

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

MORNING SESSION: 9.20 a.m. – 12.35 p.m.

Gibraltar, Monday, 14th January 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 9.20 a.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE, in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: M L Farrell Esq RD in attendance]

PRAYER

Mr Speaker

Order of the Day

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

Clerk: Meeting of Parliament, Monday 14th January, 2013.

(i) Oath of Allegiance; (ii) Confirmation of Minutes – the Minutes of the last meeting of Parliament which was held on 17th and 20th December 2012.

5 Mr Speaker: May I sign the Minutes as correct? (Members: Aye)

Mr Speaker signed the Minutes.

10 Clerk: (iii) Communications from the Chair; (iv) Petitions; (v) Announcements; (vi) Papers to be laid; (vii) Reports of Committees; (viii) Answers to Oral Questions.

Questions for Oral Answer

CHIEF MINISTER

Floating hostel Government arrangements

20

Clerk: We will be starting off this morning with Questions which are to be answered by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Question 80/2013, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, first of all, before I ask the Question formally, simply to express my gratitude to the Clerk for the indication given to me earlier that I would be starting the Questions this morning and the notice that there would be a disruption to the Order Paper in that regard.

Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of the arrangements that the Government has entered into in relation to the acquisition of the floating hostel?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

35

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I do not recognise that there is any disruption to the Order Paper by my Questions being taken now but I should just add that although it is the habit that I answer Questions at 3.00 pm on a Thursday, I expect to be travelling this week and, given that I have three Questions, I thought it appropriate to deal with them this morning.

40

On 6th August 2011 an agreement was entered into for the potential acquisition of the floating hostel, Bibby Kalmar, at a purchase price of £1.75 million. A refundable deposit of £300,000 has been paid to date by GCP Investments Limited, which is the Government owned company that will acquire the vessel. Completion would take place once certain repairs are carried out by the sellers in order for the vessel to meet the necessary classification standards and be deemed to be fit for purpose. These repairs are currently underway and should be completed shortly.

The Government is also exploring the possibility of leasing the floating hostel from its present owners instead of completing on the acquisition.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, from the Chief Minister's reply, it appears that there has been a sum of about £1.7 million, I think that was correct, a sum of £1.7 million paid over to the owners. Is that not the case?

I would be grateful for clarification.

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, what I said in my first answer is that a refundable deposit of £300,000 has been paid towards the purchase price of £1.75 million. The £1.75 million has not been paid, only £300,000.

55

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, presumably there is a commitment, a contractual commitment on behalf of the Government for Government-owned companies to pay the £1.75 odd million. Is that correct?

60

Hon. Chief Minister: If the seller can satisfy the Government that it has delivered the vessel to the standard which the Government has required. I will read the hon. Gentleman that part of my first answer again:

'Completion would take place once certain repairs are carried out by the sellers in order for the vessel to meet the necessary classification standards and be deemed to be fit for purpose.'

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, should the seller, indeed, meet its contractual obligations, presumably the completion would take place and the money would be paid over to the seller. In those circumstances, can I ask the Chief Minister how that sits with his previous replies to this House, to the effect that this will be providing an interim solution. It seems quite a lot of money for an 'interim solution'.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman needs to consider two aspects of what I 75 have said. First, the possibility of leasing the floating hostel, which is also being considered as an alternative to completion, and the fact that we would acquire the floating hostel but it would be an asset worth that amount, which is moveable and sellable. If he looks at what these types of floating hostels cost, then he will see that that is an asset which is easily sellable again, once we have completed the use for it in Gibraltar. So it is not acquiring an asset of £1.75 million, which is then not moveable and cannot be sold, it is something which, when one has finished the use one has for it, can be sold either for the same value, for more or for less, depending on what market conditions might be at the time.

80 The hon. Gentleman may know that, given the slump in construction around the world, there has been less use for this type of floating hostel which is sometimes used for workers. As the world economy comes back and there is work carried out, construction work carried out around the world, it may be there is even more value to this hostel in the future, if we acquire it, if we go down the route of acquiring it.

85 Hon. D J Bossino: In terms of the leasing arrangements, may I explore that a bit further. Is the Chief Minister telling this House that it would lease the assets from the current owners and, therefore, the current potential sellers or would it enter into some sort of lease-back arrangements, once purchased, with the sellers? Is that the – if I could explore that a bit further from his reply.

90 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, what I am telling the House is that the Government is considering, instead of acquiring the vessel, leasing it from the potential buyers. That is what the Government is presently considering.

95 There was a possibility of the Government acquiring the vessel and leasing it back to the company that was selling it to the Government, if that company also had a requirement elsewhere for this type of accommodation but that is not what is presently being considered. What is being considered is, instead of a purchase, the possibility of a lease with this company.

100 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I need to explore this a bit further because, if the Government is, in effect, contractually bound to complete on the sale and, presumably, it will be in that situation in the event that the seller complies with its conditions, unless I misunderstood him, then presumably the opportunity to explore other avenues such as a lease arrangement is simply not there.

105 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker I beg to differ with the hon. Gentleman. If one is in a strict contractual relationship where one is not able to explore anything else with the counter party, then one is already at the stage in that contractual relationship where the parties have lost good faith. That is not the stage which we are at with this potential seller. There is the possibility of exploring other ways of bringing the floating hostel to fruition, where we want it to be for workers in Gibraltar and it may be that we do not have to complete on the sale, even if the conditions precedent for the sale are complied with by the seller.

110 We have a fluid relationship with them and I expect he will want to congratulate the Government in its negotiating prowess.!

115 Hon. D J Bossino: Can he also confirm that, as part of these contractual arrangements, irrespective of what happens, it is indeed possible, should the solution – the ultimate solution – be found, for which this was an interim solution, that Gibraltar would not necessarily be lumbered with the floating hostel within its ports or within its territorial waters. Is that still a possibility and can the Chief Minister confirm that, please?

120 Hon. Chief Minister: That is not just a possibility, Mr Speaker, that is the way the Government has handled this from the beginning. There is no question of us being lumbered with something that (a) we need and (b) is potentially an asset for us to dispose of when we no longer need it.

125 Health-related charities discouraged by GSD
Confidential list

Clerk: Question 82, the Hon. Mrs. I M Ellul-Hammond.

130 Hon. Mrs. I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in relation to the answer of the supplementary to Question 921/2012, can the Chief Minister advise when he will be writing to me confidentially to share the information requested, i.e. to provide the list of health-related charities the Government claims the GSD discouraged the work and contributions of.

135 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Yes, Mr Speaker, I will provide the information requested before the close of business on Wednesday 9th February 2013, in the form and on the terms set out in my earlier answers.

Potential investors in Gibraltar Details to be provided

Clerk: Question 83, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Chief Minister finally in a position to provide details of the potential investors to Gibraltar which he said, prior to the Election, he was in discussions with, together with the investment they will be making, bearing in mind that, in answer to Question number 81/2012, a whole year ago, he told me that those discussions had already borne fruit?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, although we are working towards finalising these potential investments, the Government is not yet in a position to make any announcements. When we are able to do so, we will certainly do so and I trust he will then be welcoming of such inward investment.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, any inward investment that comes into Gibraltar would certainly be welcomed by the Opposition but is the Chief Minister now shifting his position? There appears to be a discrepancy between the answer that he gave me in January of last year and the answer that he is giving me today.

In January last year, when I asked him about the answer that he had given Gerard Teuma in a television interview in May 2012 about these potential investors he said he had up his sleeve, I asked him whether those discussions had borne fruit and he said 'Yes'. Now he appears to be indicating that, in fact, there appears to be some finalising in any discussions or negotiations that he is having with these investors.

165

I mean, what is the position? Is it the position that the discussions have borne fruit, that, effectively, the Government of Gibraltar has been able to negotiate some investment coming into Gibraltar, that he said that he was in discussions with as far back as May 2011, or is it that those discussions are on-going and he still has to finalise the negotiations?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is no contradiction and no shift.

The fact is that people who I was in contact with before the Election have been in serious discussions with the Government and negotiations about potential investments but they have not yet been finalised. I do not see where the hon. Gentleman can find that there is a changing of position, other than in trying to suggest that the Government, simply because it has not yet made an announcement about actual investment, has not seen the thing borne by a fruit.

I consider, Mr Speaker, that if you are in contact with people before an Election and, after that Election, they do come to Gibraltar, they start negotiations with you to make investments in Gibraltar, then that is bearing fruit and, when that fruit matures, you make an announcement to say the investment has now been made. So, look, I hope that what he does is accept that, when the maturity of this fruit comes about and there is an announcement, that this should be welcomed across the floor of the House as a positive development. I recognise that what he is doing, in putting his question and his supplementary, is trying to embarrass the Government, which is a potential way of doing Opposition.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well Mr Speaker, me embarrassing the Government, perish the thought. That is not the intention at all. I mean I am here to elicit, I am here to elicit information from the Government.

The reality of the situation is that the Hon. the Chief Minister created the impression, on a number of occasions that I have asked this question – and I have asked this question on a number of occasions – that, effectively, he already had, lined up, potential investors coming into Gibraltar. That is the impression that he has been creating over the course of a year. Now, all of a sudden, he says 'Well, no. No, it needs to be finalised.'

Is it not the reality of the situation that it is very easy for the Government to just simply stand up without identifying – and I have asked the Government to identify, to give us some more detail in relation to these potential investors – it is very easy for the Government to stand up and to say, 'Yes we are...'

those discussions have borne fruit', without actually providing any details.

200 In reality, the situation is that, in May 2011, he gave an interview, saying that he had these potential investors up his sleeve, in the same way as the GSLP in 1988 had – and they did have – potential investors that they had lined up when they got into Government in 1988. You saw the fruit of that between 1988 and 1989, but we are now over a year into his term in office and still there are no announcements as to these investors.

205 It is very easy for the Government to just simply say, to give an answer, 'Yes, we have got these investors' – and, over a year down the line, he has not provided any details. Is he bluffing or does he have any investors? Can he provide the details that I have asked him in the past about these investors, to actually demonstrate to this House that he does have something lined up?

210 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, in terms of bluffing, there seems to have been more bluffing going on in respect of who the next Leader of the Opposition will be than the Government would ever engage in!

215 There is no question of the Government having been bluffing. What the hon. Gentleman needs to understand is that, in order to, these days – as I am sure between 1988 and 1989 – to finalise an investment there is a lot to go through between a Government and a private investor and, as soon as those hurdles, negotiations etc., are gone through, an announcement will be made.

220 I will take great pleasure, Mr Speaker, when the time comes – not just because this is going to represent investment to Gibraltar but because it will demonstrate to the hon. Gentleman that, far from bluffing, the Government, when not yet in office, was very well prepared indeed for what its obligations were to be upon assuming office – in making the announcement, when it comes.

I would ask the hon. Gentleman for patience but I know it is not one of his many qualities.

Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Speaker, not on this occasion.

225 Can he at least provide the Opposition with some information as to when he feels that these negotiations are going to be finalised, bearing in mind that he already told me in January of last year that the negotiations had 'borne fruit'. Is there a time line in relation to this?

Hon. Chief Minister: As soon as possible, Mr Speaker.

230 Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, 'as soon as possible': does that mean for the remainder of this term because it is very easy for the Chief Minister to say 'I am finalising these investors'. I assume that, during the course of a four year term, he will bring some investment into Gibraltar and it is very easy to say, at that stage, 'You see, these are the investors that I was negotiating with and I had up my sleeve in 2011'.

235 Surely, if you said in January last year, the negotiations 'have already borne fruit', bearing in mind that, in May, six months previously, you said that you had them 'up your sleeve', bearing that in mind, at least we ought to be looking at a period of time, within this year, for example?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am not going to give a timetable about what might happen because of the complexity of what it is that is being negotiated.

240 I remind the hon. Gentleman of the definition of 'soon' that his Party, when in office, used to have and can I just point out to him, Mr Speaker, that what he has said is, in effect, a suggestion that the Government, or I, would be willing to lie to Gibraltar, by saying it would be very easy for me to bring new investors in and to pretend that they were the ones that I was talking about in May 2011. That is not the way that I conduct politics.

245 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, that may or may not be the case. I mean, I do not know.

250 The reality is that we are here, on this side of the House, to bring the Government to account. He will forgive our scepticism, bearing in mind the actual chronology of this: May 2011, saying that he had these investors up his sleeve; January 2012, saying that the discussions had borne fruit; and even now, over a year later, saying that the discussions still have to be finalised.

Can he, at the very least, tell us what areas are these investments in? Is he talking about investment in construction, is he talking about investment in financial services, in banking? What are the areas? That, cannot possibly be commercially sensitive.

255 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am not going to say anything else, other than to say to him that I am going to forgive him nothing. I am going to take extreme pleasure in making the announcements when the time comes, given everything that he has said during the course of these supplementaries because, frankly, to have suggested that the Chief Minister of Gibraltar will say to the people of Gibraltar that he is now bringing to their attention the investments of those who he had up his sleeve – to use his language –

260 quoting what I assume was my language at the time that I gave the interview in May 2011, but to represent, then, that new investors are those investors is, frankly, a suggestion that we are going to mislead the people of Gibraltar, which I do not accept.

Therefore, when I make the announcement in respect of these investors which we were talking to before the General Election, I will take great pleasure in making the announcement and referring to this session of supplementaries in the House.

265 Clerk: Question –

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, before we proceed to the next question, can I point out that Question 81/2013 by the hon. Lady has been withdrawn. The only reason I think it is appropriate to draw the attention of the House to that is that the hon. Lady will recall that, in her press release highlighting the question she was going to ask, she highlighted that question.

I think, just for the record, it is important to point that out.

HEALTH AND THE ENVIRONMENT

Upper Rock feral cat population Discussions on remedial strategy

Clerk: Question 16, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say, further to his answer to Written Question 243/2012, who he has been holding discussions with in relation to formulation of a strategy for dealing with the feral cat population in the Upper Rock?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, discussions have been held with the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic, the Environmental Agency, the GSPCA, the GONHS, the Food and Environment Research Agency, FERA and – I will add one to the prepared answer, which had been omitted – the Nature Conservancy Council.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for his reply. Is he able to provide this House with any details of how far these discussions have taken the Government in respect of the said formulation of strategy?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, Mr Speaker this is a sensitive issue. It is an issue that has to bear in mind the needs of the wildlife but also the humane aspects of any removal of the cat population and, therefore, we are not yet in a position to give out details.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is the Hon. Minister saying that he will be unable to provide any details in the House as and when the strategy develops?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, I am saying that we are formulating the policy and I do not think it would be correct to inform the House because the policy could then change. We are actually discussing it with some of these various bodies that I have mentioned.

Ape bites Recording location of incidents

Clerk: Question 17, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 1026/2012, can the Minister for the Environment further break down the information provided by location of incident and further provide details in relation to December of last year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no information by location is collected by St. Bernard's Hospital, whose prime concern is the treatment of the bites.

The information requested by the hon. Member, as available and updated to December, when only one bite was recorded, is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to him.

Answer to Question 17 of 2013

MONTH	APE BITES
January	1
February	1
March	5
April	4
May	5
June	6
July	9
August	18
September	8
October	2
November	7
December	1
TOTAL	67

This data are collected as bites only.

325 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, would the Hon. Minister entertain the suggestion that it may, in fact, be a good idea to require, in incidents of ape bites reported to St. Bernard's, to record the location of the incident as an additional measure that may assist in the management of the situation?

330 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, all data are interesting and useful and certainly this would be a useful thing to have.

However, as I stated earlier, when somebody calls in at Accident and Emergency with a bite from a monkey, the Accident and Emergency's prime concern is to treat that bite and there may be other things happening which, obviously, have to take priority over that type of data collection. I will certainly suggest that, if possible, this be collected but, obviously, I cannot impose it because it is not their job to collect data of this nature: it is their job to treat bites. But certainly, I think it would be interesting if that was possible.

335 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, on the basis that, thankfully, no ape bite has led to a fatality, surely it is information that can be sought from the patient when he or she is undergoing treatment once, of course, any emerging situation has passed. Is that not the case?

340 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, this information that can be asked of the patient but it cannot be the priority of the person at Accident and Emergency, perhaps on a very busy morning, to take data of this nature. The data that they collect is related to the clinical needs.

345 I am not saying that it is not desirable. It is desirable, but we cannot impose it because they may have other priorities. Certainly, we will see whether it is possible to add that kind of information but it is not a clinical detail.

Barbary Partridges Numbers of breeding pairs on Upper Rock

355 Clerk: Question 18, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say how many breeding pairs of Barbary Partridges are currently on the Upper Rock?

360 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

365 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Barbary Partridges are a secretive species. Due to the nature of much of the terrain on the Upper Rock, the number of pairs is difficult or impossible to assess. Even where nests might be accessible, methods of locating these effectively are intrusive and likely to result in excessive disturbance. One possible method of assessing pairs is to conduct counts of the number of calling males at the start of the nuptial period.

However, this is time consuming and labour intensive and would result only in an approximate count of the numbers of males present, which is not necessarily a reflection of the numbers of pairs present.

370 Precise coverage of the entire Upper Rock for the purposes of such a survey would be next to impossible. Furthermore, accurate assessments for conservation should preferably take into account not only the number of breeding pairs but also reproductive output and survivorship of the young. In Gibraltar, the Barbary Partridge is not only present on the Upper Rock. Important populations are present at other sites too, notably Windmill Hill flats, the East Side sand slopes and the Talus slope above Catalan Bay.

375 All of these other populations are just as important as those of the Upper Rock and just as threatened. The data from the GONHS annual winter bird count, which surveys all of these sites, show a general decline in Barbary Partridge numbers over recent years, even in view of the expansion of available habitat due to the restoration of the East sand slopes. These surveys provide a relative indication of trends as, due to the partridges' secretive habits, absolute counts are impossible to achieve. Some statistical model exists on encounter rates and distance sampling may be achievable but results would be approximate at best, given the heterogeneity of habitat on the Upper Rock and elsewhere. Other methods, such as mark and recapture techniques, are intrusive and should only be considered very carefully, due to the problem of disturbance.

385 Hon. S M Figueras: So, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister is saying that he does not have an answer in relation to the number of breeding pairs on the Upper Rock.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Clearly, the hon. Member has understood my reply! (Laughter).

390 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, it was rather convoluted but, yes, I did understand the answer being given by the Hon. Minister.

I fear for how long this answer might take but does the, is the Hon. Minister aware of whether there have been or whether there are any new chicks of Barbary Partridges in Gibraltar following the season.

395 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: New what, Mr Speaker? Chicks?

Not yet. The breeding season is starting now. The chicks would hatch in a few weeks' time, March really, March or April. The problem is that there is a great deal of predation due to both feral cats and yellow-legged gulls, so this is why I said that we cannot just judge by the number of pairs but also by the output of reproduction and the survivorship of the young.

400 I think the problem here is that the young are finding it very difficult to survive.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the Minister uses a number of words which are very impressive but sometimes simply hard to understand.

405 The point of the line of supplementaries is to ask the Minister whether he is satisfied that the Barbary Partridge will, under their watch, survive extinction as a result of the explosion of the feral cat population and other threats to the species?

410 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do apologise. I do not mean to be hard to understand. This is an area in which I have worked and if the jargon... I mean I equally could find difficulty in understanding legal jargon sometimes, so I do apologise. That was not the intention.

The Barbary Partridge has found it very difficult to survive through the last ten, maybe twenty, years because of a number of different developments. One is the increased density of the vegetation on the Upper Rock and the other is the population of feral cats. I would very much like to think that the Barbary Partridge will survive. It might not survive, if we take no steps in order to help it.

415 I am glad to say that I am in discussion with a number of agencies, including some of the ones that I mentioned earlier in relation to the feral cats, and that we are preparing a programme which, hopefully, will increase the habitat and increase the population of Barbary Partridges. Like everything else in nature, you cannot guarantee it so, despite my biggest efforts, if I fail, I hope I will not be held to account politically but, certainly, we will do all that we can to make sure that this iconic bird of Gibraltar does survive.

420 Clerk: Question –

Mr Speaker: Yes.

425 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, would the Minister consider introducing some Barbary Partridges from North Africa, in order to increase numbers and perhaps strengthen the gene pool of the Barbary Partridges in Gibraltar?

430 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is exactly one of the steps we are taking and we already have contacts with institutions in Morocco who breed Barbary Partridges. We are trying to make sure that they are northern Barbary Partridges because there are three different sub species and the ones further to the south may be more adapted to life in the desert or more arid situations, so we are, in fact, trying to locate Barbary Partridges to release on the Upper Rock in order to boost the local population while we take measures.

435 You cannot just do that and not take any other measures because then all you are doing is bringing partridges that are doomed to death. So it has got to be a combination of increasing the stock and taking the other measures to help them survive, so that is part of the plan, yes.

440 Hon. S M Figueras: I hate to address the issue of the elephant in the room as directly as I am going to but I think it is very important, given the fact that it appears from everything that the Hon. Minister is saying that this is a very time-sensitive, time-critical situation for the very iconic species which is the Barbary Partridge.

445 Is the Government considering, contemplating a programme, introducing a programme of drastic measures such as culling of the feral cat population to try and bring it under control in a decisive manner, given the importance and urgency that the Minister himself is referring to in respect of this and which the Opposition certainly is aware of, too, and would support the Government in, should the time come?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether to interpret the hon. Member's contribution as encouraging a cull of the feral cats population. That may well be the case.

450 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, if it is necessary [inaudible].

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, certainly, as I said before this is a sensitive matter. It has to be dealt with humanely but, certainly, with the current population of feral cats, the Barbary Partridge is compromised. Therefore, we have to consider ways in which to reduce the impact of feral cats on the partridges.

455 Regarding time sensitivity, yes, Mr Speaker it is time sensitive. I now have the responsibility of trying to do it, even though the bio-diversity action plan which was published, I think, in 2007 made recommendations along the lines that we are now implementing and were not accepted by the Government of the time. So I am glad to see that the Opposition is backing this all the way and I do welcome the fact that all Members of this House seem to be united in wanting to save this iconic species so that it can continue to breed and survive in Gibraltar.

465 Waste recycling
Details of contractors, destination and certification

Clerk: Question 19, the Hon. S M Figueras.

470 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide this House with comprehensive details of all recycling processes to which all waste in Gibraltar is subjected including, but not limited to, details of contractors and their sub-contractors, the ultimate destination of the waste for processing and certification obtained by the Government or its contractors in respect of the processing of said waste, broken down by waste type including, but not limited to, waste electrical and electronic equipment, paper, plastic and glass?

475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

480 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, this is a longish answer. I do not think it is as long as the previous one but it is also a longish question!

Gibraltar produces a wide range of waste types, many of which are recycled. These include paper, plastics, waste electrical and electronic equipment, batteries, ink cartridges, tyres and waste oil. All shipments of green waste, destined for recovery or recycling, are carried out under Articles 3(2) and 4 and Annexe VII of Regulation EC No. 1013/2006 on shipments of waste. Each consignment of waste is accompanied by an Annexe VII Form, detailing the nature of the waste which is then signed off by the authorised receiver facility. The Environmental Agency keeps records of all such movements.

485 All shipments of hazardous waste destined for recovery or recycling are carried out under the pre-notifications and consent procedure under said Regulation EC 1013/2006 on shipments of waste. These hazardous wastes are not exported to the final destination until the procedures under the aforementioned regulations are complied with, namely the issuing of a Transfrontier Shipment of Waste Licence. The Environmental Agency keeps records of the quantities of waste sent for recycling or recovery and is informed, under the procedure, when the waste has undergone treatment.

The full list of authorised contractors is contained in the schedule that I now hand over.

Upper Rock Environmentally friendly strategies

495

Clerk: Question 20, the Hon. S M Figueras.

500

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say whether there has been any progress in the delivery of environmentally friendly strategies in respect of the Upper Rock, for example the reduction of traffic in the area, amongst others?

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): No, sir, these matters will form part of the Upper Rock Management Plan, which is currently being developed.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. Minister say whether there is a timetable in place for the delivery of this particular plan?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, the plan is for the plan to be developed during the first half of this year.

Hon. S M Figueras: And just by way of further information and conscious, as I am, that it is a work in progress, is the plan contemplating... or can the Minister say whether the plan is contemplating any 515 measures in respect of the reduction of traffic in the Upper Rock as part of that process?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It is contemplating everything and anything to do with the Upper Rock, which will include the management of traffic but I do not think it would be correct for me to say 'reduction' of traffic. Improvement of the traffic situation, certainly, but I do not think that I can go into any detail further than that at this stage.

Hon. S M Figueras: So, Mr Speaker, the Minister cannot confirm that reduction is ruled out by the plan.

525 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I cannot confirm anything to do with the plan until the plan is ready so I can confirm the elements of it. It is under discussion, it is being developed and, therefore, I do not even know what recommendations I am going to have to consider in the final outcome. So I cannot answer that question.

530 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker I recognise, as I have said, that the plan is a work in progress and that, therefore, he cannot say what the final plan will ultimately contain – and I completely and entirely accept that. However, as one of those involved in the delivery of the plan I am merely asking the Minister for confirmation of whether or not reduction of traffic, as an example, is excluded from the plan as something that simply will not be contemplated in that process.

535 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I cannot answer that question because, at the moment, we are looking at all the recommendations and certainly traffic has to be managed but I can neither include or exclude anything. It is too early in the process for me to be able to commit myself to that and then be held to account for having said something that I do not think I should say.

540 Hon. S M Figueras: Would the Minister be able to tell this House who will be making the recommendations to him before he takes it to Government, to Cabinet or how that process will work? It would be helpful to have some detail of that.

545 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, during the course of last year there was a public consultation process. The recommendations were put in and discussions were held by officials of the Department of the Environment, who are the ones tasked with putting together the draft plan for my consideration.

550 Hon. S M Figueras: May I ask which parties those officials within the Environmental Department are having discussions with?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, there was a public consultation process last year; a host of representations were made, including a selection of individuals and groups.

555 I do not have a list and, therefore, if I had notice, I would be very happy to provide that list... but I do not have the list. I do not think it is a direct supplementary and, therefore, I do not have the information of exactly who has been involved in those discussions.

560 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is this a matter which is being looked at – I think he may have responded both, well, in this House and, certainly, issued a press release – by the Inter Ministerial Committee, of which I think the Hon. Minister was answering the questions now, and the Hon. the Minister for Tourism forms part of.

565 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It will be, but at this moment it has not yet been put to this Committee. It will be discussed between the different Ministers but, at this moment, I do not have a draft plan in enough form for it to have been discussed in that Committee.

570 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say whether he will provide, whether on provision of further notice at the next session, provide a list of those recommendations that were received by him during the public consultation

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I can certainly provide a list of the respondents but to publish the responses from members of the public and different organisations without their consent, I do not think would be correct in this process. Is that what the hon. Member is asking?

575 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in the context of the public consultation I would expect that it would represent no issue whatsoever to the respondents to the survey, that their views and recommendations are heard at the public level.

Is the Minister at least willing to at least contact these respondents and see whether they are, in fact, happy for those recommendations to be made public?

580

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the right time to make those representations public would be at the time that the report is completed and accepted, in which case, as often happens in this kind of report, the original comments can be provided in an Appendix. I think that, at this moment, as I say, this is a work in progress which is being done by the Department of the Environment and it really is very premature for us to be taking this discussion in the way that it seems to be going.

585

Hon. S M Figueras: Well, Mr Speaker, one final supplementary – and I have to disagree with the premise that it is that early that we should not be having this discussion at all. I think it is as appropriate and as opportune as the discussion makes it.

590

But certainly, if there is resistance – and I can understand the resistance in respect of the fact that the plan is a work in progress and have conceded the same – we are making enquiries because we want to be as much a part of the process, certainly in our role as Opposition, as the Government is in having the consultation, but is the Hon. Minister aware that, in the UK, public consultations means that there is no matter of impropriety of recommendations made through a public consultation process to be made public?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of that in one way or the other.

I do not have a problem in those representations being made public. I think that, as a courtesy, the people who made the representations should be asked but we will see whether that is necessary or not. I just think that doing so at this stage is not helpful because we are actually considering those representations in developing the report.

As for the hon. Member's contribution to it, he did not respond to the public consultation process but if he wants to make some representations as to what he thinks should go into developing the Upper Rock Management Plan, then I will only be too happy to accept those, even though they are out of time, and bear them in mind, because there may be some suggestions which can be taken on board.

Hon. S M Figueras: Well, Mr Speaker the Opposition's participation in this process is certainly different to that participation and public consultation.

As a concession to the Minister and perhaps to make his life somewhat easier, although it is not my job to do so, would he be willing to share those responses confidentially with me in the first instance, so that I may be able to review them before time? Then, certainly, I would be able to compare the outcome of the plan versus the recommendations that were made, simply in a manner in that I can hold the Minister accountable for his actions, as is my right and, in fact, my duty to do in this House.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: If the hon. Member would write to me, I will certainly give that its due consideration.

615

Western Beach
Resolution of pollution issue

620

Clerk: Question 21, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say whether there has been any progress towards a resolution of the pollution issue at Western Beach?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I raise this issue in the first session of the year simply because time goes by, thankfully, very quickly during... has so far, during this term, gone very quickly – and may it continue for the next three years. But, before long, the bathing season will be upon us again and I am wondering if the Minister can perhaps, for those who may be listening and those who may read the press in the morning, provide any indication of whether a resolution is in the offing before this year's bathing season?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, in relation to bathing, the fact is that, during the summer season, 640 the drain that connects to that area from La Linea is cut off and, therefore, I am glad to say that, during this season, bathing was possible at Western Beach because the levels were low. The problem is worse in the winter when there is rain and there is overflow and, therefore, it tends to be outside the bathing season that there is contamination in the water.

This is obviously not something we are happy with and it is something that we are pursuing. The question is: has there been any progress? Not progress in the sense that the beach is now clean. Certainly, we are pursuing... still trying, as we were last year, to see whether any measures can be taken to make this resolved. But, as I say, if the situation is as it was this last summer, then bathing was possible this last summer and we hope that would also be possible this coming summer.

I do not think there is much more I can add at this point.

650 Hon. S M Figueras: So, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister cannot guarantee that the issue will be resolved by the summer – and it is an issue during the summer. The Minister will concede that it is an issue because we have summer storms, summer rains; it is an issue because, the following day, it may be a perfect day and people attending the beach simply cannot swim because the levels are high, as a result of those emissions.

655 I understand the sensitivity and the fact that it is a cross border issue but the Minister was very determined, before his election to office, that this was a matter that he was going to resolve. A year in, Mr Speaker, there is no solution in sight and I am merely pressing him – and I have not pressed him for a few months because I was aware of the sensitivity of the issue – I am only pressing him because this is a matter on which he expressed strong sentiment before the Election. I think, Mr Speaker, that it would be appropriate, would it not, for the Minister to give an indication of when he expects this process will be completed.

660 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is not in the gift of the Minister to conclude this process. It is a trans-frontier... (Interjection)

665 Maybe I am learning to express myself in Parliamentary speech quicker than I feared!

It is a trans-frontier issue. There are steps that have to be taken across the border and all I can say is that we are doing all that we can in progressing the issue but, at this point in time, I cannot add anything further to this discussion.

Mr David Deardon
Level of settlement for unfair dismissal

675 Clerk: Question 22, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state how much Mr David Deardon was awarded in the settlement for unfair dismissal, as announced by the Minister at the public GHA Board Meeting held on 19th December 2012.

680

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Mr Deardon was awarded £48,238.40 in full and final settlement.

Mr John Langan
Cost of interim CEO of GHA

690

Clerk: Question 23, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health provide details of the cost for re-locating and employing Mr John Langan as interim Chief Executive Officer of the GHA in Gibraltar, broken down by accommodation cost, monthly flights cost, transport and any other expenses paid by Government, over and above Mr Langan's salary?

695

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

700

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no relocation costs are being paid. Accommodation is being provided to Mr Langan, as was the case with the previous incumbent. An arrangement is being made to cover the cost of flights and other expenses, although no claim has yet been submitted. It is expected that the total cost of this could be about £2,500 per month.

705 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister enlighten us as to the accommodation arrangement, as with the previous Chief Executive?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, for the previous Chief Executive. Is that the...?

710 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: The Hon. Minister said that his accommodation arrangement was the same as it was with the previous Chief Executive. What is it?

715 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: What I said was that accommodation was being provided, as was the case with the previous incumbent. The previous incumbent's contract provided that he would be provided with accommodation at no cost to him and that is what we are doing.

720 Doctors' GMC licences
Method of revalidation

Clerk: Question 24, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

725 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health inform this House how our doctors in Gibraltar will be revalidated and obtain their GMC licences in order to be able to practise in the UK?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

730 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker the Government is currently considering options regarding registration.

735 Revalidation is one of the requirements in the renewal of registration. Revalidation started on 3rd December 2012 in the UK and the GMC expects to revalidate the majority of licensed doctors in the UK for the first time by March 2016. Once the decision is made regarding the model of registration to be adopted, the systems will need to be put in place to meet any requirements.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the Gibraltar Medical Registration Board be the responsible officer to revalidate the doctors or will it be a UK Trust?

740 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is precisely the options that are being considered.

745 This is a fairly new, well, a very new system in the UK. We are currently, as I think I have said here before, looking at the relationship between the Medical Registration Board in Gibraltar and the GMC and this forms part of the discussions that are going to be held, so this will, obviously, be clearer during the coming months. We still have a bit of time before we have to have this sorted out. As I say, the UK expects to have them all ready by March 2016 and we hope to be ready with our own methodology well in advance of that.

750 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Finally, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister said in a previous answer to a question from me that they were discussing the re-drafting of the legislation with the Medical Registration Board: this is for the last ten months or so and, as a consequence, you put on hold talks with the GMC.

Does the Minister have an idea of when the amendment to the Medical Act will be tabled and, as a result, when will the discussions with the GMC start?

755 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, we took a decision to take these two subsequent to what the hon. Lady is referring to, to take these two in parallel. The amendments of the Medical Registration Board are being drafted. There is a lot of re-drafting going on at the moment, so this is taking a little bit of time but it has to be done very carefully.

760 There was going to be a visit later on this month, I believe, by representatives of the Medical Registration Board to the GMC in the UK at a meeting they were holding in the Channel Islands. It is possible that may have to be postponed due to a sudden bereavement for the Chairman of the Board but it is our intention to continue with discussions in the near future to be able to bring this to a close within,

Palliative Care Nurse Specialist Succession plan

770

Clerk: Question 25, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain what is the GHA succession plan to fill the role of Palliative Care Nurse Specialist?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Palliative Care Nurse Specialist role has been advertised and a local Staff Nurse has been successful.

This nurse is currently allocated to the Palliative Care Department and is undergoing training. This will include placements abroad, successful completion of a degree programme in palliative care and in-house training experience which she is currently undertaking. Training will take eighteen to twenty-four months approximately to gain competencies and experience required.

785

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in the meantime while the local nurse is being trained, who will be taking on this specialist role?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the local nurse will be on the job during training. A lot of the training will be done locally, so she will be part of the team.

We are at the moment in contact with a Health Trust in the UK, in order to send a replacement for the current Palliative Care Nurse who finishes some time in April so we are hoping to be able to replace that post to support, at least in the early stages of training, until we feel that the local nurse can then perform the functions without that support.

795

Palliative patients Selection of Care Pathway

800

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 26, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain which care pathway is the one that will be implemented by the GHA in order to care for its palliative patients?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Palliative Care Team are currently considering the introduction of the Liverpool Care Plan.

We are aware of some of the negative press that has hit the headlines in the United Kingdom about issues surrounding the implementations of the LCP and it is for this reason that, although this is part of the team's objective, close consideration is to be given on how best to implement this locally with training days and an awareness campaign being considered early in the year, although no date has yet been set.

It is of utmost importance that, with the LCP implementation, we need to have a strong and robust strategy for this implementation which includes involving individuals and families in treatment decisions. It is essential that we have an appropriate care pathway in order to transfer quality of care to all clinician areas and the best practice model of care, but training and correct interpretation and implementation is required by all health care professionals.

820

This pathway would be used at the bedside, in order to maintain quality of care during the last hours and days of life.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, so what care pathway is being used at present?

825 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the information that I have is related to the fact that, at the moment, the pathway that is being implemented in the GHA – remember that a lot of the Palliative Care is, in fact, done through the auspices of the Cancer Society – the pathway carried out at the moment is being developed on the lines of the Liverpool Care Pathway. As I have said earlier, they are working with this 830 in order to develop it and see if we can adopt it fully. So, it is a step in arriving at the Liverpool Care Pathway, I think, with a local flare.

Some of the criticism in the UK was due to, perhaps, lack of communication with families, perhaps a little bit of insensitivity, and we feel that, in Gibraltar, we are, because of the nature of our community, we would be able to tweak it in such a way that it would be acceptable locally.

GHA Board meetings
Website anomaly

840 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 27, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

845 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise why the last three GHA Board Meeting reports, that were placed on the GHA website before meetings, are no longer there?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

850 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the GHA Board Meeting reports have, since 30th May 2012, all been uploaded to the GHA website. However, only the last full report had the link to view. In other words, there was an error in preparing it and, when you clicked on it, only the last one was there. This has now been rectified and all reports are now available on the website.

855 It was an error in the way it was carried out.

GHA Board meetings
Records from previous administration

860 Clerk: Question 28, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

865 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the Minister for Health have plans to place past GHA Board papers from the last Administration's term of office on the GHA website?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

870 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister say why?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it was for the last Administration to have taken a decision on placing their papers on the website.

875 This Administration takes decisions on the current papers and, therefore, we are doing what we are doing, we said we would do. We do not have an intention of, retrospectively, putting the former Administration papers on the website. If the hon. Lady thought that was a good idea, perhaps, as she was a member of the Board at the time, she could have taken steps to ensure that happened at the time but we have no intention at this moment.

School of Nursing Budget and training opportunities

885 Clerk: Question 29, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise how one goes about applying for a place in the School of Nursing to train as a nurse and if the GHA controls the School of Health Studies budget?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the School of Health Studies has an intake of pre-registration student nurse training every other year, the last intake being in September 2012.

Nurse training opportunities are advertised in the local press around May/June of the intake year, to commence in September. The advert is processed by the ETB and then advertised through the local press. Providing they meet all the entry requirements of the academic institution, they will be registered as students.

900

In line with GHA criteria, they must have been resident in Gibraltar for three years and successfully pass a numeracy and literary test and interview. A place will be offered, conditional to satisfactory health clearance and police check. The GHA controls the School of Health Studies budget.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, what will be the role of Dr Ron Coram in relation to managing the School of Health Studies?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, Dr Ron Coram, who is the Head of Training for the Government, will be co-ordinating training throughout the public service and, therefore, will be involved in that way in overlooking the training programmes and the other aspects of work for the School of Health Studies, working with the professionals within the School of Health Studies but, in respect of the School of Health Studies, answering to me, as Chairman of the Health Authority.

910

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, perhaps you already answered this but could the Hon. Minister again say who controls the School of Health Studies budget. Is it the GHA or the ETB?

915

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: The Gibraltar Health Authority controls the budget; it will be in the Estimates as part of the GHA's budget, as the hon. Member will see at estimates time.

920

Primary Care Centre Emergency Clinics Weekend limits on patients treated

Clerk: Question 30, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state the reason behind limiting the number of patients seen in the Primary Care Centre Emergency Clinics at the weekends to 35 and when was this system introduced?

930

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the reasons for limiting the number of patients for sessions to 35 is to allow the GPs to have sufficient time to see the patients appropriately. Increasing the numbers would reduce the consultation time for patients and this could, potentially, place patients at risk.

The second reason is that, as well as running clinics at weekends, the GP also carries out house calls and limiting the clinic numbers will mean that sick patients at home will be seen in a timely manner. The system was introduced in October 2010.

940

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister aware, then, that the information given could be perceived as confusing because the Emergency Clinic is advertised as being open for an hour, say from 10.00 to 11.00 on Saturday morning, and if all 35 patients arrive within those first ten minutes that means, in effect, that the clinic doors are only open for ten minutes.

Will the advertising of the opening hours be changed, or this made a little bit more clear because we have been made aware of this only recently?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there is a system in place called a 'buddy system', in which, if it is likely that the clinic will spill over to over 35 – it rarely happens, except in the winter – then a second GP is called in, so that should not be a problem.

950 If there are over 70 patients, then – that has rarely, it certainly has not, happened in my experience – then there would have to be a second one called in. But at the moment, there should not be a problem. If the hon. Member has identified any particular occasion when that has been a problem and she informs me later, then I will look into making sure that does not happen because I am sure we both agree that it is important that all patients should be seen if they have to.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes, Mr Speaker, in fact it actually happened to me one Saturday morning.

960 I was turned away but I was encouraged to go to the A & E Department of St. Bernard's Hospital, if I considered it an emergency. Is it responsible for the Primary Care Centre emergencies to be sent to A & E and encourage people to go there?

965 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that depends, because one never knows what kind of emergency we are talking about and there are emergencies in which A & E is certainly the most appropriate place to go. But, certainly, I will take up what the hon. Member has said and if she later, obviously – I do not think it is appropriate now – tells me on what date that happened then certainly I will look into it.

Port-a-caths
Training for nursing staff

975

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain if the GHA will be providing training to staff for the insertion and management of port-a-caths?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Palliative Care Nurse specialist has trained a number of nurses in September 2012. However, due to the limited opportunities to keep up the clinical competencies, this remains a challenge. This is an ongoing objective of the GHA and the Palliative Care Team and is to be kept on the agenda of training initiatives.

985

The Department has also implemented a new protocol for care of implanted venous devices, for example port-a-caths, which has been introduced in conjunction with the training offered. The team have taken the responsibility of offering training and support to nurses, wherever possible, as an ongoing initiative.

990

Despite the above challenge and ongoing training initiative, we have one particular case which required this immediately, in order that prescribed medications could be administered. Nurse management has, on this occasion, identified a registered general nurse, who has been given the responsibility of leading on this and provides care and advice, as well as the administration of medications, as required. This registered nurse also liaises with other healthcare professionals in order to support this patient's care.

Four Year Plan Presentation to GHA Board

Mr. Speaker: Next Question.

1000

Clerk: Question 32, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1005

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, as outlined by the Chief Executive Officer in his report for the 30th May 2012 GHA Board Meeting, can the Minister for Health advise why the GHA's full-scale four year plan, developed by the Executive in consultation with the staff, has not yet been presented to the GHA Board?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, no, sir. In his report to the GHA Board on 30th May 2012, the Chief Executive said:

'A four year plan will be developed by the Executive and will be presented to the Board later this year.'

No such plan was developed or presented.

Plastic Surgery Initiative Breast reduction criteria

1020

Clerk: Question 33, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, as part of the plastic surgery initiative, can the Minister for Health advise what the breast reduction criteria are?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the breast reduction criteria used for this plastic surgery initiative are clinical in nature, namely that the surgery recommended is still indicated and the patient is fit for surgery.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, are they NICE criteria?

1035

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I said, this is clinical and we tend to follow NICE, and I mean N I C E (National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence), rather than nice as in (Laughter and interjections) 'nice procedures', so I would have to assume – apart from the fact that everything we do in this Government is 'nice' – I would have to assume, without any evidence to the contrary, that the answer is, yes, we would follow those criteria.

1040

A & E Consultant Clinical rationale for post

1045

Clerk: Question 34, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health tell this House what were the clinical concerns raised by A & E staff that led to the creation of the post of A & E Consultant this year?

1050

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, this is a manifesto commitment.

The step has been taken in recognition of the importance of A & E and the integration of a new role in A & E is currently being discussed in the context of general improvements to the service.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say who advised the members of his Government on the necessity for employing an A & E Consultant?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the A & E Department has regular meetings in which they discuss different aspects of Accident and Emergency and it became clear that adding support by way of a senior doctor in Accident and Emergency would be something that would assist in developing what we want to do to improve the service. Therefore, it was a manifesto commitment in advance of my being able to take any advice which, subsequent to my election, in the context of what I see are the problems of A & E, was totally justified.

1065

DEPUTY CHIEF MINISTER

1075

Tank farm planning vote
Reason for abstentions

1080

Clerk: Question 78, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Government say on what basis the Minister for the Environment and the Deputy Chief Minister abstained from voting in respect of the approval of the proposal for the building of a tank farm during the January meeting of the DPC?

1090

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, my colleague, the Minister for the Environment, and I abstained on principle, in view of a shared opinion that operators in the local oil industry should have come together to develop a single tank farm that could be used by more than one company.

1095

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is the Deputy Chief Minister satisfied that the promoters have satisfactorily dealt with all the environmental concerns raised during the process, during the public process of the DPC?

1100

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government is satisfied that everything possible has been done.

The Department of the Environment that my colleague leads is also satisfied. The Environmental Safety Group itself did not vote against the measure, so the Government thinks that everything that can be done has been done. Twenty-one conditions have been attached to the application.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Deputy Chief Minister say whether the Government accepts that this is a project that is in the economic short, medium, long term interests of Gibraltar?

1110

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government recognises that there will be activity, economic activity, as a result of this project.

Hon. S M Figueras: And therefore that it is, must be surely, in the interests of the community in the medium to long term?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, all economic activities are in the interests of the community in the medium to long term.

1120

Hon. S M Figueras: Well, then, Mr Speaker, is it not then the case that the Government, satisfied as it was that everything that could be done in respect of its environmental concerns was being done, and that twenty-one conditions were attached and, further, in the light of the fact that it was in the economic interests of Gibraltar, should it not have voted in favour of the project? Or is this just another example of the Government's 'all-things-to-all-men' policy, trying not to alienate any voters by falling on one side or other of the fence on important matters like this?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member had been following the debates which took place in public, that have taken place over many months – there have been three or four meetings over the last year or so when this project has been discussed – he will have realised that we were very – the Government Ministers, I should say – interested in their being only one tank farm in Gibraltar, as opposed to two because it made sense if the operators shared resources that there should be only one.

Unfortunately, because the two operators could not come together to agree the facility, we accepted that there should be two but we voted against it on principle. I explained that in the original answer.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I wonder if I could raise a slightly more general aspect on this matter.

I know that the hon. Members think that there is virtue in injecting more democracy into the planning process and that has its advantages and its disadvantages, as they may already have discovered. But in a small place like Gibraltar, is the hon. Member satisfied that a Government policy to not want more than 1135 one dangerous activity, like a fuel tank farm – particularly near residential areas – should be capable of being defeated and frustrated by a mere planning decision, as opposed to planning decisions being informed by Government policy? In other words, the planning authorities do not have responsibility for public safety. They do not have responsibility. They are not accountable to the electorate: it is the Government that is accountable to the electorate.

1140 If a Government... I mean, I am not making a comment about the virtues, or the merits or demerits, of the Government's policy, it is a more general supplementary than that. Is the Government entirely satisfied that it is appropriate, that in a case, for example, where it may be opposed to the construction of a... on perfectly good policy reasons – that the Government's policy should be capable of being defeated by a planning authority which, to boot, is mainly comprised of officials in the Government?

1145 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, first of all, let me say that this is not a fuel tank farm. It is not fuel, which is the sort of more dangerous element; it is lubricants, so it is not a fuel tank farm.

1150 Let me say also that the Government has two filters, if you like: one is planning and the other one is control as landlord. So even if the planning authorities had, for example in this case, approved an application, the Government, as landlord, could have not accepted it.

1155 The majority of the Commission is made up of officials but there are also several NGOs in the Development and Planning Commission who have a vote, who vote and argue cases one way or the other. I think the only difference in that respect might be that whereas, before, they took place in private and Government policy could have perhaps been defeated in private, now the same thing happens but it happens in public.

1160 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, I understand that. It was, before, theoretically possible for Government policy to be defeated. My questions are not aimed at whether the position is any different now to what it was before. But, rather, regardless of what was now, and assuming that it is the same now as it was before, is there an issue here that we ought to be addressing about the extent of the control that Government policy can bring to bear on planning decisions? In other words, should planning be subservient to public policy, or the other way around?

1165 In other words, who should make a decision about whether a particular activity ought to be allowed on a particular site? If it is the Government's policy, upon which we need not go into a discussion, but if it were a Government's policy – as it appears to be with this one – that, in a small place like Gibraltar, where land is at a premium and you do not waste any by duplicating facilities, particularly, potentially, of an industrial type, if that were the Government's policy, is it not right that the Government should have some wherewithal – some statutory wherewithal – to say to the Planning Commission: 'You may consider the planning aspects of this but it is the Government's policy to minimise the number of such plants that exist in Gibraltar.' It just strikes me as odd that, if the Government had wanted – and it appears not to be the case in this situation – but if the Government had wanted to prevent the setting up of that sort – of any other sort – of activity on that site, implicit in what the hon. Member is saying is that Government does not have the wherewithal to do it. It strikes me as odd in a place like ours.

1175 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: The hon. Member raises an issue which is an issue of policy, really.

I think that we, on this side of the House, have made it clear that we attach more significance to the views of the Planning Department and to the officials and to the DPC, as an entity, in advising the Government at this stage, as to what should happen and what should not happen on a particular plot of land.

1180 We are reviewing Town Planning legislation. It may be that some of what he has suggested is addressed in that but, really, our view, as we stand now, is that the DPC has the ability, or the right, to advise the Government and we do intend, in the course of the review of the legislation, to make that advice binding.

1185 Hon. P R Caruana: Advice binding? Well, Mr Speaker, obviously we can debate this should that such legislation ever come to Parliament but, surely, any such legislation would need to contain some mechanism whereby Ministers – albeit in certain defined cases, where there is an element of public interest at stake – can override, subject to appeals and safeguards... It cannot be that, on what might be important matters of public safety and public interest, the Government is simply subject to the views of the Planning Authority, over which it has no say.

1190 Let us not forget, however worthy might be their objective of injecting some transparency and democracy into the process, in most parts of the world the planning decisions for that reason, are a political process. In the United Kingdom, the planning authorities are made up, half, of elected local councillors drawn straight from the Plenary of the Chamber because there is this acknowledgement that there is an inescapable accountability to the public by the political government, which I don't think can survive not having any degree of control of even when, even in narrower circumstances...

Perhaps this is not the time or the place. We can have this debate, perhaps, if such legislation arrives. I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

1200 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker may I make a comment, as I was named in the original question?

Mr Speaker: Carry on.

1205 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Two points: one is that, clearly, there is also the issue of landlord consent and where the Government is the landlord, that would also be brought to bear.

The second point that I think I need to make is, in case there is any confusion, this is not the kind of installation that is likely to be flammable or be dangerous in that respect. We are talking about lubricant oils that cannot be ignited unless there are very high temperatures so... It is much safer than anything that people may think and, as the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister has pointed out, there is a host of conditions that were attached to the plan, anyway.

I just thought that point needed to be made.

Disability access to Parliament Government submission to DPC

1220 Clerk: Question 79, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Deputy Chief Minister provide Parliament with copies of the Government submission to the DPC in order to make Parliament accessible to disabled persons?

1225 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, no submissions have been made to the DPC, as yet, in order to make Parliament more accessible to disabled persons. This is the next phase of the project.

1230 Hon. J J Netto: Okay, I understand, Mr Speaker, the fact that the submission has not been given to the DPC but I should imagine, by now, that the Government would have, perhaps, with its own people in the Technical Services Department, made up some sort of plans in relation to the submission for the next meeting. Is it possible that I can be given a copy of the Government's submission later on at the meeting?

1235 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is true.

The press release that we issued made it clear that the design still needed to be formalised so, actually, there is no concrete design at present. Secondly, Government applications are published automatically on the website so we would be able to see them straightaway.

1240 Hon. J J Netto: So the designs of the plans will be made available and shown on the Government website, but can the Deputy Chief Minister perhaps indicate, you know, in a generalised sense, how the structure will be made, where it will be located and whether the accessibility for disabled people will mean not just in the public gallery but perhaps, hopefully, one day we have an elected Member of Parliament on either side, they will have access to the other side of Parliament as well. Can he perhaps indicate the thinking behind Government?

1245 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, this is a listed building so whatever happens here has to be subject to discussion, negotiation with the Heritage Trust and also, obviously, with the DPC, in which the Trust is included. But I think it is obvious that the concept we have in mind is some sort of lift structure.

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

International flight destinations Progress report

Clerk: Question 1, the Hon. D J Bossino:

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise whether any progress has been made to secure flight connections to destinations other than the UK?

1270

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I continue, with my team, to keep in regular contact with airline operators that may provide opportunities in securing flight connections outside of the UK.

Contact with various European airlines was established at the World Routes 2012 forum last September. At this point, planning for the forthcoming summer 2013 session had been completed by the airlines. The next season for route development opportunities is summer 2014. The planning cycle will commence around April or May of this year. Our intention is to re-engage with these European airlines at this point at the Routes Europe 2013 event in Budapest.

One other advantage of the Route's Forum is that an online B2B Section on their website for airports and airlines provides a very comprehensive information pack on Gibraltar Airport. However, in tandem with this forum Mr Finlayson, the Government's consultant on route development, is in direct contact with some of the potential operators and does so via e-mail, web and personal meetings. I have personally met twice with one airline company from outside the UK.

1280

The next step, before the Routes Forum in May, is for Mr Finlayson to send updated presentations from Gibraltar to the potential operators and he has requested one to one meetings outside of the Routes Forum, dependent on the particular operator's availability.

1285

Mr Finlayson has also devised a marketing plan for the route development aspects of the airport and this will be rolled out shortly. We will also continue to follow leads in the airline industry, provided by close co-operation with the tourism industry partners in Gibraltar.

1290

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful for that reply, Mr Speaker, but does the Minister have a view as to when he thinks he will be successful in securing one of these connections?

1295

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, we are, as I have said in my original answer, in negotiations with various airline operators outside of the UK. Whereas with negotiations that I held with Monarch and British Airways to increase flights to Gibraltar, I could see a relatively quick turnaround, in terms of months, I would not be able to give him an exact timeframe for this. However, I will happily do so when I do have a clear idea in my own mind when such a new opportunity, or potential route developments opportunity, becomes available.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: If I may, Mr Speaker, can the Minister say how many flights we have lost per week net? Does he have a number for that?

Hon. N F Costa: Since when ?

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: For the winter schedule.

Hon. N F Costa: The only route that we have lost has been Liverpool and that has been picked up by increased flights from Manchester.

There is also the new route starting from Birmingham with Monarch and that will be replacing the lost flight from bmibaby, so I think there were six airlines from the UK, or rather six air routes from the UK, last year and there will be five this year. The exact number I will not be able to tell. Funnily enough, just the other day I was looking at the statistics of passengers and there was a 0.7% increase in passengers in January but I do not have the exact number to hand, Mr Speaker.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Is the Minister aware that Monarch and EasyJet have both dropped their flights on a Tuesday and a Thursday, which means a reduction in four flights a week, although I do understand there has been an increase by British Airways of two flights a week at the weekend?

1320 Hon. N F Costa: Given the specificity of the question asked, I will need to ask and get back to you.

Event-led tourism
Progress report

1325 Clerk: Question 2, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1330 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism provide a progress report in relation to the Government's stated drive to improve event-led tourism?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1335 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the main events of the Government's drive to improve events-led tourism, in my own sphere of responsibilities, has been to secure the organisation of Gibraltar's first International Literary Festival, due to take place in October of this year. This will attract to Gibraltar a number of world-renowned writers, who will take part in debate, discussions, interviews and talks on a variety of subjects. Local authors would also be a critical part of the event, which will bring together different parts of our community, such as our schools and experts in history, heritage and literature.

1340 In the recently launched Gibraltar Tourist Board website, a dedicated section relates to events and these are also depicted on the home page of the website. The majority of the events, however, are being spearheaded – sorry, are of a sporting and cultural nature, so this is spearheaded by my colleague, the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth. The focus here, Mr Speaker, in just one year of Government, can be seen in the organisation of very successful events such as, but not limited to, the first International Jazz Festival, the Mega Concert, and the Strong Man Competition in 2012 which have now become annual events.

1345 The hon. Gentleman would also agree that this year's Calentita Night was greatly improved by listening to feedback from locals attending the yearly event. The organisers cut down the fireworks display and invested this saving on the following innovations: extending the events to Market Place with a full programme of entertainment; carnival performance by Brazilian Batucada Band, in conjunction with Art in Movement; an arts and crafts stall; live drawing by the Fine Arts Association; extra tables, benches and chairs in Market Place for the elderly and public use; new stalls with a British Jubilee theme, including Best of British, British Desserts and Tea in the Park; live TV show by GBC on a big screen at Watergate House...

1355 No doubt, my colleague and his team are also working hard to attract more events. Our respective teams, those of my Ministry and my hon. Colleague's Ministry, continue to work together to attract more events to Gibraltar.

1360 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, certainly in his last comment, I do welcome particularly, because it is my view that we need to do sort of more niche marketing in order to improve the statistical evidence that we currently have, really of low occupancy levels in our hotels.

1365 The Minister has kindly given me a list of all the events that Gibraltar currently provides. I am not sure, necessarily, whether we can see statistically a correlating increase in the number of people staying in Gibraltar, which is really what we want to achieve and I am sure that there are a whole myriad of issues which arise therefrom. But does the Minister have any policy, or any thoughts, as to whether the Government should pursue some form of more targeted marketing in this respect and attending conferences which are maybe less general in nature, more specific to people who may have a specific interest which Gibraltar could be able to satisfy?

