it is actually properly to be assessed as money unnecessarily paid.

1055 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think I should reply by saying that Dr McCutcheon was recruited at the time in order to implement a Clinical Governance Review that cost the Government at the time over £2,080,000 to prepare. His contract was renewed on two occasions, despite the review and the related indicators not having been implemented or fulfilled. I think that is a relevant point to bear in mind.

Hon. P R Caruana: I will read... I will listen between the lines to the hon. Member's Statement. I am grateful anyway for the Statement.

BILLS
FIRST AND SECOND READINGS

1065

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

Clerk: Bills – First and Second Readings.

1070 A Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time.

1075 Mr Speaker: I now put the question which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

Clerk: The Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Act 2012.

1080

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

1085 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

Mr Speaker, this Bill amends the Income Tax Act 2010, to extend the current deadlines relating to payment on account of future liabilities by self-employed individuals and companies.

1090 Clause 2(2) extends the deadline from 31st December to 31st January for payment on account of future liabilities by self-employed individuals.

Clause 2(3) extends the deadline from 31st August to 30th September for payment on account of future liabilities by companies.

Clause 2(4) amends Schedule 9 of the Income Tax Act 2010 to reflect the extension of the deadlines mentioned above.

1095 The current deadlines in respect of self-employed individuals and companies are being extended in order to relieve administrative pressures on the Income Tax Department during particularly demanding periods. As a result of these changes, receipt of payment on account of future liabilities will not conflict with receipt of Employers' Annual PAYE returns and individual's tax returns.

I commend this Bill to the House.

1100

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

1105 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, now that I have become a self-employed taxpayer and therefore a beneficiary of the provisions of the Bill, the Opposition is delighted to support it. (Laughter)

Mr Speaker: I now put the Question which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a second time. Those in favour; (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

1110

Clerk: The Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Act 2012.

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

1115

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

1120 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

1125

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Court of Appeal Act, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1130

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Court of Appeal Act be read a first time.

1135 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Court of Appeal Act be read a first time. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

Clerk: The Court of Appeal (Amendment) Act 2012.

1140

Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

1145

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker this Bill provides for the ability for the Court of Appeal to sit with two judges where there is a certification to that effect by the President or the Chief Justice. It follows a proposal made by the President of the Courts, transmitted to me by the Chief Justice.

The Bill introduces a new section 3A to the Court of Appeal Act. By the new section 3A(1), the Court may sit with two judges.

1150

By the new section 3A(2), section 61(4)(a) of the Constitution is stated not to apply to an appeal which is certified under subsection 3A(1).

The section of the Constitution which is referred to which is 61(4)(a) states as follows, Mr Speaker:

1155

‘(4) Save as may be otherwise prescribed by any other law, for the purposes of any determination of the Court of Appeal –
(a) an uneven number of judges shall sit, which, in the case of any final determination by the court other than the summary dismissal of an appeal, shall be not less than three...’

1160

So by that provision there shall be an uneven number of judges and that number shall be not less than three. But section 61(4) provides ‘Save as may be otherwise prescribed by any other law.’ This is the law – the one we are introducing today – which prescribes now that the court may sit with less than three judges and where it sits with two, it will sit with an even number of judges.

I should say, Mr Speaker, that the intention is not that the court as a matter of normality should sit with two judges; indeed, on the contrary, the norm should continue and will continue as at present, with a Court of Appeal sitting with three judges. But I am advised that there may be exceptional circumstances where this new provision may be used.

1165

An example which has been given to me is a case where Sir Murray Stuart-Smith was still the President of the Court and he was taken ill whilst the court was in session in Gibraltar and taken to hospital in the early hours of the morning. Yet at 10 o’clock in the morning he had to sit in court, because this provision did not allow... or rather there was no provision which allowed the court to sit with less than three judges.

1170

So I have to say and I have to stress that it would be very exceptional and only clearly in cases... and I do not want to say cases which are of less importance to others, because clearly for appellants all cases will be important, but clearly where cases which could be considered of not significant jurisprudential importance, where there are not significant points of law to be determined, it is right that in those cases and it is right that it should be the norm that the court should continue to sit with three judges.

1175

What the amendment simply provides is a safety net, in appropriate and exceptional cases for an appeal to be able to proceed with less than three judges, in this particular case, with two judges. The Government considers and I am advised the judiciary considers that that is in the interests of the administration of justice in Gibraltar, and it is also in the interest of appellants in particular cases who would want their cases to be heard.

1180

I commend the Bill to the House.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, before he does so, can he give way so that perhaps he can then answer just a query –

1185

Hon. G H Licudi: You can ask a supplementary (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.) that I can answer subsequently.

Hon. D A Feetham: No, I know, but then obviously, I have no right of reply if that happens!

1190

The hon. Gentleman appears to be suggesting that, effectively, this would operate in a situation – correct me if I am wrong – where, for example, you have exceptional circumstances, that there are three judges to start off with, one is taken ill and the other two can continue. That is what appeared to be indicated by the hon. Gentleman.

But of course, section 3A(1) is wider, because it says:

1195

‘...the Chief Justice may certify that a particular appeal may be heard, or continue to be heard...’

So it is both and I just ask the hon. Gentleman, what kind of situation would a Court of Appeal...?

1200 Mr Speaker: Where the judge is taken ill the day before.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, the judge may be... well exactly, yes.

A Member: The provision goes further.

1205 Hon. D A Feetham: But the provision goes further.

Hon. P R Caruana: [Inaudible] the Chief Justice that certifies –

1210 Hon. D A Feetham: And of course, what happens in circumstances where those two judges do not actually agree on the verdict? Of course, if this were in a criminal case, juries do not agree, then the defendant is acquitted. In a civil appeal, you can have a two-to-one majority and then the appeal is allowed, but if you have a one-and-one, what happens in that kind of situation?

1215 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, what I mentioned earlier about a particular judge being taken ill was an example, and what I said was this was an example which was given to me as the kind of case that might be appropriate. It is not the only case where it might be appropriate, but certainly where a judge is taken ill in the middle of a sitting that might be an appropriate case in which this might be used.

1220 What it is not possible to do... and that is given as an example and I have made a statement in this Parliament that this is intended by the Government to be used in very rare and exceptional circumstances and not where the case is one of clear jurisprudential importance. What is not possible to do is simply set out in the legislation all the examples where this can be used. The provision provides for a certification to be made by the President or the Chief Justice, and I have no doubt and I am confident that that discretion given to the President and the Chief Justice will only be used in appropriate cases, rather than run-of-the-mill cases.

1225 But I hope the hon. Member agrees... and I did consider when I got a draft of the Bill, whether it was possible to say ‘in the following circumstances a certification may be made’. It was simply not possible and I had in mind, in fact, a debate that we had, which is relevant to the other Bill that we have before Parliament today, the amendment to section 12A of the Supreme Court Act, where I asked the hon. Member in terms of the priority of cases to be listed, and the hon. Member actually says, ‘One cannot legislate for every single eventuality, it is simply impossible’. I agree with that particular statement and that is why, following consideration, whether it is possible at all to set out any criteria. I certainly felt that it was best to leave it as it is, leave it in the hands of the President or the Chief Justice.

1230 The other point that the hon. Member makes is the question of the majority and that is actually provided for in, well the relevant point is made in section 61(4)(b) of the Constitution, which provides that:

‘any determination by the court on any matter (whether final or otherwise) shall, where more than one judge sits, be according to the opinion of a majority of the judges who sit to determine that matter.’

1240 That is simply, in our view, a permissive situation. It does not always require a majority. In other words, you can have unanimity – which is not a majority because you do not have a dissenting view – but it is permissive, in that where you have got more than... What it does is envisage the situation where more than one judge sits and therefore it envisages the possibility that you may have two judges.

1245 Clearly, two judges cannot come to a majority verdict and therefore the only possible decision that could be made, where there are two judges, is a unanimous decision, otherwise there is no decision of the Court of Appeal. Therefore, in practice, this does not give rise to a problem. Where there is an uneven number of judges, we have a permissive situation under the Constitution, where a majority decision can be given; but where you have an even number of judges and it is possible to have an even number of judges with more than three – not under the present position, but clearly where it says where more than one judge sits – but clearly you either have a majority or you have unanimity to have a valid decision, otherwise there is no decision at all.

1255 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I fear we have distorted the debate. The hon. Member is still on his speech on the Second Reading and I was not going to rise to speak when it comes, so I wonder if Mr Speaker would let me just contribute to this point, at this stage.

I think we are still in the stage of giving way, aren't we? So I do not know where we are now in the proceedings. I can wait until later.

1260 Mr Speaker: Well, if you will allow me, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill? That gives them –

Hon. P R Caruana: Alright, obliged, Mr Speaker.

Well, Mr Speaker, I would ask the hon. Member whether he happens to know – we are all lawyers, I suppose we all should know, those of us who are lawyers – whether... I have a feeling that in the UK the Court of Appeal also sometimes sits with two judges, I do not know. But in terms that, I think it is... I do not know what basis or what the strength of feeling was amongst the judiciary that this was a good idea, but I am frankly pleased that the hon. Member has emphasised that it is exceptional and that if it ceased to be used exceptionally, it perhaps ought to be reviewed.

I think that there are serious constitutional issues – which perhaps do not arise in the UK, because they do not have a constitution – about this business of the section that he has just read out – I did not pick up the number –

Hon. G H Licudi: Section 61(4)(a).

Hon. P R Caruana: Section 61(4)(a) – in other words, there is no determination, unless it is by a majority. Well, if there are two judges –

Hon. G H Licudi: Or unanimous.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well no, he must not confuse the question of majority with unanimity. There is no resolution of the court, unless it is by a majority. When two judges sit, the majority can only be two, which happens to be unanimity because there are only two; but it would require the two of them to agree.

If the two of them do not agree, there is ipso facto no possibility of constitutional adjudication. It raises all sorts of questions about what happens next. Is this an appeal right that is lost? Does the case get reheard? What happens to the costs of that appeal? Can it be awarded to one side or to the other, given that neither has won and neither has lost?

It seems to me that there is a whole series of permutation of consequences. This is why I asked whether he knew off-hand whether there was any sort of precedent for this in the United Kingdom. I can think of a number of practical considerations arising from the fact... Of course, what would actually happen in practice, I fear, is that because the court will want to avoid the problems that I am now highlighting, there will be pressure on the dissenter not to dissent. In other words, the judges will sit in the room and one will try and persuade the other and one will yield in circumstances, where if there was a majority, if there were three judges sitting, he would not allow himself to be persuaded and would simply deliver a dissenting judgement. Both judges will now know that a dissenting judgement is not a possibility because it will gridlock the court, with all the consequences that I have just described.

I do not doubt that there are circumstances in which this is a good idea – for example, the one suggested by Mr Speaker – if there could be a very expensively convened court full of barristers from all over the world, witnesses – the hon. Member knows the sort of trial that I might be thinking of – a judge falls ill, there is not another judge available, and you have to collapse that appeal hearing. In those circumstances, it is good that it is able to continue, but it is good that it is able to continue with a number of undesirable potential consequences, which means that that ‘goodness’ – if I can just call it that quite inappropriately – should be resorted to as exceptionally as the hon. Member has indicated in his address he hopes and expects will be the case.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the general principle? I will then...

Hon G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, can I, as the mover of the Bill, respond to the hon. Member?

Mr Speaker: Yes, you have a right to reply.

Hon. P R Caruana: The reason why, if you will give way to me –

Hon. G H Licudi: I will.

Hon. P R Caruana: – there is one aspect which I would ask him to express a view, if he feels he can on his feet – if not, we will just have to leave it for another day – and that is what would happen in a case where the judges are unable to come to an agreement, despite their best effort, and one votes yes and one votes no?

Litigants have to know whether... The appellant then has to know that his appeal rights remain intact and that the matter will be re-listed for hearing. He cannot be defeated without adjudication, because there would not have been adjudication.

Could the hon. Member at least express the parliamentary view – if he shares it, if it is indeed his view – that in those circumstances the legislature expects that the appeal right would remain intact and the matter would have to be re-listed for re-hearing?

1325 Hon. G H Licudi: On that last point, Mr Speaker, I can express a personal view as to what might be desirable, but I do not know whether that view coincides with the Rules or any particular provision which might say – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana)

1330 But if I may be permitted to deal with the points that the hon. Member has made and hopefully, within that answer, the concerns that the hon. Member has had: I do not know what the position is in the UK, whether they sit with two judges and I can confirm, the hon. Member has just repeated, that certainly from the Government's point of view, and I as mover of this Bill in this Parliament consider that this is something that should be used only in those exceptional circumstances that we have mentioned.

1335 The main point that the hon. Member makes, the issue – which is a valid point to consider – what happens if the two do not agree? That is something that clearly I have given some thought to and have considered.

1340 In practice, what I would expect to happen – this is a view that I am setting out as the view of the Government's side – and what I would firmly expect because of discussions that I have held, if there is a possibility of the two remaining judges, who are going to either sit or continue sitting in an appeal, if there is a possibility of the two judges not agreeing, the appeal would simply not be heard or the appeal would not continue until it can be re-constituted or constituted again with the three judges.

1345 The hon. Member knows from his practice that judges receive papers in advance and receive skeleton arguments in advance. Whilst I would expect, and certainly I would expect as a lawyer, that everyone is given a fair crack of the whip and you go and you present your case in court and the judges hear you and you can persuade the judges one way or the other. The judges will clearly have papers and if this sort of situation arises, in those exceptional cases, where there is a possibility of two judges continuing or having to sit on any particular matter and if a possibility, even a remote possibility exists – well, not a 'remote'; a possibility exists – of the two judges not agreeing, there is no question, I would expect, of any pressure being put on any judge. Who is the dissenter, if there are only two? Who puts pressure on the other? There is no possibility of that happening in practice, because what we would expect is that the hearing simply would not proceed and would be adjourned or would be re-listed – in other words, it would not start at all, if it has not started. It would be re-listed until the three judges can constitute the full court.

I am not sure whether that answers fully the hon. Member's question.

1355 Hon. P R Caruana: Would the hon. Member give way?

Hon. G H Licudi: I will.

1360 Hon. P R Caruana: The important thing is that, under the Constitution, there will not have been an adjudication.

Hon. G H Licudi: There would be a hearing.

1365 Hon. P R Caruana: No, no no. The hon. Member is saying that he hopes that, in practice, judges will look at the papers in advance, see that there is high-end prospect that they will not be able to agree and therefore agree that it is not a case suitable for hearing between two. But that is a pretty hit-and-miss and a pretty ad hoc sort of arrangement.

1370 The fact of the matter is, Mr Speaker, we do not need to legislate against the possibilities of things that might only happen exceptionally. In other words, the possibility of having this possibility or rather having this possibility of a two-judge court may be so useful in the cases where it really is useful that it outweighs the cases in which it creates problems and therefore on balance, it is a good idea and it should be available, which does not mean that you do not legislate for the consequences of the minority of cases in which the worst feared happens.

1375 The important point is – and I am not expressing a view; I am simply relying on the provisions of the Constitution that the hon. Member read out, which said, if I correctly heard him reading – he will confirm it to me or not – that under the Constitution, unless a majority of the court, which there would not be in a two-man court which disagreed... there is no adjudication, because an adjudication requires a majority. I think that is the essence of what he read from the Constitution. So therefore, constitutionally, the case will not have been disposed of. In other words, the appeal necessarily and constitutionally remains extant, because it is an un-adjudicated appeal.

1380 In those circumstances, I assume – but I am not sure that this is an area that we should be leaving to assumptions – assume that because constitutionally it is an un-adjudicated appeal, the appellants' constitutional right to appeal – because the right to appeal is itself a constitutional right – remains unused. And as it remains un-used, he must have the right to go before a differently constituted court and re-argue his appeal. That could usefully have been said in the Bill, just as a matter of clarification, and the Bill could usefully, however remote or however exceptional or however unusual, however infrequently we think this is going to happen, the Bill might also have usefully provided for what happens to the costs entitlement which are said to follow the event. Well, there has not been an event, therefore there is nothing to follow and therefore what? Each party bears their own costs of that hearing? Do the whole costs of the failed hearing get carried forward, so that they get paid by whoever loses the next hearing? Is the loser then exposed to a double-whammy of two sets of costs?

These are some of the issues and this is why I started off by asking whether he knew whether this happened in England, because if there are two-man courts of appeal or two-judge courts of appeal in England, all of these questions must have been addressed. There must be an answer to them. There must be jurisprudence on the question, save the fact that here it is part of our written Constitution which is primary law and cannot be the subject of court practice or of court rules or things of that sort. None of that can override the consequences of the constitutional provision that there is not an adjudication under the terms of the Constitution – which is the only thing that would complicate the matter beyond that, which might have received clarity in the UK, in the case of a two-man or two-judge hearings in the UK.

Mr Speaker: May I make one thing clear. The hon. Member, the Hon. Minister, strictly speaking, you have been exercising your right to reply. (Hon. G H Licudi: Yes.) Just before the end, you gave way to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, but this question, when we are on the general principles of the Bill, the question of prolonging artificially the right to reply is not proper, in my view. I think there ought to be a limit to the extent to which you ought to be doing that. More so, since this Bill is down to go into Committee and if it does, there and then, all hon. Members can debate each particular clause in detail.

I am being liberal because the extent to which the Hon. Minister satisfies the Opposition could determine whether they wish to allow the Bill to go into Committee today or not. Therefore, what I am going to suggest and ask the Hon. Minister, in the light of all that I have said, is: does he prefer that the Bill should not go into Committee, give consideration to the matters that have been raised by Members of the Opposition, and then bring the Bill at a later stage?

Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker, that is not our preference. Our preference is that this matter should go to Committee and should be fully determined.

In respect of the first point of prolonging the debate, my understanding is this is actually a debate on the Second Reading, on the general principles of the Bill.

Mr Speaker: Which allows you to make an introductory speech, which allows each and every other Member to make a speech, and which allows you halfway through, or near the end, of your exercising your right to reply, it allows you to give way to a Member of the Opposition in this case. (Hon. G H Licudi: Yes.)

What is does not allow you is, once you have finished and sat down, in my view, is to say, 'I am giving way to an hon. Member.' That is not proper procedure. I am prepared to be liberal and allow it once or twice, but not indefinitely.

Hon. G H Licudi: I understand the point that Mr Speaker makes.

Mr Speaker: Okay.

Hon. G H Licudi: It is not an issue really for us, because if I finish my speech, my contribution and then the hon. Member wants to get up and ask that I give way, before I sit down, and I accommodate that –

Hon. P R Caruana: Which is a condition of parliamentary rules –

Hon. G H Licudi: – which is traditional that –

Hon. P R Caruana: – that before the hon. Member sits down... Mr Speaker, whilst I am grateful for whatever degree of liberality that you bring to the Chair, I think when constructive debate is taking place, this is not a question of Rules or Standing Orders. Hon. Members – and this is the case in Westminster, too – give way to each other as often as they please. There is not a rule about not giving way and not –

Mr Speaker: No. But I was making the point because I thought there might be a possibility, since the Hon. Minister seemed to have some doubts about what the procedure in the United Kingdom was, that he might wish to have time in order to find out, and therefore I suggested that perhaps Committee Stage should not be taken today.

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, I note the point that Mr Speaker makes, but that is not something that we want to take away and consider, particularly because the hon. Member has quite rightly...

Let me just say as an aside, in respect of whether we could do this at Committee, this is more about the general principles which relate to the Bill and possible problems which the hon. Members suggest might arise and, certainly, from the Government's side, we consider these matters are properly debated at Second Reading, rather than at Committee Stage.

But, having said that, the point that the hon. Member makes in relation to the UK, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has alighted to the fact that we have a written Constitution and we have specific provisions here in relation to the Constitution of the Court of Appeal and the determination of decisions by the Court of Appeal. Let me deal with the point that the hon. Member makes in terms of the consequences.

The hon. Member uses the term 'adjudication': that there is no adjudication, therefore the matter can simply be re-listed and adjudicated – not re-adjudicated, because there would not be an adjudication. The Constitution uses the words 'determined' – 'any determination of the Court of Appeal'. It is more or less the same thing, but if there is not a majority decision or a unanimous decision, one way or the other, when there are two judges, I agree with the hon. Member that, constitutionally, the appeal would not have been determined and therefore still falls to be determined by a court constituted in accordance with the rules. So I agree with the point that the hon. Member makes.

As regards legislating in respect of costs, we do not believe that that would be the appropriate way. Parliament does not normally legislate in respect of costs. Costs are generally left to the discretion of the judges and we are confident that the judges will do whatever is right in the particular circumstances and will take into account the necessary considerations in determining what, if any, cost liability should arise. On that basis, it is our position that this Bill should proceed.

Hon. D A Feetham: May I, Mr Speaker?

Mr Speaker, I have actually appeared... Just listening to the hon. Gentleman and also listening to the Leader of the Opposition. I do remember that I have actually appeared in a Court of Appeal in England and Wales in a two-man Court of Appeal. I have.

But, I think that a two-person Court of Appeal panel is limited in England –

Hon. P R Caruana: To interlocutory matters.

Hon. D A Feetham: To interlocutory matters.

Hon. P R Caruana: Exactly, that is my recollection.

Hon. D A Feetham: That is my recollection of the position –

Hon. P R Caruana: And to leave.

Hon. D A Feetham: And indeed, also to leave.

Now, what I cannot remember and what I do not know is what the situation is in terms of determination of an appeal, if effectively both of them do not agree.

My own view, for what it is worth, is actually that probably the appeal fails.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, that is my –

Hon. D A Feetham: That is my view. But of course, yes, if the appeal... If you do not satisfy a majority of a Court of Appeal and it is one and one, the appeal fails. Therein lies the problem that exists with this Bill: that here we have two silks and a number of other lawyers and nobody really has the answer to all these, quite frankly, rather pertinent questions. Therefore, certainly for my part, I think that perhaps the hon. the Minister ought to adjourn the Committee Stage to sometime in the future and perhaps just bring those answers to Parliament, because those answers must be available.

Hon. P R Caruana: Could the hon. Member, before he rises, so he can answer me, with Mr Speaker's indulgence, if the position were as the hon. Member has just described to me, can he –
(Interjections)

If we could be absolutely clear that the position was as the hon. Member just explained to me, when he last spoke to what I had said, namely that we were absolutely certain that the appellants' rights had not been disposed of and this was just a question of coming back again to another court, and we were absolutely clear of that question and the Government was not willing to legislate on the question of costs, I would settle, I would accept that. The Court of Appeal would make proper rules as to costs, I imagine, for those circumstances and that would be fine.

The difficulty is the risk that there is a judgment of a lower court – of the Supreme Court usually – who has found in favour of one party or another and the appellant is saying, 'Court of Appeal, overturn that judgment'.

If the Court of Appeal is gridlocked, it fails to make a determination. The effect of that failure to make a determination is that it has declined to overrule the lower court for any number of reasons, either because it did not like the arguments or because it did not have a sufficient majority. Now, that is the risk, so in considering – although he will not want to take advice from me across the floor – whether it is better to adjourn or not to adjourn, really the question that he has got to ask himself is whether he is certain that the position is as he explained to me, because otherwise we are in the realms of both injustice and potential unconstitutionality.

In other words, it may well be that the court in England takes the view... I am speaking from ignorance of what the position is in the UK. It may well be that the court takes the view that, if a two-man court is split one/one, there has been a determination: the determination is the court has declined to reverse the lower ruling. That could amount to an...

Now, the hon. Member is shaking his head. I am delighted that he is shaking his head and I am not arguing against it. That is what I want the outcome to be too. The question is not whether I agree with him or not; the question is whether we are clear if, on this Friday at five past six, that is in fact the case – what we both think is the case.

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, Mr Speaker, what I can give is the Government's view and our position, as Minister for Justice. What I cannot say is if this matter was ever referred to the court and determined by the court that the court would necessarily rule in a particular way. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Neither the hon. Member nor myself will ever be able to say how laws which are –

Hon. P R Caruana: But Mr Speaker, that is an answer that does cause us difficulty, because the Government must not legislate without understanding the purport of the legislation. What the hon. Member is saying is, 'I am bringing this legislation to the House: I think it means this, and that is what I intend it to mean', but it is up to the courts to decide whether it actually means what the legislature intends it to mean, and otherwise it is basically the Court of Appeal legislating, not the Parliament.

Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker, that is not the position.

The position is that the Government's intention is quite clearly what I set out when I presented the general merits of the Bill.

The example that the hon. Member says about a lack of determination under the Constitution because there is not a majority, that amounts to a lack of determination and therefore that amounts to declining to overrule the decision and therefore a decision not to overrule: well, we do not believe that is a plausible interpretation of this and therefore we are not willing to leave this up in the air, simply on the basis of a hypothetical argument that could present – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well –

Hon. P R Caruana: Neither of us know what the position is. They are both [inaudible].

Hon. G H Licudi: What I am saying is it is a hypothetical argument with which we do not agree. We do not agree that argument holds water.

Hon. P R Caruana: It is an interpretation.

Hon. G H Licudi: It is an interpretation, as there could be many interpretations of many provisions.

What I can say is this, Mr Speaker: we believe that this Bill ought to proceed in its current form because it is appropriate that, in those exceptional circumstances that I referred to earlier, we should have the ability for the Court of Appeal to sit or continue to sit with two judges, because that we consider is in the interests of the administration of justice, as I said earlier, and also in the interests of the appellants, who would want to have their cases determined.

But what I cannot rule out is if the hon. Member is suggesting that this creates a hypothetical problem, that we might have to deal with an issue, by bringing a Bill to amend further the provisions of the Court of Appeal. But that there is a necessity for these provisions is absolutely certain, from our point of view, and therefore we propose to proceed.

The hon. Member talks of ‘potential unconstitutionality’: we do not believe there is any potential unconstitutionality. The provisions of the Constitution are very clear: they allow for a law to prescribe a position whereby less than three judges appear and determine a particular case. That must be for a reason. If the Constitution allows the possibility of less than three judges, it must allow the possibility of two.

Hon. P R Caruana: There is usually one.

Hon. G H Licudi: But it could be one. It could be one, but Mr Speaker, the other provision that I referred to, which is also part of section 61(4) of the Constitution...

So section 61(4)(a) deals with the possibility of less than three judges, if it is prescribed by law and 61(4)(b) deals with the possibility of the court sitting where there is more than one judge. So on the one hand we have (a) with the possibility of less than three, and on the other hand we have (b) with the possibility of more than one. So this clearly envisages the possibility that there should be a determination by two judges.

And for all the reasons that I have set out, and I hope I am not asked to give way any more, I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Court of Appeal Act be read a second time.

Those in favour. (Government Members: Aye.) Those against.

Hon. P R Caruana: The Opposition is abstaining, Mr Speaker, on the grounds that we do not think the House knows what it is doing. We do not understand it.

Mr Speaker: Carried by Government majority.

Clerk: The Court of Appeal (Amendment) Act 2012.

Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do Members of the Opposition agree that Committee Stage be taken today?

Members: Aye!

Hon. P R Caruana: No. Well, look, Mr Speaker – (Laughter)

Mr Speaker: Is the position clearly understood by Members? If all hon. Members agree. If the Members... If one Member does not agree that the Committee Stage be taken today, it has to be deferred.

Hon. P R Caruana: I think that is correct.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Until after midnight, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: To another day.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.

Mr Speaker: To another day. It is to determine whether the Second Reading of a Bill and Committee Stage can be taken the same day.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes. Mr Speaker, I am going to resist the temptation to change what I was going to stand up to change, simply in reaction to the Chief Minister’s quip, which could only have meant that he is willing to convert this non-giving of consent into a sort of meaningless parliamentary technique by saying, ‘Look, it is ten past four. If you do not consent, I am only going to make you come here at one o’clock in the morning or tomorrow, Saturday’ – which is what, by the way, I think the GSLP did last time when they were in Government, the previous ones, one Government, one Opposition said –

(Interjections)

1630 If that were the case, I think that would be a great pity. (Interjection by Hon. S E Linares) Sorry, if the Hon. Mr Linares wants to speak, I am very happy to give way to him.

1635 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, he kept us here until two o'clock in the morning once, and Mr Corby had to buy some takeaways! (Laughter and interjections)

Mr Speaker: Just a moment! Just a moment!

It is not infrequent for this House, over the years, to have been meeting at two in the morning and at three and at four in the morning, because I have been here –

1640 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: – but that is not the point. The point is also whether the Chairman, to what extent the Chairman of the Committee will be willing, after dining at the MRC tonight, to come at 12.30 –
(Laughter and interjections)

1645 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, and when you have been in this House for longer, you will recognise interventions like that by the Hon. Minister Linares as typical of the fact that he rarely grasps fine points when they are being made. (Interjections) Mr Speaker, if the Hon. Mr Linares does not understand the difference – (Interjections) If the Hon. Mr Linares does not understand the difference between a question and answer or a legislative session of Parliament simply sitting late into the night – as happens frequently in parliaments around the parliamentary world – if he does not understand the difference between that and what I am, half tongue-in-cheek, berating the Chief Minister for, if he does not understand the difference between that, then I feel entirely vindicated for what I have said about him!

1655 I am sure the Chief Minister was not meaning to threaten the House that if the Opposition did not give its consent, we would be back at midnight. However – you were threatening? I said 'of course not'.

Hon. Chief Minister: I would have thought, Mr Speaker, that the House would not feel threatened by an invitation to work hard, even – 1660 Mr Speaker: May I tell hon. Members what the spirit in this House has always been, regarding a Bill that the Government considers to be taken to Committee Stage and Third Reading. If it is an urgent Bill, the Government is perfectly entitled to ask that the Committee Stage be taken that day. If it is not an urgent Bill, then Committee Stage can be taken another day.

1665 It is for the Government to decide whether they want to give further thought to the matter or not, and take advantage of the fact that if the Opposition or any Member votes against Committee Stage being taken today, it has to be done another day.

If we come back at midnight or just after midnight, I do not know whether we will have enough time to consider whether the points made by the Opposition are worth bearing in mind or not.

1670 Hon. P R Caruana: Alright, Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that, because I think that is the spirit that I was trying to...

1675 In any case, having heard the Hon. Minister for Justice and having a degree of confidence or at least respect for his views, even when I do not agree with them, I do not think that this is a matter in which his mind is going to be changed on the substance by having two or three more days to reflect on it – although I think that the question is not reflecting to change his mind. I would hope that, for me, the principal advantage of an adjournment – it could be an hour now – would be so that we could support the Bill. In other words, so that we could have confidence in being able to support the Bill because we could go out and find out what the position is and why the concerns that we have expressed are not warranted. That would be the virtue for us of an adjournment: not to change the Government's mind on the Bill, because we would support the Bill, if our concerns could be [inaudible].

1680 We have said, Mr Speaker, what our position is. I think that this Bill cannot be so urgent that it needs to be taken through its three stages today. I think that the prudent thing would be, on a Bill where we are interfering with issues affecting the administration of justice, that the House should clearly understand not only what it is doing, but the consequences of what it is doing.

1685 But look, we have expressed our views and if the Government wants to proceed with the Committee Stage today, we are not going to withhold our consent to that, simply to make a further statement. Our view has been stated: coming back again on Monday or after midnight or tomorrow at three o'clock is neither here nor there.

1690 So we will, at least I do not think any Member of the Opposition has dissented from the Committee Stage being taken today – and Third Reading.

Mr Speaker: Committee Stage and Third Reading of this Bill will be taken later today.

1695

Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

1700 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Supreme Court Act, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to Amend the Supreme Court Act be read a first time.

1705

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Supreme Court Act be read a first time. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

1710

Clerk: The Supreme Court (Amendment) Act 2012.

Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

1715

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

1720 Mr Speaker, this Bill amends section 12A of the Supreme Court Act. Section 12A, as the hon. Members opposite will know, was introduced by the Supreme Court (Amendment) Act 2010, which was debated in this Parliament on 18th February 2010.

1725 Section 12A, which is the section we are amending, deals or dealt with the jurisdiction of the Family Judge. It provided for family proceedings to be referred to a judge who was to be known as the Family Judge. It provided for other matters to be allocated to the Family Judge by the Chief Justice in certain specific circumstances and it introduced a statutory duty to the Family Judge to give priority to family proceedings over and above any other work which may be allocated to him by the Chief Justice.

The Bill which is currently before Parliament, as I have already indicated during question/answer session last month, follows discussions that I have had with the Chief Justice.

1730 What the Bill does is remove the restrictions on the Chief Justice to allocate work to the Family Judge, so that the Family Judge may be allocated any matter by the Chief Justice and as a consequence of that, the Bill removes the duty in relation to the priority of the work, so that in an appropriate case, it is the Chief Justice who decides what priority should be given to any particular matter. In other words, it gives the Chief Justice the power to manage the work of other judges without the constraints of a statutory duty which applies only to one judge in one particular area.

1735 That is not to say, Mr Speaker, and I want to stress this from the Government's side, that family matters will not or should not be given any less importance. There will still be provisions in section 12A of the Supreme Court Act which deal with the jurisdiction of a Family Judge. There will still be a Family Judge to whom family proceedings will be designated. However, the Bill gives the Chief Justice the appropriate level of flexibility in allocating matters to any other judge.

1740

I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

1745 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes.

The Opposition unfortunately will be voting against this Bill. Before I elaborate on the reasons for that, may I remind this House... or place those arguments into their proper context.

1750 Mr Speaker, prior to the 2007 General Election, there was significant concern within this community in relation to the justice system as it applied to family law. Indeed, the issue became an electoral issue and Members may in fact recall that Richard Martinez did a sterling job, during the 2007 Election, actually highlighting some of the flaws in the system, which included the way that fathers were treated by the system; the delays that were being experienced in family cases; the fact for example that a number of different judges were dealing with family cases and therefore there was a lack of consistency in dealing with those cases, because a case may come before one judge who takes one attitude, may then be adjourned and go before a different judge who may take a different attitude.

1755 We took a decision as a Government that when one looks at family law and decisions in family cases, and how these disputes are resolved, there is very much a human story in these cases, because behind every divorce, behind every battle or custody battle in relation to children, there are fathers, there are mothers and there are of course, children. We took a decision that we would appoint a third judge, recruit a third judge who would specialise in just dealing with family law.

