I understand that they might want to urge us to do this. They did not do it in their time, Mr Speaker. It was closed for a very long period of time. In fact, it was closed for three years after it was completed in their time. Yes, well, nothing was done with the unit for three years and therefore, Mr Speaker, we will take this as their encouragement that our policy of doing this day centre there is one that they encouraged to such an extent they now adopt it and wish to have it delivered as soon as possible.

Thank you for that backhanded compliment: we are on our way.

Alzheimer & Dementia facility Conversion of former John Mackintosh Wing

Clerk: Question 606, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say who advised on the conversion design and layout of the former John Mackintosh Wing into an Alzheimer & Dementia facility?

1770

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 607 to 609.

1775 Clerk: Question 607.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say when the plans for the conversion project of the former John Mackintosh Wing into an Alzheimer & Dementia facility will be submitted to the DPC?

1780 Clerk: Question 608.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the John Mackintosh Trust has approved the change in design of the new project at the John Mackintosh Wing of the former St Bernard's Hospital?

1785 Clerk: Question 609.

1790 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if building approval has been sought on the works being carried out at the former John Mackintosh Wing and whether it has a certificate of fitness?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1795 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the John Mackintosh Wing will not be an Alzheimer & Dementia facility. It will be a residential facility for frail elderly which will include people with Alzheimer's.

The John Mackintosh Trust has been fully apprised of the developments at the site and the change of plans. The changes have been accepted by the Trust.

1800 A team comprised of Government project managers, Care Agency and GHA management have been involved in the re-design of the layout, the plans have already been submitted to the DPC and Building Control Department.

As with all HMGOG projects, building approval has been sought on the works being carried out. The works are not complete and as such a certificate of fitness cannot yet be issued.

Alzheimer & Dementia facility, former John Mackintosh Wing Advertising vacancies

1810 Clerk: Question 610, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say when the vacancies for the former John Mackintosh Wing Alzheimer & Dementia facility workforce will be advertised and what will be the composition and skill mix?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, when a decision is taken, it will be announced.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes, I understand that when she said that when a decision is taken, it will be announced. Is she saying that there has been no decision as to the composition and skill mix of the workforce or has that decision been taken but the Government really is not in a position to, or does not want to announce it at this stage? Because a considerable amount of work presumably must have gone into, and the Government must have an idea of the composition and skill mix of the workforce needed for this particular facility, I presume.

1825

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the question was in relation to advertisement of the composition and the skill mix and that is the basis on which I formulate my question. Yes of course work has been done in relation to the general number of staff that will be required for this. When you work in these types of environment there are certain ratios that apply depending on the level of dependency of the beds. We have a general idea but it is indeed as the hon. Member said we are not in a position to announce it now.

1830

1835 Hon. D A Feetham: With respect to the hon. Lady the question was, 'will be advertised', and then there was a second part of the question, 'and what will be the composition and skill mix', so effectively it is two questions in one. Hence why I have asked my supplementary. But she has answered it.

TRAFFIC, HOUSING AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

Traffic and parking management Role of Mott MacDonald

Clerk: Question 611, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1850 Hon S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister for Traffic say whether Messrs Mott MacDonald are playing an active role in the management of Gibraltar's traffic and parking in any capacity during the time that the Government awaits preparation of the Sustainable Traffic and Transport Management plan?

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, Mott Macdonald are the Government's appointed consultants, engaged to assist with the development of Gibraltar's Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan. Their role is to provide specialist advice on matters relating to this with the purpose of delivering the plan. This does not mean that they are involved in day-to-day management decisions regarding traffic and parking matters.

1860

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say, having taken notes certainly of what he has just said in his answer, whether any traffic management situation or decision is run by them for any kind of advice or whether that has been the case, since they have been taken on to prepare the plan?

1865

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the traffic consultants are there to develop the plan for Gibraltar. They do not take decisions in that respect; that is taken by other persons, so the reply is no.

1870

Eastern Beach multi-storey car park Details

1875

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic provide more details in relation to the multi-storey parking facility at Eastern Beach, announced as part of the launch of the two housing projects at the Aerial Farm and the current coach park?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

1885 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, in fulfilment of the Government's manifesto commitments to provide 300 parking spaces at Eastern Beach we recently announced that we would be constructing a new multi-storey car park on the site of the existing car park at the entrance to the beach. This will consist of a two-storey structure providing 147 spaces at ground level, 143 at the first level and 150 on the top open deck, thereby providing a total of 440 spaces. Preliminary works will very shortly be starting, with the intention being that completion is achieved prior to the start of the next year's bathing season.

1890 Hon. S M Figueras: I did not quite catch where exactly the multi-storey facility is going to go – in Eastern Beach certainly, but I did not quite get the detail. Perhaps the Minister will be so kind as to repeat it.

1895 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the multi-storey facility will be positioned at the entrance to Eastern Beach.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say whether what he means by ‘at the entrance to Eastern Beach’ is on the east side reclamation bit, at the entrance to the beach, or – ?

1900 Mr Speaker: The existing car park.

Hon. S M Figueras: But, Mr Speaker, there are a number of car parks in the area, hence why I am driving at this point.

1905 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it is actually where the existing small car park is, opposite Latinos on the Beach.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, one more supplementary. Is the Hon. Minister in a position to say to what use it is intended these parkings will be put? (Interjection and laughter)

1910 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the facility is meant to be for parking vehicles! (Laughter)

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, well, guided by the Chief Minister, I could have expected that the answer would be about as helpful as that!

1915 Clearly, I need to be a little more specific as is the pattern that has been developing for some time in respect of even more serious matters than parking.

Perhaps the Minister will indulge me once more and provide me with some information in relation to whether the parking facility will be used exclusively for the use of residents at the new Aerial Farm housing project or whether some of these will be available to the public for use attending the beach or the area. It was information of that nature that I was driving at, Mr Speaker.

1920 I am grateful for the Chief Minister’s interjection.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the housing project at the Aerial Farm will have its own parking so the intention of this new parking is for beach users and general public.

1925 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, one more supplementary. Is it intended that this will be a paying car parking facility or free to Gibraltar residents?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, there will be no charge for use of this car park.

ADJOURNMENT

1935 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow at quarter past nine in the morning.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that the House do now adjourn to tomorrow at 9.15 in the morning.

1940 I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Friday 18th October at 9.15 a.m.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

The House will now adjourn to Friday 18th October at 9.15 a.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

TRAFFIC, HOUSING AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

Parking problems Plans to address

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Friday, 18th October 2013. Answers to Oral Questions continue.
Question 613, the Hon. S M Figueras.

5 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic say what he plans to do to address the daily parking misery for working Gibraltarians?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

10 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Government's Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan will look at parking and include strategies aimed at trying to improve what has traditionally been a problem locally. The general classification of this as a 'misery' by the hon. Member is, however, a matter of opinion as different areas of Gibraltar have different types and levels of problems at different times of the day but what is clear is that any 'misery' which is being experienced stems from long before 9th December 2011 and will likely be relieved 15 (Banging on desks) – where appropriate – by the implementation of the findings of the GSLP/Liberal Government’s Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, since the New Dawn, all that we have heard in the context of traffic is that the Sustainable Traffic and Transport Plan will be the magic pill that solves all the problems. Is it not the case, Mr Speaker, that works on Commonwealth Park have certainly not assisted in dealing with this parking misery?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, on the contrary, if we look at actual parking statistics – if we look at the parking that was lost at the Commonwealth Park, there was a total of 342 spaces lost at the Commonwealth Park, now what happened was that across from the Commonwealth Park provision was made for this and now there are a total of actually 360 so in fact there has been a net gain in parking, (Banging on desks) apart from that there has also been 17 spaces over and above the 360 which have been allocated for pay and display, allowing people who want to go to work or want to go to any of the leisure places along Queensway Quay, for example, can do so.

Hon. S M Figueras: I see, Mr Speaker, yes, indeed, but the fact that the parking has been provided now does not change the fact that Commonwealth Park and the works relating to it have caused significant difficulties for drivers every day. But, Mr Speaker, will the Hon. Minister say whether it is intended to deal with anything to do with traffic to try and address what is a daily parking misery for working Gibraltarians despite what he might say, before Messrs Mott Macdonald provide him with any kind of suggestions or recommendations? (Banging on desks)

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has to realise that yes, the Commonwealth Car Park is under construction but the loss of parking was mitigated. In fact, there has been a net increase in parking spaces – which means to say that obviously it would have been ideal to have had Commonwealth Park and have had the other car park, but that is just not possible. We have got... It is just not possible.

But what has happened is there has been a net increase, so if you compare parking now to before 9th December, there has been an increase in parking spaces.

Now, to the second part, obviously the Government has invested in a consultant which is there for this purpose to give advice as to where we go from here. There are many things that we have already in the pipeline that will happen, (Interjections) but of course, there are loads of things that need to be done which were there before 9th December. I can give you an example, the Trafalgar Interchange was not made with the pedestrian in mind. There is absolutely no concern for the pedestrian. That is something that this Government is very, very conscious of and it is something this Government intends to improve upon and to correct.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, it is interesting that the Minister should today say that the Trafalgar Interchange is one of the GSD initiatives – not surprisingly – that they are seeking to review at some point, when previously in sessions of this House, he has said that that was something that will be decided once the Sustainable Traffic and Transport Plan was created.

But be that as it may, Mr Speaker, what would he say to the suggestion that the reality, post the New Dawn, will be that the park will be on one footprint of prime real estate in Gibraltar and the two levels of parking that were part of their manifesto commitment will now be on two other equally large footprints of prime real estate in Gibraltar?

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Minister does not have to answer that question because he is being asked to express an opinion.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

In relation to parking generally, we heard yesterday, as well, that the new parking that was announced by the beach that was in pursuance of their manifesto commitment for 300 parking spaces will now in fact have 440.

Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how he reconciles all these promises and partial delivery of some parking, a lot of which is needed, with the environmental filter that this Government holds in such apparent high regard?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am not entirely clear what the hon. Gentleman is referring to in terms of the environment. The environment aspect of it – can he be more specific?

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, there is no issue of being more specific. The question was really rather clear and that is how the Minister reconciles the manifesto commitment and partial delivery of all these car parking spaces with the environmental filter that this Government holds in such apparent high regard.

80 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if I may, these things are not mutually exclusive (Laughter) – no absolutely not. (Interjections) The new car parks, for example, will all be fitted with charge points for electric vehicles and we have already led the way in the Government's fleet by having our own hybrid and electric vehicles as we have seen recently, and clearly the increase in parking spaces will help in the day to day.

85 But that does not mean that the Government would carry on encouraging the use of public transport, as we saw yesterday here, that we are looking at a new bus fleet and an increasingly efficient bus service. In fact, it would do us good to have more parking spaces, because then we can use public transport and we can leave our cars parked and not burning fuel.

90 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, it is in fact, it is indeed very interesting, but the bulk of the parking spaces that you are planning to build are in the city centre and that is what is so incongruous and that is what I am asking the Government to reconcile with their environmental filter.

95 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in fact, most of the car parks in the centre of town were actually car parks built by the Members across the floor. They started building Engineer's Lane car park and they started building the Theatre Royal car park . The fact that we decide to build a car park at Queensway is something which we thought was very important, was vital – as you rightly say, because you started this question, saying the misery of local persons. We cannot force people, or put guns to their head and tell them they cannot use their cars. We can actively try to encourage them not to use their cars by way of encouraging use of public transport, improving on public transport, improving on other methods and other ways, but what we cannot tell people, 'You cannot use your cars', and hence you need to have some facility for them to park in town.

105 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how they have improved public transport from what they inherited in December 2011, much as he claims that this is what they should be doing?

The fact of the matter is, Mr Speaker, that we were not the Party with the so-called environmental filter, we were not the Party that offered twice the number of parking spaces on site at Commonwealth Park, and that is the difference between that party on that side of the bench and this party here. (Interjections)

110 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, we across the floor on this side of the House are very aware that it was this party who had the environment close to heart. In fact, one of the only things done by the Members across the floor was, at the very last minute, to get GibiBikes on the road, and the GibiBikes have been... as we have explained, have given us problems from the start. So that was as much as was done for the environment by the previous administration.

115 This Government is clear – no-one can deny the fact that this Government has looked into not only changing the fleet of vehicles; we have started with the new G1, which is a totally electric vehicle. We have got hybrids within the Government fleet. As my colleague explained earlier and as the next question will touch upon, all our car parks have and will have the infrastructure needed to provide electric... The infrastructure for electrical systems will be there, so in future anybody who wishes to buy an electric vehicle or a plug-in hybrid will be able to do so. That is a very positive step for the environment.

120 Mr Speaker: Hon. Members are beginning to debate now. The purpose of Question Time is to elicit information or to press the Government to take a certain line of action, but not to debate different policies.

Electric or hybrid vehicles
Plans for electricity charging bays in local car parks

130 Clerk: Question 614, the Hon. S M Figueras.

135 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic say whether there are any plans for the provision of electricity charging bays in local car parks for the use of electric or hybrid plug-in vehicles?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

140 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, charging points for electric and hybrid plug-in vehicles have been provided in the Engineer's Lane and Arengo's Palace multi-storey car parks. These were not part of the original design but were added to cater for users of said car parks acquiring these types of vehicles in the future. Charging points are also being installed in the new car park currently under construction at South Pavilion.

145 The improvement of air quality is one of the objectives of the Government's Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan and greater use of environmentally friendly vehicles would contribute towards this. The provision of more charging points is therefore something that is being considered for new parking facilities to be developed in the future.

150 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, as a proportion of all the parking spaces that the Minister has referred to in Engineer's Lane and Arengo's Palace and the new car park at South Pavilion Road, is he able to say what proportion of those parking spaces will have facility.

155 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the infrastructure has been laid for the whole parking, so although you cannot see the charging points there and then, and we are not going to place or install expensive charging facilities in all the parking bays when people at this moment in time have not got electric vehicles or have no intention of buying them at the moment, but the actual infrastructure the cabling is there, so in the future if people wish to have an environmentally friendly vehicle, that can be arranged. Suitable sockets can be placed in that parking bay in question.

160 A Member: Hear, hear. (Banging on desks)

165 Government's new housing projects
Charging points for vehicles; tender bids; sales and rentals

Clerk: Question 615, the Hon. S M Figueras.

170 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic say whether provision will be made in any of the new housing estates of electricity charging points for vehicles in the developments' parking areas?

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

175 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 620 and 621.

Clerk: Question 620, the Hon. E J Reyes.

180 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide details of all tender bids received in respect of Government's new housing projects as recently announced?

Clerk: Question 621, the Hon. E J Reyes.

185 Hon E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many houses will be for sale and how many for rental, in respect of Government's new housing projects as recently announced?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

190 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, tenders were invited on 7th December 2012 for the development of the Aerial Farm site for an affordable housing scheme.

Similarly, tenders were invited on 5th February 2013 for the development of the Coach Park site, again for an affordable housing scheme, although in this instance it included one building for rental, for the elderly.

195 Both tenders were evaluated following the principles and requirements set out by EU and Gibraltar Legislation in respect of public procurement. This resulted in the Aerial Farm tender being awarded to GJBS and the Coach Park tender to Casais.

The Aerial Farm affordable housing scheme will be for the sale and this consists of a total of 564 flats, comprising 38 one-bedroom flats, 166 two-bedroom flats, 321 three-bedroom flats and 39 four-bedroom flats. The majority of the flats at the Coach Park site will also be part of the affordable housing scheme. This consists of 380 flats, comprising 65 one-bedroom flats, 143 two-bedroom flats, 152 three-bedroom flats and 20 four-bedroom flats. The 65 one-bedroom flats will be provided for rental for the elderly.

Adequate parking provision will be provided within both estates and this will include the provision of electricity charging points for vehicles.

205 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can I please clarify a little point there? I think the Minister, from my note, said that there were 380 flats being built at the Coach Park and he said the majority would be for sale. Am I right in deducing that other than the 65 for rental, which I think is the amount for the elderly, all the rest remain for sale or some of the remainder that are not for the elderly are also for rental?

210 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes I did say that 380 flats were being built and that the 65 one-bedroom flats which I mentioned will be provided for rental for the elderly, the rest are low cost homes within those estates.

215 Hon. E J Reyes: So Mr Speaker, I still have a minor doubt, other than the 65 rental that seem to be suited for the elderly all the others will be for sale and therefore no rental for those on the general housing waiting list.

220 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as mentioned, there are 65 one-bedroom flats which are provided for rental for the elderly within this estate. It is obviously assumed that many of the persons who intend or who will take over these flats and there is a big demand for these flats, will relinquish their own flats which means to say that we will have an amount of flats which will go back into the housing stock.

225 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.
In respect of Question No. 620, I asked for details of all tender bids received I have not heard that, Mr Speaker.

230 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the details that I have given the hon. Gentleman is that the two tenders one was awarded to GJBS and that was the one at the Aerial Farm and the Coach Park was awarded to Casais. The rest of that information is public knowledge that has already been released. (Interjections)

235 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister please guide me, because I posed the question because I was not able to find it under publicly available documents? What I want is details of all the tenders received not just the name of the successful tenderer. I want to know company XYZ and what the bid was and so on. If it is a public document, can I please be directed in the right location?

Mr Speaker: If the Hon. Minister does not have the information with him, he can try to obtain it and let – 240 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I think just to assist, there are two issues. I think the hon. Member may not have all the detailed information with him, but the practice has been and will continue both under the previous administration and I think historically, since procurement commenced in Gibraltar, by way of tender, that the information given is the information of the successful tenderer and the amount in which they bid and also the number of tenderers who submitted bids. I do not think that we have ever given – and when I say ‘we’, I mean the Government and not necessarily this Government – has ever given the details of who else tendered and what the amounts of their submission for tender was. I do not believe that information has ever been given.

245 In any event, Mr Speaker, whilst we check that – because if it has been given before, I see no reason why it should not be given again, but I believe it is not given – in any event, the hon. Gentleman will know that in European tendering – and both of these were European tenders – there is a period when appeals can be made by those who are not successful and for that period certainly, which we are still in as I understand it, we would not be disclosing the names and amounts of those others who might have submitted tenders.

250 So there are two issues, if you will allow me: first of all, checking whether that is information that is ever disclosed, other than the number of other tenderers; and second, the time when it could be disclosed, when you are dealing with a European tender which may be after the period for filing appeals, etc has passed. I think that time will pass probably by the end of this month. It is a short appeal period of above 30 or 60 days.

260 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker, for that clarification.

Yes, I accept that the Chief Minister would like to check that information. Can I add that, if it is the case that it has not been disclosed before, he may well wish to consider and make that information available now. In fact, I do understand what the Chief Minister is saying, that there has to be a period for appeals and so on. Is the Government at least able to say how many tender bids were received, just as a 265 global figure, whether just one tender or five tenders? How many tender bids were received in respect of each of the projects?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think that there should not be any difficulty telling the hon. Gentleman how many have been received. I do not think that would affect any appeal process, and it may 270 be, Mr Speaker, that we do make the decision, when I go back and check that, even if we... 'we', again, the Governments, not just this Government, but historically, since tender procurement began, do not give out the information in the Parliament, because of course there are commercially sensitive aspects about prices that people may have put up. Some people may have a lower price but they may be disqualified because they failed to comply with part of the tender and that is why their price may be lower, so all sorts 275 of issues like that.

It may be that even if we make the decision that that information cannot be shared across the floor of the House, there may be no difficulty sharing it behind the Speaker's chair, as long as there is a confidentiality accepted and therefore there is not any commercial issue with Members of the Opposition having the information and then sharing it with some of the unsuccessful tenderers. Those are the issues 280 that we can look at.

I am quite happy to go back and check. My feeling is that we have never shared the information and what I will do is, before I sit down, I will give way to the Minister, so that he can give the information if he has it, of the numbers of tenderers who submitted tenders.

285 Mr Speaker, I have given way to the Minister so he can give the number.

Mr Speaker: Does he have the information?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, he has it.

290 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if we look at the Aerial Farm tender, there was a total of seven tenders which were accepted, which were submitted, and for the Coach Park tender site there were 12. Now I must say that it does not necessarily follow that they are 12 different companies or seven different companies, because some companies may choose to make different offers for the same project.

295 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has said that he needs to look at the practice and if the practice in the past has been by the GSD Government that this information has been provided, that the Government will also provide it. I think really that should not really be a consideration. At the end of the day, the Government now makes decisions as to whether to disclose information or not 300 to disclose information. I quite understand, irrespective of what has been the historical practice, that there may be reasons and valid reasons why not to disclose the identity of all of them and I can think of a number of reasons why not to, but that has to stand independently of what the practice has been in the past.

But can I ask him this: have these two successful tenderers been the most economically advantageous tenders that the Government has accepted out of the seven and the 12 – by which I obviously mean that 305 they have come in at a lower price than the others – or have the successful tenderers been, they may not have been the lowest price but there may have been other reasons why the Government has accepted, because I accept, as well, that in some cases, it may well be there may be valid reasons why the Government may accept one tender above another, even though that was not the lowest price tendered.

310 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman should not think that my Government is going to be constrained by the things his Government did. He knows that we have departed from the practice in myriad instances when we think that the practice of the previous administration or administrations has not been the one to follow now – vide monthly meetings of Parliament transmitted live on television and the internet. Where there is a good reason for departing from practice, we depart from it – vide public 315 meetings of the Development and Planning Commission, so that is not going to be the issue.

But where the hon. Members were pursuing, for example, a policy of previous administrations themselves, when they were in Government – and I say plural, because as I have indicated this may be a practice going back to 1977 when the Procurement Act was first introduced – then there may be a very 320 good reason for that. That is why I do not want to depart from that practice without understanding what the reasoning was.

If it was just – he really goads me to say this – the secretive practice of the GSD Government from 1996 to 2011, well look, that is not going to be a reason for us to continue with the practice; but if this is something, as I suspect, that comes from the beginning of public procurement in Gibraltar for competitive reasons in the market, where you do not necessarily want to show other people’s prices to the whole of the market, then that practice is going to continue.

325 That is why I have opened the door slightly ajar to the possibility of sharing information with Members of the Opposition and not necessarily sharing it across the floor of the House, which is another possibility which I am not committing myself to because I would have to understand whether that would have the effect of opening more widely the sharing of information.

330 Mr Speaker, in terms of whether these were the economically most advantageous tenders that were submitted, well look, Mr Speaker, I consider that they certainly would have been, without even looking at the prices, because that is what the criteria established by the tender boards, when tenders are put out, set out to achieve. That does not necessarily mean that the cheapest of the submissions is the one that is chosen, because that may not be the economically most advantageous.

335 You could have, for example, and the Hon. Mr Balban has pointed out that more than one submission has been filed in some instances by the same entity. So you could have a submission from one entity that offers to build  $x$  which would produce a price of an amount per square metre, or another submission from the same entity or another entity that offers to build so much and that produces another price per square metre. You look at them and the price of one is higher than the price of the other on the face of it. This might be £5 million more than this but you get many more square metres for the extra £5 million. So if you work it out per square metre, is that economically more advantageous?

340 The type of construction, the standard of finish proposed, all of those things can affect what you might call the bottom-line price, which may be higher in one instance than in another, but still the higher price might be economically more advantageous, because you get, as I said yesterday in relation to another question, more bang for your buck, even though you are paying more up front. So all of those things are what makes up the tender criteria and it is designed to deliver in effect the best value for money for the taxpayer and in each instance, of course, the Government would not have proceeded with anything other than the best value for money for the taxpayer.

350 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, of course I could be forgiven for the comments that I made in preamble to my question because, of late, the Government, Cordoba, the Constitution, the Tripartite talks has been quite keen on taking GSD clothes and adopting GSD policy, but Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister perhaps help us as to whether the price at which these tenders came in were the cheapest, and if they were not the cheapest, can he give us an explanation, a reason why the Government preferred these two tenders above the other tenders? Why they were more economically advantageous to the Government, in the Government’s view?

360 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I am not going to provide that sort of information at this stage because I am going to go back and check what the practice was. Because even by disclosing whether these are or are not the cheaper, I may be offending that practice which was a GSD practice which I now appear to be offending and I want to understand what the rationale behind that was, before I decide to change it in any way. Even if I am just going to be saying that they were the cheapest or they were not the cheapest, but look, certainly by the next House, I will have had the chance to check, so if he asks then, we can be in a position to share that information, if it is shareable or otherwise.

365 But, Mr Speaker, the reasoning I have already explained, in the event that these were not the cheapest bottom line figures, then they will certainly have been the most economically advantageous for the Government and therefore the most value for money for the taxpayer.

370 He was involved, I assume, in tendering when he was dealing with the Courts development, which, having checked, actually went up from £7 million-odd to £12 million. He is shaking his head. If that did not go out to tender, then perhaps he has some questions to answer about that. But anyway, Mr Speaker, it is always about getting the best value for the taxpayer and there is no question of us doing it in any other way.

375 Finally, Mr Speaker, it is true that the hon. Gentleman has spent the better part of the last two weeks putting foot directly in mouth in respect of a number of different issues, one of them relating to the Government’s attitude to the constitution, another the Government’s attitude to the Cordoba process and the Tripartite Forum. He does not seem to understand the fine differences between us and them on those issues and our attitudes.

Perhaps I can illustrate it to him in a way that is stark enough that even he will understand. We will never adopt the previous Government’s policy on an Andorra style solution.

380 Mr Speaker: Does the Chief Minister feel that it is really necessary – we are dealing with questions on housing and electricity parking points – to go into the whole question of the tripartite process?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I apologise for having fallen into the trap laid for me so blatantly by the Leader of the Opposition who did feel that it was necessary to talk about Cordoba, the tripartite and the constitution when dealing with housing, I will not let it happen again. Thank you so much for pulling me up on it.

Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Mr Figueras have any supplementary?

390 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, I have looked quickly at the press release in relation to the housing development and if I have missed it, I do apologise, but is there a contract timeframe, contract date or is there an estimate of when the housing projects are expected will be completed?

395 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the plan is that these housing estates will be finished before the next election, so as to be able to deliver on our manifesto commitment.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, if I can come back to what I was asking in 620 and 621. The Minister provided me with information that he said he could provide at that moment in respect of the Aerial Farm and the Coach Park developments. However, there is no reference to another recently announced Government housing project which is that around the Europort Avenue area which I have a figure that it was awarded for £8.9 million to build 72 flats, but the Minister has not told me whether those are going to be for rental and for sale and so on.

405 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the estate which was actually mentioned in the press release issued yesterday, that is an estate which is for rent, Government rental and it is Government rental for the elderly.

410 Hon. E J Reyes: I am much obliged, Mr Speaker, because the press release did not say whether they were for sale or for rental. It did mention the elderly but the elderly are entitled to purchase, I suppose.

Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing Details of review

415 Clerk: Question 616, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 331/2013, can the Minister for Housing now provide this House with details of the comprehensive review which Government is undertaking of the Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

425 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, as previously advised, the internal report was passed to Cabinet and is still under consideration.

Hon. E J Reyes: Does the Minister at this stage have any idea when that consideration will be concluded?

430 Hon. P J Balban: No, Mr Speaker.

Mid Harbours Estate Non-compliance of house rules

435 Clerk: Question 617, the Hon. E J Reyes.

440 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer provided to Question No. 472/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide details of actions taken in order to curtail non-compliance of house rules at Mid Harbours Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

445 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, further to my answer to Question 472/2013, I am pleased to inform the following: the tender for the CCTV cameras has already been awarded and works for the installation are due to commence.

The installation of barriers at the entrance and exit points of the garage are also at an advanced stage. The tender for these has also been awarded and works are ongoing.

450 We continue to work closely with the RGP who are patrolling the area.

Hon. E J Reyes: And in respect of, if I understood it correctly, the CCTV cameras, the tenders have been received, so can the Minister confirm that it is still undergoing the tender analysis process? In respect of the barriers, he says that the works are at an advanced stage. Can he therefore say how much the tender was awarded for and to whom?

Mr Speaker: Strictly speaking, I do not think that the details about the work, the tender arise from the original question, which is to provide the House with details of actions taken in order to curtail non-compliance. That question has been answered. In the process of answering, there has been mention of a tender but that does not arise from the original question.

460 Hon. E J Reyes: I accept that.

Mr Speaker: However, if the Minister has the information at hand and he wishes to provide it, by all means.

Hon. E J Reyes: That was my intention, Mr Speaker, I accept that it is stretching it a bit, but the Minister may well happen to have the information and it saves us a question next month and it saves the whole of Gibraltar waiting another month just to hear information that he may well have at hand and he may have no problems in providing it.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, both of the tenders were awarded. The information I have with me at the moment is that the successful tenderer for the CCTV cameras was Sheriff, and that is as much information I have with me at the moment, Mr Speaker.

475 Hon. E J Reyes: I accept that, Mr Speaker, and thank you for allowing me the liberty and obviously you will hint at me very strongly that I pose then the worded question for next month's issue, so the Minister even has advanced notice of what I intend to seek next month.

480 Hon. P J Balban: Yes, if the hon. Gentlemen would like to pose the question for the next session of Parliament, I would be happy to provide him with the information requested.

485 Making empty homes suitable for re-allocation
Expenditure incurred

Clerk: Question 618, the Hon. E J Reyes.

490 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide updated details in respect of expenditure incurred since the answer to Question 532/2013 in respect of contracts awarded for making empty homes suitable for re-allocation, stating to whom payments were made, how much has been paid, the number of residential homes pertaining to each payment as well as indicating if the services contracted were for repairs or cleaning?

495 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

Answer to Question 618

Contractors	Aug-13	Sep-13	No. of Properties
Base Maintenance Services		£4,847.00	1
Garcia & Perez Construction Co Ltd		£10,800.00	1
L Luz Property Services Ltd	£6,453.00		1
On The Level Ltd		£15,756.00	1
W&N Works Ltd		£20,200.00	1

ALL SERVICES CONTRACTED WERE FOR REPAIRS
NONE WERE FOR CLEANING

500 Hon. E J Reyes: This is fine, Mr Speaker. I take the opportunity as well to thank the Minister, because in the last question session, we managed to get, at long last, the right formula of what I was seeking and so on, and I see it has been replicated again this month. I am extremely grateful, as this then allows me not to have to present any supplementaries, so I hope we keep to this format for the future as well.

Government rental homes
Details of repairs

510 Clerk: Question 619, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of rental homes assigned since the answer to Question 533/2013, indicating how many will be repaired by (a) the Housing Works Agency; (b) sub-contractors; and (c) the assigned tenants themselves?

515 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

520 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since the answer given to Question 533/2013, 15 flats have been assigned. The repairs are to be undertaken by the following: (a) Housing and Works Agency – 2; (b) sub-contractors – 12; (c) the assigned tenants themselves – 1.

Government rental homes
Repairs undertaken to lifts

Clerk: Question 622, the Hon. E J Reyes.

530 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of all repairs undertaken to lifts servicing Government rental homes since the answer to Written Question 94/2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

535 Mr Speaker: Now, this is a rather lengthy schedule, so I would suggest that we move on to the next question in the meantime.

540 Decanting of tenants
Provision of details

Clerk: Question 623, the Hon. E J Reyes.

545 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting from their homes, since the answer to Written Question 95/2013, indicating the reason why, the date when said decanting became necessary and the date when tenants were able to return to their home?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

550 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 623

A total of three tenants have required urgent decanting. The reasons why, the dates when said decanting became necessary and the dates when these tenants were able to return to their homes, is as follows:

	Reason	Date decanting became necessary	Date when tenant returned home
Tenant 1	Flooding	08/08/13	09/08/13
Tenant 2	Fire at premises	16/07/13	Works ongoing
Tenant 3	Refurbishment/works	30/09/13	Works ongoing

Mr Speaker: This is rather shorter and I will allow the Hon. Mr Reyes or any other Member to ask any supplementaries arising from the two schedules.

555 Hon. E J Reyes: If I may, Mr Speaker, in respect of tenant number 2 that required the decanting due to a fire at the premises, that seems to have happened towards the end of July and the works are on-going. Does the Minister have by chance any sort of information whether these repair works will be concluded relatively soon, or will it be a case as unfortunately has happened in the past, where he had to eventually re-allocate the house on a permanent basis because the damage was so extensive? Does he have any 560 indication at this stage whether it is work in progress or it seems to have been such a major thing that the tenants may have well been moved out on a permanent basis?

565 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, with great fear of actually giving a timescale, I did ask that question to my members of staff and they said that they were of the opinion that these works were due to finish next week. Again, that is what they told me.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker, that is good enough.

570 What may have to happen, Mr Speaker, is that if I do pose this question again in the future, although the information has been provided to me of when the decanting was necessary and so on, because I also say the dates when the tenants were able to be sent back home.

575 Perhaps in a future answer, if it does end up being a schedule, like tends to happen on most occasions, once the works have been completed and the tenant has been able to move back home, perhaps the Minister can ask his staff to ensure that that is included in the schedule and in that way we actually have an audit trail of the date of decanting and when they [inaudible] get back. It is more of an admin matter that I would like his staff to take into account. With plenty of notice, I think that would not cause a major headache and I am sure the Minister will be able to oblige.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, I am happy to oblige with that request.

Residential homes
Number allocated and assigned

585 Clerk: Question 624, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing say how many residential homes have, since the answer to Written Question 96/2013 been (a) allocated and (b) assigned, showing the room composition of the respective homes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since the answer to the Written Question 96/2013, 55 flats have been allocated and assigned as follows.

Allocated: 1RKB, 6 in number; 2RKB, 14; 3RKB 13; 4RKB, 7; 5RKB, 0; 6RKB, 0. That is a total of 40 flats allocated.

As to assigned, we have 1RKB, 0; 2RKB, 8; 3RKB 4; 4RKB, 2; 5RKB, 1; and 6RKB, 0. That provides us with a total of 15 assigned.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

FINANCIAL SERVICES AND GAMING

Gibraltar as a pensions domicile
Results yielded

Clerk: Question 625, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services say whether, further to statements made by his colleague, the Hon. Gilbert Licudi, formerly Minister for Financial Services, during his Budget address in June this year, the 'increased interest' in Gibraltar as a pensions domicile has yielded results?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services and Gaming.

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Income Tax Office has to date approved a total of 201 member QROPS in Gibraltar. We have strong indications that this number is set to multiply in the very near future.

I can report that HMRC publishes a list of QROPS schemes on a monthly basis. This is a list of pension schemes that have notified HMRC that they meet the conditions to be a Qualified Recognised Overseas Pension Scheme (QROPS) and asked to be publicly listed.

At the beginning of September 2012, there were 10 such Gibraltar schemes publicly listed, whilst the current list has 23 Gibraltar schemes. Therefore the number of publicly listed schemes has more than doubled in the last 12 months as a result of increased QROPS activity and ahead of a further expected increase in Gibraltar QROPS business.

I would therefore like to take this opportunity, Mr Speaker to congratulate my predecessor the Hon. Mr Gilbert Licudi on his work whilst Minister for Financial Services in carving out (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) a new and increasingly interesting area of our sector.

New marketing management system
Further details

Clerk: Question 626, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services provide this House with further details of the 'new marketing management system being introduced to manage more efficiently, the wealth of contacts that have been established over time and ensure that this area delivers effective results', and supports the Government's 'drive to increase direct marketing activity', as referred to in the Budget address on Financial Services in June this year?

645 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services and Gaming.

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, the Finance Centre Department has been piloting its direct electronic marketing via a system called 'Mail Chimp'. Mail Chimp is an e-mail marketing service provider and is used globally. Mail Chimp presently holds one of the Finance Centre Department's databases made up entirely of e-mail addresses that are segmented geographically and by industry segment.

655 The system has enjoyed a reasonable rate of success and is used in parallel to hard copy marketing Facebook and Twitter. The initiative has been managed by Paul Astengo in conjunction with the other members of the Finance Centre team and has been welcomed by the industry.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for the answer.

660 One question that comes to mind as a result of the answer is whether there are any data protection issues that arise from the use of a service like Mail Chimp. I do not know where the service is located. I do recognise the name and the service, but I wonder whether there are any issues that arise from the use of that system or whether the Minister is satisfied that all the relevant controls and certification are in place from that provider, to his satisfaction?

665 Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, my understanding is that there is not an issue. An awful lot of the information there has been put on by the Finance Centre Team themselves in terms of expanding their own database. A push is on at this moment in time to further that by contacting people around the world who are linked to Gibraltar in Financial Services who wish to receive information and are consequently put on the database and receive the information that is regularly passed through on developments in Gibraltar in relation to Financial Services.

Experienced Investor Fund Regulations Results yielded from recent changes; establishment or re-domiciliation of funds

675 Clerk: Question 627, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services say whether recent changes to the Experienced Investor Fund Regulations have yielded results for the local funds industry in the context of the establishment or re-domiciliation of funds to Gibraltar, contracting or retaining the use of 'reputable and substantial administrators based in jurisdictions of equivalent standing to Gibraltar'?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services and Gaming.

685 Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, there have been no EIFs registered with an external fund administrator during the period since the implementation of the EIF Regulations on 12th April 2012.

690 According to the FSC website, three External Fund Administrators have been approved – which are: Credit Suisse Fund Services (Luxembourg) SA; Société Générale Securities Services; SGSS (Ireland) Limited; and Swiss Financial Services (Ireland) Limited – since the new regulations were introduced in April of last year.

A further two applications for approval from a fund administrator outside of Gibraltar are currently pending consideration.

The sector believes that the new approved administrations will unquestionably lead to further activity for our local funds industry.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the regulations came in some time ago and whilst certainly, in certain respects in this industry some things do not move as quickly as we might otherwise hope. Is the Minister able to say or provide us with his insight as to why perhaps, if there are any specific explanations, this might not have yielded results yet in that respect?

700

Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, for an external fund administrator to come to Gibraltar, requires a certain degree of planning before that decision is taken. That decision will only be taken when they believe there to be sufficient interest in that business for them to locate to Gibraltar by being licensed here.

705 Subsequent to that, an application requires to be made to the Financial Services Commission, there is a process there. So I do not believe the five and possibly six companies that are registering in Gibraltar external fund administrators are doing so for the fun of it. There is a time element, there is a cost element and I therefore believe that what the current ones that have registered are preparing for is to begin to use Gibraltar as a funds jurisdiction which I believe is what we and the entire industry wishes to happen, and I believe it will.

Gibraltar as a Trusts jurisdiction
Proposals for legislation

Clerk: Question 628, the Hon. S M Figueras.

720

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services say when proposals for legislation introducing anti-forced heirship rules, changes to the perpetuity period, private trust companies, purpose trusts and foundations can be expected to be brought before this House as part of the on-going process of making Gibraltar a more competitive and attractive Trusts jurisdiction?

725

730

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, we are progressing the various pieces of legislation and each is at a different stage of the required process. It is expected, subject to any unforeseen issues arising, that all the named legislation will be in force at different stages but not later than the end of the first quarter of 2014.

For the avoidance of doubt, all this type of legislation will be OECD compliant from a transparency and availability of information point of view.

I would therefore expect these pieces of legislation to be brought before this House over the next few months.

Hon. S M Figueras: In terms of consultation, Mr Speaker, can the Minister say which entities bodies have been involved in that process with the Government, if any at all, and I am certainly aware that there are a couple at least?

745

Hon. A J Isola: As I am sure my hon. learned Friend will know, these pieces of legislation, the specific ones that he has referred to, were proposed by STEP and we have obviously been working very closely with STEP in respect of this legislation. I have met with them myself as well as, of course, has my predecessor met with them in the intervening period.

750

These proposals were made in May 2010 when the first request was made for this legislation to be passed through and although STEP is the principal mover of this legislation, in terms of making the suggestions and proposals to Government, we have also discussed this with the Finance Centre Council who represents, in effect, all the players in the Financial Services Sector, combined in that one unit. This was discussed as recently as last week, when I updated them on the progress that we have.

EDUCATION, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

Gibraltar Court Service
Vacant posts; steps to fill these

Clerk: Question 629, the Hon. S M Figueras.

760

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Justice confirm the number of vacant posts at the Gibraltar Court Service and the steps if any, being taken to fill these?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

765 Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the number of vacant posts at the Gibraltar Court Service are as follows: three Executive Officers; one Administrative Officer; and one Bailiff.

770 A notice inviting applications for the posts of Executive Officers was issued on 5th October 2013. The closing date for applications is 21st October 2013. The post of Bailiff was advertised internally but there were no suitable candidates from within the service. The vacancy was further advertised on 8th October to Government owned companies as well as to Government agencies and authorities. The closing date for applications was 15th October 2013. The recruitment process for Administrative Officers has not yet commenced.

Gibraltar Court Service
Replacement of CEO

780

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Justice say what if any plans the Government has for the replacement of the recently departed CEO of the Gibraltar Court Service?

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government's current intention is to abolish the post of Chief Executive Officer of the Gibraltar Court Service. Pending final arrangements on the management structure at the Gibraltar Court Service, a senior Executive Officer is acting as CEO.

790

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for the answer. Would it be possible for the Minister to provide us with some insight as to the Government's thinking in this respect and not replacing the CEO?

795

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker. I do not want to delve into areas of speculation or hypothesis as to what may happen. That is why I say this is our current intention. The present Chief Executive Officer – because he is still in post in fact until the end of October, although he is on leave – Mr Davies who is incumbent, he is on leave as from 4th October – he is still holding the post until the end of October.

800

He was brought in on a three-year contract to do a specific job by the former Minister for Justice, in particular, to do with the structural works that were involved as well as organisational issues. By and large the job that he was brought in to do has been completed. The works have been completed, part of the re-organisation has been done, there is still ongoing work on some internal issues, internet services and IT issues and some things still need to be done and clearly there is on-going work.

805

The Government felt that it was not necessary to continue with an externally appointed CEO on a contract basis. Therefore, the Government's position is that there should be a management structure which will still have a head in the form of probably a senior officer of the Government, so the numbers will not change. It is just that the CEO or the person heading or managing the Court Service ultimately will not be a contracted officer; it will be a permanently based officer at the Gibraltar Court Service.

810

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, before I ask my question, may I on behalf certainly of this side of the House thank Mr Davies for the work that he has done over the last three years. I personally was instrumental in bringing him over, I know the size of the task that he had when he took over. It was a very, very difficult job in terms of combining the structures of the Magistrates' Court and the Supreme Court, which were two separate entities both in terms of courts but also in terms of management and how they were run into an integrated Court Service.

I believe that as a consequence of the job that he has done, together of course with the staff underneath him, the people that were there and have been there for many, many years that the service today is much better than the service that it was three years ago. I talk only for this side of the House, because of course I cannot presume to talk on behalf of the Government in relation to this.

But as I understand it, effectively what the Government is doing is just simply doing away with the post of CEO and replacing it with a senior officer, so that it becomes effectively just simply a Civil Service structure, because of course you can have a locally appointed CEO, for example, to head or you can have somebody from the Civil Service that is also appointed CEO. But as I understand it, really, other than the nomenclature of it, the structure is going to remain more or less the same. There is going to be a 825 head, presumably two SEOs underneath it, which is the position today. Can he just clarify that? That is my understanding of it.

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker, before I answer the question and dealing with the first part of what the hon. Member has said, the Government certainly acknowledges the work that Mr Davies has done over the last three years and I have in fact, written to him and thanked him for what he has done for the Gibraltar Court Service in the last three years.

830 But the hon. Member is exactly right: the structure will remain as it is. There may be a change in the role and the name, but it will not be a contracted officer. It will be more of a permanent structure, but the structure in terms of management will remain the same. We have not made those final arrangements yet and that is why I said the Government's current intention is to do that. But certainly, we will see no
835 reduction in numbers and there will still be a head of the Gibraltar Court Service, managing and taking responsibility for the Court Service.

GCSE and post-GCSE education
Student numbers, gender, educational establishments

Clerk: Question 633, the Hon. E J Reyes.

845 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details in respect of the number of students, broken down by gender, who are repeating subjects pertaining to GCSEs which they sat examinations for at the end of the academic year 2012-13, indicating at which educational establishment they are currently receiving revision tuition?

850 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 634/2013 and 635/2013.

855 Clerk: Question 634.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details in respect of the number of pupils who sat GCSE examinations, broken down by gender and educational establishment where they received full-time education at the end of the academic year 2012-13?

860 Clerk: Question 635.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details of how many students have enrolled for post-GCSE education in Year 12 or equivalent, for the academic year 2013-14, broken down by gender and educational establishment?

865 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the 870 information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule which I now hand to him.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION 635 of 2013

Answer to Q 633 of 2013

The details of the number of students, broken down by gender, who are repeating subjects pertaining to GCSEs at the end of the academic year 2012/2013 are as follows:

Bayside School		Westside School		Gibraltar College
Boys	Girls	Boys	Girls	Boys	Girls

Answer to Q 634 of 2013

The number of students who sat GCSEs at the end of the academic year 2012/2013 are as follows:

Bayside School		Westside School		Gibraltar College
Boys	Girls	Boys	Girls	Boys	Girls
192	0	0	240	75	56

Answer to Q 635 of 2013

The details of how many students have enrolled for post GCSE education in Year 12 (or equivalent) for the academic year 2013/2014 is listed below:

Bayside School		Westside School		Gibraltar College
119	4	0	136	62	36

Mr Speaker: On conclusion of the supplementaries to these questions, we are going to have a short recess of about 10 minutes while some paperwork is being done in connection with the motions which the Chief Minister proposes to introduce regarding appointing the Select Committee.

875 Hon. E J Reyes: Can I ask the Minister, it could be a little bit of just a typographical error, but in the schedule to reply, in his answer to Question 633, it says:

‘the details of the number of students, broken down by gender’

880 – which is what I requested –

‘who are repeating subjects pertaining to GCSEs at the end of the academic year 2012-13...’

885 Can I just clarify that is those who did the GCSEs in academic year 2012-13 and are taking it under the academic year 2013-14. Is that correct? I am being pedantic in nomenclature, but I want to get it right.

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is entirely right. These are GCSEs which were taken at the end of last year and are now being repeated.

890 I should say that these boys and girls are not just repeating the ones that they have chosen to repeat which they did at the end of the academic year 2012-13. The repeat programme in each school involves a package which involves some of the subjects they did and sometimes involves one or two extra subjects.

895 With regard to the figures, the most important innovation in terms of previous years in those figures is of course Bayside School, where previous years the answer would have been zero boys and zero girls and we have introduced, as the hon. Member knows, the possibility of making sure that boys and girls have the same opportunities, regardless of which school they go to. Therefore the repeat option is now available in Bayside School, when in previous years, the hon. Member knows it was not.

900 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that and I just want to inform the Minister that I concur wholeheartedly with what he said. It is a very welcome innovation. Obviously that figure of 18 boys under Bayside would probably have been slightly lower and would have appeared under the column of the Gibraltar College for Boys there, so it is progress and therefore for the benefit of our students. I thank him wholeheartedly on behalf this side of the House for having implemented something that we were also very strongly committed to doing.

905 Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may now move the recess for 10 minutes.

Mr Speaker: The House will now recess for about 10 minutes.

910 The House recessed at 10.25 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 10.42 a.m.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

Standing Order 7(1) suspended to proceed with a Government motion

920 Clerk: Suspension of Standing Orders. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to move under Standing Order 7(3) to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with a Government motion.

925 Mr Speaker: Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

Standing Order 7(1) suspended to proceed with a Government motion

Clerk: Government Motions. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

935 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows and which has been circulated to hon. Members a moment ago:

940 'That this House approve, pursuant of Standing Order 59, the suspension of Standing Order 19 but only to the extent that at least five days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays, notice is required of the motion which has been notified by the Hon. Chief Minister on 16th October 2013 and circulated by the Clerk on 16th October 2013.'

945 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Select Committee on Parliamentary Reform Five Members appointed

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

955 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

'This House, acting in accordance with the motion dated 4th June 2013, hereby:

RECALLS that a Select Committee on Parliamentary Reform was established on that date;

960 RECALLS that the purpose of the Committee was to consider the implementation of appropriate recommendations of the Report produced by the Independent Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform; and

965 HEREBY approves the appointment of the Hon. Fabian Picardo MP (Chairman), the Hon. Dr Joseph Garcia MP, the Hon. Neil Costa MP, the Hon. Daniel Feetham MP and the Hon. Damon Bossino MP to the said Select Committee.'

970 Mr Speaker, the purpose of this motion is to start the process of the Select Committee's work. The work that will be done by the Select Committee was the subject of the discussion that the House enjoyed back in June. This is really just enabling us to start that work, to have the Committee appointed which is something that has to be done by motion under the Rules. You kindly pointed out to me that the Committee will also need a Secretary, of course, but that Secretary does not have to be appointed by a motion in this House and the Committee itself can invite somebody to become its Secretary.

975 So, Mr Speaker, for all the reasons that we debated last time that this issue was on the floor of the House and for all the reasons I have indicated now, I commend the motion to the House and may I just thank the Clerk for having quickly come up with the formula of words that one has to use to negotiate the maze that is parliamentary procedure at the moment, and enable us to take this motion now. You never know, the Select Committee might make all of these things easier.

980 Mr Speaker: I now propose a question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

If no hon. Member wishes to speak on the motion, I will put the question. I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

ADJOURNMENT

990 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn until Tuesday 29th October at 9.15 in the morning.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Tuesday 29th October at 9.15 in the morning.

995 I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Tuesday 29th October at 9.15 in the morning. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

The House will now adjourn to Tuesday 29th October at 9.15 in the morning.

The House adjourned at 10.45 a.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

Construction industry Maximising business opportunities

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Tuesday, 29th October 2013. Answers to Oral Questions continue.
Question 636/2013, the Hon. D J Bossino.

5 Hon. D J Bossino: Is the Government in a position to state which measures, if any, it intends to take to maximise the opportunities for business for local construction and general building suppliers?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

10 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, there has been a substantial increase in the number of local construction companies undertaking Government contracts, who in turn, make much greater use of local building supplies in sourcing their needs, as compared to cross-border companies.

15 This has been achieved by applying more diligently, the policy introduced by the previous administration in the allocation of works to approved contractors. The situation is regularly monitored, and any further measures that may be required will be introduced.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, if I may, the hon. Gentleman has referred to a more diligent application of what was our policy. Can I ask him how he has been more diligent?

20 Hon. J J Bossano: Well for a start, in terms of the numbers. I can tell the hon. Member that although we have changed nothing in what was introduced, which effectively required a cascading effect all the way down the line... So not only does the person that gets the contract have to be an approved contractor, but the person that supplies sub-contract work to the main contractor has to be an approved contractor. I do not think that it was being monitored in terms of the lower levels of the supply lines, and we are now doing that.

25 So effectively, the approved contractor list means that when somebody gets a contract on a Government job, we then monitor that the supply lines are from the people that are here as approved contractors, and if they are not, for example, they need to give an explanation. In some cases somebody comes in with detached workers to do a specialist job for three or four weeks, and therefore we monitor that that is happening because there is nobody available, or if there is somebody available, there is a big difference in price.

30 Clearly, I have a got a particular example in mind, where the only reason why we allowed somebody to come in with detached workers to do a job recently, was because the gap between the price quoted to the main contractor by this particular entity was about half of what the local entity was. But as long as a price is close, I think that degree of monitoring was not being done.

35 Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful. Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman refers to 'we'. Of course that could apply to the Government in general, but I would just like to focus and home in exactly who is actually controlling this? I understand that under the previous administration, much of that exercise was carried out from a Department, out with his Department now which is the Department of Employment. Is it the Department of Employment which is running the show so to speak, as far as the more diligent application of this policy is concerned?

40 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, because the Department of Employment is in a position to do it better than anybody else, because of course if it is a question of work, then if they are bringing in for example detached workers, that the approval of the detached workers is done by the Employment Service. So the contractor that gets the job has to notify us who is being used, and where there is for example – as I have said in this particular recent incident – a contractor from outside and a contractor from here, they have to justify why they want to give the contract, and in this case, the justification was a very large difference in price, and we monitor that they come in and that they come in exclusively to work on that particular site, that they work for the number of weeks they say they need to work, and that when the contract is finished the workers go.

45 We also monitor that the workers bring the proper identification that they are paying social insurance in the country of origin, and the main contractor has to deduct PAYE from the sub-contractor payment, to make sure that when the entity that has come in disappears, we do not lose out on the PAYE. So there is quite a heavy hand on this.

50 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, as I understand it, there are two aspects to the policy. One is ensuring that effectively Gibraltarians get employed by those contractors on the approved list, that get Government contracts, and the second, as the hon. Gentleman has just outlined, is that suppliers for those contracts are local suppliers.

55 Now, can I just explore with the hon. Gentleman the amount of detail that his Department gets involved in when considering the allocation of contracts? How do you control this? I can understand, for example, that when a contract is allocated, you may set a condition that the particular contractor takes on board five Future Job Strategy trainees, depending on the size of the job. But how does one impose the obligation that then there is a cascade down the chain, in terms of the suppliers, and the contractors purchase from local suppliers?

60 Hon. J J Bossano: Well in fact, the system that we are applying is, as I have said, not something that will change. It is actually as detailed as that in the system that was introduced, I think it was in 2010, which requires that the use of a sub-contractor should also be from the approved contractor list. Therefore, if it is not somebody from the approved contractor list, we can stop the sub-contractor, purely on the basis that it is in breach of the original terms of the allocation of the work.

75 When they come in to join the approved contractor list, they are told that one of the conditions of being on the approved contractor list is not to take in trainees, but in fact to take people who are unemployed. The trainees are only provided in areas where we do not have the skills they need, and we try to persuade them, but in many cases, this is not possible because of the length of the contract. People tend to take them on if they have got a contract that runs for months, but if they have got a contract for four weeks, you can hardly say to them you have got to take a trainee for four weeks.

80 But effectively, we are able to do it because all those conditions are there, and we are on top of it now. Therefore, whenever a request for employment comes in, or a request for detached workers comes in, before we reply, we check where the work is being done, we check the workforce of that particular entity, we check the proportion of local labour that they have, not necessarily Gibraltarians but residents as compared to cross-border workers, and that is an ongoing exercise.

85 In effect, the industry is now used to that, so the monitoring that is taking place now, is that occasionally we catch somebody that is not meeting the conditions, but in most of the cases, they know what to expect and they do not try to get past it.

90 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the reply. The hon. Gentleman talks of checking what the proportion of the... I think he mentioned what the proportion of the local work force is in a particular company, and I think he mentioned conditions. But I suppose two questions, Mr Speaker: what are the criteria which are applied, is there a set of criteria which will assist in determining whether the supplier or the sub-contractor gets the contract, and who determines it? Is there a board, is it the Hon. Minister himself personally who looks through this, is there somebody else within his Department? Can he answer those points?

100 Hon. J J Bossano: Well obviously I do not have the time. If I had to look at every contract myself and do it myself, the 12 hours that I do would not be enough, I would need 24! But the answer is that the monitoring is done because there is an automatic system in place, in that everybody that wants to employ somebody is required by law to open a vacancy before the contract is approved.

105 When that vacancy comes in, before the person is permitted to employ somebody who has not been provided by the Department, from the unemployment list, we check where the person is going to work, we check whether he is working on a Government contract, we look at the profile of that company, and the share of local workers that they have got, and because this has been happening now for a long time, basically there is a repeat exercise.

110 It is not as if there were an ever expanding construction sector. There may be something like 50 more small construction companies now than there were a year ago, but there are no big companies. The big companies know what is going to happen if they try to get past the system, because they will be caught, so they do not even try it.

Occasionally as I have said, we get some people that may be new to working, and therefore think that they can get away with not complying with the rules of the tender. It happens in both those things that are given out, like big contracts that are given out by the Procurement Section, which are the contracts that have to go out because of the EU, and it happens in the bulk of the contracts which are all small contracts that are given out, where the policy is that there are something like 15 local companies that are doing most of the routine work for the Government, and the Department gets three quotes.

115 Of the three quotes, if the three are very close, the work is given to the one that is least loaded and if there is a big difference, then clearly it goes to the lowest quote. In that context, they then monitor the requirements for labour. All those sub-contractors and all those small contractors know, that they have to give preference to the people that are provided by the Employment Service, which is what the system introduced in 2010, which was announced in Parliament, requires.

120 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes. But the system in 2010, there was a difference to this system and he has said that, I do not think that he has used the word 'refined', but certainly he has intimated that they have attempted to improve upon – (Hon. J J Bossano: More diligent.) more diligent yes.

125 Now in 2010, the system in place at the time was, that there was a list of approved contractors, mainly medium to large size companies who, if they wanted to be awarded a Government contract, and the criteria, the actual guidelines was divided into size of contract, the very large contracts, there were four or five of the largest companies deemed to have the expertise to deal with those contracts, and then there were smaller contracts.

130 But am I right that there has been a departure from that in his administration, in the sense that we have seen, over the last couple of years, a huge increase in the number of construction companies that have been incorporated as new companies, as start-up companies, and that what his administration is doing is encouraging the incorporation of these construction companies and that these smaller companies, start-ups, have then been added on to the Government list of approved contractors and are being awarded smaller contracts? Indeed, I ask because of course we know, that there have been companies that have been incorporated with addresses of No. 6 Convent Place, and that his Ministry, with his office providing shareholders, and his office providing also directors and directorship service, in order – according to him – to help these companies. Is there a departure from the previous practice in that sense that I have just outlined?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, no. There has not been a departure, because what he has described is not what was there that was put in 2010. He is describing what existed prior to 2010, and prior to 2010 there was a list of approved contractors, which was effectively kept by Technical Services which was divided by size and by expertise in terms of what they were able to do. That was replaced in 2010 by the system that is in existence now, which is that there was one that was really monitored by the Employment Service, because in the original one, there was no link to having to take workers that were unemployed. In the one that was introduced, there was a link, which said one of the clauses was that the people that were provided by the Employment Service had to be taken on if they were suitable.

145

One of the things is that, in fact, there were contracts maybe of £1 million given from my knowledge of what was there when we came in, and maybe they took on one or two workers. So in effect, what I am saying is that they were paying lip service to having to take one or two token guys from the unemployment list, in order to be fulfilling the contract as whereas now, they really have to make a very strong case, to get away with not taking the people that we send that are available.

For example, at the moment there is something like 23 vacancies for the construction industry open, and they are open because the skills that are required are not available amongst the people that we have got out of work. So it is true of course, that there are now more companies because one of the things in the new start-ups is that – as I have explained before, Mr Speaker – some of the older unemployed construction workers, people in their 40s and 50s, are the ones that were encouraged because they were the ones more difficult to place with other companies. They were encouraged to start their own small company, to which work is then sub-contracted. So most of these are doing either small maintenance jobs for the Government directly, or sub-contracting to bigger entities, because they are on the approved contractor list and they are eligible to receive sub-contract work.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but what I am trying to explore –

Mr Speaker: I think we are in danger of debating. May I ask the Leader of the Opposition, if he is going to ask more supplementaries, to make sure that they are much shorter than his previous one.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, what I am trying to explore – of course, Mr Speaker – what I am trying to explore with the hon. Gentleman is the artificiality or otherwise of the situation. If you have, and I think it was about 800 new construction companies that have been incorporated – the figure escapes me but we debated it in the past, we asked questions in the past about this and I mean, effectively, what the Government is doing is handing them Government contracts in order for them to employ people off the unemployment list.

There may be merit in relation to that, but it creates a certain artificiality in the economic activity that the Government is creating. I just wanted to ask the hon. Gentleman, is that the intention, it is the encouragement of incorporation of small companies, upon the promise of Government contract, be it by a sub-contract or otherwise, on condition that they then employ people from the unemployment list?

175

Hon. J J Bossano: I do not see why us implementing the policy they introduced makes it artificial, and when they were doing it, it was not, Mr Speaker.

180

But in any event, I know the hon. Member has talked about 800 construction companies before, and if he recalls, what I told him was that I did not know where he got that figure from, because I was not aware of 800 construction companies being formed.

It may well be that he does not realise that self-employed construction workers can be registered and they appear as an entity, but it is not a company employing anybody. But there is certainly not 800 construction companies in Gibraltar, of that I can assure him, and there are certainly not 800 on the approved contractor list.

The small construction companies that are being able to sub-contract now, and employ maybe a dozen people, of whom one or two may be a trainee, are no more than 15 or 16. So, the figures are not that the entire economy is depending on these 15 guys now driving the 10% growth, if that is what he thinks. So the answer is no. There is no artificiality about it; it is work that needs to be done, except that now more of the work is being done by resident workers than was the case before. More of the work was previously being done by Frontier Workers, so the number of construction workers went down last year by 1,000. In last year's employment survey, there were 1,000 less cross-border construction workers and there were more Gibraltarian construction workers, and that is the purpose of the exercise, which I am sure they support, because they introduced the idea.

200 Mr Speaker: One last supplementary.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, with respect to the hon. Gentleman, he has not answered my question. Is it Government policy to encourage the incorporation of small companies, which will then effectively be given Government contracts, on condition that they employ people from the unemployment list? Is it Government policy?

205 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, that question was originally prefaced by the fact that there were 800 such companies. First, there are not 800 such companies, there are 15 companies. The 15 companies are free to compete for work anywhere in Gibraltar including the Government. The condition attached to them is not that in order to get Government contracts they have to be employing people from the service that is the condition attached in the policy introduced in 2010 in order to be on the approved contractor list.

210 This 15 are on the approved contractor list for as long as they take on Government workers and they can bid for Government work. Therefore, there are now 15 people in employment, and employing other people that previously were unemployed. It is the Government policy to get as many Gibraltarians into jobs as possible, and it is Government policy to give priority to locals to do Government work.

Apprenticeships and Future Job Strategy Update on arrangements

225 Clerk: Question 637, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 482/2013, can the Minister for Employment advise what stage the new arrangements for apprenticeship schemes have reached?

230 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Question 638 and 640.

235 Clerk: Question 638.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is being kind to me today, he has not bunched up four or five questions, so we are making some progress, it is three.

240 Question 638, can the Minister for Employment provide current details of how many individuals are participating in the Future Job Strategy, with details of where they are carrying out their placement/training, to include private entities or individuals – such as private companies or partnerships – and in each case, the names of such entities and the names of the Government Departments, Companies Agencies and Authorities; the nature of the training they are each receiving; which Future Job Strategy company they are employed by; what the duration of the contracts are; and how many of these trainees have guaranteed jobs following conclusion of their Future Job Strategy contracts?

245 Clerk: Question 640.

250 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment state how many individuals have participated in the Future Job Strategy Scheme since it commenced, to include details of their ages and how many have secured employment in the private sector or public sector?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

255 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I apologise to the hon. Member for only answering three questions together, I will try and do better at the next meeting.

Mr Speaker, 24 persons are on the Level 1 City and Guilds training course for the wet trades. As at the end of September, there were 109 trainees in the Public Service and 83 in the private sector in the 260 Employment Training Company and 64 in the Public Service and 76 in the private sector in the Construction Training Company.

Construction training is provided to those in the Construction Training Company with 39 private sector placements and the Construction Training Centre. All construction trainees are guaranteed employment in the private sector. Other private sector areas with placement providers are in security, cleaning, maintenance, hairdressing, carers, receptionists, gardeners, sales, customer service and seamen. All of whom are covered by business partnership agreements on completion of their training.

265 In the case of the Public Service placements, this spread over the following areas: Care and Social Services, Education, Health, Construction Training Centre, Gibdock, Treasury, Tax, Postal Services, Human Resources, Employment, Tourism, Transport, Sports, Culture, Electricity, Consumer Affairs, Maritime and the Royal Gibraltar Police.

270 The nature of the training is social and healthcare, administration and office skills, policing and construction and mechanical skills.

The contracts duration are as follows: terminating this month, 45; next month, 40; December, 138; January 2014, 19; February, 19; March, 26; April, 16; May, 7; June, 7; July, 11; August, 1; September, 3.

275 Nine hundred and ninety-nine individuals have participated in the Employment Training Schemes since they commenced on 1st February 2012. Of these, 564 have secured employment following completion of their training. The age structure of the trainees has been as follows:

Age	Number
17	57
18	86
20	114

Mr Speaker: May I say that Question 638 was really on border-line, as to whether it was of excessive length and detail. The statistics that are being asked for would much more appropriately have been the subject of a question requiring a written answer. I do not think we can have this kind of statistical information taking up so much time of the business of the House.
285 Any supplementaries?

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in answer to your point if I may, this is in fact the third time I have asked exactly the same question in exactly the same terms, and I must say that the hon. Gentleman is making progress because he seems to be answering the question with a bit more detail as time progresses, so I do congratulate him for that.

But I have never received criticism, indeed when I have filed the question, or indeed across the floor of the House from the Speaker, or the Speaker's staff, as to the excessive length of the question. I am very conscious of keeping to the rules, but I must insist, Mr Speaker, this is information which I have posed in exactly the same terms as the hon. Gentleman well knows, on two occasions in the past. I think this is the third, perhaps even the fourth occasion, Mr Speaker.
295

In fact, I have tried to persuade the hon. Gentleman to come round to my way of thinking. Given that he is a details man and indeed, I consider myself a details man, this is in fact a very composite question which if answered fully, and if I may say so and encourage him to do so perhaps next time, I know he has been encouraged by my hon. Friend, the Leader of the Opposition when he had my Shadow Portfolio in the past, to present this information in a schedule, as indeed other of his colleagues provide information in that format, because then, what one would have, when answering the question, is a full snapshot of where the Future Job Strategy Scheme is. And therefore, one would be able to examine whether the promises and guarantees which the hon. Gentleman and his Party made at the time of the General Election, and at the beginning of this Parliament, in relation to the success or otherwise of the Scheme, would be able to be put truly to the test. Mr Speaker, that is in answer to the point the Speaker has made.

Mr Speaker, I am not sure, whether in answer to the first question which I posed, which is 637, relating to what stage the new arrangements for the apprenticeship Schemes have reached, has in fact been replied to. If it has, I have missed it and if the hon. Gentleman could oblige me, and answer that bit of that question again, because I do not think I have had a reply to that question. If he could assist?
310

Hon. J J Bossano: Can I just say, Mr Speaker, that in fact he has not put the same question before in terms of the age. That is, he has never asked for the age of each individual of the 999 and I have given him the age profile of the 999, so that is the new bit. The rest, I accept, are a repetition of what has been asked in the past.

Mr Speaker: May I say that it is just as well, that pensionable age is 65 and not 80 or 90, otherwise we would have been here until tomorrow. (Laughter)

Hon. D J Bossino: So, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman allows me, if I may just in relation to the point he has just made, he alights on not the correct question, the question which he is referring to in relation to ages, is in fact 640. The question which I posed on two occasions – this being the third occasion – in the past, and again today, is 638 in exactly the same terms, other than perhaps a change in the preamble when I say, further to question so and so.

Hon. J J Bossano: That is exactly what I have just said, that the new bit is the one of the ages. As regards the first part, Mr Speaker, the original answer, and the one I am repeating now, is that there are now 24 young persons doing the Level 1 City and Guilds training course for the wet trades.
325

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, with respect, I do not think that is an answer to the question I have posed. He has said in the past, in this House, that by September we would have had the new training scheme in place, in relation to apprenticeships. I can show him where he has said so in Hansard, and that is really what I wanted to know, whether the new system had been, he gave me an indication at the last sitting of the House, because I asked him what the new system would be, but has the new system been 335 introduced, because he has just given me a figure of how many people are doing what. He has not confirmed to me, whether the new system has been introduced, unless I have misunderstood his answer.

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, that is what I am telling him, Mr Speaker, the new system was introduced and there are now 24 people in the new system doing City and Guilds Level 1. That is what I have just told him.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, if I may, because I have in the past also questioned the Minister for Employment on this one. Can the Minister enlighten us, given that there are now 24 trainees all working towards Level 1, can he confirm two things, Mr Speaker? One is that there are none currently having achieved Level 1 and working towards Level 2, which is what provides the qualified craftsman status, and of that 24, are those trainees who were there prior to December 2011, or have they been taken on, or is it a combination of both? Perhaps the Minister has details.

Because like my hon. colleague will say, we had been told that the new system was coming in, and the Minister is now confirming yes, we have a new system, but we do not know how many are carried over from a previous intake, or how many have come in in September's intake which was what we were always led to believe, that a new type of intake and so on would be occurring as of a couple of months ago?

Hon. J J Bossano: These 24 are 24 new additional trainees who were not there before September. In September, there were 64 between Gibdock and the Construction Training Centre. I think there were about 40 in the Construction Training Centre and 24 in Gibdock, and they are all in the Construction Training Centre. There may be one or two still doing Level 1, most of them are on Level 2 and I think in Gibdock they are on Level 3. Those who have started now, they are at the beginning of Level 1, the new 24.
355

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.
360

And the Minister before mentioned, he said that they were working towards City and Guilds. We have had this exchange before, whereas my understanding always was that those in the Construction Training Centre, carrying out NVQ's the awarding body was City and Guilds, whereas those who were at Gibdock, it was another awarding body, I think it was EMTA or something like that.
365

Given that he has now mentioned City and Guilds, does that mean that there has been a change of the, what's the correct word for it, of the awarding body, they are all working towards NVQ but is City and Guilds now the awarding body for the engineering trades, or does it remain the same awarding body that we had before, which I believe was EMTA.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, the City and Guilds has only been introduced for the wet trades for the new 24. The others are continuing with what they are doing already, because clearly we would not be changing the awarding bodies in the middle of their training. They are half way through so they are completing, but all the new ones that come in, will be put on the City and Guilds examining body.
375

Hon. E J Reyes: And just to clarify, so that I am not in doubt later on, Mr Speaker, I am grateful I have been told that the new intake consisted of 24 trainees working towards Level 1. Can the Minister confirm to me that those 24 are all within the construction trades and that there are no new entries at Level 1 on the engineering trades, or are there some intakes towards the engineering trades?
380

Hon. J J Bossano: No, at this stage they are all in the construction trade, because we are concentrating in the area where we know there is the greatest demand, but it is intended to do it in other areas next year. But at the moment, all 24 are in the construction industry.
385

Hon. E J Reyes: I do run the risk, Mr Speaker, of being a bit pedantic. But, the Minister has said he hopes to have an intake on the engineering trades next year. Can I interpret next year to be January, or are we talking of what we traditionally call an academic year, which is next September, hence still 10 months away?
390

Hon. J J Bossano: It is likely to be after Easter. That is the target. So it will not be in January, but I am hoping to have it in place by April. I cannot guarantee that it will be, but that is the target.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in the composite question which I asked, again I am not sure whether he has answered it, certainly the way I intended it to be answered, given the way I phrased the question, which is what the duration of the trainees' contracts are. I think what he has given me are the termination dates, what I would be interested in Mr Speaker, is whether they are on three-month placements, or six-month placements or 11-month placements. I am sure he cannot answer the question now, but is it something he would reconsider when I pose the question again. I would emphasise that it is this bit of the composite question, which is what the duration of their contracts are?

400 Hon. J J Bossano: The hon. Member is right in saying that I cannot tell him when each one of the people that are finishing started, without going back and checking it, but he knows of course, that the policy is that the bulk of the contracts will be three months, because I have told him that before and that it is only where a case is made for special skills, that they are over the three months, although there will be 405 people that have been longer than three months there, simply because they were there, as he knows we have still got people from the VTS that were... and there are people who have been around for six or seven years.

Hon. D J Bossino: But it is information which he can provide, just so that he understands what 410 information I am seeking, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I can provide because each person has got a contract of employment, so clearly there is a start and a finish date.

415 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, again, homing in on the composite question, I also asked what the nature of the training they are each receiving is. He referred in his answer to Policing, can he expand on that, and is that the Cadet Scheme that the RGP are pursuing?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, there are six in the Police Cadet Scheme that were taken on last year, for two 420 years, and there are six that are being recruited this year.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, obviously the question relates to the Future Job Strategy, so is he confirming to this House today, that the RGP Cadet Scheme forms part of the Future Job Strategy, because if it is, that is news to me, but can he confirm what the position is?

425 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, they are paid a minimum wage and they have a Contract of Employment with the Employment Training Company. Of course clearly, if they are successful, they will be given an opportunity to join the Police Force at the end.

430 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can I also encourage him, lots of encouragement from my side today, Mr Speaker, that he provides me with the information that he started providing me with, which relates to the names of the Government Departments, Companies, Agencies and Authorities on a quarterly basis. I think the last information which he sent me was sent in April, which took us up to the first quarter of 2013. I would be grateful if he could update me with that information and that is why I asked the 435 question. I would not have asked it if he had given that to me by letter, which he has undertaken to do in the past.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is perfectly right and I apologise for not having done it. The Department should have done it automatically and they did not do it. I only realised it when I 440 got the question and I am sorry it has not happened.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, also the other information, which I know he has said in the past he will not be providing, but again I would try and persuade him to provide it – because this is information which I think we ought to have. Again, it goes back to the point I made earlier in response to the Speaker, 445 which is that if we had this information, we would be able to properly take the Government to task as to whether this scheme has been successful or not. And that is, that he provides the details of those private entities and I widen the question as much as I possibly can, because then we will be able to establish – and I made that point during the course of my Budget speech, and that point has been made when the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition held my role in the past – whether this scheme is in fact working or not, and whether it is genuinely working or whether it is in fact an artificial scheme.

450 I think we need to know exactly, Mr Speaker, which private entities are participating in this scheme.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well he is not going to persuade me, and I do not accept that knowing the name of the employer makes it more or less artificial, and I would remind the hon. Member that the last time when 455 in January I mentioned 101 had been employed, the Leader of the Opposition said to me would I admit that I was not being any more successful than Mr Montiel was because Mr Montiel had 101 people who were able to obtain employment, and I have just told him it is 546 and he is still trying to find fault with it. I would have thought he would say that he is overjoyed that I have done five times as much as Mr Montiel did.

460 Hon. D J Bossino: But you see, Mr Speaker, that is precisely the point. What I think we would want to know, is whether these individuals, these 560-odd are employed and who they are employed by, then we will be able to know exactly what the position is.

At this stage, we are blind as to whether he is shoe-horning Future Job Strategy trainees in particular companies, who may be benefiting – the point was made by my learned hon. Friend in the past – from 465 Government contracts. I think this is a serious point of openness and transparency.

I dare say, Mr Speaker, that there are other Members of his Government who would not have made an issue of this and would have provided this information without much ado. I would again, try and persuade him and encourage him, to see what point it is that we are making and to see the error of his ways, and provide us with information which I think, from the Opposition Benches, we are legitimately seeking.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well Mr Speaker, if the error of my ways is that I do not agree with him, I think I want to stay in error for a very long time to come.

I have to tell him that I do not know who the 101 that they claim were employed are, or where they were, and I have found no evidence in the Department that they even exist, and I have not chosen to make 475 an issue of that with the hon. Members opposite.

What I can tell him, is that the vast majority of the 546, are in companies that have nothing to do with the Government, that I can tell him, because we have not got enough work in the private sector to generate an income for 546 people to be employed. It is as simple as that, and if the hon. Member thinks of it, that would be – these people are not all in the construction industry. Let us start by analysing that, if 480 they all were, that would be almost two thirds of the construction industry. If he knows anything about the statistics in the employment survey, he will know that his suspicions cannot be well founded, because statistically they are basically flawed.

The answer is, he has not persuaded me and I am not going to give him the names.

485 Mr Speaker: May I... It has been a complaint of Oppositions over the years, and of Governments indeed, that perhaps five working days, or even seven, may not be sufficient in order to obtain very detailed statistical information. In my view, to bring information to this House, about where 564 people are employed, is such a case. In fact, on this occasion, the Hon. the Minister has had more time, because the questions are being answered today and not at the earlier part of the meeting.

490 But had it been the earlier part of the meeting, then we are talking of five or six working days. That I do not think is a reasonable situation, I do not think Government Departments, or Ministers for that matter – and this is an age old thing, going back when I was a Member of the House – can be paralysed for five or six days in order to obtain such statistical information.

Nor do I consider that it is proper that such information, that Members should expect that to be given across the floor of the House. There are two other avenues that the Members of the Opposition have; they can write to the Minister, they can ask a Question for Written Answer. Then, if they are not satisfied, by all means, raise the matter here, but do not expect to get detailed information of that nature across the floor of the House, because it is very time consuming and I do not think that that is what the House is here for.

500 That is by way of general guidance. (Laughter)

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I rise as Leader of the Opposition. May I suggest to Mr Speaker, that perhaps next time round, he ought to – (Interjection) No, no, perhaps next time round, he ought to take care what questions he allows on the Order Paper because –

Mr Speaker: But what does the Leader of the Opposition think that I do, when questions are tabled? That I do not take care? That we do not look at them?

510 Hon. D A Feetham: Can I, may I –

Mr Speaker: But as I said about one of the questions, it was border line. I gave the Hon. Mr Bossino the benefit of the doubt and allowed the question. It is not the first time – (Interjection) it is not the first time, I am sure that the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana will recollect, that on one occasion he had a very, very lengthy question, and I said, ‘Look, there is a very lengthy preamble, therefore there is no problem, but do not take that as being a precedent.’

Now in my view, as I have given the hon. Member the benefit of the doubt, Question 638 was of excessive length, and there are rules about that. I have allowed it on this occasion, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition is now encouraging me to be perhaps more careful for the future, and I will do so if he so wishes.

520 May we carry on with the rest of the business please?

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker –

525 Mr Speaker: May we now have Question 639. (Interjections)

Clerk: Question 639 –

530 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Clerk, there were three questions which have been posed, and I have not finished my supplementaries in relation to all of them. I have a supplementary in relation to Question 640. Am I allowed to proceed?

Mr Speaker: Yes, alright. You wish to ask further supplementaries? (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.) Right, I will allow you one or two then. Carry on. Yes.

535 Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker, Question 640, to remind the hon. Gentleman for his assistance, related to how many individuals have participated in this scheme since it commenced, to include details of their ages and he gave me a long litany of information which I have not been able to jot down, or indeed digest properly. I will do so with time, and now that Hansard is made available quickly, (Interjection) I will be able to do so before the next sitting, I hope.

540 Can he give me this information now across the floor of the House: is he able to tell me, how many school leavers from the 2012 and 2013 intake, have gone through the scheme? Because of course it will have been those two dates which would have been impacted. Those school leavers rather, which would have been impacted by the introduction of his policy, which was introduced in February, 2012. Is that information which he can provide to me this morning?

550 Hon. J J Bossano: I can tell him, Mr Speaker, that of the 999 in the list, 699 are under 25, so that shows that about two thirds are in the under 25 age group. He will see that in fact, 15 and 16-year-olds, there are only 33 out of the 999. So remember that the hon. Member has asked Mr Speaker for everybody that has been through the scheme since it started on 1st February, 2012. Therefore, we are talking about the people who have been through it for two years. We are doing an analysis now of where school leavers have finished, not just in the last 2 years, but in the years before that. When that is ready, I will give him any more information that is available.

555 Hon. D J Bossino: So that last point which he has mentioned, what does the analysis entail and will that information be published in a report? I did not quite catch the last bit which I received at my end as a bit of a mumble, is he able to expand on that?

560 Hon. J J Bossano: Well yes, the answer is that I am not able to give him an answer to the question that he asks related to school leavers, because that information does not exist. It requires us to obtain the list of school leavers from the Education Department and then to put a team of people, finding out where those school leavers are today, and we are doing such an exercise. That exercise is not going to be done in order to publish it or produce a report; it is going to be done for the purpose of manpower planning within the Employment Service. But when that exercise is ready, I will be able to provide the answer to the kind of questions that he has asked me as to where school leavers have finished up, but that is not information that is available today, but it is in the process of being done, that exercise.

570 Hon. D J Bossino: But is this information which you will be publishing once it is complete – because if it is not, then obviously I need to time the question accordingly – is he going to be advising me, Mr Speaker, as to when that exercise is going to be complete, because obviously then when it is complete, I will be able to ask him if he is going to provide it across the floor of the House, if it is not a report which he is going to be publishing unilaterally? Does he understand why I am asking the question?

575 Hon. J J Bossano: I am telling him that it will take several months to do and if he puts a question in several months' time, I should be able to give him an answer. We are at the beginning of that exercise, we have not yet actually engaged in it. We are at the stage of having compiled a list of school leavers, it is an exercise that has to be done one by one, and there is no other way of doing it. You have to effectively track down the employment history of each individual since they left school, in order to find out from the... you see, the fact that we have got a certain number of people registering as unemployed, does not 580 necessarily mean that that is the only number that is without work. This is something I had raised many times before, and urged the previous Government to do, but it was never done, because it is obvious that there is a gap between the numbers that enter and leave school, and the numbers that enter the labour market.

585 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just in relation to the 24 new trainees in the Construction Training Centre, how were those individuals recruited? Did his Department advertise and say, 'Look, we are now going to be offering these new Level 1 City and Guilds,' or was it done internally from within the unemployment list, or was it done internally from within the pool of Future Job Strategy trainees that he may already have placed within Government Departments?

590 Hon. J J Bossano: Every single unemployed person that had expressed an interest in working in the construction industry, and every single person in the Construction Training Company, was interviewed individually and offered the opportunity of taking on these courses. These are the 24, the first ones that were selected and there will be more next year.

595 Hon. D A Feetham: What about people outside the unemployment list? People that maybe school leavers that may be interested in doing Level 1 City and Guilds, this new effectively course the Government has set up. Was it open to them and if not, why not, and when is it going to be open to them?

600 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, every single person that has registered as looking for work, every single one not just school leavers, of any age, has been told about this opportunity, I do not know what more we can do. Presumably they do not come looking for work. I suppose when we get the list of all the school leavers, we can find out those who have not come looking for work and go knocking on their door to see if they want to work.

605 But at the moment, it is limited to those that have registered as wanting to look for work, and expressing an interest when they get interviewed. We now have one-to-one interviews that did not used to happen before. In those interviews, people are told of the opportunities that exist in the economy of Gibraltar, and the fact that the work available is in the private sector, which under the previous administration we had been told Gibraltarians never wanted to work in.

610 They are now working in the private sector, and they are being told they get trained in order to work in the private sector, and we have got people who are interested in doing it. As long as they are interested in doing it, the courses will be provided. There is no limit.

615 Mr Speaker: One final supplementary.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but of course, Mr Speaker, you do not have to be on the unemployment list to be interested in this particular course. You may be someone who is already, for example, employed in the private sector but may wish to have a formal qualification in construction, who might find that this particular course is a worthy course to do, and may wish to do it. Is he really seriously suggesting that those people that want to improve their lives by getting better qualifications, simply because they have a job they are not going to be allowed on to the scheme, because the hon. Gentleman is just simply making it exclusive to those who are looking for a job?

625 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, what I am saying to the hon. Member is that there will be many more people going through the scheme than there were before, and that as far as I am concerned, it is right to give priority to those who have got no work at all, who are in greater need of a job, than those that have already got a job.

630 When we exhaust that, then we will see if there are people who are already working who want to give up their job, work for the minimum wage, and do a training course. I doubt very much whether there are any (Laughter) but we will explore that possibility when we have exhausted the supply that we have got at the moment.

635 Employment Service positions
Details of those filled

Clerk: Question 639, the Hon. D J Bossino.

640 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide full details of all the positions currently filled at the Employment Service, to include names and grades held, whether the individual is a civil servant or an employee of the GDC or a trainee in the Future Job Scheme?

645 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the following posts are currently filled in the Employment Service: civil servants – two Senior Officers; two HEOs; one EO; two AOs; one AA; one Personal Secretary; and one Messenger.
GDC – one Grade 5; two Grade 4s; four Grade 3s; five Grade 2s; five Grade 1s.
650 No trainees fill posts in the Employment Service and I am not prepared to give him any names.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is there any reason why the hon. Gentleman refuses to give me any names? This is not an improper –

655 Mr Speaker: I personally think that it is not acceptable that the names of individual civil servants in a Department should be given across the floor of the House. I think it is quite unnecessary and the hon. Member would have to really convince me, privately, that that should be the case. I cannot see why, in this House, the names of individuals should ‘willy nilly’ be given for public information. Information has been given about the grades that have been filled, I do not think it is necessary, and I so rule, that I am not 660 going to allow individual names.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I – Mr Speaker cut me short last time round and I would just ask him, as a matter of courtesy to the Leader of the Opposition, if I may be allowed to make perhaps the point which I can now make, that I was going to make before?

665 It is this, that of course if Mr Speaker allows a question on the Order Paper, Mr Speaker is effectively ruling, because Mr Speaker gets the questions, that the question is in order. Now –

Mr Speaker: No. May I – ?

670 Hon. D A Feetham: That is why –

Mr Speaker: No. (Hon. D A Feetham: That is why...) The names and grades – ‘names of the grades’ – I did not take that to be names of the individuals.

675 Hon. D A Feetham: Names and grades.

Mr Speaker: Of the grades, I did not take that to be of individuals.

680 A Member: Names of posts.

Mr Speaker: The name of the post and the grade of the post, but not individuals. Does the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition have anything else he wishes to say?

685 Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just by way of guidance, which Rule of this House...? At the end of the day, this House is governed by the Rules and Standing Orders?

690 Mr Speaker: If the hon. Members wish to have a look at Rules, there are plenty of them, let them have a look at the Rules governing Question Time, where very often I am liberal. The very first one, I allowed the Hon.... as I just said previously, I allowed him to get away with it. I could well have ruled that it was dealing with more than one subject, and it was of excessive length.

695 A question must not publish any name or statement, not strictly necessary, to make the question intelligible. Therefore the answer does not have to also publish... I do not think that it is fair on Government employees, that in this House their names should... unless there is a very, very serious reason, and I cannot imagine that in this case there is a very, very serious reason why the names should be given.

700 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may be of assistance. If I can just clarify for hon. Members opposite, I believe this was the practice actually of the previous administration and of administrations before them, that names would not be provided.

We had an incident where the hon. the backbencher, when he was Leader of the Opposition, may recall he and I had a debate on the issue of the Heritage and Culture Agency, where I told him that we would not give the names of individuals across the floor of the House. But, because in that case we were dealing with a report from the Principal Auditor, I believe, that looked at what had happened in terms of the employment issues, I said in order for you to be able to defend yourself against the allegation that we have made, and that the Principal Auditor has substantiated, I will give you the list with the names behind the Speaker's Chair, and if you feel it necessary then to identify people you may do so, because then it would be essential for the purposes of that debate.

But otherwise, the practice of this House, I am sure, even from the time that Mr Speaker was actually on these benches, before your elevation, has always been not to share the names. If hon. Members wanted to make a specific allegation, about a specific individual who they felt was in the public interest, then that, subject to Mr Speaker's discretion, might be relevant. But otherwise, I think the practice has always been, not just in relation to Civil Servants and names of individuals, sometimes also in relation to companies, not to give identification by way of name, where it is possible to identify people otherwise.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, you have referred me, or the Opposition, to Rule 17(1)(ii) and of course, the provision states that a question must not publish any name or statement not strictly necessary to make the question intelligible. The questioner is not seeking to publish any names. What the questioner seeks to obtain, and to elicit from the Government in the answer, are the names. [Laughter] (Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely.) Mr Speaker, the only possible, possible provision that I consider one may have breached, and I do not accept that it has been breached, is 17(1)(xii) which is:

'a question shall not seek information about any matter which is of its nature secret...'

In my view, when I posed the question, I did not think that this was of its nature, the information that I was trying to elicit from the hon. Member, secret.

Indeed, my hon. Friend and Leader of the Opposition...

Mr Speaker: May I say –

Hon. D J Bossino: Can I just finish the point, Mr Speaker? The hon. Gentleman, my hon. friend, the Leader of the Opposition, makes I think a valid point. (Interjection) When one files the questions, they pass through the Speaker's filter, so one thinks that one is in safe territory when one poses the question viva voce across the floor of the House.