1370 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, to answer part of his preface, there was a correlated increase in hotel occupancy during these events, so clearly Gibraltar did attract more tourists or, certainly, the participants of those events that stayed in Gibraltar. There is no doubt, Mr Speaker, that the Gibraltar International Literary Festival will also attract tourism to Gibraltar – in fact a particular niche of people from the UK. When I attended the Woodstock Literary Festival, which was located in a very small town, there were many thousands of participants and, of course, during that time the town was very much packed. We certainly think that the same thing will happen to Gibraltar. I agree with the hon. Gentleman's point that, ideally, these events will take place at a time where, traditionally, there is low 1380 hotel occupancy and the reason, therefore, for the Literary Festival being at the end of October is partly to satisfy, or to increase, occupancy of hotels during that time.

In respect of the specific question that he asks, we have already started to take a more tailored approach to marketing. He may have read in one of the press releases in relation to the UK GTA that took place in Gibraltar, which was the last UK GTA, that we allowed the current tourism partners of Gibraltar to meet with the company in the UK that buys our media. The reason for that is very simple. The 1385 Gibraltar Government, or Gibraltar House, has a specific fee that it spends on this UK company to buy advertising space in wedding magazines and other specialist publications.

The purpose of our tourism partners in Gibraltar meeting with the UK media company was that the UK media company is able to buy advertising space at a much reduced rate. If, for instance, a tour company of Gibraltar wanted to buy an advertising page in one of the specialist wedding magazines, it 1390 may cost something in the order of thousands of pounds. Because we are a Tourist Board, we have very much a reduced rate. So if the Tourist Board was perhaps spending £1,000 on a page or two, it makes sense for the Gibraltar wedding companies to meet with the UK media company and partner up so that, instead of only the Government spending £1,000, the Gibraltar company could also match the £1,000 so 1395 that, instead of having a generic advert on the facilities provided by local companies on weddings, they could also have a narrative of the particular wedding company, Gibraltar, and what services they provide.

I am sure the hon. Gentleman will be happy that we already take the approach of collaborating with our local tourism partners to match the money that the Government spends on advertising, so that we can go even further.

1400 Hon. D J Bossino: Presumably, Mr Speaker, it is the Government's intention – I think he said something further at the tail end of his reply – presumably, it will be Government's intention to adopt that approach in relation to other interests. If he can confirm that.

1405 Hon. N F Costa: If he means in respect of other events, yes, of course. It would, hopefully, cut across the whole spectrum of events that Gibraltar will enjoy [inaudible].

New hotels Approaches to Minister

Clerk: Question 3, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1415 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise whether he has been approached since he took office in connection with the developments of new hotels?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1420 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, I have been approached.

1425 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, we have had this question and answer session in the context of questions asked in relation to possible new developments. There was the Lester Hotel in Devil's Tower Road. I have asked the Hon. Chief Minister in relation to progress in connection with the developments of a Hilton in, I think, Queensway, and now, presumably, it is outside of those two [inaudible]. This relates to a completely new development: is that the case?

1430 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D J Bossino: The answer was? I missed that, yes?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

1435 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am fully appreciative of the fact that he could be bound by confidentiality at this stage – well, I am assuming it is at the early stages – can he give me some sort of indication as to whether... what the prospects are as to whether Gibraltar could be seeing a new hotel in the near future. I fully appreciate that the question may be unfair but maybe he could enlighten the House.

1440 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place to say to the hon. Gentleman that we would not be pursuing discussions unless we thought there was potential. But, as the hon. Gentleman rightly says, I am at this point very much bound by confidentiality in terms of the discussions and they are at their nascent stage.

Big Publications (Gibraltar) Ltd Licences for bus advertising

1450

Clerk: Question 4, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Is the Minister for Transport satisfied that Big Publications (Gibraltar) Ltd had all the necessary licences in place when it was granted the contract to undertake advertising on the bus fleet of the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited?

1460

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as explained in my answer to Question 929/2012 to the hon. Gentleman, Big Publications were selected on the recommendation of a selection board headed by my Principal Secretary, who was the Head of Procurement, and comprised of another Civil Servant and the two managers of the Bus Company. The company was selected as it provided the best value for money to the taxpayer and I accepted the recommendations of the Board.

1465

On liaising with the Members of the Board, they reconfirmed to me that they were satisfied that Big Publications had all the necessary licences in place when it was granted the contract.

1470

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the question arises because the answer was given to me in this House on 15th November. Now I was slightly alarmed – and maybe the Minister can assuage any concerns I may have – that, in fact, in the Gibraltar Gazette of 20th November 2012 there was an application made by this company, Big Publications (Gibraltar) Limited, for a trading licence.

1475

It appears, Mr Speaker, that the business this particular company was seeking licensing for relates to exactly the same business that it secured the Government contract. The application is, in fact, dated 12th November, which is almost a month after the Hon. the Minister answered the question in this House, but maybe he can assuage any concerns I may have in relation to this. I would be grateful for that.

Hon. N F Costa: With pleasure, Mr Speaker.

The legal advice that was forwarded to me was that a company only requires to obtain a trade licence if it is selling physical things commercially and the company Big Publications provides a service, not the actual printing, so there was no need for this. (Interjection) To the Government.

1485

Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, Mr Speaker, very briefly, can the Minister confirm that Big Publications Limited does not actually print or provide any products per se as part of the service? (Laughter)

1490

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No, Mr Speaker, what the Government can confirm (Laughter) is that, in order to provide the service to the Government, that Big Publications has secured a contract for, it does not require a trade licence.

It maybe that the company wants to do other things, to sell to third parties generally in the market place, for which it has decided it wishes to apply for a trade licence in order to do such other business as it may be advised it requires a trade licence for, but what it is going to do for the Government, it does not require a trade licence.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, let me pursue this point slightly further.
The Hon. the Minister for Tourism did, in one of the replies to a supplementary that I posed said this. He said:

‘I do have, however, a chart that explains to me the reasoning why this particular company was chosen and, in the first place, it sets out that the printing would be carried out in Gibraltar, that the Board did themselves attend to make sure that the printing’

– and I emphasise –

‘would be carried out in Gibraltar.’

1505 So it seems that you know the fact that the printing would be carried out in Gibraltar was one of the issues which influenced the Board in choosing this particular company. But, at that stage, it did not have the trade licence to carry out printing in Gibraltar because, indeed, it is applying, as part of its application to the Trade Licensing Authority, for amongst other things, printing equipment and supplies.

1510 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am not going to even pretend to give the hon. Member lessons in what the Trade Licensing Rules are, but the Government is not contracted to purchase printing equipment from Big Limited. The only reason that Big would require a trade licence is to retail in printing equipment etc. if it wishes to sell it to other parties.

1515 The Government is obtaining a service from Big Limited. Therefore, what Big Limited does and whether it applies for a trade licences to do other things for other parties... I mean Big Limited could decide to retail in pipitas as well as anything else and the Government is not buying pipitas from Big Limited and, therefore, whether it has a trade licence to retail pipitas or not is completely irrelevant.

1520 I think that the hon. Gentleman now understands what our train of thinking is because there is absolutely no need whatsoever for this Government – sorry, for this company – to have the licence that the hon. Gentleman is referring to, in order to be able to provide the service that the Government has contracted with it to have provided. Therefore, the Government is satisfied that those licences which it might have required, if any, it had at the time that the contract was granted. I can give the hon. Gentleman myriad examples of companies that provide services to the Government, that do not require licences to provide those services, but that have licences to provide other things to other people and to retail elsewhere.

1525 Hon. D J Bossino: I really do need to pursue this slightly further, Mr Speaker.

1530 If I can ask the Hon. the Minister for Tourism or, indeed, the Chief Minister but, as part of its application the company is also applying for advertising signs, posters, flyers and printed matter. Surely that must form part of the activity which will be in respect of which it has secured this particular contract for, or have I misunderstood.

1535 Hon. Chief Minister: No, the hon. Gentleman has completely misunderstood, Mr Speaker, because, you see, what the contract with the company is, is to provide a service to the Government. Whether the company then also wishes to retail in those things is completely irrelevant to the service it is providing to the Government. They are two completely separate strands.

1540 We are not here to understand what it is that the company we are referring to may be deciding it wants to do with third parties, indeed what it is that the company we are debating may want to offer the Government, as an alternative. But, in respect of the contract which has been awarded to the Government, there is absolutely no question of any of these licences being relevant. It is exclusively a service contract and, as he will know as much as I do, one does not require a licence to provide services. (Interjections and laughter.)

1545 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am just going to labour the point slightly further and I am happy to be lectured by the Chief Minister in respect of trade licensing. I have no issue, I am not trying to catch him out, I am merely trying to clarify the position which I am obviously struggling to understand.

As part of the service that Big Publications Limited will provide to the Government, they will be securing advertisers for the bus fleet and, once those advertisers are secured, Big Publications Limited – and I am happy to be corrected, if I am wrong – will need to procure the printing of the adverts for installation on the back of the buses... (A Member: Signs.) Or signs. Is that the case?

1550 Hon. Chief Minister: Indeed, Mr Speaker, but none of that requires a licence, a trade licence.

1555 Gibraltar Bus Company
Employees at 9th December 2011

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1560 Clerk: Question 5, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question 928/2012, can the Minister for Transport now provide details of the individuals employed by the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited as at 9th December 2011?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the 1565 Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa):
Yes, Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with information, as requested.

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member have any supplementary?

Hon. D J Bossino: No, I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

Meetings with cruise line companies
Details and cost of attendance

Clerk: Question 6, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for the Port advise how many times he has met with cruise line companies in the UK since he came to office, who has attended with him and what the cost of such attendance has been?

1595

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): I have met with eight cruise line companies in the UK during a visit from 24th – 30th June last year. The visit included my attendance at a meeting of the UK GTA and meetings I held with airlines. I was accompanied by the Chief Minister's Principal Private Secretary and Mr Karl Triay. As to the costs, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Government website.

1600 The following meetings are planned for 2013 – Shore Excursions Executive, Fleet Operations and Head of Port Operations and Services from Carnival will be in Gibraltar from 23rd to 25th January this year. Port and Shore Excursion Operations Manager and General Manager from Thompson Cruises will be in Gibraltar from 4th – 6th February. Given that there will be a delegation from Gibraltar attending the corporate headquarters of those cruise companies in Miami, the next series of meetings with UK companies will be held in June. I have also added a note in my own hand, Mr Speaker, right now, that I ought to add that I am meeting with a Spanish cruise company this month.

1610 Promotional visit to Norway
Resulting new business

Clerk: Question 7, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1615 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for the Port advise whether any new businesses have materialised resulting from the promotional visit which was made to Norway last year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1620 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, again with pleasure.

The Gibraltar Maritime Administration and its commercial section, the Gibraltar Ship Registry, have undertaken a number of promotional visits between 2011 and 2012, as previously disclosed to this House in answer to Question 688 and Question 1012.

1625 This has led to some significant benefits to the Registry, as 2012 was a record year for new registrations – 58 – and the highest number the section has ever completed. There were 33 in the previous year; six of these new vessels can be directly attributed to the Norway visit. The overall gross tonnage of the Gibraltar Registry has also increased by 48%, compared with 2011, and is up to 3.22 million tonnes.

1630 Hon. D J Bossino: Sorry, Mr Speaker, it appears that his visit to Germany was slightly more successful, in that he claimed at the Budget session that, I think, 35 new ships had resulted from that visit and I think the answer is that six is what has materialised from Norway.

Is it his intention to pursue further promotional visits to this particular country?

1635 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am holding meetings specifically on marketing and promotions with the Gibraltar Maritime Administrator either this week or next week and this is one of the issues that we will be discussing.

1640 Oil Spill Contingency Plan Review update

1645 Clerk: Question 8, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for the Port advise whether the review of the Oil Spill Contingency Plan is complete and, if so, what recommendations have been made to change it, if any?

1650 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1655 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as a result of an internal review of the lessons learned from the Frio Dolphin oil spill in June last year, the necessity for a refresh of the Oil Spill Contingency Plan was identified by the Port to ensure that a response to an oil spill is appropriate both in technique and scale to the type and quantity of pollutant spill.

The existing plan, published in 2009, is generic in nature, having been produced by Oil Spill Response 1660 Limited, the Port's contracted Tier 2 and 3 responder, to ensure that Gibraltar complied with the requirements of the International Convention on Oil Pollution Preparedness, Response and Co-operation. It was identified, after the Frio Dolphin incident, that this plan does not adequately reflect the special nature of the waters surrounding Gibraltar, including the presence of designated conservation areas and national boundaries. The plan is currently subject to an internal review by the Captain of the Port, Marine Officer and Bunkering Superintendent, in order to scope the resources and support required from other Departments. On completion of this, a team, including environmental regulators, will be formed to move the project ahead.

1665 It is envisaged that a future plan would make best use of available technology, including geographic information systems. Subject to resources being made available, the completion date is expected to be at the end of June this year. In the meantime, the current plan remains in force, with the experience gained from the recent incidents being taken into account in its application.

City Fire Brigade and Defence Fire Service Fourth pump and integration of service provision

Clerk: Question 9, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with the responsibility for the City Fire Brigade, explain if the City Fire Brigade will be acquiring a fourth pump and if so, when?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1685

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 10.

Clerk: Question 10.

1690

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the City Fire Brigade state at what stage Government is in with the negotiations for the integration of the City Fire Brigade and the Defence Fire Service, as per their manifesto commitment.

1695

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, negotiations with the MOD in relation to the future of the Defence Fire Service and the fourth pump are still on-going.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, what is the contingency plan if all three existing pumps are engaged and a fourth is needed and there are flights on the airfield that need covering?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, exactly the same as before 9th December 2011: exactly the same.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Which is, Mr Speaker?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I will need notice of exactly what used to happen then, but it is exactly the same as it used to happen before.

Mr Speaker: I hope the Hon. Minister realises that the hon. Lady was not a Member of the House before 9th December 2011, so she is entitled to ask the question.

1715

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, absolutely she is, but she sits with those who were responsible at the time and if she wanted this information urgently, she could get it from the person sitting to her right. This is not the question of which notice has been given but, as the hon. Member has said, he is happy to provide it.

1720

Planned Sports Injury Clinic
Opening and operation

1725

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government state when the Sports Injury Clinic outlined in the Government's manifesto will be set up and how it will be run?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1730

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I have had a number of meetings with different professionals in the field of sports injury, with a view to setting up a system and fulfil our manifesto commitment. However, I am not yet in a position to say how it will be set up or how it will be run.

1735

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister at this time say if it will be sited within the Hospital or at other GHA premises?

1740

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, as I said, I have already had meetings with the professionals in the field and in those discussions we are still looking at the possibility of where it will actually be located, so we are not in a position yet to say whether it is going to be in the Hospital, in the GSLA premises or other places that might be possible.

1745

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if provision will be made for this from the budget of the GHA or the budget of the Ministry of Sport.

Hon. S E Linares: That is one of the discussions, Mr Speaker, that we are having with the professionals themselves.

Sports grants
Payments made since Question 1019/2012

1755

Clerk: Question 12, Hon. E J Reyes.

1760

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of payments made since the answer to Question No. 1019/2012 in respect of sports grants to each of the following:

- (a) Grants to sporting societies;
- (b) International competitions;
- (c) Sports Development Projects; and
- (d) Hosting of special sports and leisure events

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture Heritage and Youth.

1765

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the following are the payments made since my answer to Question 1019/2012 in respect of Sports Grants:

1770

- 1. Grants to sporting societies – nil
- 2. International competitions – nil
- 3. Sports Development projects: – Pro Tour Golf 2,750 euros: and
- 4. Hosting of special sports and leisure events – nil

Victoria Stadium football pitch Approval and certification to UEFA standards

1780

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 1020/2012, can the Minister for Sports provide updated details in respect of the football pitch at Victoria Stadium achieving full approval and certification, meeting UEFA standards for the playing of international competitions.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1785 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, an independent specialist sports facilities testing laboratory, approved by UEFA and FIFA and the IRB, has already carried out an inspection and tested the new football and rugby playing surface. The GSLA is still awaiting official results.

1790 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, that is exactly the same answer as I got last time, which is why I started by saying 'Further to the answer...', so the interpretation is that we have still not received the definitive certification. Does the Minister have a tentative date by when he hopes to have the certification, if approved, in place?

1795 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, but I will definitely be following it up after the Question has been put twice into this House and I have not had any further advancement. So you can rest assured that I will be following that up, as from today.

1800 Cultural grants awarded
Details since 12th December 2012

Clerk: Question 14, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1805 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture provide details of any further cultural grants awarded, if any, since this information was last posted on the Government's website as at 12th December 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1810 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, since the last post on the Government's website as at the 12th December 2012, a further grant of £1,000 has been granted to Gold Productions.
This information is already posted on the Government website.

1815 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, thanks for the information. Certainly, that was not available at the deadline of Questions.
Given that the £1,000 has been granted to Gold Productions, does the Minister have any information, in respect of what type of cultural activity.

1820 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker.
Gold Productions made an application for a cultural grant because they are currently doing a documentary on the Second World War. It is a follow-up of the first documentary, which they did on Operation Felix: so they came back. Now they are doing the second part of this and they asked for the grant and it was given to them.

Victoria Stadium
Modifications necessary to meet UEFA requirements

1830

Clerk: Question 15, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1835 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question No. 1024/2012, is the Minister for Sports now in a position to provide this House with details of all improvements and/or modifications, which will have to be carried out at the Victoria Stadium inclusive of players', officials' and spectators' facilities, in order to meet UEFA requirements for the hosting of official international football matches.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1840 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the GSLA has approached UEFA, through the GFA, for full details of all the facilities and resources which need to be provided at the Victoria Stadium, to be approved by UEFA for the hosting of official international football matches. The final list of these has not yet been received.

1845 This is an answer similar to the one that I gave in the last House and, therefore, until we receive the lists from UEFA, through the GFA, of the facilities that need to be done, there is not much that the GSLA can do. Basically, the answer to this Question is that, as soon as we get that list from UEFA, through the GFA, we will get on and do whatever is needed.

1850 Hon. E J Reyes: I understand, Mr Speaker, what the Minister is saying and, in many ways, I sympathise with him because, having had the portfolio before, you are very often dependent on waiting for others. Yet, Mr Speaker, the GFA have led me to believe that certain information has already been passed on to GSLA in respect of what will be required. Can the Minister confirm that you know, at least – even though not official yet from UEFA – that at least some preliminary information that is highly reliable, is available and that the GSLA is working towards it. , 1855 I am pressing him on this Question because I am conscious then of how long it can take, later on, to get things done. They may require works that need to go to DPC and so on, and we certainly don't want to be caught out, or run out of time, in order to provide facilities for the hosting of events locally, if possible, because the time is now right for attracting spectators. I think both sides of the House would like to see that Stadium as packed to capacity as possible!

1860 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, I had a meeting with the representative of the GFA only last week and I insisted to them that if a list from the GFA can be given to the Ministry of Sports, then the Ministry of Sports could probably get the GSLA to activate anything that is needed. So it is going to now come through the Ministry, rather than direct to the GSLA, so I do exactly what the hon. Member is saying, so that we can get things done as quickly as possible.

1870 Hon. E J Reyes: May I just conclude, Mr Speaker, for the sake of Gibraltar's sporting achievements, I will be more than happy to work with the Hon. Minister outside of this House, on whatever issues, so that together we can provide the best for Gibraltar, especially seeing the unfortunate mishaps, that our neighbours across the road still continue to prove themselves to be unsporting in the way that they react to Gibraltar.

Hon. S E Linares: I am appreciative of the support that the hon. Member is giving.

1875 Mr Speaker: Before we go on to the next Question, will the Hon. Minister please inform those of us who are not in the know what is the GSLA.

1880 Hon. S E Linares: I beg your pardon, Mr Speaker, I should have cleared that from the very beginning. The GSLA is the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, as opposed to the Ministry of Sports. So, it is the people and the institution that runs the Bayside Complex, that runs the swimming pools now, that are contracted to run the King's Bastion Leisure Centre – basically, all to do with sports, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I am grateful to the Minister for that information.

1885 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, just to add that, yes, the GSLA is, indeed, an authority. What does coincide is that the Minister for Sport has since its inception, also been the Chairman for the Sports Authority and, even when I sat on that side of the House, we are cautious in making our answers accountable by saying whether it is a GSLA activity or a Ministry for Sports activity.

1890 I hope that, with that information, Mr Speaker, you will be able to follow future answers – I am sorry, Question and Answer sessions – that the Minister and I may have to exchange.

Mr Speaker: These are answers to about four or five Questions, so I would expect the hon. Member to have some time in order to acquaint himself with the answers.

Dr Giraldi Home
Update on allegations against care worker

1960

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Social Services now in a position to provide me with the extra information sought in Question No. 1034/2012 and in my letter to her of 27th December 2012, regarding the allegation of a care worker employed at the Dr. Giraldi Home consuming an illegal drug?

1965

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

1970 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, (Cough) – excuse me – this matter was dealt with at length in the previous Parliament in response to Question 1034/2012. Following exchanges, the Leader of the Opposition stated that he accepted the position as expressed by the Chief Minister, in that this information should not at this stage be shared publicly. In the circumstances, and for the same reasons expressed last time, no further details will be provided at this stage.

1975 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, my recollection at the time was that, despite what the hon. Lady has just stated, she went, further on, to say that the information will be provided, on a confidential basis, to me. This is the reason why I am asking it now.

So can she provide the information, as she said she would in the last sitting of Parliament, on a confidential basis?

1980 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman may recall that we did have a conversation following the last Parliament in this Chamber and the information which he sought was provided on a confidential basis.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, that was wholly inadequate.

1985 What she is referring to is that, once that particular session of Parliament ended, she came over to this side and we had a conversation on this particular matter but that was wholly inadequate, as to the information that I wanted, hence the reason why I have written to her formally to try and get further details on what, I think is adequate in terms of the circumstances of the case.

1990 Therefore, I do not feel, Mr Speaker, that what she considers to be information being passed to me is information that I really need to know on a confidential basis. So will the hon. Lady provide me with the detailed information I have deliberately asked her in my letter which I sent to her Department?

1995 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, as stated in the last session of Parliament, we have already gone one step further on the position which was taken by the Opposition when they were in Government, in that details have been provided on a confidential basis.

Mr Speaker, there has to be a limit as to how much detail can be provided in the circumstances, for the reasons that were canvassed on the last occasion. I have already given the hon. Gentleman the reasons and the facts, as I informed him at the last Parliament, and that is as much information as I am willing to give.

2000 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, she may obviously decide not to give me the information and that is the end of the matter. There is not much I can possibly do, but she is incorrect, in her first statement, when she said that they had already given us more information than what we used to provide them when we were in Government. That is clearly not the case, because I remember clearly having to be almost cross-examined by four lawyers of the Opposition when I was on that side of Parliament and, certainly, I 2005 gave a lot more information than she is providing us now.

So, Mr Speaker, can I just –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, on a Point of Order.

2010 On ongoing investigations in a Department involving sensitive issues... and I put it to the hon. Gentleman, Mr Speaker, that he was never cross-examined by one or four lawyers seeking to obtain information – other than confidentially – in respect of something which he might have got up and told us was sensitive and involved issues of this sort.

2015 I put it to him that that is not the case. If he is referring to one particular very high profile issue involving the Social Services Agency which has now led to a public enquiry being constituted by the Government, then that might be something else. This is a very particular type of issue and I put it to him, Mr Speaker, that he runs the risk of misleading the House with those statements.

2020 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, at the end of the day, what I need to know is answers to the question I am asking right now.

The hon. Lady has already stated that she is not willing to provide me with information on a confidential basis. In other words, she is now going 180 degrees in the opposite direction of what she told me at the last session. At the last session she said she would provide me with that information. Now she is saying that she is not going to provide me on a confidential basis. Can I understand the reason why she has changed her mind?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr. Speaker, I think it is appropriate that I get up and deal with this, because there is, in my view, a convention which is important, that there are times when information can be

2035 The hon. Gentleman has written to the hon. Lady, setting out a list of questions that he wants the answer to. Mr Speaker, without trying to delve into them and, in that way, give some information which we do not think is appropriate – and he has asked everything except the time at which the allegation was made. I mean he has, literally, set out every single question he could think of about what happened surrounding this allegation.

2040 What the hon. Lady is saying is ‘Look, I’ve given you the information I’m prepared to give you confidentially, which gives you an understanding of what the issues are.’ If the hon. Gentleman thinks that that is not the case, I am sure that the hon. Lady is happy to sit down and have a conversation again about these issues, but the level of specificity that the hon. Gentleman is requesting would take us into the areas that we do not want to be drawn, not just, Mr Speaker, in terms of sharing that information with the public but a lot of these things that the hon. Gentleman is asking are the issues which are being investigated. For the hon. Lady to give that information – worse still, to give it in writing – would suggest a prejudgement of many of these issues.

2045 What I urge the hon. Gentleman to do is to realise that this is not an attempt to avoid sharing with him such confidential information as would enable him to have the gist of what is ongoing until the matter moves on, but to give him chapter and verse of the matters which he has written on would really be to put the Minister in a very difficult position, something which I assume is not what he is setting out to do.

Mr Speaker: Well, the hon. Member has an invitation to have a meeting with the Hon. Minister and try to pursue the matter to the extent that he can.

2055 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, I certainly will take up the opportunity then to sit down and I have a meeting with the Hon. Minister and to the extent that I can, I will certainly put as many questions, on a confidential basis, and try and draw as many answers as possible.

Thank you very much.

Dr Giraldi Home
Theft from resident

2065 Clerk: Question 40, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister for Social Services confirm that a resident of Dr Giraldi Home has had his own money stolen and, if so, provide the following information:

2070 (a) A description of the circumstances of the theft, inclusive of the flat no. in which the incident happened, the amount of money stolen and the date on which this appears to have taken place.

(b) Whether an internal Care Agency investigation of the incident is taking place;

(c) Whether the RGP is involved in carrying out an investigation;

(d) Whether any employee of the Care Agency has been suspended, awaiting further investigation; and 2075 (e) Whether any member of the public is being investigated for having possibly stolen the money?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

2080 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, a discrepancy in a service user’s monies has been found and, at this time, there is an ongoing investigation being conducted.

In the circumstances, it is not considered appropriate to provide any further information at this stage.

2085 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, for the sake of clarity, what she calls ‘discrepancy’, does it mean that some money belonging to a service user has been stolen.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I was very clear in my response, when I said that ‘a discrepancy’ in relation to a service user’s monies has been found and it is being investigated.

I am happy to have a confidential conversation with the hon. Member outside, if that is what he wishes.

2090 Hon. J J Netto: [Inaudible] Mr Speaker, to take up the invitation – for which we can have one meeting dealing with the two issues and avoid having to arrange different meetings.

Could I ask the hon. Lady a final question: what is the size of the discrepancy she is talking about in money terms.

2095 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, as I have just stated, I do not think it is appropriate to go into the circumstances of the matter at this stage: not in public, at this stage, in any event.

2100 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the hon. Lady at least answer a part of the question that was asked, which is whether the RGP has been notified and whether the RGP is carrying out an investigation?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: The answer to that is ‘Yes’, Mr Speaker. The RGP were notified and they are investigating the matter.

HOUSING

Government housing estates

Cleaning contracts

2110

Clerk: Question 41, the Hon. S M Figueras.

2115 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing say whether the Government is planning to revisit current contracts for cleaning of Government housing estates and, if it is, whether it will be revisiting these arrangements as a matter of course when the renewal falls due or whether it will be seeking to deal with this matter before then.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

2120 Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, the answer is no, the Government is not planning to revisit the current contracts for cleaning at this present stage.

2125 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, and can I just quickly say that I am pleased to see the hon. Member. I actually noticed that he was present in the Chamber as I asked the Question, so just to put on record that I am very happy to see him. (Applause)

Government housing estates Tenants urgently decanted since Question 1039/2012

Clerk: Question 42, the Hon. E J Reyes.

2135 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, likewise, it is always so nice to have the hon., and my good friend, Charles Bruzon back. In fact, I had limited my number of Questions, compared to the past, thinking that Charles may still have needed a bit more time before he could resume greater duties back in the Chamber. I will bear that in mind so we can revert back to our old more numerous Questions in the future!

2140 Mr Speaker, getting now directly to Question No. 42, can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting since the answer to Question No. 1039/2012, indicating the dates when the decanting became necessary and when these tenants were able, or are expected, to return to their homes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

2145 Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Yes Mr Speaker, since the answer given to Question 1039/2012, one tenant has been temporarily decanted due to works required to the property.

The decanting became necessary as from 7th January 2013. It is expected that works will be completed on 8th February 2013.

Applicants for Government housing Numbers allocated a home in 2012

2155 Clerk: Question 43, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many applicants had been allocated a home during the year 2012 and, of these, how many have still not moved into their new homes, stating the reason why?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): Mr Speaker, a total of 288 applicants have been allocated a home during the year 2012.

I am unable to confirm how many of these applicants have actually moved into their new homes. I would like to explain, in case you require more information, that it is not something that is easy to control. If somebody is staying with a relative, for example, in a private property and is allocated a Government flat, that person obviously will start paying the rent and may take a few months before they move into their new homes.

2170

What is of great concern to us in Housing is to ensure that, if it is a question of an applicant who has been allocated a home going to vacate a Government property then, of course, it is very important that they move out of that Government property as soon as possible, so that this can be allocated to an applicant on the waiting list.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, I understand Mr Speaker.

Is the Minister able to provide, perhaps, some information? My understanding is that some applicants have been allocated a home and they have been given a period of grace because the Ministry have said, 'Look, the home is not 100% ready yet for habitation'. I believe there has even been an offer made, whereby the individuals can either carry out certain repairs themselves or wait for their turn in the list of repairs to be carried out. During that period, whilst the house is still not yet fully fit, there is even a period where no rent is paid so, from there, can the Minister say – he has said that 288 have been allocated – does he have an idea if those 288 are already paying the rent, or are there still some we could deduce, from those who are not paying, have still not quite fully moved in?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, let me explain that this is the procedure we follow. If a flat is fully refurbished and ready to be moved into, then the ideal period of time is three weeks, so we expect people to move into their flats in three weeks' time after the allocation offer is made. If the flat is allocated on a self-repair basis, then this will require more time, of course, so we allow three months. Extensions are occasionally granted of a further month, so that people who ask us and explain reasonably that they have not been able to complete the works that they wanted to do themselves, we allow them a further month before they leave the house or flat in which they are living and move into their new home.

2190

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I?

2195

Mr Speaker: Yes, certainly.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, can the Hon. the Minister for Housing perhaps provide us with some further information in relation to how many of these 288 have actually been provided with keys to the flats.

I quite understand that the words 'have still not moved in' can be subject to interpretation – certainly a more elastic choice of phrase – because, of course, if you give somebody the keys, as far as the Government is concerned, you do not know when those people are moving in. They may live with relatives for a period of time whilst they undertake works and then, in the future, they actually move in. But, really, what certainly interests us on this side of the House is how many of those 288 have actually been provided with their keys and the Government's responsibility, at that point, really is very limited, once those keys have been handed to those individuals.

2205

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, there is a difference between earmarking a flat for a tenant and actually offering the flat officially. When that happens, in fact, these people already have their keys. That is the simple answer.

Hon. D A Feetham: So all 288?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Yes.

2215 What I am always very concerned about is, having granted people keys to move into a new Government flat, if they are occupying a Government flat – say, a smaller flat and they are moving into a larger flat – I am greatly concerned that the flat they are leaving is vacated as soon as possible, because there are other hungry applicants waiting to move into the flat that these people will vacate.

2220 So the answer is: Yes. The 288 have been officially offered these homes, either on a self-repair basis, or when the flat is ready to move in and they have the keys. Yes.

2225 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Sorry, if the hon. Gentleman will allow me, I think, just to clarify that, the 288 who have the keys may not be tenants of those properties because, if they are still holding the tenancy of the smaller property, there is this period of overlap, when people are allowed to repair the property which they are moving into.

I think that is the legal issue, that you have people holding keys to two properties, the one of which they are the tenant and the one of which they are to become the tenant, for a period that, I think for some time, if not since time immemorial, then certainly for the past twenty odd years, there has been this period of three weeks' grace to move from one to the other.

2230 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I ask the Hon. Minister for Housing whether he knows how many of the 288 persons with keys now have had the keys for a period of more than four months.

Hon. C A Bruzon: No, I have not got that information.

2235 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Yes, Mr Speaker the Minister did tell me before that if a tenant was going to carry out self repairs then a target date, I think he was indicating, was going to be three months. For those who choose not to carry out the repairs themselves but rather wait for the Housing Works Agency to carry these out, is there any indication of how long the average or the longest person on that list has had to wait for?

2240 Hon. C A Bruzon: That's a good question, Mr Speaker.

I am certainly against the small companies, or the Housing Works Agency, taking too long to refurbish these homes. I cannot tell the hon. Member in how many cases houses have taken six months, or nine months, or a year... I certainly hope that it will not be that much unless, of course... You see, when an offer is made, Mr Speaker, it is not made unless the house is ready to be moved into, or it is being repaired but it is a reasonable repair job that can be done and not something that is going to take ages.

2250 There are a number of properties which, unfortunately, cannot be allocated to people on the waiting list because the repairs involved are pretty extensive and, therefore, we are not talking about that. I don't know if I have answered the question.

2255 Hon. E J Reyes: You see, Mr Speaker, my concern is that members of the public have told me they have been offered a flat, they have been told and strongly advised to accept it because, otherwise, they are simply just going to lose their place on the housing waiting list. Yet the Housing Works Agency has given them an indication that it will take up to around eight months for those repairs to be carried out to make the house in a condition fit to move in.

2260 Eight months, I know from a personal level, neither the Minister nor myself find that as acceptable. So does the Minister have any indication of the veracity of the eight months and is it one isolated case, or is it more a case that there are a fair number of people having to wait for over six months for these repairs to be carried out?

Hon. C A Bruzon: I am afraid I do not have the information to hand but I would be happy to answer the question next month or, if I can get the information sooner, I will certainly provide it to the hon. Member.

2265 Mr Speaker: Yes.

2270 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, can the Hon. the Minister for Housing perhaps explain what systems are in place to ensure that the amount of time it takes from the handing of keys to somebody occupying the property is not inordinate and, perhaps, could he explain what role and what interest he takes in relation to this? Because of course and I quite understand that we have asked a Question on notice and, sometimes, one requires notice for any supplementaries but I would have thought that this is an important area. It is an area, in fact, that concerned the Hon. the Minister when he was on this side of the House and he asked questions, so I would expect the Hon. the Minister for Housing to obviously have taken a personal interest in relation to this now that he is in Government. Perhaps, can he explain what are the systems that are in place and what is the interest that he takes to ensure that there are no inordinate delays?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Is the hon. Member referring to offers of flats that are being repaired by us or offers of flats that are being repaired by the applicants themselves?

2280 Hon. D A Feetham: What I am referring to is, more generally, it may include both: generally, the delay from the moment that somebody is handed the keys to the point at which that person then occupies.

2285 The Hon. the Chief Minister very helpfully outlined that there may be situations, for example, where somebody stays as an occupier of a Government flat whilst the flat, in respect of which he has been handed keys, is being repaired. So, obviously, one would have thought that, bearing in mind that the Government, as he has rightly pointed out, has an interest – a keen interest – in ensuring the flats are then released so that they can be allocated to somebody else, that there are systems in place to ensure that that is smooth and as expeditious as possible.

2290 Hon. C A Bruzon: If an offer of allocation is made to an applicant and this applicant takes an unreasonable time in handing the key back to us then, of course, the first step of the operation is that the Allocation Manager will write a letter to the tenant, requesting him or her to hand the key back to us, the key of the flat that they are occupying. If this does not happen, then we take legal action and the lawyer will write to the person who is taking too long to vacate the Government flat and move into their new home. We take legal action and, hopefully, that will prompt a speedier return of the key of the flat that they are occupying so that we can then allocate it to somebody else on the waiting list.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but, you see, we don't want to get to the stage where we have to obviously take legal action against individuals.

2300 What I am really asking is – go back a step further – is there a system whereby, for example, there is an alert when somebody takes more than three weeks without, in fact, handing the flat that they are occupying and moving into the one that they have now got keys for? There is an alert at three weeks and then there is a chaser, for example, from the Housing Department? That is what I'm asking.

I would expect – bearing in mind that it is Government policy and the Government has a keen interest to ensure that flats that are occupied are being released – that there is a proper system in place to ensure obviously that people are expeditiously doing the works. Indeed, it may not even be the fault of the individual tenants. It may even be one of the companies that are being engaged by the Housing Department, or the Housing Authority, to undertake these works, or anybody within the public service that is undertaking the work.

2310

That is the kind of system that I am asking... The hon. Member is not providing me with enough detail to give me the comfort necessary that the Government is actually on top of this, in terms of having the necessary systems in place.

2315

Hon. C A Bruzon: Well, yes, if a flat is refurbished and ready to be moved into, then the period is three weeks. If a flat is allocated on a self-repair basis, then three months. Basically, that is the system that we have in place. If it takes longer than that, then we offer extensions. You see, there are two dimensions to this: one is where the tenant is taking too long to move in, not through any fault of the Housing Works Agency or the Housing Authority; the other dimension which, I think, the Hon. Edwin Reyes was asking me about is where there are works being done by one of these small companies, or the Housing Works Agency, and they are taking much longer than they should.

2320

Am I right in my interpretation of what the hon. Member is asking? We have a system in place and I can assure him and the Members opposite that I am terribly keen that the housing allocation... where the waiting lists go down and we provide homes for the people who are waiting, sometimes for many, many years. But the system in place is that, when an official offer is made, then the person has to move into that flat within a three-week period, if the flat is ready to be moved into. If it is on a self-repair basis, then they are allowed three months, with possible extensions. That is as far as I can go. If I am not answering the question, then I would request, maybe, notice.

2325

Hon. D A Feetham: I will give him notice that, perhaps, so that he can start working on it now, that at the next session of the House we will ask the Hon. the Minister statistical questions in terms of how long, over the three-week period, in relation to these 288, or previous ones, the Government has had to wait before people move in? Because obviously it is only in relation when one looks at those statistics, can one see whether, in fact, there is any system in place that is actually working because, if the majority of these people are not moving into their new flats within a reasonable period of time after the three weeks are up then, obviously, the system is not working – and we would be remiss in our duty not to bring the Government to account, given that there are a lot of people on the housing waiting list who, obviously, want to move into properties.

Hon. C A Bruzon: No, Mr Speaker, I can assure the hon. Member that I think the majority of these 2340 288 people have actually moved into their new homes. Otherwise, I would be extremely disappointed, as probably you would, as well.

Government housing Repairs to lifts

2345

2350

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of the number of times lifts pertaining to Government rental homes have required repairs, since the reply to Written Question No. 251/2012, providing details of how long it actually took to carry out said repairs since the report was first lodged and by whom these were carried out:

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Housing and the Elderly (Hon. C A Bruzon): It's Question 44?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. C A Bruzon: Yes, Mr Speaker. I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can I have a little verification? The table provides the address and the date and time reported and then repair completed. If we take the very first one, for example, Valiant House has a report made at, I take it to be 15.13 hours on 13th December last, and it says repair completed – 11 minutes.

Strictly speaking, my Question said 'how long it actually took to carry out said repairs since the report was first lodged.' Does that 11 minutes mean that from whenever the tenant made the report, within 11 minutes that lift was working again, or that the repair to it took 11 minutes from whatever time the workman actually arrived on the site? Can I have that clarification, Mr Speaker.

Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, this particular repair was a very easy one. It was just a question, as soon as the report of the fault in it was made, the technical people went there and they pressed the restart button and everything worked again, so that was an easy one. It took 11 minutes.

2375

Hon. E J Reyes: So the column of 'Repairs completed' does refer actually to what my wording says, from when the report was first lodged? (Hon. C A Bruzon: Yes.) All the timings provided within the column of 'Repairs completed' took 11 minutes, or the next one 57 minutes, for example Bow Wave House, and so on? That is the time that elapsed between the report being lodged, at whatever depot it was lodged, and then the lift being fully functional?

2380 Hon. C A Bruzon: That is correct, Mr Speaker.

There have been cases in the past... We are talking about the one month period which I think is the question that he is asking about and, in this period of time, there were not unreasonable, or very lengthy delays, because we were waiting for spare parts to come through and it could have taken longer, which is always very disappointing. In this particular period of time, the repairs were carried out on the date specified and the time it took is as is specified in the column headed 'Repairs completed'.

2390 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, perhaps the Hon. the Minister can actually talk to his staff about ... I do not think this can possibly be right. It takes... if you have to call out somebody to repair a lift, it takes fifteen minutes, perhaps, to travel from – or ten minutes – from one part of Gibraltar to where the problem arose. Bearing in mind that you not only have to take into account travel time, but also the fact that the person has reported it by telephone and there must be some time lag between the person reporting it and the repair person actually leaving his house, it cannot be right that it is taking, from the moment the tenant reports by telephone the fault, to the moment that it is repaired, 11 minutes.

2395 I can understand that it has taken 11 minutes because a person has gone – it is a minor fault and it has taken 11 minutes to repair – but not 11 minutes from the moment they –

Mr Speaker: In other words, the question, I think, that the hon. Member is asking is: is the time given in the column under 'Repairs completed' the actual time which the repairer was on site?

2400 Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, let us take example number one.

The date is the 13th of the 12th. The time it was reported was 13 minutes after 3.00 p.m. Within that day – and I do accept the point the hon. Member is making – on that same day, on that same date, when they went, it took 11 minutes to repair. I think that is the easiest way of understanding it. (Interjections)

2405 Hon. D A Feetham: That is exactly what we were asking because the question by Mr Reyes is, 'how long it actually took to carry out the said repairs since the report was first lodged': in other words, the time from the report to when it was repaired. Could he go back and ask his... unless he has got the information there, because what we are really interested in is how long the lift was out of order. In other words, how long are tenants being inconvenienced by repairs and what is the response time of the repair workers who are undertaking these repairs?

2415 Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, if you want to take Constitution House, half way down the page, as an example, the date and time that the problem was reported was 23rd December. The time that the report was reported was 15.43. The time the repair was completed was five hours and two minutes.

Mr Speaker: On that same day?

Hon. C A Bruzon: Yes, that is it.

2420 Hon. D A Feetham: So Mr Speaker what he is saying is, that from the time in which the tenant reported the fault, the lift was not working, at 15.43 on 23rd December, from the moment it was reported it has taken five hours and two minutes to the point at which it was repaired. Are you sure, because the first one is 11 minutes?

2425 Hon. C A Bruzon: Mr Speaker, I will double check, if you want. I will double check but I will be perfectly honest, the questions that you are asking me now, I asked my staff myself and they said to me 'No, Minister'. You see, in this case, it was not a question of having to wait three weeks or three months, or whatever, for spare parts to arrive.

2430 It could be that the one about 11 minutes raises questions, but I will go back to my staff and try to find out, so that the hon. Member can rest assured that the information we are trying to give is accurate.

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, if I can just say it is not a question of the hon. Member giving accurate information. We understand that the hon. Member is giving us the information that he is being given.

2435 The question, then, is to establish that the person who is putting those answers together for him is correctly interpreting the question. We are not interested to know how long a craftsman took to fix, once he got on the job – whether the job was a complicated one and it took the craftsman two hours to fix, or 2440 whether it was a simple one and took the craftsman ten minutes to fix. The questions are designed to find out how long the service user was without the service, as a result of the breakdown. So the question might have been asked: how long was it from the lift being repaired, as being out of order, did it take for the lift to be back in working order? That is the period of time that these questions are designed to elicit and not how long it took to repair. Somebody, I suspect, is interpreting that literally in your office to mean how long did it take the man with the screwdriver once he got to the lift to repair it. We are interested in how long it was out of order.

2445 It is just a question of finding out. We do not have to clarify this today. I think, so long as we are of a one mind and we both understand that what is being asked is for the length of 'out of order time', he could make sure that, perhaps, that is how the question is interpreted in the future and the answer provided in that way in the future.

TRAFFIC, HEALTH & SAFETY AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

2455 Transport Strategy Alternative energy vehicles and cycle lanes

Clerk: Question 45, the Hon. S M Figueras.

2460 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, further to his answer to Written Question No. 253/2012, can the Minister for Traffic say whether any strategies for the promotion by Government of alternative forms of transport are planned, including, but not limited to, campaigns to promote the use and ownership of hybrid and other alternative energy vehicles?

2465 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I would answer this Question together with Question 46/2013.

2470 Clerk: Question 46.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Traffic say what the Government's policy is in relation to cycling lanes?

2475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it is the Government's policy to encourage a move towards alternative and sustainable forms of transport and a new Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan will look at ways of achieving this.

2480 The use of hybrid and alternative energy vehicles will form part of this and the Government is already planning, and has already introduced, several measures to promote their use, these being the reduction of import duty on bio fuels to 0%, the reduction of import duty on hybrid vehicles to a flat 2% across the board, irrespective of cubic capacity, and the payment of a £500 cash back to the purchaser upon registration of a hybrid vehicle.

2485 Walking and cycling are also recognised forms of alternative transport and the provision of cycle lanes is something the Government is committed to.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful and gratified by the answer given by the Hon. Minister.

2490 In respect of campaigns, I recognise that the measures were introduced at the last Budget and I think one of the issues may well be, from conversations I have had with various members of the community, that there is not actually much awareness of the measures, which are valid ones introduced at the last Budget.

Sorry, as I was saying – I had not, actually, finished the supplementary – the measures, valid though they are, I think may have had limited recognition in the community. The campaigns I referred to in the main question are not simply the measures themselves which, valid on their own as they are, in our view, certainly, would benefit from an awareness campaign or campaigns to get the message out there. Is this sustainable traffic plan that the Government is working on contemplating including campaigns of that 2500 nature?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this has not been discussed as an avenue.

2505 I was of the opinion that with the Budget measures actually highlighting these issues, or what Government had done... As I said, I would assume lots of people knew it but whether... Perhaps the hon. Member is right, maybe there has not been enough awareness and people are not aware but, as I said, if it is deemed necessary in order to be able to increase the acceptance of this vehicle, it is something we will most definitely consider.

2510 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I ask the question and make the suggestion in the context of campaigns that this Government has, in fact, undertaken in respect of recycling and I can certainly tell him that, personally, I have spoken to one particular person, in any event, who is in the motor sales industry, who was unaware of the 2% flat rate import duty on hybrid vehicles and the £500 cash back.

2515 My last supplementary is whether there is a timeframe now in place for the delivery of this sustainable plan which the Government has now been working on for some time.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in reference to what the hon. Member was asking before, it was only literally, I would think, days when the announcement was made that we have already had garages calling in, seeking more information on those points. That someone whose business depends on that was unaware seems something which is quite funny, but it can happen.

2520 In reference to the timescale, I am not yet in a position to say how long the development of this traffic plan will take, so that is where we stand at the moment.

Construction industry
Health and Safety complaint

Clerk: Question 47, the Hon. J J Netto.

2530 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to the one complaint registered on the Government website for the month of December 2012 within Table HS.1, as updated on 2nd January 2013 under the construction industry, could the Minister for Health & Safety provide an explanation of the nature of the complaint and by what company?

2535 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the nature of the complaint was a tower scaffold which was not safely assembled.

2540 It was, as a result, taken down and stored. It belonged to the administration of a private housing estate and was being used for the installation of Christmas lighting and some maintenance on the podium. The complaint was made against the management and forwarded to the Health and Safety Inspectorate. The complaint was made by a tenant resident.

Enforcement Notices Disclosure of details

2550 Clerk: Question 48, the Hon. J J Netto.

2555 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to Enforcement Notices (i.e. Prohibition and Improvement Notices), is the Minister for Health & Safety in a position to provide me with information, as suggested by me in the last session of Parliament, in Question No. 1045/2012 and in my letter to him dated 27th December 2012, with regard to the names of companies and the description of what the Notices entail, as is the norm in the UK by searching the Health and Safety Executive website?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2560 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, a holding reply has been issued to the hon. Member's letter dated 27th December 2012, until I have gathered the necessary information to be able to write to him and provide a substantive reply to his Question. I will endeavour to do so as soon as possible.

2565 Hon. J J Netto: Presumably, Mr Speaker, that will be before Notice of Questions for the February session of Parliament will take place. Is that the case?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, most definitely and I intend, as I said, I will endeavour to do this as soon as possible.

2570 I will make sure that it is done. As I said, the letter was sent or received on 27th and we have had Christmas in between... As I said, an acknowledgement letter was sent and now the information from the relevant Department [inaudible] Members should be forthcoming.

2575 Factories Inspectors
Censures to Government bodies and MOD

Clerk: Question 49, the Hon. J J Netto.

2580 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister for Health & Safety provide a total number of censures raised by the Factory Inspectors, if any, to Government Departments, Authorities and Agencies and the MOD during 2012, broken down by month, the date of censure, the name of the public sector employer, the breach that may have been committed against the Factories Act or any subsidiary legislation and a summary/description of the breach?

2585 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

2590 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to him.

2595 Young people at work
Health & Safety

Clerk: Question 50, the Hon. J J Netto.

2600 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, does the Government have a Health & Safety policy with regard to young people at work and, if so, could the Minister for Health and Safety provide a copy to Parliament?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2605 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar considers that the current legislation sufficiently caters for young people at work and it appears that the previous Administration must have also considered this sufficient, seeing that there has been no specific policy regarding young people adopted in the past sixteen years.

2610 The rights and obligations of young workers is sufficiently covered by the Working Time Act and also the Management of Health and Safety at Work Regulations, which imposes on the employers that a specific assessment of the risks to their employees be undertaken and steps taken to eliminate or reduce them.

2615 Should the need arise to afford further protection to young people at work, the Government would consider amendments to the legislation.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, my question addresses whether the current legislation is now, or before, appropriate in terms of young people at work. I am talking about policies and not legislation.

2620 My question deals with that issue and what I am trying to get from the Government, or the Minister for Health & Safety, is whether there is any policy in relation to how they go about within his own Department, in promoting good Health & Safety wherever young people may happen to be working, whatever industry groups.

2625 It is not something I am inventing. The hon. Member himself can look at the UK Health & Safety website. I have got it here in front of me and they have a lot of policies in order to make awareness, particularly those pockets of areas where young people are working. So I am not talking about legislation, I am talking about policies.

2630 Does the Minister have – if I can transform this into a question – some kind of training programmes, from a Health & Safety perspective, in order to give induction courses to young people or does the Department – his own Factory Inspector – analyse where young people may be working, what industry group they are working, what Health & Safety hazards may be typical of those particular industries, in other words, what planning, as a result of having a policy...? That is the question that I would like the Minister to address, if he can.

2635 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, there is no policy actually at present, just like there was no policy earlier.

I believe that most of the issues that affect a worker generally, be they young or of an older age, would be pretty similar and, as I said in reply to the Question, we do believe there is sufficient mention of young people within the legislation not to need this. So, as I said, there is no policy at present regarding young people.

2640 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, I do accept, obviously, there is not a policy, but could I perhaps urge the Minister that, given that young people just moving from the world of school to the world of work will be inexperienced, particularly in certain industry groups, as opposed to a fully-fledged tradesman where he would, more likely than others, know where exactly health and safety hazards are, that there is a need perhaps to develop this kind of area of work within his own Department, particularly by the Factory Inspectors. Perhaps could I urge him to look at the UK Health and Safety Executive website in terms of the promotion of Health & Safety policy among young people as a development of the work that they do? Can I urge that to the Hon. Minister?

2650 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will most definitely discuss this with the members of the Department to see whether they feel there is any need to go down this route. I will take it into consideration.

2655 New Health & Safety software Functions

Clerk: Question 51, the Hon. J J Netto.

2660 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could the Minister for Health and Safety say what other functions does the new software programme have, other than the statistics available on the Government website for the Health & Safety purposes, to assist the Factories Inspectors in their overall duties and will the Minister now produce an annual report for 2012 with the information collated with the new software programme?

2665 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker the new software programme has proved to be a user-friendly tool which apart from making statistical recording an easy task, allows for a data bank for comparisons, analysis of information and is another aid to accident investigation.

This Government may consider producing an annual report in the future but will not commit to do so. Unlike the situation in the past, this Administration keeps all information on line and this is accessible to the public. I understand that the last report published was in 2007 by the Health and Safety Advisory Committee under the previous Administration.

2675

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask the Hon. Minister what was the cost of purchasing this programme?

2680

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I was not expecting that question so I do not have that information available but I will make sure that the information is available to the hon. Gentleman if he writes to me.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Adjournment

Clerk: The Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow at 3.00 p.m.

May I, Mr Speaker, before I actually formally move the adjournment, alert Members of the House to the fact that I have circulated – they should have already – a notice of urgency in respect of a particular Bill, in respect of which I understand the Minister for Justice has already had discussions with colleagues opposite.

Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn until tomorrow afternoon at 3.00 p.m.

The House adjourned at 12.35 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

AFTERNOON SESSION: 3.00 p.m. – 5.27 p.m.

Gibraltar, Tuesday, 15th January 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 9.20 a.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE, in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: M L Farrell Esq RD in attendance]

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Tuesday 15th January 2013.
Suspension of Standing Orders. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Report to Parliament on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform Statement by the Chief Minister

10 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am happy to inform the House that I have received the Report to Parliament on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform from the Commission on such reform, of which you are Chairman and I have asked the Clerk to provide a copy for each Member of the House to consider.

15 The Report will be tabled by me at the next sitting of the Parliament. Members should treat the content as confidential until the tabling next month, when the public will have access to it and will be able to make representations to all of us. That time will allow them to consider the implications of the Report before it becomes generally available upon tabling and before we all start, I imagine, to receive representations from the community at large.

20 Our commitment, Mr Speaker, was that, once tabled, the Report should be debated within three months. I will, therefore, be moving a debate on the Report at the May sitting of this House and I think, Mr Speaker, it is likely that it may be useful that Members have a discussion across the floor of the House, but not necessarily in this House. Members from across the floor of the House should be considering some of the implications of the Report together, even perhaps before the debate on that day.

25 May I thank you, Mr Speaker and all Members of the Commission, for having finalised the Report so expeditiously and ahead of the twelve month period provided.

Questions for Oral Answer

EDUCATION, FINANCIAL SERVICES, GAMING, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

School audits Copies of reports

Clerk: Answers to Oral Questions continue.
Question 68/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education provide this House with copies of the individual audit reports, in respect of the schools which have already been audited?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

45

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the officer in charge of the Health and Safety Audit has now completed all the individual school reports.

50

The Department of Education is still awaiting the production of an over-arching report, highlighting the main health and safety issues. The process has not yet been finalised and the Government is, therefore, not in a position to consider providing individual copies of the report at this moment in time.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the Minister have a date as to when the over-arching report will be ready and made public?

Hon. G H Licudi: I am aware that it is currently being worked on.
I have not said that it will be made public; I have said that, once we receive the report, we will consider the content of the report and the request but I am aware that it is currently being worked on.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the Teacher's Association be consulted in respect of this audit report?

Hon. G H Licudi: In relation to the publication of the report, is that – The question relates to publication?

I am not sure that the ...

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: As to its findings.

Hon. G H Licudi: As to its finding...

Any matter that concerns teachers we will be discussing with the Gibraltar Teacher's Association, of course.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, if it is not made public, will the Hon. Minister extend a copy to me on a confidential basis?

Hon. G H Licudi: I cannot give any undertaking in respect of a report that I have not yet received so, once we receive the report, we will consider it and decide what needs to be done.

Department of Education and support services
Plans for Government audit

80

Clerk: Question 69, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

85

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise whether the Government will be auditing the Department of Education and its support services?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, there are no plans to audit the Department of Education or its support services.

95

Perhaps I can expand on that slightly because it is not entirely clear what the hon. Lady refers to by saying 'auditing the Department of Education and its services'. If what she means is carrying out a general review of the whole Department, all jobs, all functions and all support services, there are no plans to carry out that general review. If she wants to be a bit more specific, perhaps I can help her a little bit more.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, that is exactly what I meant, obviously to ensure that we have a value-for-money service and skills are allocated appropriately.

Hon. G H Licudi: There are no plans to carry out that general review as a systematic matter that the Government considers needs to be reviewed but, certainly, all functions of the Department of Education are looked at on a general basis and I discuss all these matters and the workings of the Department with the advisers and the Director of Education on a regular basis.

105

Implementation of EBaccs Plan of action

110

115

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise this House as to the conclusions and plan of action for the implementation of the new EBaccs after the Director of Education visited the UK in December 2012?

125

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is this the advice from the Director at this moment after his fact finding mission?

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, absolutely. This is his draft answer.

TLR Review Progress

135

Clerk: Question 71, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise what progress has been made with the TLR Review?