1760 That was a decision that we took unprompted. In other words, it was not a decision that was prompted by the judiciary, 'We need a third judge, a family judge' or 'We need a third judge' and the Government of the day took the decision to 'Yes, we will recruit the third judge, but it will be a Family Judge' – no. We took a decision off our own back, off our own initiative to recruit a third judge but specialising in family law. Indeed, the position was advertised by the JSC and Mr Justice Butler was recruited on that very basis.

1765 We accepted that, in a jurisdiction as small as Gibraltar, what you could not have was a situation where a Family Judge was just simply doing family law and perhaps just simply spending 60% of their time doing family law and twiddling their thumbs for the other 40%. Clearly, in my discussions with the judiciary at the time, it was accepted that whilst the Family Judge was going to be prioritising family law, that judge could deal with other cases if the position was that the judge had spare capacity. That is why we introduced section 12A of the Supreme Court Act on 29th April 2010, which was, in our respectful view, a very carefully crafted provision, which attempted to place on a statutory footing that position as we had effectively discussed with the judiciary at the time.

1775 And what subsections (3) and (4) of section 12A say is this:

'(3) Notwithstanding the other provisions of this section, the Family Judge may be allocated any matter, other than family proceedings, by the Chief Justice, in the following cases—'

1780 So they can be allocated in the following cases –

'(a) where he has spare capacity; or
(b) during the vacation, illness or absence of another judge of the Supreme Court.'

1785 And then subsection (4):

'The Family Judge shall have a duty to prioritise the work of family proceedings.'

1790 So the architecture that we would introduce, which was a cornerstone of our policy on our reforms of the entire spectrum of family laws, was effectively Family Judge: prioritise family work; if he has spare capacity, the Chief Justice can allocate him work or indeed where it is required that that person effectively muck in with the other judges, because of illness or absence of another judge of the Supreme Court.

1795 What the Government of the day obviously wanted to avoid was a situation where we recruited a Family Judge – which was very much needed at the time and, indeed, from what the hon. Gentleman has said in his own speech, I do not think that he dissents from that, even now – very much needed, but what we did not want was a situation where we recruit a Family Judge, everybody is agreed we are recruiting a Family Judge for that purpose, he is placed in post and then the Chief Justice effectively says, 'Well no, you are doing this, that and the other', and by a process, over a period of time, that Family Judge becomes a generalist judge – no specialisation in family or not really prioritising family work, but dealing with everything else. That of course then drives a coach and horses through the clear intention of what it was that we were recruiting this particular judge to do.

1800 And Mr Speaker, we still have those concerns, that effectively what the hon. Gentleman is actually doing by making these amendments and reversing the position that we introduced in section 12A, is effectively potentially turning that Family Judge into a generalist judge. Sooner or later, the Government will then have the same problems that we were facing prior to 2007, in terms of inconsistency of decisions, in terms of delays of family cases.

1805 Can I say this: I know the hon. Gentleman has consulted the Chief Justice and, indeed, although I had consulted the Chief Justice and the President of the Court before on how it would work, in terms of how the Family Judge would actually prioritise the... and section 12A actually reflected what had been discussed with them. It is certainly true that the Chief Justice – not the President of the Court; I had discussion with the President of the Court – but the Chief Justice was not too enamoured with the idea that we reflect the position that we had agreed with him and place it on a statutory footing. Presumably, that is why the Government comes today and is reversing the amendments that we made in 2010.

We have great concerns that what will happen is that we are going to be returning to a position certainly pre-2010, but 2007. When I was Minister for Justice, I would consult, I would talk to the Family Judge on a regular basis, because I wanted to know from the Family Judge directly whether these provisions were working, whether he had spare capacity and whether he was doing other work. The view that he always expressed to me – and I have not spoken to him since I left the office, I did not think it was proper for me to talk to the Family Judge about this, once the Bill had been advertised – but his view to me was that in fact there was a lot of family work and that he needed to prioritise family work, and of course, he did do other work, but that a reversal of the position contained in the section would be a retrograde step.

I do not know whether that continues to be his position, or whether it is not his position. It is certainly the position that was expressed to me when I was Minister for Justice. Our concern here is that, effectively, what you are doing is converting, in the short term – it will not even be in the medium term – a Family Judge into a generalist judge and that undoes the very careful work that we did in this area. Indeed, I will read to him what I said during the Second Reading, the debate on the Bill, I said this:

‘It is a reflection of the Government’s commitment to ensuring family proceedings, which include proceedings under the Children Act, the Maintenance Act, the Matrimonial Causes Act and, amongst others, the Adoption Act’

– all of which we amended in our time in Office –

‘are dealt with expeditiously and effectively by a dedicated judge. It is a major part, indeed, it is a cornerstone of the Government’s architecture in this area and, of course, involves an increase in the number of judges of the Supreme Court from two to three.’

This undoes that careful architecture, that cornerstone and therefore we cannot support it.

Mr Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the general principles of the Bill? No. Well, I will call on the Minister to reply.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I very much regret that the Opposition will not be supporting this. Although I regret it, I have to say I am not surprised, because what we are amending is something that the hon. Member himself, when he was Minister for Justice, introduced.

The hon. Member expresses the Opposition’s lack of support, on the basis of a concern of a possibility of the Family Judge being turned at some point in the future to what he describes as a generalist judge. He does not say that that will happen, he does not say that he has any reason to believe that that is imminent, that that is what the purpose of this legislation is. A concern but it is simply based on hypothesis, it is simply based on speculation. We consider that it is wrong for the hon. Members to take a view...

I can understand them abstaining, because we are amending their legislation, legislation that the hon. Member introduced, so I could understand him abstaining and say, ‘Well we do not know how this is going to work in practice – whether in fact the Family Judge is going to be turned into a generalist judge – and because we do not know and we have a concern that it might happen, then we are abstaining and we will see what happens.’ But the hon. Member says, ‘We will vote against on the basis of a hypothetical and speculative concern.’

What the hon. Member has described is true: there were issues with family proceedings, but those issues preceded the engagement of a Family Judge and preceded the enactment of section 12A dealing with the jurisdiction of the Family Judge. We are not changing that. As I have said earlier, we will still have a Family Judge and we are not changing section 12A(1) which says there will be a puisne judge to whom shall be designated family proceedings. So on what basis does the hon. Member believe that we will not have a specialist Family Judge, when that is what the legislation says and we are not changing that at all? So of course that will continue to happen.

The hon. Member also refers to a possible lack of consistency, when you have got more than one judge dealing with a particular type of case. Well, it happens in chancery work, it happens in commercial work, it happens in contract work, it happens in all areas of the law, except in family law.

But it can happen, in any event, in family law in Gibraltar, because the legislation that the hon. Member enacted, section 12A(7) says:

‘Where a judge other than the Family Judge deals with a family proceedings reference in any other legislation to the Family Judge shall be a reference to the judge that has dealt with those proceedings.’

So the hon. Member himself, when he introduced this, legislated for the possibility that there would be other judges who could deal with family matters. It is right that there has to be the possibility of other judges being able to deal with family matters.

The hon. Member comments from across the floor that there may be circumstances where a particular judge is absent, but where a particular judge is absent and you have got another judge dealing with family cases, you would expect that judge to apply the law as it is, to apply jurisprudence as it is or as that judge understands it to be, in the same way as different judges apply jurisprudence as they believe it to be, in contract and court cases and other areas of law, and in the same way as happens in the Family Division in England. In the Family Division in England, you have specialist judges, as we have with the Family Judge in Gibraltar. They do not have one judge in the Family Division. So where is the argument of consistency or lack of consistency? It is simply not a valid argument, in our view, with the greatest respect to the hon. Member, because you do have a Family Division in England with a number of judges dealing with the same type of cases – all specialists.

So we do not believe that those concerns arise and we believe that, for the reasons that I set out earlier, this is the right thing for us to pass.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question which is that a Bill for an Act to Amend the Supreme Court Act be read a second time. Those in favour. (Government Members: Aye.) Those against. (Opposition Members: No.) Carried by Government majority.

Clerk: The Supreme Court (Amendment) Act 2012.

Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Trade Licensing Act, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Trade Licensing Act be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Trade Licensing Act be read a first time. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

Clerk: The Trade Licensing (Amendment) Act 2012.

Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

Mr Speaker, this Bill has three purposes. In the first place, the Bill enables the Trade Licensing Authority to refuse a transfer of a business where the business in question is to remain on the same premises, if the transferor owes tax and rates in respect of the business or if the transferor has been charged with an offence in relation to the business he is running.

The second change relates to the composition of the Authority. In this respect, two additional members will be appointed, after consultation with the Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses.

The final amendment, Mr Speaker, delegates various powers from the Governor to the Government.

As hon. Members are aware, I am currently reviewing the entirety of the trade licensing system and I hope to be able to bring proposals to the House by way of a Bill, after the New Year, which will bring about fundamental changes.

1940 The Government is considering, in accordance with its manifesto commitments, to set up an Office of Fair Trading, which will oversee all matters to do with trading and have appropriate enforcement powers. One of the drawbacks, Mr Speaker, of the present system is that enforcement is somewhat haphazard. Before, Mr Speaker, I present an entirely new legal architecture to this House, this Bill will correct the present system in a small way, immediately.

1945 In respect of the first mischief intended to be rectified by the amendments, I note that the Authority has limited powers to refuse a transfer, where the business is to remain on the same premises. I am advised that this has meant in the past that the holder of a trade licence has disappeared and transferred the licence to a new company. It may well be that the new company, although a different person in law, is controlled by the very same people who controlled the old company. This, of course, Mr Speaker, is a convenient way of getting rid of unpleasant debts incurred by the former company and still being able to carry on business. Allowing this phoenix-like behaviour is not desirable and so the Bill will close this existing loophole.

1950 Further, Mr Speaker, it may be that the transferor of the licence has been involved in criminal activity relating to the business. I am sure that all hon. Members agree that it is not desirable for the licence to be transferred to another linked person, who may well just carry on that criminal activity.

1955 In both of these cases, the amendments brought afford the Authority the discretion to refuse the transfer. Clearly, Mr Speaker, where everything is above board and there is no hidden agenda involving the transfer, there will be no difficulties put in the way of honest and decent traders.

1960 In respect of the second objective, the Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses has long suggested that it ought to be represented on the Authority along with the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades Council. Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar is so persuaded and this is now achieved.

The last of the amendments, Mr Speaker, delegates, as I said, all relevant powers to the Government.

1965 Mr Speaker, I also refer the House now to the amendments I have today given notice: today, in my letter to the Speaker of even date, which are self-explanatory and I therefore do not intend to go through them. In this respect, Mr Speaker, I must, I feel, highlight the constructive approach applied today by my hon. and learned Friend, Mr Bossino, who in fact called me during the course of the morning to discuss the proposed amendments that he would suggest and one of which in fact, Mr Speaker, does find its way into my proposed amendments as set out in my letter.

1970 I take the opportunity, Mr Speaker, to say that I am glad that he has taken up my offer for him to be able to call me at any time to discuss any matters, in order to have a constructive approach outside and inside this House.

Mr Speaker, for all of the reasons I have submitted, I commend the Bill to the House.

1975 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

1980 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the opportunity to speak, although it will be very short, and the Opposition will be supporting this Bill. I did think it would save parliamentary time if it was possible for both of us to agree on the rather obvious amendments which I suggested and I am very grateful to the hon. Member for having it taken it on and worked on appropriate wording, which he also kindly sent to me and I agreed it before it was sent to the House.

So I have no difficulty, as spokesman for the Opposition in respect of this Bill, to support it.

1985 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Trade Licensing Act be read a second time. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

Clerk: The Trade Licensing (Amendment) Act 2012.

Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012 Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting 1995 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE

2000

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
Supreme Court (Amendment Bill) 2012
Trade Licensing (Amendment Bill) 2012

2005

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2010

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills clause by clause: the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012; the Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012; the Supreme Court (Amendment Bill) 2012; and the Trade Licensing (Amendment Bill) 2012.

2015

In Committee of the whole Parliament

2020

Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010. Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

2025

Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Clause 2 stands part of the Bill.

2030

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: The long title stands part of the Bill.

2035

Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Court of Appeal Act. Clause 1.

2040

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

2045

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Chairman, in clause 2, which introduces section 3A of the Court of Appeal Act, in 3A(2), it says:

‘Section 61(4)(a) of the Constitution does not apply to the hearing...’

2050

There should be an ‘of’ there – ‘hearing of an appeal certified under subsection (1).’

Mr Chairman: It is a typographical error: ‘does not apply to the hearing of an appeal certified’.

2055

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Chairman, just to inform the House, in the time available on the internet, I have not been able to find what the position is on civil appeal, but in the criminal jurisdiction of the Court of Appeal in England, in a two-man... there is a limited list of things that a two-man court can deal with and if they are split, there has to be a re-hearing before a full court.

Now, I do not know whether that is also the case in a civil court or not. I have not had time to... It is not so obvious. It does not come up so obviously on Google.

2060

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Chairman, I am grateful for that observation by the hon. Member. We certainly agree that that should also be the position in Gibraltar. As I said earlier, if there is a need for a legislative change to have that provision, then we will introduce it.

2065

I can also say that we do have provision already in section 13.

Mr Chairman: I have noticed that hon. Members in Committee today these days sit down. It seems to me a perfectly good practice. In my day, we used to stand during the Committee, but since we are in Committee and more relaxed, why not? Well done!

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Chairman, that has been the practice certainly since I have been in Parliament since 2007. We have always sat for Committee.

But I can tell the hon. Member that, in the Court of Appeal Act, there is provision in section 13, which deals with criminal matters, and section 24 which deals with civil matters for the powers of the court to be dealt with by a single judge. As the hon. Members will know, there is also a possibility of the Chief Justice as an ex-officio member of the Court of Appeal to be able to sit.

But sections 13 and 24 do provide powers of a judge in interlocutory matters, both in respect of criminal matters... or rather, in criminal matters, you would not have interlocutory matters, but there are certain matters, if there is permission for appeal which is necessary in any event, those sort of matters can be dealt with by a single judge. So we already have provisions for that sort of similar arrangement as exists in the UK, to be exercised by a single judge here.

2080

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Chairman, I can tell him that the only bit of intelligence that I have found about appeal is in the Ministry of Justice's website in England and a two-man court can hear a substantive appeal in civil matters.

2085

What I have not been able to find out is what happens if they are split, which we have been able to find out in respect of criminal, but not in civil. But they can hear a full substantive appeal, a two-man court is confirmed on the Ministry of Justice's website.

2090

Hon. G H Licudi: I am grateful for that, Mr Chairman.

Mr Chairman: Clause 2 stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

2095

Mr Chairman: The long title stands part of the Bill.

2100

Supreme Court (Amendment Bill) 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Supreme Court Act. Clause 1.

2105

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Clause 2 stands part of the Bill.

2110

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: The long title stands part of the Bill.

2115

Trade Licensing (Amendment Bill) 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to Amend the Trade Licensing Act. Clause 1.

2120

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

2125 Mr Chairman: The Hon. the Minister for Tourism.

Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Chairman, in respect of clause 2:

2130 In the proposed new section 7(2)(c), to add the words ‘, to the Government,’ after the words ‘while owing’.

In the proposed new section 7(2)(c), to amend ‘accounts’ to ‘amounts’.

In the proposed new section 7(2)(d), to change ‘of’ to ‘or’.

2135 Mr Chairman: Those in favour of the amendments. (Members: Aye.) Clause 2 as amended stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

2140 Mr Chairman: The long title stands part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

2145 Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012
Supreme Court (Amendment Bill) 2012
Trade Licensing (Amendment Bill) 2012
2150 Third Reading approved; Bills passed

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2155 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012, the Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012, the Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012 and the Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012 have been considered in Committee and agreed to, with amendments, and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

2160 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012, the Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012, the Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012 and the Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour. (Several Members: Aye.) Those against.

Do you wish me to take each of them individually?

2165 Several Members: Yes.

Mr Speaker: Very well. Those in favour of the Income Tax (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012 (Members: Aye.). Those against. Carried.

Those in favour of the Court of Appeal (Amendment) Bill 2012 –

2170 Hon. P R Caruana: We abstain.

Mr Speaker: Carried by Government majority.

2175 Those in favour of the Supreme Court (Amendment) Bill 2012. (Government Members: Aye.) Those against. (Opposition Members: No.) Carried by Government majority.

Mr Speaker: Those in favour of the Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill 2012. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Carried.

Questions for Oral Answer

40

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

City Fire Brigade
Vehicle exhaust extractor system

45

Clerk: Question 1016/2012, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

50

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the City Fire Brigade give the date of when the supply and maintenance of a vehicle exhaust extractor system for the City Fire Brigade went out to tender?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

55

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, this is publicly available information. The tender notice for the supply and maintenance of the vehicle exhaust system was published in the Gibraltar Chronicle.

60

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister give me the date of when it appeared in the Gibraltar Chronicle?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, 10th July 2012.

65

Gibraltar Cricket Association
Playing facilities

Clerk: Question 1017, the Hon. E J Reyes.

70

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure say what GSLA-administered playing facilities, meeting the requirements set out by the ICC, are presently available for use by the Gibraltar Cricket Association?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

75 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Victoria Stadium is currently the only playing facility directly under the responsibility of the GSLA which is used for playing of cricket and which has been used for ICC/ECC matches.

80 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I see the Minister said that it has been used. Is it available today after the resurfacing? Is that place now available and suitable, meeting the required standards for cricket games?

85 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, there is another question on the Order Paper which should answer that, but the answer is yes.

Gibraltar Cricket Association
Discussions re new facilities

90 Clerk: Question 1018, the Hon. E J Reyes.

95 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure state if he has, since the answer to Question 934/2012, held discussions with the Gibraltar Cricket Association in respect of providing renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of the sport; and, if so, provide details of any agreements reached?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

100 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, since my answer to Question 934/2012, I have met with the representatives of the Gibraltar Cricket Association in respect of providing renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of the sport. No agreement has yet been reached.

Sports grants
Details of payments made

110 Clerk: Question 1019, the Hon. E J Reyes.

115 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of payments made since his answer to Question 935/2012 in respect of sports grants for each of the following: (a) grants to sporting societies; (b) international competitions; (c) sports development projects; and (d) hosting of special sports and leisure events?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

120 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the following are the payments made, since my last answer to Question 935/2012, in respect of sports grants: grants to sporting societies, nil; international competitions, nil; sports development projects...

125 Mr Speaker, there is a whole list here. There are eight items, which I would rather, if the hon. Member will... I will pass it on to him, but I will read it, if he wants: darts, world competition, singles, £1,725; chess competition, India, £1,200; golf, Asia tour, £1,098.97; football competition, £3,319; pro tour golf, £2,750; chess competition, London, £3,638; swimming, coaching development, £965; and pro tour golf, £2,750; hosting of special sports and leisure events, nil.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I would be grateful if the Hon. Minister could give me a copy of that.

130 Can I ask him for a slight expansion on two of the items of the eight he has mentioned? In respect of the game of golf, can he give... One of them... I think he mentioned Asia, or something – can he elaborate something else on that?

135 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker. These are items that, before we put what is the Elite Athletes Assistance... We are trying to help athletes before that vote is put into the Budget for next year, and this is one of the items. There is a golf player – a Gibraltarian golf player – who will be going to an Asia tour, and he is being sponsored, basically, by the GSLA.

140 Hon. E J Reyes: And the other golf item, Mr Speaker? Is it the same person? Is it something different?

Hon. S E Linares: Not the same person, but a similar situation.

145 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, I will just wait for a copy of that, when possible.

Victoria Stadium football pitch Certification for international competitions

150

Clerk: Question 1020, the Hon. E J Reyes.

155 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure confirm if the new football pitch playing surface recently installed at the Victoria Stadium already enjoys full approval and certification meeting UEFA and/or FIFA standards for the playing of international competitions; and, if so, when was this certification granted and by whom?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

160

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the new 2 Star synthetic playing surface installed at the Victoria Stadium was inspected and tested by an independent specialist laboratory approved by UEFA and the International Rugby Board. The results of those tests are due to be submitted to UEFA, FIFA and the IRB by the laboratory, and subsequently certification, if approved, will be issued.

165

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, does the hon. Member have a rough expected date by when we expect to have the final verdict from the inspections carried out?

170 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I think it will be within the next few weeks at the most.

International Symposium on ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’ Breakdown of expenses

175

Clerk: Question 1021, the Hon. E J Reyes.

180 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to his answers to Question 836/2012 and Question 939/2012, is the Minister for Culture now in a position to provide a full and detailed breakdown of expenses incurred in respect of his Ministry’s £28,000 sponsorship of the International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’, which was held in Gibraltar during the month of October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

185

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, further to my answer to Question 836/2012 and Question 939/2012, I now hand over to the hon. Member opposite a detailed schedule with a breakdown of all income and expenditure appertaining to the International Symposium on the ‘History of the Spanish Masonry’.

190

Mr Speaker, I may add to note that the enclosed accounts are still awaiting final auditing.

Hon. E J Reyes: I understand, Mr Speaker, but can I just clarify, although they may be expecting final audit, we do not expect any further receipts to be submitted for reimbursement – is that correct?

195 Hon. S E Linares: No, it is not expected to have any more receipts.

Gibraltar Music Festival 2012
Payments to Axel Media and Word of Mouth

Clerk: Question 1022, the Hon. E J Reyes.

205

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture state if, further to the answer to Question 940/2012, any additional payments have been made to the £25,000 already paid to Axel Media and the £30,000 also already paid to Word of Mouth in respect of the production and organisation of the 2012 Gibraltar Music Festival?

210

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

215

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, further to the £30,000 already paid to Word of Mouth in respect of the production and organisation of the 2012 Gibraltar Music Festival, additional payments have been made to them to cover the costs for: Jessie J, penthouse rental £4,331.92; Huri Television, £7,722.71; companies setting up lights, sound, stage etc on the day, £28,492.84; and sundry expenses, £596.

Mr Speaker, no additional payments have been made to Axel Media.

Mr Speaker, I will do likewise by passing this to the hon. Member.

220

Hon. E J Reyes: I am most grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

225

Cultural Grants
Details of awards

Clerk: Question 1023, the Hon. E J Reyes.

230

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture provide details of any further cultural grants awarded, if any, since the reply to Question 941/2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

235 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the information requested is posted and updated on the Gibraltar Government website. It is in the statistics section of the Gibraltar Government website.

240 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am aware of that. However, when the deadline for questions comes and I look at those tables, I see that the last time they were updated tended to be during the month of March. Being now in December... hence why, on some items, I do pose a question, because I am not fully updated with the information, and hence it is a way of being as up to date as one possibly can.

245 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the last update was a few weeks ago, so I do not know how the hon. Member is saying in March. Nonetheless, Mr Speaker, what I will do is I will check on the website, and during the course of the day I will give him an update, as in from the website, because it is updated very regularly. I think the last payment was made two weeks ago and I asked my staff to notify IT to put it in – and they checked, and it was in.

250 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, this is exactly what I am getting at. It was last updated a few weeks ago, hence I am referring to over four weeks ago, a month, so I do pose these questions. Sometimes what has happened, and the Clerk of this House has very kindly helped me as well to locate it, is that it seems the IT section actually updates after the deadline for the submission of questions comes.

255 So, I am not trying to be awkward; it is just that I want to ensure that, from some source or another, I do have information that is as updated as possible on a monthly basis.

Victoria Stadium Improvements required to meet UEFA standards

260 Clerk: Question 1024, the Hon. E J Reyes.

265 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide full details of all improvements and/or modifications which will have to be carried out at the Victoria Stadium, inclusive of players', officials' and spectators' facilities, in order to meet the minimum UEFA requirements for the hosting of official international football matches?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

270 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, for the moment, the facilities at the Victoria Stadium have been upgraded to meet UEFA/FIFA requirements by replacing the playing surface with a 2 Star synthetic turf, upgraded flood lights, and new substitute benches which will be set up in the very near future.

275 Government is awaiting confirmation from UEFA, principally via the GFA, of any other requirements which may be required for official competitions, and has already expressed its commitment to provide for these, as and when necessary.

280 Hon. E J Reyes: But can I have any substantial indication of what type of improvements would be required in respect of players', officials' and spectators' facilities?

285 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, we are awaiting UEFA and GFA to give us whatever they need, as and when necessary. What they have required up to date is what we have facilitated. We have facilitated a 2 Star AstroTurf synthetic turf, we have put in new benches for the managers and coaches and floodlights which are – the hon. Member was watching a football match with me the other day – much brighter, and are the requirements of UEFA. What we are awaiting now is for the GFA to give us the whole list that is sent by UEFA to start continuing the upgrade that we are already doing. So, basically, there is no more until they give us the list of what they require, and we will do, as and when necessary, all the works that need to be done.

290 Hon. E J Reyes: Just to be doubly sure that I have understood the Minister correctly, requests that he has received from the Gibraltar Football Association have all been fully met and, to use footballing terms, the ball is actually in the GFA's court for them to submit a further list of requirements – is that correct?

295 Hon. S E Linares: Not the GFA. The GFA will give us the list, but it is UEFA that actually gives it to the GFA and then probably to us, because UEFA does not directly deal with us, it deals with the GFA.

Therefore, UEFA will make the GFA have the requirements, the GFA come to us, we will look at the list that they need, and we will do it.

300 Hon. E J Reyes: And yet I am being led to believe, by the GFA, that they have submitted some sort of list, which is why I was asking the Minister for that officially, that they have already submitted the list of requirements that they would need in the short, medium and long term; yet the Minister does not seem to be able to coincide with that version of having received the list of requests.

305 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, because this is a UEFA matter, it is not just being discussed with the hon. Gentleman's Ministry – it is also being discussed with mine.

It is true to say that the GFA have discussed with Government a number of potential improvements that are likely to be the ones that UEFA will require if there is accession, if I can call it that, but there are not yet, as far as I know, clear and defined criteria of exactly what it is that UEFA will actually require, although I think it is fair to say we have an indication of what it is that is likely to be required.

310 But as we move towards the stage where UEFA membership becomes a reality, that is more likely to be set out more objectively by UEFA via the GFA, and the GFA with UEFA. I do not think this is just a question of an imposition; it is a question of a discussion between the national footballing association and UEFA.

315 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, that does help to clarify matters tremendously.

Mr Speaker, I do not know if you consider it appropriate or not, but referring back to Question 1023, where the Minister said that the information in respect of the cultural grants was available under the statistics section, I am informed now, having had a quick browse at the website, that information was not made public until 12th December, which is actually beyond the deadline for submission of questions.

320 I know, in the past, the Chief Minister actually stepped in and said that if I had requested information by the deadline of Question Time and it had not yet been uploaded on the website, he would provide an answer in the House. Therefore, Mr Speaker, I do not know how the Minister can help me, but as at the time of the deadline of Questions, that information was not available on the website, therefore I do not have the complete answer, shall we say, for Question 1023.

325 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, just to make the point – and he has just proved it – that we will be updating all the time, so as and when information comes to us we will be putting it on the website.

The fact that this time it coincided in between the Question Time and the time that we are sitting here now is...

330 Mr Speaker: That is not satisfactory, I do not think, with all due respect to the Hon. Minister, because a date is fixed for a meeting of the House – 17th December – Questions are in a week before, on the 10th, and therefore I think it is incumbent upon the Minister, and those civil servants who draft answers, to ensure that if that information has not been published on the website before 10th December, then the answer should be provided here in the House.

335 Surely there is no great difficulty in checking, and the information that went onto the website on the 12th could very easily have been made available in the answer that the Minister should provide here this morning. I do not think that that is satisfactory, and I think that it is incumbent upon the Minister, upon the Government, to sort that out.

340 The Members of the Opposition are perfectly entitled to put in a question a week before the date on which the House is going to meet.

345 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I might, I agree with you, it is very unsatisfactory, in fact, that information which should be published on the website should not have been published before the deadline when a question is going to be asked. That is what the Hon. Mr Reyes said that I have already said to the House, and that is the position of the Government.

350 If, by the time that the deadline for questions expires, the information which the hon. Gentleman is asking for is not public on the Government website, then that question, as far as I am concerned – it is a matter entirely for Mr Speaker – is a question which is in order and must be answered, including providing the information in this House. Even if it has subsequently been provided on the website, it must be provided in this House, and this House can be told that the information is now on the website, but it is not satisfactory to say in this House that the information was public at the time that the question was asked, because it was not.

355 Therefore, Mr Speaker, I will make sure that this is passed on to all the Departments that are responsible for the answering of questions, so that the very satisfactory and forward-looking and positive facility which is being provided by the Government to provide the statistical information online – which is the lexicon of publication on the website – does not create more problems than it is designed to resolve.

If the hon. Gentleman on this side of the House has the information available, I would encourage him to give it to the hon. Member opposite.

Mr Speaker: I am grateful to the Chief Minister.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I will make that information available straightaway.

As I said in the answer to my Question, I even thought that this information was published two weeks ago, as opposed to on the date it has been published. Like the Chief Minister says, I will make sure that, as from now on, any question, if a question is posed, that the information is not even posted until it comes to the Parliament. That could be a way in which we can deal with it.

Therefore, I apologise on behalf of my staff if they have inadvertently, in a rush, put the information in between the time of the closing date of the questions to the date when we sit in Parliament.

Mr Speaker: Very well. Next question.

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Temporary power plant Update on installation

Clerk: Question 1025, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide this House with an update in relation to the installation of the temporary power plant announced in November this year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, all the equipment arrived in Gibraltar on 4th December. Energy International and the GEA commenced testing on Friday, 14th December and, all going well, all units should be operational by 21st December.

Barbary macaques Injuries reported to St Bernard's Hospital

Clerk: Question 1026, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide details of all incidents reported to or at St Bernard's Hospital of injuries sustained by persons, whether local or foreign, as a result of unwanted contact with Barbary macaques, including but not limited to ape bites, scratches, bruising, shock and any other injury, for the last 12 months?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in a schedule, which I now hand over to him.

Let me point out, Mr Speaker, that the data is collected as bites only.

Answer to Question 1026

MONTH	APE BITES
January	1
February	1
March	5
April	4
May	5
June	6
July	9
August	18
September	8
October	2
November	7
December	Pending
TOTAL	66

410 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, would the hon. Member be able to clarify whether the reason why the data is collected as bites only is because that is the only type of incident reported at St Bernard's Hospital?

415 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I suspect that that might well be the reason. In asking for the data, the only data that was available was that of bites. I suspect that there will be fewer reports of others. I can always check whether there is other data available in relation to the macaques, but the information that I have at the moment is that is the only data that is collected.

420 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, with all due respect to the Hon. Minister, to say that he will check if there is any more information is somewhat unsatisfactory – to the extent that I asked in the Question for information relating to those incidents.

If, in fact, those enquiries have not yet been made, I would urge the Minister to explain why it is that, if there is a possibility that information exists and those incidents have taken place, why the answer is not provided.

425 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my impression and the information that I have is that that is all the data that is collected.

The reason why I offered to check is just in case, by way of being helpful to the hon. Member, I can go back and see whether, in some other form and some other area, that information is collected. I doubt it, but I thought I would offer that as a gesture to try and be helpful. I think it is the other way round to what the hon. Member is trying to suggest.

435 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am, as always, grateful to the hon. Member for providing the information and for offering to be additionally helpful. I merely raise the point as one which I think is valid, given the fact that the Question asked for specific information. I will look forward to further clarification, if it is, in fact, forthcoming.

440 Barbary macaques
Progress re exportation

Clerk: Question 1027, the Hon. S M Figueras.

445 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker. Can the Minister for the Environment confirm whether or not there has been any progress with the exportation of Barbary macaques from Gibraltar since I last asked this question in November this year?

450 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, new contacts in Morocco seem to be opening doors to this possibility, which now appears much more likely than a month ago.

455 Hon. S M Figueras: Is the Minister, Mr Speaker, able to provide any kind of indication of what those opening doors constitute for the community?

460 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, on two fronts. The Chief Minister attended a number of meetings in Morocco a few weeks ago, and among the many subjects covered this was one of them, and that seems to have opened doors which, in the past, were not open.

Also, there has been renewed confirmation, since the last meeting, from the scientific contacts that the sites where release is possible have been identified, and therefore the technical side seems to be going in the right direction – much more so than a month ago – and, if the political side continues to be cleared, as I have mentioned earlier, then it is, as I said, much more likely than it was a month ago.

470 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member refers to doors opening in Morocco. Could I ask the Minister to clarify two points: one, whether the Tunisian contacts – or Tunisian project, if we were to call it that – have progressed any further since we last spoke of them; and secondly, whether he can provide any clarification as to whether the sites of release are in respect of the Moroccan contacts or the Tunisian ones?

475 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, to answer the second part first, the sites identified have been identified by scientists in the University of Rabat and they are specifically for Morocco. I do not have a list of the sites; I have just been told that they have the list available as and when this project comes to fruition, which I sincerely hope it does.

480 Regarding the Tunisian authorities, renewed contacts have been attempted and we are awaiting a reply. We must remember that there was a change of Government about a year ago or so, or maybe it was more – the Arab Spring episode – and therefore a lot of the people who were there at the time when this was originally started, in 2006, are no longer there, and therefore we are attempting to re-establish those contacts.

485 Hon. S M Figueras: Perhaps it is good to clarify that the Arab Spring did not bring about the change of Government here, but I am grateful for the information that the Hon. Minister has provided. I will pursue the matter further [inaudible]. I will pursue the matter further.

Thank you, I am grateful.

490 GHA review of progress
Request for publication of report

Clerk: Question 1028, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

495 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Health now in a position to publish the results of the GHA review of progress commissioned in June 2012 and completed in August 2012, costing £96,471, and to make the report available to this House, seeing that all GHA board members, GHA executive members and senior clinicians have had sight of it?

500 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

505 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Yes, Mr Speaker. I should point out, Mr Speaker, that the review has been shared with the board and the executive, both include clinicians, but not generally with other members of staff. I expect that it will be published early in the first part of the New Year.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Minister elaborate why early on in the New Year, and not now?