But in any event, in answer to the point made by the Hon. the Chief Minister, his own Government, when I personally have asked this question of the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, and maybe because of his liberal roots and perhaps a greater commitment to openness, has provided me, in very clear terms, in a colour organisational chart, in fact more information than I sought in the question itself last year – details of names and positions held, whether they were GDC employees – which is a question which I asked in this question – or whether indeed they were civil servants, the position as it was before he took office, and the position as it was after he took office. That is why, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: May I say –

Hon. D J Bossino: Your filter, and the fact that I have asked this question and it has been openly responded to by the same Government (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.) that I thought I was able to ask the question. Mr Speaker and this does raise potentially an important political point. The Speaker mentioned that earlier, you mentioned it earlier; it does raise potentially a political point. We are hearing, many people are telling me down the street, or when they see me in consultations, that the Employment Service is being run like a cabal by the Hon. the Minister for Employment. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) All I want to do is to establish, not wishing to raise rumour to the floor of this House, to elevate to the floor of this House, but simply wish to establish, as I am indeed entitled to do, as a Member of this Opposition, Her Majesty's Opposition, to ask this type of question.

Mr Speaker: Two matters.

Hon. D J Bossino: The question was asked...

Mr Speaker: Two matters. First of all, I agree with the hon. Member that subparagraph (xii) does not apply because by the nature, civil servants, their employment is not of a secret nature. It applies to other instances though, the question of whether, by the nature matters are secret. I have ruled on some 765 occasions previously where I have not allowed a question, because I consider that of the nature, they are secret.

Now, the question of the filter, the Clerk and I receive 150 to 160 questions that we have to go through in a very short period of time, in order to allow the Government time to answer those questions. This is nothing new. This is something that has always happened. Neither the Clerk or I are yet infallible – and I do not think we will ever attain infallibility – and under the pressure of time, something can slip through, which perhaps on reflection, such as is the case now, one might not have allowed.

770 In all the years that I was a Member of the House, information about individual civil servants was not provided, either when I was in Government or whether I was in Opposition. I imagine that the two Speakers at the time knew what they were on about and so did hon. Members, and that is the view that I take.

775 I do not think that it is necessary, in order to pursue the matters which the hon. Member wishes to pursue – which I do not know about because, obviously, I am not in the street available to engage in political tit-tat of such a nature, that is not something I am privy to – but it is possible for the hon. Member to pursue these matters without the names of individuals being made public here in the House.

780 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I may just deal with the issue of order that is being raised. I had an incident involving your predecessor, a Speaker, where a question of mine was admitted on the order paper and on representations made by the then Chief Minister, now the hon. the backbencher, across the floor of the House, which mentioned an individual's name. Mr Speaker then ruled that I should not mention the name of the individual, because it was possible to identify him in another way, although the question had been asked.

785 I think it is clear to all parliamentary practitioners, that although Mr Speaker may allow a question on the order paper, when it comes to hearing representations from the Government or from either Party in the context of the debate, Mr Speaker's view may be informed in a different way, and Mr Speaker may rule in a different way. That is absolutely the position as it has been until now. But I think it has been very useful Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman has clarified, that the only purpose for which he wants these names, is to satisfy his thirst for rumour and for tittle tattle on the street, and what he has described as a cabal.

790 He might be interested to know, because I think sometimes the tongue is engaged before brain on the other side, that a cabal is a small group of secret plotters, against the Government or a person in authority. So if he is giving me an indication that there is a secret plot against me, then I am very grateful for highlighting that. But the definition actually talks about secrecy, in which case, Rule 17(1)(xii) would be engaged.

795 The fact is, Mr Speaker, that there are data protection issues here, why should names be bandied across the floor of the House, what is the allegation that he is making and does he really think that the politics of Gibraltar in this Parliament should simply be based on the rumours that he hears in Main Street?

800 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, if I may. Can I just bring to the notice of the House Mr Speaker that the bulk of the people listed as working there were there before 9th December. (Laughter) I do not know whether they were a cabal of GSD then or they were already a cabal of the GSLP. But if they have all been converted to being a cabal of the GSLP, I am delighted to hear that that is whatever a cabal may be.

805 I can assure the hon. Member that, now that he has revealed that the reason why he wants the information as to the names is in order to try and establish their political affiliation, that gives me even more reason for not providing it.

Several Members: Hear, hear.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Graduate Employment scheme Contracts; increases; Labour Inspectors

820 Clerk: Question 641, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Is this also based on rumour?

825 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, a rumour which the hon. Members could have dispelled.

Mr Speaker: May I now ask hon. Members to come to order and deal with the business of the House in a responsible, mature manner. We have spent an hour and ten minutes on five questions. That in itself is an indication of how liberal I have been this morning.

830 But let us get on with the business, in a responsible and mature manner, as representatives of the people of Gibraltar, which is what we are.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I was responding to a quip by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

835 Mr Speaker: May I ask the hon. Member to ask the question and get on with the business of the House, and not to make any more snide side-remarks. (Laughter)

Hon. D J Bossino: But the point that the Hon. Chief Minister made, his was a snide remark. Why – ?

840 Mr Speaker: May we get on with the business of the House in a proper manner? Let us proceed with the questions and answers.

Hon. D A Feetham: I have never seen anything like this.

845 Hon. D J Bossino: Has the question been referred to?

Clerk: Question 641, the Hon. D J Bossino.

850 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment, state how many trainees are on the Graduate Employment scheme with the duration of their contracts in each case?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

855 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Questions 642 and 643.

Clerk: Question 642.

860 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise whether all the trainees in the Graduate Employment scheme have received the increases promised to them?

Clerk: Question 643

865 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details of the grades held by each of the recently appointed Labour Inspectors?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

870 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, as at the end of August, there were 52 trainees in the Graduate Research and Employment Company, with 11-month contracts.

Trainees on the Graduate Scheme have not yet received their pay increase.

The recently appointed Labour Inspectors are all graduates engaged in the Employment Research Unit.

875 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, of course, the hon. Gentleman knows that he is under a manifesto promise commitment, to provide graduate employments with three-year contracts. It is very clearly set out on page 25 of the manifesto. Can he confirm that these 11-month contracts, basically, will be renewed so that each individual graduate employee will be able to fulfil his or her entire three-year term in the contract, which is what the hon. Gentleman promised during the course of the election, as set out very clearly in his manifesto?

880 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, it is true that the manifesto talks of a contract for up to three years for those who are returning graduates and choose not to go on to do a higher degree, which is what the manifesto says.

885 There are people who do not come into that definition of what the scheme was for, and there are certainly many more than the six that according to the previous Government there were. The previous Government told me, in answer to a question in this Parliament before the election, that there were only half a dozen graduates available and looking for work, and it turned out that there were many more.

890 In order to be able to accommodate those that there were, and those that are coming back, what we do is we encourage the people in the system to apply for jobs that become available. Therefore the idea is that hopefully, not all of them will have to depend on us for three years of work and that we will be able to recycle people so that we are able to bring new people in when they are unemployed, but still get some people off the unemployment list by placing them in a permanent job in the private sector. That is an ongoing exercise.

895 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D J Bossino: Ah... Right!

900 Mr Speaker: A supplementary?

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, yes. Is he telling this House, that there is a distinction between returning graduates, and presumably if you fall under that category you are entitled to a three-year contract, and those who are not returning graduates, presumably graduates, who were here in Gibraltar at the time that the scheme started? I think he needs to; this is an important distinction which he needs to clarify, because it certainly is not clear from page 25 in the manifesto.

905 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it may not be clear to him, it was clear to me when I wrote it and it says returning graduates. (Laughter)

910 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is there a distinction or is there not?

Hon. J J Bossano: I am telling the hon. Member that in fact, given the fact that when it was written, it was on the false information that there were six existing graduates who were looking towards the returning one. When we found that they had omitted to tell us that there was a nought after the six and that really, we had inherited 60 people, then in fact the bulk of the people that were there were not returning graduates, they were already unemployed before we got elected.

915 The returning graduates for this year, for example, are expected to be about 250 and we will not be able to accommodate them, because simply the numbers are too big. So what we are doing is encouraging people and sending people to vacancies, so that as people move out of the grad we are able to take extra people on. But the number of 52 is about the average at any one time, but they are not necessarily the same individuals.

920 So when the hon. Member asks me are they all on three years, well the answer is no because there have been more than 50 in and who have now gone out of the system since we started.

925 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is he saying that if you are a returning graduate now, you will not necessarily benefit from the promise which was set out in very clear terms in the manifesto, which is that if you have decided not to take up the statutory entitlement to a post-graduate scholarship, and wish to return to Gibraltar, you will be given – not up to three years as he said in answer to my first supplementary – but a three-year contract as research assistants? Has the Government, for whatever reason, because they thought the numbers were less than they in fact are – and it is all the GSD's fault, as usual... Is the Government saying that there has been a departure from the policy as very clearly set out, and announced, in the manifesto in 2011?

935 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, what I am telling him is that the people who return from the United Kingdom and are not able to find work and register as unemployed, and who do not wish to take the new opportunity that did not exist before, of the mandatory post-graduate degree, those people will be taken into the scheme, but that we will not be able to take in 250 in one go.

940 So what we are doing is, given the level of funding that we are providing, and given the fact that, unlike the impression created when that commitment was given that we were talking about having to provide for six or seven people, we are talking about having to provide for 60, we are now financing around 60 positions in the graduate scheme and that people come in as our people go out.

Therefore, I am confident that we will be able to accommodate practically everybody that wants to come in. That is what I am telling him.

945 Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker, is he saying that effectively he is operating a two-tier system, where there are people within the system that have three-year contracts, in other words those that may have come back, and those who are existing graduates when he took over, who have got 11-month contracts? Is he saying that there is a two-tier system in operation at the present moment?

950 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I cannot understand why he is asking that question, when the answer is all, all are on 11-month contracts, so where does he get the second tier from?

Hon. D A Feetham: From your answer.

955 Hon. J J Bossano: The answer is all 52 are on 11 months. That is the answer. That is the answer that I have given him and he says, am I saying that there are two tiers? Well, I am not saying there are two tiers. I am saying the fact that people may spend three years on renewed contracts, does not mean they have got a three-year contract. Every single person that has come in has been given an 11-month contract from day one.

960 Hon. D J Bossino: But Mr Speaker, that is in clear breach of the terms of the manifesto commitment. Forget whether they are graduates who were here, he is now making that distinction, or graduates coming back, and now he is saying, in fact he is confirming, Mr Speaker, that there is a departure from the promise, the policy as set out in page 25 of the manifesto. It is a very clear departure. The Government will now not be able to finance every possible graduate who comes back from the UK, a returning graduate fits the criteria as set out in the manifesto, but does not want to take up the statutory entitlement to post-graduate studies, but he is saying to us here and now, that the Government will not be able to finance all 200-odd and that he will have a limited budget for 60. For 60, Mr Speaker, so how can he quite fleetingly say that no, they are all on 11-month contracts. The fact is, he stated that they will be given three-year contracts.

970 Mr Speaker, can he clarify the position?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, of course I can clarify the position, Mr Speaker, if you give people three years of an 11-month contract and then one contract of three months, that comes to three years. I know he has difficulty in counting up to 36, but actually it is the same amount.

Hon. Chief Minister: The commitment is there.

980 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, Mr Speaker fine. Is that what he is doing? This is what I thought the Government was doing, because all I can base myself on is what they promised in the manifesto, and I do not think we have asked this question in the past. So I am getting this information straight from the horse's mouth now.

985 I expected that was going to be his reply in the beginning, that there would be rolling contracts, which is perfectly acceptable under EU law and, after a certain period of time, they would have certain employee statutory rights, despite the short duration of the limited contracts. Is that the position? Are they going to be extended?

990 So if I am a graduate now... he needs to here and now tell us and yes, Mr Speaker, and to assuage any concerns that there may, of those graduates of those employees who are employed by the Graduate Employment Company, that their contracts, their current 11-month contracts will be renewed at the end of that particular term, to take us up mathematically to the three-year contract which was promised in the manifesto.

Is that the position?

995 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not need to give comfort to any of the 52 graduates whom I know personally and I see every day, by answering questions from the hon. Member who is trying in fact to do the opposite. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) Instead of calming their fears, what he is trying to do is actually create fears that are non-existent –

1000 Hon. D A Feetham: There is a lot of fear.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well if there is a lot of fear, then I am available and they can come and tell me what their fear is. If they choose to go to the hon. Member opposite, it can only be because they are in the wrong cabal. (Laughter and banging on desks)

1005 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

1010 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes. Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 642, this was in relation to the annual increases. Can he explain why the increases, again which were promised in the manifesto, and look it may be an administrative issue, but can he explain why the increases have as yet, not been paid? The manifesto promise was that the increases were going to be paid, I think, in two stages during the course of the three-year contract, initially it was going to be 50% above, for the first year 50% above the minimum wage, then in the second year, 25% above and then to reach 100% in the third year. Can he explain why the delay?

1015 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, it is not unusual for people to have pay rises calculated and paid retrospectively. Their calculations are currently being done to go from 125 to 150... sorry, from 150 to 175. When that happens, it will be back-dated to the anniversary of their entry point, which clearly is more than 11 months. But obviously if I am giving people an increase after 12 months, it must follow inevitably and logically that they are not all being sacked at the end of the 11 months as he was 1020 suggesting in his previous supplementaries, because otherwise there would be nobody to get to the second stage.

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, but I do not think he has explained. He has explained that it is common, and it can happen, I am just asking why it has happened. That is all.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it has happened because it is being calculated. The calculation has not yet finished. When it is finished, it will be made back-dated to the anniversary, because although there are 52 people on 11-month contracts, they are not in their first 11-month contract. Otherwise, nobody would be entitled to go from 150 to 175 because nobody would have been for 12 months.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I think Question 643 was also asked, which related to the grades held by each of the recently appointed Labour Inspectors. I think the answer was that they are grad employees, all of them, I think hold that position.

Is this not unusual that trainees should in fact receive a statutory appointment as Labour Inspectors? Labour Inspectors, the appointment is made – as the hon. Gentleman knows – under section 16 of the Employment Act and under section 17, there is a raft of statutory powers which they can exercise as Labour Inspectors. The position in the past – as again he well knows – was that these positions were filled I think by and large, by relatively – and in some cases – senior civil servants, in the position of HEOs and SEOs.

So how is it possible, does he not think it is unusual, that all these Labour Inspectors should be in the Graduate Employment Scheme?
1040

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has only listened to half of the reply that I gave him.
1045

I said they are engaged in the Employment Research Unit. The Employment Research Unit needs to approach employers to obtain information, which they can only insist on getting because they are authorised under the Employment Act, which allows the Director to employ any person to appoint any person. That is why they have been appointed and they have been carrying out research in the whole economy of the Registration of Employees, which had been hugely out of date, as I have told him before, and we have had a team of people updating all those records, in order to be able to carry out that function without the employer saying, 'I do not have to give you the information, they have been appointed Labour Inspectors.'
1050

Hon. D J Bossino: But surely, Mr Speaker, that begs the question why it is that that... I mean that is a job which a Labour Inspector who would have been there before, could have done. The information that I am receiving – not to call it rumours – is that I think we are down to one man in the Labour Inspectorate, whereas before there were six or seven formally appointed positions.
1055

So why is it that he is now having to fill those jobs by graduate employees to carry out something which could have been conceivably, and I would dare say more properly, done from a good governance position, by formally appointed civil servant Labour Inspectors, who I assume would have had the experience and the training to have done a delicate job like this – not a group of six graduate employees?
1060

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not know how the hon. Member has decided that it is a delicate job like this, when he does not seem to know what the job is, even though I have tried to tell him. The only reason why I am having to do it Mr Speaker, is because for the last 15 years, the records of the Employment Service are an absolute shambles.
1065

There is, in fact, let me remind the hon. Member that the last Minister for Employment, the last Minister for Employment, Mr Montiel, continued to be registered as working in Bleak House under the GDC when he was throughout the four years as a Minister. Therefore in order to require people to comply with the law which the Employment Service itself was not complying, if the Minister had attempted to enforce the law, he should have sent a Labour Inspector to himself, to question why he was illegally registered as working in Bleak House.

1075 The team of six people that have been carrying out the research have been trying to get the records that I inherited, after 15 years of bad government, and I am trying to put right so that when he asks questions, I can give him accurate information. If I had to rely on what I inherited, the figures that I would be giving him would be meaningless.

1080 Indeed, I have pointed out more than once the caveat that when I tell him there are so many people in the Employment Service registered as employed, that is subject to the fact that those records may not be accurate. One of the reasons is, because employers, including the GDC, in the case of Mr Montiel, failed to inform the Employment Service, that the guy that is sitting there as Minister is no longer sitting in Bleak House, and can they please alter the computer record.

1085 Well, there is probably of the order of 2,000 inaccurate entries in that computer system, and what these six people have been doing is, ringing up individual employers and saying, 'Look, I have got a list here that says you employ so and so and so and so: can you please tell us whether these people are still in your employment? Can you tell us if any new people have been taken on and can you tell us if any of them have left?'

1090 Now, that may be a delicate job or may not be a delicate job, but it is certainly not the job that you require vast experience to do, because in fact all that you are doing is informing an employer of the names that are registered. But the employer can, on the advice that I got, say, 'Well look, I do not have to give you the information, because the information is being required under the powers of the Employment Act which a Labour Inspector is entitled to employ.'

1095 A Labour Inspector is entitled to go into an employer and say, 'I want to see your record of employees, to see if it matches what we have got registered. If you have got people here who are not registered, then they are illegally here and I can impose a £1,500 fine or a £2,000 fine for every individual that is working without having been registered with a contract with the ETB.'

1100 Now that law, which was introduced by the GSD was introduced but, like many other things, it was just introduced and nothing else happened. Because it is obvious that we have got not only people who are not registered when they work, we have got people who have stopped working and nobody has bothered to tell the Employment Service and therefore our statistics, in terms of the size of the labour market, are up the spout and all these people under the existing law can be imposed fines which we have not done, because we have discovered that the Government itself and the Employment Service itself was no better than the private sector. I thought it would be wrong to say to the private sector, 'We are requiring you to comply with the law which the Government itself ignores, and in many respects is the worst culprit.'

1105 I can tell the hon. Member, for example, that when we did an exercise with the Fire Brigade, we found that there were still people registered there at the age of 80 as firemen, who retired 25 years ago. So it is the correction of those records which is a finite task that is being done by these people who have got the skill, in my view, and the intellect to be able to do this limited research project. I hope that when the research project is over, I will be in a position to provide more detailed and accurate information to his list of questions that he puts to me. So really, I am doing it for his benefit, more than mine.

1115 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, he knows that I always enjoy listening to him and I am sure I will continue doing so for many years to come – (Interjection) Well, I hope, exactly the Hon. Chief Minister, I hope to be answering his questions in the not-too-distant future.

1120 But I did tell him during the course of the Budget debate that a leopard never changes his spots and his retort, under his breath was, 'But they are good spots.' I am afraid this is not one of his good spots and he does have this propensity, despite the length of his answers, which I enjoy listening to, but not actually answering the question. He ought to consider some advice from the Opposition benches; it is an issue that he needs to deal with. Mr Montiel seems to wriggle in to all his answers and I think that is completely, with respect –

Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member please ask a question?

1125 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, it was a really lengthy answer and this is part of, I think, Parliamentary activity. But I will ask a question –

Mr Speaker: Activity does not mean debating. Debating is not part of the process of asking questions. I am asking him to ask the question.

1130 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman says that – and I was going to ask this question, but he kind of alluded to it at the end of his reply – that the exercise would be finite.

Is the intention of the Government to then withdraw the certificates from these particular individuals as Labour Inspectors; and if I may ask a two-prong supplementary Mr Speaker, with your permission, is the intention to fill in those posts, which at the moment as I understand it – had I had the answer to the 1135 previous question I may have been able to confirm the position – is the Government intending to fill in the positions by Labour Inspectors in the near future, when that exercise presumably finishes?

1140 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, there are no positions. It is not that there is a fixed quota of Labour Inspectors and that therefore these are six positions that are now filled by graduates which were filled by somebody else, and which when the graduates finish their job, the task that they are on at the moment is a finite one. Once we have got hopefully everybody, we are now at the stage where we are trying to track down the people that have not been contactable, and we do not know whether it is that they do not exist because they do not answer telephones and they do not seem to be – so now we are at the stage that everybody that was contactable has produced a response which basically is in three categories. As he would expect from the information I have already given him, that is to say that there are those who have said, ‘The record you have got is accurate’, there are those who have told us that they have got people that have left and they forgot to tell us that they had left, and there are those who have told us that they have got people employed when they had not registered, which technically means that they were illegal labour, but given the fact that the records are in such a state, we are not doing anything about it.

1150 Once that exercise is complete, whether we still require them to do any other work or not, in terms of research, will depend on what needs to be done subsequently. But the research unit is engaged in the analysis of the composition of the labour market, in order to be able to provide a better service to employers and more accurate answers to the hon. Member’s questions.

Sunborn Hotel Vacancies

1160 Clerk: Question 644, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House whether the Government will have any input in the filling of the employment vacancies being made available by the Sunborn?

1165 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker.

1170 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, at least it is not a ‘no’ answer, so again we are making progress, Mr Speaker, this morning.

1175 What in fact is the input, is the ETB compiling a profile of the 200 jobs which I understand... This is a report of the Gibraltar Chronicle back on 22nd August, which I think quoted the CEO of the Sunborn saying that it was... very proudly stated that he had placed 200 and it is literally quoted ‘foundation jobs’ with the Employment and Training Board. He also refers to the fact that he is working very closely with Joanna Hernandez and the team at the ETB to fill these 200 positions. So how is it that the, what input, can he give me further particulars as to the input that the ETB is having in relation to the filling up of these jobs?

1180 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the answer is that as we expect every employer to do in Gibraltar, they have opened the vacancies with the Employment Service, which is what the law requires them to do, and they are committed to give priority of employment to the people supplied by the Employment Service, provided they have the necessary skills and they are committed to take on trainees in areas where we do not have the skills, but we can provide trainees that may not require a lengthy period of training.

1185 Clearly, there are many specialist jobs in the 200 which regrettably we will not be able to supply, because we do not have people with those skills. If those are on the open market, I imagine that the only way that they can be filled is because people move from other hotels to this one, because there are no unemployed people from the... I mean, there has not been a hotel school in Gibraltar. There has not been an area of training in that area, so it is not that there are trained people that come out of training and then are looking for work.

1190 That has not happened, it has never happened and it is understandable, because in fact the entire pool of jobs in the hotel industry is not such, and the turnover is not such, that people could think of going into that industry with... The hon. Member knows, we have highly skilled people who are outside Gibraltar today, as he and I know well who, until there are more hotels and more opportunities here, there is nowhere to go.

1200 So the answer is that the company is fully committed. It has signed a business partnership agreement with us, it is committed to take in trainees, it is committed to taking on local resident workers, if we are not able to provide them. As soon as they are ready to start interviewing people, we are ready to start supplying them. Clearly if there are people at one stage, or there were people at one stage in August who were unemployed and since then other job opportunities have come, people are not going to be waiting for this to happen if other jobs become available. So there is quite a high turnover in the numbers of unemployed, even though the total number is static, there is a flow in and out of about 200 a month.

1205 Therefore, it is against that background and in that context that we are ready to supply. What I am saying to the hon. Member is, that for example if I tell him that about 200 people come in and out of the unemployment list every month, it means clearly that there are 200 people who were there in August who are no longer there, and there are 200 people in September who have become unemployed or registered since. So the availability of the supply of labour from the ETB is not a constant, there are not all that many people in long-term unemployment. Those that are in long-term unemployment are the ones that are more difficult to employ, but there is a float coming in and out and we are closely in touch with them to try and fill as many of those 200 jobs as we can. They are very receptive and very co-operative and it is an attitude that I commend to the rest of the employers of Gibraltar.

1215 Hon. D J Bossino: But, Mr Speaker, if I can take this from his response, is he saying that there is nothing extra which is being done in relation to the Sunborn? In other words, is the Sunborn being treated in the same manner that all other employers are treated? He rightly makes the... He knows that I come from a family in the hotel industry, father, brothers, and it is highly specialised. You have got chamber maids, you have got waiters, no not everybody can do it and I suspect that not everybody on the unemployment register or unemployment list will be able to do that type of work.

1220 So, is anything extra, and he makes a reference to, and I quote him when I say, 'Business Partnership Agreement with us'. Can he give more information in relation to that? Are there certain conditions which are imposed in that agreement? Is it in any way related to the financing which the Sunborn has received from Credit Finance Company Limited? Can he shed more light on that particular... I cannot ask specific questions as I know nothing about it, I do not have the intelligence, so he is the one that needs to provide that (Laughter) information to me and I would be very grateful if he could shed more light in relation to that particular piece of information, which he has just mentioned in the course of his reply.

1230 Hon. J J Bossano: I am surprised that he seems to be reacting as if he had discovered something new in the Business Partnership Agreement, Mr Speaker. The Business Partnership Agreement has been there since 1st February 2012, and it is the Business Partnership Agreement that he always asked me to give him the names of all the people who signed it. No, and it is the same thing, no. It is available to the whole of Gibraltar.

1235 Hon. D J Bossino: Fine, Mr Speaker, he expresses surprise but he has confirmed and he has in fact replied to the question, it is the contract which is entered into by the prospective employer with the Employment and Training Company Limited, or whichever other company which provides the services at the Future Job Strategy.

1240 Hon. J J Bossano: It only applies to trainees if they take on trainees. That is to say, if they take people from the normal unemployment list and they start paying them from day one, that does not apply. It applies only in respect of a commitment to guarantee employment at the end of the training period, and then the only help they would get, is the help that other people get that have been taken, that is to say the figures that I have given him on the 999 and 546. Well look, the 546 are now employed by employers in Gibraltar who signed a Business Partnership Agreement and honoured the agreement on completion of the training. This is no more and no less than the rest.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1250 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes Mr Speaker, obviously this company is not in operation yet; the ship is there for everybody to see.

He says that there has been a Business Partnership Agreement that has been signed. My understanding of course of these agreements is, that the agreements are entered into when the individual is taken on by the company. Now, it presupposes, and I would just like the hon. Gentleman to confirm this, that the company has already agreed to take on a certain number of individuals, perhaps even identified those individuals, when it starts operating sometime next year.

1255 Can he confirm that is the position and if it is, can he give an indication of the number of people that we are talking about that they have agreed to take on as part of this Business Partnership?

1260 Hon. J J Bossano: No, that is not the case. What is the case is that they have agreed to do it if it is going to do very closely with the Employment Service – they find that they are able to take  $x$  number of employees, paying them from day one. Then there are the people that they are not able to take on, because the skills do not exist. Then they find that of those where the skills do not exist, there may be people who 1265 have got enough of the background, that with a three-month period or whatever is required, depending on the gap, on the skills gap, we identify that there are people that fit that definition and then they are committed to take them on as trainees and they are committed to employ them.

So in fact, they are committed to a Business Partnership Agreement, which will only be triggered if it is required and if there are people available. There are two sides to this, the company may be quite willing to take them, but we may not be able to supply the people. We do not know that until we have first 1270 exhausted the ones that they can take, which clearly means that if there are people – look if they need, for example, cleaners or receptionists or something, they may find that there are people with those skills already available and they can take them on straight away.

There may be more specialist skills where the local workforce in the past has not been very involved.
 The level of Gibraltarian participation in the industry, in the hotel industry, is predominantly on the white collar side. There are not all that many outside the administrative rolls. The administrative roles they will 1275 be able to take from us, without the need to provide training, because we have got people who have got administrative skills. If someone needs to employ a typist, it is not a different kind of typist from working somewhere else, simply because it happens to be in a hotel. So some of those jobs which are admin jobs, they will be able to offer.

Some of the jobs that they may want, perhaps to teach them some systems that they have in their 1280 accounting or whatever, may mean that in order to accommodate their requirement, we give them a little bit of help in that we have somebody who has a background in office skills, but not the ones that they specifically want to use with whatever programmes they have. So that is something, when we go into these things with employers, we go into quite a lot of detail to try and see what we can do, because the whole idea is clearly to get people off the unemployment list. So, we go to whatever lengths are required 1285 to try and persuade the employer that it is in their interest to let us help by up skilling some of the people that we have got.

So really, there are two stages. The first stage is if the skills are there they will take them, and there is a commitment to do that. If the skills are not there, we will jointly explore to what extent those skills can be acquired and then, if those two areas fail, which I expect may be the case with quite a lot of the jobs, 1290 then they will have to get people from outside, or from within the Gibraltar labour market because they may be working elsewhere. I mean, there may be people in other institutions in Gibraltar, who may want to move if there is a better paid job available here, that may happen.

1295 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can I just explore with the hon. Gentleman, the strength of that commitment. Because of course, I could understand that if they have signed some kind of agreement, that they are committed under an agreement, to effectively do what the hon. Gentleman has described. Look at what you have available, see whether it matches the skills that they need.

But he has talked about a commitment, how committed are they? Is this a situation where, for 1300 example, as part of the loan that is being provided to the owners of the Sunborn by Credit Finance Company Limited – there is another question in relation to that in the Order Paper – that the company has then in turn committed itself to taking a certain number? Is that what we are talking about? How concrete is this commitment? Is it linked to anything that the Government either has done, or caused to be done by a third party that it in turn controls?

1305 Can he provide an answer to that?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes the answer is quite simple: it is not linked to anything. It is just the same as it is with every other employer. We have got some employers in Gibraltar, some local companies that have got a very positive attitude to working with us in this system, some companies that have been around for a very long time, who take quite a lot of our candidates. There are others that are very reluctant and need a 1310 lot of persuading.

Well they fall in the first category and there is no link to anything else. They accept that if they are coming here to do business, they should have a positive attitude towards the community and towards providing as much employment as possible for the local people, who will be eventually their customers as well. I think it is a perfectly normal thing from a reasonable employer.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just a point of clarification. I think in his previous response to my hon. Friend, he said that the intention would be to make available those who are in the registered unemployed list. But of course presumably, he will also – if I recall the answers he has given to this House in the past, as to how the transitional stage of the Future Job Scheme is working – he will also be 1320 interested to ensure that those individuals, trainees who are placed within the public sector, are also offered this opportunity to leave the public sector and go into the private sector.

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, he is quite right, that is also there. Yes.

Registered unemployed
Numbers in 2013

1330 Clerk: Question 645, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide the figures for the registered unemployed for each of the completed quarters in 2013?

1335 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the number of Gibraltarians registered as unemployed for each completed quarter of 2013 was: first quarter – 465; second quarter – 491; third quarter – 442.

EU funding applications; development aid; inward investment Details

Clerk: Question 646, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1350 Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 359/2013, can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment advise how many further applications there have been for EU funding, how many have been approved, and of those approved applications, details of who they are and the purpose for which the funding was applied?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1355 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with 647 and 648.

Clerk: Question 647.

1360 Hon. D J Bossino: Since asking Question 359/2013, can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment, advise whether any development aid has been granted?

Clerk: Question 648.

1365 Hon. D J Bossino: Since asking Question 360/2013, can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment, report to this House what further inward investment has come to Gibraltar to date, to include the total number of enquiries which have been received.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, since the answer to Question 359/2013, no development aid has been granted but there have been 15 applications for EU funding which have all been approved. These are: Technical Services Department – three projects; The Atlantic Café Ltd; Astute Investment Ltd; D C Leisure Ltd; The (Gibraltar) Laundry Services Ltd; GSLA; A J Sheriff Electrical Ltd; Roxbay Holdings Ltd; Everleigh Ltd; ANS Project Management Services Ltd; Jets Diner Ltd; Décor Construction Ltd; and Horatio Holdings Ltd.

1375

The purpose of these funding are as follows: building works and equipment – nine projects; equipment and installation costs – one; furniture and equipment – four; materials and equipment – one.

1380

Since 1st January 2013, 442 new business activities were registered with the Department. Some 15 of these new employers involve participants from outside Gibraltar, which in some cases, amount to 100% ownership.

I am currently dealing with 15 enquiries about possible investments and in talks with the potential investors.

1385 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in relation to the potential investors, can he confirm that those are in the plural, or is it one?

Hon. J J Bossano: There are 15 different activities and there are 15 different entities. Yes. One. Five.

1390 Hon. D J Bossino: But the question, these are 15 enquiries which his office has received. I am asking then at the end, I am not sure whether that related to the 15 or whether it is a separate category, he said that he is in talks with potential investors – I am not sure, I did not catch whether it was in the singular or in the plural – are they all, those 15?

1395 Hon. J J Bossano: I am in talks concurrently with all 15.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, did he give an indication as to what activity they were engaged in, those 15? I do not think he did.

1400 Hon. J J Bossano: I have not. I do not mind giving him the information, because in fact the activities really are all different, and it is possible for the individuals to be identified, because it is not as if I was telling him there are ten people wanting to put hotels. It is really almost one of each. I can tell him what the list is outside, but I would rather not do it because otherwise, the person can in fact, at this stage which is still... Some are closer to commitment than others, but in all these things, there is always a starting point but you are never sure when the finishing point comes.

1405 Some of these things, some people that are there, not many of them but a couple of them, were there from before. One is the hotel that the hon. Member has been asking me for, which has still not happened and it has been around for a very long time.

1410 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, in his reply to the question in relation to development aid, he said that there was none. Is anything maybe related to the enquiries he has been receiving? Is there anything which he thinks is in the pipeline which could be the beneficiary of such aid?

1415 Hon. J J Bossano: I would not expect it. All the people that I am talking to, all claim to have quite a lot of money to invest, so I would not expect they will need any aid.

Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry?

1420 Hon. J J Bossano: I am saying that all the people that I am talking to, all the private investors that I am talking to, all claim to have sufficient financial resources to be able to do it, without expecting to get – I think it needs to be understood that the development aid, in terms of a holiday from taxation, was more important really when there was a higher rate of tax than there is now. I would have thought that frankly with 10%, somebody would have to make a very strong case for arguing that he cannot... that something that is a profitable investment, but he cannot even afford to pay 10% tax.

Nuffield Pool site Potential development

1430

Clerk: Question 649, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1435 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I think this is the question that he referred to in his answer. Can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment, advise this House whether any further progress has been made in relation to the potential development of the Nuffield Pool site?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1440 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker. I understand the original party interested in this site has been the successful tenderer and is currently dealing with planning issues.

1445 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I think this was the subject of a question and answer session some time ago, and he gave me a report as to how that potential investment – a rather full report – as to how that potential investment was progressing. So I am glad to see that there has been positive progress in relation to that.

I seem to recall that this was a hotel venture at the Nuffield Pool site. Can he confirm that that is the scheme, i.e. the construction of a hotel at the Nuffield Pool site is the one which has been approved.

1450 Hon. J J Bossano: It has been approved to the extent that it is the scheme that has won the tender, and therefore the position is that the scheme has now gone to planning. Whether it is approved as it stands or whether the planning system will require any changes, obviously the investor is not willing to complete until he knows that he is going to get the planning permission necessary to be able to build what he wants to build, clearly. That is at the stage at which it is.

1455 I have no involvement in that side of the business, so I do not know whether the scheme – which to my knowledge is the one that was previously there, but apparently it never even got as far as planning permission – is likely to be successful or may require modification or not. But what I can tell him is, that on the basis, in fact, as I remember when he first raised it, I was not even aware of the existence of the proposal and I went back to investigate it. I found, indeed, that there had been a commitment from the previous administration, and therefore we contacted the investor and told him that we had researched the background, which he raised with me in this House originally, and it is really progressed from that stage to the point that it has now, in effect, been awarded to him and he is now in the planning process. Presumably when that is finished, then he will be able to come back. From our perspective, the sooner the thing is completed and he gets on with the investment, the better, clearly.

1470 Hon. J J Bossino: Mr Speaker, unless I am getting confused with the question I was thinking I had asked him some time ago, I think the stumbling block when I asked the question was not that he was not aware of the detail, but in fact that the proposal which had been made to him was that there was not a commitment by the previous administration not to pay, or it was in the offing, as part of the negotiation, not to pay the premium. I am not sure whether the hon. Gentlemen recalls, he is nodding. Has that point been addressed? Is the investor going to be paying a premium for the site? Or...

1475 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, Mr Speaker, it was investigated and therefore it was addressed on the basis that indeed, there was such a commitment given. But nonetheless, when we decided that, the tenderer at the last minute had to retender to see if there were any competing parties. The individual who had previously been given a commitment that he would get it on the basis of relocation facilities without having to pay a premium actually tendered to pay a premium. So, we are now at a point where we are actually getting the person still interested in doing the project, but now willing to pay a premium which, before, he did not have to pay.

1485 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the details of the scheme, so he will forgive me. But there is a manifesto commitment in his Party's manifesto of the last General Election which states that the Nuffield Pool will be made available once it is handed over by the MOD to the Gibraltar Government to members of the public. Presumably that commitment will remain, despite the progression of this particular scheme?

1490 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am dealing with that aspect of this matter, and the answer is yes, that commitment remains as part of the scheme. He needs to understand that the pool does not come over to the Gibraltar Government until it is re-provided and the re-provisioning, as people on his side who have a corporate memory of the negotiations of the MOD will know, does not occur until the whole of the re-provisioning down at Four Corners Camp, and that is an issue which is part of a much larger tendering process which sees the re-provisioning of Rooke, sees the re-provisioning of a lot of housing and it sees the re-provisioning in part of Nuffield Pool and other areas which the MOD is handing over to the Government of Gibraltar. So that process links into that manifesto commitment and the possibility of re-developing the site.

1500 Leisure Construction % Maintenance Company Limited
Details of employees

Clerk: Question 650, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1505 Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government provide details in respect of the number of employees employed by Leisure Construction & Maintenance Company Limited, broken down by grade, gender and nationality.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1510 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the company is not yet registered as trading; it is not engaged in any activity at the moment.

1515 Hon. E J Reyes: In a previous question we had about companies that had been registered at either No. 6 or similar type of addresses, the Minister advised us to go and carry out searches at Companies House. We discovered that on 11th February 2013, this company was set up whereby public servants were set down as the share subscribers and so on.

1520 Since that date, what has appeared is a notice in the Gibraltar Gazette for the same company, using an address now, a postal address of Bayside Sports Centre in Bayside Road, which is commonly referred to as the Victoria Stadium, and is requiring a licence, a tender to apply for business as and its supply of children, youth outdoor and indoor play equipment and so on, leading us to believe that it is probably going to carry out maintenance or even construction of a new children's play park leisure area and so on. Therefore if that is going to happen, I thought there was a lot of sense in finding out what size is this company. Is it a very big work force or a small workforce?

1525 I am even curious and I can tell him now, Mr Speaker, in the past these works at the children's playground were done using the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority. The Government seems now to be choosing to use a location pertaining to the Sports Authority but have the goods imported and so on by the company. Can the Minister enlighten us because you are applying for a licence and everything and from his first reply there does not seem to be any workforce at all attached to it?

1530 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I do not think it is unusual, Mr Speaker, for people to ask for a licence first before they actually commit themselves to employing people. Because if they do not get the licence, what would they do, sack them? So the reality is that the move that is, I was not aware of that clearly, because it is not my side of the business, but I can tell him they are not registered with the ETB and they are not, they have not opened any vacancies. Whether they do or they do not, if he asks me again in future, I can tell him if anything new has happened or update him if he wants, I can write to him if vacancies surface in this company. But at the moment, other than what he has just told me, that they have applied for a licence, nothing else seems to have happened.

1540 Hon. E J Reyes: So is the Minister at this stage, Mr Speaker, aware that following the application for a licence, it could well be the future intention to take on employees to actually carry out then the task of maintenance and construction of play parks and so on, or is he still not aware of that particular aspect?

1545 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, logically, if they get a trade licence and they are going to undertake work, they will have to open vacancies and take on employees. I do not see how else they will be able to deliver. But all I can tell him is, I am answering the original question, which said the number of employees, well the answer is there are no employees. I cannot tell him whether there will be, I would expect there would be, and I cannot tell him how many there will be until it happens.

1550 Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker, is this a Government-owned company, or is it one of these private companies incorporated by individuals that the Government is assisting by way of provision of shareholder, director services or indeed, addresses. Because of course, it is as my hon. Friend has pointed out, it is registered in the application for a trade licence, an application that includes materials, tools, infrastructure installation and all sorts of construction matters, it is registered in Victoria Stadium. So can he please tell us whether it is a Government-owned company or is it a private company?

1560 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, this is one of a group of companies that were originally set up with Government assistance and then transferred to individual owners. But, they are not the only one that actually started up like that and then did not do anything subsequently. I think we started off with about 20 and we finished off with 15 and this is one of the five that other than this business of applying for a license, nothing further has happened. But, it is not Government-owned.

1565 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, is the Minister aware that the two signatories, where it says 'signature of applicants', are they not employees of the company? Because in my search at Companies House, they were not registered as either directors or as anything, so what has happened since then? Can he enlighten me a bit further?

1570 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I cannot enlighten him further than to say the company has no employees registered with the Employment Service and is not registered as an employer. So therefore, at the end of the day, all I can tell him is, that as far as I am concerned, it is a shell company which may be applying for a license, which may or may not be something that the Trade Licensing Committee will take into consideration. I do not know whether when they go to the Trade Licensing Committee, the Committee ask them questions about what are they going to do, or who do they employ. All I can tell him is, that in answer to his original question, he is asking for the number of employees. Well, there are no employees, that is all I can tell him.

1575 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I thought that he said that this is one of the companies that was transferred back to the original, to the people for whose benefit the company was incorporated in the first place. The two applicants are civil servants, are they the...? I can pass you the application, if the hon. Gentleman does not have it –

1580 Mr Speaker: No. The subject of the question is not about the composition of the company. It is not about details to do with the company. The subject of the question is the number of employees employed by them. The Hon. Minister has said, according to the employment records, they do not employ anybody. The original question has been answered. Now you wish for information regarding the composition of the company and other details. It is a separate matter, strictly speaking.

1585 Hon. D A Feetham: No, it arises out of the answer that he has provided. Of course we are not clairvoyant; we do not know the answer that the Minister is going to provide. The Minister has provided an answer that the company, this company has been transferred back. The application for the license is signed by two civil servants. My question was, are these the people that they have transferred this company to? It arises out of the answer to the question.

1590 Because it seems odd, bearing in mind the answer that he has provided, that it has been transferred back to the, effectively to the original beneficiary so to speak, that the application has been made by two civil servants, unless of course these are the two civil servants that are effectively the two original beneficiaries. That was the question and I did not want to, across the floor of the House, name these two individuals. I can if he wants to but that is why I wanted, and indeed it could be – (Interjection)

Mr Speaker: Let us see whether the Government have the answer to the question.

1600 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the question that has been asked of me is whether I can provide details in respect of the number of employees, and the answer is there are no employees. The company is not registered with the ETB, with employees, or as an employer.

1605 Now he wants to know whether the people that have signed that piece of paper were the people who were the original beneficiaries of the company to whom the company was transferred. Well, I do not have that information of this, or of any other company, because, in fact, what I looked at is the employment statistics, not anything else. But I will try and find out and let him know.

1610 At the moment, all I can tell him is that other than that application for a trade licence, the only thing that has happened is that the company has been incorporated initially by people in the Employment Service and then passed on to somebody else – presumably to the people who have signed that, or to somebody else, I do not know. But certainly, the original question was how many people do they employ and give a breakdown. The answer is, they employ nobody.

1615 Construction industry
Health and safety induction courses

Clerk: Question 651, the Hon. J J Netto.

1620 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the supplementary answer given by the Minister for Health & Safety to Question 485/2013, line 2,660 of Hansard, can the Minister please provide the following (a) the total number of trainees that have had an induction course in health and safety within the construction industry, broken down by the various disciplines and grades; (b) the date on which such induction was provided; (c) the name of the training providers that carried out the induction of the trainees; and (d) provide details of the issues covered in the induction?

1625 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1630 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, 118 trainees attended the induction course on health and safety. These are classified as trainee construction operatives without further breakdown by discipline or grade. The training was delivered over several days in October and November 2012. It was provided by suitably experienced staff members from the Department and the topics covered were as follows: Asbestos at Work; Accident Prevention; Working at Height; Personal Protection Equipment/Respiratory Protection Equipment; Provisions and Use of Work Equipment; Safety Signs; Manual Handling; Noise at Work; First Aid; Hazardous Substances and ill effects; Electricity; Chemical Dust, Fumes and Fire.

1640 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask, for the sake of clarification, because I think the Minister said that the induction courses were delivered by members of the Department – I think those were his exact words – does he mean by that the Factory Inspectors themselves, who prepare the induction courses?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, these are the people that are involved in the recruitment and the monitoring of construction trainees and in some cases, they have got qualifications in health and safety and in other cases, have got long experience of the construction industry. But they are all public servants.

1645 Hon. J J Netto: Presumably public servants working for the Department of Employment. Is that correct?

1650 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, working, for example one of the individuals was previously in the Construction Training Centre as an assessor. Others have been people who have been in the Housing Works Agency, with a long history of working in the construction industry, and they are all working in the management and running of the Construction Training Company and the Construction Training Programme, so they are people that are directly involved with 118 trainees.

1655 Hon. J J Netto: Can I further ask the Hon. Minister, because he said that these induction courses were provided, if I am correct, in October/November 2012. Is there any sort of planning of these particular courses for future trainees to have the same induction course as well? I do not know whether during 2013 obviously there have not been any whatsoever, but whether there are any planned for the immediate future?

1660 Hon. J J Bossano: In the next month we are going to be introducing, for the next intake of people into the industry, some – I have not yet identified the level but there are going to be some provisions of training for literacy and numeracy, because the people in the Construction Training Centre have asked me whether we can do something in that area before they get there, and therefore if at the same time as we are doing that, we will be including induction training on health and safety. So that they do at Bleak House, health and safety, numeracy and literacy courses, before they start in the industry and in the training centre.

1670 Health and safety statistics
September-October 2013

Clerk: Question 652, the Hon. J J Netto.

1675 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that the health and safety statistics on the Government website have not been updated since August 2013, can the Minister for Health and Safety provide Parliament with all copies of such data for the months of September and October 2013?

1680 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I am informed that the September data was not updated earlier because of computer problems, but is now on the site. I am nonetheless providing the hon. Member with the information he requests. The October figures will be available sometime in November.

1685 Mr Speaker: This schedule is very, very lengthy. May I suggest that we carry on with the next question and the hon. Member can come back to the schedule –

Hon. J J Netto: Well, there is – 1690 Mr Speaker: It is a very lengthy schedule indeed, I have a copy of it here –

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, okay but – 1695 Mr Speaker: I think we need to proceed to the next question and we can come back.

Hon. J J Netto: If I may. Well, but the thing is there are some supplementary questions which I can ask in relation to the September figures, because those are the ones that he already said that are on the website and I have had the opportunity to see this particular morning.

1700 So arising from the figures, even though I do not have a schedule, I have got some questions I would like to ask if it is possible. But can I also say, Mr Speaker, that the whole idea of providing these statistics by the Government was to be able to be provided in good time, certainly so that I did not have to get up on my feet and ask the questions on basic statistics. I am only asking the question because the statistics on the Government website have not been provided.

1705 Even as we are, towards the end of October, we still do not have the figures for October at all. This places the Opposition in a position of not being able to keep track of what exactly is happening in this particular important field, and the Minister has not given an answer as to why the reason for the delay, which I obviously would like when he gets up on his feet and provides such an answer.

1710 But can I ask him in relation to the Prohibition Notice that has been issued in the construction industry, although I see the reasons why the issue has been, the notice has been issued, can the Minister tell me whether the notice now has been lifted or whether the notice itself is still there, because the employer on site has not undertaken the kind of issues that the Factory Inspectors placed on the Prohibition Notice?

1715 Hon. J J Bossano: Well Mr Speaker, I do not have the information, other than the information that he asks, which was why this information was not already on the site. The information that I have given him now, shows that there was one Prohibition Notice given in the construction, but I do not have the details of what was the nature of the offence, or when it was given. That is what happened in September, one Prohibition was issued, I will find out what it is and let him know what it was.

1720 The previous one dates back to January, so there was one case in January and one case in September. It is clearly not something that happens very often.

1725 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am not asking the Minister for the details, I can see the details on the website. What I am asking him is that given that a Prohibition Notice has been issued, which by definition is a serious matter that the Factory Inspector has found on site, I am asking the Minister whether he is aware that the employer on site has not complied with the demands by the Factory Inspector in the notice. Is he aware that the site has now returned to normality and that work is undergoing or perhaps the site is still stopped as a result of the notice?

1730 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member had asked me specifically, could I ask the Inspector what was the result of the Prohibition Notice, I would have asked and told him. The question that he has put to me is, given that the data is not on the site, can I provide him now with the information of the data that would have been on the site, had it been put on the site, and that is what I have provided him with. I have provided him with the data which would have been on the site, had there not been a problem with the computer.

1735 His other grievance is that he has difficulty in keeping up to date with the information for the month of October because it is not ready before the month of October is finished. That is not trying to keep up to date, that is trying to see the future. The information at the end of October cannot be provided until after the Inspectors have looked at all the work they have done in October and started producing a report which they then put on the web page in November, which is what I have told him is supposed to happen, because that is what they tell me is the normal procedure. They put the information up the month after, for example the data for September was updated in the first week of October. The data for October will be updated on 1st November.

1740 Therefore, all I can tell him is that if he wants now more information as to what has been the response of this one particular incident of a Prohibition Notice, I will seek the information and provide it to him, but it was not something that had been provided for me in response to his original question, which is not heading in that direction. It is just asking for what would have been on the site had there not been a computer problem, and the answer is, he has got it now.

1750 Hon. J J Netto: Certainly, Mr Speaker, it is not my intention to engage him in a particular debate because this is a question and answer session. But let me just, for the sake of accuracy inform him, that the Government statistics have always been the month before the Notice for Questions to Parliament has been done, in order for the Opposition not necessarily having to put the questions forward. So really, the figures for the October month should have been at the beginning of October, then my question would not have arisen in the first place, and I would not have had to ask the question on statistics for October.

1755 Be that as it may, Mr Speaker, this is not for debate. All I am saying is that if he does not know the answer to my question, which is whether the Prohibition Notice is still in place or not, and fine, he may not have the information available at the moment, can he please provide that to me in due course?

1760 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, Mr Speaker, if he wants to know whether the Prohibition Notice of September is still there, or whether the matter has been put right, I will find out and let him know. I have to tell him, that I have difficulty in understanding what he claims to be the correct position, which is that before October, people put on the site what is going to happen in October before it has happened. But if he says that is how it has been done in the past, it is certainly an interesting dimension to the theory of time, which I will explore when I get back to the office.

Government and Gibraltar Savings Bank debentures Values and re-investments

1770

Clerk: Question 654, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1775 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister provide a total value of Government debentures, which since 1st May 2012 have been withdrawn or redeemed, and then re-issued or re-invested in other Government debentures?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1780 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Questions 655, 658, 660 to 663.

Clerk: Question 655.

1785 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please provide the total value of Government debentures outstanding as at 1st October 2013?

Clerk: Question 658.

1790 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide a total value of Gibraltar Savings Bank debentures or other debt security of that bank outstanding, as at 1st October 2013, giving a breakdown in respect of each issue outstanding?

Clerk: Question 660.

1795 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide the total value of Government debentures which since 1st May 2013, have been withdrawn or redeemed, and have not been re-invested in other Government debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 661.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide a total value of Government debentures which, since 1st May 2013, have been withdrawn or redeemed, and then re-issued or re-invested in debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 662.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide a breakdown showing how the proceeds from Gibraltar Savings Bank debentures or other debt security outstanding as at 1st October 2013, is invested, or has been used, by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 663.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please state, out of the total value of Gibraltar Savings Bank debentures, or other debt security outstanding, as at 11th December 2011 and 1st October 2013, how much was and is held by (a) residents of Gibraltar, (b) non-residents, (c) companies or partnerships and (d) individuals?

1815

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1820

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, figures for August have not yet been finalised by the Treasury, therefore where applicable, they will reflect tentative figures.

From 1st May to 31st August, the total value of Government debentures redeemed was £9.1 million. £5.1 million was re-invested in other debt securities of the Gibraltar Savings Bank. There were no sales of Government debentures; £4 million was paid out in cash.

As at 31st August, £260.7 million of Government debentures was outstanding. The total value of savings placed in the bank in bonds, debentures and other accounts, is currently almost £812 million, broken down as follows:

1830	Monthly Income Debentures	£7,822,900
	Pensioners' Monthly Income Debentures	£5,287,300
	Monthly Income Debentures Issue (Jan 2012)	£7,530,100
	3 Year Fixed-Term Monthly Income Debentures 2015	£11,038,000
	3 Year Fixed-Term Monthly Income Debentures 2016	£12,401,500
	5 Year Fixed-Term Monthly Income Debentures 2017	£85,397,900
1835	5 Year Fixed-Term Monthly Income Debentures 2018	£130,277,100
	Limited issue of Fixed Monthly Income Debenture 31/12/13	£4,331,300
	Limited issue of Fixed Monthly Income Debenture 31/12/15	£33,150,200
	10 Year Fixed-Term Monthly Income Senior Citizens Debentures 1/7/23	£1,128,600
	Other Special Debenture Issues at 2%	£2,379,245
1840	10 Year Accumulator Bonds 2012	£4,965,000
	10 Year Accumulator Bond 1/1/13	£2,754,600
	10 Year Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bonds 2012	£3,915,500
	10 Year Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bond 1/1/13	£1,905,000
1845	Children's Bond Account	£64,030
	8% Provident Trust Fund Bonds	£8,409,652
	Guaranteed Superannuation Fund Bonds	£46,679,234
	Other Bonds	£14,624
1850	Ordinary Deposits and Investment Call Accounts	£442,313,396

The figures continue to be under 1% for companies and under 1% for non-residents. The figures for December 2011 are not expected to be any higher than these percentages, but this has still not been finalised as they have been done manually, and it is a lengthy exercise.

The list of investments of the Savings Bank as at the close of the financial year, subject to audit, is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to the hon. Member.

Mr Speaker: Do Members of the Opposition have any supplementaries?

1860 Hon. D A Feetham: Just starting with Question 663 and his very lengthy answer. I did not quite catch the answer that he has provided to this particular question, which is the question about how much is actually held by (a) residents of Gibraltar, (b) non-residents, (c) companies or partnerships, (d) individuals, as at 11th December and at 1st October. I know that he has provided me with a percentage and he has provided me with a percentage in the past, but not the specific answer to this question.

1865 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, if I am telling him that there is £800 million, and I am telling him that under 1% is held by non-residents, all of whom are individuals, I am giving him, what I am telling him is, that there is no difference, that the money that has flowed in has not changed the ratios between residents and non-residents and companies and individuals, of the answer that I gave him before, when he asked me the last time.

1870 And, what I am telling him is, that we do not expect that the December 2011 figure will show more people from outside, which is presumably what the question is about. I mean if anything, if it is under 1% in terms of the volume of money, then obviously the figure, the exercise is being done because we cannot tell him what it was in December 2011 at least that is the information that I have got. Right!

1875 But what I can tell him is, that there is no reason to suppose that there was a different percentage, because in fact if there was a different percentage, it would probably mean because the amount of money was then less, so if there was for example – I cannot remember how much it was, but let us say there was 1880 something like £300 million in December 2011, there might have been perhaps say £30 million out of the £300 million which would be 10%, since now there is much more money and most of that money, if not all, seems to be people that are re-investing savings that have matured in UK bonds or in other accounts, where the interest rate might have been comparable to Gibraltar five or ten years ago, but is no longer the case. So, there are quite a lot of residents and quite a lot of companies that have got cash to spare who are putting it, most of the companies put it in short term money, seven days money.

1885 Since the growth has been predominantly in that area, we expect that if there has been a decline in the percentage from outside, it is not because there are less people with money from outside, but because there is more people with money from within, from the residents. So the share is smaller because in fact the growth has been in the domestic market. The growth eventually, presumably, we will exhaust the domestic market and then future growth may come if it continues to be from outside, but this is not yet happening.

1890 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the last time that I asked this question, this is the reason why I split it up between 11th December and 1st October. When I asked about this on 23rd May, he answered in this way it is Hansard, line 1875, page 33, Thursday 23rd May:

1895 'The information detailing the value of Debentures or securities of the Gibraltar Savings Bank held by residents, non-residents, individuals and companies for 11th December is not readily available and may take some time to compile from the manual examination of each individual account – it is not held in electronic form – so I will provide to the Member when the exercise is completed'.

That is what he told me, there was an exercise and he would provide me with information.

1900 Now, of course, this quite some time ago, May 2013. Can he confirm that that exercise has been completed, because from the answer that he has provided, it does not appear that he has actually undertaken the exercise, he is really being told, 'Well, you know, we cannot really get this information.'

1905 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, I have not. If I had been told, 'Well, no, really we cannot get this information,' I would have told him, 'Well, no, they cannot get this information.' The information that I have been given is the information that I am giving him. In fact, I have answered that question, because I have told him that the exercise is still not completed. That is what they tell me. I suppose it is not at the top of their priority. Frankly, it is an exercise that we expect to show no difference.

1910 The people are telling me, look, when we finish this exercise, the likely result will be that the different percentages are going to be the same in 2011 as they are now. If they are not the same, the anticipation is that if they are not the same, it will only be because the amount of money which has not changed very much since then of outside investors, will be more or less the same in money terms, but higher in percentage terms, because the total was lower.

1915 That is the new information that I have provided to him. I regret to say that if each individual account has got to be assessed, which is what they have told me and what I answered to him the last time, I am telling him it is still not complete, I am still asking them to complete it so that I can give him the information, the new information that I have got is that the expectation presumably from the amount of work that has already been done, is that the result is likely to be that if it is not 1% it is 1.5% or something like that, but it is very close to the figure.

1920 But in any event, in terms of providing more information, any change of the percentage, the percentage may be declining, but not because there are people taking money out, but because the money that is coming in, is coming in from what is still the predominant source, the 99% which is Gibraltar residents. So Gibraltar residents are still putting money in and the money from outside is not going up to the same extent, then the share of the money that is declining, which is the non-resident money, is declining in relative terms, but not in absolute terms.

1925 Hon. D A Feetham: I understand all that, but can he give me just a timeframe when he believes this information might be available. It is important to me, that is why I am asking the question. I asked it in May, it is now October. Can he give me a timeframe when this exercise might be completed?

1930 Hon. J J Bossano: No, but what I can do is ask and write to the hon. Member and tell him the answer I get.

1935 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, from the schedule that he has provided me; there is £334 million, nearly £335 million, in redeemable preference shares that have been invested in Credit Finance Company Limited. There is also a further investment of nearly £10 million, £9.8 million in Credit Finance Company Limited. Now, can he tell me who, on the Government side, approved that investment by the Gibraltar Savings Bank into Credit Finance Company Limited?

1940 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it was approved by the person the law says has to approve it.

Hon. D A Feetham: With respect, that is a slightly evasive answer. It is a question of fact. Who approved the decision to invest what is an extremely sizeable amount of money of Gibraltar savers into Credit Finance Company Limited. Who approved it on the Government side? That is the question. If nobody approved it, nobody approved it, but who approved it?

1945 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the same person that approved every single other investment on that list, who is the same person who was approving all the investments on the Savings Bank before 9th December 2011.

1950 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, again, did anybody...? I will ask, maybe if it helps the hon. Gentleman, I will ask a slightly different supplementary. Did anybody, on the Government side, approve the investment of, effectively, £344 million of savers' money from the Gibraltar Savings Bank into Credit Finance Company Limited?

1955 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, each time that the hon. Member has asked the question, he seems to say on the Government side, as if it was possible for somebody on the Opposition side to do the approving. The answer is it has not been approved or disapproved by any Minister, if that is what the question is. (Interjection) The question is not... It has been approved by the official that was there before 9th December 2011, who approved all the investments of the Savings Bank before and continues to approve them today, the same person.

1960 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I find that answer surprising, and I have to say that the Government perhaps ought to, as a matter of extreme haste, when this session finishes, go to the Attorney General's Chambers, and ask urgently for advice as to whether the Government, whether this payment from the Gibraltar Savings Bank to Credit Finance Company Limited is ultra vires, because I will read an amendment to the Gibraltar Savings Bank Act, which the Hon. the Chief Minister brought to this House in March of last year, and it says this:

1965 'The monies from the issue of bonds and debentures shall, as far as practicable, be invested on behalf of the Gibraltar Savings Bank, under the direction of the Financial Secretary in such securities or be employed at interest in such a manner as shall be approved from time to time by the Government.'

1970 It has got to be approved by the Government. This particular investment has got to be approved by the Government. So does he not agree with me that effectively, what we have is an unlawful transfer of £344 million to Credit Finance Company Limited?

1975 Several Members: Hear, hear. (Interjection)

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, if what the hon. Member is saying, that before 9th December a Member of the then Government was taking the decisions on the investments, then I can tell him that that is not how the law has been interpreted since.

1980 Presumably, since he is asking the question about what was happening with the Savings Bank and what was the correct interpretation, I assume, that when he was in Government, he or one of his colleagues was taking the decisions on the investment of the Savings Bank and that therefore he is saying that that is happening now.

1985 Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well Mr Speaker, based on what the previous Chief Minister used to do when he was in office, can I ask the hon. Member to say whether he agrees with me, that it would be quite extraordinary for any official, even one as senior as the Financial and Development Secretary, should of his own initiative, decide to lend almost the entirety of Gibraltar savers money, to a Government-owned company?

1990 Because I can tell him that the Financial Secretary would not have contemplated making any such decision of his own initiative (Laughter) when I was Chief Minister. Would he agree with me, that it would be odd for a Financial Secretary to choose to lend this huge sum of taxpayers' money, almost all of it of savers' money, to a Government-owned company?

1995 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, clearly the numbers have never been the forte of the hon. Member when he was in Government, and it is still not the forte when he is in Opposition. Because in fact, he keeps on talking about savers' money and, clearly, ignores that the Government's share of the deposits in the Savings Bank are greater than the amount that he is referring to. Or has he not latched on to that particular point?

2005 If the hon. Member looks at the breakdown that I have given of the deposit, the on-call deposits exceeds the amount invested in shares of the Credit Finance Company. Although he talks about lending money, in fact it is not lending money; it is buying equity of the company. These are preference shares which have maturities of different dates, and the Savings Bank is investing a proportion of its £800 million in those shares, and the amount of Government deposits in the Savings Bank exceeds the amount deposited.

2010 So therefore either he has not realised that point, because he chooses to say, 'Look, this bit has come from this group of depositors as opposed to another group of depositors.' Well, that is not the case. Out of the £800 million, £200 million-odd are invested in the equity of a company that is 100% owned.

2015 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member might think that he can dispose questions from Members of the Opposition on the basis of pretending that none of us know what we are talking about, and only he knows what he is talking about. He can try that with everybody else if he wants to, it is not going to impress me.

2020 As he well knows, I have been Chief Minister of this community through some of its most prosperous times, for 16 years (Banging on desks) and I do not need lectures from him about numbers or economics, given that the last time that he was in Government, he almost brought Gibraltar to its knees. (Banging on desks)

2025 So, Mr Speaker, is the hon. Member saying that of the funds...? I mean, he can draw distinctions. I mean, if he really wants, I can watch every word of the debate, but I thought I was debating with somebody who understood that we were dealing in broad concepts. If he focuses on the difference between a loan and an equity investment, I would say to him that the position is even worse, because at least a loan is recoverable from assets and equity investment is the first thing that is lost, because you are a shareholder, you are not even a lender to the Gibraltar company.

2030 But that is not the point that I was focusing on. The point that I was focusing on is this: does his answer mean that all the money – obviously applying gross and net values – that the total of Government-owned monies, Government beneficial monies, money that the Government would be free to spend if it wanted to and it had it in its own back pocket, applied netted off against the amount of money that has been invested in redeemable preference shares in this Government-owned company, plus the £100 million invested in Government debentures, that the former exceeds the latter?

2035 So that there is no question of any other depositor's money, other than the Government as a depositor, being somehow invested to Credit Finance Company through redeemable preference shares or lent to the Government through Government monthly debentures? Is that the purport of his answer?

2040 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, first can I remind him that if I question his numeracy, that is nothing to the way he treated my attempts at persuading him that many of his figures were inaccurate, when he used to call me an economic illiterate and a lot of other endearing epitaphs that he used to hurl across the floor of the House. So really I am very, very mild to him in comparison with the way he used to deal with my questions.

2045 Secondly, it is a matter of judgement whether he left this place in a better state than he inherited it, but I certainly left it with more than £3 million of useable cash in 1996, (A Member: Hear, hear.) including £60 million in Community Care which he chose to run down to nothing, because he claimed in an interview in the Chronicle that he was going to replace Community Care with a superior scheme which he keeps secret and which he intends to take to his grave with him, even though it was of such benefit to pensioners. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) So we can spend time digging up the past and there are plenty of things that we can remind each other of.

2050 The point that I am making is not that there is a policy directive that only Government deposits will be used to invest; it is that it just so happens that at this particular point in time, the number shows that you cannot say you have used the savers' money. Look, the savers' money is predominantly locked in for five years. All the maturities of everything that is invested, as required by the amendment that was made, must have maturities which are equal to or shorter than, the dates when they have to be repaid.

2055 So the answer is, Mr Speaker, that I am not saying that this is the rule. I am saying that this happens to be the way numerically it pans out at the moment. But in any event, the Savings Bank will invest the money in the way that enables it to operate profitably which is presumably what we all want, and with the confidence that the money is safe in the investment that is being made, and the people that are employed to do that exercise, are discharging that duty.

2060 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I have to say that I am none the wiser in relation to my original point (Interjection) as to who on the Government side – indeed and so is the hon. the former Chief Minister, now a backbencher – actually took the decision to approve what is a very sizeable investment?

2070 Let me remind the hon. Gentleman, that when the Hon. the Chief Minister came to this House with the amendments to the Gibraltar Savings Act, he said that there was a dual lock mechanism. Financial Secretary approved by the Government. Now, I think it is extraordinary that the hon. Gentleman cannot provide me with a straight answer, as to whom, on those Government benches (Banging on desks) actually approved the decision to invest in this company.

2075 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the policy of the Government is reflected in the spread of investments and not in any particular one. Each individual investment does not require ministerial approval. If it did before 9th December, then that policy is no longer being applied.

2080 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I think I have correctly understood the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, even when subtracting all the sort of waffle from his answer, (Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely right!) I think the effect (Banging on desks) – (Members: Hear, hear!)

2085 Mr Speaker: Order! Order!

A Member: Minister for Employment.

2090 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I think most people understood me to mean the Minister for Employment. (Laughter and interjections) But still little things amuse little minds. I am perfectly happy to keep them entertained!

A Member: We know what you meant.

2095 Hon. P R Caruana: You know what I meant. The grown-ups amongst you know what I meant! (Laughter)

I think I understood the Hon. the Minister for Employment and many other things by the looks of it, to have said that as we speak, it just happens at this point in time, that in fact, it is not possible to say that there are depositors’ money, savers’ money, other savers’ money in these figures, because of the interpretation of the difference between the depositors and the investments.

2100 If that is true, given that there are between the sums invested in the Government monthly debentures and the redeemable preference shares in this Government-owned company, a total of £434 million, nearly £435 million, presumably he is not saying that the Government, whom he has just said was left in mere penury by me, had £440 million of its own pounds to put in these companies in this way.

2105 So if it was not the Government’s money, because he claims we left the Government with no money, whose money is the £444 million? From what source had that money been raised? If it was not the Government money, because the Government did not have money, and he is telling me on the other hand that it is Government money and not other savers’ money, can he explain to me the composition of the £442 million? I think my colleague, Mr Figueras, has taken down the number correctly from his oral answer, £442 million ordinary deposits? Can he just give me please a breakdown, if he has it, if not at a later date, of the composition of those ordinary deposits?

2110 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the figure that I have given the hon. Member is on 31st August 2013. He may think he was still in Government on 30th August 2013, but in fact he was not. There was not this money on 9th December 2011. Surely he knows that, he must know how much money there was in 2011 and it is not this money. So I do not see why he expects me to say if he left no money in 2011, how come there is money now in 2013? Well, precisely, because he is not there any more.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Hear, hear.

2120 Hon. P R Caruana: So that is the answer to the question. So what he is saying is that since December 2011, the Government has in fact accumulated, of its own money, £442 million or at least £400 million. This is the purport of his answer to which I do not seriously hold him. Alright, so this is the balance at August 2013, which is not to be used by reference as any benchmark, to what there may or may not have been in December 2011 when we lost office. Another statement of the obvious presumably to serve as 2125 some sort of guillotine until Mr Speaker says we have spent long enough on this question and it is time to move on.

2130 But the point is, whose money is it? I am not interested on the date on which the Government got it; the Government says that there is no savers' money invested in this company, savers other than its own. Yes, that is the purport of the answer that he gave me. Given that they have invested £442 million, is this Government money, accumulated from December 2011 by way of budget surpluses or by way of whatever means, so that these are £400 odd million of Government reserves, effectively.

2135 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, clearly the hon. Member does not know how much money there was in 2011, because he is asking me now to say is the £440 million all money that has been accumulated since.

2140 Well, he should know that in fact there was money in 2011, but not £442 million and that the bulk of the money, could not be used given his repeated formula of gross net and net debt, and the ceiling on what could be used without breaking the limitation of the net debt not exceeding 80% of annually recurrent revenue of the preceding financial year. (Hon. Chief Minister: Useable cash reserve.)

2145 So the useable cash reserve that he left, as he knows, was £3 million until the beginning of the new financial year of 1st April 2013, when it became £63 million being useable. But there was money because his policy then was as he used to say that he was actually issuing debentures in order to give people the opportunity of investing at 5%, and not being able to use the money. Therefore he had a situation where he would issue £100 million of debenture, but not be able to make use of that cash and the cash was then in the consolidated fund and deposited in the Savings Bank but it was not useable. It was only useable when the annual revenue went up and enabled the ceiling to go up.

2150 So the answer to his question is, it is not the case that it has all been accumulated since; it is the case that it has increased very substantially since and that is the figures that are reflected in the published estimates of the Government in the last financial year, and in the figures that I have provided in the past as the amount at the close of the last financial year which are subject to audit.

2155 So it is true that it so happens that the amount that the Government has on deposit in the Savings Bank actually is more or less the same, or perhaps slightly more than the amount that has been invested in the preference shares of the Finance Company. But I am not saying that there is a policy directive that the money that the Government puts, has to be invested in one way and the money that other people put is invested in another way. The provisions in the Savings Bank Act say that it can be invested in any investments such that the maturities match the liabilities and that is what is happening.

2160 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member, I can only assume, in order to continue to avoid answering my perfectly simple question, is confusing two wholly separate matters.

The fact that the Government only had x millions of pounds that it could legally spend at the time of the election, was a product of the borrowing limit which was by reference to a three-tier benchmark which had been exhausted and had to be redefined in legislation, in order to enable the Government to borrow more.

2165 How much the Government can borrow presumed to the debt ceiling, is a wholly different question as to whose money the Government is borrowing when it is able to borrow. I am not talking about how much money there was available for the Government to borrow; I am saying whose money has the Government borrowed, or invested in this debenture company?

2170 Because of course, he is absolutely right, there was... I cannot remember the exact figure, £200 million or £300 million, something like that in the Savings Bank at the time of the last Election. But it was mainly saver's money, and that is the point. It was mainly savers' money, because the amount of money that there was in there at the time of the election was broadly equal to the amount of money that the Government owed, or the Savings Bank and the Government owed savers.

2175 So, if the Government or the Savings Bank owed savers through debentures £300 million and had £300 million in the kitty, well, you do not have to be a Nobel Mathematics prize winner to know that the £300 million in the kitty are savers' money.

So the question is, if those are the monies that he has invested in these debentures, and they include the £300 million that was there at the time of the election, then he has invested savers money and the last answer that he gave me was wrong.

2180 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the last answer I gave him cannot be wrong because the last answer that I gave him was that it so happens – (Interjection) What I have told him is that there is now not £300 million, there is now £800 million, which is £500 million more.

2185 Hon. P R Caruana: None of which you told me were savers' money.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, I did not say none of the £800 million: what I said was that –

Hon. P R Caruana: None of the £300 million –

2190 Hon. J J Bossano: What I said was, Mr Speaker, that the bulk of the Government's own deposits in the Savings Bank are in the on-call accounts, as they were before when he was there (Hon. P R Caruana: Correct.) and there you have £442 million, so you are still left out of the £800 million with over £300 million that is not Government money and you have a situation where the amount – (Interjection)

2195 Hon. P R Caruana: Sorry, did he say it was or it wasn't Government money?

2200 Mr Speaker: May I...? I think the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana may not realise that unless he presses the button and the microphone comes on, any remarks that he makes, or in fact any supplementaries whilst Mr Bossano is holding the floor, will not be recorded in the Hansard.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the figure that I have given him is that, at the end of August, there was £819 million. Right! Of that £819 million, the amount in shares was £334 million or £335 million of Credit Finance. Right!

2205 So, if I tell him that the bulk of the Government's own money is in the £442 million, then I am saying to the hon. Member in fact, it is possible to say, although I am not saying that there is a policy that it should be so, and that it should [inaudible] in the future say, I said before that no money other than the Government money could be put, it is possible to say, well look, when you say the money in the Savings Bank that does not belong to the Government because the Government has deposited it there, is the one that is being used to invest in Credit Finance. No, you cannot say that it is or that it is not. Right!

2210 So that is the only point I have made. I have not made any other one.

2215 Hon. P R Caruana: That is how I understood him Mr Speaker, but implicit in that is that... I mean, I do not know what to make of his use of the word 'bulk' of the Government's money in the £442 million. I do not know if he means by that that there is part of the £442 that are not Government monies or that it means that all of those £442 million are Government monies, but they are not the only Government monies because the Government has money somewhere else as well. So I do not know exactly how to interpret him when he has used 'the bulk of the Government money', but perhaps he will clarify that to me when he gets up.

2220 But the main point is this: implicit in his answer just given to me is that the £442 million are Government monies, meaning monies that the Government is free to spend and if the Government is free to spend monies, it is free to lend them to a Government-owned company for it to spend it, if it wants to. I am not objecting to the Government channelling the expenditure of its money through its own company, if that is the route it chooses and we did much the same thing in our time.

2225 The question is, is it Government's money? Because for it to be Government's money, I need to see a breakdown of the – a question coming immediately, Mr Speaker – for it to be the Government's money, I would need to see a breakdown of the £442 million.

2230 I mean, the Government has done extraordinarily well in the last two years, if it has accumulated, in just two financial years by way of budget surpluses, £442 million that it can genuinely call its own money, as opposed to money... It wasn't there. The Government might have had pots of money, but it was not theirs to spend. Pension fund monies from the endowment funds, things like this, but those are not Government monies.

2235 Implicit in his last answer, and this is the remaining space between us, is that the £442 million in ordinary deposits, which he says balances out roughly the £335 million plus the £100 million, so that he can honestly and genuinely say that there is no savers' money invested in these companies, or have been used to buy Government bonds, that that is all Government, beneficially available to spend as it pleases, money.

2240 I am asking him, if he can tell me, what the composition of that £442 million is, so that I can test, because as far as I was aware, the Government did not have £442 million of its own money, to make it true that it had not invested somebody else's money in the way that he is now saying. For him to set off the £442 million against the investments of the Savings Bank and say, 'You see, I have not invested other people's money', it has to be true that the £442 million are Government monies and not somebody else's money. That is all I am trying to get at: how is the £442 million Government monies?

2245 Hon. J J Bossano: First of all, I am not saying this is only Government money that I am using and I am not using other people's money. I am saying, and I have repeatedly said, that it is not the case that there is a policy directive that only Government money should be used. I am saying that it so happens, since they are talking about savers money that it does not follow logically from the level of investments in the Savings Bank that it has to be savers' money. It can be either savers' money or Government money or the money of everybody because the Savings Bank does not distinguish from the source.

2250 It so happens that the amount of the £442 million that is Government deposits in the Savings Bank is more. It just happens to be so at this point in time; it might not be the case in a month's time; it might not have been the case a month ago; but it happens to be that, at this moment in time, it actually exceeds the amount that the Savings Bank has invested in Credit Finance Company Limited. That is the point I am making. I think it is probably of the order of something like £390 million out of the £442 million.

2255 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister, [technical interruption] this is all very complicated. Mr Speaker –

2260 Mr Speaker: The television is still there.

Hon. P R Caruana: Is it! Alright, Mr Speaker. Well, I am grateful to the hon. Member for that clarification. Of course, he knows that he is speaking to somebody, because I have told him this before. It is not the end of the world for the Savings Bank to lend money to the Government for the Government to spend on public projects, because National Savings Banks do that all over Europe.

2265 The important thing is that savers should be aware that that is what the Government does, which is not to suggest that it is wrong for the Government to do it, so long as savers know that when they lend their money to the Government, to the Savings Bank by depositing it with them as savers, that that money is not just sitting there in some account in the Bank of England as cash, but that the Government, as Government's do in many other parts of Europe, is getting that money and lending it to itself, to spend on projects and on this and on that.

2270 The issue is not that it is right or wrong, it is a matter of policy and opinion, but it is not intrinsically wrong by reference to European – and American for that matter – practice. The important thing is that it represents – except to the extent that we did it accidentally in a very small amount, I think in the last year – in large amounts it represents a departure from what people have understood the position in Gibraltar to be in the past, and therefore I would ask the Government to consider simply that it should be transparent with depositors.

2275 And I am sure there will be a lot of depositors that will continue to be happy to invest with the Government, even if the Government is going to spend the money on projects. But there needs to be transparency and people need to know what he is doing.

2280 Mr Speaker, I will sit down now, just asking him by way of confirmation, if I have correctly understood his last answer to mean that the bulk, I am not sure if he mentioned a figure, I think he mentioned, all but – (A Member: £390 million.) £390 million, of that £442 million, £390 million is Government-owned, un-hypothecated. In other words, it is not pension fund, or it is not somebody else's money; it is Government-owned, accumulated through Government revenues and the difference between Government expenditure and Government revenue – in other words, Government-owned monies that the Government could bring an Appropriation Bill to the House tomorrow out of the Consolidated Fund to spend – of £390 million. Have I correctly...? I just do not want to be at cross purposes with him at the end of this discussion.

2290 Hon. J J Bossano: It is Government-owned money but I think it is highly unlikely that the Government will bring an Appropriation Bill to spend it in a month's time.

Hon. P R Caruana: But it is Government money?

2295 Hon. J J Bossano: It is absolutely true, Government money. That is correct, yes.

Mr Speaker: Now, are there any other supplementary questions? I will allow... Hon. Members will agree, I think, we have been three quarters of an hour on what is a very important subject, I grant them, but I do not think they can complain where time is concerned. I will allow another supplementary and then we should move on.

2300 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, there were 10 or 11 questions that had been bunched into one.

2305 Mr Speaker: Four or five, and we have been here for over three hours for 20 questions, 25 questions.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I am told seven questions have been bunched up.

Mr Speaker, can I return back, because really for the purposes of the line of question, my line of question, it really does not matter whether it is Government money, or it is not Government money. The legislation is quite clear, there has to be Government approval.

2310 Is really what the hon. Member is saying to me... does it amount to this: that effectively, I mean the Financial Secretary wakes up one morning and says, 'I am now going to be investing £344 million...' – because I think it is £344 million that is the latest figures from searches that we have conducted, that have 2315 been invested in this particular company. The Financial Secretary wakes up one day and says, 'I am going to be investing £344 million into Credit Finance Company Limited', and it does not require a telephone conversation with the Minister for Finance, the Chief Minister or the Minister for Employment, seeking his or their approval for the investment of that particular money in this particular company?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not know whether it is that the Financial Secretary woke 2320 up one morning and decided to put £22 million in the Bank of England, but whether it is £22 million in the Bank of England or £20 million or £40 million or £65 million in the European Investment Bank or in any of the others, which is the £500 million that has been otherwise invested, he has not come back asking for approval from a Minister of the Government.

Given the fact that in... Well, I do not see what the hon. Member finds so extraordinary. Here we 2325 have got a situation where the bank has got £820 million, which is quite an achievement I would have thought, that we have that amount of money, and the Government's Financial Secretary, who is responsible for the distribution of the different investments, invests with other people, £500 million and with a Government company £3 million. The Members opposite are more worried about the security of the Government company, which has got £3 million, than about the security of the strangers that have got our other £500 million.

2330 Well, we think his judgement must be on the advice that he gets that these things are safe investments and he does not come back, and to my knowledge, he did not have to come back seeking approval for any individual investment before. I think the way the law was, and the way law is, is that there is a broad policy and the broad policy dictates that the timing is the important thing, that is to say the Financial 2335 Secretary must be in a position to be confident that somebody comes along and says, 'My £10,000 debenture is maturing next month', and there will be an investment that will mature before that happens and the person will be paid. That is what is required, that is what is happening.

Hon. P R Caruana: Can I just ask one very short supplementary factual, entirely factual, with Mr 2340 Speaker's leave?

Mr Speaker, in answering my last supplementary that these were Government funds, he was not cutting out one of the adjectives that I used in my question, was he not? It included the spendable and un-2345 hypothecated. So for example, it does not include the currency note security fund. I mean, we are talking about Government spendable un-hypothecated money. That is not money that the Government is Government money in the sense that used to be in special funds, but the Government could not spend because it had to be there for some statutory purposes, like the currency notes fund.

It would not be consistent with my question and the answer that he gave to my question, for the £390
2350 million to include money that the Government could not spend, because it was not really its money because it included the currency note security fund which is not the Government's money to spend.

Hon. J J Bossano: I think it does, and I think it is the only thing that is included which is about £20 million. But there is nothing else other than that, the rest is consolidated fund money.

Mr Speaker: Move on then to the next question.

Credit Finance Company Limited
Investments, payments and loans

2360 Clerk: Question 657, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide a list of all investments, payments and loans, made by Credit Finance Company Limited, since its incorporation, showing the amounts, the dates 2365 those investments, payments and loans were made, together with the identity of the party or parties to whom they were made?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

2370 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Government will not provide how the commercial Credit Finance Company makes its investments, no. The answer to that, it is not information that the Government is prepared to provide.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have to say that is an extraordinary, (A Member: Shocking!) shocking answer. I have been a Member of this House for six years; I have never heard such a shocking, shocking answer as the one that he has provided.

2375 This is £344 million that the Government is saying that it is not going to account to this House, that the Government has no duty to account to this House at Budget time, because this is off-balance sheet, off-estimates of revenue and expenditure, and we take the opportunity of asking a question about it, at questions and answers, and the hon. Gentleman, true to form it has to be said, because we had considered this question and what his response would be prior to asking it.

2380 It is shocking and extraordinary and I have to say, Mr Speaker, that as a consequence of that answer, which we thought that he would give because he is, he is, a leopard does not change his spots – the Opposition is walking out of this Parliament in response to what is an extraordinary, extraordinary state of affairs, in the failure of this Government to provide how it has spent, how £344 million, of which some of it is savers' money, and all of it is Government money, is being spent and is being loaned out to third parties.

Mr Speaker: May I ask the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, before he walks out, whether he would give an indication to the Speaker, so that the Speaker knows whether he should exercise, so that he can exercise his judgement, as to whether we carry on with the business of the House, because there is a quorum, or whether I can allow sense to prevail as a result of a recess until this afternoon. Does he have any intention of returning again, or does he not mind if the House continues with the conclusion of its business today?

2395 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, we will return –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Before the Leader of the Opposition replies, if I can just assist...

2400 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, he has asked me – he has asked me. No, I am not giving way. (Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker [inaudible]) He has asked me a question and I am on my feet.

Hon. Chief Minister: I have a Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What is the Chief Minister's Point of Order?

2405 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am the Leader of the House, and whether the House recesses or not is technically a matter for me. I would be very interested to hear what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has to say, but based on that, I will decide whether I move a recess or not.

2410 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, we are effectively leaving this House for the remainder of the Question and Answer session. We will be returning for the debate –

Mr Speaker: That means that the remaining questions will receive written answers, because they will not have been put. Is he aware of that?

2415 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, so be it, Mr Speaker, but we take such a serious view of the failure to answer what is an extremely important question, on something of such importance as this, that we are taking the position that we are walking out in protest at the way that the Government has handled this.

Procedural

2425 Mr Speaker: May I now ask the Chief Minister to what time is he proposing that we recess in order to continue Government business with Bills?

2430 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No, Mr Speaker, I have absolutely no intention of recessing. I would ask the Clerk to please put the questions; I will then table the Written Questions and continue with Bills.

Clerk: Well, the next question was due to have been put by the Hon. D A Feetham and it was Question 659. Likewise Question 656, Question 664, Question 665, Question 674, Question 676 and Question 684. I presume now that the answers will be given in written form or –

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in order to assist what I would call Members opposite, if they were opposite, I propose that the first written answer that is available to the House should be provided to them, in answer to those questions.

Written Answers to Oral Questions

QUESTION No: 659/2013

Questioner: The Hon D.A Feetham

Can the Chief Minister please provide details of all investments, payments and loans made by the Gibraltar Savings Bank, the Government, or any company directly or indirectly owned by Government to Credit Finance Company Limited stating the amounts and the dates when such investments, payments and loans were made?

ANSWER

THE HON THE MINISTER FOR ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

Mr Speaker,

No loans have been made by the Gibraltar Savings Bank, the Government or Government-Owned Companies to Credit Finance Company Limited.

The Savings Bank Fund invests in redeemable preference shares issued by Credit Finance Company Limited with maturity dates that match the maturity dates of deposits in the Gibraltar Savings Bank. The details of the investments held by this fund, as is the case with all other special funds are published once audited by the Principal Auditor.

Clerk: The Medical and Health (Amendment) Act 2013.

2490

Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013 Second Reading approved

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill now be read a second time.

2495 Mr Speaker, before I go into the substance I give notice – and a letter has been distributed – of a number of minor amendments that I intend to bring at Committee Stage.

Mr Speaker, one would be forgiven for thinking that the Medical and Health Act 1997 is a statute that governs the practice of health care in Gibraltar. As it stands, it does provide mechanisms for registration and control of key players in the health sector, such as doctors, nurses, dentists and pharmacists.

2500 There is, however, the very large vacuum when it comes to the allied health professionals. As the law currently stands, practitioners of these professions, which include chiropodists, dieticians and osteopaths, to name but three, are outside the regulatory framework.

2505 This means that it is possible for people to hold themselves out to have expertise, when in fact they may have none. That carries inevitable risk to persons who seek treatment from these so-called professionals. The Bill affords protection in both directions, a person accessing an allied health professional, will have the comfort that the person claiming to have a specific area of expertise, is in fact registered with the relevant UK governing body.

Allied health professionals will benefit too, since they will no longer be exposed to the potential competition from persons who are not entitled to practice. In addition, the service users and the public will benefit because the Bill will require the regulated professionals to uphold high standards of practice.

2510 Mr Speaker, this legislative/regulatory gap is not something that has just appeared out of nowhere. Healthcare professionals have made repeated representations to the Government for this change, since the late 1990s. As far back as 2005, the Government of the time issued a consultation precisely on this matter. Regrettably, nothing was done after the consultation exercise was completed.

2515 Mr Speaker, this Government considers that action is indeed necessary and this is why I am bringing the Bill to the House. The Bill also introduces a number of other changes, which I will be referring to now.

The principal changes are: clause 3. Mr Speaker, clause 3 amends section 7 of the Act. This section contains details relating to the Register of Medical Practitioners etc, and is extended so as to accommodate a further part to the register, specifically for allied health professionals.

2520 Clause 4, the amendments introduced by clause 4, taken together with a new section 21B which is introduced by clause 9, reflects Government's policy to push towards registration, with the relevant UK registration body, by waiving registration fees for those who do so. The natural consequence of registering in the UK is that to varying degrees, there is an element of professional oversight through the adherence of standards, including continuous professional development and codes of practice.

2525 Clause 6 amends section 10 of the Act and is a small amendment which intends to close the loop-hole to allow the Medical Registration Board the power to refuse to register a person who has not kept up to the requirements as to training or currency of practice in the home state.

2530 Clause 7 inserts a new section that is intended to preserve the ability of a very small number of pharmacists, who have given Gibraltar many years of valuable service, and whom the Government knows would not be able to meet the new criteria being established. It has therefore made a very limited exception for these persons.