140 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

145 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I am advised that the previous Administration agreed with the GTA /NASUWT that a review of the Teaching and Learning Responsibility (TLR) posts should take place approximately three or four years after the structure was put in place, which happened in 2008 and was finalised in 2009. This, of course, does not necessarily mean that there is anything inherently wrong in the present structure.

150 The GTA/NASUWT has been conducting a survey of its members and proposes to provide the results of that survey to the Government. The Government will consider the data once it is received from the GTA/NASUWT and will discuss all matters connected to the TLR structure with the GTA/NASUWT after such consideration.

155 I can, in any event, confirm that the Government has reviewed the TLRs at Sacred Heart School in consultation with the GTA/NASUWT, as well as with the Head and Deputy Head of that school. As part of the Government's policy and commitment to equalise Sacred Heart to St. Joseph's Middle, Bishop Fitzgerald and St. Anne's as much as possible in numbers and in posts, the Government agreed to a re-grading of the TLRs at Sacred Heart so that they were equivalent in value and salary to the TLRs at the other schools mentioned. This was introduced with effect from 6th October 2012.

160 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

So you are saying that you are still waiting for the results from the GTA/NASUWT survey because my understanding was that they had fulfilled their part in that role.

165 Hon. G H Licudi: The result of that survey certainly has not made its way to me or, as far as I am aware, to the Department.

In fact this is, the answer that I have given, has been done in consultation with both the current Director and the previous Director who was involved when the original TLR structure was put in place, the current Chief Executive, this is the information that I have been given. I certainly do not have the data and I am expecting to receive it from the GTA so that I can consider it and discuss it with them.

170 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister said that he had conducted a process to equalise the TLR posts between the four Middle Schools in question. Has that, in itself, had an effect whereby the Head Teacher's salary which was assigned to a Group, has that also been equalised or does there still remain a disparity that some are Group 2s and others are Group 3s?

175 Hon. G H Licudi: My understanding and my recollection is that the re-grading that has occurred includes the Head and Deputy Head.

180 Bayside and Westside Schools
Equalisation of subject choices

Clerk: Question 72, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

185 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education say whether the Department of Education will be equalising the subject choices, curriculums of subjects and the formation of academic groups for the core subjects, at Bayside and Westside Schools and, if so, by when.

190 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

195 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, schools have their own individual identity based on culture and ethos and this should only change when it causes inequality of opportunity for young people. A case in point, for example, is that, for years, Bayside has not provided boys with the opportunity to repeat their GCSE year. They will now be afforded this as from September 2013.

200 Subject specifications, choice of grouping and grouping structure are decisions best left to the professionals at the scene. The Department of Education will only involve itself if these decisions give rise to situations which clearly breach basic equality of opportunity principles.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, why is it just left to the teachers? Will he parents and the students not have a say, and the teachers?

205 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, this is something that the teachers generally, the Heads and Deputy Heads, the management of the individual schools... What I am saying is that this is not something that the Department of Education itself – or myself – will get involved in when each school considers how best to structure their Groups. There are some differences between Bayside and Westside, for example, on how that is done but it seems to work for both of them and does not deny either of the schools, or the pupils of those schools, any particular opportunities.

210 Where opportunities are denied, as we identified with one school allowing repeats and the other not allowing repeats, that will be changed, but if the opportunities are the same, there will be some preferences, for example, in certain subjects that the girls prefer and other subjects that the boys prefer. That is best left for the school itself and the management structure of the school to decide.

215 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, what about choice of subjects at, say, GCSE level? I understand that, at A level, if a girl from Westside wishes to take a subject which is only available at Bayside as part of a consortium, joins that class for that, a system is not in place for GCSE. What about equalising subject choice at GCSE?

220 Hon. G H Licudi: Equalising subject choice at GCSE necessarily means removing some choices which are currently available because, if a school has one choice and another school does not, unless both schools have all choices and have sufficient teachers and resources to deal with all the choices available and have the timetable capability to deal with all the choices available, then that simply cannot be done. So either you remove some subjects and equalise them all, or you leave them each to decide which choices they should give.

225 In terms of what the hon. Lady mentions, about a student from one school going to another, for example with the consortium at A level and AS, there is a difference, of course, in that AS and A levels, the subjects themselves that are taken are few in number, three, sometimes four, and it is much easier for boys and girls to move around. They have free periods in order to do that and it is easier to timetable to meet those requirements, the requirements of the consortium.

230 At GCSE level, that would be virtually impossible. I am not sure whether the hon. Member, who was in the Department of Education for some time, would agree with this but, given the exigencies of the subject and the timetable at GCSE, it seems to me that would be next to impossible. If it could be done, I see no reason, in principle, why the Government would not support that – if it could be done – but, in practice, I envisage that it is not being done because it is simply not practical.

240 Child protection issues
Department policy

Clerk: Question 73, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

245 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise how the Department of Education deals with child protection issues and produce for this House a copy of the policy?

250 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker safeguarding children, or child protection, is governed by the Gibraltar Area Child Protection Committee.

255 This is a statutory provision, or multi-agency body, under the Children Act 2009, comprised of members from the Royal Gibraltar Police, the Care Agency, Education and the Gibraltar Health Authority. The Committee meets regularly to discuss all pertinent matters concerning the safeguarding of children in Gibraltar.

260 The GibACPC – the Committee I have mentioned – commissioned a training team in 2008 to deliver safeguarding training to Gibraltar Government employees and Police working directly with children. Every Government school now has a minimum of two designated persons who have received Safeguarding and Promoting the Welfare of Children Training, Level 1, a course approved by the NSPCC, or the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. This course provides comprehensive information, including procedures to be used in the event that a child is at risk, or is 265 suffering significant harm. Those attending the course are issued with a policy document: 'What to do if you are worried that a child is being abused'. That is a UK Department of Health publication from May 2003 which covers procedures for referrals and post-referral action, including teacher involvement at case conferences, working in multi-agency capacity and keeping records. The publication offers flow charts for quick referencing.

270 Safeguarding training is on-going and in the academic year 2011/2012 alone, 32 teachers received Level 1 training. In addition, the training team now offers Level 2 training and this, too, will be on-going.
The Department of Education has produced a draft Safeguarding Children Policy document specifically for schools and the Gibraltar College. This document serves to provide guidelines to schools and the College with respect to the safeguarding responsibility. Given that the policy is in draft form, it would not 275 be prudent to disseminate until a final version is produced.

School IT provision Disparity between Bayside and Westside

280

Clerk: Question 74, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education explain why Bayside 285 School has a committed IT technician and Westside School does not and whether this will be rectified as part of the Government's commitment to IT services for all schools in their manifesto.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, Government's IT and Logistics Department is now required to provide IT services for schools. Historically, Bayside has had an IT technician post assigned to it, whereas Westside did not. When this post became vacant in 2009, it was never filled, yet the vacancy was covered by a supply IT technician.

This is one of the anomalies that this Government committed to rectify – that is to say, the anomaly of having permanent posts covered by supply workers. The technician at Bayside was, therefore, given permanent employment with the IT and Logistics Department and he is now seconded to Bayside. I can also confirm that the recruitment of extra technicians for the provision of IT services in all schools, including Westside, is well underway.

Homework Support Group Government policy

305

Clerk: Question 75, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Education now in a position to 310 explain how the Government's 'Homework Support Group's' policy will work and when the programme will start?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications
and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I am happy to report that this is, in fact, already being piloted at different levels.
Within the secondary sector and in the core subjects, students who require additional help with their extended work, homework, are systematically being supported by teachers during lunchtimes and, indeed, after school.

Secondly, the Department of Education has put in place additional support classes for GCSE and A Level Mathematics hosted at the Department of Education on a weekly basis, where students are taught essential problem-solving skills and, crucially, how to apply what has been covered in class in a range of unfamiliar situations.

325 Clearly, all this is work in progress and the advisory service is constantly monitoring and evaluating successful implementation and future demand.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the pilot be set up for the primary sector?

330 Hon. G H Licudi: As I have said, this is something that is being piloted at the moment over the course of this year. We will review, at the end of this academic year, and see to what extent, and how, we can extend this to other sectors.

335 Department bus driver
Status of post

Clerk: Question 76, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

340 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education say whether the full-time post of Department of Education bus driver has been filled?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

345 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the vacancy was first advertised internally on 2nd February 2012 and then on 19th September 2012 but there were no eligible applicants.

350 The vacancy was subsequently advertised in December 2012, opening the vacancy out to applicants from Government Agencies and Authorities to widen the range of potential applicants. The closing date was Friday 11th January and I am, therefore, expecting the vacancy to be filled very shortly or imminently.

355 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the Minister have an idea of how many people applied for the job?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have absolutely no idea. The closing date was last Friday and I have not enquired or become involved in the number of people that do apply but I do expect, and I am pushing for this particular vacancy to be filled as soon as possible.

15-year olds dropping out of school
Government policy

365 Clerk: Question 77, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker can the Minister for Education state how many 15-year olds dropped out of school during the academic year 2011/2012 by school and how many 15-year olds have dropped out this academic year so far by school and how is Government catering for them?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

375 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the numbers of 15-year olds who have left school are as follows – Bayside 2011/2012 – 29; Westside 2011/2012 – 7 and, so far in 2013, or rather this academic year, Bayside 5 and Westside 3.

All 15-year olds who drop out of school are entitled to register at the Employment Service, where they are interviewed to assist them in obtaining employment.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, are you saying that they will be put on the Future Job Strategy Scheme?

385 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): In the case of the school leavers – and, in fact, we are talking about between 15 and 18 – we have identified over 100 who are interested in going into construction trade apprenticeships. We are talking to people from City and Guilds in London, with a view to introducing construction trades training which is more relevant to what is required by the industry in Gibraltar than some of the stuff we have been doing in the past, which has been too closely following the curriculum of the United Kingdom.

390 For example, recently in the UK they introduced a requirement to be trained in central heating to qualify for an NVQ in plumbing, so we are looking in particular at the multi-skills NVQ qualification of City & Guilds, where somebody can do a variety of tasks like bricklaying, plastering and tiling, instead of it being three different trades. We have already identified over 100 who have expressed an interest in that area and are now being familiarised with the world of the construction industry.

395 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, finally, will Government consider raising the minimum school leaving age to sixteen after an attempt at GCSE exams?

400 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, that is a power which the Minister for Education currently has under the Education Act and it is a matter that I will be giving consideration to, in conjunction with the professionals, as to whether that is, in fact, the right option, the right thing for us to do. That will be done, clearly, in consultation and in conjunction with the Employment Service as to whether we should require children up to the age of 16 to stay at school and thereafter either to carry on with their education or receive employment opportunities. It is a matter that is being given consideration.

405 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for Employment for his contribution/clarification.

Is the Minister for Employment aware of some problems that were experienced in the United Kingdom whereby, following the example he just gave, instead of an apprentice just coming out with an NVQ Level 2 – for example, in bricklaying or tiling – there is a more collective one, where I think the nomenclature is the ‘wet trade’ and, although they ended up with a valid City & Guilds accredited NVQ Level 2 craftsman status, the problem experienced in the UK was that potential employers were not quite keen on that because they felt the individual was not specialist enough. He had just basic knowledge of bricklaying and tiling and they were looking for more specialisation.

415 I just raise this so that, I hope, the Hon. Minister will make himself aware of experiences where potential employers have not quite grabbed these newly qualified, more general trained craftsmen, because we do not want a situation where we are investing good money in good worthwhile courses and yet the employers are the ones that are not reacting favourably. I do not know if the Minister has already had some talks with that about that topic with City & Guilds itself?

420 Hon. J J Bossano: I think, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Member is quite right in respect of the reaction of employers in the UK.

I think the reason why the courses are structured the way they are is because they are structured like that in response to the requirements of the UK industry. In effect, that reflects that the training in the UK is primarily for new construction and, clearly, in new construction, a bricklayer is much more productive but is only used for bricklaying and then moves on to another building site to carry on with bricklaying.

430 I think, increasingly, the requirement for a Gibraltar-based industry will be in the maintenance of buildings, rather than in the construction of buildings. So, whereas we may need to import the workers when the building goes up initially, what we are now finding is that we are not producing enough people to look after those buildings and, in looking after those buildings, it is not a question of building a building from scratch, in terms of brickwork, but rather replacing the odd brick here and there or, you know, putting in a bathroom or having to knock down something and put it up again. That is where the multi-skilled element means that, in effect, what we are trying to produce here, is what is available now from sources in Spain and Portugal, where what we call a mason here is really a multi-skilled wet trade craftsman that can do tiling, bricklaying, plastering and rendering – all four trades – whereas, in the UK, they tend to be four different skills, with four different qualifications.

440 We are trying to make the local qualification of the standard of the UK but of the content of what the industry in Gibraltar requires, because one of the arguments that we have found with the people that we have produced is that somebody says they want a mason and we can deliver a tiler or a bricklayer or a plasterer, but we have not got a mason and we are not producing them.

ENTERPRISE, TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT

Statutory benefits Unemployed Moroccan workers

450

Clerk: Question 52, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Social Security state how many of the 42 Moroccan workers registered unemployed, as answered in Question No. 1055/2012 are in receipt of Unemployment Benefit or Social Assistance?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training And Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 53 and 55.

Statutory Benefits Fund.
Actuarial review

465

470

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Social Security say if the Government has conducted an actuarial review of the Statutory Benefits Fund during 2012, in order to determine the long term liabilities of the various Statutory Benefits payable arising from the Social Insurance contribution?

475

Maternity Grant applications

480

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Social Security say if any application received and approved for Maternity Grant, as shown in the Government website table SS.3 as updated on 10th December 2012, emanated from a common law relationship, whereby the contribution made by the mother was insufficient in accordance with the rules of the scheme but, on the other hand, the contributions of the biological father did meet the contributions required for a married father?

485

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

490

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, of the 42 Moroccan workers mentioned, two were in receipt of Social Assistance and one in receipt of Unemployment Benefit. There has been no actuarial review of the Statutory Benefits Fund and, in relation to the Maternity Grant, no such applications have been received.

495

Hon. J J Netto: In relation to Question 52, of the 42 Moroccan workers, the answer provided by the Minister is that there are two in Social Assistance and one in Unemployment Benefit. Do I take it, therefore, that there are 39 Moroccans with, perhaps, no income whatsoever?

500

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it does not follow that they have no income whatsoever, if the hon. Member remembers, they range up to the age of seventy-two. Therefore, they have Household Cost Allowance and they have got Old Age pensions, if they are resident in Gibraltar, after the age of 65. The position is that the ratio is no different from the ratio generally in terms of the unemployed, where the proportions that are getting benefit is limited, compared to the numbers that are unemployed not receiving either Social Assistance or Unemployment Benefit, as he must know since those ratios have not changed since he was there.

Hon. J J Netto: My understanding would be, Mr Speaker, that these particular unemployed Moroccans would, although registered as unemployed, they would not be in receipt of Community Care, as the Hon. Minister has just stated.

Therefore, one probably concludes that the only reason why they are still registered as unemployed is because they have no other source of income – whether it is a pension – at all. So it must almost necessarily follow that, if they are registered unemployed, they are not in receipt of Unemployment Benefit, they are not receiving Social Assistance, they are not in receipt of Community Care and, most probably, they are not in receipt of any pension, whether Social Security pension or any occupational pension, that they have no income whatsoever – taking into account the situation where most of these people have been in Gibraltar, working in Gibraltar, paying taxes, paying Social Insurance, and not receiving anything from the State, despite the contributions they have made to Gibraltar.

If that is not the case, would the Hon. Minister please look into the matter to try and see whether there are these people who have been long-standing residents in Gibraltar and have no income whatsoever? If that is the case, will the Government or the Minister make a review to ensure that these Moroccans are not destitute with no source of income?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is making a whole series of assumptions and then asking me to do something to investigate if his assumptions are right and to do something to correct his assumptions, if they prove to be right.

All I can tell him is that the position of the Moroccans has not changed since 9th December 2011. Therefore, if they were destitute then, they are destitute now. I do not believe they were destitute then or now because, it seems to me, I have just produced the answer to the Question, which asked specifically, of the 42, how many were getting Social Assistance.

I will find out if the 42 qualify for Social Assistance. Because it is means tested, I can only suppose that the level of the means test prevents other people from getting Social Assistance. The fact that they are Moroccan does not mean that the test applied to Moroccans is any different to the test applied to Gibraltarians. For means-tested benefits, I am sorry, the hon. Member is wrong. He may say ‘Yes’. If he knows that we have had one regime for Moroccans, in terms of being able to get Social Assistance, which is different from the regime that applies to Gibraltar, and he has known it for 15 years, perhaps he can let me have the information and save me having to carry out the research. I will see if I can put right what he allowed to be wrong for 15 years!

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the system in place is the system that he introduced when he was Chief Minister, in other words move the benefit from being statutory to being an administrative rule so the system is the system he introduced. But given that he is not going to do anything in terms of at least looking, which is not a major exercise, looking whether these 39 Moroccans given that he is both the Minister for Employment and Social Security, he can easily, with such a low figure, take it to the Social Security Department, make a review and see what the [inaudible] but if he does not want to do it, fine: he does not want to do it.

Moving on, Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 53, in terms of my question, which is an actuarial review, I think the Minister said that no actuarial review has been conducted during the course of 2012. Could I perhaps ask him, in a supplementary question, whether the Government does not believe that having an actuarial review is a good thing in itself, particularly given the manifesto commitment of the Party opposite in Government to make a review in this particular area, in order to inform their decisions whenever they wish to do any amendments in this particular area of work.

Hon. J J Bossano: Obviously, Mr Speaker, if we thought that it was necessary to have an actuarial review we would have done it. Since he likes to make deductions from the answers, I would have thought he deduced already that we did not think it was necessary when I told him we had not done it.

In fact, I have to tell him that the Government in which he served did not think it was necessary, either, when I raised it from his side of the House. Perhaps he should go back and look at the answers that I was given. The reason for that was that, at one stage, when actuarial reviews were being done, they were being done on the basis that the Social Insurance Benefits were funded partly from the return on the investments and partly from the contributions and it was in order to recommend the increase in contributions that was required, by projecting forward the return on those investments.

As I think the former Chief Minister told me in answer to my question, in relation to the matter, some years ago, the position now is that, with present interest rates, there is no way of making the Social Insurance Fund self-funding and, effectively, it is a pay-as-you-go fund, which means that you collect the money and you pay it out, except that the amount that we collect is £10 million a year less than the amount that we pay. You do not require to pay an actuary to know that you have got a deficit of £10 million. All you need to do is to look at the accounts. And you do not need an actuary to tell you, in fact, that if you want to wipe out the annual deficit of £10 million by how much you need to increase the contributions. The reason for the actuarial review was making a projection in terms of the prospective burden on the Fund in the future.

I can tell him that one of the shortcomings in the last actuarial review that was made was that it was 570 based on the resident workforce and he may or may not know that the Department of Social Security produced a report some years ago – I think it was in 2010 – pointing out the long-term problem that there was with all the workers that are not resident in Gibraltar who, under Community law, if they had done 52 weeks here, will eventually be entitled to a pension. It is in the knowledge that that problem exists in the future, that we are looking not so much at getting an actuary to tell us how much more we all need to pay, which may well be double what we are paying now, in order to put the existing Fund on a sound footing but we are looking – and I am specifically looking – at how we can create a Fund for the future that addresses that problem.

575 It is not simply a question of an actuarial review because, fundamentally, an actuarial review would be if we were intending to keep with the system, which is already losing £10 million a year, and loses an increasing amount every year because, in fact, the ratio of recipients of benefit to contributors is all the time changing negatively: that is to say that, every year, there are more people being paid than people paying in.

580 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Minister for Employment actually have any figures in relation to the ages of these 42 Moroccan unemployed, with him?

585 Hon. J J Bossano: No, I have not got it with me, Mr Speaker, because I gave them in the answer to the question, as referred to by the original Question. I gave the age of each and every one of them. How many there were of 60 or 61 or 62, all the way to 72.

590 Hon. D A Feetham: Is he also satisfied now... We do not know what the unemployment figures are, I have got a question in the Order Paper later on. He did say, on the last occasion, that he thought that unemployment was around the 500 figure mark (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes)

595 When I last asked him, is he satisfied, on the basis that it is about 500, therefore the percentage is about 8.4% Moroccan workers... The 42 account for about 8.4% of the overall unemployment figures. Is he satisfied that that figure does not indicate a high level of unemployment amongst the Moroccan community, bearing in mind the number of Moroccans here in Gibraltar? Is he satisfied with that and that these are within normal parameters?

600 Hon. J J Bossano: The mission of the Employment Services is to employ everybody who is registered as unemployed, irrespective of their nationality or their age. It is not very normal to have people over 65 who are already drawing a pension, registered as unemployed but, in Gibraltar, the pension is not related to having to give up work, like it is in the United Kingdom.

605 In the United Kingdom you could not have both your Social Insurance pension and be registered and be working but you can here. Therefore, people are perfectly entitled, after they retire, to register and seek a second job and the group that we are talking about specifically... the original question was over 60. So, the fact that there are... (Interjection) Over 60, yes.

Hon. D A Feetham: So the position with the 42 is that these 42 are over 60. In fact, there may well be more Moroccan unemployed that are over 60.

610 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.

Hon. D A Feetham: I understand.

Future Job Strategy scheme
Persons employed previously and in receipt of social assistance

620 Clerk: Question 54, the Hon. J J Netto.

625 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment and Social Security say how many of the persons employed, who have been in receipt of Social Assistance in the age group 18 to 25, are shown in the Government website Table SS.8 as updated on 10th December 2012, found employment through the Future Job Strategy Scheme or through alternative means during 2012, broken down by month and gender?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will 630 answer this question with Question 56, 58, 59 and 64.

635 Future Job Strategy scheme
Companies which have signed contracts with ECTL

Clerk: Question 56, the Hon. D A Feetham.

640 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state how many companies signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited as at 31st December 2012?

645 Future Job Strategy scheme
Trainees placed in public service

Clerk: Question 58.

650 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a breakdown of Government Departments, Government companies or Authorities in which each Future Job Strategy trainee is placed, indicating in relation to each, the type of training that person is receiving?

655 Future Job Strategy scheme
Trainees placed in private / public sector

Clerk: Question 59.

660 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state, as at 31st December 2012, how many Future Job Strategy trainees were placed in the private sector and how many in the public sector.

665 Future Job Strategy scheme
Companies which have signed contracts with ECTL

Clerk: Question 64.

670 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Employment now in a position to provide a list of names of employers who have signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited in respect of the Future Job Strategy employees.

675 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the number of trainees who found employment through the Scheme in 2012, broken down by month, is as follows – February – 1; April – 1; May – 2; July – 2; August – 2; September – 1; October – 2 and November – 1. Broken down by gender: nine males and three females.

680 The number of trainees who found employment through alternative means by month was January – 2; February – 4; March – 1, May – 1; July – 3 and November – 2. The gender breakdown is nine males and seven females.

685 Mr Speaker: If I may interrupt the hon. Gentleman. Did you say May – 1?

Hon. J J Bossano: No. Male nine and seven females. The gender breakdown.

Clerk: No, May – the month of May.

690 Mr Speaker: The month of May.

Hon. J J Bossano: No. No. Oh, in May... Sorry, in May it was 4.

695 As at 31st December 2012, 179 companies had signed contracts with the Employment and Training Company Limited. The persons receiving training through the public service are distributed in the following areas:

700 Care Agency; Ministry of Enterprise; Training & Employment; Department of Social Security; Department of Consumer Affairs; Department of Education; GHA; Citizen's Advice Bureau; Gibraltar Court Service; Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority; Gibraltar Tourist Board; Ministry of Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth; Human Resources Department; Royal Gibraltar Police; Statistics Department; Treasury Department; Gibraltar Bus Company; Ministry for Social Affairs; Ministry of Finance and Education; Gibraltar Electricity Authority; Gibraltar Maritime Administration; Income Tax Department; Housing Works Agency; Department of Postal Services and Terminal Management.

705 The type of training that these individuals are receiving are as follows: Administration and office skills – 81; Construction – 59; Social and health care training – 43; Mechanical and allied trades – 24.

As at the 31st December 2012, 331 trainees were placed in the private sector and 207 were placed within the public sector. The following employers have signed partnership agreements with ETCM: Acehoba Limited; Music Copyright (Gibraltar) Limited; Hammonds; SFA Total Refurbishments; A & K General Builders Limited.

710 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, unless I am mistaken, he has not answered... Ah! That was the one... I beg your pardon, 57... We have not asked 57, just 56 and then we went over to 58.

715 Mr Speaker, just in relation to 56, the number of companies that have signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited as at 31st December 2012, can the Hon. the Minister for Employment confirm that every single one of those companies that have signed contracts actually has a trainee placed with them.

Hon. J J Bossano: I cannot tell him at this very moment how many have because, in fact, they all have different starting dates and different finishing dates.

720 There are some companies, for example, that have taken on some people, employed the ones they took initially, and asked for more trainees. There are others that have only taken on trainees in the last month or so and there are others that may have taken the trainee on after the completion and no longer have any, but I would say those are the minority because the initial thing was 11 months, starting from February onwards. Therefore, there were very few on 1st February when the system came into being and although, 725 in some cases, the period of the training has been less, quite a lot of these training agreements were for the eleven months and therefore would be expiring in January. So there would be, I would say, quite a lot of the 179 – if not all of them – still have some people of the ones that started initially but are now reaching the end.

730 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, the reason why I ask is because I asked a Written Question – Question 257/2012 – I asked this question in writing and you very kindly provided a schedule containing the answer. There were 22 companies that did not actually have any trainees that had signed contracts, but did not appear to have any trainees. Can he explain why such a large number of companies that have signed contracts with trainees – I can, in fact, hand over the schedule to him so he can verify for himself... but that is the answer that he gave me in writing in December last year.

735 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, yes. There is no mystery, Mr Speaker.

740 I am telling him that the trainees go in and come out. Therefore, people can sign... they sign the contract at the beginning and the training may start later. That might have been either people who have not yet taken them on or who have now employed them. It does not mean that there has to be a simultaneous, instantaneous commitment translated into [inaudible]. Somebody can sign an agreement this week and the trainee can start in three weeks' time, or somebody could have signed the agreement and the trainee finished three weeks ago.

745 At any point in time there will be a given number that are in the process of either taking them on as employees or starting on with new trainees. There is nothing special about 20

750 Hon. D A Feetham: Can it also include a situation where the company has signed the contract with ETCL but, in fact, has not decided to take on the trainee on a permanent basis? Therefore, the figures that you are giving me – the 179 – actually includes, within that, a number of companies that have done precisely that, taken somebody on but then said this person is not suitable and sent them back to the ETB. Can that also explain the figures...?

Hon. J J Bossano: I think it is important to recall that we are not training people where there are no jobs. There are vacant jobs in respect of which we are providing trainees from the Department. Therefore, 755 this is clearly an inducement to overcome the argument of an employer, that the reason why they bring somebody from outside is because there is nobody trained here.

760 If we provide somebody, we give the person a choice of a number of possible candidates. The employer selects the trainee and has a month in which to decide whether they consider that person to be suitable. If, at the end of the month, they send that person back, then they get given a replacement. There is no case of a company saying: 'I'm signing an agreement and then you send me somebody for one month – I don't want this one and don't send me any more...' That does not happen – if that is the question.

765 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what I am trying to really look at, and trying to verify for myself, is the success of the Scheme. Of course, you say there are 179 companies that have signed contracts with ETCL: of course, we then look at the number of trainees that have actually been taken on permanently – and I accept that we are now coming to the end of the 11 months for the first batch of –

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.

770 Hon. D A Feetham: – people that signed contracts but, in relation to the success rate – and the success rate is relatively low... I am not suggesting that it is going to remain low and I hope the Hon. the Minister for Employment is very successful in ensuring that trainees find employment. But, of course, the figures that he is giving me is that 12 trainees have actually found a job as a consequence of the Scheme – the Future Job Strategy Scheme – placed and then taken on by the employer. That is 12: nine male, three female so, of course, there appears to be a discrepancy at the present moment. 'Discrepancy', perhaps, is the wrong word but there is a gulf between those 12 and the 179 contracts.

775 One would expect there to be a figure closer to 179 people that are ultimately taken on, so can he assure the House that, in fact, when one looks at these figures that he is confident that, come the maturity of these contracts, so to speak, after 11 months that the figure is going to be closer to 179 rather than obviously the 12 that it is at the moment?

780 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it is a little bit closer because I can tell the hon. Member that this figure is at the end of December and it is already closer today, that is, there have been a number that have been taken on since.

785 I think there are two elements in the arithmetic that he is doing that he is overlooking. One is that there are people who have left and found another job but in the same industry. That is to say, we have got people who are in construction training who finish up maybe working for somebody else rather than the person who is training them. There is nothing... We cannot penalise the employer for that. And there are people who have found jobs in a completely different industry where, in fact, the nature of the training is not as specific as construction.

790 We have, for example, somebody that may have been training to be a receptionist in a legal firm and has found a better job in a gaming company and left, so they are in the figures that I gave him. I gave him both the people who have found work, other than with a training provider, and the people who have found work with the training provider.

795 So, the answer is that it was not because the training provider did not want them. I think the fact is that the some of the employers are not entirely happy about the situation where they do the training and then somebody else gets the benefit of that training, but the commitment applies only one way. We do not have a requirement that the trainee cannot go. It is that the trainer has either to take him on or pay.

800 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker.

805 Of course, the answer the hon. Gentleman has just provided me also makes an assumption – an important assumption – because it is underpinned by the assumption that the 16 who found jobs off their own bat, so to speak, have been employed in the same industry and that the placement that they had in relation to the Future Job Strategy, and whatever training they may have received, was actually relevant to the job that they ultimately found. Can the Minister, perhaps, enlighten this House in relation to that? Does he know, out of the 16 that found jobs off their own bat, how many of those actually found employment in the same industry or sector in which they were trained as Future Job Strategy trainees.

810 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I can only give him an indication, Mr Speaker, because he is not asking me a supplementary about the Question he has put now, he is asking me a supplementary about the written answer to a written Question of the last House.

815 Hon. D A Feetham: I am asking him in relation to the answer that he has given to the Question that my hon. Friend, Mr Netto, has asked. Because you have batched his Question with mine and because they are relevant to mine, I have sought to ask you a supplementary in relation to that. But it is in relation to

No. 54 that you have answered: Nine male, three female have found jobs as a consequence of their training and within the company that they were placed as Future Job Strategy trainees, and nine males and seven females have found jobs off their own bat but not in the company that they were placed...

820 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes. Those were people within the ages between 18 and 25. Therefore, in that area, what I have told you in relation to the normal working of the Scheme does not necessarily apply – that was in relation to the information on the internet, in the table from the Social Security.

825 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I wonder whether the Hon. Minister can clarify, because the figures that he has provided me in Question 54 do not seem to square up with the Government figures on the Government website. From the figures he has provided me, (Laughter) after looking at the column 18 to 25, it did say there had been a total of 10 people who found employment through the Future Job Strategy Scheme and there had been another 16 who had found employment through other means. That makes it a total of 26. When we look at the Government website for December, which is what my questions asks – 830 December – the number of people in December who found employment in the column, 18 to 25, is 4, so am I missing something out or does the figure not tally?

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the answer that was prepared, was prepared on the basis of all the people that were in that table who had found employment at different months of the year.

Hon. J J Netto: No, for December. If the Hon. Minister would give way – if he goes to my Question, my Question asked for December.

Hon. J J Bossano: No, the hon. Member asked in respect of December: the reference is as updated in December and the table was updated in December but it does not mean that it was updated by putting a figure about December. It was updated because the last time the figures were there were for June and the

Hon. J J Netto: So do I take it that the figures given me is from January to December.
845

Hon. J J Bossano: Absolutely, yes.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker. In relation to Question 58, he gave me a list of Authorities and a list of Departments which is all very helpful, and he also gave me the totals at the end. What he did not give me – what the Question asks – is a breakdown in relation to each Department where those trainees are actually placed. In other words, in the Department of Trade and Industry, or Department of Enterprise, there are three trainees; in the Leisure Authority there are nine trainees. That is what I was asking. Does he have that information, that he can provide, because that is the question?

Hon. J J Bossano: I do not have that information, but I did give him the answer last time when he asked the same thing. I told him that people are moved from one area to the other and I can tell him that the answer I can give him today will not necessarily be true tomorrow. Now, if that is what he wants to know, at a particular day on a particular time – how many there were in different places – then I can get that for him but it is not that they are there permanently.
855

Hon. D A Feetham: No, I understand that they are not there normally.

The Questions are all designed to give me a picture of what the position is on a quarterly basis. I don't mind if the hon. Gentleman provides that information on a quarterly basis and I don't have to ask him on a month by month basis, but I would certainly appreciate if the hon. Member were to provide me with that information because it is what the Question asked. I will then not ask the same Question until three months' time so that I know what, effectively, the movement of trainees is within Departments on a quarterly basis, providing me with a picture. I do not need it on a monthly basis, but if he can... Can he write to me and provide me with that information, bearing in mind that I have already asked the Question...

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, there's no problem with that, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I have done the exercise once again on the basis of the latest information and it still does not tally. The figures he produced was 26 but if you add the column on the Government website it's 32.

Hon. J J Bossano: I will check the accuracy of the figures. All I can tell him is that, Mr Speaker, I 880 spent a lot of time asking people to make sure that the answers that they give tally and have them working overtime on Saturdays and Sundays to make sure it happens, but it may have escaped the tally that they are required to do. I will make sure that, if there is an inaccuracy in the numbers given, it is put right.

885 Registered unemployed
Figures for 2012 quarters

Clerk: Question 57, the Hon. D A Feetham.

890 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr. Speaker, can the Minister for Employment provide the figures for registered unemployed for each of the quarters in 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

895 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question with 60, 61, 62 and 63.

900 Job vacancies
Figures for 2012

Clerk: Question 60.

905 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment state how many job vacancies were being filled by people who were registered as unemployed between (a) 0-3 months (b) 3-6 months (c) 6-12 months (d) 12-24 months and (e) above 24 months for 2012?

910 Registered unemployed
As at 31st December 2012

Clerk: Question 61, the Hon. D A Feetham.

915 Hon D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state how many people were registered unemployed as at 31st December 2012 between (a) 0-3 months (b) 3-6 months (c) 6-12 months (d) 12-24 months and (e) above 24 months?

920 Notice of termination / engagement
Public sector for 2012

925 Clerk: Question 62, the Hon. D A Feetham.

930 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state how many (a) notices of termination of employment and (b) notices of engagement of employment were received by the ETB from the public sector in 2012 including, for the avoidance of doubt, Government-owned companies and Authorities, divided by nationality?

935 Notice of termination / engagement
Private sector for 2012

Clerk: Question 63, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment state how many notices of (a) termination of employment and (b) engagement of employment were received by the ETB in respect of the private 940 sector in 2012, divided (a) by nationality, and (b) by industry sector.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

945 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the average figures for registered unemployed Gibraltarians for each quarter of 2012 are as follows: 1st quarter – 522; 2nd quarter – 4...

I'll start again. The average figures for registered unemployed Gibraltarians for each quarter of 2012 are as follows: 1st quarter – 522; 2nd quarter – 484; 3rd quarter – 588 and 4th quarter – 493.

950 The vacancies filled in 2012 by registered unemployed between a period of 0-3 months – 7,149; from 3-6 months – 208; from 6-12 months – 78; from 12-24 months – 28; and 24 and above – 72.

Registered unemployed as at 31st December 2012, broken down by the period of time registered, were: up to 3 months – 200; 3-6 months – 106; 6-12 months – 62; 12-24 months – 16; and above 24 months – 19.

955 Hon. D A Feetham: 19?

Hon. J J Bossano: 19: 1-9.

In the public service in 2012, the number of terminations by nationality was as follows: Gibraltarian – 588; Moroccan – 23; British – 113; EEC – 18; Non EEC – 2; Spanish – 68.

960 Engagements, by nationality, in the public sector were: Gibraltarians – 1,267; Moroccan – 11; Other British – 153; Other EEC – 18; Non EEC – 4; Spanish – 40.

In the private sector the terminations, by nationality, were: Gibraltarians – 2,086; Moroccan – 100; Other British – 1,601; Other EEC – 1,012; Non EEC – 120; Spanish nationals – 1,924.

965 By Industry Code, the breakdown is as follows: Water Supply – 5; Shipbuilding – 301; Other manufacturing – 59; Construction – 1,449; Wholesale – 100; Retail Trade – 590; Hotel Trade – 62; Bars and restaurants – 689; Repair of consumer goods – 42; Sea transport – 104; Air transport – 8; Road transport – 146; Post and communications – 17; Banking Finance and Insurance – 879; Public Administration – 141; Police and Fire Services – 153; Education – 54; Medical and Health Service – 36; Other Services – 2,008.

970 Engagements in the private sector in 2012, by nationality, were: Gibraltarians – 1,521; Moroccans – 79; Other British – 1,628; Other EEC – 934; Non EEC – 132; Spanish nationals – 1,748

As I informed the Member before, the computer programme does not provide the function of giving a breakdown by industry in respect of vacancies filled.

975 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, obviously in the time available I cannot do an analysis in relation to Question 62 and Question 63. I did do the analysis the last time I asked – I have asked on a number of occasions but for the last time I had useful information, for a useful period of time, I undertook the analysis and – I am just looking at my analysis and then ask the Question – if one looks at the notices of engagement and the notices of termination both between the private sector and the public sector for the first six months of last year, in relation to the private sector there is a deficit of engagement, in relation to terminations, of 108. In other words, there are 108 more terminations than there are engagements.

980 In the public sector there are actually 610 in the public sector surplus, so there are 610 more engagements than there are terminations. Does he know whether that is the trend that continues, from the figures that he has provided me, right through the year, from June last year when I last did this exercise? I did it for the first six months. Does he know whether that trend carries forward?

985 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the trend is in the same direction. I cannot tell him offhand whether it is to the same degree. That is to say, I cannot tell him whether the numbers in the second half have been the same as the number in the first but I can tell him that the number has been a decline in the private sector and an increase in the public sector in the second half as well.

990 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I appreciate the answer. That is precisely what I thought would be the trend. Can the Hon. the Minister for Employment provide an explanation as to why there is this trend of a decrease in notices of engagement in relation to those of termination in the private sector?

995 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, the answer to that is already available to him in what I have read out because there is an industry breakdown. He will see that the biggest single increase in terminations is in the construction industry, and when I have given him the industry breakdown, he will see that, although it is spread throughout the industry, 1,449 are in the 'construction sector' and 'other services' is the biggest of the lot, which is 2,008. In the 'other services' we have a fairly high turnover in the gaming industry, where the figures are very high but, in fact, the terminations have been of this order regularly. That is to say, there is... I mentioned before that we have a very, very high churn of workers in the private sector – of the order of 30% or 40%.

1005 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, but you see, again, in June and July of this year, when I looked at the figures for the loss of employment within the construction industry, the loss of employment within the construction industry had actually occurred at the beginning of last year. It happened to coincide with the fact that the new Government – the new administration – had come into office, had stopped virtually 1010 all of the projects that pertained from the previous administration and there were a lot of construction workers laid off at the beginning of the year. Now, is he saying that that construction lay-off has actually continued across the year because I don't think that is right?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the figure of 1,449 is for the whole year. I don't have the figure for the first six months but he will be able to tell, by comparing this with the previous one, how much more there has 1015 been in the reduction in that area.

I think the hon. Member should remember that there is a constant, and there has always been a constant, move of workers in that industry from one employer to the other. That is, if one company loses a contract, they lay people off and if another company gets it, they take them on. In fact, in the economy as a whole the difference between the level of employment in December 2011 and the level of 1020 employment in December 2012 is 120.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr. Speaker, yes but, according to these figures that he has provided – the level of employment – the increases are in the public sector, not in the private sector, so any increase has been 1025 in the public sector.

Can I ask the hon. Gentleman, is he concerned by this apparent loss of jobs in the private sector and does he expect there to be an upturn in jobs in the private sector in relation to this coming year – looked at the last year – this coming year, bearing in mind any projects that the Government may have in the pipeline, for example? First, does he feel concerned about the trend and is he confident that the trend will be reversed this year?

Hon J J Bossano: Well, I can tell him the trend that will not be reversed this year, and that is that in the last 12 months, we have had a very substantial increase in the number of Gibraltarians working and that trend will continue in the next year. That I can tell you.

Therefore, Gibraltarians and other residents in the figures that I have given him, if he looks at it and he compares the nationality breakdown, he will find that there have been more Gibraltarians and British citizens gaining employment in the year than those losing employment in the year

What we have lost have been Frontier Workers who, clearly, only come in when we are short of workers locally. So if there was tomorrow, a great deal of increase in construction work and the industry is incapable of meeting that demand, people will come in and if those works finish, people will go out. That has been the pattern for as long as Gibraltar has been relying on imported workers for its construction industry – and that is where most of it is.
1040

In the case of the other services, as I say, a big chunk of the other services are the gaming companies and whether they lay people off or they take people on is not something that is in the gift of the Government of Gibraltar. If it was up to us, I would have them taking on new people all the time but the private sector provides work because there is a need for manpower. To the extent that we cannot meet the manpower from Gibraltar's own resources, they have to bring them in from outside. It is the policy of the Government to try and meet as much as it is possible to meet from within Gibraltar and we hope to get there eventually.
1045

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, with respect to the hon. Gentleman, he has not provided me with an answer.
1050

I understand that there has been an increase. What I am suggesting, and what the figures show, is that the increase in jobs has been in the public sector, not in the private sector: in the private sector there has been a decrease in jobs. I accept that, in the public sector, from the answer that he has provided me, the majority of jobs in the public sector have gone to Gibraltarians, in fact – not British: there is a deficit in British, certainly for the first six months of last year. (Interjection by Hon. J J Bossano) I accept Gibraltarians but that indicates that the Government is creating employment within the public sector, most of which actually happens to be Future Job Strategy trainees because there are 500 out of – for example, during the first six months of last year, the 608 in the public sector – Gibraltarians 500 and something of those, 50 of those were within the Future Job Strategy Scheme and the remainder were, obviously, increases of employment within the public sector.

An increase in employment in the public sector, whilst it may create economic activity – and I accept it : people in jobs then have money in order to get mortgages and spend etc – is not reflective of the 1065 general health of the economy and the labour market if what we see on the other side, in the private sector, is a decrease in jobs.

So, I will ask him again: is he satisfied that there is no downward trend in jobs in the private sector and none that the Government believes it has got to reverse during the course of this year?

1070 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, he knows the answer to the question that he is asking because he has actually identified that the bulk of those public sector jobs are people in training who will be given jobs by the private sector. They appear as public sector now but they will appear as private sector employees the moment the training is over. That is the answer: he knows it.

1075 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries?

Public sector employees Breakdown and details

1080 Clerk: Question 65, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1085 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Government provide a breakdown, by nationality and department, of employees within the public sector, including Government companies and Authorities, on 11 month contracts stating, in relation to each, when they were first employed, irrespective of the date on which their current 11 month contracts commenced?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1090 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I am informed by the relevant Departments that this information is not computerised and therefore not readily available.

1095 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, it is a very convenient situation indeed.
Can the Hon. the Minister for Employment provide me with an indication of when he feels that this information might become available and if I asked it again – if I asked it, for example, next month – whether he would have the information next month? You see, we have expressed concerns on this side of the House in relation to the Government using these 11-month contracts to have people on revolving 11-month contracts and we don't believe that that is a fair situation.

1100 I have had exchanges with the hon. Gentleman across the floor of this House in relation to the use of 11-month contracts in relation to Spanish workers and we all agree that we all want more Gibraltarians in jobs. I agree, he agrees and everybody agrees, but to have a situation where you actually notify a worker, as happened last year – a Spanish worker in Mount Alvernia, just before Christmas – that their 11-month contract was not going to be renewed, apparently not for reasons about that person's suitability for the job, does not seem right to us. This is an important part of Government business because I also recall that, at the beginning of last year, the hon. Gentleman told me that, no, that the policy had not changed from the previous administration and that nobody was being put on revolving 11-month contracts. Well, if he knows that, he ought to know, effectively, the underlying information, too.

1110 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, first of all, we cannot have put people on revolving 11-month contracts because that would require us to have been in 22 months and we haven't been. All the revolvings had been taking place before 2012 (Hon. D A Feetham: Not necessarily.) and we inherited people on revolving 11-month contracts in 2012 when we came in.

1115 Secondly, the hon. Member is asking me not about a specific sector of the public sector but about every single worker in the public sector and he is asking me to find out whether they were first employed with their first revolving 11 months in his time. That it is to say the hon. Member says it is very convenient that we have inherited from them a system that is incapable of answering this question about something that happened in his time. Well, all I can tell him is that, in 2012, there was nobody given an 11-month contract which has been there for a very long time without an 11-month contract... But I can 1120 only tell him about 2011 and 2012. I can tell him it is impossible to examine manually the profile of each one of the 5,000 people registered with the ETB to find out when was the first time they started work. It is impossible, unless we chose to provide a massive amount of money for overtime and have people working every weekend for the next six months. I can tell him that the instructions to my Department are that they check and re-check the figures that I produce and they go back and look at the computer to make 1125 sure that I am giving accurate information to him and to this Parliament.

1130 But he is asking a question which is about every public sector employee. I have no way of knowing whether every public sector employee is, or is not, on an 11-month contract and whether, before 2012, they had an 11-month contract which went back in time and whether they started work with an 11-month contract or they started work with some other kind of contract, which is what the Question seeks me to provide. It is not possible to do that other than manually and I don't know whether it is even possible with a computerised system to programme for that specific information because one of the things that he may be interested to know is that, in order to provide him with the information in the way he asks the questions, I would have to bring people in to alter the programme of the ETB so that they provide the breakdowns that he wants. It was not there automatically, but I am happy to do it if he is entitled to ask for information in the way that he finds most useful and we have got an obligation to provide him. I am sure he would remember that I also found that I wanted to have information in certain ways and I was told the amount of manpower that would be involved in doing these things manually would be prohibitive.

1135 As regards the specific example that he has given, about the case of the Care Agency, I can tell him that when it came to my notice I rang up the person responsible, the public servant responsible for having given this contract, and suggested that... it was not the most wise thing to do, to actually have a contract that terminated on Christmas Day. The answer that I got was: 'Look, we've recruited this person to cover maternity leave and it so happens that her contract ends on the day the person comes back. Unless I get a political directive to keep people beyond their maternity cover for which they were recruited, they were recruited on a contract that ended on that day... they were told it ended on that day when they were recruited and the reason for the day is that the person happens to be coming back on that day from maternity leave.' So it was not a political decision, it was a decision that was taken at the time by the people who are employed to take these decisions. The fact that they took it, to me, it seemed odd to... I would have thought if you were going to have somebody working at the very least you would want them to carry on working over the Christmas period when, in any case, there is usually a demand for workers because people tend to be away from work in that.

1140 It was not that somebody was being spiteful by choosing to put somebody on the dole on Christmas Day. It just happened to be like that and I asked for an explanation, without having to be prompted by a Question and by having it raised here, simply because it did not seem to me to be a nice thing to do to anybody. But the answer was that it was straightforward, that that was they were told when they were going to start and when they were going to finish: they knew it from the beginning and the reason was that it so happened that the person they were covering for was coming back then.

1145 So, as far as the 11-month contract was concerned, the rationale of the 11-month contracts which were there when we came in were to provide cover. The only thing that has changed, in terms of the recruitment in the Agency, is that the argument that was used previously, that they could not recruit local people because they had no experience, has been dealt with by providing trainees and giving people the opportunity to gain the experience and now what the Agency does is it can now recruit experienced people that they themselves have trained. That is what is happening.

1150 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I don't know whether he has all the full facts in relation to this particular case because my information is that this particular individual was working within the Care Agency for two to three years. This had not been... working for two to three years within the Care Agency and, in fact, is it not the case, Mr Speaker, is it not the case that so incensed were the workers of Mount Alvernia at the fact that this particular worker was to be effectively... her contract was not going to be renewed after the 11 months and, in fact, that there was a general strike being threatened and that the Chief Minister had to personally intervene and go and visit... (Interjection and laughter) and intervene and go to Mount Alvernia himself?

1165 Hon. J J Bossano: I do not think his source of information is more accurate than mine but, certainly, if we had known that, we would have celebrated the 'general strike' with the other function which I was invited by Unite to attend to celebrate the first general strike in 1970-something. That would have been the second general strike in Gibraltar!

1175 Look, all I can tell the hon. Member is that I personally rang the lady who is responsible for human resources in the Department and asked for an explanation. If the hon. Member says that the information that I have given him is wrong then I can tell him that I was misled by that person and I will go back to that person and find out why, because I was told, when I questioned why are we terminating the contract of employment of somebody on Christmas Day – which does not seem to be the right thing to do: irrespective of their nationality, nobody wants to be sacked on, and nobody should want to sack anybody on, Christmas Day – the answer was 'She was told, when we gave her the contract, that she would terminate on the 25th because the person she was covering for is coming back from maternity leave on the 25th, so there's nothing... this is normal. That is the way maternity cover works, but if you give me a political directive to carry on employing somebody that I don't need, when somebody is coming back from maternity leave, then I will do it'. The answer is 'No, I just wanted to know because it had been brought to my notice. I wanted to know why we were doing it.' That was the explanation I was given and that is the explanation I am sharing with the hon. Member.

The fact that that person may have been used to provide maternity cover on previous occasions may be true or not true. I have not checked that. But, presumably, if they have it is because the practice over the last three years, before we got in, under the previous administration, was to do that, to have people in to cover maternity. If it has happened once in our time and three times in his, then he should have put it right when he was there! (Laughter)

1195

Hon. D A Feetham: But Mr Speaker is it not the case that the problem and the reason why the workers at Mount Alvernia were threatening a strike was because of the underlying policy from his Department of not allowing a Spanish worker to actually apply for the job because they were not resident here, because he had taken a decision, no matter how good a person is, no matter how qualified a person is, if that person is of Spanish nationality, that person should be barred from applying for the job? Is that not the case and is that not the underlying reason for the strike threat that the Chief Minister had to avert with his visit to Mount Alvernia?

1200

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, he has asked me that question before and I have told him it is not true and you know I notice how emotional he is about defending the rights of workers that are Frontier Workers. All I can tell him is that I have come across some instances in his time when Gibraltar workers were sacked with one month's notice, with no explanation, after working continuously for six years for his Government. So I wish he cared as much for Gibraltarans as he does about the people from outside.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, just returning to some of the answers that he gave me before because there were a number of points that he made ...

1215

Mr Speaker: We are on Question 65.

Hon. D A Feetham: On the same Question, on the same Question.

Mr Speaker: Right.

Hon. D A Feetham: It is not true to say that the policy of the GSD Government was to effectively, discriminately use [inaudible] of contracts. The position under the GSD was that people who started were placed on probationary contracts to see whether that person was suitable for the job. But if that person was suitable for the job, they were then placed on permanent employment.

1225

Can the Hon. the Minister for Employment give an assurance to this House today that these 11-month contracts are not going to be abused by the Government and his Department, in order to ensure that he somehow keeps a control as to who is employed in Gibraltar and who is not employed, particularly, obviously, in the public service? (Interjections)

1230

Mr Speaker: Order.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not know what the policy of the GSD was with the benefit of hindsight but I can tell him that the policy that was reflected in the practice was that there were innumerable people all over the place, residents and non-residents, who had been continuously renewed without being made permanent. Yes and, in fact, we gave a commitment that people who had been on permanent supply in a number of areas were made permanent because they had been there continuously. (Interjections)

1235

Mr Speaker: Order, order. I am not going to have hon. Members speaking across the floor when somebody holds the floor.

1240

Hon. J J Bossano: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

The hon. Member has put a question about the whole of the Government on the 11-months contract. The 11-months contract that were there, if they were the second time round, it was the second time round because we renewed them for 11 months, but if they had been there for a very long time, it must be because they were renewed before we were there because, mathematically and arithmetically, it cannot be any other way.

If the hon. Member says that there is something wrong with not making somebody permanent after a certain time then I can tell him that there are examples in his time where, for no apparent reason, this happened to other people. The reality of it is that if anybody feels that they have been denied a legal right, 1250 then the recourse is open to them to challenge it.

The policy of the Government is to give priority of employment to Gibraltar residents – that was the policy on which we were elected. My job in the Employment Service is to make that policy more likely to be delivered, by ensuring that I provide the opportunity for people who are resident in Gibraltar to apply for these jobs. The reality is that, in the Agency for years, Gibraltarians could not apply for these jobs because the requirement was that the experience they had to have, they could not get because there was nowhere to get the experience. This is why they had people on short-term contracts. The Government that was here previously, in answer to my Question, when I was pressing for opportunities for local people, told me on innumerable occasions that the policy was to give priority to local people and that when they brought in people from outside, it was in order to fill jobs until local people were trained or ready or qualified. So I do not know why they should find a policy that they previously defended, objectionable now.

1260 We are actually trying to do a better job of what they protested they were trying to do. I hope we will be able to achieve it and that he will be able to congratulate me on it before the next election.

1265 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Minister not accept that there is a difference, there is a fundamental difference, between the view that we all share in this House – that obviously it is... we all want more Gibraltarians in jobs – and the difference between that and the abuse, and systematic abuse, of 11-month contracts in order to cull a particular nationality from the public service, regardless of whether that person is good for the job, that person is good for service users, good for the public service. What one needs to be looking at is, obviously, those kind of factors, whether somebody is good for the job. Does he not accept that there is a fundamental distinction between the policy that we all agree with and the abuse of 11-month contracts and is he, and is his Government, abusing the 11-month contract or is it not?

1275 Hon. J J Bossano: As I pointed out to the hon. Member, revolving 11-month contracts requires at least twenty-two months and we have not been twenty-two months so I do not know what abuse he is talking about.

If he looks at the numbers employed, he will find that the difference between a year ago and now is that there is one Frontier Worker less. The policy is that, from now on, he will find that the number of Gibraltarians will increase because we are training them in order to be able to increase. The policy of the previous Government was not that they wanted to bring these people in but that they had no choice but bring them in to cover.

1280 The whole philosophy of having contract workers, since time immemorial, was not so that the contract workers would then become permanent and block the jobs for future school leavers but that the contract workers should fill a gap in our skills mix and if we have got a shortage of skills you bring people in from outside until you can produce the skills. I do not think any other country does anything other than what we are trying to do, which is to protect Gibraltarians and other permanent residents here in terms of competition, which is very tough, and where the competition is not of our own making but because of the needs of others, which we understand.

1285 I can understand that the people who can get a job here will fight tooth and nail to keep it even if they have been brought in to cover a short term need. They will want to convert that job. Of course, they do because they have got their own interests and their families to look after and that is understandable. But our job has to be to bring down the level of unemployment and then when we find that we have really exhausted what is available then, of course, others will have an opportunity to take what work there is. The more jobs there are and the more people we employ, the better for everybody but not at the expense of having higher unemployment levels than we need to have.

1300 Of course, the Hon. the Minister for Employment says ‘We have only been in office for twelve months: we are now coming to the end of the twelve months and now we are deciding whether to renew 11-month contracts.’ But that does not necessarily follow because you could have a situation where somebody has had a job on probation on these 11-month contracts and the eleven months actually expired in May, or in June, or in July – at any time during the last year – because I accepted that the policy of the Government, not in relation to Spanish nationals, but across the board...

1305 The GSD Government did not discriminate against anybody. What we had was a system of 11-month contracts, (Interjection) an 11-month contract to see whether somebody was good for the job. (Interjection) Yes, good for the job and, in certain circumstances at the end of the probationary period, (Interjection) in certain circumstances at the end of the eleventh month, there were some individuals – and I accept that because I know that actually happened – there were some individuals where they may have been extended for a further three months because people, because the Department concerned, management, was undecided as to whether that person was good for the job or was not good for the job – was good for the job, was not good for the job. (Interjections)

1315 Mr Speaker: Order, order, order!

Let me recapitulate as to what is happening. We have a question here on a specific matter which the Hon. the Minister for Employment has informed the House that the information was not available. I allowed leeway on the question of this particular employee who had her employment terminated on 25th December because I thought it was linked with the question of the 11-month contract and I should be liberal in that respect. But the situation that we now have is that we are having a debate on general employment policy and I honestly think the matter has been exhausted sufficiently and that we should now move on to the next Question.

Gibraltar Savings Bank
Independent management

1330 Clerk: Question 66, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the Gibraltar Savings Bank state what steps the Government has taken to ensure that the Bank has an experienced and independent managerial team?

1335 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question with Question 67.

1340

Gibraltar Savings Bank
Independent regulation

1345 Clerk: Question 67.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the Gibraltar Savings Bank state what steps the Government has taken to ensure the Bank is subject to independent regulatory oversight.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1355 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Savings Bank is selling the same savings instruments under the same management that it had been selling them previously and there is no requirement for additional regulatory oversight.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, certainly on this side of the House we accept that, if the Savings Bank is just simply doing what it was previously doing and has been doing for decades, then there is no need for any other type of independent regulatory oversight, we accept that.