510 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the view of the boards, or the bodies, that I have discussed it with is that the report will identify a number of areas where improvements need to be carried out, and it was felt by both these bodies – and it is advice that I am heeding – that we wish to have the structures clearly identified, that will address a lot of these problems, more or less at the time of the publication of the report.

515 As I say, this will now not take very long. With the coming few weeks of Christmas, I suspect that it will be shortly after that that we will feel that we are in a position to publish it.

520 Acting CEOs of GHA
Remuneration

Clerk: Question 1029, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

525 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state how much Mr John Langan and Mr Ernest Lima will be getting paid for their role as Acting Chief Executive Officers of the GHA?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

530 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the remuneration for Mr Langan and Mr Lima will be approximately £16,667 per month for both. For the avoidance of doubt, this is for both together, and not for each. This is equivalent to a rate of about £200,000 per annum for both, or £4,000 less than the remuneration of the last incumbent.

535 Mr Langan will be performing the full functions of Chief Executive in an interim but not in an acting capacity, with Mr Lima in a supporting and advisory role.

Mr Lima will also be providing advice to me, as Minister, on health issues at ministerial level, which are separate from the Health Authority.

No definite date has been set for the cessation of these arrangements, although it is intended they should run for six to nine months.

540 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

Could the Minister provide a breakdown of the £16,667 per month? How much of that will Mr Langan be getting, and how much Mr Lima?

545 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this may well vary on a month-to-month basis. There is a flexible arrangement. I suspect that it will be approximately two-thirds Mr Langan and one-third Mr Lima, because Mr Lima will not... Well, Mr Lima says he will not be working full-time, although as Members on both sides of this House know, that probably means he will be working full-time, but that is probably the way that this will be divided.

550 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Finally, Mr Speaker, how will the payment be calculated? Is it by number of hours put in?

555 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is the likely way in which this will be done.

Dr David McCutcheon
Performance as CEO of GHA

560 Clerk: Question 1030, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

565 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health inform this House which specific performance indicators, as stipulated in his contracts, Dr David McCutcheon failed to deliver on as Chief Executive Officer of the GHA, together with details of which performance indicators Dr David McCutcheon did deliver upon?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

570 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, this is a difficult Question for me to answer – I have no problem in saying that – as I worked with Dr McCutcheon for only nine months before he resigned. It is a Question which could better be answered by the former Minister, or indeed by the hon. Member, as she was a member of the board of the GHA from 2007, including the time in 2010 when Dr McCutcheon's contract was last renewed.

575 In my statement at the last sitting of Parliament, I referred to performance indicators in the context of the two renewals of Dr McCutcheon's contracts. Mr Speaker, there are performance indicators which define aims that will be recurrent and that therefore one would expect to be repeated in recurring contracts, regardless of how well they may have been fulfilled. I would give, as examples, the management of the budget or the ensuring that statutory duties are fulfilled.

580 Other indicators, however, set specific targets that are either achieved or are not. Inclusion of such targets in successive contracts can reasonably be considered as an indication that they have not been met, especially where specific deadlines are given. Examples of these in this case would therefore be elimination of waiting lists, introduction of effective clinical and non-clinical risk management process, and commissioning of new information and technology systems.

585 Therefore, in these and similar cases, it must be taken as understood that at the time of contract renewal, in 2007 and 2010, the then Minister, or the Government, did not consider that these targets had been met.

590 On whether other targets had been met at the time I can only speculate, as I ceased to be a board member in 2007 and the hon. Member was appointed in my place. All I can do is give an opinion in relation to how I have found things now.

Consultant orthopaedic surgeon
Locum cover

595 Clerk: Question 1031, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise this House who provided locum cover for the consultant orthopaedic surgeon while he was away from work last month, together with details of the period of cover?

600

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no locum was engaged for the consultant orthopaedic surgeon in November.

605

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how many consultant orthopaedic surgeons then were available for the four-week period that one of them was away?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the reason why no cover was provided is that, under the terms and conditions of the consultant in question – which go back to certainly well before my time, as both the consultant orthopaedic surgeons were employed before I took over as Minister for Health – they have an arrangement in which they do 10 weeks cross-cover, and this is a general arrangement that they have between them.

However, had this happened before 1st October, there would only have been one consultant orthopaedic surgeon, but as we engaged an associate specialist in orthopaedics on 1st October, that means that now, when one of the consultants is away, there are, in fact, two and not one in place, as was the case before 1st October. This is except for one period of one week when the associate specialist was, in fact, away. So, for three weeks there were two orthopaedic surgeons available; for one week there was one.

615

As I say, had this happened before 1st October, there would only have been one throughout the period.

620

Health and Safety audits and assessments
Availability of document to Members

625

Clerk: Question 1032, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer in Written Question 180/2012 could the Minister for Health inform Parliament why an internal document of the GHA in relation to the Health and Safety audits and assessments should be denied to elected Members of Parliament?

630

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

635

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, because these are working internal documents of the GHA.

640

Hon. J J Netto: Does he mean, therefore, that once they are finalised they can be made available to Parliament, if requested?

645

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the written question last month referred to a large number of internal documents. I would have no objection to specific ones for specific reasons, which are causing concern, being made available when they are finalised, absolutely; but I think the concern would be in... when the question was asked as a written question last time, was that providing a whole dossier of a lot of Health and Safety documents going back a number of years, which were working documents, was probably not something that should be done.

650

But, if anyone requests it specifically, once they are completed, then clearly, like we did in the case of the kitchen, which was provided, there will be no problem in providing it.

650

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

HOUSING AND THE ELDERLY

Alameda House, Alameda Estate
Repairs to lifts

Clerk: We are now going to move on to the questions which are being put to the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Question 1037, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the reply to Question 969/2012, can the Minister for Housing now provide this House with details for the period 1st October to date of how long it took for repairs to be undertaken since the breakdown reports were first lodged in respect of the two lifts at Alameda House?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, all lifts are attended within an hour and effective repairs undertaken within four hours.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I do not quite understand. If, in the last House, the answer was that the lifts had still not been repaired, and I am now asking how long it took for repairs to be undertaken, it does not coincide with the last answer if it was fixed within x-number of hours.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman is referring to... that the lifts in question had taken longer – is that what the Gentleman is asking?

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes. If I recall properly, Mr Speaker, last time, one of the lifts were broken down, they were still awaiting finalisation of repairs. Therefore, I am asking how long it took for the repair to be undertaken – I take it it has been completed by now – since the report was first lodged until the lift was finally fully functional again. How long was that period?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am informed by the members of the Department that lifts are repaired within two hours, normally, and up to four hours maximum. The only time that a lift can take longer is when they are affected seriously by instances of water penetration, and in those instances then repairs can take substantially longer. But, generally speaking, no lift will take more than four hours to be repaired from the point after they have been reported.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I understand that part, but in this case we were talking at last month's meeting that the lift was still undergoing repairs and had not been completed, and my Question is asking how long it took for the repairs to be undertaken. I do not know clearly whether the lift is now fully functional, if it is still undergoing repairs. Whether it was water penetration, or whatever the cause might be, how long was that period from the lift breaking down to the actual... fully operational of the lift again?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as I said, I am not entirely sure how long that lift in question took to be repaired, but the answer provided to me by the Department said it would not have taken more than four hours from the point that it was reported.

Mr Speaker: Perhaps we have a difficulty, and that is for the record, of course, it should be stated that the Hon. Mr Paul Balban is answering questions on behalf of the Minister for Housing and the Elderly, who is not present.

I do notice, though, that with reference to the answer given at the last meeting to Question 969, there was a problem about spare parts. I do not know whether the hon. Member remembers. They were awaiting spare parts, if he looks at the answer in the Hansard.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, but if at the last meeting it was confirmed to me, on behalf of the Minister for Housing, who was not able, unfortunately, to come last month either... if it was confirmed that the lift was not functioning, was still broken down, if that lift has now been repaired, how long did it take? That does not coincide with the general answer that I know the Minister has, that it takes between two and four hours. It does not answer the Question, in which I say 'how long it took for repairs to be undertaken'. I know we aim to repair between two to four hours and that is the target, but the Question says how long did it take for the repairs to be undertaken.

715 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Minister committed himself, at the last meeting, to pass the information on at a later date.

720 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this is exactly what I did when I got back to the office, and the reply was that this lift did not take more than four hours to repair at this point. Lifts will break down... (Interjection) Pardon me? Lifts, as the hon. Member is aware, will break down. They just will not break down once and that is the end of it; lifts will continue to be broken down, unfortunately. But in the case in question, I am assured by the Ministry for Housing that this incident did not take more than four hours to correct.

725 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, no, I have to disagree with the Hon. Minister.
Thank you, Mr Speaker, for reminding us. It is true that, at the last meeting, the Minister committed himself to give me the information. He has not been able to provide it to me; hence why I posed the Question. My Question is how long it takes... When the report is first lodged, how long does it take from there? If it takes four hours, or whatever, from when the workmen arrive... but if I report a lift broken down on Monday morning at 10 o'clock and the workman does not come until Wednesday, and then fixes it within four hours, I think it is not correct to say it was fixed in four hours. No, since the report was first lodged, it took two days and four hours, not just the four hours.

735 More specifically to what Mr Speaker kindly reminded us, at the last meeting there was a specific question on which I accepted that the Minister had to go back to find some information, and I have made a reference to precisely that Question number, number 969. Therefore, if what the Minister is saying – and I do not think it is, but if what he is saying is that from the report being lodged and the repair being undertaken it took four hours, then the reply he gave me last month is nonsensical, because last month he admitted that that lift had been reported broken down and was still waiting to be repaired. So it does not coincide with the four-hour timeframe.

740 So, we are still none the wiser of how long it has taken, if indeed it has already been fixed, or whether it is still to be fixed, that particular lift at Alameda House.

745 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, taking into account the confusion there seems to be with this Question, I will seek to discuss this with the Department to get more information. As I said, I requested this information and this was the reply I received. That is the best I can do at the moment, but I will see why there is this discrepancy in question.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

750 Hon. P R Caruana: As a matter of interest, the Opposition is unlikely ever to be interested in how long it takes a workman to actually fix the lift once he gets onto the job. The question of how long did it take to fix the lift is a reference to how long the lift was out of order, not how long it took the workmen to fix it once they got there. It could be out of order for three months, and they go there and they could fix it in five minutes. It could take five minutes to fix. That is, I think, the point.

755
760 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I understand what the hon. Gentleman is asking, and as I said, I have been guaranteed that the moment a lift is reported to the Ministry for Housing, the contractors are called immediately. In most circumstances, from the point that they are informed to the point that it is repaired, it actually takes four hours, unless special parts are required or unless there is an issue with water penetration. When there is an issue with water penetration, obviously that lift has to be fixed 100%, otherwise obviously the water would keep on blowing the same parts.

765 Mid-Harbour Estate
Meeting with Committee

Clerk: Question 1038, the Hon. E J Reyes.

770 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing say when he expects to meet with the Committee of Mid Harbours Estate, who have been seeking an appointment to meet him for the past four months?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Minister for Housing expects to meet the Committee of Mid Harbour Estate early in the New Year.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, does it not seem rather a long period of time? I know that in the last month or so the Minister has unfortunately not been medically well enough to attend to his duties, but we are talking here of a six-month time span. For a committee of a big Government rental estate, it has taken them six months to meet with the Minister so they can discuss ongoing concerns. Is there any reason why it has taken so long? My understanding is that the first request came round about the month of August to be able to meet, so why has there been such a huge delay?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I was informed by the Department that there were issues regarding the composition of the tenants' association, that in fact one of the members of the tenants' association was not applicable, was not entitled to be part of that tenants' association because he was not, in fact, down as a tenant himself, and so there were issues in that respect, leading to the meeting taking so long to organise.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, the reason for delaying the meeting is because of the composition of the delegation?

Mr Speaker: With respect to hon. Members, are we going to make any progress in trying to arrive at the reason why there was a delay, say from the summer until now?

The reality is that the Minister for Housing and the Elderly is unable to return back to work, on medical grounds, until early in the New Year. That I happen to know personally, and therefore no progress can be made in this respect. What happened between August and now I do not think is going to take the House anywhere.

Hon. E J Reyes: No, Mr Speaker, but the Hon. Minister has now mentioned that a big contributing factor to the delay in having met is because it seems that –

Mr Speaker: But whatever the reason was, we are not going to get anywhere, are we? There was a delay for four months, for whatever reason. We are now in December. The Minister is unable to attend to his Ministry until early in the New Year, so let us look to the future.

Hon. P R Caruana: Point of order.

Mr Speaker: No, no there is no question of order.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am going to raise a Point of Order.

Mr Speaker: No!

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, you do not know what it is. You do not know what it is, so you cannot know what the Point of Order was. The only thing that Mr Speaker knows is that he does not want to hear me, but he cannot know that what I am about to say to him is not a Point of Order, because he has not heard me.

Mr Speaker, the Opposition cannot accept a position in which the Speaker rules that we cannot hold the Government to account for the failures of the past simply because we cannot remedy the past. That is true of everything that has happened. It is true of everything that every Government has ever done in the past, that –

Mr Speaker: But you have been given an answer by the Minister. (Hon. P R Caruana: No –)

Will the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition sit down? You have been given an answer by the Minister. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) He has explained that there were delays in arranging a meeting because of disagreement regarding the composition –

Hon. P R Caruana: That is not [inaudible].

Mr Speaker: But that, you have been told.

835 Hon. P R Caruana: That is not [inaudible].

Mr Speaker: Having been told that that was a reason, you cannot rectify that.

840 Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: That is the reality.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker –

845 Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Minister have anything further that he wishes to add?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, but I do have something further I would like to add, if you will listen to me. Mr Speaker, I stood up on a Point of Order, not to debate the question of the six-months' delay.

850 Mr Speaker: Well, what is the Point of Order?

Hon. P R Caruana: I have explained to Mr Speaker the Point of Order is that the Opposition would have difficulty with a ruling that rendered irrelevant, and therefore inadmissible, questions about the past.

855 Mr Speaker: Right.

Hon. P R Caruana: If Mr Speaker's ruling had been –

860 Mr Speaker: No, I will not –

Hon. P R Caruana: – 'Next question, because you have had an answer to your previous question,' as you have just said, I would not have got up on my feet. I have got up on my feet because that is not what Mr Speaker said.

865 Mr Speaker: Right, having accepted –

Hon. P R Caruana: What Mr Speaker said was that it is in the past, you cannot do anything about it, and therefore what is the point of asking questions in Parliament.

870 Mr Speaker: Because you have been given an answer.

Hon. P R Caruana: That is a different ruling.

875 Mr Speaker: But he did give an answer. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana)

I am now inviting the Minister: does he have any further information that will throw light on the reasons why there was this delay? Was there any other reason for the delay?

Hon. P J Balban: No, Mr Speaker. That was the reason for the delay and that has now been addressed.

880 Obviously, the Minister for Housing is now not at work, because of medical problems, and he has already arranged to see the tenants' committee in January, early in the New Year.

Mr Speaker: Now, does the Hon. Leader of the Opposition have any supplementaries?

885 Hon. P R Caruana: That is not the issue that I have spoken about.

890 Government housing
Tenants decanted from unsafe dwellings

Clerk: Question 1039, the Hon. E J Reyes.

895 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting, due to their dwellings becoming unsafe, since 1st January 2012, indicating the dates when the decanting became necessary and when these tenants were able or are expected to return to their homes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

900 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, a total of four tenants have been urgently decanted from their homes since 1st January 2012, as follows: on 31st March 2012, and they were allocated alternative accommodation on 27th July 2012; the second was, once again, on 31st March 2012, and once again allocated alternative accommodation on 4th April 2012; 905 the third was on 15th September 2012, and that family returned to the flat on 20th September 2012; and the fourth and final one was on 26th September 2012, and they returned to their flat on 15th October 2012.

910 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I see from there that the last two have been able to return to their homes. However, the two who were decanted on 31st March he says have been offered alternative accommodation. Is that alternative accommodation on a temporary basis or, alternatively, on a permanent basis, where they have moved out of their original home and have now moved permanently into a new flat?

915 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, by allocating alternative accommodation what I intended to say was that these persons have been permanently rehoused.

Hon. E J Reyes: Just to say, so no-one, then, at this particular stage, is waiting to return back to the flat that they had to decant and the repairs that are still ongoing – is that correct?

920 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is correct, according to the information I have received from the Department.

925 George Jeger House, Glacis Estate
Repairs to lift

Clerk: Question 1040, the Hon. E J Reyes.

930 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide pertinent and updated details in respect of the lift at George Jeger House, Glacis Estate, which first broke down around early November 2012, together with information as to how long it took, or will take, to be repaired?

935 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 1041.

940 Portmore House, Glacis Estate
Repairs to lift

945 Clerk: Question 1041.

950 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide pertinent and updated details in respect of the lift at Portmore House, Glacis Estate, which first broke down around mid-November 2012, together with information as to how long it took or will take to be repaired?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

955 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the lift broke down on 7th November 2012 and is now operational.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, how long did it actually take to be repaired, Mr Speaker?

960 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, on 7th November 2012, there was water penetration to the lift shaft and the plant room. Due to the damage to the lift cabin and electrical panels and mechanical components, Otis demanded that the lift be put out of service until the shafts and the lift components were completely dry and safe to operate. Hence, it dates back to 7th November 2012.

965 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I have not quite understood the answer from the hon. Member. How long did it actually take to repair? Can I have hours, days, or at least some indication of period? We know it broke down on 7th November, I understand it has now been repaired, but I am still missing the information of the length of time –

970 Hon. P R Caruana: On what date was it repaired?

Hon. E J Reyes: – and on what date was it repaired, and therefore I can do a mathematical calculation of how long that lift was actually broken down for.

975 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I can safely say that at this time it took a lot more than four hours to repair. As to the exact dates, I am not sure, but it was last week, so it would have been out for approximately one month. If the hon. Gentleman wants to know exactly the amount of days to the date, then I will have to get back to him, but I can say it was around four weeks, about a month.

980 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is exactly what my question was: how long it took. So I do want to know how long it took to be repaired. I think I gave you notice, and I was expecting an answer today of how long it actually took to be repaired.

985 St Christopher's Court and The Ramps
Sale of properties; tender process

Clerk: Question 1069, the Hon. E J Reyes.

990 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, can I have the number again?

Mr Speaker: Question 1069.

995 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker.

Can Government state how many of the residential properties at St Christopher's Court – that is No. 27 Europa Flats – and The Ramps – that is within Buena Vista Estate – remain unsold; and, if any, why these were not awarded to the recently held tender process?

1000 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

1005 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, all the housing units transferred by the MOD to the Gibraltar Government at St Christopher's Court and Buena Vista, The Ramps, to date have been sold by tender.

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

1010 Health and Safety reports
Union representatives' rights

Clerk: Question 1044, the Hon. J J Netto.

1015 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer provided to Written Question 211/2012, will the Minister for Health & Safety state whether, during this Government's term of office, they are willing to provide union representatives in Gibraltar with the same rights as their colleagues in the UK have in relation to the disclosure of Health and Safety inspection reports and accident records emanating from work places where the union have members?

1020 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

1025 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar is not committed to do so, but is already considering this with the District Committees of Unite.

1030 Hon. J J Netto: If the Government's view is that they are not committed to doing so, are they somehow open to the suggestion that if the union – whether it is Unite the Union or the Teachers Association or the GGCA – were to ask the Government, 'We would like to have those same rights as our trade union colleagues would have in the UK,' will the Government change its mind and then be committed to do so?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this is an issue I am handling, given my industrial relations responsibilities.

1035 What we are saying is that we are not committed to doing so, in the sense that this is not a manifesto commitment, this is not something that was raised with us before the election; but it is something that has been raised with us during the course of conversations with Unite.

1040 We have an open mind about it, but it would be working with the union to ensure – and this is the only union that has raised it, and that is why I am not talking about the GGCA or the GTA, as the hon. Gentleman has – that we are providing the information to individuals in the union who will be able to interpret it in a non-alarmist, appropriate way because that is what has happened in the United Kingdom. The unions in the United Kingdom have now, through training and through buying in the expertise, got the expertise to make assessments about Health and Safety issues in a proper fashion.

1045 That is the stage of the discussion with relevant individuals at Unite, that is what they themselves are going back and looking at, but it would have to be a very carefully structured carve-out to provide, outside of Government, this type of data to people who would then have the responsible infrastructure and expertise to assess it and assist the Government in any such site where there may have been issues of Health and Safety identified.

1050 Hon. J J Netto: Indeed, Mr Speaker, I accept the fact that this was not a manifesto commitment and has happened after the Election, and is only being brought about as a result of the recent conference that... I do not know what it was before, but certainly as far as I am concerned, the first time I heard about it was in the particular conference IOSH did in conjunction with Unite, the Union.

1055 My understanding of it is that, in the UK, Health and Safety representatives, regardless of the unions concerned, so long as they have members in a particular workplace, have the legal right to ask their employer to provide for those kinds of reports.

1060 Of course, Health and Safety representatives in the UK, like any other Health and Safety specialists, would have to undergo a level of training and qualification to be able to discharge those particular responsibilities on behalf of their members. So presumably, if we follow the same logic and the same caveat, that Health and Safety representatives in Gibraltar would have to be trained... In fact, I think Unite the Union has spent, over some years now, a considerable amount of time and effort in bringing tutors from the UK constantly, or periodically, to Gibraltar to provide that kind of training. Whether they have been accredited or qualified, that is something I do not know, but I hope that, if we follow the same pattern as in UK, then we can provide... at least the Government will consider that and provide trade union representatives in Gibraltar with the same legal rights as their colleagues in the UK will.

1065 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, let me just clarify. This comes from my discussions with the District Committee from well before the conference here of the Institute of Health and Safety, and it is an issue that we are actively considering since then with the union, and we are looking with the union at how this would work.

1070 So I think that the hon. Gentleman has his answer. It is a favourable one and it comes, I dare say, from the spring, if he allows me to speak from recollection, from some time in the spring, one of my first meetings with the District Committee after we had been elected.

Health and Safety figures for November 2012
Prohibition and improvement notices issued

1080 Clerk: Question 1045, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that the Health and Safety figures for the month of November 2012 had not been uploaded on the Government website by the time notice for questions was given, can the Minister for Health & Safety say how many prohibition and improvement notices were issued in the month of November 2012, specifying the name of the company or companies involved, the site or sites, the reason or reasons for issuing the notice or notices, and the period which may have brought operations to a halt until the inspectors were satisfied that the correct standards had been duly complied with?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 1046 and 1047.

Health and Safety figures for November 2012
Factories inspections; reported accidents

Clerk: Question 1046.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that the Health and Safety figures for the month of November 2012 had not been uploaded on the Government website by the time notice for questions was given, can the Minister for Health & Safety state how many inspections during the month of November 2012 did the factories inspectors carry out, stating the names of the companies or public sector organisations inspected, whether any possible breach of the Factories Act or any subsidiary legislation has taken place, and whether legal advice is being sought?

Clerk: Question 1047.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that the Health and Safety figures for the month of November 2012 had not been uploaded on the Government website by the time notice for questions had been given, can the Minister for Health & Safety state if there have been any reported accidents during the month of November 2012, showing the industry group and the name of the company, and state which ones were reportable, major and fatal, if any?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the schedule, which I now hand over to him.

Updated 6 December 2012

Source: Ministry for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services

1120 Hon. J J Netto: Thank you.

Hon. P J Balban: All inspections carried out and improvement notices issued were against offences related to the Factories Act (Lifting Operations and Lifting Equipment) Regulations (9), which is the thorough examination of load tests, where practicable, on lifting equipment.

1125 I can confirm that no legal advice has been sought.

As stated in reply to previous answers, stating company names publicly is not the policy of this Government.

1130 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, one issue that I would like to raise, in the context of my Question and the answer provided by the Minister, is that... Well, in fact, he just stated that the policy of the Government is not to state company names, and this is something that I think the Hon. Mr Speaker mentioned something on in the past.

1135 I think that decision is profoundly unfair, quite frankly, because any person in the world with access to a computer and to the internet can actually get to the Health and Safety Executive in the UK – as I have done, and printed out all the improvement notices, all the prohibition notices – where it tells you the name of the company. It actually tells you which local authority, and if you actually click on the notice number you can actually see, for instance, like the first one I have got here, which was from Glasgow Steel Nail Co Ltd, a small description of why the factory inspector or the Health and Safety officer in the UK did that.

1140 It seems to me quite unfair, Mr Speaker, that any person in the world with access to a computer and to the internet can find out all the companies in the UK, regardless of whether it is Scotland, whether it is in Wales, whether it is in England, whether it is in Jersey, in Guernsey, the Isle of Man... can find out the names of the company, and yet me, here, a person who has been elected by the people of Gibraltar, in my role as Opposition, to hold the Government to account, the Government is not willing to provide that information, which I think is totally unfair.

1145 Perhaps if we can just park this statement, which I have just made, to one side, because really, Mr Speaker, I think that any person who looks at the argument I have just stated will realise that my request is very reasonable.

1150 Mr Speaker, I do not know whether it would be more convenient... whether we can have perhaps a private word between yourself and the Minister himself and make him aware that, in the same way that any person in the world can find out what has happened in the UK with improvement and prohibition notices, it is I think also fair that elected Members of the Gibraltar Parliament find out what happens in Gibraltar.

1155 So perhaps, Mr Speaker, with that in mind and with my request to be able to have a private word with you and the Minister so we can share the information – in fact, anyone with access to a computer can find out – I think that perhaps I can change the Government's policy on this matter. I think it would be most welcome at least to decide to discuss it.

1160 Hon. P J Balban: Was there question there?

Mr Speaker: The question is drawing attention to the fact that, in the United Kingdom, such information is available. He has noted the fact that it is not the policy of the Government here to make that information available and he is enquiring whether the Hon. Minister is prepared to consult with him and with myself in order to arrive at a conclusion on the matter.

1165 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, what I find incredible is that, for the first time now, statistics are available online. If this was such an important thing and this is something that you say that we should have done, why was this never done between 1988 and 1996? (Hon. G H Licudi: Between 1996 and 2011.) Sorry (laughter).

1170 I do not understand. You are pushing the Government to do certain things which you, the other side, when in Government, did not do – so I do not understand why the importance now.

Hon. S M Figueras: Que pasó con el new dawn?

1175 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I have not asked a question in relation to what happened in the last 16 years when the GSD was in Government, I have not asked a question when the GSLP was last in Government between 1988 and 1996, I have not asked a question about the 40 years that the AACR Government had in relation to Health and Safety...

1180 We are where we are today, and the fact is I am asking this Question. I can find the information, like any person in the world, on what is happening in the UK, but I cannot find it out in my own Parliament, where I have been elected by the people of Gibraltar.

I think what the hon. Members need to realise, given the manifesto they have, 'A New Dawn', is that, if they want a new dawn, the fact is they have to provide answers to the questions today, not what happened 16 years ago, or 20 years ago, or 60 years ago.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, it is unfortunate that the hon. Member opposite has not practised in the past what he is now preaching. He is making a speech today saying of the unfairness of the situation. Is it suddenly unfair, as from 9th December 2011? What happened previously, when none of us had that information available to us? Much less information was available to us in the previous 16 years than what is available now through the publication monthly of online statistics.

The hon. Member on my right, Mr Balban, is absolutely right: why is it that it is suddenly unfair as from the 9th December 2011? The hon. Members should simply practise what they preach. They never have.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the fact is that, when we were in government, we provided far more information than when the last GSLP was in government, that hardly provided any information at all. That is a fact.

If they never knew what to ask when they were in Opposition, that is their problem, but I am asking things which are perfectly acceptable for any place, like in the UK, to obtain such information. So the question is not what we have done in the past, because they did worse than when we were there. (A Member: Yes.) That is a fact.

Mr Speaker: With respect to hon. Members, we are dealing with a specific matter, and the specific matter is under the Factories Act (Lifting Operations and Lifting Equipment) Regulations (9), which I understand do not require that such information be made public.

The hon. questioner is perfectly entitled to enjoin upon the Government a line of action – namely, will the Government do this, will the Government publish that information? I imagine it would require an amendment to the Regulations, but the answer that has been given is that it is not the policy of the Government. What the Hon. Minister can do is to enjoin upon the Government that they adopt that line of action. That is perfectly proper.

What is, I think, beyond the ambit of this Question is to discuss in general terms what information one Government has published and what information another Government has published, generally.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, may I ask a supplementary, with your leave?

Mr Speaker, will the Hon. Ministers – since they have both risen to speak on this – accept from me that, in this debate about who provided more information, specifically in relation to this issue, there is a huge distinction to be drawn between information that is available online, which they choose to put on line, and information being available or not available? The fact that information is now online does not mean that there is more or less transparency.

Does the hon. Member accept that, if information had been available to them when they were last on this side of the House, had they asked for it, and was given when they asked for it... I still remember the Hon. Dr Garcia asking questions about applications for planning permission, and we had to have a Cabinet meeting about whether we would give detailed information about individual named applicants, and it was given. So, will the hon. Members agree that the debate about whether they had more or less information cannot be decided on the basis of whether it is online or not online now or before, but whether it was available if sought; and this sort of information was regularly requested by the hon. Members opposite and regularly made available?

If the hon. Members couple in that fact with the fact that they want a new dawn... Well, Mr Speaker, they cannot keep on harping back to what they wrongly perceive were our practices. Never mind that they have got our practices wrong when we were in Government. They have gone to the electorate in Gibraltar saying that they want to do better than us, that we were very untransparent and they want a new dawn, namely, 'Away with all the GSD malpractices – now we are going to be transparent.'

Coupling both of those things together, can I urge the hon. Members, in the spirit in which my hon. Colleague made his supplementary, which appears to have been grasped by the Chair, and which I think was, frankly, not reciprocated by the nature of the hon. Member's first answer to the supplementary... can I urge the hon. Member to just agree to what the original supplementary asked, which was for a meeting to establish what were the obstacles to the Government adopting a policy that would provide information now, in relation to this area, of the sort that we used to provide when asked in other equivalent areas, which simply raises a question of identifying individual applicants or individual citizens in their interactions with the State?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is completely wrong in his analysis. He said that they were open when they were here, that whenever we asked for information – let alone that they did not provide it online, but whenever we asked for information – that information was regularly provided.

The hon. Member has a short memory. He does not remember what happened before 8th December 2011. And it is not that long in history – we are not delving into the deep past of Gibraltar. Or does the hon. Member not remember, when I was Shadow Minister responsible for Transport, the constant questioning that I had? Question after question after question. In one Parliament, in one session, I seem to recall that there were about 40 or 50 questions that I asked in relation to their traffic plan, and on every single question of those 40 or 50 questions, they said, ‘The Government will not provide the information; the Government will provide the information when it is ready to do so.’ In other words, when it chooses to do so. It refused to provide any of the information, specific information which I was asking on a published document. That was what the hon. Member used to do.

As to a meeting, I certainly do not recall the hon. Members on this side ever offering a meeting to discuss Government policy. Government Policy is decided by the –

Hon. P R Caruana: We were not asked. [Inaudible]

Mr Speaker: I am not going to allow this matter to continue into any further acrimony. I am willing to make myself available, if it will help.

I am all in favour of as much information as possible being brought to this Parliament, because I myself am computer illiterate and therefore whatever there is online, as far as I am concerned, I do not have access to it and I think that there are still very many thousands of people in Gibraltar who are in exactly that position. Therefore, I am all in favour of Parliament being furnished with as much information as possible, as a matter of principle, but I will not allow the matter to deteriorate any further.

Next question.

Health and Safety inspections Figures on Government website

Clerk: Question 1048, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety provide an explanation for the fact that, in the new figures now being provided on the Government website for the Health and Safety inspections, we have an average of 17.55 inspections between January and September 2012, and 78 for October 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this has been as a result of a drive by the Department to carry out inspections concentrating on lifting operations and lifting equipment. This can be done as a direct result of this Government increasing its human resources within the Department and, as a result, being able to react in a more proactive manner, something unheard of in the past due to lack of resources.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I think, if I am right in interpreting what the Hon. Minister said, that the 78 inspections have been as a result of a drive for lifting operations – that is what he said – but if I actually look at the October figures, and I look at it against the column of industry group, I fail to see that... There may be lifting operations perhaps done in many of them. For instance, I do not know how many lifting operations are done in the hotel trade, or the medical and health services, or the repair of consumer goods, or the retail trade, so it seems to me that the 78 cannot be accounted for lifting operations. Perhaps, could the Minister elaborate on that?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman has said, there was an average of 17.55 inspections between January and September. The difference between the 17.55 and 78, I am told by the Department, has been as a result of a campaign that they themselves decided to embark upon, which was that of checking and concentrating on lifting operations and lifting equipment. That is the reason why there has been an increase in activity in the month in question.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, we are talking in averages, but the difference between 17.55 and 78 is about 60 or 61, and if we go to the figures for the month of October produced by the Ministry, it just does 1305 not add up that those extra 71 may have emanated from lifting operations. If you look at the column of the industry and you see the breakdown, it cannot be that the 61 are attributable to lifting operations. The logic is not there at all. Could the Minister perhaps elaborate on that?

1310 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this is the reply received from the Department and that is the answer to the Question. The reason for an increase in the number of inspections in October 2012 has been as a direct result of this drive by the Department to carry out inspections concentrating on lifting operations and lifting equipment.

1315 Hon. J J Netto: Could the Minister therefore then say what inspections for lifting operations were done in the hotel trade that account for seven?

1320 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will not be able to give the hon. Gentleman an exact breakdown on each single sector of the community, of workplaces. It is something which, if the hon. Gentleman wants me to find out specifically, I will endeavour to find that information for him, but I cannot be expected to know exactly what happens in each sector.

1325 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the only supplementary I am going to make now is that I will certainly write to the Minister. I will take his offer on board for a fuller explanation on the... Given that the extra 60 or 61 have been due to lifting operations, what lifting operations have been conducted in an industry group which, by the very nature of the commercial or economic activity, does not lend itself to lifting operations? Certainly I will write to the Minister to provide an answer.