Clause 8 makes an amendment to reflect the reality that the existing time limits on limited registration are impractical.

2535 Clause 9 inserts two sections into the Act. I have already spoken about section 21B; the other section 21A is also about raising the standards of practice in Gibraltar, and in this case a section will require dentists and pharmacists to abide by the Codes of Ethics which are promulgated by the relevant UK institution.

2540 Clause 10 of the Bill, inserts a whole new part, Part IIA, which is dedicated towards the registration of allied health professionals and the protection of their titles from use by un-registered persons, as with the dentists and pharmacists, all allied health professionals, will also be obliged to follow codes of ethics which are promulgated by the relevant registering body in the United Kingdom. A full list of protected titles is to be found in schedule 13 which is inserted in the Act by clause 18.

2545 Clauses 15 and 16 respectively update and make provision for offences in connection with the use of protected titles by persons who are not entitled to use them.

And finally, clause 17 substitutes the present schedule 2 on fees, to make registration in Gibraltar only, more expensive than registration in the UK and Gibraltar, in line with the policy described some moments ago.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

2550 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Medical and Health Act 1997 to, inter alia, make provision for the compulsory registration of allied health professionals be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Second Reading approved

2590

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill now be read a second time.

Mr Speaker, this amendment realigns and slightly amends the list of methods covered by the Act. There are two typographical errors in the Bill, which I will seek to amend at Committee Stage.

In one, the reference to killing has been omitted in error. There is also an error in the letters and numbers attributed to the paragraphs.

Mr Speaker, there has been some confusion in the past in respect of some of the methods and the legal interpretation of the methods as defined. The proposed realignment makes it clear that all gill nets are covered, including trammel nets which are now specifically mentioned in section (ba).

Interpretation is also clearer, in that the three main methods utilised in the region by our artisanal fishermen are now all included in one subparagraph.

Mr Speaker, may I add by way of information that as has been stated on previous occasions, Government will now be able by regulation at the appropriate time to allow activities, subject to very tight rules designed to ensure accountability of catch and sustainability and regeneration of fish stocks.

Draft regulations are being finalised and should be ready for publication shortly. We have consulted widely on their content, which is designed to ensure protection of the marine environment and protection of the responsible practice of local recreational fishermen.

Given that this is an issue of great public interest, I will table a copy of the regulations in the House, when they are published, to ensure all hon. Members have direct access to these.

I commend the Bill to the House. (Applause)

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Protected Cell Companies Act 2001 be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Protected Cell Companies Act 2001 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Act 2013.

Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013

2655

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

2660

Mr Speaker, the primary purpose of this Bill is to ensure that in every instance the body best able to assess the suitability of a company being incorporated as a protected cell company, or being converted into a protected cell company, is given the responsibility to make that assessment.

2665

As it now stands, the Protected Cell Companies Act 2001 divides this responsibility between, on the one hand, the Financial Services Commission for insurers and authorised collective investment schemes and, on the other, the Finance Centre for companies issuing particular types of debt instrument and for certain companies which do not need to be licensed or authorised by the Financial Services Commission.

2670

The Government has considered and the Financial Services Commission has agreed that it is the Financial Services Commission that is best placed to give or withhold consent, given the essentially technical nature of the valuation and because of the ongoing supervisory duties implied by the terms and conditions, which may be attached to a consent, a role for which the Financial Services Commission is admirably suited and justly recognised.

This Bill therefore amends the Protected Cell Companies Act by replacing in section 11 references to the Finance Centre Director with references to the Financial Services Commission's Chief Executive Officer.

2675 Mr Speaker, a secondary purpose of this Bill is to bring the Protected Cell Companies Act up to date by replacing obsolete terms and outdated references. This is dealt with in the Bill in a number of different ways, Mr Speaker, which I can take Members through at the Committee Stage, should anyone wish for clearance.

I commend the Bill to the House, Mr Speaker.

2680 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Protected Cell Companies Act 2001 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013

2705 Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2710 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills, clause by clause: the Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013; the Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013; the Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013.

2715 In Committee of the whole Parliament

Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2720 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Medical and Health Act 1997 to, inter alia, make provision for the compulsory registration of allied health professionals.
Clause 1.

2725 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Chairman, as I have already indicated, I would like to propose the substitution of clause 1 as it appears in the Bill, for clause 1(1), 'This Act may be cited as the Medical and Health (Amendment) Act 2013.' and add a subsection (2): 'This Act comes into operation on the day specified by the Minister by Notice in the Gazette and different days may be appointed for different provisions and for different purposes.'

2730 The reason is very simple: the different professions will have different renewal dates and different times required for them to conform to this new Act and we want to have the flexibility to be able to do so.

Mr Chairman: Those in favour? (Members: Aye). The amendment is carried.
Clause 1 as amended, stands part of the Bill.

2735 Clerk: Clause 2.

2740 Clerk: Clause 3.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Chairman, similarly to propose an amendment to this clause by way of housekeeping, essentially. In clause 3(a), in paragraph (c), subparagraphs (i) and (ii) are renumbered (ii) and (iii) respectively, and the following subparagraph is inserted – '(i) for the words "six parts" substitute "seven parts"; and (b) after paragraph (c) insert the following paragraph – '(d) subsection (3) is repealed.'

2745 It is merely to rectify some minor errors.

Mr Chairman: Those in favour of the amendment? (Members: Aye). Carried.
Clause 3 as amended stand part of the Bill.

2750 Clerk: Clauses 4 to 18

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

2755 Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2765 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Nature Protection Act 1991.
Clause 1.

2770 Clerk: Clause 2.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Yes, Mr Chairman, as I mentioned earlier, in clause 2 of the Bill, for section 10(2) substitute section 10(1); and in paragraph (ba), after the words 'uses for the purpose of', insert the words 'killing or'.

2775 As I said before, that was a typographical error.

Mr Chairman: Those in favour of these amendments? (Members: Aye). Carried.
Clause 2 as amended stands part of the Bill.

2780 Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2790 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Protected Cell Companies Act 2001.
Clauses 1 and 2.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

2795 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

2800 Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013
Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013
Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013
Third Readings approved; Bills passed

2805 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2810 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013, the Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013 and the Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013 have been considered in Committee and agreed to with some amendments, and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

2815 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that (1) the Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013, (2) the Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013 and (3) the Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Do hon. Members require that I call them out individually? No?

2820 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, ex abundanti cautela – I have seen that the Clerk has raised his eyebrow; perhaps we should.

Mr Speaker: Those in favour of the Medical and Health (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2825 Those in favour of the Nature Protection (Amendment No. 2) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Those in favour of the Protected Cell Companies (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2830 ADJOURNMENT

2835 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, although I was very much enjoying the nostalgia of watching the ghosts of Governments past debate with the great Joe Bossano and this has all been, all that fun has been spoilt at the last minute, I now have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that the House do now adjourn sine die.

I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn sine die.

2840 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

This House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 1.15 p.m.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE CHAIR

Whether Government Ministers misled the House
Ruling by the Speaker

15

20

Mr Speaker: This is the first time that I am formally ruling on a matter raised by the Leader of the Opposition. It is not very often that the Speaker, either here in this Parliament or perhaps in any other parliament is asked to make a ruling. Accordingly, I have checked with the Office of the Clerk of the House of Commons as to whether a Member of Parliament is entitled to rise and respond to a ruling.

25

The position in the House of Commons is that a Member will not be allowed to rise and respond, or even reserve his position, as this would in effect be challenging the ruling. The correct formal step for a Member who is dissatisfied would be to table a formal motion stating his opposition to the ruling clearly.

Now as to the matter at hand.

As Members are no doubt aware, the Leader of the Opposition has been in correspondence with me, seeking my adjudication on an allegation that Government Ministers had misled Parliament when answering questions in relation to the Sunborn Floating Hotel.

Having studied our Standing Rules and Orders, consulted the edition of 'Erskine May' currently in use and after consulting the Office of the Clerk of the House of Commons, I responded with a ruling which I think should be placed on the record so that all Members should be aware of the salient points contained therein.

In the Leader of the Opposition's letter of 17th July 2013, he asked that I rule on:

'whether:

- (a) the deliberate misleading of Parliament by a Member is capable of amounting to a contempt of Parliament; and
- (b) you have the power on a complaint by another Member that a Member of Parliament has deliberately misled Parliament and therefore acted in contempt, to rule that a prima facie case has been established?'

The following extracts from my replies to the Leader of the Opposition constitute my ruling:

(1) Erskine May, at page 203, sets out the breaches of parliamentary privilege which could amount to a contempt. These include circumstances where the business of the House is obstructed or impeded.

45

Up until the present time, and noting the Leader of the Opposition's dissatisfaction with the answers given to his questions, but in no way judging the issue, I fail to see how it can be held that the business of the House was impeded so as to constitute a contempt. Nor, again, do I consider that the business of the House was obstructed or impeded.

(2) There is no provision in our Standing Rules and Orders to deal with cases regarding allegations of a Minister misleading Parliament when answering a question. This is also the position in the House of Commons. In not giving the Speaker the power to adjudicate on allegations or complaints that a Minister has misled Parliament when answering questions, the Speaker is being safeguarded, probably intentionally, from being placed in an untenable situation. Never-ending instances would, no doubt, arise whenever a Member was not satisfied with an answer, when the Speaker would be expected to adjudicate on allegations that Parliament had been misled.

55

(3) I have also asked the Office of the Clerk of the House of Commons as to what courses of action in Parliamentary terms are open to the Opposition, should they consider that the Government have misled Parliament. They have replied that:

60

'Purely procedurally, if a Government Minister is accused of misleading the House then:

- (a) Either the Opposition could approach the matter politically, with motions of censure, confidence etc, or
- (b) If they felt that a particular Member (in this case a Minister) had misled the House then another Member could make a complaint in the normal way for the matter to be treated as a matter of privilege and referred to the Committee of Privileges.'

Since we do not have a 'Committee of Privileges' in our Parliament to whom the matter can be referred, only (a) above would seem to be relevant.

That is the end of my ruling, and I am providing all Members with a copy of this ruling.

Questions for Oral Answer

Questions from 690/2013 to 706/2013 to be answered in writing

110

Question 690/2013, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I would like my Oral Questions from 690/2013 to 706/2013, both included, to be treated as Written Questions instead.

115

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government will not object to that application made by Mr Netto, but it is a matter, in my view, entirely for the Chair.

120

Mr Speaker: There is nothing in the Rules to cover this situation. Where it is... Members of the Opposition who desire that questions should be answered in a written form, prior notice is given to that effect, and likewise, when notice is given that questions are down for an oral answer, separate notice is given.

125

The only situation, once notice of a question has arisen, where written answers are provided to questions which were meant for oral answer, is when a Member due to ask that question is not present. If that Member is absent, and no other Member in his or her place asks that question, then a written answer is given.

Since the Government has no objection, I am not going to object to that being the case, but I do wish to make the point that it is not covered by Rules, and that therefore it should not be taken as a precedent.

Procedural

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, given that Questions 707 onwards are to be answered by me, and we have established a precedent in this House that the Chief Minister answers 135 Questions on the third Thursday of each month at 3.00 p.m., I now move that the House recess until 3.00 p.m. this afternoon.

Clerk: Question 755, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government please state whether the Financial Services Commissions has received, or is intended to receive in future, the benefit of any loan, payment or 335 funding, either directly or indirectly, by (a) Credit Finance Company Ltd; or (b) the proceeds of monies deposited with the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

340 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no such expenditure is, or is envisaged, to be funded by Credit Finance Company Ltd, or from the proceeds of deposits in the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can I draw the Hon. the Chief Minister's attention to Question 748, and Question 748 talks about or asks about the proceeds of monies which have at some point been deposited in the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

345 Now, in answer to Question 663, the Hon. – (Interjection) Well, I will give way.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have picked out that question myself, actually, now. Can I invite him to ask me the supplementary he is going to ask me, and once I have answered Question 764, which I am going to answer with Questions 751 and 763, which is the next question on the Order Paper?

350 Mr Speaker: Are there any other supplementaries?

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes, clearly, I would invite the Hon. the Chief Minister, and I do not know what answer he is going to give me, in relation to the last question on the Order Paper, but of course, I know, and he knows, that £100 million has been loaned by the Gibraltar Savings Bank to the Government, so that has gone into Government coffers.

355 Now unless the Government intends for that £100 million to just simply sit there, and do nothing, which I doubt very much that is the intention, then of course the Government does intend to use the proceeds from monies that have been deposited in the Gibraltar Savings Bank for some purpose.

360 Therefore, ergo, the answer he has given me in relation to Question 748 cannot be accurate.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is why I have told him I have picked out Question 748 – it is not the last question on the Order Paper for today, although it is the last question there is, numbering wise. I have told him I am going to answer it next, because it is going to be answered with Question 751, which is the very next question on the Order Paper and then he will see exactly what that £100 million has been applied to. I think this Question 748 should have been answered with 764, and not with the bunch of others, because it relates to monies deposited previously. So I am quite happy to take the substance of that question in my answer to the next set of questions that will be answered.

370 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Chief Minister say whether the answers that he gave to the original questions apply to the tunnel under the runway as well, and indeed, whether the Government's position has changed, in respect of that project, over what he has told this House in the past.

375 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, what I have said about Credit Finance, and the Gibraltar Savings Bank applies equally to the continuation of that tunnel project.

The hon. Gentleman knows, and I have told the House before, that that is a matter presently in litigation. Nothing that the Government has said previously has changed. He may be happy to hear, that, since the last answer in this House, I think the process of prequalifying people, for the tender process to complete the works has now been completed, and that the trial on liability of this matter, is actually ongoing in the United Kingdom as we speak, and the Government is advised that we can be cautiously optimistic of a favourable result.

Credit Finance Company Ltd; Gibraltar Savings Bank
Funds received from, payments made to by Government

390 Clerk: Question 751, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government please state what funds or payments it, or any other Government-owned company, agency or statutory body has received from Credit Finance Company Ltd, since that company was incorporated, or from the Gibraltar Saving Bank, identifying precisely the reason and purpose for the receipt of those funds, or those payments?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

400 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer together with Questions 763 and 764.

Clerk: Question 763, the Hon. D A Feetham.

405 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state what monies have been paid by the Government, any Government-owned company, or the Gibraltar Savings Bank, either directly or indirectly, to Credit Finance Company Ltd, since it was incorporated, excluding the amounts paid in relation to the subscription of its shares?

Clerk: Question 764, the Hon. D A Feetham.

410 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government please state what it intends to do with the £100 million that the Gibraltar Savings Bank has lent the Government, and in respect of which the Government has issued a monthly debenture, or debentures, at the rate of 8%.

415 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, excluding the amounts paid for the subscription of its shares, no monies have been paid by Government, any Government-owned company or the Gibraltar Savings Bank, directly or indirectly, to Credit Finance Company Ltd since it was incorporated.

420 The £100 million that the Savings Bank Fund has invested in a Government debenture, has been credited to the Consolidated Fund, and will be used, in the main, to fund I&D expenditure.

425 Hon. D A Feetham: So, does the Government envisage that part of this £100 million will, for example, be used in relation to some of the housing projects that the Government has announced? Is that a possibility? Is that envisaged by the Government?

430 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the money will go into the I&D. Where it goes in the I&D book is a matter that is not yet clearly determined, but it will go to the items of expenditure in the I&D. To do that Mr Speaker, it will go through this Parliament, and Members will have the opportunity of considering that, at the time that we consider the relevant Appropriation Bill.

435 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, that may be true, but of course, I asked specifically, last time round, in the last session of this House, whether any monies from the Gibraltar Savings Bank were going to be used in relation to, for example, the Aerial Farm Project, and the other housing project that the Government has announced. The answer from Minister Bossano was that no.

But does he accept that, actually, that answer cannot be entirely accurate, because part of this money may well end up in the funding of those two projects? It seems to me that it is a remarkable coincidence that the Government has announced that those projects, the combined costs of those projects, some £106 million, and that the Gibraltar Savings Bank is lending the Government, effectively, £100 million.

440 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Savings Bank is not directly financing; the Savings Bank is buying Government debt. If the hon. Member considers that debentures sold to the Savings Bank means that it is the Savings Bank that is financing, that is a view that we do not share. One thing is for the Savings Bank to be involved in investing in something as it does with credit finance, and the other thing is for the Government public debt to be held by the Savings Bank, which it has been held in many previous occasions, and I think which at one stage, in previous questions, the hon. the backbencher asked me whether, when it came to Government expenditure, this would be done through public debt held by the Savings Bank, which I confirmed.

450 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but, Mr Speaker, does he not accept the artificiality of the situation – of course, the Gibraltar Savings Bank, is not funding directly these two particular projects to the tune of £100 or £106 million, but what is happening is that the Gibraltar Saving Bank is lending the Government £100 million, and the Government is then using that £100 million, in order to fund these two projects. Does he not accept that the distinction that he has drawn is a highly artificial one?

455 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, no, I do not accept it. The Government of Gibraltar issues public debt. The public debt can either be sold directly to a member of the public, or it can be sold to the Savings Bank, which is selling Savings Bank savings instruments to the members of the public.

460 And the fact is that the money is not the money of the Savings Bank, ultimately; it is the money of the same people that would have been investing in debentures in the Government, or investing in debentures in the Savings Bank. So, ultimately, it is not the Savings Bank money; it is the money of any investor.

465 So I do not see why the hon. Member finds there is something wrong, in the money being channelled through the Savings Bank, before it becomes public debt, as opposed to being public debt directly. It is no different from the fact that the money is deposited, on the one hand, in Barclays Bank by the Government, and yet, on the other hand, it borrows money from Barclays Bank – or does he not know that this has been happening in the last 15 years?

470 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Minister for Inward Investment accept that the proceeds of monies from the Gibraltar Savings Bank, savers' money, is being used by the Government in order to fund some of its projects? Does he accept that?

475 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I accept that the increase in the public debt, in the last 15 years, from £100 million to £500 million was savers' money, and that that savers' money was used to make a hole in the Theatre Royal, where it stood, and to build an £80 million Air Terminal, which is grossly underutilised, and that that savers' money could, equally, have gone directly into Government debentures, and would have not have been found objectionable by the hon. Member. Unless the hon. Member thinks that the correct thing to do, when you issue debentures, is not to make any use of the money that you borrow.

480 The hon. Member prefaced his previous supplementary by saying he would expect that if we issued a debenture, it is not just for the money to sit there. It is because the money is going to be spent, and that is quite true. The money is going to be spent, and we could either go and say to the public, buy Government debentures, which we choose not to do, or we sell the Government debentures to the Savings Bank, who in turn borrow the money from the public. So, what is the difference?

485 Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, just to cut through the Gordian knot of his answer, the answer is yes. Yes?

490 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the answer is yes, it is true that the Government has, for the last 15 years, been borrowing money from the public, and throwing it away in digging holes where the Theatre Royal has to be, and it is yes, that now the money borrowed from the public will be put to a much more fruitful use, which is economic growth and housing people. (Banging on desks)

495 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I wonder if the hon. Member would give me the opportunity to persuade him, that the answers that he has just give this House, are either not entirely accurate, or not the whole story.

500 Would the hon. Member agree with me, that in the past, as he calls it – I think he has referred to the last 15 years, to obvious political effect – that there has been, except for a few months towards the end of our last term, in respect of a relatively small amount, there has always been, in the Government reserves and the Savings Bank, more cash reserves than the Government owed, what he calls, savers; and that therefore, to the extent, that the Government was borrowing and spending money on its projects, its ability to repay savers was not in jeopardy, because the Government always had more cash in its reserves, and in the Savings Bank reserves, than either of them, or both of them, owed savers?

505 And will he agree with me, that the essence of the questions, which are not reflected in the essence of his answers, is that the Government is now structuring the Treasury affairs of the Savings Bank, and indeed its own, in a way that allows the Government to do something which no Government has done before, and that is to spend savers' money, in quantities which reduce the amount of reserves in cash, available to both the Savings Bank, and the Government, to repay those savers, should they all ask for their money at the same time?

510 Now, he knows what my views are, about the spending of savers' money, I have explained it in this House several times, by reference to what other European countries do. The difference is that we do not have that history here, and he knows my view, that there is nothing implicitly wrong with it, so long as it is transparent, and the House can see how much contingent liability under its guarantee of the Savings Bank, by the Government – a statutory guarantee of the Savings Bank – the Government may be making itself liable for, through this spending of money, without being matched by cash reserves. That is a transparency issue, and the other issue is that savers should understand, which requires a slightly less politically cynical answer than he has just given – a simple 'yes' would be sufficient transparency – that savers should now understand that savers' money is now being spent, either investing in these preference shares of this Credit Finance Company, which can then invest it however it pleases, or by lending it to the Government, so that it can spend it, however it pleases, subject to the approval of this House, through the 520 Budget. And that that has not been the case before, and that people simply need to understand, that that can now happen. And that both of those would be a considerable step forward to where we are today.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, I do not accept what he has just said.

525 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, and therein lies the problem.

Hon. J J Bossano: The problem is in fact that what he has said is not accurate. That is, the Savings Bank has previously held, in its portfolio of investment, Government debt. Yes, it has, Mr Speaker. And it was his Government that introduced the policy of stopping the issuing of debt by the Saving Bank as saving instruments, and replacing it by debentures. And at the time that he did that, he said that he was doing it because of the need to keep the 10% reserve. He may have forgotten it, but I remember. The net result of that is that he is now arguing that somehow, if the Government borrows £100 million from him, that is something that he, as a saver, should be told, that they borrowed the money to make use of it in Government spending – if it is in the Savings Bank, but there is no need to do it if it is issued directly by the Government, as a Government debenture.

530 Well, look, it is exactly the same thing. If the hon. Member puts his savings in the Savings Bank, which is guaranteed by the Government, and the Savings Bank invests that money in a Government debenture, apart from the fact that it appears twice, once in and once out, it is exactly the same. With the same guarantee, the same maturity, the same rate of interest, and used for the same purpose. The £100 million will be used for the same purpose as if the Government had chosen to do, what he was doing when he was in Government, which was to say, invite people to invest in a £100 million of five-year Government debentures. And that would have been savers' money.

540 Or is it that the definition by the Members opposite is that you are only a saver if you put it in the Savings Bank, and you are not a saver if you save it by investing directly in Government debt?

545 Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker. If I could just ask him further – answer him in the form of questions, just to keep within the Rules of the House.

550 Does the hon. Member accept that, of course, we understand that you can be a saver, whether you put your savings in Government debentures, or in Savings Bank debentures; and all of the answers that he has given me, to my supplementaries, continue to obfuscate the real issue; and he is debating with someone... well he is not debating, he is answering questions from somebody who has a very particular view about these things; and he is going to lose this argument with this person? At least in this person's mind, through simple lack of transparency, and lack of clarity, with the people of Gibraltar.

555 Yes, Mr Speaker, look, it is not the case... I am going to go back and check it, but I am 99% clear that the Gibraltar Government has not, during the last 15 years as he calls it, sold debentures – or put the other way, that during the last 15 years, the Gibraltar Savings Bank assets have not included Government debentures. In other words, in my time, the Gibraltar Savings Bank did not lend its savers' monies to the Gibraltar Government. He has now said twice this afternoon that that is the case, and I am telling him that I am 99% certain – I will check, and if I am wrong, I will tell him, and I will confirm it in this House next time I come – that that is not the case.

560 But whatever might be the answer to that question, does he accept that he has not answered the essence of one of my previous, admittedly convoluted, supplementary questions, which is that the qualitative difference of where we are today and where we have been in the last 15 years is that it is no longer the case now, as it has been over the last 15 years, that in terms of risk of the money, risk of the Government's fiscal position deteriorating, and not being able to make good this money that it is borrowing from the Savings Bank, so that the Savings Bank will in turn not be able to repay it to its savers? The crucial difference now is the absence of a matching cash reserve.

565 At any time in the last 15 years, if anything had required it, the Government had the right amount of money in the Bank of England, and elsewhere, to say, 'Okay, have your money back, everybody.' That is no longer the case, because it is spending it on its own projects now, rather than having it in cash in the Bank of England, or in near cash, short-term paper, as had been the case in the past. All compounded by the fact – does he accept? – that because he will not answer the questions about the Credit Finance, we cannot even gauge in this House, how much of that money is being spent by Credit Finance, in what nature of project it is being spent, and therefore gauge its repayability, and hence gauge the risk to which it is being subjected.

575 Sorry, I should... can I just put a question mark on the end of all of that?

580 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I have not said to the hon. Member that he issued debentures from the Savings Bank and then reinvested them in Government debt, in the last 15 years. I have said it is not the first time this has been done, and in fact the first thing he did in 1996 was to repay the Government debt that the Savings Bank held.

Now, he is entitled to have done that, and we are entitled to do the opposite, and there is nothing right nor wrong about it, except that there is an inescapable flaw in his analysis. He says, if the Government borrows the £100 million from the public, then it is safe, and it is alright to spend it. But if the Government borrows the £100 million from the Savings Bank, it ceases to be safe, and therefore it should not be spent. Well, that argument, with all due respect to him, is complete nonsense. There is no difference in the level of security, whether the debenture is issued by the Government, or the debenture is issued by the Savings Bank, and used for the same purpose that the debenture from the Government would have been used.

In fact, nothing would change, if tomorrow, the Government said to the Savings Bank, 'I am repaying your £100 million by borrowing directly from the public', and the money would be used in the same way, going to the Consolidated Fund, be voted out of the Consolidated Fund, and transferred to the I&D Fund, and be spent on capital projects, and that is the only money that is being used, or will be used to fund Government capital projects. Which is the answer to the supplementary that is being asked, in relation to the question about the £100 million.

And when it comes to the amount of cash, the hon. Member knows that if it is short-term money, and people can come and say, 'I want my money back', then the money that is in cash, or near cash, in the Savings Bank is still there, to the tune of £500 million or thereabouts, and that any money beyond that, by virtue of the legislation that we introduced, has to be invested in instruments that cannot have a longer maturity than is owed to the saver. In fact, I pointed it out at the time, when we were raising this matter, that the reality of it is that the liquidity risk that is true of every bank, including the bank in which the Savings Bank puts its money. Because the hon. Member seems to be saying, 'If I have £100 million in Barclays Bank, it is safe, but if I have £100 million with the Government it is not safe', even though the Government, in any case, guarantees both the debenture, and the savings.

Well, the reality of it is that it is impossible for the Savings Bank to have a liquidity problem of not being able to pay back savers, if they came back for their money tomorrow, because the money of the savers that is due tomorrow is backed by cash. And the money of the savers that is due in five years time is backed by something that has got security, several times worth that money, and due to be repaid before that date. So, there is no risk of any liquidity crisis, and there is no risk of the savers not being able to withdraw their money. But of course, if Members opposite are concerned about that, then they should advise those that they advise, or those that take their political lead from them, that they should find a safer home for their money than the Savings Bank.

I can tell the hon. Member that the only problem the Savings Bank has today is that it may have to start closing opportunities for savings, because the money is pouring in.

Several Members: Hear, hear. (Banging on desks)

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is, of course, right in what he said to me in the first half of his answer, but he is attributing to me statements that I have not made. Of course, from the point of view of the security of savers' money, it makes no difference, whether it lends it directly to the Government and the Government spends it, or whether the savers lend it to the Savings Bank, who then lend it to the Government who then spends it. In terms of the affordability of the Government's ability to repay it in the future, and therefore the security of the savers' money, it is exactly the same thing.

But my second round of supplementaries was not aimed at that, and did not say that. What I was talking about was what he has addressed in the second half of his last answer, which is about the consequences to the potential security of savers' money, which of course, we all understand is guaranteed by the Government, but if the Government gets into financial difficulties, as Governments all over Europe and elsewhere have got, in the last two years, the Government will not be able to make good on that guarantee.

Now, as I understand what the hon. Member has said, towards the end of his last answer, was that that in fact is not the predicament, or the risk, to which savers are exposed. Because, in fact, there is a cash reserve, in respect of monies, the origin of which is savers, if I could just put it that way, debenture holders, as opposed to, which is not covered by cash reserves, Government's own monies that are being put through this structure, and that therefore savers are not at risk, although the Government's other funds might be.

Now, Mr Speaker, all that is very well, but how does this Parliament, that has the obligation, and indeed the requirement, to monitor the extent to which that statement is true...? And we should not have to just depend on the fact that the hon. Member answers questions, supplementaries to that effect. We are entitled to see official statistics that show what are the holdings of cash reserves, how much, and subdivided, are the funds of the Government and of the debenture holders, and test on a constant, ongoing and regular basis that the statement that the hon. Member made, distinguishing between the funds that were at risk, Government's, and funds which are not at risk, savers', is in fact the case.

Would the hon. Member undertake to provide this House information, on an agreed structural basis, that allows us to make that distinction?

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the information is published, when the audited accounts of the Savings Bank are published as part of the audited accounts of the year, and they have been given to the hon. Member in the last question that he asked about the breakdown of the assets of the Savings Bank. (Interjection) Now, the fact is that what he calls cash, let us be clear, is not without a risk. It is the same cash that there was there before, but ‘cash’ means things that have been bought in the stock exchange, which have got a short life. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana)

650

Right, well, he will find that the breakdown was provided to him, in the answer that I gave a month ago, and it is all there. I do not know at what more frequent intervals... I know of no other bank that provides its balance sheet, except once a year. We provided it more frequently than once a year. And therefore the answer is, the hon. Member has already had that information – indeed, it was as a result of that information that they put a question about the £100 million debenture. They would not have known about the debenture, unless they had seen it in that list that I gave him.

655

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, the quality and extent of the information that I think this House is entitled to, and is at the core root, of the Opposition’s continuing unhappiness with the current situation, is not disaggregatable from the information that he gives us in the form that he gives us.

660

For example, he will recall, when we last had an exchange between ourselves that he had to concede to me, after several supplementaries, that the amount of capital involved in those numbers – I think it was in the £334 million, or a figure to that effect, I cannot quite remember what it was – included the contents of the Government’s special fund known as the Currency Note Security Fund. So it is not just a question of knowing the total amount of money that the Government has invested in this way, in the purchase of preference shares or whatever. It is the fact that they should be funds that the Government should not be spending, because once they go into the Credit Finance Company, the Opposition, given that they will not answer the questions, cannot see how much of it is being spent. So on the basis of the manner in which the information has been provided, so far, which we say – I say, at least – is insufficient for the purposes that I was describing in my previous supplementary. It is not just the amount; it is what sort of Government funds are they, and should the Government be spending those funds?

For example, the Government should not be spending the Currency Note Security Fund. I am sure that they would agree with that. But if it all goes into this gross number, and into a company which can spend it without regard to that characteristic of the money, the Opposition is simply not able to see how much money the Government is spending, and is it all Government... that is spendable by the Government.

675

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is just not true that the Government is not answering questions on Credit Finance. What happened last month, something which I am sure hon. Members opposite have eternally regretted – and I am pleased that they have confirmed to GBC that they will not be walking out this month – is that they were told, very specifically, which question would not be answered, which was the identity of borrowers.

680

Now, hon. Members will have seen a lot of questions already answered today, in relation to Credit Finance, an exchange now between him and the Hon. the Minister for Inward Investment, in respect of aspects of the way that the whole of the borrowing and lending is structured. The breakdown of information, which was provided last month, Mr Speaker, to a question, I think, from the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, as to exactly, how much of the money there is in the Savings Bank is invested where, etc.

685

So, Mr Speaker, I have heard him say it now, and I have heard the Leader of the Opposition be quoted by GBC as saying that the Government is not answering questions on Credit Finance Company Ltd: that is not true, Mr Speaker.

690

The Government has spent already the better part of an hour today, answering questions about Credit Finance Company Ltd, and Mr Speaker, what they had last time... I do not understand what it is that they think is so funny, Mr Speaker. They are the ones who say (Interjection) that this is an important issue for our community, Mr Speaker. I agree, it is an important issue for our community, Mr Speaker, when we have an Opposition that decides to walk out of Parliament because it cannot make arguments.

695

Mr Speaker, the issue last month was that we would not give them the information they asked for, which they knew we could not give them. In other words, they asked a question which they knew was incapable of answer – as if they said, ‘Would the hon. Members on the Government benches please provide copies of the medical notes of every registered Gibraltarian?’ Well, Mr Speaker, those medical notes are as confidential as the loans that are granted by any licenced money lender. Those are the questions that the Government will not answer, and the public have seen through this, Mr Speaker, and they know that it is right that we should not answer that question.

705 But it is not true, therefore, that the Government does not answer questions about Credit Finance. There are a number of more questions, on the Order Paper, that we are about to get on to, which will provide more details, and we have already provided the details requested by hon. Members to date, in this session in respect of particular projects, which they have asked whether the funding has come from Credit Finance or the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

710 Mr Speaker, I think, it is important that that should be clear to the community.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker.

715 Hon. P R Caruana: Can I just finish my supplementary? Mr Speaker, first of all, I do not where that leaves the answer to my supplementary, but to the extent that the Hon. the Chief Minister's last intervention is a comment on my behaviour, given that I walked out too, I have to tell him that I think his characterisation of what led to that walkout – which in my view was entirely justified, and I, for my part, would have no hesitation in repeating it, if this current situation prevails –

720 A Member: (Interjection)

725 Hon. P R Caruana: – is not as he has described it. Look, with the greatest of respect to him, it is hardly the same thing to ask for the personal medical records of anyone, let alone everybody. That is hardly the same thing as expecting this Government to be accountable in this Parliament for the financial affairs of a Government-owned company, directed by civil servants, for which the Government is accountable in this House, using public funds for which the Government is accountable in this House. Otherwise, does the hon. Member really believe, that it is so simple to circumvent the normal Parliamentary democratic checks and balances, for a Government simply to put its money in a company, and then say, 'I will not tell you who I have paid the money to'? So for all we know... because it is in a company. 'Just as Nat West and Barclays Bank do not tell people who they have lent money to' – well, actually, they do –

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is not the position but –

735 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker –

Hon. Chief Minister: Will he give way, Mr Speaker?

740 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I will give way... I have nearly finished. If he does not mind, I will just finish.

745 This is not about whether the Government will provide, or will not provide, information that is commercial in confidence. That is not what this is about. This is about the Government consciously organising the affairs of the Savings Bank and of itself in a manner that prevents this Parliament – of whom he is the Leader, (Banging on desks) and of whose competences he should be the guardian – it is about the Government organising its affairs in a way which prevents this Parliament from understanding and knowing about and monitoring (Several Members: Hear, hear!) and holding (Interjections) the Government to account for the potential future solvency or insolvency – and I hope, solvency. This is not about whether there is present risk; this is about this Parliament's inability to see whether, and to what extent, there is risk.

750 And if he does not understand that, then I am afraid he has not understood everything that has been done by his Government, by other Ministers.

Hon. Chief Minister: It is you who does not understand it.

755 Mr Speaker, it is him that does not understand it, although I do understand that the little drummer boy, and the little drummer girl, sitting next to him do want to praise him, because they were better off under his leadership than they are under their own.

Let us be clear, Mr Speaker – (Hon. D A Feetham: Boo!) (Interjections)

Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentlemen is now taking to booing this Parliament. He much more deserves the epitaph of – 760 Mr Speaker: May I intervene for a moment.

For the last hour, we have had a mature series of exchanges, on a matter of great importance. I therefore call upon Members to maintain the tenor of those exchanges, and not to resort to childish behaviour.

765 Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much indeed, Mr Speaker, I may now be able to get through my answer without being heckled.

Now, Mr Speaker, what has been the tenor of the hon. Member's last intervention has been to say – and this is when I asked him to give way – that the Government would not say what payments a Government company is making, or what payments are being made with savers' money, so in effect, not being able to analyse those payments. Well look, Mr Speaker, he accuses me of not understanding. Did he not understand that the £100 million that we are talking about, we are talking about going into the Consolidated Fund, which is subject to the control of this Parliament; that before it goes into the I&D, it will go through an Appropriation Bill in this Parliament – ? (Interjection) I am going talk about that, and the other thing you were talking about as well.

775 And thirdly, Mr Speaker, that in the I&D section of the Appropriation Bill's schedule, the Estimates Book, as we know it, they will see a breakdown of what the money is being spent on. That is the first part, Mr Speaker.

The second part, the question of what we would not agree to provide, in the context of the debate last month, which he said he would happily have supported a walkout of, well, I am surprised, Mr Speaker, because if anybody goes back and watches the video, he looked extremely surprised that anybody was going anywhere, and very reluctant to pack his bags and go. Although some of us think that he should be less reluctant, and should now have decided that he should allow the seat to go to somebody who is going to be more active. But, anyway...

785 Mr Speaker, what we said we would not answer was exactly what he has identified, namely the commercially sensitive aspects of the question: who has borrowed what money – in other words, Mr Speaker, the loans. He knows, Mr Speaker – he does not like my example about medical notes, but he knows, Mr Speaker – that the British Parliament, the British taxpayer, capitalised some of the biggest banks in the world, some of the British banks. Mr Speaker, that does not mean that the Rt. Hon. the Prime Minister is answerable in Parliament for the loans given by those banks, at least since the date that those banks were capitalised by the British taxpayer. It does not make any sense, Mr Speaker. There are aspects of the financial management of people's affairs, which are as confidential as their medical notes. That is the only question we failed to answer. And that was the pretext, and I use that word advisedly, on which they decided to walk out last month.

795 There are more questions on the Order Paper, and Mr Speaker, perhaps what the hon. Gentleman needs to do is just accept that we have not got through it yet, because there is a lot of requests for information, which they have made for the first time, this time round in this Parliament, and which they are about to get. So, if he is going to accuse us of not disclosing things, he may at least wait until we answer the questions, when they have been asked for the first time. (Interjection)

800 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, my sense of freedom to give up my seat in this Parliament is the direct symmetry, in the opposite, of the danger into which he habitually plunges Gibraltar, and to the extent to which I feel that Gibraltar can be left in his hands, without, at least someone with 15 or 16 years of chief ministerial experience, to not let him get away with some of the things that he is doing, when I consider that they are important enough. And what he calls inactivity has been disturbed on this issue, for 805 the first time in nearly 18 months, because it is so important, and I fear that the person who does not understand what he is talking about is not me, but him.

Look, Mr Speaker, he may think – and I accept that he often gets away with it – he may think he can divert the attention through the use of some unrelated argument, from the original serious matter that is being debated.

810 But look, will he agree that the sense of what he has just told me can be tested in this way: because he says it is absurd – just as it is absurd for the Prime Minister in England to be asked what loans National Westminster Bank is making, which is capitalised by the Government – that it is absurd for this Opposition to ask the questions in this House that it is asking? Does he not recognise the following obvious differences, and that is that National Westminster Bank in England, having been capitalised 815 transparently by the government, is not then run by civil servants, for whom the government is responsible in the House of Commons; and it is not run by civil servants who are under the direction of ministers of the UK government; and it is not run, therefore, as an unaccountable, in Parliament, extension of government; but rather as an independent body – National Westminster Bank – subject to the regulation of the Financial Services Authority in England, to which... this Government has refused to 820 make the Savings Bank accountable to the Financial Services Commission?

Each time he draws the analogy between what we are complaining about, and the British Prime Minister and the National Westminster Bank, or RBI, because it has been funded by the Government, he demonstrates either a huge degree of ignorance, or a huge degree of thick skin, to pretend that what is black is exactly the same as what is white, when everybody can see the difference – as well as doing the 825 Prime Minister a considerable disservice in the United Kingdom.

Hon. Chief Minister: Is that a question?

830 Hon. P R Caruana: Finally, would he agree with me that his suggestion that loans made by this Civil Service-run, ministerially-directed, Government-owned company with public funds, that the answer that he has given to me, about how silly it is for us even to ask about the loans, would enable – whether they do it or not is another matter – would enable, and that is enough for this Parliament to be concerned with, the finance company that we are discussing, to lend money to another Government-owned company, through which projects can then be done? And that money would not come anywhere near the 835 Improvement and Development Fund, because Credit Finance can lend through the action of its directors, civil servants, for which the Government says it is not accountable in this House, to Gibraltar Investments, or Gibraltar Property Holdings, or GRP or JBS, or any of the other Government-owned companies, up to the £300-and-odd million that have been invested in preference shares with Government monies, and that is completely off the radar screen.

840 And the hon. Members think that that is the position that the Prime Minister is in, in England, in relation to the Royal Bank of Scotland! Well, he must think that everybody in this House, and everybody in Gibraltar listening to him, are idiots, because it is plain to anyone with an ounce of common sense that they are simply incomparable situations. Would he agree with that?

845 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman, really, has either gone past his prime much sooner than anticipated, or is now completely unable to remember the things that he said. And Hansard, Mr Speaker – (Interjections) Well, Mr Speaker – (Interjections) I am sorry, Mr Speaker –

850 Mr Speaker: May I...? I would ask the Chief Minister to refrain from those comments.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I ask you to also ask Mr Caruana, to, when he makes submissions – Sir Peter Caruana, in fact, to give him his full title – when he asks questions to also keep temperate, because he has referred to idiots in this House, and I do not think it is necessary to lower the temperature.

855 But Mr Speaker, let us be very clear, whatever it is that has happened to the hon. Gentleman, Mr Speaker, he does not seem to remember what he said before he sat down, asking one supplementary, when he gets up to ask another.

860 He has now said – and I have made a note of it – the Government says that it is not accountable in this House for Credit Finance. Well, Mr Speaker, I have said the complete opposite. The one thing that Credit Finance might invest in, and we might all agree is a good investment, is one of those ‘instant Hansards’ so we could all have a screen in front of us, and I could go back and show him exactly what it is that he has said! Because I have no doubt that he will now get up and say that he did not say that – although I have got a full note of what he said.

865 Of course the Government is accountable for Credit Finance Company Ltd. The only thing the Government has, to date, said it will not provide, in relation to Credit Finance Company Ltd, is the names of people who borrow from it – the names, the identities of the people who borrow from it. The one thing that he said in his previous intervention, he accepted we should not give – namely, things which are commercially sensitive. He does not like any of the comparisons that I do.

870 Well, Mr Speaker, I do not care that he does not mind about any of the comparisons that I make, but I certainly do not treat people as if they were idiots, Mr Speaker. I do not go around talking to Ministers for Europe, telling them that I might be prepared to do an Andorra style solution and then be surprised when – (Interjections) [Inaudible] they proposed joint sovereignty.

875 Mr Speaker: Order! Order! (Interjections)

The matter is now going beyond the subject of these questions and answers. Therefore, if hon. Members continue in that manner, I will bring to an end this series of questions, and ask the Clerk to call the next one. (Interjections)

880 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker I have one other supplementary question.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have not finished –

Hon. P R Caruana: Oh, I thought that you had.

885 Hon. Chief Minister: I assume that Mr Speaker, as long as I stick to the issue, will allow me to continue with the answer.

Mr Speaker, I do want to say, however, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman started his intervention by alleging that I take Gibraltar into danger habitually. He said that I plunge Gibraltar into danger, 890 habitually. Well, Mr Speaker, that is the point that I was answering, because of course, I do not accept that point, and he needs to be careful, Mr Speaker, not to believe the things that people that he habitually has not trusted, just because he might find that, in some way, they help him to make his points today.

895 Anyway, Mr Speaker, this question of the Savings Bank: there are two issues here. First the issue of the £100 million, and on the issue of the £100 million, the position is clear: that £100 million is in the Consolidated Fund, it is subject to the control of this Parliament. Therefore, this Parliament will vote what happens with that money – full transparency. It will not even move from the Consolidated Fund into the I&D Fund – the Improvement and Development Fund, for those who are watching or listening – without a vote of this Parliament under the Appropriation Bill. And then, Mr Speaker, the breakdown of that £100 million will trickle through into what he and I know are the pink pages of the Estimates Book, so people will see exactly where that money is going. That is one limb of the argument.

900 The second limb of the argument is the money in Credit Finance Company Ltd: the only thing the Government has said it will not provide are the names of the borrowers – the names and amounts of those loans which are being given, Mr Speaker – because those are the commercially sensitive aspects of the issue.

905 But other than that – and this is what he has not picked up, Mr Speaker, and what I see from people chomping at the bit to stand up and ask another question – the other bit that they do not seem to have picked up is that there are a lot of other questions on the Order Paper, asking for details about Credit Finance and how it spent its money, and we are being accused of not giving answers, Mr Speaker, although we have not yet got to the questions!

910 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, can I ask one more question?

Mr Speaker: Yes, certainly – and then I will call on the Leader of the Opposition.

915 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, first of all, I am very happy to hear the Hon. Chief Minister answer repeatedly about the £100 million. My questions were not about the £100 million, those are perfectly transparent – I do not know whether they were in the Consolidated Fund or in the Improvement and Development Fund, but whichever of the two they are in, they need the appropriation of this House for expenditure. Well, I have not said anything about that. I am talking about the £340-odd million that are in the preference shares in the Credit Finance Company.

920 Mr Speaker, look, I suppose the hon. Member would agree with me say that, of course, we can have a debate, although the Speaker, obviously, will not allow it now, about what the word ‘accountable’ means, but I do not want to address that issue now.

925 He may think, he may think, that in respect of a company that has £340-odd... forgive me I cannot remember the exact figure, £340 odd million, or whatever – the figure is not the issue – that he is being accountable, if he tells us other information, but not who the money is being lent to. But Mr Speaker, that is precisely the subject matter, in respect of which accountability is required.

930 If a company is in the business of giving credit finance, and you will not be told what credit finance it is giving, to whom and for what, what sort of accountability are we talking about. Whether the CEO has tea or coffee in the morning, or whether he has one or two lumps of sugar in it. But it is certainly not transparency, about what this Parliament needs transparency, which is, what is this company doing with the money that the Savings Bank has invested in it, through preference shares. If the hon. Member were to say, look... and this is how we used to use the phrase ‘commercial in confidence’. He often attributes to me recourse to that device. ‘Commercial in confidence’ was only ever whilst negotiations were in progress, but once the Government does a deal and converts it into documentation, he never heard us say ‘commercial in confidence’.

935 ‘Commercial in confidence’ means that you do not give information publicly, at a time that it could prejudice the public interest by prejudicing the negotiation, by arming the other party with information that would be useful for them to use against the taxpayer in their negotiations with the Government. That is what ‘commercial in confidence’ means. It does not mean a permanent... at least, in my understanding, of what accountability means, it does not mean, that there is a permanent refusal, permanently to tell this Parliament who civil servants have decided to lend monies invested in the finance company, by the Savings Bank, to and for what.

940 But look, if that is the hon. Member’s definition of accountability, then we shall just have to disagree, without having to get, sort of, over passionate and overaggressive, we shall just have to agree about (a) what the word accountable means and (b) about the degree and nature of accountability to which a Parliament is entitled, if it is to be able to be seen to be doing its job. And I am sorry that he thinks, but I console myself by the thought that he appears only to think it when he gets angry with me, that I should resign my seat in this Parliament.

950 Hon. Chief Minister: Well no, Mr Speaker, it is not that I think it when he gets angry, it is that, of course, it is matter for him, and I am very pleased at the tenor of his intervention now, because it is completely different to the tenor of his earlier intervention, and it is conducive to continuing –
 (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well, I mean, for those who cannot hear him, because in a sedentary position, he says that it is not a different tenor; it is the same. Well, I have not heard him say that I
 955 plunged Gibraltar into danger, and I have not heard him say that I am not accountable for things, so maybe it is that we really must invest in that screen, so he can go back and see himself a few moments ago.

But anyway, Mr Speaker, I believe that the tenor of his intervention now is more conducive to resolving the... I hesitate to call it ‘debate’, the issue that has arisen in the questions. (Mr Speaker: These exchanges.) These exchanges.

Mr Speaker, look if the only issue between us is – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well, if the only – well, let us see whether we can whittle it down. Let us see whether we whittle it down, because then the public will understand what the difference is. If the only issue between us is the names of the borrowers and the amounts of the loans, then that is completely different, Mr Speaker, and this is why I 965 say to him, ‘Bear with us, we have not got to the end of the Order Paper yet’, because there is a lot of information that has never been asked for before, which when they have asked for it, we are about to give. And in that context, Mr Speaker, maybe he gets much more comfortable with the issue, and is left only with an issue of what I have called not ‘commercial in confidence’, I have called ‘commercial sensitivity’.

Now, of course, Mr Speaker, when you are dealing with people’s borrowings, there is, in our view, commercial sensitivity. That is an issue, Mr Speaker, that he may realise by the end of this session, is not so relevant to risk, which is how he started this part of the supplementaries – (Interjection) Risk and transparency, and I accept that he said both those things. Right.

So in that respect, Mr Speaker, let us get through the issues that we are dealing with, let us look at what information is going to be put in the public domain, in the context of the next questions. Let us understand, what has already been put in the public domain. Because the hon. Member has said, ‘Well, you could fund any of these projects by simply doing it through a company.’ Look, I do not know whether he was in, when we started this afternoon – I assume that he was, I think he was in from when we started. (Interjections) We have just answered 50 questions about projects, and been asked, and I think it 975 is more or less the whole of the manifesto, whether we have funded them, or will fund them, directly or indirectly through Credit Finance, or the Gibraltar Savings Bank. And we have said no. So, Mr Speaker he also has that comfort, to put into the context in which the whole of these answers are being given.

But, Mr Speaker, if I can just say one thing, and he will recognise this language, and I have used it today in an intervention on radio. The Hon. Peter Montegriffo, who was the founder of the GSD, a man who was in Government with the hon. Member opposite, said on television two weeks ago, I think exactly today, something which I have echoed, and I am sure that we can echo across the floor of this House: what is very clear, is that there is no risk whatsoever to depositors in the Gibraltar Savings Bank, and it would be irresponsible for anybody to interpret these exchanges, in any way that suggests the opposite. (Interjection)

990 And I give way to the hon. Member.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

I did indicate it was my last supplementary, so I did not want to get up again.

Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister’s allusion to the statement made on television by my 995 erstwhile Deputy Leader is hugely apposite, because it allows me, finally, and before... My conscience is clear, I have expressed my views, in this Parliament, as is my obligation. They do not get any more persuasive through repetition, so I do not intend to repeat them, but, the distinction between risk, and ability to gauge risk, which is why I am calling for transparency. It is not my position that there is today presently risk, in the sense that the money has already been spent, and the Government already cannot repay it. That is what you would have to be saying, in order to say that there is already risk.

With the greatest of respect to Mr Montegriffo, he like us cannot know whether there is risk, and that is what I am complaining about. Because, he does not know exactly what is going on, and therefore he cannot know, what might be the risk today, tomorrow, next month, next year, three years from now, five years from now. And therefore neither, Mr Montegriffo, nor the Opposition – at least not me – neither of us can say that there is today an inability to pay savers’ money, or that the Government can today not repay the savers’ money, and therefore that there is risk in that actual sense.

But it is true of both me and Mr Montegriffo, which is why his answer therefore, his statement therefore, in my humble, and increasingly irrelevant opinion, is not particularly meaningful, is that he is making a statement of fact, without an ability, ongoing through time, to assess whether or not the statement is true. In other words he hopes that there is no jeopardy, as I hope that there is no jeopardy – I 1010 am not saying there is jeopardy today; all I am saying is that with this structure, would he agree, that with this structure the Opposition's ability to gauge whether jeopardy is developing, when and in what quantity, is absent, and therefore, it is the transparency point which is a different point to the risk point.

1015 Hon. Chief Minister: I gave way, Mr Speaker, to the hon. Gentleman, and would say this, Mr Speaker: I actually think that Mr Montegriffo's point is a very valid one, and a very appropriate one 1020 (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) for this reason, for this reason, Mr Speaker, and I think he will agree with me, by the time that we finish the session today, that if the only risk is the identity of the lender and the loan, then he is going to see, Mr Speaker, by the end of this session that there is a lot of information in the public domain, which means that there is no question of not being able to assess that, Mr Speaker.

Now, unless he is saying, 'Until I know the nature of the covenant of the borrower, and I can only know that by knowing the identity of the borrower, I will not be able to assess risk.' Well, okay, Mr Speaker, I...(Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well, Mr Speaker I think he will see that that is not the case, and I am caught Mr Speaker, by the Rule that I should not give answers to questions that are coming 1025 on the Order Paper, but I think he will see by the end of this set of questions (Interjection) that we are not in any situation which, even the most uncharitable previous Chief Minister would care to see described as creating any potential risk for this community. (Interjections)

The savers in the Gibraltar Savings Bank have never been more secure, and by the end of this session, they will have seen why that is the case, and will continue to be the case, and will realise, Mr Speaker, 1030 that the Government's assurances and Mr Montegriffo's own assurances are to be relied upon.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

1035 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, one of my supplementaries, and I hope that he deals with it in answer to the subsequent questions, as he has undertaken to do, is whether he accepts that the identity of a borrower is highly relevant to risk.

To take an extreme example, lending to a known impecunious borrower is obviously going to be risky when compared to lending to somebody who has the money, and therefore that kind of information is highly relevant to assessing risk, and is highly relevant in the exchanges that we are having across the 1040 floor of this House.

But can I ask this supplementary: now he has repeated it on a number of occasions... He said that the only information that the Government has refused to provide are the names of the borrowers. Does he not accept that that cannot possibly be right, in the light of the question that I asked, Question 657? Because what I asked, and the answer from Mr Bossano was it is not considered appropriate to provide such commercially sensitive information. The question was can the Chief Minister please provide a list of all investments, payments and loans made by Credit Finance Company Ltd since its incorporation, showing the amounts, the dates, those investments payments and loans were made, together with the identity of the party or parties.

In other words, he could have provided all the information, by just simply blanking out the identity of the parties. Now, is he, in the light of the statements that he has made to this House that all the Government is refusing to provide is the identity... will he provide all the other information that I have sought in that question? (Interjections)
1050

1055 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as he is about to find out, when we go through the Order Paper, he is going to get a lot of information. He is not going to get names, Mr Speaker, and he is not going to get breakdowns of loans, but he is going to get a lot more information.

Because, Mr Speaker, that is exactly, what we are saying is the commercially sensitive information, that is the only issue that we will not be dealing with. But I would invite, Mr Speaker, the House to go through the questions, and to come back, and to deal with supplementaries, once we have put all the information out there. And then we can be dealing with issues, without there being information in the Order Paper that may go to some of the supplementaries.

1065 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, does he accept that a lot of information is not the information that we were seeking? Does he not accept that what the Government is refusing to provide is not just simply the identity, but actually, all the other information that I have sought, because the Government could have provided, for example, a schedule of all the loans the Government has provided, with all the amounts, with all the dates, and just simply blanked out the name of the individuals.

Now, that would not have satisfied us, as I have said publicly, but at least it is providing more information, and being more transparent, than just simply refusing to answer it blank. And does he not accept that therefore the statement that he has made to this House, that all the Government is refusing to provide is the names of the borrowers, is just simply not accurate?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I do not accept that.

1075 But perhaps he would accept that he simply, and he left the House, Mr Speaker, saying that he was shocked, but that he expected the answer. Now, those are conflicting statements, if ever there were conflicting statements, Mr Speaker.

But, he did not ask a supplementary. He did not say, 'Well, is it that you will not give me one piece of information, but you will give me the other?' He simply said, Mr Speaker, 'This is shocking, we are walking out.'

1080 If he goes to the end of the Order Paper, he will realise he is going to get a lot of information, Mr Speaker, some of which was what he asked for last time, short of the names, Mr Speaker, so we will see exactly where it is where we get to. Perhaps if he accepts my invitation, to ask the questions and come back by the end of those questions, we will be in a better position.

1085 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister, again, is just simply not being accurate with his answer. The question that I asked was capable of being severed in different parts. In other words, it was capable of being answered by just simply blanking out the names of the borrowers, and providing all the other information. The answer to the question was, 'It is not considered appropriate to provide such commercially sensitive information.' – in other words, all the information that I was seeking, not just simply the identity of the borrowers.

1090 Now, in the light of the statements that he has made to this House, will he undertake to provide all the information that I asked in the question, this Question 657/2013?

1095 He is inviting me to ask, or what he is saying is I should have asked a supplementary of Mr Bossano. Well, in the light of that, let us assume I made a mistake: alright now, will he undertake to provide all the information, with the names of the borrowers blanked out?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have said repeatedly to him that he should continue asking the questions on the Order Paper, and at the end of that, see what information he does not have. (Interjections) Mr Speaker, I do not know what it is that he wants to do in this Parliament, whether all he wants to do is grandstand, and keep asking the same question, in order not to get through to the stage where he will have a lot of the information that is about to come.

1100 Is it that he just thinks that he will be able to persuade people that the Government, for some reason, is not giving the information, which the Government is about to give him. Well, look, Mr Speaker, at the end of the afternoon, he can say, 'I still do not have this information, can I please have it? Can I persuade you that it does not affect the commercial sensitivity?'

1105 But what is the point of continuing now, when I am telling him that I am about to give him information?

1110 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, may I make a small point of order, just so that we all know exactly what was said.

If the hon. Member is indicating now, as he has done several times, that in what is left of this afternoon, and the questions, we will get some of the information which we are hoping to get, in answer to the original question, that would be very good news, that would be warmly welcomed and I much look forward to hearing how the rigour of the original answer last time is going to be modified.

1115 Because, of course, Mr Speaker, it is not true as the hon. Members are discussing, on the premise of, that what Mr Bossano said, is only, 'I will not give you the names of the borrowers.' If you look at Hansard – I do not have it in front of me right now, but if you look at Hansard – what he actually said was, having read the original answer, which is the one that has just been bandied, he said words to the effect of, 'The Government will not account to this House for how the company makes its investments', or something like that. Well, that is a very much wider... I apologise to him if I am not exactly quoting him, but it was words to that effect, and as I say if it is not entirely accurate, it is semantics. That is a much broader implication, and that is what, in my mind, justified the walkout.

1120 Because what the hon. Member meant, appeared to be saying, when he said that the Government would not be accountable in this House for how the company made its investments, is a statement that he was not willing to account in this House on a much broader basis than the names of...

1125 But I am very happy to take the hon. Member's steer, indication that that position – which we may have misinterpreted, although I do not think so – but whether it was interpreted correctly or not, is going to be put into context in the rest of these answers.

1130 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have some more supplementaries in relation to.... [Inaudible] It is a different point – 1135 Mr Speaker: On other aspects of the matter? Very well.

1140 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just examining the relationship between the Gibraltar Savings Bank, and Credit Finance: now we know that £344 million has been invested by the Gibraltar Savings Bank, by way of subscription in preference shares in Credit Finance, and that the return is a return of 6% on those preference shares. The money, I assume – it must be the case, but I would like the Government to confirm it – the money is still within the Gibraltar Savings Bank, and effectively, it must be on an on-call account, does the Hon. the Chief Minister know what return is provided to Credit Finance Company for obviously then depositing the money back with the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

1145 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have said repeatedly that there are questions on the Order Paper that will deal with this issue. I would invite him to go through the Order Paper and ask supplementaries at the end, including that one.

1150 Credit Finance Company Ltd; Gibraltar Savings Bank
Maintenance/refurbishment projects on residential estates

Clerk: Question 752, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1155 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing state whether any maintenance/refurbishment projects pertaining to existing private/co-ownership estates are being funded, or the intention is to fund, either wholly or partially, either directly or indirectly, by (a) Credit Finance Company Ltd; or (b) the proceeds of monies deposited in the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

1160 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question, together with Question 754.

1165 Clerk: Question 754, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1170 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether Credit Finance Company Ltd, has provided any loans, or payments, to the management company, of any housing estate in Gibraltar, or for the benefit of such an estate, identifying; (a) the housing estate in question; (b) the date of the payment; (c) the amount paid; (d) the terms of repayment including the length of the term of any loan, the interest payable and the security obtained?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1175 Chief Minister: (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as announced in my Budget Speech this year, the Government has agreed to provide soft loans to residential estates, for funding refurbishment projects.

Approved projects will receive funding, which would be repayable in a period of up to 10 years, at an effective interest rate of 1% interest per annum, with the Government funding the difference in the cost of finance by way of a grant.

1180 The financing of these estates, at commercial interest rates, is being provided by Credit Finance Company Ltd. Government will not, however, give the individual breakdown requested by estate and amount, as that is considered to be commercially sensitive information.

1185 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, obviously he is not providing the information that I asked in my question of last month, but can he, at the very least, for example, I mean, if we break it down to a very basic level. Can he give me the amount involved per estate, calling one estate x and another estate y of the monies being loaned to these estates by Credit Finance.

1190 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we are not going to give that sort of breakdown, but if he carries on asking me questions this afternoon, and I am inviting him to ask me supplementary questions at the end of this process, he will have a lot more information. It is up to him whether he wants to do that, or not.

1195 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I hope that this is not Baldrice's cunning plan, to sort of, gradually pushing the questions to the very end and then we run out of questions. (Interjection)

Mr Speaker: You may run out of questions on the Order Paper, but I will allow supplementaries on them as may be necessary.

1200 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is very helpful, thank you very much.

Mr Speaker, does he not accept, therefore, that the statement that he made earlier, with a hint, in our respectful view, of grandstanding, which is his usual style, about the only information that the Government is unwilling to provide is the identity of the borrowers, does he not accept, in the light of the answer that he has now provided, that that is patently not so; that he is reserving to the Government far more information, in circumstances where he has actually prefixed his answer by actually saying the Government has agreed soft loans?

1205 This is a Government initiative. It is a Government initiative: the loans have been provided, on a Government initiative – a decision taken by the Government. Does he not accept that, therefore, the answer that he gave was inaccurate?

1210 Hon. Chief Minister: No, I do not, Mr Speaker, and we can accuse each other of grandstanding as much as we like.

What I said, Mr Speaker, and again, I wish I had that screen that gives you the immediate Hansard, was the identity and the loans, Mr Speaker. Because, look, we think there is commercial sensitivity here. There are different estates, asking for different things. That does not mean, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman does not have another solution that he can apply. Which means that he can write to every single one of the estates, he can write to the management companies, and if they want to give him the information about the amounts that they have borrowed, it is a matter for them. But we, as lender, Mr Speaker, are not going to give that information.

1215 But this is an apposite moment, Mr Speaker, to reflect on what the hon. Gentleman is talking about. What information is it that he wants, and why does he want it, Mr Speaker?

1220 Look, we are talking about – (Interjections) The hon. the backbencher says, from a sedentary position, that it is none of my business why they want the information. Well okay, Mr Speaker, it is none of my business. It is up to them, they can ask what they like – but it is none of his business what I answer, Mr Speaker.

1225 And there they have a resolution available to them: they can write to the very few residential estates that there are in co-ownership, or in private hands, and ask them if they are happy to have disclosed the amounts that they borrowed. And if they have that information, Mr Speaker, they can have it, and if they then can ask the estates whether they are happy for that information to be shared by them, publicly, then that is a matter entirely for them, Mr Speaker. They are the borrower, they can have that information disclosed.

1230 Our point of view, Mr Speaker, is that this is commercially sensitive information, from the point of view of the lender.

1235 But, what I am saying to him, Mr Speaker, is if he carries on asking me the questions, he is going to get a lot of information. It is not the information of who the borrower is or of the loans – he is not going to get that. But he is going to get a lot more information, and if the substance of what they have said in their press releases is what they really do care about, then they will find, Mr Speaker, that there is not much to worry about. (Interjections)

1240 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he again started his answer, by saying, and I quote him, ‘we as the lender’. Mr Speaker, that betrays the artificiality of the Government’s position and the Hon. the Minister for Employment’s attempt, last month, and indeed the Government in its subsequent communiqués, of actually seeking to create the impression, that Credit Finance Company Ltd somehow is at arm’s length from the Government, (A Member: Hear, hear.) which patently it is not. (Interjections)

1245 But, Mr Speaker, I started a supplementary, I asked a supplementary earlier on, and the Hon. the Chief Minister said that he was going to answer as part of subsequent questions. The point of that supplementary was to effectively look at, and examine, how the Opposition assesses the risk of the investment made in Credit Finance Company Ltd, from this point of view.

1250 But of course, the money from Credit Finance Company Ltd is being lent to third parties, or is being invested in third party projects. Now if we do not know, for example, the amounts, how can we assess the ability of Credit Finance Company Ltd, as an entity, to actually repay back to the Gibraltar Savings Bank, and how do we then assess whether there is a solvency risk, in relation to Credit Finance Company Ltd, for which the Government then, ultimately, has to pick up the tab, by way of the guarantee, that it has provided for savers’ money? Can the Hon. Chief Minister perhaps shed some light on that, and assuage the Opposition’s concerns in relation to that?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the fact is that they are not in Government; they are in Opposition, and there are a lot of decisions that we have to make about spending money which they are not able to micro-manage.

1260 For example, Mr Speaker, they cannot micro-manage how we spend on Commonwealth Park. They are entitled to see exactly how much we spent, and we have gone further and said, we will give you the final costs of Commonwealth Park and we will give you our estimates, as we were going on, as to what some things might cost, so that you can see whether we were able to bring things in for less than the estimate, or whether it cost us more than we estimated.

1265 Mr Speaker, in relation to this issue of Credit Finance, does he think that people do not realise, Mr Speaker, that we have spent the better part of an hour and three quarters now, answering questions about what Credit Finance will or will not finance, and that therefore he has caught me, when we have said 'we', well how could I have credibly answered any of these questions about Credit Finance, if we did not have some responsibility for it, and some control of it? Mr Speaker, it really is almost as if he is trying to make a point which is not relevant.

1270 But I will put the opposite consideration to him. He is talking, as he always likes to do, about solvency risk. Of course, Mr Speaker, that is a language that could cause people concern. But let me invert that question. What if there is, at the end of this process, as a result of the prudent investment of these monies, actually massive profit – if Credit Finance Company Ltd does so well for the Government that there is actually massive profit? I have heard somebody on the other benches, opposite, say that is irrelevant. Well, how can it be irrelevant?

1275 Mr Speaker, if all they want to do is, every month, put Credit Finance Company under the microscope, then the result of what they might see is that it is growing and becoming more and more profitable, and delivering an investment that is able to help with the liabilities of the Government – and then what, Mr Speaker? Then what? Then the solvency risk will not be referred to again? Then this systemic problem for the Government finances will have disappeared?

1280 Well, Mr Speaker, the fact of the matter is, that they are not the ones who are going to be making decisions about what Government invests in, whilst they are in opposition, and it may be that they are going to be in opposition for a very long time, and even forever. Because it may be that they never form a Government again, if other parties spring up. Look, that is not an issue on which we can have a debate. There is not a point of crystal ball gazing on those issues. Today, we are the Government, we make these decisions.

1285 He does not need to worry, Mr Speaker, about Credit Finance being anything other than an instrument of profitability for the Government, which is going to deliver great things for this community, and not invest in any of the things that we have already been asked about, and which it is not going to invest in.

1290 Now, if he will allow me, Mr Speaker, I am going to give him just a piece of very easy advice. It is not advice about how he should conduct his politics, or anything like this. It is just procedural, for today, Mr Speaker. Can we please get through all the questions that are left on the Order Paper, and have the debate – or rather Mr Speaker, the exchanges – at the end, when all the information that we are prepared to give is out there? That would make it easier for everyone.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, if the statements that he has made to this House today, and that the Hon. the Minister for Employment and Inward Investment has made to the House today, are called 'answers', or he refers to them as 'answers to questions', the reality is that he has a fairly elastic view of what answers to parliamentary questions are, Mr Speaker.

1300 Mr Speaker, the reality is that the Opposition cannot, it cannot accept the Government's word for it. The Government has been dragged, protesting all the way, in order to get any kind of information from the Government about this. The Government refused to answer. On the Sunborn, in March of this year, when I asked about, whether the Government had either directly or indirectly provided any financial assistance to the owners of the Sunborn, he said no, and then a day after the by-election, we found out that there was a loan provided to the Sunborn.

1305 On Credit Finance, one would have expected that if the Government is investing £344 million of savers' and taxpayers' money in a company that is then being used in order to provide loans to housing estates, to individuals, that the Government would have come to this House and would have in this House explained the policy. But the Government kept it secret, and it is only because of the diligence and the questions asked in this House by the Opposition, that we found out that the Government is doing what we now know that the Government is doing. And now the Government is refusing to provide us with the information that allows the Opposition to do its job and to assess the risk that not only the Government is placing to savers' money, but more importantly, in my view, the guarantee, the taxpayers' guarantee, and the footage of the bill, ultimately, by the taxpayer, should some of these investments go pear shaped.

1310 Does he not accept that, if he does not provide the Opposition with the most rudimentary information, which includes the loans – the size of these loans that are being provided, the dates when these loans have been provided, and the terms and the security – then it is not possible for the Opposition to formulate a 1320 view about risk, and therefore it is not possible for the Opposition to make a statement, publicly, saying, 'Well, we are persuaded by the Government. Mr Picardo has persuaded us, in Parliament, that there is no risk to the taxpayer, there is no risk, because this guarantee, ultimately, will not bite because this investment is safe'? Does he not accept that?

1325 Mr Speaker: It does not seem to me that the Chief Minister is going to be successful in his endeavours to get the Opposition to move on to the remaining questions. Therefore, we are going to continue to take each question as it is on the Order Paper, and I will judge what are the supplementaries that are pertinent and may not be pertinent, and I will judge when I should bring matters in each question to an end.

1330 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am, as you know, a proponent of the view that whatever one's office may be on this side of the House, and what it may mean outside of here, in this place the most powerful man in the Parliament is the man who sits in your Chair, so of course, I think that is going to have to be the way that we deal with it. I do not dispute that you will therefore have to now arbitrate, in respect of supplementaries and how they go on.

1335 I will deal with the issues that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has raised.

Well look, Mr Speaker, he says we have an elastic view of what an answer is. Well, he must have an elastic memory, as to what 'protesting all the way' has meant. He says that the only reason that the community knows about Credit Finance is because of their diligence in finding out something that was secret.

1340 Well, Mr Speaker, 'secret' has a meaning. It has an ordinary meaning in the English language. It does not extend to things which are filed in public – like, for example, the creation of a company called Credit Finance; for example the filing of mortgages granted by Credit Finance. So how can it be, Mr Speaker, that things are secret and have been uncovered by the Opposition, when in fact they have been filed on public record? It does not seem to me, Mr Speaker, that it is me or this Government that has the elastic definition of 'answer'. It seems to me that the hon. Member seems to have a fairly elastic definition of 'secret'.

1345 It is almost as if this diligence that he speaks of is as much diligence as coming home three days earlier from holiday on a return ticket can be described as a contingency plan, to return in the event of a crisis, as he described his heroic return to Gibraltar in August, to tell us all that he would remove the artificial reef.

1350 Well, Mr Speaker, let me deal with this question of what will happen if the taxpayer has to foot the bill, and their ability to understand systemic risk in that way. What will happen if the taxpayer actually garners a very healthy profit indeed from the administration of Credit Finance Company Ltd's affairs? Will he then get up in this House and welcome, probably weeks before a general election, the work done by the Government and by those responsible for Credit Finance Company Ltd, because it will have produced a profit for the taxpayer? Will he do that? Will he give an undertaking today, Mr Speaker, to congratulate Credit Finance Company Ltd, its directors and the Government as its shareholder, if huge profit is produced, as a result of the project that has been embarked upon, as I have no doubt that it will?

1355 Well, Mr Speaker, I wager that he will not, and in fact, having heard Members from a sedentary position say no, I am happy to – (Interjection) I am happy to make that bet, because it is clear, Mr Speaker, that all they are interested in, in respect of Credit Finance, is spreading some suggestion of risk and fear, where there is absolutely no reason to do that.

1360 Although he will not listen to me, Mr Speaker – I will give way, just before I sit down – although he will not listen to me, Mr Speaker, there are two more sets of questions on the Order Paper, there are two sets of questions I will take together – one I will take on its own, which I think is an irrelevance – which will give him more information, and perhaps, based on that information, he might be prepared to start considering giving that undertaking. (Interjection)

I give way to the hon. the backbencher.

1370 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I would like to answer the hon. Member's challenge of whether I, at least, would congratulate him, if Credit Finance Company make huge amounts of profit. The answer is that I would do two things. First of all, I would congratulate him for Credit Finance having made huge amounts of profit, and then I would condemn him for slaughtering parliamentary democracy in the process. (Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely.) (Banging on desks) Because these are two wholly different things.

1375 The question is not whether Credit Finance makes profit or does not make profit. I hope it makes a huge amount of profit. But whether it makes profit or not is not what determines whether Parliament should have information.

1380 Parliament is entitled to have information about the public affairs of Gibraltar, in my increasingly unimportant opinion, whether it is profitable or not, and that gauntlet that he throws down, about 'wait to see how much profit it makes' is a monument to the very concern that we have, which is not about the profitability of Credit Finance, but about the role of this Parliament, and the Opposition's right to do all that it can – which is not much, evidently – to ensure that Parliament is not ridden roughshod over, finessed, circumnavigated, by the way in which the Government answers these questions. (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Would the hon. Member acknowledge this to me: under the Standing Orders the hon. Members are accountable in this House – of course, he can refuse to answer questions. The Speaker cannot make him answer questions. He can refuse to answer questions, and then suffer, if any, the political consequences of refusing to answer questions. That is a different matter. But he cannot stand up and say that he is not obliged, that we are not allowed to ask the questions, as if the questions were somehow inappropriate.

1395
Well, Mr Speaker, any question addressed to the Chief Minister, or a Minister, shall relate to the public affairs with which he is officially connected, or to a matter of administration for which the Government is responsible. Is the hon. Member saying that there are civil servants, on a frolic of their own, doing things with huge amounts of public money and liability, with which no Minister is connected, and for which no Minister is responsible, and that the acts and decisions of civil servants are not the public affairs of Gibraltar? And then it is not a slip of the tongue... When he said 'we', it was a slip of the tongue –

1400
Hon. Chief Minister: No, it wasn't.

1405
Hon. P R Caruana: – but the answer was... Yes, but that was not the only occasion, you see. Just before the 'we' when he said, 'Alright, you have caught me out with the "we"', that could have been a slip of the tongue. His original answer, just before that one, supplementary, was 'the Government has decided to make these loans'. Well, look, if the Government has decided to make these loans, I am not asking about the borrower; I am asking the Government to account in this House for a decision that it has said (Banging on desks) in this House it has made, and the hon. Member appears to be of the view that that is not a public affair of Gibraltar with which a Minister is connected.

1410
Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, no, that is not the case.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, then... that's that, I am grateful to him for giving way!

Hon. Chief Minister: Look, Mr Speaker, it is not that I am saying that they cannot put the question, I do not know where he has got that from. Of course they can put the question. But questions which are properly put are sometime susceptible of answers where we do not give all the detail, because the Government makes a decision about commercial sensitivity. That is the debate, Mr Speaker, and I do not know why it is that it has taken the debate there, but in doing so, Mr Speaker, he has accused me, of potentially slaughtering parliamentary democracy.

Well, look, Mr Speaker, he gives me an opportunity to remind him that he presided over a Parliament that met on two occasions in years where there was a general election, three when there was not a general election, and before the change to the Constitution, infamously, on one occasion in one year. Right?

1425
On those occasions when the Parliament did meet, let us look at the tenor of the answers. He will recall that not so shortly before the last general election, I had cause to ask him how it was that his Government had entered into contracts which were clearly contrary to European Procurement Rules. He told me, Mr Speaker, with a bold face, that he would not tell me how he had done that. He told me he would not tell me how they had done that. Well, Mr Speaker, we are not saying that, and if we get to the end of the Order Paper, he will see how much more information is about to come their way about Credit Finance Company Ltd.

1430
So this is not a question of a slip of the tongue of any description, because with the information they are about to get, they will have a lot more information about Credit Finance Company Ltd and its affairs, which I would not be able to give them, if I was simply saying, 'This is two civil servants on a frolic of their own, and I do not know what is going on there.'

1435
But, they will not take my advice, Mr Speaker, to go on until the end of the Order Paper. So be it. We will continue to have these battles until we get to the end of the Order Paper, and then they can think up some other ruse for pretending that they do not have information.

1440
Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the hon. Member tell me, what is 'commercial in confidence' about a loan to a Gibraltar housing estate management association, so necessarily there are 13 or 14 people who must – ?

Mr Speaker: May I correct the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana, because I have the answer here: commercially sensitive information.

1445 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, can the hon. Member tell me – I am grateful – what is commercially sensitive about information that is available to the committees of the borrowing estates, who, presumably, have to report to their members who are liable to repay the loan and to pay the interest, so that there will be, sort of, hundreds of flat owners that will know about these loans – but it is too commercially sensitive for the Government to tell Parliament? Despite the fact that there will be hundreds of people out there, nattering about it in pubs and bars, on beaches and over dinner, but it is commercially sensitive information.

1450 How is it capable of being commercially sensitive information, if the negotiations have already been completed and the deal is done?

1455 Now, if he says to me that it is under negotiation, and it is commercially sensitive until the deal is done, because otherwise it upsets the negotiations, that I accept. But it cannot permanently be – how can this be commercially sensitive? I would really like to understand, by what criteria his definition of commercially sensitive allows him to use it in this factual circumstance.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker.

1460 Hon. P R Caruana: I beg your pardon.

Hon. Chief Minister: Go on, okay. I do not know quite which one is the Leader of the Opposition, but – 1465 Hon. D A Feetham: Will you give way?

Mr Speaker, my question was related to that, and perhaps I can ask it, and the Hon. the Chief Minister, rather than my getting up afterwards...

1470 The question is this – (Interjection by the Hon. Chief Minister) The question is this... Well, thank you very much. The question is this – (Interjection) what is commercially sensitive about the amount of the loan? Without identifying the recipient of the loan – in other words, just the amounts of the loan – can he explain so the public understands his idea of commercially sensitive in that context?

1475 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, look, I think the question is actually the identical question, from both of them, but I will deal with it as it was much more eloquently put by the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana, in the context of answering that question.

1480 Look, it is very simple. We consider – and I use the ‘we’ advisedly, not as a slip of the tongue – that Credit Finance Company Ltd behaves as a lender should behave. It is a licensed money lender. Lenders do not go around talking about who they have given loans to; but borrowers may. So in other words, I know they do not like the context of the banking analogy – I accept that banks are regulated in a different way to money lenders – but let us just understand, for the purposes of this particular question, that borrowers and lenders have different obligations under loan agreements. Lenders do not disclose the details of their lending to borrowers. Borrowers are sometimes quite free, although the document may actually also restrict a borrower’s right, borrowers are quite free to go around and tell people what they have borrowed.

1485 So, if I can just put it in this way, so the hon. Gentleman understands my thinking on this, so this is what he has said. He wants to understand, I have no doubt that he will denigrate it once I have sat down. I can go into a bank and borrow money, and so can he, and we could borrow it for different purposes. I may decide I do not want it disclosed, for whatever myriad reasons. He can walk out, and tell any of his friends he meets, ‘I have just walked into bank x, they have given me a loan to buy a new car, in the sum of £20,000 at 6% interest, aren’t I lucky?’ The bank manager, the same person – let us assume we both went to the same bank – when he walks down the street cannot give that information. It is all confidential, it is commercially sensitive information, it is confidential. Right. In fact, he would be in breach of his obligations if he did.

1495 What we are saying is that Credit Finance behaves like a lender. It is that simple, but when we get to the end of the Order Paper, they will have more information about what it is that Credit Finance is doing, and how it is doing it, which is not the individual loan information. That, I think, Mr Speaker, should give him the comfort of understanding, why it is that we are taking this attitude.

I have no doubt that having been that transparent about it, as soon as I sit down, I am going to be called every name under the sun.

1500 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, it is not necessary to call him any name under the sun, because the arguments speak for themselves, and Mr Speaker has asked us, and I am determined to do as he asks, that we should have a mature discussion about what is a very important issue. And it is only because I think it is a very important issue – I could be wrong, but I think it is a very important issue that I am participating in this debate at all.

1505 Mr Speaker, what the hon. Member has just described, by way of analogy, may be true of Barclays Bank, or some other bank, and a customer. But can I invite him to take the view that it is not an appropriate or applicable analogy for a lending decision that has been taken by a Minister of the Government, and that those two situations are not comparable. In other words, although it may be 1510 legitimate – indeed I agree with his legal analysis – probably a requirement of banking confidentiality that the manager of the bank does not go to the golf club on Saturday and tell all his golfing partners about the people he has made loans to – that is hardly comparable to a government, it deciding that the Savings Bank, that the Finance Company will make loans to Varyl Begg Estate, or to Waterport Terraces, or whoever, just to use hypothetical examples, and then is not going to tell this House that it has made that 1515 decision – not that the manager of Barclays Bank – that it, the Ministers have made this decision, because it is commercial in confidence.

He may want to argue that the ministerial decision is commercial in confidence as well, but not for the same reasons as the manager of the bank, because one is a public affair – namely, a decision of a Minister is a public affair, and he can argue, even though it is answerable under Standing Orders, that he is still not going to answer it, because he thinks it is commercial in confidence, but he cannot say, ‘I am not 1520 answering it because it is not a public affair, because I am not accountable for it, just as the manager of Barclays Bank is not accountable for it.’ That is a qualitative difference which goes to the very core...
That distinction that I have just drawn for him goes to the very core of my personal concern, about the consequences of all of this situation, for the ability of this Parliament to do its work, now and in the future.

1525 And I am sorry, I am not the world’s most articulate person, but I am not the world’s most inarticulate person either. I cannot think of another, a different formula of words, to try and convey to him the nature of my concern, what I am concerned about, and what I am not concerned about, and if he wants to continue to obfuscate the differences, that I am trying to draw to his attention, let him do so. But, I cannot 1530 honestly think that my expressions of view, will prosper by simply choosing another formula of words. If he is determined to argue that it is appropriate for Ministers to make decisions, and then not be willing to inform parliament of what decisions they have made, involving public monies, then we have an irreconcilable difference about what the role of Parliament is, and what is objectionable and injurious to that role, and what is not, and we will just have to live with that difference.

1535 I beg your pardon, thank you.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker look, this is not about who is more or less articulate or about obfuscation. Disagreement is not obfuscation. The fact that we have different views does not mean that one of us is necessarily obfuscating, because he does not give the detail that the other insists he must be able to persuade anybody else of the detail.

1540 I would have thought, Mr Speaker, that he would have understood the point I made about his relationship with another individual, a personal relationship with another individual, which led to a number of consultancy agreements being entered into, which I put to him, when he was sitting in my seat, were entered into contrary to European Procurement Rules, Mr Speaker.

1545 Now, look, at that time, he was much less generous in the way that he agreed or disagreed with my legal analysis. At least this time, he has said that he accepts my legal analysis, and the issue is, and I understand from him – (Interjection by the Hon. P R Caruana) and I understand from him, the issue is, in one instance you are dealing with a commercial bank manager; in another you are dealing with a Minister. ‘The Minister in Parliament is accountable, why are you not giving the answer?’

1550 I understand the analysis; let me take him to the next step. It is very simple. Credit Finance Company
Ltd is designed, as I said on 5th July in the context of the interview that I gave to the Gibraltar Chronicle, to operate a little bit like a sovereign wealth fund. In other words, it is designed to make profit. Therefore,
Mr Speaker, what is it that makes the bank manager not disclose the information? It is two things: the duty of loyalty to the customer and the right of the customer’s confidence; and second, that of course he 1555 wants to lend in order to make profit, and therefore he does not disclose to others what he may have lent, so that they continue to come to him for lending.

In the context of this structure, the persons responsible for making decisions are not going to go around telling everyone what they have lent, and to whom. Now, those who borrow may do so, and he is right, in the context of some estates, Mr Speaker, the borrower may actually have, as an obligation under their constitution, to have disclosed to 400 tenants what their loans are in their accounts, because the 1560 tenants are all paying them as part of their service charges. But that does not mean that the lender can disclose it.

1565 So let me take the example one step further. I gave him the example of him and me walking into a bank. Say that he and I have actually reconciled all our differences – there are not that many at a personal level, I am sure – and we end up on the board of a management company of an estate. We walk in together – ‘perish the thought’, I hear him think! – we walk in together to a lending institution, and we sign up and borrow that amount that we need in order to refurbish our estate. We walk out, and we tell the 400 people who have flats in our estate. The bank manager still cannot tell, even though 400 other people have been told by us.

1570 In this context, what we are saying is we are going to operate in the same way. Now, when we get to the end of the Order Paper, you will see that there is a lot more information than a bank manager would give, but we are still just not getting there.

1575 Now, I would like to think, Mr Speaker, that for somebody who did not tell me how it was possible for him to have entered into agreements, which were clearly contrary to EU Procurement Rules, and which resulted in large amounts of money being paid, as fees under those agreements, also public money, also issues which he was accountable for here, which did not produce profit for our community, I think he has to cut me a little bit of slack, when what I am saying to him is, I am producing profit for the taxpayer with this sort of structure.

1580 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, he says he is producing profit but, of course, there is no way in which the Opposition can possibly assess either profit or risk or anything else to do with this particular structure. We certainly do not accept that this structure is analogous with a sovereign wealth fund. A sovereign wealth fund is where a country invests its own sovereign wealth, its excess sovereign wealth, for example from oil or minerals, into a fund, which invariably it then invests outside the country, because it does not invest it inside the country, because it does not want to create rampant inflation within 1585 the country, unless –

A Member: Completely at arm's length.

1590 Hon. D A Feetham: And is completely at arm's length, absolutely, and unless the Government is treating savers' money as its own wealth, then it is just not apposite at all.

But, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister still has not answered my question, because he has not provided – I quite understand his reasoning, flawed as it is, for not providing – the identity of the borrowers. But what he has told me in answers to questions today is that the Government has cause for loans to be provided to housing estates for their refurbishment, etc. What I still do not understand, and 1595 what he has not explained, is why there is any commercial sensitivity in the actual size of the loans provided, so at the very least the Opposition can have that information and say, 'Well, we know that the Government has provided a loan to three estates and the loan is £80,000 to one, £3 million to the other and £4 million to the other.' Where is the commercial sensitivity in providing us with that information, at least?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am having difficulty working out who is the Leader of the Opposition, this afternoon. But anyway, dealing now with the points that Mr Feetham makes –

1605 Hon. D A Feetham: I have the same problem with the Chief Minister, I have to say. (Laughter and banging on desks)

Hon. Chief Minister: Do you? If he has a problem working out who the Chief Minister is, Mr Speaker, he should know that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar has an office, it is 6 Convent Place, it now has a fabulous entrance and he will find me there every day and actually, there is a very helpful sign prepared by the Parliament, which is put in front of the people who sit on this side of the House. (Several 1610 Members: Ooh!) But anyway –

Mr Speaker: May I say that when hon. Members start making clever remarks, they really lower the tone of Parliament.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much indeed, Mr Speaker.

I may now be allowed to continue. Now, Mr Speaker, I have explained, repeatedly, what the thinking is. Now, he always describes anything that he does not agree with as 'flawed'. Well just because he says it is flawed, and just because he repeats that it is flawed, does not mean that it is. But if it makes him feel 1620 happier, I am quite understanding of his need to repeat remarks like that.

Our rationale is simple and straightforward. We are behaving here as lender. The lender does not disclose who it lends to. The borrower may.

Now, Mr Speaker, in that context, he can find out from a number of borrowers what it is that they have borrowed from us. But actually, by the end of this afternoon – if we actually get on to this process –
1625 he is going to have a lot of information about what Credit Finance Company Ltd is doing, just not that specific information about the specific loans. That is all.

Mr Speaker: We are now beginning to cover the same ground again, and in the remaining questions, I am not going to allow, in the course of supplementaries, the same ground to be covered. I will allow new supplementaries, but not about the same subject.

1630 Next question.

1635 Credit Finance Company Ltd
FSC rights or obligations to Government

Clerk: Question 756, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1640 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether Credit Finance Company Ltd has taken over, or it is intended to take over, any right to receive payment or any other financial obligation of the Financial Services Commission to the Government, in respect of any monies made available to the Commission by the Government?

1645 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, Credit Finance Company Ltd has not taken over, nor is it intended it should take over, any such rights.