1360 But, Mr Speaker, is it not the case that the Government intends – and I note from his comments made to the Gibraltar Chronicle just before Christmas, I think on the 17th December – that the Government intends to expand the services of the Gibraltar Savings Bank, to include the provision of current accounts, deposit accounts, interest bearing accounts and also to provide and facilitate loans to small businesses? Does the Hon. the Minister for Employment not accept and, in this case, the Minister responsible for the Savings Bank, not accept that, in those circumstances, there is a need for an experienced and independent managerial team and also a need for independent regulatory oversight?

1370 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member accepts that what is happening now from a new building is what was happening now before from the old building, then the position is as I have told him in my answer.

If, in the future, something else is happening which requires something different to be done, it will be looked at when the time comes. It is as simple as that. At the moment, what is being sold are debentures, bonds and seven day notice accounts. I do not accept that if, instead of the account being seven days, the 1375 account is a notice account where you can have your money on call, that that requires anything different. So if he thinks that if the length of the notice is less than seven days the management team is incompetent, then I do not accept that.

1380 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Government reviewing, then, its target date for the commencement of new services – and I am including within that statement – ‘new services’ – what the hon. Gentleman actually referred to as ‘guaranteeing loans for small businesses’, for example, just before Christmas, when he said the target date was March? Is the Government reviewing that target date at all, or not?

1385 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, I did not say what he says I said.
The hon. Member has a habit of attributing things to me and then asking me to give explanations of the things that he makes up. The answer is that if he goes back and reads what I said, he will find that I said that the target date of March was for the expansion of the service into providing current accounts, that those current accounts would be accounts that had to be in credit and that the reason why it was a target, rather than a commitment, was because it depends on the software that we are in the process of purchasing, which will enable us to do that.

1390 That is to say, with the system that we have got in place now and the manpower we have got in place now, we could not service current accounts. The idea is that we are going to go down the route of having, initially, the guinea pigs, as it were, the people that we have got in our training companies so that we pay them by having an account for each of them and crediting their pay at the end of the month in that account and giving them a debit card, which will allow them to draw money from their account to take their wages out and they only have to leave £10 behind to keep the account open and therefore, I said, at the time, that it was important that people should not lose confidence in the Bank because of any glitches or failures and that, therefore, we wanted to go down the route of not rushing into things until we are sure that we are able to deliver to the customer the service that we want.

1400 It is in everybody’s interest: this is a publicly-owned entity. It does not belong to the Government, it belongs to the people and, therefore, we want to make sure that, as we increase the range of services we offer, we do it one step at a time. The first step, and the one that we hope will be happening by the end of this financial year, will be that we have the programme installed which will enable people to have a current account from which they can withdraw their money: the only requirement in that current account, as I have already said publicly, will be that, if it is a personal account, they need to keep always a minimum of £10 in the Bank. If it is a company account, or the local business community, they will need to keep £100 in the Bank. That is the stage that we are at: that has not happened yet.

1405 We hope that will happen but it depends on how quickly the systems are put in and we test them and we find that they are working as they should. We cannot have a situation where, for example, somebody has his account with the Savings Bank, maybe outside Gibraltar, where he will be able to draw money out and then finds that it does not work. So we want to make sure that we test everything as we go along and that it is working as it should.

1415 Hon. D A Feetham: So, then, when you were quoted in the Chronicle, Mr Speaker – I beg your pardon, Mr Speaker, when the Hon. the Minister was quoted in the Chronicle – as saying that you did not expect new services to the public – current accounts, no charge on personal and business accounts, small business loan guarantees, interest on current accounts, free cash handling – to start to come on-stream until March, effectively what the Hon. the Minister is saying is that you are not going to be dealing with any kind of loans – the Hon. Minister, I see, is looking at his i-Pad – this is the... fifth paragraph of the article, that the question of loans to small businesses, that that is something for the future and is not going to come on-stream in March, whereas the provision of current accounts that may come on-stream in March. I am just trying to look for timelines and, in terms of the provisional loans to small businesses, when does he expect that that is going to come on-stream, then, if not in March?

1425 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I am not going to give him any dates when anything is going to come or not come because I have already told him, several times, that all I am saying is, the target – and the first thing in that target is the move to provide current accounts... I am taking this a step at a time because I think it is the right way to go about it, rather than rushing into something and find that we face problems which, then, people say ‘This is not working’ and they lose confidence in the service we are trying to provide.

1430 So the answer is the first target is the current accounts. Provided the software is in place, working and people are comfortable with it by March, it will happen in March, If they are not, it will not happen by March. It is only when we have had that running for some time, and we go on to other things, that we will fix targets for the next stage. But the answer is there is not a timetable by which everything is going to happen.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can he confirm that the Government is still committed to the Savings Bank actually providing loans to small businesses, either in the form of guaranteeing loans issued by third party banks or directly by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

1440 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, no, I cannot confirm that because I have not said that, Mr Speaker.
I have said that we are committed to expanding the service that the Bank provides and then, when the time comes when we need to provide support for businesses, when and how we do it we will decide when the time comes to do it. We are committed to providing it but we are not necessarily committed to providing it in the way that he has suggested.

1445 Hon. D A Feetham: Alright, so he is confirming that the Government is committed that the Gibraltar Savings Bank be used as a vehicle for the provision of loans to small businesses. Correct?

1450 Hon. J J Bossano: No I have not; I have told him the very opposite Mr Speaker.
Either the hon. Member is hard of hearing or the hon. Member insists on saying the opposite of what I am saying. I have said 'No'. I have said we are committed to providing the support but not in the way that he has suggested and the way he has suggested is the text of his last supplementary. The answer is 'No'.

1455 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, can I read from his manifesto, then. Perhaps he can agree with his manifesto, if he does not agree with me. His manifesto provides that the objectives of the Bank would be the provision – and I quote –

'the provision of loan facilities for small businesses to help them expand and see them through periods of difficulty'.

1460 Is that the position?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the fact that that is the objective does not mean that the objective will be delivered in the way that he has spelled out.

1465 Hon. D A Feetham: No, I am reading from his manifesto now. How does the Government intend to deliver on the objective, stated in his manifesto, that loan facilities will be provided for small businesses to help them expand and see them through difficult periods?

1470 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I have no intention of telling him how we intend to do it (Laughter) and I have got no obligation to do it.

I can remind him of the many occasions – of the many occasions – when he was in Government and the Government in which he served was asked to explain things in their manifesto and their reply was 'Look, you did not have it in yours, so you have no right to ask me how I am going to do it in mine'. And you know, what applies to the goose, applies to the gander! Therefore, that is the answer he is going to get, Mr Speaker.

1475 Hon. D A Feetham: Can he, at the very least, Mr Speaker, confirm that the Gibraltar Savings Bank is not going to be providing loans, or loan guarantees, to small businesses? At least I can phrase my question in the negative: can he confirm that is the case?

1480 Hon. J J Bossano: In the negative, I will not confirm it any more than in the positive because I am not prepared to tell him how we are going to do it. I am not going to tell him we are going to do it and I am not going to tell him we are not going to do it and I am not going to give him any explanation here. He will find out when it happens.

1485 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he has already said to me, I am asking the question in a positive way. I said 'Is it the Government's policy for the Gibraltar Savings Bank to provide loans to small businesses, either directly by way of loans or guarantee loans by third party banks?' He has chastised me in very strong terms by saying 'Neither. How could you ask that question when I have said that we have no intention of doing this a few moments ago!' Then I asked him to confirm in the negative: 'Well, can you confirm that you are not going to do this?' – and now he does not want to provide me...

What is it, Mr Speaker? What is the Government's policy in relation to this, particularly in the light of the GSLP's manifesto commitment at the last election?

1490 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, he is not asking about the policy, he is asking how we are going to deliver the policy and I am not prepared to tell him.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, he is not prepared to tell me what the policy is, full stop.

1500 Hon. J J Bossano: No, I am not prepared to tell him how we will deliver it. The policy is the policy that he has read out.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, deliver what? Can I ask him: deliver what?

1505 Hon. J J Bossano: Deliver support for the small business community that he is talking about. That will happen but it is not going to happen the way he thinks and if he says the opposite I will not confirm that it is going to happen in the opposite.

1510 The answer is that, when the time comes and it happens, he will suddenly discover, finally, that we have found a way of doing it which he cannot undermine or criticise, which is the only interest he has in this – not helping the business community – trying to stop it happening before it even gets off the ground.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am afraid the hon. Gentleman attributes to me too much influence. I do not believe that the business community is going to decide one way or the other simply because of whatever criticism I may come up with. The reality of the situation is that there is a lot of concern from the business community, expressed independently of any concerns that I have expressed about [inaudible] management in relation to this Bank and also independent oversight.

1515 Mr Speaker, can he confirm that, effectively, what the Government is doing, is he is now resiling and truncating the manifesto, the very clear manifesto commitment, because it is all very well for the Government to say the Government ‘is committed to using the Savings Bank in order to provide support for small businesses’, but that is not what the manifesto says. The manifesto says the provision of loan facilities for small businesses to help them expand. It is not about support, it is specifically about loan facilities. Now is the Government resiling from that manifesto commitment, of using the Gibraltar Savings Bank to provide loan facilities for small businesses?

1525 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, what the manifesto says is going to happen is what is going to happen.

1530 How we do it and when we do it he will find out when it happens. If the hon. Member says that a lot of people in his circle, or in the business community, that have concerns about the level of regulatory oversight that there is, it is quite simple. They do not have to use the Bank. We will give people better service, better terms and better services. They can either take his advice and not use it, or use it. Nobody is going to be required to make use of the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

1535 It seems to me very clear that he has made a lot of statements that put doubts in people’s mind before today’s Question and the first thing he has had to do today is to admit that, given that what everybody knows is that what the Bank at the moment is doing is what the Bank was doing for the last fifteen years, there is absolutely no basis at all for any of his public statements about the need of a new regulatory framework, none whatsoever.

1540 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Minister for Employment, the Minister responsible for the Gibraltar Savings Bank, not accept that the last answer is fundamentally misconceived? It is wrong.

1545 How can the Hon. the Minister for the Gibraltar Savings Bank say that ‘This is a simple matter: it is a matter of whether the consumer uses the Bank or does not use the Bank.’ Does he not accept that there is an underlying liability for the Gibraltar Savings Bank and, therefore, the Government and, therefore, the taxpayer? If the Government offers loans and people default on loans, does he not accept that and, therefore, that there is significant public interest in relation to it?

1550 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, what I do not accept is that I have to stand up here and answer hypothetical questions about whether people will be concerned if I offer loans, which I am not offering, because he is actually creating the things that he claims will worry people in order to worry people.

1555 He has already admitted that there is no such things happening today and I have to answer in Parliament for what is happening today, not for what may, or may not, happen in a year’s time, or in six months’ time, or in a week’s time, which he thinks he can present in the way that is most beneficial to his self-serving party’s interest and not the interests of Gibraltar. What I have said to him is not that the issue is one whether people want to use the Bank, or not to determine whether that is the end of the liability or the regulatory framework or anything else. What I said to him is, if he is concerned about the Bank from the point of view of the security that it offers the people who put their money in it, then it is quite simple. He can not put his money in it and he can recommend to his friends or relatives not to put theirs. If he is concerned about the public exposure, look, it is no more exposed today than it has been in the last fifteen years.

1560 He can keep on putting questions about what is likely to happen, or not likely to happen in the future, and I will not speculate about what will happen in the future because I do not have to.

1565 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman obviously does not understand the difference between asking a hypothetical question –

Mr Speaker: You have asked the question about the manifesto, the policy, and you have had an answer to that question.

1570 What you have not had an answer to is the manner in which it is going to be carried out but, as I understand it, the Minister has given a commitment, saying that that is the policy, what is in the manifesto.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, I am not sure that – 1575 Mr Speaker: Well, ask then. Perhaps you can ask the question again, if you want to.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I am not sure that is what he has actually told me but, Mr Speaker, what the Hon. the Minister – and I think it is an important point – what he is not understanding is the difference between a hypothetical question and me asking a question about future Government policy.

1580 Future Government policy is not hypothetical, particularly in the light of the fact that he has actually made public statements saying that the Bank will be providing business loan guarantees and particularly in the light of the fact that the manifesto actually says that the GSLP was committed to the provision of loan facilities for small businesses and still on this side of the House we're still at a loss Mr Speaker as to whether there is a commitment at some time in the future – I am not asking him when now. I accept that I 1585 asked him before but because I thought that it was [inaudible] – I am not asking him for when but if there is a commitment by the Government? I think it is a fair question. It is a reasonable question. It is a proper question: whether there is a commitment by the Government to have the Gibraltar Savings Bank offer loan facilities to small businesses through the Gibraltar Savings Bank – yes or no?

1590 Mr Speaker: Right, now, that is a question.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the Government is committed to put in place whatever is necessary to make the commitment to provide the loans. How it will be done, or not be done, is not something that I am prepared to spell out to the hon. Member. I am not going to do it.

1595 Mr Speaker: So, it is clear that the answer to that specific question is yes.

1600 Hon D A Feetham: He has provided me with an answer to that question and I am very grateful to the Minister for the Gibraltar Savings Bank. If he had provided it 15 minutes ago, (Hon. J J Bossano: I did.) we would have actually (Interjection) but, Mr Speaker, can I, can I ask him, in the light of the fact that the Government is committed to providing loan facilities for the Gibraltar Savings Bank, does he not accept that the nature of that kind of business is fundamentally different to the business that the Savings Bank has been conducting over the last number of years and there is, in the light of that, a need for independent managerial oversight, experienced managerial oversight, and also independent regulatory oversight, too?

1605 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, because I have not said we are going to do it through the Gibraltar Savings Bank. I have said we are going to do it and I am not telling him how we're going to do it.

That is what I have just told him, do we need to re-wind the tape?

1610 Hon. D A Feetham: I thought that Mr Speaker was going to come to the rescue of the hon. Member and say 'Actually, that's what I thought that he had said.' We had not on this side of the House (Interjection by Mr Speaker) because the Question was in relation to the Gibraltar Savings Bank not by the Government.

1615 Mr Speaker: Given that the Speaker has only been in this House for 20 years and the hon. Member has been for 40, I do not think he needs to be rescued by me! (Laughter)

1620 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, certainly, Mr Speaker, I apologise if I misread the expression on Mr Speaker's face when I was asking the question. I thought that Mr Speaker was about to tell me, but then he left it: 'I think he's answered it because, yes, they are providing it through the Gibraltar Savings Bank.' So, again, the Government is not going to be providing loan facilities through the Gibraltar Savings Bank? Correct?

1625 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the Government will be providing the support to the business community.

I am repeating my words for the fourth, or possibly the fifth, time, that we are committed to the manifesto. How we do it and when we do it I am not prepared to tell the Member now or at any time until it happens. He can ask me as many times as he wants and I will not give him the answer that he is trying to get. I don't believe he's remotely interested in it, other than to try and undermine it before it happens by finding fault with it.

1630 The fact that he says if you are doing it then you'll need regulatory... shows precisely what the purpose of the question is. I am here to provide him with information about what is happening now, not with information about what is going to happen in the future and explain to him how we propose to get there, so as to give him the opportunity to start shooting it down before it even comes on stream. It's as simple as that.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, it appears that we are coming perilously close to the Peter Cumming scenario: 'I am not answering your question because I don't like your politics.' That is the reality of what the Hon. the Minister for the Savings Bank has actually just said but, (Applause) Mr Speaker, does he not accept – and now, turning to a different aspect of this, arising from something he said some time ago – that, in the light of the fact that the Government is expanding its services in relation to current accounts and the handling of money, that the procedures in place in relation to money laundering, and I am talking about also the oversight in relation to those procedures – oversight at managerial level and also oversight at regulatory level – have to also take a step upwards from what it has been thus far?

1640 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, if I can answer his preliminary remarks, let me say that I don't like his politics, whether he is asking questions or not asking them. (Interjection and laughter) Therefore, my answer is not influenced by my dislike for his politics. That is there permanently. Right.

1650 Secondly, can I remind him that the person sitting next to him chastised my hon. Colleague, Mr Licudi, for asking questions about the road traffic plan on the basis that it was not because he was interested in the information being helpful but he was just that he was seeking the information in order to be able to criticise and undermine him. The hon. Member is shaking his head so I will go back and fetch the Hansard and give it to him by the next meeting.

1655 Thirdly, I have to say to him that the officers... The Accountant General who has – as a result of his public remarks, thought it necessary to write to the Financial Secretary – writes:

1660 'All officers involved in the management of the GSB are fully aware and keep up to date with the Financial Services Commission's guidance notes on the requirements to prevent money laundering and terrorist financing activities, as well as all legislation relating to the provision of the latter.'

1665 We have our own training manual in place which encompasses the requirements of the above and is given to all staff upon appointment to the GSB. This is updated as and when there are changes in the legislation: a copy of the manual is attached. The front line staff has a checklist which they have to complete with the customers when accepting money. Additionally, we perform internet searches to verify information supplied by customers and also liaise with the GFIU for searches, using World-check. There have always been, and continue to be, a MLRO and a Deputy MLRO appointed for the Gibraltar Savings Bank, including GRPO branch.

1670 Training is organised by management and provided by the GFIU to the management and the staff twice a year. The GSB and the GACO in March 2012 and management attended various seminars given by GACO. The banking platform software that we are currently looking into for the expansion of the GSB services includes AMLtrac, which is software dedicated to identifying, tracking and regulating potentially suspicious or illegal activities in respect of money laundering and/or other proceeds of crime.'

1675 I want to take the opportunity to say that the Government has got full confidence in the Accountant General, the Financial Secretary, the staff of the GSB, that they do not need hectoring from us in order to do their job, and that I do not accept that if you put £100 million on a 7-day deposit or £100 million on a 24-hour deposit, the risk is greater or lesser with 24 hours. We know that the officers there will do the job that is required of them and they will get the support that they need and the technical backup that they need, and they will tell us if they feel there is a need for anything else.

1680 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just finally and before I ask the supplementary, I can assure the hon. Gentleman that I have a lot of affection for him, even though he obviously has a problem with me, but can we just confirm, therefore, that the Government has no plans to alter the managerial structure of the Gibraltar Savings Bank in the context of the wider service that it is providing and has absolutely no plans to effectively provide the Financial Services Commission with a regulatory role in relation to the Bank.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, Government plans are to provide the Savings Bank with what the Savings Bank needs, based on the advice that it takes from the people it employs to advise him, not based on what the hon. Member opposite may think or not think.

1690 I have already gone at length on this Question in explaining the caution with which we are proceeding with developing the Bank. I would have thought that would be enough to satisfy him that we are not going to go into a mad rush to expose the Bank to any risks. And the answer is if, tomorrow, we feel there is a need to do something that, at the moment, we don't think there is any need, we will decide it when the time comes.

1695 Mr Speaker: I have allowed lengthy deliberation on the matter because, obviously, the Gibraltar Savings Bank is a matter of great public interest given the large number of customers that it has, but the matter, in fact, is one which I would consider is quite proper for a debate in the House, where other Members can also participate, but I am prepared to allow a certain more amount of leeway. Does the hon. Member have any other questions?

1705 He mentioned that the Government will act on advice. Can he confirm that, therefore, he has received advice that, in the context of the expansion of services, there is no need for independent regulatory oversight nor any need to supplement the managerial team? If he has received that advice, can he just enlighten this House as to who has given him the advice?

1710 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I can tell the hon. Member that, when the previous Government was committed to expanding the role of the Savings Bank, there was a detailed document produced for them, which was made available to me, which showed that they were not deemed to be a credit institution, they did not have to be regulated, as other banks have to be, and that the nature of the Bank was such that all the necessary mechanisms were in place and the Accountant General and the Financial Secretary who, in law, are responsible, are the ones who... (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham) Yes, they did not need it, independent regulatory oversight from the Financial Services Commission – that's right – or anybody else. Therefore, we have got that report. We are proceeding on the basis of all the information in that report and the Financial Secretary and the Accountant General will advise us if they feel there is something else that needs to be done and that is the point I have been making throughout.

1715 Clerk: With that, we come to the end of Answers to Oral Questions.

Written Answers

1725 Clerk: We now move to answers to Written Questions.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the Answers to Written Questions numbered W1 to W17 of 2013 inclusive.

1730

BILLS FIRST AND SECOND READINGS

1735 Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

Clerk: Bills; First and Second Reading.

1740 A Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1745 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, before moving that the Bill be read a first time, and with your leave, I will give way to the Hon. the Chief Minister, who has made a certification in respect of this particular Bill.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Yes, Mr Speaker. Before the Bill is read a first time I should explain to the House why the Bill has been certified by me as urgent under section 35(3) of the Constitution.

1750 The House will recall that the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act was recently brought into effect. It has come to the Government's notice that there is a typographical error in the legislation, in the time required to provide evidence to a defendant after he has been sent to the Supreme Court for trial. This is presently stated to be 7 days: the primary period in the equivalent legislation in England is 70 days. It seems clear to us, on this side of the House, that our Act contains a typographical error. This has already caused an issue in one case and it is likely to arise in other cases. It is neither practical nor, in many cases, possible, Mr Speaker, for the evidence to be provided within 7 days, as currently required. This, therefore, needs to be corrected as soon as possible.

1755 There is a separate provision in the relevant section of the Act for an application to be made to a Judge to exercise his discretion to extend the period of 7 days in any particular case. The question, therefore, arises as to why it is, in those circumstances, I should certify that the Bill is too urgent to permit the expiry of six weeks after publication if, in those six weeks, an application to a Judge can be made.

1760 There are two reasons for this: firstly, because applications to a Judge and, therefore, the use of court and professional time, Mr Speaker, should not be used to correct what is a typographical error in legislation, in my view. The discretion is not there for that purpose.

1765 Secondly because works to reform Parliament, as hon. Members will know, will begin after the February session, when the six week period will not yet have expired. The Government has already announced that there will be no sitting in March because of the works and, similarly, no session will take place in April, as a result of the annual Easter break. The earliest that the Bill could therefore be considered would be May. I therefore concluded that the Bill is too urgent to wait for what, in effect, would amount to a four month delay.

1770 As was the case under the previous Administration, we will want to use this power to abridge time sparingly and, wherever possible, in consultation and in agreement with the Members opposite, although the Constitution does not require such consultation. It may be necessary, Mr Speaker, of course, in the future for this or any future Administration to certify a Bill unilaterally but I trust that this can be avoided. In this instance, Mr Speaker, my colleague, the Minister for Justice, has been in touch with the Shadow Spokesperson for Justice and they have agreed the need for urgency in this instance and I have, therefore, no – and I understand there is, therefore, no – issue across the floor of the House that I have certified that the Bill should be able to progress through its phases in this House, despite not having been published for the six weeks otherwise provided.

1780 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, as the Hon. the Chief Minister has indicated... Sorry, we are on the first Bill.

Clerk: Yes.

1785 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I beg to move that the Bill be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against?
Carried.

1790 Clerk: The Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Act 2013.

1795 Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

1800 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time. As the Chief Minister has indicated, the purpose of this Bill is to correct a typographical error. We are, in this Bill, correcting the typographical error but, in addition to that, we are making a substantive amendment in respect of the particular time period that is covered by this provision and it is probably useful for me to explain why that extra amendment is being made and what the practical effect of correcting this typographical error means.

1805 As the hon. Member, the Chief Minister, has indicated, there is a time period in the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act of seven days from the time that a person is sent for trial from the Magistrates Court to the Supreme Court for the provision of evidence and it is clear to us that it cannot possibly have been intended that that period should apply – that very short period – should apply. And it

1810 is particularly so for this reason: the new legislation that we have recently brought into effect has provisions for a procedure whereby, in respect of certain offences, in particular indictable only offences, that is to say offences which are required to be tried only in the Supreme Court, as well as complex financial offences and vulnerable child witness offences, that in respect of those offences, both in the case of adult defendants and juvenile defendants, when the person appears before the Magistrates Court charged with that particular offence, the Court is mandated, under the Act, to send that person forthwith to the Supreme Court for trial for that offence. So we could have a situation whereby a person who 1815 commits an offence today, is charged and appears in Court tomorrow and, tomorrow, that person is sent for trial immediately to the Supreme Court and, as the provision currently stands, within seven days, essentially, of the offence being committed, that the Prosecution is required to have sufficient evidence available to be able to provide evidence to the Defence.

1820 On checking the relevant provision in the United Kingdom, it is clear that the intention was that it should not be seven days but it should be seventy days. But we have also seen that there is a different provision or different timescale in the United Kingdom in respect of persons who are remanded in custody pending trial, so that the relevant timescales in the United Kingdom are 70 days from when a person is sent for trial in the ordinary case and 50 days from the date when a person is sent for trial, where that person is remanded in custody.

1825 We have taken the view, the Government has taken the view, that there should be a shorter period which is applicable in the case of persons who are remanded in custody and that it is right that that extra urgency should be given to cases involving persons who are remanded in custody. It may well be that, even if persons are remanded in custody, 50 days in a particular case is too short a period and, for that reason, and even in the case of 70 days, for that reason, the Judge under section 1994 will retain a discretion to extend, or even to further extend after an initial application has been made, those particular periods.

1830 I commend the Bill to the House.

1835 Mr Speaker: Before I put the Question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011 be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

1840 Clerk: The Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Act 2013.

1845 Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Hon. G H Licudi: I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and the Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

1850 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and third reading of the Bill be taken now? (Members: Aye.)

1855 COMMITTEE STAGE

Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013

1860 Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1865 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bill clause by clause: The Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013.

In Committee of the whole Parliament

1870

Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

1875 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act 2011.
Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

1880 Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Clause 2 stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The Long Title.

1885 Mr Chairman: The Long Title stands part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

1890

Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013
Third Reading approved; Bills passed

1895 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Act 2013 has been considered in Committee and agreed to without amendments and I now move that it be read a third time and passed.

1900 Mr Speaker: Those in favour?

Members: Aye.

1905 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that the Criminal Procedure and Evidence (Amendment) Bill 2013 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

1910

Tribute to outgoing Leader of the Opposition

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1915 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, before I move the adjournment sine die, I think it is appropriate for me to rise in this House in the context of the statement made by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition to the effect that he will be standing down from that post at the end of January, whilst remaining an MP for now.

1920 I want to put disagreements aside for a few minutes. The Government has acknowledged publicly in a press statement and I wish to acknowledge now in this place, the contribution made by the Hon. Mr Caruana to politics in Gibraltar in the twenty-two years since he was first elected to this Parliament. Indeed, Mr Speaker, I acknowledged on the day that we won the Election that Mr Caruana, despite our many differences and disagreements, had left Gibraltar in many ways better than when he was first elected, as I believe all Chief Ministers have historically done.

1925 The extent of that is of course an issue which we have debated lengthily and sometimes in the cut and thrust of debates, angrily, and in the most pejorative terms in this House, as our adversarial system requires us to do. And our respective positions on those issues need not change, Mr Speaker, simply because we recognise the service to our community of a political leader. Today, Mr Speaker I recognise not just the hon. Member's service as Chief Minister but also his membership of this Parliament since May 1991. Our differences on ideological or factual issues on particular matters do not prevent me from acknowledging that substantial contribution. Indeed, Mr Speaker my own nascent steps in politics and those of the Deputy Chief Minister were also in 1991, which means that the House has been at loggerheads for that long. But despite those disagreements Mr Speaker the hon. Gentleman has led the

GSD for twenty-two years by my reckoning and he has led our nation for sixteen and no-one can be in any doubt whatsoever about the commitment he had to the discharge of his obligations in high Office.

1935

I am sure that public life has no doubt been tough on his family on occasions and not just on him, so on behalf of the people that I represent and on behalf of the people of Gibraltar, may I just wish him and his family all the best and wish him every success in whatever professionally, and personally, he chooses to do in the future, so long as he steers clear of politics, or no doubt we will be at daggers drawn once again. (Applause).

1940

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I rise to thank the Hon. the Chief Minister for his kind –

Mr Speaker: May I?

1945

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, of course. I beg your pardon.

Mr Speaker: Because I would like to associate myself in a very special way with the remarks of the Chief Minister.

I was sitting where the Hon. Mr Peter Caruana is now sitting back in May 1991 as Leader of the Opposition and I think that, if I am still here when he leaves the House, it will have been a remarkable turn of events and it is all about what parliamentary life is all about.

I do wish most sincerely on my own behalf, and on behalf of the staff of Parliament, to associate us and myself with the remarks of the Chief Minister and wish the Leader of the Opposition every good health. My best wishes to him and to his family.

Hon. P R Caruana: Then I rise moved and, in all humility, to thank the Hon. the Chief Minister and the President of the House, Mr Speaker, for the generous and kind terms in which they have referred to me today.

1960

When the House next meets, I do not know exactly where I shall be sitting but I will no longer be in a position to play a leading role in the cut and thrust of parliamentary debate and it is true, as the Hon. the Chief Minister has said, that sometimes we incur in excess, But I think it is also true and, I think from private conversation – which I hope he does not mind my making public – this is something on which possibly we both agree, that the adversarial system of politics in Gibraltar has served Gibraltar well and ensures that Gibraltar always has two alternative options for its governance. And if we have to be more careful to eliminate some of the excesses, then we should try and do that, rather than judge the whole system by the few occasions in which we incur in excesses. I will certainly miss that parliamentary cut and thrust.

1965

The job of running the Government of Gibraltar, which he now has, is a difficult one. The opportunity to spend some time in a parliamentary, as opposed to a Governmental activity, is one that I always used to enjoy and I shall certainly miss it. It was not an easy decision but, as I think I said on TV, for sixteen long years my wife and my children, I think generously, allowed me to place the interests of Gibraltar before theirs and I think it is now time that I do what I can – and that remains to be seen – that I do what I can to try and redress the consequences too, which have been significant, of that fact.

1970

As I said in my public statement, whether I am in politics or not, I have not spent 22 years trying to do the best that I can for the good of our beloved country to make myself now unavailable, should I ever be able to contribute from outside the political arena for whatever it may need, by way of advice, support, activity. Therefore, this Parliament will always have me available to it as, indeed, will whatever is the Government of the day, including the present one, to assist, promote and defend the interests of Gibraltar, as they or anyone else might think that I may be able to contribute to.

1975

I have enjoyed engaging in debate with everybody in this House and I look forward to the House continuing to work, as I think all Parliaments have always done, in the best interests of Gibraltar, so that we leave Gibraltar better than we find it, so that our children and their children will enjoy an even better and higher standard of living and political security than we do.

1980

I am grateful to the hon. Member and to Mr Speaker for taking this opportunity to say those words. (Applause).

1985

Adjournment

1990

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, our blood pressure has never been so low and, before we wallow in sentimentality, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the Question, which is that this House do now adjourn sine die.

I now put the Question which is that the House do now adjourn sine die.
Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.
The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 5.27 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

AFTERNOON SESSION: 3.00 p.m. – 5.40 p.m.

Gibraltar, Friday, 15th February 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.00 p.m.

5

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE in the Chair]

[ACTING CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: P E Martinez Esq in attendance]

PRAYER

Procedural

Mr Speaker: As hon. Members are aware, we have convened this quorum in order to recess the House to 4.00 p.m. this afternoon, as we are allowing the other Members of Parliament who are not present here today to attend the funeral of Police Constable Jenzen Santos and Police Constable Josephine Guiling Savignon.

20

So the House is recessed until 4.00 p.m. this afternoon.

25

The House recessed at 3.05 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 4.00 p.m.

OBSERVANCE OF ONE MINUTE'S SILENCE

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I rise with a heavy heart to ask the House to keep a minute's silence in honour of the two police officers who passed away off duty in Spain two days ago and have been buried today, both of whom were well known to the House, sometimes keeping security here and below.

Members stood in silence.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, may I thank hon. Members and you for your co-operation in the adjournment at 3.00 p.m. to enable Members to attend the funeral.

40

Order of the Day

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

45 Acting Clerk: Confirmation of Minutes – the Minutes of the last meeting of Parliament which was held on 14th and 15th January 2013.

Mr Speaker: May I sign the Minutes as correct? (Members: Aye.)

50 Mr Speaker signed the Minutes.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE CHAIR

55 Congratulations to Hon. D A Feetham on election to Leader of the Opposition

Acting Clerk: Communications from the Chair.

60 Mr Speaker: I should like to congratulate the Hon. Mr Daniel Feetham on his election as Leader of the GSD and consequently as Leader of the Opposition in this House.

I can assure him that the Clerk, the staff and I myself will always be at his disposal in order to help him in exercising his functions as Leader of the Opposition.

65 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much for those kind words indeed, and thank you as well to everybody out there in this community that have, over the last few days, the last couple of weeks, wished me well in my endeavour, both supporters of the GSD and also supporters of the Party opposite, because at the end of the day, it is an essential part of the democratic process that, as well as a strong Government, there will also be a strong Opposition.

70 Mr Speaker, thank you for the opportunity provided to me to make a short personal statement to the House, pursuant to Standing Order 49, on the occasion of our first meeting since I became Leader of the Opposition.

75 It is of course an honour and privilege for me to lead my party in Her Majesty's Opposition in this Parliament. I am conscious and indeed humbled, that I follow some very distinguished Gibraltarians, not least you, Mr Speaker, my very good friends, the Hon. Maurice Xiberras and the late the Hon. Peter Isola, the Father of the House, the Hon. Joe Bossano, the Hon. Sir Joshua Hassan and my great friend the Hon. Peter Caruana. To that list, I of course add the Hon. the Leader of the House, the Chief Minister.

80 I have this week met with my Shadow Cabinet colleagues in order to agree with them the distribution of Shadow Ministerial responsibilities amongst us. The aim has been to reshuffle some of the responsibilities, whilst at the same time provide for some continuity. I believe it is right for me to make that announcement here in this House first.

85 Mr Speaker, I will of course take primary responsibility for shadowing the Chief Minister and I will therefore be relinquishing some of my former responsibilities. I will therefore be dealing with the economy and public finance including taxation and Customs; enterprise and business; constitutional and external affairs; elections; broadcasting and information; public service and administration, including the Gibraltar Development Corporation, e-government, parliamentary, political and democratic reform.

90 Given the delicate situation the gaming sector finds itself in, with the UK decision to tax bets at source, I will retain responsibility for the time being for gaming. It is my intention to work closely with my hon. and learned friend, Mr Figueras and eventually to transfer this responsibility to him.

95 Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Savings Bank and the way it operates in future is critical to the public debt debate and the position taken by the GSLP Liberals at the last election in that debate, and also any reputational or liability exposure of the Government and the Taxpayer and this community. I have therefore retained responsibility for the Gibraltar Savings Bank, but I will be assisted and work very closely with my hon. and learned friend, Mr Bossino.

I have asked the Hon. Jaime Netto to take on responsibility for the environment, utilities including electricity, water, postal services, refuse collection disposal and telecommunications and he will continue with his shadow responsibilities in respect of Health and Safety.

100 Mr Netto was extremely passionate for the environment when he was Minister with responsibility for the environment in the 2003-07 GSD Government. That was reflected, Mr Speaker, in the 2007 election result, where he placed third. I have asked him to be positive in his approach to this Shadow Portfolio. It will be his task not only to scrutinise and ask searching 105 questions of the Government on its policies, such as the current Ape Management Policy, but to also project a strong sense of our own suggested policies, which he will no doubt put to the Hon.
Minister Cortes in this House, during the course of the next three years. It is for the Government to then decide whether to adopt or decline any suggestions put to them.

Mr Speaker, given that the Hon. Mr Netto has taken on these important responsibilities, I have asked the Hon. Isobel Ellul-Hammond to take over responsibility for the care services; the elderly; 110 family and children; and equality and civil rights. She will continue to have responsibility for civil contingencies including fire and emergency services and also health. On this side of the House, we certainly feel there are common synergies between health and care services.

The Hon. Damon Bossino will continue with tourism; airport and aviation; port and shipping.
In addition, he will be shadowing the Hon. Minister Bossano in all of his portfolio, except for the 115 Gibraltar Savings Bank. That includes inward investment; employment and training; social security and social assistance. The Government's record on employment will feature highly, in my view, at the next General Election, and this is a significant responsibility which I could not have hoped to bestow on a more able individual.

The Hon. Selwyn Figueras will have responsibility for transport, planning and the city, 120 including roads, parking, traffic, licensing of vehicles and public transport. He also takes over my responsibilities for justice and home affairs, including the Police, prison, tribunals, legal aid and assistance, consumer protection, personal status and immigration. He also takes over financial services and e-commerce, where he will be working very closely with me, in order to develop our policies over the next three years.

125 Finally, the Hon. Edwin Reyes takes over Education from the Hon. Isobel Ellul-Hammond, and will continue with housing, culture, heritage, youth, sports and leisure.

Mr Speaker, much has been made in recent times about style of politics and exchanges across the floor of this House. Whilst at times those exchanges may be on the wrong side of a very fine balancing exercise we perform every time we meet in an essentially adversarial system, we do so 130 less often, in my view, than in other places outside this House.

The Government will find us a tough and searching Opposition over the next three years, but we will also be constructive on any issue of vital importance to this community. It will be our intention during the course of the next three years to make more use of parliamentary motions, as a device to debate areas of Government policy, but also as a device to project our views on how 135 issues of vital importance to this community should be tackled.

I have already given notice to this House of a motion I intend to move at the next sitting, notice permitting, in respect of our suggested approach to the new challenge facing Gibraltar, in relation to statements made by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom that he intends to renegotiate the UK's membership with the European Union. It is a neutral motion, suggesting the creation of a 140 cross-party committee to look at the possible scenarios and implications for Gibraltar and how we react to them: essentially, a pro-active cross-party approach in relation to all those scenarios.

Finally, Mr Speaker, I would like to thank, yet again, Mr Caruana for the many years he has served this community in front-line politics, as Chief Minister and as Leader of the Opposition.
We all owe him, in my view, a huge debt of gratitude.

145 Thank you very much, Mr Speaker. (Applause)

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, may I take this opportunity to recognise the hon. Gentleman's role as Leader of the Opposition is an important one. I became Leader of the Opposition some months before I became Chief Minister with, I believe, the distinction of having 150 been the person who has served in that post for the shortest period.

May I just say as a matter of record, I believe that the hon. Member has become Leader of the Opposition today in this House and not before, because it is this House that gives him the post of Leader of the Opposition, in the recognition of his parliamentary colleagues that he leads their parliamentary group. That he has become Leader of his Party is something that happens outside 155 the Parliament, but I think as a matter of parliamentary procedure, it is at the first meeting of the House that the hon. Member has become, in effect, Leader of the Opposition.

Mr Speaker, I am pleased that the hon. Gentleman has taken the opportunity to make a statement in this House in respect of the Shadow Portfolios that Members of his benches will fulfil. I think it is an opportunity that is bestowed upon him by the fact that this Government now 160 calls monthly meetings of the House and it is therefore possible, on occasions but not always, to make important statements in this House, rather than outside it.

165 Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman will find that the Office of Speaker and of the Clerk and Ushers will be an extremely useful resource to him as they are, as they were to me when I was Leader of the Opposition and as they were to all of us on this side of the House who were Members of the Opposition, because they are always generous to a fault in the way that they assist Members. I am sure that they will extend to him that level of generosity which they extended to us and no doubt have been extending to Members opposite since their election.

170 But importantly, Mr Speaker, I want him to know that he will also find the Government generous in the way in which it desires to work with parliamentary colleagues across the floor of the House in the best interests of Gibraltar. That is the way that it should be.

175 There may be times, Mr Speaker, when we have to disagree and it is appropriate in an adversarial parliamentary system such as ours that we do, but that adversarial system should not lead us into conflict where it need not and it should certainly not lead us into conflict for the purposes of partisan political gain. For that reason, Mr Speaker, although we will be generous in seeking to work together constructively, we will also be unforgiving when that generosity is abused for party political gain.

180 So, Mr Speaker, I sincerely hope that the hon. Gentleman will accept the opportunity to work together with the Government when it is possible that we should do so. I regret, Mr Speaker, that the statement made today by the hon. Gentleman under the auspices of recognition from the Chair, should have in part alluded to some of the partisan issues which appear to divide us in respect of the Savings Bank, for example, an issue which I think it is important for the community to feel absolute confidence is being handled in the absolutely most appropriate way by the Ministry for Finance and for the Minister with responsibility for the development of the Savings Bank. There should be not one nuance allowed to suggest the opposite.

185 I note, Mr Speaker, also that the hon. Gentleman has only referred to Mr Netto as having been requested by him to act positively in the exercise of his Shadow Ministerial responsibilities and I will assume that was just his pen driven to remark upon that in respect of Mr Netto, and that he actually meant, as I am sure he did, that all Members should engage positively in their Opposition role with their Government colleagues.

190 So, Mr Speaker, I shall certainly look forward to the debate in the next three years in this House. In the course of his intervention, the hon. Gentleman has said that he has asked individuals to shadow other particular individuals. He is not able to make such determinations. He decides which portfolios they shadow; it is for me as Chief Minister to decide who it is that carries those portfolios on the part of the Government. So it may be, Mr Speaker, that Mr Netto is not shadowing Mr Cortes for three years or that Mr Bossino is not shadowing Mr Bossano for three years. Whatever it is, Mr Speaker, let those shadows be positive shadows, designed to deliver always the best politics for our nation and in that light, Mr Speaker, I welcome the opportunity that we should have more debates in this House by way of motion, as you have been entreating Members opposite to do and that we might move away from a Question Time that is designed to become a debate and is actually an opportunity for information to be given and, with that information, that we might have properly informed debates.

200 As for the motion that the hon. Gentleman has alluded to, which he has put on the Order Paper, I shall deal with that motion at the appropriate time and not now, but I do give notice to the hon. Gentleman, if he has not had it yet, that there is also another motion from the Government in respect of the procedures of this House, on which I trust I will be able to count with his support and the support of those sitting with him in his parliamentary party. (Applause)

210 Acting Clerk: Petitions; Announcements; Papers to be laid.

DOCUMENTS LAID

215 Acting Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the Table a Report to Parliament on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform.

220 Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

Acting Clerk: The Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

225 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the Table the Report and Audited Accounts of the Gibraltar Electricity Authority for the year ending 31st March 2012.

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

230 Acting Clerk: Reports of Committees. Answers to Oral Questions.

Questions for Oral Answer

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

240 Tourist sites' refurbishment works
Cost

Acting Clerk: Question No. 84/2013, the Hon. D J Bossino.

245 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise what the cost of the recent refurbishment works being carried out at various tourist sites amounts to, broken down in respect of each site?

250 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I hand to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with the information he requests.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION NUMBER 84/2013

LOCATION	COST	LESS EU FUNDING	TOTAL COST
JEWS GATE	96,543	28,963	67,580
ST. MICHAEL'S CAVE	571,950	141,183	430,767
APES DEN	42,053	12,616	29,437
GREAT SIEGE TUNNELS	206,375	44,420	161,955
MOORISH CASTLE	34,798	-	34,798
100 TON GUN	27,324	-	27,324
LORD AIREYS BATTERY	3,673	-	3,673
UR SIGNS	3,959	-	3,959
TOTAL	986,675	227,183	759,492

255

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, from a brief reading of the schedule, the total cost – in effect the net cost – amounts to £759,000-odd. That is actually very close to the £1 million which I think had been budgeted for this particular purpose. Is the Minister able to advise this House what further works he had planned to fill in that gap of about £200,000-odd?

260

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman recalls, when I answered the question the first time in this House, I set out what the works were and how much they would cost and they added up to £1 million. The reason for the decrease in the cost is thanks to the measure taken of applying for EU funding, which will therefore mean that we will be able to do all the projects we have promised to do at less price and therefore have a saving to the Taxpayer.

265

He will see in fact from the second column, which is called 'Less EU Funding', that we are saving £227,183.

270 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the Minister may require notice of this question. There is an item in the schedule which refers to the cost expenditure in relation to the Moorish Castle which amounts to £34,798. Now, in the information which is set out in the Government website, there is a table which I must say caused me some confusion. I was reviewing it in preparation for this meeting because it has been the subject of some change, but certainly one version that I have – 275 and I think it survived the second version, which I also saw recently – where it talks about direct allocations over £2,000 since the General Election, there is an Item 74 which is described as remedial and refurbishment works carried out at Tower of Homage at Moorish Castle. The recipient, if I follow this correctly, is in fact not a company – but I stand to be corrected; it is a Mr Louis Edwards and the amount is for £8,820. My first question is whether that figure forms part of the greater figure set out in this schedule?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am afraid I will not be able to assist the hon. Gentleman. I will require notice of the question. I do not have the information to hand.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have asked a specific question as to whether it is included as part of the £34,000; but does he know, and again he may require notice of the question, what Mr Louis Edwards did? I just find it strange that an individual should have been the recipient of money, as opposed to a company.

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, without getting into the intricacies of the legal system, of course you can trade as a sole trader without having to establish yourself as a legal entity like a company or something else.
290

But in respect of the substance of the question, as I said, I will need notice of it, to be able to answer the query, because I do not have that information with me.

Hon. D J Bossino: Irrespective of the legal position, presumably the Minister does not know now what Mr Edwards is said to have done for the £8,000-odd. Is that correct? Does he also need notice of that.
295

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, that is correct, Mr Speaker.
300

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?
Next question.

305

DEPUTY CHIEF MINISTER

Government housing stock Summary of building projects

310

Acting Clerk: Question 193, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, good afternoon.
Can the Deputy Chief Minister provide, in the planning context, a summary of the position in 315 relation to the building of Government housing and low-cost residential accommodation including, but not limited to the Aerial Farm project, the Europa Point project and the Coach Park project, including confirmation of whether it will be going ahead with each of these projects and, if so, whether they will be used for Government housing stock or for low-cost ownership?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, the Government has presented five residential projects to the DPC to date.

The projects at Europort Avenue, the Aerial Farm and the Coach Park have gone out to tender.
325 The projects at North Gauge and Europa Point have not gone out to tender as yet. The Government has to date taken the decision to proceed with all the projects except the one at Europa Point, which remains pending.

The expectation is that these projects will provide about 950 flats, of which about 140 will be for rental. The final number depends on the exact room specifications which will be known once a 330 tender has been awarded.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer, Mr Speaker, perhaps... I did not quite catch the three projects that have gone out to tender, which are Europort Avenue, Coach Park and...?

335 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: The other one is the Aerial Farm.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can he also, because I did not hear... the number of rentals in that. He said 950 – (Interjections)

340 Hon. D J Bossino: One hundred and ninety and then 140.

Hon. D A Feetham: There seems to be some confusion on our side.

345 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Nine hundred and fifty flats, of which 140 are for rental.

Hon. S M Figueras: Indeed, but would the Deputy Chief Minister be able to provide or rather confirm, of those 140 rental properties, which developments will include those?

350 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, those are divided between the Aerial Farm project and the Europort Avenue project... Sorry, Mr Speaker, the Coach Park project and the Europort Avenue project.

355 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in respect of the Coach Park, we have had representations from concerned residents in the area with certain concerns about the impact this project may have on the area. I am also mindful of the fact that it is at the Development and Planning Commission for consultation.

Unfortunately, the minutes of the DPC are suffering somewhat of a delay between the conclusion of the meeting and the publication on the website, and this is causing a certain element of difficulty, in terms of preparing the Questions for these sessions on a monthly basis.

360 I was wondering whether perhaps the Deputy Chief Minister would be able, or inclined even, to share the minutes with me any earlier than publication on the website, if that is at all possible? And particularly in respect of the Coach Park, is the Deputy Chief Minister able to confirm whether the Government has had any objections filed on it or through the Development and Planning Commission?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Member should bear in mind that the meetings of the DPC are now public, so obviously it is for you to attend and to listen to what goes on. Also, the minutes are now published; before, they were not published at all.

370 But the reason for the delay is simply that the minutes of one meeting are approved in the next meeting, so it is not really a delay; it is simply just waiting for the meeting to take place in order for the minutes to be approved. After that, they go on-line.

In relation to his question, I can tell him there were some views expressed which were mainly of an environmental nature; also some of a traffic management nature and those issues were discussed by the Commission and put forward [inaudible] to the Government.

But he should also bear in mind, Mr Speaker, that in their own manifesto they also had a promise to use the Coach Park for housing. So they had it as well.

A Member: Two references.

380 Hon. S M Figueras: Grateful. (Laughter and interjections)

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I ask the Deputy Chief Minister for a little bit of clarification. On the figure of 140 homes for rental, have I understood correctly in saying that those were to be in respect of the Coach Park and the Aerial Farm projects?

385

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: In respect of the Coach Park and the Europort Avenue project.

Hon. E J Reyes: Coach Park and the Europort Avenue; not the Aerial Farm then.

390

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: No.

Hon. J J Netto: Can I ask the Deputy Chief Minister in relation to the 140-plus for rental, whether at this stage they know what is the breakdown for those flats in relation to how many rooms those flats have?

395

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am told the final composition of the flats will depend on the tender because tenderers, apart from what the Government has suggested, are free to make suggestions of their own to improve the... increase the number of rooms or whatever

400

So once we have the final tender awarded, we will know what the exact composition is going to be.

Hon. J J Netto: To some extent, will the tender be determined by the kind of pressures that the Department of Housing may have in relation to some of the list which has more demand than others? Would that be factored into the decision-making process?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is right in what he has said. It will be factored into the process. That is right. The actual number of people on the waiting list and the room composition requirements are what is driving the composition of the flats.

410

Hon. J J Netto: Is it therefore that they are targeting, in the main, single persons on the one hand, which seems to be a big demand for that, and also perhaps the very large families – which are a minority nowadays, but nevertheless because there are large families with lots of children, we find themselves with not sufficient stock in the Government houses, which needs to be cared for as well?

415

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, these are primarily housing issues of a housing nature, if he sees what I mean – a housing rental nature – which I do not deal with directly.

My understanding is that the requirements that were there on the housing waiting list on 8th/9th December, when we got into Government, are the ones that are driving the housing projects that we are building.

So if there was a considerable demand for one or two, one-bedroom flats, then that will be reflected in the composition of the flats.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I can be of assistance.

Those one-bedroom flats, as the hon. Gentleman knows, are 2RKBs. There are a lot of young people who are on the list for 2RKBs who have been on the list for very long, so demographically I think it is likely that those people who are seeking 2RKBs, many of them will actually soon become couples and we actually see that a lot of the people who are both down as individuals are now still single but couples and are looking, potentially, to buy a 3RKB, which is two bedrooms. There is that opportunity that people may want to buy something, if they are now on the cusp of marriage or civil partnership or whatever it is – if that is possible after the House considers the Bill in the future – and they want to buy something, then they may want to buy something slightly bigger than what they have been on the housing waiting list for, and that is being factored into the equation.

435

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Government proposes to have 140 rental flats from a number of 950. Can the Government at this stage, either the Chief Minister or the Deputy Chief Minister, provide us with some information in relation to how many rental flats does the Government actually envisage at the end of the day, the three-year period that it is actually going to be building, in order to cater for people who do not want to buy, but people who want to rent from the Government?

440

Hon. Chief Minister: Not at this stage, Mr Speaker, but I can tell him that most people are very interested in buying.

445

Mr Speaker: Any other question?

Next question.

450

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

UKGTA

Number of meetings and attendees

460

465

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism state how many meetings of the UKGTA have been held since he took office, together with the dates and locations of such meetings; who the attendees were, to include details of who ordinarily attend such meetings but failed to do so?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, there have been three meetings of the UKGTA since I took office.

The first meeting was held on 24th April last year in Gibraltar at the Mons Calpe Suite. The second meeting was held on 26th June last year at Gibraltar House in London. The third meeting was held on 9th October last year in Gibraltar at the Finance Centre Boardroom.

I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with the detail of those who were invited to attend the meeting and those who sent apologies.

The meetings are ordinarily attended by members of the UKGTA, members of the Gibraltar Tourist Board, members of the team from Gibraltar House in London and myself. The next meeting of the UKGTA is scheduled for 20th February of this year at the Millennium Copthorne Hotel in Birmingham, UK to coincide with a tourism road show being held by the Gibraltar Tourist Board. The event is aimed at promoting the start of flights secured by Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar from Birmingham to Gibraltar operated by Monarch Airlines.

The event will allow industry partners to showcase their products and services to travel agents from the Birmingham area and will serve as a marketing event for the Rock, highlighting this to be the perfect short-break destination.

Airport Commitment to new terminal

485

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Acting Clerk: Question No. 86, the Hon. D J Bossino.

490 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism confirm that he is fully committed to the promotion of the new airport terminal?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

495 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar has already stated publicly and on various occasions that the new terminal has to be used fully in order to try and recover the exorbitant amount of public money that was spent on the new Air Terminal. In order for the hon. Gentleman to fully appreciate the efforts required to try to recover even some of these costs, I need to provide some important and necessary context.

500 The project has been completed over a number of years and the total cost has been £82.97 million.

505 The expenditure charged to the I&D Fund over the years is made up as follows: 2008-09, £2,710,845.08; 2009-10, £14,833,979.28; 2010-11, £23,138,104.17; 2011-12, £37,960,050.45 – noticeably an election year; 2012-13, £4,333,569.07. That brings the total, Mr Speaker, to, as I say, £82,976,548.05.

510 Mr Speaker, it has to be borne in mind that these costs include an inadequately long baggage carousel and no weather-proof equipment to cover passengers when traversing from the terminal to the airplane. You would have thought, Mr Speaker, that at almost £83 million we would have had a plethora of suitable weatherproof equipment and adequately sized carousels.

515 With this in mind, Mr Speaker, not only am I fully committed to promoting the terminal by being actively involved in seeking new air links for the good of Gibraltar as a whole, but also to generate as much revenue as possible. This includes resourcing the Government agencies that operate there, maximising the business potential of the concessions within the terminal and ensuring that high standards of service are maintained.

520 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, it was really the last bits of his answer that I wanted to hear, given that... Well no, it is actually not even being political about it; (Interjections) no, Mr Speaker it is obvious I wanted to hear just the last bit of his answer because that was my question. I just wanted to know whether he is fully committed to the promotion of the new airport terminal.

525 Mr Speaker, the reason why I asked that question is because I have here in my hands the Gibraltar Port Authority Handbook, which quite frankly gives... it is a very poor show, if it is a Government truly committed behind the marketing of the airport. The only thing it is able to say is that Gibraltar has flight connections to several cities in the UK and almost 400,000 people enjoy flying to and from the Rock every year.

I also have in my possession... (Laughter) Look, the Members opposite can snigger and they may find this uncomfortable hearing, but the fact is – (Interjections) No, Mr Speaker –

530 Mr Speaker: Order! Order!

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, they really ought to calm down! (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: Order!

535 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I also have... So much for a change in the attitude in this House! (Interjection) He is the one that started, Mr Speaker!

Mr Speaker: Order!

540 Hon. D J Bossino: I asked for a specific answer and he has gone into a tirade à la election mode, à la Opposition mode, because he just cannot help himself, Mr Speaker. (Interjections)

545 Mr Speaker, there is a draft which has come to my attention, right, and I will ask him whether he has had any participation, any involvement in changing that draft because the draft of this handbook, the Port Authority Handbook, which deals at page 51 with the airport, the original draft stated things like, reasonable things like:

'Gibraltar's new air terminal, a striking architectural design against the iconic backdrop of the Rock is now open for business...'

I am not going to read the whole thing, but it also says things like:

555 'the impressive steel and glass building boasts a modern spacious interior equipped with top end facilities for passengers' and things like:

560 'The air terminal also includes a dedicated wing built to premium specification for handling private and corporate jets with seamless service, privacy and security.'

And yet, Mr Speaker, all that this Government was able to bring themselves to say about this airport is that Gibraltar has flight connections to several cities in the UK and almost 400,000 people enjoying flying to and from the Rock every year. What hand has the Minister had to play in the drafting of this book, Mr Speaker?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, he does realise that he prefaced his question to say that it was a 'Port Handbook'. I shall leave that there.

570 Mr Speaker, I have, during the course of interviews, I have in fact just recently approved an article that will appear in a specialised air terminal magazine, which I did not know existed, but there are enthusiasts of air terminals and we are promoting the air terminal through business-to-business magazines and we spent an entire article describing the magnificence, the architectural beauty, the intricate designs of the air terminal otherwise known as the crystal palace, white elephant and pharaonic project.

575 But given that he takes grave issue about the fact that I had to provide the necessary costs, Mr Speaker, because if he asks me whether I am committed to promoting the air terminal, given that it has cost £83 million, Mr Speaker, the answer in short is yes. I am very committed to promoting the air terminal because, good grief, we ought to, we must, because it's Taxpayers' money! And given that he took such exception to what I said, let me repeat what I have said already: €6 million, almost, as a result of the personal contributions of the previous Leader of the Opposition was added to the £82-million bill. Peter Caruana had, in his own hand, decided to interfere in changes that added to almost €6 million. That is political and that certainly will have been à la Opposition mode.

585 But it is not Mr Speaker because we are the Government, we are responsible for the public purse, the public is certainly entitled to know that they decided to, in their infinite wisdom, £33 million during the course of an election year, spend as much money as they did.

585

590 Short tirade aside, Mr Speaker, let me tell him that, through the good offices of the Chief Executive Officer, Mr Nicky Guerrero of the Gibraltar Tourist Board, myself, as I have said now on various occasions during GBC interviews and at UKGTA meetings – and I appreciate that I do not have the article that I approved recently, but I wish that I had – I spent an entire page describing the beauty of the air terminal.