1330 Health and safety inspections
Notices issued in October 2012

Clerk: Question 1049, the Hon. J J Netto.

1335 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to the one prohibition notice and the 16 improvement notices issued in the month of October 2012 by the factories inspectors, can the Minister provide a short description of the alleged concerns found by the inspectors in relation to the notices issued?

1340 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

1345 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the 16 improvement notices were related to offences against the Factories Act (Lifting Operations and Lifting Equipment) Regulations as follows: failure to test fork-lift trucks, 2; failure to test passenger lifts, 10; failure to carry out tests on service lifts, 2; failure to carry out examination of garage car-lifting platforms, 1; failure to carry out examination of lifting equipment, 1.

The prohibition notice was in relation to the unsafe state of a scaffold tube hoist shaft that has now been erected for over eight years: hoist tested and failed.

1350 Health and Safety audit
Waterport power station

1355 Clerk: Question 1050, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, will the Minister for Health & Safety place a request with the factories inspectors to conduct a Health and Safety audit of Waterport Power station, given the age and state of the engines and the fact that no such audit has been conducted this year?

1360 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

1365 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 1051 and 1052/2012.

Health and Safety audits
OESCO power station

1370 Clerk: Question 1051.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, will the Minister for Health & Safety place a request with the Health & Safety inspectors to conduct a Health and Safety audit of OESCO power station, given the age and state of the engines therein and the fact that no such audit has been carried out this year?

Health and Safety audits
MOD power station

1380 Clerk: Question 1052.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, will the Minister for Health & Safety place a request with the factories inspectors to inspect the MOD power station, given the age and state of the engines, in order to ensure that such workplace complies with the Factories Act and all other subsidiary legislation?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

1390 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Electricity Authority has engaged the services of chartered Health and Safety practitioners since 2007 to conduct Health and Safety audits of not just Waterport power station but also at all other GEA locations. The last Health and Safety audit was carried out in January this year for 2012.

1395 As regards the MOD power station, I can confirm that no safety audits have been undertaken for the last three years. This power station is now managed by Gibraltar Mechanical and Electrical Services, which is a wholly Government-owned company and will be run no differently to Waterport power station and, as a result, will therefore now be subject to yearly audits.

1400 The OESCO power station is a private entity and, as such, the factories inspectors are at liberty and are competent to carry out inspections under the Factories Act, as they do in other workplaces in Gibraltar. I do not think that it is up to the Minister to request an inspection.

Hon. J J Netto: There are a couple of things that arise there, Mr Speaker, from that answer.

1405 First of all, in relation to the Waterport power station, if I understand the Minister correctly, he has said that some sort of an audit has been conducted, (Interjection) and I understand that an external audit has been conducted. So, in relation to that part of my Question, could I ask whether I can be provided with a copy of the said report as far as Waterport power station is concerned?

In relation –

Mr Speaker: Can we take that...? You were asking –

1410 Hon. J J Netto: Sorry. My supplementary question in relation to Waterport power station is could I be provided with a copy?

Mr Speaker: Let us have an answer to that, shall we?

1415 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, okay, sorry.

1420 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this document that the hon. Member is referring to is internal, a working document of the GEA, and as such it will not be available for the hon. Gentleman. In any event, this working document actually belongs to the GEA, not to myself.

Hon. J J Netto: But in any case, Mr Speaker, whether it belongs to the Electricity Authority or not, I am sure that on the board of the Electricity Authority there must be at least one Government Minister, who can progress this and can put the request, on my behalf, to the board.

1425 So, in a supplementary question, could I ask whoever is the Government Minister – I do not know which one it is, actually, who sits on the board – to put that request on my behalf, whether it is permissible or possible for me to have that document which I have just referred to?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am going to rise because there is a similar question from, I think, the hon. Lady, in respect of a similar report in respect of the GHA.

The Government's view is that being transparent and accountable does not mean that every single internal report has to be provided publicly, especially reports which are working documents, which are available in different Departments and which, because of the nature of Health and Safety audits, are documents which are produced so that action can be taken on them internally. Therefore, the position is going to be that we are not going to disclose Health and Safety audits to Members opposite or make them public.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, if I am correct, is the Chief Minister referring to the GHA review of progress? (Interjection)

Hon. Chief Minister: The hon. Lady is asking for an audit report in respect of...

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, that is a question that was asked by Mr Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: So, let us be clear: the answer is that no internal document of any Department or Authority will be made available to Members of Parliament, regardless of whether the document is a working document or a finalised document. Is that the position of the Government?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, for the very reasons that the hon. Gentleman has uttered, an internal document is not going to be made a public document.

Hon. J J Netto: I do not want to bring in the House of Commons, or Scotland, or Wales, or any other thing, but I am sure that access to... Parliamentarians of the Opposition, whether in Scotland or Wales, will have access to Health and Safety audits, if so requested, and I am sure that, if that is the case, perhaps the Government could consider its position.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman was a Member of a Government for 16 years that gave considerably less information than we give.

If the hon. Gentleman is saying that an MP in the House of Commons would have access to such a report, would the Government give it, I will tell him this much: the Government would reconsider the position if he can demonstrate to us that Opposition MPs in the United Kingdom have access to such documentation. I do not believe that they do, but if he is able to demonstrate the opposite, Mr Speaker – demonstrate the opposite, not just tell me that he thinks that they do, but actually demonstrate the opposite – then I will certainly reconsider the position.

An internal document is an internal document. If it is a public document, then a different rule applies.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I certainly will put myself to the wheel and look for the information, and if I can get it I will certainly pass it to the Chief Minister.

Clerk: Question 1053.

Mr Speaker: Just a moment. Do you have any other supplementaries in respect of the other questions?

Hon. J J Netto: Thank you, Mr Speaker. Thank you very much.

No. If I recall, the Minister for Health & Safety, in relation to the MOD power station... Obviously, I am not aware at what moment in time in the Government timetable the MOD power station is going to come over, not necessarily to the Government but to a private company, or some arrangement of that kind. I am not too sure on the deadline that the Government have on that.

That said, I take on board what the Minister says, which is it is not therefore, today, a Government asset in any form or shape; therefore, the resources available to the Minister, through the Factories Inspectorate, are not there to do an audit. That I understand but, of course, the logic behind my Question is that, given how old the power station is – in particularly the engine sets – the factories inspector can always inspect any particular place, any workplace in Gibraltar, including the MOD, and ascertain that the working conditions, or the environment there that prevails is safe for the employees who are working in that vicinity.

So I would urge the Minister, or request to the Minister, if I can, that given that we are talking about a very old power station and the engines are very old indeed, the request to do an inspection is a very reasonable one, and I will put it to him whether he can put that request to the factories inspector to inspect the MOD, and not necessarily, as I said before, do an audit.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that question is based on a fundamental misconception, which is that the MOD power station is not already an asset of the Government of Gibraltar: it is. (Interjection by Hon. J J Netto) Well, it became an asset of the Government of Gibraltar – the hon. Gentleman will correct me if I am wrong – I believe in August 2011, whilst they were still in administration.

I have risen, Mr Speaker, because I am chairing the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Electricity, as the hon. Gentleman knows. That is why the hon. Gentleman has told him that as it is now one of the power-generation assets in the hands of the Government, it will be subjected to the yearly audit which the GEA subjects its own plant to. So it will be one of the ones that will be subject to such an inspection and audit.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the only reason, with respect to the Chief Minister, that I have posed my Question in relation to the MOD power station is because last month, when I put my Written Question in relation to the MOD, the answer... I have not got it here at the moment at hand, but I recall the Minister saying, 'Well, we are not going to do an audit because the MOD power station does not belong to us.' So I said, 'Well, if the Minister says to me last month that they are not going to do an audit because it does not belong to the MOD...' I thought, 'Well, fair enough, if it does not belong to the Government, it does not belong to the Government. I will take the Minister's word for it and therefore forget the audit, but certainly they can do the inspection.'

So I welcome now the clarification provided by the Chief Minister in relation to this, and I welcome the fact that this will be done.

Health and Safety audit Parliament building

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Clerk: Question 1053, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety state if the Parliament building complies with the Factories Act and its subsidiary legislation requirements; and if not, will the Minister place a request to the factories inspectors to conduct an audit of the building?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, we do not feel that there is any cause for concern to give consideration to such a request.

The Parliament building complies with the Factories Act as much today as it has done for the past 16 years. Therefore, if the previous administration did not see fit to carry out an audit during those years, it is logically unlikely that this Government will do so, especially since it has been stated that the intention is to modernise said building in due course.

In any event, the hon. Member may be aware that a refurbishment of the Parliament is presently in an advanced planning stage.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, with respect to the Hon. Minister, he said that there is no cause for concern. I think that is an important part of the answer he has given us.

Mr Speaker, I am not a Health and Safety specialist myself, but we all have access to the ante-room and we have all seen, for instance, part of the cornice at the top, which has fallen down and is now covered by wood by a contractor who fixed it up. Does the Minister, in the context of that, know whether there is asbestos in the ceiling, and as a result of broken asbestos in the ceiling – as a result of the broken cornice – there are airborne fibres which may be falling down on the staff who happen to be working down below the cornice?

Does the Minister also know that the electricity installation that is in this building goes to the year 1960, probably the days of the AACR and may perhaps not comply with electricity regulations of the Factories Ordinance?

Does the Minister know, for instance, whether these particular chairs conform to Health & Safety standards? I do not think they do.

For the Minister to say there is no cause for concern is quite a statement, Mr Speaker, when all I am asking for is for someone to do an inspection to provide that if there is anything, at least something can be done, and if there is not anything, then we are all much easier and relaxed about it.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am one of the Ministers responsible for what, in the last phrase of this answer, is referred to as the impending refurbishment of this Parliament.

The hon. Gentleman will recall that the cornice that he refers to fell at some stage after 2003 and before 2007, and that the people with responsibility for the airborne spores of asbestos – please God there are not any – which might have been circulating are the ones sitting opposite us today, him being one of them.

The hon. Gentleman will know that, although we have been accused of many things in the past 12 months, we have not been accused of spending on lavish new chairs or benches for this place, Mr Speaker. The benches and chairs in this place are the ones that were there for the past 16 years – and, indeed, even when you used to sit on these benches yourself many years ago.

The hon. Gentleman will know that nothing has happened in this building to change its makeup to take it into the sort of... or any change occurred to take any sort of concern to arise for a factories inspection to be carried out as a result of anything that has happened after 9th December 2011. But, Mr Speaker, if I can add this: the hon. Gentleman will agree with me that this building is not as accessible as it needs to be, that this building is now a Parliament the fabric of which is diminishing.

There are, Mr Speaker – and we always joke about it in the ante-Chamber – two cockroaches (Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Three now!) that have been lying patiently on some of the tiles that look down upon us.

Mr Speaker: I thought it was the Hon. Mr Cortes who monitored the incidence of cockroaches.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, that is why – if the hon. Member will give way – there are three, and not two.

Hon. Chief Minister: They have been there for years, Mr Speaker. They have been more patient with us than any Speaker has had the grace to be.

I am delighted to tell the House, Mr Speaker – as the hon. Gentleman has already referred, and as I had cause to mention to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition – that we are planning a refurbishment of this place early in the New Year. Once we have some plans set out for that, we will want to be consulting with all Members, because a refurbishment of this place is not just something for the Government, it is something for the Members, which is led principally by the desire to install the cameras that will hopefully allow people to see what happens in this place and not just hear it.

In that context, Mr Speaker, with those changes coming, the Government has not thought that it makes sense to commission a Health and Safety audit of this place until such time as the refurbishment commences – something that the hon. Gentlemen opposite and Lady opposite will have an opportunity to see the detail of very shortly, and that hopefully will mean that we are not accompanied for much longer by our cockroach cousins up there.

Mr Speaker: May I inform hon. Members, in case they do not know, that in five years' time, in 2017, this building will be celebrating its bi-centenary. That is an indication of how old it is. I am aware, because I have myself been involved recently, that there are plans afoot to do something in the very near future, and I would also hope, with respect to 2017, that we can look even that far.

Health and Safety laws Representations from stakeholders

Clerk: Question 1054, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, has the Minister for Health & Safety had any representation from members of the local branch of IOSH, trade union officials, or employers in general to the effect that the current laws regarding Health and Safety are too cumbersome and a review of such is necessary for all stakeholders?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this was mentioned at a meeting held on 23rd October 2012 with trade union officials from Unite. Present included Susan Murray, Unite's National Health and Safety Adviser; Michael Netto, Steven Morgan, Edward Baglietto, shop stewards of Unite.

As I have already informed the hon. Member in my answer to Written Question 212/2012, at present there are no immediate plans to review the legislation. However, this is not to say that Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar will not consider reviewing the legislation in the future.

Hon. J J Netto: I think the impression that one gets, Mr Speaker, is that everyone who has to make use of Health and Safety legislation... and I think the Factories Act, if I remember rightly, goes back to the early 1950s, or something to that effect. Obviously, as a result of that, we have had very integrated legislation going back to the 1950s, plus all the European legislation that we have had to transpose, which has been added onto the Factories Act.

I think that if the Hon. Minister actually speaks not just to the people he mentioned in his answer right now, but indeed those people on the front line, delivering Health and Safety in whatever industry groups, in whatever company it is, public or private, he will find that there is a need for a review. The legislation is too cumbersome to operate and perhaps...

There are different schools of thought as to the way forward. Some say that we should model on to the UK, in which... Obviously, they have certainly streamlined all that bulkiness of legislation, and I think that if the Minister actually makes it some sort of a priority – I am not saying an immediate priority, but certainly some kind of a priority – during the course of his term, that would be welcomed by all stakeholders.

So, in the question that I pose to him, I am basically saying, 'Look, this is something that the people on the ground floor will certainly benefit from.' Indeed, even the Government will benefit as a result of that, so I am putting that question to him.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in fact it was, I believe, 1956 when the legislation was originally drafted, but when we said 'A New Dawn', I did not expect the hon. Member opposite to suddenly wake up and realise that it was since 1956 that this legislation was in effect.

They had 16 years to be able to do something about it. It has been cumbersome not only for the past 12 months, but it has been cumbersome for a lot longer than that. The previous administration had the power to be able to have done this. This legislation has not been cumbersome in the past year; it has been cumbersome for a lot longer than that.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, certainly we did a hell of a lot of things in the 16 years that we were in government, like the transposition of a lot of Health and Safety directives, which were not transposed –

Mr Speaker: Would the hon. Member please ask a supplementary question? I think he is urging the Minister to consider reviewing the legislation.

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, that is what I am... I do not want to get... You are right, absolutely right, Mr Speaker. I am not going to get tracked on what happened 16 years ago, but it is up to the Minister. If he wants to take my request on board and start thinking that he is the Minister, he is the one who has got to act, and if he listens to the stakeholders they will tell him that there is a need for a consolidation. So my question is to him. Think about your watch, and do it now.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, we will most definitely take a look at this so-called cumbersome legislation, but the point in question is that this has not been something which has happened overnight. We have been in government for 12 months. The hon. Gentleman was there for a lot longer, and this could have been done, if it was so important to have done so. We will most definitely have a look at that. The hon. Gentleman did have his opportunities to do so in the past.

EDUCATION, FINANCIAL SERVICES, GAMING, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

University of Gibraltar Discrepancy re consultancy fees

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 1064, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1675 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education explain why there is a financial discrepancy between £25,000 paid as consultancy fees for the 'Establishment of University of Gibraltar', as cited in answer to Question 578/2012, and £12,500 for 'Education Department – Study into the setting up of a University in Gibraltar', as cited in Table GC1 'Government Awarded Contracts (over £2,000) by direct allocation since the General Election' on the Government website?

1680 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1685 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the fee of £25,000 was paid in two tranches: £12,500 was paid in March 2012; and the second one, of £12,500, in September 2012.

The details of the second payment were inadvertently omitted from the updates to the website.

1690 St Bernard's School
Water ingress and termite infestation

Clerk: Question 1065, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1695 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education say what is being done to prevent the severe water ingress and the termite infestation at St Bernard's School?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1700 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the problem with water ingress at St Bernard's School is not new. There are reports of water ingress since 2004, and it is likely that the problem existed before then. Remedial works have been carried out in the past, but the problem has not been resolved.

1705 GJBS has been asked to prepare a scope of works for the Department of Education to consider. These works would involve works to the roof and the façade, aimed at solving the water ingress problem with a view to affording an effective solution for the building.

In relation to the termite issue, again the problem is not new. On 25th August 2010, a report was submitted by the Environmental Health Officer to the Director of Education following concerns expressed by the head teacher on the possibility of a termite infestation at the school.

1710 In 2011, COPLAGA was engaged to carry out specific termite treatment. The problem, however, was not eradicated.

1715 In October 2012, Bug Busters were engaged to carry out the following treatment: drilling, injecting and rendering of four termite cords; treatment of an area approximately 2 metres squared; investigation and treatment of two cabinets. The problem again appears not to have been eradicated as a result of this treatment.

In view of this, an in-depth intrusive survey to gauge the extent of the infestation has been commissioned to identify the extent of the infestation and damage, and to propose a course of action to obtain a long-term desired eradication of the problem.

1725 European Arrest Warrants
Details of warrants received in Gibraltar

Clerk: Question 1066, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1730 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice please state: (a) how many European Arrest Warrants have been received in Gibraltar for each calendar year in the last four years up to 30th November 2012; (b) how many of those European Arrest Warrants resulted in an extradition, and the offence alleged to have been committed; and (c) how many were rejected by the courts and how many were rejected by the Central Authority, and on what basis?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule that I now hand over.

Schedule to Question 1066 of 2012

(a)

Year	Number of European Arrest Warrants Received
2009	6
2010	2
2011	9
2012 (Up to 30/11/12)	5
Total 22

(b)

Number of EAWs which resulted in extradition	Offence alleged to have been committed
1	Conspiracy to defraud and money laundering
1	Supplying controlled drugs
1	Possession of indecent photographs of children
1	Drug trafficking offences
1	Theft and fraud
1	Importation of drugs
1	ABH and indecent assault on a male under 14
Total 7

(c)

Number of EAWs rejected by the Courts	0
Number of EAWs rejected by the Central Authority These EAWs were rejected because the warrants failed to comply with a provision(s) of the European Arrest Warrant Act.	9

Note: 6 EAW's have not been executed because the person has either been arrested elsewhere or is in prison in Gibraltar or is the subject of criminal proceedings in Gibraltar.

Hon. D A Feetham: Just on the failure... on the rejection of the warrants, the answer that you have provided in the schedule is that nine were rejected because the warrants failed to comply with the provisions of the European Arrest Warrant Act. Does the Hon. Minister have any more information than that? What kind of non-compliance with the Act are we dealing with? Is it a simple question of translations not being provided with the European Arrest Warrant? I know from my time that that was a common ground why they were rejected, but of course rejection on that ground invariably means just that the warrant is then reissued with a translation.

Does he have any more details? If he does not, I will not press him.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I do not have those details with me now, but I do note that the total rejected by the Central Authority were nine, and we have only had five European Arrest Warrants received in 2012. So some of these rejections clearly relate to the time when the hon. Member was in office as Minister for Justice. Assuming that the whole of the five of the 2012 had not been rejected, then certainly more than four or five.

I do not have the specific information about the reasons for rejection. If the hon. Member wants, I am happy to obtain the information for him.

Hon. D A Feetham: I am much obliged to him, yes.

European Arrest Warrants
Average processing times

1770

Clerk: Question 1067, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1775

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government please state what is the average time between receipt of a European Arrest Warrant by the authorities in Gibraltar and (a) its acceptance or rejection by the Central Authority; and (b) any order of the Court?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1780

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, between January 2009 and 8th December 2011, the average time between receipt of a European Arrest Warrant by the authorities in Gibraltar and (a) acceptance by the Central Authority was 27 days; (b) rejection by the Central Authority, 68 days; (c) Order of the Court, 37 days.

1785

Since December 2011, the average time is (a) acceptance by the Central Authority, three days; (b) rejection by the Central Authority, 10 days; (c) Order of the Court, 11 days.

Hon. D A Feetham: I would be very obliged if the hon. Gentleman were to allow me a copy of the answer, if at all possible. Thank you very much.

1790

Legal Aid Payments to law firms and barristers

1795

Clerk: Question 1068, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1800

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government give a breakdown of the amounts paid, since 9th December 2011 to date, to each law firm or barrister in respect of Legal Aid and legal assistance, giving a breakdown by firm and showing what are legal fees and what are disbursements?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1805

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, monthly statistics in respect of Legal Aid and legal assistance, giving a breakdown by firm or barrister and showing what are legal fees and what are disbursements, are published online on a monthly basis on the Government of Gibraltar website. The figures are available online from 18th June 2011 to 30th November 2012.

1810

Hon. D A Feetham: Do you have no update since 30th November of this year? Obviously, I am aware that... I am asking for up-to-date...

The last time that I asked a question in relation to Legal Aid, the Hon. the Minister and I had an exchange in relation to Legal Aid in respect of one case in particular. Is the position of the Government still to continue not publishing that information?

1815

Hon. G H Licudi: I am not sure which specific information the hon. Member is referring to. If he is talking about the amounts paid in Legal Aid, my understanding is that those amounts appear in the monthly statistics, which are published online.

1820

Hon. D A Feetham: I will talk to the hon. Gentleman outside, because I know there is some sensitivity in relation to this. I will explain it, and I will deal with it with him in the lobby.

1825

1830

Recess

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1835

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, may I move now that the House do recess until 3.00 p.m.

1840

Mr Speaker: The House will now recess to 3.00 p.m., when we shall be dealing with Questions to the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port, and Questions to the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

The House recessed at 11.17 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 3.00 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

Spanish tourism Minister's statement on reduction

Clerk: Answers to Questions continue.
Question 1010/2012, the Hon. D J Bossino.

5 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, first of all, before I pose the Question formally, I would like to express my gratitude, to both the Clerk and the House in general, for disrupting the order of Questions earlier this morning. I know that the Order Paper, as is normally the case, puts me in first, but I had a court commitment, and I am indeed very grateful for the disruption.

10 Can the Minister for Tourism confirm that he stated at a press conference recently that there had been a, I quote, 'decrease in certain sectors such as Spanish tourism'; and if so, can he provide the House with details of the basis on which he made such an assertion?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

15 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, perhaps, in the spirit of Christmas, the hon. Gentleman could have extended his thanks also to me, given that I did not object (Interjections) but, be that as it may, in my own personal experience, having questions moved from one Order of the Day to another has had some difficulty for me personally in the past – and I did not even raise even one objection.

20 Mr Speaker, to answer the Question of the hon. Gentleman, I can confirm that I stated that there had been a decrease in tourism from Spain at a press conference recently. The indicators I have, up to the end of November of this year, show that there has been a decline in coach arrivals from Spain.

25 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, that really satisfies the Question that I had, but simply to say, in response to the preamble to his answer, that I do beg his forgiveness for the omission. Of course, I am grateful to him personally for being so accommodating.

30 Cruise liner arrivals
Anticipated numbers

Clerk: Question 1011, the Hon. D J Bossino.

35 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism confirm to this House how many cruise liner calls and passengers he expects will be arriving in Gibraltar by the end of 2012 and 2013?

40 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the website of the Gibraltar Port Authority.

45 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am fully aware that one ought not to ask questions – I do not know the precise provisions of the rule – in relation to information and statistics which are in the public domain as, indeed, the Minister has just referred me to the information contained on the Gibraltar Port Authority website.

50 The reason why I ask that Question is because the information in the public domain is contradictory. I think he said, in his party political broadcast, that there were 170 cruise calls for 2012, and then he expected, in 2013, that there would be 187. In the Gibraltar Port Authority website information which I gleaned on 7th December, which is the day before... the eve on which one could file questions, it stated that there were 172 cruise calls, and for 2013, instead of 187, the same website referred to 185. So this is precisely why I used the word very carefully and asked for confirmation. Can the Minister do that for me now?

55 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, yes, to assist, the hon. Gentleman is correct to say that the website shows that, for 2012, the number of cruise calls is 172, and for 2013 the number of cruise calls is 185.

On the date of the broadcast, the number was 187. There have been two cancellations that brought it down to 185 for 2013.

60 If I may also, by way of background... The number of cruise calls for 2012 has fluctuated. At one point, it was 175, but now it is down to 172, as a result of cancellations during the course of this year.

65 Hon. D J Bossino: One of the reasons why I asked for confirmation is because I do appreciate that these numbers are subject to fluctuation and I wanted to know the most updated information available.

70 Just by way of a supplementary, Mr Speaker, does the Minister accept that less cruise calls does not necessarily mean less passengers? In fact, I think we had this debate at the time of the Budget, when I referred to some statistics. If I can cite these, Mr Speaker: in 2012, we had 172 calls – or 170 calls; according to the website information it was 172 – and that brought 290,000-odd passengers. In 2007, which is the second highest number of calls that Gibraltar has received, we had 227 calls, and yet that only brought – I say ‘only’ in comparison to the 2012 figures – 275,000-odd passengers, 14,000 less than in 2012.

So, given those statistics, does he not accept the proposition I just put to him?

75 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman has just alluded, I have accepted that premise during the course of the Budget speech and in the course of question and answer sessions.

I have explained to the hon. Gentleman that, whereas there may have been more cruise calls in previous years, the reason why numbers of passengers may be higher is simply because ships tend now to be larger, so they accommodate more cruise passengers.

I have, therefore, already confirmed that proposition to him in a previous question and answer and during the course of the Budget debate, but if he wishes, I am happy to reconfirm the position once again today.

Yacht Register Promotion and marketing plans

Clerk: Question 1012, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, further to the replies given to Question 688/2012, can the Minister for the Port provide this House with details of the plans the Government has to promote and market the Yacht Register?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, further to our attendance at various events this year, 2012, Government is looking to promote the Gibraltar Yacht Registry in three ways.

For 2013, we are considering attendance at the following major forums and shows to broaden awareness and promote the Gibraltar Yacht Register: March 2013, Opportunities in Superyachts Forum, Malta; April 2013, Gibraltar Superyacht Forum; May 2013, American Superyacht Forum in Las Vegas; June 2013, the Future of Superyachts Forum, Palma de Mallorca; September 2013, Cannes Boat Show and Monaco Boat Show; November 2013, Global Superyacht Forum, Amsterdam.

The two boats shows we are considering attending are the two most important events in the European calendar. Attending these events will be beneficial, as in these shows there are many forums and seminars taking place, allowing the opportunity to meet new possible clients.

Secondly, Mr Speaker, increase the marketing presence of the Gibraltar Yacht Registry in face-to-face meetings with associations and other targeted clients.

Thirdly, Government is developing a promotional brochure for the Yacht Registry, which will be made available as a hard copy distributed among yacht representatives, as well as a digital copy which will be available for download from the new yacht website.

Perhaps the hon. Gentleman will want to request an invite to the Las Vegas Yacht Show.

Hon. D J Bossino: Indeed, Mr Speaker, to all of them – I am sure my wife would be particularly happy! He is certainly in the... set to beat Mr Bossano in the globetrotting stakes.

Mr Speaker, he did refer, in his initial reply to the Question which I posed to him in 688/2012, that further plans were being developed to promote the Yacht Register – and presumably these are the plans – and he said that these were being devised in conjunction with, and I quote, ‘interested parties’. Can he advise this House which interested parties these are?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the consultations have been conducted by Mr Alan Cubbin, who is the current Maritime Administrator, but the hon. Gentleman may now know that Mr Richard Montado has been shadowing Mr Alan Cubbin for the past few months, precisely because he has been selected to be the new Maritime Administrator.

I cannot tell him precisely who the consultees are, but from recollection in my discussions with Richard and Mr Cubbin, if I recall, they were the Ocean Village Group and other private commercial entities. If he asks me again specifically, I will have the information to hand for him.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, reference was made to the promotional brochure. I think I made this point on the last occasion that I did pose this question, Mr Speaker. Can the Minister advise this House as to when he thinks that the promotional brochure will be available? I suppose the obvious answer would be that he expects it to be available before March 2013, which is the first event that he will be attending as part of the promotional exercise. Is that correct?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman both asks and answers his own question.

Mr Finlayson
Renewal of consultancy

Clerk: Question 1013, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise this House what the Government's intention is in respect of the renewal of Mr Finlayson's consultancy?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker. At this stage it is the Government's intention to renew Mr Finlayson's contract for a further six months.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, would the renewal... and I will not suggest an answer, in case I get accused again of both asking and answering my own questions, but would the renewal be in the same terms in the certain terms of salary and... Well, the term I think he has already confirmed – it is another six months – but in terms of salary, perhaps?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, simply to say that I was not accusing the hon. Gentleman. I was simply saying that he both asked and answered his own question. It was not by way of an accusation. The answer is yes.

Hon. D J Bossino: I should have asked this question at the last occasion when I had an opportunity to ask questions in relation to Mr Finlayson, but can the Minister advise this House what results Mr Finlayson has produced?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, we did have quite a lengthy question and answer session on Mr Finlayson. In fact, I have got the extracts here to prove the same.

If I recall correctly, on the last occasion, I informed him that when Mr Guerrero and I were in discussions with British Airways in order to increase the flights from seven to nine weekly, to have two flights on the weekend, I noted that it did greatly assist us to conclude our negotiations by the statistical work he conducted, in terms of the throughput on the number of visitors arriving at the Gibraltar Air Terminal that both stayed in Gibraltar and went through the border into Spain.

In addition to that, Mr Speaker, Mr Finlayson has already prepared, as I referred the hon. Gentleman on the last occasion, a very thorough document which has been sent to prospective interested airlines in different parts of Europe, so that they can learn about the Air Terminal and Gibraltar as a destination and the capacity of the new Air Terminal.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is this very thorough document available for members of the public, or indeed myself?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I remember asking Mr Guerrero to make that document available online. I am not sure whether it is available or not. If it is not, I will press my Chief Executive to make sure that it is available online, and I will also ask Mr Guerrero to send a copy of it to the hon. Gentleman opposite.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, this question now links into my first and second questions, in terms of his terms and whether he feels that Mr Finlayson has performed. Does Mr Finlayson have performance targets?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have already answered this question, but I shall reconfirm to the hon. Gentleman that, yes, he does have performance targets.

Gibraltar Bus Company Ltd
Tender for eco-friendly buses

Clerk: Question 1014, the Hon. D J Bossino.

200 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Transport update this House as to the progress which has been made in respect of the tender process in connection with the eco-friendly buses which are due to replace the current fleet of the Gibraltar Bus Company Ltd?

205 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the selection process to determine the most suitable companies is in its final stages. It is envisaged that invitations to tender will be issued to these companies promptly after the New Year.

210 Since this answer was drafted, the head of procurement informed me, on Friday, that the companies that have passed the pre-qualification stage have already received letters, inviting them to put forward their proposals to the procurement board.

215 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just to recap slightly, are we still talking about nine companies at that pre-qualification stage?

Hon. N F Costa: I do not have the information in front of me, Mr Speaker, but from recollection, reading the e-mail on Friday, I am quite sure that there are six companies who have successfully gone to the second stage, but I will confirm that to him in writing.

220 Hon. D J Bossino: And if the Minister could, Mr Speaker, endeavour to provide this House today, if he is in a position to do so, with a prediction as to when he thinks that the first bus will be on our roads?

225 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have the e-mail before me. There are five companies who have successfully completed the pre-qualification stage. The closing date is 31st January 2013. I am further advised that, given Gibraltar's specific requirements in terms of road dimensions and weights, the production of a bus may take anywhere between nine to 12 months.

230 Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry, nine to 12 months from which date, Mr Speaker?

Hon. N F Costa: From the closing date of the submission, which is 31st January.

235 Taxi meter system
Progress of upgrade

Clerk: Question 1015, the Hon. D J Bossino.

240 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, further to the replies given to Question 597/2012, can the Minister for Transport update this House as to the progress which has been made in respect of the upgrading of the taxi meter system?

245 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

250 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the Government has been working closely, as the hon. Gentleman knows, with the Gibraltar Taxi Association regarding the new meter and GPS system. This is at an advanced stage, and most vehicles now have the pre-installation in place for the meters to be installed shortly.

255 EQUALITY AND SOCIAL SERVICES

Dr Giraldi Home
Resident minor

260 Clerk: Question 1033, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services clarify if the minor referred to in answer to Written Question 188/2012 has been using the respite or sitting service since 2007 in the Dr Giraldi Home?

265 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I can confirm that the minor referred to in Question 188/2012 has used the respite service and the sitting service since 270 2007 at Dr Giraldi Home.

Hon. J J Netto: In relation to the respite service since 2007, was that for overnight stay?

275 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, that is not information that I have to hand. I have checked the information that has been prepared for supplementaries, and that detail is not included.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that Dr Giraldi Home is an adult setting for service users, I would have thought that the more natural thing to do is that perhaps the minor would have gone to Tangier View, which is the setting for minors.

280 I do recall this particular minor, that he uses the sitting service but not the respite service, but can I ask the question whether at the time of considering, during the course of this year, the respite services – and if, indeed, it was for staying overnight – whether the management of the Care Agency did an assessment as to whether it should be provided in Dr Giraldi Home or Tangier View?

285 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the information that I have is that this service user has been using the disability service since 2007 and that he uses this service twice a week.

Mr Speaker, there is no distinction drawn as to whether this is a new service that has been introduced this year, so I can only assume that it is a continuation of what has been provided since 2007.

290 In any event, Mr Speaker, I am told that the service was provided in consultation with the parents, and therefore an assessment would have been undertaken on that occasion.

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am aware, as I said in my first supplementary question, that this minor was using the sitting service – I do not doubt that – but I do not recall, standing on my feet, that since 2007 onwards... has been using the respite services.

295 If the minor has been using the respite services – and in respite services we mean, or we define it as staying overnight for short periods of time – my supplementary question is I would have imagined that the management would have done an assessment, which would have included, of course, the views of the parents, no doubt about it, as to whether the minor should be left, or doing the respite services in an adult setting, or the natural thing would have been to go to Tangier View, which is a setting for minors.