1650 Credit Finance Company Ltd
Government arrears

1655 Clerk: Question 757, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1660 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide details of all arrears that have been due from individuals or corporations to the Government, which have been repaid by those individuals, or by Credit Finance Company Ltd, from the proceeds of monies provided either directly, or indirectly by that company, broken down by reference to: (a) the identity of the individual or corporation; (b) the amount paid in respect of each individual or corporation; (c) the type of Government arrears; (d) the date on which each amount was paid; and (e) whether those individuals or corporations have been required to enter into a loan, or other type of contractual arrangement with Credit Finance Company Ltd, together with details of the repayment period, interest payable and security provided in each case?

1665 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 758.

1670 Clerk: Question 758, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1675 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide a list of all types of Government arrears in respect of which it is intended either now, or in the future, that Credit Finance Company Ltd should provide funding, in whatever form, to individuals or corporations, to allow for the repayment of those arrears to the Government?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1680 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, loan agreements by Credit Finance Company Ltd are commercially sensitive and details of names of individual entities cannot therefore be disclosed.

Funding is being provided by Credit Finance Company Ltd to assist debtors in meeting historic Government arrears of commercial rent, rates and electricity charges in those cases where the loan agreement can be backed by added security which is not available otherwise to Government, and a more structured recovery plan can be put in place.

1685 No such funding is being provided in respect of individual taxation liabilities or corporation tax liabilities.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker.

1690 Can the Hon. the Chief Minister provide us with, for example, a total figure of Government arrears that have been funded through Credit Finance Company Ltd?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not have the exact figure, but I think it is just under a million pounds.

1695 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government provide a figure, that million-pound figure, broken down in relation to the Government arrears, the type of Government arrears and whether it is an individual or a company, for example, without identifying the individual or company concerned?

1700 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would not have any difficulty providing him with a schedule that shows that.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, does he undertake to provide me with that information?

1705 Now of course, if he undertakes to provide me with that information, what is the difference – and I have been asking the question, I asked it a number of times ad nauseam – what is the difference between the provision of that information and providing me with, for example, the amount of the loans provided to each housing estate where the Government has caused loans to be provided to those housing estates, without identifying the housing estate?

1710 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is very simple, because the information I am going to give him here, I am going to give him as Government, as receiver of this revenue. In other words, I am going to tell him, as the Government, I have received these amounts from Credit Finance and I will give it to him in the way that he wants.

1715 But in relation to the estates, Mr Speaker, we are not just dealing with arrears; we are dealing with a lot of other issues that estates are funding, not Government arrears. So the information I am going to give him, and which I have said I have no difficulty providing the schedule on, Mr Speaker... He has asked me to undertake that I will. Short of forgetting, but people are listening to this debate, so they will already have started to prepare it. I will ensure that it is provided to him as soon as possible in the next few days.

1720 It is a schedule of receipts by Government. I am not going to give him a breakdown of names, etc, as I have told him, but I am going to give it to him in the way that he has requested, because I think he can have that and I am going to give it to him, as the receiver of that revenue, not as the lender.

Hon. D A Feetham: So effectively, the distinction that the Hon. the Chief Minister is drawing is he is providing me the information because the Government receives from Credit Finance – ?

1725 A Member: Not from Credit Finance, from the lender.

1730 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Credit Finance lends the money to the lender... (A Member: The debtor.) To the debtor. It can either pay directly to the Government, or pay it to the debtor and then the debtor pays the Government – effectively. So the distinction is that the Government is receiving that money, but the Government will not provide the information, where effectively the Government is causing Credit Finance, because ultimately it is the Government that makes the decision – just so that I understand it. The Government will not provide the information, where the Government is causing Credit Finance to lend to a third party or to invest in a third party.

1735 Where that is the position, the Government will not provide the information. It will only provide the information if the Government is receiving the money. Is that correct?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker. Credit Finance lends to borrowers. What borrowers then do with the money is up to borrowers, subject to Credit Finance having approved it, because as any lender, it approves the purpose of a loan.

1740 This question which he has asked and which I am prepared to give him the information in the context that he has asked it for, is making the Government the receiver of revenue. That revenue always comes from an individual. It is never going to come from Credit Finance, even if the money originates with Credit Finance. But I am going to give him the breakdown of the amounts received, by Government, in respect of these amounts where we know that the money originates with Credit Finance. We are going to give him that as receivers of revenue. As receivers of revenue, not as lenders – that is the distinction. I have explained it once. I do not think he needs to have it explained twice, but for some reason, he wants to emphasise the distinction.

1745 It is really quite different, once the Government lends to somebody, what that borrower does with the money, as long as it is an approved purpose, may not be money destined to come back to Government. It

1750 will go to another purpose. He has given the example of the estates. He will know that some of the estates, and I have said so, are structuring loans which enable them to pay Government arrears, but they also do other things with the loans. We are not going to be giving him in this schedule, what it is that the estates are doing with the full amount borrowed from Credit Finance, for example. We are going to tell 1755 him, in the schedule, 'x amount has been received in respect of this arrear of Government revenue', as receivers of revenue, and that amount will be less than a million pounds, which is what he asked me before.

1760 Credit Finance Company Ltd
Payments made to individuals and corporations

Clerk: Question 759, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1765 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, apart from Government arrears, can the Chief Minister please provide details of all payments made to individuals or corporations, by Credit Finance Company Ltd, from the proceeds of monies provided either directly or indirectly by that company, broken down by reference to (a) the identity of the individual or corporation; (b) the amount paid in respect of each 1770 individual or corporation; (c) the reason for the payment; (d) the date on which each amount was paid and
(e) whether those individuals or corporations have been required to enter into a loan, or other type of contractual arrangement, with Credit Finance Company Ltd, together with details of the repayment period, interest payable and security provided in each case?

1775 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 760 to 762.

1780 Clerk: Question 760, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state what is the total amount of money paid out by Credit Finance Company Ltd, since its incorporation?

1785 Clerk: Question 761, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state whether any commuted pensions of civil servants are being paid by Credit Finance Company Ltd?

1790 Clerk: Question 762, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Chief Minister please state the amount of any loans made by the Government, Credit Finance Company Ltd or any other Government-owned company, as at 14th November 2013, to the owners of the Sunborn?

1795 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as the House is aware, all Civil Service pensioners are now able, if they so wish, to commute 100% of their pensions. They are able to do this by assigning their pension payments to Credit Finance Company Ltd, the pension payments continue to be paid out of the 1800 Consolidated Fund. As at the end of October 2013, total loans issued by Credit Finance Company Ltd amounted to £38.6 million. The Government will not give a breakdown by identity of individual borrower, as these details are confidential.

1805 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, will the hon. Member say what are the payments that have been assigned to Credit Finance, if the Government occupational pension scheme is a non-contributory scheme?

1810 Hon. Chief Minister: The amounts of pension that would be paid to the civil servant that commutes.
The civil servant assigns the pension payments due to him.

1815 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes but how... Yes but... you see... I mean effectively, what we are dealing with here is a civil servant from a... There is no defined pot of money, it is non-contributory. The Government pays non-contributory pensions of civil servants. How is this structured, as between the Government and Credit Finance? How is Credit Finance actually making its money? Is the Government effectively assigning...? Is Credit Finance making one lump payment at the start and then the Government then pays to Credit Finance instalments...? How is it all structured? How is Credit Finance actually making its money in relation to this?

1820 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would have thought it was very straightforward. Credit Finance makes the lump sum payment which is the equivalent of the commutation, in exchange for the civil servant assigning his right to receive his pension payments. So you make the pension payments that you would make to the civil servant as you would in the normal situation, namely until the civil servant dies, but the civil servant gets the lump sum up front. That is how Credit Finance makes its money, it is not difficult.

1825 Hon. D A Feetham: No, because implicit in what you are saying is effectively that the commutation... the pension is being paid up front, and then what the civil servant was entitled to receive is then paid by the Government to Credit Finance Company Ltd. But unless there is a matching of payment, and therefore effectively the payment into Credit Finance, and the payment out from Credit Finance is neutral in terms of making money for Credit Finance... Credit Finance must be making money somehow, otherwise why is the Government actually structuring it in this particular way? Unless, of course, the Government is structuring it in this particular way, because it is effectively using Credit Finance – which is a point that we have made publicly – is effectively using Credit Finance as a source of cash flow for the Government, which of course makes it also objectionable, because Credit Finance is effectively using the monies of savers in order to pay a lump sum out to civil servants, and then the Government periodically in the future, makes good on that payment.

Can he explain how this is actually going to work?

1840 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he and I have different opinions that we have expressed repeatedly as to each other's capacity to understand, but I think I have explained it very clearly. Now, he may not work out what that means, but Credit Finance Company Ltd makes available a lump sum to the pensioner, who wishes to take up that opportunity of commutation, right? In exchange for that, the pensioner assigns the payments of his pension to Credit Finance.

1845 Hon. J J Bossano: To pay off the amount.

Hon. Chief Minister: It is really quite straight forward, Mr Speaker.

Now, the individual would be receiving that pension until he passes away, and it will be going to Credit Finance for the whole of that period. That is what commutation is about.

1850 If we were to do it in a different way, let me just take the hon. Gentleman to another example. If we were doing this absent Credit Finance, commutation is about an actuarial exercise, it is a calculation. There will be a calculation as to what the commutation is – that has already been published, I think it is  $x$  years, that amount is paid – and the Government, in that context, saves the amount. In this context, it is paid to Credit Finance, the pension is paid to Credit Finance.

1855 I have explained it; I do not think I need to explain it again.

1860 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, no, he has not. No, if you are paying a Civil Service commutation of pension, you are effectively commuting that pension, you are paying out a lump sum to a civil servant from effectively what is a non-contributory pension – there is no fund. The Government is paying for that civil servant's pension.

1865 Here, what appears to be happening is that Credit Finance is paying out of the funds that the Gibraltar Savings Bank has invested in Credit Finance. Now, unless what you are telling me is that the Government effectively pays the same amount, the same amount that Credit Finance pays the civil servant into Credit Finance, it seems a very tortuous, circular way of structuring it. Unless of course what you are doing – and this is my question now – is that effectively Credit Finance is paying out, but the Government is only paying to Credit Finance, periodically, parts of that money that Credit Finance...

Because if that is not the case, what is the point of Credit Finance paying out to the civil servant, when the Government can make the payment directly out?

1870 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have explained how it works, and I have explained how it works precisely.

1875 He is now saying that the Government is not paying and it pays only periodically. No, the Government is paying the pension, as it would the pensioner. But the pensioner assigns the right to receive the pension to Credit Finance. Credit Finance receives the pension every month and it pays the commutation lump sum up front to now not the pensioner, the 'commutee', so to speak. It is very straightforward.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can I ask two questions together, so that he can answer?

1880 First of all, when the Government pays a civil servant a pension, until the changes that were recently introduced what he could commute, effectively, was a proportion of the pension, and the rest of the pension, I think about 75% or something like that, was paid out in monthly payments, which cease if the pensioner dies, except in respect of those very few pensioners that were covered by the Widows and Orphans Pension Scheme.

1885 So, as I understand it, if I am correctly understanding the arrangement that the hon. Member has described, Credit Finance is going to, using its monies, which are in part savers' money, commute, to pay the commutation, to pay the lump sum just to use simple language. And then, as I have understood what he has explained to me, the Government is going to pay to the Credit Finance, the monies that would have been payable to the pensioner on a monthly basis, had he not commuted.

1890 But those pensions would end when the pensioner dies, so presumably if Credit Finance with savers' money commutes my parliamentary pension, when I eventually give him his wish and give up my seat, and I commute my pension, if I die the next day, (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) Credit Finance Company would be receiving no payments from the Government, because there are no payments payable when the pensioner...

1895 Well, Mr Speaker, I am happy to debate with the Chief Minister and with you, but it is unequal arms if I debate with you, at least in this Chamber!

First of all that is one thing. Now, in terms of the mechanics, how under the existing pension scheme, under the Pensions Act, how would the Government continue to make payments to Credit Finance after the pensioner has died, when the Pensions Act says that no pension is payable after the pensioner has died? That is supplementary number one.

1900 Supplementary number two is this. Given that pensions are presently a charge on the Consolidated Fund, and therefore come out of revenue and are regarded as expenditure, and therefore affect the size of the Government's surplus or deficit on the budget, it is not what the hon. Member has described, simply a way of relieving the Government's budget of a liability, thereby flattering the size of the surplus, whilst assuming the liability using capital as opposed to revenue? It is just transferring to the capital account, what the law says is a charge on the revenue account of the Government, and to boot, using savers' capital to do it, not even Government capital.

1910 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is no boot to speak of. (Laughter) It is actually very clear. There is no question – (Interjection) Very clear indeed but not as clear as he thinks it is; it is clear in the other direction, Mr Speaker. You see, it is very simple. There is no question of a payment continuing after death –

Hon. P R Caruana: Oh, I see so –

1915 Hon. Chief Minister: So it is very clear that as far as the Pensions Act is concerned, there is no need for any amendment, the pension is paid whilst the pensioner lives.

1920 He will recall that he used to say a commutation is a very good thing, because actuarially, there is very little chance – of course, there is a chance – that people will actually die before one is able to recover the amount that they have commuted. If you look at the issues that have afflicted this area of financial services, there are people living too long, not people not living long enough.

Secondly, Mr Speaker, this question of flattering the budget by removing a liability on a Consolidated Fund, does not arise, because the pensioner does an agreement with Credit Finance. The Government is out of it. Therefore the Government has the same liability that it always had. The Government will be paying the pension until the day the pensioner passes away.

1925 For the Government account, it is exactly the same situation. It is in Credit Finance that there is a payment out and an agreement with the pensioner. So as far as the Government accounts see, in the example that the hon. Gentleman gave – who was not a civil servant, neither am I, and we are talking about civil servants, but let us just use that example – he would continue to be the drawer of that pension and he assigns the right of receipt of it to Credit Finance.

1930 So the Government pays Sir Peter Caruana. He then makes the payment – but actually goes direct, of course – to Credit Finance Company Ltd. The right to receive the pension is personal to him. Upon his death, the pension stops being paid.

1935 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, it is not true that the Government will... at least, unless he has not addressed this point in his explanation and in which case, please clarify. It is not true that the Government would continue to pay what it would pay before out of budget, because it is making the payments until death. Because as he knows, part of what commutation means, even under the old rules, let alone under 1940 the new ones, is what people call the gratuity. What people call the gratuity, which is a lump sum, is in technical terms, partial commutation. That lump sum, which people call the gratuity, is itself a charge on revenue.

In addition to the monthly payments after the gratuity, the gratuity lump sum is regarded for Consolidated Fund charge purposes, as in exactly the same way as the monthly payment and indeed, that is the lion's share. So Mr Speaker... Well, it is not the lion's share, but it is a very significant amount that could run into a couple of... two million, depending on how many civil servants retire in any given year, 1945 but a very significant sum that runs into the millions of pounds – just the lump sum.

That, if it is going to be paid by the Finance Company, is a direct relief by the Finance Company of – (Interjection) Well fine, but it is part of the pension, it is a lump sum commutation, it is a million or a million and a half that used to be a charge, and by law is a charge on the Consolidated Fund, which is now going to be paid by Credit Finance and not by the party that the law says, and will flatter – I know he does 1950 not like the expression – but will flatter, accordingly, flatter the Government's budget surplus.

In other words, he is converting a payment which is presently a charge on the Government's revenue, and therefore reduces its surplus, to capital paid by the Savings Bank out of savers' money. It is Mr Speaker, if the explanation – that point aside, which I think is a very important one – but the explanation that he has given me appears to shed new light on exactly how we should properly regard Credit Finance.
1955 It is not really a finance company, licensable under the – at least not only a finance company, would he agree? – financeable, licensable under the Pawnbrokers Act or the Moneylenders Act or whatever it is called. It is, in effect, a life insurance company.

What it is doing is going to the casino with the length of people's lives. In other words, this company is making a lump sum payment and depending on how long the person lives, Credit Finance will make 1960 money or lose money. This is what life insurance companies do for a living. So this Credit Finance is not just a moneylender; it is by any definition, either an annuity company or a life insurance company, or a company in the business of risking profit and loss, depending on the longevity of pensioners.

Now, Mr Speaker, this is a whole new area. We are not going to spend another three hours discussing this, but this is in addition to and not consequential upon, everything that we have been discussing today 1965 about money lending. This is now... Credit Finance is a Government-owned company, run by civil servants using public money, investing savers' money – well, I am not surprised he was confident that it might be very profitable. Life insurance companies can be very profitable. They can also lose huge sums of money. That is the risk that shareholders of life insurance companies take.

1970 But you are not a shareholder of a life insurance company; you are the guardian of the Gibraltar taxpayer's money, Mr Speaker, and that is the difference. Will he...

Hon. Chief Minister: And where is the question?

1975 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, the question is: will he agree with me, that... First of all, I would like him to clarify, if he would, the business about the... I think, interpreting his body language whilst he was in a sedentary position, he appears to be conceding the point, but I would just like it for the sake of the record on Hansard that to the extent, at least, of the commutation lump sum, there is a transfer out of the Consolidated Fund charge.

1980 And then, I would like him to acknowledge that Credit Finance is running the risk that it will, having paid out a lump sum, not recover sufficient payments from the Government, once the Government stops payment of the pension when the pensioner dies, and that that is the nature of the risk that the company is taking.

1985 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, there is only a slight measure of disagreement between us in respect of the first point. In other words, that the gratuity was a sliding scale, in other words, different people could agree to take different amounts and in any year, depending on the number of people who retired, you might have more or less amounts, depending on numbers and the sliding scale. And it is right – (Interjection) It is up to 25%, but it could be less, yes.

1990 It is right that, to the extent that there will not be lump sum payments of gratuity made by the Government in respect of those who commute, but not everybody has to commute, then there would be relief in that particular way, except that, of course, if there is no gratuity, as the hon. Gentleman knows, then the pension is higher and in respect of those who commute, there is no gratuity element, there is a full pension taken, because the commutation is the total amount that is taken.

1995 Therefore the amount payable as pension to the individuals, he will no doubt accept, is higher than it would have been if the person had taken – he is nodding his head, but it must be right – because you see

Mr Speaker, I will explain it to him – (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) The monthly instalments will be higher because the pension taken monthly is 100% of the amount accumulated.

2000 Now, in that context Mr Speaker, if what he wants to say is that the accounts will have or the Government will have that temporary relief, in other words there will be no lump sums payable on day one in respect of a pensioner taking a gratuity, but of course the monthly amounts payable in respect of that pensioner will be consequently higher.

2005 Then he has expressed the second part of his question in some very figurative and emotive terms about what it is that CFCL is doing, whether it is providing an annuity, is it a life insurance company, is it playing at the casino? Well look, Mr Speaker, of course it is right that anybody who pays a commutation in exchange for a pension receipt in respect of an individual is running the risk that the person might die before they recover that amount of the commutation. That is absolutely right, but he will know that, actuarially, all the calculations show that this is actually the safest possible way to administer taxpayers' money. Because each pensioner, each Civil Service pensioner, will cost the taxpayer a lot more if they continue to receive their pension until death, than if we simply gross it up and pay them a commutation.

2010 I seem to recall him at one stage saying, 'If I could work out how to do this, I too would be very interested in introducing the concept of commutation.' Well, it has taken him two and a half years (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) to look at this and now he understands exactly how it is that we are doing and how we are financing it.

2015 It is, in our view, Mr Speaker, the right way to be prudent about taxpayers' money, by providing this mechanism to make the commutation payments to the pensioner and, in the way of the pension payments to Credit Finance, have that amount repaid as I have already set out. I think Mr Speaker, that anybody who looks at the actuarial analysis which is relevant will realise how potentially safe an investment this is. He does not seem to be prepared to share that view, from his body language. But look, we are the Government, we have made the decision. I assume that what he is saying is that he does not support that these commutations should be offered in this way.

2025 Hon. P R Caruana: No, Mr Speaker, I am not in the business, except when I debate with him, of having a battle of views. I am a Member of the Opposition asking questions and I am just trying to establish information. The issue is not whether I agree with him or not; the issue is transparency of the way that the Government is doing things.

2030 Look, Mr Speaker, with respect to him, he is not financing this. The savers of the Gibraltar Savings Bank are financing this. (Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely.) He is not financing, this is not a case of the Government saying, 'I will use Government capital to buy off the Government's pension liabilities to its pensioners in a way that is ultimately cheaper for the taxpayer.' If the Government was using its own money for that purpose, we could have a discussion about whether it is a sensible or not a sensible way actuarially of shortening liabilities in the future.

2035 But he is not using Government money; he is using Gibraltar Savings Bank monies, and leaving it to chance, which we all hope will not come to pass – and may not come to pass if Government's fiscal position remains buoyant and solvent and Gibraltar continues to prosper – but we cannot assume that, we cannot take that as a necessary given, as no country can. This is not something peculiar to Gibraltar. Countries get into difficulty. So I am not saying that there is risk; I am saying that there is no transparency.

2040 And look, Mr Speaker, whether it is right or wrong for a Government-owned company to go into the business of life insurance and take risk is of course a matter of policy. Government sets up construction companies, Government sets up all manner of companies. Well, if Government wants to set up an insurance company, well it is a policy decision.

2045 The point is that that is what it is. I am not saying whether it is good or bad. If Government wants to set up an insurance company and say to the taxpayer, 'I have effectively set up something akin to an insurance company, which is now running these risks about whether it will make profit or loss depending on how people live', well Government can set up whatever companies it wants to, to trade in whatever line of business it wants.

2050 I am not here to say whether I think it is a good idea or a bad idea, although I have my views about that, but simply that the Government should be transparent and explain to people, and certainly in this House, that that is what the Government is doing and not pretend that Credit Finance Corporation is a moneylender under the Moneylending Act, whose bank manager does not tell people about loans, any more than Barclays bank manager does.

2055 Can we not have a clear transparent statement by the Government pursuant to its policy of how it wants to use Credit Finance, to explain in this House how it is using Credit Finance and what it is doing, without the Opposition having to play 20 questions and hope to strike, to arrive at the information, if Mr Speaker gives us enough latitude for long enough, to ask enough supplementaries, to eventually tease out the information.

2060 That is what I am urging to the hon. Member to do. If it is a legitimate architecture of Government, as he appears to be defending that it is, I would ask him to consider whether he should just not make a statement about everything that the company is doing, so that we do not have to ask questions in a way that might alarm people by the way in which we ask the question.

2065 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think that we now find ourselves in a situation where the more information that we give, the more information that we put in the public domain, the more quickly that we provide it, the less transparent we are told we are by the hon. Members –

Hon. P R Caruana: But you are not transparent.

2070 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, look, I have explained to the hon. Members opposite and to the hon. the backbencher, who has taken a leading role this afternoon, and helped us therefore to get through business much more quickly than we might otherwise, if I may say, that Credit Finance Company Ltd is doing this commutation business.

2075 I have explained how it is doing it. He seems to have expressed opinions about it. It is true they have asked a question about it and we have explained what they have done, and he says the Opposition should not have to play 20 questions. But look, most other times they say the Opposition is here to ask questions in order to elucidate matters. Well look, Mr Speaker, we are the most transparent Government in the history of Gibraltar. (Laughter) Clearly the most transparent Government in the history of Gibraltar – but that does not mean, Mr Speaker...

2080 Hon. P R Caruana: A Government that most describes itself as transparent. (Laughter)

2085 Hon. Chief Minister: We are clearly Mr Speaker, the most transparent Government in the history of Gibraltar. We provide more information without being prompted, than the hon. Member used to provide even after being prompted. There was information put monthly on our website that we had to pull out of his mouth with hammer and sickle, Mr Speaker, as if we were pulling his teeth!

The fact is that we have explained today, in answer to a question, immediately that it has been asked, exactly how Credit Finance is doing this.

2090 Now, if he says that what we should have done is issue a statement about what it is that Credit Finance does, well look, Mr Speaker, I will take that as the sort of advice that he is tendering me for free. But he knows that I do not take his political advice and he has never taken mine.

We have made very clear what it is that Credit Finance is doing in respect of these commutations; we have explained exactly how it works in this House, which is the right way to do so. They tell us that they are here to ask us questions about what it is that we do. They have asked this question, they have got the information.

2095 Credit Finance is not just a licensed moneylender; it is also doing this business. He would therefore, Mr Speaker, describe – or some aspects of what Credit Finance is doing – as akin to an insurance company. Well look, Mr Speaker, it is fine. If he wants to describe it in that way, it is up to him to do so. What we are doing is ensuring that civil servants who want to have their commutations, can have them, we are satisfied actuarially that this is a very safe way in which to ensure that taxpayers' money, as the payer of the pension, is better put to the use of the community.

2100 Hon. P R Caruana: Does he acknowledge – ?

Mr Speaker: Any other new relevant supplementary?

2105 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker... [Inaudible]

2110 But, because I just want to extract it from the previous answer that he gave, is he agreeing with me – did he agree with me before – that in the case of a civil servant who retires and the company pays out the commutation, whatever degree of commutation the pensioner chooses to go for, and the pensioner dies soon thereafter, the Finance Company will never recover, will lose the difference between the lump sum that it paid out, and the aggregate of the pension monthly payments that it received between pension retirement date and death?

2115 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is trying to get me to answer a question in a particular way. Let me answer it in this way.

In the way that I have explained that this works, if a pensioner takes his commutation, he assigns for life, his pension rights, the right to receive his pension from the taxpayer, to Credit Finance. If he dies before Credit Finance has recovered the amount it paid him, then Credit Finance will be at a loss in respect of that pensioner, in respect of whatever amount is due – unless, of course, the pensioner has some other provision made. But there the position is quite clear.

2120 The analysis is that Credit Finance Company Ltd will make a lot more money than is likely ever to be lost in respect of those who might die before their commutations are fully repaid, from those who continue to survive as the actuarial analysis suggests that they will.

2125 It is very straightforward. The hon. Gentleman knows that, thank God, people in Gibraltar have a very long predicted life and that the cost to the taxpayer of paying them their pensions under the final salary scheme far exceeds the amounts that are calculated as commutations.

Hon. P R Caruana: So implicit in that answer is that the Government will carry on, will pay to the Finance Company, the full amount of the monthly pensions, on the assumption that there had been no commutation. So in other words, the Government pays the full pension to CFC on an uncommuted basis – that is to say the full monthly payment as if there had been no commutation. The Finance Company pays the commutation, uses part of what it gets from the Government to pay the remaining monthly payment if there has not been an 100% commutation, and keep... and accumulates – 2130 Hon. Chief Minister: Sorry, can you give way for a second? (Hon. P R Caruana: Yes.) (Interjections) Credit Finance is only relevant in cases of 100% commutation.

Hon. P R Caruana: Oh I see, so then the Government pays the whole pension at the full rate, let's just call it, on the uncommuted full rate, the Finance Company pays out the pension lump sum on the basis of 100% commutation, and collects the 100% pension payments from the Government, and then we wait and see how long the pensioner lives, to see how much revenue Finance collects.

2140 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is the position and a very good business it is too. The actuarial analysis suggests that this will be an area of huge profit and in the same way, Mr Speaker, as on the other side of the balance sheet, it is potentially an area of huge liability to the taxpayer. To such an extent, Mr Speaker, that he, before he left office, ended the final salary scheme for exactly that reason.

Hon. P R Caruana: Correct. The only point to be made and the final point to be made is this: that of course this excellent business, as he calls it, of allowing people to commute their pension, this could be done by the Government. It does not have to be done by CFC, so what the hon. Member is doing is simply transferring potential profit and potential losses from the transparent Consolidated Fund and Government reserves, to what he calls the sovereign wealth fund, the Finance Company, where he will not tell us who he lends it to and on what terms.

2150 So this is just another way of shifting financial transactions from the Government's accounts, to the Credit Finance's accounts. Because you do not need Credit Finance to do all the excellent business, if he thinks it is excellent business, that he has just described. He can do that through the Government Pension Act and through the Financial and Development Secretary's office.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, perhaps we could but we have decided to do it through Credit Finance. Now, I assume Mr Speaker, that in the context of what he is saying, where he talks about huge potential profit (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) and also potential loss, he is only talking about potential loss because at the moment he is on that side, and on that side, one sometimes is given to have to try and find an issue to niggle, and perhaps something to suggest that there is some element of risk. Because as he will know, the actuarial analysis – which is not something that we can do on the back of an envelope – suggests that people will live for very much longer than is necessary to repay their commutations.

2160 And that there is, in terms of real risk here, almost no real risk of anything other than profit being accrued as a result of this mechanism. And when he has mentioned loss, he has simply mentioned it because in some way, the Members opposite have to save the position that Credit Finance is going to be anything other than a hugely profitable endeavour for this community.

2170 Hon. P R Caruana: That is okay, so long as the Savings Bank debenture holders know that their money is being invested in this wonderful venture that he says is going to be very profitable, but may not be. That is all – transparency and explanation – and whether he does it or not is a matter entirely of policy.

2175 Hon. Chief Minister: Exactly, Mr Speaker and immediately that they have asked, we have given the information, transparent as we are. He will also... it does not take, Mr Speaker, a rocket scientist to know, that the savers actually are many of the commutees themselves who will be putting the money in the best deal there is in town, which is the Savings Bank.

2180 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can I ask the Hon. the Chief Minister two questions?
One is: has Credit Finance Company Ltd been doing this paying out commuted pensions from, effectively, very soon after it was incorporated in March of this year?

2185 And secondly, who has made the assessment that this is likely to be profitable business for the Government? Is it Government Ministers that have made that assessment?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I understand that this is something that Credit Finance Company Ltd started doing. It was one of the purposes for which it was incorporated in fact, and he will know – I know that he has referred us to it before – that it is something I think which is in our manifesto, which was considered at least during, and announced during the election campaign, so was an assessment that was made even before we were Ministers.

2190 Hon. D A Feetham: So effectively, it is the hon. Gentlemen opposite, without the benefit of any kind of professional advice, that have made the assessment that this kind of business is likely to be profitable business for Credit Finance?

2195 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not think it is something which requires detailed professional advice, but I would refer the hon. Gentleman to the fact that even his erstwhile former leader was very clear about what the liabilities to the taxpayer under the provisions of the Pension Act were, in respect of the final salary scheme to civil servants.

2200 In other words, the actuarial analysis is very clear, not to Credit Finance, but on the other side, where the Government constantly receives actuarial advice, as to the longevity of the people to whom we are responsible under the Civil Service Pension Scheme. So it is clear, on the one hand, and therefore very easy to interpret on the other.

2205 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, well, Mr Speaker, you see this is a company that is run by three civil servants, they are not experts in this particular area, neither are the Government, as far as I can see, experts in the provision of making actuarial assessments. But I just find it extraordinary that the Government has effectively made the decision to use this particular company, in this particular way.

2210 Yes, as the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana says, it can lead to massive profits, but it can also lead to massive losses, and I just want the hon. Gentleman to be clear about this and to confirm that, effectively, this is just simply a decision of the Government, without any professional assistance at all, without any professional assessment or report as to whether this is good business or bad business for the Government of Gibraltar?

2215 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, those three civil servants that he talks about include the Financial Secretary. The Financial Secretary is the person who is receiving, constantly, advice as to the liability of the Government to civil servants, to retired civil servants, under the Civil Service Pension Scheme. What I am saying to him – and we, the Ministers on this side of the House who are relevant to this decision-making process, have discussed these issues with the Financial Secretary – he is seeing the liability element. You need to understand...

2220 The hon. Gentleman asked me a question and it is an important one. I would like him if possible, to give me the courtesy of his attention for my reply. Right.

2225 We are seeing, and the Financial Secretary is seeing, the liability aspect to the pensioners, the Civil Service pensioners, under the Civil Service Pension Scheme. We are constantly, he will know, receiving actuarial advice in that respect. This is the mirror image of that advice. In other words, we are constantly being told 'x civil servants, all likely to live in this way, this analysis in respect of males, this analysis in respect of females, this is how long they are likely to be living for, this is your liability in respect of them.'

2230 What Credit Finance is doing, for those who choose it, is taking the inverse of that model in an analysis done with the Financial Secretary, who is not – I would ask the hon. Gentleman to accept – just a civil servant that happens to sit on the board. He has responsibilities and he has obligations in respect of the Civil Service Pension Scheme and, of course, the experience, understanding and knowledge of these things.

2235 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister has also said that this company was incorporated for this particular purpose. Now, how can the Hon. the Chief Minister justify the statements about this being the most democratic or most transparent Government in the political history of Gibraltar – 2240 Mr Speaker: No, no, no, that has got nothing to do with it. No, no, no.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, I have not finished.

2245 Mr Speaker: No, no, no, but leave anything about transparent and democratic Government, justifying... Get to the point, please. Get to the point. We have a specific matter that we are dealing with. Get to the point, ask your question, otherwise I will rule you out.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am getting to the point.

2250 Mr Speaker: Right, but –

Hon. D A Feetham: May I continue?

2255 Mr Speaker: Yes, and to the point.

2260 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes. How can he justify the statements that he has made – I have not made them, that he has made – about transparency and accountability? How can he justify the statements that he has made about accountability and transparency? And this is about – at the core of what we are talking about, and the questions that we have been asking – it is all about transparency and accountability to this Parliament. How can he justify that, when here you have a company that has been incorporated in March of this year for the specific purpose of doing this, precisely this, paying commuted pensions to civil servants?

2265 And, the first time that the Government provides any kind of information, any announcement, it is not even an announcement, is when the Opposition come to this Parliament, seven months later and teases out the information from the Government, and the Government has not provided any kind of statement. How does he justify his description of his Government, as the most accountable and transparent in the political history of Gibraltar, with that?

2270 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, a company is incorporated to do a number of things, something that the Government does quite often. Hon. Members opposite, when they were in Government, did a number of things, short of incorporating companies for particular purposes, and did not always issue press statements saying that they were doing it.

2275 Now, is it that the hon. Gentleman is saying you can only be transparent and accountable, if every time you do something, you issue a press statement saying that you do it? But then, one of the things that they accuse us of is issuing too many press statements, or is it that he has forgotten that that is one of the accusations that they also throw at us?

2280 Well, look, why do I say that we are the most accountable and transparent Government, despite not having issued a press statement about CFCL financing commutations? Well look, as soon as we have been asked, we have said exactly what it is that CFCL is doing about commutations. They have not had to tease out the information. We have had a debate about the information, but the information was given immediately that it was asked for.

Now, ‘teasing out’ would be almost like a ‘foreplay-ish’ persuasion, if I could put it that way – 2285 Hon. D A Feetham: A what?

Hon. P R Caruana: ‘A foreplay-ish persuasion.’

2290 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, that is what teasing out suggests to me, right? But that is quite different, Mr Speaker, to having to extract information with hammer and sickle, as if you were pulling teeth, which is what we ended up having to do with the hon. Gentlemen when they were here, and even then, did not get the information, because Mr Speaker is absolutely right – I think it was Mr Speaker that made the point some meetings ago – Mr Speaker cannot force the Government to answer a question, and in fact the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana made the point today.

2295 Government could simply say, ‘We are not answering these questions’ and then of course, you pay the political price if there is one to be paid. I would just remind the hon. Gentlemen that they paid it. That is the attitude that they took to my questions about a particular individual and the consultancy agreements that had been entered into with him, which I said in Questions, were being entered into in breach of European Union Rules. I was told, I am not being told why the Government takes a contrary view. Now, that was an issue that resulted in a net liability to taxpayers, in the millions of pounds.

2300 Everything we are debating here, everything we are debating here, is going to result in a net profit to taxpayers, I hope in many millions of pounds, and I trust that they also wish the same thing for the taxpayer. So why do I say that we are so transparent? Well, I say we are so transparent, because we put on our website information that they would not even have teased out of them in Parliament. We do that on a 2305 monthly basis. We come here 10 times in any year to answer all the questions that are put, and on some occasions, not all, we say that we cannot answer the question because we think it is commercially sensitive. Now, because we do that does not mean that we are anything other than entirely the most transparent, most open and most accountable Government, that this community has ever had the benefit of having. (Banging on desks)

2310 Several Members: Hear, hear.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I have to say that I admire the Hon. the Chief Minister's optimism. If this company makes a massive loss – God forbid, that is not what the Opposition wants (Interjections) – but if this company makes a massive loss, he is going to have to emigrate, I have to say.

2315 But, Mr Speaker, does he not accept that if the Opposition had not conducted a company search of the Sunborn Gibraltar Ltd, which then led us to Credit Finance Company Ltd...? Because the only reason why we discovered Credit Finance Company Ltd was because we conducted a search on the Sunborn, and we then discovered that there was a mortgage in favour of Credit Finance Company Ltd. Does he not accept that had we not done that, the community at large would have been none the wiser about the fact 2320 that the Government has invested £344 million of savers' and taxpayers' money into this company, which it is then using in order to provide loans to third parties? And does he not agree that that is the very opposite of being transparent and being accountable?

Does he not accept, as well, that that is not a right and proper way for a Government to behave, because the obligation was on the Government to come to Parliament and provide a clear statement about 2325 Credit Finance, as soon as Credit Finance was incorporated – bearing in mind the amounts of money that we are talking about and, indeed, the purpose and potential liability to this community?

Mr Speaker: That is the last supplementary that I am allowing and then we are going to conclude 2330 Question Time.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I must say during the course of this afternoon, I have found it hugely just – and I am going to make a point in his favour, so he should not be so cynical as to look at me with that smirk – hugely just, that he has now been able to finally right the wrong of actually being able to turn to the now backbencher and tell him to sit down and shut up, just like the hon. Member used to do with him, when he was on the Government benches. There is justice!

Anyway, Mr Speaker, the company search of Sunborn and then of Credit Finance, and the search of Credit Finance: Mr Speaker, this does not render the hon. Gentleman Poirot or Colombo – certainly not Sherlock Holmes. It is more like a diddling Clouseau! At the end of the day, these are public documents. He knows and I know that the Companies Register is known as the public register of companies and that 2340 searching companies is something that costs £5 and he and I, in a much more sophisticated guise, tend to do that for a living and sell that service.

So when things are done by the Government, Mr Speaker, which are public because they are put on a public register, is it that he wants me to pick him up, hold him by the hand and take him to the document, before he accepts that I am being transparent about it? Mr Speaker, I would have great pleasure in holding 2345 any Member on this side by the hand, and demonstrating the openness to any member of the community, but, you know, he has to earn his keep, and as Leader of the Opposition, if he has to make a company search to discern a particular detail, well I do not think that is asking too much.

And when you compare that, Mr Speaker, to the regime that there was before – to deal with his point in his last supplementary, about transparency and accountability – a regime that treated us to only one 2350 meeting of the House in one particular year between 1996 and 2011, that gave us a maximum of two, when two was all they were required to have under the Constitution, and had a maximum of three, when they had to have three and never went beyond that, and this is the place where Governments are accountable, then I have to say to him that he is tainted by the fact that he is a member of the 'Ancien Régime' that prevailed over that time and he will always have that difficulty in saying that we are 2355 anything other than the most open, transparent and accountable Government that this community has ever had the benefit of having. (Banging on desks)

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, if he will allow me just one final intervention for today, would the 2360 hon. Member –

Mr Speaker: It is a final one. I will allow you, it is a final one. I bow to your seniority in this House.

Hon. P R Caruana: In this House, I am very junior. (Laughter)

2365 Would the Hon. the Chief Minister agree with me that genuine parliamentary transparency is not about the number of times that Parliament meets – after all there is not much point coming, if you are not going to get any meaningful information – but about the quality of the information that you get?

2370 He appears to think that parliamentary transparency is measured in the number of meetings that you have a year, regardless of what happens in those meetings, whereas actual transparency is about the extent to which the Government gives the Opposition all the financial information that it needs. I can tell him however few... however badly he thinks we used to do in terms of quantitative transparency, in terms of the number of meetings of Parliament, even when they were in companies, no Government that I headed ever refused to give the Opposition financial information.

2375 The question, would he agree with me, that he has referred today on several occasions – and I no longer bother to get up to deny things that he says about me which are not true – but when he has said, Mr Speaker, when he has said repeatedly that I refused to tell him why contracts that were being given to particular consultants were not in breach of the Procurement Ordinance... Act, I told him that the Government did not agree that it was in breach; and as the Government did not agree that it was in breach, it is hardly possible to give an explanation about why you do not think that something is something that you do not think it is?

2380 So it is not... This constant impression that he gives, because he asserts it, that it was a breach of the Act – it is not a breach of the Act; and that it has cost the Government millions of pounds – it did not cost the Government any millions of pounds. The Government got the services at reduced rates by the way that it was paying for, Mr Speaker, but even that about which I disagree with him, is not what we are debating today.

2385 Will he acknowledge that when he was sitting on this side of the House, and we were sitting on that side of the House, we used to answer questions about the business of Government-owned companies, fully and systematically, as he has declined to do today, because Government Ministers were involved in conducting their affairs; and that is not happening today? Would he agree with me that that is the difference between our two positions?

2390 Hon. Chief Minister: Certainly not, Mr Speaker, and I will tell him why: because I am going to take his remarks as a valedictory this afternoon. Or is it that he has forgotten, when he was presenting to this Parliament answers to questions, when we had rumbled, much more in a ‘Sherlock Holmesian’ manner, that he had taken £20 million and hocked some Government buildings, in order to finance a project at the Mid-Town?

Hon. J J Bossano: By buying shares.

2400 Hon. Chief Minister: In that case, by apparently being prepared to make an equity investment – that thing which they now so criticise in respect of Credit Finance – in a venture which was to be a project to develop that area, involving the same person with whom he had done these agreements that were apparently in keeping with EU law? Does he not remember that he told this House that he could not remember what those £20 million were for? Does he not remember the number of times when he said he would not answer questions?

2405 Hon. P R Caruana: I said none of those things.

2410 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, we often have situations in this House where the hon. Member says, ‘I did not say that, it is not true’. Well, although we do not have the automatic system that a CNN transcription would provide for us, (Interjections) we have Hansard, Mr Speaker, and we can check together if he likes, so that we can demonstrate to him that that is the position.

2415 But is he saying, Mr Speaker, that they have not had information today? They have had a huge amount of information today, when they have asked for it. (Hon. P R Caruana: No.) And the hon. Gentleman said (Interjections) during the course of his interventions earlier this afternoon, in which he has so ably – if I may allow myself to say so – led, in effect, the Opposition once again, that when you do not give information, what happens is that you pay the political price.

2420 Well, Mr Speaker, let us just look at it this way. Let us just look at this way. They did not give information before the last general election on issues as important as the taking of that £20 million loan; they did not give information about those contracts which were granted in breach of EU law which cost millions of pounds, Mr Speaker. They did not give information, for example, about the power station that they were going to enter into. It was only after the election – not after a question from the Opposition, only after the election – that the general public found out that the hon. Member’s plan for a new power station involved a 5% increase in the cost of electricity for 20 years, Mr Speaker, and it was not until after the general election that the community found out that the hon. Member was planning to come back to 2425 this House to seek an extension of the debt, of the public debt of Gibraltar, because he was going to fund a lot of his projects under the GSD manifesto out of more debt.

So, Mr Speaker, in terms of quality of information, we have given much more quality of information, on a much more quantitative basis, namely 10 times a year, than they ever did.

2430 But he said, Mr Speaker, at the end of the day, Government can say that they will not answer questions, and they will pay the political price. Mr Speaker, as the Chief Minister elected by the people of Gibraltar today at the last general election, I am looking now at the man who paid the political price for not delivering information to this community and this Parliament. I think that stands as a testament to the way that he will be remembered – although, Mr Speaker, I do hope that now that we are at opposite sides and he is a backbencher, we will always be able to have a much more positive personal relationship than 2435 the ones we used to have when he used to sit here.

Mr Speaker: May I now ask the Chief Minister to table the answers to the Written Questions and we will then have a 10-minute comfort recess.

Questions for Written Answer

2445 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Yes, Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the answers to Written Questions numbered W120/2013 to 159/2013 inclusive. I include also, Mr Speaker, the questions that Mr Netto asked this morning should be treated as Written Questions, which are also answered in these documents which I now lay.

2450 Mr Speaker: The House will now recess for 10 minutes.

The House recessed at 6.22 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 6.42 p.m.

GOVERNMENT MOTION

Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997
Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme)
(Amendment of Benefits) Order 2013 approved

Mr Speaker: Now that the Chair is suitably replenished, we can carry on with the business.

2465 Clerk: Government Motion. The Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

2470 'This House approves by resolution pursuant to section 46 of the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997, the making of the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) (Amendment of Benefits) Order 2013.'

2475 The draft Order which is available reflects the increase in benefits and, Mr Speaker, follows the procedure that happens every year.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment, Health & Safety.

2480 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I understand that procedurally this has to be passed by way of motion pursuant to the section set out in the body of the motion itself – it is section 46 of the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997 – and the Opposition really has nothing to add to this particular debate on the motion.

2485 Mr Speaker: If no other Member wishes to speak, I will put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

2495

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013 First Reading approved

Clerk: Bills, First and Second Readings.

A Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act 2011. The Hon. the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act 2011 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Crimes (Amendment) Act 2013.

2510

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013 Second Reading approved

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act 2011 be read a second time.

This Bill makes a minor amendment to Part 6 of the Crimes Act 2011, by providing for a new section 94A, which involves the offence of stalking involving fear of violence or serious alarm or distress and it replaces section 2(13) of the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2013 which has not been commenced.

In fact, Mr Speaker, what happened was that the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Bill was taken in the September sitting, and during the course of discussions with the Hon. Mr Figueras, he pointed out that there appeared to be a typographical or grammatical error in this particular provision. That was corrected by me at Committee, but on my return to the office, it appeared that it was not, after all, a typographical or grammatical error; it was a formatting error and during the formatting phase, a few words had actually been missed out. Therefore, what we did was commence all other provisions of the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act except this one, which was not commenced.

2525

The Bill which we then published corrects that and introduces the provision which we intended to produce to commence in September in the corrected form.

There is an amendment which I will be putting forward at Committee. I understand that a letter has been written to you and circulated to Members opposite. That amendment is to formally repeal the section which has not been commenced, section 2(13) of the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2013.

In fact, technically it is not necessary, because it simply has not been commenced and it is an amendment Act, rather than a section in the main Act. It was a proposal that Mr Figueras made to me, that we should simply remove that erroneous section from the statute book altogether, and it is a suggestion that I am happy to accede to, even though technically it is not necessary.

I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2540

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, only to say that this side of the House has no issue with the Bill and to associate myself with the remarks that the Hon. Minister has made in presenting the Bill. I am grateful for his recognition of the collaboration in this respect and have nothing further to add to that.

2545 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act 2011 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Crimes (Amendment) Act 2013.

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2555 Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2560 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend various Acts on Social Security and related subsidiary legislation, the Medical (Group Practice Scheme) Act, the Limitation Act; and for connected purposes.
The Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

2570

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend various Acts on Social Security and related subsidiary legislation, the Medical (Group Practice Scheme) Act, the Limitation Act; and for connected purposes, be read a first time.

2575

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend various Acts on Social Security and related subsidiary legislation, the Medical (Group Practice Scheme) Act, the Limitation Act; and for connected purposes, be read a first time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Act 2013.

2585

Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

2590

Mr Speaker, the explanation of what the Bill does in the explanatory memorandum, I think, is so self-evident that there is little that I need to add to what it does. The Principal Auditor in this year's report made reference to the fact that this has been promised for a number of years and that, finally, the final draft was ready and was expected to be brought to the House soon.

2595

One of the issues in terms of the ability to collect PAYE which has been deducted at source from employees has been that the same provisions did not exist in respect of Social Insurance and therefore when the Social Insurance was transferred to the Income Tax Office for collection, they were able to collect part of the money from the Directors if they remained unpaid, but they were not able to do the Social Insurance part as well.

2600

Effectively, what this does is treat the liability of employers in respect of Social Insurance deductions in exactly the same way as has been the case until now for PAYE – frankly something that I think is very necessary, because here we are not simply talking about taxpayers not being able to meet their own obligations, but employers who effectively are collecting tax on behalf of the Government from the wages of workers and Social Insurance contributions from the wages of workers, and then failing to hand the money over.

The amendments that are being brought in are something that has been for many years recommended as necessary, if we are going to make inroads into the arrears of social insurance by the Principal Auditor and, as I have said, in this year's audited accounts, the Principal Auditor welcomed the fact that the Bill was now ready and was expected to become law in the current year.

So I commend the Bill to the House.

2610 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2615 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker. In fact, I am not sure that I agree with what the hon. Member has said in relation to the explanatory memorandum, and as to whether it accurately reflects everything that the Bill purports to do. This is obviously an omnibus Bill, in the sense that it amends a whole raft of Social Security primary and secondary legislation, as well as the Medical (Group Practice Scheme) Act.

2620 Mr Speaker, if I could first of all deal with the... Basically, there are headline issues, and if I deal with the amendments which are being suggested in respect of one of the Acts, it really applies across the board, because they are all very similar. As currently drafted, Mr Speaker, the Opposition finds difficulty in supporting this particular initiative, and I will go through the points now.

2625 The first point, Mr Speaker, is the fact that it appears now, if one goes to clause 2(4)(b), that the institution of proceedings are now to be done by the Director, and the addition of the words 'or any person authorised by him in writing'. It is not clear why that is the case. One of the issues that I thought as to why this was being done is in order to give flexibility for the Director to appoint somebody else to do the work for him, in terms of recovery of debts.

Of course, that flexibility is already set out in the current legislation. If one goes to section 45(3) of the Social Security (Insurance) Act – this is an amendment to that particular Act – it provides that:

2630 'Proceedings for the summary recovery of a civil debt of sums due to the Fund may be instituted by an inspector or other officer authorized in that behalf by special or general directions of the Director...'

2635 So there is already that flexibility inherent in the current legislation. It is not clear to me why there is a requirement now to give the Director the statutory power to divest himself of the statutory power he has to another person – and notably, Mr Speaker, another person potentially outside the Civil Service, because the word used is not 'officer', it is 'a person' so that could be a natural or indeed a corporate body, outside the Civil Service who would be in effect doing debt recovery in relation to Social Insurance contributions.

So without going into the matter in a lot of detail, Mr Speaker, it is a matter of concern that we have on this side of the House.

2640 One of the points I would ask the Hon. Minister to address, and to assuage certainly concerns that I have, is that if there is indeed a divesting of those statutory powers to a third-party person, completely at arm's length from the Gibraltar Government, and that person will be exercising certain statutory powers in terms of recovery of debt, what will be the public law remedies available for a person who has agreed by any actions taken by that individual or corporate body on behalf of the Director of Social Services, in terms of adjudication in courts, by way of judicial review, and what have you? That is certainly a matter which I would raise as a point of concern and I would be grateful if the Hon. Minister would confirm whether he has considered this and whether he has addressed it in his own mind, before presenting this as an amendment to the Bill.

2650 Mr Speaker, in the same clause, clause 2(4)(b), there is the introduction of a new subclause (5), which basically reads that:

2655 'If the employer, being a body corporate, fails to pay to the Fund any sum which the employer has been ordered to pay, that sum, or such part thereof as remains unpaid, shall be a debt due to the Fund jointly and severally from any directors of the body corporate.'

2660 Now, various issues arise in relation to that, Mr Speaker. Ordered to pay by whom? Of course, this appears to me, Mr Speaker, to be in effect an extrapolation of the exact wording in section 48(4) of another Act which is being amended today, which is the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act, which reads in exactly the same way, but of course, Mr Speaker, the context of that particular provision is completely different to the context of the amendment which is being introduced to the Insurance Act. That is that in section 48(4)... if one goes to 48(1), it provides that:

2665 'In any case where an employer is convicted of the offence of failing to pay a contribution, he shall, in addition to any other penalty, which may be imposed under this Act, be liable and may be ordered by the court to pay to the Fund a sum equal to the amount, which he failed to pay.'

So it is in that context, where there is an order of the court, that it is relevant to section 48(4) of the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act, but not so in the case of the amendment which is being proposed in relation to the Social Security (Insurance) Act, Mr Speaker.

2670 The other issue which I wish to raise in relation to that amendment is that it is proposed... Well, in fact, the clause as currently drafted, which the hon. Member wished to introduce to the Insurance Act, does not include the words in relation to corporate liability of directors, the following words:

2675 'who knew, or could reasonably be expected to have known, of the failure to pay the contribution or contributions in question.'

2680 Now, this raises a number of points, Mr Speaker. Is it not possible that a non-executive director could be held liable and culpable? There are situations where, for example, as I understand it – I am not an expert – but in the insurance world, there is a requirement to have two local directors. Now, those local directors are highly unlikely to have any day-to-day management or knowledge, indeed, of what is going on in the company. So if in those circumstances, there is a failure by that particular employer to pay Social Insurance, is it not wrong that, without imputing any knowledge, a director is automatically culpable?

2685 Indeed, Mr Speaker, in some research that I did before coming here today, the analogous position in the UK, under the Social Security Administration Act of 1992, provides... I think it is the Secretary of State there who may issue a personal liability notice to a body corporate who has failed to pay the contributions due at or within the prescribed time. But that failure only arises when, in the opinion of the Secretary of State, the failures are attributable to the fraud or neglect of one or more individuals, who at the time of the fraud or neglect were obviously officers of the company. None of that, Mr Speaker, is in the amendment which is being proposed here, and that is obviously a matter of concern.

2690 Mr Speaker, the other amendments proposed seem fine. I think they are tidy-up amendments, in terms of numbering of schedules and references to parts of schedules which were not there in the principal Act originally, which of course we have no difficulty with.

2695 Mr Speaker, also in relation to the schedule to the Insurance Act and it applies across the board, where I see that there has been an amendment – and perhaps the hon. Member in his reply can explain to me the rationale behind that, because I simply do not follow it – where there is a splitting of the contributions by reference to the Act, as opposed to by reference to the fund itself. So I would be grateful for any explanations in relation to that.

2700 Mr Speaker, if I could just briefly review the Bill, quickly. I think, yes, another provision which cuts I think right across all of them is that the hon. Member is proposing to remove, in effect, the limitation period. As matters currently stand, you are basically off the hook if there is failure to take action on behalf of the fund, within a period, I think it is, of three years. I can understand that there is an analogous situation in relation to Income Tax, where I understand that once you have been assessed for Income Tax, there is no limitation period, and that in fact is expressly excluded in the Limitation Act itself. But maybe it is something that we could consider, as to whether there ought to be a prescription of the ability to be able to claim in relation to Income Tax as well after a certain period of time. Because, obviously, the whole point of limitation periods is that people, their memories will fade, there may be an inability to find witnesses and all the rest of it, so it is there for a reason. I am slightly less uncomfortable with that, because I can understand the rationale, but it is certainly a point which I raise as a matter of concern.

2710 Mr Speaker, I think all the points I have raised in relation to the amendments to the Insurance Act, again, they apply to all the others.

Mr Speaker, that is the end of my contribution.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, if I could just contribute to this debate, very quickly.

2715 The Hon. Minister said that this was bringing Social Insurance contributions [Inaudible] more or less into line with the PAYE regime and correctly reminded the House of something that we have often said to each other in the past, that there is a difference between a debt that you incur, on the one hand, and on the other hand, taking money out of a worker's pay packet and helping yourself to it and not forwarding it. And that is true and I think that the latter situation calls for much less sympathy than the former.

2730 I would, however, urge the hon. Members opposite to just think, before dismissing, the point that my learned Friend, Mr Bossino, has made in respect of the absolute liability of all directors. It is this reference to any director. Now, the hon. Member has said, in relation to PAYE, that this is just aligning the regime and that this provision exists. Well, I do not remember whether the PAYE regulations or the Income Tax Act say it in these terms, or whether it says it in terms that my learned Friend has mentioned, about some language that imports some degree of knowledge or knowledge ability or culpability – whichever, and even if it is the Income Tax, it reads like this.

2735 I would urge the hon. Members to just give a little bit of thought to whether this is simply not too harsh a regime. ‘Any director’ as much includes the executive managing director, who consciously makes the decision to do these things, as it does the non-executive director, whose legal obligation it is to attend three or four board meetings a year, and make policy for the company, but has no actual knowledge of the day-to day conduct of the company’s business.

2740 Now, that is the point that my learned Friend has made. If this language is shorthand for the way directors are made liable in other legislation, then it may be that what they have dropped here is the culpability language, which would accommodate the point that I am making. If that is not a defect – in other words, if it is stated elsewhere in these precise terms, ‘any director’ – then there is an important issue here.

2745 Corporate governance principles require now, increasingly, companies to have non-executive directors. Non-executive directors are going to be very reluctant to serve, if they are obtaining personal liability for company debts which they are really not in a position, as non-executive directors, to monitor and to decide whether they happen or not.

2750 I do not know whether the hon. Members are minded to, but some language, such as my learned Friend has read out, about the imputability of knowledge or culpability to qualify the words ‘any director’ would militate the harshness of making every single board member, regardless of how remote they are from being able to protect themselves against this, actually having personal liability for the debt.

There are no politics in this point; it is an entirely technical point. If the hon. Members do not think it has merit, then so be it. But I think there is a serious point there on that question.

2755 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may just try and assist in dealing with some of the points that have been raised by my learned and hon. colleagues on the other side.

In section 2(4)(b)(4), the Hon. Mr Bossino has told us that he does not understand why there has to be a reference to the director authorising a person in writing, when in fact in the previous subsection of section 45 of the Social Security (Insurance) Act, there is already the provision for authorisation by the director.

2760 I think that the reason for that, if he follows my logic, will be clear. If he looks at section 45(2) and 45(3), they are both dealing – the ones in the principal Act – with summary recovery as civil debts. Has he got that? (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.) Summary recovery of civil debts, and the authorisation power is in respect of summary recovery of civil debts.

2765 In the new 45(4) as it will be, we are dealing with debts being recovered, other than through summary proceedings. Therefore, there needs to be, in my reading, a power for the director to authorise people in respect of those other non-summary proceedings, because the power in subsection (3) of the existing Act is only a power in respect of summary proceedings. Does he see the point? (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.)

2770 The second point that he made, dealing I think with the new proposed subsection (5), is when he says, well, this business of ‘has been ordered to pay’ – who is it that would have been making such an order to pay? Well, in fact, if he looks at the context, this is going into section 45, as a new subsection (4) and new subsection (5), the heading to section 45 is ‘Civil proceedings to recover sums due to fund’. We are dealing with authorising how those proceedings will start and be dealt with and, therefore, I believe that it is clear that any order to pay is an order to pay in such summary or other civil proceedings. I do not therefore think that there is any need to make a change to the proposed wording, for that reason.

2775 Finally, Mr Speaker, I want to just deal with this point about the joint and several liability of directors of companies. I hear what the hon. Gentleman has – (Interjection) Before I deal with this? (Interjection) It deals with the other point. Yes, sure –

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, I am grateful.

2780 Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister makes – I can understand where he is coming from – a distinction between the summary recovery of debts, which is the current architecture set out in section 45 of the Social Security (Insurance) Act, whilst the amendment says that, if it is, sort of, outwith the summary proceedings, then one needs... it gives the director the ability to appoint... either to institute the proceedings himself or any person authorised by him in writing. Now, if that is the rationale for, or the answer to that point, can the Chief Minister assist me and explain why that distinction is not also made in relation to the proposed amendment to the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act, which is at clause 3(4), where there is simply no distinction? It simply says that:

2790 ‘All sums due to the Fund shall be recoverable as debts due to the Crown...’

and basically repeats – not word for word, incidentally, and I think what it is lacking makes the drafting worse, if I may say so –

'and without prejudice to any other remedy may be recovered summarily as a debt.'

2795 The other provisions state that it will be recovered by a director, but that is an aside point.

Again, there is simply no distinction there, so it seems that, even in relation to new section 45A, to the Acts I have just referred to – it is a pretty long title, so I will not read it again – there is simply no distinction made. All it says is that:

2800 'Proceedings for the recovery of civil debts of sums due to the Fund may be instituted by the Director' again 'or any person authorised by him in writing.'

2805 So if the distinction is that in relation to summary proceedings, it can be done by a director or another officer authorised by him, with special or general directions from the director, but outwith summary proceedings, it requires another person authorised by the director without these controls, can he explain why that distinction does not arise in relation to the amendment which is proposed to clause – I referred to it earlier – clause 3(4)?

2810 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, I do not accept that it does not, Mr Speaker.

If he looks at what is proposed, at what will be also a new section 45, but here the whole new section 45, the first new subsection 45A(1) deals with a general provision as to recovery of civil debt; the second proposed subsection deals with summary recovery of civil debt; and the third, which is the bit that talks about proceedings being instituted by the director, is silent as to whether those proceedings are summary proceedings or non-summary proceedings. It just talks about civil debt. So I think that is where the distinction lies.

2815 I am not going to get into the amendment to section 48 of that Employment Injuries Act that is also being amended here.

Now, if I could –

2820 Hon. P R Caruana: Would the Hon. Chief Minister give way?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes.

2825 Hon. P R Caruana: [Microphone not on] One distinction between the old language and the new language, which is not a likely one, is of course the use of any other 'person', as opposed to any other 'officer', suggesting that under the new amendment, it would not be another officer who was a civil servant, and that opens the possibility to a non-civil servant being appointed, under the new amendment, authorised under the new amendment, which could not be authorised. In other words, in the previous regime, it had to be an officer which was defined [Inaudible] through the Crown, whereas 'any person', which is the new language, opens up the possibility of sub-contractors to a company to private –

2835 Hon. P R Caruana: Repeat again?

In summary, Mr Speaker has asked me to repeat, but I will do so in summary, that one distinction in the language that he is not alluding to is the reference to 'any person', as opposed to another officer, under the old regime, which would have required it to be a civil servant. Any person, of course, can be any person, including a private contractor out or something like that. Is that a conscious piece of drafting? Has the Government chosen any person, as opposed to another officer, precisely so that it might be free to sub-contract this out to private sector companies or others?

2845 Hon Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is no intention to sub-contract this out; this is the language that has been proposed by draftsmen. He will know that there are some debts which are recovered by people who are not officers. For example, he will know that in rates and rents, the recovery process is undertaken by Land Property Services, for example, but this is simply law draftsman language, rather than politically invented language. There is no reason, I think, to read into it than any intention to privatise.

2850 Mr Speaker, if I may deal finally just with the third issue that has been raised, which is the issue raised initially by my learned Friend, Mr Bossino and then by Sir Peter Caruana. I think it is very clear that people who are directors of companies have obligations to those companies, and that you cannot have shades of responsibility set out in legislation. Whether a judge wants to make determinations as to liability, when it comes to what a person did as a director, is a matter for courts, but in terms of liability, the liability, I think it is right, should be on all directors at a particular time.

2855 Now, you have executive and non-executive directors. Well, that is a distinction which is not strictly legal. A director is a director of a company and he has all the obligations of a director of a company. In the old days, the hon. Gentleman will recall there was the mantra that there is no such thing as a nominee director and people used to go round saying, 'I am a nominee director of this, of that or the other', when there was no such thing.

2860 Now, we are dealing here with monies taken from people's pay packets, to a very great extent, although I take the point of the hon. Gentleman that, in some respects, there are amounts which are the liability of the employing entity, not taken from the wage packet of the employee. Therefore, Mr Speaker, I think it is absolutely right that we should consciously say that this is the liability of all directors of companies. Is it possible that one director could hide from the others that the liability is not being met? Absolutely, it is. Then there is a fraud being committed by that director on the other directors.

2865 Is it possible that one director could say that he would not give the information? Well, if people are directors of companies, then they are able to write to the Commissioner of Income Tax or the Director of Social Security and ask for up-to-date information on the amounts that are due and have been paid in respect of Social Insurance or PAYE, as the other example given. And in our view, Mr Speaker, if you are a director of a company, and you are taking a fee for being a director of a company, that means that you also have responsibilities to the company and to the employees in respect of Social Security and in respect of PAYE, etc. Otherwise...

2870 Therefore, we will not be persuaded that that is not language that should not actually be there. It is language that is important that people are aware is there, and that they take their responsibilities therefore in respect of liabilities to Social Security as seriously as they are required to take all their other responsibilities as directors, whether they are executive or non-executive.

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. mover wish to add anything to the debate?

2880 Hon. J J Bossano: Well only, Mr Speaker, to say that we are very clear that what we are trying to do is bring about a situation where the Social Insurance contributions, as well as the PAYE contributions, are paid when they are supposed to be paid.

2885 For as long as I have been here, the Principal Auditor has been pointing out to Members of this House that the volume of arrears of Social Insurance has kept on growing up inexorably, and that there was a constant need to do something about it. The effect of course of the absence of that is that we have a Social Insurance Fund which is running at a deficit of £10 million, and that in effect, if we were trying to put that right, as we think we need to put it right, simply by reflecting what is needed to make the fund self-financing, what you would then be doing is passing the burden of the disappearance of this money on to other contributors, which would be completely wrong.

2890 So I think it is important that the message should go out that people will not be allowed to get away with it, and therefore, they have to take their responsibility seriously. Indeed, the system that was put in place by the previous administration, regrettably, has not had the effect that it would have been expected to have, which was that since this money is supposed to be handed in at the same time as the PAYE, there would be a commensurate improvement in the collection of Social Insurance. I think the fact that the same tough regime did not exist meant that if people had to choose between paying one or the other, they would pay the PAYE, which had greater consequences than the Social Insurance. We hope that the matter will be seen to be put right and that we will see –

Hon. P R Caruana: Would the hon. Member give way?

2900

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.

Hon. P R Caruana: Is he therefore just confirming what I was not aware of, that in fact in respect of PAYE, it does say 'any director' without any culpability language, or is he not aware of that?

2905

2910 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware, it does, because, you know, as I have said, the political will to bring this about was simply in terms of something that was already under consideration before 2011, reflected in the Auditor's report, and that in fact, in the 2012 report, the Auditor mentioned that he had been informed by the director in response to the annual comment that something needed to be done about these arrears, that the legislation was on the point of being finalised. But it is not something that has been put together with a political input requiring certain things to be included, except that the political directive has been to put in something that we are sure, or that the drafter is sure, is going to produce the results that we want to produce, which is namely that people will do what is their obligation, which is to hand over the money they have collected.

I know that there is a point in saying the employer also is paying something, but of course, if you have got two employers and one pays the contribution for the employee and the other one does not and gets away with it, then what you have got is unfair competition, where eventually the good employer says, 'Well look, I cannot compete with the other guy that is not paying his dues and getting away with it' – in this as in everything else.

2920 So I believe that the Bill has been designed over a number of years to achieve the same effectiveness in the collection of Social Insurance as was already in place for PAYE collections. That is what this is intended to do and there has not been any particular part of it that has been the result of a political decision.

2925 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend various Acts on Social Security and related subsidiary legislation to the Medical (Group Practice Scheme) Act, the Limitation Act; and for connected purposes, be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Government Members: Aye.) Those against? The Opposition?

2930 Hon. D A Feetham: We are abstaining.

Mr Speaker: You are abstaining. Carried.

Clerk: The Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security etc.) Act 2013.

Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2940 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all Members agree.

2945 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013;
Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013

2955 Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2960 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills clause by clause: the Crimes Amendment Bill 2013; and the Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013.

In Committee of the whole Parliament

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved with amendment

2970 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Crimes Act 2011.
Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

2975

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Chairman, after clause 2, I am proposing an amendment, with the insertion of a new heading, called 'Amendment of the Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2013'. Then it would say: '(3) The Criminal Justice (Amendment) Act 2013 is amended by repealing section 2(13).'

2980 Mr Chairman: Does any hon. Member wish to speak on the amendment proposed by the Hon. Mr Licudi? In that case, I will put the question, that the amendment be carried. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The long title.

2985 Mr Chairman: Clause 2 as amended? Clause 2 as amended stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2990

Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2995

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend various Acts on Social Security and related subsidiary legislation, the Medical (Group practice Scheme) Act, the Limitation Act; and for connected purposes. Clauses 1 to 8.

3000 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

3005 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Chairman?

Mr Chairman: Yes, the Hon. Mr Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Chairman, in relation to the [inaudible]. Mr Chairman, I am not sure whether the hon. Members opposite have had a chance to consider – I am sure they have not – the point... It was a point of principle, but also a drafting issue, which arises from clause 2(4)(b), and the introduction of new subclause (5).

3010 If you recall in my intervention, I queried who is going to be the party ordering to pay. It is not set out clearly. In the context of a different Act, which I think is the (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act, it is clear it is the court which orders to pay. As it currently stands, just extrapolating that provision from the (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act into the (Insurance) Act, I do not think works from a drafting perspective. I just wondered whether any thought could be given to that point now?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the position that I tried to explain to the hon. Gentleman was that actually we think it is clear, that the order to pay is the court and that it is in the section simply about civil proceedings, and that is how I think it is dealt with.

Clerk: Going back to announcing clauses 1 to 8.

3025 Mr Chairman: Clauses 1 to 8. Those in favour? (Government Members: Aye.) Those against?

Hon. D A Feetham: We are abstaining.

Mr Chairman: You are abstaining? The Opposition abstains.

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

3035

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

3040

Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013;
Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013
Third Reading approved: Bills passed

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

3045

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Crimes Amendment Bill 2013 and the Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013 have been considered in Committee and agreed to, without amendment, except for one small one on the Crimes (Amendment) Bill, and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

3050

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that (1) the Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013; (2) the Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed.

Those in favour of the Crimes (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Those in favour of the Miscellaneous Amendments (Social Security, etc.) Bill 2013? (Government Members: Aye.) The Opposition abstains? (Hon. D A Feetham: Abstains.) The Opposition abstains. Carried.

ADJOURNMENT

3060

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

3065

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I congratulate Members opposite for having the maturity of sitting through this particular meeting of Parliament, and I now move that the House do now adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the House do now adjourn sine die. I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn sine die. Those in favour? (Members: Aye. ) Those against? Carried.

The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 7.30 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

20 TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

Solid growth in Gibraltar tourism Basis for reports

25 Clerk: (viii) Answers to Oral Questions. Question 765/2013, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, it is the season to be jolly, so let us see how this session proceeds. I mean, really, on 19th December! I think it will make for a very interesting session. Let us see how it goes.

30 Mr Speaker, further to Written Question W122/2013, can the Minister for Tourism state on what basis the operators reported solid growth?

I think there is something in the sound system.

35 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, I note the hon. Gentleman's characteristic injection of charisma to the start of the proceedings of the House, and I take the opportunity to wish him a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

40 In answer to his question, Mr Speaker, the basis on which the operators reported solid growth was on the sales, traffic and yield figures.

Hon. D J Bossino: And equally, I do wish the hon. Member opposite, and all the hon. Members, and the Speaker, and the rest of the Parliament, a Happy Christmas, and a Happy New Year.

45 My hon. Friend Mr Figueras is grimacing here, (Laughter) I suppose at the smarminess of the exchange.

Mr Speaker, does he know, because I know, that he based his press release very much on the report which he had received at the UKGTA meeting; and in his answer to the question, he referred me to that meeting, and he said that apparently there is an item on every agenda of the UKGTA where all the tour operators etc deliver their own updated reports?

50 Did he enquire further as to whether, for example, they reported an increase from the previous year, or previous years, given that he must have put an enquiry that there was an increase in activity, if I can put it in those terms?

55 And my question is whether he was able to empirically analyse the evidence that... well, first of all, I suppose whether the evidence was presented before him, and if it was, whether he was able to analyse it with some care.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am happy to say, that British Airways Holidays, Superbreak Holidays, Classic Collection Holidays, Thomas Cook Cresta, they all reported solid growth.

60 Private operators tend to be careful when providing the Government with figures. I, however, trust them implicitly that they would not be reporting solid growth to the UKGTA, unless, of course, they had reported solid growth within their sales. I met with them individually after the UKGTA, where we did on some occasions look at figures, and they reported growth over the last year's figures.

65 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, does he know whether the growth was in terms of numbers of passengers, in terms of the number of flights? We will have that information in any event. But I assume that, for example, if there was growth in the number of flight passengers, that will at some point be reflected in the official Government statistics, whenever the Tourism Survey Report is produced. Can he be a bit more specific?

70 Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, as I have intimated in the first supplementary to his question, I cannot be specific in the terms of percentages or figures, because those are, of course, commercially sensitive to the private operator in the UK.

75 He is right in saying that the official statistics in respect of passengers coming to Gibraltar by air will be reflected in the survey that is presented and laid in the table of the House. He will be able to make that empirical analysis himself.

In terms of the UK operators that have themselves announced increases, he will recall that Superbreak Holidays and Thomas Cook Cresta publicly announced during this year that the sales to Gibraltar had increased. So, they themselves had done so during the course of the year.

Dredging vessel, Norstar
Stability difficulties, 17th November 2013

Clerk: Question 766, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Port provide an explanation to Parliament, stating the reason or reasons for the ship, Norstar adopting an 18° heel sometime during Sunday, 17th November 2013, whilst having in its cargo some 4,000 tonnes of material dredged from Ocean Village for the purpose of allowing the floating hotel to dock?

90

95

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the incident is presently being independently investigated by the office of the Marine Accident Investigation Compliance Officer, and the report will be finalised and published in due course.

100

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister at least provide, whilst accepting what he has just said, the name of the company that was doing the work, in terms of putting the 4,000 tonnes inside the ship? What was the name of that particular company?

105

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am afraid I do not have that information with me. Of course, I know the company, but I am getting the name confused with another one, but if he writes to me, I will give that information to him.

110

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I perhaps help him by suggesting that it could have been Steel Mac?

Hon. N F Costa: Given that I deal with the names of many different companies in all of my areas of responsibility, I could be confusing the name of that company in respect of some other project.

115

Hon. J J Netto: Could I further ask, Mr Speaker, whether the Minister is aware – leaving to one side the name of the company which may have done the particular work – that the company was engaged either through a tender board decision or whether it was by direct allocation?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I will need notice of that question.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I will take it up by writing to the hon. Member.

Hon. N F Costa: I am very grateful to the hon. Gentleman.

Sandy Bay
Plans to construct underwater breakwater

Clerk: Question 767, the Hon. J J Netto.

130

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Tourism say if there are any plans by the Government to construct an underwater breakwater between the two newly created groynes at Sandy Bay, in order to maintain the sand in the enclosed area, given that at the moment the one deposited there earlier this year has been almost washed away by the levanter?

135

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

140 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, in the first place, I do not accept the premise contained in the second part of the question, that states:

‘given that at the moment the one deposited there earlier this year has been almost washed away by the levanter’, 145 for the reason, that I will explain shortly.

The construction of a submerged breakwater between the newly created groynes is currently underway. As was stated in supplementary answers to Question 209/2013, this was an option and it has been decided to proceed with it.

150 The submerged breakwater will enhance the protection provided to the beach even further, the full regeneration of which will take place next year. The sand that was deposited on the beach during this last summer was a very small amount within the context of the full regeneration volume. As opposed, Mr Speaker, to what happened when the former administration were in Government, where almost £1 million of taxpayers’ money vanished with the winter storm at Catalan Bay and Sandy Bay during 2011, the small amount of sand deposited by this administration this year has not been lost, given the protection 155 already provided by the groynes, but merely redistributed following wave action.

Moreover, the hon. Gentleman will have realised that, even before the groynes were completed, there was already considerable natural accretion of sand on the shoreline.

160 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, first of all, I am grateful to the Member for taking the decision to construct the underwater breakwater in order to avoid any sand being moved away by the levanter – although I have to take issue with him, in the sense that he says that the sand there had not been taken away by the levanter. If the hon. Member wants, I have got a picture for him, which I can pass through the usher to him, where he sees that most of the sand has been taken away, so it is a reality, and I welcome the fact that he is going to take measures which I actually asked him to do in May of this year.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, I do not think that the hon. Gentleman has asked me a question, but I will happily reply to the preface of the supplementary that never was.

170 I also have photographs that showed how in 2011, the water came all the way up to the revetment of Both Worlds, so if he wants to exchange pictures after the session of the House, I will be more than happy to do so.

175

And, in the second place, it is not the case at all that we have done a submerged breakwater because he suggested that we did so, as Hansard will attest, and I have a copy of it here. We said that, at the time of constructing the groynes, the option of building an underwater breakwater was in fact being considered, but that the decision had not been finally determined until the groynes were built. That having been done, the experts having taken a look at it, they decided that the underwater breakwater would indeed be a good idea.

180

I also remind the hon. Gentleman that when they decided in 2011 to spend almost £1 million in placing sand at Catalan Bay, at Sandy Bay, they did so without the construction of any groynes at all, so that the sand that they deposited did in fact wash away, and it was washed away by that storm. And I have told him in the answer that the sand that we deposited, which was a very small amount, in addition to the natural accretion that came as a result of the curved groynes, has not been lost. It is just redistributed within the groynes area, so that we will be able to recover that when we do the full regeneration of the beach, which will take place next year.

185

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, certainly from the Opposition’s side, what we are interested in is in the ultimate success of this particular project – not looking backwards, but looking forwards.

190

If at the end of the day – (Interjection) No, no, it is serious. If at the end of the day, the hon. Member is successful in keeping the sand within Sandy Bay, we will be the first to congratulate the hon. Gentleman for a job well done. (Interjection) But there appears to be... I do not know whether it is a difference in terminology or what it is, and so that I understand it, the Hon. Mr Netto used the term ‘moving’ of the sand, the Hon. the Minister has said that there had been a ‘redistribution’ of sand following wave action. Can he just explain what he means by that, and where has the sand been redistributed to? Because, of course, from my knowledge of the English language, redistribution and moving seem to be the same thing.

195

But can he just answer those two questions, please?

200

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, it is clear that the knowledge of the English language of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition does not extend to remembering what the hon. Gentleman said, in fact, at first. What the hon. Gentleman said, in fact, at first was that the sand had almost been washed away by the levanter. That does not imply movement; that means that it has disappeared.

200

And I have explained to the hon. Gentleman, twice now, that in fact the sand that was deposited, which was a very small amount of sand that was deposited... the rest in fact, believe it or not, was natural accretion, as a result of the groynes. That has been redistributed and held within the groyne area, so that when we regenerate the beach with the full amount of sand, which would be a lot more than the very little amount that we deposited, we will be able to recover that amount and replace it at the beach.

The technicians and the engineers who have written supplementary answers to me have guaranteed me that the sand, the little amount that we deposited, is within that area and will therefore be fully recovered when the full regeneration happens next summer.

Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, I just do not understand what he means by ‘fully recovered’. If it is fully recovered, it means it has gone somewhere. You have deposited – (Interjection) I am just trying to understand this. The Government has deposited sand – presumably it wanted to deposit more sand. It has not been able to do so, presumably because it is having difficulty – (Interjections) but all right, but let me just concentrate on the...

Where has the sand gone? I have been to Sandy Bay myself: there does not appear to be much of a beach there. Is it that it has actually moved into the water, and it is the Hon. the Minister’s position that that will eventually mean that there will be less sand that will be needed inside the water, which will mean that more can go onto the beach? I just simply do not understand what he is saying, when first of all, he talks about redistribution following wave action, and now he is saying again that it has moved – but where has it gone?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think I have been exceptionally clear, but I will try to break it down to its constituent components.

In the first place, in the preface to the supplementary question, it is not the case as he suggested; it is that the Government, on the advice of the experts, decided to just deposit a small amount of sand, so that the full regeneration of the beach were to take place during next summer, that is coming. Because whilst the groynes were being constructed, obviously there was the possibility that if we fully regenerated the beach with let us say 100,000 tonnes of sand, then without the completion of the groynes, it would have been lost. This is why we decided on a small amount, which in addition to the accretion naturally of the sand on the shoreline, there would be a good chance that there would be a nice sized beach during last summer.

Now, redistribution means that instead of staying on the shoreline, it has gone on either side but contained by the groynes. That is it.

Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, he is satisfied – and now I understand what he is saying, it is on either side of the groynes – so he is satisfied that should, next year, the Government deposit more sand, that the groynes will do effectively their job, and that the sand will stay in the shoreline between those two groynes – that, at least as I understand it, there has, sort of, been like a test run with a small amount of sand, and the Government is satisfied that these groynes will do their job.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, as I always say when answering these questions, to be exactly accurate, because I am responsible for these statements in the House, I am not personally satisfied that the sand is there. I have not gone personally, dived in and checked. I am relying on the advice and information provided to me by the very people who are the professionals that have advised us on the construction of the curved groynes, and the submerged breakwater.

But I am satisfied, on the basis of that advice, and on the fact that – to my right, I have the Hon. Minister of the Environment, the Hon. Mr Cortes, who also forms part of the regeneration of Sandy Bay – that as a result of the curved groynes and the submerged underwater breakwater, there is very little possibility that there will be anything other than a very small amount of sand that may escape, but we are confident that the sand, the full regeneration of which will take place next year, will be nicely, neatly, tucked in by the construction of the curved groynes and the submerged underwater breakwater.

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

John Mackintosh Hall

Recruitment of caretaker and night receptionist

Clerk: Question 768 the Hon. E J Reyes.

265 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to Questions W132/2013, 571/2013, 522/2013 and W61/2013, can the Minister for Culture say when the position of caretaker at John Mackintosh Hall will be advertised and by when it is expected to be filled?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

270 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 769.

Clerk: Question 769.

275 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. W99/2013, can the Minister for Culture and Heritage say when the vacancy for night receptionist at John Mackintosh Hall will be advertised?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

280 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no decision has yet been taken as to when both vacancies will be advertised and filled.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I note the answer, but I also note that it is a bit in contrast with the previous answers provided, because, in Question 571, the Minister said, in respect of the caretaker's post, that the vacancy post would be advertised in due course.

285 Then, Mr Speaker, in the July session of Parliament, in respect of Question 522, the Minister ended up by saying that:

'... the officers within the Culture Agency are preparing themselves to advertise the post...'

290 and he added a rider:

'I hope that with the word 'soon'...I am trying for it to be soon, as in sooner rather than later.'

And that was before we managed to get a suntan in Sandy Bay with the revamped sand.

295 And then in the written answer in October, he still says that this still has not been filled. So, is the word 'soon' still playing an important factor here, and is the Minister willing to at least commit himself a bit further on how soon is 'soon'?

300 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I still stick to the answer to the question, which is: no decision has yet been taken.

As to when 'soon' is, we can just be speculating here what soon is, whether it is soon within two years, one year, a month or a week.

305 Hon. E J Reyes: And then, Mr Speaker, if I may, perhaps the Minister can enlighten us... I know in the past in respect of the post of caretaker at the John Mackintosh Hall, he has informed this House that in the interim period, awaiting the advertisement, the post is currently being filled by three trainees from the Future Job Strategy. Can he then say how the post of the night receptionist at John Mackintosh Hall... is that also being filled in by gentlemen or ladies on the Future Job Strategy?

310 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, they are filled up by a contracted officer from OSG.

Hon. D J Bossino: Just to home in on the point that the hon. Member mentioned in his reply, he says that no decision has been taken, but presumably it is within the possible decisions open to the Minister – is it possible that he may decide not to fill these vacancies?

315 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, because the answer to the question is: no decision has yet been taken as to when both vacancies will be advertised and filled.

320 Waterport Terraces children's play park
Refurbishment works

Clerk: Question 770, the Hon. E J Reyes.

325 Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government provide details of any refurbishment works it may intend to carry out in respect of the children's play park at Waterport Terraces, together with respective estimated completion dates and estimated costs?

330 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Ministry has met with tenants of the Estate with a view of refurbishing the children's play park. It is premature to give the hon. Member opposite the information requested, as in cost and estimated time.

335

Cricket and rugby
Alternative facilities to Europa Sport Ground

340 Clerk: Question 771, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answers to Questions No. 560/2013 and 561/2013, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure inform this House if he has now identified and agreed upon with the respective Sports Governing Associations any alternative facilities to Europa Sports Grounds for the playing, teaching and development of either cricket or rugby.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

350 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, further formal and informal meetings have taken place with both the Rugby and Cricket Associations, relating to the playing, teaching and development of these sports. No further developments have yet been agreed.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

355 The Minister has updated us that he has met the Association and informed us that no developments have been agreed upon, but I did include there, in that question is, if he had identified alternative facilities? Can the Minister shed any light on that?

Hon. S E Linares: No, sir.

Heritage sites
Details of works carried out

365 Clerk: Question 772, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 567/2013, can the Minister for Heritage provide details of all works, together with respective cost, undertaken at any Heritage related site; stating by whom these works were carried out?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

375 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question No. 567/2013, I now hand over to the Hon. Member opposite the information requested.

Schedule to QUESTION No: 772/2013:

380 Further works undertaken at Heritage sites inclusive of costs and works carried out.

(a) Site: South Port Gates

Works: Coats of oil based paint to the cannon at South Port Gates

Contractor: SFA Interiors

Total Amount: £ 785.00

385

(b) Site: St Jago's Arch

Works: Conservation Works (September)
Contractor: Knightsfield Holdings

390

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, so that I am sure I have got my record straight, on sub-paragraph (b), where it states that in respect of St Jago's Arch as a site, there have been conservation works carried out by Knightsfield Holdings amounting to just over £7,000 – Mr Speaker, is the Minister aware of, perhaps from figures he has got in front of him, is this in addition to whatever costs he may have given to me in previous answers to similar questions, or is this the grand total for the project that includes any information I may have received previously?

395

Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, the question says 'further to the answer' so – he starts the question by 'further to the answer' – so this is, I would say, an addition to what has already been given. You asked last month, and I am giving you, as you asked me, updates as they come. You asked the question and I updated. It would be an addition to what has already been stated. That is why there are only two items on the schedule.

400

Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, that does clarify the position for when one has to prepare future questions. (Interjection)

405

Yes, Mr Speaker, may we ask there, is the Minister aware if these works have now been fully completed, or are they still ongoing and this is just as updated information as he is able to provide?

Hon. S E Linares: As I understand it, we are hopefully going to inaugurate it very soon.

410

Hon. D J Bossino: So therefore, Mr Speaker, in other words, we will not expect there to be any more updates in terms of further expenditure? That would be the end of the expenditure. Is that the correct analysis?

415

Hon. S E Linares: As far as I understand it, I hope they do not bring in any more invoices!

Gas storage facility Timeline for completion

Clerk: Question 773, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question No. 701/2013, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities state what is the envisaged gas storage facility timeline, and whether completion of this aspect of works will be known when the tender is awarded?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, yes, sir, it will be known when the tender is awarded.

430

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I wonder whether the Hon. Minister has had the opportunity to have a discussion with the technical officers who have been preparing the tender notices, and whether they have given him a reason, or logic, why there is a need to have two separate tender processes – one for the actual construction of the new power station, and one separate to that for the gas storage facility, and how the two eventually will dovetail? I wonder whether he has had that conversation, and if he has had that conversation, whether he is able to provide Parliament with some further information to this matter?

435

Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, we tend to leave these things for the technical people to decide how to proceed in this matter, and then I... we trust them and we speak to them as to why they do it, if they say it has got to be done differently or separately, and that is how we do it.

440

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, of course, we trust civil servants who do the work faithfully for us, but that is not the issue which I am raising.

445

What I am saying is, as Minister for Utilities, he obviously has a vested interest in knowing what the timeline is on what is essentially one of the most important projects Gibraltar will undergo in the next couple of years, and whether the Minister has had the opportunity to raise the matter with them, and to 450 take an interest how the matter is proceeding, for the fruition of the total project – meaning the new construction of the power station, along with the gas storage facility. Has he had that discussion, notwithstanding the fact that he trusts civil servants?

455 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I might have had the discussion – of course, it is an inter-ministerial group that is running the whole of the power station, and therefore things are discussed, and therefore when we discuss things, it is within us how they proceed, and they give us explanations of how they proceed, and we trust them implicitly as to the explanation, having had the discussion. That is what they have come up with, that is the timeline, or at least, the tenders have a final date, and from then we will proceed on selection and all the other process.

460 Hon. J E Netto: Mr Speaker, I am glad that there is an inter-ministerial committee, where they discuss these particular issues, but I am afraid that the Minister has not yet answered the question, and the question is, has he asked technical officers why there is a reason to have two separate tender processes, one for the construction of the new power station, and another one for the gas storage facility? Does he know the answer to the question?