590

595 And Mr Speaker, as to the hon. Gentleman suggesting that I have had some underhand motive or reason to changing the Port Handbook and whether I had a hand in it, well of course I had a hand in it, Mr Speaker. I am the Minister for the Port, the draft was sent to me, I made a whole raft of changes and there is nothing untoward about that. If he were Minister for the Port, which he is not, he may have decided to add a few more lines, rather than deleting them.

595

600 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, may I assist the House. The hon. Gentleman might also like to quote from the report prepared by the report company, which was sponsored, as he knows, by the Government of Gibraltar, which sets out in detail the changes in the airport terminal from the old terminal to the new terminal and sets out in quite splendid fashion exactly what it is that the new airport terminal is capable of and how much it costs, thereby demonstrating the Government promoting the air terminal as he suggests.

600

605 I am surprised that he has picked on a Port Handbook to talk about 'air ports' and how the Government promote the new terminal; but I just wish him to know that in another publication which involved the Government there was a completely different approach to the 'air port'.

605

610 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I will not be asking a question, but I would like to have the opportunity to clarify this issue about picking from a page from the Port Handbook, because the fact is, Mr Speaker, that although it is a Port Handbook and it really was a predictable defence the the Hon. the Minister for the Port and now I am surprised that the Chief Minister himself alights on the same defence to... which quite frankly, Mr Speaker, is weak on the basis that this same Port Handbook also extolls (Interjections) no, also extolls the virtues of Gibraltar's resilient economy.

610

615 A Port Handbook, nothing to do with the Port but it also extolls the resilience of Gibraltar's resilient economy. In fact, it is entitled 'Gibraltar's Resilient Economy' and it says things like... two pages that are dedicated to Gibraltar's resilient economy and saying things like the British Territory's Gross Domestic Products in the year to March 2011 reached £1.05 billion; officials 620 estimate 5.1% growth, not 10% in the year to March 2012, and it goes on to talk about 'the Rock, a spectacular tourist destination'. Two pages again: it talks about heritage, nature, a variety of tourist attractions, and all those things that Mr Costa, the Hon. the Minister for the Port has said he needs to fix because it was in such dire straits. And yet, Mr Speaker, simply repeating the point that in relation to the airport, this magnificent airport which the GSD Government left to the population of Gibraltar is only dedicated three short lines.

625 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, is there a question from the hon. Gentleman?

Mr Speaker: I think that hon. Members are now in danger of debating what I will not call 'an old chestnut', because it is a new air terminal!
So next question.

630 Acting Clerk: Question No. 87, the Hon. D J Bossino.

635 Procedural Statement by the Chief Minister

Hon. Chief Minister: Can I just make this point, before you move on?

I am quite concerned at the idea that hon. Members can stand up and say, 'I am not going to ask a question, but...' at Question Time. I just want to record that, although I know the hon.
640 Gentleman wanted, because obviously he feels 'thin on the ground' on this issue of the amount spent on the air terminal, that he wanted to lay out a defence because having been entirely and properly rebuffed by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism and by my reference to the report company, he wanted to set up some defence but as it is Question Time, I think it is really quite 645 astonishing that Members can get up and say, 'I am not going to ask a question but...'

650 Open-air swimming pool, East Side
Construction project

Mr Speaker: Let us go on to Question 87.

655 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise what stage the project to construct an open-air swimming pool on the East Side has reached?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

660 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the commitment to construct an open-air swimming pool on the East Side is at the design stage.

665 Hon. D J Bossino: Can I ask this question and depending on how it is answered, it may not meet further supplementaries. There are a series of some seven items listed in the same section of the website I referred to earlier, Gibraltar Government website, which is Table GC1 and it refers to matters such as 'structural design and project management for new public pool, first payment'.
Then it goes on, Mr Speaker, but it does not specifically state the geographical location of the pool or the nature of the pool and really, what I wanted to know is whether those items – and I can read 670 them to the Minister if it assists him, relate to the open-air swimming pool which they are electorally committed to provide, which is to provide on the East Side, by Eastern Beach, whether those items relate to that pool.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, as with the first question the hon. Gentleman asked me, given the specificity of it he will need to give me notice of the question.

675 Hon. D J Bossino: If I can assist, if I can assist, Mr Speaker, the total amount, if one adds up all the items relating to the new public pool, is £167,600.94. Does that figure ring any bells in the Minister's mind, as to the costs which the new pool has already incurred?

680 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the question of the new pool is one which is still in the process of development, so I cannot tell him whether that is the amount incurred to date, whether that amount was incurred at a particular time or not, without having specific notice of that question. He has asked a question in this House that asks us at what stage the project stands. He has not asked us and given us notice of a specific figure on a specific page of something, so if he wants to have that information, I am quite happy either to reply to him if he cares to write to me or 685 to answer his question if he cares to put it to me. It is a project that I am dealing with, I am running with from Convent Place.

Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful for that.
690 Mr Speaker, is the Chief Minister at least able to tell me... It was a commitment in the Election manifesto of the Alliance, and he did say I think, in fairness, during the course of the Election campaign that all the commitments had been costed. Can he at least tell me how much he envisages the cost of the new pool will be?

695 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I have given on a number of occasions in respect of such questions.

Hon. D J Bossino: I know I am letting myself in for a bit of a ding-dong here, Mr Speaker, or a wild goose chase, but what was the answer, can I ask the Chief Minister?

700 Hon. Chief Minister: It is simple, Mr Speaker: that the costings that we attributed to things when we were Members of... well, in fact, not even Members of Opposition, when we were candidates for the Election, are not matters for which we are answerable in this House. I have had that 'ding-dong' as the hon. Gentleman describes on a number of occasions with the hon. and learned Mr Figueras. We will answer for the estimates that we have to provide for these projects in 705 Government, but we will not answer for the calculations that we had in respect of those costs as Opposition, in the same way – well, not even as Opposition; as candidates – in the same way that the hon. Gentlemen would not be answerable for what calculations they may have done as a Political Party or as candidates in the General Election campaign, so we will not disclose those figures. I have said that ad nauseum to the hon. Gentleman, but we are obliged to disclose figures in 710 respect of costs which are on-going or estimates which we may have, in the context of the Appropriation debate.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I made a reference to the Election manifesto and I am just going to put that point that the hon. Member has just made to one side.

715 Really, what I want to get at is the Hon. Chief Minister now sits in No. 6 Convent Place; he is also the Minister for Finance. Does he therefore have an idea or a notion at least – I will put it in the tamest terms possible – as to what he thinks the cost of the pool is going to be?

720 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D J Bossino: Is he able to impart that information to the House this afternoon?

725 Hon. Chief Minister: Not at this stage, Mr Speaker, because there are very many different permutations and very many different potential costs that the Government, because it is at the design stage, is still looking at what those permutations could mean. So when the Government is ready and has chosen exactly what permutation the design is going to take, the Government will make the announcement and will deliver an estimate of the costs.

730 He will recall, for example, Mr Speaker, that the Hon. the previous Chief Minister, previously Leader of the Opposition, issued a statement once which was featured in the Chronicle that I was accused of taking everywhere with me during the course of the General Election campaign, that predicted the cost of the air terminal would be £24 million ; we have just heard today that it was £83 million. So in order to give the public information which is more accurate, we will make a statement about that and other costs that have been incurred in respect of Government projects, when we have accurate Government estimates of those amounts.

740 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have no idea what a pool will cost. Certainly, I suppose a lot depends on the location, the size of it and issues of that nature, but is he satisfied that given that this project seems to be at its very early stages, that an expenditure already, subject to what the Minister would say, but it seems there has already been an expenditure of £167,000 in relation to this pool. Would he be concerned if indeed that expenditure related to the new pool on the East Side – unless... he may not admit that it does relate to the new pool on the East Side.

745 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, that is a hypothetical question because I said to the hon. Gentleman that I require notice of a question as specific as that and therefore I am not going to commit myself, but a large pool for a community is going to cost a lot more than a small pool for a family, so I would not be surprised to see that the cost will far exceed that sort of sum.

750 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is the Hon. Chief Minister able to without notice say whether the Government has a time frame in mind or an estimated date of completion for the pool?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, I expect people to have happily bathed there before I call the next General Election.

755 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. Chief Minister at least have an idea of what the expenditure is to date in relation to the new pool? Does he not have that information given that he is the one that is personally dealing with it at No. 6?

760 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have an idea what the expenditure has been but I do not talk about ideas. In this House, I would rather be specific and if the hon. Gentleman wants to know what the figure is, he can either write to me, as I have said, or he can ask me the question and I will come armed with every pound, shilling and pence that has been spent.

765 Mr Speaker: Next question.

FITUR exhibition Costs of Gibraltar's participation

770 Acting Clerk: Question No. 88, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism provide a full breakdown of the costs relating to Gibraltar's participation in the FITUR exhibition?

775 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

780 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the full breakdown of the costs are as follows: cost of meeting for space reservation, £981; space and stand, £16,690; subsistence, £3,788; miscellaneous expenses, £3,558; stand expenses, £370; hospitality, £1,611; hotel accommodation, £2,192; travel expenses, £1,098; less participation fees of £6,600. The total comes to £23,688.

785 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister normally gives me the courtesy of providing me with a schedule of...

790 Hon. N F Costa: If you would give way for a second, Mr Speaker, yes, I ordinarily do provide a schedule. For some reason, they have written it out without having provided a schedule. I am perfectly happy for the kind lady, if she were to photocopy and pass it on to the hon. Gentleman.

795 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have nevertheless taken a full note and the point that really I was getting at is what the expenditure was in relation to – and I quote him from a report in the Gibraltar Chronicle... Yes, it is from him which refers to his new policy of live entertainment at the stand. Now, from the information which he has just given me and I have taken a quick note of, I do not see a specific reference to the live entertainment. I would be very interested to know why that is, or what it is indeed.

800 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am not sure, now that I do not have the paper in front of me, but I suspect there must have been a space there for miscellaneous expenses. Is there? (Interjection) miscellaneous... (Interjections)

805 Alright, in respect of the miscellaneous expenses, I can tell him that the re-enactment service fee was £160 and the expenses for the re-enactment services were £258. We also had refreshments of £19 and the public relation services of Miss Silvia Martinez, who is a lady that works in Madrid and has been used by the previous administration at every FITUR. She is a Spanish national and is very useful at the event, because of course she knows the ropes in and out and she was £923.

Hon. D J Bossino: So the live entertainment was exclusively provided, do I take it, by the History Alive re-enactment group – is that correct, Mr Speaker?

810 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, sir.

Hon. D J Bossino: Now, it is also quoted in the press as referring to... Well, I will just read the quote, Mr Speaker. It says:

815 ‘Our new policy of live entertainment at the stand, in addition to adding interactivity, is intended to showcase the many magnificent tourist offerings that Gibraltar has to offer.’

820 Now, presumably, the History Alive re-enactment group does not add interactivity. There must be other resources which were put at play here. Can I ask the Minister what he was referring to by ‘adding interactivity’?

825 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman should try not to presume anything. The re-enactment society provided excellent interactivity. The very fact of them being there was so that they could, in their full regalia, interact with the public. When people walked past the stand, they asked questions not just of the tour operators and our tourism partners; they were very much drawn by these gentlemen in their full regalia and they were answering questions on history and culture and heritage and I am told, that their very presence there was one of the features that drove more people than normal to attend the stand, and there were a higher number of enquiries in respect of Gibraltar, by virtue only of having these two men fully dressed in the uniform of the day and answering questions.

830 I do have plans for more interactivity in the future, but I shall keep him in suspense until I announce it by way of a press release.

835 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker can he advise this House whether there have been any new business opportunities as a result of his new found initiative in terms of providing...? But no, the serious point is, it is an expensive venture. I know we did it when we were in Government. He has made a lot of emphasis on the fact that he now has live entertainment, but I think that seems to be the only, if I may say so, the only feature which is slightly different.

840 But the serious point is, can the Minister advise this House whether any new business opportunities have materialised since the FITUR fair?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, prefacing questions with a lot of narrative prompts me to have to answer the prefaced elements.

845 In the first place, I have said on many occasions that the costs of doing business abroad, by way of trade shows, etc have to be kept down and we need to work harder and we need to make sure that we can measure results.

850 The cost of this year, when we planned it, was £23,687. When they planned it in 2009, it was £53,770 without the re-enactment society. So I think we are getting value for our money in respect of the entertainment that we provided and as I told him, I think, Mr Speaker, that having the services of the re-enactment society, which is a group that provides an excellent entertainment value every morning on Saturday mornings, when we are sat down at the Piazza and enjoying a coffee and having them there to illustrate the different cultures between Spain – we are in Madrid – and Gibraltar. The fact that we can boast of a proud military heritage which sells in tourism circles is a fantastic thing and for the price that I have quoted is extremely negligible – which was 855 £160 and £258 – and considering that we were able to achieve that at £23,000, rather than £53,000, I think he should be applauding the re-enactment society rather than trying to nit-pick on the cost. (Applause)

860 Hon. D J Bossino: I am not sure that I have had an answer to my question. Once again, I will ask the question: have any business opportunities materialised? That was my question. If they have not, then that is the answer; maybe it is unreasonable to expect them to materialise in a relatively short space of time, but I am not sure I have had an answer to my supplementary question.

865 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman also knows, because he has quoted part of my press release, I believe I have several... eight or nine meetings which are with prospective business opportunities. The hon. Gentleman will know, because we also recently announced it from the Mons Calpe Suite that Pullmantur will be returning to Gibraltar this year with an additional nine calls next year. That was as a result of FITUR last year.

870 The meetings with these potential investors and potential business partners with Gibraltar were only held in January, at the end of January, of this year. It is only mid-February: it is far too soon to be able to say whether any one particular meeting would produce a result, but I shall be calling him to tell him, the moment that one does materialise.

875 Mr Speaker: Any other questions?

Hon. D J Bossino: No, Mr Speaker. I am grateful.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Gibibikes Details of rentals

885 Acting Clerk: Question No. 89, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Transport provide details of rentals of Gibibikes further to his answer to Question 351/2012?

890 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

895 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 91.

Gibibikes Update re provision

900

Acting Clerk: Question 91, the Hon. D J Bossino.

905 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Transport provide this House with an update in relation to the ongoing provision of the Gibibikes service?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

910 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the information presented to me shows that since my reply to the hon. Gentleman in May of last year, Gibibikes has 446 members in the scheme.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, since May 2012, a total of 27 new members enrolled in the scheme.

915 Further to my answer to Question 927 of last year, My Bike Station advised the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited that as a result of various issues, in particular an issue with My Bike Station's suppliers, they have, at present, been unable to roll out the second phase of the Gibibikes scheme as agreed with the previous administration.

As a result, Mr Speaker, we are currently engaged intensely with My Bike Station to try and resolve the issue and will make an announcement in due course.

920 Hon. D J Bossino: Just a point of clarification. Did the Minister, Mr Speaker, refer to ‘my’ bike station? Presumably that is the company that provides the stations?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, My Bike Station Ltd is the company that supplied the 925 Gibibikes scheme to Gibraltar.

Hon. D J Bossino: And is he able to tell this House, Mr Speaker, what the issues are. I can well understand that it could be subject to confidentiality.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, at this stage, all I am prepared to say is precisely what I have, 930 which is, that when I came to the House on the last occasion, the question was asked, I was able to happily say that we were at the point where issues had been resolved and agreed, and that the Gibibikes scheme would be rolled... the second phase of the scheme would be rolled out.

Unfortunately, subsequently, we were advised by My Bike Station that they were having 935 various issues, the most important one was in respect of their supplies and that is the reason for the delay.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister say whether there is... and again, I ask the question subject to the understanding that there may be certain sensitivities involved in this 940 matter, but is he able to say whether there is any prospect whatsoever that the issues are incapable of being resolved?

I ask the question only if it is appropriate, to allow the Hon. Minister to allay any concerns that the public may have of losing the service.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I referred to the hon. Gentleman, my office, the Gibraltar Bus 945 Company and I have been working quite intensely on being able to resolve the issues. I am hopeful that they may be resolvable. I am not entirely certain today whether they are, but I am hopeful given that the previous administration spent around £320,000 and paid for the full roll-out of the scheme, not just the first phase. In other words, Taxpayers’ money has already been spent 950 on something that has not been completed. I am hopeful that we will be able to resolve the situation.

But as I say also in the answer, I will make a statement in due course, if the situation changes.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, yes, I am grateful for the answer.

In relation to an earlier answer he gave, the question asks for details of rentals of Gibibikes 955 further to your answer in Question 351 and I noted the number of new members since then. I am sorry, did the Hon. Minister – apologies – provide any information in respect of the rentals themselves, as asked for in the question? I may well have missed it.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, if it assists, the question which I posed was further to my 960 Question 352, which I posed on 17th May, and the information provided in the scheduled answer took us to March 2012.

Hon. N F Costa: Oh, I see.

Hon. D J Bossino: But we have not had, I do not think, the information from March to date.

Hon. N F Costa: No, that is correct, Mr Speaker. The drafter to the answer mistook ‘new 970 members enrolled’, rather than ‘rentals’. Given that he did ask the question and I have not provided it, I shall make sure that he receives it very early on next week. I apologise for that, Mr Speaker.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, and grateful certainly for the clarification.

Given that he has in fact provided information in relation to new members, which was 975 incidentally an issue that my hon. and learned friend, Mr Bossino, and myself had been discussing, is the Minister able to confirm that Gibibikes is closed and has been so to new members for some time and if so, for how long?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have not. I would not be able to tell him the exact time that it 980 has been closed; it has been closed for new members for quite some time for this very reason – the reason being, of course, that because we have not been able to roll out the second phase, we have not been able to obtain a higher number of bikes. As he also knows, unfortunately, the My Bike 985 Station, the stations did suffer initially, during the time that they were in office, from quite severe vandalism and it did damage quite a few bikes and we have been able to repair some, but not all of them. The solution here is to bring the second phase over, but until this issue is resolved, I am afraid that it would not make any sense to allow any further members, because all it will do is to make an already over-stretched system even worse.

Hon. S M Figueras: Indeed, Mr Speaker, I certainly concur with the observation.

990 In the context of the fact that Gibibikes is closed to new applications, is the Minister able to say whether applications are received, despite the fact that they cannot be processed and become memberships. Is the Minister able to say whether those applications are being taken and held, in order that... right... and in that case would the... and I am happy to give notice of the question for the next session, but I am mindful that there are two months that we are going to miss – is the Hon. Minister able to provide the information in respect of the number of applications received, along with the information he will providing next week in relation to the rentals?

1000 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I know that the Bus Company keeps the application, for the very simple reason that many times, of course, as is natural in Gibraltar, not only do they write to the Bus Company but they also write to me, or I am informed down Main Street that they have written in and that they have not been able to become members of the scheme.

1005 I would not know the number of applications received that have not been able to have been processed; I do know that the Bus Company always does reply to say that unfortunately, until the second scheme is rolled out, they will not be able to process their application, but there is of course a record of who has applied to become a member of the scheme.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, if I were to give notice to the Member, would the Bus Company be able to sift through those applications? It is just in order to provide an indication of the continued interest by the public in the service.

1010 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, it would take some time no doubt, but like with every other question posed by the hon. Gentleman opposite, we will endeavour to make sure that we have the answer.

Gibraltar Bus Company Limited Changes to employee complements

1020 Mr Speaker: Question 90.

Acting Clerk: Question No. 90, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1025 Hon. D J Bossino: Since his reply to Question No. 928/2012, can the Minister for Transport advise whether there have been any changes in the employee complements at the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited and, if so, can he provide details of what these changes have been, including promotions, demotions, appointments and terminations of employment, with details of the reasons given for such terminations, if any?

1030 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1035 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, since my reply to Question No. 928/2012 and by referring the hon. Gentleman to the schedule that I handed over to him at the time, I wish to inform him that: there have been no demotions within the Company; there have been no terminations within the Company; there have been no appointments within the Company; there was one resignation within the Company; there was one promotion within the Company.

Firstly, I will take the last point, which is the promotion.

1040 Mr John Chacon was promoted from driver to bus inspector following an internal vacancy which arose following the retirement of one of the inspectors in September of last year.

A total of six drivers applied for the vacancy and an independent selection board, not comprised of any employee of the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited, was appointed.

A Mr Tarraf resigned.

1045 Mr Speaker, I also wish to inform the hon. Gentleman that he will notice that Mr Moreno, a supply driver, and Mr Francis Chipolina, who was the gentleman that retired in September did not appear in the schedule I handed over to him in November in my reply to Question 928, as a result of an oversight by the Gibraltar Bus Company, for which I apologise on their behalf.

1050 Mr Speaker: Is there any supplementary?
Next question.

Acting Clerk: Question No. 92.

1055 Hon. D J Bossino: There is a supplementary.

Mr Speaker, if the Minister has the schedule which he provided to me in answer to Question 928/2012 – (Interjection) Sorry, if the Minister for Transport has the schedule in front of him which he gave me in answer to Question 928/2012. (Hon. N F Costa: Yes.) I did a comparison between that schedule and the schedule he provided me later where I was able to see the movements between when he was elected into office and the position as at November 2012, and I notice that there were six new employees. Two of them are Future Job Strategy – I imagine FJS stands for Future Job Strategy trainees – and I just wanted to know whether all these positions have been the subject of vacancies at the Employment and Training Board and whether they were also the subject of the same procedure that other people who have been promoted within the company had been subject to – in other words, they went to a board, they were interviewed and then recommendations were made to the Minister – whether the same procedure was followed. I do appreciate it is a double pronged question and I would be grateful for an answer.

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, in the first place, I do have the schedule in relation to Question 928/2012, but he is referring me to two schedules, the one that I gave him in Question 928 and a previous answer. I do not have both schedules, so I am not able to cross-reference one from the other.

1070
1075 What I will be able to tell him, however, is that clearly if there is any vacancy within the Bus Company or indeed any other of my responsibilities, any such vacancy will have to be notified and registered with the ETB in the usual way. In fact, in respect of the question that I answered to him right now there is the one promotion which was one from driver to bus inspector and that was conducted in exactly the way that the hon. Gentleman suggested which was of course a vacancy, internally, then a selection board independently, not from anyone from the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited and their recommendation to the Minister.

1080 Hon. D J Bossino: Presumably, Mr Speaker, the vacancy is also published at the Employment and Training Board not only internally.

1085 Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, by what I mean internally is internal to the company and not to the world at large, because of course, if we were opening a vacancy internally and externally, we would have to advertise it internally and also in the Panorama or the Gibraltar Chronicle.

1090 I think what the hon. Gentleman is referring to is the fact that there has to be a notification of vacancy at the ETB. That is under the Employment Regulations and that must be adhered to, of course as he knows as an Employment lawyer but advertising it is a choice for us whether we advertise it just internally, or internally and externally, and the policy is always that we advertise internally first and in this case, an internal applicant was successful.

1095 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he may need notice of the question and if he does, of course I will give it, but I notice here the two individuals, which are presumably FJS – Future Job Strategy Scheme – and they are both drivers. Does he know, given that it is his Department... He may not know because of course Future Job Strategy is the responsibility of Minister Bossano, but does he know what kind of training these two individuals are receiving? Is this the case, for example, of the two individuals actually being allowed to drive a bus on routes or are they, for example, following an experienced driver on the bus and being shown the ropes?

1100 Can he just perhaps throw some light on that?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not know the answer to that particular question. I do know that, for example – because we have had reason to discuss the Future Job Strategy cadets, as to how they are doing, for various reasons, when I meet approximately weekly with the management 1105 of the Bus Company – I know that, for example, the FJS painter and the FJS bike mechanic essentially shadow an ordinary employee.

But the question of the FJS driver has in fact never arisen during the course of my meetings with the Bus Company. Now that he has asked me, of course, I shall investigate. He can either 1110 give me notice of the question or he can write to me and I will write back to him.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, again, he may require notice of this particular question, but five of the individuals that are identified in the schedule he provided to me in November – 1115 Hon. N F Costa: Was that Question 928?

Hon. D J Bossino: Correct, Mr Speaker, the schedule which he has in front of him. None of these appeared in the schedule which he gave me, in fact after, because he did not give me a complete reply in November. So the information which he gave me in January represented the 1120 situation before the information which he gave me in November and none of these employees formed part of the employee complement when the Minister assumed office, so I can only assume, Mr Speaker, that these gentlemen... I think it is a fair assumption to make that these gentlemen were employed from outside the Gibraltar Bus Company complement.

But if he needs notice of this question... It is just that I am following on from what he has ably described as the normal procedure, which is vacancy internally and usually the complement...
1125 rather the vacancies are filled by the employees currently employed within the Bus Company, but I have identified these five individuals who were not there in December and they were there in November, suggesting to me that they came from outside of the Company.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker. I do not have even a recollection on that. I am sure that it must have been discussed with me at some point in the course of our meetings, but I am afraid I cannot assist without notice of the question. If he does give me notice, of course I will make sure I 1130 have the answer or he can write to me and I will write back to him.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I will do so, because there is one issue which concerns me which is that given the concern which the Hon. Minister has expressed in the past as to the cost of the Bus Company, I do see that now the Bus Company has two... it says 'G/Operatives'. I presume it is garage operatives, which I assume enjoy a higher salary than a driver. In fact, one new garage operative was employed. I can provide the name: the name is Antonio Rocca and I just wanted to know whether he recalls anything in relation to that particular appointment.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I wish the hon. Gentleman would stop assuming, because I am not entirely certain whether it would be the case that a general operative earns more than a driver.

Also, Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman I am sure will appreciate, there are quite a few, many people employed in the Bus Company so that if he has specific questions on any particular 1145 position, given that he has had the answer to the questions previously, by way of two schedules, and he has been able to cross-reference both and there are some things that do not quite appear intelligible to him, if he asks those questions, fair enough, he can ask me, but without having both schedules before me – only having one in front of me – and given the number of people employed by the Bus Company – I do not want to assume anything, so he would have to give me notice of 1150 the question.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1155

Small boat owners Provision of facilities

1160 Acting Clerk: Question No. 92, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question No. 689/2012, can the Minister for the Port state what stage the projects for the provision of facilities for small boat owners has reached?

1165 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 93 and 94.

1170

Small boat owners project
Inter-ministerial committee

1175 Acting Clerk: Question No. 93, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for the Port provide details of the membership of the inter-ministerial committee which is driving the small boat owners project forward and how many times it has met?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1190

Small boat owners project
Project Manager

Mr Speaker: Question 94.

1195 Acting Clerk: Question 94, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for the Port advise who is managing the project for the provision of facilities for small boat owners?

1200 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the inter-ministerial committee is comprised by the Hon. Gilbert Licudi QC; the Hon. Dr John Cortes; the Hon. Joe Bossano; and myself.

1205 The inter-ministerial committee met once and appointed Mr Chris Riddell, Director of Strategic Planning, Projects and Business Development at the Ministry of Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice, as Project Manager. Mr Riddell enjoys the direct support of the Chief Technical Officer, Technical Services, the Captain of the Port and the Ministry for the Environment.

1210 Mr Riddell has reported directly to the Hon. Gilbert Licudi QC and to me, on the project. We in turn have communicated regularly with other members of the inter-ministerial committee, which tends to be during the course of Cabinet sessions on Mondays and have reported to the entire Cabinet on several occasions.

1215 Plans have been drawn up for the small boats marina. The project is at the: technical assessment phase in terms of analysing a wave study and commissioning geotechnical, bathymetrical and topographical surveys; environmental stage of commissioning the appropriate EIA; maritime navigation assessment phase.

1220 Consultation has been carried out with the respective representatives of Europlaza, Europort, the Mediterranean Rowing Club, the Calpe Rowing Club, the Royal Gibraltar Yacht Club and Kings Wharf Limited.

1225 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in respect of one of the answers given in relation to one of the questions, he has advised this House that Mr Riddell is the Project Manager. Mr Riddell, as I understand it, is also the – and I may be describing his position incorrectly or inaccurately – the CEO of the Postal Service. Is this in addition to that?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as far as I understand the position, no. As I said in the course of my answer, he is now the Director of Strategic Planning, Projects and Business Development at 1230 the Ministry of my hon. and learned colleague, Mr Gilbert Licudi, so he was... he did fulfil the position that the hon. Gentleman described, but that was at least six or seven months ago, and no longer.

1235 Hon. D J Bossino: So presumably, Mr Speaker, Mr Riddell now conducts these duties exclusively and my question, Mr Speaker, is what are the terms under which he is employed for this purpose? What does he receive in terms of remuneration? How long is he employed for? That is the type of information which I would like to hear from the hon. Gentleman, because in fact it is, I think, that type of information which... some of that information not only in relation to Mr Riddell, but I think in relation to others, and I stand to be corrected, is in fact already publicised in 1240 the Government website for consultancy services. This may not fit the bill as far as that is concerned, but I would be interested to know whether the Minister is able to provide this information to this House.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice
(Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, perhaps I can assist.

1245 Mr Riddell works directly for my Ministry and is based at my Ministry at Europort. His terms continue to be exactly the same as they were when he was CEO at the Post Office, so he works to exactly the same terms and conditions of employment, except he fulfils now a different role for Government, within my Ministry.

1250 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Education – and other Departments, (Laughter and interjections) I am not going to go through them now – for the Government! – can he confirm that he is receiving exactly the same remuneration as he was receiving as CEO of the Post Office? (Interjection) Yes, that is why I am asking for specific 1255 confirmation in respect of what I think is an important point, and also can he tell me what that is?

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, Mr Speaker, I can tell him that he is receiving exactly the same as he used to get when he was engaged by the previous administration as CEO for the Post Office. I do not have the information off-hand as to what those terms exactly are. We will be happy to provide the answer if the hon. Member were to ask, but I certainly do not have the information off the top 1260 of my head.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, this is clearly a highly technical project and given that Mr Riddell is the Project Manager is the... I am now directing the question presumably to Mr Licudi.
Is the Minister satisfied that Mr Riddell – who I know certainly formed part of our profession as a 1265 barrister at one point in time and I have dealt with him professionally – has the required technical knowledge, experience and qualifications to run a project of this nature?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, to answer the question directly, I and the Government are entirely satisfied and have full confidence in Mr Riddell being able to fulfil this position.

1270 I can also by the way of background say that Mr Riddell is an engineer, with wave and coastal engineering studies, has been a successful project manager in both naval and building construction projects, a lawyer practised in the building and construction industry, has both Government finance and project finance experience, has unquestionable local boating experience and is a keen underwater environmentalist, hence could not be more befitting for this project.

1275 Several Members: Hear, hear. (Applause) (Laughter and interjections)

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, does the Minister know... Oh, he is also from Catalan Bay – 1280 that probably qualifies him for the position. (Laughter and interjections)

A Member: Immediately qualified!

1285 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, does the Minister know and is he able to advise this House when was the last time that... only because I know this particular gentleman and it surprises me that he should be in charge of such a technical project. I was not aware, Mr Speaker, of the detail of his qualifications, but one may have a qualification which one has not practised for many years.

So can I ask the Minister whether he knows the last time that Mr Riddell was involved in a project of this nature?

1290 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, if the question is when was Mr Riddell involved in a small boats marina in Gibraltar, the answer is I just do not know, but I think he was not, as far as I am aware. (Interjections) But let us remember that Mr Riddell has not been engaged as the engineer for this project or as the architect for this project, or to carry out the mathematics study or the 1295 waste study or anything. He has been engaged to manage the project and he has got eminent qualifications to do precisely that. It is the Government's choice and the Government is entirely satisfied that Mr Riddell is the right man to manage this particular project and to bring together the expertise that will be required in terms of the engineering, the maritime issues that will arise, so whenever professional requirements arise, those professionals are being brought in and will continue to be brought in to this project. Mr Riddell is managing the project.

1300 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has listed an impressive array of qualifications on the part of Mr Riddell: engineering; a lawyer; experienced with construction contracts. But can he perhaps tell this House when was the last time... We do not know, perhaps 1305 he does have a lot of experience in project management, but when was the last time that he actually managed a project of any technical nature? Also, does he know how many projects Mr Riddell has actually managed of a technical nature in his career?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker on a Point of Order, if I may just be allowed, 1310 before the hon. Gentleman replies, I think it is fair, given that we are debating an individual who is not in this House and who cannot defend himself, that I should also point out that Mr Riddell has also been a teacher at the Gibraltar Technical College, so that all of those who are listening can also have that important aspect of his CV in mind.

1315 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I can assure and indeed I would not want anybody listening to this to get the impression that we are actually focusing on Mr Riddell, the person; we are talking, we are really focusing on the qualifications of the individual for the job. He happens to be Mr Riddell; it could have been somebody else. We are not attacking the individual; we are just really exploring with the Gentlemen opposite the qualifications and in fact what experience he has 1320 in the past in relation to project management.

Perhaps at this stage now he can answer the question that I have asked.

1325 Hon. G H Licudi: The question, as I seem to recall, when has Mr Riddell managed or recently managed a project of a technical nature? Although I do not know exactly what the involvement was, my understanding is that Mr Riddell was the project manager for St Peter's building which was done during the time that the hon. Members were in office. That was a building project which was certainly of a technical nature, but it involved a building.

1330 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes and my second supplementary – I asked two – was does he know how many projects Mr Riddell has in fact managed during his career?

Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker, I do not know that.

1335 Mr Speaker: I do not think the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition can really expect an answer to that question to arise from the three questions that we have been dealing with, but if he were to give separate notice, I am sure that the information can be provided.

1340 Hon. D A Feetham: No. Absolutely, well, Mr Speaker, I am not insisting on the answer and indeed, if we were particularly keen on obtaining that information, we will ask a question, but it is not unusual, Mr Speaker, for questions to be asked. We were talking about this gentleman's qualifications, the Government was extolling this gentleman's qualifications for this particular project and I focused not on the academic qualifications, but of course on his experience to do the job. If they cannot provide the answer, they cannot provide the answer. We will provide notice, if we require it.

1345 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, what I can say is that Mr Riddell was chosen by the party opposite to manage, to be the Chief Executive of the Post Office and I am sure that there were projects in relation to the Post Office which Mr Riddell managed. So I do not know what type of projects... But he says 'what projects has he managed ever in his lifetime?' (Interjections) I am 1350 sure there were a number of them. As I understand it, he seems to have managed the Post Office very well and certainly to the liking of the Hon. the Chief Minister and the Minister who was responsible for the Post Office previously.

1355 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but Mr Speaker – I do not really want to take it much further than this – but does the hon. Gentleman not accept that there is a world of difference in managing a Post Office to project managing a project as technical as this and of this nature? Does he not accept that?

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes of course there is a world of difference, Mr Speaker, but the Government is entirely satisfied.

1360 What I can say, in relation to projects which Mr Riddell has managed recently and particularly since the time that he has moved to my Ministry, is that one of the first projects that he managed was the extension to Notre Dame School. That was a project which was managed excellently, which has resulted in a magnificent extension to that school, a much needed extension to that school. It was done in record time over the summer months, it has been done to a very high specification and all that was managed by Mr Riddell.

1365 Mr Riddell is also managing, by the way, the extension that we are carrying out to St Martin's School and I hope the hon. Members will welcome that. Building is to start imminently in respect of that extension. Preliminary works have been done in terms of clearing the site. We have in fact moved a couple of trees from the site – one of them has been replanted at Alameda Estate. That was an exercise that was carried out over a weekend, so the site has been prepared and that is another project that Mr Riddell is managing for the Government. (Applause)

Mr Speaker: Any other question?

1375 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, I have a supplementary to the first of the trilogy of questions which I was asked to pose and it relates to what stage the project for the provision of facilities for small boat owners has reached. Now, is the Minister able at this stage to advise this House as to when he expects the project to complete?

1380 Hon. N F Costa: To complete?

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, complete.

Hon. N F Costa: Two thousand...

1385 Hon. D J Bossino: On the last occasion that I asked this question which was in September of 2012, which is now five months ago, he did tell me then that it was at the EIA stage and I just wondered... I think he has answered in his first answer what progress there has been since then, but I just wondered, Mr Speaker, whether he has a date when he envisages the project will actually finish.

Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, as I told him on the last occasion, we do not have an exact date, but it will certainly be before the next General Election – as we also said on the last occasion.

1395 Mr Speaker: Any other question?

ADJOURNMENT

1400 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, before I move the adjournment, I recognise the Hon. Mr Caruana back in the Chamber. I do not think I have missed him quite so much as I have this afternoon! (Laughter)

May I now please move that the House do adjourn to Thursday, 21st February at 3.00 p.m.

1405 Mr Speaker: I now propose a question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Thursday, 21st February at 3.00 p.m.

I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Thursday, 21st February at 3.00 p.m. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

1410 The House will now adjourn to Thursday, 21st February at 3.00 p.m.

The House adjourned at 5.40 p.m.

Order of the Day

Questions for Oral Answer

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Thursday 21st February 2013.

CHIEF MINISTER

Chief Minister's official car Hybrid replacement

Clerk: Answers to Oral Questions continue.

Question 194/2013, the Hon. D A Feetham on behalf of the Hon. S M Figueras.

5

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether a hybrid replacement for the Chief Minister's official car (G1) has now been identified and/or ordered?

10

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the answer remains as set out in October in answer to Question 918/2012.

15 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in the light of the fact that the Chief Minister described the G1, when he was Leader of the Opposition and indeed spokesman for the environment, as, and I quote, ‘the gas-guzzling Jaguar’, has the G1 become less gas-guzzling now that he is extensively using it as Chief Minister?

20 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, may I first of all refer to the fact that Mr Figueras is not here for reasons which are outside of his control. He enjoys of course the sympathy of the Government for the reasons why he is not here and I very much look forward to seeing him back in the House very soon.

Mr Speaker, that question has an answer which is self-evident but I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer to Question 918/2012, which explains why we have not yet been able to replace the gas-guzzling Jaguar.

30 British Gibraltar Territorial Waters
Incursions by Spanish State vessels

Clerk: Question 195, the Hon. D A Feetham.

35 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state how many incursions, excluding innocent passage, into British Gibraltar Territorial Waters by Spanish State vessels there were: (a) last year; and (b) this year, providing a breakdown by month?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

40 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 196 to 198.

45 British Gibraltar Territorial Waters
Spanish fishermen entering to fish with nets

Clerk: Question 196.

50 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state how many times, (a) last year and (b) this year, have Spanish fishermen sailed into British Gibraltar Territorial Waters unaccompanied by Spanish State vessels to fish with nets, providing a breakdown by month?

55 British Gibraltar Territorial Waters
Spanish fishermen entering to fish with nets

Clerk: Question 197.

60 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state how many times, (a) last year and (b) this year, did Spanish fishermen sail into British Gibraltar Territorial Waters accompanied by Spanish State vessels in order to fish with nets, providing a breakdown by month?

65 British Gibraltar Territorial Waters
Spanish fishermen arrested for unlawful activity

70 Clerk: Question 198.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state how many Spanish fishermen have been arrested for any unlawful activity in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters since 1st January 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

75

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, in answer to Questions 195, 196 and 197, I now hand the hon. Member a handout with the information requested.

80

In answer to Question 198, Mr Speaker, no Spanish fishermen have been arrested for unlawful activity in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters since 1st January 2012, although as hon. Members will be aware, one such person has been summoned for related offences and is presently the subject of ongoing proceedings in the Magistrates' Court.

2013
	January	February
Major Incident (Class A)
Minor Illegal Incursion (Class B) i	14
Minor Illegal Incursion (Class B) ii
Minor Illegal Incursion (Class B) iii	3
Minor Illegal Incursion (Class B) iv

Definition of types of Incursions

- a) Major Incident (Class A). A major breach of UNCLOS Article 19 regarding actions in another nation's territorial sea e.g. the boarding or attempted boarding of another vessel by a SGV. For a Spanish Naval Vessel this will usually have resulted in interaction with the Gibraltar Squadron (RNGS) with the RGP as lead for all other SGV.
- b) Minor Illegal Incursion s(Class B). A minor breach of UNCLOS Article 19 governing innocent passage through another nations territorial sea. In particular the requirement for a 'continuous & expeditious passage'[1], that may result in the reading of warnings, but does not constitute a Major Incident. Examples include:
  - i. Loitering or stopping
  - ii. Unjustified &/or repeated alterations of course.
  - iii. Investigating civilian vessels short of attempting to board.
  - iv. Any other action which could be construed as being 'on patrol'.
- c) Passage Incursions (Class C). Entry into BGTW by a SGV apparently for the purpose of a continuous and expeditious passage through the territorial sea. For the purpose of this analysis the fact that UNCLOS Article 19 states that passage is not innocent if it is 'prejudicial to the peace, good order or security of the coastal State'[2] is ignored.
- d) Aircraft Incursions (Class D). Entry into the airspace above BGTW by any Spanish Government Aircraft. Note that unlike SGV such aircraft have no right of innocent passage whatsoever.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Chief Minister accept that the enforcement of the rule of law is an integral part of the integrity of the rule of law and that without proper enforcement there is in fact no rule of law?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, absolutely.

90 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister inform this House as to whether he is satisfied about the rule of law being upheld in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters?

95 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am satisfied that the Government's responsibility not to do agreements contrary to the law of Gibraltar, that the rule of law should be explicitly agreed to be broken by nationals of Gibraltar or any other state is a situation that has been rectified since our election on 8th December 2012.

100 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Chief Minister regret setting himself up as the champion of the rule of law and indeed doing away with the 1999 agreement on precisely that basis, when the rule of law no longer appears to rule in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters and that rule is more violated today than at any time in our political history?

105 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, this Chief Minister and this Government remain champions of the rule of law, as any Government should be, and neither should any Government believe that it is proper to enter into agreements that the laws of Gibraltar should be broken, as the Government of which he was a Member was able to determine was appropriate in 1999. I recognise that he became a Member of that Government in 2007.

110 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what does the Chief Minister intend to do in order to deal with these systemic and very serious breaches and violations of the rule of law in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters?

115 Hon. Chief Minister: As the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition knows, or should know, many of the incursions to which he is referring have nothing to do with fishing; they relate to incursions by Spanish State vessels unrelated to the fishing issue that has arisen.

He will know that the Leader of the Party that he has replaced said in 2010, in a Ministerial Statement, that many of the responsibilities relating to incursions by Spanish State vessels were matters relating to the protection of Gibraltar's sovereignty that fell within the province of the Royal Navy and Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom.

120 He will also know, Mr Speaker, that the role of Government in Gibraltar in respect of the law is to ensure that those who are charged with enforcement have the resources available to them to discharge their obligations. The Government is ensuring that they have the resources available to discharge their obligations.

125 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, finally, on this set of questions, may I remind the Chief Minister that, in December of last year, whilst he gave an interview with GBC and he specifically stated that the Government had acquired larger assets for the purposes, the specific purpose – and I can quote it, I have the quotation here – but paraphrasing, for the specific purpose of allowing the RGP to deal with Spanish fishermen incursion into British Gibraltar Territorial Waters.

130 Now, I could not help but notice that when he gave the speech in relation to the naming of the Sir William Jackson vessel, he omitted to mention that. Can he confirm that that vessel will now allow the Police to effectively better enforce our laws in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters and that that was one of the intentions on the part of the Government in respect of the acquisition of those vessels, of that vessel?

135 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am surprised that he recalls what I said in my speech last week or earlier this week on the launching of the Sir William Jackson launch, because I did not see him there but I assume that he is referring to those parts of my speech which have been reported in the press.

140 Mr Speaker, I am not going to comment on what he says is the paraphrasing effect of what I said on a particular occasion in respect of a particular interview, but I will tell him this: the enforcement of Gibraltar's laws is a matter for those who are charged with that enforcement. We are charged with ensuring that they have the resources to do that job. I now believe that we have made more senior the assets of the RGP, in the manner that was necessary and we will continue to do so, in the manner that we have already announced, so that they can discharge their obligations to enforce Gibraltar's laws in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters, which define the jurisdictional ambit of the power of this Parliament.

145 Mr Speaker, how they do that and when they do that is not a matter for the Government; it is a matter for those who have the responsibility, knowledge, wisdom and understanding of how it should be done.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, just one more question, in fact. Is he satisfied that now the RGP have the necessary assets in order to properly enforce the laws of Gibraltar in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters?

150 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am satisfied that they are much better equipped to do so than they were before 8th December 2011.

155 UK terms of membership in EU
Impact on Gibraltar

Clerk: Question 199, the Hon. D A Feetham.

160 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state whether he has been briefed by Her Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom on the intentions of that Government in respect of any attempt to re-negotiate the terms of membership of the United Kingdom in the EU and how this might impact on Gibraltar?

165 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, at an inter-governmental level, Her Majesty's Government has been raising with the UK Government the issue of re-negotiation of the UK's form of membership of the EU and a potential EU exit since we were first elected.

170 I can inform the House that I raised the matter with the Rt Hon. David Lidington MP formerly, as early as my meeting with him in December 2012, long before the Prime Minister's speech on the subject in late January.

175 The Government has also previously and since, continued to discuss the matter with UK Government officials. Gibraltar has been involved in detail and, from the time that we were elected, in the UK's 'Balance of Competences' review that is on-going.

180 It was, in my view, essential, from the moment that we were elected, that Gibraltar should be involved in this review which the Foreign Secretary established to audit what the EU does and how it affects the UK, as it is essential that Gibraltar's interest must also be reflected in any such consideration. Similar engagement is also now occurring at an inter-governmental level with the FCO's 'Future of Europe' Department.

185 As all hon. Members will know, the Government has been in discussions also about the right of Gibraltarians to vote in any such in or out referendum. The Foreign Secretary has himself already agreed, at a recent Foreign Affairs Committee hearing, to start consideration of Gibraltar's inclusion in any such referendum.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, other than to ask him the question that I have asked him, I do not intend to pursue this across the floor of this House. There is a motion that I am moving in relation to precisely this issue.

190 But may I ask the Chief Minister – and I do not know what the position is that he is going to be taking in relation to that motion – but at the very least whether he undertakes to brief me privately in relation to all the issues arising out of those discussions and, of course, in particular, how far he believes that Gibraltar is going to be able to influence any re-negotiations, in a way that obviously protects Gibraltar's status and indeed Gibraltar's interests, whatever those interests may be, because there is a wide range of issues that impact on this particular problem.

195 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is unusual to have a question and a motion which are so intrinsically linked, because one seeks information and the other one seeks to debate that information. I recognise that the hon. Gentleman will want to take matters further in the context of the motion.

200 Look, he is going to find me, as I told him when I replied to his Statement last week, always generous in wanting to share information in the interests of Gibraltar. So although he will not have my undertaking to do that, because that word has a legal meaning and I do not want to fall foul of a legal obligation, what I will tell him is that I will be happy to keep him informed of progress in respect of such matters as relate to the issue that this question raises.

205 I think it is important for him to look carefully at what I have said has already been established but also, Mr Speaker, I should say that we should not, when we are talking about issues related to the protection of Gibraltar's interests, fall into the trap of believing that if we debate them in here, we do not actually lay a trail for those who might want Gibraltar's interests not to be protected to understand exactly where it is that they have to go to lobby against us.

210 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I say that I agree entirely with the Chief Minister and when he hears what I have to say in relation to my motion, he will see that I have approached it precisely on that basis. It is a very neutral motion and when he hears my arguments, he will see they are couched in terms where I will not be asking the Chief Minister to effectively brief me or say anything that might alert others about potential arguments that could be used against Gibraltar in the future.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I will wait to hear what it is that he has to say in support of the motion, but I hope that, having heard what I have said, he may if not curtail, because he might never have wanted to go down a particular route, at least take note of what it is that I have said and the information that I have given him and my confirmation that I shall seek to keep him informed of these issues.

220

I would like to say that I will keep the public informed of these issues, but unfortunately there are also issues of diplomatic confidentiality between Gibraltar and the United Kingdom, of course, which may require that the public is not as aware of discussions as one might like them to be.

225

Chief Minister's trip to USA Costs

230

Clerk: Question 200, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide the details of the entire costs of the recent trip to the United States, where he had an opportunity to meet President Obama?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the details of the costs invoiced and paid to date are as follows.

I am afraid, Mr Speaker, that I usually am given a table to hand out. I do not have it now and I could read it out, but perhaps it is better that I make a photocopy of this and let him have it. This will set out for him the details of flights, hotel accommodation, transport, meals and something which has been reflected in the table as 'other costs' both in respect of myself, my wife, Minister Cortes and his wife, who travelled with us, and my senior personal assistant, who was with us throughout the trip.

245

The 'other cost' he should note is equal in respect of each of us and that is something called the ESTA Meet and Greet Service, which is the service in Washington in order to go quickly through the airport which is much lower, he will see, than it is anywhere else in the world, £293 and given the particular circumstances of this trip, it was considered appropriate to use it on this particular occasion.

He will note that when I have complained about the previous Chief Minister using such services, I always complained about them being used regularly and not punctually and on that on those occasions, the cost was in the region of £1,700 per trip to London. In this instance, it is £293.

Both Minister Cortes' and my expenses have already been provided on the Government website in the parts that set out such costs for our respective Ministries. We do not believe that there are any other costs to be invoiced. Should any further costs be received, they will be reflected in the statistics website.

In the case of Mr Cortes, an additional cost is reflected of flights to Strasbourg and from then on to London. The hon. Member will know that Minister Cortes went to Strasbourg to meet the Commissioner responsible for Fisheries, I believe Commissioner Damanaki. The flights were sold as a package and therefore it is not possible to break down the costs of going to Strasbourg and then the costs of flying to London and Washington.

I am quite happy for him to have a photocopy of this page.

	CM	Spouse	Minister Cortes	Spouse	SPA/CM
Flights	£3,366.00	£3,366.00	£5,454.00*	£3,366.00	£3,366.00
Hotel Accommodation	£2,054.00	£2,054.00	£2,054.00	£2,054.00	£4,108.00
Transport	£211.61	£219.20	£226.83	£219.20	£211.59
Meals	£276.06	£276.05	£0.00	£0.00	£6.38
Other Cost	£293.00	£293.00	£293.00	£293.00	£293.00

260 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does this include any tickets for attending the Democratic Party function at which he met President Obama?

265 Hon. Chief Minister: There has been absolutely no charge to the Government of Gibraltar in respect of any tickets.

Hon. D A Feetham: So Mr Speaker, this is the entirety of the cost of the trip, including any access fees, if there were any, for effectively attending any conference and meeting President Obama. This is the entirety of the cost that you are providing me with today.

270 Hon. Chief Minister: This is the entirety of the cost that has been invoiced. As far as I understand it, there is absolutely no cost to be invoiced in respect of any such tickets.

275 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can he just explain to the House... and he will not receive any criticism from us, because we think that it is entirely appropriate for the Chief Minister of Gibraltar to use any fast track facilities at the airport and he will not receive any criticism from us for using the facility. He may receive criticism from us for taking a position that was different to the position that he took when he was Leader of the Opposition, but certainly we think it is entirely appropriate for the Chief Minister of Gibraltar to do so.

280 But can he explain, given that he prefaced his comments, saying 'There were particular circumstances on the trip that required us to go through or make use of this facility', can he just explain what those circumstances were?

285 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, the fact that we needed to arrive in Washington on a particular date and time in order to be able to fulfil the obligations that we had and that, as he knows, Washington is not Heathrow and although one may be expected to wait at Heathrow for ten, perhaps fifteen minutes on a bad day and if you have travelled Club not even that because there is a fast track facility for Club Class travellers and the Chief Minister of Gibraltar travels Club, in Washington and New York, he may wait three or four hours in an immigration queue, an experience that I have often had in New York, when travelling to the United Nations, and which this cost gave us an opportunity to avoid.

290 Hon. D A Feetham: So effectively, and I am concerned just simply with policy, the policy of the Government is really to look at this on a case-by-case basis and if circumstances require, in terms of those types of circumstances, that the Government would, the Chief Minister would use this kind of facility, but it is not really cost related. Can he confirm that is the position?

295 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it is cost related in respect of the facility in the United Kingdom; it is not cost related in other particular circumstances.

300 For example, what the hon. Gentleman needs to understand is that the cost of using the VIP lounge at Gatwick and Heathrow oscillates between £1,400 or £1,700, adding more than the cost of travel again to the cost of using that facility at any of those airports, when in fact one may be able to walk through the airport much more quickly than using the VIP facility.

305 If he looks at the criticism that I have made in the past of what use was made by the previous Chief Minister, on every occasion that he travelled, where he sometimes paid more for the VIP facility than he paid for his flight, he will understand why I am setting out the policy that I am setting out now.

310 If you can avoid a three or four hour queue at an entry point into the United States, paying £293 per passenger, I believe that is completely different to incurring a cost of between £1,400 or £1,700 when there is no queue to avoid, simply, as the hon. Gentleman will know, what his predecessor as Leader of the Opposition used to tell me was, avoiding the inconvenience of having to take one's shoes off when exiting the United Kingdom and having to go through security. A matter which I am happy to tell him I have done on many occasions, when I have been Chief Minister. I have had in fact for my sins of having criticised this, been searched up and down on a number of occasions, much to the hilarity of my senior personal assistant who has been travelling with me.

315 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I feel so sorry for the Chief Minister that he has been treated in that particular way at the airport! (Interjections and laughter) I have to say it has not happened to me, but Mr Speaker, what I am trying to get at is the nub of Government policy in relation to this, and if I may say so, I think that the Chief Minister, perhaps because he is sensitive to the criticism that he made of my predecessor as Leader of the Opposition, his predecessor as Chief Minister, is really being slightly too defensive on this particular issue.

320 Does he not agree that it is a very narrow focus and perhaps the wrong focus to just simply look at this in terms of the cost, £1,400 or £1,700, because you could have circumstances where a Chief Minister of the day, overburdened by the amount of work that he has, actually it is money well spent to be able to spend time in that facility, actually doing work on behalf of the people of Gibraltar, it is perfectly justifiable, and the vast majority of people would understand it.

325 Does he not accept that when he is just looking at it from the point of view of cost, and nothing else, it is not the right way to look at it and can I urge upon him a rethink of this position. And look, I may be able to criticise him once in relation to it, but I am not going to be continuing to criticise any change of policy, but it is the right policy using the facility in ways that works for the Chief Minister, for the Government of Gibraltar and for the people of Gibraltar.

330 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, the answer to those questions, 'does he not agree', 'will he not consider', is obviously no, because I have set out our position. We do not believe it is narrow minded, we do not believe it is necessary for the Chief Minister to have this additional cost added to his cost of travel in order to be able to work. This particular Chief Minister has been working and travelling for many years and has not needed a VIP lounge in order to be able to do so. There are some occasions when it may be necessary to use the lounge. Of course, I accept that and I accepted that when the previous Chief Minister was here, in particular the hon. Gentleman will know that I talked about if there were particularly short connection times and the Chief Minister of Gibraltar was going somewhere particularly important. If he was going to the United Nations and he had an hour between flights and this facility enabled him to catch a flight, well I think that is entirely appropriate.

335 But he can take it from me that one gets through the airport more quickly on occasions, when a Gibraltar flight lands at five or six o'clock in the evening at Heathrow, than going through this facility. If I agreed with any of what the hon. Gentleman said, well then, look, I would be acting in that particular way. The fact is that he is urging upon us that we should spend money that we do not want to spend. I will consider that we have a credit with him, at least in the amount of the use of that facility.

350 Government revenue and expenditure
Total for first six months of year

Clerk: Question 201, the Hon. D A Feetham.

355 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide the total amount of Government revenue and the total amount of Government expenditure for the first six months of this current financial year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

360 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the tentative figures of Government revenue for the first six months of the current financial year, i.e. April to September 2012, totalled £234,555,285.06, whilst expenditure totalled £228,664,117.50.

The hon. Gentleman will note that I have prefaced this answer by using the words, 'the tentative figures'. He knows that when these figures are given, they are tentative.

ADJOURNMENT

370 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow, Friday at 9.15 a.m.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to tomorrow morning at 9.15 a.m.

375 I will now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to tomorrow morning at 9.15 a.m. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

This House will now adjourn to tomorrow morning at 9.15 a.m.

The House adjourned at 3.30 p.m.

10

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

City Fire Brigade

Audit results and publication of report

15

Clerk: Answers to Oral Questions continue.
Question 95/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

20

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for the City Fire Brigade inform this House what the findings of the City Fire Brigade audit are and when the report will be published?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

25 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, a full audit was conducted last November and the first draft of the report is expected shortly.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say when 'shortly' is? Is it next week, or in a month's time?

30 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, all I can say is that Sir Ken Knight, who was the person who was conducting the audit, has... not unfortunately, but has been asked by the UK to actually do a massive audit of the Fire Brigade in the UK. That has delayed matters just slightly.

I am supposed to be having a conference with him sometime next week, in order to see if we can get the report as soon as is possible. So I am talking about next week I will be contacting him, and after that... well, shortly.

35

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Fine, Mr Speaker.

Can the Minister say what were Sir Kenneth Knight's terms of reference for the review?

40 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, Mr Ken Knight was asked to do a full audit of the Fire Brigade from all aspects. The Government did not actually give like a terms of reference in the sense that we were actually concentrating on any sector, we just left it very open for him to come and do a snapshot report of the whole force.