300 So my supplementary question is, is the Minister aware that the management of the Care Agency did an assessment to determine where the respite service should be done, in Dr Giraldi Home or Tangier View?

305 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it is not specific information that I have before me, but having said that, I do know from the information that I have before me that, as part of the assessment that was undertaken, it was felt that the Dr Giraldi Home setting was in the best interests of the minor, given that he is familiar with the staff there because he has been using that service since 2007.

In terms of the detail of the supplementary, Mr Speaker, I do not have that particular information.

310 Hon. J J Netto: If I write to the hon. Lady, therefore, she might be able to provide me with the answer, Mr Speaker.

315 Dr Giraldi Home
Allegation against employee

Clerk: Question 1034, the Hon. J J Netto.

320 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services confirm that an employee of the Care Agency, working in the Dr Giraldi Home, has made a report to the line manager, stating that another employee was consuming a prohibited drug whilst working in a flat in the Dr Giraldi Home?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

325 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. P R Caruana: No, I cannot confirm it, or...?

330 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, there is no such report, Mr Speaker; as opposed to no, I cannot confirm. I can confirm that there is no such report.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the hon. Minister confirm that she is not aware of any incident of this sort happening over the last year when she has been a Minister?

335 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, when I said no, the answer is no to the way that the Question is formulated, and that is the answer, Mr Speaker.

340 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I formulated a different question. I have asked, by way of supplementary, whether she is aware of an incident of this nature occurring whilst she has been a Minister in her Department.

345 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I am aware that there is an incident, not of this nature but of a similar nature. I can tell the hon. Gentleman that procedures have been followed and I am aware that it is being dealt with and the proper procedures have been followed in this regard.

Hon. J J Netto: Okay, Mr Speaker, if she is aware that an incident has taken place –

Mr Speaker: Of a similar nature.

350 Hon. J J Netto: – of a similar nature, can the hon. Lady provide the date on which this particular incident of a similar nature occurred?

355 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it is not a detail that I have before me but, in any event, Mr Speaker, because this is something which has invoked a disciplinary procedure and will be subject to a disciplinary hearing, I would be reluctant to give further details in this Parliament.

360 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister for Social Services said that it was not the same, it was of a similar nature. Can she confirm to the House that the incident involved the consumption of a prohibited drug –

Hon. P R Caruana: The alleged consumption.

365 Hon. D A Feetham: The alleged consumption of a prohibited drug whilst working in a flat or whilst on duty?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, as I said initially, that is not the subject of the... That is not the disciplinary incident that has arisen. It is not as the hon. Gentleman puts it.

370 Hon. D A Feetham: I am not putting it in any particular way. You, the Hon. the Minister, have said ‘a similar incident’. Can she elaborate on what a similar incident actually means? We are not asking for the Minister to divulge any names. This is not something that is going to impact on anybody’s right to a fair trial, or anything like that. This House, and certainly those on this side of the House, have a right to know what ‘similar incident’ actually means.

375 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it would not be appropriate to give further details at this stage, given, as I said before, that it is something that will be subject to disciplinary proceedings.

380 Hon. P R Caruana: But, Mr Speaker, will the hon. Lady not acknowledge that this House is entitled to know at least whether there has been an incident and the nature of that incident? It could be an alleged... it could be an accusation, it could be subject to investigation, but the idea that the report that something is alleged to have taken place is itself sub judice... Well, Mr Speaker, I suppose what we will do is wait until we read about it in the newspapers and find out about it.

It is clear that the hon. Member is dancing on a pinhead. (A Member: No.) She is answering the Question by reference to the particular way the Question has been formulated, and therefore obliging the Opposition to play Twenty Questions with her.

All we are interested in knowing is – without any detail, and she can couch it in whatever non-committal terms, in terms of whether the charges are proven or whether it is formal or informal – is she aware whether there has been an incident, which she has now said involves some sort of disciplinary measures, but which involves inappropriate behaviour through the consumption of substances by a carer whilst on duty? Yes, or no?

Either there has been a report of it, or there has not. It cannot be prejudicial to anybody to say, ‘Yes, there has been a report of that.’

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I can confirm that the allegation is not that a care worker has consumed a prohibited drug at Dr Giraldi Home. That is not the allegation. I am happy to inform the hon. Members in private what the allegation is, but it is not that any care worker has consumed drugs at the Dr Giraldi Home. That is not the allegation.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, alright. Will the hon. Lady acknowledge that I have not couched my supplementary in relation to drugs or Dr Giraldi Home? I have said a care worker on duty, consumption of substance – which could be alcohol, which is not illegal – and it may not have been in Dr Giraldi, it may have been somewhere else.

Care worker, consumption, disciplined: is there such an incident?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, no consumption at Dr Giraldi Home of drugs or alcohol. That is the answer, Mr Speaker.

Hon. P R Caruana: But I am not talking about Dr Giraldi.

A Member: That was the Question.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: That is the Question.

Mr Speaker: With due respect, the original Question is ‘whilst working in a flat in the Dr Giraldi Home’.

Hon. P R Caruana: My supplementary.

Hon. J J Netto: Can I ask a further supplementary question, because the hon. Lady has said that disciplinary action has started – I think those were her words. Can I ask her whether invoking disciplinary action has happened at least two weeks after the alleged incident in Dr Giraldi Home?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, could he repeat the question, please?

Hon. J J Netto: What I am saying is that the hon. Lady has said that the Care Agency has invoked disciplinary action against an employee of the Care Agency. That is what the hon. Lady has said. What I am saying is, as a result of that –

Mr Speaker: You are not supposed to say; you are supposed to ask.

Hon. J J Netto: Sorry. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Can I therefore ask whether invoking the disciplinary code against this person has been, at the very least, two weeks after the incident had transpired?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, with respect and with your indulgence, I would submit that this is not a matter for Parliamentary Questions, to be discussed openly in Parliament.

Mr Speaker, I have already offered to the hon. Gentleman to provide him with details of the incident on a confidential basis, given that there will be disciplinary proceedings in this respect. What I can assure him is that the disciplinary procedure has been invoked and has been followed.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not think it is appropriate for the hon. Lady to be offering to provide us with the information on a confidential basis – information that is a matter of public interest.

How does the hon. Lady actually justify the position that the party on that side of the House took in relation to all those incidents that they were asking questions about and they have now referred to a public enquiry, which you –

Mr Speaker: That has got nothing to do with the present Question. (Interjection) No, the public inquiry –

Hon. D A Feetham: How does this –

Mr Speaker: No, it has nothing to do with this matter.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, you have not heard my question.
How do you justify the position that you have taken there and the position that you take now, which is, effectively, to provide no information about an incident in your own and in the very same Department? How do you justify that?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, at this stage it is an allegation and it needs to be dealt with properly and fairly, and what I am saying is that this incident is not being brushed under the carpet. It is something which has invoked the disciplinary procedure and is being dealt with.

I do not see how this allegation can be connected to anything else, Mr Speaker. That is the answer.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask a further supplementary question?
In relation to when the Care Agency found out that there was an allegation, did the Care Agency suspend this individual straight away, or that was done eventually, or the person has not even been suspended?

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, if I may assist the House, and if I may refresh the memories of the hon. Gentlemen and Lady opposite, when I asked questions, when I was a Member of the Opposition, in respect of an ongoing investigation and suspension that occurred in the GHA in respect of a particular doctor, the Hon. then the Chief Minister rose to say in this House that, because the matter was being investigated, there should not be furnished across the floor of the House any particulars or any questions arising out of it, which was a reply which we accepted, as a result of which I asked no more questions across the floor of the House.

My hon. Friend has, in fact, offered to go one step further than they did, which is to provide details on a confidential basis.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, that does not offer any clarification or answer to my question. My question to the hon. Lady is to say has the person been suspended while the allegation is being made – and, if the person has been suspended, was he suspended from the minute the allegation was made; or has the person not been suspended at all?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I do not feel that it is appropriate for any further details to be given at this stage.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I ask the hon. Lady, has the matter been reported to the Police? That is one supplementary.

The other one is the hon. Lady said that we were not talking about a consumption of prohibited drugs: are we talking about possession of a prohibited drug?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I refer to my most recent answer and I do not wish to provide any further details at this stage, but I am happy to answer it privately.

Hon. P R Caruana: Is it the hon. Lady's position that she thinks it is prejudicial, because it is under investigation, even to tell this House the nature of the alleged incident? In other words, whether it is a case of murder, incest, drug consumption, simply being rude to a superior, she is willing to tell us nothing about the level of gravity of the offence. To decline to do that on the basis of sub judice, would she not accept, is abusive of the sub judice rule?

This House is entitled to know whether, somewhere in the public sector, there has been an incident which should be of public concern.

She is entitled to preserve the proprieties of the right to a fair hearing, or the right to a fair trial, or the right to an investigation, which I concede, but those are not the only ends of the spectrum. Those are at the end of the spectrum, and in the middle there is the ability to inform this House, which is neither one 505 thing nor the other in terms of the extremities that I have described. She cannot take refuge in the extremity when she is not being asked about the extremity.

510 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the fact is that the hon. Lady has given that information which the hon. Member seeks already. She has given, in one of her earlier answers, which I heard on the broadcast of these proceedings, clear indication of the nature of this type of offence, because she has confirmed that an offence of the nature of the one that the hon. Member's Question alluded to, is the sort of offence that we are dealing with.

515 Mr Speaker, let us be clear. The hon. Lady is saying, in terms, 'I do not think it is appropriate for me to say publicly, across the floor of the House, any more about what stage that issue is at, but I am quite happy to have a conversation outside so that you are aware of it,' and she is saying, 'at this stage'. In other words, there will come a stage where things will have advanced, where it is possible to give further information across the floor of the House and put that information in the public domain.

520 Mr Speaker, I do not think that is unfair. I think that is almost, to an extent, what the hon. Member is getting to. Now that he has had confirmed what the nature of the offence alleged is, surely, if they are really interested in what is happening, they will take the information confidentially and await a future stage when the information can be put in the public domain.

525 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for the Hon. the Chief Minister's intervention. I do not know how much of the exchange he was able to hear in the broadcast –

Hon. Chief Minister: Except for the [inaudible].

530 Hon. P R Caruana: – but Mr Speaker, it is not an accurate recital of what has transpired so far to say that we are aware of the nature of the offence. Indeed, the Question asks whether it is consuming a prohibited drug while working in a flat in the Dr Giraldi Home. When I have asked the hon. Lady, she says, 'No, it is not that, but it is of a similar nature,' and when I have asked her whether it is consuming any substance on any premises by any care worker, she has said 'No, no.'

535 I do not suppose I am the stupidest individual in Gibraltar. I can tell him, having just sat here listening to the exchanges, mainly between other Members of this House, that I am none the wiser as to what might be the nature of the offence.

540 Indeed, that is all I am seeking in supplementary. It would suffice the purpose of my supplementary – I do not know if it would my colleague, but it would suffice the nature of my supplementary – simply to be told, 'Yes, it involves drugs or drug consumption or drug possession, and I am not willing to say any more on that.' That would be to confirm the nature of the offence, but we have not even known if it is about drugs, or it is about drug consumption or substance abuse of any kind. Indeed, it has been denied.

545 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not think that is quite right. I think I have heard all of the exchange, except the bit that took me from the bottom of the steps to the top here, and the hon. Gentleman will recall that he was told that an offence of the nature described did occur.

He has then sought to ask further supplementaries to determine further where that alleged type of offence occurred. So we are talking about the type of offence referred to in the Question. We do not want to say more about where it may have happened or not happened, but we have confirmed, I believe, the nature of the type of offence and are happy to give them all the details that they want privately.

550 This is not a question of not giving the details; it is just a question of wanting, for now, not to share them publicly – because the hon. Lady has said 'at this stage'.

Hon. P R Caruana: That is okay, Mr Speaker, and I now accept the Hon. the Chief Minister's answer.

555 As a result of the Hon. Chief Minister's answers, I now believe – perhaps you would confirm to me – that, without wishing to give any details, it is an offence of the nature of consuming a prohibited drug: that was contradicted by the Lady Minister, who, when I said, 'Never mind drugs, never mind Dr Giraldi – I am not asking about Dr Giraldi – is this a case of drug, or any other substance, consumption anywhere else, not just Dr Giraldi, by a care worker – yes, or no?' and I was told no.

560 Hon. Chief Minister: That is right, Mr Speaker, because that is the right answer, because there are – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) The hon. Gentleman needs to know – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) No, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman needs to know that he said a number of things in the context of putting up his question, which has assumed certain aspects of what might happen in respect of such an offence, and he has gone perhaps a step too far.

565 I am quite happy to recess the House for a moment and give him the detail, Mr Speaker, but this is an issue which is sensitive because of the nature of what is happening, and the information should be put in the public domain, absolutely right, at the right time, but not just now. That is the only thing we are saying.

570 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask a further supplementary question to the hon. Lady?

Mr Speaker: The last supplementary; I have given enough latitude.

575 Hon. J J Netto: Could she perhaps confirm that in the incident she is talking about on the person who seems to have done something prohibited, as far as drugs is concerned, the person was not suspended, but the person was instead transferred to the Dr Giraldi office, which is about 10 metres away from flat number 1?

580 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I can confirm that the person is suspended now.

Mr Speaker: What was that? I did not hear.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: I can confirm that the person is currently suspended.

585 Mr Speaker: Is currently suspended.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: As to the details of what I am being asked, I do not know, Mr Speaker. The person is suspended and, as I understand it, has not been in touch with any of the service users since the date of the allegation.

590 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, that is good to know, that the person is suspended now whilst the investigation is taking place.

The person may be suspended today... My original first supplementary question was to ask when was the date of the incident –

595 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: And I said no.

Hon. J J Netto: – and you said no. But is she aware that perhaps it was last week, or two weeks ago, or three weeks ago? If the person is suspended today, at the very least one would assume that the Minister would know whether the incident took place a week ago, two weeks ago, three weeks ago.

Mr Speaker: The Minister does not deal with the suspension, does she?

605 Hon. J J Netto: Well, may I ask my second supplementary question: can she confirm that she has had a meeting in Dr Giraldi Home with Jenny Allison and Carlos Banderas to discuss this issue?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, no, I have not been to Dr Giraldi Home in a while. I have not had a meeting at Dr Giraldi Home with anyone.

610 Hon. J J Netto: The meeting could have been, perhaps, in her office. Can she confirm that she has had a meeting with Jenny Allison and Carlos Banderas to discuss this incident?

Hon. Chief Minister: Wouldn't it be strange if she hadn't?

615 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the disciplinary process is being dealt with by the Human Resources Department upon legal advice every step of the way, first of all.

The matter is being conducted by the officials, as is appropriate. That I am kept informed, absolutely; and I was informed immediately when the allegation arose. That I do not recall the date right now is a different matter, because we are in the realms of supplementaries, Mr Speaker; but that I have been kept informed by management, absolutely. That it is being dealt with by management, absolutely, from the bottom to the top.

620 This is a very serious matter, Mr Speaker, and legal advice is being taken every step of the way. I can assure the hon. Gentleman that this is being dealt with appropriately and nothing will be swept under the carpet.

625 Clerk: Question 1035, the Hon. J –

630 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can we just add that the hon. Lady... With the Speaker's indulgence, it is the second time that she has thought it appropriate to make a reference to 'nothing being swept under the carpet'.

The interest of this side of the House is not limited to circumstances of preventing things from being swept under the carpet. In other words, it had not crossed my mind that you might have been sweeping anything under the carpet. The public interest in knowing is not limited to circumstances in which there may be an attempt to sweep under the carpet, and she must not interpret, unless the allegation is specifically made, that the fact that the Opposition takes an interest in a matter is an implicit accusation of sweeping things under the carpet.

I am grateful to Mr Speaker. It was not a supplementary.

640 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Care Agency
Ministerial contact with member of staff

645 Clerk: Question 1035, the Hon. J J Netto.

650 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state if the hon. Lady has personally phoned a member of the Care Agency at her private home number, reassuring the employee about the reports submitted in relation to bullying and harassment during 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

655 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is not a conversation that I recall at all, but any reassurance that I would have given would be that the matter would be dealt with by the Human Resources Department, in accordance with procedure.

Alzheimer's and dementia sufferers
Domiciliary care funding

660 Clerk: Question 1036, the Hon. J J Netto.

665 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister for Social Services say how many sufferers of Alzheimer's and dementia are receiving help from the domiciliary care funding subhead of the Care Agency as from Friday, 30th October 2012, broken down by the number of hours of domiciliary care given per person and showing the total amount spent for this group since the beginning of the financial year to 30th October 2012?

670 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

675 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, 19 sufferers of Alzheimer's and dementia are receiving help from the domiciliary care funding subhead of the Care Agency as from Friday, 30th October 2012.

A table showing the number of hours per person will be handed to the Member opposite. The total amount spent for this group since the beginning of the financial year to 30th October is £61,761.22.

685

Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan Tender for consultancy services

Clerk: Question 1042, the Hon. D J Bossino.

690

Hon. D J Bossino: Since Question 656/2012, can the Minister for Traffic confirm whether the tender for consultancy services in relation to the Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan has been awarded; if so, to which entity; and can he provide further details of the services which will be provided by the successful tenderer?

695

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, no, sir, it has not been awarded.

700

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister provide this House with an indication as to when he considers that the tender will be awarded?

705

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, we are actually at the final stage of the tender assessment at the moment and it should be made imminently, the award.

710

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can I ask the Minister what has been the cause of delay? I think, in the answer to one of my supplementaries back on 19th July, he did indicate... unless I have got it wrong, but I think he did indicate that:

‘It is expected that the invitation to tender will be forwarded within the next couple of weeks.’

715

Has that been done and then...? Maybe he can explain the timeline and what has happened since 19th July, because I do not fully follow it from the answer that he gave to that particular supplementary.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, an EU tender requires a minimum number of days for each stage, and this extends the whole process beyond what is normally the case for tenders published locally only.

In addition, the submissions received have been comprehensive and detailed, hence they require time to assess. Queries were raised and clarifications requested and replied to by the consultants. All the shortlisted consultants were also asked to give presentations.

Engineer Lane/Upper Town escalator Awarding of tender and cost

Clerk: Question 1043, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic advise which company was awarded the tender for the construction of the Engineer Lane/Upper Town escalator and what the cost of this project is?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the works to construct the Upper Town pedestrian link were awarded to Casais, the main contractor for the Engineer Lane multi-storey car park, as a variation to the contract in the sum of £597,901.

Adjournment

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn to Thursday, 20th December at 3.00 p.m.

Mr Speaker: I will now put the question that the House now adjourn to Thursday, 20th December at 3.00 p.m. Those in favour. (Members: Aye.) Those against. Passed.

The House will now adjourn to Thursday, 20th December at 3.00 p.m.

The House adjourned at 3.50 p.m.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

10

Standing Order 7(1) suspended to proceed with Government Statement

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Thursday 20th December 2012.
Suspension of Standing Orders, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

15

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to move, under Standing Order 7(3), to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with a Government Statement relating to the Experts' Report into Fishing in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters.

20

Mr Speaker: Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

GOVERNMENT STATEMENT

25

Experts' Report into Fishing in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters Statement by Minister for Health and the Environment

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

30

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Report from the Commission of Experts on Fishing and Marine Conservation in and around British Gibraltar Territorial Waters has now been received by the Government. It will be assessed over coming weeks by the Department of the Environment and the Nature Conservancy Council, following which the Government will decide on what, if any, action needs to be taken in respect of the matters considered. The Report will be published once this process is complete.

35

Clerk: Answers to... Sorry.

40

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, it seems to me the Statement is simply to the effect that they have a Statement, that they have the Report. Well, we read that in the press 10 days ago.

Questions for Oral Answer

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

50

Clarification on Question 1039/2012
Tenants decanted from unsafe dwellings

Clerk: Answers to Questions continue.

55

Mr Speaker: Before we proceed with Questions, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, I think wants to say something, clarification of a matter that was left outstanding on Monday?

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Yes. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

60

Mr Speaker, further to the reply given to Question 1039/2012, I would like to inform the hon. Member that one further case was erroneously omitted. Therefore the answer is that a total of five tenants were urgently decanted from their flats. The omitted case was that... or the case decanted on 8th November 2012 and they are expected to return to their flats on 20th December 2012.

65

CHIEF MINISTER

70

Factories Inspectors
Chief Minister's statement to Health & Safety seminar

Clerk: Question 1070/2012, the Hon. J J Netto.

75

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given the answer to Written Question 234/2012, will the Chief Minister now take the opportunity to apologise to the attendees of the Health & Safety seminar organised by the local branch of IOSH and Unite the Union, for having misled them when he said:

'there has been a clear change in Health & Safety since the arrival of the new Government, which has seen the doubling of the Factories Inspectors from two to four'?

80

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, certainly not, as what I told the conference was correct.

85 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, what he did say to the conference is what I have just quoted in my original Question, which I am not going to repeat.

The fact of the matter is that he told the conference there were four Factory Inspectors and that is untrue. There are two Factory Inspectors, which have been confirmed by the Chief Minister indeed in last month's answer and indeed confirmed by the Minister for Housing... by the Minister for Health & Safety.

90 The fact is, Mr Speaker, he can wriggle out as much as he wants from what he actually said, but the fact is that he said that, given the enormous energy and push given by the new Government, there are now four Factory Inspectors, which, clearly, there are not. The number of Factory Inspectors today are exactly the same number there were when we were in Government.

95 What has happened is that the Government has transferred two Health & Safety officers from the Housing Agency to support the Factory Inspectors, but those two people transferred have neither got the role nor the status, nor been given that position by the Director in accordance with the Factories Ordinance.

100 So I put it to the Chief Minister, is his personal ego more important than saying the truth and will he rectify and push ego to one side and apologise to those people for misleading them?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, when people try and bring things like ego into something as simple as this, you know that they are in trouble.

105 There were two Factories Inspectors when the hon. Member was in Government; there are now four. There are two people, of those four, who have been seconded to the post and who have qualifications as Health & Safety inspectors. There are four people doing the work of Factory Inspectors.

It is not a question of ego, Mr Speaker; it is a question of simple mathematics. I said that we would double the number and we have.

110 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister is actually wrong and if he cares to look back at previous questions, even the questions answered by his Hon. Minister on the matter, in relation to Question 785/2012, in the provisions of how many Factory Inspectors there are, it is two and then you have the two seconded Health & Safety officers, which has also been confirmed by the Minister last month.

115 So we have not had a doubling of Factory Inspectors. What we have had, to use a Spanish phrase, is: desvestir un santo para vestir a otro santo. That is what we have had. We have not increased Factory Inspectors. In any case, the Government, through the Director in accordance with the legislation, has not gazetted the appointment of any further factory inspectors.

120 So it is not a question of mathematics; it is a question that the Chief Minister is trying to wriggle out from being truthful to the facts and therefore the result of the matter is that his ego is more important than the facts.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not discern a question and I am not going to rise to answer the same point again.

125 Clerk: Question 1071, the Hon. J J Netto.

130 Welcome to Hon. C A Bruzon on return to Parliament

135 Mr Speaker: Perhaps before we proceed, if the hon. Member will allow me, I had not realised when I was in the antechamber that the Hon. Charles Bruzon was in the House today. Therefore I am sure I am speaking on behalf of all Members when I say how delighted we are to see him here with us and to wish him every good health. (Applause)

140 Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Thank you very much, Mr Speaker and I thank all the hon. Members for their good wishes for a speedy recovery. I am talking about every Member of this Parliament, including yourself, Mr Speaker, and the Clerk.

Thank you very much. (Applause)

Moroccan workers Hostel accommodation

Clerk: Question 1071.

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, if I can also add that the general sentiment, I think with the whole House indeed, regardless of where we are sitting, we are all extremely glad to see the Hon. Charles Bruzon here in Parliament.

Will the Chief Minister consider abandoning his policy of transferring the Moroccan workers from the current hostels to the proposed floating vessel, and instead proceed with the GSD Government policy of providing a proper constructed hostel in the old Ready Mixed site in Devil's Tower Road?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the use of a floating hostel on a temporary basis and the development of a new workers' hostel on land are not mutually exclusive.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, they may not be mutually exclusive, but the point is that the new Government decided that they were not going to proceed, for whatever reasons, with the previous GSD Government in providing a properly constructed hostel on the old Ready Mixed site. The new Government is perfectly entitled to choose what options they decide to do.

But the fact of the matter, as I see it anyway, is that the Government finds itself in a situation today where none of the two Moroccan Associations are in favour of transferring the current Moroccan workers in the Buena Vista hostel to this floating vessel. My understanding is that the Moroccans themselves who happen to be in the Buena Vista hostel are not excited and they do not want to go to the floating vessel. Most people in Gibraltar think that it is quite degrading to treat the Moroccans in the manner in which the Government option is – meaning transferring them from a properly constructed hostel to a floating vessel – and in any case, quite apart from the moral issue, which is for me the most fundamental, important issue of all, most people in Gibraltar would think that a floating vessel berthed anywhere around the port of Gibraltar is a totally unsightly thing, which obviously does not go hand in hand with promoting Gibraltar as a finance centre.

So, in my supplementary question (Laughter) to the Chief Minister, given that there are more and more delays all the time – we have wasted now 12 months and we are exactly today, 12 months on, as we were 12 months –

Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member ask a question, please? The preamble to justify the supplementary, I think is long enough.

Hon. J J Netto: Will he not consider his current plans, abandon the idea of a floating vessel and construct a proper hostel for the Moroccan workers? (Interjections)

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not think the hon. Gentleman understood what it was that I have told the House on previous occasions and what I have reminded him of now. The whole point of the floatel was that it was to provide accommodation for an interim period, whilst a hostel was developed on land.

So it is not a question of abandoning the policy, because there is no policy to abandon. We are not saying that Moroccan workers should live on this floating hostel and not have something built on land. That is to deal with the premise of the question.

Second, Mr Speaker, I do not know how it is that he gets up in this House and makes statements of the sort that he does. He knows that he is responsible for his statements in this House. He has alleged that I have said something which is not truthful. I am not going to pursue that – in his previous Question. But I will tell him, Mr Speaker, that the Moroccan Community Association, the President of which I met yesterday, are very pleased with the possibility of this floatel coming into action. So I do not know where he gets it from, that he can make a statement in this House, as he has a moment ago, for which he is responsible, that both of the Moroccan workers' representative organisations are against this idea.

I also do not know where he gets it from to say that it is degrading to offer people the opportunity to move into what was a three-star hotel – a floating three-star hotel. It then became a prison for a while and if it is to be used, Mr Speaker, it will be subject to a refurbishment which will make it much better accommodation than Buena Vista ever was for the period when he was in Government, (A Member: Hear, hear.) than Devil's Tower Road has ever been for the period that he was in Government, whilst we develop the worthy hostel that workers who come to Gibraltar deserve – not just Moroccans, but many 205 different nationalities, because, as he will know, there is now a call for workers' rooms, not just for Moroccan workers.

Everything, therefore, on which he has premised this Question, Mr Speaker, is unfortunately wrong.

210 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, if it is such a wonderful floating hotel that they are going to do, why is it, at the beginning of his answer just now, he said it is going to be an interim basis. I put it to him in the form of a question: is it that the Government's latest thinking on the matter is that whenever this floating hotel vessel becomes sufficiently good enough to perform the function of a floating hotel, it is going to be for a short period of time – 12 months, 18 months, 24 months – until eventually constructing a proper hostel on land, on a permanent basis?

215 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, yes, except that that is not the latest thinking on the matter. If the hon. Gentleman goes back and looks at the questions he has asked me on this very subject, that is exactly the answer I have given him previously – I think on two or three occasions.

220 Hon. J J Netto: So can I ask, Mr Speaker, what is the alternative site that the Government is thinking today, in order to construct a hostel on land?

225 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there are a number of options and we have not yet identified the one which we will determine is the appropriate one.

Hon. J J Netto: Does the Government have a timetable as to when they think they will determine what is a suitable site?

230 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, when the Government determines a suitable site, it will make an announcement.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

235
Petroleum products
Imports and exports during last 12 months

240 Clerk: Question 1073, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government state the value of imports and exports of petroleum products for the last 12 months?

245 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, figures in respect of the imports and exports of petroleum products are provided to the Statistics Office by the importers and are requested on an annual basis at the end of the calendar year. These figures are therefore not yet available.

250 Hon. D A Feetham: So effectively, they will be available by the end of this year. Will the hon. Gentleman undertake to provide me with the figures, as and when the Government has it?

255 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether they will be available immediately at the end of the calendar year; it may be at the end of the first month of next year.

For the reasons that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition used to give when he was standing here, in order not to fail in an undertaking, I am not going to undertake to do that, but if the hon. Gentleman writes to me in January, then I will make sure that the person who collates the information does provide it to him.

260 Hon. D A Feetham: I am much obliged.

Public and private sector employment
PAYE payable and numbers employed

270 Clerk: Question 1074, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, based on the last Employers' Annual Statement, Declaration and Certificate submitted to date, what was the PAYE payable, and the numbers employed by area of employment as follows: (a) MOD; (b) Gibraltar Government; (c) Government-owned/joint venture companies; and (d) private sector employment?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

280 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, based on the 2011-12 Employers' Annual Statement, Declaration and Certificate submitted to date, the PAYE tax payable by area of employment is as follows (in millions): (a) MOD, £2.88 million; (b) Gibraltar Government, £30.17 million; (c) Government owned/Joint Venture companies, £3.43 million; and (d) Private sector employment, £66.94 million; giving a total of £103.42 million.

285 I will give the hon. Gentleman a copy of this, if he likes. I have not been given a handout.

The Employers' Annual Statements for the tax year 2011-12 are currently being processed and it is not possible at this stage to provide details of numbers employed by area of employment.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

290

EU Directives pending transposition
Details

295 Clerk: Question 1075, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government list the EU Directives which are pending transposition in Gibraltar, showing the name and number of the Directive and the date by which they were to have been implemented?

300

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, all of these questions seem remarkably familiar. I recall Members on this side of the House asking them when we were over there – quite right too!

305 Mr Speaker, at present, there are five EU Directives pending transposition in Gibraltar. I will now hand the hon. Member a table with the information requested.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 1075

Directives pending transposition in Gibraltar

as at 17 December 2012

Directive name and number	Transposition Deadline
Directive 96/53/EC on maximum dimensions/weights in traffic amended by Directive 2002/7/EC.	17 Sep 1997 09 Mar 2004 09 Mar 2005
Directive 97/81/EC concerning the Framework Agreement on part-time work concluded by UNICE, CEEP and ETUC, extended to the United Kingdom amended by Directive 98/23 (on the extension of Directive 97/81/EC).	20 Jan 2000 07 Apr 2000
Directive 2002/8/EC to improve access to justice in cross-border disputes by establishing minimum common rules relating to legal aid for such disputes.	30 Nov 2004 (30 May 2006 for Art 3(2)(a))
Directive 2002/74 amending Directive 80/987/EEC on the approximation of the laws of the Member States relating to the protection of employees in the event of the insolvency of their employer. See now codification carried out by Directive 2008/94/EC on the protection of employees in the event of the insolvency of their employer.	08 Oct 2005
Directive 2004/80/EC on compensation to crime victims.	01 Jan 2006

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member have any supplementaries?

Hon. D A Feetham: Are there any infraction proceedings in relation to any of these at all?

Hon. Chief Minister: Not as far as I am aware.

Legal services
Fees paid by Government

Clerk: Question 1076, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government give a breakdown of the amounts paid since 9th December 2011 to date to each law firm or barrister in respect of legal services, giving a breakdown by firm and showing what are legal fees and what are disbursements?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Member a schedule with the information requested.

The hon. Gentleman and I spoke in the antechamber, Mr Speaker, about whether this information was on the website. I am asking the Statistics Department to provide this data on the Government website from now on and update it monthly. At present, I am advised that only the fees for legal drafting services are already on the site. These fees are in addition to any fees paid in respect of drafting services. Clearly the sums reflect amounts invoiced and paid and some firms may have unbilled work in progress.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 1076

Law Firm / Barrister	Legal Fees	Disbursements
Andrew J Hayes	£1,200.00
Beloff QC, Mr M	£1,600.00
Brick Court Chambers	£7,750.00
Charles Gomez & Co	£22,212.00
Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton	£197,840.53	£1,915.64
Cramer-Salamian Avocats	£34,973.85
Hassans	£267,967.00	£62,362.77
Isolas	£13,280.00	£45.00
Jean-Christophe Diserens	£3,551.07
Lewis QC, Mr A	£3,225.00
Saini QC, Mr P	£6,000.00
T&T	£31,760.00	£70.00
TSN	£140,353.00	£83,824.91
Verralls	£9,800.00	£285.00

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, thank you very much for that.

As I recall, when he used to ask these questions, he always used to split the question up between legal services and legal drafting. I never understood why, because, of course, legal services include legal drafting. So what the Hon. the Chief Minister is saying, really, that that practice of splitting the drafting of legal services, that will continue by putting assistance on the website.

Could I ask the Chief Minister, also, if I were to send him a list of questions that certainly are statistical in nature, that perhaps he might also consider putting that information online – a commitment, of course, he cannot give, because he has not seen the questions – but he might consider putting the information, statistical in nature, also on the Government website, so that I do not have to ask the questions? Certainly I would not ask them on a monthly basis, but certainly every six months.

350 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have indicated that this particular statistic will now be published. I have just suggested to the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister that in fact the statistic that the hon. Gentleman asked about a moment ago, which was the importation of petroleum products, which used to be given across the floor of the House, when the now Minister for Employment used to ask the now Leader of the Opposition is another one that I think should be put on the website.

355 I am quite happy to look at a list of questions which the hon. Member is proposing should be put on the website, so that we can add more information to that already transparently available.

360 Community Care
Funding

Clerk: Question 1077, the Hon. D A Feetham.

365 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government confirm how much funding has been provided to Community Care since 9th December 2011?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

370 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, from 9th December 2011 until the financial year-end contributions totalling £5,350,000 have been made to Community Care. The total contributions of the financial year 2011-12 were as per the approved estimate, that is to say £16 million. Contributions to Community Care during this financial year to date – that is to say, April to November 2012 – total £9,165,000.