465 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, there is something like 33 parties involved in putting proposals. There are some people who can do one thing, there are some people who can do the other thing, and there are some people who can do the two things. If we limited the tender to only those that could do the two things, we would have to discard two thirds of the possible bids, and we might be worse off.

TRAFFIC, HOUSING AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

475

Mid-Harbour Estate Curtailling non-compliance of house rules

480 Clerk: Question 774, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, sir, further to the answer to Question No. 617/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide details of all works which have been completed, together with respective costs in respect of the actions he announced would be undertaken in order to curtail non-compliance of house rules at Mid-Harbour Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 775.

Clerk: Question 775.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 617/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide details of all works programmed, but which have still not been completed, together with their respective estimated costs, and completion dates, in respect of planned actions to be undertaken in order to curtail non compliance of house rules at Mid-Harbour Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

500 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, further to my answer to Question No.617/2013, I am pleased to inform that the installation of the garage barriers is in an advanced stage.

The east entrance barriers have been completed, and the west entrance barriers will be completed by the end of this year. The costs for these works is £42,477.

In respect of CCTV, the following works have been completed: a survey of infrastructure and installation of fibre from Fish Market Lane to Mid-Harbour's Estate; installation of cameras on the car park level.

510 The ongoing works, which are now nearing completion, are: connection to the main fibre ring; procuring CCTV signs; infrastructure costs for the cameras at podium level. The cost of works to date totals £11,522.

There are costs to do with infrastructure works that are still being determined. I am therefore unable to provide an estimated project cost at this stage.

515 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

If I may first of all, sir, in respect of the barriers that the Minister has just said have been already installed, can he confirm that these are already not only installed, but fully functional or, if they are still not functional, by when is that phase of the works expected to be in operation?

520 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the plan is, as I said, that there still is... will remain to install by the end of this year the last barrier, which is the west entrance barrier, and until the CCTV cameras are fully operational, the barriers will not be operational either.

525 Hon. E J Reyes: And then, Mr Speaker, seeing they are both so closely connected, the CCTV cameras, one presumes, will obviously record images and so on, who will have access to those recordings made by CCTV cameras? Will that fall under the Government, through either the Housing Works Agency, and so on, or will it come under the body like the Tenants' Association or the Royal Gibraltar Police? Can we please have a bit of information in that respect?

530 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the CCTV cameras will be linked to the Police Control Room, so it is the RGP.

535 Hon. E J Reyes: And Mr Speaker, the RGP will then make, if the need arises for whatever legitimate purposes... will the RGP be answerable to either the Housing Ministry or the Housing Works Agency, as the landlord or the landlord's representative, or is this going to be passed off or delegated to the Tenants' Association themselves.

540 Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Well, Mr Speaker, in the same way as other public CCTV cameras are in operation in other areas of Gibraltar and will be in operation in other estates, not just this estate, the RGP, through their control room, will be able to monitor and record everything that happens through those cameras. So if there is an incident, the matter will be reported to the RGP and the RGP itself will be investigating whatever it is that happens. It is not a question of the RGP being answerable to anyone. They will have access to that footage, and they will be able to investigate any incidents that occur.

545 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, as I understand it, it is effectively a continuation of the policy that we instituted when we were in Government. The RGP are working to a code of conduct specifically formulated for the basis of ensuring that there is no invasion of privacy, in terms of where the cameras can focus, where they cannot focus, etc. Can he confirm that really that is effectively what we are talking about?

550 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am not sure I understand the reference in the preface to the question about a continuation of a programme. We have installed fibre optic cables, we have installed CCTV and this is a continuation of our programme which we initiated, which we said we would do and will extend to a number of estates.

555 But the position is, certainly, that this is something that will be monitored by the RGP. They will have access to this, in the same way as they have access to the CCTV in other public areas.

560 Now, when we launched the public CCTV project, and we said how the cameras would operate with masking, with certain codes of practice, all that will continue to whichever other areas we install public CCTV in. So this will certainly form part of that overall public CCTV scenario, which will in fact include in due course other estates.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, perhaps I can refresh the hon. Gentleman's memory when he says that he did not quite understand the prefix to my question.

565 Does he not accept that three quarters of the fibre optic cables were actually laid when we were in Government; that in fact, this was a project that I had given the go ahead, when I was Minister for Justice; that cameras had already been installed, when we were in Government? And I am referring to in particular – (Interjection) Yes, Mr Speaker, and I am referring in particular to the cameras in Irish Town. Those were already set up when we were in Government.

570 Look, it is not a question of us wanting to take credit. I accept that the Hon. the Minister has actually continued with our policy and is effectively completing it, but what he cannot do is just simply whitewash or remove the fact that this was a project that was started and was implemented, largely, when we were in Government. Does he not accept that?

575 Hon. G H Licudi: Not at all, Mr Speaker. My recollection from the time that we went in, is that I gave the go ahead for the contract to be signed and for the fibre optic cable to be laid, and this was approved by us.

580 There may have been, and I certainly recall this, there may have been negotiations and some drafts prepared in advance, but – and I am talking purely from memory now – but my memory is that the contract was actually signed after this administration came into office, and the works actually started at that time. That is certainly my recollection and I certainly remember giving the go ahead, having seen the plans, having discussed with the RGP the location of the cameras, having been involved myself in where those cameras were going to be, and where the fibre optic cable was going to be.

585 Having been involved myself, I gave the go ahead to that, but it is irrelevant as far as we are concerned. This is something that is up and running. It was not, in any event, Mr Speaker, part of those plans which the hon. Member was talking about to have cameras installed in Mid-Harbour's. Mid-Harbour's was being constructed during the time that they were in office, and at no stage did they include in their plans for Mid-Harbour's CCTV. This is something that we have decided, and we have implemented.

590 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon N F Costa): Hear, hear. (Banging on desks)

595 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he may be right about Mid-Harbours, but the hon. Gentleman has got selective memory. He cannot recall the fact that fibre optic cables were laid when we were in Government. He cannot recall the fact that cameras were installed in Irish Town. (Interjections) He cannot recall the fact that I believe that cameras were installed in Castle Steps. (Interjections) In Castle Steps, cameras were installed (Banging on desks) and he cannot recall the fact that cameras were installed–

600 Mr Speaker: If I may, the question – if hon. Members will look at the question – the question has got nothing to do with Irish Town or with any steps anywhere in Gibraltar. (Laughter) The question is about the Mid-Harbour Estate and I will ask hon. Members to stick to that. (Interjections)

605 Clerk: Question –

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, following your sensible advice, and sticking completely to the question, can I bring the Minister back to Question 775? I hope my wording has led him to perhaps understand it better.

610 But it says I wanted details of all works programmed, but which have still not been completed. The Minister has kindly given me the information in respect of the barriers and CCTV, they were all matters that he had informed this House previously. But I separated the questions, one, two, to ensure that, Mr Speaker... saw the difference between two questions. I did not have one question that was very long winded, and I think they are two separate items: Question 774 referred to those which have been completed, and rightly, in the answer, the Minister referred to previous announcements. But Question 775 gives the Minister an opportunity to offer the tenants there, through this Question and Answer session in the House, is there anything that he has programmed that has still not been completed, but certainly imminent, and he can shed some extra joy during this festive season to those tenants.

620 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in terms of the costs for the works of the barriers, as far as I am aware with the information I have been provided with, the £42,477 should be the total cost, even though we are weeks away from completion. That is my understanding that that is the total cost. There should be nothing else after that. Having said that, I will not put my... there could well be, but that is as far as I am aware.

625 Now, when it comes to the CCTV cameras, there are other things pending, which we are still awaiting quotes for, which it is impossible for me to provide that information at present. For example, we are still awaiting quotes for the signage and we are still waiting for other infrastructural works – for quotes on infrastructural works. So, as I said, once this information is available to me, I will be most happy to provide him with it.

630 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

So, will the Minister inform this House when he has received that, or is he recommending that I pose this question again in the future, with Mr Speaker's leave, so that we can have an updated information sometime in the New Year?

635 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am happy for the hon. Gentleman to pose the question again in the future.

Mr Speaker: I think I should remind hon. Members that you cannot ask the same question within a period of six months. Those are the Rules of the House. If they want to change the Rules of the House, I 640 am very happy that the Select Committee should do so immediately and bring a resolution here. But you cannot ask the same question within six months.

What the hon. Member is also free to do, to get that information, is to write to the Minister. What is the problem in writing, and getting an answer on a specific issue, within what has been a fairly wide question and answer?

Hon. E J Reyes: You are perfectly correct, Mr Speaker, hence... I don't know, one can interpret it rather cheekily but I said 'with Mr Speaker's leave', because I was aware of these Rules.

Mr Speaker, you are correct there is nothing wrong in my writing. Unfortunately, you see, if I enter into correspondence with the Minister, it becomes a correspondence between two Members of this House, 650 and not quite something that is easily heard by the general public, and we then enter into a battle that we neither of us intend to, of press releases – I ask the Minister and the Minister said and so on –

Mr Speaker: Let me tell the hon. Member what he can do. He can ask a specific question on one issue, but not within the general ambit of the Mid-Harbour Estate. If it is a single issue on which he wants 655 information, which happens to be within the Mid-Harbour Estate, he can ask the question about that specific matter, but not within the ambit of a repetition of either Question 774 or 775. Does he understand the point that I am making?

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I understand that, and by all means, should I have any doubt, I 660 know that you always make yourself available for any clarification. Thank you.

665 Re-allocation of empty homes
Costs and details of repairs and cleaning

Clerk: Question 776, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide updated details in respect of all expenditure 670 incurred, since the answer to Question No. 618/2013, in respect of contracts awarded for making empty homes suitable for re-allocation, stating to whom payments were made, how much has been paid, the number of residential homes pertaining to each payment, as well as indicating if the services contracted were for either repair works or cleaning services?

675 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

The Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

I would also like to draw the hon. Gentleman's attention to the bottom sentence, which specifies that all services contracted were for repairs, none were for cleaning.

Answer to Question 776

Contractors	No. of Properties	Cost

ALL SERVICES CONTRACTED WERE FOR REPAIRS
NONE WERE FOR CLEANING

680 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, if I may, the Minister has provided us this list, but in one particular occasion, a huge figure sticks out that is in respect of an expenditure of £47,000. It does seem a big amount. (Interjection) (Hon. J J Netto: Provide details...) Yes, sorry.

685 So, Mr Speaker, I was saying that what first sticks out is a huge figure in respect of an expenditure of £47,287, in respect of repair works for one property alone. Given that it is almost four times as much as what seems to be an average type of expenditure, does the Minister have any information there, that he can shed some light in respect of why such a big expenditure in that single property?

690 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, with reference to the figure that the hon. Gentleman is referring to, BCS Ltd works was instructed by the Housing Department to do specialist works for the amount of £47,287.91. The works in fact were two houses which were converted into one. They required extensive repairs to the roof as a result of water penetration, and the construction of a new staircase to join both houses. Hence the figure in question.

695 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that information, Mr Speaker.

I understand now that it was really a conversion of two into one, and roofs and so on, and costs do escalate, but given that it is such a big figure, can the Minister enlighten us as to why, in this particular case, given the huge scope of works there, why it was not put out to tender but rather just allocated, as seems to be the norm for other repair works, all of which keep more or less close to the £10,000 mark?

700 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the procedure is that for any particular job or works that need to be carried out, three quotes are sought, and based on those three quotes, the decision is made as to which company gets the works.

705 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I know this matter of obtaining three quotes is certainly something that we think is acceptable – it has in many cases been carried out by this party when we were in administration – but is there any particular ceiling, sort of, saying if a job is going to be over £10,000 or £15,000, then it is not just simple three questions of calling round people on a particular list that the Ministry may have, but rather making it fairer, you know, and making the general public and other contractors aware that there is a major refurbishment work going out? I mean, it is a substantial sum of money.

715 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, all jobs, regardless of size, are submitted to the three quotes system. If the job is a larger job, then it is the larger companies that are invited to provide us with a quote. If there are smaller quotes, then it is the smaller contractors which are invited to provide quotes for a given job.

720 Hon. E J Reyes: So, Mr Speaker when the Minister is saying that if it is a big job, then it goes to the bigger companies, so if instead of £47,000, it were to be £472,000, would it still then just be a phone call to three companies picked at random by whoever? Or when does this system of a public announcement to all companies come in? Is there a guideline of a particular figure?

(Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety) Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the system that was introduced in 2010 continues to be in place, which was that the tendering 725 process was suspended, and the work was distributed to people on the approved contractor list, unless it reaches the level required by the EU to be put out to tender. A statement was made at the time by the previous administration. We are continuing with that wise system.

Hon. E J Reyes: So the Minister has confirmed that there has been no change in respect of what the GSD had implemented.

730 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, sorry just one further supplementary: is the Minister for Housing able to tell me whether any of these companies are beneficiaries of the start up schemes set up by the Government – basically, those companies which are able to register, I think originally it was No. 6 Convent Place and then Town Range? Do any of these companies benefit from that Government policy?

735 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the allocation of the work is given on the basis that it normally goes to the lowest tenderer, the lowest price, unless the prices are very close to each other, and there is a company that is running out of work. The whole process of allocating work is to ensure that there is continuity of work, so that people do not get laid off.

740 All these companies that do work for the Government are encouraged to take on trainees. All of them, whether they are companies formed with Government help by people previously employed or they are companies that were already in existence, they are all treated in exactly the same way.

745 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, I know he will not tell me how many trainees are employed in each of those companies, because he does not tell me who the employer companies are from the private sector. But the question was related... I am not sure whether the hon. Member understood. The question was really related to those companies or that service which is being provided by the Government which includes registration at No. 6 or Town Range, and I wanted to know whether it was... not whether they employed any FJS trainees, but indeed whether they benefited from that Government policy.

750 I suppose I could carry out a search and find out whether they are registered in any of those places, but it is possible, in fact, even if I did carry out a search, that it was originally registered in No. 6, or Town Range, because it benefited from the Government policy in relation to nurture schemes, and then have gone to another corporate service provider.

755 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I think we have already explained the system, but I will explain it again. Some people who are unemployed and who are having difficulty in getting employment in the construction industry, for example, have been given assistance in setting up a company, because clearly they are unemployed, they cannot afford to use these services to set up a company.

760 When they are up and running, then they find their own lawyer, their own accountant, and their own premises from which to operate, they join the approved contractor list, and they are treated with exactly the same criteria as anybody else that may have started off life in a different way. So they do not get preferential treatment, nor are they discriminated against.

765 Hon. D J Bossino: But, Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether the... I do not think... the hon. Member is not answering my question. Does he know...? He may not know, and he may not be able to tell me, he may need notice of the question, I accept all of that. But is he able to tell me that of those companies which are listed in answer to Question 766, whether they have benefited from, or are currently benefiting from, the nurture scheme policy of the Government?

770 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, what I am telling him is that when the decision is taken, whether a particular company gets the tender or the job to do for the price that it has quoted, in that decision, there are no boxes ticked which determines how they came into existence, whether they got any help. So the answer is that any one of those companies may or may not be, but that is not something that enters into the allocation of work at all. (Interjection)

775 A Member: Does he know?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, do I know, because of the names, says the hon. Member. Well if I did, which I do not, I would not tell him. (Laughter and interjections)

780 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, what was the answer? He would not tell me. That is the answer I expected, but just to confirm is that what he said?

Hon. J J Bossano: I am glad to satisfy his expectations, Mr Speaker. (Interjections and laughter)

785 Hon. D J Bossino: You never fail me. (laughter)

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I may, I would like to take the Hon. the Minister for Employment back to one of the answers he provided just a minute ago, where he said that the system, that they applied the system, that it was introduced by the GSD Government in 2010. In the sense of looking at the approved list of contractors and within their approved list of contractors, then determining, basically, by 790 calling on three contractors within the approved list, which one basically or normally is the lowest bid.

Now that is not exactly what the GSD policy was in 2010. The GSD policy in 2010 was by all means to have... well, even before 2010, the approved list of contractors. But there was certainly thresholds as to the amount in which Departments – the Department then used to be Buildings & Works, now the Housing Agency – were able to pick up the names of the companies on the list, and basically call up three. There were thresholds, because I remember below £10,000, it would go to jobbers, which is just a person, self-employed more often than not; and beyond £10,000, the next threshold would be £100,000, which would go to a contractor, and then –

800 Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member please ask a question.

Hon. J J Netto: The question I am asking is that according to the threshold, below £10,000 it would go to the jobber, but beyond £10,000 it would go through a tender process, with the exception of GJBS. Is the Minister telling the House now that the policy has changed, and regardless of the size of the contract, even if it is half a million pounds, it will not go out to tender, and he will simply be asking three within the approved companies, in the list of contractors?

Hon. J J Bossano: I can tell him that the policy that he claims existed is not the policy that was in existence in 2011. And I can tell him that the list that he mentions, which was the list that was held by Technical Services which had the thresholds, the thresholds were not because of any tendering, but whether the company had the capacity to take on work. Indeed, whenever... and by the way, that list was completely in disuse. When we asked about that particular list, the list which had the technical capacity of somebody to take on a £1 million work, or £5 million work, or £10 million work, we were told that that had not been looked at for many years. There were indeed on that disused list people like Bruesa and OEM, as if they were still alive and kicking.
810

So the answer to his question is that the policy which he claims was there was not the one that was operating.
815

But in any event, of course, we are not obliged to continue with the policy that we find there, unless we think that that policy is one that we can subscribe to, and the basic policy that was different was that there was an announcement made that the tendering process was being suspended below the threshold required by the EU, which is, I think, something like €4.9 million, and that the allocation would be done in conjunction with the Employment Service, he may remember, where the companies were required to take on people from the Employment Service, and indeed, to require the consent of the Government, before they could terminate the employment of anybody that they had taken on, because it was a condition of getting the work that they would employ people who were unemployed, and registered as such.
820

And that is still the system that is operating – with the lists that existed then, plus the people who, you know, have set up a business since.
825

830 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I can tell the hon. Gentleman, that the list was operational, because I, on many occasions, got complaints from people who thought that they should be allowed to tender for work or to be allocated work over, say for example, half a million, but Technical Services would not allow that because they were rigidly sticking to the list.

But the question is this: did I understand the hon. Gentleman correctly when he said earlier that the works are allocated, normally, in accordance with who is the cheapest, who provides the cheapest price for the job? Which implies that there must be some kind of tender system – whether it is a formal tender system, whether it is advertised, or alternatively an informal, effectively, tender system, where you are inviting a number of companies – for example, you identify five companies that have not had work for a period of time, to actually price for a particular job. I mean, how does that work? Am I right in what I have outlined to the Hon. Minister?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, the hon. Member is right. The people are invited to put... I mean there is an element of offering it to people that are considered by those who know what they are doing, and know the people concerned, that they are capable of doing the work – some jobs are more specialist than others and require more skills than others, or more experience – or that the company should have been around for a longer time, so that at the end of the day they do the job satisfactorily, otherwise they would not get paid, of course, but it would not be in anybody's interest that that should happen.
840

850 So, essentially, what happens is that normally there are three quotes, and there is a tendency – I am sure the hon. Member knows, because it has always been there – that when people have got a lot of work, they tend to put a higher quote, because they are less in need of it, and therefore they are only interested in getting it if the margin is big enough. So the reality of it is that when there is a gap of a certain level, depending on the size of the work, the lowest of the three will normally be given the work.

855 Since the companies are companies that are constantly being given jobs, many, many jobs have been given out using this system in the last couple of years. The technical people know that they are capable of doing it or not.

860 If the three quotes are very close, and one is running out of work and needs the work more than the other two, because the other two are still doing work for us which is unfinished, then in fact, there may be a small difference in price, a few hundred, or a few thousand pounds, depending on the size of the project, and then the people that need the work must get it, because part of the system is linked to employment.

865 The entire thing, when it was announced in the House, was announced on the basis that it would be linked to taking people from Employment, and therefore it is not in the interest of the industry, or in the interest of the Government, or the individuals, that we should have somebody getting all the work, and then somebody else having to lay off people, and that is what we try to avoid. So the people that have got the policy brief to look at how the work is dished out work on that basis, which I believe was the spirit into which the decision was taken when it was introduced.

870 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, who effectively takes the decision to allocate these particular contracts – which as I understand it, what he is saying is really there is an informal tender or pricing system, where you look at three or four companies based on a variety of criteria, employment being one of them, lack of work, being another – but, who are the people that effectively make this decision? Is it the Minister, or is it people from the Technical Department, people from his Department?

875 Hon. J J Bossano: The people that are doing it are people who have been working in the Housing Work Agencies, either at PTO or craft level and know what they are doing. I would not be qualified to know whether somebody can do a job or not. I mean the actual decision on the money, anybody can do, because it is just a number there of what the price is. That could be done by a clerical assistant, but it is not done by a clerical assistant, because in addition to the price, which would be a very simple thing to do, people have to be confident that the work is going to be performed to the standard that is required.

880 Hon. D A Feetham: But when the contract actually gets beyond a certain numerical level, is there then any kind of ministerial involvement at all? I can understand that if you are dealing with small jobs... but even with small jobs, it would be in the Minister's interest. Obviously, the Minister has a duty to keep a handle on the expenditure, because £10,000 or £20,000 contracts, if you have a series of these contracts, it can actually add up.

885 But I can understand with smaller contracts that one can allow the Housing Agency staff to make decisions, but is there a threshold over and above this that has to be referred to the Hon. the Minister? And also, is there effectively a budget? In other words, if these small contracts add up over a period of time, to more than, I don't know, £200,000, there is then a system whereby the Hon. the Minister gets notified, so that obviously he can then keep a handle on the expenditure in relation to this?

890 Mr Speaker: Before the hon. Member answers the question, that is the last question that I am allowing on the system, because there is nothing in the original answer about the system, on the basis of which contracts are awarded. It asks for details, for information, payments and so on, but the Hon. Mr Reyes did not ask what is the system used in allocating these contracts. I have allowed a number of supplementaries on this matter, which are beyond the ambit of the question. I think that is the last one I should allow.

900 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the procedure is that when there is a requirement for refurbishment of Government housing, somebody goes to inspect the work that is required, they produce a scope of work, then somebody employed as an estimator produces an estimate of what the cost would be, if it was done with direct labour. And then the three companies are invited to put in a bid, all of which are expected to be below the cost that has been estimated and generally are.

905 So there is no need to be concerned, or checking that it is getting out of hand, because the controls are there in the first place. If we cannot get a price that is below the price that has been estimated, given that there is a very substantial gap between the wages from direct labour and the wages in the construction industry, so one would expect that the price should be down below, but if that does not happen, then we would normally ask somebody to take a look at the actual scope of works that has been identified, to see what is the explanation.

910 But, in 99% of the cases that does not happen. In 99% of the cases, as far as I recall, nobody has ever said to me the prices that have come in are too high, compared to what the Department would be estimating should be the cost, if it was done with direct labour. So, the answer is that really it is driven by the requirements of the job, as a result of the investigation of the state of the building and the scope of works identified, and the estimate done by people in the public service.

915 Mr Speaker: Next question.

920 Government rental homes
Assignments and repairs

Clerk: Question 777, the Hon. E J Reyes.

925 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of rental homes assigned since the answer to Question No. 619/2013, indicating how many will be repaired by: (a) the Housing Works Agency; (b) sub-contractors; and (c) the assigned tenants themselves?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

930 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since the answer given to Question No. 619/2013, 12 flats have been assigned.

The repairs are to be undertaken by the following: Housing Works Agency – two; sub-contractors – seven; the assigned tenants themselves – three.

935

Urgent decanting of tenants
Reasons and dates of decanting/return

940 Clerk: Question 778, the Hon. E J Reyes.

945 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting from their homes, since the answer to Question No. 623/2013, indicating the reason why, the date when said decanting became necessary, and the date when the tenants were able to return to their home?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

950 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, two tenants have required urgent decanting since the answer to Question No. 623/2013. The reason why, the date when said decanting became necessary, and the date when the tenant was able to return to their home are as follows:

Tenant 1 was decanted due to refurbishment works; the date the decanting became necessary was 2nd December 2012; and the date when the tenant returned home is 16th December 2013.

955 Tenant 2: once again the reason was to do with refurbishment works; the family was decanted on 11th November 2013; and the works are still ongoing.

960 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, am I correct in my understanding that Tenant 1 was decanted in December 2012 and was away for a whole year? If that is the case, is this Tenant 1 not included in any statistics of any previous answers that the Minister may have given me? Because then, when I add up figures over a given period, I could be duplicating Tenant A or whatever. Can the Minister shed some light?

965 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will have to check that for him, but I think there is a chance there has been a mistake there. The likelihood is that it has been 2nd December 2013 as opposed to 2012, because otherwise this tenant would have appeared in previous questions. So I will check that for him, but I am pretty sure there has been a typo there, okay.

Residential homes
Allocations and assignments

970

Clerk: Question 779, the Hon. E J Reyes.

975

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing, say how many residential homes have, since the answer to Question No. 624/2013, been: (a) allocated; and (b) assigned, showing the room composition of the respective homes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

980

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since the answer to Question No. 624/2013, 49 flats have been allocated, and assigned as follows:

Allocated: 1RKB, 2; 2RKB, 10; 3RKB, 20; 4RKB, 4; 5RKB, 1; 6RKB, 0. A total of 37 have been allocated.

Assigned we have: 1RKB, none; 2RKB, 3; 3RKB, 8; 4RKB, none; 5RKB, 1; 6RKB, 0. That is a total of 12.

Government rental homes
Unpaid rents

990

Clerk: Question 780, the Hon. E J Reyes.

995

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. W145/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide updated details of arrears in respect of unpaid rents pertaining to Government rental homes, as at the end of November 2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

1000

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the total amount of arrears in respect of unpaid rents, as at the end of November 2013, was £4,881,807m.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

That information, when added together with the full list that he gave me through the Written Question 145, shows in a way a standard type of increase from month to month, and I wish to express my concern, and share it with that of the Minister, given that this is money owed to Government and fairly, if they are in arrears, is the Government in a position to say how it hopes to introduce some sort of programme so that this list of unpaid rents? We may start to decrease it, rather than see a steady, but yet substantial increase over a number of months.

1010

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the system in place remains the same as it was prior to the date of the election, when arrears were ready on the £4 million mark.

1015

Housing Works Agency
Retired, transferred and seconded employees

Clerk: Question 781, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1020

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide updated information, inclusive of details of grades and dates, in respect of any further employees of the Housing Works Agency who have been: (a) retired; (b) transferred; and (c) seconded, either from or into the Housing Works Agency, since the answer to Question No. W146/2013.

1025

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

1030

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, since the answer to Question No. W146/2013, one craftsman retired on 16th December this year, and no employees have been seconded or transferred.

Housing Works Agency
Update re comprehensive review

1035 Clerk: Question 782, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to Questions No. W147/2013 and 616/2013, is the Minister for Housing now in a position to furnish this House with any details of the comprehensive review pertaining to the Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing which he has previously answered was now being considered by Cabinet?

1040 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, as previously advised, the internal report was passed to Cabinet and is still under consideration.

1045 Hon. E J Reyes: Does the Minister have any indication of by when it would have been considered, so we can sort of have some feedback, given that this question has been going on with the Minister's leave, 'further to question...' and so on? But I seem to be a bit monotonous, month in and month out, trying to see if we can establish by when we expect it to be completed and become public, especially for the sake of the employees of the Agency and the Ministry.

1050 Hon. P J Balban: No, sir.

Government vehicles
Number with non-polluting engines

1060 Clerk: Question 783, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Written Question W149/2013, can the Government state how many of the vehicles listed are powered by non-polluting engines, as this part of the answer was missing?

1065 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the only vehicle that does not use any polluting agent as a means of propulsion is the Tesla, the G1, which is 100% electric. However, this is not a Government-owned vehicle, as this is owned by the Bassadone Automotive Group, and is leased to the Government.

1070 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, given that it is the Government's intention to fulfil one of its manifesto commitments, which is in page 32, to have vehicles powered by non-polluting engines, does the Minister have any indication as to how that commitment is progressing towards the end of their term of office?

1075 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, at present, the Government is doing all that is possible to make the fleet of vehicles more environmentally friendly. At the moment, staff cars... The one being leased by Bassadone Automotive Group is 100% pure electric. There are also other vehicles, which are the hybrid vehicles, of which two are plug-in hybrid electric vehicles, which mainly run fully electric most of the time that they are being used, but when driven in certain conditions, the hybrid... the fuel kicks in or the use for over a certain amount of [inaudible].

1080 So the Government is doing all that is possible, to ensure that the Government's vehicles are more environmentally friendly, and its policy is to continue looking at vehicles in the future, when vehicles are replaced.

1085 Hon. J J Netto: So apart from the vehicle that the Chief Minister uses, the G1, is the Minister saying that they will not be able to carry out the manifesto commitment in their election pledge, then?

1090 Hon. P J Balban: Not at all, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: 'Not at all' meaning that they will not be able to make the manifesto commitment?

1095 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, no, 'not at all', that the manifesto commitment is something which we are happy to be able to fulfil.

1100 Hon. J J Netto: So the Minister is saying he is happy to fulfil. However, in two years in Government, we only have one non-polluting car, which is used by the Chief Minister. Does he feel that he will be able to fulfil, in the remaining two years of the term of office, the rest of the vehicles in the Government fleet? (Interjection)

1105 Hon. P J Balban: Just this one vehicle itself, as the hon. Member says, is pure electric is one step, is a big step in terms of, compared to what was happening in the past. It is very clear that this Government's policy is totally different to the policy the Government of Opposition when they were in Government. (Hon. N F Costa: Hear, hear.) Even if you look at electric vehicles – and we are saying non-polluting vehicles – I mean, even the electric vehicles, they require electricity, and electricity is driven by whatever source of power generated. So, the fact is that the Government will do everything possible to adhere to its manifesto commitment, and it will, to provide vehicles which are non-polluting as per the manifesto commitment.

1110 Hon. J J Netto: Is the Minister therefore saying that whoever wrote those comments in the manifesto he did not know what he was talking about?

1115 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will not... I mean, what is he asking? I mean... Whether the person who wrote the manifesto commitment does not know what he is talking about. Mr Speaker, I do not really think I need to answer that question.

EQUALITY, SOCIAL SERVICES AND THE ELDERLY

'Looked After Children' Specialist care

1120 Clerk: Question 784, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1125 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say how many times a Looked After Child needs to abscond and how seriously challenging the behaviour of the child has to be before he or she is considered as a candidate for specialist care in a specialist institution in the UK?

1130 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1135 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, each child is an individual, with their own specific needs, Therefore, there is no prescribed formula on how many times a Looked After Child needs to abscond, or how seriously challenging the behaviour of a child has to be, before he or she is considered as a candidate for specialist care in the UK.

1140 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if there are any children presently who are candidates for specialist care in a specialist institution in the UK?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: There are, Mr Speaker, but, of course, as you will understand, I will not refer to any individuals.

1145 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how many there are and when, if shortly, they will be moving to the UK?

1150 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, as I have said in the past, if I feel that it is not appropriate to give that information in this House because it may identify a particular child, or children, then I will not do so, Mr Speaker. But, as I have also said previously, I am very happy to give that information behind the Speaker's Chair.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I am sorry to say that is not acceptable. Nobody is asking the hon. Lady to identify, nor provide information that identifies the individuals or the children in question.

1155 What the hon. Lady has asked is how many – how many children are being considered for this type of treatment? That cannot possibly lead to the identification of those children.

The Government has a duty to account, and it accounts in Parliament, not behind the Speaker's Chair. We will accommodate the Government as much as possible, whenever the information is of a sensitive nature. But, the information as to how many children are being considered cannot possibly identify the children in question. (Interjections)

1160

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, in my judgement it can, because, while I am not going to say the number, but let us say for example if I were to say one, then that could easily identify the child. So quite frankly, Mr Speaker, the words of the Leader of the Opposition, when he says that he is going to support the Government, sound very hollow. In my judgement, Mr Speaker, I cannot answer that question for obvious reasons.

1165

1170 Children with challenging behaviour
Care and secure accommodation

Clerk: Question 785, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, as per her Budget speech of 2013, can the Minister for Social Services explain how she will be providing for children with challenging behaviour generally, and for their secure accommodation specifically?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, pathways for children are being looked at, and we are considering new premises which we would use to cater for children with challenging behaviour. Legislative changes are also being looked at.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the new premises: can the Hon. Minister say if a site or potential sites have been identified, and when construction or refurbishment will start?

1185

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, again I will not at this stage say where the location will be. What I can confirm is that we have had a structural report on the premises which now allows us to proceed to the next stage of refurbishment of the building.

1190

Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, can she explain why she cannot provide information as to the location of this facility? Is that also sensitive information, that she cannot disclose? (Interjection) Well, can she explain why it is sensitive information? If it is sensitive, we will accept it. But, can she explain that?

1195

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, rule number one when dealing with children is to be discreet. If I were to identify the location of a place which is going to be a challenging behaviour unit, then everybody is going to know what it is, where it is, and that the children inside the unit are children with challenging behaviour. Mr Speaker, again, in my judgement, I do not think it is appropriate to disclose that information.

1200

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Well done.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister then suggesting that, once the facility is built and set up, and there are people working there, and the children there, that nobody will ever know, or ever find out, that it is a facility for children (Banking on desks, and interjections) with challenging behaviour...?

1205

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): It is not MI6.

1210

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, that is totally different, but again, Mr Speaker, in my judgement, I do not think that it is appropriate that I should disclose the location of the premises.

1215 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, why is it different, from the point of view of protecting children, to disclose the location of the facility after it is built, but not before it is built, when you have identified the site? Quite frankly, I do not understand the secrecy surrounding this issue, nor indeed the distinction the hon. Lady seeks to draw. Of all Government Ministers – apart perhaps from the Minister 1220 of Employment, I have to say that he is perhaps one on his own – the hon. Lady is always reticent to provide information, and hides behind excuses that, quite frankly, do not stack up. (Interjections)

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition just shows his complete disregard for the importance for keeping certain things confidential. The building that we have 1225 identified is actually quite discreet in its location, and we will not be announcing the opening of this new place with a fanfare and a press release and a plaque, which is maybe something that he would have done.
(A Member: Yes, absolutely.) But, in my judgement, Mr Speaker, I do not think that that is appropriate.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but with respect, she still has not answered my question. What she said was, 1230 once it is built it is a different kettle of fish. Now, I quite understand not giving huge publicity to something, opening it with fanfare – that is something for the Hon. Minister in her judgement. But, what she said was that once it is built, that she would be identifying the location, as she cannot do it now because it is in a planning stage. What I do not understand is the distinction that she seeks to draw between now and then. I do not accept, quite frankly, that the Opposition is not entitled to that 1235 information on the grounds that the Hon. Minister suggests. But, in any event, I am seeking to understand the distinction that the hon. Lady has drawn.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I do not recall having drawn any distinction whatsoever.
My position will be that I will not disclose the location now, nor will I disclose it when it is ready. And I 1240 do not recall having drawn any distinction whatsoever. Maybe the Leader of the Opposition has heard me say something that I have not said, maybe he has misinterpreted my words. But clearly, I have not drawn a distinction.

Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry, Mr Speaker, she keeps on saying... the hon. Lady keeps on saying that in 1245 the exercise of her judgement... Obviously, we want to understand what criteria she is using. That is really the only point that we are raising on this side of the House.

Now, clearly, this is Gibraltar: once the premises are refurbished, I think I can guess that it is more than likely that we will know what the location will be. So in those circumstances, given that she is now 1250 saying that there is not a distinction as to pre and post refurbishment as to the location of the premises, how does she intend to keep the location of those premises secret, to the extent that nobody will know, other than the children, possibly their families, where the premises are?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, as I am sure you know, the Hon. Mr Bossino has 1255 completely misquoted what I have said. That is not what I have said. There is a difference between keeping a place secret, and a difference between announcing what it is and where it is. In my opinion, this is something that is of course, because of its importance, delicate, and sensitive nature, should be as discreet as possible and I do not intend to disclose this information either now, or when it is ready. If he will find out, then they will find out. But it is not something that we will be announcing, and I do not see, quite frankly, Mr Speaker, what the whole point of this line of questioning is.

1260 A Member: Even if it was a political issue.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, (Interjection) the whole point of this is to do something to 1265 improve a service, and if the Opposition are going to say that they will support the Government in this, then let them support the Government in this. The Government is saying that there is a reason for this, so Mr Speaker, perhaps we can leave it at that, and not have so many supplementary questions on the same point going round and round in circles. My answer will not change, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, does she not accept that there is a legitimate interest in the 1270 Opposition in finding out where a particular facility, which is important to this community, is going to be located, (Interjection) so that the Opposition can itself scrutinise as to whether that facility, and that location is, for example, suitable and fit for purpose? Or does she not accept that the Opposition has a legitimate role in looking at a particular facility, and a particular location, and seeing whether that particular location or facility is suitable for those children?

1275 I mean, what she is really trying to do is effectively prevent the Opposition from doing its legitimate job, in relation to this particular facility. There is no... we are not making this particular point, because we want to make life difficult for the Government. But, of course, without knowing where it is, how can we ascertain for ourselves that the location and the facility are going to be fit for purpose.

1280 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, seriously! If the Opposition were so concerned about providing a facility that is fit for purpose, then they had 16 years to do it, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks and interjections)

1285 Children and Families team
Management restructure

Clerk: Question 786, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1290 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services explain what the management restructure of the Children and Families team is, as stated in her Budget speech of 2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1295 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, management and supervision lines have been changed within the teams.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how they have been changed?

1300 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, that is a matter for management internally. There have been different ways, different modes of supervision, different ways of managing the individual teams. Different teams have been broken down into different areas. There has just been a sort of general change in how Social Services work, how reports are now filtered through, and how they are supervised.

1305 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, as a result of the changes, have any new management posts been created, or any new people taken on?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker.

1310 Clerk: Question – (Interjection)

Mr Speaker: The Leader of the Opposition.

1315 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, has this been a management initiative, or has it been a ministerial initiative, in consultation with management? Have there been, for example, any reports or anything like that, suggesting that there ought to be a management restructure? Can she provide some more information in relation to that?

1320 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: It was just as a result of a management restructure between... consultation with management, at the general senior management meetings. There is no mystery to it. It is just a change in the operation, in the way that the Department is structured.

1325 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but firstly, were you involved, and secondly... I mean, what gave rise to the need for this restructure? Normally, having had experience of ministerial duties myself, it is either a policy initiative of the Government or the Minister concerned, because the Government, or the Minister, has taken the view that the management is not operating as efficiently and effectively as possible.

1330 Or alternatively, there is, for example, a report that is handed up to the Minister, or representations, handed up to the Minister, saying, 'Look, we believe that this is not operating effectively and efficiently, for x, y and z reason. I am just trying to explore with the Hon. Minister what it is that has led to this restructure.

1335 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it is as a result of meetings that I have with all my Departments. Generally, I just sit in with the teams, and ask them how they think that the Department would improve if there were any changes. Really, it is as a result of changes that have come as a suggestion from people within the teams, and if they think that the team will work better and be more supported that way, then they have my blessing. There is no... It is just as a general part of the process, and as part of my review of the teams within Social Services.

Children and vulnerable adults
Vetting workers and volunteers

1340

Clerk: Question 787, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1345

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services provide details of the regulations that have already been drafted, as confirmed in her 2013 Budget speech, on the vetting of people who work or volunteer with children and vulnerable adults?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1350

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 788.

Clerk: Question 788.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say when legislation on the vetting of people who work or volunteer with children and vulnerable adults will be brought to Parliament?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1360

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the legislation is being drafted and will be brought to Parliament once it is ready.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will this become a command paper first?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: It is likely that it will, Mr Speaker.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister, say, give us a timescale as to when the draft will be completed, and then it will be presented as a command paper?

1370

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: I cannot at this stage, but as far as I am concerned, as soon as possible. But obviously I am in the hands of those who are drafting it.

1375

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what is the interaction between this particular legislation and the list of unsuitable people working with children, which is a list that is compiled under the Children's Act? And is it the intention of the Government to perhaps have one composite list, which is the position in the United Kingdom at the present moment? Indeed, in the United Kingdom, it also includes the list under the sexual offenders list, as well.

1380

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Those are some of the considerations that we are considering. But, in any event, the priority with this is to make sure that there are regulations to vet people as, at present, there is absolutely nothing. There is no requirement to vet anyone who works with children. In fact, this will go further, because this legislation will deal with... there will be a requirement to vet people who not only work with children, but also people who work with vulnerable adults.

1385

Nursing Co-ordinator, Mount Alvernia Details of post

1390

Clerk: Question 789, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1395

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, during the Hon. Minister for Social Services' Budget speech of 2013, she mentioned the commencement of a new Nursing Co-ordinator for Mount Alvernia. Can the Minister say if this post is in an acting capacity, and who the new Nursing Co-ordinator is?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the person in the post of Nursing Co-ordinator is in the post in an acting capacity.

1400 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister did not mention who the new Nursing Co-ordinator is.

1405 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the reason I have not mentioned this individual's name is as a result of Mr Speaker's ruling very recently, in the last Parliament or the Parliament before, Mr Speaker, where you said that it was not appropriate for individual public servants to be named in this House.

1410 Domestic violence
Details of new forum

Clerk: Question 790, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1415 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, as outlined in her Budget statement of 2013, can the Minister for Equality say if she has set up the forum to deal with domestic violence, which interested parties form part of the forum, and how often does the forum meet?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1420 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I have met with officials from Departments such as Social Services, the Royal Gibraltar Police, the Court Services, Housing, the GHA, as well as Women in Need, with a view to setting up this forum, which will formally meet in the new year.

1425 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in the Minister's Press Release No. 849 of 25th November, she states that:

'My Ministry and all relevant agencies are working to ensure that such violence is entirely eliminated in Gibraltar...'

1430 What plans will the forum have for such violence to be eliminated?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, once the forum meets officially, I am sure we will start with a strategic plan on how to tackle this.

1435

White Ribbon Campaign
Introduction to Gibraltar

1440 Clerk: Question 791, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Equality say if she is in contact with, and when we will see, the introduction of the 'White Ribbon Campaign' to Gibraltar?

1445 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1450 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Social Services Department have been in touch with the White Ribbon, and I have also spoken to them myself. A decision as to whether or not this particular campaign will be introduced has not been taken.

1455 Domestic violence
Refuge for homeless men

Clerk: Question 792, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1460 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Equality say how Government provides for homeless men requiring refuge from domestic violence?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1465 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, arrangements are currently made through Women in Need.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, are there any plans to continue with the building of a men's refuge on Windmill Hill which the GSD started, or indeed to earmark another site for this?

1470 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, can I start off by saying that no work was done at Windmill Hill by the GSD in relation to any refuge for men, other than some plans, but no actual construction work was done.

1475 I can say that we will not continue with that, at that site, but it is a manifesto commitment that will be completed within this term of office.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the plan to build, or earmark a particular building for a specific facility, or to earmark flats within the community?

1480 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, at present, we are considering various options, but the likelihood is that it will be a building, as opposed to individual flats.

1485 Disabled people Legislation to protect

Clerk: Question 793, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1490 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Equality say when the Government will legislate to further protect disabled people, ratifying and using the terms of the United Nations Convention on the rights of disabled persons as a model?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1495 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, legislation to this effect is being drafted, and we envisage that it will be ready in 2014.

1500 EDUCATION, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

Students leaving full-time education
Details

1505 Clerk: Question 794, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1510 Hon E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education provide details of how many students have left full-time education since the start of this present academic year; providing a breakdown by educational establishment, age of student, with detail of school year in which enrolled, date of termination, and reason for leaving, if known?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

1515 Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I will answer together with Questions 795, 796 and 797 of 2013.

Clerk: Question 795.

1520 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details of how many students who were undergoing full-time education, and enrolled in Year 10 at the start of the academic year 2012-2013 have since left full-time education, and consequently not presently in Year 11 for this current academic year; providing a breakdown by educational establishment, age of student at the time, with date, month, of termination, and reason for leaving, if known?

1525 Clerk: Question 796.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details of how many students have ceased full-time education in either Years 10 or 11 since the start of this present academic year; providing a breakdown by school year, educational establishment, and reason for termination, if known?

1530 Clerk: Question 797.

1535 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 635/2013, can the Minister for Education provide details in respect of any changes there may be in respect of students still enrolled for post-GCSE education in Year 12, or equivalent, when compared with those enrolled at the start of the current academic year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule that I now hand to him.

Answer to Questions 794 and 796 of 2013

1540 Mr Speaker: It is a fairly lengthy, and detailed schedule. I would suggest that I give time to the hon. Member to study it carefully, and give him an opportunity to ask supplementaries.

But, in the meantime perhaps we could move on to the next Question 798, which is the Hon. Mr Netto, and then, Mr Edwin Reyes can come back as soon as he is ready.

1545 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker, you have suggested that in the past, and I think it works quite well, so I am very grateful for your suggestion, which I take up wholeheartedly.

1550 Health and Safety in schools
Audit reports

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Netto then, Question 798.

1555 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question No. 702/2013, can the Minister for Education provide Parliament with copies of the Health and Safety audit report appertaining to the school, or schools, in which the works have now been completed?

1560 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the position remains as stated in my reply to Question 702/2013.

1565 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, the answer that the hon. Member gave was that these were not going to be given in relation... because they were ongoing works. Now I have desegregated those works which are ongoing to the ones which he mentioned that are completed. So my question now is only whether the Health and Safety audit report can be provided to Parliament in relation to when the works have been finished, in those particular schools, or colleges, or wherever it has taken place?

1570 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, my reference to being completed in the previous answer was in respect of specific recommendations which have either been completed, were in progress, or are scheduled, and then I said in my answer given that this is still work in progress. The Government does not propose to publish the reports at this stage – not the report, the reports, at this stage. That is still the position. This is still work in progress. So the matter will be further considered, when all the works are done.

1575 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, for the sake of clarity, can the Minister perhaps say whether some works, in some schools, have finished?

1580 Hon. G H Licudi: Of course, Mr Speaker, that is what I said in the last session a month ago.

Hon. J J Netto: So, if some works of some schools have finished, does the Minister have a problem with providing Parliament with a Health and Safety audit report, specifically done, for those particular schools?

1585 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the fact that some works in some schools may have been completed does not mean that there are not other matters which are in progress or scheduled to be undertaken. And therefore, once the whole programme is exhausted, then we will consider the matter further.

1590 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, well, that may mean is that until all such works are done, and if all such works are done, hypothetically speaking, say in eighteen months from now, then Parliament will never get the Health and Safety audit report.

1595 So can I ask the Minister for Education, in relation to the works which have been carried out already, in some schools, could at least those parts of the report, of the Health and Safety audit report, which deals only with those schools where the works have been completed, can it be desegregated from the main report, so that at least Parliament knows, in relation to those schools, what they said and we can follow it up, as Members of the Opposition?

1600 Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Why not, Mr Speaker?

Hon. G H Licudi: I have already explained why not. This is work in progress, and therefore the matter is still ongoing.

1605 Hon. J J Netto: But, Mr Speaker, I mean, this may be an excuse for the Government to say that, because it is work in progress, i.e. we will never give the Opposition what the Health and Safety audit report said, in relation to certain schools. Now, if they are the party that claims to be the party of transparency, they should acknowledge, within that particular statement, that there is an interest, both of the Opposition, of parents, and everyone who is involved in one way or another, with knowing what the Health and Safety audit report stated.

1610 What it cannot be, is an excuse for the Government to say because this is work in progress, and will therefore continue to be work in progress for the next 18 months, we will never give the Opposition that information. So will he not agree with me that that is contrary to the statement 'we are a transparent Government'?

1615 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I certainly do not agree with anything of what the hon. Member has said.

1620 Let us recall that this is an initiative that we took. During the 16 years that they were in Government: they did not do any Health and Safety audits or any Health and Safety reports in any of the schools. Therefore, this new found concern that the hon. Member suddenly has, about parents having issues with... Health and Safety issues, those concerns simply did not exist for 16 years. They have suddenly arisen.

1625 Well, at least this Government is doing something about it. At least this Government has commissioned somebody to do Health and Safety reports in all the schools, and at least we are making progress on all of the schools, on all of the reports, and once we complete the process, we will give further updates.

A Member: Hear, hear. (Banging on desks)

1630 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just so that I understand it – I do not profess to know as much as the hon. Gentleman, nor indeed my colleague, about this – but, are we talking about a Health and Safety audit report that is holistic, in other words that relates to all the works being undertaken, in relation to a particular school? Or are these individual reports relating to particular works that can effectively be segregated, as and when a particular job is complete?

1635 Because, of course, I can understand that, if it is a holistic report, dealing with all the works in a particular school, the point the Hon. Minister makes may have some validity in some force. If, of course, there are a series of reports in relation to particular works that have been completed, then I can understand why my hon. colleague obviously desires to see those reports, as and when the work is complete. Can he perhaps elaborate on that?

1640 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the position is as the hon. Member has described in the second part of his supplementary. There are general reports with a series of recommendations, and therefore it is not simply possible to extract little bits and pieces, and say 'This is the work that has been done, in respect of this particular part of the report.' So that is the position, and I note that, given that that is the position, he understands why the Government takes the position it takes.

1645 Hon. D A Feetham: I quite understand that. I think that you have been at cross purposes because if that had been explained from the beginning, perhaps the Hon. Mr Netto would have taken a different position.

1650 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, just to clarify, an audit report was made for each of the individual schools and institutions, and, if I remember correctly, by the end of last year about 75%, I think, of the audits had been completed of the schools. Now those audits, or those schools where the audit has been completed: is the Minister willing to give us a copy of the information? (Interjection)

1655 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, all of the audits have been completed, and all of the audits were completed some time ago. There is a schedule of works. There is a programme, and that is what is ongoing, and those are the works in progress.

1660 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, but any Health and Safety audit report, whether it is done in schools, whether it is done in Government Departments, or any other particular site, done by any particular specialist, or consultant in this matter, will say, in School x, we, having done the audit, now are saying all these works need to be done, and they will go by school, systematically, one school by the 1665 other. What I am asking is, in relation to the works in schools that have been completed, can the hon. Member at least provide the Health and Safety Audit in relation to the works of those schools that have been completed?

1670 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member asks the same questions three or four times. The answer has already been given.

1675 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, what I do not understand – and you see, I have tried to be as reasonable as possible in understanding the Hon. Minister’s reticence to provide the information – and I could understand the answer that he gave to me, and it seems perfectly reasonable to me, the answer that he gave to me, but he has now said that actually all these reports have been completed. The audits have been done, they have been completed. (Interjections) That is what he has just said to me. The audits have been completed. (Interjections)

1680 Hon. G H Licudi: The question is about the work – not the audit. The audit has been done; the work is ongoing.

1685 Hon. J J Netto: The Minister also said that some works in some schools have been completed. What I am asking is in relation to the works which have been completed in some schools, at least in those areas which are now completed of the works. Can Parliament have the Health and Safety audit appertaining to those schools where works have completed?

1690 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am not sure how many times one has to get up and hear the same question. (Interjection) Well, the answer has been given. It might not be an answer that the hon. Member wants, but the answer was even given last month to the same question. Last month, the hon. Member asked ‘In which schools have recommendations been carried out? Will the Hon. Minister provide Parliament with copies of the reports?’ The answer was given last month. The question is rephrased this month, but essentially the same question is being asked, and for four supplementaries, we have had the same question again, and the answer has been given in very, very, clear terms.

1695 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, have reports been produced? Have audit reports been produced, or have they not, so that I understand it? Have there been reports produced? I am not asking about the... I understand what he is saying, about the recommendations not having been implemented yet, and the works being ongoing. But have the reports been produced? Because what he has said is that the actual audits have been complete. So that begs the question whether the reports have been produced. I would have thought that if the audit has been completed, the reports would have been produced. (Interjection)

1700 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I thought the position was obvious. The audits have been completed, and the reports in relation to those audits have clearly been produced.

1705 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, but, that being the position, and having really tried to be as generous to the Hon. Minister as possible, in relation to why his reticence for not providing... What conceivable reason can there be for failure to provide these reports? Why not produce these reports, or give the fact that the works are ongoing as a reason for it? Are these reports sensitive? What is the Government’s reticence in producing what are reports which are clearly in the public interest, clearly in the interest of parents, and clearly in the interest of the Opposition, to know about?

1710 Mr Speaker: Could I ask the Minister one question, in order to be clear in my mind, what it is that the hon. Members are talking about. The original question talks about a Health and Safety audit report, but hon. Members are talking about ‘reports’. Now, is it that there is a single global report, (Interjection) about all the schools taken together, or is it that there is a series of audit reports for each school? Which of the two?

1715 Hon. G H Licudi: There is a report for each school. And perhaps in answer to the hon. Member’s questions, I should repeat what I said in answer to the question last month: 16 educational establishments, 14 schools, one college and a nursery have had Health and Safety audits conducted, which I can also say now, that means the production of reports. Recommendations have been prioritised, according to their nature and urgency. These have so far either been completed, are in progress or are scheduled to be undertaken.

1725 Given that this is still work in progress, the Government does not propose to publish the reports at this stage. And what I have said today is that the position continues to be as that. This is still work in progress. There may have been more progress since last month, but this is still work in progress.

1730 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but what I do not understand is why the failure to provide the reports, or a summary of the reports. Simply by reference to the works having been carried out, you have the reports, they exist, he is asking about those reports. Now, why does the Hon. Minister link the reports with the work being carried out? It is just, really there ought not to be that link.

1735 Hon. G H Licudi: Well it is interesting to hear the hon. Member say, there ought not to be that link, because for 16 years, the Opposition previously was constantly told 'work in progress is work in progress, and the Government does not give further details' – the then Government does not give further details of work in progress.

1740 The position is that once the works that have been prioritised and are due to be completed, are completed, then the matter will be considered further, in respect of the provision of the reports. That is the Government's position. I note that it is not the position that the hon. Members want, or accept, but that is the Government's position.

1745 Hon. D A Feetham: Is the Government following the recommendations of these reports that they will not disclose, or is it the position that the Government has accepted some of the recommendations and disregarded others?

Hon. G H Licudi: What the Government has done is precisely what I said last time. Recommendations have been prioritised, according to their nature and urgency, and these have either been completed, are in progress, or are scheduled to be undertaken.

1750 Hon. D A Feetham: With respect to the Hon. Minister, that is not the question. You can prioritise recommendations, which means that you will implement ones quicker than the other. The question was, has the Government accepted all the recommendations, or has the Government decided to disregard some of the recommendations, in these reports?

1755 Hon. G H Licudi: Well, the position remains that this is still work in progress, and recommendations have been prioritised, according to their nature and urgency. And that is what is being done. That is the answer.

1760 Hon. D A Feetham: But, with respect, the Hon. the Minister is not answering the question, and it is a very simple question. I understand the Government is entitled to prioritise. Every Government does that. I understand that this is a work in progress, but surely the Minister, having a handle on this situation, because he is the Minister responsible, can enlighten this House on whether he, as Minister, has accepted all the recommendations (Mr Speaker: No.) or he has decided to (Mr Speaker: No.) ignore some of them.

1765 Mr Speaker: No, he does not have to answer that. It does not arise from the original question.

Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker, it arises –

1770 Mr Speaker: There is nothing in the original question –

Hon D A Feetham: Point of Order, Mr Speaker

1775 Mr Speaker: – or in the previous one, asking whether the Government had accepted all the recommendations in the reports.

Hon. D A Feetham: Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

1780 Mr Speaker, the Rules do not provide that it just simply has to arise from the original question. If the Minister has answered the question –

Mr Speaker: The Rules –

Hon. D A Feetham: If I may be allowed to finish –

1785 Mr Speaker: Yes, I will let you finish the Point of Order.

Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much.

1790 If the Minister has answered a question in a particular way, and has provided information in the answer, surely the Opposition, in accordance with the Rules, can ask a supplementary on the information that the Minister has provided. It cannot be the position that the Opposition has to then say, 'Ah, he has answered in this particular way, but I am not entitled to ask a supplementary on the information provided, because, somehow, it is not exactly squarely within the original question.' I do not believe that that is right.

1795 Mr Speaker: I think that the hon. Member is definitely wrong. I have no doubt, in my mind, that the Rules do provide for supplementaries to be asked arising from the subject of the original question. Now, there is a fine distinction here, in that the Minister has talked about prioritising the recommendations. That does not mean that in prioritising, they are accepting everything, or they are not accepting. (Hon D A Feetham: And that is the Question.) He has told you, the Hon. Minister has explained, that in considering the report, there is an element of prioritising. That is fair enough. That arises from the original question. 1800 But whether all the recommendations have been accepted or not is the subject of a separate question.

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, there is, this question does arise, but...

1805 Mr Speaker: And, and...

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes.

Mr Speaker: In any case, may I say, I invite the hon. Member next month to ask the question, to put it down on the agenda. 1810

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, this question does arise from the original question, as set out in the Order Paper. The Opposition's position is, that it would like disclosure of the reports. That is our position. The Government's position is that it will not disclose that, pending the completion of the works. The works are in progress, so presumably the logical conclusion of that is that when the works are completed, 1815 you will be providing disclosure of the reports.

What we are saying now, accepting the Government's position, in the question, Question 798/2013 is that, in respect of those schools, there are schools in respect of which the works have indeed been completed, in respect of those schools where the works have been completed, is the Hon. Minister willing to disclose the reports in respect of those particular schools, rather than wait for all the works in relation to all the schools to be completed? 1820

This is the point, the discrete issue which I think may have been missed in the exchange.

Mr Speaker: I have allowed the hon. Member to make this supplementary, but I think the Hon. Mr Netto has already made the same supplementary four or five times, and he has received the same answer. 1825 But, I will invite the Minister to answer Mr Bossino's question.

Hon. G H Licudi: The position is as already stated. (Interjections)

1830

Students leaving full-time education
Supplementary questions

1835 Clerk: Question 794, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Mr Speaker: Now, the Hon. Mr Reyes has probably had more time than what he thought he was going to have (Laughter) to study the schedules. I invite him to ask any supplementaries that he may have.

1840 A Member: How pathetic.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker. Yes, and thank you for the extra time on that one.

Perhaps, the Minister might be able to shed a little bit of light on small doubts I have. In respect of the schedule, on the first page, that is a reply directly to Questions 794 and 796. The first student referred to, in Westside School, it says the age is 15, the school year is Year 9, and the date of termination is 1st September 2013. Normally, a student attains their 14th birthday in Year 9. This student in Year 9 would have actually reached her 16th birthday in Year 9. It could be a typographical error, or it could be that for 1845 a particular reason, I know that sometimes a student is held back for a year. The Minister might have the information to hand, which is why I ask now.

If not, we can enter into another exchange and not waste Mr Speaker's time now. But does he have a particular note, perhaps, to shed why this student who would have attained their 16th birthday, was still in Year 9 because she seems to have... or it says here she left to seek employment.

1855

Minister for Education, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Yes, Mr Speaker, I asked exactly the same question, because it did catch my eye that there was a student in Year 9, and I was assured that this student left on reaching 15 years of age. What I do not know is whether there was a repeat year, or anything like that, but I was assured that the information given was correct.

1860

Hon. E J Reyes: That is fine, that is acceptable, Mr Speaker.

1865

My fault in respect of Question No. 797, I did not think I would need it, so I did not ask, the particular reasons for leaving, the students who were enrolled for post-GCSE education. One normally takes it that that is because they have had some sort of job offer. But the Minister could well have a little note there, in respect of... I see Bayside School had two students who left, which is the same as Westside, but two students enrolled, yet in the Gibraltar College four students left. Could it be, perhaps, by chance that of the four students who left the college, two happen to be the ones that enrolled in Bayside, so therefore, the overall population figures alter; or was it that two new students enrolled, because, perhaps, they came to settle into Gibraltar, and go into post-GCSE, non-compulsory education? It does have an influence in the final grand total of figures.

1870

The Minister may happen to have a note. If not, I am sure he will probably invite me to write, and I can happily do so, but it may save us both time, if the Director of Education has simply provided him some sort of little footnote.

1875

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I do not believe so. I do not believe that that is the position, because I did ask, and what the question asks is about changes, in particular with respect to students in Year 12, and what the information has been given is changes in the particular schools. I believe, I would have been told that if some of these changes overlapped, in that one person left one school to go to another, I believe I would have been told that because this question was discussed. So the answer, honestly, is that I believe the position is that these are children who have simply left schooling, and two new ones have arrived. That is my understanding.

1880

Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful Mr Speaker, for the time you gave me, and the Minister has been as helpful as obviously he can from the notes provided by his Director.

1885

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

Labour Inspectorate and Future Job Strategy Current details

1890

Clerk: Question 799, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1895

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details, to include the number of individuals, their grades, and how many of them are FJS trainees, currently forming part of the Labour Inspectorate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1900

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Questions 800, 801, 802 and 803.

Clerk: Question 800.

1905

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details as to how the placements of so-called trainees of the FJS are being monitored?

Clerk: Question 801.

1910 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details of the companies currently involved in providing employment to the FJS trainees, to include the names of the companies, directors and shareholders?

Clerk: Question 802.

1915 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House how the training which he claims graduates in the FJS are receiving are designed to produce jobs for them?

Clerk: Question 803.

1920 Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question W152/2013, can the Minister for Employment provide current details of the individuals employed under the Future Job Strategy broken down into each of the FJS companies they are employed by with the duration of their contracts?

1925 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the eight individuals forming the Labour Inspectorate are one HEO, one EO and six graduates.

1930 The role of monitors was discontinued in January 2012, when the £400-a-month so-called vocational training was replaced by employment contracts in the training companies.

There are currently 78 placement providers. They are being contacted to establish if they wish information about their company to be published.

The graduates who are not engaged in research are fulfilling administrative tasks and gaining managerial experience, which will benefit them in their CVs when applying for vacancies in the public or the private sector.

1935 Further to Written Question 152/2013 the details of the individuals employed by the training companies are as follows: CTCL had 64 individuals in the public sector, 63 under 25, all male. The duration of their contracts is up to 11 months.

It had 76 in the private sector, 52 under 25, 24 over 25, all male. The duration of their contracts is as follows: up to three months, 16; up to 11 months, 60.

1940 ETCL had 106 individuals in the public sector: 48 male and 58 female; 77 under the age of 25, 29 over. The duration of their contracts is as follows: up to three months, two; up to six months, 36; up to 11 months, 68.

1945 It had 86 individuals in the private sector: 41 male, 45 female; 46 under 25, and 40 over. The duration of their contracts is as follows: up to three months, 51; up to six months, one; and up to 11 months, 34.

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, there is a lot of information there, and quite a few questions I would like to go through.

1950 In relation to the first one, which related to the Labour Inspectorate, that is something which seriously concerns me. As I understand, Mr Speaker, the Labour Inspectorate, pretty much up to the point that we were in Government, was comprised of all civil servants of a certain grade, and certainly with a lot of experience. I think other than perhaps one individual, they have all gone. I think one retired, and the others have gone to different Departments. This is obviously a very important part of the service which the hon. Member's Department provides.

1955 Now, can he tell me, firstly, whether the HEO is making moves to transfer? I am not sure whether this may be a new HEO, but I have heard that the HEO who had been there previously, up until very recently, has transferred to a different Department. Can he confirm whether there has been any movement in relation to that particular post? Maybe that is the best way I can formulate the question.

1960 Hon. J J Bossano: The answer is no.

Hon. D J Bossino: You do not know or are not answering?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, no – yes, I am answering and I am saying no, there has been no change.

1965 Hon. D J Bossino: So, it is the same HEO. Now, Mr Speaker, are the six graduates, trainees, which he refers to in answer to his question, the same six who were gazetted as being Labour Inspectors, as set out in the relevant Government Notice, I think it is 118/2013? Maybe he can confirm that? And I am assuming that that is the case, because he is nodding.

1970 Can he tell me whether, because I recall in his answer, Mr Speaker, that the reason why they had been appointed as Labour Inspectors... and he will recall the exchange that we had – I was concerned that, again, because of issues of experience, issues of knowledge, and those types of considerations, that graduates should be carrying out the job of Labour Inspectors, a job which is actually, in effect, set out in the relevant provisions of the Employment Act, where they do have extensive powers.

1975 But he said, look in effect, ‘What they are doing is, you know, putting calls through to employers to get some information – that is the only reason why I have appointed them as Labour Inspectors.’ Can he confirm that, or can he advise this House as to how long he expects that these six graduate trainees will be holding that position, and whether the role that they are carrying out has now expanded to what he told me was their role, in answer to the question, I think, two sittings ago?

1980 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I am not sure what the hon. Member thinks the role is, but the primary role of the Labour Inspector is to ensure that employers are complying with the requirements of the law, and that is what the inspection is involved.

1985 And normally, that arises either out of routine inspections, or as a result of somebody claiming that they are not getting something that they are entitled to – which, usually, is put right by a telephone call. The additional work that is being done, which I explained to the hon. Member, and it is certainly not over, and it will not be over, I think, in a short period of time.

1990 Because the reality of it is that the first exercise that the six graduates were involved with, was in an attempt to produce more accurate information, Mr Speaker, was contacting all the people that were registered with employees. I have explained on a number of occasions that anybody on the other side who has been in that Department knows that this is the case, that there is, notwithstanding the fact that the time limits laid in the law for people to keep the record of their employees up to date, is quite short. It does not happen. I can tell the hon. Member, only two days ago, we had a termination of an employee from 99 being registered this week.

1995 So the whole idea is that the accuracy of the information that we have got in the Employment Service... Well, there is a big discrepancy between the Employment Service figures and the figures that we get. I told him the last time, I believe, that historically, my experience has been, that when you try and get information as to the size of the labour force in Gibraltar, there are four sources of information – the Social Insurance, the PAYE, the employment record, and the Employment Survey – and none of the four come up with the same figure. So we have got four different figures and we have got no reason to be 2000 confident that any of the four is more accurate than any other one, or that the true figure may in fact be something different from all four.

2005 We have been attempting, with some success but there is still some way to go, to produce accuracy in a figure, so that some of these very large discrepancies are removed. That has meant that in approaching employers, the employers have, in more than one case, said, ‘Well, why should I give you the information that you want?’ The Labour Inspector, the six graduates that are doing this work as Labour Inspectors, can require employers to provide information as to the number of employees that they have, and then the Employment Service updates the records, which is something they should be doing. Employers can be fined, very draconian fines were introduced, but in fact, they have never been implemented, and they have never been imposed on anybody.

2010 As I have told the House previously, the Government itself – that is to say, Government Authorities, Agencies and companies – were no better at complying with the requirements of the law than the private sector was. So it could hardly be defended, I think, morally, that one should take private sector employers to court, or impose penalties on them, unless we put our house in order first. That exercise is still going on. It is a massive exercise. We are talking about going through 22,000 or 23,000 names, which is what 2015 the record of employees shows, and, in addition to that, of course, whenever we get an indication that those figures do not tally, it means that what we are now doing is sending two of the six on visits, because we had something like 250 employers that we could not contact on the phone, and we do not know whether they are still here or they have disappeared, but they are being now tracked down. The employment records cannot be altered until we get in touch with the people concerned and find out how 2020 many people they are really employing.

So that is, today, still a very important part of the function of the Labour Inspectors, because when that is in, everything has been checked and is in order, then we will make it absolutely clear that from that point on, people will be expected to comply with the requirements of the law, and there will be penalties if they do not. But, we are not there yet.

2025 The other element is where somebody needs advice or has a complaint, on the basis that they do not think that they have been paid what they have been entitled to. In the main, the information that I have, is that those things are cleared up fairly quickly over the phone, and that quite often it is a case of ignorance, rather than bad intentions.

2030 Of course, there are many occasions when, for example, people in the construction industry, maybe with a contract that says that they are on the construction industry rate of pay, and they are not getting paid those, and the position is, as used to be the case before, that strictly speaking the Labour Inspector can only require the minimum wage to be paid, which is the only legally binding thing, the terms of the 2035 CATA contracts are the terms of engagement between an employer and an employee, and as was the case before, when I used to ask the same question from the other side, the answer appears to be – and that is still the legal advice that we are getting – that if somebody has a rate of pay on a contract, and that contract is not being honoured by the employer, then it is the individual and the employer that have got a dispute between them, but that the Department cannot require that amount of money to be paid, because it is not legally binding, in the sense that it is not what the law provides. The law provides a minimum wage of £6 an hour.

2040 And I can tell the Member, of course, that as far as the Department is concerned, the policy is very clear. If a contract comes in with less than £6, it does not get registered. So, if people are being paid, for example, less than the minimum wage, it is usually because the labour is illegal – because if it was legal and registered, the contract would have been sent back.

2045 So, the work of the Department involves these two aspects, and the policy is that, in fact, there will be more people appointed as Inspectors, not exclusively doing that and doing nothing else, but the people in the Department, some of whom have been there for quite a lot of years and are very familiar with the limited range of things which Inspectors are able to enforce, will be appointed as Inspectors, in addition to the team we have got now.

2050 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, instinctively, I have a huge problem, quite frankly, that there should be six trainees, in effect, carrying out and discharging statutory duties. I have made that point to him, in the past, and I made it a few moments ago. He was quite blasé about the role and the duties of a Labour Inspector. But, in fact, they are very clearly set out in section 17 of the Employment Act. The powers which are available to a Labour Inspector are very extensive. They can carry out investigations, they can enter premises, they can require production and disclosure of books, registers, and all that type of thing. Those are the powers which, as a result of the actions which the hon. Member has taken, he has given to six named trainees – and their names in the Gazette, that is instinctively something which I find disturbing, if I can tell him that now.

2060 He mentioned at the end, Mr Speaker, that there is the intention, and I welcome that, to employ more people into the Labour Inspectorate. Now, is the intention...? At the moment we have I think it is eight, a complement of eight – one HEO, one EO and the six graduate employees – is the intention to fill the civil servant posts which have been left vacant, as a result of the individuals who I mentioned earlier who have left to different Departments? Is that the Government's intention?

2065 But is it also the intention to have these gentlemen, or ladies, above the six graduate trainees who are currently working in that Department? Can he explain that to me?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, can I, just for the avoidance of doubt, make clear that the degree of disturbances he is experiencing will not influence my policy, because I am not disturbed in the least.

2070 Hon. D J Bossino: I know you are not.

Hon. J J Bossano: And, in fact, I was very disturbed, when I found the state the Department was in, where people, dead and buried, were still being registered in our statistics as being at work. I do not know how you would impose on employers a requirement to comply with the law for the people who were in North Front, (Laughter) but that now is something that is in the past, fortunately.

2075 I think the hon. Member seems to use the word 'trainee', as if in fact an unemployed graduate that is being given this work was somehow less competent to do it than anybody else. (Interjection)

2080 I have explained on more than one occasion, and in great detail, that effectively what they are doing is making sure that we are equipped for Labour Inspectors to be able to do all their duties and all the responsibilities that they have, which at the moment they cannot do, because we have not got a clue what the real position is, and given that we have got this discrepancy between reality and statistics, it does not seem to me right that we should say to people who, for years, have been permitted to live in this state of free-for-all, that the law was changed, a big hullabaloo was created by introducing fixed penalties, where people would be fined by Labour Inspectors for not having notified the Department within seven days that somebody had ceased working.

2085 Well, if, this is, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member wants to be disturbed about something, let him just put himself in the position that existed before 2011. Here was a law, brought by the Government as taking a very tough line, to make sure that employers complied with their duty under the legislation. There were people being told, that if they did not, within the seven days, notify the Department that somebody was no longer working there, an Inspector would be sent and if he went to the premises and the guy that was supposed to be working was not there, had left, and they had not bothered to tell us, then they could immediately have a fixed penalty imposed on them. But it never happened. The law was there, so you legislate, and now you create all these offences and all these new illegalities, and people are then happily 2095 permitted to carry on doing it. It is very difficult now to get people to comply with the law, when for years nobody has attempted to require the law to be observed.

I find it odd that the hon. Member should be so disturbed because there are now six people investigating the situation, and so undisturbed about the fact that it was 15 years of a cowboy situation, where if you were a conscientious guy, which was a small minority, you actually did what the law says, but the vast majority did not do it. And I keep on telling him that the Government Departments themselves were not doing it. So, it is a vastly improved situation from the point of view of observing the law.

2105 The six people that are there are going to continue doing what they are doing, which is that in order to assist them in the research to get accurate information... If, I have given, for example, the hon. Member, previously, an explanation of what we want to do in terms of training, and how applying logic to the situation, we say to ourselves, 'Well look, we need to find out first what is the demographic structure of the workforce in a particular industry and in a particular trade, but the figure is not reliable,' can he not see how important it is to get reliable figures?

2110 If I go by the statistics in the Employment Department, and there are 2,000 construction workers, and of those construction workers, we have got 50 carpenters, and the 50 carpenters have gone into the records we have got, ranged between the age of 40 and the age of 60, and I start planning to produce trained people, in the expectation that there will be a need for succession of people retiring, so that we do not rely on having to import. But if the statistics on which all that exercise has been done are not sufficiently reliable for us to be confident, so we are making an assumption that it is perhaps 70% accurate, or 60% accurate, well surely, he can see the value of what is being done. I have told him that the six are engaged in doing this, and that the only reason why it was necessary to give them the power was to make sure that if people refused to give them their payroll details, or the list of workers that they have got, so that they could be compared with the records, they would be able to require that information to be provided.

2120 Look, the fact that Labour Inspectors can do lots of other things does not mean that people then go out and start doing all the things the law allows them to do. So, they are doing what is required. The additional officers that will be appointed will be from the existing people in the Department, and it will be on top of the figures that I have given.

2125 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member completely misses the point of my question. He completely misses the point of my question. My question was not to do with, as he puts it, the 'free-for-all', that there were dead people in North Front and all the rest of it. That is not the point. The point is the people who are discharging the duties, that is the point. And, with respect to the hon. Member, he has not answered my question, and the question – (Interjection)

2130 Mr Speaker: Well, if he has not answered the question, if he has not answered the question (Laughter) he has been at it for 20 minutes, (Laughter) so if a question is not answered by a Minister who holds the floor for 20 minutes, I do not know when it is going to be answered. (Laughter) (Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker –)

2135 But I should give notice that we are going to move on, because we are not going to be dealing with the Labour Inspectorate all morning, right? There are other questions which have all been answered together, and I will ask the hon. Member to move on to those as well.

2140 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, that is a criticism, I take it and I know there are various Government Ministers laughing about the intervention that the Speaker has just made – but actually that is a criticism of the Hon. Minister, not of me! It is the Hon. Minister who was rambling, and taking ages to answer a question. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) It is not the question that I am posing, Mr Speaker.

2145 Mr Speaker: The hon. Member asked the Minister for Employment what was the role – what was the role of the Inspectorate. Did he not ask that question? (Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker –) Did he, or did he not ask about the role of the Inspectorate? Yes.

2150 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, but that is not the point. I may have asked that question, I may have asked three or four questions, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: You did ask the question! No, no, hang on, (Interjection) because I am not gaga, you know! (Laughter) Far from it!

2155 The hon. Member asked, in a supplementary, what is the role of the Labour Inspectorate, and the Hon. Mr Bossano has spent 15 minutes explaining that. (Interjection) Right, right, right.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have immense respect for the Speaker. He knows that, I have immense respect for him personally, and never, ever, ever would I have thought that he is gaga. Indeed, I have immense respect for the Hon. the Minister for Employment as well, so that is not the point.

2160 The point is the length... Mr Speaker, alights on one issue, and that is the length of the answer, that is the only point I am making, that has got nothing to do with me. I asked the questions, I cannot determine how long the Hon. Minister opposite is going to take to answer the questions. So, if this is lengthy, it is as a result of the hon. Member's intervention, and not mine.

I am not criticising the length of the answer. This is you, Mr Speaker, who is making that criticism.

2165 The point-specific discrete issue which I asked him in the question, Mr Speaker, is whether he intends to replenish the Labour Inspectorate with civil service posts, and if so – (Interjection) the point has not been answered, with respect – and Mr Speaker, and if so, how many?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, clearly the hon. Member – (Interjection)

2170 Mr Speaker: Could I also enjoin the hon. Member who has been here since 1972, the principle that not only should questions be short, sharp and to the point, but as far as possible, so should the answers.

Hon. D J Bossino: Exactly.

2175 Several Members: Hear, hear. (Banging on desks)

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I am criticised if I am short, sharp and to the point, and I say yes or no, and I am criticised if I provide a lot of information, so it is a no-win situation. (Laughter)

2180 I have to say to the hon. Member that maybe because I gave him more information than he wants to have, clearly he missed the fact that I also gave him the information that he was asking. I finished my answer to him by telling him that there would be additional officers, that they would be from the existing people, who have been in the Department, and that they would be in addition and not in substitution of the six. I have already told him that, and that is the answer that he says that I have not given, and I have given it. (Interjection) The record will show that I am saying the same thing twice.

2185 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, I heard that answer. I think, I may have lost the... Maybe I am getting gaga, Mr Speaker. I have a recollection of the... My supplementary was in answer to the point he has just made. And I think the supplementary was, how many positions is he intending to make available? That is the question, in respect of which I do not think I have had an answer, with respect.

2190 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I have not got a maximum or a minimum. That is to say, we will make other officers of the Department that have been there a long time and are experienced, which seems to be the thing that is causing him to lose sleep, in addition to the complement we have got now. Maybe another four or five.

2195 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I can certainly say that I sleep like a baby – I have to say, it is one of the positives in my life. (Interjections) But Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister tell me whether, before somebody or after somebody takes on the position of Labour Inspector, that person is required to undertake any training that is specific to being a Labour Inspector?

2200 Hon. J J Bossano: To my knowledge that has never happened, ever.

2205 Hon. D A Feetham: So, as I understand it, therefore, when these trainees become Labour Inspectors, they do not receive any kind of training that would help them become Labour Inspectors either. Because, they are, effectively, acting as Labour Inspectors. They are not being trained to act as Labour Inspectors.

2210 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, just because his colleague to his left decides to call them trainees, that does not mean that they are trainees. They are not being trained as Labour Inspectors. They are not trained Labour Inspectors. I have explained on numerous occasions today, and in previous meetings, already. It is therefore for the record in Hansard that these graduates are doing research into the labour market, in order to eliminate the inaccuracies in the records of the Department available to the Parliament.

2215 I would have thought that the Members opposite, who are so keen to be given information, would welcome the fact that in future that information will be more accurate. I would have welcomed it when I was there. But in fact nothing was done in 15 years to improve the accuracy. The only thing that was done was to legislate to make the private sector behave, but in fact, the legislation never worked, because it was never actually put into effect. Nobody was ever fined by anybody for failing to put in a termination after seven days, or within seven days, and if that is not done, how can the Labour Inspectorate be in a 2220 position to ensure that the law is being implemented, as required, and impose fixed penalties, which the law allows them to do, when none of the data on record is accurate, and when I have already told him that there are 250 employers recorded in the Employment Service with employees who may not be there?

2225 I find it extraordinary that the hon. Member seems totally unconcerned about that. He is only concerned that the graduates are graduates, and not post graduates, or doctors, or some other higher qualification, and that somehow puts the system at risk. What puts the system at risk was the shambles that was there, which I have not yet been able, regrettably, to put right, even after two years.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Oh, but you will.

2230 Hon. J J Bossano: But I will, yes of course. (Interjections)

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I only have to rise for the hon. Gentleman to apparently get angry. I only have to ask a question (Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, yes!) and he gets angry!

2235 Hon. D J Bossino: Do not get angry.

Hon. D A Feetham: Look, I am not –

2240 Mr Speaker: He was not referring to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition; he was referring to his hon. colleague – (Interjections)

Hon. D A Feetham: He was referring to me and the question I have asked! (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: He was referring to the hon. colleague.

2245 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, perhaps, if I may throw some sharp focus into this debate. The – (Interjections)

Hon. D A Feetham: Do you want me to give way?

2250 Mr Speaker: No, no, the Hon. Leader of the Opposition has the floor.

2255 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, if he was referring to the hon. Gentleman, not me, I apologise. I thought that he was getting angry at my question and my lack of concern. But, I can assure him, there is no lack of concern here, I am just trying to get to grips with, what the role of these individuals are, because, of course, if all that they are doing, they may have been appointed as Labour Inspectors, but if all they are doing is research work, they are effectively not doing the work of a Labour Inspector. Is it the Government's policy to just keep these trainees – I hope he does not mind my using the term 'trainee' – using these trainees, doing research rather than going and doing, for example, field work, which is also part of a Labour Inspector's role? (Interjections)

2260 Hon. J J Bossano: It is easier to get exasperated than angry. I have already given the answer. I have given the answer to the hon. Member's question already, today as well as previously. I have said – (Interjections)

2265 Mr Speaker: And therefore because you have, I am really bringing matters to an end on the Labour Inspectorate. Because the Hon. Minister is answering the same question again and again and again. (Interjections) I know that he has answered and Hansard will prove the fact that that question has been answered. Maybe, because he was holding the floor for 15 minutes, maybe the attention of Members of the Opposition wandered, and they missed the point, but he definitely (Interjections) he definitely did answer – he answered that (Interjections) and in his answer was he not dealing with policy? (Interjections) The Hon. Minister was dealing with policy in the answer. (Interjections)

2270 Hon. N F Costa: Let's not go over it again, we all know about it – we listened to it.

2275 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, let me see if I can reduce it to words of one syllable and maybe then the message will get through.

There are six people who are graduates, who are employed in conducting the research that is required to have accurate records. Since I informed the Members of the House of this, and repeatedly today, I have told them that that is the function they have, and in order to be able to get the information that is required

2280 to remove the inaccuracies, they have to have the power that says to the employer, 'You cannot refuse to give me this information, because...' –

Hon. D A Feetham: I understand all that – 2285 Hon. J J Bossano: That is the only thing they are doing, so what is it that he does not understand?

2290 Hon. D A Feetham: So therefore the policy of the Government is not to allow them to do any field work, which is also the function of a Labour Inspector? That was the question, that they are not going to be doing... The policy of the Government is not to allow them to do any field work – that is it, that is the question.

2295 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, is it then the case that what he calls field work is leaving the office and looking for the – ? (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.) Yes, well clearly then the answer to that is that I have already told him that as well. I have already told him there are 250 employers recorded with the Employment Service that were not contactable by telephone, and now two of the six are trying to establish whether those employers and their employees still exist or not. And they are doing it in order to be able to conduct and complete the research on the accuracy of the records.

2300 I do not understand why they have great difficulty in understanding what is self-evident, because it has been explained ad nauseam so many times. If they still do not understand it, I am happy, to stand up here and tell them a hundred times, if it is necessary. But it is a very simple thing. There are 250 people that were not contactable. We want to know whether they are still here, and if they are not here, we want to be able to say to Members opposite, when they ask a question, how many construction companies are there, to have a figure that is more accurate than what I have got now, because now I do not know whether the people have had their telephones cut off or they just do not exist. I suspect a lot of them have stopped being in existence for many years. (Interjections)

2305 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Bossino asked other questions: does he have any supplementaries on those?

2310 Hon. D J Bossino: Oh, yes, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Oh, yes, right let us get on with it please, because we must make progress. We are not going to be here all day, dealing with the same subject.

2315 Hon. D J Bossino: I do not think any of us... Anyway, Mr Speaker... Let's see.

In relation to the monitoring of the FJS trainees, is the hon. Member telling this House, if I have understood his answer correctly, that there is no monitoring whatsoever? Is that the position? Because, he mentioned –

2320 Mr Speaker: The hon. Member may not have the answer in front of him, but I do, right, and I am not allowing the same question to be asked. He was told: the role of monitors was discontinued in January 2012. So it has been discontinued. Is that clear? Does he understand that?
Now, let's get on to something else.

2325 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, that was a clarification. The Speaker is correct that I do not have the answer to the question set out as –

Mr Speaker: There you are. Now you have got the answer to the question. Let's see if we can make –

2330 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, shall I go to the corner? (Several Members: Ooh!) (Laughter)

Mr Speaker: The second part – there you are... [Inaudible]

2335 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, if I can just finish – (Interjection by Mr Speaker) Mr Speaker, if I can just finish the point, I do not have the written answer in front of me. The Speaker does, I do not have it, that is why I requested clarification. The hon. Member has chosen, as he normally does, Mr Speaker, to bunch up five questions together. (Interjections) Five questions together, which is what he normally does. So that is the only point I was saying. I am grateful to the Speaker for the clarification.

2340 Now, Mr Speaker, how is it possible for the Government, for his Department, to monitor how the trainees are doing in their training?

2345 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the previous system that had monitors, had monitors because people were not placed with somebody that guaranteed them a job. And therefore, the performance of the person, in learning the job, is guaranteed by the fact that there is a job at the end of the day, and if the person is not performing as he should, then the employer has to decide that in the first month. There is no need for the monitoring role that existed before. Because they are no longer students, they are now employees of a company that provides that employee, as a trainee, for an agreed period of time...

2350 And I have already given him the statistics, of the percentage that get employment, and therefore, there is no other requirement, other than the employers have a form to fill up, on a monthly basis, telling us how the people are doing. But, at the end of the day, the commitment is inescapable – either they employ or they pay.

2355 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, how does he ensure – ? He knows that I made the point in his reply to me on GBC in an interview. How does he ensure, for example, that trainees actually attend on their placements?

2360 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the employers are required to make a return which shows if the person is absent, if the person is sick, or if the person is on leave. If the person is absent, I do not know what experience the hon. Member has of employment, but I can tell him that no employer would tolerate somebody being absent, in the knowledge that they would have to take him on and pay him at the end of the three months, or whatever. So the reality of it is that the system that exists is one which I am satisfied is producing the results that it is designed to produce, which is that the people are being trained for jobs that exist, and are getting the jobs at the end of their training.

2365 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, really, herein lies, I think, the difference between the Government and Opposition in relation to this – one of the distinctions, one of the fundamental differences.

2370 Am I right in saying, really, that what the hon. Gentleman is saying is this: we are really not concerned about the quality of the training that somebody receives, because, quite frankly, somebody cannot receive proper training in one month. What we are really concerned about (Interjection) is making sure that those people are employed by an employer. It is statistically driven, in other words, to reduce unemployment in Gibraltar, or get people into employment, not necessarily training driven – am I right?

2375 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is wrong, because, he knows very well the statistics of the results of the training that was existing before, where it existed – that is to say, there are now many carers in the Care Agency, as a result of training being provided which did not exist before 2011. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) And I have told them that we have now got an intake of people who are doing City and Guilds in the work trades, where clearly the training is linked to obtaining qualifications. We have been providing training for people to be qualified as bus drivers, which will mean that we will not have to bring bus drivers from outside, like we have been doing for the last 15 years.

But, of course, everything that we are doing is in order to get people into employment. That is what Employment Ministers are supposed to do. That is what they get paid for.

2385 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, you see, even under the previous administration, there were different layers, different bows, so to speak, different strings to the bow, in terms of training. One had VTS on the one hand, one had the Construction and Training Centre, there were other training schemes in place. But this one-month training relates to what used to be, effectively, the VTS on-the-job training. Now, I am asking the Minister, what on earth can an individual, one of our young people, learn in one month? One cannot describe this as a training scheme. One can describe it as an attempt to get people in employment – I accept that – but it cannot possibly be described as a training scheme, because it is not possible to learn something worthwhile in one month. Is that not the case?

2395 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, clearly the problem with the hon. Member is that he does not listen to what I tell him, and then he jumps to the wrong conclusions – (Interjection) Well, all I can tell the hon. Member, I have said to him, the one-month probation is the period that the employer has, to decide whether the person is going to be suitable or not – 2400 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, to take them on.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, they do not take them on at the end of the one month. I have already told him, that they take them on at the end of the training, which is longer than the one month, and if they take them on after the one month, that is fine, but if in the second month, or the third month, they say no, then they have to pay back the money.

2405 Did he miss all that? Was it his hearing or his unwillingness to accept the reality of the situation? Which is that what is happening now is two or three times as successful as what was happening before, in terms of getting employment, which he has repeatedly told us they would welcome. They want us to be successful. They want more people to be employed. Well, why is it that, for somebody who wants something to succeed, I have never seen anybody try so hard to make it fail?