Civil Contingencies Committee Meetings held

50 Clerk: Question 96, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies say how often the Civil Contingencies Committee has met since 9th December 2011, giving the dates?

55

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Yes, Mr Speaker.

Since 9th December 2011, the C3 has met on the following occasions. The full meetings of the C3 were on Monday, 6th February 2012; Tuesday, 29th May 2012; Wednesday, 7th November 2012.

The sub-group meetings of the C3 were as follows: on Thursday, 12th April 2012; Thursday, 1st November 2012; and Wednesday, 14th November 2012.

65 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if these meetings were reactive ones; or were they proactive, routine ones?

70 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the first meeting that I had with them was one that, because they had not had many before... and I can say that, in the four years before 9th December – four years – there had only been six meetings. I have already had six meetings in one year. The fact is that, obviously, the first meeting that you have is to acquaint yourself with the running of the C3 and the things that need to... I have to learn a lot about the C3.

Also, I must remind the hon. Lady that there was the air disaster that was exercised, and therefore there had to be certain C3 meetings in order to co-ordinate the whole exercise, before and after, because this Government believes in a lot of debriefing after exercises are done.

Sports grants and aid Details of awards

80 Clerk: Question 97, the Hon. E J Reyes.

85 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, sir, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of payments made since the answer to Question 12/2013 in respect of sports grants and aid to the following: (a) grants to sporting societies; (b) international competitions; (c) sports development projects; and (d) hosting of special sports and leisure events?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

90 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I now hand over the hon. Member opposite details of the sports grants awarded since the answer to Question 12/2013.

Schedule to question 97/2013

(a) Grants to Sporting Societies

T Garcia – Asian Tour	1,098.97
D Duo / J Broton – Greece Dart Competition.	1,712.50
Ten pin bowling Association – New Zealand Comp.	2,119.85

Special Olympics	30,000
------------------	--------

(c) Sports Development

Shooting Federation – Official expenses	1,050.00
Badminton Association – School Teacher Development	400.00
Shooting Federation – Improvement to facilities	5,893.43
Gymnastics – School Teacher Development	4,000.00
Gecko Pro Tour Final payment	Euro 2750
Cheerleading Association -	1,061.00
Gibraltar Football Association Level 2	2,339.23
Ice Skating Association Examinations	180.00

(d) Hosting of Special Sports and Leisure Events

GJBS – Mega Concert Preparations	76,649.70
----------------------------------	-----------

95 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I please ask a minor detail here? Under section (c) of Sports Development, where it says ‘Gecko Pro Tour Final payment’ – I think that is how the word is pronounced – can I please have some enlightenment what actual sport is the Gecko Pro Tour? It is the fifth heading down within subparagraph (c).

100 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, this has been one that has been there for the last two times – it is the payment for the golf.

105 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I do not know if the Minister has this at hand or not... Is that in connection with the same person, under sub-paragraph (a), where it says ‘T Garcia – Asian Tour’? I know, from previous answers, that that is in connection with golf. Is this in connection with the same individual, and it just happens, for accounting purposes, to come under two headings; or is one being paid to perhaps the association, rather than an individual?

Hon. S E Linares: It is not the same person; it is completely different.

110 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, and finally, Mr Speaker, under ‘Gibraltar Football Association Level 2’, am I correct in assuming that, from what one gathers from the press and so on, that has to do with the level 2 coaching qualification, yes because if level 2... I do not know what sort of ability it was testing at what levels.

115 Hon. S E Linares: I think it is both. It is level 2 of the coaching and also refereeing.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, fine, that is fine. I will not be pedantic. Perhaps if the Minister does, upon returning to his office, find that he can enlighten me in anything, I would be grateful for any 120 updated details, just to help to complete the picture of... sort of we will call it subheadings within the contributions made to the sports. So thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

125 Victoria Stadium
UEFA approval of football pitch

Clerk: Question 98, the Hon. E J Reyes.

130 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question No. 13/2013, can the Minister for Sport now confirm that the football pitch at Victoria Stadium has achieved full approval and certification, meeting UEFA standards for the playing of international competitions?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

135 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 105.

140 Victoria Stadium
International Rugby Board approval

Clerk: Question 105, the Hon. E J Reyes.

145 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 936/2012, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure now confirm that the playing surface recently installed at the Victoria Stadium enjoys full approval and certification by the International Rugby Board for the playing of official rugby games?

150 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the situation remains the same as explained in answer to Question 936/2012.

155 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker. Therefore, I can deduce from there that there has been no change. The reason why I pose this question is because at last month's Parliament session, the Minister took it upon himself... He said, 'Look, this is not the first time you have raised the question,' and he gave me the impression he was going to take a personal interest to help to expedite the matter.

160 Can the Minister confirm that he has tried to give it a push because...? I tend to think that there should not be much of a problem, but when, three months on, certification does not come through, then certain individuals start to think 'Could there be alarm bells? Could there be some sort of shoddy workmanship in the installation?' and so on. Perhaps the Minister can help to allay fears amongst the sporting fraternity.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, as everybody knows, I do take a personal interest in every aspect of the sports, and therefore I did take a personal... I did follow it up personally to expedite matters.

165 The fact is that until the company, or should I say the laboratory which has tested all the pitch does not give us the certification, the answer remains the same. It is still the same, but I am following it up. I can follow it up as much as I can, and until we get that certification I cannot do otherwise.

170 Cultural grants
Awards made

175 Clerk: Question 99, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture provide details of any further cultural grants awarded since the answer to Question No. 14/2013?

180 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, since my answer to Question 14, a further £30,105 has been awarded. This information is already updated on the Government website.

185 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I am sorry to have to bring it up again: when the deadline came for posing this question, this information was not available on the website, and I think we already have a ruling from Mr Speaker – and the Chief Minister agreed – that the information should be provided across the floor of this House.

190 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, that is exactly what I have done, provide the information.

Clerk: Question 100.

195 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, but could I then... Given that I have been given a global figure of £30,105, can I have some indication if that has been awarded to just one body, or is there a particular breakdown, and can I have some relevant details please?

200 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I think I did have the information here, but I cannot quite find it. I can tell the hon. Member that part of this is the payment to the Gibraltar Song Festival, a grant that was given to Gibraltar... The bigger figure, which I think is about £20,000, goes to the Song Festival. But Mr Speaker, since I cannot find it now, I am willing to pass over to the hon. Member a detailed analysis of the £30,105, if he so wishes.

205 Hon. E J Reyes: That is perfectly acceptable to me, Mr Speaker. However, I would like it to be done via the Speaker's Chair, so that the schedule, or whatever the Minister is going to pass on to me, actually becomes a record and therefore the Clerk is able to include it in Hansard and it makes life easier for us on this side to refer to it in future questions. So, I hope that is acceptable as well, Mr Speaker.

210 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, no problem.

Victoria Stadium Improvements required by UEFA

215 Clerk: Question 100, the Hon. E J Reyes.

220 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question 15/2013, is the Minister for Sports now in a position to provide this House with details of all improvements and/or modifications which will have to be carried out at the Victoria Stadium in order to meet UEFA's requirements for the hosting of official international football matches?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

225 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the position currently remains the same as explained in my reply to Question No. 15/2013. We are still awaiting the final list from UEFA via GFA.

230 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I ask, is there any indication from any of these bodies by when they hope to forward this list? One of the interesting things that will happen is, of course, that the Minister will be under pressure to sort of... We are now almost in the month of March and he will have to prepare estimates of expenditure for next year. I think it will be beneficial for him, and for the whole sporting fraternity in Gibraltar, to have at least a list, so one can plan ahead and budget in the forthcoming financial year for any modifications or improvements that may have to be carried out.

235 So, are we in any way knowledgeable whether this is imminent within the next month, or will it be something that may only come at Christmas time?

240 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, it comes via the GFA. As soon as the GFA is ready, we will do it. At present, there is nothing much that the GSLA or the Government can do until the GFA actually hands us the list.

Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority
Centre Manager post

245

250

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure confirm that the post of Centre Manager within the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, which first became vacant around June 2012, has now been filled on a permanent basis?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

255

260

Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority Vacancies

265

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of any vacancies which may currently exist within the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, indicating by when the Authority expects to have the said vacancies filled?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

270

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, there is currently only one vacancy for Centre Manager, GSLA, grade 5. Interviews have been completed and it is proposed to fill the vacancy as from 1st March 2013.

275

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, seeing the imminent appointment, is the shortlist of applicants, or whatever, for the Centre Manager post... Are they internal applicants from within the GSLA, or are there also some external applicants being considered?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, all applicants were internal.

Hon. E J Reyes: And therefore, Mr Speaker, if this post is filled by 1st March 2013, like the Minister has indicated, how soon does he then expect to have a vacancy that will be forthcoming, given that someone will get a promotion up to grade 5, so that we ensure that staffing levels at the Sports and Leisure Authority are as complete as possible?

285

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the staff at the GSLA are as complete as can be, whether there is a vacancy or not, because that can be covered, as he well knows, by other members of staff. It does not have to be, just because there is a vacancy, that the GSLA is going to break down and shift work or whatever... It can just be covered by overtime, simple overtime.

290

But I can tell him that, as from 1st March, when this appointment is filled, or this vacancy is filled, there will be a vacancy from the 17, I believe, who applied. One will get it, then there will be 16, and there will be one vacancy. Then when we bring out the vacancy depends on then having a discussion with the GLSA as soon as they need it, or they require it, or they want to publish it.

295

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is what I was asking. As soon as the appointment is made, how soon thereafter will the vacancy for whatever grade remains vacant be published? I do not see why there is a need to have further discussions. A vacancy arises as a subsequent result of what one could classify as a promotion, and therefore I am asking the Minister is he of the mind that it should be advertised as soon as possible?

300

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, as soon as the GSLA sees fit.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, the Minister is the Chairman of the GSLA, so how soon will he see fit?

305 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, there is a CEO in the GSLA who manages the GSLA. I might be the Chairman of the board, but I do not micro-manage the GSLA. Therefore, because I do not micro-manage the GSLA, it is up to the CEO of the GSLA to decide when he is going to bring out that vacancy. When he brings it out, there will be whatever process he deems necessary.

310 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I think I understand what the Minister is saying, but I just disagree with him. It is not the CEO, but rather the board proper that is responsible for filling and so on. But anyway Mr Speaker, I will leave it at that, and hopefully the vacancy will be filled as soon as possible.

315 Culture and Heritage Agency
Staff changes

Clerk: Question 103, the Hon. E J Reyes.

320 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture and Heritage provide details of any changes there may have been in respect of persons employed by the Culture and Heritage Agency since November 2012, which is the date corresponding to this information as last posted on the Government's website?

325 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, there have been no changes.

330 Sports and Leisure Authority
Changes re persons employed

335 Clerk: Question 104, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of any changes there may have been in respect of persons employed by the Sports and Leisure Authority since October 2012, which is the date corresponding to this information as last posted on the Government's website?

340 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, there have been no changes in respect of persons employed by the Sports and Leisure Authority since October 2012. This information is updated on the Government website.

345 Europa Sports Ground
Works to playing areas and facilities

Clerk: Question 106, the Hon. E J Reyes.

350 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide updated information in respect of any works currently being carried out, or recently completed, to either the playing areas or facilities at the Europa Sports Ground?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

360 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, works are being carried out on provision for a rugby training area at the Europa Sports Ground, using synthetic turf recycled from the Victoria Stadium's main football pitch. The works are expected to be completed shortly. I am saying shortly – very very shortly.

365 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, just for the sake of clarity, obviously these works are being done and, once completed, the whole sports area will remain under the day-to-day administration of the Gibraltar

Sports and Leisure Authority – or will it be issued out, for example, to the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union? How will it operate henceforth?

370 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I must emphasise that it is a very temporary solution. Because of all the moves and reallocation of the Bayside complex, due to the fact that we have had to resurface the main pitch, we have done pitch number two – we have resurfaced all of pitch number two. We have now converted another pitch, number three, which is now used for training purposes.

375 So, because of all this disruption, should I say, we have decided to recycle some of the turf that we have had left over from the main pitch to put it up in Europa Point, just in an area... It is about, I think, less than a quarter of the pitch, in the corner, so that that alleviates the backlog that there is, for example, in junior football.

380 Therefore, because the pitches are used by the junior football more – because they are now playing Saturdays, Sundays and Tuesdays, in order to try and catch up with the delay – we have decided that we will put this temporary surface up there for them. That would give them even more than what they had before, because before, what they used to have is on a Sunday, they used to have pitch number 2, I believe from 10 to 1.00, and they used to do their training.

385 Now, because there is also a national team of rugby and they need more allocations, and they were asking for more allocations down in Bayside, we saw it fit... We will put this turf here, and how it will be run is the GSLA will still be the body that will look after and maintain that but, basically, we have said to the rugby, ‘You have this, you use it as and when you need it. If you need... for example, if there are any issues with the turf or the fence or anything, just inform the GSLA. We will help you fix it, or whatever.’ Therefore, they will basically have control, in the sense that they can use it as and when they need it. So there will not be any other association using that; it will be purely for rugby.

390 Hon. E J Reyes: I am very grateful, Mr Speaker, for that, and I must say I support the Minister in this initiative.

395 He may recall, not that long ago, I actually had to pose a question in respect of training facilities for the rugby and so on, and he will find that I will always be extremely supportive when it comes to matters of improvement to sporting facilities, both formally across the floor of this House... and even when we meet outside, we quite often exchange ideas, because we are obviously both equally minded that although Government has to make financial provisions, sports and politics should be two separate issues.

400 May I just ask the Minister that, within all these improvements and so... may I just ask if he can confirm to me that he has not forgotten the needs for the forthcoming summer season, and so on, that the Gibraltar Cricket Association may have, who have in the past relied upon the Europa Sports Ground? Can he reassure the cricket fraternity that he will also hold them close to his heart?

405 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, like I do with all the other sports. Yes, in fact, the way the turf has been laid out in Europa Point, it will not affect the cricket at all. In fact, they could both use it at the same time, because in the parts that we have actually done the resurfacing, it does not impinge on the oval of the cricket at all.

410 Youth clubs
Recruitment of volunteer youth workers

Clerk: Question 107, the Hon. E J Reyes.

415 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 711/2012, can the Minister for Youth confirm if the campaign to recruit volunteers to work in the youth clubs has now been completed and, therefore, as from what date does his Ministry expect to open youth clubs every weekend as per his Party’s manifesto commitment?

420 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Youth Service is currently working on projects which will include weekends. The campaign to recruit volunteers will be continuous.

425 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful to hear it will be continuous, but in reply to Question 711, the Minister did say that the recruitment campaign... he hoped to have it complete towards the end of the month of September and that, shortly thereafter, when they would have more youth workers available and so on...

430 So, I was specifically asking can he confirm that that campaign – the one that he referred to that was supposed to end in September – has now been completed, and perhaps subsequently the Minister might even have figures available of how many extra volunteer youth workers he now has available for this sort of important and useful task.

435 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, what is actually happening is that the course is still running, and the course will be finished, I believe, by the end of March. Therefore, the course has taken from... I believe it started in November, until May.

There were certain applicants... I know that some have not completed or have not continued. I believe there are still about 13 or 14 who are currently on the course. They have to complete the course first, and then they will be able to do work within the Youth Service.

440 That does not mean that we are not pushing for the youth clubs to be opened during the weekend. The fact is that the volunteers will be helping in order to increase the availability of, should I say, volunteer youth workers in the youth clubs so that we can have a more continuous opening every weekend, hopefully.

445 At the moment, what is done is based on projects, so when there is a project, like the hon. Member knows we had about two weeks ago... We had a clean-up campaign at the back of Laguna Estate, which was organised by the Laguna Youth Club. That was carried out during a weekend; people were engaged during the weekend.

450 So, we are hoping that, by projects and things like that, we are able to open the youth clubs more frequently in order to entice young people. It has a value to leave the youth club just open and wait for the youth to come in, but if you have specific projects and things that the youth know about, then they will come and want to join in with these projects.

455 I say this because the project where the hon. Member, myself, and the Hon. Dr Cortes, were happily helping the youth clean up, was one of... I think it was a four-weekend type of thing. It just carried on, because then they were going to have the debriefing, a bit of education, then they were going to go and visit the northern defences with the heritage.

Through those programmes, we are hoping that they are open more frequently, but it is not dependent on volunteers only. We are hoping that the volunteers will then give it a boost in order to have more continuous opening of the youth clubs every weekend.

HEALTH AND ENVIRONMENT

Barbary Macaques Control measures

465

470

Hon. S M Figueras: Good morning, Mr Speaker.

Can the Minister for the Environment provide details of the measures being undertaken to control the behaviour of the Barbary Macaques in the urban environment since this House considered this matter some months ago?

475

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 109 and 110.

480

Barbary Macaques Numbers

485

Clerk: Question 109.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide details to this House of the number of Barbary Macaques in Gibraltar, further to answers given by him in this respect previously in this House?

490

Barbary Macaques
Notre Dame School

495

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment say whether an incident involving Barbary Macaques gaining entry to the school building at Notre Dame School, on Friday, 8th February, whilst children were present, was reported to the authorities, and what action, if any, is being taken by Government to eliminate the risk of harm coming to children in the school by the presence of Barbary Macaques in the area?

500

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

505

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the initiative 'Get our monkeys back to nature' was launched by the Department of the Environment with the support of the Royal Gibraltar Police, the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic and the Gibraltar Ornithological and Natural History Society.

The initiative aims to raise awareness of the dangers of feeding the monkeys and encourages the public to co-operate in a concerted drive to get our monkeys back to living naturally.

Awareness leaflets are being distributed in all the known monkey hotspots and this has been followed by new information signs that have been strategically placed in the more problematic areas.

Increased Police and macaque keeper patrols also form part of the new initiative centred on the wider Barbary Macaque Management plan.

The latest estimate of the macaque population is 206.

The incident in question was reported to the authorities. The Macaque Management Team, as well as the staff at the Department of the Environment, are in direct contact with the Headmaster of Notre Dame School and the Department of Education to ensure that any incident involving the macaques is swiftly dealt with by the team so as to ensure that there are no risks to pupils. To date, any incidents in the Notre Dame area that have been reported have all been responded to by the management team.

Measures that have been effectuated include increased patrols, provision of new macaque awareness signs, and educational leaflets.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the answer.

Does the Minister, however, concede that what he has told the public this past week is effectively a regurgitation of the same, effectively non-event, press release talking about the campaign to return apes to nature which he also used in December in response to statements made by the Opposition?

525

530

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in relation to the announcement made this week – between the time when I filed these questions in this House and the time when we have come here to discuss the issue – I wonder whether the Minister will tell us whether he feels that it is appropriate that, as a Member of this House, he has once again chosen to flout the authority and importance of this place by issuing a public statement on a matter which has been raised in a question, after the question has been filed, and despite previous debates and discussions in this House as to the unparliamentary and politically distasteful nature of this behaviour?

535

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I hear what the hon. Member has said. He has referred to... once again, without explaining what the previous occasion has been. I think the accusations are a little bit harsh, in the circumstances.

540

I must say, Mr Speaker, that I was not aware – perhaps due to the fact that I have not been in this House for very long – that it would have been considered poor form.

I must say, though, Mr Speaker, that the work of the Department, and the press releases that are prepared, has its own dynamic, independent of the issuing of questions. It must also be borne in mind that the questions, once sent, do not immediately make their way to the Minister. As I say, the Department will be issuing press releases with its own dynamic.

I must say, Mr Speaker, that, on the occasion in question, the press release was issued embargoed until the Monday, and in normal circumstances the House would have met on Thursday and Friday and the questions would have been dealt with by the time the press release was published. The fact that the House did not extend its session on Thursday and did not meet on Friday, and instead returned today, was obviously a coincidence and out of my own personal control.

550 I assure the House and I assure you, Mr Speaker, that certainly no disrespect was meant. I hold this House in the highest regard – I have always done, since before I was a Member – and I believe that the words of the Opposition Member are a little bit harsh and inconsiderate, and are assuming a malintent, when clearly, Mr Speaker, I assure you there was none.

555 If any offence has been caused to you or to the House, I do apologise, but certainly there was no intent. The press release was not meant to be issued until the Monday – in fact, was not – and I feel that the words are harsh and unjustified.

560 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, can I be permitted to add to what my hon. Colleague has said, just for clarification?

565 The work of Government is not paralysed simply by the fact that a question is lodged for answer the following week in this House. Government Ministers and Government Departments will continue with their work and will continue to issue press releases as and when they consider appropriate, notwithstanding that the subject matter of that press release may, coincidentally or otherwise, be the subject matter of a question in this House.

570 Mr Speaker: No, no, no. If the hon. Member... No, I think the Minister has got it wrong. Once notice of a question is given to the House, if the Government issues a press release on that subject matter, then in effect what you are doing is you are denying the right of Members of Parliament here to question, to hold the executive to scrutinise. That is wrong. It is a practice which, in the House of Commons, would be deprecated, and I deprecate it.

I thought that the explanation which the Hon. Mr Cortes has given would have sufficed, and I am surprised that the Hon. Mr Licudi has felt that he needed to intervene.

575 I can understand that the Government, when meetings of the House are being held infrequently, will need to issue a press release. For instance, we are not going to meet until May. I do not think the Opposition would expect the Government, or any sensible person would expect the Government, not to issue a press release until May, and then make statements here. That is ridiculous. But the fact of the matter is that the House met on the 14th, and that it was then adjourned to yesterday, and this press release appeared, inadvertently – and I have accepted the explanation which Mr Cortes has given... This press release appeared in between.

580 Now, the practice should be for the Government not to issue such press releases unless they are matters which are absolutely urgent. If it is a serious matter which is absolutely urgent, then obviously it is acceptable that the Government should not wait until the House meets again, but what the Hon. Minister is saying... I am sorry, I think that is completely and utterly out of order, and the trouble is, the problem is, that either in the House of Commons or here, the Speaker does not have more power to do anything about it.

585 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, it may be that I have not explained the position properly, or it may have been misinterpreted.

590 I have not said, nor is it our intention, that where a question is posed, we pre-empt what is going to happen in this Parliament by answering that question in public, or by otherwise taking the thunder away from the scrutiny and the accountability. That is absolutely not the Government's position, but it may be that, in the normal course of things, things are planned and the Government's agenda is not paralysed simply by the fact that a question is posed on a particular subject. In fact, the press release might relate to that subject, but not specifically to the question itself.

595 That is all that I have said, and that is all that I wanted to say for clarification purposes. I accept what you say, Mr Speaker, that it would be wrong for the Government to try to pre-empt and try to deny the opportunity, as my hon. Colleague has said. That was not the purpose of my intervention and I trust that [inaudible].

600 Mr Speaker: The Chair... I accept that we live in a world in which the growth of press releases, press conferences and interviews with the press is a matter which is expected. It is done, you know. That happens, it is a fact of life, but I would enjoin upon the Government the approach which you have now – which the Minister for Education has now... and that is to exercise care.

605 Ministers know the date when the House is going to meet, and they know that questions come in a week before. They may not get the questions themselves on that day. I imagine... Certainly, in my time, they used to go, first of all, to a civil servant, the head of a Department, who would probably draft the answer for the Minister to see. The Minister may not be aware of the fact that there is a question until a day or two later.

610 I would enjoin upon the Government that they should be very, very conscious of that fact and try, if they can, not to issue press releases which are the subject of questions in the House, unless something extraordinary happens, when I think everyone would accept that it would become necessary.

615 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I just say that, obviously, the Opposition welcomes your ruling, because, from the Opposition, this is not the first time it has happened. We have had meetings ourselves when we have seen that, in the past, we have given notice of questions, and during the period of getting information, Government has been issuing press releases on those issues.

620 Mr Speaker: Since October, there has been just one other previous case, when the Government issued a press release on the question of the power station.

625 Hon. J J Netto: And we certainly felt, at the time, that the press release could have waited until Parliament had the session of discussion. So, certainly, we welcome your ruling and I hope the Government takes it in the light of the spirit that the Speaker has said.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Can I urge the Opposition not to labour the point, because this is something which they, themselves, used to do very frequently (Mr Speaker: Yes.) when they were in Government, and it happened to me several times.

630 Mr Speaker: It is a practice which has grown over the years, and it is very difficult to put it into reverse, because the media are demanding and the public is demanding. I think we are all conscious of these realities. I think the matter has been sufficiently aired, I think we are all ad idem as to how the House should go ahead.

635 Clerk: Question...

Hon. S M Figueras: I have a further supplementary, Mr Speaker, on the matter of the apes generally.

640 Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, in the first instance, to Mr Speaker for his ruling on the matter. Turning to the announcement that was made on Monday, 18th February, is it not the case that you have previously advocated the use of wardens for the implementation and enforcement of the feeding fines in the management plan proposed to the then GSD Government; and in this context, are you able to tell...? Is the Minister... Apologies, Mr Speaker, is the Minister able to provide this House with details of the powers those wardens who are part of this increased patrolling initiative possess, that enable them to do their work?

650 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, firstly, I am grateful for you accepting my description of events. Mr Speaker, the increased patrolling at the moment, as it is being done, is, as I say, by the Royal Gibraltar Police and by the team, with no additional powers.

655 The question of wardening is being addressed in the Upper Rock Plan and the Barbary Macaque Management Plan, which are now reaching the finishing stages. So, at the moment, there are no additional wardening powers. Wardens are defined and their duties described in the Nature Protection Act, and in order to assist the Member opposite, they would be those powers broadly that are defined in that Act.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer. I am grateful, too, to note, Mr Speaker, that the plan is now arriving at its finishing stages, which it has been doing now for a year and two months.

660 I would, however, ask the Minister, given that I am not aware of the powers at this time myself, whether perhaps the Hon. Minister will be able to tell this House whether, like the Barbary Macaques, the wardens, after the plan has been brought into effect, will have any teeth with which to impose the legislation in respect of feeding of the apes.

665 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if the Management Plan is completed within a short period of time, it will have only been one-sixteenth of the time that it took the previous Government not to complete the Plan. (A Member: Our Plan.)

670 The question of teeth, Mr Speaker... I do not have in front of me the list of duties. I am familiar in the generality of it, but I do not know whether the hon. Member opposite is talking about powers of arrest... I do not believe that powers of arrest are included.

675 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say whether he is of the view that, in order for the wardens to be able to assist in this initiative, into which the RGP has also been included... and, frankly, I simply do not how much more the RGP can be given to do, when they already have so much on their plate, but can the Minister tell us whether he is of the view that, in order for the wardens to be able to do their job appropriately, whether giving these wardens powers to impose on-the-spot fines would be appropriate?

680 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is all very hypothetical and only tangentially related to the substance of the actual question. Nevertheless, I will attempt to give some kind of response.

I think that the possibility of on-the-spot fines is a principle that could apply in these circumstances. On-the-spot fines are always difficult because, obviously, it is tantamount to conviction without prosecution, and therefore there has to be clear, in this case, for example, feeding of macaques, and unless you actually see the person putting the food out, they could argue that they just dropped it on the floor. 685 The hon. Member is a lawyer, I was a magistrate, so we understand what we are talking about.

So it is a possibility, but obviously not one that is easy to enforce, but it is certainly a possibility that is being considered in the context of the Nature Protection Act. There is a similar situation with dog fouling in which it is possible to issue on-the-spot fines, and very few, in fact, are issued because it is very very difficult to prove. 690

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I turn now to the issue of the question I asked in relation to Notre Dame School and the incident on 8th February.

The Minister has spoken of contact by the macaque team with the school, and that any future incidents they will attend as a matter of priority, that there will be increased patrols, signs and leaflets.

695 Mr Speaker, is the Minister not concerned that responding to an incident may well, one day, be too late?

A Member: Yes.

700 Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am finding it very difficult not to be cynical and I am finding it very difficult not to laugh, because the hon. Member opposite is... (Interjection) 705 Mr Speaker: Order! Order! Order! No remarks across the floor of the House, please.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Because the hon. Member opposite is making, almost word for word, the same statements that I, in a previous capacity, used to make repeatedly to the Government of the time. And here I am – after a year of having to sort out a lot of things that I believe, Mr Speaker, were not being done properly – having to defend something which is not of my creation. 710

Mr Speaker, of course I am concerned about any possible incident that might affect any member of our community. What I can say, Mr Speaker, is that I am working very hard. Not everything is ready. These things take a long time: exportation of monkeys takes a long time; preparation of properly thought-out management plans take a long time.

715 So, Mr Speaker, of course I am concerned. Of course, we will do everything we can to resolve these problems. These problems have happened before. It is not the first time that a monkey has got into a building, be it a school building, a hotel room or somebody's personal home – I know that for a fact – but I think it is preposterous for me to have to stand up here and to defend the results of total lack of management for so many years.

720 I am going to steer away from that, Mr Speaker. I will just say that certainly I am concerned, and certainly we are in touch with the schools. We are working very closely with them and we are preparing certain measures, because they are not ready yet, I do not feel it would be appropriate for me to announce at this time. Otherwise, I would be accused, if it were not to happen exactly as I define now, of having misled the House.

725 So, Mr Speaker, a lot more will be said about the Barbary Macaques within the next six weeks, and I can almost commit myself, because it does depend on other people. I can assure the House that we are doing as much as we can, at this moment in time, to avoid this problem and to try and control the problem, which certainly, Mr Speaker, is not of this Government's making.

730 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, what the community out there is asking, and asking with some alarm, is how long will it take, after the implementation of this Plan, after all the talking and all the planning and all the thinking to be done, how long it will take residents of Laguna Estate, residents of Gardiniers Road, and residents elsewhere in the community, to experience normality in their day-to-day coming and going, without coming into contact with these wild animals? (Banging on desks)

735

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it really is incredible to have to sit here and listen to this kind of comment from people – hon. people – whose party was in Government and who have to remember the number of incidents there were then, who have to remember that the problem is not new, who have to remember, although nobody is present in the House – well, one person perhaps – the kind of discussions that I had with them about this very issue. Having to listen to it now, and almost defend it, as if it were of my making, is absolutely incredible, but there we are – I suppose that is what some people think politics is.

740

Mr Speaker, at least now there is talking, at least now there is planning, and at least now there is thinking that at least goes somewhere deeper than just superficial talk, and we are definitely planning our actions.

745

Mr Speaker, natural systems are unpredictable. I cannot tell you where a particular Barbary Macaque or a particular blackbird will move to once it leaves the position of this bottle, but I can try and induce it to go in a particular direction by having knowledge of its behaviour and by perhaps putting something that will entice it in that particular direction. That response might not be exactly as I would predict.

750

Mr Speaker, I cannot tell anybody the exact time. What I can tell you, Mr Speaker, and I can tell this House, is that we are thinking, we are talking and we are planning much more significantly than anybody ever has done before, and that I am fairly confident – in fact, quite confident – that a lot of our measures will have good effect and that the people of all these estates will be able to continue their lives without having to worry about any possible aggression from the Barbary Macaques. (Banging on desks)

755

Mr Speaker: I will allow one final supplementary on this subject.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am now –

760

Mr Speaker: One to each of the other Members.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am moving now to the crux of the matter, and it may well require more than one supplementary, but I am of the view that Mr Speaker will understand that –

765

Mr Speaker: We are beginning to debate.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I will move to the crux, and perhaps he will see where it is that I am going with this.

770

The Hon. Minister has said that there is talking, thinking, planning, all that going on, and that he cannot control if an ape moves from the position of this bottle to wherever it may choose to go; but is it not the case, Mr Speaker, that the Minister, once again, in the regurgitated statement on Monday, 18th February, said with much fanfare that the Government is not going to cull any apes under any circumstances?

Can the Minister confirm that under no circumstances will the policy of not culling an ape, as a measure of last resort in the management of not just the nature reserve but its interaction with the community, will ever change?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Government has never said that no monkeys will be culled. The Government has said that there will be no large-scale culling. (Hon. S M Figueras: No, no, no.) The Government has always –

780

Mr Speaker: Order!

S M Figueras: Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Let the Hon. Minister finish.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The Government has always said there will be no culling as population control. There will be removal of certain individual animals, on occasions, where they may constitute a danger, or they may be injured, or as some other form of management.

I have to specify we are not going along the avenue of large-scale culling, but we have never said that individuals... and I am not saying on this occasion, but I have to rectify it. The answer is we are not going to do a large-scale cull, but I must reiterate, and I have always said that, that certain individuals, on 795 occasions, one has to put down, for a number of reasons. I am not going to list them here – I think that is not directly relevant to the question – but I have always made that point.

800 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I beg to differ with the Hon. Minister, because it was in this House... and I am afraid that I do not have the reference to Hansard directly at this moment in time, but in this House I asked him specifically – and I recall, because I was the one who asked the question – whether, when he discarded culling publicly, and I referred him to an article in the Chronicle that had been attributed to him... I asked him whether they were discounting the possibility of small-scale culling as well, and he agreed. He said that that was, in fact, the case; and therefore that is inconsistent with what he is saying now.

805 I would ask the Minister to clarify whether or not they will be culling any apes, because the removal, Mr Speaker, involves, does it not, culling of a particular individual macaque, doesn't it?

810 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, that is exactly what I have said. Culling on a large scale, to me, and I think to most people, would be removing a group of 40 animals, be they macaques, be they deer, or whatever. We do not have deer in Gibraltar – just general reference.

815 What I have said consistently is that, on occasion, for whatever reason – be it injury to the animal, be it a particularly disruptive individual, be it an animal that persistently has some form of behaviour which is considered that has to be controlled – that individual animals may have to be put down – I have always said that – but culling will not be used as a method of large-scale population control. That is exactly what I have said in the past.

820 If it is not what I have said in the past, it is certainly what I meant in the past, and that has always been our position. Our position has always been that individual animals, for management purposes, have sometimes got to be put down; and that, I am sure, if you search Hansard, must be there.

825 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mrs Ellul-Hammond.

830 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul Hammond: Mr Speaker, one of the recommendations in the macaques back to nature awareness leaflet is for the monkeys not to associate humans with food. The following day, the Government announces the introduction of picnic areas on the Upper Rock, which is the natural environment of our tailless monkeys, and obviously humans will be there, eating food. So how will these two conflicting policies be reconciled?

835 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the Opposition is now advocating the banning of picnicking on the Upper Rock... (Interjection)

840 The associating of humans with food is not that monkeys will not see a person eating a picnic... particularly in the area of Governor's Lookout, monkeys are rarely found, but anyway, it is that monkeys should not consider that humans actually hand them food and provide them with food.

845 They get used to having people putting their hands in their pockets, or getting items out of a plastic bag and handing it to them, and that is when they realise that that human can actually directly give them a source of food of high calorific value. Therefore, they are going to be associating humans with that sort of thing.

850 If humans stop doing that... and this has been seen... There was a group of macaques taken from Gibraltar to Germany – to a safari park there, in 1998 – which had been habitualised to being fed by humans. The moment that... well, several months after, people would walk through and not offer them food, they unlearned that process.

855 So one thing is not related to the other. What we must stop is actually handing out titbits to monkeys because that is when they make the link between the person, the hand in the pocket, the plastic bag. But one thing is not directly related to the other and, in any case, the picnic areas that are being created happen to be away from most of the areas that the monkeys frequent.

860 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Netto.

865 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker there are two perhaps small issues that I want to raise.

870 The one is perhaps to do with clarification. I think I understood the Minister when he said that the current population is 206. Is that correct? Can he confirm that, because...

875 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker.

880 Hon. J J Netto: Right, does that include new-born macaques within the previous twelve months? Because I understand, from the past, that the life expectancy of a new-born is not so high, so the figure 855 may not be included in the overall figure. If that is the case, could he then say how many new born babies were within the last twelve months?

Can I just finish my second one?

860 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I thought he had finished.

Hon. J J Netto: The second point I want to raise: I was surprised, actually, that the Minister did say that he cannot be expected to know where the macaques are at any given moment in time, or words to that effect. It is not something I really want to argue much about and I say this against a background that my understanding is that, in different parts of the world, not just to do with macaques but, indeed, to do with 865 different animals, they have different – I do not know how to put it, within the new technologies available – different gadgets: which through GPS systems, they know exactly where every single animal happens to be.

I say this because, if that is the case, and whether the Department of the Environment is looking, the officials looking into this, actually, this may be part of the solution: I am not saying the whole solution 870 but at least in knowing where there is a particular group of macaques, or a particular individual macaque, who consistently, or persistently, actually go to Laguna Estate or Moorish Castle or La Caleta, or whatever it is. Then we can target particular hotspots with particular macaques. If that is the case, what is the cost involved? I have to confess that I really do not know what the cost would be – but perhaps he could enlighten us into those issues.

875 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I apologise, I did not realise the hon. Member had not finished. That is why I intended to stand.

Yes, Mr Speaker, I remember briefing the Hon. Mr Netto when he was Minister on the fact that the numbers are tallied at the end of the year but because we are at the beginning of the year the 206 does 880 include the births of last year and does include the deaths of last year, which had been deducted. So, yes, that is a figure. It does not include any births this year because births do not start until around end of April/May, so there are 206 on the roll, so to speak.

Mr Speaker, I did not say that we do not know where all the monkeys are. I said that we could not 885 always predict the behaviour of animals and that is fact. But, in fact, we do not know where all the monkeys are and I think that the hon. Member will be very excited to hear the proposals and the plans that we have within, as I suspect, six weeks' time as to actions that we are planning, which are very much on the lines as he has described, regarding being able to locate monkeys.

This is something that is being finalised now and, unfortunately, I am not in a position to give full 890 details but certainly we will shortly be able to have much more information than we have at the moment and, therefore, will be able to manage our monkeys very much more. This is why I say, Mr Speaker, that I am being quizzed at the stage when there is a lot going on behind the scenes. I hope that I will be quizzed just as intensely once the plan is in action and in operation because then I will be able to, I am sure, satisfy the questioners much more effectively.

895 Mr Speaker: I will allow the Leader of the Opposition to make one final supplementary on the matter.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful.

Mr Speaker, I just want to go back to this statement that the Hon. Minister made about Government 900 policy not being large-scale culling but culling of individuals.

Now, of course, the concept of large-scale culling can be quite elastic. How large scale are we talking about? Are we really talking about, and is Government policy this, that the only culling of apes that there is going to be are of a 'handful', and I am really talking about, when I say a handful, I mean a handful of 905 perhaps troublesome individuals that are troublesome within the group, or that may, in fact, be individuals that may be leaders of a potential pack in future that could possibly branch out, but that we are really talking about a handful of individuals and that the Government is not committed to culling apes beyond that handful?

910 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is very hard to define a 'handful': certainly no more than a handful.

We are talking about certain individuals who, for reasons of their own health, injury, some kind of character personality trait or whatever, would have to be removed.

I must remind, Mr Speaker, the huge international campaign that there was against Gibraltar the last 915 time a large-scale culling was carried out. I believe it was in Catalan Bay, when about 30 animals were taken. There was a large campaign, not just in the academic world, but there were campaigns to try and get tourists to stop coming to Gibraltar. We had international bodies, such as the International Primate Protection League, actively criticising Gibraltar and causing great embarrassment to Gibraltar – they are now working with us in trying to find a solution. So, I think we must remember that these actions, apart from not being humane, also have other consequences.

Mr Speaker: I think the macaques have had a sufficient airing this morning. Let us hope the wet weather keeps them away from the precincts of the House (Laughter) because I do not think I can apply Standing Orders to them.

925

Next question.

Clerk: Question 111, the Hon. S M Figueras.

930

Question 99
Additional information

935

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, with your indulgence, so that nobody suspects that there has been any ‘monkey business’ on Question 99, I have actually found the list that the hon. Member Mr Reyes wanted.

Mr Speaker: Yes, give him the information.

Hon. S E Linares: Therefore, just to say that, in the breakdown from the £30,105, it is the Music Festival of Gibraltar, i.e. the Song Festival, which was £15,000; the Fine Arts Association ‘Tears of Joy’ Hamish Dalmedo was £4,805 – I will give him the list later, Mr Speaker, I just wanted it on Hansard – Joe Gingell, part of the Cultural Grants, got £1,800; Gibraltar Philharmonic Society Concert in May got £7,000; and Jordan Lopez got £1,500.

Mr Speaker, I will give him the list later so that he can analyse it.

Report into fishing in Gibraltar waters
Publication and action by Government

950

Mr Speaker: Question 111.

Clerk: The Hon. S M Figueras.

955

Hon. S M Figueras: We breathe a breath of fresh air, Mr Speaker, as I turn to ask a Question about the Commonwealth Park and that is whether the Minister for the Environment can provide this House with an ...

Clerk: Question 111!

Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, one hundred and –

Mr Speaker: One hundred and eleven.

Hon. S M Figueras: Eleven. Ah well, my apologies. No. Yes, Mr Speaker apologies for the confusion.

Can the Minister for the Environment say when the Government will be publishing the findings of the reports into fishing in our waters and what action, if any, is being taken in response to them?

970

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government has now received comments from the Nature Conservancy Council, while the Department of the Environment is finalising its analysis.

975

A report will be published once an action plan has been developed. This is expected to be shortly.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, would the Minister be able to give us any indication about how long this short timeframe may turn out to be?

980 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I do not think so, Mr Speaker.

There are a number of inter-related issues that come into the development of this plan so I do not wish to tie myself down to a specific timeframe.

985 Hon. J J Netto: Could I ask the Hon. Minister why is it that giving the Members of the Opposition a copy of the report has to wait until such time as the Department has provided an action plan. Could not the two things be completely divorced? At the end of the day, one thing is the report with its recommendations which he has had on the table for who knows how long, and the Opposition has not... Surely, whilst we welcome that there is an action plan by the Department, that does not stop them from providing the Opposition with a copy of the report?

990 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is a report that has been provided to the Government and the Government is actively working on it. It is a working document and I do not think that the time is right for it now to be released. It will be released. There is a commitment for it but it is an extensive analysis.

995 There have been inter-relations with the Nature Conservancy Council, as I said earlier, and there are things that have to be incorporated in Government policy. Therefore, I think it would be premature to release it at this stage. That is my opinion and it is the opinion of the Government.

1000 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, may I ask the Minister whether this particular report has gone through various drafts since it was received by the Government in response to feedback, or is this a final report that has been produced to the Government? If it was a final report, did it go through various drafts before the final copy was provided to Government and, if it did, did it involve Government providing input to the report?

1005 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, Government has not provided input to the report. The Nature Conservancy Council requested additional information directly from the authors of the report. There has been no Government involvement in editing the report in any way.

1010 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the answer that the Hon. Minister gave me just a moment ago... one can deduce from that statement that he is just not willing to provide the information to the Opposition. In the light of that, what I would like to ask him is whether, by adopting that particular position, he falls foul of the European Directive on the Freedom of Information on providing environmental information to the public?

1015 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I would have to seek legal advice on that but I daresay that the legal advice would be retrospective to a time when other reports were presented to the former Government, which were not presented to the Opposition or to other people, members of the Community.

1020 What I said, Mr Speaker, I was not trying to be difficult. I said it is a document which is active, that the Government is responding to and, therefore, until its policies are completed and so on, I think it would be inappropriate to share it. I think that is a legitimate position to hold. On the actual question, then I would need legal advice.

1025 North Mole temporary power plant
Complaints over noise and pollution

Clerk: Question 112, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1030 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say whether the Government has received any complaints in relation to the location and operation of the temporary power plant at the North Mole since it went online in late December, specifically in relation to noise and other sources of pollution?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1035 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, eight persons – this reply was prepared probably about a week and a half ago, so it was correct up to then, Mr Speaker – eight persons have complained of the temporary power plant since it went online in late December 2012. Five have complained of noise, two have complained of noise and fumes, one has complained of fumes.

1040 The Gibraltar Electricity Authority is working together with Energy International in the fabrication of silencers for all five turbines, which will result in a considerable noise reduction, particularly when 1045 prevailing winds are westerly and north westerly, which is when the plant can be heard at a distance. The turbines are also being fitted with noise attenuation blankets which will, once again, reduce noise on site. The temporary power plant is presently producing half of Gibraltar's power requirements. Work will soon commence on the installation of SCR – popularly known as 'scrubbers' – which will, in turn, reduce nitrogen oxide emissions levels a further 97%. The present technology already produces about 50% less nitrogen oxide than the other power plants operating in Gibraltar.

1050 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Minister for the details in respect of what is being done in relation to the noise.

1055 In relation to the fumes – and the reason for asking the question, Mr Speaker, in the first place was reports that have been made to us in respect of, specifically, fumes, the noise I personally experience, certainly, and it is like aeroplanes just on taking off on the runway, it is no more harsh than that – but in respect of the fumes specifically, will the installation of the scrubbers and the reduction of nitrous – that substance – by 97%, provide a... will that translate into less perception of the fumes by those affected in the area?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, absolutely.

1060 The elements of the emissions which cause most annoyance is, in fact, the nitrogen oxides – nitrogen dioxide and nitrous oxide – and the reduction of that by 97% will certainly reduce the perception and they will be the least polluting generators that Gibraltar has, in fact, has ever had.

1065 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker can I just say that I also have a similar question, which is Question 161, to the Hon. Minister for Health and Safety so, in a way, I need to try and sort of divorce the kind of question I may ask now, as opposed to the kind of question I may have to ask later on.

1070 But can I ask the Minister for the Environment, in relation to those measures that are going to be introduced to mitigate the effect of noise pollution, has that been done in accordance with the control, no sorry – with the Environmental Assessment and Management of Noise Regulation 2006?

1075 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my information is that it goes beyond any legal requirement and, therefore, it more than satisfies those requirements.

1080 Hon. J J Netto: So do I take it, then, that this particular set of regulations has been taken into account in order to establish the kind of level of noise that has been emanated, within Waterport Power Station, now that they have the new temporary generators additionally? So has any assessment been made to map out what the noise actually is and is there a report in relation to the mapping out of the noise, which may have a health impact not just on the workers of Waterport Power Station but, indeed, in any effects it may have on different workers that work in that vicinity? I am thinking about the workers from AquaGib there and the fact, of course, that there are two big housing estates. One is Harbour Views and the other is William Jackson Grove. So can the Minister confirm that assessments have been made in accordance with this set of regulations to determine the level of noise.

1085 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, in order to go into that detail I would need notice. I have not got in front of me the details of the exact regulations and so on that have been taken into account, so I would need notice of that question.

I think I have answered the question actually asked, accurately and to the best of my ability. Assessments have been made for the site but the exact details, I am afraid, I would need notice of.

Mr Speaker: Next Question - one other supplementary, yes?

1090 Hon. J J Netto: With your indulgence, can I ask the Minister whether he can ask his own officials whether such assessments have been made and, if they have been made, perhaps provide me with a copy of their report?

1095 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I would ask the hon. Member to write to me, telling me exactly what information he requires and then, obviously, I will respond.

1100 Mr Speaker, I did fail to answer a related matter but I think that it is relevant to the general discussion, that I am happy to report that, as a result of this power generation, both the two south district power stations are now shutting down most nights between approximately 11.30 and midnight and 6.00 in the morning. So that is resulting in considerable less pollution in the silent hours in the south district.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Permanent power station
Government plans

1105

1110

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment say whether the Government is on track to make announcements in respect of the Government's plans for the permanent power station by the end of March, as set out by Government in answers to Questions in this House?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1115

1120

Location, fuels and timeframe

1125

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in the light of the extended adjournment of this House until May of this year, can the Minister for the Environment provide this House with an indication of the issues being considered, as well as any information he may have available to him in respect of the location of the permanent power station including, but not limited to, the fuels being contemplated for use in it and the anticipated costs and timeframe for its construction?

1130

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1135

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government is currently finalising tender documents which will be published by the end of March. A decision will be taken on these elements in response to the tenders received.

1140

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, in relation to the announcement of, or rather the provision of, the tender for the waste treatment facility, of which I have been made aware, I understand from a review of the papers that one of the requirements is that the waste treatment facility will generate some by-product, as an output from the facility. In that context, then, and the fact that the waste treatment facility is being tendered to be located at the site of the old incinerator plant, can the Minister tell this House to what extent the location of the waste treatment facility and the interplay between that facility, the permanent power station and, ultimately, a sewage treatment plant – something that we have discussed in the past, in terms of the interaction and the grid itself – whether that will have an impact or influence on the decision as to where the permanent power station is located?

1145

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, again, I think this is tangentially related – if my former geometry teacher will allow me to use such a term – to the substance of the question but all these different aspects are, as I see it, being treated independently of each other. There may be a synergy but, at this stage, they are being treated independently.

1150

Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, for the avoidance of doubt, Mr Speaker, and in layman's terms, where is the permanent power plant going to go?

1155

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I said, tender documents are being prepared which will stipulate certain requirements and, in response to these tenders, then the different aspects will be taken in and the final decision taken on all the different elements.

I am not able to give any more information.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I concede that point and I understand entirely that tender documents are being prepared and that they will act and react based on the responses that they get but, as the Government is issuing the tender, is the Minister able to provide us with any indication as to location, or locations, where the permanent power plant will be built?

1165 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman knows that I am the Chairman of the inter-ministerial committee dealing with the power station. The Hon. the Minister for the Environment is an important and essential part of those determinations, as is the Minister for the Utilities, who is responsible for the provision of power under his ministerial responsibility.

1170 Mr Speaker, I think the Minister has given a very clear answer. The hon. Gentleman does not perhaps appreciate that some of the issues that will be subject to the tender will affect areas where particular parts of the fuel maintained for the generating capacity etc. may or may not be able to go. That is why the issues which the hon. Gentleman is pointing to do not determine one particular place where the new power station will, or will not, be located. That is something that needs to be a little bit more open, even at tender stage.

1175 Hon. J J Netto: Could I ask either the Minister for the Environment or the Chief Minister whether, regardless of the locations of different power station or the sullage plant or whatever, is it still the aim of the Government, nevertheless, that all of these facilities should be linked in co-generation and, as a result of the co-generation, they will be able to produce renewable energy as a result of integrating the different systems? If so, what would be the percentage of renewable energy that the co-generation between all 1180 these facilities would produce? What would be the aim?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman knows that we have a manifesto commitment as to the use of renewable energy in Gibraltar. It is not possible to give him an answer as to percentage at this stage but he is right to point out that it is one of the issues which is relevant to the Government.

Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, I mean, I accept that he might not be able to say whether, as a result of interlinking all these facilities it will be able to give 25% of renewable energy, or 5%? But I am sure, pretty sure, that the Chief Minister will know what is the bracket or percentage of renewable energy that interlinking all of this would be. It may be, perhaps, between 15% to 20%. I accept that. I am not 1190 trying to pin him down now to one decimal point but at least to give an indication of what, on the basis of the advice given by consultants, by doing the co-generation, what renewable energy in terms of percentage will be. I think that is a fair question.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker he may think it is a fair question. I think it deviates quite considerably from what the original question is. I could tell him that I need notice of the question but I am not going to tell him that. I am going to tell him, Mr Speaker, that it is not possible to actually determine that until we have the final technical characteristics of the station that you are going to choose.

If he wants a bracket, Mr Speaker, I will give him this bracket – I would be very disappointed, indeed, if we are not producing at least 10% of our energy from renewable sources by the time that I call the next General Election – or are on the way to do so, if those things are still to be installed or to start work.
1200

I would hope, Mr Speaker, that one day we have 100% of our energy potentially from renewable sources. I think he could have ascertained that from everything that we have said in our manifesto. I know they think we are not intending to comply with any of our obligations there, but there he has it in Hansard.
1205

Hon. J J Netto: The answer the Chief Minister has just given partly answers my question. I think he is probably thinking that this would produce something around 10% and I think that is probably not too far off from where the GSD Government thought that would have been the percentage, perhaps a bit more than that.
1210

I accept all the caveats that the Chief Minister is saying but, of course, we need to look at whatever percentage will be produced in terms of renewable energy against the background of what you feel legislation is at the same time. There may be a deficit between what is possible for us to do in the context of Gibraltar with these kind of initiatives and, if there is a deficit, whether the Government is thinking that there are other things they can do in order to try and reach the European target.
1215

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I know that the Hon. the Minister for the Environment is keen, is chomping at the bit, but he was not in Parliament when he was and the hon. Gentleman will recall that the hon. and gallant Colonel Britto, when I asked him whether it was possible for them – six months before the Parliamentary timetable would expire by effluxion of time, if an election was not called – to comply with their 2007 General Election manifesto to produce at least 10% of Gibraltar's electricity from renewable sources, he told me then that they would not be able to comply with that obligation: in fact, that the amount of electricity generated from renewable sources by the time the General Election would be called would be 0%. Now, by a recent setting out of what 'electoral fraud' means, it appears, on that basis, that the 2007 General Election was won by electoral fraud.

1225 Let me put it this way, Mr Speaker, the explanation that Mr Britto gave then was that, actually, we were going to be much more ambitious than 10%. We were going to go to 20%, which is where the EU was going as a target, but that we were not going to produce any of that ourselves: we were going to rely on the fact that the member state for European purposes – the United Kingdom – the United Kingdom would be producing 20% and we would slip in under the radar.

1230 We are much more ambitious for Gibraltar, Mr Speaker. We believe that Gibraltar can produce its own renewable energy in excess of 10%. It can surpass its European obligations, whether or not shared with the United Kingdom, and on a sunny day in August, many years in the future, we expect it may even be possible for 100% of our energy to be produced from renewable sources. In those circumstances, if all of those things go well, then 10% will seem a distant memory.

1235 Will it ever be 100%? Well, Mr Speaker, a lot depends, as he knows, on how renewable energy develops and changes our capacity to harness the renewable sources that energy is produced from, whether it is sun, wind or tidal energy. But all of those things are being very actively looked at by the Government. They are as much our ambition for the way that we generate electricity as a traditional fossil fuel burning station would be, whether that is fuelled by gas or it is fuelled by diesel. The hon. Gentleman knows that it is a matter that is being looked at in quite some depth by the Government, but the renewable element of that is as important to this Government as the non-renewable element of that.

Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Minister for the Environment have anything to add?

1245 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, I have nothing further to add at this stage.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1250

Commonwealth Park Project update

1255 Clerk: Question 115, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide this House with an update in relation to the construction of the Commonwealth Park?

1260 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, works on the Commonwealth Park project are progressing well, with the utility services diversions currently ongoing. The project is on programme for completion by spring 2014.

1265 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, is the Minister able to confirm, in the context that the works are ongoing, that contracts have been awarded in respect of the construction of the park?

1270 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I said in a previous meeting, the works are being carried out by GJBS.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I will quiz the Minister further by giving him notice of questions in that regard at a later meeting.

1275 However, returning to the construction of the park, much as the Minister has said that he is looking forward to sharing a walk with me when it is completed in the spring of 2014, I am looking forward to the fair this year, and I was wondering whether the Minister would be able to provide this House with details as to where the fair will be located this year, in the context of the construction.

1280 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, again, as the hon. Gentleman knows, this is a matter I have been dealing with, because of the macro-economic issues it raises about different plots.

I have already answered that question to the former Leader of the Opposition, I believe, and the position remains that an announcement will be made very shortly as to where the fair will be held this year.

1285 Consultation has already occurred with the stakeholders, namely the Ministry of Culture and the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group. They are looking at some final details, and I believe it will be possible for the Government to make a full public announcement about the subject very shortly.

Government-awarded contracts
Payment to 'Chrand' for Al Gore

1290 Clerk: Question 116, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for the Environment provide details in relation to the payment listed in Government Statistics table GC.6, Government Awarded Contracts by Ministerial Applications, as being paid to 'Chrand', agents for Al Gore, and described as being in respect of the Thinking Green Conference, including, but not limited to, the date when this payment was made and to what end?

1295 With Mr Speaker's indulgence, perhaps I could just explain that, at the time when I asked the question, GC.6 had this information, but following the asking of the question, there has been a change in the Government's statistics website. There has been an update and there have been a few changes, and I am just pre-empting a point that the Minister may well not raise.

1300 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will give the prepared answer. I have not checked the website.

1305 Mr Speaker, the payment of €100,000 to 'Chrand' listed in the Government Statistics table GC.6 was made in two equal payments of €50,000, and it was for the organisation and management of the conference, including security services for the guest speakers and fees for both speakers.

1310 These payments were effected on 31st August 2012 – €50,000, equivalent to £41,675.69; and 28th September 2012 – an exact same amount as the previous one.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say whether these payments were made in addition to the payments listed in the schedule, the global £197,000 there or thereabouts, that we have discussed previously?

1315 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my information is that this is included. This is a subset of the overall cost that has already been discussed in this House.

Hon. S M Figueras: And so the Minister can confirm that the total amount for the cost of the Thinking Green Conference would – and should, in the circumstances – remain what we had discussed at a previous meeting?

1320 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is my information, certainly.

1325 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

GHA Review
Report by Langan and Schroter

1330 Clerk: Question 117, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Health now in a position to provide this House with a copy of the GHA Review Report by Langan and Schroter?

1335 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I explained the process to be followed in the content of my reply to Question 1028/2012.
1340 The process is proceeding, but not yet complete, so that some more weeks are required.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes, Mr Speaker, I only ask this because the Hon. Minister stated in December's Parliament session that after the Christmas period the Report would be published, and obviously we are nearly three months on now.