380 Gibraltar Provident Trust (No. 2) Pension Fund
Employees electing to join Provident Fund

Clerk: Question 1078, the Hon. D A Feetham.

385 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government list the entities that were contributing to the Gibraltar Provident Trust (No. 2) Pension Fund as at the end of November 2012 and in respect of each, state the number of eligible employees on that date and the number that had elected to join the Provident Fund?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

390 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the Hon. Member a statement with the information requested on the list of entities contributing to the Gibraltar Provident Trust (No. 2) Pension Fund and the number of members that have joined.

He will see that there is not all the information that he has requested in what I am giving him and this is the reason for it.

395 All public sector employees are eligible to participate in a pension scheme. Those employees who are not eligible for a pension under the Pensions Act are eligible to join either the Gibraltar Provident (No. 2) Pension Scheme or the Guaranteed Superannuation Fund Pension Scheme. In some cases, employees have been given the option to retain their own private pension arrangements and there are also some employees who receive a gratuity in lieu of a pension under the terms of their contract of employment.

400 An analysis of the number of persons who may be eligible to join the Gibraltar Provident (No 2) Pension Scheme and who may have elected to have other pension arrangements, or indeed who may have elected not to participate in any pension scheme, is not therefore readily available.

I have asked nonetheless that such information should be collated. I expect it will take some months to collate. I will provide the hon. Gentleman with the information when I have it.

Gibraltar Provident Trust (No. 3) Pension Fund
Participant employers in private sector

410 Clerk: Question 1079, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government state, as at the end of November 2011, which employers in the private sector were participating in the Gibraltar Provident Trust (No. 3) Pension Fund and in respect of how many employees each?

415 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a statement with the information requested.

425 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, these two questions are certainly the type of questions that lend themselves, statistical, to the provision of information on the actual website – not of course on a monthly basis, but certainly, if the Chief Minister would consider on a calendar year basis or at the end of the financial year – and I would ask him to consider actually putting these statistics on the website.

430 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am quite happy to consider that. I do not think there is any reason why this should not be available. It is now available in Hansard. It should be more easily available on the internet – although of course, Hansard is now available on the internet and people can find the information – but I am quite happy that this information should be put into the public domain without the need for there to be a question in this House.

Mid-Harbour Estate Maintenance

440

Clerk: Question 1080, the Hon. P R Caruana.

445 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say why the Government has not properly maintained the Mid-Harbour Estate during the last 12 months?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

450 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Question is based on a false premise. The estate in question has been properly maintained in the last 12 months. The problems now being experienced in that estate do not relate to a lack of maintenance. Cracks do not appear as a result of a lack of maintenance. Flooding of a garage, as occurred before the General Election, does not occur through any lack of maintenance.

Perhaps the question should be ‘Can the Leader of the Opposition say why his Government allowed the estate to be handed over to tenants despite the problems inherent in the building?’ (Applause)

Hon. P R Caruana: He certainly can and has every intention of doing so, Mr Speaker – now, so he does not have long to wait.

Mr Speaker, before I do that, can the hon. Member say how he reconciles his answer that there has been no lack of maintenance with the Government’s public statement that:

‘There has been no cleaning and maintenance of the Aco Drain, the walkway gargoyles are full of muck and sludge and they get blocked with standing water. The roof gutters, the Government has been told, have not been cleaned since handover in March last year and the presence of seagull nests, due to lack of maintenance, has resulted in rainwater overflowing into the roof and creating water penetration issues to the apartment below.

This is not the first of the previous administration’s projects where a clear lack of planning has meant little or no attention has been paid to maintenance issues’, said Number 6. I presume that when the hon. Member said that a few days ago, he was not referring to seagulls that had been found on 8th December, that he was referring to seagulls recently found and that he was referring to roof gutters that were blocked now, not blocked on 9th December. It is a little bit late, a year later, to say, on 9th December last year there were blocked drainpipes.

The Government has put out a press release listing a litany of things which they have now found, which they attribute to lack of maintenance. Mr Speaker, whatever might be the issues that they found on 8th December, about which we also differ, 12 months seems to me enough for the hon. Members to have put in place whatever system of maintenance they claim the previous Government did not have in place.

So given that he has just claimed that there is now a system of maintenance in place, and by implication has been for some time, why has there been, during the last 12 months, still gargoyles full of muck and sludge that have got blocked with drain waters and roof gutters etc, and seagulls in drainpipes?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman knows that there is going to be a meeting between the Hon. the Minister for Housing and representatives of this estate, I think, in January, the House was told earlier during the course of this session, which will be to address a lot of the issues which are relevant to the estate.

The position is simple, Mr Speaker: of course there is a maintenance programme in respect of Mid-Harbour Estate, but it has not addressed these issues which have caused problems at the estate.

But I thought the hon. Gentleman was going to answer for the cracks, etc that I referred him to. Is it that he is not going to deign to provide an explanation?

Mr Speaker: I think I should tell hon. Members that it is not for the Opposition to be answering questions and if the matter is going to reach that situation, what hon. Members should do is to debate the matter properly and not during questions and answers. They have an opportunity to do that. I have more than once drawn the attention of hon. Members to Standing Orders and Rules and this is a very appropriate matter to do precisely that.

So whilst this is an issue of a certain public importance, I am not going to allow a debate on the pretext of a question and answer session.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, so far I have asked one question and one supplementary. Presumably, Mr Speaker’s [inaudible] –

Mr Speaker: No, I am not stopping the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition –

Hon. P R Caruana: – is addressed to the Chief Minister –

Mr Speaker: I have intervened because the Chief Minister has said that the Leader of the Opposition has not answered a question. It is not for the Leader of the Opposition here in the House to answer questions. That can be done in a debate, certainly.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, is the Chief Minister not aware that at the time of the last Election, the Government had in place an arrangement whereby GJBS would deal with the maintenance of this estate, as it does for example, the Edinburgh House estate and that his Government cancelled that arrangement immediately on coming into office. Therefore, far from there having been no maintenance arrangement in place and subsequent maintenance by them after the Election, it is the reverse.

515 There was a maintenance arrangement in place before the Election, which they cancelled and have failed to replace with anything else as a result of which failure to replace our arrangement with anything else, all these things that they themselves have highlighted in their statement have happened: namely, the litany of things that they attribute to lack of maintenance in their public statement have all occurred during the last 12 months as a result of their failure to put into place any arrangements for maintenance, having cancelled our arrangements for maintenance, which was the GJBS model. Is the hon. Member aware of that?

520 Hon. Chief Minister: I am told, Mr Speaker, that that is a tissue of lies. (Interjection by Mr Speaker) For a simple reason, I am told that there was no such contract, that there was therefore nothing to cancel and what the hon. Member has just told the House is untrue.

525 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, so we are accepting the use of the word ‘lies’, are we across the floor?

Mr Speaker: No, no, no.

530 Hon. P R Caruana: So you will call him to order?

Mr Speaker: He has now said ‘untrue’. I thought I had heard ‘lie’ –

535 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, you did.

Mr Speaker: I did correctly and therefore I asked him to repeat... to clarify that matter.

Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker. The use of the word ‘lie’ for clarification is not permitted –

540 Mr Speaker: He has said he did not. I would prefer that hon. Members should say that ‘that is not correct’ and leave it at that. So would the Hon. the Chief Minister withdraw ‘untrue’?

Hon. Chief Minister: [Inaudible] put it like that, Mr Speaker.

545 Mr Speaker: Right.

550 Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker, the hon... it is not a question of what the Speaker prefers. The use of the word ‘lie’ is either permitted or not permitted, regardless of what the Speaker prefers. My understanding of the Rule is that it is not permitted and it is not permitted subject to clarification or whether the Speaker prefers this or prefers that.

Mr Speaker: Would the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition listen to me clearly? Please, sit down.

555 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I will, of course.

Mr Speaker: Sit down. The use of the word ‘lie’ is unparliamentary. (Hon. P R Caruana: Exactly) Right, he then altered that and said ‘untrue’. I am not making a ruling at this stage of whether ‘untrue’ is unparliamentary or not, but I asked him to amend that and I said that my preference is I do not like to hear the word ‘untrue’ – is it correct or not? That is sufficient.

560 So forget about the question of lying, because that is unparliamentary and I do not need to rule any further on that.

565 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, let me tell the hon. Member that whoever told him it was untrue was lying to him (Laughter) and let me further tell the hon. Member that he has misled this House in the last three minutes.

570 I did not say in my own intervention, as he has just attributed to me in his last one, that there was a contract with GJBS. So in order to accuse me of lying, he says, he is lying because there was no contract to cancel – as if I had said there was a contract! I did not say there was a contract; I said there was an arrangement. Even a lawyer of his calibre should know the difference between an arrangement and a contract.

Mr Speaker, there was an arrangement, an arrangement the existence of which has been confirmed to me on the telephone very recently by people who would know about it, as indeed I knew about it at the time. Therefore, there was an arrangement that GJBS Ltd would deal with the maintenance of this estate as is the case with Edinburgh House and that they, on coming into office, told GJBS that they were not 575 required to continue with any such arrangement that the previous Government may have intended them to operate.

That is why I put it to him there is a lack of maintenance in... and not what he has incorrectly – to use the Speaker's preferred word – told the public that they were left with no arrangement and that the lack of maintenance subsequently is the result of that.

580

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I have not heard a question. I have heard a statement, but I thought the hon. Gentleman was not here to answer questions and I have heard a snide remark about what calibre of lawyer I am, which I can reply to, because I am obviously –

585

Mr Speaker: I would rather you did not.

Hon. Chief Minister: Indeed, Mr Speaker –

590

Mr Speaker: The quality of barristers is not a matter of concern to this House.

Hon. Chief Minister: Indeed, Mr Speaker, indeed! (Laughter and applause)

595

(Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment) Hon. J J Bossano: Or to most of the human race! (Laughter)

Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely right, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) But in fact there are two in this House who have become Chief Minister, so they must be of the same calibre and I do not intend to take it further than that.

600

Mr Speaker: Fortunately, there are another two in this House, who, without being barristers, have also been Chief Ministers! (Laughter)

605

Hon. P R Caruana: I should add, Mr Speaker, with the same degree of humour – whatever degree that might have been, about which I make no comment – as the Hon. Chief Minister has made his remark about barristers and indeed the Hon. Speaker has made his about barristers, then of course the same is true about the qualities of universities which Members of this House have attended, which did not prevent the hon. Member from being perfectly snide about the difference between a degree from Oxford University and a degree from a university... without the Speaker interfering or even sighing.

610

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I detect in the hon. Gentleman a desire to talk about things which are totally irrelevant to Question Time. So I am going to resist having to get up and deal with issues like this, because my experience is that that is how we get ourselves into the sort of behaviour that people outside this House then come to think is not befitting of this Parliament.

615

Income Tax Act 2010 Issues of concern to Ecofin

620

Clerk: Question 1081, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Thank you. Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say which are the issues about the Income Tax Act 2010 that have been of concern to Ecofin?

625

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Code of Conduct Group has found that the non-taxation of foreign sourced intra-group interest is a harmful aspect of the Income Tax Act 2010. This is based on a de facto assessment of the measure.

630

I am happy to tell him more, perhaps not across the floor of the House.

Hon. P R Caruana: Foreign group?

635

Hon. Chief Minister: Foreign sourced intra-group interest.

Hon. P R Caruana: Subject to there not being some other reason to recommend discretion, given that the Commission already know what the proposed solution is – I do not know if there is anybody else that he does not want to discover what the proposed solution is – is he able to say in this House what the Government’s proposed solution is, which he has indicated in the press the Government has for this?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government has consulted quite widely with relevant heads of chambers and heads of accountancy practices and has chosen not to make public what the proposed solution is more widely, because although the Commission will be made aware of that proposal, there are, as the hon. Gentleman knows, other forces at play here, so I am quite happy to brief him as others have been briefed, or have those technicians that advised him and are now advising me brief him on the detail of this, but I would rather not do it at this moment across the floor of the House.

Western Beach reclamation Government intentions

Clerk: Question 1082, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say whether the Government intends to proceed with the Western Beach reclamation?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, Government is assessing the cost of this reclamation before making a final decision on how to progress it.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, is it not the case that much of the cost of the reclamation is in fact not borne by the Government and that therefore the question of cost to the Government is secondary?

Implicit in the Hon. the Chief Minister’s answer is that at present the Government is not proceeding with it, but reserves the right, subject to review, to proceed with it?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, because there is active consideration of a number of options actually progressing.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, would that be with the support of and agreement of the important commercial entity in Gibraltar who was to be a principal user of that reclamation?

Hon. Chief Minister: Indeed, Mr Speaker.

Hon. P R Caruana: And can the hon. Member confirm that it is the policy of the Government, as indeed it was the policy of our Government, when we were on that side of the House to proceed with such reclamations as it considers to be in the best interests of Gibraltar regardless of external opposition, either from our immediate neighbours or from further away?

Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely, except that for this one on the western side, none are presently planned.

Hon. P R Caruana: Sorry, I did not catch: none of what is presently planned?

Hon. Chief Minister: Presently planned.

Hon. P R Caruana: What isn’t?

Hon. Chief Minister: Reclamations.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, this one. This is on the western side.

Hon. Chief Minister: Except for this one on the western side, none are presently planned.

Gibraltar public relations in Spain Recent appointment of lobbying firm

Clerk: Question 1083, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say how the firm recently appointed by the Government to lobby and conduct public relations for Gibraltar in Spain was selected?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, they specifically offered their services to the Government's Media Director in early 2012. The proposal was considered by the Government to have merit. The advice of the Media Director, having researched the market, was that the proposed cost was appropriate and that the company in question had the background and client base to merit their appointment.

Hon. P R Caruana: So, Mr Speaker, is it the policy of the Government that, in relation to public procurement, they are content not to undergo a process of public tendering for the delivery of public services, if a private supplier approaches the Government privately, makes them an offer which the Government evaluates and considers good, without comparison, without market testing – with or without market testing – and therefore just allocates it? Does the hon. Member not agree that that would circumvent the public tender process for what is a public service?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, not so much as it has been circumvented in the past, but given the very sensitive nature of the service to be provided here and the fact that it is a service being provided to the Government in Spain, not in Gibraltar, then in these particular circumstances, it was thought appropriate to proceed in this way – in these very particular circumstances.

Hon. P R Caruana: But would it not have been more appropriate, and indeed more usual, if the Government – and I do not quibble with the underlying desire to have public relations consultants for use in Spain, but is it not a more appropriate and normal way of procuring services of that sort to launch a sort of beauty contest/public tender process to ensure (a) that we are getting the best company for the job and (b) that the price is the keenest for the job? That is what public tendering is for. Why would the Government not have done it that way in this case? What are the particular reasons?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman can sustain that it would have been usual, because, of course, given the many millions expended by the hon. Gentleman on contracts which were awarded directly and which were not put out to public procurement processes at all – and he knows that he and I have a long-standing dispute as to whether, in fact, there was a requirement under EU legislation that particular consultancy agreements were required to go out to public procurement procedures of the European sort – I cannot see how, for this contract, it would have been usual to go out to public procurement.

In fact, Mr Speaker, to tell you the truth, given what I have said, I think the hon. Gentleman should be reading between the lines. There is a very sensitive service being provided to Gibraltar here. It is not one where the Government felt it was appropriate to publish a tender asking Spanish companies that provide this service to give us keener prices. There are going to be many more soft issues there than just prices.

I think the hon. Member, if he were not keen to make a political point and were sitting where I am sitting today, would have seen it exactly the same way as I do.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, of course I am very keen to make political points; it is my job as Leader of the Opposition to make them, so I make no apology for the fact that I am trying to make political points. Whether he enjoys them or not is a different matter.

But Mr Speaker, look, I do not accept the hon. Member's constant implication in these statements that we used to contract willy-nilly and without justification, without tender. But even if he were right in levelling that accusation against me, given that he was so critical of it when he was on this side of the House, does he not think that people would expect him not to do the same? Or does he really expect people to accept that what he does is okay, because he thinks that we used to do it too, even though he won office by promising to do things differently?

So, I do not know how long he is going to carry on defending public procurement without tendering, because he alleges that we used to do it as well. But it would seem to me that he should acknowledge that, given that he criticised it, he ought not to incur in it himself.

760 All that said, Mr Speaker, can he tell this House whether there is any connection between this company in Gibraltar, any individual, linked by family to anybody in Gibraltar, any Gibraltarians involved in this company? Is there any link of any kind between this company and Gibraltar?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he asks questions, pretends to answer them himself and then asks another one.

765 This is not about us doing what we said was wrong when they did it. The hon. Gentleman said in his first question, the question that I answered, would it not have been usual for the Government to go out to public procurement tender? Mr Speaker, it could not be usual, given that, for the time that he was in office, these things never went out to tender and contracts worth tens of millions of pounds of consultancy services did not go out to tender, even though there were EU rules that did require them to go out to tender.

770 So this question that we alleged that things did not go out to tender: it is not an allegation; it happened. Whether it was usual for something like this to go out to tender: Mr Speaker, it cannot be usual, if it was not done for the past 16 years.

775 Now, the final sting in the tail of the question: is there any connection to Gibraltar, or any Gibraltarian family relevant to this company? As far as the Government is concerned, the answer is no and the reason why this company was chosen had nothing to do with connection with Gibraltar. It had to do with the quality of the work that we are recommended to believe that they can do.

780 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I have not asked him, whether the decision was made because of any such connection, so it is not a question of as far as the Government is concerned. Really I am asking as far as the Government is aware – it is a factual question. Is the Government aware of the existence of any family or other link of any kind with Gibraltar, regardless of whether they took it into account in their decision-making process. Yes or no?

785 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think it would have been implicit in what I have said that the answer is clearly no.

Mr Speaker: Next question. Sorry – yes?

790 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker. Can the Chief Minister answer this? As far as he is aware, he has indicated that the introduction was made by the media manager officer there at No. 6 Convent Place, I presume – Media Director at No 6. Convent Place. Is he aware that there was any other intermediary involved, other than, obviously, the Media Director, who acts in an official capacity? Was there any third party involved in the introduction at all?

795 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware there was not and the Media Director did not report that there was. If the hon. Gentleman believes that there was, I would like to know.

800
Lobbyists/political consultants engaged by Government
List and costs since 8th December

805 Clerk: Question 1084, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister provide to this House a list of all persons engaged by the Government as lobbyists and political consultants at public expense, and provide the total cost since 8th December 2011?

810 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

815 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the amount paid by the Government in respect of lobbyists and political consultants since 8th December 2011 amounts to a total cost of £170,221. The Government will follow the practice of the previous administration and will give no further breakdown of that sum.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has now said in two successive meetings of this House that it was the practice of my Government not to give this information, and I do not think that that is true. It may be the case that we were never asked, but certainly, I do not recall ever having being asked to give details of who public expenditure was incurred with by way of lobbyists and refused to identify the lobbyist or the amount of money paid to him.

So these repeated statements upon which the hon. Member opposite seeks to justify his complete lack of transparency is, as far as my recollection goes, untrue.

However, given that it is already known that Mr Glyn Ford, a GSLP member activist and indeed General Election campaigner, is a paid lobbyist of the Government of Gibraltar, how does it reduce his effectiveness with those that he lobbies, for this House simply to know how much he is paid for the service?

I suppose the damage to the credibility comes from it being known of you that you are a paid lobbyist, not by knowing how much it is that you have been paid to be the lobbyist.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he is completely off the mark, even on that. It is very simple. Luckily, we do not rely on the hon. Gentleman's recollections in this House of these debates. There is something called Hansard, where he can check what he was asked and the answers that he used to give. Because the hon. Gentleman's recollections, I have learnt, are designed to advance the argument that he is making at any particular time.

Mr Speaker, I am actually not badly disposed – apart from the fact that the hon. Gentleman wants to make a partisan political point and wants to try to use that somehow to make party political capital across the floor of this House. We are not here just to make party political points. He is the Leader of Her Majesty's loyal Opposition and should be making points which are good for Gibraltar, even if they are political points, not just points which are good for him. (Interjections) Not just points that are good for him, Mr Speaker.

But I am actually quite disposed to look at this question with the hon. Gentleman, if he likes, in a different way, but he does not seem interested. He never gave a breakdown of the head in the Estimates Book which relates to this, and he refused to do so.

I actually believe that it is not in Gibraltar's interests that we should be bandying this information across the floor of the House, because it could blunt the effectiveness of the service that Gibraltar is paying for. In other parliaments, there are select committees that meet in camera that look at details like this, so that public expenditure is exposed in detail to both sides of the House without it being done in a way that results in the effectiveness of what the money is being spent on being lost.

I am quite happy to consider that with him, if he is serious in the issues that he is raising.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, several things: first of all, again he challenges my recollection that what he is attributing to me about my past practices is not true, but he invokes Hansard, hoping that people will assume that Hansard said what he says it does – but he does not actually produce Hansard to demonstrate that what I am saying is incorrect. I am telling him that his allusion to Hansard is as inaccurate as his allusion to the fact that I have refused to give this information in the past. It would not have crossed my mind in my recollection and in my knowledge of what our attitude to public transparency was, to have denied this House information about how much a publicly paid consultant was getting, or even to admit that he was a publicly-paid consultant.

But, Mr Speaker, be that as it may, does he not accept that the blunting, as he calls it, of the effectiveness of Gibraltar's lobbyists derives not from the people and Parliament of Gibraltar knowing how much they are paid, but it derives from the knowledge that they are paid lobbyists and that is already known? That is already in the public domain. Therefore, I put it to him that the logical conclusion to which people will come, hearing him, is that they do not want the people of Gibraltar to know how much of their money they have used to reward Mr Glyn Ford for services rendered to the GSLP.

And the reason why I will not accept his offer of dealing with this in private is because I do not think this is a matter that should be dealt with in private. I do not want to know how much Mr Glyn Ford has been paid as a matter of curiosity; I want to know how much it is he has been paid to see if it is justified in all the circumstances and, if it is not, to be able to becry publicly, which I cannot do, if I accept his offer to be told privately.

Hon. Chief Minister: It is incredible, Mr Speaker, that the Leader of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition – Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition – has actually accepted on his feet that what he has done by his analysis is, in effect, to blunt the work that could have been successful for the people of Gibraltar being done by a gentleman of the political experience and calibre of Glyn Ford in the European Parliament. He has accepted that himself. It is incredible that he actually seems, from his snigger, to be proud of it.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am.

Hon. Chief Minister: It could be, Mr Speaker, for all he knows, that Mr Ford was doing something very important indeed for the Government and people of Gibraltar, not for the GSLP, as he pejoratively tries to paint it, but then again, I have been at the sharp end of his pejorative painting, he can paint pejorative anything that he likes. The fact is that this Government would not spend a penny of taxpayers' money to advance its party political cause.

885

But of course, Mr Speaker, as we now know, before 8th December, the position was very different. The hon. Member spent taxpayers' money on designs and drawings – taxpayers' money – which he then put into the GSD manifesto for party political ends –

890

Mr Speaker: I think –

Hon. Chief Minister: – and I see him grab his head, Mr Speaker, because he does not want to face up to it.

895

Mr Speaker: With all due respect to the Chief Minister, I think that between the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition, you are both widening the ambit of the original question and I am not going to have any more. Either we return to the specific matter, or we move on to another question.

900

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for your indication, because I think that issues like this are what bring Question Time into disrepute, but the hon. Gentleman has been allowed a very wide berth to make very wide allegations against the Government and against the political party that I represent. I have nothing more to say to him on the issue that he raises so pejoratively and contrary, in my view, to the public interest of Gibraltar.

905

Mr Speaker: Next question

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: No. Next question.

910

Hon. P R Caruana: With respect, Mr Speaker, I wish to raise a Point of Order.

Mr Speaker: We are having no more on this matter.

915

Hon. P R Caruana: But the hon. Member has misled the House in his statement.

Mr Speaker: And you will say something and then he will come back to the charge and the matter never ends!

920

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker – if Mr Speaker does not care –

Mr Speaker: No! If hon. Members want to debate this issue, they can raise it at another time of the agenda – not now!

925

Hon. P R Caruana: It is not a question of debating this issue. If Mr Speaker is going to adopt the position of not allowing the Leader of the Opposition to raise a Point of Order –

Mr Speaker: I am allowing both of you! I have allowed both of you –

930

Hon. P R Caruana: – without even knowing what the Point of Order is, you should know that we will bring a substantive motion on the subject.

Mr Speaker: If the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition thinks that he can scare me with that threat, he has got another guess coming!

935

Hon. P R Caruana: It is neither a scare, nor a threat. It is my right to bring a motion.

Mr Speaker: And it is my right under Question Time to decide that the matter has been sufficiently aired and to invite hon. Members to have a debate whenever they so wish.

940

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I can tell the hon. Chair this: I have been in this House only since 1990 and I have never, however spurious it might have turned out to be, never, never come across an incident in which a Speaker prevents a Member from raising a Point of Order without even knowing what the Point of Order is! Never!

945 Mr Speaker: What is your Point of Order?

Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker, now I will raise it by substantive motion.

Mr Speaker: Very good.

950
Overseas Territories Joint Ministerial Council
Joint statement on Gibraltar

955 Clerk: Question 1085, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say why he believes that the recent joint statement agreed by the Overseas Territories Joint Ministerial Council represents a step forward for Gibraltar?

960 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, it represents a step forward, because there is no fetter on the exercise of our right to self-determination referred to, or on the nature of our future decolonised status.

965
970 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Chronicle attributes to the hon. Member – I invite him to express a view now, as to whether it correctly attributes to him or not – but attributes to the hon. Member statements – I was going to say to the effect, but it is actually explicitly – which convey the meaning that the alleged huge step forward – which I would accept and acknowledge was a huge step forward, if it were correct, and therefore my question is designed to establish whether or not it is correct – that in the hon. Member’s view, the UK’s withdrawal or non-articulation on this occasion of the words ‘where it is an option’ amounts to a reversal by the United Kingdom of its position on Utrecht; that it amounts to a denial to the people of Gibraltar of the right to opt for independence.

975 ‘Asked if this meant that the UK had turned its back on the Treaty of Utrecht, Mr Picardo said’ – that is the attribution that, you know, it may or may not be accurate after it – Mr Picardo said.

980 ‘he thought it means that the UK recognises that it “cannot curtail our right to decide not to be British”.’

Of course, which the UK has never curtailed, except that it has said, ‘If you want to stop to be British, you have got to be Spanish.’ That is the consequence of the UK’s position on Utrecht. It is not that you cannot – (Interjection) Yes, Mr Speaker. The UK’s position on Utrecht is that independence is not an option. You can only cease to be British, either by being independent – which the UK said is not a possibility – or by joining Spain, which the UK says is a possibility, but then you become Spanish.

985 But he added that that would not mean that Britain would concede.

990 ‘We have moved forward massively’, and then he continues in that vein.

995 If it is true that it can correctly be interpreted, that the correct interpretation of the UK’s agreement on this occasion and in that Overseas Territories document, not to qualify – which was a qualification intended for Gibraltar, this business about whether it is an option – no, I am not sure it even is the Falklands; I think it is just Gibraltar – then that would be no step forward at all. Indeed, it would be meaningless, if it was just on the basis that it does no harm for the UK not to say it on this one occasion and this one paper, but if it meant – which is what is implicit in what the hon. Member is saying – if it were to mean that this is a signalling by the UK – which is the sense that these statements give – that it was the first indication by the UK of its abandonment of its long-standing position on Utrecht, namely that it operates to curtail the right of the people of Gibraltar to opt for independence – more than curtails; denies the right of the people – then that would indeed be a huge step forward, which I would wish to be the first to congratulate the hon. Member for achieving to the extent that he has achieved it, and which this House and indeed the whole of Gibraltar would wish to celebrate more widely.

1005 But what I do not think we can do in this House is... or what I am doing in this House, therefore, is just ascertaining that these press reports are either being misinterpreted by me or that the hon. Member has been misquoted, or that they do not mean and are not intended to mean that the UK has reversed its position on Utrecht. But of course if the UK has not reversed its position on Utrecht, it is hardly a massive step forward.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has seen not just the interview in the Chronicle, but also, I assume, in order to come to this House and make these points, the Statement of the Joint Ministerial Council, adopted by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom and by the Minister for the Overseas Territories and placed on the website of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

If he has seen that, Mr Speaker, and he has seen in the report from the Chronicle that the draft that was initially put to us specifically carved out the possibility that Gibraltar did not have these rights; but the draft that was approved, because Gibraltar raised those points for those reasons – if he has seen it and as I am going to assume that he has – specifically leaves open those options, and Gibraltar made no secret that it believed it was achieving something, as a result of that, well then, Mr Speaker, either the Foreign Office has signed up to a document that is contradictory, on its face, to the position it has repeatedly taken, or the position is one that none of us would like to consider.

I would invite him therefore to celebrate the fact that there is at least a contradictory document alighting from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, which says specifically that the territories – all of the territories, including Gibraltar – have the right to determine for themselves whether they wish to sever the link. All of this debate, Mr Speaker, in the context... As the hon. Gentleman and I had the opportunity of discussing recently in a very convivial, for once, episode of ‘Viewpoint’, in the context of neither his party nor mine considering that independence is something that we want to pursue, but because of the long-standing theoretical position that Gibraltar was always, in the view of the United Kingdom, prevented from choosing independence – although I have to correct him, Mr Speaker, in this respect: only the territory of Gibraltar would become Spanish in the example that he gave, not the people of Gibraltar. I think that is an important distinction. We have always – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well, we have always argued that the land and the people are inseparable, but of course the nationality would not run in that example. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana)

So, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman does not have the Statement of the Joint Ministerial Council, I am quite happy to give him a copy, but it is on the website.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I do have it and of course, it is implicit in what the hon. Member is saying that he is answering the question that I put to him in my supplementary, as yes, that is what I think it means. In other words, I think the UK is signalling a resilement from its traditional position on Utrecht, because if all that the step forward was, that the UK had, by eliminating the reference to where it is an option that we have acquired the right to sever the link, the same as all the other territories have the right to sever their link... That is not new. We have always had the right to sever the link.

The UK has always told us that we have the right to sever the link. Indeed, Mr Roy Hattersley, in his Hattersley Memorandum, positively encouraged us to sever the link and accept that our future was with Spain. The UK’s position in respect of Gibraltar has never been that we do not have the right to sever the link with Britain; it has been that, if we exercise the right to sever the link with Britain, it can only be by joining Spain, but the UK has never prevented us from severing. They have said to us, ‘You can either stay with Britain, or you can integrate with Spain.’ So, the UK’s position has always entertained our right to sever the link.

The massive step forward – which I would love to be the first to congratulate the hon. Member on, because I think it would be a genuine advancement for Gibraltar – is if the correct interpretation of the omission between the first draft and the final text of the words applicable to Gibraltar, ‘where it is an option’, were that the UK had abandoned its position with which every Gibraltarian disagrees in theory, even those who do not want independence, that somehow the people of Gibraltar... that the Treaty of Utrecht curtails the right to self-determination, including independence, if the people of Gibraltar were to want independence. That would be a massive step forward, because it would be to recognise that we have un-curtailed, unconditional moral rights of self-determination. That would be the massive step forward.

What I am trying to find out from the hon. Member is whether, in his view, that is what he meant when he said that this was a massive step forward – because that is not the impression that the Chronicle gives that he meant: namely, does he believe that what he achieved between the first draft and the final communiqué of persuading the UK to eliminate these five words... does he think that the UK was therefore abandoning and reversing its long-standing policy that the Treaty of Utrecht means that the option of independence is not an option for the people of Gibraltar without Spain’s consent?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if they did not mean that, now they have got all the arguments why they should not. This statement in the Chronicle was on 8th December and I have not yet heard anybody from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office set out something contrary to what I said here.

The Treaty of Utrecht is 300 years old next year. I think that age may be starting to show and even the United Kingdom might be embarrassed to be relying on treaties 300 years old to curtail modern rights.

He says, Mr Speaker, that he would be the first one to congratulate me, if I had achieved something like that, but I have heard that before during the course of the Broadcasting Bill, when the hon. Gentleman was analysing how the power in respect of matters of moments of internal security was being dealt with in that Bill. He said, this is going back to the Governor and it should not go back to the Governor because in times of emergency, it should still be Ministers that are relevant, and then he realised that what he thought he had read as ‘Governor’, actually read ‘Government’ and he actually said in this House – and thank goodness, Mr Speaker, that we do not rely on his recollection, that there is Hansard to show it – that ‘this must be a typographical error, this must mean Governor, because if it is “Government”, then the hon. Gentleman has achieved a huge step forward and I will be the first to congratulate him.’

Well, Mr Speaker’ (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) I corrected him at the time. I told him that actually it was not a typographical error, that we had achieved that, what he described, ‘huge step forward’ and yet when the Bill was published, no longer as a Bill but as an Act, I am still waiting for the chocolates or the flowers, let alone the congratulations.

Anyway, look, it is not true, Mr Speaker, that if we were to choose to become independent – an option that none of us considers is appropriate for Gibraltar – we would become Spanish. These things are much more sophisticated than that. The Treaty of Utrecht says that Gibraltar will not pass from under the British Crown to another sovereign. It is perfectly possible to remain under the British Crown and not be dependent on the United Kingdom in one of the models of dependency that is presently accepted.

So therefore, much of what the hon. Gentleman has said is lacking in analysis. But do I believe that we achieved something? I have said as much, Mr Speaker.

I do not know whether it is that the hon. Gentleman wants to set me up for a fall. I do not know whether it is that the hon. Gentleman would rather that we had not achieved anything and wants simply to provoke a response, but I have not been shy in saying what I believe happened, if it were that there was another form of words which expressed where independence is an option... but that is not the case, Mr Speaker. The form of words in its place is explicitly the opposite.

It says in the text of the press statement of the JMC:

‘The people of each Territory have the right to choose whether or not their Territory should remain a British Overseas Territory.’