2410 Hon. D A Feetham: What is the average period of training, in relation to this? I am talking about the replacement for the VTS. Originally, we started off last year with an 11-month contract, and I can understand that, in 11 months, you could say that somebody is obtaining some training. I think that 11 months is too short a period, in any event, but certainly I can see that in certain areas, 11 months could be sufficient.

2415 Then it was reduced by the Government to six months, then it was reduced to three months. Now it is one month. It is all very well for the Hon. Minister to stand up, and to say, 'Ah, no, no, no,' when he is caught out in this House – 'No, the one month is just a probation, but they get more training.'

2420 What is the average timescale for training of these individuals? Because it does not appear to us that there is a timescale for training, and this is just a scheme, in which to churn people – place them in employment, often in companies that the Government itself has helped incorporate, (Banging on desks) registered at No. 6 Convent Place and at his Ministry, which we only found out by chance, by searching Companies House.

2425 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr, Speaker, what is quite obvious is that the level of political dishonesty of the Member opposite means that it is a complete waste of time trying to give explanations.

He says that when I am caught out, I then come up and call it a month probation. I have been calling it a month probation since 1st February 2012! Has he forgotten that?

2430 What he has said is simply not true. It is not that I have been caught out today, and for the first time today, I have converted training programmes of one month into probation periods of one month. The probation period of one month was announced on 1st February 2012, and I said, if there is somebody with an 11-month contract, the first month – and I said it in the first month – is the time that the employer has got to decide whether they want to continue with that training or not.

2435 If, within the first month, the employer turns round to us, and says, 'We think this person is not the right person for this job', or 'we do not think he is showing enough interest, and I would like somebody else,' then the person comes back, and a new trainee is put in that placement.

2440 This has been explained since it started on 1st February 2012, and he now accuses me of having been caught out by him today, and inventing the one-month probation. Well, that is nonsense, like most of the things he says are nonsense, and in fact, it is clear that he is not remotely interested in the fact that more people are working now, than ever before. He is only interested in seeing what he can do to make out that there is some heinous plot, which conforms to the bad image of the policies of the Government that the GSD used to have, when he was in the GSLP and they were criticising us, including him.

2445 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he really should not be as sensitive as he appears to be today, in his reactions to my questions.

2450 But look, he says there is a one-month probation, during which the employer makes a decision. We know that these contracts are contracts that are being entered into with ETCL. What is the length of the contracts that these trainees enter with ETCL? Because, as I understand it, those contracts have gone down from 11 months to three months, and now (Interjection) – to three months; I am told it has not come down to one month, but certainly three months. Even if it is three months, what can anybody expect to learn? That is the point, that is what divides us. We want to get to the bottom of how well people are being trained, particularly the young people in Gibraltar. Now, what can people learn in three months?

2455 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the information the hon. Member is asking has already been provided today, as well as in the past. In the original answer, I have given a detailed breakdown of the length of the contracts of everybody, with their ages and their gender. What more does he want?

2460 There are 76 individuals in the private sector, 16 with three months, and 60 with 11 months, under 25, 52 of them, and over 25 (Interjections) the remaining 24 – I mean, all this information shows is that, as I have tried to explain to them, if they are really interested in seeing the logic of the system, it is driven by the demand in the market. So, if somebody says to us, 'Look, we want to train somebody to make hamburgers,' well look, I think it can be done in three months, actually. (Laughter) Now he may think it requires a degree in hamburgers; I do not – and the guy that wants to employ him does not either. Obviously, the person will argue that it takes much longer, because he wants to have him longer paid by us, rather than by him.

2465 But the answer is that we ask people to be realistic, and where there are people that can learn the job quicker than the 11 months, it makes sense to do it. Because then, as I have also explained before to the hon. Members, it means that with the same budget, we can actually help more people – which we all ought to be in favour of, because ultimately the result of the system will be seen when we see whether there are more Gibraltarians in employment.

2470 And I am saying to him, as I did a year ago, the Employment Survey for October will once again show a record number of Gibraltarians with jobs. We have got an obligation, not just in the Government but in the Parliament, to achieve that, because we ought to want our people to have jobs, and not have to rely on having to bring people in, unless it is in areas where the skills cannot be obtained.

2475 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I would be happy to hear and move on to another supplementary in relation to one of the bunched up questions, and that is in Question 801, I think it was. The hon. Member has answered it, but I am not sure he has understood the question, and it is possible to have the two interpretations. I do accept that 2480 And that is what I asked whether the companies currently involved in providing employment to the FJS trainees... whether he could provide information, which includes the names of the companies, directors and shareholders. What I meant was the Government-owned companies which form part of the FJS structure – in other words, CTCL, ETCL – I cannot remember the names, I have got the details here.

2485 The answers I have had from the hon. Gentleman in the past, or my colleague, Mr Feetham has had from him in the past, is that there are four subsidiary companies. I have just mentioned two, ETCL and CTCL; there is Graduate Research Development Company, Supported Employment Company Limited, and the parent of those companies is a further company, called Economic Development and Employment Company Limited, which has some sort of relationship above it with the Gibraltar Development Corporation.

2490 I just wanted – if he does not have any information with him, but I am sure it is something he is very familiar with – whether he can provide me with the full details of... in other words, whether the information I have just given him is accurate as at today' date, or are there more companies involved in the provision of that particular service?

2495 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not know whether it is that the hon. Member is now trying to change the question that he put. The question that he put previously cannot have any interpretation other than the one that has been given to it by my Department, because the hon. Member says, can he have the details of the companies, currently, involved in providing employment to the FJS trainees, to include the name of the companies, which has already been given in the past, the directors, and the shareholders? Well, how can he say, 'I want to know who are the shareholders of the companies that are owned by the Government'? Well, the shareholders of the companies that are owned by the Government are the Government. So why does he want to know the shareholders?

2500 The reality of it is that the only considerable interpretation is that they wanted to know the details of who are the people providing the training and where the trainees are placed. Now, that is what I have told him. There are 78 private companies that have got trainees. If that is not the information that he is seeking, then the answer is there are no new Government companies. They are the same Government companies that were there before, with the same shareholders and the same directors. And the information is known to him already.

2510 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, no, Mr Speaker, the current information would not have been known to me, necessarily, but the interpretation of the question is very clear, in fact because I just based myself on the explanations that the hon. Member has given us as to how the scheme works. The FJS trainees, are employed by the Government's own company. They are not employed by the placement provider, until they stop being FJS trainees, and then they become employees of the placement provider. That is how I understood it. That is why the question was very specifically phrased, and I thought I have been, but you know, I think, generous to the hon. Gentleman by saying that it is possible that it would be open to those two interpretations. But, the question was very specifically phrased, in order to elicit the answer that I wanted. But, I am grateful to the hon. Member.

2515 And simply, just to alight on one point that he made in his answer, which is that he has provided me with the names of the companies of – in this case, the 78 placement providers – I do not think he has. In fact, that is a bone of contention that he knows we have aired publicly in press releases, that I will not be satisfied as to the success or otherwise of the scheme, until he provides me with the details of the employers who are actually employing the FJS trainees.

2520 So can he, maybe, clarify that in fact his position is that he will not provide this House with information as to who the placement providers, and then potential employers are?

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the question that he is asking me now is the question that he says was not the question that he asked me before, but the one that I misinterpreted him as asking, to which I have already given him an answer.

2530 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 802, which dealt with the FJS trainees, and how he says I asked whether the training that they are receiving... how that training is designed to produce jobs for them, really that is based on one of his announcements, shortly after he took office as Minister for the Employment, were he was very confident that the training which these individuals would be receiving would be designed to produce jobs for them.

2535 Now, the reports that I am getting, at least in relation to some of the trainees – I cannot say accurately that it relates to all of them – those who are employed by the grad company is that many of them are actually doing rather menial jobs, and not what they thought and what was promised to them in the manifesto – like, for example, filing and stuff like that. I made this point, I think two sittings ago, where there was a very clear and express manifesto commitment, at page 25, of the GSLP manifesto, where he said – or rather, where the party now in power said – that those graduates returning to Gibraltar will be given a three-year contract as research assistants, and will be involved in undertaking the research work of the Departments, relating to inward investment, manpower planning, and efficiency measures, to assist economic growth.

2545 Now, given the very clear promise which was made, how does he marry that with those individuals who are doing filing in Departments, which have got nothing to do with economic growth?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it is very easy, Mr Speaker, when that was put in the manifesto, we were being told by the Government that was in office then that there were only five or six, and I have already told him that. It is not possible to have 70 graduates and provide them all with the level of research that is available. We are using many more than we originally intended, simply because there are so many people that we found without work. In addition, of course, some of the people that we have taken on went beyond what was in the manifesto, in the sense that it is very clear, in that manifesto which he has read, that the opportunity was being given to returning graduates.

2555 And there have been a number of instances, which certainly I want to make clear is not the intention of the scheme, and we were not conscious of it when it happened, that actually gave up their employment, and then registered as unemployed, and we put them in the scheme, thinking they had just come back, and they had not.

2560 There is no point in people who have got degrees and are now working in the private sector resigning from their jobs, in the expectation that this is a back door into the public sector, because it is not, and it was never intended to be.

2565 The reality of it is that there are something like 45 former graduate trainees who are in full-time employment in the private sector. They might have been able to get those jobs anyway, even if they had not been doing this, but we believe that the work that they are doing, and the range of places that we send them to, will be of assistance to them when they compete for jobs. But certainly, the requirement in the Department for people engaged in the research is not in the numbers that we have now taken on.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in relation to competition for jobs, can he confirm that graduate employees... sorry, the trainees who are currently employed in the graduate company will be able to, fairly and squarely, compete for positions within the Civil Service, as with all the other – I think he said so before – certainly, in relation to the FJS trainees – with people from outside and people internally, within the Civil Service? Will they be able to compete for those positions?

2575 Hon. J J Bossano: I can tell the hon. Member that, in fact, when applications were opened for AAs, many of our graduates and other trainees, notwithstanding the fact that they had the advantage of having had some experience in Departments, were not selected, because the quality of the applicants was so high.

2580 I can understand that the people doing the interviewing... even though they may have somebody that can say, 'Well, look, I have been working in such and such a Department, doing such and such a job, in the last 12 months,' that person that has that advantage, when competing in the Government for a job, where there were people, as I have explained to him already, that were applying who had maybe 20 years of working in a bank, or 20 years of working in an accountancy firm, or in the finance sector, in a situation where the vacancies that were being opened in the Government were weighted by a need for applicants with numeracy skills, where we have got a shortage within the Government... It is in areas like the Treasury where we tend to have a lack, within the Government, of people that either like or are capable of doing that level of work, and would rather be doing something else.

2585 So, in the interviewing exercise, people who came from the background of those financial services were given a higher ranking than those that came from a different background, when the selection was done, by the Public Service Commission. And that meant, I regret to say from my perspective, as a

2590 Minister for Employment, that some of the people that I had unemployed and some of the people that I had in the training schemes, and some of the people that I had as graduates in the grad scheme were not selected because there were so many people with many years of experience and of knowledge of accountancy and that kind of work, which was an area that we were short of in Government, and therefore, logically, the people who were doing the selecting were driven by other priorities than mine.
2595 My priorities would have been, frankly, to have had the ones that I had on my books getting employed, because that would have meant that I would have then had money to be able to help other people. But it did not happen, and therefore there is no guarantee – and I have said it on many occasions, because I want to send a very clear message – the fact that people are working in a particular Department at the moment does not mean that they have got a higher priority or an entitlement or a guarantee of anything.

2600 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that. So the answer is yes, they can compete for the jobs. That is the position.

Hon. J J Bossano: They can apply, and they get in on their merits, yes, of course.

2605 Mr Speaker: Will you call Question 804?

Rock Administrative Services (Gibraltar) Limited Details of services provided to Government

2610

Clerk: Question 804, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2615 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details of the services which are being provided to the Government by Rock Administrative Services (Gibraltar) Limited?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

2620 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): This company provides supply cover to the public sector.

2625 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, there is a specific question which arises from that answer. The individuals who are employed by this company and are providing, as he said, the supply cover: can they also compete for the vacancies which arise within the Civil Service, along with the others, with the FJS trainees, the graduates, and other civil servants, or even people from outside? Are they able to compete for those jobs?

2630 Hon. J J Bossano: They are only able to compete for jobs that are at the entry grade. The jobs in the Civil Service are either promotion, in which case there are only people who are in those grades that can apply, or there are jobs that are at the entry grade. At the entry grade, not just these people, but other people that are on permanent supply can apply for.

Hon. D J Bossino: And not just specifically the Civil Service, but also GDC – would that apply, for example, I think it is grade 1 in the GDC? Can he confirm that?

2635 Hon. J J Bossano: They can apply for any entry grade jobs in the public sector.

2640 Hon. D J Bossino: And by public sector, we are using the definition employed by the Employment Survey, which includes Government Agencies, Statutory Authorities – I know he is nodding his head, but may he for the sake of the record, say yes. (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) I am very grateful for the short reply.

2645 Mr Speaker, is the hon. Member able to give me some details as to the terms, pursuant to which these individuals are employed? For example, do they have the same pension rights; do they have the same entitlement to leave; do they have the same entitlement to sick leave? I am just trying to establish whether they are similar, or on exactly the same terms as their colleagues in the rest of the Civil Service. Or is there any difference there? I wonder whether he could answer that question.

I think we are going to have an intervention from the Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I am going to allow the supplementary, but it does not arise... The original question is '... Employment provide details of the services which are being provided...'. It does not say anything

2650 about the terms and conditions on which they are employed. But, I am going to allow it, so that the hon. –
Seeing that we are getting into the Christmas period, I am going to be generous.

2655 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, it also arises from the answer that he has given, because he says that they provide unemployment... It could have been any number of services that Rock Administration could be providing as a company. Specifically – (Interjection) No, specifically, it is providing an employment service. Therefore I think, with all due respect, it arises from the answer that I have received from the hon. Member.

2660 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the Government has been using employment agencies to provide cover for years. This is not the only one. The Opposition just wants to know about this one, but this is not the only one that does it, and it is not something that has never happened before.

2665 What is new this year is that we have actually taken steps to address an area where previously there was a certain amount of discontent – legitimate discontent, in my view – in the public service, in that, if there was a high incidence of sickness, or a small Department lost two or three of its members, on maternity grounds or that kind of thing, the Department was supposed to carry on with the workload with the remaining staff. And this year, the Parliament voted a token vote, to provide cover which previously had existed in some areas, but not in others, and we actually treated every Department the same.

2670 So, the answer is that they are employees of a private firm – of this and of other private firms, there are quite a number of them – who get called to send somebody to work in a Department, but on terms which involve the private firm getting paid a premium over the rate of pay that they pay to the individual. But the conditions are there, the conditions of the private sector. They are not in the Civil Service, they are not the same as the rest, because if they were the rest, then they would be civil servants. They are not civil servants. And it has been going on for a long time.

2675 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can he tell me, can the Hon. Minister tell this House, whether this company is taking on FJS trainees? Does he have that information, and can he provide me with that information?

2680 Hon. J J Bossano: Like every Government contractor, and everybody providing a service, they are encouraged to do so.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

2685 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, presumably, I know he probably needs notice of this question, but can he give me at least a rough estimate of how many of those trainees Rock Administrative has taken on, or has currently taken on?

2690 Hon. J J Bossano: No, I cannot tell him whether there is one, none or many, because he knows I am not prepared to identify the people that take placements. He knows that already. (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: Next question, Question 805.

2695 Housing Works Agency
Compliance with recruitment requirements

Clerk: Question 805, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2700 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment confirm that the requirements for recruitment at the Housing Works Agency are being complied with?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

2705 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, there is no requirement for recruitment in the Housing Works Agency.

2710 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I obviously stand to be corrected. That was not the understanding that I have, but I understand from my colleagues they may have answered the questions in previous sittings of the House.

The point I am trying to home in on is: as I understood there was an agreement, when the Agency was created, whereby if two individuals left the Agency but not by way of retirement, there would then be a replacement of one. So in other words, it was a 2:1 arrangement, and that is a specific point that, I understand, is not being adhered to.

2715 But if the hon. Member is telling me that that was not part of the deal, part of the terms of the contracts in the first place, then obviously, I clearly stand to be corrected, but so that he understands where the question was coming from, and perhaps he can elucidate further.

2720 Hon. J J Bossano: There is the reference that the hon. Member has made to two persons leaving and one being recruited, which, of course, is a mechanism designed to ensure the disappearance of the Agency, eventually. By inevitable arithmetical logic, if you replace two by one, eventually you will have two and then one, and then possibly a part-timer, a half.

2725 The Agency does not, at this moment, require to recruit anybody, independent of that. Just like, in 2011, there were 127 unfilled positions in the public service, on the complement which were not being filled, and in some cases going back to 10 years, and therefore, the filling of positions in the area will be undertaken when the Agency feels that it is appropriate to do so. But there is no time limit, as to when this should be done.

2730 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary? Yes.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I quite understand that. I do not have the grasp of mathematics that obviously the hon. Gentleman has, but of course, if you lose two and you do not replace them, you are going to get quicker to zero than if you are replacing it by one. Yes, that much is logical to me.

2735 Does the hon. Gentleman have the statistics, in terms of how many people have actually exited, and how many have been employed? If you have provided it, I apologise, but I have not been following this particular aspect of it.

2740 Hon. J J Bossano: The figure was given in a written answer previously, and there is only one extra body since that answer.

Hon. D A Feetham: One extra body.

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.

2745 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries?

Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker, because the Minister has had a legitimate occasion to refer back to the written schedule that was kindly handed over before...?

2750 I am a bit confused in respect of one of the figures provided, Mr Speaker. Perhaps the Minister does have a particular note there.

2755 In respect of employees transferred out of the Housing Works Agency, I have got, on two occasions, one for 14th March and one for 19th March of last year. In respect of each of them, there are two, and it says 'craftsman/works supervisor'. Can he enlighten me, they are either craftsmen or they are works supervisors who were previously craftsmen. It is the same as saying teacher/head teacher. You are either a head teacher, receiving an equivalent head teacher's salary, or you are simply not promoted to be head teacher and you are just a teacher. So are they craftsmen or are they work supervisors?

It is half way down the page where it says 'transferred out'.

The author of the schedule, I believe, was the Minister for Housing. (Interjections and laughter)

2760 Mr Speaker: Let us pursue the matter –

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, there are –

2765 Mr Speaker: – behind my Chair, and then, once it is understood what it is that he is after, and who should be answering it, then it can be answered – hopefully.

2770 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, it arises from my question in relation to the Housing Works Agency. There has been a reply to the movements that there have been in the Agency, in answer to a written question, which was Written Question 146/2013, posed by my hon. Friend and colleague, Mr Reyes, and I assume, at the time, the Hon. Mr Balban already had responsibility for Housing. What my hon. colleague is asking is a specific question in relation to the description of two craftsmen/works supervisors, which are set out in the schedule as transferring out from the Agency. That is a specific question which my hon. Friend is asking.

2775 Hon. D A Feetham: But anybody can answer.

Hon. D J Bossino: We are happy, yes – any takers, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) We are quite fine, so long as we get an answer this time.

2780 Hon. J J Bossano: I think the most probable answer, subject to going back and finding out, is that they were craftsmen acting as work supervisors. That is usually what it means when it has that line between the two.

2785 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is the hon. Member, Mr Bossano, the Minister for Employment, is he able to tell me...? The information that we have is that those two craftsmen/work supervisors have, in fact, transferred to his Department. Does he have that information? If he does, can he confirm whether what I am stating is correct, or otherwise?

2790 Hon. J J Bossano: The persons that have transferred, have transferred location geographically, but are engaged in work for the Housing Agency, in the sense that they are involved in the identification... I gave the hon. Member earlier the example of when the work is received from the customer, the first thing is that somebody goes out to do a spec of what it needs doing. Then, that is passed to an estimator, who also is working with me, and that estimator produces an estimate of what a contractor ought to be charging, given the costings that they use in the Housing Works Agency.

2795 So, the nature of the work has not changed, but the place where they are working from has changed.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can he tell us which geographical location has received these two individuals?

2800 Hon. J J Bossano: The geographical location is where they used to be, before they were moved to the other geographical location, which is in 31 Town Range.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

2805 I am a little bit confused arising from that answer. (Laughter) Can then, Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment then explain to me what the difference is between having been transferred out or being seconded? Because I thought I was following his logic, that you are an employee of the Housing Works Agency, and because of a particular task required geographically, he was asked to go and sit nearer the Minister's domain, and then one can understand you are seconded for that purpose, but that then must be contradictory to the other one being transferred out. So, what is the difference between being transferred out or seconded, if really they both pertain to the Agency? I do not know.

2810 Mr Speaker: As Chairman of the PSC, I could answer that one for you, if you like! (Interjections)

A Member: If we can ask supplementaries, you can! (Interjections)

2815 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, when staff is moved, from one area to the other, the policy is, that we keep them on the budget of the original area until 31st March, so they are seconded, and then on 1st April, in the new Estimates, Members will see that there is usually a foot note, in the Estimates Book which they approve, which says, 'previously shown under such and such a head'. So, while they are seconded, they are still shown in their original head.

2820 Hon. E J Reyes: Okay so, yes, the secondment then is only really effective during the course of that financial year, leading up to, in most probability, to be permanently transferred out.

2825 If I may indulge in your generosity, Mr Speaker, at the very, very top of the two gentlemen who retired, it said 'craftsman/COO', and I am not well acquainted with that terminology, and given that I have got the Minister for Employment's attention, who is more than an expert in this matter, can he explain to me what a COO is?

2830 Hon. J J Bossano: I think the problem with the supplementaries is that these are supplementaries about a written question of a previous meeting of the House – Question 146, which was followed not by supplementaries which related to this. It was followed by a new question, this time saying, has there been any change in terms of any new bodies? Frankly, I have no idea whether the COO is a –

Mr Speaker: If the Hon. Minister is not in a position to answer the question –

2835 Hon. J J Bossano: I cannot answer that –

Mr Speaker: – then he does not have to.

Hon. J J Bossano: I can go back and find out from the people who produced this, what they meant.

2840 Hon. D A Feetham: Can I just go back to the two individuals that are geographically located in Town Range, and it really relates, as well, to a question that I asked some time ago, about how the mechanism for determining how much is spent, when it is spent.

2845 Is the reason why these two individuals, who are integrally and intimately involved in ensuring that works are coming in within estimate, are located in Town Range because the Minister himself is taking an active interest – the Minister for Employment – in relation to ensuring that these works are also within any budget that the Government may have, in relation to them, and that spending does not get out of control in relation to this particular area? Is that the reason?

2850 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. (Laughter)

ADJOURNMENT

2855 Clerk: The Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, the Government had intended to continue with Question Time this afternoon, but the Chief Minister's flight, it is anticipated, has been diverted to Malaga. So I now move to adjourn the House to Monday at 10 o'clock.

2860 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have – and I will say so openly – I have offered the hon. Gentleman... My own questions are not questions that are time sensitive. If it causes any kind of problem to the Government, I am quite prepared for my own questions to be adjourned until January, provided obviously, as I do have the right to ask further questions in January. I have absolutely no problem with that, if that assists the Government. (Interjections) But, is there no possibility at all of continuing with, perhaps, the Health Minister's questions this afternoon?

2870 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, the Government has to come back on Monday for several reasons, and I move the adjournment, which is to Monday at 10 o'clock.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the House do now adjourn to Monday, 23rd December at 10.00 a.m. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against?
The House will now adjourn until Monday, 23rd December at 10.00 a.m.

2875 The House adjourned at 1.00 p.m.

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

GHA complaints process Update on Ombudsman

15

Clerk: We are now going to proceed to the questions which are being posed to the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Question 811/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

20

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Question 598, can the Minister for Health say when the GHA complaints process will be taken over by the Ombudsman, and at what stage they are in the process?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

25 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there is no definite date yet. Advanced drafts of the procedure are currently under discussion.

30 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister say if there will be a U-turn on the Government's manifesto commitment that complaints will be dealt with directly by the Office of the Ombudsman?

35 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think that is a logical implication of what I have just said. The question was when the complaints process will be taken over by the Ombudsman, and I have said there is no definite date and advanced drafts of the procedure are currently under discussion. That does not contradict the Government's manifesto commitment that the process will be taken over by the Ombudsman; it is a question of how and how it is going to be implemented, but there is no change in that policy.

40

Staff recruitment and retention
GHA policy

45 Clerk: Question 812, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain what the GHA policy for the recruitment and retention of staff is, and what the terms for contract workers are, wishing to apply for permanent and pensionable status?

50 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

55 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, staff are initially appointed on contract terms, and these may be of variable lengths depending on the specialism or post, and they may have their contracts renewed or extended, depending on the circumstances prevailing at the time.

On the completion of four years' good performance, where there is no locally qualified or eligible person studying, training or available for the post or where no succession plan candidate has been identified, staff on contract terms may be offered indefinite employment.

60 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if rolling over 10-month contracts is legal, as per EU employment law? Would he know that?

65 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think that is a logical supplementary to the question that I have just answered and therefore I do not think I need to reply.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say who decides on the terms and conditions and the length of the contracts of new GHA staff?

70 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, terms and conditions will be standard and the length of contract will depend, as I said in the answer, depending on the specialism or post and what the succession plan may or may not be. There are no two cases which are the same and there will be different line managers who are responsible for taking those decisions.

75 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: So, Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that it is the line managers who make those decisions, not the Human Resources Department, or is it in conjunction with the Human Resources Department?

80 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am very proud to say that the Gibraltar Health Authority certainly now works as a team and when decisions have to be taken, which have a bearing on performance and employment, they will involve the managers in question and the Human Resources Department. On some occasions I may be involved, but usually I will not be.

GHA contract workers
Changes to gratuity offer

85

Clerk: Question 813, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

90

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say when the 25% gratuity offer in lieu of permanent and pensionable status was removed from the contract of GHA contract workers?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

95

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the 25% gratuity offer in lieu of permanent and pensionable status was removed on 1st January 2012, following the ending of the old pension scheme by the last administration.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say what has replaced it?

100

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The Provident Pension Scheme, which was the one that replaced the old pension scheme. The Superannuation, the Provident 2, I think it is. I do not have that information. I have answered the –

105

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento and Hon. N F Costa: It is the Provident 2 and the Superannuation.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The Provident 2 and the Superannuation –

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Fund.

110

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: – Fund, I am informed by my colleagues.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but the Superannuation Fund is a policy of your Government; it is not a policy of our Government.

115

Did I understand the Hon. Minister correctly? Did he say that the policy had changed as a consequence of changes that we had introduced to the pension system? Because the Superannuation Fund was something that was introduced by... sorry, I may have misunderstood you.

120

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: What I said was that gratuities were removed when the old pension scheme was removed. Gratuities were given because the old pension scheme was not available to short-term contract officers and when that scheme was done away with, gratuities were done away with, because they are now able to join the pension scheme.

125

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister tell me whether people's contracts have been affected retrospectively? In other words, whether this has been something that has been introduced for future employees, respecting contracts, for example, of consultants that have been on this 25% of gratuity?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is for new entrants; people who have a contract are bound to the contract.

130

GHA contract workers
Reduction in housing allowance

Clerk: Question 814, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say why there has been a reduction in the housing allowance for GHA contract workers, and whether this financial incentive will be removed entirely from the contract of GHA contract workers; and if so, when?

140

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there has been no reduction in the housing allowance given to GHA contract workers and there are no current plans to remove this.

145 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say what is the GHA policy on housing allowance for contract workers, if he knows?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, at the moment, there is a housing allowance given to contract workers. That is the current situation and that is what I have just said.
150

GHA Human Resources Director/Strategic Development Executive Director
Termination of contracts; payments received

155 Clerk: Question 815, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say why the Director for the GHA Human Resources and the Executive Director for Strategic Development are no longer in employment at the GHA, and how much they were each given for terminating their employment contracts?
160

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

165 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, these officers' departures from the GHA was by mutual agreement. The terminating payments were in accordance with the contracts that they had been given by the former administration and amounted to approximately £107,000 and £109,000 for Human Resources and Strategic Development posts respectively.

170

District Nursing Charge Nurse
Applications received; details of appointee

175 Clerk: Question 816, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say how many applicants there were for the vacant post of District Nursing Charge Nurse and who was successful in getting the job?
180

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there were three applicants. It would not be correct to publicly state the names and my Hon. and Learned Friend, the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly, pointed out on Thursday that this is in keeping with the Speaker's ruling.
185

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, have all three applicants been successful or just one chosen from the three?
190

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the three applicants were successful.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, why were there the extra two charge nurse vacancies? Why were they not advertised separately at a later date, when the original vacancy advert was for only one charge nurse?
195

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this came at a time when management decided that it was appropriate for these specific posts to be at that level. It followed procedure established in 2006 by the former administration, when a vacancy for one post had been advertised, but management decided that two should be taken and in order not to delay things further and to require the whole process to start anew, the selection procedure was extended to include those. So there is no change in established practice.
200

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say why a change in decision was made to move the employment from just the one charge nurse to now three charge nurses?
205

210 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: As I explained, Mr Speaker, this was as a result of the management of the section feeling that that was the more appropriate way in which to run this highly specialised section in which people are working largely independently, but carry a large amount of responsibility on their shoulders.

215 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Government now going to increase or double the number of community nurses too, commensurate with the doubling of these charge nurses in the community; and, if so, by when?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there is no current plan. As with all other matters in the GHA, we are constantly reviewing how we carry out our operations, but there is no current plan at the moment.

220 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does not the Minister agree that by having changed this decision at the last minute by management, by increasing... by offering employment to these three charge nurses after the issue of a vacancy notice for just one post, that other GHA staff may have been disadvantaged by not providing them with the opportunity to apply?

225 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No sir. The Minister does not agree and, as I say, this is a practice which was following an established practice dating back to 2006. Maybe it happened then, but certainly I do not agree that it happened now.

230 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that one of the successful applicants had, prior to the announcement of the vacancy, gone to the UK to undertake a course as a charge nurse manager for the community nursing and decided not to complete the course, and then later was taken on as a successful applicant?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of those circumstances.

235 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I ask the Minister whether the decision to appoint the three applicants was that decision taken by the board which interviewed the three applicants, or was it taken by different sets of people above the individuals in that particular board?

240 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the board is a board which selects its applicants and will have, I have to assume, found all three suitable. That is the only assumption I can make, otherwise they clearly would not have been appointed.

245 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, he makes the assumption that that would have been the decision of the board, but yet he does not know. But he does not know either the fact that one of the applicants went to the UK to undertake that course prior to the application and he does not know that he decided not to complete the course either. It seems to me like the Minister for Health very conveniently chooses to ignore and assume things he does not... that may put him in a bad light and then take decisions in not answering questions here in Parliament.

250 Is it not the fact that the person that he knows, because he does know, who went to the UK to undertake such a course, decided not to do it, got the job now in the interview board because he happens to be an active GSLP member?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think that –

255 Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Members of the Opposition make themselves responsible for the information that they are imparting?

Hon. D A Feetham: I think that that is a surprising question from the Speaker –

260 Mr Speaker: It is not.

265 Hon. D A Feetham: With respect, it is a surprising question (Mr Speaker: No.) because the Opposition always takes responsibility for the accuracy of the points that they make. This line of questioning is obviously a line of questioning with a purpose, and I think that unless Mr Speaker has prima facie evidence that we do not know what we are talking about, I do not believe that Mr Speaker ought to be making that point.

Mr Speaker: It so happens that Mr Speaker is the Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

270 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not understand –

Mr Speaker: No, No. I will say nothing further on the matter. I am just saying that it is a principle enshrined in the Rules and which I am glad to hear, from what the Leader of the Opposition says, that hon. Members of the Opposition make themselves responsible when they give information along the lines of the information that we have heard today. I am glad to hear that they make themselves responsible and that therefore, in their view, that information is accurate. That is all I want to say.

280 Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely. We hold ourselves responsible for the accuracy. This is the first time... I have been a Member of this House since 2007 and I am not the oldest Member of this House, but it is the first time that I have ever heard a Speaker make a point like that about accuracy when my hon. colleagues are pursuing a line of questioning on the basis of information that they have.

285 We would never... nobody in the Opposition would be asking any questions if we do not make ourselves responsible for the accuracy and Mr Speaker, if Mr Speaker has information that casts doubt on the accuracy of our line of questioning, and Mr Speaker, well look, he can tell us that our line of questioning is inaccurate because he sits in the Public Service Commission and he knows it is inaccurate, but I doubt very much that Mr Speaker can actually go that far.

Mr Speaker: I am making the point because the information that has been imparted to Members of the Opposition is apparently not available to the Minister.

290 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may just comment?

The implication from the hon. Member is that I misled Parliament. I have no knowledge of any course taken or not taken by the applicants. I believe that what I do know is that the three successful applicants are extremely good professionals – every single one of them. Whether or not they are activists of any particular political party is not relevant to whether they are good nurses or not.

295 I can assure you, Mr Speaker, that if that board selected them, they are excellent nurses, and I can confirm it was a board which was referred to the Public Service Commission and therefore is completely out of any influence from me as a Minister. (Banging on desks)

300 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister perhaps inform this House as to whether the decision to go from one to three charge nurses was a decision that was taken before the recommendation of the board and after the advert, or was it after the recommendation of the board?

305 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have not got the time line in front of me. I have answered the question I was asked: how many applicants and who was successful? I have answered part one because I can. I cannot answer part two. I do not have a timeline in front of me and so I cannot answer that question.

310 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but, of course as the Minister responsible, does he not agree with me that it is rather odd that here we have a highly... he described it as a 'highly specialised' service, and those are the words that he used in answer to my Hon. Friend, Mrs Ellul-Hammond...? Now, bearing in mind that this is a highly specialised service and he being a thorough Minister as I know that he is – I mean I have every respect for him – that in a planning situation in a highly specialised service, does he not agree with me that it is odd that we have a situation whereby there is an advert for one charge nurse, and lo and behold, at some stage we do not know when, whether it is before the recommendation of the board or after the recommendation of the board, it then goes from one to three people being taken on? Does he not agree that at the very least what it illustrates is a lack of planning in relation to a highly specialised service, as he has described it?

320 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: On the contrary, Mr Speaker, I think it shows that one is able to take advantage of situations. If a selection process was ongoing, then that is an opportunity to be taken so as not to delay things and it is absolutely identical, I repeat, Mr Speaker, except that instead of an addition from one to three, it was one to two – an identical situation which arose back in 2006, which nobody batted an eyelid about. So there is no precedent. This is something which has happened before. (Interjection) Sorry – there was a precedent there.

330 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, yes, I do not dispute that in the past there may have been a situation where there has been... After the recommendation of the board, the report, for example, has recommended that there are two people that are highly, that are very, very good for this particular post and there is a policy decision taken at that stage to take two people. But you see that is very unusual and what we have here is an advert that has gone out for one and then ultimately three are taken on.

One always gets very good high quality applicants because the nature of our Civil Service is the fact that there are very good people, but one would have thought that in a highly specialised service, such as this one, that it would have been effectively demand led from the very beginning. One looks at what do

Here the decision has been taken that we need one and then ultimately – we do not know when the decision was taken, whether before the recommendation of the board or afterwards – it is then three. Does not the Hon. Minister think that is unusual?

340

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It is unusual in the sense that it has happened twice, but it is not the first time it has happened. But nevertheless it was an opportunity clearly that the management took in order to be able to improve the service and take advantage of the fact that the procedure was already in motion.

345

Consultants' contract
Details of negotiations

Clerk: Question 817, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

350

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say who is dealing with negotiating the Consultants' contract and at what stage of progress are we in the process?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

355

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the GHA is negotiating with UNITE the Union as they represent the majority of consultants. The negotiations are going well.

360

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that John Langan and Ernest Lima are still dealing with the negotiation of the consultants' contract?

365

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, Mr Langan and Mr Lima are dealing on behalf of the GHA with the negotiations of the consultants' contract. Let me just add that they both finish their term... well, Mr Langan, who is the interim Chief Executive, Mr Lima was an advisor, and Mr Langan has continued leading because he committed himself when he took on the job to complete these negotiations, but since he finished at the end of August he has been doing this on a pro bono basis.

370

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, seeing that the negotiations for this contract has been for over a year and a half, when will it be completed?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: When an agreement is reached, Mr Speaker.

375

Promotion of sexual health
Department's policy

Clerk: Question 818, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

380

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, with reference to the Government press release number 861/2013, can the Minister for Health say how sexual health will be promoted, in addition to the Minister's plans to publish HIV and AIDS statistics?

385

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

390

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Public Health Department has developed a Health Improvement Strategy for Gibraltar, which includes sexual health as one of its key priorities for the next two years. The following are some of the initiatives that will be progressed within this programme area: (1) supporting education about sex and relationships in schools and youth settings; (2) providing access to good quality advice for all persons on sexuality, family planning and sexually transmitted diseases; (3) campaigning to reduce the prevalence of teenage pregnancies in our community; (4) supporting the establishment of a nurse-led sexual health clinic; (5) encouraging access to HIV and STD testing for people who may be at risk; (6) improving the collection of anonymised local data to inform sexual health strategies; (7) producing relevant printed material.

395

In this, the GHA will continue to work with community groups, such as the Equality Rights Group, with which regular meetings have been held during the past two years.

400

New Mental Health Unit
Opening date

Clerk: Question 819, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

405

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister for Health said in his Budget Statement of 2013 that the new Mental Health Unit would be ready in October or November. Can the Minister advise when the facility will now be opening?

410

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the unit has been subject to the delays typical of the construction industry; it is now due to open in spring 2014.

415

Hospital referrals Patient costs

Clerk: Question 820, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Written Question 135/2013, can the Minister for Health say (a) why there are no figures for April 2012 and June 2013 and (b) why the cost for sending patients to Xanit have more than doubled per month since September 2013?

425

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

430

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there are no figures for April 2012 and June 2013 because the bills for the months in question were paid on the following month. The costs for sending patients to Xanit have increased because a number of procedures that used to be referred exclusively to the UK are now performed in Xanit. This reduces the inconvenience of families travelling to UK and makes visiting of relatives easier.

435

The increase in referrals to Xanit has also coincided with a decrease in referrals to Spanish State Hospitals, due to long waiting times currently existing in the Spanish Servicio Andaluz de Salud system, which have worsened recently. In addition to this, there have sadly been a number of exceptional cases this year, which have involved long stays and expensive care.

440

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

Can the Hon. Minister say then if the service that was offered in the UK has now been... is being offered at Xanit, has there been also a reduction in the payment to the Department of Health for this sponsored patients' service as a consequence of the increase in payments to Xanit?

445

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Clearly, Mr Speaker, if we are spending the money in Xanit, that money will not be spent in the UK; however, because of the fact that this is totally unpredictable, there could be other cases going to the UK and therefore you will not necessarily see a corresponding decrease. What there has been is a considerable decrease in referrals to other Spanish hospitals, particularly, as I said before, Spanish state hospitals, because of increasing waiting times in particular, which have got worse in recent months and over the past year.

450

I can say, however, that whereas there is an increase in referrals to Xanit, the total number of referrals to Spain was slightly down in 2013 or the first 11 months of 2013 in relation to 2012; but this is something that is not totally predictable. This is demand led and we are not going to refuse treatment to a deserving patient for reasons of this nature.

But globally I think I do have to point out one thing I said earlier, that it only takes one or two particularly difficult cases which have expensive care to make these figures rise considerably. It may be just one or two and so you cannot really relate it to the number of patients.

Transportation of patients to hospital
Use of new ambulances

Clerk: Question 821, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

460

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if there is any truth in the rumour that a motorbike and its owner were transported in one of the new ambulances; and, if so, can the Minister provide details to Parliament?

465

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no sir. For the avoidance of doubt what I mean is that there is no truth in the rumour, not that I cannot say. There is no truth in that rumour.

470

Gibraltar Medical Registration Board
Transfer of UK powers

475

Clerk: Question 822, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

480

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in relation to the amendment to the Medical Health Act 1997 to provide for the compulsory registration of allied health professionals, can the Minister for Health say how will the powers of UK Governing Bodies be transferred to the Gibraltar Registration Board for the overseeing and policing of the ongoing requirements health professionals need to meet?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

485

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the amendment of the Medical and Health Act 1997 at long last establishes the Gibraltar Medical Registration Board as a regulatory authority for allied health professionals in Gibraltar.

490

The law requires that the assessment of the qualifications and competence of the professionals is carried out by the respective UK regulator and not by the Gibraltar Board. Furthermore, any requirements laid by the UK regulator on maintenance of professional standards, continuous professional development or revalidation will be directly monitored by the UK regulator and impact upon Gibraltar only if registration is affected in consequence.

The UK regulatory bodies, in addition, have powers to oversee and police their registrants wherever they may practice. The Gibraltar Medical Registration Board will play a supportive role in this function.

495

Complaints or allegations of poor practice made to the Gibraltar Board regarding allied health practitioners practising within Gibraltar will be investigated locally; and, except where the complaints are wholly frivolous, the Board will notify the respective UK regulator, who may choose to invoke its 'Fitness to Practice' procedure. Decisions arising from the procedure will be binding on the practitioner in the UK and inasmuch as they impact on the petitioner's registration, by consequence, also in Gibraltar.

500

In addition, the Act also provides the Gibraltar Board with a range of powers to take independent action, which would be binding on registered practitioners within the territory of Gibraltar.

505

Culling of seagulls
Duties of FERA and GOHNS

Clerk: Question 823, the Hon. J J Netto.

510

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state if the discussion alluded to by the Minister at the Committee Stage of the Appropriation Bill 2013, regarding extending the duties carried out by FERA to GOHNS in relation to the culling of seagulls have now concluded, and if so, provide Parliament with details of the agreement?

515

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir. They have not been completed.

520 Hon. J J Netto: Could the Minister perhaps elucidate as to why they have not concluded. Is there any sticking point, in terms of coming to a final agreement? I do recall that his comments at the Appropriation Committee Stage of the Bill, the Minister was saying that his intentions were to absolve the work being carried out in the past by referring to GOHNS. So perhaps if he could elucidate as to what the sticking points are in that discussion.

525 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there are no sticking points. The discussions are still ongoing. It is a... I was going to say complex, but it is not a simple matter and the Department is dealing with it, with a view to implementing by the time the spring comes, which is when these measures need to be more effective.

530 Hon. J J Netto: So is the Minister envisaging a situation whereby after spring FERA will not carry out any further duties?

535 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is what I said at the time and that continues to be the situation at the present.

Hon. J J Netto: So in order to be able to carry out such duties in the future, will there be an extra amount of cost, or will the size of the budget for GOHNS increase accordingly?

540 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the budget for the visits from FERA, I think was in the region in one year of close to £200,000 and another year £200,000 for people to come from abroad for six weeks, to carry out work, which local people were doing for much less over a period of a whole year. So therefore there is no intention to follow that practice. The intention is to use the expertise that is available in a more economically efficient way. I do not believe that the costs will be equivalent and certainly they will not be for a six-week period, they will be for a 52-week period.

545 Hon. J J Netto: Which will mean, therefore, an increase in the number of people dedicated within GOHNS for the culling of seagulls.

550 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not going to publicly conduct the negotiations with any organisation here. We are looking at the way in which the work that was being done by FERA is going to be done in the future. Some of the work being done by FERA at the time probably did not need to be done, as I expressed at the time to the then Government of the time. But I am not going to go into details of discussions which are ongoing because it could compromise their outcome.

555

West Place of Arms
Criteria for selection as dog park

560 Clerk: Question 824, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the written answer to Question W136/2013, can the Minister for the Environment state what has been the criteria for selecting the West Place of Arms as a dog park?

565 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

570 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the area was selected on the advice of the Gibraltar Responsible Pet Owners Group. Consultation with the Gibraltar Heritage Trust and the Heritage Division confirmed that the proposed use was consistent with heritage. This was later unanimously approved by the Development and Planning Commission.

575 Gibraltar Cat Welfare Society
Neutering of cats

Clerk: Question 825, the Hon. J J Netto.

580 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 690/2013, is the Minister for the Environment aware that the Gibraltar Cat Welfare Society have been neutering cats for some years now; and if so, does the Minister know how many cats have been spayed on an annual basis?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

585 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, I am aware. I am informed that 59 cats have been neutered this year, but I have not got any more information.

590 Hon. J J Netto: Does the Minister perhaps know whether this particular programme by the Cat Welfare Society will continue, because when I looked at their own website, it did not look to me like it was a function that was carried out every year. And as we have discussed in the past, here in Parliament, there is a need for a programme of this nature to be carried out, particularly in certain areas of Gibraltar, least to say the Upper Rock Nature Reserve.

So can the Minister perhaps inform the House whether this programme will continue into the future, either by them, or perhaps if they are not doing it, on a year-by-year basis by some other entity?

595 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am currently in discussion with the Cat Welfare Society to see how this programme can be continued.

Clerk: Question 829...

600 Hon. D A Feetham: Does the Hon. Minister have an idea of numbers of cats? Is there an effort to monitor the number of cats – the rise in population or decrease in population of cats? He knows that I live in the Upper Rock and my children have already adopted three kittens, I can tell him, that have been abandoned and there appears to me to be an increase in the number of cats. I mean, I do not know. I am just talking from my own experience of seeing them in the Upper Rock myself.

605 But is there a conscious effort on the part of the Government to basically monitor the numbers so that this particular problem can be kept on top of, because of course, as we all know, they are really wreaking havoc with wildlife in the Upper Rock in particular?

610 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, we are attempting to monitor certain key areas to see whether we can have an idea of the cat population, but there is no data. So at the moment we can only guesstimate, but we are trying to monitor in the Upper Rock.

615 Hon. D A Feetham: And, Mr Speaker, is he satisfied that the neutering of the number of cats that they have neutered – I think he indicated 59 – that that is going to deal with the problem? How long does he think that it will take before it will deal with and keep the population of cats within manageable proportions and certainly within numbers that will not cause significant damage to wildlife in the Upper Rock?

620 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the figure I gave is a figure provided by the Cat Welfare Society and so it is not that the Government has been... as far as I know it never has been, although it does and has supported the Cat Welfare Society in carrying out this work, it has not done it directly and 59 neutered cats will not solve the problem in the Upper Rock... so, no.

625 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, just by way of providing information, I have just seen on the Cat Welfare Society's website, from a report published in 2007, that they say, and I quote:

'Over three years the Society has captured, sterilised and released 1,190 cats on the Rock.'

630 So perhaps that is some of the work they have done in the past. Obviously my concern is if that kind of progress can be maintained and some of the answers have already been provided by the Minister.

635 Culling of cats
Monthly numbers

Clerk: Question 826, the Hon. J J Netto.

640 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 691/2013, can the Minister for the Environment provide the monthly numbers of cats culled since 11th December 2011, as asked for, but not given.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

645 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the number was given as an average, which mathematically is the number of cats culled per month and therefore the question was correctly answered. I now have to assume that rather than the monthly number, the hon. Member wishes to know the number per month. This information is provided in the schedule I now hand over.

650

Answer to Question 826/2013

Cats Culled

Month	2012	2013
January	0	0
February	3	0
March	0	0
April	0	0
May	14	2
June	0	0
July	0	23
August	0	6
September	1	15
October	7	3
November	4	0

Average =  $78 \div 23 = 3.4$

655 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, as the information may come now, but just to point out that if he goes to my Question 691, it asks the number of cats culled on a monthly basis. So I was right and he was wrong interpreting my question, but I will see the figures now.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think I need to comment on that.

660 Hon. D A Feetham: He has very kindly provided a schedule and the culling appears to be really focused on three months in 2013: 23 in July; 6 in August; 15 in September. Then there are two other figures of 2 for May and 3 for October, but the rest is zero. There is a similar pattern also in 2012.

665 Can he explain this particular pattern of why there does not appear to be an even spread over months? It does appear to indicate that really there is no systematic programme spread over a year to deal with the question of feral cats by way of culling, which is one of the ways that obviously the Government, rightly in our view, is dealing with this particular issue.

670 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are talking about the cats here in urban areas and the way that this has been done in the past, and this was I think explained in my answer last time around, which although was converted to a written answer, because it was converted to a written answer there will not be a recollection of a discussion.

675 These cats have been culled as a result of a contract dating back to 2005, but the way that it has been operating for a number of years is that the cull has been activated by requests from the public, complaining about fleas or some other problems and it has been a result of that. Therefore when there has been a complaint, then the cull has been activated and therefore you will see this pattern, that suddenly there is culling and then it stops again.

680 The practice has been that it has been on the request of members of the community. Needless to say, there are those in the community who are not in favour of culls and I obviously recognise that as well. But the explanation of these stop and start figures is that they are following requests from members of the public.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, there are two points that arise from the answer that the hon. Gentleman has given and I am very grateful for it. One of them is that these are culls that have taken place in urban areas; the second is that it is a response to a request from members of the public.

685 Does he not agree with me that it does appear from that particular answer that really there is no systematic plan in terms of... that culling does not form part of the Government's plan to deal with the issue of feral cats in the Upper Rock, which he and I both recognise is wreaking havoc with wildlife, and in particular with an iconic species of Gibraltar, which is the Barbary partridge?

690 Can he explain why the issue of culling or culling as a legitimate form of control of feral cats has not been taken to the Upper Rock so that we can control the cat population there?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think we have to distinguish the situation on the Upper Rock with that in urban areas. We must remember that there are those in urban areas who actually feed cats, and you may agree or disagree with them, but they are there, the people who do that, and who are very sensitive towards that; something that, as I say, whether you agree with it or not, you have to recognise... they are also members of our community.

695 The Upper Rock is a different issue. The way that the Upper Rock is being tackled is initially, as I said earlier, by monitoring and trying to determine what the scale of the problem is, particularly in areas which are more likely to have Barbary partridges, which are areas of more open ground rather than the dense vegetation. We are trying to build up a picture using a number of systems, which I can discuss later with the hon. Member opposite, to monitor, and then we hope to be developing a strategy to see how we tackle that so that the Barbary partridge can be protected.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can he give me a timeframe in relation to this, because we all recognise here that if we had a choice, you would not cull cats? That is the reality that one would not cull cats if one had the choice, but in a situation where they are impacting heavily on wildlife in the Upper Rock in particular, something as important to Gibraltar as the Barbary partridge, one would have thought that the Government would have perhaps been slightly more energetic in its attempt to get on top of the problem. Yes, because there is a sizeable population of feral cats in the Upper Rock.

705 So can he give me a timetable of when he thinks that perhaps the Government is going to be moving towards the Upper Rock in trying to cut down the population of feral cats in the Upper Rock that is causing such a problem with wildlife there?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are in danger of having a really long discussion on Barbary partridge management, and I am happy to have that, but I do not know whether the rest of the Members particularly want to hear it.

715 There are a number of things here. Firstly, there is no way that no matter how much you do you are going to remove the full population of feral cats on the Upper Rock; therefore you have to concentrate on those areas where you want the partridges to do well, which means you concentrate on the areas which are better habitats for the partridges.

720 So what we are doing is we are in fact creating a new Barbary partridge habitat. We are monitoring those areas. We are in the final stages of acquiring Barbary partridges from Morocco and we want to time it in such a way that when we release these partridges, we are actually not releasing breakfast for cats. So we are timing it quite tightly and a lot of things have to slot in before we are ready to go.

725 Hon. D A Feetham: So just following on from that – this is my last supplementary question on this – so effectively the Minister envisages, in that very tight timetable for the acquisition and release of Barbary partridges, that when he releases those Barbary partridges, that he will have substantially dealt with the problem of feral cats in the areas where you are going to be releasing the partridges. Bearing in mind as well, of course, that that begs the question... I mean you are not going to be releasing them in fenced out areas.

730 So if you have a very large population of feral cats in the Upper Rock, they are bound to be moving, for example, to the area of Windmill Hill, where I presume that is one of the areas where he is going to be releasing some of these partridges, but can he perhaps shed some light in relation to that or give that guarantee to the House?

735 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I sense the enthusiasm of the hon. Member opposite, and I am sure that behind it all he is extremely pleased that I happen to be Minister for the Environment. (A Member: Absolutely.) (Interjections) Mr Speaker, I did not hear that, but I am sure it was quite funny.

740 Mr Speaker, the idea is that this will work and that we will be able to ensure the ongoing success of the Barbary partridge or the renewed success of the Barbary partridge. But I really think, Mr Speaker, that from a question on monthly numbers of cats culled in urban areas, if I may add, to a discussion on the management of Barbary partridges, is probably – with respect to the hon. Member opposite, and I am

745 very glad to know that he shares my keenness for the species – I think that is probably as far as we need to take it at this point in time.

750 Air pollution
ESG concerns

Clerk: Question 827, the Hon. J J Netto.

755 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 700/2013, is the Minister for the Environment not aware of the ESG communiqué of 16th October 2013, in relation to the concerns of air pollution?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

760 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, he is. Question 700/2013 asks whether the Department for the Environment had received reports of, and I quote:

‘persistent heavy air pollution associated with rotten eggs or sulphur smells’.

765 Mr Speaker, it had not. It had received four isolated complaints, which is precisely what I answered.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in the ESG communiqué of 16th October, they talked about persistent heavy air pollution in the area of Waterport Terraces, the South District and the Port. They also talked about talking to the Government, meaning probably the Minister for the Environment, and talking to the Department of the Environment in relation to raising their concerns on this persisting air pollution.

770 Has he now had that discussion with the Minister and the Department of the Environment in relation to their concerns?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I have very regular contacts with the ESG.

775 In relation to roundabout the time when the ESG issued their statement, which was on 16th October, there had been an approach, which I have recorded here on that day, from the ESG to the Agency. The matter was relating to smells that had occurred on the previous day and so it was difficult to investigate that particular instance.

780 There was subsequently a report the following day, not from the ESG, which was investigated. It appeared that there was an issue with a ship that had come into port with ammonia; but ammonia does not smell like rotten eggs and so it was probably unrelated to the previous one.

Certainly, I am glad to say that the large spate of smells related to bunkering, which happened a few years ago, has not happened, and these continue largely to be isolated incidents.

785 Upper Rock Nature Reserve
Temporary closures of pathways

790 Clerk: Question 828, the Hon. J J Netto.

795 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state which pathways, green areas and walking routes in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve have been temporarily closed as a result of the comments made by the Minister of Heritage at the Heritage Trust AGM, in which he stated that what he saw were ‘death traps’?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

800 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as a result of continuing works to improve public access to the Upper Rock, works are ongoing in the Douglas Path/Mount Misery area, and access to a section south of the cable car top station has been closed off pending works.

This information is about a week old, Mr Speaker, and those works may have progressed since then. But, if you remember, we adjourned from last Thursday and I have not had the opportunity to check this morning.

805 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, just for the sake of clarification, is the Minister saying that this particular pathway that he is referring to was closed about a week ago? Is that what he is saying?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker.

810 There has been ongoing works in Douglas Path and what is known as 'Mount Misery'. Another section, which is south of the cable car top station, which is the other peak, so to speak, north of Mount Misery, has been closed off pending works. It is those works that I am not sure whether they have been carried out or not. The ones to Douglas Path and Mount Misery were ongoing when this answer was drafted and so they may well have been completed or will be nearing completion.

815 Hon. J J Netto: But in any case, what the Minister for the Environment is referring to is one particular pathway which has been temporarily closed. The impression that the Minister for Heritage gave, at the Heritage Trust AGM, was that there were many green areas and pathways in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve which were death traps. That is the impression, at least as quoted in the press.

820 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, if I may, since he is alluding to me, the fact is that what I said in the Heritage Trust AGM was that there was one place and that is Mount Misery, which is what my colleague is just stating. I can tell him for his peace of mind that I went there the next day, with a Health and Safety officer, and that is the place which is now blocked off for safety reasons. There is no pathway. There is no other place. It was just one specific place and that 825 was blocked off. It is still blocked off until works are now done.

Waste disposal/management Government plans

Clerk: Question 829, the Hon. J J Netto.

835 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to Question 694/2013, can the Minister for the Environment state what will be the waste disposal options that the Government will embark upon, following the completion of the specialist report by Ramboll in January 2013, providing a timeline for the implementation of such policies?

840 Can I just add Mr Speaker, my understanding is that I gave notice of the question... I mean the deadline for the notice of the question was on Thursday, 12th December, and I believe the Government issued a press release on 16th December to the press, which is this one which I have got here, in a way that puts the position quite difficult because I am trying to ask a question for which already some of the answer may have been put on the public notice by the press.

845 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if I may answer that point first. We are talking about two separate documents. The question which I have, and I am about to answer, Question 829 refers to a report by Ramboll which was a report on waste management options for Gibraltar.

850 The Waste Management Plan, which is the one that the hon. Member referred to in his last comment, is the Waste Management Plan for Gibraltar, which is independent – totally independent. It is a completely different document and it is an EU requirement that had to be published by a certain date and we did meet the timeframe. So it is a completely different document, and one is only to do with the other in that they are both talking about waste, and that clearly, if we commissioned a report in January to talk to us about waste options, clearly some of that will be reflected in the Waste Management Plan, but it was certainly a completely different document and in no way will one have affected the answer that I am
855 going to give you, which if I may, I will now proceed to give the formal answer.

860 Following completion of the Waste Treatment Options Assessment Report, undertaken by Ramboll in January 2013, Government resolved to invite tenders in the Official Journal of the European Union and local press for the design, build, finance and operation of a waste treatment facility. Government wishes to provide waste treatment facilities locally, with the aim of achieving the highest environmental standards in the treatment of its municipal solid waste and urban waste water treatment by-products, tyres and other bulky items.

865 Government's principal requirements for the waste treatment facility are the following: (1) a waste reception, sorting and storing facility for specific and separate waste streams; (2) a material recovery facility which will recover recyclable materials from the municipal waste stream; (3) a waste treatment plant of which technologies of advanced thermal treatment would be considered; (4) a facility capable of (i) generating electricity; (ii) and/or producing potable water; (iii) and/or producing biodiesel; (iv) and/or producing syngas; (v) handling and treatment of ad-hoc waste; (vi) handling and treatment of saline sewage sludge.

870 The tender was advertised on 14th February. The tender stage has now closed. Government is currently reviewing the tender submissions and will be in a position to make a decision in the first part of next year.

875 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, does the Minister for the Environment have a timeline in relation to when they would like to see, at least tentatively in operation, the new waste treatment plant?

880 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as soon as possible. This is something that is well overdue and something that this Government has taken on with great fervour. Clearly, we needed to have the consultant's assessment, which is the report that I referred to in January 2013, and then that was used to inform the tender process. The tender process is currently reaching its final stages and I would like to think, clearly it depends on what the different options are and what tenders are finally provided, but I would have thought that certainly, within this term of Government, we should see the waste plant operational.

885 Hon. J J Netto: I think Mr Speaker, with respect; I might have lost the last part of the words of the Hon. the Minister of the Environment. Did he give an indication as to by when the new waste treatment plant will be operative?

Several Members: As soon as possible.

890 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as soon as possible, and my wish would be that it would be within this term of Government; but certainly it depends on the details of the selected tender.

895 Hon. J J Netto: So basically he is not in a position right now at least, whether it is in 12 months' time or 24 months' time.

Can I also ask the Minister what is the location as to where the waste treatment plant might be located?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, the intention is still to have it on the Governor's Cottage site.

900 Hon. J J Netto: Is the Minister perhaps in a position to tell the House what percentage of electricity may be able to be produced by this waste treatment plant at this moment or will he have to wait for the completion?

905 Mr Speaker: That cannot possibly arise from the original question.

Upper Rock Nature Reserve: A Management and Action Plan Implementation of recommendations

910

Clerk: Question 830, the Hon. J J Netto.

915 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state which recommendations of the 'Upper Rock Nature Reserve, A Management and Action Plan' have been implemented since 9th December 2011, which ones the Minister intends to implement in the next 24 months, and which ones the Minister feels that he will not be able to implement and why?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

920 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the recommendations that will be implemented for the Upper Rock Nature Reserve and the wider Gibraltar Nature Reserve will all be fully laid out in the upcoming management plan that is being drafted by the Department of the Environment in consultation with the relevant stakeholders.

925 In any case, there are some notable recommendations that have been put into effect since 9th December 2011, which include: (1) extending the boundary of the Nature Reserve to include other important habitats, such as the Great Sand Slopes, Windmill Hill, Jacob's Ladder and Europa Point foreshore; (2) clearing areas of dense vegetation within the reserve; (3) appointing wildlife wardens; (4) reviewing traffic flows in the Upper Rock as part of the Traffic Management Plan; (5) establishing a

930 Caves Working Group, along with monitoring cave biodiversity and protecting specific caves and tunnels in the Upper Rock, by means of grilles and fences; (6) facilitating and supporting the monitoring of bat populations in Gibraltar as part of the Gib-Bats Project –this has already resulted in a new species of bat being recorded in Gibraltar, namely the Isabelline Serotine bat; (7) improving paths in the Upper Rock; (8) continued removal of invasive species.

935

Control of Barbary Macaques
Access to Mount Alvernia

940 Clerk: Question 831, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister of the Environment say if there are any permanent plans to avoid having Barbary Macaques entering into Mount Alvernia in the near future?

945 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, management and staff at Mount Alvernia have been inducted in what measures they should take to discourage the monkeys. This includes ensuring staff and visitors do not provide food, making bins monkey proof and dealing with the scaffolding that has been in place for years.

950 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I just say that while the scaffolding has been there for many years, it is the case that the macaques are venturing into the homes more often, into the actual bedrooms of the residents there in Mount Alvernia, in frequent numbers, particularly lately. Whilst all the measures that the Minister has announced just now are positive steps in the right direction, it may not preclude the fact that macaques will continue to get inside the bedrooms of the residents.

955 For that particular aspect of the question, does the Minister not see that perhaps the staff in Mount Alvernia might need some extra help or resources, in conjunction with either the Department of the Environment or perhaps some other entity?

960 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, they are getting that. They are getting regular visits from the macaque team and being encouraged and advised on how to deal with this; so that is happening. There is constant contact.

965 The monkeys were attracted initially to fruiting trees in the gardens of the Mount and then discovered the bins and apparently people started to put food out for them, which is clearly something that we must all discourage. So the situation is being handled with the support of the team.

970 Varyl Begg Estate
Pigeons culled in last six months

Clerk: Question 832, the Hon. J J Netto.

975 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 696/2013, can the Minister for the Environment say how many pigeons have been culled in the last six months in Varyl Begg Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

980 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, four pigeons have been culled in Varyl Begg Estate in the last six months.

985 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the reason why I am raising this particular question is because I have had representations being made to me by tenants of Varyl Begg Estate. In fact, I have taken the trouble myself of taking some pictures of the amount of pigeons, and I would say not just in the Varyl Begg Estate, because the whole area that is being affected by all this is, is practically the whole of the west side of Gibraltar. There are literally hundreds and hundreds of pigeons just flying around that particular area of Gibraltar.

990 Could I ask the Minister, on behalf of the tenants in Varyl Begg Estate, whether a particular effort could be made to tackle this over population of feral pigeons in that part of Gibraltar?

995 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am glad that the hon. Member has said that pigeons fly, because I thought that he had forgotten that fact, and the fact that four have been captured in Varyl Begg Estate does not mean that those that have been caught elsewhere are not ones that also frequent Varyl Begg Estate. They do fly between areas and therefore you cannot say that only four of the ones that use Varyl Begg Estate have been culled.

This is a concern. There is a large number of feral pigeons, as there have been for many years, and this is something that my Department is addressing with a view to introducing a programme which will be able to tackle this.

1000 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I invite the Minister, perhaps, to give some details of the particular programme he envisages will be implemented?

1005 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, before I do that, Mr Speaker, I will refer to my answer last time, which was that there have been 1,347 pigeons culled overall, so it is not that nothing is happening. Increased deployments to a number of areas in order to be able to attempt to bring the population down and also we are considering whether the feeding of pigeons is something that should be tackled as to whether or not that should be illegal.

1010 At the moment it is, in the sense that if you put out food, you are putting out litter, but there is not any specific targeting of the feeding of pigeons. Particularly in certain areas, like, for example, happened in Trafalgar Square, where it was made contrary to regulations, local regulations, to feed them in Trafalgar Square, it may be that we need to look at that, and that is something that is being looked at.

1015 Importation of trees and turf from Italy and UK
Carbon footprint cost

Clerk: Question 833, the Hon. J J Netto.

1020 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what is the carbon footprint cost of importing 140 trees from Italy for the Commonwealth Park, compared to a closer jurisdiction, such as Portugal or Spain?

1025 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 834.

1030 Clerk: Question 834.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what is the carbon footprint cost of importing turf from the UK for the Commonwealth Park, as compared to a closer jurisdiction, say Portugal or Spain?

1035 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the trees for the Commonwealth Park were purchased from Italy because Italy is the main producer of quality trees in the Mediterranean.

1040 It was absolutely essential for the establishment and success of the park that trees were purchased from the most reputable and reliable source possible. Trees are distributed throughout Europe from Italy, so that, for example, many of the trees that are used for landscaping in the UK arrive from Italy, either directly or indirectly, via Germany and the Netherlands. In fact, some of the best trees that are sold in Iberia are purchased in Italy and grown on in Iberia. So that purchasing closer to Gibraltar does not necessarily reduce the total distance of journeys for the trees.

1045 The trees for the park arrived from Pistoia, Italy, in five articulated lorries. The carbon footprint for the journey will have been about an estimated 29 tonnes. This is offset by the estimated amount of carbon sequestered by the trees so far, which given their sizes is about 103 tonnes. This offset would also cater for the higher quality turf being imported from the UK, about 28 tonnes, rather than a closer jurisdiction.

1050 The expertise that Italian growers have in packing these trees into lorries – 140 trees in just five lorries – means that although the distance covered is of course significantly greater, a larger number of lorries are likely to have been used had the trees been purchased in Portugal or Spain.

1055 It is doubtful, furthermore, that trees purchased in Iberia would have approached these Italian trees in quality, size and health. These factors would of course affect future growth and longevity positively, both of which will of course enhance future carbon sequestration.

1060 When all of these factors are taken into account, it is highly unlikely that there would have been any reduction at all in carbon footprint had these trees been purchased in Iberia. Quite apart from this, there is of course a net gain in carbon sequestering as a result of the new park, regardless of the trees provenance, so the park reduces Gibraltar's carbon footprints.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what about financial cost? Before the Hon. Minister or Members of his staff went out and ordered these trees, was there an investigation of prices elsewhere in Spain, Portugal, or closer to home, where it might have been cheaper to purchase these trees?

1065 At the end of the day, I understand that it is always desirable to obtain the best possible quality, but when you are in Government, one balances the cost of best quality with obtaining reasonable quality at a lower cost that turns out to be better value for the taxpayer.

1070 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am sure I cannot detect anything behind the words of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition which may suggest that he would rather the trees died, and therefore that we got less quality trees. (Laughter) I say this, apart from the intention of perhaps making it a more jovial tone today, it is after all two days before Christmas, because clearly we need to have quality if this is going to be a park that will stand the test of time.

1075 It was not asked and so I do not have a cost for the trees, in particular, with me, but clearly they are the best trees available in the Mediterranean and the long-term cost benefit of acquiring these trees is something that is absolutely clear.

1080 ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

Job vacancies offered to employed persons Government's policy

1085 Clerk: Question 806, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state whether it is the Government's policy not to offer vacancies to those in employment?

1090 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, as this House has been told previously, the majority of the vacancies open since 2011 have been filled by persons who were not registered as unemployed.

1095 Hon. D J Bossino: And presumably the answer is that it is in the Government policy, given that on the ground, according to what the Minister is saying, it is not happening.

1100 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, it follows, as night follows day, that if the vacancies had not been opened to everybody, then it would not have been possible for the vast majority of them to have been filled by people who were not registered as unemployed.

Clearly, every time that somebody who is employed already gives up a job in the private sector and takes up a job in the Government, the unemployment figures do not go down, but there is nothing I can do about it.

Definition of 'disabled' Government review

1110 Clerk: Question 807, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government say when the definition of 'disabled' will change to ensure that all those who suffer disability, at whatever stage in their lives, will 1115 be entitled to disability benefits, what criteria will be used to define disability and at what stage is Government in the review of disability in our laws?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1120 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Government is in the process of establishing clear and objective criteria to address the problems faced by those who become disabled, but were not born with a disability. This will be completed within the lifetime of the Parliament.

1125

Leisure Construction and Maintenance Company Limited Number of employees

1130 Clerk: Question 808, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government provide details in respect of the number of employees who may have been employed since the answer provided to Question 650/2013 by Leisure Construction and Maintenance Company Limited, broken down by grade, age, gender and nationality?

1135 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, none have been employed since the answer to Question 650/2013.

1140

Health and Safety
Provision of November 2013 statistics

1145 Clerk: Question 809, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health and Safety provide the November 2013 statistics to Parliament of Health and Safety, as these were unavailable on the Government website when the deadline to hand in the Opposition's Questions to Parliament expired?

1150

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the Member the information required.

Mr Speaker: The supplement is rather lengthy. Could I suggest that we go on to the next question and the hon. Member can come back and ask supplementaries when he has studied the information? Okay.

Hon. J J Netto: It will not be necessary, Mr Speaker, because subsequent to the closing date, it is on the website. So I have got it here with me, so I can ask the supplementary question straight away.

1160

Mr Speaker, could I ask the Minister for Health and Safety, because I have been looking at one of the tables in particular... I am referring to the table for monitoring activities and I do not know whether he has got it in front of him – monitoring activities for the month of November we are talking about – and I can see that there was a total of 44 activities, which are later broken down by each particular component. But of the total of 44, 34 correspond to the construction industry. Now the construction industry is just one industry group of 21 within the labour market, and that represents 77% of the total amount of monitoring activities for the month in November of the total. Could the Minister perhaps give an explanation why this unusually high figure of 77% is dedicated just on the construction industry?

1165

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, Mr Speaker, I can give him the same explanation that I gave him the last time he asked an identical question, which is that construction activities take place in sites that stop being work places when the work is completed and open up new sites. Whereas if he looks at the rest, it is all inspections of permanent places of shops, retail trade and road transport. In all those cases the place to be inspected is inspected and if the inspectors do not find anything wrong, they do not have to keep on coming back.

1170

But in the construction sector, you can have one construction company and they are opening new sites every month and completing work on other sites. The pattern is the pattern that is normal, has always been there, and it is explained by the fact that construction companies are mobile from site to site, but shops are not, they are always in the same place.

1175

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, I do accept part of the answer given by the Minister, in the sense that construction sites are mobile and therefore the Health and Safety Inspector will want to inspect every, perhaps, new particular site that emerges in a particular construction; but the fact is that the figures are simply disproportionate. (Interjection)

1180

When you look at it in the month you have a total of 77% of the time dedicated to monitoring to that particular industry group. There is – and I have done an exercise myself and I do not want to go into a lengthy explanation here because it is Question Time – a particular industry group in the whole of this year which has not had one single inspection at all within the labour market. It just shows that there is a disproportionate amount of time dedicated only exclusively... well, I would not say exclusively, but mainly on the construction industry, to the neglect, perhaps, of other industry groups.

1185

Can I ask the Minister, because it is Question Time, whether he can discuss this with his own officials in order to see that other industry groups have some attention as well, because at the moment they are not having any attention at all?

1190

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. I will not do that because I do not think it is my job to tell the Health and Safety Inspectors how best to conduct the activities that they are required to conduct under the law. I do not think that I am qualified to tell them that the amount of time that they spend going to a construction site is disproportionate. I do not know if that was the practice before 2011 and I will find out if it was, but it is certainly not the practice now and I do not intend to introduce it.

1195

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, and I see the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services laughing. It is not a laughing matter –

1200

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): I was laughing at you!

Hon. D A Feetham: The reality is that the Hon. Mr Netto has pointed out that there are industry groups that have not received any visits from inspectors at all. He may not give instructions to inspectors as to who to visit or who not to visit, but ultimately he is politically responsible if inspections are not being conducted with the efficiency that they ought to be conducted, and that there are industry groups that are being, effectively, neglected or not being inspected.

1205

Does he not believe that that is a matter of concern? At least will he not undertake to go back and to actually look at the split, in terms of industry groups of inspections, and if there is a particular problem by way of neglect of a particular sector, that perhaps he ought to have a word with his inspectors and at least ask why it is that these industry groups have been neglected or there were no inspections in relation to them?

1210

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. I will not do any of that because I do not think that just because the hon. Member opposite gets it into his head that there is a huge neglect of people who are at serious risk or small risk or any risk at all, when there is overwhelming evidence that the vast majority of accidents at work happen in areas, like the construction industry, where people are at risk and it is quite 1220 obvious that the level of risk that takes place in... simply because anybody that has been at work knows that in an office with lawyers, is not the same as when you are going up scaffolding on a building site. So clearly, the inspectors, who know their job and are professionals, are doing the work in the way they think is more efficient.

1225 Let me say that this new interest in Health and Safety is surprising, when in fact I made public recently the fact that there is a requirement in the 1996 Regulations that every single entity in Gibraltar should produce a risk assessment and keep a record of places where there are more than five, and the Department had no evidence that that had been complied with. In fact, I am now in the process of ensuring that in areas where it has not been complied with, after somebody approaches the employer to find out if it is there, if there is a record, it will be done. I have given a public commitment that every 1230 single employer will have a risk assessment required of them, as the law states, within a year.

I do not think that there is more that can be done to do what is the basic thing, which is to do a risk assessment. When that has not been done, surely the risk assessment that is going to be done over the next 10 months will show us whether there are other areas that potentially we should be devoting more attention to.
1235

Factory Inspectors
Reason for seeking legal advice

1240

Clerk: Question 810, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 704/2013, can the Minister for Health and Safety say for what reason or reasons did the Factory Inspector seek legal advice in the month of October?
1245

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the legal advice pursued by the Inspectorate was on how to proceed after an improvement notice issued to GFI was appealed.
1250

Hon. J J Netto: Was this improvement notice issued in September?

1255

Hon. J J Bossano: I believe it was.

Hon. J J Netto: And was the reason for the legal advice because the employer, in this particular case, was not putting right, basically, what the Factory Inspector had placed in the improvement order?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, as the original answer states, Mr Speaker, if the employer in question gave notice of appeal, it follows logically that he did not agree with the assessment of the Inspectorate and that is why he was going to appeal.

In actual fact, when the matter was referred to the Attorney General for advice, the Inspector went back to GFI and they agreed to comply with the Inspectorate and it did not go any further. But if it had gone to appeal, the Inspectorate needed the assistance of the Legal Department on how to deal with the appeal.

Hon. J J Netto: I am not sure whether I have understood the Minister correctly. Is he therefore saying that while they have been seeking legal advice, the actual works have not progressed on site, or they have progressed on site? I was not clear there.
1270

Hon. J J Bossano: If somebody gets told to do something in his workplace to change something and he decides to appeal, then it means that he does not accept that what he is being asked to do has to be done. I am telling him that that is why the Inspectorate appeals are very, very rare. The Inspectorate then went to the AG's Chamber to say, 'Well, look, these guys are resisting, what needs to be done. They are going to go to appeal, so how do we deal with it?'
1275

I am also telling him, although he has not asked me, that in practice, after that step was taken, and they went back, the company concerned changed its mind and decided not to proceed with the appeal, and complied with the order.

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Artificial reef

Reasons for location and timing

1285

Clerk: Question 835, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1290

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please explain why the Government laid the artificial reef in the area that it did, at the time that it did?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I am answering on the creation of the artificial reef as this was an environmental measure, co-ordinated and managed by my Ministry.

The location of the artificial reef is paramount, as this will largely determine the success of the prospect – (A Member: Project.) sorry, of the project... I apologise Mr Speaker – as this will largely determine the success of the project so that it will enhance the area's marine environment.

1300

More specifically, the north-west artificial reef was laid in this area for the following reasons: (1) sea grasses were prevalent in the area as documented by experts in scientific journals, but these had been destroyed by fishing activities, particularly raking. The design and layout of the reef has been done to facilitate the planting of sea grasses; (2) the seabed is of a sandy composition. The Department of the Environment had been continuously monitoring the water sediment and biological conditions of the site, which proved to be suitable for the creation of an artificial reef; (3) the area is not a shipping lane or military exclusion zone; (4) it is an area within British Gibraltar Territorial Waters, which provides no negative environmental impact, but maximum environmental gain.

1305

The reef, being in sheltered waters is the ideal location to: provide a spawning area for fish and marine life; provide an area for the re-colonisation and/or relocation of sea grasses; provide natural protection for the recolonisation of Habitats Directive Annex IV species, as listed under the Habitats Directive – for example Pinna nobilis; improve shellfish populations; provide a habitat for benthic communities to develop; and provide a new site for diving and snorkelling activities.

1310

In terms of timing, calm conditions with minimal wave, wind and tidal influences favour the deployment of artificial reef modules. The north-west artificial reef was deployed during the summer on 24th July and 25th July 2013, since the forecast for meteorological and sea state conditions were deemed suitable for said deployment.

1315

Hon. D A Feetham: Was there any discussion at all or was it factored into the decision to lay the reef in August? I recognise that the Government has every right to lay this reef where it laid it.

1320

A Member: In July.

1325

Hon. D A Feetham: Sorry, in July. But was there any discussion or was it factored into the decision, the possible repercussions that might have flowed from the laying of the reef and the impact that that would have had in terms of local traders because of ...and indeed there has been an impact on local traders – the consequence of the problems that we have had on the frontier? I mean, was that factored into the decision-making process by the Government, or the Minister, or the Chief Minister, when the decision was taken to lay this particular reef in July?

1330

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Needless to say, Mr Speaker, I am not going to be engaging the Leader of the Opposition on what the Chief Minister and the Minister for the Environment discuss.

1335

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but Mr Speaker, that is a wholly inadequate answer, with respect.

We have a reef that has been laid in July. It has provoked, unjustifiably so, we recognise that – unjustifiably so, but in our view predictably so – a reaction from Spain which has involved restrictions at the border, which has then caused huge problems, particularly for mainstream traders at the height of the tourist season in August and September, which has led many of these traders to see a downturn in their turnover for those two months.

I would have thought, and does he not agree with me, that any prudent and reasonable Government would have factored into their decision-making process that kind of consequence, despite having the legal right and the moral right, whatever you like, in terms of laying that reef, but factoring into the decision making process those consequences for mainstream traders and other businesses in Gibraltar?

Mr Speaker: Before the Chief Minister answers that supplementary question, let me make it clear that I am not going to allow a debate this morning, arising from this question, about the frontier restrictions or the measures being adopted by the Spanish Government, for whatever reason they may be.

1345

If the hon. Members of the Opposition wish to, they can raise the matter later, on the adjournment. It is a proper matter to raise on the adjournment, when a 40-minute debate can take place without a vote being taken and without a formal motion, or they can raise, they are free, under the Rules of this House, they are free to bring a motion on the question of the frontier restrictions whenever they so wish and then different Rules will apply because it will be a debate.

1350

But this morning, arising from this question, we are not going to have such a debate.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that, because I think that is exactly what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition wants.

1355

May I just comment in respect of what you have said, that of course a motion on the adjournment falls in respect of matters which are urgent, and something which has been going on apparently since August is not going to, in my view, attract the epitaph of 'urgent'.

1360

Mr Speaker: If I may correct the Chief Minister: not just urgent, but on any other matter, and it is any other matter that could have arisen during Question Time, and then it is for the Speaker to decide whether that is an appropriate matter to have debated on the adjournment.

Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, but let us be clear that the motion on the adjournment is not the sort of procedure that should be used by Oppositions that are fearful of losing votes on motions.

The Opposition, if they want to debate this issue with the Government are free of course to do so and the Government would very much welcome the opportunity of debating this with the Opposition; but let us do it on a motion, Mr Speaker, that is clear, and let us do it on a motion where we take a vote.

1370

Mr Speaker, the position is very clear. I am not going to engage the Leader of the Opposition on what it is that the Government considers when it makes a decision. If I start the process of answering in respect of that question, then we are going to be here simply analysing who said what to who in Cabinet before a particular decision that hon. Members like or dislike was taken.

1375

But I do have to take issue with much of what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has said. He appears to not be living in the Gibraltar that most of the rest of us are living in. He appears not to have lived the history of Gibraltar that the rest of Gibraltarians have lived it, and I say that, Mr Speaker, not in respect of the restrictions of 1969 to 1982 and then 1985, when the frontier finally opened, but of course, Mr Speaker, in respect of the period of restrictions and of frontier queues and of rhetoric that the hon. Member did not live with us, because he was happily ensconced up in the north of England being a barrister there.

1380

He might not recall, and I hope that this is of assistance to him, Mr Speaker, that at the time that the GSD were in administration, when they laid no reefs, Mr Speaker, and they tore up no fishing agreements – in fact they did them – we had... Apparently I am pesao Mr Speaker, I hear the hon. Lady opposite saying, because I am reminding them of this.

1385

We had extremely long frontier queues. We had extremely negative rhetoric, all from the same place that we have them today, the Palacio de Santa Cruz and the Partido Popular Foreign Ministers of the time.

There was a very informative article today that I recommend to Members opposite, Mr Speaker, in a publication in Spanish called Público – Público.es – which analyses what is Plan A and what is Plan B for the Spanish Foreign Ministry.

1390

Plan A, Mr Speaker, is being nice to the Gibraltarians and see if they will agree to transfer the sovereignty of Gibraltar. Plan B says, Mr Speaker, if having been nice to the Gibraltarians they do not agree to any progress on issues of sovereignty, then start getting tough. And if the hon. Gentleman says, 'Well, Mr Speaker, did you not consider Plan B when you were considering with the Hon. Minister for the Environment whether such a reef should be created in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters or not?', let me put it to him, Mr Speaker, that he should go back and do a bit of research. Not so much on the numbers of inspections that Health and Safety officers rightly do in respect of the construction industry, rather than analysing Health and Safety in hairdressing salons or spas, but to read the words of Señor Margallo, when he was first appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs of Spain – not when he said, 'Gibraltar Español' or 'Esta broma se ha acabado' – this joke is over – but when he said in a lengthy interview on 21st January 2012, Mr Speaker, and for the purposes of assisting him that is 19 months before the reef was laid – 19 months before the reef was laid – 'We are not going to progress with the trilateral process that is at an end and from now on we will have regional co-operation so long as there are advances on sovereignty –

1395

1400

1405 Mr Speaker: Can I – ?

Hon. Chief Minister: – not otherwise’.

1410 Mr Speaker: Can I bring the Chief Minister (Interjection) back to the question and answer? The question was as to the reasons why the Government laid the artificial reef in that area and the time that it did so.

The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment has given detailed answers, based on environmental and biological conditions, as to why that was proceeded with. I am only going to allow any further supplementaries to deal with those aspects of the question and the answer.

1415 Anything else to do with the wider political issues, hon. Members can debate whenever they so wish. I make myself available for that purpose and I will then apply the liberal rules of debating which follow. But, we are not going to do that this morning and I am bringing this matter to a conclusion, unless supplementary questions are within the parameters that I have decided.

1420 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very happy to accept your ruling. I will allow the Minister for the Environment to deal with the biological and environmental aspects of this matter as he is much better qualified than I am. I think I have dealt with the political aspects that were raised by the Leader of the Opposition.

1425 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am interested in the political questions and the political answers. If I cannot ask political questions and receive political answers, then I am not going to pursue the matter any further.

1430 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I put it to the hon. Gentleman that environmental issues and biological issues are highly important political issues too.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I am interested in the reasons why the Government took a decision which in my view has turned out to be one of the most monumental errors of judgement in the political history of Gibraltar. (Banging on desks)

1435 Mr Speaker: May I make it clear that, as Speaker, I am also interested in those decisions. I do not want anybody to go away from this House under the impression that I am curtailing discussion on these matters. I am just saying that Question Time is not the appropriate time to do so and I invite hon. Members of the Opposition, if they so wish, to table a motion at the earliest convenience, in order to debate this important issue. So I do not want anyone, members of the public in particular, who may not understand what the Rules of Procedure are, to think that the Speaker is curtailing debate. The Speaker is not curtailing debate, provided it is at a time when debate is called for.

1440 We are dealing with questions and answers, the purpose of which is to ask for information, to enjoin the Government to adopt a particular course of action or to adopt a certain line of policy, and that is what Question Time is about.

1445 Hon. Chief Minister: I am very grateful, Mr Speaker. I think it is important the public should know that we are prepared to debate these issues.

1450 Mr Speaker, I think it is entirely politically appropriate though that I do deal with the hon. Gentleman’s last point, because I think the public will realise, Mr Speaker, that the biggest monumental error of judgement made in the modern history of Gibraltar was actually to leave the GSLP as it was in the ascendancy and to join the GSD. In any event, Mr Speaker, history will judge this Government for everything it has done, not just but including the reef, much more fairly than the Opposition would like us to be judged for their own narrow political purposes. And when we do, Mr Speaker, the advances made in respect of those waters off the isthmus may not look like such a monumental error of judgement.

1455 Hon. D A Feetham: And I will enjoy bringing a final curtain to your Government in two years’ time. (Interjections)

1460 Mr Speaker: Is there any supplementary on this particular question? If not, we will proceed to the next one. No. I see that the matter has been satisfactorily dealt with therefore. (Laughter)

Hon. Chief Minister: Well Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has made a point and I think it is right that I should be able to answer it, because... if only with this observation, Mr Speaker.

1465 I think what you have done this morning, Mr Speaker, is to rightly draw out the Leader of the Opposition so that we have now been able to see, and so has all this community, that all of these issues that he wants to debate, he is not interested, Mr Speaker, in any details as to the biological and environmental reasons for the creation of the reef. He just wants to use this opportunity, Mr Speaker, to hurt the Government politically so that he can bring a final curtain on our Government in two years' time.

1470 Mr Speaker, for the purposes of the record, let me just remind him that the person who will decide when to bring the final curtain down on the lifetime of this Parliament will be me when I go and see the Governor to ask him to convene a General Election. We do not know yet, Mr Speaker, who will lead the parties into that General Election, what the parties will be, which party he will be in at the time, Mr Speaker (Laughter) and the general public will decide who it is that governs Gibraltar afterwards. He should not assume that he is going to win any elections in the future.

Mr Speaker: And I am bringing now a final curtain on this question and we go on to the next one. (Banging on desks and applause)

1485

Clerk: Question 836, the Hon. J J Netto.

1490

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state the breakdown of expenditure so far since the commencement of this financial year in relation to (1) protocol; (2) travel; and (3) entertainment by all Members of the Government, broken down by each separate category and stating the purpose, place and date in which such event took place?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Chief Minister.

1495

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 837 and 838.

Clerk: Question 837, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1500

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide a breakdown of all costs to the taxpayer of the recent visit to the Fourth Committee of the United Nations, identifying everyone who was paid for by the taxpayer, together with items of expenditure associated with that individual?

Clerk: Question 838, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1505

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide details of the cost of the Mega Pop Concert, the Jazz Festival, the Literary Festival and the Gibraltar Day in London?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1510

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, ministerial travel costs are put on the Government website, as invoices are received and paid, including those of the Deputy Chief Minister, Minister Licudi and my own, in respect of our travel to the United Nations this year. Should any further Ministerial costs be received, they will be reflected on the website.

1515

Details of protocol and entertainment have never been provided before the financial year end, by any administration, as that amounts to, in effect, providing a management account of ongoing expenditure.

In respect of Questions 837 and 838, however, I now hand over a schedule with the information requested, except in respect of protocol.

Mr Speaker: My attention has been drawn to the fact that the Chief Minister... has he missed out the last line of the question?

Hon. Chief Minister: Oh, yes, you are absolutely right, Mr Speaker. I am very grateful.

In relation to Question 837 and Question 838, there is another sentence I should have read out. Her Majesty's Government delegation on this occasion, the occasion of our visit to the United Nations, also included the Director of Education and six students.