1345 You said in two or three weeks' time: can you confirm that it will be made available?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I said 'some more weeks'.

1350 What I said in the previous question was that the advice I was heeding of the Executive and of the Health Authority Board was that we had to identify certain structures addressing a lot of the problems of the Report, and that is when it will be published.

This process is ongoing. Clearly, when you are looking at structures in a complex organisation, they do take longer than you would wish, but we are getting there.

GHA website
Date for going live

1360 Clerk: Question 118, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state when the new GHA website will be up and running, as per his Budget 2012-13 Statement?

1365 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the new GHA website is currently being developed and the target date for this to be operational is April 2013.

1370

St Bernard's Hospital Plated meals

1375 Clerk: Question 119, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if patients at St. Bernard's Hospital are still getting plated food?

1380 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, patients at St. Bernard's Hospital are still receiving plated meals.

1385 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say when the new system will be introduced, and how will it work?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the new system will be fully implemented when the new kitchen facility is completed, which is some time away, although plans are now being finalised.

1390 In the meantime, we are looking at a pilot implementation of bulk food distribution as a precursor to when the whole system will change. Having the kitchen on site will make that much more possible and much more easily achieved. Therefore, I cannot commit myself to that until the new kitchen facilities are ready, but we are piloting the system, hopefully starting quite shortly.

1395 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm if the site of the new kitchen is actually round the back of where the Accident and Emergency is?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the plans are currently being developed. It is not at the back. It is on site. It is an extension to the west, but certainly not in the Accident and Emergency area.

1400 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1405 Hospitals receiving GHA sponsored patients Measurement of results

Clerk: Question 120, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1410 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain what is the process for measuring the results of hospitals used in the UK, Spain and other countries, to which we refer GHA patients as sponsored patients?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1415 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, most of the centres have their own internal mechanism for evaluating results on the outcomes of interventions carried out, and these are available to the GHA.

1420 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, what are the outcomes of success of these hospitals – in particular the ones in Spain, because my understanding is that there is a huge concern with the hospital in Cádiz?

1425 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is a slightly different question again. I do not have that information here available.

The concerns about the hospital in Cádiz, some have come to my notice, but at the same time there are also instances when one gets very positive feedback from the hospital in Cádiz. If there are any particular matters of concern, I would be very happy to discuss this with the hon. Member – clearly, not in the House, as this would refer to individual patients, but I would be very happy to do so.

1430 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister then explain how does the system of checking results at different hospitals work? Is this done on a regular basis, or when a hospital is identified and where sponsored patients will be referred to? Is it done on a case-by-case basis? How does the system work?

1435 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, at the moment, it is exactly the same as the former Government used to have, so I am sure that the hon. Member would have some recollection of that, in view of her involvement on the Health Authority Board.

1440 There are... Clearly, individual cases will be studied by the relevant consultants. We have taken steps to create a database based on... or we are in the process of attempting to create a database based on UK hospital results which directly relate to the kind of procedures that we buy off them in the UK, but clearly when we send only small numbers of patients, then clearly the assessments should be on a case-by-case basis, rather than an overall.

1445 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Finally, Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm that, if the results are not deemed desirable by the clinicians in Gibraltar, sponsored patients will be sent to another hospital?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Absolutely, Mr Speaker. My prime responsibility is to ensure the best possible treatment to all members of our community.

Nursing conference Arrangements for 2013

1455 Clerk: Question 121, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if Gibraltar nurses will be holding a nursing conference this year; and if so, when is it set to take place?

1460 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1465 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): The Gibraltar nurses were invited to form part of the Small Islands Nursing Conference team. A team will be attending the Conference in Guernsey, scheduled to take place in September this year. Gibraltar attendees will be contributing to the Conference and sharing best practice with overseas colleagues.

It is Gibraltar's turn to host the event in 2015.

1470 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, my understanding is that there was an annual local nursing conference for local nurses. Has this practice now been stopped?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have responded in relation to whether a nursing conference is to be held this year. If there is no intention of holding one this year... Nursing conferences will depend on the subject matter, whether there are current issues to be discussed.

1475 There is some thought being given to some conference next year, but this is a matter that is being discussed by nurse management, and certainly there will be a response if a proposal is made. At this point in time, it is not a question that we have ceased any practice; there has not been a request for a conference this year.

1480 Members of the nursing profession will be attending the Conference in Guernsey. We are committed to hosting the event in 2015. There might be a smaller-scale one next year, but this is something that the Health Authority will respond to as a result of requests generated from the nurses.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Repeat prescriptions
New process

1490 Clerk: Question 122, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain how the new repeat prescription process, without the need to see a GP, will function?

1495 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1500 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, There will always be occasions when a doctor wants to see a patient before issuing a repeat prescription, or when a patient feels that such a consultation is necessary. This was the main challenge related to the provision of repeat prescriptions and is one that has been very significantly resolved with the new appointment system.

For cases when a consultation may not be necessary, steps are being considered and discussed as the policy is drafted.

I can confirm that – it was not clear in the prepared answer – there is a process by which a policy is being drafted at this point.

1505 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: But, Mr Speaker, is there not a system already in process whereby you can take your last prescription to Mr Guillem, and he will then give the patient again another six months of prescriptions, or just to tide the patient over until he or she sees the doctor?

1510 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the system that we introduced was related to patients where the doctor wished to see him or her, and then, when they have the last prescription, they can come in and get an appointment, without having to queue up and so on, on the first working day of the month. If they have lost that prescription, then they can go to the Prescription Advisory Unit and get a prescription and an appointment.

1515 The question, I think, refers to when the doctor issues a prescription for six months, but does not feel there is a need, and then we have to introduce a different system, in which the prescription could be signed by a GP, referred to him either on a card or electronically and so on, and that is a system that we are now developing.

Colon cancer screening Start date and process

1525 Clerk: Question 123, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise when the colon cancer screening programme is due to start, and how it will work?

1530 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the programme is currently being prepared by the clinicians, and the staff that will run it are being identified. It is expected to start in the summer.

1535 An announcement and publicity campaign with details of how it will work will commence shortly before that.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say who will be running it?

1540 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it will be a multi-disciplinary approach: there will be administrative identification of the patients who have to be contacted; there will be a certain amount of laboratory investigation, which will be carried out in the laboratory; and the clinical team would be led by one of the consultant general surgeons, who would carry out the actual physical investigations.

1545 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if the whole population will have access to the screening programme, or is it just particular target groups or particular age groups?

1550 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is one that is being developed. There will be a range of ages were it is considered, using UK information, that are the ages that have to be hit first. This is part of the programme that is being prepared and, as I explained, will be publicised before the exercise, so that people know that they may, in fact, be contacted for screening.

New ambulances

1555

Clerk: Question 124, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1560 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say how much the five new bespoke patient transfer vehicles are going to cost?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1565 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Yes, Mr Speaker. The purchase of the five new ambulances has been awarded by tender, with a total cost of £621,597.

Accident and Emergency Number of patients seen

1570

Clerk: Question 125, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1575 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say how many patients were seen at A&E during the months of September to December 2012, inclusive?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1580 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the total attendees at A&E for the period September to December 2012 are as follows: September, 3,124; October, 3,098; November, 2,839; December, 3,071.

1585

Registered General Nurses Vacancy notices

Clerk: Question 126, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1590 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain why vacancy notices for Registered General Nurses for, I quote, 'short-term contracts of varying lengths' are being advertised if the GHA is still recruiting full-time nurses to fill the increased complement of 33 nursing positions?

1595 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1600 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the increased complement of 33 nursing positions was mainly for Nursing Assistants; however the vacancy notices of 'short-term contracts of varying lengths' mentioned are for Registered General Nurse vacancies which exist within the overall nursing complement. The 'varying lengths' element allows flexibility – for example, to cover maternity leave.

1605 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: So, can the Minister confirm these are to cover maternity leave, sick leave, study leave, and so on?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Precisely, Mr Speaker.

1610 NaPro technology treatment
Availability as alternative to IVF

Clerk: Question 127, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1615 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say whether he is considering offering NaPro technology – that is natural procreative technology – treatment in the GHA, as an alternative to IVF?

1620 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, sir.

1625 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if this treatment is available on the NHS?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is not one of the treatments that is generally provided under the NHS, as far as my information goes.

1630 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: So, Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if this treatment is evidence based and endorsed by the gynaecologists of the GHA?

1635 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the literature does include some references where it is considered to give an increase in the success of conception, but as in many procedures related to health, and to science in general, there are other studies that suggest that this is not the case.

It is clearly a question that has arisen recently, and may in fact be related to people's own personal, religious or other beliefs, and therefore it is a system that we consider in the same way that there are certain persons who may not want to have blood transfusions, and we do allow certain other technologies in those circumstances. It is considered that, on certain occasions – obviously, always with the advice of medical practitioners – this technology might be suitable.

1640 The actual process by which this might be carried out is currently being discussed within the Health Authority. There have been no requests to date.

1645 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is this treatment being endorsed by the gynaecologists of the GHA.?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I have just said, the offer of the treatment is being discussed within the Health Service, which includes clinicians, and including the Director of Public Health, and the policy will be formulated in consultation with them.

1650 There have been no requests so far. What I have said is that we would be willing to offer this in certain circumstances, but obviously it would have to be following medical advice.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, my understanding is that this treatment is not NICE approved, so if, following medical advice, you are told not to expect the taxpayer to fund this non-1655 evidence-based health treatment, which is considered a complementary therapy, will the Minister be taking advice and not offering it on the GHA?

1660 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Minister might then have to take a view. But yes, indeed, it is a hypothetical question, because no such requests have come yet. We have not received the request, we have not received the advice, we have not considered or discussed the advice, and therefore I think it is premature to take this discussion further.

1665 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, will the GHA be taking on board the new NICE – as in National Institute of Clinical and Health Evidence – their guidelines to extend IVF treatment to women from the ages of 40 to 42, and offer treatment after two years of trying to get pregnant, as opposed to after three years?

1670 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the NICE guidelines, which were amended just a few days ago, include a number of changes to those – and I have them in front of me – that were considered when the policy was discussed. So, very quickly, we have taken advice of the Director of Public Health. We are holding discussions with the gynaecologists. In fact, they will be reporting back to me during the course of next week, I believe, and it is likely then that, in order to be consistent, we will be amending our policy or putting to the Board of the Health Authority that the policy be amended in keeping with the new guidelines.

Occupational Therapy report Outstanding works

1680 Clerk: Question 128, the Hon. J J Netto.

1685 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if there are any outstanding works pending in the community arising from a report by the OT Department of the GHA; and, if so, provide a short description, the date of the request, the cost involved per report and how many of these emanate from (a) Government flats; (b) co-ownership flats; and (c) private sector properties?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1690 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I would like to point out, if I may, that Question 155 is very similar, and in fact the answers are very similar indeed, but I am happy to take them separately.

1695 In answer to this Question, Mr Speaker, 128 – 122 requests for works were submitted since 1st May 2012: 22 alterations at Albert Risso House, of which 20 were bath-to-shower conversions; other Government estates, 61, showers; other Government estates, six, external works; other Government estates, 33, other works.

As the record stood on 9th February, there were 52 cases pending from 1st May 2012. These are purely on Government housing, as it does not cover co-ownership properties, private properties or former Government housing stock.

1700 The works pending can be broken down as 40 level-access showers; two external works projects; 10 other works – rails, fixtures etc. However, these are classified according to the major alteration, so that, in practice, level-access showers may also include other ancillary works.

Some of the works requested may have been commenced and may no longer feature as pending in the Building Works Agency.

1705 Mr Speaker, as I said, although the responses will be similar, there will be a time lapse between a request leaving the OT Department and perhaps being registered in the Housing Works Agency, and there may be a time lapse too between works being completed and the report going back to the occupational therapist. Therefore, it is highly unlikely that both reports will be absolutely identical.

1710 We are working on possibly making this something based electronically, which would update immediately, but at this point in time there will be great similarities, but the figures may vary because of the time lapse between one and the other.

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful for that information, but given the overall amount of detail there, I was wondering whether the Hon. Minister would be gracious enough perhaps to provide me with a copy of his stated answer.

1715 In the meantime, however, what I do not think he has answered... One of the component parts of my question was as to cost per report. Have I missed it out, or...?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do apologise.

1720 I should have pointed out that the Occupational Therapy Department does clearly not keep records of the costs, but that element is, in fact, answered as an average cost in response to Question 155. I should have pointed it out, but that information is here and will be given in Question 155, which is aimed at Housing, and which my colleague has asked me to respond to because of the similarity between the two, but obviously the costs...

1725 The OT Department reports the works but does not go any further, so would not be aware of the costs. That is provided in the answer to Question 155 as an average.

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker. If he would just do me the honour of providing me with a copy.

1730 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, does he want this now?

Alzheimer's and Dementia register Status

1735 Clerk: Question 129, the Hon. J J Netto.

1740 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government say if the Alzheimer's and Dementia Register, alluded to in answer to Written Question No. 115/2012, is now complete; and, if so, provide the total number of sufferers as of today, and of those how many have an acute, medium or mild form and how many are living in the community, Mount Alvernia, the KGV Hospital, or in the various wards inside St Bernard's Hospital, specifying the respective wards?

1745 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1750 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the preamble to this answer, with your indulgence: let me explain that this Register is the one as kept by the consultant physician with responsibility for geriatric care. At the Health Authority we do work closely, obviously, with the Care Agency but this is the Health Authority's Register and, clearly, there may be some differences as a result of where the database emanates from.

Mr Speaker, the Alzheimer's and Dementia Register, with the proviso I have mentioned, is now complete, with 321 persons on it, as at 9th February.

1755 Due to the nature of the Register, the information is constantly changing and can only be considered approximately 90% - 95% accurate at best, I would add, at any given time. Information requested is on the table that I now hand to the hon. Member.

Allocation of rental homes since 31 December 2012
Numbers of rooms

1770

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide detailed information, in terms of room composition, showing how many rental homes have been allocated since the 31st December 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

1775

Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, 17 flats have been allocated since 31st December 2012 as follows: 1 – 1RKB; 6 – 2RKB; 7 – 3RKB; and 3 – 4RKB.

1780

Estimated works completion dates

1785

Clerk: Question 148, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details as to how many of the rental homes allocated so far in 2013 still require repairs to be undertaken, indicating how many will be repaired by:

1790

- (a) the Housing Works Agency;
- (b) sub-contractors;
- (c) the new tenants themselves, together with estimated works completion dates?

1795

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services, on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

1800

Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, none.

1805

Decanting from rental homes since Question 42/2013
Reasons and dates

1810

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting from their homes, since the answer to Question No. 42/2013, indicating the reasons why the dates when said decanting became necessary and the dates when these tenants were able to return to their homes?

1815

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, none.

Repairs to rental homes allocated in 2012
Estimated works completion dates

1830

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question No. 43/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many of the 288 applicants who were allocated a home during the year 2012 are still waiting for repairs to be completed, stating if these works are to be undertaken by the Housing Works Agency or by sub-contractors, together with the corresponding estimated completion dates.

1835

1840

1845

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I am a bit baffled by that answer because my understanding from clinics that I have held is that there are some housing applicants who were allocated a home some months ago and are still waiting to be able to move in because they claim that the Housing Works Agency still seems to have a bit of a backlog and, therefore, the house is still not fully fit for that purpose. So can the Minister double check that is his answer, is still there at zero and therefore there are no works pending in that respect.

1850

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has asked me how many allocated flats... how many flats have been allocated and I would like to point out that 'allocation' means that, once the tenant signs the tenancy agreement and takes the key, that is when allocation takes place. Therefore, no works are pending as all the 288 tenants have signed the tenancy agreement and taken the keys.

1855

Hon. E J Reyes: That, Mr Speaker, is not really consistent with what we discussed about in Question 43. If I recall correctly there, the Minister was saying at the time that a key was allocated but he could not actually say when the tenant was moving in because there were works pending to be carried out and so on and I am... I do not know if I have chosen the wrong words, or worded it wrongly and so on. I am trying to verify now here, you know, how many people have been allocated a home therefore you know that this particular flat – number such of such a block, within such a Government rental estate, is allocated to a person but that person has still not moved in and, in some cases, may even still be occupying another Government flat, which the Housing Department will only receive once a tenant moves in.

1860

I hope the Minister understands what it is I am trying to get at. You know there are  $x$  number of people who have a home assigned to them but have not been able to move in because of pending works. Have we any indication of how many of those... What is the figure in that respect?

1865

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the term 'assigned' is different to the word 'allocated'. A person can be assigned a home and works are needed before the allocation takes place. The question he is asking is how many flats were 'allocated', hence the reply none, Mr Speaker.

1870

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I apologise, then, that I chose the word 'allocated' or 'assigned'. Would the Minister happen to have available information of how many flats have been assigned but not yet allocated, or whatever the nomenclature is that I am supposed to be using.

1875

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I do not, unfortunately. If the Gentleman would like to table this question in the next sitting of Parliament, I would be happy to provide him with the information requested.

1880

Mr Speaker: Since the next sitting of Parliament will not be until May, perhaps the hon. Member would like to pursue the matter outside the House.

1885

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Hon. Minister – so that I understand – is the Hon. Minister drawing the distinction in allocation between allocation, as in handing somebody the keys so that person can move in and allocation, as in writing to that person, saying this is your flat but you will be given the keys in the future, or for whatever reason some works that need to be done? Is that the distinction that he is drawing and, for the benefit of my hon. Friend, Mr Reyes, how is he supposed to refer to it because, quite frankly, 'allocation' is an allocation in any normal view of the English language. Allocation is when the Government says 'this is your flat', not necessarily when the key is actually handed to somebody after works have been done.

1890 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is exactly... what the hon. Gentleman is saying is exactly what it is.

The term 'allocation' is when the key is handed over so, if the hon. Gentlemen wants to find out how many houses are in need of repair, he needs to say 'assigned', as opposed to allocated. Allocated is when the keys are handed over.

1895

Hon. E J Reyes: Therefore, Mr Speaker, if I were to ring up the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority today and wish to book the tennis courts, what word should I use. Should I ask for an assignment or an allocation of a tennis court?

1900

Hon. D A Feetham: Sorry, Mr Speaker, because it is certainly news to us and, as the hon. Gentlemen opposite are very keen to point out during the course of other exchanges across the floor of this House, we were in Government for sixteen years and because we were in Government for sixteen years we certainly know what the policy was – and the policy was allocation is when you actually tell somebody this is your flat, not necessarily when you give them the key. So is he saying that, in future, when my hon. Friend, Mr Reyes, basically, talks of an assignment, assignment is 'this is your flat', allocation is 'these are the keys', so that we are certain for the future, yes?

1905

1910

Hon. J J Netto: Can I just say, because I did serve as Housing Minister for a few years – and I appreciate that the Hon. Minister is only acting on behalf of Mr Bruzon – but I can assure him that he should not deduce by the fact that someone signs a tenancy agreement and the keys have been allocated to that particular flat that the flat in question may, or may not, have outstanding work to be carried out.

1915

There are circumstances – and this happened from the year dot, the AACR Government, the GSLP, ourselves – where a house has been identified to a particular applicant on the list, the tenant in question is generally satisfied with the particular flat that has been allocated, signs a tenancy agreement but on an understanding that there is an agreement between the Housing Department and the applicant who has now been allocated a flat, where they realise either by a different number of options, there are some outstanding works to be carried out. Either because the option may be that the tenants say well look, to do all this work requires so much material, which costs so much money: do not worry, I have got certain expertise as a person, I am a former carpenter or bricklayer or whatever and I can do it myself. That is perfectly acceptable and has always been the case, or even that there are some partial works that need to be done, not necessarily to all the flat but part of the flat and it is done by whoever needs to do it, whether the Electricity Department, the Housing Agency today or somebody else.

I think what I am trying to point out is that we should not necessarily get stuck with terminology when the facts, as we know them, is that when a house has been allocated and a tenancy agreement has been signed, there may be cases, and there are cases, where outstanding works need to be done and, within that bracket, I think the question that my hon. Friend asked is perfectly legitimate, in the sense of saying how many of those houses which have been allocated, still require work to be done?

1930

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Gentleman asked... He was specifically talking about the 288 applicants in question, and the information that I have received from the Department is that those 288 applicants agreed, they took their keys, and they were allocated said flats.

1935

There may be situations, as the hon. Member mentions, whereby a person who has expertise or wants to do it themselves may accept a flat that requires a minor amount of work, but at that point the allocation is made on that basis, and that person goes in with the understanding that that person is responsible for doing the repairs himself, or herself.

1940

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, but in a previous answer – the one referring to the 288 – I was led to believe, at the time, that those 288 had been issued with a key, but were not necessarily already living there. In fact, I think Minister Bruzon even went to the extent of saying they were being granted a lead-in period of rent-free tenancy, if he wants to call it that, so that a time would allow the individual to carry out repairs.

1945

Does the Minister have any information, perhaps, of how many have been allocated, because they already have a key but are not necessarily paying rent because there was a period of x weeks, or whatever, if they had undertaken to carry out the repairs themselves? Is he aware of the existence of any number of those?

1950 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, unfortunately I am not aware of any of those situations.

Bow Wave House lift breakdowns Omission of information from Question No. 44/2013

1955 Clerk: Question 151, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1960 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing explain why, in the answer to Question No. 44/2013 no information is listed in respect of the two lifts at Bow Wave House, Mid-Harbours Estate, both of which were broken down from sometime on Friday, 22nd December 2012 to sometime during the course of Saturday, 23rd December 2012?

1965 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

1970 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the lifts at Bow Wave House were not included in Question No. 44/2013 simply because both lifts were fully operational when inspected by both OTIS and Ministry for Housing duty officer on the dates stated by the hon. Member.

1975 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, my Question No. 44 had asked for the lift that had broken down and how long it took to be repaired. In fact, my friend, the Hon. Peter Caruana, had to come to a bit of a rescue, clarifying, because in some cases it was stated that it only took 11 or 13 minutes to repair, and we clarified was that the time from the technician arriving on site, or was it from the time that the report was lodged.

But I am assured by tenants of Bow Wave House that the lift broke down on Friday, the 22nd, and they actually logged a report. Therefore, that should appear somewhere on the list, Mr Speaker.

1980 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the Ministry for Housing also have reports that the lift was broken down. The duty officer from the Ministry for Housing received the reports on 22nd December 2012. He attended Bow Wave House and determined that both lifts were fully operational. No further reports were received by the duty officer during the ensuing week.

1985 Hon. E J Reyes: It seems, Mr Speaker, that we do [inaudible] to have a phantom technician who comes and repairs lifts [inaudible]. Is that the case, or does the Minister have some sort of explanation of how both lifts that were broken down during the course of the evening of the 22nd suddenly and mysteriously seem to have been functioning?

1990 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, there may be other reasons why lifts... For example, there could be reports of a lift that has broken down, and when the actual technicians go there on site it might be something... It could be a false report. There are other reasons why this could be the case. When they actually went there... For example, it could have been that one of the doors had been jammed by something obstructing the door on one of the floors, for example, so when they got there, if that obstruction had been removed, or maybe someone was perhaps tampering with the lift... Again, I have no idea for what reason, but the truth is that, although the Ministry for Housing received those reports, OTIS and the Ministry, the technicians went on site and they realised that the lifts were fully operational, which does seem odd because there was a report of them being broken, but these things happen, I suppose.

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member have any supplementary arising from the schedule?

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, please bear with me just one second. I want to check something here. Thank you, Mr Speaker. That suffices for now.

2020

Surveys on Government flats Asbestos

2025 Clerk: Question 153, the Hon. J J Netto.

2030 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing state how many housing surveys have been carried out in Government flats since Question No. 546/2012; and of those, how many have been found to have asbestos therein, how many have been required to have the asbestos removed, and how many surveys are still required to be made in order to determine the state of all Government flats?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

2035 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there have been 33 surveys carried out since Question No. 546/2012. Asbestos-based materials were found in 31 surveys, and all will be replaced with non-asbestos materials.

2040 Surveys are conducted as and when a flat becomes vacant or the tenant makes a report. I am unable to provide numbers as to how many surveys are still to be carried out in order to determine the state of all Government flats.

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

2045 I think I have missed some of the information out. I think I understood, since the last question, that there are 33 surveys that have been carried out – was that correct? – and of that figure, 33, the hon. Member did mention the ones that require the asbestos to be removed, but I think I have missed the figure there.

A Member: Thirty-one.

2050 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I said that there have been 33 surveys that have been carried out since the last question, and in fact asbestos-based materials were found in 31 of these surveys.

2055 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask just perhaps one final supplementary question, because I understood the Hon. Minister to say that he is not in a position to determine how many surveys still require to be carried out.

What I am trying to think is presumably the officials in the Department of Housing in the City Hall would know, by their own records, the total number of properties that they have within the Government housing stock, and presumably within that register they know how many they have covered so far and how many still require to be covered.

2060 I am just quite surprised that perhaps the Minister has not been briefed properly in the sense of saying, ‘Well, look, we have done x number of total surveys on the total number of properties in the Government housing stock,’ and once you deduct that from the total you have whatever is the figure, which is really something I would have thought would have been quite easily available.

2065 Perhaps he could enlighten us as to why this figure is not available. Is it a technical issue, for some particular reason?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will not be able to enlighten the gentleman, because I do not know the reply to the answer.

2070 I would presume – I will ask when I get back to the office – that they know the total amount of houses that we have in the stock, and I would presume that they have records as to how many they have done so far, but again, it is my presumption and I will find out, if the gentleman so wishes to write.

2075 Hon. J J Netto: It is a known fact. Not only is it a known fact as to what is the total number of properties in the Government stock by the officials of the Housing Department, it is also a fact that even the Treasury Department has to account for the number of properties that the Government has as well. It is not just them.

2080 So, given that both the officials in the Housing Department and the Treasury know – but forget the Treasury for the time being, because it is neither here or there for the sake of our questions here – the official should know from their register in the Housing Department how many they have done. I would have thought it was quite a simple...

Hon. P J Balban: Perhaps, yes, how many have been inspected, but what they would not be able to do... Because it is not a legal requirement to inspect flats internally for asbestos, and this only happens when someone moves, when the flat becomes vacant...

As I said, I will find out whether there is any more information. If the gentleman would like to write to me with that particular question, I will endeavour to find the reply for him.

Hon. J J Netto: With respect, it is not for me to write a letter when I have already provided the question. What I am trying to find out is from part of one of the components of the question.

Mr Speaker: From the Hansard, obviously. If the Minister does not have the information here with him, he has to try to obtain it. The production of the Hansard should be a means of reminding him that that information is outstanding.

Requests for shower units by elderly persons

Clerk: Question 154, the Hon. J J Netto.

2105

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide an updated list of elderly persons living in Government flats awaiting the installation of a shower unit, showing the date on which they made such a request, if any?

2110

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services, on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

2115

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there are a total of nine elderly persons awaiting the installation of a shower unit. The dates on which the requests were made are as follows: 4th December 2012, 7th December 2012, 8th January 2013, 15th January 2013, 21st January 2013, two on 23rd January 2013, 25th January 2013, and 11th February 2013.

Works pending in Government flats

2125

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing say if there are any works pending in a Government flat arising from a report by the OT Department of the GHA; and, if so, provide the date of the request and a short description and the cost of the works, if any?

I take into account that this question may have been wholly or mostly already answered by the Minister for Health, so I do not know whether he will add anything to what his colleague has already stated before.

2130

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services, on behalf of the Hon. the Minister for Housing and the Elderly.

2135

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, my colleague, the Hon. Minister Cortes, will reply to this question.

2140

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, with your indulgence, I am replying in view of the synergy and the similarity of the questions, having discussed it with my hon. Colleague.

There are at present 43 works pending in Government flats arising from a report by the OT Department of the GHA since 1st May 2012 and, Mr Speaker, I will copy this and facilitate it as per the previous Question.

The works pending can be broken down as 31 level access showers, 2 external works projects, 10 other works – rails, fixtures etc. The average cost of the OT request is approximately £4,500 but depends 2145 on the specialist works requested. Out of the 122 requests received from the GHA OT Department, the following have been completed – 22 alterations at Albert Risso House, of which all 22 are complete, other Government Estates 61 level access showers, of which 30 are complete, Other Government Estates 6 external works of which 4 are complete, Other Government Estates 33 other works of which 23 are complete: a total of 79 works are completed.

2150 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the information.
Perhaps one small supplementary is that I do recall some time in Glacis Estate, I think in the first block there, a particular lady, she was almost blind – not completely blind but almost blind – and there was quite a number of works that needed to be carried out in order to make the house safe for her, both inside the house and there were some works outside the house. So I would be grateful if the Hon. Minister for Health, if he can actually go back to the OT Department officials because I am quite sure that the official there will know the details of this particular lady. I cannot remember her name right now but I will probably be able to recall it once I go outside the Chamber and perhaps make a few phone calls.

2160 It is just that I am particularly concerned with this lady, if the works have not yet been done. If the works are done, obviously she will be in a much safer environment.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member will give me the name later, then I will check what the requests were and consult with the other Department also, to see whether it has been carried out and will certainly give a response.

Europort Avenue/Reclamation Road/Queensway junction Cost of new traffic light system

2170

Clerk: Question 156, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2175 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic provide details of the cost of the setting up of the new traffic light system at the Europort Avenue, Reclamation Road and Queensway Junction?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2180 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the cost of setting up the new traffic light system at the Europort Avenue, Reclamation Road and Queensway Junction amounts to a total of £140,242.36.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, who was awarded the contracts for those works?

2185 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, is the gentleman referring to the works as in the traffic lights, or the actual works to the infrastructural works to the road itself, the highway.

2190 Hon. D J Bossino: I did not split it up in my own mind, Mr Speaker. If he has an answer in respect of each of those component parts, I would be grateful if he could provide it.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as to the setting up of the system in terms of the infrastructure of the road, the contractor selected was AMCO and was selected using the three quote tendering system.

2195 As to the commissioning... as to the lights, this was carried out by the GEA, so we are responsible – Technical Services – for the highways, the infrastructure which set things up, but the lights are actually, they come under the auspices of the GEA.

Hon. D J Bossino: Is the Minister able to provide me with a breakdown?

2200 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the design and procurement of equipment and new traffic light heads, posts etc amount to £73,636.84 and the works for the new infrastructure amounts to £49,457.52. Then further on, the commissioning and laying of the new cables by GEA was £17,148.00 and this includes the cost of the UK consultant.

2205 Hon. D J Bossino: What was the extent of the advice received from the UK consultant? Is he able to provide me with that information and why he was contracted for this particular purpose?

2210 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the consultant is the person or persons who are responsible for designing the traffic light system itself. It is quite a technically advanced intelligence system of lighting which needs a substantial amount of programming, so the consultant is involved in actually the programming of the system for it to work as we have seen it working and, which I think, from comments I have had, it is working tremendously well. Then, on the point of commissioning, the consultant will come over to make sure everything is working properly, it is fit for purpose and it does what it is meant to do. At that point, it is then handed to the GEA.

2215 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

2220 Photo card driving licence machines
Fees charged

Mr Speaker: Question 157, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2225 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic provide details of what fees are charged to the Government for housing the machines which produce the new photo card driving licence inside the Rock?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2230 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the cost of housing the laser engravers in a secure environment is £495 a quarter.

2235 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister advise this House why it was seen fit to house this machine in this particular facility?

2240 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the actual use of this location was something which was deemed necessary because not only do the machines require to work in a certain environment, a dust free environment, there is also the issue of not so much the machines but the cards being in a very, very secure environment because these cards are blank cards, they are provided by the DVLA in England, they are all numerically accounted for and, obviously, these cards should not be kept outside of the place or somewhere... This is a very secure environment, where there is no possibility of these cards being lost or so forth. So it was essential that they were kept in such an environment.

2245 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that reply.
Given that it was seen fit to have these machines in a particular secure environment for the reasons which have been elucidated now by the Hon. the Minister, as I understand it the vault is inside the Rock whilst the Licensing Department is by Eastern Beach so does the Department have a protocol in place in order to ensure that that security is maintained in order for the goods, if you like, to travel from one place to the other.

2250 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the goods do not travel from one place to another.
The goods or the cards, so to speak, are there within the vault with the laser engravers so there is no moving around of these cards. The cards are brought... Delivered to Gibraltar securely, they are delivered to the place where they are, within the vault, and the staff members who are trained to be able to operate these machines are the ones that access the vault, pick up the cards, do what they have to do on the machines and then, once they are ready, they are brought out and then given to the persons applying for them.

2260 Hon. D J Bossino: Is the Minister – if I can take it from that answer – is the Minister advising this House that the security concerns are less severe once a card is available to the person who has requested it? So, in other words – are the security concerns relevant only when the card is delivered to the vault but, once it is issued, the security concerns are less? Is that the case and therefore there is no requirement to have a protocol in place to deal with the delivery of those once issued cards outside of the vault and then delivered to the person to whom it has been issued?

2270 The hon. Member may not be aware – I certainly only became aware when I became Chief Minister – that the practice has been, for many years, that we do not keep our stock of blank passports very close to the machine that can print those passports because, of course, a blank passport, like a blank identity card, could be used for nefarious purposes by somebody who wishes to use it for criminal activity. Therefore, what you have here is a situation where you have an obligation to have... because of the particular characteristics of the machinery; this machine is in a particularly secure place. Because that place is so secure, you can also have the blank cards available there. The security concern is about the blanks. There has to be a lot of security around blank passports and a lot of security around blank cards.

2275 Once those cards are printed with the details of an individual who has applied through the appropriate Government system, then you have, if it were to be lost, a lost card of an individual – either lost by the individual or lost by the system – much less useful to those who might want to use that material for criminal purposes. So the requirement for security when the cards are coming out of the system, although it is obviously important, is not as great as the security of the blanks and I think the hon. Gentleman sees the analogy that I am drawing with passports. He will understand what the issue is.

2285 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, which is what I offered, I think, in my question as the possible explanation for the lack of a protocol in terms of the... to cover the delivery process, if you like.

Can I ask the Minister, Mr Speaker, who the contract in terms of the housing of these machines has been awarded to?

Hon P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the vaults are run by Continent 8.

2290 Hon. D J Bossino: And is there a duration for that contract?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this will be an ongoing contract. It will be essential to keep it in this location so it is a running contract as long as the machines are there – which they will be. As far as I am aware, there is no termination date to this contract, not that I am aware of.

2295 Mr Speaker, but as I said, if the gentleman would give me notice, I will find out the exact details of the agreements if that is necessary.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, did this particular allocation go to tender?

2300 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, for a particular reason because there are security concerns about how these things are stored and, therefore, going out to tender would have illustrated what those security concerns were.

2305 He may know, Mr Speaker, if not, certainly his previous Leader was very aware of it, as I am, that this particular location was a location controlled previously by the Ministry of Defence which, when it became surplus to Defence requirements in the understanding of, I think, the previous Administration and the current Administration of what ‘surplus to Defence requirements’ meant, decided not to hand back the property to the Government of Gibraltar, that might have had such uses for it itself, but to lease it directly to a commercial party. That commercial party I think has then sold its business and Continent 8 is the successor in title. The position of the land has been regularised and the head lessor is now the Government of Gibraltar in the usual way, not the Ministry of Defence.

Theatre Royal underground car park
Number of parking spaces

2315

Clerk: Question 158, the Hon. D J Bossino:

2320 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic provide details of how many parking spaces will be available at the Theatre Royal underground car park?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2325 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, it is estimated that a total of 90 parking spaces will be available in the new car park.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the press reports on the subject revealed that there were going to be 94 spaces: the Minister has now confirmed to this House that it is, in fact, 90. The distribution which was set out in the article, in terms of those parking spaces, was 50 to provide facilities for the car parking 2330 facilities which are currently provided by the hotel – the Elliott Hotel – and the balance remaining for public use was going to be 44. Can the Minister give me an indication of what the distribution is in fact?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, not accurately. I would not be able to give him the exact figures.

2335 As far as I am aware at the moment, there are a total of 36 spaces on Governor's Parade and the Elliott Hotel actually occupies 17 spaces. As far as I am aware, there has not been a final decision, or there has not been an agreement with the hotel, for any other purpose at all at the moment, so this is as far as I can say at the moment.

2340 Hon. D J Bossino: I am not sure I have understood the answer, Mr Speaker.

At the moment the Government has not made a decision as to what it is going to do with the parking spaces currently allocated to the hotel: is that a correct analysis of his reply?

2345 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware, there have not been any agreements made in that respect.

2350 Hon. D J Bossino: Given – as I understand it, Mr Speaker – the Government's plans to convert all the area from just above the parking space all the way through to the Church of Scotland to convert it into – I mean, we had different plans to the ones which I think the Government has which is to convert it into some sort of garden facility etc etc – part of that, an integral part of that project will have to be the removal of the cars currently provided by the hotel and slightly beyond by the Church of Scotland. Presumably, the Government has plans as to what it is going to do with those cars currently parked there and, if he does have plans, can he reveal them to this House?

2355 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, although I am responsible for technical services and a great amount of the parking, this project in particular does not fall under my remit, hence I would not like to give any more information than I am actually aware of. So if the hon. Gentleman would like to, I do not know whether – (Interjection) Pardon?

2360 Hon. D J Bossino: Write to you.

Hon. P J Balban: – write to me, yes, with more specifics and I will be able to get this information from the relevant Departments. We are not responsible for this project within Technical Services.

2365 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, may I ask which is the relevant Department?

2370 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this project will continue to be run by the offices of the Chief Minister, as it was in the past. Remember, this is not a project started in this term of office but in the previous Administration so, obviously, it was run by No. 6 then and it continues being run by their office, as we speak.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I see that the Chief Minister is back in the Chamber. Maybe he could give us some information in relation to the points that I have raised. I do not know if he was listening in.

2375 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Delighted to if the hon. Member wants to raise it. I did not hear what he said.

Hon. D J Bossino: Basically, Mr Speaker, if I can recap for the Hon. Chief Minister's benefit ...

2380 Mr Speaker: Yes.

2385 Hon. D J Bossino: At the moment there are – this is in relation, Mr Speaker, to the Theatre Royal multi-storey car park, which is going to provide, we have now learned, 90 parking spaces. I have asked what plans are in relation to those spaces. Will they be accommodating the cars which are currently parked in the area of the Elliott Hotel and closer by to the Church of Scotland, whether these 90 parking spaces will accommodate those cars and if that is part of the Government's plan? If so, Mr Speaker, how many?

2390 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not know what answer the hon. Gentleman has got from the Minister of Traffic because I was out, as he said, but I think he has got the answer about the 17 spaces that the hotel has a right to. As I understand it, the 36 places at Governor's Parade are being relocated but those are public and now the issue is what happens with the rest of the spaces. There are – I am not 2395 entirely sited on this issue – but I think there are already some agreements, when the work started, about parking spaces. In other words, people who are very directly affected by the works, who are adjacent to the works, may – and I want to preface that with ‘may’ – either have agreements or have sought agreements in respect of parking spaces. Then there is the Government’s policy, which is contrary to the policy that we saw by the previous Administration, in relation to the Willis’s Road car park, which is that we will want to enable people to have the opportunity who live in the area to be the first to apply for parking spaces in that multi-storey car park, in the context – and we say multi-storey, I think it is, literally, two storeys, I am not sure that it is more, maybe one with two levels – in the context of the fact that there is very close by, in Engineer Car Park also, a redevelopment which is producing a real multi-storey car park.

2400 So all those things are tied up. I do not know that I can give him an exact number of how many parking spaces are being allocated in any particular way at this time. Some of the issues that he will see, are relevant in the next Question, which deals with this matter – I think it is 160 – will also raise some issues as to what is happening on top of that area. I do not want to pre... I think [inaudible] Mr Figueras. I do not want to sort of give away what we are going to say in answer to that Question, but there have been some changes proposed by the people who had an interest in what was going to be on the top, which we will come to in a moment.

2410 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is the Chief Minister or the Minister for Traffic able, and I am asking this question because it has been raised to me by people who have approached me, whether it is envisaged as a result of the... once the Theatre Royal Car Park is opened, whether a consequence of that will be parking restrictions in the area?

2415 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think there is a traffic plan element to that, so decisions have not yet been made but, certainly, there will be a consequence. For example, where you could park 36 cars before, you will not be able to park 36 cars, not because of any parking restriction but because of the extension of the scheme so the piazza scheme will extend to the door of what we might colloquially call the Scottish Cathedral, Right! La iglesia escosesa down Main Street. So that change will happen.

2420 Will there be other traffic consequences in the area of the roads around? There may be: that is another matter but it is not a matter that has come for decision as a result of the parking itself.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

2425

Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan
Cost of Mott Macdonald consultancy

2430 Clerk: Question 159, the Hon. D J Bossino.

2435 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Traffic advise the House what the cost will be of the contract provided by the Government to Mott Macdonald Limited in relation to the consultancy service that the company will provide in connection with the Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

2440 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the tender for the provision of consultancy services in relation to the Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan has been awarded to Mott Macdonald Limited in the sum of £274,604.39.

2445 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, in fact I need to concede as well that information is on the Government website and the only difference is, I think, a difference of 1p. (Interjection) Now, the official notice which appeared in the Gibraltar Gazette in connection with the award notice, describes the nature and extent of services provided as follows and it says “Highways Design and Consultancy Services”.

2450 Can the Minister kindly provide me with further particulars of that. What does that, in fact, encompass and I raise this in the context of questions that I have asked in this Chamber previously, where he did say he was going to enlist the support of outside help in relation to the user and trip survey. I imagine that would fall under the head of consultancy services. But given that it is also now extended to highways design, I was just very interested to learn from the Minister whether he can give me further particulars as to what Mott Macdonald will be expected to do.

2455 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in general terms, the consultant will carry out a study and assessment of the current situation with regard to traffic, transport, parking and accessibility. A traffic and transport model will be created and the consultants will identify a series of initiatives, developed and based on UK guidelines and also other international best practice, where appropriate. Measures will be tested in accordance with UK guidelines and through the model necessary. A sustainable traffic, transport and parking plan will be prepared that sets out how Gibraltar can develop a sustainable traffic, transport and parking system for the next number of years.

2460 In response, again, to what the gentleman was saying, there will be things which will be considered, for example infrastructural changes, so just as the previous Administration decided they were going to embark on the Trafalgar Interchange, there will be other things that we, as a Government, will decide upon recommendations. Because of the consultancy we had with the public and other parties and technical advice we received within the Department, there are ideas we have for similar systems, but not the same, in other areas which have traffic hot spots in Gibraltar. These plans will then be passed on to the consultants, who will then look and see whether they can be adapted in any way or they can be, you know, this basic, initial plans, can be modified to increase traffic flow or pedestrian access etc. So these are the people who will be advising on us on whether ideas need any further development or not.

2470 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, could the Minister advise this House as to why this could not have been kept local? I think it is a fair point to make, that when his party was in opposition they made a big point, a big issue, certainly in relation to the health service, that we locally knew what problems we had here and we could sort it out ourselves without spending huge amounts of money on outside help.

2475 I am not necessarily saying that is wrong but can I ask the Minister why he thinks, in relation to something as basic as traffic, we cannot do this ourselves in Gibraltar, especially, Mr Speaker, just to finalise, having regard to the fact that already close to £275,000 has been spent on this matter.

2480 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I disagree with the hon. Gentleman, that he says something 'as basic as traffic'. I mean traffic is nothing short of complex. In fact, in Gibraltar we do not have, we looked at what, obviously this tender went out, the expertise required which is, you know, this is a specialism of engineering. A traffic engineer is not something basic where you can learn reading an idiot's guide or whatever, it is something which is pretty complex and it is a speciality of engineering itself. There are people who are called highway engineers who specialise their whole life to this. Now, unfortunately, we do not have this experience in Gibraltar and hence we have had to outsource it.

2485 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, the Minister seems to be saying we do not have highway engineers in Gibraltar who can provide this facility?

2490 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am not aware that we have any highways engineers in Gibraltar. We have had, we have within our Department someone who was a highways engineer for a long period of time, he was within the Department, he is a highways engineer, so he is the only person qualified that I am aware of at the moment. The other highways engineer, who is working with us at the moment, is a gentleman that was appointed by yourselves, the previous Administration, and he has been acting in that capacity for quite a time now.

Mr Speaker: Any other questions?

2500 Clerk: Question 160.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have been asking questions in this House in relation to this issue now for more than a year and I must say I am finding it difficult to fit all the pieces of the jigsaw together.

2505 He has said in this House before that there is a public consultation exercise, which he says is ongoing and he has also made references in this House in the past to the data which has been collected as a result of carrying out that public consultation exercise. Is he able now to share that information with me?

2510 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has himself admitted that he is finding it difficult to get all the jigsaw puzzle together, which just shows that traffic is not as basic as he initially set out to believe.

All this information, all this data that has been collected to date, and will continue to be collected from now on, will remain as part of the Traffic Plan database. It is not something which we, at this moment in time, are prepared to share with Members across the floor. This is data appertaining to the Traffic Plan, which is ongoing works, and hence it will remain as such.

2515 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say whether the contractor has been given a deadline by which time they need to prepare and submit the report to [inaudible]?

2520 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, I am not aware as to the exact timeframe. I would not like for anyone to say... hold me to it but, if I am not mistaken, I believe it is between twelve and thirteen months. But, again, this is what my understanding is – but, obviously, we need to do this, it is our manifesto commitment and we need to get this going. It is not something which, the Traffic Plan is something which takes many years, it is not something which you can hope to do within one term of office but our commitment is to have our own Traffic Plan, which is what we have embarked to do and obviously we want to see as many of these changes obviously before this term of office is over. So we have... the timeframes. I do believe is [inaudible], by which time we will be implementing some of the recommendations made as a result of it.

2530 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just to pick him up on the last point he has made. Surely he does recognize, does he not, that he is electorally committed to produce a Traffic Plan within this term of office?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes we are.

2535 Mr Speaker: I am being very liberal. I do not think the Traffic Plan, with all due respect, arises from Question 159 and we are on Question 160.

Hon. D J Bossino: No, Question 159... Mr Speaker, we are still on 159.

2540 Hon. D A Feetham: We are still on the supplementaries of 159.

Mr Speaker: I have not got –

2545 Hon. D J Bossino: It is completely relevant to the Traffic Plan, given that Mott Macdonald Limited [inaudible].

Mr Speaker: Right, right, and you asked –

2550 Hon. D J Bossino: 160: the questioner of 160 is my hon. and learned friend, Mr Figueras. (Interjections)

Mr Speaker: How does the Traffic Plan arise from that? [Inaudible]

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if I may continue with that?

2555 Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. P J Balban: We are, Mr Speaker, committed to have a Traffic Plan. The Traffic Plan is a plan, it tells us where we intend to go from then on.

2560 To think that to implement all the recommendations of the Traffic Plan, I mean it would be ridiculous to even think that we will be able to do this in the period. We are talking of infrastructural changes, modifications to our highways and there are numerous things that need to be done, that need to be budgeted for. The Traffic Plan is something which, I have said in the past, is something fluid. As to this, we hope our traffic will be in the future... the Traffic Plan will be done within out term of Office. We will have our Traffic Plan, just as the previous Administration had their Traffic Plan, which is those brochures that you handed out that explained what your idea of the Traffic Plan would be.

2565 This is what we are committed to, having our Traffic Plan. But if what the hon. Member is suggesting is that we are going to have every single infrastructural roundabout in place and lights system in what is left of this term of office, I think he has got something else coming.

2570 Hon. S M Figueras: In the intervening period between the contract being awarded and the report being submitted and the plan eventually being finalized, can the Minister say whether the Government is possessed of initiatives or ideas in the traffic context that they will be deploying during that time, to deal with problem areas known to the Government today?

2575 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, of course, by all means. We are doing it as we speak. We are... things which we can improve logically, now we have the advice of the consultants. We did not have that prior to 2580 their appointment and we have been progressing as we thought best, as the previous Administration did in their days. Now that we have this person who we have taken on: in future, we will be running things by this expert to see whether this is the way forward or not but, of course, we are looking at many things. In fact, we will be giving priority to certain aspects within the Traffic Plan, which we feel require urgent attention and we do not really want them to continue much longer.

So, yes, in respect of the question, yes.

2585 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister say, and I am going to touch on a matter we dealt with a while ago as an example, can the Minister say whether, for example, the traffic light changes at the junction of Queensway and Europort were as a result of advice received, or as an initiative by the Government before the advice was taken on?

2590 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this had nothing to do with the consultants whatsoever.

Hon. D J Bossino: Just to understand, in relation to his penultimate question, Mr Speaker, is the Minister telling us this morning that, in fact, the consultant is already providing advice to the Government?

2595 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it is extremely early days. We have just engaged the consultant and all that is happening at the moment has been technical talks with the relevant Government Departments. It is really a getting-to-know-each-other type exercise. Now we will be progressing in earnest in the Traffic Plan. I think there have been two meetings to date and really it is to get orientation and familiarisation meetings and now everything is expected to get going from this point onwards.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, is he able to provide me – presumably not – but is he able to provide me with a breakdown of the costs of this contract?

2605 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I would not be able to at the moment as I do not have that information with me.

Mr Speaker: Question 160.

2610

Governor's Parade Car Park
Details of contract awarded to Wilkie Limited

2615 Clerk: Question 160, the Hon. S M Figueras.

2620 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Minister for Traffic provide details to this House of the project contemplated by entry number 52 on the Government's statistics table G.C.1, Government awarded contracts over £2,000 by direct allocation since the General Election, with reference 'Governor's Parade Car Park' paid to Wilkie Limited on 23rd July 2012 to the tune of £3,018,606.23 (currently reduced to £2,981,764.00)?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2625 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this project consists of the construction of a two-storey car park in the area previously occupied by the Theatre Royal.

2635 Included as part of that initial arrangement was an option to extend the scope of works to include the construction of the car park. In order to keep the entirety of the project liability with one entity, Government exercised that option and extended the scope of works to include the construction of the car park. The treatment of the piazza is, however, not part of this contract and is currently being reviewed by Government. The parking project is due for completion in October 2013.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Minister for the answer.

2640 In relation to the piazza, and in the light of further information that he has given me that the parking will be completed by October this year, is this a matter where we can expect an announcement relatively soon in respect of the contract for the piazza and the works being conducted in that specific context?

2645 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I rise to deal with that aspect which does not deal with traffic and which is a matter that is being dealt with by my office in dealing with this particular project. First of all, may I record on Hansard the hon. Gentleman's congratulations to the Minister a moment ago from a sedentary position on the initiative at Europort Avenue. (Interjection) He always said, Mr Speaker, that when he felt that the Government had got things right he would congratulate us and I am grateful for him having come through, or started to come through, as I am sure the Government will get many things right in the coming months.

2650 Mr Speaker, there is no piazza at the moment. There is actually still, to an extent, a hole in the ground and therefore there is design work going on inside Government in relation to the piazza. I alluded earlier to the fact that there had been some changes there. The change relates to the use of part of that piazza by the Church. I do not know if there is a particular way that I should refer to the Church in this House but I think it is just the Church, the Roman Catholic Church, that was going to exchange with the Government the Catholic Community Centre, as it is known on Zoca Flank for a building at the piazza. We have been 2655 approached by representatives of the Church who no longer wish to move from Zoca Flank to the new piazza and the Government is considering that with those representatives and may, therefore, produce a revised scheme that does not include a provision for a community centre. We are in discussions with those representatives about what happens in relation to the existing community centre which, I think, at the very least, we would all agree is looking tired. So those are the issues that affect the development of 2660 the piazza.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can he also confirm and if I could just quote the article which dealt with this matter in the Gibraltar Chronicle, which says 2665 'originally this area was intended to be a promenade and now the area will boast gardens and landscape areas'.

Is that also being looked at, or has a definite decision been made in relation to that?

2670 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, that is what the design work is doing, looking at. Given that there is now going to be more space, you can have all of those married in that area. In other words, if you have got much more space and you have not got a building, in effect, taking up part of the area, can you redistribute the space so that you have got some gardens, you have got some greenery alongside a promenade, because it is in the centre of town and people will need to walk through the area? It is not a 2675 place that can simply be a garden: it is also an area that requires a thoroughfare, a pedestrian thoroughfare through it. That is the design work that is ongoing.

2680 Waterport Power Station
Legal noise level

Clerk: Question 161, the Hon. J J Netto.

2685 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health and Safety say if the noise emanating from the recent temporary generators installed at Waterport Power Station exceeds the level acceptable as per the law?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2690 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the noise levels emanating from the turbines recorded at a distance from one metre are less than 75 dB(A) and therefore below the lower exposure levels of 80 dB(A) stipulated under the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2006.

2695 Hon. J J Netto: So, if I understood the Hon. Minister correctly, the noise level, the recorded noise level, is 75 dB(A)?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

2700 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes: at a one metre distance from the turbines the recorded noise level is 75 dB(A), which is lower than the exposure levels of 80dB(A) which are those stipulated under the Control of Noise at Work Regulations 2006.

2705 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I accept the fact that the Minister for Health and Safety may be looking through the perspective of the Control of Noise at Work Regulation Act 2006, which is the tool obviously that the Factory Inspector would utilise but, if I am correct, in relation to the other set of regulations which I mentioned before when I was answering questions to the Minister for the Environment and Health, my understanding is that, under the Environmental Assessment and Management of Noise Regulation 2006, that whenever you have, under Schedule 1, a total combustion installation with a greater thermal input exceeding 50 Mw that then the issue becomes part of all the various measures that need to be looked under.

2710 So if this is producing 75 dB(A), which is more than the 50 dB(A) under Schedule 1 of the Environmental Assessment and Management Plan, presumably then all the requisitions in terms of health assessment, both to the immediate workers in Waterport Power Station and, presumably, the workers in the adjacent areas, as I said before, which may be in AquaGib, may be affected by this. So what I would need to know, if my assessment is correct and if so, what are the measures the Government is taking to attenuate such levels?

2720 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, may I offer some...

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): May I simply step in to say, Mr Speaker, is the hon. Gentleman asking about the turbines that have been installed recently?

2725 Hon. J J Netto: Well, in this particular question, yes, it refers to –

Hon. Chief Minister: If he will just give way for the purposes of clarity, so that he understands, and the House understands, what the position is. Those turbines are not at Waterport Power Station. They are at the extreme western end, north-western end, of the Western Arm of the North Mole: they are not there. (Interjection) They are only temporary engines – before he carries on with his question, so he understands – the only temporary engines that are in the area of Waterport Power Station and AquaGib are the ones that were there before the Election, which are what we have referred to in this House before as the ‘Skid generators’, not the new turbines.

I hope that helps him to...

2735 Hon. J J Netto: It does indeed, Mr Speaker, and I am grateful for that clarification by the Chief Minister.

My geography of the place now is not that good, but could, perhaps, any of the Ministers, or the Chief Minister, indicate what is the distance, then, where these new generators are placed in relation to Waterport Power Station.

2740 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I would say it is probably, an estimation, of between 250 and 500 metres. This is literally behind the Port Office. So the Port Office is in one place, the Waterport Power Station is in another and it is not a public place in the sense that, although tourists have access to the area, fishermen have access to the area and people who work on the Western Arm have access to the area, there is now, he will know, a security post and therefore the general public do not have access to the area through the thoroughfare, although they can get a bit closer on the road known as Emerson’s Place, which would take them to the entrance of, I think, the extreme western access is to the entrance of the GHA kitchen and some of the commercial units there. But you have got to be working in that area to have access to it. So, in terms of Waterport Power Station, we are talking about a quarter or half a kilometre.

2750 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, may I offer some more information?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

2755 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: My information is that this temporary power station, as operating, does not exceed the 50 Mw thermal output and therefore those regulations would probably not apply but, not having had notice, I would have to check the detail.

2760 Hon. J J Netto: I accept entirely, Mr Speaker, what the Hon. the Minister for the Environment is saying but I think we need to understand, as well, that within a very close proximity of the area we have different industrial activities taking place, all producing levels of noise. We have these new generators

2765 which the Chief Minister kindly located where they are, we have noise emanating from there, we have noise emanating from Waterport Power Station, we have noise emanating from the desalination plant of AquaGib when that is in function: I think, when one combines all the various noise levels from all these various industrial activities taking place, then one needs to determine – particularly the Government needs to determine – whether (a) there has been any proper mapping of the noise levels in the whole area. If so, I would like to know what are the details of such and –

2770 Mr Speaker: The hon. Member, I think, is getting way beyond the ambit of the specific question. Really, I do not see how he can expect the information to be made available arising from this particular question.

2775 You have a specific question. It has been answered. Clarification has been made in respect of whether it is at Waterport or at the Western Arm and he is widening the ambit of the thing far beyond what is relevant.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, a point of information to assist the House and perhaps assist the hon. Member in case he wants to put further questions next time.

2780 I believe – I stand to be corrected and I will check – but I believe the desalination plant is not operating anymore, in any event. I think it was decommissioned some time ago in favour of the reverse osmosis plants that are operated by AquaGib in another location but I am happy for him to put questions in the future.