There are many things that we can be which are not a British Overseas Territory and are certainly not Spanish. I would have thought that the hon. Gentleman knew that much. I actually say repeatedly that I have a very high regard for his capacity, his intellect and the calibre of a lawyer that he is. It is a pity, Mr Speaker, that in analysing this issue, he simply wants to try and attempt to show that what I have said happened is not the case.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I have not attempted to show anything! I have asked him a perfectly simple question, the last ten minutes of which can only be interpreted as an attempt to avoid the need to having answered a perfectly simple question.

Does the hon. Member believe that the consequence, that the effect of having persuaded the British Government to remove the words from the Overseas Territories Communiqué, ‘where it is an option’ that the effect and meaning of that is that the United Kingdom has abandoned or changed or altered or resiled from its long-standing position that the Treaty of Utrecht denies to the people of Gibraltar the right to independence. Yes or no?

I am not trying to achieve any other thing. I would have thought that he could tell me whether he thought that that is what it meant. He does not want to tell me whether that is, but that is what he has told the Chronicle he thinks it meant and I wanted him to confirm it to me in this House that that is what he thinks it meant – nothing to do with Spain or treachery or being a good lawyer or a bad lawyer or the Governor and the Broadcasting Bill and Hansard and recollections and memories and all this rubbish that he has used to pad out his answer.

The question is simple: is the massive step forward, to which he referred in the local media, is that massive step forward the fact that, in his view, the United Kingdom has abandoned its long-standing position about the implications of the Treaty of Utrecht in curtailing our right to self-determination? That is my supplementary. If he does not want to answer it, he can just say so, but he does not have to conceal his refusal to say so behind insulting or patronising words.

Mr Speaker, I do not know whether I am a good lawyer, a bad lawyer or a medium lawyer. The hon. Member professes to think that I am a brilliant one, but every time I express a view that he does not like, he more or less says that I am some sort of an idiot. Well, Mr Speaker, I cannot be a good lawyer except when I say things that the hon. Member does not agree with.

1130 Let us be clear about this, because I cannot imagine that the hon. Member means what he has said in this House just now and I ask him, therefore, whether he does mean it. The hon. Member has in fact said that you can be under the British Crown – if he had left out the adjective ‘British’, he would be right! Of course you can be under the Crown of Queen Elizabeth II and her successors and not be British. There are 1135 the Australians and the Canadians and the New Zealanders and all the other Commonwealth Countries that recognise the Queen as the Head of State to prove it. You can be not under Britain, not British, but have the same Queen as Britain; but of course, when Queen Elizabeth is Queen of Australia, she is not the British Queen of Australia. This is, she is not wearing the British Crown; she is wearing the Australian Crown, and the Queen is not Queen of Australia because she is the British Queen. Now Mr Speaker.

1140 So therefore, to suggest – and I ask the hon. Member to consider whether this is what he is saying – that you can be, theoretically, both independent and under the British Crown is a manifest nonsense.
There is no way of being independent under the British Crown. You can be independent under Queen
Elizabeth II –

1145 Mr Speaker: Will you ask a question, please?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I am asking the hon. Member – I am sorry if I am boring the Hon. Mr Speaker – I am asking the Hon. the Chief Minister to confirm whether that is what he said and whether he really does believe that you can be independent under the British Crown?

1150 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I extend to the hon. Gentleman the professional courtesy of calling him a good lawyer even when I disagree with him, because I am, I consider, a professionally courteous person. Some others might only wish to consider somebody able, when they are in agreement with each other. I am not like that.

1155 Mr Speaker, the fact is that – and this is the first time, I believe, since the 1950s – that the United Kingdom has put its name, so to speak, to a document that does not draw the distinction in respect of Gibraltar that it has traditionally drawn before. So we consider, Mr Speaker, that just there, there is a huge step forward.

1160 But I have said what I have said to the Chronicle and I stand by every word of it. If the hon. Member just simply wants to come to this House with articles in the newspaper and get me to confirm my quotes, I am quite happy for him to do so.

The hon. Gentleman, Mr Speaker, will know that, at the time that he was Chief Minister, coins were uttered out of the Gibraltar Treasury that referred to Her Majesty the Queen as ‘Elizabeth II, Queen of Gibraltar’, much as she is Elizabeth II, Queen of Australia. So is he saying that, in those coins, he gave 1165 the first hint of a streak of seeking independence that we had not discerned before in him, because they do not say the ‘British Queen of Gibraltar’?

Well, Mr. Speaker, I actually believe it is possible for us to be under the British Crown and not dependent on the United Kingdom, which is exactly what I said before and I know that his recollection may be different –

1170 Hon. P R Caruana: You are not answering the question.

Hon. Chief Minister: I know that his recollection may be different, but luckily we do not rely on it,
Mr Speaker. There is Hansard to show that that is exactly what I said.

1175 Hon. P R Caruana: That is the answer to my question.

Hon. Chief Minister: There is much more that we can read into what Utrecht would say, if we were to allow ourselves to be dragged back to the times when Utrecht fettered our right to self-determination. I invite him, Mr Speaker, to change his chip and to support the Government of Gibraltar in ensuring that 1180 we get the United Kingdom to stick to its ministerial JMC statement, which sets out the position as clearly as it does and to support the Government in taking what we believe is that great step forward. If he does not wish to, Mr Speaker, look so be it – he can answer to future generations of Gibraltarians. It will not be for want of our trying.

1185 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, how precisely does he not understand what I am trying to do? I am trying to see whether there is a position on which we can support the Government. What I am not willing to do is to give the hon. Member a blank cheque for his completely fantastic interpretation of what somebody else said, without that other person meaning what the hon. Member claims it meant.

1190 For a start, the statement that he says is so clear is not couched in the language of self-determination and independence and therefore there is not a statement that Gibraltar has the right to independence.

There is a statement about each having the right to choose whether or not their Territory should remain a British Overseas Territory. That is already a wholly different ball park. Or are we now going to –

1195 Hon. Chief Minister: Would the hon. Member give way?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we are delving almost into debate –

1200 Mr Speaker: Both of you are debating. I have allowed 25 minutes, because it is an important matter, but there is a limit.

1205 Hon Chief Minister: And Mr Speaker, this is the sort of thing that I believe we should be debating by motion, because I think it is not bad that Gibraltar should have a fixed position.

Hon. P R Caruana: I think I may have to bring a motion at the next opportunity.

1210 Hon. Chief Minister: But Mr Speaker, I asked the hon. Gentleman to give way, because he said this was not couched in the language of self-determination. The sentence that we are talking about is caught between two other sentences. The sentence before says this:

‘We share a commitment to the principle [...] of self-determination.’

1215 The sentence afterwards says:

‘Any decision to sever the constitutional link between the UK and a Territory should be on the basis of the clear and constitutionally expressed wish of the people of the Territory.’

1220 So I actually put it to him, Mr Speaker, that it is very much couched in the language of self-determination.

1225 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr. Speaker, I will just say one more thing, because I agree and it is clear that this is now a debate – and it is an important subject, so I will bring a motion just so that the House gets the opportunity to debate it. But, Mr Speaker, the UK has frequently said of itself that it is committed to the principle and right of self-determination, which is all it does here. There are a million quotes like this one!

Hon. Chief Minister: But not in this –

1230 Hon. P R Caruana: But when it applies it to Gibraltar, it does, as it does in the preamble to our Constitution, make the wretched exception. This juxtaposition of sentences:

1235 ‘We are committed to a modern relationship based on partnership and shared values. We share a commitment to the principle and right to self-determination. The people of each Territory have the right to choose whether or not their Territory should remain a British Overseas Territory.’

1240 The fact that the words, ‘except where it is not an option’, which do not arise, unless the word ‘independence’ is included in the sentence, which it is not – without including the word independence, they cannot have the omitted words – does not mean necessarily what the hon. Member says it means.

1245 But look, I want it to mean what the hon. Member says it means! But we have got to do – (Interjection) Yes, Mr Speaker, but what we cannot do is have another four years of building a castle on sand. (Interjection) If the UK genuinely means by this any indication of a change of position, then we should get them to confirm it to us, not build a whole jurisprudence about our future on the basis of a completely... of an interpretation of loose words which, at the very best for the hon. Member, are capable of not meaning what they say.

I am sorry my definition of loyalty and patriotism is not to help the hon. Member fly an unjustifiable kite.

1250 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, his definition of loyalty and patriotism is to pretend that everything that he achieved was great and to try and denigrate everything that anybody else may have achieved. That is patently clear.

If I can just tell him, Mr Speaker, if he reads this carefully, the next sentence is equally important because it says:

1255 'Any decision to sever the constitutional link between the UK and a Territory should be on the basis of the clear and constitutionally expressed wish of the people of the Territory.'

In our Constitution, there is no reference to Utrecht. There might be a reference in something which is outside the Constitution, but not in the Constitution. Somebody who wanted to support the cause of Gibraltarians and take them a step forward would be making that analysis and not the one that he is making.

1265 Hon. P R Caruana: If Mr Speaker will allow me – if not I will wait. I will not... Mr Speaker, even on that, I am trying to be as understanding and as helpful as possible of his interpretation (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) without allowing him to write gospels which are not the case.

Mr Speaker, even on the question of the final sentence that he has just quoted, the language is carefully selected. Any decision to sever the constitutional link between the United Kingdom and a Territory should be on the basis of the clear and constitutionally expressed wish of the people of Gibraltar. (Hon. Chief Minister: Exactly!) Exactly, what the Foreign Office will argue is that the constitutionally expressed wishes of the people of Gibraltar cannot include independence, because our Constitution says that our right to independence is curtailed by the non-availability of independence (Interjections) – or do you think that word is there by chance?

1275 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, our Constitution does not say that. How is it that we can have this debate or this exchange on something this important, Mr Speaker? This, although none of us want independence, is one of the central issues in our politics about the rights of our people. Our Constitution is a document that everyone can see. Some people have problems accessing Hansard: now they can see it on the Parliament website, or they can come here, because it is a public document. The Constitution everyone can check at home tonight. It does not contain what the hon. Gentleman says it contains about our right to independence. It does not.

1280 Mr Speaker: May I now intervene and bring matters to a close.

This is a very important subject. It is a matter that should properly be debated in Parliament, in which other Members of this House would also have an opportunity to participate in the debate. I do not think it is right and proper to abuse the Standing Orders of this House by having a debate following from a question on what is undoubtedly an important issue.

I invite hon. Members to endeavour to bring a motion to the House, have a proper debate, and in the interests of Gibraltar try to arrive at a consensus view. If they can, all well and good and I am prepared to be as liberal as is necessary, but we have had half an hour on this matter and we are moving on to the next question.

Spanish environment site in Gibraltar territorial waters Steps or actions available to seek removal 1295 Clerk: Question 1086, the Hon. P R Caruana. Question 1086.

1300 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister say what steps or actions are available to seek the removal of Spain's designation of a Spanish environment site in our waters?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1305 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government is pursuing various avenues in this respect. I do not believe it is in the public interest that I should at this stage divulge what actions are being considered. I am happy to brief the hon. Member today and to keep him briefed on 'Privy Council' terms in respect of this matter, which is in the national interest and one on which we should be entirely united.

1310 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I accept, on this subject, the briefing on Privy Council terms, but I do not accept the last bit of the statement that we should be united on whatever actions the Government decides it wants to take. It is just that I do not agree with the last statement from the Chair that in the interests of Gibraltar we should try and adopt a consensus position. The important thing is to adopt the correct position and disagreements, as we have often agreed across the floor of this House, disagreements on matters, however important the matter is, are not bad in a democracy; it is good in a democracy. It is much more important to the people of Gibraltar that the Opposition does not support the Government on 1315 the wrong argument than it is in the interests of so-called unity for the Opposition simply to support whatever the Government decides is the right course of action.

That was a philosophy which I used to share when they used to utter it in this House, even though others did not, and I will continue to defend from this side of the House.

1320 But I accept that Privy Council rules for briefing are appropriate, given that obviously it is not in the interests of Gibraltar to expose publicly what action the UK Government or the UK Government may be contemplating, and thereby alert others and make the action less effective or less possible.

So I accept the hon. Member's offer.

1325 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that, I suppose. But it is also very important that when the Government puts the right argument, the Opposition, if it is loyal, should support the Government when those right arguments are put. (Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.) And should those arguments be tested and analysed? Of course they should, Mr Speaker, but when we reach the right conclusion, we would expect, or the people of Gibraltar, in my view, would expect that the Opposition would support the Government.

1330 In fact, Mr Speaker, it was he who used to say, when he was in Government, that having been elected if there was to be unity, it was around the arguments that he used to put. But, Mr Speaker, you know, people will have heard what was said in relation to the former question.

1335 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes Mr Speaker, can I just remind the hon. Member, or will he accept something, that the term 'Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition' alludes to loyalty to Her Majesty, not loyalty to the Government? (Laughter) (A Member: Hear, hear.) This idea that the hon. Member – this theme of the hon. Member this afternoon – that somehow the Opposition is disloyal for challenging the Government on certain matters because they are too important is a figment of the hon. Member's imagination!

1340 The Opposition of Gibraltar will oppose the Government on matters, however important they might be, domestic or external, when we consider that the interests of Gibraltar are not being properly served by their handling by the Government (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Applause) and our loyalty is to Her Majesty the Queen, not to her temporary Government of Gibraltar as it now likes to call itself.

1345 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, no, Mr Speaker, if I might just deal with that, because I think it raises an important point... With your leave – (Laughter and interjections)

1350 I am waiting to hear whether you allow me to carry on, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I would rather we go on to the next question.

1355 Spanish environment site in Gibraltar territorial waters
Legal effects under EU law

Clerk: Question 1087, the Hon. P R Caruana.

1360 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister confirm that the United Kingdom Government has stated to him that all the legal... Mr Speaker, this question is intentionally carefully drafted to be accurate in terms of what can be attributed to the hon. Member.

1365 Can the Chief Minister confirm that the UK Government has stated to him that all the legal effects under EU law of Spain's designation of an environmental protection site in our territorial waters can and will be ignored by the United Kingdom Government and can be ignored by the Gibraltar Government?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1370 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this answer has been carefully drafted to answer the question.

Yes, sir. There could be no other position to take. In fact the UK Government's position has been clearly set out in the recent statement made by the Foreign Secretary in the House of Commons.

1375 The Foreign Secretary repeated that the designation of the Spanish environmental site does not confer any rights on Spain within British Gibraltar Territorial Waters and that the UK Government remains confident of the UK's sovereignty over British Gibraltar Territorial Waters (BGTW).

The Foreign Secretary also stated that it was equally clear to the UK Government that any attempt by a Spanish State vessel, or a vessel acting on behalf of the Spanish State, to exercise jurisdiction within BGTW is a violation of British sovereignty and that the UK Government will respond accordingly and will continue to take whatever action it considers necessary to protect British sovereignty and the interests of Gibraltar, its people and economy.

For the record, Mr Speaker, the European Court has not in any way recognised the Spanish designation as valid – despite repeated assertions to the contrary by Spanish politicians and commentators. All the EU Court did was turn down Gibraltar and the UK's cases on a technicality.

And finally, Mr Speaker, if I may just add this: it appears to me, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman sometimes when he speaks is not holding brief for the people of Gibraltar, but for others, and I would ask him to look back on some of the things he has said today and reconsider his position, because although we are, of course, all loyal to Her Majesty, I think our first loyalty should be to the people who put us here – the people of Gibraltar.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I think it is absolutely shocking and disgusting and typical of the hon. Member's presentational marketing bluster approach to life and to politics for him to stand up in this House to say that I hold a brief other than for the people of Gibraltar.

Mr Speaker, the people of Gibraltar have chosen to elect me to be their Chief Minister on four successive terms. They had no doubt about whose brief I was carrying. It remains to be seen on how many occasions they choose to take the same view of him.

The hon. Member, despite his instincts, should not assume that the interests of Gibraltar coincide with his views or his Government's position or his Government's view on any matter. Indeed, I think the people of Gibraltar think the opposite.

Now, Mr Speaker, so much for his completely uncalled for and outrageous and let me say –

Hon. Chief Minister: [Inaudible] mate!

Hon. P R Caruana: And let me say –

Mr Speaker: I really think hon. Members this afternoon are really getting carried away! May I please ask for a modicum of good sense?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker. I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I –

Mr Speaker: Will they please try to lower the tone of the personal acrimony. It does not serve the House and it does not serve anybody any purpose at all.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not concede and I am sure neither does the Hon. Chief Minister that we have incurred this afternoon in bad sense. In other words, the judge of the good sense of Members of this House is for others to make.

The Hon. Speaker could, if he had wanted to, when he heard the hon. Member attribute effectively treacherous motives to me, have stopped him and said, 'That is a breach of Standing Orders. You cannot impute improper motives to a Member.' He chose not to, leaving it to me to incur his wrath –

Mr Speaker: I will now recess the House for ten minutes.

The House recessed at 4.40 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 5.00 p.m.

Spanish environment site in Gibraltar territorial waters

Question concluded

Clerk: Mr Speaker.

Mr. Speaker: We were on Question 1,087.

Does the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition have, or any other Member of the Opposition side, have any supplementaries?

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes. I accept the Hon. the Chief Minister's invitation to be briefed on Privy Council terms.

Gibraltar territorial waters Freedom to protect

1440

Clerk: Question 1,088 the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

1445

Can the Chief Minister say whether it is the policy of the Government that, in any reconstituted forum of dialogue with Spain, the Gibraltar Government must be free to protect Gibraltar's sovereignty by adopting positions and making statements in relation to co-operation matters and initiatives that protect exclusive British sovereignty and Gibraltar jurisdiction over territorial waters?

1450

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes, sir.

I should add that the Government of Gibraltar remains strongly committed to dialogue as part of the trilateral process and that the United Kingdom has also repeatedly stated that it remains similarly strongly committed to the trilateral process.

1455

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, I asked the question in order that our positions should be clearly known in public and on the record because this is what the Spanish Government means when it accuses me, in the trilateral process, of raising issues of sovereignty. Raising issues of sovereignty.

1460

Why would I want to raise issues of sovereignty with Spain? It is that raising issues of sovereignty took the form of not agreeing to particular forms of co-operation in relation to the waters because they would prejudice exclusive British sovereignty. I think it is important, Mr Speaker, that we agree that no one out there should think that there is any scope for redesigning dialogue, either inside or outside the trilateral forum, in a way that any Gibraltar Government could accept without being free to say, 'That is not acceptable to me because it prejudices British sovereignty.'

1465

I think it is important that this message is heard and that it is understood. Firstly, would he – and I had better convert this into a question – agree with me that the fact that you are not formally discussing sovereignty as an agenda item and that you do not want to speak about it and that your interlocutor does not want to speak to you about it, cannot be an impediment to you adopting positions on co-operation matters, which is wholly different, by invoking the need to protect sovereignty?

1470

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, I have always understood that and that can also be expressed in another way, which is to say that one will not consider any issues of sovereignty in such a process and that, therefore, if something which arises touches and concerns sovereignty, in the same way as you can raise sovereignty in order to ensure that sovereignty is not affected, you can also say, 'Because it touches and concerns sovereignty, I am not prepared to go into it.' (Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.) Those are two sides of the same coin, if he will accept that.

1475

Hon. P R Caruana: I do accept that and when he has said, 'Because it prejudices sovereignty,' the other side cannot say, 'I am going away because he has raised questions of sovereignty.' That is the point, Mr Speaker: that they abuse the raising of the question of sovereignty, based on what is a discussion about co-operation, but in which you have also got to be mindful that co-operation does not become a Trojan horse through which sovereignty is prejudiced.

1480

The reason why I am asking this question is that it is a complete red herring. It is a complete red herring for either of the three parties to the trilateral forum – any of the three parties, by which I mean Spain – to think that they collapsed the trilateral forum for that reason and that any other process of dialogue is viable, quite apart from the trilateral aspect, in which we must not, we cannot, and we would not be free to do exactly the same. Every co-operation on waters which they say are disputed necessarily involves being on your guard and questions of potential sovereignty implications.

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, and what I am asking him to consider and also put for the purposes of the understanding of the position of both sides of the House is that there can be not just a positive veto – and I would interpret what the hon. Gentleman has said as representing the positive veto – but also a negative veto.

1495

Therefore, those who say that they would not engage with the Government of Gibraltar, because their prejudice leads them to say that they do not consider us to be valid interlocutors in respect of the issue of sovereignty, might actually be more comfortable and Gibraltar might be just as protected, if Gibraltar was saying, 'We do not believe that there should be any room to discuss issues of sovereignty in a process where the relevant three sides are represented,' and where co-operation touches and concerns on those issues, where one of the parties is uncomfortable – ourselves being the relevant party in this respect – we 1500 can have a negative veto on the issue. I think that is two sides of the same coin. But it can help, perhaps, to get some people who might be comfortable with the positive veto, because the way that we would express the negative veto would be to say, 'Because it is sovereignty, neither of us believe that we should be engaging with each other on it,' and it may be that issues of co-operation then are not advanceable in some areas.

Draft Ministerial Code Presentation to House

1510 Clerk: Question 1089, the Hon. P R Caruana.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say when he expects to bring to this House the promised Ministerial Code?

1515 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government will shortly start work with the Hansard Society in the United Kingdom to produce a draft Ministerial Code. The work will also produce a draft Parliamentary Code to cover all Parliamentarians and a draft Civil Service Code to cover the work of Civil Servants.

1520 The draft Ministerial Code and the draft Parliamentary Code will be brought to this House for debate. The draft Civil Service Code will be considered with all representative bodies, including the Unions, in the Civil Service Review.

1525 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I asked the hon. Member that because, in a pre-electoral press conference, he said that he had laid it down as one of his first priorities for Government, the drafting and adoption of a Ministerial Code by which all Ministers will have to abide, thereby underpinning the need for real accountability etc, etc.

1530 'If I am elected Chief Minister by our people, I would immediately instruct the drawing up of a draft Ministerial Code to meet the specific requirements of Gibraltar's modern Government.'

1535 Will he accept that, whatever it is that he intends to do now, he has not given the matter the immediacy, the urgency and the priority that he said in his pre-election statement that he would?

1540 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, for this reason, because I have a draft Code on my desk which I am not happy with and that is why we are going to work with the Hansard Society in order to produce a better Code which will be brought to this House for consideration. It is, Mr Speaker, in my view an essential of the modernisation of the work of this House that there should be not just a Ministerial Code, but also a Parliamentary Code, as well as a Code in terms of the modernising of the work that is done by the public sector for Civil Servants.

1545 So, Mr Speaker, I am afraid I will not take the point, but it is an important thing which will be achieved shortly and I hope it will be something on which the House can work constructively when we bring the draft Codes here.

1550 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, given that the hon. Member said, pre-elections, that he was going to do it immediately, if the hon. Members were keeping a list of the electoral promises that they had not complied with, as well as the ones that they have complied with, does he accept that this would be on the first list? In other words, the ones that they have not complied with since, for whatever reason, the priority and immediacy as his first priority for Government has not materialised in that way.

And, secondly, can I ask him if he can put a timetable on this? Are we going to exhaust any sort of more significant part of this legislature of this term before we have a Ministerial Code?

1555 I asked somebody who said it was very important that we should have it. We did not have it because we did not attach to it the same need of priority; but he has given it a lot of priority. Therefore, I would be grateful if he is able to give this House any sort of indication of what he means by 'shortly' in terms of the fruits of the co-operation with the Hansard Society.

1560 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, no. I would not accept that it would be on the wrong side of the balance sheet - on the negative side of the balance sheet - for a number of reasons. First of all, I have told him there is a draft. I just did not consider it an appropriate draft.

Secondly, Mr Speaker, if he wants to look at where it is that we have ticked the boxes from and, perhaps more importantly, he might care to look at the manifesto which was what we put to the people during the course of the Election period, which says this, Mr Speaker, the Ministerial Code on Page 12:

‘We will adopt the Ministerial Code applicable to Her Majesty’s Ministers in the United Kingdom with such modification as may be necessary to adapt for the circumstances of Gibraltar and it will apply to Ministers. A Parliamentary Code will apply to all Members of Parliament.’

There is nothing there, Mr Speaker, to suggest when it would happen. In any event, Mr Speaker, given that I opposed him for many years when he used to tell us that the word ‘soon’ could mean as frequently as outside of the four years that make up one Parliament, then perhaps the word ‘immediately’ can also be interpreted as not necessarily meaning the week after.

But I will tell him this, Mr Speaker, in the hope of finishing this period of Question Time in a more convivial mode, I sincerely hope that we will soon receive the recommendations of the Parliamentary Commission, of which Mr Speaker is Chairman. This is an important part of the work of modernising the work of the Parliament as much as the consideration of the proposals of the Parliamentary Committee will be. I sincerely hope that this will be something that will be done, if not in the first half of the next calendar year then, at the very latest, in the context of the full calendar year next year, in time for it to be done half way through our Parliamentary term at the latest.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can I ask the hon. Member why it should take so long to...

I take his point about quoting from the manifesto. I had made the mistake of relying on this sort of painting the panorama with a wonderful photograph of the then Leader of the Opposition and the then Leader of the Liberal Party, now the Deputy Chief Minister, convened expressly for the purpose of saying that it was one of his first priorities in Government, the drafting and adoption - not just the draft sitting on his desk.

So I am afraid I fell into the trap of thinking that what he tells the electorate outside of his manifesto is also something that the electorate can expect him to deliver on, but now I know that it is only what is in the manifesto that counts and I suppose people will have to remember that.

But can I ask the hon. Member, I am not aware of what the detail of the UK Ministerial Code is and, therefore, I do not know how appropriate or inappropriate it might be in its application to Gibraltar, but can he explain why the application of the UK Ministerial Code to Gibraltar, which is what he has now read out to me from his manifesto as being his manifesto commitment, as opposed to the press conference, why it should take so long? What is there conceptually about the UK Ministerial Code that takes, possibly from now, twelve months, twenty-four from the Election, to modify and tailor make for Gibraltar?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there are a number of aspects of it that we think can be more appropriately worded for Gibraltar.

I am not going to answer the rest of what he addressed because I did hope that we would end this Question Time on a more convivial note! (Interjection) He used to tell us that the things which are conjectured in the Westminster Parliament are not necessarily the best in the world and that we should not just slavishly copy what it is that Westminster does.

Now, Mr Speaker, I will take the example, if he likes, of what it is that is wrong with that Code and why we have not adopted it by comparing it to whatever it was that was wrong with the Environmental Charter, Mr Speaker, where the hon. Gentleman told us repeatedly that he was working very hard on it because it was such an essential document and I remember the Hon. Mr Netto was then the Minister responsible for the Environment. That it was taking a hell of a lot of his time and the time of Mr Netto to ensure that we had a better draft than simply the one that had been adopted by all the Overseas Territories and thankfully, Mr Speaker, there is Hansard to vouch for that. (Interjections)

When it came, Mr Speaker, seven years later – seven years later – one word had changed from the draft adopted for all the other Overseas Territories. I will always remember it, Mr Speaker, as a one-word change and I am delighted on this occasion, Mr Speaker, I am so sure of my ground that I am delighted to take him the Hansard for Christmas so that he can enjoy reading it!

Hon. P R Caruana: No. Mr Speaker, the hon. Member may be able to do that with the Management Plan that followed the Environmental Charter, but the hon. Member must surely remember - if not he can refer to Hansard - (Laughter) that I said in this House that we were going to adopt the same Environmental Charter as the UK but in a way and a time that made it perfectly clear that, because the environment was a constitutional responsibility of the Gibraltar Government, that we were not doing it by directive and compulsion of the UK Government, like all the other Overseas Territories were doing it. In the end, we changed just one word to make it clear, (Laughter) but I explained in this House what we were doing and why we were not doing it in the same way.

1625 The exchange to which he relates and invites us all to go to Hansard in the certain knowledge that nobody will - certainly nobody listening - is in relation to the Management Plan, which did take quite a long time to develop, which is the phase after the Charter.

1630 But the Charter itself was unashamedly to adopt the same standards and priorities as other Overseas Territories, but in a way which reflected the fact that this was our decision, because it was our constitutional competence and not something that the UK could decree in an Overseas Territories Consultative Council [inaudible]. That is how it happened, Mr Speaker, and I will go no further than that so as not to spoil the conviviality which the hon. Member seems keen to end today's proceedings on.

1635 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, all I will say is that we have had a lot of arguments about what is or is not in Hansard. I am so sure of my ground on this one that I will bet him, double or nothing, all the other points of Hansard that have been raised today, because on this one he was explicit. He was explicit as to why we were taking so long, not on the Management Plan but on the Charter, to only see a one word change in respect of the Charter.

1640 I remember saying, Mr Speaker, at the time that even the penguins of the British Antarctic Territory had beaten us to it. But, Mr Speaker, I will leave it at that.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1645 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I ask...–

Mr Speaker: Sorry, I didn't realise ...

1650 Hon. D A Feetham: In relation to the Parliamentary Code that the Hon. the Chief Minister mentioned, does he have drafts in relation to that or is he waiting for the Report from the Committee before he embarks on the drafting of the Parliamentary Code?

1655 Also, whilst he is at it, could he also answer this: will the Opposition be consulted on the drafting of the Parliamentary Code or is it the intention of the Chief Minister to effectively bring a draft Code to Parliament to debate and then consider what views have been expressed and change it in the light of that because in our view – in my view, certainly – the Opposition ought to be consulted pre the debate in Parliament?

1660 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is as much a draft of a Parliamentary Code as there is a Ministerial Code, which has been an adoption of the English version, which I do not think necessarily works.

Remember that the UK Parliament is a Parliament of 650 Members. This is a very different sort of Parliament that works in a very different sort of way. There are no backbenchers here, for example. There are simply Members of Government or Members of Opposition. So all of these issues, Mr Speaker, are relevant to what has been produced. (Interjection)

1665 Mr Speaker, I believe... there aren't today... But there aren't today.

1670 Mr Speaker, I believe it is incumbent on the Government to produce a draft of this and then to debate the issues with the Opposition. I will make sure that all Members of this House have advance copies of the draft as soon as it is available to us and we will receive representations from the Opposition once they have the draft. I believe it is important that those documents be debated and adopted by the House because they are documents, in my view, of the House that will regulate the behaviour of Members of the House and Members of the Executive.

If the hon. Member, when he has received the draft, wants to make any drafting points, wants to make any substantive points, in representations to the Government, then I assure him that they will be considered in good faith.

1675 Hon. P R Caruana: Will the hon. Member just consider in his own time – clearly, there is time for the hon. Member to think about this - that in the UK that is not how it would happen, and I think for good reason.

1680 I think once the Government brings the draft of the document to this House and we debate it in this House, there is a sense in which the Government wants to defend the content of what it brings to the House. Equally, I suppose, there is a sense in which the Government may think that it needs to resist any points that the Opposition makes and, indeed, might consider that the Opposition simply wants to, as he has suggested today, score political points. (Interjection)

Hon. Chief Minister: Would the hon. Member give way?

1685 Hon. P R Caruana: In the UK... Yes.

Hon. Chief Minister: Just for a moment. Perhaps, in setting out my position of what I think the process should be, I have not alighted upon the fact that the Hansard Society, of course, in producing the draft I think will be, rightly, in touch with the Opposition.

1690 That is not an issue that I see being in dispute, but it will be produced for the Government and the Government will then bring it here and there may be issues thereafter. So I do not know whether that deals with the point that the hon. Gentleman is putting.

1695 Hon. P R Caruana: In the UK legislation even, let alone... this would be taken in committee first and it would be scrutinised in a committee in which political input can be had before it gets into the glare of the adversarial environment of the floor of the House. It depends on what we want to do. Clearly, it is a Government proposal; the Government has chosen not to do it by means of a select committee of the House, presumably because it is not a parliamentary thing, it is for the executive and the opposite could have been argued, too.

1700 I do not know whether the hon. Member is willing to say if the Government considered making that project a parliamentary project, as opposed to a Government project, and allow a committee of Parliament to take responsibility. It is part of their manifesto, as we have now said.

1705 Certainly, if the Hansard Society will consult with the Opposition that, in large measure, serves the same purpose as the Government itself consulting; in other words, the Opposition will have a role, an opportunity to express views and influence what eventually reaches the floor of this House, before it is too late.

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is how I see it.

1710 Even in the most convivial moments, I would not put a manifesto commitment or control of delivery of a manifesto commitment in a committee of the Parliament over which the Government would have no control.

Hon. P R Caruana: We did.

1715 Hon. Chief Minister: But that was not an issue that had to be delivered within a particular period of time and a constitution is something well above even the Parliament, Mr Speaker. So I do not necessarily think that a select committee of the Parliament is necessary for something like this. I think that, with the assistance of an entity like the Hansard Society, working as much with the Opposition as with the Government at the consultative stages, as much with Mr Speaker and the Clerk during the consultative stage, I think that that will produce a draft Code.

1720 As I have said, the Members will then be sent the draft, so that they can make representations before it comes to the debate. So I think we may be arguing over something where, perhaps – I do not whether I dare hold myself hostage to this – but perhaps we might all be agreeable, anyway.

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT

1730 Registered unemployed
Number of Moroccan workers

Clerk: Question 1055, the Hon. J J Netto.

1735 Hon. J J Netto: Mr. Speaker, could the Minister for Employment say how many Moroccan workers aged 60 and over are registered unemployed at the Employment Service, broken down by age and length of time as registered unemployed?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1740 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, as at 30th September 2012 the total number of Moroccan workers aged 60 and over registered unemployed was 42.

1745

The breakdown by age is as follows:

1750	Age 60	4
	Age 61	1
	Age 62	12
	Age 63	10
	Age 64	8
1755	Age 66	1
	Age 67	2
	Age 68	1
	Age 69	1
	Age 72	2

1760 The breakdown by length of time registered as unemployed is as follows:

1765	Under 3 months	10
	3 – 6 months	3
	6 – 12 months	7
	12 – 24 months	9
	Over 24 months	13

1770 Future Job Strategy trainees
Permanent jobs; contract terminations; public and private sectors

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1775 Clerk: Question 1056, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr. Speaker, how many Future Job Strategy trainees have found permanent employment in the entity they were placed for training since the scheme began, stating whether they were taken on in the private or the public sector?