1530

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have the schedule here in front of me and it does not include – and can I take it from the non-inclusion – anybody from the Self Determination Group, it does not include Mr Matthews, unless I have made a mistake. Does that mean that Mr Matthews paid for his own travel and expenses to the United Nations and that is why it does not appear in this particular schedule?

1535

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, he should ask Mr Matthews that, Mr Speaker. The only thing I can say is that the Government did not pay for it.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, and for the avoidance of doubt, can he confirm that it was not paid for through any Government-owned company, either directly or indirectly?

1540 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as far as I know we have not paid for the SDGG to come with us to the United Nations through the Government, the Savings Bank, Credit Finance Company, all the ones that they say are secret, Mr Speaker, but they know everything about it and so does everyone else in our community.

1545

Former Speaker of the House
Investigation into leak of personal tax affairs

1550 Clerk: Question 839 the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether the investigation into the leak of personal tax affairs of the former Speaker of this House has now concluded?

1555 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this investigation has now concluded and no evidence as to the source of the leak has been established by the Chief Secretary. A report of the investigation is presently being prepared.

1560

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, in relation to the report that he says is being prepared, is that a report that is a report to Government that will not be made public, or does he intend to make it public? Would he lay it before this House? What are his intentions in terms of the report into this particular issue, which is a serious issue, not only generally, but also for Members of this House? At the end of the day, this was a Speaker of the House and his personal tax affairs were leaked to members of the press.

1565

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Gentleman understates the seriousness of what happened here and that to have the tax affairs of any individual leaked to the press is, to say the least, criminal. To have them leaked of a Member of this House is criminal and raises political issues too; and therefore I will not commit myself to publish the report for exactly the reasons that I said to him in answer to Question 497 this year, which I am sure he will recall, namely that it may be that that report leads to my making – my or whatever the appropriate mechanism is – to a criminal report being made for further criminal investigation.

1570

Hon. D A Feetham: I understand that if the report focuses on evidence that may form the basis of a criminal investigation, that it may not be appropriate to disclose the report – I understand that. But as I understood the answer, really the Government or the Chief Secretary has not been able to get to the bottom of how or where and when, the ins and outs of the leaking of this particular information.

1575

If there is nothing there in this report that can form the basis of a criminal prosecution, because at the end of the day it really is inconclusive, is there any reason why the Government will not disclose the report so that at least Members of the Opposition can look at it and also can look at the thoroughness of the investigation and the way that the investigation has been conducted? We are perfectly entitled to do so, you know.

1580

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman can do what he likes. He can look at whatever he likes, but what he is not going to become is the policeman of the Chief Secretary. Is he saying, Mr Speaker, that he has some doubt as to the thoroughness of the investigation undertaken by the Chief Secretary?

1585

I must say, Mr Speaker, that I watched in awe – watched, because now we are able to, after the reforms that this Government has made – the allegations being made in respect of employment issues, when the Hon. the Minister for Health was answering questions, and all of those implications which you were good enough to point out about the Public Services Commission and its working. Are we now to have suggestions in this House, that in respect of something as important and as sensitive and as, frankly, unacceptable as a leak of a taxpayer's information, the hon. Gentleman thinks that it is up to him to determine whether or not the Government or the Chief Secretary have been thorough in an investigation?

1590

Well, look, Mr Speaker, that is never going to be a reason for us to publish a report. What I am saying to him, in trying to agree... in fact, in going further than his own view as to the seriousness of this leak, Mr Speaker, is that the report may take matters further, and it may take them outside the ambit of simply a

1595

1600 Civil Service investigation into what has happened. But certainly, Mr Speaker, if the report is published, it will not be in order to enable the hon. Gentleman to make himself the policeman of the policeman.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he really is very long winded in his answers today, and he really is waffling and waffling and waffling... more so today than on other occasions.

1605 Look, it is not up to me. It is not up to me, but I am perfectly entitled to examine that report and make my own mind up as to the quality of the investigation. That is part of the role of the Opposition. Or is he really suggesting that the Opposition is not entitled to look at this report and make up its own mind as to the thoroughness of an investigation into a very serious issue?

1610 Of course there are criminal implications, but it is also a matter of extreme importance to Members of this House that in relation to a Member of this House that there has been a leak of personal tax affairs that ultimately led to the Speaker's resignation last year. Mr Speaker, does he not recognise that the Opposition is entitled to that information?

1615 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the previous Speaker of this House, who gave eight years of service to this community and to this Parliament, explained why he resigned – in fact, not why he resigned, why he retired. He never suggested it was anything to do with the malicious leaking of information dealing with his tax affairs. The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has just said the opposite.

1620 Look, Mr Speaker, there has only been one Speaker who has resigned as a result of something related to the work he has done in this House and that was Mr Alcantara, who had to face a motion of no confidence in the Speaker where the Government voted against him because he had ruled in a way that the Government did not like. The Government that he supported. The Government that he then became a Member of, when he made the monumental error of judgment of leaving the GSLP in its ascendancy and going to the GSD in its descendency.

1625 But, Mr Speaker, how can he say that he is entitled to a Government report? Well, Mr Speaker, if he has any legitimate expectation that he might see the report, which he does not, it might be because we publish reports. Or, Mr Speaker, is it that I had an entitlement – to use his words – to see the Customs Report prepared by the previous administration, which they refused to publish, or to see the Alan King report into the future of GBC, which they had prepared at a huge cost to the taxpayer and refused to publish? Well, Mr Speaker, where was the entitlement then when he used to sit here and snigger, as a Government Minister, when those reports were not published.

1630 This report is into a very sensitive matter, and I am telling the House it may lead to more, and all I am saying is I cannot commit myself to publish the report as a result of that. But, Mr Speaker, he says that we are waffling. Look, Mr Speaker, I think anybody who has been watching today will know that they are the ones gobbling like turkeys voting for Christmas, and we are the ones talking turkey.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: He really has a propensity – he does it better than anybody else – to grandstand, the showmanship, the Hollywood; that is his thing. I have to say that that is his thing and I congratulate him for it.

1640 But, Mr Speaker, does he not recognise that he got elected on a ticket of doing things differently, even if it were right what he says. He was elected on doing things differently and he complained on many occasions that we had not published the King Report. Does he not recognise therefore that he ought to take a leaf out of his own political discourse and do things the way that he used to preach that he was going to do things, before he became Chief Minister of Gibraltar?

1645 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, look I think the hon. Gentleman has not wanted to hear what I say. He accuses me of grandstanding, but he is asking questions, despite my answer being the report may be published unless there are reasons why it should not, because it may lead to a prosecution.

1650 Now Mr Speaker, of course we are doing things differently. There was a new dawn, thank goodness, on 9th December 2011. Things have changed, this Parliament is unrecognisable. People can watch us at home, and so much more has happened, Mr Speaker. But everybody knows that there has been real change in our community.

1655 But what I cannot do, Mr Speaker, is when we are dealing with a report that may lead to a prosecution, or an investigation or may be tangentially related to a prosecution or an investigation, commit myself today – and that is what we are arguing about – to publish the report. Mr Speaker, it maybe that those things do not come to pass and the report can be published, because my inclination, as hon. Members know, and they take me at my best in this respect, is always to publish unless there is a good reason not to.

But that does not mean, Mr Speaker, because there has been a new dawn, because at last there is transparency, because we are a more open Government, that the hon. Members can have a webcam set up in each of our offices to hear what we talk about when we are going to decide whether or not to lay a reef, 1660 to look at what it is that we are doing in respect of reports, and to have access to any information that may be of an important prosecutorial nature.

But, Mr Speaker, let that not stop him from sitting down, almost as if he were Scrooge, to say, 'Bah, humbug' to everything.

1665 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, nobody is asking for disclosure of this report, if at the end of the day it is going to lead to a criminal prosecution or a criminal investigation. I have not suggested that. On the contrary, I have said if it does not do that, there is no reason why you ought not to disclose it, and certainly, not disclose it to the Opposition.

1670 Now, my final supplementary, will he at least, if there is no criminal investigation or criminal prosecution – criminal investigation, really... does he undertake to at the very least allow me sight, as Leader of the Opposition, of this report, bearing in mind that it does go to the privileges to disclosure of personal tax information of a Member of this House, and it relates to this House? And as Leader of the Opposition, will he at least undertake to let me see a copy of that report, even if on a confidential basis?

1675 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I said at the beginning of my answer to supplementaries that my answer remained as in respect of Question 497, which was in June of this year. The hon. Member's supplementary is identical to the one he asked me in supplementaries then.

1680 So I will just remit myself to saying this, Mr Speaker – it is at line 270 of the excellent Hansard that is now produced so much more quickly for these monthly meetings that we now have, instead of the one or two that they used to have when they were in Government, and called themselves democratic. And I said this, Mr Speaker:

1685 'Mr Speaker, I cannot commit myself to that, [the undertaking which he asked for] for a reason that I hope he will understand. It could be that this leads to criminal proceedings and therefore that the matter might be overtaken by the issues becoming the subject of a complaint or a charge. Therefore, Mr Speaker, I do not think it is appropriate for me to give the House an undertaking that this will result in a statement by me in this House, or the tabling of an investigation report, because it could become much more serious than that, and I hope he understands that reasoning.'

1690 Mr Speaker, I have said throughout the course of questions and answers this morning, the very same thing. If it leads to an investigation or at a criminal level, I cannot publish it; therefore Mr Speaker, the opposite must also be true. If it does not lead to an investigation for criminal proceedings, then I will be free to publish it.

1695 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does that mean, because he has not given me a straight answer to this question. Does it mean that if it does not lead to a criminal investigation that the Hon. the Chief Minister will make that report public – (1); and (2), that at the very least, he will allow me to see it, even on a confidential basis?

1700 I am not asking about criminal investigations. This has never for me been about a report which leads to a criminal investigation. If it leads to a criminal investigation, I understand. If it does not – that is the question.

1705 Hon. Chief Minister: I have already answered those questions, Mr Speaker.

Self Determination Gibraltar Group
Chairman's speech to UN

1710 Clerk: Question 840, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1715 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, did the Chief Minister read the speech of the Self Determination Gibraltar Group Chairman, Dennis Matthews, before it was delivered to the United Nations?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No, sir.

1720 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, did he agree with the sentiments expressed by Mr Matthews at the United Nations, comparing the actions of Spain to Gibraltar to that of terrorists?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, sir.

1725

Establishment of Anti-Corruption Authority
Continuing plans

1730 Clerk: Question 841, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether the Government has abandoned its plans to set up an Anti-Corruption Authority?

1735 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, we have not abandoned our plans in this respect, and expect to make an announcement in due course.

1740 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is this something that the Government intends to do during the course of 2014, just to put a tighter timetable on the answer the hon. Gentleman has given me?

1745 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government does not accept tighter timetables from the Opposition. Our manifesto is to be performed in the lifetime of this Parliament. Some things may be now performed in 2014, some in 2015 and in fact, Mr Speaker, if he understands the Rules of Procedure, we may be able even to go into 2016.

1750 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, indeed. Will this involve the introduction of legislation in order to create this particular authority? And how does the Hon. the Chief Minister envisage that this will plug in to existing legislation, or will it require wholesale legislation, hermetically sealed from existing legislation, in particular for example, the Crimes Act and the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act?

1755 Hon. Chief Minister: I do not recognise that as an analogy that you can use in relation to legislation, Mr Speaker.
It is very likely that this will require new legislation. I am not going to debate with him at this stage how it is going to be done. He will see when an announcement is made how we expect it to interface with existing legislation.

1760

Credit Finance Company Limited; Consolidated Fund
Commutated pensions of civil servants

1765 Clerk: Question 842, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state, what is the total amount paid by Credit Finance Company Limited in commuted pensions of civil servants?

1770 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer together with Question 843.

Clerk: Question 843.

1775 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state how many civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid (a) by Credit Finance Company Limited and (b) from the Consolidated Fund since Credit Finance Company Limited was incorporated?

1780 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as at 31st October 2013, the total amount paid by Credit Finance Company Limited in commuted pensions of civil servants is £18,123,986.28. Figures as at 30th November have not yet been finalised by the Treasury. Therefore answers reflect tentative figures as at 31st October 2013.

1785 One hundred and twenty-four civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid by Credit Finance Company Limited.

1790 Sixty-one civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid from the Consolidated Fund, once the incorporation of Credit Finance Company Limited as follows: nine gratuity payments on retirement; 39 revised gratuity payments to civil servants who retired and had their gratuities paid prior to the incorporation of the company; and seven gratuity payments on death; and six gratuity payments on resignation.

1795 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just by way of clarification. Did he say £18 million – one eight – or did he say £80 million? It is just that we did not quite hear it.

Hon. Chief Minister: One eight, one two three, nine eight six, dot twenty-eight.

1800 Hotels
Financial assistance or loans

Clerk: Question 844, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1805 Hon. D J Bossino: When originally drafted, it was directed at the Minister for Tourism. I assume it is the Chief Minister who is going to be answering, so I will phrase it in those terms.

1810 Can the Chief Minister advise whether any hotels, other than the Sunborn but including the Marriott, are the beneficiaries of any loans from Credit Finance Company Limited, or are in any other way receiving financial assistance from the Government or the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1815 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am informed that no hotels, other than the Sunborn, are beneficiaries of any loans from Credit Finance Company Limited, or in any other way receiving financial assistance from the Government or the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

1820 Mr Speaker, he will know that that question is answered in the spirit of what he has asked, and not in respect of, for example, whether they have arrears of water or electricity. I do not know what that updated position is, but it dawned on me when answering that if they were being particularly pedantic, they might suggest well if a hotel has not paid two months of water or electricity, is that financial assistance from the Government? He knows... what... I am answering, I think, the question he is asking me by giving this answer. It is in relation to loans, as I understand it.

1825 Hon. D J Bossino: Indeed, Mr Speaker, the question is in relation to whether any actual payment has been made, exactly. So he has understood the purport of the question.

Yes, I am grateful for that. There is a point of clarification which my Hon. and Learned Friend, Mr Figueras suggested I ask, and he is absolutely right. The Marriott is not yet a hotel in Gibraltar. Is there any intention on the part of the Government, Credit Finance Limited and all the rest of it, to provide any financial assistance to the owners of the Marriott which is intending to set up shop in Gibraltar?

1830 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the owners of the Marriott have not been in touch with the Government in this respect, but the Government would be open to considering any similar requests from hotel operators in Gibraltar.

1835 I think there was a scheme in the late 1990s called the Hotel Assistance Scheme which dealt with similar issues and the Government would be prepared to consider any requests for the Government to assist in any particular way.

1840 Of course, in relation to Credit Finance, it is different. They have got to go through certain procedures as to how they would persuade the people who are responsible for lending in that respect to decide whether there could be a lending. It is a different process. But if the Government were to be engaged, the Government might be very willing to consider some incentives for any of the new proposed hotel developments.

1845 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, and can he confirm there has been no request from the owners of the Marriott for any kind of financial assistance similar to the ones provided to the owners of the Sunborn by Credit Finance?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not know what the updated position is in that respect. As far as I know, the owners of the Marriott have not been in touch with the Government at all – with the Government.

1850 Have the developers been in touch with the Government about similar issues? I think there may have been a request, Mr Speaker, I do not know where that lies, I do not know what amounts we are talking about, and I do not know whether it will progress or not. I know that they have other sources of funding; I assume he is asking me because he knows, as he represents some of them.

1855 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, earlier on, the Hon. Speaker said that the Opposition ought to make itself responsible for the accuracy of the questions. I think that the Hon. the Chief Minister ought to make himself responsible for the accuracy of any point that he makes.

1860 I represent nobody in relation to this particular project. He knows that I am a litigator. I am not a commercial lawyer, and therefore he could not possibly make a statement that I represent these individuals, because there is no evidence to suggest that that is so.

1865 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I will tell you why he is completely wrong. His firm represents a number of them, and as the present backbencher Chief Minister used to say, if your firm is involved, then I impute knowledge to you and of course, Mr Speaker, he is right. Under the solicitors' rules, if your firm is handling something, then as a partner of that firm – and he likes to describe himself as a senior partner of Hassans – he must be imputed with that knowledge.

1870 Hon. D A Feetham: I do not know where he gets that, I describe myself as a senior partner or whatever. I am not going to go into this. But, Mr Speaker, I have absolutely no knowledge of this or anything else relating to this particular project.

And look, the Hon. the Chief Minister, every single time I ask a question either about this or about something else, he seems to hide behind or attempt to make political points at my expense, that I am a partner of Hassans.

1875 Well, he used to be a partner of Hassans, I do not know whether he continues to be a partner of Hassans, but I do not think that it is legitimate for the Hon. the Chief Minister to make assertions as if I am the guy that is representing these people and I have knowledge in relation to this particular project. I do not think it is a fair point for him to make.

1880 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has never made a point politically in his life that I have had to hide away from, let alone any that he has made in this House.

Look, Mr Speaker, I will take his point. I think he is entirely wrong and I will simply rely on the statements made by his erstwhile leader, Sir Peter Caruana, who is not here now, when I was in his position and I was a partner of Hassans, and was imputed with all sorts of knowledge of that firm, when I was the Leader of the Opposition and a Member of the Opposition. He can look at the Hansards if he likes.

1885 And as to when he used to describe himself as a senior partner of Hassans, if he likes later, I will show him copies of the press releases.

1890 Hon. D A Feetham: But is he suggesting – because it is an important point – is he suggesting that because I am a partner of Hassans, that every single time that I ask a question about financial assistance that may have been provided to parties involved in some commercial transaction that I know absolutely nothing about, that simply because I am a partner of Hassans, that I am not entitled to ask that question and he will refuse to provide me with the answer; simply provide me with the retort of, 'Well, you should know because you are a partner of Hassans'?

1895 Because if that is the position, then I am afraid that the depths to which this Government is plummeting and has plummeted in terms of transparency and accountability is really getting to new depths and new ways in this House.

1900 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do fear that the hon. Gentleman has taken leave of his senses. He used to sit here, when the Hon. the then Chief Minister used to make these statements. I have actually provided an answer to the questions, so he must actually – I will take it from his answer or from his question – be applauding the fact that we are answering these questions, when the previous administration would simply say – as Sir Peter used to say to me – 'You go and ask your partners: you should know, you are a partner of Hassans'.

1905 Well look, Mr Speaker, I am grateful that he acknowledges that that is a 'depth to which one plummets', and I will take it that he therefore considers that Sir Peter plunged to depths, and that he welcomes the fact that we have answered the question, despite the fact that he is a partner of Hassans. How senior though, is a matter of opinion, depending on who drafts the press release.

1910 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, Mr Speaker, Hassans seems to be getting a lot of free advertising. I am a partner of Triay Stagnetto Neish (Laughter and banging on desks) [inaudible] and also with shadow ministerial responsibility for Tourism. (Laughter)

Now, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister knows that I asked him about whether the owners of the intended hotel, the Marriott, has received any financial assistance from the Government, and the question in fact is phrased in terms of the Government, Credit Finance, as he knows.

1915 Now he then says that it could be that the developers may have sought financial assistance. Can he expand upon that at all? Is he able to? Because I would be very interested to learn if he can provide any further information to this House in relation to that. I asked specifically in relation to the owners, but I now ask in relation to the developers or any other party connected with the Marriott project.

1920 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I cannot give him more information at this stage, but I just think there might be something, so if he wants to ask the question next time round with that different permutation, I will be able to bring any information which is available.

1925 And of course, I do recognise that he is a partner of TSN and that we have partners here or ex-partners of ISOLAS as well. It would be unfair not to mention. All the law firms in Gibraltar do an excellent job. (Laughter and interjection)

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, I will take him up on that offer and I will be asking a question at the next sitting, or maybe even write to him.

1930

Gold and silver bullion
Buying and selling

1935 Clerk: Question 845, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether the Government, the Gibraltar Savings Bank or Credit Finance Company Limited are involved or propose to be involved, directly or indirectly, in the business of buying and selling gold or silver bullion?

1940 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

1945

Foreign investors
Update on Government's position

1950 Clerk: Question 846, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1955 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, bearing in mind that we are now two years into the New Dawn Government, will be Chief Minister please state whether he is now in a position to identify those foreign investors which he said in an interview with Gerard Teuma in May of 2011 that he had up his sleeve if his party was elected into office?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes sir. (Hon. D A Feetham: Ah!)

1960 The first of these – only the first, Mr Speaker – will be announced shortly, early next year, towards the end of January, when a new economic activity will be made public, which is anticipated to give rise potentially to be a market that could bring major benefit to Gibraltar.

1965 The announcement involves the creation of an entity which will be a joint venture with a client of his firm who was previously someone I had the pleasure of representing personally. Others may soon also materialise. Announcements will be made in due course, as and when they crystallise.

He did, Mr Speaker, I hesitate to remind him, undertake to congratulate me when I made the announcement.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, (Laughing) he has not made an announcement; it is an intention!

1970 But let me say that any investment that the Government brings to Gibraltar, if it is worthwhile and for the benefit of the community, I will be the first one to congratulate the Government. (Interjection)

But I have to say that on this particular occasion, I am rather sceptical that these particular investors are the same ones that he said he had up his sleeve in May of 2011, and perhaps the Chief Minister will forgive me for taking the rather sceptical view that he had nothing up his sleeve in May of 2011.

1975 Why has it take so long, assuming that he did have it up his sleeve in May of 2011, why has it taken so long for the Chief Minister to now come to this House and to say, 'Well, we might be making an announcement shortly', or 'we will be making an announcement shortly'? Why has it taken so long?

1980 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he can be as cynical and as sceptical as he likes, but when he sees what it is that happens, he will understand that these are exactly the people I was talking about. It is not that it has taken so long, Mr Speaker. January 2014 will be barely 24 full months since the election of the New Dawn Government that was elected, Mr Speaker, because of course the Government before had gone to the end of its term, just before Christmas. And therefore, there was very little that could be done in the first month.

1985 So 24 full months after that, we are already producing not just the inward investment that we have shown already, Mr Speaker, but new inward investment that is related to these particular individuals. He will know, Mr Speaker, that Government works in ways which require things to be checked and tested, etc, and that therefore it is simply not possible, at least these days. In 1988, I am told by the Hon. Mr Bossano, things could happen a little bit more quickly, because there were no European tendering procedures that had to be gone through etc. There are new European rules that hinder things, so it has taken some time for these things to actually be matured to the stage of launch.

1990 But as he will see, Mr Speaker, when he realises who it is that is doing this work, and some of the others who are likely to be announced to be doing this work with us in the future, that they are the people I was in touch with at the time I was a partner of Hassans and therefore even his cynicism will, I am sure, be brushed away.

1995 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, and even he, I would have thought, would be able to attract some inward investment in four years of being Chief Minister. It is already two years into his so-called New Dawn Government and over two years since May 2011.

2000 But can he give some more information as to, for example, the nationality of these investors, or the sectors in which this new investment is going to be relating to. I mean can he do that, so that we get a flavour of what it is that the Government is proposing.

If he cannot, because of some commercial sensitivity, then I am not going to press him, but can he provide some further information?

2005 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would have thought that even he would be more generous than to describe me as he has in the first part of his sentence, at least on 23rd December, but never mind.

2010 Mr Speaker, I will not announce what the thing that will happen in January will be, beyond what I have said, because that will be commercially sensitive and we want that to have an impact internationally and he will see that when it happens, but he can then ask me about it in February, because we hold monthly meetings of the Parliament, as I hesitate in reminding him.

But I will tell him that the other area, the other area involving other clients, is real estate.

2015

Tobacco smuggling from Western and Eastern beaches Government measures

2020 Clerk: Question 847, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state what steps his Government is taking to stop the smuggling of tobacco from Western and Eastern beaches?

2025 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as has already been announced publicly, the Government is working on a number of measures that have been implemented or are actively being pursued to curtail smuggling from these areas as follows:

2030 First, the repair works along the frontier fence are ongoing and a mechanism is in place between Her Majesty's Customs and the Technical Services Department to expedite the repair of any future breaches. This part of the frontier fence had been in a state of complete disrepair when we were elected.

Works are ongoing to finalise the setting up of CCTV installations along the frontier perimeter.

2035 As at June 2012, Government introduced Special Zones under the Tobacco Act. These included Eastern Beach, the frontier fence from Eastern Beach shoreline up to and including the loop area and Western Beach. Over the last month, these areas have been extended to include the main roundabout from the frontier, across the runway and up to the sundial roundabout. Persons within Special Zones are subject to restrictions in relation to cigarettes and are not allowed to be in possession of 600 cigarettes in a red zone, or 2,000 cigarettes in a blue zone. It is also an offence to request or procure any person to export or assist with the exportation of cigarettes by land. Law enforcement officers may direct persons to leave a Special Zone, if it is believed that...

2040

Are they interested, Mr Speaker, in what I am saying? I am quite happy to wait.

2045 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I know that he likes me to look at him, but I do not have to look at him to listen to him. I am listening.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, nothing could give me greater pleasure than if from now on he looks away whilst I read.

2050 Mr Speaker: I think that the two hon. Members, the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition are... Let me put it mildly, they are getting a bit carried away this morning. Perhaps they might come down to earth.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker, your advice is always sound.

2055 Mr Speaker, I will carry on reading.
Law enforcement officers may direct persons to leave a Special Zone if it is believed that their presence is primarily related to the exportation of cigarettes by land.

2060 A specific tobacco operation, called Operation Venetian, was set up by HM Customs, together with the Royal Gibraltar Police and the Gibraltar Defence Police, that has been widely reported in the press. The aim is to create a high visibility presence at the hot spot entry/exit points, in order to deter and disrupt elicit contraband activity.

As part of planned infrastructural works in the frontier area, a number of control measures will be introduced. These will deter persons from accessing the frontier fence from the Commercial Gate up to the eastern coastline.

2065 The Government has already announced that retail outlets selling tobacco at two residential estates near to the land frontier and beaches will have their tobacco licence conditions amended, in that they will only be allowed to sell cigarettes by way of vending machines.

2070 In respect of the area of Western Beach, an unclimbable fence has been constructed and handed over to the MOD as part of the ongoing Houston project. How appropriate, Mr Speaker, that it should be called that, now that we have both come down to earth! The fence runs parallel three metres behind the current frontier fence from Western Beach to the customs pedestrian entrance to Gibraltar.

2075 Gibraltar, UK and Spain ad hoc talks
Update

Clerk: Question 848, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2080 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide the House with an update on the likelihood of ad hoc talks taking place between Gibraltar, the United Kingdom and the Kingdom of Spain?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2085 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, all information in this respect is already in the public domain.

2090 Gibraltar sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of waters
Chief Minister's firm stance

Clerk: Question 849, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2095 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Chief Minister accept that he can stand firm on issues that are vital and fundamental to the sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of our waters, air space and land, without comparing Spain to North Korea or accusing it of state-sponsored vandalism towards the citizens of Gibraltar at the United Nations?

2100 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I can certainly stand firm against Spain on issues that are vital and fundamental to sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of our waters. The vocabulary I use in doing so is not a matter I am prepared to take advice on from the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

2105 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but does he regret using the intemperate language that he used and the comparisons that he has, bearing in mind that it really has added a new dimension, in my view – he can disagree of course, but a new dimension in my view – in relation to relations between Spain and Gibraltar, which is that it is becoming personalised with the Chief Minister of Gibraltar?

2110 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I must say the hon. Gentleman's question says that I accused Spain of state-sponsored vandalism towards citizens in Gibraltar at the United Nations. I do not think I ever used the words 'state-sponsored vandalism'. I do not know why it is that he wants to use that vocabulary. Perhaps he wants to pour oil on the flames.

2115 Mr Speaker, I do not recognise the description that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has used of what I have said. I do not think I have used intemperate language. The comparisons I have made I think were absolutely appropriate when I made them, and I of course stand by them, but I do recognise that his position is exactly the same as that of Mr Landaluce.

2120 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, just taking him up on the final part of that answer, does he not accept that in order to defend Gibraltar's vital interests, one does not need to get personal, one does not need to use ill-judged statements that will cause offence, not only to a political party...? And I do not care one hoot whether the PP Government is offended or is not offended. My concern here is that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar, in defending Gibraltar as he is entitled to do and one would expect – I mean there is no difference between he and I in relation to defence of Gibraltar's vital interests –

2125 Hon. Chief Minister: Oh yes, there is.

Hon. D A Feetham: No, there is not. No, there is not.

2130 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes there is!

Hon. D A Feetham: No, there is not.

2135 Mr Speaker: Order!

2140 Hon. D A Feetham: But what he does is, by using this type of ill-advised, ill-judged language, what he does is he risks not only alienating the PP Government, but also alienating political classes in Spain, the media in Spain and also Spanish citizenry. And at the end of the day, what we ought to be doing is standing firm, but also explaining Gibraltar's position in a cool, calm, intelligent way so that the adverse propaganda that emanates from the PP Government is rebutted in an intelligent, calm way, using reason, rather than just simply gratuitous, effectively, insults, which is what it is when one compares Spain to North Korea.

2145 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I take it that he did not like that analogy. (Interjections) But I was interviewed last week, Mr Speaker, by PRWeek in London, who wanted to interview me because of my use of language and how it had changed the way that Gibraltar's message went around the world, and how in fact, Gibraltar's message went around the world that week, in showing up the attitude of the Spanish Government and he might want to reflect on what he has said, because I do not think that anything that I have said was ill-judged. Neither Mr Speaker, has anybody ever come to this House to tell a Chief Minister that their language was ill-judged when he has been critical of Spain.

2150 Mr Speaker, the hon. the now backbencher, the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana, in 1998 or 1999, he will recall from my speech on the arrival of His Excellency, the Governor, where I actually took the House through some of the things that had happened in the past. The Hon. Sir Peter Caruana said, that something said by Señor Matutes at the time – and he can look at Hansard and see what it is that I was referring to – were mendacious lies. (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.)

In other words, the Right hon. the previous Chief Minister of Gibraltar called the Foreign Minister of Spain a mendacious liar.

2160 Hon. D A Feetham: He was calling a spade a spade.

Hon. Chief Minister: Apparently Mr Speaker, that is calling a spade a spade. Right, I think if the hon. Member looks back at everything I have said, he will not find me actually insulting directly the Foreign Minister of Spain. Whatever it is that I and every other Gibraltarian may think about his policies, he will not have seen me saying that the man has uttered mendacious lies.

2165 Now, if he looks at what I said, and it is quite remarkable that the Chief Minister is called upon by the Leader of the Opposition to justify his statements in relation to this matter, when I talked about North Korea, what I said was, that Spain was exaggerating in its reaction like North Korea exaggerates in its reactions (A Member: Ah!) and he will recall, Mr Speaker, that I was asked why I used that terminology and the exact reasoning was because in August, I think it was August 4th, Señor Margallo had given an interview to ABC, where he detailed all the things that were going to be done by Spain, as a result of Gibraltar having inter alia torn up the fishing agreement and created the artificial reef, etc, etc.

2170 And what I said at the time – and it was widely reported, I am surprised he now pretends he did not read it – was that this was an over-reaction à la North Korea. When there is a small commercial difference between them and South Korea, about how businesses operate in the de-militarised zone, etc, etc or with the United States, the reaction from North Korea is, ‘I am going to bring nuclear damnation to the Korean peninsula’ – not ‘we need to re-negotiate these terms.’ And that was the analogy I made and I think it is an absolutely appropriate analogy, and it is right that, as a result of that, Mr Speaker, the message of the people of Gibraltar went around the world. The things that were happening and are happening in some instances at the Gibraltar frontier were found out by people much further than usually find out about what is happening, and editorially, I think he will find that we had 90% to 95% editorial support in all newspapers in the world that covered this issue.

2175 I am quite happy, Mr Speaker, as I have said before, that the Government’s archive of newspaper information, etc should be made public and I am going to ensure that it happens and it is put on our website, so that the hon. Gentleman can see how many people around the world have read about the Gibraltar issue, the problems at the frontier and how editorial support came down on Gibraltar’s behalf, without having to spend a huge amount of money on advertising the world over.

2180 So Mr Speaker, I am not going to take advice from him on what vocabulary I should use. I would say this to him, Mr Speaker: look he likes to go around Spain making speeches that try to ingratiate him to some, whilst trying to do the balancing act of not falling entirely out of favour with people in Gibraltar. He knows, Mr Speaker, that one of the things he was saying, which was that the Government of Gibraltar had now not even been able to maintain a relationship with our socialist kindred on the other side of the frontier, was actually not true, that we have actually very strong relationships with the PSOE party.

2185 And he needs to reflect, Mr Speaker, on the fact that between 1996 and 2003, the Chief Minister of Gibraltar then, Sir Peter Caruana, the Leader of his Party who he has said is... I do not know whether he said is the or among the greatest Gibraltarians of all time, had absolutely no political interlocution with any Spanish political party at a national federal level.

2190 In other words, he was accusing the Spanish Foreign Minister of mendacious lies, he was having rows with the British Government, and from that, we move to a situation where joint sovereignty was almost visited upon our community.

2195 Today, Mr Speaker, this Government has an excellent relationship with the Socialist party in Spain, at the level of its national federal executive committee, as well as at the level of its municipalities, although of course we do not have to agree on everything. And second, we have a very strong relationship indeed with the British Government, which is today made up of Conservatives and Liberals, and with our sister party in the United Kingdom, the Liberal Party.

2200 So Mr Speaker, the position really is that my administration, although we still wish to establish a dialogue with the Spanish Government, is not talking to the Partido Popular in Spain, but we are talking to every political party in the United Kingdom and to the principal party of opposition in Spain and to Esquerra Republicana, which is another party in Spain that has wished to establish relations with us.

2205 Now, in those circumstances, Mr Speaker, I think actually if the hon. Member compares the actions of he who he calls the greatest, or one of the greatest Gibraltarians of all time, between 1996 when Gibraltar was last faced with a Partido Popular Government in 2003, with the excellent New Dawn Government of the Gibraltar Socialist Labour Party and the Liberals, I mean, he will find that perhaps we should not be taking his advice on how we conduct our foreign affairs, certainly not in relation to vocabulary.

2210 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I certainly do not accept that one can compare calling a spade a spade, which is ‘you have lied in relation to this position, in your criticisms or your statements in relation to Gibraltar’ – which is calling a spade a spade – to making a gratuitous ill-advised, ill-advised comparison of Spain to North Korea, or accusing Spain of state-sponsored vandalism. I just simply do not accept that that is... I simply –

2220

Hon. Chief Minister: Point of order, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: I am going to bring up a Point of Order, and that is that the hon. Members are now debating.

2225

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, may I deal with the short Point of Order? You are absolutely right and I of course accept your ruling in that. But the short Point of Order is: I have said to him, I do not recognise that second part of his question. Can he please clarify when I have accused Spain of state-sponsored vandalism?

2230

Hon. D A Feetham: At the United Nations, Mr Speaker – that is my interpretation of what he said, it is the interpretation of many people that read his speech, including I may add, because I have been in Spain over the last two weeks delivering speeches, including many people in Spain – many people who actually are favourable and sympathise with Gibraltar's position. Because of the statements that he has made, he has alienated those people – he has become the problem, Mr Speaker!

2235

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker no.

Mr Speaker, I am not the problem any more than Peter Caruana was the problem between 1996 and 2003. The problem, Mr Speaker, as every Gibraltarian knows – and I know he knows it Mr Speaker, but he wants to win an election so desperately that he will say anything he has to say – the problem is the Partido Popular.

2240

Now, Mr Speaker, in my UN speech, I did not accuse anyone of state-sponsored vandalism. Now the whole of these sets of questions was premised on the hon. Member's view that no doubt the Government had paid for the SDGG to visit the United Nations, no doubt the Chief Minister had approved the speech of the Chairman of the United Nations, and therefore the Chief Minister of Gibraltar was to be imputed with his statements as to 'terrorism', state-sponsored terrorism, which is the word that would have fitted in there if that had worked.

2245

Mr Speaker, look the fact is that I had absolutely no knowledge that that was going to be said by Mr Matthews, in exactly the same way as Mr Caruana had absolutely no knowledge at the time that he went to the United Nations, that Mr Zammit, who sat next to Mr Caruana, and also did not have his ticket paid for by Mr Caruana, was going to say that the Spanish Government was trying to annihilate the Gibraltarians, right? He was trying to commit... and the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister, as the brilliant historian that he is, remembers the word – that Spain was trying to commit genocide of the Gibraltarians. That was not my word. 'Terrorism' was not my word; it was the word of the Chairman of the SDGG. Genocide was not the word of Sir Peter Caruana, it was the word of Bryan Zammit as the Chairman of the UNA.

But look, let us be very clear. What is it that I said at the United Nations that incensed people in Spain? It was not the North Korean thing; I did not say the North Korean thing in Spain...sorry, in the United Nations. I said in the United Nations, that Spain or one of the law enforcement agencies of Spain, the Guardia Civil, had shot at an innocent Gibraltarian in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters. That is the issue that people did not like in Spain about my UN speech, Mr Speaker. That was absolutely true, I trust that he accepts that it was true. It led to the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom – not the Chief Minister of Gibraltar, but the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom – to raise the issue with the Prime Minister of Spain, to the Minister for Europe to take the issue up with his counterpart, and to notes verbales and to a request for an investigation. But they did not like it when I said it in front of an international audience, and that is not to accuse them of state-sponsored vandalism, Mr Speaker.

But I will say this, Mr Speaker, and I just put it on the record so that he knows, in case Mr Speaker, he ever, heaven forbid, were to become Chief Minister of Gibraltar, or were to be in a position to advise the Chief Minister of Gibraltar. I certainly hope that it is always, if anything, the latter and not the former! I said in my first speech at the United Nations in June 2012 as Chief Minister of Gibraltar, to the Spanish Government, 'Wake up and smell the coffee, Gibraltar will never be Spanish.' I do not know whether he agrees with that or not, Mr Speaker, but I can tell him, that the intense diplomatic activity that occurred after that was huge, because Spain just did not want to hear that expressed in quite those terms. He might not like that either. I love it, Mr Speaker.

2270

Mr Speaker: I am going to allow one further intervention from the Leader of the Opposition, and from the Chief Minister, and then that is the end of Question Time.

2280 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes, we were on a Point of Order and he has just finished his Point of Order. I am not going to be responding to his Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

2285 Mr Speaker, I have to say that given his track record before he became Chief Minister for lack of judgement, and the lack of judgement that he has exhibited as Chief Minister, if he has become Chief Minister, I would suspect that many, many other people also have the necessary capability to become Chief Minister. Ultimately, if the people of Gibraltar – (Interjections) Ultimately if the people of Gibraltar want to entrust us with their trust at the next election, it is for them. It is not for me, and it is not for him.

2290 But I do sense, Mr Speaker, that hell is beginning to freeze over slightly and there is a change of tone from the Chief Minister in terms of the language that he has used, which I welcome and I congratulate the Chief Minister for back-tracking on the language that he has used in the past. Can he just put it beyond doubt, so that the message has absolute clarity emanating from this Parliament, that the Chief Minister in no way believes that the comparison between Spain and North Korea is a valid one, giving him the opportunity and that in no way does he believe that Spain is in any way responsible for state-sponsored vandalism towards the citizens of Gibraltar?

2295 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I really do not know which Chamber he is in. He does not seem to like to hear the answers that I give.

Look, Mr Speaker, as to who will or will not win an election in the future, I am not a crystal ball gazer and this is not an issue to be dealt with in Question Time -

2300 Hon. D A Feetham: I have not raised it.

2305 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, you have raised it. But Mr Speaker, I will just say to him that he had the lack of political understanding to give an interview to GBC during the course of the last by-election at 12 o'clock in the evening, which was going to be aired at 11 o'clock in the evening after polls had closed, where he said, 'We are going to win this by-election' – and this was something that was going to come out after the polls closed – 'We are going to win this by-election by a very large margin'. 'By a very large margin'.

2310 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in the same way that he can raise points of order about accuracy, I will raise it. I did not say we are going to win it –

Mr Speaker: May I inform – ?

2315 Hon. D A Feetham: And it has absolutely nothing to do with this particular question that I have asked.

2320 Mr Speaker: May I inform both the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition, that points of order have to do with the Rules of this House and not with questions of fact or opinion – nothing to do with questions of fact or opinion. That is not a Point of Order.

Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker, all I ask is that the Rules of this House are applied evenly as between the Opposition and the Chief Minister.

2325 Mr Speaker: Have I not applied them evenly? Have I not given – ?

Hon. D A Feetham: No, you have not!

Mr Speaker: Have I not given the hon. Member all the opportunity –

2330 Hon. D A Feetham: No, you have not!

Mr Speaker: – he wants this morning?

2335 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, no, you have not on this particular occasion –

Mr Speaker: I have –

Hon. D A Feetham: No, no, let me explain, Mr Speaker. Let me explain, and I am not suggesting, Mr Speaker, that you have done it out of some intention on your part. But of course, he has just taken up a 2340 Point of Order, a few moments ago, basically saying that what I attributed to him was not true. That was the Point of Order. He raised that particular Point of Order.

I am doing likewise! Now, Mr Speaker did not say to the Chief Minister, 'That is not a proper Point of Order.' That is why I am saying that Mr Speaker should perhaps treat my Point of Order in the same way that he has treated his.

2345

Mr Speaker: Is he making the Point of Order? Are you making the point under a so-called Point of Order? I will let you do that and then having pointed out –

2350

Hon. D A Feetham: I made a Point of Order which is of exactly the same nature as he made –

Mr Speaker: I am sorry, I have got the floor.

And then, having pointed out that those are not points of order, I will not entertain them from any Member, and it is as simple as that.

2355

Now, he has an opportunity, I am giving him an opportunity, under a so-called Point of Order, to answer the Chief Minister. Then I will give him an opportunity to make one final supplementary and then that is the end of Question Time.

Hon. Chief Minister: So, Mr Speaker, and then he went on to say that there was going to be a very large number of people coming out to vote – a huge number of people coming out to vote. Well, Mr Speaker, he got it completely wrong, so I think his predictions as to results of elections are very suspect.

In fact, I will take it, Mr Speaker, that when he says that my track record before I became Chief Minister is one to consider also suspiciously, I assume that he means the track record of the most successful Leader of the Opposition in our Parliament's history (A Member: Ah!) who took over, had the presence of mind to take over in April 2011 and become Chief Minister barely nine months later.

Mr Speaker, I would recommend that he follows how I did it, but I would rather he did not, because I do not want him to win.

2370

Anyway, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition also has a problem with his thermometer, because it appears that he thinks that hell is getting warmer and warmer and that therefore... or colder and colder and there is a chance that it is going to freeze over sometime soon. Well look, Mr Speaker, he is completely wrong about that too. I have not detected any change in the way that I deal with issues with Spain. I think I am still as robust and as clear in the way that I deal with these issues. He may not like it, because he obviously is recognising that in doing so, I am doing something right.

2375

But, Mr Speaker, he gets up here and says, 'Look, for you to compare Spain to North Korea was not a good thing and you should not have done it and it was bad for Gibraltar that you did.' And then, Mr Speaker, he gets up and he says, 'Now you have the chance either to say it again, or to say that you were wrong.'

2380

Well look, Mr Speaker, if he were right about the fact that it was a bad thing for Gibraltar to compare Spain to North Korea, which I do not accept, what is he doing, if he has got Gibraltar's interests at heart, inviting me either to do it again or to take a step back? What is he doing, Mr Speaker? He needs to reflect very carefully on that, because that is what he is doing.

And Mr Speaker, he does really come across as if he is defending the wrong litigant in this matter. He said he is a litigator, so let us look at it in those terms. He does come across as if he is not defending Gibraltar's best interests here. He seems to be holding brief for somebody else.

2385

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, it is the difference of approach. Of course we both have Gibraltar at heart, of course we both have. We both want to defend Gibraltar's vital interests. The difference between the hon. Member and myself is that I do not need to grandstand, I do not need to be the showman, I do not need to make-over-the-top, outrageous statements in order to defend Gibraltar.

2390

I have given him an opportunity for him to set the record straight. He has not taken it. I am just going to give him one final opportunity. Will he set the record straight, in the manner that I asked him a few moments ago, in relation to the statements that he has made in the past?

2395

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not about a difference of approach; it is about a difference of policy and he needs to understand it, because I do fear that he does not realise which party group he sits with, even though he purports to lead it. Although we know that he has got two Deputy Leaders on either side and there is one with whom I have great affinity, Mr Bossino as he knows, who I know feels perhaps exactly the same as we do on this side of the House. I just do not know about him any more, Mr Speaker. This is not about a difference of approach.

2400

Mr Speaker, they are looking at a Chief Minister who will never say that he will even think about recommending an Andorra-style solution to our people. That is not a difference of approach, Mr Speaker; that is a difference of policy. And it is such a huge difference of policy, Mr Speaker, that we really come to this nub of the issue.

2405 The nub of the issue, Mr Speaker, is that diplomacy is not duplicity, (Interjection by Hon D A Feetham) and it is not one thing – and it is not the done thing to come and say one thing in Gibraltar in this Parliament and then go to Spain and do another.

2410 And the hon. Gentleman says – I assume trying to be funny – from a sedentary position that diplomacy is not my forte. Well look, Mr Speaker, he might think that. I assume he also thinks it of the current incumbent as Foreign Secretary of Spain, because if he thinks that the head of Spanish diplomacy (Interjection by Hon D A Feetham) is a good diplomat when he says ‘Gibraltar Español’, ‘The party is over’, and there will be no advances on regional or neighbourly co-operation, unless there are advances on sovereignty, then look, he and I have different definitions on what is or is not a good diplomat.

2415 He has not reflected, however, Mr Speaker, as I asked him to, on whether, having postulated that comparing Spain to North Korea was a bad thing, he wanted to invite me to do it again or to withdraw. He has not reflected on that, Mr Speaker. He has not reflected on the consequences of that. I think those sitting around him have, because it appears to have dawned on them what he was doing.

I will put it this way, Mr Speaker, and I will quote a politician that all of us have great affinity for, Mr Speaker, ‘They can turn if they want to. This Government is not for turning.’

Clerk: Papers to be laid. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2455

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the Table: the Import Duty (Franchise Regulations) (Amendment No. 4) Regulations 2013; the Import Duty (Integrated Tariff) (Amendment No. 7) Regulations 2013.

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

2460

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

Motion notified on 19th December 2013
At least five days' notice required
Motion carried

2465

Clerk: Government Motions. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

2470

'That this House approve, pursuant to Standing Order 59, the suspension of Standing Order 19 but only to the extent that at least five days, exclusive of Saturdays, Sundays and public holidays, notice is required of the motion by the Hon. Chief Minister on 19th December 2013, and circulated by the Clerk on 19th December 2013.'

Ombudsman for Public Services
Re-appointment of Mario Hook Motion carried

2485

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

2490

'That this House approve by Resolution, pursuant to section 3(2) of the Public Services Ombudsman Act 1998, the re-appointment of Mario Hook as the Ombudsman for Public Services for all the purposes of that Act with effect from Wednesday 1st January 2014 for the term of one year.'

2495

Mr Speaker, the motion, to a very great extent, speaks for itself and I intend to say nothing more, other than to congratulate Mr Hook for the excellent work that he has done to date and give him the thanks of the community for that work already, and to look forward to another year of his continued hard work as Ombudsman.

2500

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Does any hon. Member wish to contribute?

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just to add my own voice on behalf of the Opposition, congratulating Mr Hook, and certainly the Opposition will be voting in favour of the motion.

2505

Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye). Those against? Carried.

2510

BILLS
FIRST AND SECOND READING

Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

2515

Clerk: Bills, First and Second Reading.

A Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2520

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye). Those against? Carried.

2525 Clerk: The Income Tax (Amendment) Act 2013.

Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

2530 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

2535 Mr Speaker, in respect of this Bill, hon. Members will be aware that I have written to you certifying that this Bill is too urgent for the period of six weeks to elapse between its publication and the ability of the House to be able to consider it.

This is an issue which I know the Leader of the Opposition is aware of, he has discussed it with those who are responsible for the drafting of it whilst I was away from Gibraltar, and we expect that the matter would be dealt with on Thursday.

2540 Mr Speaker, Members will be aware that on 16th October 2013, the European Commission took a decision to open the formal state aid investigation procedure into two aspects of the Income Tax Act 2010. It published this decision in the official journal of the European Communities on 28th November 2013, inviting comments from third parties. The two aspects singled out by the Commission concerned the exemptions from taxation for (a) inter-company loan interest and (b) royalties income.

2545 Earlier this year, Mr Speaker, the EU Code of Conduct Group had found that the exemption for inter-company loan interest was a harmful tax measure under the criteria set out in the Code of Conduct on Business Taxation. The European Commission was also already indicating that this exemption was likely to constitute a state aid.

2550 Members will recall that without prejudice to our position that the section in question was not a harmful tax measure, we accordingly abolished this exemption by an amendment we made to the Act this summer, and which entered into force on 1st July 2013.

2555 The Bill, Mr Speaker, does exactly the same thing in relation to royalties. Specifically, it will abolish the exemption from taxation that currently exists for royalties income. The Bill follows the same format as that we used for the amendment this summer. It amends Table C of Schedule 1 of the Act so that it includes a new heading on royalties. Table C of Schedule 1 sets out the incomes which are subject to tax under the Act.

I had this amendment put to the European Commission by Government's team at a meeting in Brussels on Thursday, 5th December 2013. Commission case handlers reverted to us early last week, stating that the Commission's fiscal team were content with the amendment, although that cannot, for technical reasons, be the formal position of the Commission at this stage.

2560 That is the most we could have expected from them at this stage, but that is in itself important. By acting in this manner and amending the Act as we propose and the Bill, Government is delivering much needed certainty to the industry. It has also already effectively addressed the two concerns expressed by the Commission in its decision, opening the formal investigation procedure.

2565 Of course Mr Speaker, we make these amendments without prejudice to our arguments, that neither exemption constitutes state aid. We maintain that position in the formal investigation procedure as part of our defence.

2570 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill?

2575 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have been in contact with those who have drafted this particular Bill. It has been explained, the policy has been explained, the rationale has been explained and the Opposition will be supporting the Bill, and I have nothing further to add than what the Chief Minister has already said.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2580 Clerk: The Income Tax (Amendment) Act 2013.

Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2585

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2590

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013 has been considered in Committee and agreed to without amendments, and I now move that it be read a third time and passed.

2640

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Leave to introduce granted

2650

Clerk: Private Members' Motion. The Hon. A J Isola.

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

2655

'That this House do give leave for the introduction by me of a Private Members' Bill, namely the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013.'

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Albert Isola.

Hon. A J Isola: I am grateful Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker, as hon. Members know, the merger of Yorkshire Building Society with the Norwich and Peterborough Society took effect under the laws of England and Wales in November of 2011, pursuant to a transfer of engagements. These two societies continue as the Yorkshire Building Society. However, the transfer of engagements under the laws of England and Wales did not change the legal position in Gibraltar. This has therefore resulted in an anomaly which Gibraltar needs to be rectified.

Hon. Members will be aware that in the past when lending institutions want to undertake this sort of legal entity, reconfiguration or restructure, that we facilitate that task by allowing them to do it through a Private Members' Bill. That is the nature of the Bill and it is similar to others passed in this House in recent years, to facilitate the corporate restructuring of lending institutions.

2670

Mr Speaker, the Yorkshire Building Society remains an important part of our sector. They remain committed to Gibraltar and the Government believes that it is appropriate for this House to assist them in this way by the passage of the Bill.

I commend the motion to the House, Mr Speaker.

2675

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Albert Isola. I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. Albert Isola. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' BILL
FIRST AND SECOND READING

Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
First Reading approved

2685

Clerk: Private Members' Bill, First and Second Reading. A Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society. The Hon. A J Isola.

2690

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society and the Yorkshire Building Society be read a first time.

2695

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society, be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2700

2705 Clerk: The Yorkshire Building Society Act 2013.

2710 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill now be read a second time.

2715 Mr Speaker, as a result of the transfer engagements taking effect in November 2011 under the Law of England and Wales, Norwich and Peterborough merged with Yorkshire Building Society and the merged society continued as the Yorkshire Building Society.

2720 That transfer of engagements did not, and could not, operate to change the legal position in Gibraltar and accordingly, although Norwich and Peterborough no longer existed after 1st November 2011, those of its assets and liabilities which before 1st November were subject to the law of Gibraltar, continued to be so subject after that date.

The primary purpose of this Bill is to rectify this position with effect from the date referred to in the Bill as the appointed day – that is to say, a date to be appointed by myself as the Minister with responsibility for Financial Services.

2725 There is just one section of the Bill, Mr Speaker, which has retrospective effect, and that is section 9 to which I will refer specifically later. None of the other provisions in this Bill have any retrospective effect.

Section 1 is formal and in common form, Mr Speaker.

In section 2, subsection (1) defines the two societies. Sub-section (2) defines a number of the terms used in the Bill.

2730 Section 3, Mr Speaker, is a fundamental provision under which, on the appointed day, every Norwich and Peterborough asset will become an asset of the YBS, the Yorkshire Building Society, in respect of its Gibraltar branch. This provision is similar to that in previous banking transfer Bills.

2735 Section 4, Mr Speaker, again is similar to provisions in previous banking transfer Bills and excludes certain assets from the effect of section 3. Specifically paragraph (a) deals with interests in land other than those which are held by way of security, in effect, on the mortgages.

Section 5, Mr Speaker, deals with a variety of documents which on their face relate to the Norwich and Peterborough. With effect from the appointed day, these are made to relate to the Yorkshire Building Society. This section and section 6 are similar to provisions in previous banking transfer Bills.

2740 Section 6 deals with customer accounts which up to the appointed day were accounts of the Norwich and Peterborough. Under subsection (1) these accounts become accounts of the Yorkshire Building Society, subject to the same conditions that applied before the appointed day.

Section 7 again is well precedented in early banking transfer Bills and deals with disparate matters all designed to give a smooth transition from Norwich and Peterborough to the Yorkshire Building Society.

2745 Section 8 deals with proceedings which have been begun in error by Yorkshire Building Society before the appointed day and which, in the opinion of the court concerned, relate wholly or principally to the establishment or enforcement of a Norwich and Peterborough asset.

2750 Mr Speaker, section 9 is the one provision in the Bill which has a retrospective effect. This is because it works in favour of people who are mortgagors of Norwich and Peterborough and as they thought, took steps to repay their mortgages. In such a case, the Yorkshire Building Society will have purported to release a mortgage, which was originally a mortgage from the Norwich and Peterborough. The former mortgagor will have relied on this release, although Yorkshire Building Society did not in law have the power at that time to release the mortgage.

2755 If there were no retrospection in these limited cases, the whole matter of the release and consequential dealings, for example by a purchaser from the former mortgagor would be void, and would have to be reopened with the consequential costs and no doubt, distress. It is a condition of the operation of the section that the mortgagor consented in writing to the release.

2760 Section 10 is common form in banking transfer Bills, Mr Speaker, and in the case of this Bill, it provides the Yorkshire Building Society will meet the Government's expenditure in connection with the introduction and enactment of the Bill, the amount of the expenditure to be set by myself, as the Minister with responsibility for Financial Services.

I commend the Bill to the House, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2765 In that case, I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society, be read a second time. Those in favour: (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2770 Clerk: The Yorkshire Building Society Act 2013.

Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2775 Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2780 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE

2785 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2790 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bill clause by clause: the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013.

2795 In Committee of the whole Parliament

2800 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society.
Clauses 1 to 10.

2805 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

2810 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

2815 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Third Reading approved: Bill passed

2820 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013 has been considered in Committee and agreed to without amendment, and I now move that it be read a third time and passed.

2825 Mr Chairman: I now put the question, which is that the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2830 ADJOURNMENT

Good wishes to all for Christmas and the New Year 2014

2835 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn sine die.

2840 And in doing so, of course Mr Speaker, although we are conscious as in all Parliaments that perhaps sometimes the workings of this Parliament descend into almost a festive farce, with people saying on either side, 'Oh yes he does, oh no he doesn't!' to each other, there is of course a great deal of personal affection, I hope between us all, and I would like to thank all Members of the House for the work they have done this year in their respective roles, and in particular yourself and your staff for having the patience to put up with all of us, and wish every Member of this House and our wider community a very merry Christmas and a very happy, healthy and prosperous 2014. (Banging on desks)

2845 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, it is a judicious statement that I can associate myself with, on behalf of the Opposition. (Banging on desks)

2850 Mr Speaker: May I wish all hon. Members a very joyful Christmas and a Happy New Year, and also extend those wishes to members of the staff, and indeed the Royal Gibraltar Police who are always in attendance when we are in session, and of course the members of the press.

I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn sine die. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2855 The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 1.17 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

10

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

GHA complaints process Update on Ombudsman

15

Clerk: We are now going to proceed to the questions which are being posed to the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Question 811/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

20

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Question 598, can the Minister for Health say when the GHA complaints process will be taken over by the Ombudsman, and at what stage they are in the process?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

25 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there is no definite date yet. Advanced drafts of the procedure are currently under discussion.

30 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister say if there will be a U-turn on the Government's manifesto commitment that complaints will be dealt with directly by the Office of the Ombudsman?

35 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think that is a logical implication of what I have just said. The question was when the complaints process will be taken over by the Ombudsman, and I have said there is no definite date and advanced drafts of the procedure are currently under discussion. That does not contradict the Government's manifesto commitment that the process will be taken over by the Ombudsman; it is a question of how and how it is going to be implemented, but there is no change in that policy.

40

Staff recruitment and retention
GHA policy

45 Clerk: Question 812, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain what the GHA policy for the recruitment and retention of staff is, and what the terms for contract workers are, wishing to apply for permanent and pensionable status?

50 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

55 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, staff are initially appointed on contract terms, and these may be of variable lengths depending on the specialism or post, and they may have their contracts renewed or extended, depending on the circumstances prevailing at the time.

On the completion of four years' good performance, where there is no locally qualified or eligible person studying, training or available for the post or where no succession plan candidate has been identified, staff on contract terms may be offered indefinite employment.

60 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if rolling over 10-month contracts is legal, as per EU employment law? Would he know that?

65 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think that is a logical supplementary to the question that I have just answered and therefore I do not think I need to reply.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say who decides on the terms and conditions and the length of the contracts of new GHA staff?

70 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, terms and conditions will be standard and the length of contract will depend, as I said in the answer, depending on the specialism or post and what the succession plan may or may not be. There are no two cases which are the same and there will be different line managers who are responsible for taking those decisions.

75 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: So, Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that it is the line managers who make those decisions, not the Human Resources Department, or is it in conjunction with the Human Resources Department?

80 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am very proud to say that the Gibraltar Health Authority certainly now works as a team and when decisions have to be taken, which have a bearing on performance and employment, they will involve the managers in question and the Human Resources Department. On some occasions I may be involved, but usually I will not be.

GHA contract workers
Changes to gratuity offer

85

Clerk: Question 813, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

90

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say when the 25% gratuity offer in lieu of permanent and pensionable status was removed from the contract of GHA contract workers?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

95

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the 25% gratuity offer in lieu of permanent and pensionable status was removed on 1st January 2012, following the ending of the old pension scheme by the last administration.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say what has replaced it?

100

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The Provident Pension Scheme, which was the one that replaced the old pension scheme. The Superannuation, the Provident 2, I think it is. I do not have that information. I have answered the –

105

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento and Hon. N F Costa: It is the Provident 2 and the Superannuation.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The Provident 2 and the Superannuation –

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Fund.

110

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: – Fund, I am informed by my colleagues.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but the Superannuation Fund is a policy of your Government; it is not a policy of our Government.

115

Did I understand the Hon. Minister correctly? Did he say that the policy had changed as a consequence of changes that we had introduced to the pension system? Because the Superannuation Fund was something that was introduced by... sorry, I may have misunderstood you.

120

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: What I said was that gratuities were removed when the old pension scheme was removed. Gratuities were given because the old pension scheme was not available to short-term contract officers and when that scheme was done away with, gratuities were done away with, because they are now able to join the pension scheme.

125

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister tell me whether people's contracts have been affected retrospectively? In other words, whether this has been something that has been introduced for future employees, respecting contracts, for example, of consultants that have been on this 25% of gratuity?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is for new entrants; people who have a contract are bound to the contract.

130

GHA contract workers
Reduction in housing allowance

135

Clerk: Question 814, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say why there has been a reduction in the housing allowance for GHA contract workers, and whether this financial incentive will be removed entirely from the contract of GHA contract workers; and if so, when?

140

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there has been no reduction in the housing allowance given to GHA contract workers and there are no current plans to remove this.

145 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say what is the GHA policy on housing allowance for contract workers, if he knows?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, at the moment, there is a housing allowance given to contract workers. That is the current situation and that is what I have just said.

GHA Human Resources Director/Strategic Development Executive Director
Termination of contracts; payments received

155 Clerk: Question 815, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say why the Director for the GHA Human Resources and the Executive Director for Strategic Development are no longer in employment at the GHA, and how much they were each given for terminating their employment contracts?
160

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

165 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, these officers' departures from the GHA was by mutual agreement. The terminating payments were in accordance with the contracts that they had been given by the former administration and amounted to approximately £107,000 and £109,000 for Human Resources and Strategic Development posts respectively.

170

District Nursing Charge Nurse
Applications received; details of appointee

175 Clerk: Question 816, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say how many applicants there were for the vacant post of District Nursing Charge Nurse and who was successful in getting the job?
180

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there were three applicants. It would not be correct to publicly state the names and my Hon. and Learned Friend, the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly, pointed out on Thursday that this is in keeping with the Speaker's ruling.
185

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, have all three applicants been successful or just one chosen from the three?
190

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the three applicants were successful.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, why were there the extra two charge nurse vacancies? Why were they not advertised separately at a later date, when the original vacancy advert was for only one charge nurse?
195

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this came at a time when management decided that it was appropriate for these specific posts to be at that level. It followed procedure established in 2006 by the former administration, when a vacancy for one post had been advertised, but management decided that two should be taken and in order not to delay things further and to require the whole process to start anew, the selection procedure was extended to include those. So there is no change in established practice.
200

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say why a change in decision was made to move the employment from just the one charge nurse to now three charge nurses?
205

210 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: As I explained, Mr Speaker, this was as a result of the management of the section feeling that that was the more appropriate way in which to run this highly specialised section in which people are working largely independently, but carry a large amount of responsibility on their shoulders.

215 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Government now going to increase or double the number of community nurses too, commensurate with the doubling of these charge nurses in the community; and, if so, by when?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there is no current plan. As with all other matters in the GHA, we are constantly reviewing how we carry out our operations, but there is no current plan at the moment.

220 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does not the Minister agree that by having changed this decision at the last minute by management, by increasing... by offering employment to these three charge nurses after the issue of a vacancy notice for just one post, that other GHA staff may have been disadvantaged by not providing them with the opportunity to apply?

225 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No sir. The Minister does not agree and, as I say, this is a practice which was following an established practice dating back to 2006. Maybe it happened then, but certainly I do not agree that it happened now.

230 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that one of the successful applicants had, prior to the announcement of the vacancy, gone to the UK to undertake a course as a charge nurse manager for the community nursing and decided not to complete the course, and then later was taken on as a successful applicant?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of those circumstances.

235 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I ask the Minister whether the decision to appoint the three applicants was that decision taken by the board which interviewed the three applicants, or was it taken by different sets of people above the individuals in that particular board?

240 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the board is a board which selects its applicants and will have, I have to assume, found all three suitable. That is the only assumption I can make, otherwise they clearly would not have been appointed.

245 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, he makes the assumption that that would have been the decision of the board, but yet he does not know. But he does not know either the fact that one of the applicants went to the UK to undertake that course prior to the application and he does not know that he decided not to complete the course either. It seems to me like the Minister for Health very conveniently chooses to ignore and assume things he does not... that may put him in a bad light and then take decisions in not answering questions here in Parliament.

250 Is it not the fact that the person that he knows, because he does know, who went to the UK to undertake such a course, decided not to do it, got the job now in the interview board because he happens to be an active GSLP member?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think that –

255 Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Members of the Opposition make themselves responsible for the information that they are imparting?

Hon. D A Feetham: I think that that is a surprising question from the Speaker –

260 Mr Speaker: It is not.

265 Hon. D A Feetham: With respect, it is a surprising question (Mr Speaker: No.) because the Opposition always takes responsibility for the accuracy of the points that they make. This line of questioning is obviously a line of questioning with a purpose, and I think that unless Mr Speaker has prima facie evidence that we do not know what we are talking about, I do not believe that Mr Speaker ought to be making that point.

Mr Speaker: It so happens that Mr Speaker is the Chairman of the Public Service Commission.

270 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not understand –

Mr Speaker: No, No. I will say nothing further on the matter. I am just saying that it is a principle enshrined in the Rules and which I am glad to hear, from what the Leader of the Opposition says, that hon. Members of the Opposition make themselves responsible when they give information along the lines of the information that we have heard today. I am glad to hear that they make themselves responsible and that therefore, in their view, that information is accurate. That is all I want to say.

280 Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely. We hold ourselves responsible for the accuracy. This is the first time... I have been a Member of this House since 2007 and I am not the oldest Member of this House, but it is the first time that I have ever heard a Speaker make a point like that about accuracy when my hon. colleagues are pursuing a line of questioning on the basis of information that they have.

We would never... nobody in the Opposition would be asking any questions if we do not make ourselves responsible for the accuracy and Mr Speaker, if Mr Speaker has information that casts doubt on the accuracy of our line of questioning, and Mr Speaker, well look, he can tell us that our line of questioning is inaccurate because he sits in the Public Service Commission and he knows it is inaccurate, but I doubt very much that Mr Speaker can actually go that far.

285
290 Mr Speaker: I am making the point because the information that has been imparted to Members of the Opposition is apparently not available to the Minister.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may just comment?

The implication from the hon. Member is that I misled Parliament. I have no knowledge of any course taken or not taken by the applicants. I believe that what I do know is that the three successful applicants are extremely good professionals – every single one of them. Whether or not they are activists of any particular political party is not relevant to whether they are good nurses or not.

295 I can assure you, Mr Speaker, that if that board selected them, they are excellent nurses, and I can confirm it was a board which was referred to the Public Service Commission and therefore is completely out of any influence from me as a Minister. (Banging on desks)

300 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister perhaps inform this House as to whether the decision to go from one to three charge nurses was a decision that was taken before the recommendation of the board and after the advert, or was it after the recommendation of the board?

305 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have not got the time line in front of me. I have answered the question I was asked: how many applicants and who was successful? I have answered part one because I can. I cannot answer part two. I do not have a timeline in front of me and so I cannot answer that question.

310 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but, of course as the Minister responsible, does he not agree with me that it is rather odd that here we have a highly... he described it as a 'highly specialised' service, and those are the words that he used in answer to my Hon. Friend, Mrs Ellul-Hammond...? Now, bearing in mind that this is a highly specialised service and he being a thorough Minister as I know that he is – I mean I have every respect for him – that in a planning situation in a highly specialised service, does he not agree with me that it is odd that we have a situation whereby there is an advert for one charge nurse, and lo and behold, at some stage we do not know when, whether it is before the recommendation of the board or after the recommendation of the board, it then goes from one to three people being taken on? Does he not agree that at the very least what it illustrates is a lack of planning in relation to a highly specialised service, as he has described it?

320 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: On the contrary, Mr Speaker, I think it shows that one is able to take advantage of situations. If a selection process was ongoing, then that is an opportunity to be taken so as not to delay things and it is absolutely identical, I repeat, Mr Speaker, except that instead of an addition from one to three, it was one to two – an identical situation which arose back in 2006, which nobody batted an eyelid about. So there is no precedent. This is something which has happened before. (Interjection) Sorry – there was a precedent there.

330 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, yes, I do not dispute that in the past there may have been a situation where there has been... After the recommendation of the board, the report, for example, has recommended that there are two people that are highly, that are very, very good for this particular post and there is a policy decision taken at that stage to take two people. But you see that is very unusual and what we have here is an advert that has gone out for one and then ultimately three are taken on.

One always gets very good high quality applicants because the nature of our Civil Service is the fact that there are very good people, but one would have thought that in a highly specialised service, such as this one, that it would have been effectively demand led from the very beginning. One looks at what do

Here the decision has been taken that we need one and then ultimately – we do not know when the decision was taken, whether before the recommendation of the board or afterwards – it is then three. Does not the Hon. Minister think that is unusual?

340

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It is unusual in the sense that it has happened twice, but it is not the first time it has happened. But nevertheless it was an opportunity clearly that the management took in order to be able to improve the service and take advantage of the fact that the procedure was already in motion.

345

Consultants' contract
Details of negotiations

Clerk: Question 817, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

350

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say who is dealing with negotiating the Consultants' contract and at what stage of progress are we in the process?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

355

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the GHA is negotiating with UNITE the Union as they represent the majority of consultants. The negotiations are going well.

360

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that John Langan and Ernest Lima are still dealing with the negotiation of the consultants' contract?

365

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, Mr Langan and Mr Lima are dealing on behalf of the GHA with the negotiations of the consultants' contract. Let me just add that they both finish their term... well, Mr Langan, who is the interim Chief Executive, Mr Lima was an advisor, and Mr Langan has continued leading because he committed himself when he took on the job to complete these negotiations, but since he finished at the end of August he has been doing this on a pro bono basis.

370

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, seeing that the negotiations for this contract has been for over a year and a half, when will it be completed?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: When an agreement is reached, Mr Speaker.

375

Promotion of sexual health
Department's policy

Clerk: Question 818, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

380

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, with reference to the Government press release number 861/2013, can the Minister for Health say how sexual health will be promoted, in addition to the Minister's plans to publish HIV and AIDS statistics?

385

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

390

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Public Health Department has developed a Health Improvement Strategy for Gibraltar, which includes sexual health as one of its key priorities for the next two years. The following are some of the initiatives that will be progressed within this programme area: (1) supporting education about sex and relationships in schools and youth settings; (2) providing access to good quality advice for all persons on sexuality, family planning and sexually transmitted diseases; (3) campaigning to reduce the prevalence of teenage pregnancies in our community; (4) supporting the establishment of a nurse-led sexual health clinic; (5) encouraging access to HIV and STD testing for people who may be at risk; (6) improving the collection of anonymised local data to inform sexual health strategies; (7) producing relevant printed material.

395

In this, the GHA will continue to work with community groups, such as the Equality Rights Group, with which regular meetings have been held during the past two years.

400

New Mental Health Unit
Opening date

Clerk: Question 819, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

405

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister for Health said in his Budget Statement of 2013 that the new Mental Health Unit would be ready in October or November. Can the Minister advise when the facility will now be opening?

410

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the unit has been subject to the delays typical of the construction industry; it is now due to open in spring 2014.

415

Hospital referrals
Patient costs

Clerk: Question 820, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Written Question 135/2013, can the Minister for Health say (a) why there are no figures for April 2012 and June 2013 and (b) why the cost for sending patients to Xanit have more than doubled per month since September 2013?

425

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

430

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there are no figures for April 2012 and June 2013 because the bills for the months in question were paid on the following month. The costs for sending patients to Xanit have increased because a number of procedures that used to be referred exclusively to the UK are now performed in Xanit. This reduces the inconvenience of families travelling to UK and makes visiting of relatives easier.

435

The increase in referrals to Xanit has also coincided with a decrease in referrals to Spanish State Hospitals, due to long waiting times currently existing in the Spanish Servicio Andaluz de Salud system, which have worsened recently. In addition to this, there have sadly been a number of exceptional cases this year, which have involved long stays and expensive care.

440

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

Can the Hon. Minister say then if the service that was offered in the UK has now been... is being offered at Xanit, has there been also a reduction in the payment to the Department of Health for this sponsored patients' service as a consequence of the increase in payments to Xanit?

445

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Clearly, Mr Speaker, if we are spending the money in Xanit, that money will not be spent in the UK; however, because of the fact that this is totally unpredictable, there could be other cases going to the UK and therefore you will not necessarily see a corresponding decrease. What there has been is a considerable decrease in referrals to other Spanish hospitals, particularly, as I said before, Spanish state hospitals, because of increasing waiting times in particular, which have got worse in recent months and over the past year.

450

I can say, however, that whereas there is an increase in referrals to Xanit, the total number of referrals to Spain was slightly down in 2013 or the first 11 months of 2013 in relation to 2012; but this is something that is not totally predictable. This is demand led and we are not going to refuse treatment to a deserving patient for reasons of this nature.

But globally I think I do have to point out one thing I said earlier, that it only takes one or two particularly difficult cases which have expensive care to make these figures rise considerably. It may be just one or two and so you cannot really relate it to the number of patients.

Transportation of patients to hospital
Use of new ambulances

Clerk: Question 821, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

460

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if there is any truth in the rumour that a motorbike and its owner were transported in one of the new ambulances; and, if so, can the Minister provide details to Parliament?

465

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no sir. For the avoidance of doubt what I mean is that there is no truth in the rumour, not that I cannot say. There is no truth in that rumour.

470

Gibraltar Medical Registration Board
Transfer of UK powers

475

Clerk: Question 822, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

480

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in relation to the amendment to the Medical Health Act 1997 to provide for the compulsory registration of allied health professionals, can the Minister for Health say how will the powers of UK Governing Bodies be transferred to the Gibraltar Registration Board for the overseeing and policing of the ongoing requirements health professionals need to meet?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

485

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the amendment of the Medical and Health Act 1997 at long last establishes the Gibraltar Medical Registration Board as a regulatory authority for allied health professionals in Gibraltar.

490

The law requires that the assessment of the qualifications and competence of the professionals is carried out by the respective UK regulator and not by the Gibraltar Board. Furthermore, any requirements laid by the UK regulator on maintenance of professional standards, continuous professional development or revalidation will be directly monitored by the UK regulator and impact upon Gibraltar only if registration is affected in consequence.

The UK regulatory bodies, in addition, have powers to oversee and police their registrants wherever they may practice. The Gibraltar Medical Registration Board will play a supportive role in this function.

495

Complaints or allegations of poor practice made to the Gibraltar Board regarding allied health practitioners practising within Gibraltar will be investigated locally; and, except where the complaints are wholly frivolous, the Board will notify the respective UK regulator, who may choose to invoke its 'Fitness to Practice' procedure. Decisions arising from the procedure will be binding on the practitioner in the UK and inasmuch as they impact on the petitioner's registration, by consequence, also in Gibraltar.

500

In addition, the Act also provides the Gibraltar Board with a range of powers to take independent action, which would be binding on registered practitioners within the territory of Gibraltar.

505

Culling of seagulls
Duties of FERA and GOHNS

Clerk: Question 823, the Hon. J J Netto.

510

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state if the discussion alluded to by the Minister at the Committee Stage of the Appropriation Bill 2013, regarding extending the duties carried out by FERA to GOHNS in relation to the culling of seagulls have now concluded, and if so, provide Parliament with details of the agreement?

515

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir. They have not been completed.

520 Hon. J J Netto: Could the Minister perhaps elucidate as to why they have not concluded. Is there any sticking point, in terms of coming to a final agreement? I do recall that his comments at the Appropriation Committee Stage of the Bill, the Minister was saying that his intentions were to absolve the work being carried out in the past by referring to GOHNS. So perhaps if he could elucidate as to what the sticking points are in that discussion.

525 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there are no sticking points. The discussions are still ongoing. It is a... I was going to say complex, but it is not a simple matter and the Department is dealing with it, with a view to implementing by the time the spring comes, which is when these measures need to be more effective.

530 Hon. J J Netto: So is the Minister envisaging a situation whereby after spring FERA will not carry out any further duties?

535 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is what I said at the time and that continues to be the situation at the present.

Hon. J J Netto: So in order to be able to carry out such duties in the future, will there be an extra amount of cost, or will the size of the budget for GOHNS increase accordingly?

540 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the budget for the visits from FERA, I think was in the region in one year of close to £200,000 and another year £200,000 for people to come from abroad for six weeks, to carry out work, which local people were doing for much less over a period of a whole year. So therefore there is no intention to follow that practice. The intention is to use the expertise that is available in a more economically efficient way. I do not believe that the costs will be equivalent and certainly they will not be for a six-week period, they will be for a 52-week period.

545 Hon. J J Netto: Which will mean, therefore, an increase in the number of people dedicated within GOHNS for the culling of seagulls.

550 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not going to publicly conduct the negotiations with any organisation here. We are looking at the way in which the work that was being done by FERA is going to be done in the future. Some of the work being done by FERA at the time probably did not need to be done, as I expressed at the time to the then Government of the time. But I am not going to go into details of discussions which are ongoing because it could compromise their outcome.

555

West Place of Arms
Criteria for selection as dog park

560 Clerk: Question 824, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the written answer to Question W136/2013, can the Minister for the Environment state what has been the criteria for selecting the West Place of Arms as a dog park?

565 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

570 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the area was selected on the advice of the Gibraltar Responsible Pet Owners Group. Consultation with the Gibraltar Heritage Trust and the Heritage Division confirmed that the proposed use was consistent with heritage. This was later unanimously approved by the Development and Planning Commission.

575

Gibraltar Cat Welfare Society
Neutering of cats

Clerk: Question 825, the Hon. J J Netto.

580 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 690/2013, is the Minister for the Environment aware that the Gibraltar Cat Welfare Society have been neutering cats for some years now; and if so, does the Minister know how many cats have been spayed on an annual basis?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

585 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, I am aware. I am informed that 59 cats have been neutered this year, but I have not got any more information.

590 Hon. J J Netto: Does the Minister perhaps know whether this particular programme by the Cat Welfare Society will continue, because when I looked at their own website, it did not look to me like it was a function that was carried out every year. And as we have discussed in the past, here in Parliament, there is a need for a programme of this nature to be carried out, particularly in certain areas of Gibraltar, least to say the Upper Rock Nature Reserve.

So can the Minister perhaps inform the House whether this programme will continue into the future, either by them, or perhaps if they are not doing it, on a year-by-year basis by some other entity?

595 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am currently in discussion with the Cat Welfare Society to see how this programme can be continued.

Clerk: Question 829...

600 Hon. D A Feetham: Does the Hon. Minister have an idea of numbers of cats? Is there an effort to monitor the number of cats – the rise in population or decrease in population of cats? He knows that I live in the Upper Rock and my children have already adopted three kittens, I can tell him, that have been abandoned and there appears to me to be an increase in the number of cats. I mean, I do not know. I am just talking from my own experience of seeing them in the Upper Rock myself.

605 But is there a conscious effort on the part of the Government to basically monitor the numbers so that this particular problem can be kept on top of, because of course, as we all know, they are really wreaking havoc with wildlife in the Upper Rock in particular?

610 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, we are attempting to monitor certain key areas to see whether we can have an idea of the cat population, but there is no data. So at the moment we can only guesstimate, but we are trying to monitor in the Upper Rock.

615 Hon. D A Feetham: And, Mr Speaker, is he satisfied that the neutering of the number of cats that they have neutered – I think he indicated 59 – that that is going to deal with the problem? How long does he think that it will take before it will deal with and keep the population of cats within manageable proportions and certainly within numbers that will not cause significant damage to wildlife in the Upper Rock?

620 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the figure I gave is a figure provided by the Cat Welfare Society and so it is not that the Government has been... as far as I know it never has been, although it does and has supported the Cat Welfare Society in carrying out this work, it has not done it directly and 59 neutered cats will not solve the problem in the Upper Rock... so, no.

625 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, just by way of providing information, I have just seen on the Cat Welfare Society's website, from a report published in 2007, that they say, and I quote:

'Over three years the Society has captured, sterilised and released 1,190 cats on the Rock.'

630 So perhaps that is some of the work they have done in the past. Obviously my concern is if that kind of progress can be maintained and some of the answers have already been provided by the Minister.

635 Culling of cats
Monthly numbers

Clerk: Question 826, the Hon. J J Netto.

640 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 691/2013, can the Minister for the Environment provide the monthly numbers of cats culled since 11th December 2011, as asked for, but not given.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

645 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the number was given as an average, which mathematically is the number of cats culled per month and therefore the question was correctly answered. I now have to assume that rather than the monthly number, the hon. Member wishes to know the number per month. This information is provided in the schedule I now hand over.

650

Answer to Question 826/2013

Cats Culled

Month	2012	2013
January	0	0
April	0	0
May	14	2
June	0	0
July	0	23
August	0	6
September	1	15
October	7	3
November	4	0

Average =  $78 \div 23 = 3.4$

655 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, as the information may come now, but just to point out that if he goes to my Question 691, it asks the number of cats culled on a monthly basis. So I was right and he was wrong interpreting my question, but I will see the figures now.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not think I need to comment on that.

660 Hon. D A Feetham: He has very kindly provided a schedule and the culling appears to be really focused on three months in 2013: 23 in July; 6 in August; 15 in September. Then there are two other figures of 2 for May and 3 for October, but the rest is zero. There is a similar pattern also in 2012.

665 Can he explain this particular pattern of why there does not appear to be an even spread over months? It does appear to indicate that really there is no systematic programme spread over a year to deal with the question of feral cats by way of culling, which is one of the ways that obviously the Government, rightly in our view, is dealing with this particular issue.

670 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are talking about the cats here in urban areas and the way that this has been done in the past, and this was I think explained in my answer last time around, which although was converted to a written answer, because it was converted to a written answer there will not be a recollection of a discussion.

675 These cats have been culled as a result of a contract dating back to 2005, but the way that it has been operating for a number of years is that the cull has been activated by requests from the public, complaining about fleas or some other problems and it has been a result of that. Therefore when there has been a complaint, then the cull has been activated and therefore you will see this pattern, that suddenly there is culling and then it stops again.

680 The practice has been that it has been on the request of members of the community. Needless to say, there are those in the community who are not in favour of culls and I obviously recognise that as well. But the explanation of these stop and start figures is that they are following requests from members of the public.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, there are two points that arise from the answer that the hon. Gentleman has given and I am very grateful for it. One of them is that these are culls that have taken place in urban areas; the second is that it is a response to a request from members of the public.

685 Does he not agree with me that it does appear from that particular answer that really there is no systematic plan in terms of... that culling does not form part of the Government's plan to deal with the issue of feral cats in the Upper Rock, which he and I both recognise is wreaking havoc with wildlife, and in particular with an iconic species of Gibraltar, which is the Barbary partridge?

690 Can he explain why the issue of culling or culling as a legitimate form of control of feral cats has not been taken to the Upper Rock so that we can control the cat population there?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think we have to distinguish the situation on the Upper Rock with that in urban areas. We must remember that there are those in urban areas who actually feed cats, and you may agree or disagree with them, but they are there, the people who do that, and who are very sensitive towards that; something that, as I say, whether you agree with it or not, you have to recognise... they are also members of our community.

695 The Upper Rock is a different issue. The way that the Upper Rock is being tackled is initially, as I said earlier, by monitoring and trying to determine what the scale of the problem is, particularly in areas which are more likely to have Barbary partridges, which are areas of more open ground rather than the dense vegetation. We are trying to build up a picture using a number of systems, which I can discuss later with the hon. Member opposite, to monitor, and then we hope to be developing a strategy to see how we tackle that so that the Barbary partridge can be protected.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can he give me a timeframe in relation to this, because we all recognise here that if we had a choice, you would not cull cats? That is the reality that one would not cull cats if one had the choice, but in a situation where they are impacting heavily on wildlife in the Upper Rock in particular, something as important to Gibraltar as the Barbary partridge, one would have thought that the Government would have perhaps been slightly more energetic in its attempt to get on top of the problem. Yes, because there is a sizeable population of feral cats in the Upper Rock.

705 So can he give me a timetable of when he thinks that perhaps the Government is going to be moving towards the Upper Rock in trying to cut down the population of feral cats in the Upper Rock that is causing such a problem with wildlife there?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are in danger of having a really long discussion on Barbary partridge management, and I am happy to have that, but I do not know whether the rest of the Members particularly want to hear it.

715 There are a number of things here. Firstly, there is no way that no matter how much you do you are going to remove the full population of feral cats on the Upper Rock; therefore you have to concentrate on those areas where you want the partridges to do well, which means you concentrate on the areas which are better habitats for the partridges.

720 So what we are doing is we are in fact creating a new Barbary partridge habitat. We are monitoring those areas. We are in the final stages of acquiring Barbary partridges from Morocco and we want to time it in such a way that when we release these partridges, we are actually not releasing breakfast for cats. So we are timing it quite tightly and a lot of things have to slot in before we are ready to go.

725 Hon. D A Feetham: So just following on from that – this is my last supplementary question on this – so effectively the Minister envisages, in that very tight timetable for the acquisition and release of Barbary partridges, that when he releases those Barbary partridges, that he will have substantially dealt with the problem of feral cats in the areas where you are going to be releasing the partridges. Bearing in mind as well, of course, that that begs the question... I mean you are not going to be releasing them in fenced out areas.

730 So if you have a very large population of feral cats in the Upper Rock, they are bound to be moving, for example, to the area of Windmill Hill, where I presume that is one of the areas where he is going to be releasing some of these partridges, but can he perhaps shed some light in relation to that or give that guarantee to the House?

735 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I sense the enthusiasm of the hon. Member opposite, and I am sure that behind it all he is extremely pleased that I happen to be Minister for the Environment. (A Member: Absolutely.) (Interjections) Mr Speaker, I did not hear that, but I am sure it was quite funny.

740 Mr Speaker, the idea is that this will work and that we will be able to ensure the ongoing success of the Barbary partridge or the renewed success of the Barbary partridge. But I really think, Mr Speaker, that from a question on monthly numbers of cats culled in urban areas, if I may add, to a discussion on the management of Barbary partridges, is probably – with respect to the hon. Member opposite, and I am

745 very glad to know that he shares my keenness for the species – I think that is probably as far as we need to take it at this point in time.

750 Air pollution
ESG concerns

Clerk: Question 827, the Hon. J J Netto.

755 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 700/2013, is the Minister for the Environment not aware of the ESG communiqué of 16th October 2013, in relation to the concerns of air pollution?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

760 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, he is. Question 700/2013 asks whether the Department for the Environment had received reports of, and I quote:

‘persistent heavy air pollution associated with rotten eggs or sulphur smells’.

765 Mr Speaker, it had not. It had received four isolated complaints, which is precisely what I answered.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in the ESG communiqué of 16th October, they talked about persistent heavy air pollution in the area of Waterport Terraces, the South District and the Port. They also talked about talking to the Government, meaning probably the Minister for the Environment, and talking to the Department of the Environment in relation to raising their concerns on this persisting air pollution.

770 Has he now had that discussion with the Minister and the Department of the Environment in relation to their concerns?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I have very regular contacts with the ESG.

775 In relation to roundabout the time when the ESG issued their statement, which was on 16th October, there had been an approach, which I have recorded here on that day, from the ESG to the Agency. The matter was relating to smells that had occurred on the previous day and so it was difficult to investigate that particular instance.

780 There was subsequently a report the following day, not from the ESG, which was investigated. It appeared that there was an issue with a ship that had come into port with ammonia; but ammonia does not smell like rotten eggs and so it was probably unrelated to the previous one.

Certainly, I am glad to say that the large spate of smells related to bunkering, which happened a few years ago, has not happened, and these continue largely to be isolated incidents.

785 Upper Rock Nature Reserve
Temporary closures of pathways

790 Clerk: Question 828, the Hon. J J Netto.

795 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state which pathways, green areas and walking routes in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve have been temporarily closed as a result of the comments made by the Minister of Heritage at the Heritage Trust AGM, in which he stated that what he saw were ‘death traps’?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

800 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as a result of continuing works to improve public access to the Upper Rock, works are ongoing in the Douglas Path/Mount Misery area, and access to a section south of the cable car top station has been closed off pending works.

This information is about a week old, Mr Speaker, and those works may have progressed since then. But, if you remember, we adjourned from last Thursday and I have not had the opportunity to check this morning.

805 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, just for the sake of clarification, is the Minister saying that this particular pathway that he is referring to was closed about a week ago? Is that what he is saying?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker.

810 There has been ongoing works in Douglas Path and what is known as 'Mount Misery'. Another section, which is south of the cable car top station, which is the other peak, so to speak, north of Mount Misery, has been closed off pending works. It is those works that I am not sure whether they have been carried out or not. The ones to Douglas Path and Mount Misery were ongoing when this answer was drafted and so they may well have been completed or will be nearing completion.

815 Hon. J J Netto: But in any case, what the Minister for the Environment is referring to is one particular pathway which has been temporarily closed. The impression that the Minister for Heritage gave, at the Heritage Trust AGM, was that there were many green areas and pathways in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve which were death traps. That is the impression, at least as quoted in the press.

820 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, if I may, since he is alluding to me, the fact is that what I said in the Heritage Trust AGM was that there was one place and that is Mount Misery, which is what my colleague is just stating. I can tell him for his peace of mind that I went there the next day, with a Health and Safety officer, and that is the place which is now blocked off for safety reasons. There is no pathway. There is no other place. It was just one specific place and that 825 was blocked off. It is still blocked off until works are now done.

Waste disposal/management Government plans

830

Clerk: Question 829, the Hon. J J Netto.

835 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to Question 694/2013, can the Minister for the Environment state what will be the waste disposal options that the Government will embark upon, following the completion of the specialist report by Ramboll in January 2013, providing a timeline for the implementation of such policies?

840 Can I just add Mr Speaker, my understanding is that I gave notice of the question... I mean the deadline for the notice of the question was on Thursday, 12th December, and I believe the Government issued a press release on 16th December to the press, which is this one which I have got here, in a way that puts the position quite difficult because I am trying to ask a question for which already some of the answer may have been put on the public notice by the press.

845 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if I may answer that point first. We are talking about two separate documents. The question which I have, and I am about to answer, Question 829 refers to a report by Ramboll which was a report on waste management options for Gibraltar.

850 The Waste Management Plan, which is the one that the hon. Member referred to in his last comment, is the Waste Management Plan for Gibraltar, which is independent – totally independent. It is a completely different document and it is an EU requirement that had to be published by a certain date and we did meet the timeframe. So it is a completely different document, and one is only to do with the other in that they are both talking about waste, and that clearly, if we commissioned a report in January to talk to us about waste options, clearly some of that will be reflected in the Waste Management Plan, but it was certainly a completely different document and in no way will one have affected the answer that I am
855 going to give you, which if I may, I will now proceed to give the formal answer.

860 Following completion of the Waste Treatment Options Assessment Report, undertaken by Ramboll in January 2013, Government resolved to invite tenders in the Official Journal of the European Union and local press for the design, build, finance and operation of a waste treatment facility. Government wishes to provide waste treatment facilities locally, with the aim of achieving the highest environmental standards in the treatment of its municipal solid waste and urban waste water treatment by-products, tyres and other bulky items.

865 Government's principal requirements for the waste treatment facility are the following: (1) a waste reception, sorting and storing facility for specific and separate waste streams; (2) a material recovery facility which will recover recyclable materials from the municipal waste stream; (3) a waste treatment plant of which technologies of advanced thermal treatment would be considered; (4) a facility capable of (i) generating electricity; (ii) and/or producing potable water; (iii) and/or producing biodiesel; (iv) and/or producing syngas; (v) handling and treatment of ad-hoc waste; (vi) handling and treatment of saline sewage sludge.

870 The tender was advertised on 14th February. The tender stage has now closed. Government is currently reviewing the tender submissions and will be in a position to make a decision in the first part of next year.

875 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, does the Minister for the Environment have a timeline in relation to when they would like to see, at least tentatively in operation, the new waste treatment plant?

880 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as soon as possible. This is something that is well overdue and something that this Government has taken on with great fervour. Clearly, we needed to have the consultant's assessment, which is the report that I referred to in January 2013, and then that was used to inform the tender process. The tender process is currently reaching its final stages and I would like to think, clearly it depends on what the different options are and what tenders are finally provided, but I would have thought that certainly, within this term of Government, we should see the waste plant operational.

885 Hon. J J Netto: I think Mr Speaker, with respect; I might have lost the last part of the words of the Hon. the Minister of the Environment. Did he give an indication as to by when the new waste treatment plant will be operative?

Several Members: As soon as possible.

890 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as soon as possible, and my wish would be that it would be within this term of Government; but certainly it depends on the details of the selected tender.

895 Hon. J J Netto: So basically he is not in a position right now at least, whether it is in 12 months' time or 24 months' time.

Can I also ask the Minister what is the location as to where the waste treatment plant might be located?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, the intention is still to have it on the Governor's Cottage site.

900 Hon. J J Netto: Is the Minister perhaps in a position to tell the House what percentage of electricity may be able to be produced by this waste treatment plant at this moment or will he have to wait for the completion?

905 Mr Speaker: That cannot possibly arise from the original question.

Upper Rock Nature Reserve: A Management and Action Plan Implementation of recommendations

910

Clerk: Question 830, the Hon. J J Netto.

915 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state which recommendations of the 'Upper Rock Nature Reserve, A Management and Action Plan' have been implemented since 9th December 2011, which ones the Minister intends to implement in the next 24 months, and which ones the Minister feels that he will not be able to implement and why?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

920 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the recommendations that will be implemented for the Upper Rock Nature Reserve and the wider Gibraltar Nature Reserve will all be fully laid out in the upcoming management plan that is being drafted by the Department of the Environment in consultation with the relevant stakeholders.

925 In any case, there are some notable recommendations that have been put into effect since 9th December 2011, which include: (1) extending the boundary of the Nature Reserve to include other important habitats, such as the Great Sand Slopes, Windmill Hill, Jacob's Ladder and Europa Point foreshore; (2) clearing areas of dense vegetation within the reserve; (3) appointing wildlife wardens; (4) reviewing traffic flows in the Upper Rock as part of the Traffic Management Plan; (5) establishing a

930 Caves Working Group, along with monitoring cave biodiversity and protecting specific caves and tunnels in the Upper Rock, by means of grilles and fences; (6) facilitating and supporting the monitoring of bat populations in Gibraltar as part of the Gib-Bats Project –this has already resulted in a new species of bat being recorded in Gibraltar, namely the Isabelline Serotine bat; (7) improving paths in the Upper Rock; (8) continued removal of invasive species.

935

Control of Barbary Macaques
Access to Mount Alvernia

940 Clerk: Question 831, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister of the Environment say if there are any permanent plans to avoid having Barbary Macaques entering into Mount Alvernia in the near future?

945 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, management and staff at Mount Alvernia have been inducted in what measures they should take to discourage the monkeys. This includes ensuring staff and visitors do not provide food, making bins monkey proof and dealing with the scaffolding that has been in place for years.

950

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I just say that while the scaffolding has been there for many years, it is the case that the macaques are venturing into the homes more often, into the actual bedrooms of the residents there in Mount Alvernia, in frequent numbers, particularly lately. Whilst all the measures that the Minister has announced just now are positive steps in the right direction, it may not preclude the fact that macaques will continue to get inside the bedrooms of the residents.

955

For that particular aspect of the question, does the Minister not see that perhaps the staff in Mount Alvernia might need some extra help or resources, in conjunction with either the Department of the Environment or perhaps some other entity?

960

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, they are getting that. They are getting regular visits from the macaque team and being encouraged and advised on how to deal with this; so that is happening. There is constant contact.

The monkeys were attracted initially to fruiting trees in the gardens of the Mount and then discovered the bins and apparently people started to put food out for them, which is clearly something that we must all discourage. So the situation is being handled with the support of the team.

Varyl Begg Estate
Pigeons culled in last six months

Clerk: Question 832, the Hon. J J Netto.

975 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 696/2013, can the Minister for the Environment say how many pigeons have been culled in the last six months in Varyl Begg Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

980 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, four pigeons have been culled in Varyl Begg Estate in the last six months.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the reason why I am raising this particular question is because I have had representations being made to me by tenants of Varyl Begg Estate. In fact, I have taken the trouble myself of taking some pictures of the amount of pigeons, and I would say not just in the Varyl Begg Estate, because the whole area that is being affected by all this is, is practically the whole of the west side of Gibraltar. There are literally hundreds and hundreds of pigeons just flying around that particular area of Gibraltar.

Could I ask the Minister, on behalf of the tenants in Varyl Begg Estate, whether a particular effort could be made to tackle this over population of feral pigeons in that part of Gibraltar?

990

995 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am glad that the hon. Member has said that pigeons fly, because I thought that he had forgotten that fact, and the fact that four have been captured in Varyl Begg Estate does not mean that those that have been caught elsewhere are not ones that also frequent Varyl Begg Estate. They do fly between areas and therefore you cannot say that only four of the ones that use Varyl Begg Estate have been culled.

This is a concern. There is a large number of feral pigeons, as there have been for many years, and this is something that my Department is addressing with a view to introducing a programme which will be able to tackle this.

1000 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I invite the Minister, perhaps, to give some details of the particular programme he envisages will be implemented?

1005 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, before I do that, Mr Speaker, I will refer to my answer last time, which was that there have been 1,347 pigeons culled overall, so it is not that nothing is happening. Increased deployments to a number of areas in order to be able to attempt to bring the population down and also we are considering whether the feeding of pigeons is something that should be tackled as to whether or not that should be illegal.

1010 At the moment it is, in the sense that if you put out food, you are putting out litter, but there is not any specific targeting of the feeding of pigeons. Particularly in certain areas, like, for example, happened in Trafalgar Square, where it was made contrary to regulations, local regulations, to feed them in Trafalgar Square, it may be that we need to look at that, and that is something that is being looked at.

1015 Importation of trees and turf from Italy and UK
Carbon footprint cost

Clerk: Question 833, the Hon. J J Netto.

1020 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what is the carbon footprint cost of importing 140 trees from Italy for the Commonwealth Park, compared to a closer jurisdiction, such as Portugal or Spain?

1025 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 834.

1030 Clerk: Question 834.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what is the carbon footprint cost of importing turf from the UK for the Commonwealth Park, as compared to a closer jurisdiction, say Portugal or Spain?

1035 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the trees for the Commonwealth Park were purchased from Italy because Italy is the main producer of quality trees in the Mediterranean.

1040 It was absolutely essential for the establishment and success of the park that trees were purchased from the most reputable and reliable source possible. Trees are distributed throughout Europe from Italy, so that, for example, many of the trees that are used for landscaping in the UK arrive from Italy, either directly or indirectly, via Germany and the Netherlands. In fact, some of the best trees that are sold in Iberia are purchased in Italy and grown on in Iberia. So that purchasing closer to Gibraltar does not necessarily reduce the total distance of journeys for the trees.

1045 The trees for the park arrived from Pistoia, Italy, in five articulated lorries. The carbon footprint for the journey will have been about an estimated 29 tonnes. This is offset by the estimated amount of carbon sequestered by the trees so far, which given their sizes is about 103 tonnes. This offset would also cater for the higher quality turf being imported from the UK, about 28 tonnes, rather than a closer jurisdiction.

1050 The expertise that Italian growers have in packing these trees into lorries – 140 trees in just five lorries – means that although the distance covered is of course significantly greater, a larger number of lorries are likely to have been used had the trees been purchased in Portugal or Spain.

1055 It is doubtful, furthermore, that trees purchased in Iberia would have approached these Italian trees in quality, size and health. These factors would of course affect future growth and longevity positively, both of which will of course enhance future carbon sequestration.

1060 When all of these factors are taken into account, it is highly unlikely that there would have been any reduction at all in carbon footprint had these trees been purchased in Iberia. Quite apart from this, there is of course a net gain in carbon sequestering as a result of the new park, regardless of the trees provenance, so the park reduces Gibraltar's carbon footprints.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what about financial cost? Before the Hon. Minister or Members of his staff went out and ordered these trees, was there an investigation of prices elsewhere in Spain, Portugal, or closer to home, where it might have been cheaper to purchase these trees?

1065 At the end of the day, I understand that it is always desirable to obtain the best possible quality, but when you are in Government, one balances the cost of best quality with obtaining reasonable quality at a lower cost that turns out to be better value for the taxpayer.

1070 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am sure I cannot detect anything behind the words of the Hon. Leader of the Opposition which may suggest that he would rather the trees died, and therefore that we got less quality trees. (Laughter) I say this, apart from the intention of perhaps making it a more jovial tone today, it is after all two days before Christmas, because clearly we need to have quality if this is going to be a park that will stand the test of time.

1075 It was not asked and so I do not have a cost for the trees, in particular, with me, but clearly they are the best trees available in the Mediterranean and the long-term cost benefit of acquiring these trees is something that is absolutely clear.

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

1080

Job vacancies offered to employed persons Government's policy

1085 Clerk: Question 806, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state whether it is the Government's policy not to offer vacancies to those in employment?

1090 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, as this House has been told previously, the majority of the vacancies open since 2011 have been filled by persons who were not registered as unemployed.

1095 Hon. D J Bossino: And presumably the answer is that it is in the Government policy, given that on the ground, according to what the Minister is saying, it is not happening.

1100 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, it follows, as night follows day, that if the vacancies had not been opened to everybody, then it would not have been possible for the vast majority of them to have been filled by people who were not registered as unemployed.

Clearly, every time that somebody who is employed already gives up a job in the private sector and takes up a job in the Government, the unemployment figures do not go down, but there is nothing I can do about it.

Definition of 'disabled' Government review

1110 Clerk: Question 807, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government say when the definition of 'disabled' will change to ensure that all those who suffer disability, at whatever stage in their lives, will 1115 be entitled to disability benefits, what criteria will be used to define disability and at what stage is Government in the review of disability in our laws?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1120 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Government is in the process of establishing clear and objective criteria to address the problems faced by those who become disabled, but were not born with a disability. This will be completed within the lifetime of the Parliament.

1125

Leisure Construction and Maintenance Company Limited Number of employees

1130 Clerk: Question 808, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government provide details in respect of the number of employees who may have been employed since the answer provided to Question 650/2013 by Leisure Construction and Maintenance Company Limited, broken down by grade, age, gender and nationality?

1135 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, none have been employed since the answer to Question 650/2013.

1140

Health and Safety
Provision of November 2013 statistics

1145 Clerk: Question 809, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health and Safety provide the November 2013 statistics to Parliament of Health and Safety, as these were unavailable on the Government website when the deadline to hand in the Opposition's Questions to Parliament expired?

1150

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the Member the information required.

1155

Mr Speaker: The supplement is rather lengthy. Could I suggest that we go on to the next question and the hon. Member can come back and ask supplementaries when he has studied the information? Okay.

Hon. J J Netto: It will not be necessary, Mr Speaker, because subsequent to the closing date, it is on the website. So I have got it here with me, so I can ask the supplementary question straight away.

1160

Mr Speaker, could I ask the Minister for Health and Safety, because I have been looking at one of the tables in particular... I am referring to the table for monitoring activities and I do not know whether he has got it in front of him – monitoring activities for the month of November we are talking about – and I can see that there was a total of 44 activities, which are later broken down by each particular component. But of the total of 44, 34 correspond to the construction industry. Now the construction industry is just one industry group of 21 within the labour market, and that represents 77% of the total amount of monitoring activities for the month in November of the total. Could the Minister perhaps give an explanation why this unusually high figure of 77% is dedicated just on the construction industry?

1165

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, Mr Speaker, I can give him the same explanation that I gave him the last time he asked an identical question, which is that construction activities take place in sites that stop being work places when the work is completed and open up new sites. Whereas if he looks at the rest, it is all inspections of permanent places of shops, retail trade and road transport. In all those cases the place to be inspected is inspected and if the inspectors do not find anything wrong, they do not have to keep on coming back.

1170

But in the construction sector, you can have one construction company and they are opening new sites every month and completing work on other sites. The pattern is the pattern that is normal, has always been there, and it is explained by the fact that construction companies are mobile from site to site, but shops are not, they are always in the same place.

1175

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, I do accept part of the answer given by the Minister, in the sense that construction sites are mobile and therefore the Health and Safety Inspector will want to inspect every, perhaps, new particular site that emerges in a particular construction; but the fact is that the figures are simply disproportionate. (Interjection)

1180

When you look at it in the month you have a total of 77% of the time dedicated to monitoring to that particular industry group. There is – and I have done an exercise myself and I do not want to go into a lengthy explanation here because it is Question Time – a particular industry group in the whole of this year which has not had one single inspection at all within the labour market. It just shows that there is a disproportionate amount of time dedicated only exclusively... well, I would not say exclusively, but mainly on the construction industry, to the neglect, perhaps, of other industry groups.

1185

Can I ask the Minister, because it is Question Time, whether he can discuss this with his own officials in order to see that other industry groups have some attention as well, because at the moment they are not having any attention at all?

1190

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. I will not do that because I do not think it is my job to tell the Health and Safety Inspectors how best to conduct the activities that they are required to conduct under the law. I do not think that I am qualified to tell them that the amount of time that they spend going to a construction site is disproportionate. I do not know if that was the practice before 2011 and I will find out if it was, but it is certainly not the practice now and I do not intend to introduce it.

1195

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, and I see the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services laughing. It is not a laughing matter –

1200

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): I was laughing at you!

Hon. D A Feetham: The reality is that the Hon. Mr Netto has pointed out that there are industry groups that have not received any visits from inspectors at all. He may not give instructions to inspectors as to who to visit or who not to visit, but ultimately he is politically responsible if inspections are not being conducted with the efficiency that they ought to be conducted, and that there are industry groups that are being, effectively, neglected or not being inspected.

1205

Does he not believe that that is a matter of concern? At least will he not undertake to go back and to actually look at the split, in terms of industry groups of inspections, and if there is a particular problem by way of neglect of a particular sector, that perhaps he ought to have a word with his inspectors and at least ask why it is that these industry groups have been neglected or there were no inspections in relation to them?

1210

Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker. I will not do any of that because I do not think that just because the hon. Member opposite gets it into his head that there is a huge neglect of people who are at serious risk or small risk or any risk at all, when there is overwhelming evidence that the vast majority of accidents at work happen in areas, like the construction industry, where people are at risk and it is quite 1220 obvious that the level of risk that takes place in... simply because anybody that has been at work knows that in an office with lawyers, is not the same as when you are going up scaffolding on a building site. So clearly, the inspectors, who know their job and are professionals, are doing the work in the way they think is more efficient.

1225 Let me say that this new interest in Health and Safety is surprising, when in fact I made public recently the fact that there is a requirement in the 1996 Regulations that every single entity in Gibraltar should produce a risk assessment and keep a record of places where there are more than five, and the Department had no evidence that that had been complied with. In fact, I am now in the process of ensuring that in areas where it has not been complied with, after somebody approaches the employer to find out if it is there, if there is a record, it will be done. I have given a public commitment that every 1230 single employer will have a risk assessment required of them, as the law states, within a year.

I do not think that there is more that can be done to do what is the basic thing, which is to do a risk assessment. When that has not been done, surely the risk assessment that is going to be done over the next 10 months will show us whether there are other areas that potentially we should be devoting more attention to.
1235

Factory Inspectors
Reason for seeking legal advice

1240

Clerk: Question 810, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 704/2013, can the Minister for Health and Safety say for what reason or reasons did the Factory Inspector seek legal advice in the month of October?
1245

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the legal advice pursued by the Inspectorate was on how to proceed after an improvement notice issued to GFI was appealed.
1250

Hon. J J Netto: Was this improvement notice issued in September?

1255

Hon. J J Bossano: I believe it was.

Hon. J J Netto: And was the reason for the legal advice because the employer, in this particular case, was not putting right, basically, what the Factory Inspector had placed in the improvement order?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, as the original answer states, Mr Speaker, if the employer in question gave notice of appeal, it follows logically that he did not agree with the assessment of the Inspectorate and that is why he was going to appeal.

In actual fact, when the matter was referred to the Attorney General for advice, the Inspector went back to GFI and they agreed to comply with the Inspectorate and it did not go any further. But if it had gone to appeal, the Inspectorate needed the assistance of the Legal Department on how to deal with the appeal.

Hon. J J Netto: I am not sure whether I have understood the Minister correctly. Is he therefore saying that while they have been seeking legal advice, the actual works have not progressed on site, or they have progressed on site? I was not clear there.
1270

Hon. J J Bossano: If somebody gets told to do something in his workplace to change something and he decides to appeal, then it means that he does not accept that what he is being asked to do has to be done. I am telling him that that is why the Inspectorate appeals are very, very rare. The Inspectorate then went to the AG's Chamber to say, 'Well, look, these guys are resisting, what needs to be done. They are going to go to appeal, so how do we deal with it?'
1275

I am also telling him, although he has not asked me, that in practice, after that step was taken, and they went back, the company concerned changed its mind and decided not to proceed with the appeal, and complied with the order.
1280

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Artificial reef

Reasons for location and timing

1285

Clerk: Question 835, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1290

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please explain why the Government laid the artificial reef in the area that it did, at the time that it did?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I am answering on the creation of the artificial reef as this was an environmental measure, co-ordinated and managed by my Ministry.

The location of the artificial reef is paramount, as this will largely determine the success of the prospect – (A Member: Project.) sorry, of the project... I apologise Mr Speaker – as this will largely determine the success of the project so that it will enhance the area's marine environment.

1300

More specifically, the north-west artificial reef was laid in this area for the following reasons: (1) sea grasses were prevalent in the area as documented by experts in scientific journals, but these had been destroyed by fishing activities, particularly raking. The design and layout of the reef has been done to facilitate the planting of sea grasses; (2) the seabed is of a sandy composition. The Department of the Environment had been continuously monitoring the water sediment and biological conditions of the site, which proved to be suitable for the creation of an artificial reef; (3) the area is not a shipping lane or military exclusion zone; (4) it is an area within British Gibraltar Territorial Waters, which provides no negative environmental impact, but maximum environmental gain.

1305

The reef, being in sheltered waters is the ideal location to: provide a spawning area for fish and marine life; provide an area for the re-colonisation and/or relocation of sea grasses; provide natural protection for the recolonisation of Habitats Directive Annex IV species, as listed under the Habitats Directive – for example Pinna nobilis; improve shellfish populations; provide a habitat for benthic communities to develop; and provide a new site for diving and snorkelling activities.

1310

In terms of timing, calm conditions with minimal wave, wind and tidal influences favour the deployment of artificial reef modules. The north-west artificial reef was deployed during the summer on 24th July and 25th July 2013, since the forecast for meteorological and sea state conditions were deemed suitable for said deployment.

1315

Hon. D A Feetham: Was there any discussion at all or was it factored into the decision to lay the reef in August? I recognise that the Government has every right to lay this reef where it laid it.

1320

A Member: In July.

1325

Hon. D A Feetham: Sorry, in July. But was there any discussion or was it factored into the decision, the possible repercussions that might have flowed from the laying of the reef and the impact that that would have had in terms of local traders because of ...and indeed there has been an impact on local traders – the consequence of the problems that we have had on the frontier? I mean, was that factored into the decision-making process by the Government, or the Minister, or the Chief Minister, when the decision was taken to lay this particular reef in July?

1330

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Needless to say, Mr Speaker, I am not going to be engaging the Leader of the Opposition on what the Chief Minister and the Minister for the Environment discuss.

1335

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but Mr Speaker, that is a wholly inadequate answer, with respect.

We have a reef that has been laid in July. It has provoked, unjustifiably so, we recognise that – unjustifiably so, but in our view predictably so – a reaction from Spain which has involved restrictions at the border, which has then caused huge problems, particularly for mainstream traders at the height of the tourist season in August and September, which has led many of these traders to see a downturn in their turnover for those two months.

I would have thought, and does he not agree with me, that any prudent and reasonable Government would have factored into their decision-making process that kind of consequence, despite having the legal right and the moral right, whatever you like, in terms of laying that reef, but factoring into the decision making process those consequences for mainstream traders and other businesses in Gibraltar?

Mr Speaker: Before the Chief Minister answers that supplementary question, let me make it clear that I am not going to allow a debate this morning, arising from this question, about the frontier restrictions or the measures being adopted by the Spanish Government, for whatever reason they may be.

1345

If the hon. Members of the Opposition wish to, they can raise the matter later, on the adjournment. It is a proper matter to raise on the adjournment, when a 40-minute debate can take place without a vote being taken and without a formal motion, or they can raise, they are free, under the Rules of this House, they are free to bring a motion on the question of the frontier restrictions whenever they so wish and then different Rules will apply because it will be a debate.

1350

But this morning, arising from this question, we are not going to have such a debate.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that, because I think that is exactly what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition wants.

1355

May I just comment in respect of what you have said, that of course a motion on the adjournment falls in respect of matters which are urgent, and something which has been going on apparently since August is not going to, in my view, attract the epitaph of ‘urgent’.

1360

Mr Speaker: If I may correct the Chief Minister: not just urgent, but on any other matter, and it is any other matter that could have arisen during Question Time, and then it is for the Speaker to decide whether that is an appropriate matter to have debated on the adjournment.

Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, but let us be clear that the motion on the adjournment is not the sort of procedure that should be used by Oppositions that are fearful of losing votes on motions.

The Opposition, if they want to debate this issue with the Government are free of course to do so and the Government would very much welcome the opportunity of debating this with the Opposition; but let us do it on a motion, Mr Speaker, that is clear, and let us do it on a motion where we take a vote.

1370

Mr Speaker, the position is very clear. I am not going to engage the Leader of the Opposition on what it is that the Government considers when it makes a decision. If I start the process of answering in respect of that question, then we are going to be here simply analysing who said what to who in Cabinet before a particular decision that hon. Members like or dislike was taken.

1375

But I do have to take issue with much of what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has said. He appears to not be living in the Gibraltar that most of the rest of us are living in. He appears not to have lived the history of Gibraltar that the rest of Gibraltarians have lived it, and I say that, Mr Speaker, not in respect of the restrictions of 1969 to 1982 and then 1985, when the frontier finally opened, but of course, Mr Speaker, in respect of the period of restrictions and of frontier queues and of rhetoric that the hon. Member did not live with us, because he was happily ensconced up in the north of England being a barrister there.

1380

He might not recall, and I hope that this is of assistance to him, Mr Speaker, that at the time that the GSD were in administration, when they laid no reefs, Mr Speaker, and they tore up no fishing agreements – in fact they did them – we had... Apparently I am pesao Mr Speaker, I hear the hon. Lady opposite saying, because I am reminding them of this.

1385

We had extremely long frontier queues. We had extremely negative rhetoric, all from the same place that we have them today, the Palacio de Santa Cruz and the Partido Popular Foreign Ministers of the time.

There was a very informative article today that I recommend to Members opposite, Mr Speaker, in a publication in Spanish called Público – Público.es – which analyses what is Plan A and what is Plan B for the Spanish Foreign Ministry.

1390

Plan A, Mr Speaker, is being nice to the Gibraltarians and see if they will agree to transfer the sovereignty of Gibraltar. Plan B says, Mr Speaker, if having been nice to the Gibraltarians they do not agree to any progress on issues of sovereignty, then start getting tough. And if the hon. Gentleman says, ‘Well, Mr Speaker, did you not consider Plan B when you were considering with the Hon. Minister for the Environment whether such a reef should be created in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters or not?’, let me put it to him, Mr Speaker, that he should go back and do a bit of research. Not so much on the numbers of inspections that Health and Safety officers rightly do in respect of the construction industry, rather than analysing Health and Safety in hairdressing salons or spas, but to read the words of Señor Margallo, when he was first appointed Minister for Foreign Affairs of Spain – not when he said, ‘Gibraltar Español’ or ‘Esta broma se ha acabado’ – this joke is over – but when he said in a lengthy interview on 21st January 2012, Mr Speaker, and for the purposes of assisting him that is 19 months before the reef was laid – 19 months before the reef was laid – ‘We are not going to progress with the trilateral process that is at an end and from now on we will have regional co-operation so long as there are advances on sovereignty –

1395

1400

1405 Mr Speaker: Can I – ?

Hon. Chief Minister: – not otherwise’.

1410 Mr Speaker: Can I bring the Chief Minister (Interjection) back to the question and answer? The question was as to the reasons why the Government laid the artificial reef in that area and the time that it did so.

The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment has given detailed answers, based on environmental and biological conditions, as to why that was proceeded with. I am only going to allow any further supplementaries to deal with those aspects of the question and the answer.

1415 Anything else to do with the wider political issues, hon. Members can debate whenever they so wish. I make myself available for that purpose and I will then apply the liberal rules of debating which follow. But, we are not going to do that this morning and I am bringing this matter to a conclusion, unless supplementary questions are within the parameters that I have decided.

1420 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very happy to accept your ruling. I will allow the Minister for the Environment to deal with the biological and environmental aspects of this matter as he is much better qualified than I am. I think I have dealt with the political aspects that were raised by the Leader of the Opposition.

1425 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am interested in the political questions and the political answers. If I cannot ask political questions and receive political answers, then I am not going to pursue the matter any further.

1430 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I put it to the hon. Gentleman that environmental issues and biological issues are highly important political issues too.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I am interested in the reasons why the Government took a decision which in my view has turned out to be one of the most monumental errors of judgement in the political history of Gibraltar. (Banging on desks)

1435 Mr Speaker: May I make it clear that, as Speaker, I am also interested in those decisions. I do not want anybody to go away from this House under the impression that I am curtailing discussion on these matters. I am just saying that Question Time is not the appropriate time to do so and I invite hon. Members of the Opposition, if they so wish, to table a motion at the earliest convenience, in order to debate this important issue. So I do not want anyone, members of the public in particular, who may not understand what the Rules of Procedure are, to think that the Speaker is curtailing debate. The Speaker is not curtailing debate, provided it is at a time when debate is called for.

1440 We are dealing with questions and answers, the purpose of which is to ask for information, to enjoin the Government to adopt a particular course of action or to adopt a certain line of policy, and that is what Question Time is about.

1445 Hon. Chief Minister: I am very grateful, Mr Speaker. I think it is important the public should know that we are prepared to debate these issues.

1450 Mr Speaker, I think it is entirely politically appropriate though that I do deal with the hon. Gentleman’s last point, because I think the public will realise, Mr Speaker, that the biggest monumental error of judgement made in the modern history of Gibraltar was actually to leave the GSLP as it was in the ascendancy and to join the GSD. In any event, Mr Speaker, history will judge this Government for everything it has done, not just but including the reef, much more fairly than the Opposition would like us to be judged for their own narrow political purposes. And when we do, Mr Speaker, the advances made in respect of those waters off the isthmus may not look like such a monumental error of judgement.

1455 Hon. D A Feetham: And I will enjoy bringing a final curtain to your Government in two years’ time. (Interjections)

1460 Mr Speaker: Is there any supplementary on this particular question? If not, we will proceed to the next one. No. I see that the matter has been satisfactorily dealt with therefore. (Laughter)

Hon. Chief Minister: Well Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has made a point and I think it is right that I should be able to answer it, because... if only with this observation, Mr Speaker.

1465 I think what you have done this morning, Mr Speaker, is to rightly draw out the Leader of the Opposition so that we have now been able to see, and so has all this community, that all of these issues that he wants to debate, he is not interested, Mr Speaker, in any details as to the biological and environmental reasons for the creation of the reef. He just wants to use this opportunity, Mr Speaker, to hurt the Government politically so that he can bring a final curtain on our Government in two years' time.

1470 Mr Speaker, for the purposes of the record, let me just remind him that the person who will decide when to bring the final curtain down on the lifetime of this Parliament will be me when I go and see the Governor to ask him to convene a General Election. We do not know yet, Mr Speaker, who will lead the parties into that General Election, what the parties will be, which party he will be in at the time, Mr Speaker (Laughter) and the general public will decide who it is that governs Gibraltar afterwards. He should not assume that he is going to win any elections in the future.

Mr Speaker: And I am bringing now a final curtain on this question and we go on to the next one. (Banging on desks and applause)

1480

CHIEF MINISTER

Costs to taxpayer

Members' expenditure; protocol, travel and entertainment

1485

Clerk: Question 836, the Hon. J J Netto.

1490

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state the breakdown of expenditure so far since the commencement of this financial year in relation to (1) protocol; (2) travel; and (3) entertainment by all Members of the Government, broken down by each separate category and stating the purpose, place and date in which such event took place?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Chief Minister.

1495

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 837 and 838.

Clerk: Question 837, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1500

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide a breakdown of all costs to the taxpayer of the recent visit to the Fourth Committee of the United Nations, identifying everyone who was paid for by the taxpayer, together with items of expenditure associated with that individual?

Clerk: Question 838, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1505

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide details of the cost of the Mega Pop Concert, the Jazz Festival, the Literary Festival and the Gibraltar Day in London?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1510

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, ministerial travel costs are put on the Government website, as invoices are received and paid, including those of the Deputy Chief Minister, Minister Licudi and my own, in respect of our travel to the United Nations this year. Should any further Ministerial costs be received, they will be reflected on the website.

1515

Details of protocol and entertainment have never been provided before the financial year end, by any administration, as that amounts to, in effect, providing a management account of ongoing expenditure.

In respect of Questions 837 and 838, however, I now hand over a schedule with the information requested, except in respect of protocol.

Mr Speaker: My attention has been drawn to the fact that the Chief Minister... has he missed out the last line of the question?

Hon. Chief Minister: Oh, yes, you are absolutely right, Mr Speaker. I am very grateful.

In relation to Question 837 and Question 838, there is another sentence I should have read out. Her Majesty's Government delegation on this occasion, the occasion of our visit to the United Nations, also included the Director of Education and six students.

1530

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have the schedule here in front of me and it does not include – and can I take it from the non-inclusion – anybody from the Self Determination Group, it does not include Mr Matthews, unless I have made a mistake. Does that mean that Mr Matthews paid for his own travel and expenses to the United Nations and that is why it does not appear in this particular schedule?

1535

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, he should ask Mr Matthews that, Mr Speaker. The only thing I can say is that the Government did not pay for it.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, and for the avoidance of doubt, can he confirm that it was not paid for through any Government-owned company, either directly or indirectly?

1540 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as far as I know we have not paid for the SDGG to come with us to the United Nations through the Government, the Savings Bank, Credit Finance Company, all the ones that they say are secret, Mr Speaker, but they know everything about it and so does everyone else in our community.

1545

Former Speaker of the House
Investigation into leak of personal tax affairs

1550 Clerk: Question 839 the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether the investigation into the leak of personal tax affairs of the former Speaker of this House has now concluded?

1555 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this investigation has now concluded and no evidence as to the source of the leak has been established by the Chief Secretary. A report of the investigation is presently being prepared.

1560

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, in relation to the report that he says is being prepared, is that a report that is a report to Government that will not be made public, or does he intend to make it public? Would he lay it before this House? What are his intentions in terms of the report into this particular issue, which is a serious issue, not only generally, but also for Members of this House? At the end of the day, this was a Speaker of the House and his personal tax affairs were leaked to members of the press.

1565

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Gentleman understates the seriousness of what happened here and that to have the tax affairs of any individual leaked to the press is, to say the least, criminal. To have them leaked of a Member of this House is criminal and raises political issues too; and therefore I will not commit myself to publish the report for exactly the reasons that I said to him in answer to Question 497 this year, which I am sure he will recall, namely that it may be that that report leads to my making – my or whatever the appropriate mechanism is – to a criminal report being made for further criminal investigation.

1570

Hon. D A Feetham: I understand that if the report focuses on evidence that may form the basis of a criminal investigation, that it may not be appropriate to disclose the report – I understand that. But as I understood the answer, really the Government or the Chief Secretary has not been able to get to the bottom of how or where and when, the ins and outs of the leaking of this particular information.

1575

If there is nothing there in this report that can form the basis of a criminal prosecution, because at the end of the day it really is inconclusive, is there any reason why the Government will not disclose the report so that at least Members of the Opposition can look at it and also can look at the thoroughness of the investigation and the way that the investigation has been conducted? We are perfectly entitled to do so, you know.

1580

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman can do what he likes. He can look at whatever he likes, but what he is not going to become is the policeman of the Chief Secretary. Is he saying, Mr Speaker, that he has some doubt as to the thoroughness of the investigation undertaken by the Chief Secretary?

1585

I must say, Mr Speaker, that I watched in awe – watched, because now we are able to, after the reforms that this Government has made – the allegations being made in respect of employment issues, when the Hon. the Minister for Health was answering questions, and all of those implications which you were good enough to point out about the Public Services Commission and its working. Are we now to have suggestions in this House, that in respect of something as important and as sensitive and as, frankly, unacceptable as a leak of a taxpayer's information, the hon. Gentleman thinks that it is up to him to determine whether or not the Government or the Chief Secretary have been thorough in an investigation?

1590

Well, look, Mr Speaker, that is never going to be a reason for us to publish a report. What I am saying to him, in trying to agree... in fact, in going further than his own view as to the seriousness of this leak, Mr Speaker, is that the report may take matters further, and it may take them outside the ambit of simply a

1595

1600 Civil Service investigation into what has happened. But certainly, Mr Speaker, if the report is published, it will not be in order to enable the hon. Gentleman to make himself the policeman of the policeman.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he really is very long winded in his answers today, and he really is waffling and waffling and waffling... more so today than on other occasions.

1605 Look, it is not up to me. It is not up to me, but I am perfectly entitled to examine that report and make my own mind up as to the quality of the investigation. That is part of the role of the Opposition. Or is he really suggesting that the Opposition is not entitled to look at this report and make up its own mind as to the thoroughness of an investigation into a very serious issue?

1610 Of course there are criminal implications, but it is also a matter of extreme importance to Members of this House that in relation to a Member of this House that there has been a leak of personal tax affairs that ultimately led to the Speaker's resignation last year. Mr Speaker, does he not recognise that the Opposition is entitled to that information?

1615 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the previous Speaker of this House, who gave eight years of service to this community and to this Parliament, explained why he resigned – in fact, not why he resigned, why he retired. He never suggested it was anything to do with the malicious leaking of information dealing with his tax affairs. The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has just said the opposite.

1620 Look, Mr Speaker, there has only been one Speaker who has resigned as a result of something related to the work he has done in this House and that was Mr Alcantara, who had to face a motion of no confidence in the Speaker where the Government voted against him because he had ruled in a way that the Government did not like. The Government that he supported. The Government that he then became a Member of, when he made the monumental error of judgment of leaving the GSLP in its ascendancy and going to the GSD in its descendency.

1625 But, Mr Speaker, how can he say that he is entitled to a Government report? Well, Mr Speaker, if he has any legitimate expectation that he might see the report, which he does not, it might be because we publish reports. Or, Mr Speaker, is it that I had an entitlement – to use his words – to see the Customs Report prepared by the previous administration, which they refused to publish, or to see the Alan King report into the future of GBC, which they had prepared at a huge cost to the taxpayer and refused to publish? Well, Mr Speaker, where was the entitlement then when he used to sit here and snigger, as a Government Minister, when those reports were not published.

1630 This report is into a very sensitive matter, and I am telling the House it may lead to more, and all I am saying is I cannot commit myself to publish the report as a result of that. But, Mr Speaker, he says that we are waffling. Look, Mr Speaker, I think anybody who has been watching today will know that they are the ones gobbling like turkeys voting for Christmas, and we are the ones talking turkey.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: He really has a propensity – he does it better than anybody else – to grandstand, the showmanship, the Hollywood; that is his thing. I have to say that that is his thing and I congratulate him for it.

1640 But, Mr Speaker, does he not recognise that he got elected on a ticket of doing things differently, even if it were right what he says. He was elected on doing things differently and he complained on many occasions that we had not published the King Report. Does he not recognise therefore that he ought to take a leaf out of his own political discourse and do things the way that he used to preach that he was going to do things, before he became Chief Minister of Gibraltar?

1645 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, look I think the hon. Gentleman has not wanted to hear what I say. He accuses me of grandstanding, but he is asking questions, despite my answer being the report may be published unless there are reasons why it should not, because it may lead to a prosecution.

1650 Now Mr Speaker, of course we are doing things differently. There was a new dawn, thank goodness, on 9th December 2011. Things have changed, this Parliament is unrecognisable. People can watch us at home, and so much more has happened, Mr Speaker. But everybody knows that there has been real change in our community.

1655 But what I cannot do, Mr Speaker, is when we are dealing with a report that may lead to a prosecution, or an investigation or may be tangentially related to a prosecution or an investigation, commit myself today – and that is what we are arguing about – to publish the report. Mr Speaker, it maybe that those things do not come to pass and the report can be published, because my inclination, as hon. Members know, and they take me at my best in this respect, is always to publish unless there is a good reason not to.

But that does not mean, Mr Speaker, because there has been a new dawn, because at last there is transparency, because we are a more open Government, that the hon. Members can have a webcam set up in each of our offices to hear what we talk about when we are going to decide whether or not to lay a reef, 1660 to look at what it is that we are doing in respect of reports, and to have access to any information that may be of an important prosecutorial nature.

But, Mr Speaker, let that not stop him from sitting down, almost as if he were Scrooge, to say, 'Bah, humbug' to everything.

1665 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, nobody is asking for disclosure of this report, if at the end of the day it is going to lead to a criminal prosecution or a criminal investigation. I have not suggested that. On the contrary, I have said if it does not do that, there is no reason why you ought not to disclose it, and certainly, not disclose it to the Opposition.

1670 Now, my final supplementary, will he at least, if there is no criminal investigation or criminal prosecution – criminal investigation, really... does he undertake to at the very least allow me sight, as Leader of the Opposition, of this report, bearing in mind that it does go to the privileges to disclosure of personal tax information of a Member of this House, and it relates to this House? And as Leader of the Opposition, will he at least undertake to let me see a copy of that report, even if on a confidential basis?

1675 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I said at the beginning of my answer to supplementaries that my answer remained as in respect of Question 497, which was in June of this year. The hon. Member's supplementary is identical to the one he asked me in supplementaries then.

1680 So I will just remit myself to saying this, Mr Speaker – it is at line 270 of the excellent Hansard that is now produced so much more quickly for these monthly meetings that we now have, instead of the one or two that they used to have when they were in Government, and called themselves democratic. And I said this, Mr Speaker:

1685 'Mr Speaker, I cannot commit myself to that, [the undertaking which he asked for] for a reason that I hope he will understand. It could be that this leads to criminal proceedings and therefore that the matter might be overtaken by the issues becoming the subject of a complaint or a charge. Therefore, Mr Speaker, I do not think it is appropriate for me to give the House an undertaking that this will result in a statement by me in this House, or the tabling of an investigation report, because it could become much more serious than that, and I hope he understands that reasoning.'

1690 Mr Speaker, I have said throughout the course of questions and answers this morning, the very same thing. If it leads to an investigation or at a criminal level, I cannot publish it; therefore Mr Speaker, the opposite must also be true. If it does not lead to an investigation for criminal proceedings, then I will be free to publish it.

1695 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does that mean, because he has not given me a straight answer to this question. Does it mean that if it does not lead to a criminal investigation that the Hon. the Chief Minister will make that report public – (1); and (2), that at the very least, he will allow me to see it, even on a confidential basis?

1700 I am not asking about criminal investigations. This has never for me been about a report which leads to a criminal investigation. If it leads to a criminal investigation, I understand. If it does not – that is the question.

1705 Hon. Chief Minister: I have already answered those questions, Mr Speaker.

Self Determination Gibraltar Group
Chairman's speech to UN

1710 Clerk: Question 840, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1715 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, did the Chief Minister read the speech of the Self Determination Gibraltar Group Chairman, Dennis Matthews, before it was delivered to the United Nations?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No, sir.

1720 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, did he agree with the sentiments expressed by Mr Matthews at the United Nations, comparing the actions of Spain to Gibraltar to that of terrorists?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, sir.

1725

Establishment of Anti-Corruption Authority
Continuing plans

1730 Clerk: Question 841, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether the Government has abandoned its plans to set up an Anti-Corruption Authority?

1735 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, we have not abandoned our plans in this respect, and expect to make an announcement in due course.

1740 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is this something that the Government intends to do during the course of 2014, just to put a tighter timetable on the answer the hon. Gentleman has given me?

1745 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government does not accept tighter timetables from the Opposition. Our manifesto is to be performed in the lifetime of this Parliament. Some things may be now performed in 2014, some in 2015 and in fact, Mr Speaker, if he understands the Rules of Procedure, we may be able even to go into 2016.

1750 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, indeed. Will this involve the introduction of legislation in order to create this particular authority? And how does the Hon. the Chief Minister envisage that this will plug in to existing legislation, or will it require wholesale legislation, hermetically sealed from existing legislation, in particular for example, the Crimes Act and the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act?

1755 Hon. Chief Minister: I do not recognise that as an analogy that you can use in relation to legislation, Mr Speaker.
It is very likely that this will require new legislation. I am not going to debate with him at this stage how it is going to be done. He will see when an announcement is made how we expect it to interface with existing legislation.

1760

Credit Finance Company Limited; Consolidated Fund
Commutated pensions of civil servants

1765 Clerk: Question 842, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state, what is the total amount paid by Credit Finance Company Limited in commuted pensions of civil servants?

1770 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer together with Question 843.

Clerk: Question 843.

1775 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state how many civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid (a) by Credit Finance Company Limited and (b) from the Consolidated Fund since Credit Finance Company Limited was incorporated?

1780 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as at 31st October 2013, the total amount paid by Credit Finance Company Limited in commuted pensions of civil servants is £18,123,986.28. Figures as at 30th November have not yet been finalised by the Treasury. Therefore answers reflect tentative figures as at 31st October 2013.

1785 One hundred and twenty-four civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid by Credit Finance Company Limited.

1790 Sixty-one civil servants have had their commuted pensions paid from the Consolidated Fund, once the incorporation of Credit Finance Company Limited as follows: nine gratuity payments on retirement; 39 revised gratuity payments to civil servants who retired and had their gratuities paid prior to the incorporation of the company; and seven gratuity payments on death; and six gratuity payments on resignation.

1795 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just by way of clarification. Did he say £18 million – one eight – or did he say £80 million? It is just that we did not quite hear it.

Hon. Chief Minister: One eight, one two three, nine eight six, dot twenty-eight.

1800 Hotels
Financial assistance or loans

Clerk: Question 844, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1805 Hon. D J Bossino: When originally drafted, it was directed at the Minister for Tourism. I assume it is the Chief Minister who is going to be answering, so I will phrase it in those terms.

1810 Can the Chief Minister advise whether any hotels, other than the Sunborn but including the Marriott, are the beneficiaries of any loans from Credit Finance Company Limited, or are in any other way receiving financial assistance from the Government or the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1815 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am informed that no hotels, other than the Sunborn, are beneficiaries of any loans from Credit Finance Company Limited, or in any other way receiving financial assistance from the Government or the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

1820 Mr Speaker, he will know that that question is answered in the spirit of what he has asked, and not in respect of, for example, whether they have arrears of water or electricity. I do not know what that updated position is, but it dawned on me when answering that if they were being particularly pedantic, they might suggest well if a hotel has not paid two months of water or electricity, is that financial assistance from the Government? He knows... what... I am answering, I think, the question he is asking me by giving this answer. It is in relation to loans, as I understand it.

1825 Hon. D J Bossino: Indeed, Mr Speaker, the question is in relation to whether any actual payment has been made, exactly. So he has understood the purport of the question.

Yes, I am grateful for that. There is a point of clarification which my Hon. and Learned Friend, Mr Figueras suggested I ask, and he is absolutely right. The Marriott is not yet a hotel in Gibraltar. Is there any intention on the part of the Government, Credit Finance Limited and all the rest of it, to provide any financial assistance to the owners of the Marriott which is intending to set up shop in Gibraltar?

1830 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the owners of the Marriott have not been in touch with the Government in this respect, but the Government would be open to considering any similar requests from hotel operators in Gibraltar.

1835 I think there was a scheme in the late 1990s called the Hotel Assistance Scheme which dealt with similar issues and the Government would be prepared to consider any requests for the Government to assist in any particular way.

1840 Of course, in relation to Credit Finance, it is different. They have got to go through certain procedures as to how they would persuade the people who are responsible for lending in that respect to decide whether there could be a lending. It is a different process. But if the Government were to be engaged, the Government might be very willing to consider some incentives for any of the new proposed hotel developments.

1845 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, and can he confirm there has been no request from the owners of the Marriott for any kind of financial assistance similar to the ones provided to the owners of the Sunborn by Credit Finance?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not know what the updated position is in that respect. As far as I know, the owners of the Marriott have not been in touch with the Government at all – with the Government.

1850 Have the developers been in touch with the Government about similar issues? I think there may have been a request, Mr Speaker, I do not know where that lies, I do not know what amounts we are talking about, and I do not know whether it will progress or not. I know that they have other sources of funding; I assume he is asking me because he knows, as he represents some of them.

1855 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, earlier on, the Hon. Speaker said that the Opposition ought to make itself responsible for the accuracy of the questions. I think that the Hon. the Chief Minister ought to make himself responsible for the accuracy of any point that he makes.

1860 I represent nobody in relation to this particular project. He knows that I am a litigator. I am not a commercial lawyer, and therefore he could not possibly make a statement that I represent these individuals, because there is no evidence to suggest that that is so.

1865 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I will tell you why he is completely wrong. His firm represents a number of them, and as the present backbencher Chief Minister used to say, if your firm is involved, then I impute knowledge to you and of course, Mr Speaker, he is right. Under the solicitors' rules, if your firm is handling something, then as a partner of that firm – and he likes to describe himself as a senior partner of Hassans – he must be imputed with that knowledge.

1870 Hon. D A Feetham: I do not know where he gets that, I describe myself as a senior partner or whatever. I am not going to go into this. But, Mr Speaker, I have absolutely no knowledge of this or anything else relating to this particular project.

And look, the Hon. the Chief Minister, every single time I ask a question either about this or about something else, he seems to hide behind or attempt to make political points at my expense, that I am a partner of Hassans.

1875 Well, he used to be a partner of Hassans, I do not know whether he continues to be a partner of Hassans, but I do not think that it is legitimate for the Hon. the Chief Minister to make assertions as if I am the guy that is representing these people and I have knowledge in relation to this particular project. I do not think it is a fair point for him to make.

1880 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has never made a point politically in his life that I have had to hide away from, let alone any that he has made in this House.

Look, Mr Speaker, I will take his point. I think he is entirely wrong and I will simply rely on the statements made by his erstwhile leader, Sir Peter Caruana, who is not here now, when I was in his position and I was a partner of Hassans, and was imputed with all sorts of knowledge of that firm, when I was the Leader of the Opposition and a Member of the Opposition. He can look at the Hansards if he likes.

1885 And as to when he used to describe himself as a senior partner of Hassans, if he likes later, I will show him copies of the press releases.

1890 Hon. D A Feetham: But is he suggesting – because it is an important point – is he suggesting that because I am a partner of Hassans, that every single time that I ask a question about financial assistance that may have been provided to parties involved in some commercial transaction that I know absolutely nothing about, that simply because I am a partner of Hassans, that I am not entitled to ask that question and he will refuse to provide me with the answer; simply provide me with the retort of, 'Well, you should know because you are a partner of Hassans'?

1895 Because if that is the position, then I am afraid that the depths to which this Government is plummeting and has plummeted in terms of transparency and accountability is really getting to new depths and new ways in this House.

1900 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do fear that the hon. Gentleman has taken leave of his senses. He used to sit here, when the Hon. the then Chief Minister used to make these statements. I have actually provided an answer to the questions, so he must actually – I will take it from his answer or from his question – be applauding the fact that we are answering these questions, when the previous administration would simply say – as Sir Peter used to say to me – 'You go and ask your partners: you should know, you are a partner of Hassans'.

1905 Well look, Mr Speaker, I am grateful that he acknowledges that that is a 'depth to which one plummets', and I will take it that he therefore considers that Sir Peter plunged to depths, and that he welcomes the fact that we have answered the question, despite the fact that he is a partner of Hassans. How senior though, is a matter of opinion, depending on who drafts the press release.

1910 Hon. D J Bossino: Well, Mr Speaker, Hassans seems to be getting a lot of free advertising. I am a partner of Triay Stagnetto Neish (Laughter and banging on desks) [inaudible] and also with shadow ministerial responsibility for Tourism. (Laughter)

Now, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister knows that I asked him about whether the owners of the intended hotel, the Marriott, has received any financial assistance from the Government, and the question in fact is phrased in terms of the Government, Credit Finance, as he knows.

1915 Now he then says that it could be that the developers may have sought financial assistance. Can he expand upon that at all? Is he able to? Because I would be very interested to learn if he can provide any further information to this House in relation to that. I asked specifically in relation to the owners, but I now ask in relation to the developers or any other party connected with the Marriott project.

1920 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I cannot give him more information at this stage, but I just think there might be something, so if he wants to ask the question next time round with that different permutation, I will be able to bring any information which is available.

1925 And of course, I do recognise that he is a partner of TSN and that we have partners here or ex-partners of ISOLAS as well. It would be unfair not to mention. All the law firms in Gibraltar do an excellent job. (Laughter and interjection)

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, I will take him up on that offer and I will be asking a question at the next sitting, or maybe even write to him.

1930

Gold and silver bullion Buying and selling

1935 Clerk: Question 845, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether the Government, the Gibraltar Savings Bank or Credit Finance Company Limited are involved or propose to be involved, directly or indirectly, in the business of buying and selling gold or silver bullion?

1940 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

1945

Foreign investors Update on Government's position

1950 Clerk: Question 846, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1955 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, bearing in mind that we are now two years into the New Dawn Government, will be Chief Minister please state whether he is now in a position to identify those foreign investors which he said in an interview with Gerard Teuma in May of 2011 that he had up his sleeve if his party was elected into office?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes sir. (Hon. D A Feetham: Ah!)

1960 The first of these – only the first, Mr Speaker – will be announced shortly, early next year, towards the end of January, when a new economic activity will be made public, which is anticipated to give rise potentially to be a market that could bring major benefit to Gibraltar.

1965 The announcement involves the creation of an entity which will be a joint venture with a client of his firm who was previously someone I had the pleasure of representing personally. Others may soon also materialise. Announcements will be made in due course, as and when they crystallise.

He did, Mr Speaker, I hesitate to remind him, undertake to congratulate me when I made the announcement.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, (Laughing) he has not made an announcement; it is an intention!

1970 But let me say that any investment that the Government brings to Gibraltar, if it is worthwhile and for the benefit of the community, I will be the first one to congratulate the Government. (Interjection)

But I have to say that on this particular occasion, I am rather sceptical that these particular investors are the same ones that he said he had up his sleeve in May of 2011, and perhaps the Chief Minister will forgive me for taking the rather sceptical view that he had nothing up his sleeve in May of 2011.

1975 Why has it take so long, assuming that he did have it up his sleeve in May of 2011, why has it taken so long for the Chief Minister to now come to this House and to say, 'Well, we might be making an announcement shortly', or 'we will be making an announcement shortly'? Why has it taken so long?

1980 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he can be as cynical and as sceptical as he likes, but when he sees what it is that happens, he will understand that these are exactly the people I was talking about. It is not that it has taken so long, Mr Speaker. January 2014 will be barely 24 full months since the election of the New Dawn Government that was elected, Mr Speaker, because of course the Government before had gone to the end of its term, just before Christmas. And therefore, there was very little that could be done in the first month.

1985 So 24 full months after that, we are already producing not just the inward investment that we have shown already, Mr Speaker, but new inward investment that is related to these particular individuals. He will know, Mr Speaker, that Government works in ways which require things to be checked and tested, etc, and that therefore it is simply not possible, at least these days. In 1988, I am told by the Hon. Mr Bossano, things could happen a little bit more quickly, because there were no European tendering procedures that had to be gone through etc. There are new European rules that hinder things, so it has taken some time for these things to actually be matured to the stage of launch.

1990 But as he will see, Mr Speaker, when he realises who it is that is doing this work, and some of the others who are likely to be announced to be doing this work with us in the future, that they are the people I was in touch with at the time I was a partner of Hassans and therefore even his cynicism will, I am sure, be brushed away.

1995 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, and even he, I would have thought, would be able to attract some inward investment in four years of being Chief Minister. It is already two years into his so-called New Dawn Government and over two years since May 2011.

2000 But can he give some more information as to, for example, the nationality of these investors, or the sectors in which this new investment is going to be relating to. I mean can he do that, so that we get a flavour of what it is that the Government is proposing.

If he cannot, because of some commercial sensitivity, then I am not going to press him, but can he provide some further information?

2005 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would have thought that even he would be more generous than to describe me as he has in the first part of his sentence, at least on 23rd December, but never mind.

2010 Mr Speaker, I will not announce what the thing that will happen in January will be, beyond what I have said, because that will be commercially sensitive and we want that to have an impact internationally and he will see that when it happens, but he can then ask me about it in February, because we hold monthly meetings of the Parliament, as I hesitate in reminding him.

But I will tell him that the other area, the other area involving other clients, is real estate.

2015

Tobacco smuggling from Western and Eastern beaches Government measures

2020 Clerk: Question 847, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state what steps his Government is taking to stop the smuggling of tobacco from Western and Eastern beaches?

2025 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as has already been announced publicly, the Government is working on a number of measures that have been implemented or are actively being pursued to curtail smuggling from these areas as follows:

2030 First, the repair works along the frontier fence are ongoing and a mechanism is in place between Her Majesty's Customs and the Technical Services Department to expedite the repair of any future breaches. This part of the frontier fence had been in a state of complete disrepair when we were elected.

Works are ongoing to finalise the setting up of CCTV installations along the frontier perimeter.

2035 As at June 2012, Government introduced Special Zones under the Tobacco Act. These included Eastern Beach, the frontier fence from Eastern Beach shoreline up to and including the loop area and Western Beach. Over the last month, these areas have been extended to include the main roundabout from the frontier, across the runway and up to the sundial roundabout. Persons within Special Zones are subject to restrictions in relation to cigarettes and are not allowed to be in possession of 600 cigarettes in a red zone, or 2,000 cigarettes in a blue zone. It is also an offence to request or procure any person to export or assist with the exportation of cigarettes by land. Law enforcement officers may direct persons to leave a Special Zone, if it is believed that...

2040 Are they interested, Mr Speaker, in what I am saying? I am quite happy to wait.

2045 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I know that he likes me to look at him, but I do not have to look at him to listen to him. I am listening.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, nothing could give me greater pleasure than if from now on he looks away whilst I read.

2050 Mr Speaker: I think that the two hon. Members, the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition are... Let me put it mildly, they are getting a bit carried away this morning. Perhaps they might come down to earth.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker, your advice is always sound.

2055 Mr Speaker, I will carry on reading.

Law enforcement officers may direct persons to leave a Special Zone if it is believed that their presence is primarily related to the exportation of cigarettes by land.

2060 A specific tobacco operation, called Operation Venetian, was set up by HM Customs, together with the Royal Gibraltar Police and the Gibraltar Defence Police, that has been widely reported in the press. The aim is to create a high visibility presence at the hot spot entry/exit points, in order to deter and disrupt elicit contraband activity.

As part of planned infrastructural works in the frontier area, a number of control measures will be introduced. These will deter persons from accessing the frontier fence from the Commercial Gate up to the eastern coastline.

2065 The Government has already announced that retail outlets selling tobacco at two residential estates near to the land frontier and beaches will have their tobacco licence conditions amended, in that they will only be allowed to sell cigarettes by way of vending machines.

2070 In respect of the area of Western Beach, an unclimbable fence has been constructed and handed over to the MOD as part of the ongoing Houston project. How appropriate, Mr Speaker, that it should be called that, now that we have both come down to earth! The fence runs parallel three metres behind the current frontier fence from Western Beach to the customs pedestrian entrance to Gibraltar.

2075 Gibraltar, UK and Spain ad hoc talks
Update

Clerk: Question 848, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2080 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide the House with an update on the likelihood of ad hoc talks taking place between Gibraltar, the United Kingdom and the Kingdom of Spain?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2085 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, all information in this respect is already in the public domain.

2090 Gibraltar sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of waters
Chief Minister's firm stance

Clerk: Question 849, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2095 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Chief Minister accept that he can stand firm on issues that are vital and fundamental to the sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of our waters, air space and land, without comparing Spain to North Korea or accusing it of state-sponsored vandalism towards the citizens of Gibraltar at the United Nations?

2100 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I can certainly stand firm against Spain on issues that are vital and fundamental to sovereignty, jurisdiction and control of our waters. The vocabulary I use in doing so is not a matter I am prepared to take advice on from the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

2105 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but does he regret using the intemperate language that he used and the comparisons that he has, bearing in mind that it really has added a new dimension, in my view – he can disagree of course, but a new dimension in my view – in relation to relations between Spain and Gibraltar, which is that it is becoming personalised with the Chief Minister of Gibraltar?

2110 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I must say the hon. Gentleman's question says that I accused Spain of state-sponsored vandalism towards citizens in Gibraltar at the United Nations. I do not think I ever used the words 'state-sponsored vandalism'. I do not know why it is that he wants to use that vocabulary. Perhaps he wants to pour oil on the flames.

2115 Mr Speaker, I do not recognise the description that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has used of what I have said. I do not think I have used intemperate language. The comparisons I have made I think were absolutely appropriate when I made them, and I of course stand by them, but I do recognise that his position is exactly the same as that of Mr Landaluce.

2120 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, just taking him up on the final part of that answer, does he not accept that in order to defend Gibraltar's vital interests, one does not need to get personal, one does not need to use ill-judged statements that will cause offence, not only to a political party...? And I do not care one hoot whether the PP Government is offended or is not offended. My concern here is that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar, in defending Gibraltar as he is entitled to do and one would expect – I mean there is no difference between he and I in relation to defence of Gibraltar's vital interests –

2125 Hon. Chief Minister: Oh yes, there is.

Hon. D A Feetham: No, there is not. No, there is not.

2130 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes there is!

Hon. D A Feetham: No, there is not.

2135 Mr Speaker: Order!

2140 Hon. D A Feetham: But what he does is, by using this type of ill-advised, ill-judged language, what he does is he risks not only alienating the PP Government, but also alienating political classes in Spain, the media in Spain and also Spanish citizenry. And at the end of the day, what we ought to be doing is standing firm, but also explaining Gibraltar's position in a cool, calm, intelligent way so that the adverse propaganda that emanates from the PP Government is rebutted in an intelligent, calm way, using reason, rather than just simply gratuitous, effectively, insults, which is what it is when one compares Spain to North Korea.

2145 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I take it that he did not like that analogy. (Interjections) But I was interviewed last week, Mr Speaker, by PRWeek in London, who wanted to interview me because of my use of language and how it had changed the way that Gibraltar's message went around the world, and how in fact, Gibraltar's message went around the world that week, in showing up the attitude of the Spanish Government and he might want to reflect on what he has said, because I do not think that anything that I have said was ill-judged. Neither Mr Speaker, has anybody ever come to this House to tell a Chief Minister that their language was ill-judged when he has been critical of Spain.

2150 Mr Speaker, the hon. the now backbencher, the Hon. Sir Peter Caruana, in 1998 or 1999, he will recall from my speech on the arrival of His Excellency, the Governor, where I actually took the House through some of the things that had happened in the past. The Hon. Sir Peter Caruana said, that something said by Señor Matutes at the time – and he can look at Hansard and see what it is that I was referring to – were mendacious lies. (Hon. D A Feetham: Yes.)

In other words, the Right hon. the previous Chief Minister of Gibraltar called the Foreign Minister of Spain a mendacious liar.

2160 Hon. D A Feetham: He was calling a spade a spade.

Hon. Chief Minister: Apparently Mr Speaker, that is calling a spade a spade. Right, I think if the hon. Member looks back at everything I have said, he will not find me actually insulting directly the Foreign Minister of Spain. Whatever it is that I and every other Gibraltarian may think about his policies, he will not have seen me saying that the man has uttered mendacious lies.

2165 Now, if he looks at what I said, and it is quite remarkable that the Chief Minister is called upon by the Leader of the Opposition to justify his statements in relation to this matter, when I talked about North Korea, what I said was, that Spain was exaggerating in its reaction like North Korea exaggerates in its reactions (A Member: Ah!) and he will recall, Mr Speaker, that I was asked why I used that terminology and the exact reasoning was because in August, I think it was August 4th, Señor Margallo had given an interview to ABC, where he detailed all the things that were going to be done by Spain, as a result of Gibraltar having inter alia torn up the fishing agreement and created the artificial reef, etc, etc.

2170 And what I said at the time – and it was widely reported, I am surprised he now pretends he did not read it – was that this was an over-reaction à la North Korea. When there is a small commercial difference between them and South Korea, about how businesses operate in the de-militarised zone, etc, etc or with the United States, the reaction from North Korea is, ‘I am going to bring nuclear damnation to the Korean peninsula’ – not ‘we need to re-negotiate these terms.’ And that was the analogy I made and I think it is an absolutely appropriate analogy, and it is right that, as a result of that, Mr Speaker, the message of the people of Gibraltar went around the world. The things that were happening and are happening in some instances at the Gibraltar frontier were found out by people much further than usually find out about what is happening, and editorially, I think he will find that we had 90% to 95% editorial support in all newspapers in the world that covered this issue.

2175 I am quite happy, Mr Speaker, as I have said before, that the Government’s archive of newspaper information, etc should be made public and I am going to ensure that it happens and it is put on our website, so that the hon. Gentleman can see how many people around the world have read about the Gibraltar issue, the problems at the frontier and how editorial support came down on Gibraltar’s behalf, without having to spend a huge amount of money on advertising the world over.

2180 So Mr Speaker, I am not going to take advice from him on what vocabulary I should use. I would say this to him, Mr Speaker: look he likes to go around Spain making speeches that try to ingratiate him to some, whilst trying to do the balancing act of not falling entirely out of favour with people in Gibraltar. He knows, Mr Speaker, that one of the things he was saying, which was that the Government of Gibraltar had now not even been able to maintain a relationship with our socialist kindred on the other side of the frontier, was actually not true, that we have actually very strong relationships with the PSOE party.

2185 And he needs to reflect, Mr Speaker, on the fact that between 1996 and 2003, the Chief Minister of Gibraltar then, Sir Peter Caruana, the Leader of his Party who he has said is... I do not know whether he said is the or among the greatest Gibraltarians of all time, had absolutely no political interlocution with any Spanish political party at a national federal level.

2190 In other words, he was accusing the Spanish Foreign Minister of mendacious lies, he was having rows with the British Government, and from that, we move to a situation where joint sovereignty was almost visited upon our community.

2195 Today, Mr Speaker, this Government has an excellent relationship with the Socialist party in Spain, at the level of its national federal executive committee, as well as at the level of its municipalities, although of course we do not have to agree on everything. And second, we have a very strong relationship indeed with the British Government, which is today made up of Conservatives and Liberals, and with our sister party in the United Kingdom, the Liberal Party.

2200 So Mr Speaker, the position really is that my administration, although we still wish to establish a dialogue with the Spanish Government, is not talking to the Partido Popular in Spain, but we are talking to every political party in the United Kingdom and to the principal party of opposition in Spain and to Esquerra Republicana, which is another party in Spain that has wished to establish relations with us.

2205 Now, in those circumstances, Mr Speaker, I think actually if the hon. Member compares the actions of he who he calls the greatest, or one of the greatest Gibraltarians of all time, between 1996 when Gibraltar was last faced with a Partido Popular Government in 2003, with the excellent New Dawn Government of the Gibraltar Socialist Labour Party and the Liberals, I mean, he will find that perhaps we should not be taking his advice on how we conduct our foreign affairs, certainly not in relation to vocabulary.

2210 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I certainly do not accept that one can compare calling a spade a spade, which is ‘you have lied in relation to this position, in your criticisms or your statements in relation to Gibraltar’ – which is calling a spade a spade – to making a gratuitous ill-advised, ill-advised comparison of Spain to North Korea, or accusing Spain of state-sponsored vandalism. I just simply do not accept that that is... I simply –

2220

Hon. Chief Minister: Point of order, Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: I am going to bring up a Point of Order, and that is that the hon. Members are now debating.

2225

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, may I deal with the short Point of Order? You are absolutely right and I of course accept your ruling in that. But the short Point of Order is: I have said to him, I do not recognise that second part of his question. Can he please clarify when I have accused Spain of state-sponsored vandalism?

2230

Hon. D A Feetham: At the United Nations, Mr Speaker – that is my interpretation of what he said, it is the interpretation of many people that read his speech, including I may add, because I have been in Spain over the last two weeks delivering speeches, including many people in Spain – many people who actually are favourable and sympathise with Gibraltar's position. Because of the statements that he has made, he has alienated those people – he has become the problem, Mr Speaker!

2235

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker no.

Mr Speaker, I am not the problem any more than Peter Caruana was the problem between 1996 and 2003. The problem, Mr Speaker, as every Gibraltarian knows – and I know he knows it Mr Speaker, but he wants to win an election so desperately that he will say anything he has to say – the problem is the Partido Popular.

2240

Now, Mr Speaker, in my UN speech, I did not accuse anyone of state-sponsored vandalism. Now the whole of these sets of questions was premised on the hon. Member's view that no doubt the Government had paid for the SDGG to visit the United Nations, no doubt the Chief Minister had approved the speech of the Chairman of the United Nations, and therefore the Chief Minister of Gibraltar was to be imputed with his statements as to 'terrorism', state-sponsored terrorism, which is the word that would have fitted in there if that had worked.

2245

Mr Speaker, look the fact is that I had absolutely no knowledge that that was going to be said by Mr Matthews, in exactly the same way as Mr Caruana had absolutely no knowledge at the time that he went to the United Nations, that Mr Zammit, who sat next to Mr Caruana, and also did not have his ticket paid for by Mr Caruana, was going to say that the Spanish Government was trying to annihilate the Gibraltarians, right? He was trying to commit... and the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister, as the brilliant historian that he is, remembers the word – that Spain was trying to commit genocide of the Gibraltarians. That was not my word. 'Terrorism' was not my word; it was the word of the Chairman of the SDGG. Genocide was not the word of Sir Peter Caruana, it was the word of Bryan Zammit as the Chairman of the UNA.

But look, let us be very clear. What is it that I said at the United Nations that incensed people in Spain? It was not the North Korean thing; I did not say the North Korean thing in Spain...sorry, in the United Nations. I said in the United Nations, that Spain or one of the law enforcement agencies of Spain, the Guardia Civil, had shot at an innocent Gibraltarian in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters. That is the issue that people did not like in Spain about my UN speech, Mr Speaker. That was absolutely true, I trust that he accepts that it was true. It led to the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom – not the Chief Minister of Gibraltar, but the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom – to raise the issue with the Prime Minister of Spain, to the Minister for Europe to take the issue up with his counterpart, and to notes verbales and to a request for an investigation. But they did not like it when I said it in front of an international audience, and that is not to accuse them of state-sponsored vandalism, Mr Speaker.

But I will say this, Mr Speaker, and I just put it on the record so that he knows, in case Mr Speaker, he ever, heaven forbid, were to become Chief Minister of Gibraltar, or were to be in a position to advise the Chief Minister of Gibraltar. I certainly hope that it is always, if anything, the latter and not the former! I said in my first speech at the United Nations in June 2012 as Chief Minister of Gibraltar, to the Spanish Government, 'Wake up and smell the coffee, Gibraltar will never be Spanish.' I do not know whether he agrees with that or not, Mr Speaker, but I can tell him, that the intense diplomatic activity that occurred after that was huge, because Spain just did not want to hear that expressed in quite those terms. He might not like that either. I love it, Mr Speaker.

2270

Mr Speaker: I am going to allow one further intervention from the Leader of the Opposition, and from the Chief Minister, and then that is the end of Question Time.

2280 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes, we were on a Point of Order and he has just finished his Point of Order. I am not going to be responding to his Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

2285 Mr Speaker, I have to say that given his track record before he became Chief Minister for lack of judgement, and the lack of judgement that he has exhibited as Chief Minister, if he has become Chief Minister, I would suspect that many, many other people also have the necessary capability to become Chief Minister. Ultimately, if the people of Gibraltar – (Interjections) Ultimately if the people of Gibraltar want to entrust us with their trust at the next election, it is for them. It is not for me, and it is not for him.

2290 But I do sense, Mr Speaker, that hell is beginning to freeze over slightly and there is a change of tone from the Chief Minister in terms of the language that he has used, which I welcome and I congratulate the Chief Minister for back-tracking on the language that he has used in the past. Can he just put it beyond doubt, so that the message has absolute clarity emanating from this Parliament, that the Chief Minister in no way believes that the comparison between Spain and North Korea is a valid one, giving him the opportunity and that in no way does he believe that Spain is in any way responsible for state-sponsored vandalism towards the citizens of Gibraltar?

2295 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I really do not know which Chamber he is in. He does not seem to like to hear the answers that I give.

Look, Mr Speaker, as to who will or will not win an election in the future, I am not a crystal ball gazer and this is not an issue to be dealt with in Question Time -

2300 Hon. D A Feetham: I have not raised it.

2305 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, you have raised it. But Mr Speaker, I will just say to him that he had the lack of political understanding to give an interview to GBC during the course of the last by-election at 12 o'clock in the evening, which was going to be aired at 11 o'clock in the evening after polls had closed, where he said, 'We are going to win this by-election' – and this was something that was going to come out after the polls closed – 'We are going to win this by-election by a very large margin'. 'By a very large margin'.

2310 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in the same way that he can raise points of order about accuracy, I will raise it. I did not say we are going to win it –

Mr Speaker: May I inform – ?

2315 Hon. D A Feetham: And it has absolutely nothing to do with this particular question that I have asked.

2320 Mr Speaker: May I inform both the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition, that points of order have to do with the Rules of this House and not with questions of fact or opinion – nothing to do with questions of fact or opinion. That is not a Point of Order.

Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker, all I ask is that the Rules of this House are applied evenly as between the Opposition and the Chief Minister.

2325 Mr Speaker: Have I not applied them evenly? Have I not given – ?

Hon. D A Feetham: No, you have not!

Mr Speaker: Have I not given the hon. Member all the opportunity –

2330 Hon. D A Feetham: No, you have not!

Mr Speaker: – he wants this morning?

2335 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, no, you have not on this particular occasion –

Mr Speaker: I have –

Hon. D A Feetham: No, no, let me explain, Mr Speaker. Let me explain, and I am not suggesting, Mr Speaker, that you have done it out of some intention on your part. But of course, he has just taken up a 2340 Point of Order, a few moments ago, basically saying that what I attributed to him was not true. That was the Point of Order. He raised that particular Point of Order.

I am doing likewise! Now, Mr Speaker did not say to the Chief Minister, 'That is not a proper Point of Order.' That is why I am saying that Mr Speaker should perhaps treat my Point of Order in the same way that he has treated his.

2345

Mr Speaker: Is he making the Point of Order? Are you making the point under a so-called Point of Order? I will let you do that and then having pointed out –

2350

Hon. D A Feetham: I made a Point of Order which is of exactly the same nature as he made –

Mr Speaker: I am sorry, I have got the floor.

And then, having pointed out that those are not points of order, I will not entertain them from any Member, and it is as simple as that.

2355

Now, he has an opportunity, I am giving him an opportunity, under a so-called Point of Order, to answer the Chief Minister. Then I will give him an opportunity to make one final supplementary and then that is the end of Question Time.

Hon. Chief Minister: So, Mr Speaker, and then he went on to say that there was going to be a very large number of people coming out to vote – a huge number of people coming out to vote. Well, Mr Speaker, he got it completely wrong, so I think his predictions as to results of elections are very suspect.

In fact, I will take it, Mr Speaker, that when he says that my track record before I became Chief Minister is one to consider also suspiciously, I assume that he means the track record of the most successful Leader of the Opposition in our Parliament's history (A Member: Ah!) who took over, had the presence of mind to take over in April 2011 and become Chief Minister barely nine months later.

Mr Speaker, I would recommend that he follows how I did it, but I would rather he did not, because I do not want him to win.

2370

Anyway, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition also has a problem with his thermometer, because it appears that he thinks that hell is getting warmer and warmer and that therefore... or colder and colder and there is a chance that it is going to freeze over sometime soon. Well look, Mr Speaker, he is completely wrong about that too. I have not detected any change in the way that I deal with issues with Spain. I think I am still as robust and as clear in the way that I deal with these issues. He may not like it, because he obviously is recognising that in doing so, I am doing something right.

2375

But, Mr Speaker, he gets up here and says, 'Look, for you to compare Spain to North Korea was not a good thing and you should not have done it and it was bad for Gibraltar that you did.' And then, Mr Speaker, he gets up and he says, 'Now you have the chance either to say it again, or to say that you were wrong.'

2380

Well look, Mr Speaker, if he were right about the fact that it was a bad thing for Gibraltar to compare Spain to North Korea, which I do not accept, what is he doing, if he has got Gibraltar's interests at heart, inviting me either to do it again or to take a step back? What is he doing, Mr Speaker? He needs to reflect very carefully on that, because that is what he is doing.

And Mr Speaker, he does really come across as if he is defending the wrong litigant in this matter. He said he is a litigator, so let us look at it in those terms. He does come across as if he is not defending Gibraltar's best interests here. He seems to be holding brief for somebody else.

2385

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, it is the difference of approach. Of course we both have Gibraltar at heart, of course we both have. We both want to defend Gibraltar's vital interests. The difference between the hon. Member and myself is that I do not need to grandstand, I do not need to be the showman, I do not need to make-over-the-top, outrageous statements in order to defend Gibraltar.

2390

I have given him an opportunity for him to set the record straight. He has not taken it. I am just going to give him one final opportunity. Will he set the record straight, in the manner that I asked him a few moments ago, in relation to the statements that he has made in the past?

2395

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not about a difference of approach; it is about a difference of policy and he needs to understand it, because I do fear that he does not realise which party group he sits with, even though he purports to lead it. Although we know that he has got two Deputy Leaders on either side and there is one with whom I have great affinity, Mr Bossino as he knows, who I know feels perhaps exactly the same as we do on this side of the House. I just do not know about him any more, Mr Speaker. This is not about a difference of approach.

2400

Mr Speaker, they are looking at a Chief Minister who will never say that he will even think about recommending an Andorra-style solution to our people. That is not a difference of approach, Mr Speaker; that is a difference of policy. And it is such a huge difference of policy, Mr Speaker, that we really come to this nub of the issue.

2405 The nub of the issue, Mr Speaker, is that diplomacy is not duplicity, (Interjection by Hon D A Feetham) and it is not one thing – and it is not the done thing to come and say one thing in Gibraltar in this Parliament and then go to Spain and do another.

2410 And the hon. Gentleman says – I assume trying to be funny – from a sedentary position that diplomacy is not my forte. Well look, Mr Speaker, he might think that. I assume he also thinks it of the current incumbent as Foreign Secretary of Spain, because if he thinks that the head of Spanish diplomacy (Interjection by Hon D A Feetham) is a good diplomat when he says ‘Gibraltar Español’, ‘The party is over’, and there will be no advances on regional or neighbourly co-operation, unless there are advances on sovereignty, then look, he and I have different definitions on what is or is not a good diplomat.

2415 He has not reflected, however, Mr Speaker, as I asked him to, on whether, having postulated that comparing Spain to North Korea was a bad thing, he wanted to invite me to do it again or to withdraw. He has not reflected on that, Mr Speaker. He has not reflected on the consequences of that. I think those sitting around him have, because it appears to have dawned on them what he was doing.

I will put it this way, Mr Speaker, and I will quote a politician that all of us have great affinity for, Mr Speaker, ‘They can turn if they want to. This Government is not for turning.’

Clerk: Bills, First and Second Reading.

A Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2520

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye). Those against? Carried.

2525 Clerk: The Income Tax (Amendment) Act 2013.

Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

2530 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

2535 Mr Speaker, in respect of this Bill, hon. Members will be aware that I have written to you certifying that this Bill is too urgent for the period of six weeks to elapse between its publication and the ability of the House to be able to consider it.

This is an issue which I know the Leader of the Opposition is aware of, he has discussed it with those who are responsible for the drafting of it whilst I was away from Gibraltar, and we expect that the matter would be dealt with on Thursday.

2540 Mr Speaker, Members will be aware that on 16th October 2013, the European Commission took a decision to open the formal state aid investigation procedure into two aspects of the Income Tax Act 2010. It published this decision in the official journal of the European Communities on 28th November 2013, inviting comments from third parties. The two aspects singled out by the Commission concerned the exemptions from taxation for (a) inter-company loan interest and (b) royalties income.

2545 Earlier this year, Mr Speaker, the EU Code of Conduct Group had found that the exemption for inter-company loan interest was a harmful tax measure under the criteria set out in the Code of Conduct on Business Taxation. The European Commission was also already indicating that this exemption was likely to constitute a state aid.

2550 Members will recall that without prejudice to our position that the section in question was not a harmful tax measure, we accordingly abolished this exemption by an amendment we made to the Act this summer, and which entered into force on 1st July 2013.

2555 The Bill, Mr Speaker, does exactly the same thing in relation to royalties. Specifically, it will abolish the exemption from taxation that currently exists for royalties income. The Bill follows the same format as that we used for the amendment this summer. It amends Table C of Schedule 1 of the Act so that it includes a new heading on royalties. Table C of Schedule 1 sets out the incomes which are subject to tax under the Act.

I had this amendment put to the European Commission by Government's team at a meeting in Brussels on Thursday, 5th December 2013. Commission case handlers reverted to us early last week, stating that the Commission's fiscal team were content with the amendment, although that cannot, for technical reasons, be the formal position of the Commission at this stage.

2560 That is the most we could have expected from them at this stage, but that is in itself important. By acting in this manner and amending the Act as we propose and the Bill, Government is delivering much needed certainty to the industry. It has also already effectively addressed the two concerns expressed by the Commission in its decision, opening the formal investigation procedure.

2565 Of course Mr Speaker, we make these amendments without prejudice to our arguments, that neither exemption constitutes state aid. We maintain that position in the formal investigation procedure as part of our defence.

2570 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill?

2575 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have been in contact with those who have drafted this particular Bill. It has been explained, the policy has been explained, the rationale has been explained and the Opposition will be supporting the Bill, and I have nothing further to add than what the Chief Minister has already said.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Income Tax Act 2010 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the Income Tax (Amendment) Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

PRIVATE MEMBERS' MOTION

Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Leave to introduce granted

2650

Clerk: Private Members' Motion. The Hon. A J Isola.

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

2655

'That this House do give leave for the introduction by me of a Private Members' Bill, namely the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013.'

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Albert Isola.

Hon. A J Isola: I am grateful Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker, as hon. Members know, the merger of Yorkshire Building Society with the Norwich and Peterborough Society took effect under the laws of England and Wales in November of 2011, pursuant to a transfer of engagements. These two societies continue as the Yorkshire Building Society. However, the transfer of engagements under the laws of England and Wales did not change the legal position in Gibraltar. This has therefore resulted in an anomaly which Gibraltar needs to be rectified.

Hon. Members will be aware that in the past when lending institutions want to undertake this sort of legal entity, reconfiguration or restructure, that we facilitate that task by allowing them to do it through a Private Members' Bill. That is the nature of the Bill and it is similar to others passed in this House in recent years, to facilitate the corporate restructuring of lending institutions.

2670

Mr Speaker, the Yorkshire Building Society remains an important part of our sector. They remain committed to Gibraltar and the Government believes that it is appropriate for this House to assist them in this way by the passage of the Bill.

I commend the motion to the House, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Albert Isola. I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. Albert Isola. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society, be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2705 Clerk: The Yorkshire Building Society Act 2013.

2710 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

Minister for Financial Services and Gaming (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill now be read a second time.

2715 Mr Speaker, as a result of the transfer engagements taking effect in November 2011 under the Law of England and Wales, Norwich and Peterborough merged with Yorkshire Building Society and the merged society continued as the Yorkshire Building Society.

2720 That transfer of engagements did not, and could not, operate to change the legal position in Gibraltar and accordingly, although Norwich and Peterborough no longer existed after 1st November 2011, those of its assets and liabilities which before 1st November were subject to the law of Gibraltar, continued to be so subject after that date.

The primary purpose of this Bill is to rectify this position with effect from the date referred to in the Bill as the appointed day – that is to say, a date to be appointed by myself as the Minister with responsibility for Financial Services.

2725 There is just one section of the Bill, Mr Speaker, which has retrospective effect, and that is section 9 to which I will refer specifically later. None of the other provisions in this Bill have any retrospective effect.

Section 1 is formal and in common form, Mr Speaker.

In section 2, subsection (1) defines the two societies. Sub-section (2) defines a number of the terms used in the Bill.

2730 Section 3, Mr Speaker, is a fundamental provision under which, on the appointed day, every Norwich and Peterborough asset will become an asset of the YBS, the Yorkshire Building Society, in respect of its Gibraltar branch. This provision is similar to that in previous banking transfer Bills.

2735 Section 4, Mr Speaker, again is similar to provisions in previous banking transfer Bills and excludes certain assets from the effect of section 3. Specifically paragraph (a) deals with interests in land other than those which are held by way of security, in effect, on the mortgages.

Section 5, Mr Speaker, deals with a variety of documents which on their face relate to the Norwich and Peterborough. With effect from the appointed day, these are made to relate to the Yorkshire Building Society. This section and section 6 are similar to provisions in previous banking transfer Bills.

2740 Section 6 deals with customer accounts which up to the appointed day were accounts of the Norwich and Peterborough. Under subsection (1) these accounts become accounts of the Yorkshire Building Society, subject to the same conditions that applied before the appointed day.

Section 7 again is well precedented in early banking transfer Bills and deals with disparate matters all designed to give a smooth transition from Norwich and Peterborough to the Yorkshire Building Society.

2745 Section 8 deals with proceedings which have been begun in error by Yorkshire Building Society before the appointed day and which, in the opinion of the court concerned, relate wholly or principally to the establishment or enforcement of a Norwich and Peterborough asset.

2750 Mr Speaker, section 9 is the one provision in the Bill which has a retrospective effect. This is because it works in favour of people who are mortgagors of Norwich and Peterborough and as they thought, took steps to repay their mortgages. In such a case, the Yorkshire Building Society will have purported to release a mortgage, which was originally a mortgage from the Norwich and Peterborough. The former mortgagor will have relied on this release, although Yorkshire Building Society did not in law have the power at that time to release the mortgage.

2755 If there were no retrospection in these limited cases, the whole matter of the release and consequential dealings, for example by a purchaser from the former mortgagor would be void, and would have to be reopened with the consequential costs and no doubt, distress. It is a condition of the operation of the section that the mortgagor consented in writing to the release.

2760 Section 10 is common form in banking transfer Bills, Mr Speaker, and in the case of this Bill, it provides the Yorkshire Building Society will meet the Government's expenditure in connection with the introduction and enactment of the Bill, the amount of the expenditure to be set by myself, as the Minister with responsibility for Financial Services.

I commend the Bill to the House, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2765 In that case, I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society, be read a second time. Those in favour: (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2770 Clerk: The Yorkshire Building Society Act 2013.

Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2775 Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2780 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE

2785 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2790 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bill clause by clause: the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013.

2795 In Committee of the whole Parliament

2800 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to make provision in connection with the merger of the Norwich and Peterborough Building Society with the Yorkshire Building Society.
Clauses 1 to 10.

2805 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

2810 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

2815 Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013
Third Reading approved: Bill passed

2820 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013 has been considered in Committee and agreed to without amendment, and I now move that it be read a third time and passed.

2825 Mr Chairman: I now put the question, which is that the Yorkshire Building Society Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2830 ADJOURNMENT

Good wishes to all for Christmas and the New Year 2014

2835 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn sine die.

2840 And in doing so, of course Mr Speaker, although we are conscious as in all Parliaments that perhaps sometimes the workings of this Parliament descend into almost a festive farce, with people saying on either side, 'Oh yes he does, oh no he doesn't!' to each other, there is of course a great deal of personal affection, I hope between us all, and I would like to thank all Members of the House for the work they have done this year in their respective roles, and in particular yourself and your staff for having the patience to put up with all of us, and wish every Member of this House and our wider community a very merry Christmas and a very happy, healthy and prosperous 2014. (Banging on desks)

2845 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, it is a judicious statement that I can associate myself with, on behalf of the Opposition. (Banging on desks)

2850 Mr Speaker: May I wish all hon. Members a very joyful Christmas and a Happy New Year, and also extend those wishes to members of the staff, and indeed the Royal Gibraltar Police who are always in attendance when we are in session, and of course the members of the press.

I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn sine die. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2855 The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 1.17 p.m.