1780 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): I will answer this Question together with Questions 1057, 1058 and 1063.

1785 Clerk: Question 1057.

1790 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state as at 30th November 2012, how many Future Job Strategy trainees are placed in the public sector and how many are placed in the private sector?

Clerk: Question 1058.

1795 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please provide brief particulars of the reasons why each Future Job Strategy trainee has had his contract terminated with ETCL, other than the fact that that person has found permanent employment?

Clerk: Question 1063.

1800 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many Future Job Strategy trainees have had their contracts terminated with Employment Training Company Limited since the scheme was introduced, other than for reasons that the trainee in question has found permanent employment, giving a breakdown of whether the trainee was placed in the public or the private sector at the time?

1805 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1810 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, as at 30th November 2012, 54 trainees were employed within the entity that they had been placed for training, eight in the public sector and 46 in the private sector; 178 trainees were placed within the public service and 329 placed within the private sector.

Other than as a result of having obtained employment, 96 ETCL trainees, of which two were in the public service, had their contracts terminated, 62 were at the individual's own request, 20 found not suitable, 12 due to reports of misconduct and two were not offered employment.

1815 Hon. D A Feetham: So, on the last statistic, in relation to the two that were not offered employment, can the Hon. Minister confirm that the training was actually recuperated by ETCL as, in fact, is stated in the contract, with each service provider or training provider?

1820 Hon. J J Bossano: The two employers have been invoiced with the amount and one has confirmed that he will be paying and I am awaiting an answer from the other one and action will be taken if it is not complied with.

1825 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in relation to the question whether individuals or trainees have found permanent employment with the entity that they had been placed for training, I think the answer that he gave me there was that 54 individuals (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) had been found permanent employment and eight in the public sector. (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.)

1830 My recollection of the hon. Member answering my questions about this in the past has been that the whole object of the exercise - despite the fact that we disagree, that this is the way that it was put at election time - was that people would be shifted from the public sector to the private sector, because there was never any guarantee of employment in the public sector and the promise was a guaranteed job in the private sector. Can the Hon. the Minister for Employment please inform this House as to what qualities, what special circumstances, were involved in relation to these eight very lucky individuals that were found permanent employment in the public sector?

1835 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the very lucky individuals were the lucky individuals who were in the Care Agency being trained as carers, which was the group that I have already identified in answer to previous questions, where they are trained as carers to work in the elderly care home and, clearly, there is not another home that they can find jobs in. These people have been trained specifically for that and, consequently, although there is not an agreement in terms of a partnership agreement with a business, 1840 they are recruited in the knowledge that there is a vacancy for them to go to.

1845 Given that the system that was in place before, the hon. Member will remember that, if you were a local, you were asked to have either two GCEs or experience and, if you did not have the two GCEs, you could not get the experience because there was nowhere else to get the experience. As I explained to the hon. Member, the criterion is still two GCEs or experience, but they can get the experience now by going in as a trainee and the reason why there are only eight is because only eight have been there long enough. There will be more than eight, but they will all be in that category.

1850 Hon. D A Feetham: Are we talking about individuals that are specifically training for a qualification relating to care workers, or are we talking about individuals that are effectively placed within Social Services and there is no qualification at the end of the day, that those individuals are taken on within Social Services and then placed within the care worker section within Social Services?

1855 Hon. J J Bossano: They are not in Social Services. These are the individuals - (Interjection) - these individuals are in the Care Agency and, in fact, what they have got is evidence of having worked in a home which is what all the frontier workers that were recruited previously had, when they came with a piece of paper from the other side. They had no qualifications in anything because what was required was either GCEs or experience and what the people here could not get was the experience, unless they went to work in La Linea first and got the piece of paper from there.

1860 Hon D A Feetham: Yes, with respect to the hon. Gentleman, I think that his references to frontier workers are completely irrelevant to the question that I asked him. I would not want the hon. Gentleman, or the people listening to this debate, to come out of this debate with the impression that the hon. Gentleman has something against Spanish workers. I just would not want that at all.

1865 He has not answered my question. (Interjections) He has not answered my question. He has not. No. Perish the thought. Absolutely. He has not answered my question. The question is, is there a qualification at the end of it, that these eight individuals have been trained have a qualification at the end of it for care worker, or is it that these eight individuals are part of a number of people placed within the Care Agency and they are doing on-the-job training and, at the end of the day, the Government decides to take them on as care workers.

1870 Whilst he is at it, could he also answer this? Are these eight individuals just simply doing care worker work, or are they doing something else, as part of their placement with the Care Agency before they were taken on?

1875 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Member thinks I am for or against frontier workers, but we have got a very clear manifesto policy on what we want to do for all the unemployed that are in Gibraltar, as he knows. The position is quite simple. All the care workers that were there in Mount Alvernia before 9th December have no qualifications. What they had was experience of having previously worked in a care home and all the care workers in this group of eight have got the same level of skill that was previously required, before 9th December, but was not obtainable before 9th December, because the previous administration did not give the opportunity to people here to come in with no previous experience and acquire the experience as part of a training programme. The training programme leaves them at the same state of skill that the other carers, that were recruited before, had when they were recruited, which they obtained by working in their home state, in homes, similar to ours, which was not possible here, because there was nowhere else those skills could be obtained within the boundaries of Gibraltar.

1885 It may be that, in future, we will decide to introduce this, since we are talking to City and Guilds about a whole range of different qualifications that the experience they have obtained and the training they have had will enable them to get a piece of paper, but that piece of paper has not been required of anybody working in the home before 9th December.

1890 Hon. D A Feetham: The hon. Gentleman has mentioned frontier. He is the person that has brought it up, Mr Speaker. He has mentioned in the same answer the question of frontier workers and the question of these trainees, so therefore I would ask him to answer this question. Is it the Government's policy to have a situation where, effectively, non-Gibraltar belongers are gradually removed from the Care Agency and replaced by Gibraltar belongers?

1895 I quite understand, and I accept, that it must be the aim of any Government of Gibraltar to get as many of our people in employment as possible. I accept that, but I am asking whether, as a matter of policy, the policy is to remove those that are there now – and I understand some people are there on 11 month contracts that are revolving – and effectively replace them by Gibraltar belongers? Has he received any representations from the Union in relation to this policy by the Government and what is the Government's attitude to that?

1900 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, first of all, I am not responsible for dealing with the unions and I am not responsible for industrial relations, as he knows.

1905 Secondly, the question is about my responsibility as Minister for Employment in relation to training and my responsibility is to get as many of the resident population into these jobs, which was what used to happen before 1996 and then, for some peculiar reason between 1996 and 2011, the previous administration argued, that people either were not interested in that kind of work or were not able to do it. We have already produced eight and we are going to produce many more. Since there is a continuing demand for this work, if we had not put in place this mechanism, all that would have happened would be that that avenue of employment would have been closed to people in Gibraltar, because there was no way, without working in the home, that they could learn how to work in the home, since there is no other one. Therefore, the situation is that we are committed to continuing this level of training and to increasing the number of resident workers. There are many young people interested in learning to do this job and I am very happy that they are, because it proves that the argument that was being used before was not true. They simply did not explore the avenue of the local supply workers.

1915 I need to remind the hon. Member that when I have asked in the past about the reason for having imported workers in this area, I was regularly told that it was only because they were there, as it were, on temporary, renewable contracts, while people were being trained. All the people that are on 11-month contracts and are concerned about the renewal of those contracts are not people who have started work in the last 11 months, but people who were already on 11-month contracts before.

1920 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what I have asked the hon. Gentleman is whether there is a deliberate policy on the part of the Government to effectively remove the workers who are there at present, because they are Spanish or non-Gibraltar belongers, replacing them with Gibraltar belongers. Is that the policy or is it not the policy?

1925 Again, for example, another question he can consider as well, because it is related....

1930 Mr Speaker: Why can we not deal with one question at a time?

Hon. D A Feetham: Because it is related, I think that it would be helpful, but I will sit down if –

Mr Speaker: No, no, fine.

1935 Hon. D A Feetham: Do these eight arise from, for example, new vacancies that have been created by the Government, or is it replacing Spanish workers who have not had their contracts renewed?

1940 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, these people are filling jobs that are there on the complement that the House has voted and the jobs they are filling are the jobs that were empty, otherwise we would not be able to fill them, irrespective of whether the jobs are filled, because there were people before who have left, or there has been an increase in the complement. The reality is that more than eight new jobs have been created in this financial year, if the hon. Member cares to look at the number of carers employed last year and this year. In fact, we need more than eight in order to meet the requirements of the increases as a result, for example, simply of the wards that have been opened in the St Bernard's Hospital, which are part of the Care Agency.

1945 Hon. D A Feetham: My final question in relation to this series of questions: you may recall that we have had a number of exchanges across the floor of this House in relation to the length of contracts of people in the Care Agency. We have questioned the Government about this, the issue of 11-month contracts. Is it the policy of the Government that, where a Spanish national or non-Gibraltar believer serves out his or her 11 months, the Government is not going to renew that contract and will effectively have a situation where that vacancy is then filled in by a Gibraltar believer? Is that the policy?

1950 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not think this is a question that arises from any of the originals. The hon. Member is asking me what has happened to the people who have completed their training in ETCL and now he is asking me is it the policy of the Care Agency to replace their employees with trainees?

1955 I have just told him that there are, at the moment, more than sufficient extra jobs requiring people to be recruited than there are people in the pipeline. So it is a non-issue as far as I am concerned, but, in any event, I am answering as Minister for Employment questions relating to my responsibilities, which are for the trainees that come out of training. All the trainees that are currently – there are many more than eight – completing their training in the next month or two and that figure will be growing substantially and since there is always, in all these outfits, a turnover, what the hon. Member will see is an increasingly resident, predominantly Gibraltar staffed Care Agency, which is what used to be in the past, and what has changed in the last 15 years. We will be moving back to the direction, where these job opportunities will be there for our people that need the jobs.

1960 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I wanted it to be my last supplementary, but the Hon. the Minister for Employment is – and I do not want to be derogatory of the hon. Gentleman – but he is the master of not answering the question and effectively weaving in and out of the dangerous territory that obviously he is treading. He is treading the dangerous territory, not because I asked him the original Question, but because it arises out of an answer he has given me in supplementaries. Therefore, I am entitled to pursue it.

1965 The question is, is it Government policy, is it deliberate Government policy not renewing those 11-month contracts in relation to Spaniards and non-Gibraltar believers, in order that those vacancies can be filled in by Gibraltar believers?

1970 Because we all know, Mr Speaker, that...

Mr Speaker: You have asked the question.

1980 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member clearly has not followed what has been going on in this Parliament in the last 15 years, otherwise he would know that whenever Members of the Opposition ask a question and do not like the answer, what the Government Members used to say from this side, 'Well, look, that is the answer that you are getting. It may not be the answer you want to hear and it may not be the answer you like, but it is the answer you are getting.' And the answer he is getting is that, as Minister for Employment, responsible for the ETCL, which is what the original Question is, I am telling him that the ETCL trainees will be increasingly filling the jobs in Mount Alvernia. As a consequence of that, all the jobs that come out in future will be taken by local people – all of them. There will be no new people coming in, because we do not need them. We have got our own supply of people, willing and able to do that work, and all the jobs that become vacant, either as a result of people leaving, or as a result of the expansion of this service will be taken on by local people.

1985 The only reference that I make to frontier workers is that he seems to be concerned that the locals should be qualified, notwithstanding the fact that the record that he defends is 15 years of taking people from outside, who are not qualified, who were taken simply on the basis that they had experience: and 1995 they produced a letter, showing they had worked previously in the field. That is the only reference I have made, that we are giving people in Gibraltar, for the first time, the same opportunity to get these jobs that people from outside Gibraltar have, because they were being discriminated against previously, since more was being required of them. If he thinks that that gives him the right to question what may or may not happen to people who are now in employment, he can ask it till the cows come home, but I am not going to give him any answers, other than the one I want to give him.

2000

Clerk: Question one thousand and –

Mr Speaker: [Inaudible] you have...

2005

Hon. D A Feetham: Does he not recognise – and he and I share some common values –

Hon. J J Bossano: I hope not! (Laughter)

2010

Hon. D A Feetham: Whether he agrees with that or not, just simply because I do not like the way that he does things, we share some common values. One of those values, as somebody who comes from an ideology that is a centre-left ideology, is not to just simply sack an individual and make that individual unemployed or prevent them from pursuing employment opportunities just simply because they are Spanish nationals or non-Gibraltar belongs. Does he not accept that is entirely wrong to, effectively, have a policy that is dependent on a philosophy that says, simply because you are not a Gibraltar national, despite the fact that you may be the best person for the job, despite the fact that you may be doing your job to the best of your ability and everybody is happy with you, we are not going to be renewing your contract of employment because I want to fill this vacancy with trainees? Does he not accept that, as a matter of principle, that is wrong?

2015

2020

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not accept that he is left of anything, let alone centre-left or left of centre. Therefore, I do not accept that, ideologically, we have anything in common and I do not accept that there is a shred of anything left in him that was common to us when we used to belong to the same party.

2025

Starting from that premise, it is quite obvious to me that he wants to make an issue of something that has not happened and which he claims may happen. When and if it happens, if he wants to bring a censure motion to this House, in that we are being too concerned about protecting jobs for Gibraltarians, he can do it and we can debate it, but I am answering questions to him about what is happening with the trainees who are in the system now.

2030

He chooses to do that to try and pursue a line, which happens to coincide with incorrect views that have been expressed in the Spanish media, which we have made absolutely clear have not got a shadow of truth in them. Therefore, he knows exactly what he is doing and I know what he is doing and the answer is that his question is: do I accept, or do I not accept that something that has not happened would be wrong, if and when it happened? The answer is that he is not entitled to ask that question, because nobody in the Care Agency or anything else has been sacked on grounds of nationality. So his argument is simply in his imagination and in the fiction that is being put out in the public domain. (Applause)

2035

2040

Hon. D A Feetham: Just one more, Mr Speaker, on this series of questions. He says that it is untrue and he questions my motives as to why I ask the question. Well, actually, I ask the question because perhaps I am also aligned to all those workers from the Care Agency, and Mount Alvernia in particular, who last week nearly went on strike, because the Government, it appeared, led by the initiative, by you – sorry, Mr Speaker, by the Minister for Employment – had taken the view that somebody who was there and everybody was happy with them, simply because they were Spanish national, not resident here in Gibraltar, that that person could not have his contract renewed and could not reapply. Indeed, the Chief Minister had to intervene in the situation to prevent industrial action. Is that not correct?

2045

Hon. J J Bossano: It is not correct that I have anything to do with industrial relations or industrial action. Therefore, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is inventing things and then asking me whether they are correct. His inventions are not correct. I have had nothing to do with this, any more than I have to do with a supposed party that excludes Spaniards, on my instructions. That is a complete lie and what the hon. Member is now saying is new to me, is also a complete lie. I have nothing to do with the people who are in employment. I am concerned with the people who are unemployed and the concern that I feel for them clearly is not shared by that side of the House.

2055

Fine, that is evident because, if they did share it, we would not be in a situation, where the level of local participation in the staffing of the Care Agency has been declining year after year after year in the last 15 years.

Level of unemployment and benefit paid
Details from January 2012

Clerk: Question 1059, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2060

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many people were registered unemployed as at 30th November 2012 and on a month-by-month basis since January this year, the number of people in receipt of unemployment benefit?

2065

Clerk: Answer, the hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the number of persons receiving unemployment benefit as at the end of each month, in each of the first three quarters of 2012, was as follows:

2070

January	105
February	127
March	152
April	127
May	127
June	118
July	218
August	223
September	204

2075

2080

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, with respect to the hon. Gentleman, he is more candid with the information he provides the Gibraltar Chronicle, than with the information he is providing this House today.

2085

I asked him for unemployment figures, where people are registered unemployed. The Question is in two parts: 'Can the Minister for Employment please state how many people were registered unemployed' and then the question about receipt of unemployment benefit, because I want to compare one with the other, but he said to the Gibraltar Chronicle that there were 1,000 people unemployed and that was reported in Monday's edition of the Gibraltar Chronicle. Perhaps he did not read it because he was not in Gibraltar.

2090

Can he please provide the figures for registered unemployed in Gibraltar?

Hon. J J Bossano: I think, Mr Speaker, the Question has been interpreted, the hon. Member was asking for the unemployed at 30th November and not for the unemployed on a month-to-month basis since January, which I believe is already public.

2095

Hon. D A Feetham: No, it is not... the unemployed on a monthly basis is not public. What I have asked is, how many people were registered unemployed as at 30th November 2012. As at that date, how many people were registered unemployed and on a month-by-month basis in January this year, the number of people in receipt of unemployment benefit is two separate, effectively –

2100

Hon. J J Bossano: I know.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes. He has given me the second and the hon. Gentleman knows that I have concentrated my public comments on questions of unemployment in relation to receipt of – in fact, not even receipt of unemployment benefits – applications made and accepted, on a month-by-month basis, of unemployment benefit. That does not actually deal with receipt of unemployment benefit, which he has provided. But I have not, actually, I have never asked the question – and I am asking now about registered unemployed as at 30th November. He told Mr Dominique Searle at the Chronicle that there were 1,000 people registered unemployed. That was reported in the Chronicle. Is that a correct figure or is it not?

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, first of all, I have told him that the figure for the fourth quarter will be given in January 2013.

2115

Mr Speaker: No. I am afraid, the hon. Member, you actually omitted that last sentence. I noticed that you had –

Hon. J J Bossano: The fourth quarter will be given in January 2013.

Mr Speaker: He omitted to say, I have it here in the draft answer – the fourth quarter will be given in January 2013. He had the answer, but he omitted to –

2120

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but what is the previous quarter? It is not in the – if the answer is that registered unemployed – and he knows what question I am asking – if the answer is registered unemployed, the figures are made up on a quarterly basis. I am telling him that it is not on the internet, so I do not know what the previous quarter of registered unemployed had been, because it is not on the internet.

2125

What is on the internet, and what I have been using, is applications made and received for unemployment benefit and, on that basis, I have calculated that there must be between 8% and 10% more unemployed, effectively, recently, the last time I made my statement, than there was on 9th December. I suspect there is much more than that. If you do not have the figure for registered unemployed for this last quarter, what is the figure for the last quarter, but you have not given me an answer in relation to that at all.

2130

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has got a Question, which is what is the unemployed on 30th November. The figure for 30th November – which is the one he is asking for – will be given in January, in accordance with the policy adopted by the previous Government and spelt out in answer to Question 443/2007, where the previous administration said that they would only produce the unemployment figures on a quarterly basis. Therefore, since the Question is only asking about November and November is in the fourth quarter, he will get the fourth quarter in January. The second half of the Question has been interpreted by the Department to be limited to the people who are receiving unemployment benefit. (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham)

2135

As far as the numbers unemployed, I can tell him that the figure for the unemployment, from my recollection, is around the same as it has been in the past – in that there is a fluctuation, it tends to go up in the summer months and it oscillates around the figure of 500, who are the people that are registered unemployed. As the hon. Member knows, we have got people who are on social assistance, people who are in training without a job guarantee and we consider all those to be without a job and, consequently, unemployed. So we do not make the distinction between whether they are registered as unemployed, or they are available for work without bothering to register.

2145

The figure of 1,000 is the figure that he was using before the Election and the figure that I have been using since and what I have made clear on a number of occasions in public is that, notwithstanding the fact that the numbers in employment have gone up this year, and the figures are on the internet and I am sure, if the Member looks at the number of residents taken into employment, he will see that, already in 11 months, we have exceeded the numbers employed in 12 months in the preceding year. So, notwithstanding that, the numbers that are still available for work and without a job has not come down, because more people have come and registered. Sometimes, people who have been out of work for a very long time are now registering. Therefore, people on Social Assistance are not registering so, in fact, the registered figure is not coming down, even though the figure in employment is going up. The registered figure still oscillates around the 500 mark. It changes up and down from month to month.

2150

Hon. D A Feetham: I will ask him for all the previous four quarters, which are not on the internet, at the next session of the House.

2160

The Hon. the Chief Minister, when he was the Leader of the Opposition, during his maiden budget speech, said this:

‘The nation has had enough. The nation is let down by a Government that has not known how to resolve the plight –

2165

Mr Speaker: What is the relevance of that?

Hon. D A Feetham: I am going to ask a question. I am asking a question. This is my –

2170

Mr Speaker: It is relevant?

Hon. D A Feetham: Of course, it is relevant. (Mr Speaker: Right.)

2175

‘The nation has had enough. The nation is let down by a Government that has not known how to resolve the plight of almost 400 unemployed. The nation is ready for a change of Government.’

Well, in the light of the fact that unemployment has increased from 400 to 500, is the nation ready for a change of Government or just simply a change of Minister for Employment?

2180 Hon. J J Bossano: Given that I am devoting 84 hours a week to the job, anybody is welcome to take it away from me, Mr Speaker, but I can tell the hon. Member that if he had the smallest shred of being left of centre, as he claims, he would have stood up to welcome the fact that I have told him that we have got more of our Gibraltarians and other residents in employment now, than ever before. He does not seem to welcome that and I have already given him the explanation.

2185 Mr Speaker, the reality is that it is not worth attempting to provide him with information. I have just told him the reason why the unemployment is not going down as one would expect, when employment is going up, is because there are people coming forward that have not worked for years. People that he has been urging me, in the past, to try and help back into employment. I tell him that that is the case and therefore he says, notwithstanding there are more people than ever before, we should change our Minister for Employment. Well, I am afraid he does not have a say on whether I am Minister for Employment or not, but I can tell the hon. Member that all the people who have got jobs since 9th December, I am sure, are grateful for the effort and the hours and the time that I put in and I am committed to ensuring that we keep on bringing down the numbers of people without work, whether they are registered or not and we keep on putting more and more of the residents of Gibraltar into employment and I would have hoped that 2195 he would share that objective, given that when we have this debate, they all say, I am not going to succeed, but they wish it was possible to bring unemployment down to the levels that I want. I believe it is possible and I am going to devote everything that I know and I have learnt in my life to achieving it.

2200

Frontier workers
Nationality of those registered with Employment Service

2205 Clerk: Question 1060, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a breakdown – and you see I am asking a Question so that the hon. Gentleman can provide the answer with the information he really wants to provide me - by nationality of the frontier workers registered with the Employment Service for each month since December 2011?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): The total number of frontier workers registered with the Employment Service since December is as follows:

2215

December 2011	7,910
January 2012	7,690
February 2012	7,566
March 2012	7,460
2220 April 2012	7,413
May 2012	7,268

And that is the lowest figure that it reached, in May.

2225

Hon. D A Feetham: Seven thousand, sorry, can you repeat that -

Hon. J J Bossano: 7,268.

Since May the figure for frontier workers has actually gone up, notwithstanding the fact that they keep on claiming that it is going down.

2230

June, 2012	7,335
July, 2012	7,418
August, 2012	7,481
2235 September, 2012	7,501

and then it went down in October:

October, 2012	7,443
---------------	-------

2240

Then, in November, it has gone up again:

November, 2012 7,461

2245 which shows, in fact, that the market is what decides the demand and not that there is a deliberate policy of removing frontier workers and replacing them. It goes up and down, depending on the demand for work.

Mr Speaker: Would the Hon. Minister notice that there is another sentence at the end of the draft?

2250 Hon. J J Bossano: The nationality, Mr Speaker – which covers almost half of the United Nations – I now hand over to the hon. Member for each month. It would take several hours to read it out!

Hon. D A Feetham: This is all the same question that he asked always. It is in the same format.

MOD employees
Number registered with Employment Service

2265

Clerk: Question... sorry. Question 1061, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2270

Hon. D A Feetham: I think this is answered in a previous question that the Chief Minister has already answered, he has already provided me with, but if you have got the answer separate, I will take it.

Can the Government state what was the number of employees registered with the Employment Service and employed by the MOD at the end of November 2011 and 2012?

2275

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr. Speaker, the total number of employees registered with the Employment Service employed by the MOD in November 2011 was 698 and November 2012 was 598 – a hundred less.

2280

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the hon. Gentleman provide any information as to account for the decrease in exactly 100 employees in the MOD from November 2011 to 2012? Is that to do with casuals, or is it transfers to Government? Is there a reason for that, does he know?

2285

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, there has been a constant decline of numbers, throughout 2011 and throughout this year. We have just taken two specific months and it so happens – by coincidence, I think – that there is exactly 100 less between November and November in that 12-month period, but there have been people taken on into the Government companies that were set up by the previous administration, so some of these people are not actually unemployed. They have not gone from being in the MOD to being registered with the Employment Service, but from being in the MOD to being in the companies that were set up in the case of the generating station and in the other company that was set up and, in some cases, there are people who have taken advantage of the exit packages which have got a cut-off point. In fact, I think, at the moment there are more people wanting to go than the MOD is willing to leave, because the fact that the package is at its most valuable to the individual below a certain age, means that people are keen to go because, in practical terms, in some instances, if they stayed, they are really working for nothing.

2295

Clerk: Question –

2300

Hon. P R Caruana: Would the hon. Member say whether he is familiar – I assume he is – with that element of the global agreements that prevent the MOD from lowering their manpower below a certain level before 2017 and is that being adhered to by both? Is the Government holding the MOD to that agreement?

2305

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes, this is an issue that is relevant to ongoing discussions between me and the MOD and what I should tell him is that, when I was elected and I saw the figure at the end of the schedule 3 of the agreement, at the bottom of the column, which I think from memory was 590 something, I observed that the number had been reduced.

2310

The reduction, on some occasions, was as a result of agreement with the Government of Gibraltar. For example, the totals, I think, there included people who were employed with GMES [Gibraltar Mechanical & Electrical Services Ltd] and, of course, before the Election, GMES people had moved into the wholly owned company also, which is GMES, it is ISGS into GMES etc. I noticed there was a discrepancy, even then, between the number that was left over in the MOD, or should be left over in the MOD, and this was when this question of what is known as the VERS was referred to me –

2315

Hon. P R Caruana: The what?

Hon. Chief Minister: The VERS – the Voluntary Early Redundancy Scheme – which the MOD has been running.

2320

On that issue I have been in contact with the MOD, because they have been letting people go on Voluntary Early Redundancy Schemes who are relevant to the numbers in the columns that add up to the total and then taking people on short-term contracts to 2017. So can I just leave it with him, that this is an issue that has been picked up by us and is live with us, because all those short-term contracts end on the same day in 2017.

2325

Gaming industry
Number and nationality of employees

Clerk: Question 1062, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2330

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government say what is the total number of persons employed in the gaming industry in Gibraltar, giving a breakdown by company and by nationality, showing how many are residents and the dates when the figures apply?

2335

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the total number of persons employed in the gaming industry in Gibraltar, according to the records of the Employment Service – which may not be 100% up to date, because sometimes contracts take time to reach us - as at 30th November was 2,699. Of these, 1,354 are Gibraltar residents.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman has actually caught up (Laughter) with the Government's iPad culture. He certainly has not caught up with the culture of providing schedules across the floor of this House in answer to Questions. May I ask that the hon. Gentleman provides me with a copy of that answer that I may take it away with me for further reading over the weekend. (Laughter) Thank you very much.

Could I, whilst I am at it, wish the hon. Members opposite and, indeed, the entire House and those listening to our proceedings, a very Merry Christmas indeed and a Happy New Year.

WRITTEN ANSWERS

2360 Clerk: With that we come to the end of Answers to Oral Questions.
Answers to Written Questions, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the Answers to Written Questions, numbered W239/2012 to W263/2012 inclusive.

2365 Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn sine die. (Interjections)
Sorry? We are not doing any Bills. Ah! You are doing a Bill. Ah! Sorry? I thought we were not doing Bills; I was not doing my Bills. So, Mr Speaker, I thought I had the honour of adjourning the House sine die, but in fact the Minister for Justice - 2370 Mr Speaker: You still have the honour to move!

Hon. Chief Minister: - asks that I adjourn the adjournment for a few minutes.

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READINGS

Companies, Partnerships and Trusts (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

2380

Clerk: Bills, First and Second Reading.

2385 A Bill for an Act to amend the Companies Act, the Trustees Act and the Partnership Act to make provision for the keeping of proper books of account, the maintenance of records, identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts and the abolition of share warrants to bearer.

The Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2390 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Companies Act, the Trustees Act and the Partnership Act to make provision for the keeping of proper books of account, the maintenance of records, identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts and the abolition of share warrants to bearer be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I really think we should take each Bill separately.

Hon. G H Licudi: It is one Bill.

2395 Mr Speaker: Ah, it is one Bill.

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Companies Act, the Trustees Act and the Partnership Act, to make provision for the keeping of proper books of account, the maintenance of records, identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts and the abolition of share warrants to bearer be read a first time.

2400 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Companies, Partnerships and Trusts (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2012.

2405

Companies, Partnerships and Trusts (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

2410 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

The amendments contained in the Bill will make provision for the keeping of proper books of account, the maintenance of records identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts and the abolition of share warrants to bearer.

2415 These amendments represent Gibraltar's response to the recommendations for change in the Peer Review Report on Gibraltar by the Global Forum of Transparency and Exchange of Information, phase 1, legal and regulatory framework, published in October 2011.

The industry was consulted earlier this year on the recommendations, which were small in number and, in many respects, uncontroversial. These were already best practice and, in any event, a professional responsibility or mandatory under FSC licensing or other obligations. The amendments are designed to ensure that all individuals or entities are caught, not just those licensed by the FSC.

2420 Three responses were received and there was general agreement with the proposed amendments. The amendments (a) create an obligation on all companies, partnerships and trusts to maintain complete records on their accounts and ownership (b) restrict the issues of share warrants to bearer and requires that existing share warrants are registered (c) require that all trusts maintain information on relevant settlors, trustees and beneficiaries.

2425 Mr Speaker, in relation to the amendments to the Companies Act, clause 2(2) defines the proper books of account – the term ‘proper books of account’. The definition currently filed at section 314(2) of the Companies Act has been expanded to incorporate underlying documentation significant to the trade or business of the company, such as contracts or invoices. This definition has been applied to the Companies Act as a whole, creating a single, universal standard of documentation that must be retained in respect of company accounts. As a result of this amendment, the definition in section 314(2) is no longer necessary. It has therefore been repealed, or is proposed to be repealed, by sub-clause (6).

2430 Clause 2(3) imposes a requirement that holders of share warrants to bearer are registered on the Companies Register of Members within a period of nine months from the commencement of the clause. Where a bearer has not been registered in the time limit, rights attached to the relevant warrant will not be exercisable and the company will have committed an offence. The amendment also prevents companies from issuing any new share warrants to bearer.

2435 Sub-clauses (4) and (5) standardise the period for which proper books of account must be retained by companies to five years.

2440 In relation to amendments to the Trustees Act, Mr Speaker, clause 3 of the Bill inserts two new provisions. The new section 61 requires trustees to record the identity of settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts and maintain this information for a period of five years. I would say, for the sake of clarity, that a settlor, although not expressly set out in the Bill, is considered any person who settles any assets into a trust, whether or not that person is actually described as a settlor in the trust documentation.

2445 The new section 62 imposes a duty of trust to maintain proper books of account equivalent to those obligations on companies found under section 170 of the Companies Act. The definition of ‘proper books of account’ corresponds with the proposed amendments to the Companies Act.

Finally, Mr Speaker, in relation to the Partnership Act, clause 4 of the Bill inserts a section into the Partnership Act again imposing an obligation to maintain proper books of account in keeping with the requirements under section 170 of the Companies Act.

2450 Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2455 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, on this occasion Her Majesty’s Loyal Opposition will be loyal to the Government as well as to Her Majesty. (Laughter) I recognise, from the report, that I think had arrived [inaudible] in Government, that these were the things that we were asked to do. It is worth noting that our regime about bearer shares was already a very controlled regime, where they had to be deposited and information – the authorities had to be aware of who the owner was etc, but the Opposition agrees with the Government that this is a very payable price for getting on the... for passing the test in full, so that next time they come round, they will give us credit for having complied with their [inaudible].

We will be supporting the Bill.

2465 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Companies Act, the Trustees Act and the Partnership Act, to make provision for the keeping of proper books of account, the maintenance of records identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts, the abolition of share warrants to bearer, be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2470 Clerk: The Companies, Partnerships and Trusts (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2012.

2475

Companies, Partnerships and Trusts (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2480

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2485

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

International Co-operation (Tax Information) (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act 2009, the hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2495

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act 2009 be read a first time.

2500

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act 2009 be read a first time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The International Co-operation (Tax Information) (Amendment) Act 2012.

2505

International Co-operation (Tax Information) (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

2510

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

This Bill amends the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act 2009, so as to clarify the time periods covered in relation to the provision of information and assistance on taxation matters. In criminal tax matters, information can be requested under the Act in respect of any calendar year beginning on or after 1st January 2004.

In all other specified tax matters, information can be requested under the Act in relation to periods commencing on 1st January following the date of entry into force of the relevant scheduled agreement, or TIEA, or where the scheduled agreement expressly provides otherwise in relation to the periods specified therein. The Bill is in line with the express corresponding provisions contained in the 2002 model agreement on exchange of information on tax matters, that is the OECD model agreement, and the OECD model agreement commentary.

2520

I would add, Mr Speaker, that I am advised that what this Bill does, in fact, reflects the existing practice and this is simply being put into place for the sake of clarity for all those persons who deal with these matters, either professionally or are recipients of requests.

I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act 2009 be read a second time.

2530

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Adjournment

2640 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Yes, Mr Speaker. I do now have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn sine die.

2645 May I take this opportunity to thank all Members of the House for the work that they have done throughout the year. This is the first time that the House has met for 10 meetings for Questions in any one calendar year and offer them all the very best for a Christmas and New Year that I hope will be happy and prosperous for all, though, of course, not politically for Members opposite... I know that they wish the same to us!

2650 Mr Speaker: May I associate myself with the remarks of the Chief Minister and wish all hon. Members and their families a prosperous, happy and peaceful Christmas and all the best for 2013.

I now propose a question, which is that the House do now adjourn sine die.