2785 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may, by way of further information, the greatest amount of noise produced is by Waterport Power Station and this temporary plant at the far end of the North Mole, particularly when the silencers have arrived in the next, I am told, five or so weeks, will be producing much less noise at the Waterport Power Station. It may be that, on certain occasions – and this is certainly the intention – some of the generators, including the temporary generators at Waterport, might, in fact, be able to be switched off for periods of time because these will be providing the necessary power. So the overall noise effect will certainly be down, even during this temporary measure.

Factory Inspectors Review of planning applications

Clerk: Question 162, the Hon. J J Netto.

2800 Hon. J J Netto. Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety say if it is the policy of the Government to ensure that the Factories Inspectors review every Building Application received and, if so, please provide the number and name of all applications viewed during 2012 or in January 2013, broken down by month.

2805 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, it is part of the duties of the Factories Inspectors to review Building Applications to ensure compliance with the Factories Act.

2810 Lack of resources in the past has meant that it has not been possible to carry this out. A concerted effort has now been made, as from the beginning of the year, with the support of the additional staff complement, and a total of 21 Building Applications were reviewed during the month of January 2013. No applications were reviewed in 2012.

Seconded Health and Safety Officers Prohibition or Improvement Notices issued

Clerk: Question 163, the Hon. J J Netto.

2820 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety say if any of the two seconded Health and Safety Officers with the Factories Inspectors have issued any Prohibition or Improvement Notices during 2012 and January 2013 and, if so, provide the number and name of the company or 2825 companies or the department or departments in respect of which the Notice or Notices have been issued, and broken down by month?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health and Safety and Technical Services.

2830 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in this schedule, which I now hand over to him. As stated unequivocally on numerous occasions in Parliament, it is not this Government's policy to name companies or departments in relation to either Improvement Notices or Prohibition Notices.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 163

Secondment of Health and Safety Officer Legal basis

2840 Clerk: Question 164, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety state what legal form has the secondment of the two Health and Safety Officers from the Housing Agency to the Factory Inspectorate taken?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

2850 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, any public servant can be seconded or deployed to any section or area within the public service and this is what happened initially. The position was then advertised openly to all GDC employees and the two seconded Health and Safety Officers were successful.

2855 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, of course civil servants can be transferred from one Government Department to the other but, in relation to the two Health and Safety Officers, is the Minister now saying that new vacancies have arisen as Factories Inspectors within the Government service and for which these two gentleman, amongst many others, have applied and now been appointed as Factories Inspectors. Is that the position?

2860 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, vacancies were advertised by the GDC.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I have clarification – I think I understood the hon. Gentleman to say by the Gibraltar Development Corporation.

2865 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, this came out via the Gibraltar Development Corporation as Health and Safety Inspector, Grade 4.

Hon. J J Netto: I cannot quite understand the logic of that because we are talking about two vacancies in the - which are Civil Service and should have been within the Government establishment figures of civil servants, not within the figures of the Gibraltar Development Corporation.

2870

This is why I am trying to find clarification, or is it that the Minister is saying that no internal vacancies were initiated within the Government service and automatically they went to the Gibraltar Development Corporation, so that any member of the public in Gibraltar could have applied. I think I need some clarification and, perhaps, if he is willing to provide it, I would be grateful.

2875

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, we, as the hon. Gentleman knows, have doubled the complement in terms of Health and Safety Inspectors and we do not see the need why we had to increase the Civil Service, the numbers of members of staff in the Civil Service. We chose to do it via GDC.

2880

Hon. J J Netto: Well, one would have thought, Mr Speaker – I mean, the Government can decide to do what the Government wish to do – but one would have thought and we are talking about Factories Inspectors who have very definite powers under the law and they have to be appointed under the Factories Act and have to be appointed by the Director. One would have thought that certain key posts such as that would have been civil servants and not members of the Gibraltar Development Corporation.

2885

I understand the answer the Minister has given me, that the Government has decided, unilaterally, I suppose, to advertise this as non-civil servant so, therefore, my question is: has the Minister or the Government had meetings with the Unions, in order to tell them that we are going to create these two new posts but they are not going to be civil servants.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman needs to understand what he is saying.

The Government has a manifesto commitment to respect the manning level of the Civil Service, not to increase it, and we committed ourselves to increase the number of Factories Inspectors. We have done so without increasing the complement of the Civil Service. That is the manner in which we have fulfilled both of those commitments.

We have not reduced the complement of the Civil Service. We have not taken away those Inspectors who were there before in the complement of the Service. We have increased the number of Factories Inspectors. This is an issue that the hon. Gentleman sometimes takes up with the Government; he says it is not true, Mr Speaker. He needs to be a bit more careful, we actually have not taken him up on it because we are so busy delivering a positive agenda that we do not need to waste time demonstrating when the hon. Gentleman is saying things which are incorrect. But if he looks through the Legal Notices, he will see that more Factories Inspectors have been appointed and, therefore, there are double the number that were there before.

2900

What is it that he is saying, that somebody who has got to discharge a statutory obligation and has a statutory power cannot have that statutory power conferred on him by legal notice unless he is a member of the Civil Service? Mr Speaker, that is nonsense, I am sorry to tell him, because there have been, for some time, since the explosion in the GDC, members of the GDC who have discharged statutory obligations and have had statutory powers delegated to them in order to enable them to discharge that public office with which they are charged.

2905

Now, if he says to me I would rather you had done it by way, Chief Minister, of increasing the complement of the Civil Service and have the Unions accepted that you have increased the complement of the Civil Service, I would take the first point but I would tell him that he will know that did not happen when he was in office and, secondly, Mr Speaker, I would say to him that the Unions are very happy that we are not reducing the complement of the Civil Service, we are maintaining that as per our manifesto commitment and delivering on our other commitments which, in particular, are important to them in respect of Factories Inspectors and all of those issues.

2910

But he really needs to think carefully about these issues that he puts in questions in this way.

2920

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I can perhaps try and clarify a couple of the issues that the Chief Minister has said. Are we talking about two civil servants who, prior to now being Factories Inspectors, were working as civil servants in the Housing Agency, have now been transferred or have been transferred for a while now with a Factory Inspector, have succeeded in the interviews as has been advertised through the Gibraltar Development Corporation and presumably retained their position as civil servants? Because, presumably, if they were civil servants working in the Housing Agency, they are not now non-civil servants as GDC members?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will assume that the hon. Gentleman does not realise the consequence of what he is saying.

2930 Look, when he was in Government, the Hon. the then Chief Minister provided an opportunity for people who were civil servants in the place known colloquially as el patio chico, right, to leave the Civil Service and become employees of the Housing Works Agency. There was a very attractive package put to people in a very contentious moment in Industrial Relations so that they would make that choice. That choice required them to leave the Civil Service.

2935 The hon. Gentleman has postulated his question saying ‘Civil servants who moved to the Housing Works Agency who when they move back to do this work in the GDC and are seconded to the service remain civil servants?’ No. I am not going to be ungenerous but I think the hon. Gentleman should have realized – I will not put it any further than that – that at the moment when these individuals took the package to become part of the Housing Works Agency, they surrendered their Civil Service status. Some of them took a package that took them completely out of the public service: they actually retired early. Others took a pay rise that took them into the Housing Works Agency. They are not, then, any more civil servants, they are public servants because they are in an Agency, but they are not civil servants and the hon. Gentleman knows, as much as I do, that we have had lengthy exchanges in this House as to what that means but, certainly, a civil servant has a definition and these individuals are no longer civil servants.

2940 So you have people who have gone to the Housing Works Agency who then wish to have this vacancy, take this vacancy and are seconded to do this job with the Civil Service. It does not make them civil servants again. It does not. Absent the moment in late 2011, when the Hon. the then Chief Minister, on another aspect of what he was doing then, which was the package for GDC members who went into the Civil Service as a result of that negotiation, you cannot get in to the Civil Service other than by going through the PSC. He can forgive me for saying that that was dealt with through the PSC but not through the usual procedure, which is that somebody applies, interview process, etc. etc. So people are not going to be able to come back into the Civil Service, having gone to the Housing Works Agency, because they applied for a GDC vacancy.

2945 If he sees it in that way, Mr Speaker, then perhaps he can understand that he should not be characterising so ungenerously what the Government has done to ensure that we have doubled the number of Factories Inspectors.

2955 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety provide the date on which the vacancies were advertised, the date of the interviews and the date of appointment?

2960 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as per the sheet I am reading here, the applications were to be received no later than 1 pm on Monday, 22nd October 2012 – and the other information he will have to give notice of, as I do not have that with me.

2965 Hon. J J Netto: As I understand it, the notice or part notice that the Hon. Minister has read is that people should have applied by not later than 1st October 2012. Is that what he is saying?

Hon. P J Balban: I said the 22nd – applications must be received by no later than 1 pm on Monday, 22nd October and this was issued on 10th October.

2970 Hon. J J Netto: Okay. So, presumably, if the applications had to be received by not later than 22nd October 2012, prior to the notice having been given, prior to the date of the interviews, and prior to the date of appointment, the status of those two Health and Safety Officers remained as Health and Safety Officers and not Factories Inspectors: is that correct?

2975 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I believe, if I am not mistaken, that the hon. Gentleman is referring to the difference between a Factories Inspector and a Health and Safety Inspector. (Hon. J J Netto: I am only using the words he has used in the past that are in Hansard.)

Could you repeat the question?

2980 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, all I am trying to do is to establish the dates in which this particular interview, which we now know people had to apply by 22nd October. I then wanted to know the date that the interviews took place and the date of appointment. I now understand and accept that he may not be in a position to be able to say the interview happened on such and such a date and the appointment was on such and such a date. I accept that because he may not have the information in front of him. But, what I was trying to establish is that, whether it happened towards the end of October 2012 or it happened during the course of November 2012, what was the status of those two individuals because these two individuals, as answered by yourself before, and as recorded in Hansard, were not Factories Inspectors, they were Health and Safety Officers. So what was their status right up to the date of the appointment?

2990 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if the gentleman will give me notice, I will find out exactly what they were then. The job title for this particular post was Health and Safety Inspector, Grade 4.

2995 Hon. J J Netto: With respect, it is not a question of giving notice, Mr Speaker, it is a very important issue, in the sense that he has given me information in answer to Question 163, for which he has told us in this table formulation here that, in July, these two individuals, they issued two Improvement Notices, in August they issued... Sorry, I beg your pardon, on July 2012 they issued five Improvement Notices, in August 2012 they issued 11 Improvement Notices, in October 16 Improvement Notices and, as far as Prohibition Notices, in May there was one, in June there was one, in July there was one and September one.

3000 I am trying to establish whether these two individuals had the legal standing, in accordance with the Factories Act, to have been able to issue these, taking into account that the date for the interview as Factories Inspectors was something towards the end of October or November.

3005 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, regardless of what we choose to name them, or call them, or choice of nomenclature, these... I can guarantee the hon. Member that these two persons were legally fit to be able to do the work that they were doing. These people were properly appointed.

Hon. J J Netto: By whom and when?

3010 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman needs to understand that the Government is sometimes saying we will give you the information, just give us notice and we will provide it.

Mr Speaker: I think it would be convenient now to have a recess until three o'clock this afternoon. If the Minister is able, between now and three o'clock, to provide the information then I will ask him to do so. If not, it is a matter to be pursued further.
The House will now recess until 3 pm this afternoon.

Questions for Oral Answer

5

10

Mr Speaker: Now, I think we are on supplementaries to Question No. 164. Is the Hon. Minister in a position to provide the information which...? Thank you.

15

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I have managed to get some of the information the hon. Member requested through lunch. The letter of appointment was with effect as from 1st November 2012, that is when they... the appointment officially began. As I said previously to that, the vacancy for the job closed at 1.00 p.m. on Monday, 22nd October.

20

I am not entirely sure as yet when the interview was carried out. So if the hon. Gentleman requests an exact date for that, I will have to look for it, but obviously it happened after the closure of said vacancy on the 22nd, before 1st November.

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for providing that extra bit of information.

Can I ask, this letter of appointment, for which he has now given us a date which is 1st November 2012, by whom was it signed – this letter of appointment?

25 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, the letter of appointment was signed by D Chipolina, I presume is Denise Chipolina, who is a secretary of the Gibraltar Development Corporation.

30 Hon. J J Netto: I am still somewhat confused in terms of my original question, which is what I was trying to establish before, because first of all, under the Factories Act, if we go and look at section 77(1) under the title of ‘Appointment of inspectors or other officers’, it says:

‘The Director may appoint such inspectors or other officers as may be considered necessary (under whichever title he may from time to time determine) for the purpose of this Act.’

35 Subsection (2) says:

40 ‘Every inspector shall be furnished with a certificate of his appointment, and when visiting a factory or place to which any of the provisions of this Act apply shall, if so required, produce such a certificate to the occupier or other person holding a responsible position of management at the factory.’

Now, the lady that the Hon. Minister has just said, Mrs Chipolina, is not the Director for the provisions of this Act, so that in one respect, I need clarification of that.

45 But in second respect, given that now we know that the letter of appointment is from 1st November 2012 and given that in the previous question, which is Question No. 163, which is information that he provided to me in relation to Improvement Notices and Prohibition Notices, which are enforcement of notices under the Factories Act, there have been enforcement notices issued by these particular gentlemen which at the time which they have been doing the notices have not been appointed by the director under the Factories Act, whether these notices carried the weight of the law or did not. And this is what I am trying to establish by the hon. Gentleman.

50 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in the letter of appointment, they were actually employed... they came under the Gibraltar Development Corporation. They became employees of the Gibraltar Development Corporation, but that does not mean that they were not legally able to carry out the functions that they did. In fact, they were able to do as they had been gazetted prior to that, so they were fully... It was perfectly legal, what they did. (Interjection) April, it was actually from 13th April 2012 they were gazetted.

60 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Hon. the Minister saying that the director has appointed, irrespective of the letters from Denise Chipolina, presumably because these individuals are members of the GDC – irrespective of that – is the Hon. the Minister saying that the director appointed in accordance with section 77, that appointment by the director was gazetted in the, in the Gazette and therefore the appointment was valid? Is that what he was saying?

65 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is correct. Dated 13th April 2012, these persons were conferred... By section 71(1) of the Factories Act, they were appointed as factories inspectors, as from 16th April 2012.

Mr Speaker: Any other question?

70 Clerk: Question –

Hon. J J Netto: May I ask. Well two things actually: whether a copy can be provided to me in relation to the appointment on the date of 13th April, so I can have a look at it.

75 Secondly, Mr Speaker, what I have come to notice is that when looking at this particular issue within the Factories Act, I have noticed that in the interpretation clauses ‘Minister’ means the Minister charged with responsibility for employment. Now, I know that the Minister for Employment sits next to the Hon. Minister Balban, but whether the Act has been amended to show that it is not the Minister for Employment but the Minister under the title that he occupies at the moment.

80 In other words, I can understand this has been consistent, particularly so from 1996 to 2011, because every single Employment Minister under the GSD Government was also the Minister for Employment and Health & Safety. Now the Government decided, for whatever reasons, to dislodge the Health & Safety away from the portfolio of Employment. Does it mean then that this should have been amended or not?

85 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Well, Mr Speaker, I do not know the answer to that question, but I can tell him that if it should have been amended and we look into it and that is the requirement, it will happen and we will then be doing what used to be called giving retrospective legal cover, to things... where there are lots of things that have been happening in recent years, which we will have to be bringing amendments to put right. This may be one of them, but as far as I am concerned, the people happen to be physically in my Department.

90 So I do not know whether... Certainly, the appointment was not done by me but was done by the Director of Labour in April. I imagine that when inspectors have been appointed, it has not been a Minister that has signed the appointment. But if we look at it, he may be right – see if it needs to be done.

Gibdock lifting equipment
Health & Safety

100 Clerk: Question 165, the Hon. J J Netto

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety state if all the lifting equipment being used in Gibdock has been duly inspected during 2012 and January 2013, and has been seen to be safe in accordance with the Factories (Lifting Operation and Lifting Equipment) Regulations, and therefore issued with a valid test certificate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, all Gibdock lifting equipment is inspected annually by a certified lifting equipment competent person who is responsible for conducting a thorough examination and issuing a valid test certificate in accordance with the Factories (Lifting Operations and Lifting Equipment) Regulations. The Factories Inspectorate carried out an on-site inspection of the certificates in May 2012 and found all lifting equipment to hold a valid test certificate.

Health & Safety
Rights of union representatives

120 Clerk: Question 166, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Written Question No. 211/2012, can the Minister for Health and Safety state what would be sufficient for the Government to consider extending the same rights to union representatives in Gibraltar as exists in the UK in matters to do with Health & Safety?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, as stated to my answer to Written Question 211/2012, at present the Government is not considering any plans to provide such rights to the union but may commit in future to consider this matter in the light of any possible long-term revision of the law.

130

Hon. J J Netto: I take into account what the hon. Gentleman is saying, but given the fact that this only came to light as a result of the Health and Safety seminar in the John Mackintosh Hall, where he was present and I was present, and I think it was the president, if that is the title, of Mr Robinson from the IOSH branch of the UK, in which he actually stated that there was a deficit, given what he had seen in relation to the rights that trade union officials have which dedicated themselves as representatives of Health and Safety in relation to their counterparts in the UK.

140

What I am trying to establish is whether now that he knows what Mr Robinson says, whether it is actually correct that that is the fact – something which obviously I did not know beforehand – and two, whether they are willing to contemplate parity of rights, if I can put it in that particular way, between local trade union representatives and the ones in the UK. I would have thought that, given that he is aware of it now, as I was aware of it when Mr Robinson said it, that perhaps that would have triggered some kind of internal discussion within the Government or within his own Department, or whether he has had any representations from the trade union itself. Because obviously all the other unions, not just the Unite the Union, were present at the seminar and all heard it in the same way as we have heard it. (Interjection)

150 So I wonder whether he has had representations from the local trade unions. I hear Mr Bossano seems to be suggesting – perhaps you want me to give way and you want to stand up and say something?

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): I can ask him to give way any time I feel like asking him to give way. I do not need any prompting.

155 Hon. J J Netto: Given that there was some kind of sarcasm and laughing across the table, perhaps I thought you had something to contribute, but –

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I enjoy the hon. Member's contribution so much that it is reflected in my reactions. I find him very amusing.

160 Hon. J J Netto: Well, you know, only this morning, if the hon. Member would have been here, he would have heard the Speaker saying that we should not chat across the floor; but perhaps he was not here to determine that. (Interjection)

165 But given that, Mr Speaker, can I move on to the substance of my question, which is: has the hon. Gentleman, the Minister for Health & Safety, had any representation from the union as a result that this is now public knowledge in Gibraltar and whether they have put those concerns to him and the Government is willing to consider them?

170 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am pretty sure that we have spoken about this in Parliaments past and this must be recorded in Hansard. The truth, the fact is that the reply to the original question is what I stand by, the initial reply.

175 Hon. J J Netto: So the Government is not contemplating at all looking at this matter right now and is therefore not intended to bring the changes or any amendment that may be necessary in order to provide the same right locally as in the UK?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as I said in my reply, it is as stated to my answer to Written Question 211/2012, at present the Government is not considering any plans to provide such rights to the union, but may commit in future to consider this matter in the light of any possible long-term revision of the law.

Asbestos Register Completion and location

185 Clerk: Question 167, the Hon. J J Netto.

190 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer in Question No. 439/2012, can the Minister for Health & Safety say whether the Asbestos Register alluded to has now been completed, and state in which location the central database will be held?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

195 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Asbestos Register has been started although it is not yet complete. Environment officers are in the process of collecting information from Government Departments, where such information is available and the central database will be held by the Department of the Environment.

200 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the answer by the Minister. I think the Minister did mention that this process had now started. Can he perhaps provide us as to when was the date of the actual commencement, when this particular project started?

205 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I am not sure when they started. The question... what I have said is it is not complete yet. I did not say it had started; obviously it is inherent in the question it has started. I would not be able to give him that reply, I am afraid.

Hon. J J Netto: So presumably, if he does not actually know when the actual project commenced – presumably, some time before when I asked the question – but does he also know what is the current work that is being done at the moment, as we speak?

210 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I can assist perhaps. I could not put a date as to when it started, but it is the Department of the Environment that is keeping the database and from memory, I think it is probably at least six months ago, but it is just by way of assisting. That information can obviously be obtained.

215 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 168, the Hon. J J Netto.

220 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I just have a second to make a note here in relation to the answer provided by the Minister for Environment?

Mr Speaker: Okay.

Scaffolding
Health & Safety inspections

230 Clerk: Question 168, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Thanks, Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety say if all scaffolding erected in Gibraltar during 2012 and January 2013 has been inspected by the Factories Inspectors prior to commencement of work and, if not, which ones have not been inspected, providing the name of the site or sites and the name of the company or companies erecting the scaffold?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

240 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Factories Inspectorate will carry out an inspection of the scaffolding once it is erected, at which time a certificate of completion is handed over to the main contractor and further inspections of the said scaffolding are carried out at various stages or phases of a given project.

During 2012, there were a total of 62 scaffolds erected and 12 in total for the month of January 2013.

245

Sites
Health & Safety inspections

250 Clerk: Question 169, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety provide details of the sites which the Factories Inspectors inspected in the month of January 2013, as shown in the Government website Table HS1, as updated on 4th February 2013 and if the two follow-ups stated therein correspond to the inspections?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

260 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to him. The two follow-ups as highlighted in the schedule correspond to the inspections.

Asbestos particles
Failure to carry out asbestos survey

270 Clerk: Question 170, the Hon. J J Netto.

275 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to Table HS5 on the Government website, as updated on 31st January 2013, can the Minister for Health & Safety say if as a result of the company failing to carry out an asbestos survey in relation to the one Improvement Notice issued in January 2013, have asbestos fibre particles been released into the atmosphere?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services.

280 Minister for Traffic, Health & Safety and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, in relation to Table HS5 as updated on 31st January 2013, the hon. Member should note that it was a Prohibition Notice that was issued and not an Improvement Notice, as stated by the hon. Member in his question. It was as a consequence of the issuing of this Prohibition Notice that an asbestos survey was undertaken and no asbestos presence was identified.

285

Mr Speaker: Any supplementary? Next question.

290

EQUALITY AND SOCIAL SERVICES

Long-stay patients in the GHA Transfers to Mount Alvernia, John Cochrane and Calpe Wards

295

300

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state if there have been any long-stay patients in the GHA that, during 2012 and January 2013, have (a) been transferred to Mount Alvernia stating the originating ward; (b) been transferred to John Cochrane Ward stating the originating ward; (c) been transferred to Calpe Ward stating the originating ward; and (d) provide the gender, age and dates in which any such person or persons entered any of the above units?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

305

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 131 and 132 of 2013.

310

Members of the community Transfers to Mount Alvernia, John Cochrane and Calpe Wards

Clerk: Question 131.

315

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state if there have been any members of the community that during 2012 and January 2013, have (a) been transferred to Mount Alvernia; (b) been transferred to John Cochrane Ward; (c) been transferred to Calpe Ward; and (d) provide the gender, age and dates in which any such person or persons entered any of the above units?

320

Elderly persons Waiting for place at Mount Alvernia

325

330

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, as at 31st January 2012, can the Minister for Social Services say how many elderly persons are presently waiting for a place at Mount Alvernia and of these how many are (a) for residential needs; (b) for medical/social needs, giving a breakdown of either mild or urgent need; (c) expressing a future need for admission; and (d) the date of application of the last person admitted to Mount Alvernia?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

335

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, in answer to Question 130: 10 long-stay patients in the GHA have been transferred to Mount Alvernia; 19 to John Cochrane Ward; and 22 to the Calpe Ward. I will now hand the Hon. Minister the information requested in relation to gender, age and date of admission. This information is being provided to the Opposition on a confidential basis, as the level of detail requested could lead to residents being identified.

340

Answer to Question 131: 28 members of the community have been transferred to Mount Alvernia during 2012 and January 2013; none have been transferred to John Cochrane Ward or Calpe Ward. I will now hand the hon. Member the information requested in relation to gender, age and date of admission.

This information is being provided to the Opposition on a confidential basis, as the level of detail requested could lead to the residents being identified.

345 In answer to Question 132: if by asking how many elderly people are presently waiting for a place at Mount Alvernia, the hon. Gentleman means to ask how many names are on the waiting list for residential elderly care then the total is 583. If by this question, in relation to part (a) of the question, the Hon. Mr Netto means how many elderly people actually need residential care at the present time at Mount Alvernia, then the answer is 118; or if he means how many have a low dependency need or a non-urgent need for residential care at the present time, then the answer is 465.

350 In relation to part (b), which relates to medical and social needs being broken down into either mild or urgent needs, if the Hon. Mr Netto is referring to needs based on the person's level of dependency the number of people with an urgent need is 118. If the Hon. Mr Netto requires the breakdown into either mild or urgent need, based on the assessment of risk, 13 people have urgent needs and the 105 people currently in the hospital setting have mild needs, as they are currently in a controlled safe environment.

355 In relation to part (c) of the question, 465 people are expressing a future need for Mount Alvernia. This figure would include 270 people over the age of 80 years who would be deemed as having health and social care needs by virtue of their age; and 195 people who are over the age of 60 years who have put their name on the waiting list in case of future needs.

360 In relation to part (d) of the question, the date of application of the last person admitted to Mount Alvernia is 30th March 2007.

365 Disability Action Plan
Complete and incomplete aspects

Clerk: Question 133, the Hon. J J Netto.

370 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Written Question No. 195/2012, can the Minister for Social Services state what aspects of the Disability Action Plan are complete and which aspects are not.

375 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is an ongoing process.

380 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, that is what basically the hon. Lady said in this Parliament almost 12 or 13 months ago, that it was an ongoing project. I would have thought, being a manifesto commitment, that the ongoing project would have had quite an advancement, in terms of developing the Disability Action Plan.

385 I think, quite frankly, if the hon. Lady does not want to provide details of my question in relation to what aspect has been covered and what aspect has not been covered, it is up to her what answers she provides Parliament, but does she not feel that she is actually not providing sufficient information – I would not want to use much more stronger words than that – by just not providing any detail, no outline, nothing at all whatsoever? Surely in the period of 13 months, given that it was a manifesto commitment, she would have had a number of meetings with a number of associations and at least they would have agreed on some things. At the end of the day, we are not talking about sending people to Mars; we are talking about establishing a Disability Action Plan.

390 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, as I said, this is an ongoing progress. The reason it is not complete, Mr Speaker, is because it is a massive project and in order to get it right, Mr Speaker, we have, as indeed the hon. Gentleman suggests, spoken to different stakeholder groups in relation to this. The fact that the work is not complete does not mean that nothing has been done.

395 However, Mr Speaker, the reason why this is such a massive, mammoth job is because nothing had been done prior to this Government taking the lead on this, Mr Speaker. (Several Members: Oh!) I understand how strongly the hon. Gentleman feels about this, but he clearly only feels very strongly about this now. Clearly it was not an issue for him when it was his responsibility and the lack of infrastructure in this regard, Mr Speaker, means that I have to start from scratch.

400 There are no complaints from the stakeholder parties in relation to the fact that it is not complete, because the general view, Mr Speaker, is that work is ongoing, the relevant parties are aware of what is being done and the general consensus is that it is being done slowly, thoroughly and with consultation and that the end product is a better product. It is not about scoring points and dealing with something and 405 finalising it in the first month, in the second month or whenever the hon. Gentleman suggests it should be ready, Mr Speaker.

It is a manifesto commitment that is not timed. It is a manifesto commitment that will be delivered in this term of Parliament, Mr Speaker, and it is certainly a manifesto commitment that will be delivered. I am just sorry to say that this was not such an emphasis for the hon. Gentleman when it was his responsibility.

415 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady seems to have spent 13 months telling everyone she meets that nothing existed prior to 11th December and that she has spent the last 12 or 13 months having to do everything from scratch. Well, she can rewrite history for as long as she can, but this is Question Time and I am asking questions on the basis of her manifesto commitment, not in terms of what happened before the General Election.

She has just stated right now that there are things which have been done. Well, if there are things which have just been done and in my question... My original question is 'what progress has been done?' Can she share that information with Parliament? Or does she feel that she is giving away some kind of state secret that is so secret, so important that Parliament should not be aware of what work has been done?

425 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the question does not ask what progress has been done. The question says, 'what is complete and what is not?', Mr Speaker. My answer is the truth: that it is an ongoing work.

But I can give examples of what has been done. It does not mean they are complete, but for example, by way of engaging with GHITA, for example, we have funded several training courses for level 1 of the British sign language courses and we are now embarking on funding level 2 of the British sign language courses; not only are we funding it, but we are also sending public servants on this course, so that this better helps them communicate with the public who may benefit from communicating with sign language, as well as enabling them to communicate with colleagues who may be deaf.

435 In addition, in association to working with groups such as GHITA, we have now developed the awareness of the need for induction loop systems, for example, as we will have in the Gibraltar Parliament once it is refurbished.

Again as a result of engaging with this group, the Government engaged a British sign language interpreter on National Day. That is just an example of how ongoing consultation reflects in the work that we are doing.

440 That is not the only thing that we have done, but I will continue, Mr Speaker, if you would like me to continue giving details.

Let me explain about physical assessments that have been done to current buildings, for example – and this has been published in the press, by way of press releases. There has been an accessibility audit of St Michael's Cave, for example, which now, through the relevant team of professionals, has been audited, in order to make it accessible for people with disabilities. I am not talking only about people with mobility problems; I am talking about people who may have mobility issues as well as sensory issues, Mr Speaker. It is not just about making things wheelchair-friendly. But these are things that we learn through engaging with relevant groups.

450 Mr Speaker, as I said initially, this is a massive piece of work, which is ongoing. That the final plan is complete, no; that it is work in progress, yes; that it may take a while before we get it complete, yes possibly, but hopefully by the time we complete it, having engaged as thoroughly as we have, we hope that we will get it right.

455 Life Planning for Disabled Persons
Complete and incomplete aspects

Clerk: Question 134, the Hon. J J Netto.

460 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Written Question No. 196/2012, can the Minister for Social Services say what aspects of the 'Life Planning for Disabled Persons' policy are now complete and which are not?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

465 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, again this policy is an ongoing process.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, within the process of ongoing, has anything been done in the process of the ongoing?

470 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker. The most fundamental thing that we had to do in order to commence this process was to compile a disability register and that is the starting point, on being able to assess the scale of the issue of people with disabilities in Gibraltar.

475 From that again, in the context of consultation, we have consulted the various user groups, individuals, as well as medical professionals. One of the fundamental cornerstones of this is consultation with the GHA in relation to medical information which is required, not only to enable to identify people's disabilities and one of the things that we were able to actually ascertain from sparse records that existed – not a disability register as such, but several sort of ad hoc registers in different departments – was that some people's disability were either wrongly described or wrongly diagnosed. So what we are doing is we are having a consolidated register, which is an accurate reflection of the people with disabilities in the community.

480 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I ask the hon. Lady whether the register she is now alluding to is completed?

485 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I think that it is in a very advanced form and I think I can safely say that it is almost complete.

Hon. J J Netto: Would the hon. Lady know how many people are registered in the register?

490 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, and that is not a supplementary that is directly linked to the question. It is not information that I have to hand.

495 'Looked After Children'
Number absconded from Care Agency homes

Clerk: Question 135, the Hon. J J Netto.

500 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state if there have been any 'Looked After Children' in any of the Care Agency's residential homes who have absconded since this question was last asked in Written Question No. 106/2012; if so, whether they have absconded in Gibraltar or Spain or whether any of these children have a track record of engaging in acts of violence against any other children or staff members?

505 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

510 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since Question No. 106/2012 was asked in September 2012, there have been 31 incidents of absconding, all of which took place in Gibraltar.

Of the 31 incidents, two 'Looked After Children' have a track record of engaging in acts of violence against other children or staff members. One Looked After Child accounts for 20 of these incidents and another accounts for four.

515 I now hand the hon. Member the remaining information requested, which is being provided on a confidential basis.

520 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that information, but whilst the information comes through, could I perhaps ask the hon. Lady, whether, in the opinion of the social worker or the team leader in this particular area of work, the track record of two individuals, which I think she has mentioned two who have a track record of violence... whether that is affecting in any way or a negative way all the other 'Looked After Children' who do not have a track record of violence in terms of their behaviour.

525 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I cannot answer that because it is not information that I have before me; but in any event, Mr Speaker, as I have said ad nauseam in the past, I am loathe to go into particular details in relation to children in care in Parliament.

Hon. J J Netto: I am not asking for details.

530 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: I am happy to discuss these matters with the hon. Member in private, but anything which may risk identifying the identity of a child in this Parliament, Mr Speaker, is something that I very strongly feel should be protected.

But in any event, Mr Speaker, it is not an answer that I have before me. It is not something that I anticipated in relation to the question.

535 Hon. J J Netto: Quite frankly, Mr Speaker, I am not asking for the details of any child at all. All I am saying, arising from an answer that she has provided, that there are two individuals who do have a track record of violence against other 'Looked After Children'. I think it is a perfectly legitimate supplementary question to ask, whether in the opinion of experts, that kind of incident – of which I do not know how long or how many times it is reflected – on other 'Looked After Children' may have a negative effect.

540 What I am basically asking is if I am now subjected to bullying by someone on a permanent basis – I am not saying that this is a correct analogy, but if I were to be submitted to bullying – it may have a negative effect on me socially, psychologically, etc. My question basically is whether she has any knowledge from her own staff which is, at the end of the day, a very delicate matter, whether this is happening; but I am not asking the hon. Lady to give me the names or whether they are boys or girls or whatever it is.

545

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I ask the – 550

Mr Speaker: Let us see whether the hon. Lady will answer that supplementary.

555

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the thing is that I cannot identify in any event the children who are referred to now as having this track record – have a long track record of violence or not – but let me explain what violence actually means, by way of recording, because for recording purposes at the Children's Residential Care Service, it is a very high... it is a very low threshold of incidents which are recorded. So for example, if a Looked After child slams a door, that is recorded as violence.

So it may be that the incidents which are referred to here are that these two children may have slammed a door or may have just dropped something on the floor in a fit of anger, as any child or young adolescent would do. There is no evidence that there is any sort of vicious violence.

So insofar as that knowledge that I have then, I do not think that there is a particular connection from the incidents of violence to any that cannot be sort of extended to any impact on the other children, because I know that the incidents of violence are not major incidents of violence. I hope that helps to clarify the situation.

565

Hon. J J Netto: No, Mr Speaker, I am not asking for her opinion, because Standing Orders prohibits to ask for opinion of Members of the Government; but I am asking whether she knows whether the professionals are aware of this particular issue. Perhaps they may have even raised it to the hon. Lady, not in relation to minor incidents of violence but in relation to much more serious incidents of violence of other categories.

570

I accept obviously that if she has not got the information in front of her, she may not be able to provide me with an answer. But if that is the case, I will write to the hon. Lady and see whether there is an issue there which is of concern to the social workers or the team leader.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition. Sorry.

575

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Can I reply?

Mr Speaker: Sorry.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Well, Mr Speaker, as I have said, I do not have the information nor have I had any concerns raised to me in this respect. I have a good rapport with the social workers. We meet on a regular basis and this is not one of the things that has been raised.

So had it been an issue, I would have expected it to have been raised and it has not.

585

Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition...

Hon. D A Feetham: That answers the question that I wanted to ask.

590

‘Looked After Children’
Number awaiting training placements

595 Clerk: Question 136, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, as at 31st January 2013, can the Minister for Social Services say how many, if any, ‘Looked After Children’ in the care of the Care Agency, aged 16 or above, are awaiting a training placement and, if so, state for how long they have been in such placements – should have been actually ‘waiting for the placement’ – with which entity and which type of training is being undertaken?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, there are six ‘Looked After Children’ who are 16 years and above. Two of these are in education.
605

Of the remaining four ‘Looked After Children’, two are registered with the ETB and are actively engaged in seeking a placement. One is not registered due to actively pursuing other employment plans, which I would be willing to discuss with the Opposition on a confidential basis. One Looked After Child’s registration has lapsed, but is being supported and encouraged to re-register.
610

‘Looked After Children’
Numbers in residential homes and the community

615 Clerk: Question 137, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, as at 31st January 2013, can the Minister for Social Services state the total number of ‘Looked After Children’ in the care of the Care Agency, giving a breakdown of those in the community, the Care Agency residential home – that is either Tangier Views or elsewhere – their age and sex, how many are siblings and whether these children were on an Emergency, Voluntary or Court Order?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the total number of ‘Looked After Children’ in the care of the Care Agency as of 31st January 2013 was 33. There are 14 ‘Looked After Children’ in the community and 18 ‘Looked After Children’ in the Care Agency residential homes. There are 9 sibling groups; 21 are subject to a Court Order and 12 subject to Voluntary Care. There were no Emergency Orders made in this period.
625

I will now hand the hon. Member the information requested in relation to age and sex, which is provided on a confidential basis, as the children’s identity can easily be disclosed.
630

Multi-Agency Child Protection Committee
Dates of meetings; issues discussed

635 Clerk: Question 138, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say on how many occasions the Multi-Agency Child Protection Committee has met since 13th March 2012, stating the issues discussed, and, in cases where it would be inappropriate to do so, to provide such information on a confidential basis, and the date scheduled for the next meeting?
640

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.
645

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since 13th March 2012, the Multi-Agency Child Protection Committee has met on 28th June 2012, 18th September 2012 and 7th November 2012.
650

The next Multi-Agency Child Protection Committee will take place in March 2013. A date is still to be set.

As previously stated in reply to this question, the meeting of the Child Protection Committee is not a public meeting and given the sensitivity of the child protection issues discussed, it is not felt appropriate that these should be made public.

655

Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, I am not asking the hon. Lady to provide me detailed information of any particular child. That is not what I am asking. What I am asking is whether at those meetings where there are issues of policy perhaps that have been discussed. Surely there is a difference between providing information to Parliament on policies which are being considered or have already been considered and adopted, against information that may be delicate in terms of identifying particular individuals.

660

I am quite clear of separating the two issues and whether the hon. Lady is willing at least to consider the other set of information which does not expose any particular child's identity to be shown.

665

Hon. S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, issues of policy and strategy are discussed, but there is a reason why this meeting is not in public, Mr Speaker. I am loathe to discuss the strategic and policy decisions that are taken at this meeting.

This is something that we have discussed at length in the past, Mr Speaker, and my position remains the same as it was on the last occasion.

670

Challenging Behaviour Unit Options and conclusions

675

Clerk: Question 139, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the options being considered in Question No. 285/2012 in relation to a Challenging Behaviour Unit have now concluded and, if so, has the Government now decided where the services will be provided?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Care Agency is in the process of reviewing its residential service as a whole and is also developing the Fostering and Adoption Service. As such, options are being considered in terms of a dedicated Challenging Behaviour Unit.

685

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, that is practically what she said to me back in March 2012. It does seem that nothing substantive has elapsed in that particular period. I am sure that between March 2012 to now, at least the Government or the Department where she is the Minister would have known... because obviously in March, she was already accepting the principle that there was a need for a Challenging Behaviour Unit. She was already accepting that principle. The question was where we are going to have it, basically.

690

So in this period of eight months since the last time, she has not identified a particular suitable place for this particular unit?

695

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Again, Mr Speaker, this is something which is a big issue, not only because we have to introduce legislation in order to do it, because in fact, Mr Speaker, when the Children Act was being drafted in 2008-09, it is a section that was included in the draft of the legislation but it is the Opposition when they were in Government who chose to take it out of the draft legislation.

700

So it is something that could have been done by the hon. Gentleman, but he chose not to do it.

Now, it is not just a question simply of introducing the equivalent of the UK legislation into our legislation and it is not only a case of adapting it and making it suitable to Gibraltar, but there is also the issue of introducing the regulations to be able to back it up. It is not as simple as finding a location for this, but there is also an issue of training the staff and all the other resources which are required for this.

Now, again, it is a big piece of work, Mr Speaker, which we are looking at – not only Social Services are looking at it, but also the Legislation Unit – and it is something that is being worked on, Mr Speaker.

It is quite ironic, Mr Speaker, that the Member opposite should make such a song and dance about it now, but he did not make any issue of it when it was in the draft legislation, but he chose to take it out, Mr Speaker.

715 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the simple answer why we took it out at the time because we were not ready for it for the reasons that she is saying now, but this conversation we have had back in March, so what it seems is that we need to put in back again what we took out because we were not ready at the time and she knows that – she has known that from March. She also needs to find out a particular suitable place, which she knew in March 2012 and she also knows now, as she knew in March, that people need to be trained for that.

720 The question is: she has known all these things since March and she seems not to have done anything about it. She could have brought the legislation, if she knew that the legislation could have been brought about. She could have done it in March, in April, in May, in June; but she has not done it.

The question is when is she going to bring the legislation? That is for a start, because the application of the date of the legislation can be whatever her choosing.

725 Because we were not ready at the time, but you are now the Minister, not me, and you have got to decide whether –

Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member address his remarks to the Chair?

730 Hon. J J Netto: Sorry.

If you want to bring that part of the legislation which was not ready, you have got to decide when you are going to do it, because you knew about it in March. You also knew in March that you had to identify a particular venue and you also knew in March that you had to train the people. The question is when are you going to do it?

735 Mr Speaker: Would the hon. Member refer to the hon. Lady in the third person, thereby guaranteeing that remarks are addressed to the Chair.

Do not speak to her as ‘you’. You address the Speaker and refer to her as ‘the Hon. Minister’.

740 Hon. J J Netto: I apologise, Mr Speaker, you are absolutely right.

Mr Speaker: Thank you.

745 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, perhaps the hon. Gentleman did not hear me when I said that we are working on this, because it is in the context of the bigger review of the residential services. That is one, Mr Speaker.

But the point that I want to make is that the difference between my responsibility now as the Minister is that we have identified it and something is being done – as opposed to the Opposition, when they were in Government, who knew it had to be done and chose not to do it, Mr Speaker.

750 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady has just said that something is being done. Can she please explain what it is that is being done?

755 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, It is part of an ongoing review of the residential service, Mr Speaker. Once we have decided exactly what is happening, then the hon. Gentleman will be made aware and will be made aware because it is something that we have to bring before this Parliament, Mr Speaker.

The only thing that the hon. Gentleman did, when he had the responsibility to do it, was to consider inserting this provision in the legislation. No other consideration as to the practical elements and the enforcement of this was given, Mr Speaker. We are now doing it because there was no background to this. It is something which is a very serious matter and serious consideration needs to be given to it.

760 Again, it is an ongoing process, Mr Speaker. We are hoping to be able to finalise the matter soon, but it is in the bigger context of the review of the residential service.

765 People with debilitating conditions
Numbers; Domiciliary Care

Clerk: Question 140, the Hon. J J Netto.

770 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, as at 31st January 2013, can the Minister for Social Services state the number of persons with a debilitating disease in the community, their medical condition in the form of acute, medium or mild, whether they are receiving any help from the Care Agency in the form of Domiciliary Care and if so, how many hours are provided per person and the amount of expenditure accrued since the beginning of this financial year?

775 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, there are a total of 100 people with debilitating conditions, of which 37 are mild, 31 are medium and 32 are acute. Of these, 98 are receiving Domiciliary Care. The expenditure since the beginning of the financial year is £656,925.

I will now hand the hon. Member the information requested in relation to the hours of Domiciliary Care being provided per person on a confidential basis.

Audit review of public buildings Disabled persons' access

790 Clerk: Question 141, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the audit review of public buildings in order to allow disabled persons access, first raised by me in January 2012, is now complete and, if so, which buildings are currently inaccessible and whether the audit review has a programme to make such buildings accessible?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is an ongoing process. As the hon. Member will be aware, there have been several audits completed which have been reported in the press, such as Albert Risso House, St. Michael's Cave and, significantly, the Parliament Building.

800

Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, that does not really take me much further along from my question and answer back in January 2012. What I was expecting from the hon. Lady is to tell me whether this kind of request would have been put on to a technical officer, perhaps in the Technical Services Department, in order to view all public buildings and provide a listing, so to speak, of those particular public buildings which are accessible or non-accessible to disabled people and, as a consequence of the buildings which are inaccessible to disabled people, whether there is a Government programme to try if possible to make them accessible to a disabled person.

805

Hon. J J Netto: So can I turn this into a question, perhaps: can the hon. Lady say whether there is such a report by Technical Services Department technical officers in relation to the question asked, which is a listing of all public buildings to state which ones are accessible and which ones are inaccessible for disabled people?

810

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Well, not yet, Mr Speaker, because the process is not yet complete. Once the whole evaluation process is complete, then we will have the written reports and the written policies on how different Departments need to deal with the issue of accessibility.

815

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, how long is going to be the ongoing process to establish that the buildings are accessible or not accessible to disabled people?

820

All she needs to do, given that she is repeating what she repeated back in January 2012, is one technical officer to be assigned to these and I should imagine that the technical officer within the period of four weeks – six weeks at the most – will be able to go back to the hon. Lady and say, 'Right, these are all the public buildings and from all the public buildings, so many out of the total are accessible to disabled people and so many are not accessible to disabled people.'

825

Has she done that? Has she put the request to the officer in the Technical Services Department and if she has, has she got a report to say which ones are and which ones are not? I think it is a fairly simple question.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, can I start by saying that 'she' is the cat's mother and perhaps the hon. Gentleman could be reminded on parliamentary etiquette once again. (Interjections)

830

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is obviously totally in your hands, but I heard him say, 'Mr Speaker, can she...'. She is not a he –

835

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: She is the hon. Lady.

Hon. D A Feetham: So unless the hon. Lady wants to be referred as a he, I do not think that he did anything wrong.

840 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: I can also be referred to as ‘the hon. Lady’, Mr Speaker.

In any event, Mr Speaker, can I just say that once again, what a shame it is that the hon. Gentleman did not feel so strongly about disability access to public buildings or any other buildings when it was his responsibility to do so. He can rest assured that this is something that will happen in the term of this Parliament. We are not going to be timed by the hon. Gentleman, Mr Speaker, as to what he thinks should be done and by when.

845 Again, as I have said in my previous answers, these things are now... not only are they going to be done, which is something that was never done – did not even appear or register on the horizon, when it was the hon. Member’s responsibility – but they will be done properly. And in order to be done properly, Mr Speaker, we need to have the right people in place, looking at the right policies and then communicating them to the right Department.

850 It is better to get it right at the beginning, and if it takes a bit longer then so be it, but once we do it, we will circumvent any problems that we may possibly have if we rush through it.

855 Again, I reiterate, Mr Speaker, that maybe the issue for the delay is the obvious lack of infrastructure, particularly in relation to the area of disability, that I have inherited, and I have to thank the hon. Member for that.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I explore with the hon. Lady this question of resources that she was alluding to in relation to whether it makes it difficult or not to conduct this particular audit? Can I ask her, how many people has the hon. Lady assigned to the task of conducting this particular audit?

860 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it is a multi-disciplinary and a multi-agency team of people from different Departments, depending on the task at hand.

865 For example, there will be a person from the Care Agency and they are mostly dealing with people from the Occupational Therapist Department at the GHA, and then there will be different technical people, depending on the location of the place.

870 For example, when we undertook the audit of the GASA pool at the beginning of the year, before last summer, in order that it was accessible in time for the summer, we compiled a team of people to deal with it and make the recommendations, purchase whatever was required to make it accessible, and then we have a team of people who then continue to assess the place in case anything needs to be repaired or hoists need to be oiled etc. That is one example, the GASA pool.

We have got, as I mentioned earlier, ongoing works at St Michael’s Cave. Again, part of that team will be people from the Tourist Board who will be involved.

We have got ongoing works assessing accessibility to beaches: again, different...

875 We will always have the same core team assessing the issues of accessibility, but then we may have different people changing on the peripheries, depending on the location.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, how many people are part of that core group of people conducting these audits, and how often does the hon. Lady actually meet, meet up with them?

880 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I cannot tell you exactly how many people there are, and there may be a different number of people from time to time, depending on the nature of the work, depending on the location, and depending on the works that need to be done.

885 Again, the amount of times that I will meet with either the group as a whole, or a sub-group of that group, or the people from the Care Agency who then feed back to the group, depends from time to time and it is not something that I can tell you off hand. It is not information that I have before me for the purposes of this question.

890 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what I am trying to get at is whether, effectively – and it sounded as if this is what the audit is actually all about – as to whether you are dealing with a piecemeal audit of buildings, one at a time, and you are conducting an audit of that building, but really there is no global audit, or whether there is one global audit and you are going through each building on a systematic basis.

895 Therefore, the question of whether there is a core team of people... and I quite understand that you may supplement that core team of people from particular people, from particular Departments, as and when they relate to buildings within that Department or relevant to that Department, but surely, if one is conducting a systematic audit, one needs to have a core team of people who are the same identifiable people who are assigned to that task and then report to the Minister in a systematic way.

I would have thought that if this was a systematic audit, conducted properly, and the hon. Lady was taking an interest in this – and I am sure that the hon. Lady is – that the hon. Lady would be able to 900 identify and give us at least... at least tell us the number of people who form part of the core team conducting this audit.

Of course, if it is not systematic, and if there is not a global audit, and what the hon. Lady really is talking about is just simply, ‘Well, next week, let’s do an audit of the GASA, and next month, let’s do an audit...’ and really there is not a systematic approach to this, it really could take four years to conduct this, rather than perhaps far earlier if it were approached in a more systematic way. That is what I am trying to explore with the hon. Lady.

910 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I thank the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition for his faith in me, and I can assure him that yes, I do have a very vested interest in progressing this and getting it right.

I go back to my original answer, Mr Speaker, in that this is an ongoing process, and while we conduct or finalise the assessment of the global audit, what we are doing is we are looking, perhaps on an ad hoc basis, at the buildings that appear to us to be more of a priority at any given time.

915 For example, last year, before the summer, we tackled the GASA pool because we wanted it to be ready in time for the summer – because otherwise there is no point if we have it ready in time for winter. So I hope that that answers the question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, with respect to the hon. Lady, it does not. I do not want to withdraw my earlier faith in her and accuse her or suggest to her that perhaps she is slightly bluffing in her answer.

920 What I have asked the hon. Lady, given that it is obviously so important to her, is at least to tell us what the number of that core team is, and perhaps even go further and tell us what the composition of that core team is, so that at least we, on this side, can ascertain for ourselves whether there is some systematic thought and some thorough thought going into the conduct of this audit.

925 Surely, if it is as important as she says that it is to the hon. Lady, she will be able to tell us how many people – the number, or the core team – are assigned to this task, and perhaps even the composition, whether they are Technical Services people, whether they are her own people within Social Services, or from somebody else’s Department.

The question is: can she tell us what the number is of this core team, and perhaps the composition of that team?

930 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I think I have already replied to that question. I think that I have already said that it is depending on the project, but that mainly the group of people is comprised of people from the Care Agency, people from the Occupational Health at the GHA, and then we have got our Technical Services.

935 Mr Speaker, when I have meetings with the various officials and professionals, sometimes my office is full of people, and sometimes two or three people attend. It depends on the nature of the meeting and the nature of the project. Sometimes, I have the head of OT at the GHA. He is probably one of the core people who is always present at all the meetings that I have. Then, I have to confess that sometimes when I meet with people from Technical Services I do not know all of their names, because they are not my officials.

940 I go back, Mr Speaker, to my first answer, in that this is not yet complete and it is an ongoing matter. By the end, when we complete this exercise, then I will be able to, for certain, say exactly who is in what team in respect of this project.

945 Mr Speaker, as soon as it is complete, then I am more than happy to give the hon. Gentleman the information that he requires. I cannot give him more information than what I have now, and I have already told him it is a group of people.

Sometimes I am sat in my office and there will be two people – I will have one person from the Care Agency and one person from the Occupational Health – and sometimes I will be sitting in my boardroom and there will be 10 people. It depends on the project and it depends on the nature of that meeting.

950 Obviously, I am not going to be present in every single meeting that relates to the review of the accessibility work that is done. We meet once in a while and we review the projects that are ongoing.

I do not have that specific information and I do not recall the names of all of the officials who attend my office; but once I do, rest assured that I will provide the hon. Gentleman with the information.

955 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what the hon. Lady is saying, really, is that there is no fixed core of people dealing with an overview, bird’s-eye view, of the audit as it relates to all buildings. Effectively, what she is saying is that it varies, depending on the building.

Can I impress upon the Lady that perhaps she ought to consider actually appointing a core team of people that does not change depending on the building? Because if you are going to be conducting an audit of this nature and it is going to be systematically conducted, you really need a core team of people 960 that can look at this on a global basis, rather than a group of people that really are changing depending on the building.

965 If you have a group of people that change depending on the building, the only common denominator in respect of all the buildings is going to be the hon. Lady herself, and in that kind of circumstance it is very difficult to be conducting a systematic survey or an audit of all buildings in terms of disability needs.

970 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I certainly am not the person to be undertaking or heading the audit, but there are always two constants – possibly three, but there are certainly always two constants. There is always one person from the Care Agency, who is pretty much a disability assessment officer, and that person is always the constant throughout on these projects; and the head of the OT Department in the GHA is always present in these projects. So there are always at least two constants. I believe that there is a third, but I am not sure which Department this gentleman comes from; I think it is the Technical Services Department.

975 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

Alzheimer's and Dementia Residential Unit Final revised plans

Clerk: Question 142, the Hon. J J Netto.

985 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the final revised plans for the Alzheimer's and Dementia Hospital, alluded to in answer to Question No. 523/2012, have now been completed; and, if so, state the total amount of beds the hospital will have, when the plans were finalised, the date when the hospital is envisaged to open, and provide a breakdown of the numbers and grades involved and the cost of employing new staff?

990 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, as previously stated in this Parliament, there are no plans for an Alzheimer's and Dementia Hospital, but rather for an Alzheimer's and Dementia Residential Unit.

995 The plans are almost complete. It is envisaged that the number of beds will be 52. It is hoped that the facility will be functioning by the end of this year, and the level of staffing required is still to be determined.

1000 Hon. J J Netto: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I am afraid I have lost some of the answer being provided by the hon. Lady. She did mention, I believe, that the number of beds will be 52. Is that correct?

Mr Speaker: Fifty-two, yes.

1005 Hon. J J Netto: Did she provide a date when she thinks that the residential home, which the hon. Lady is calling... will be open, Mr Speaker?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, I believe I said by the end of the year.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1010 Clerk: Question –

Hon. J J Netto: Can I ask...?

1015 Mr Speaker: Yes, go ahead.

1020 Hon. J J Netto: Although the target date will be by the end of the year, which is another 10 months away and would involve commencement within the next financial year, so to speak, is she now in a position of knowing the number of new people that she would need to employ in order to provide such services to this group of people; and if she does, Mr Speaker, can she provide a breakdown of what grades they are and what will be the extra cost to the Government?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, had the hon. Gentleman listened to my answer, I said that the level of staffing required is still to be determined.

1025 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. J J Netto: To be determined... Will she know by when she will be in a position that this decision will be determined?

1030 Obviously, she is now working towards a target date when the facility is going to be open – by the end of the year – so she must be having some discussion, particularly with the senior management of the Care Agency, and indeed perhaps even members of the Gibraltar Health Authority as well.

1035 I do not necessarily want to pin her down to exactly a particular fixed number of people, but perhaps she will know by now how many nurses there may be needed to be employed, how many auxiliary staff will need to be employed, whether there are some sort of other specialities that need to be employed to provide the services. Has she had this discussion... whether she knows the breakdown of different grades that would be required?

1040 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, we have had the discussions, and generally there are formulas that determine the level of the staffing requirements, but there is no final breakdown because, although in general we know the level of dependency that this unit will cater for, it may be that we need to look at that and the exact ratios will be known at a later stage.

As I said initially, the staffing level required has not been finalised. We can more or less gauge what it is, but it has not been finalised.

1045 Hon. J J Netto: Just perhaps one final question, Mr Speaker, if I may: does the hon. Lady think that, by the time the new Estimates are tabled, probably in the month of May or June... Will those new Estimates for the new financial year contain the extra amount of expenditure and the breakdown? I am not really trying to...

1050 Hon. E J Reyes: Catch her out.

Hon. J J Netto: – catch her out. It is just that I want to know whether, by that time, this will be part and parcel of the new estimates.

1055 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it may be that it is determined by the time that we lay the Estimates before Parliament; it may be that it is not. We will take it as it comes when we appear before Parliament for that session.

1060

Care Agency 11-month contract holders

1065 Clerk: Question 143, the Hon. J J Netto.

1070 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, since Question No. 763/2012, can the Minister for Social Services provide the following information: (a) how many new 11-month contracts have been initiated, stating the grade, nationality and location; (b) how many 11-month contracts have now terminated, and of those, how many ended with an indefinite contract, and how many have not had their 11-month contract renewed, stating their nationality, grade, and location?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

1075 Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, 25 new 11-month contracts have been initiated since Question 763/2012.

The breakdown is as follows: by grade – 18 care workers, two social workers, two RGNs, two AOs, one domestic; by nationality – 20 British, five Spanish; by locations – two in Administration, six in Disabilities, 10 in Elderly Care, seven in Children's Services.

1080 One 11-month contract has been terminated, and one has resulted in an indefinite contract. By grade, the one terminated was a care worker, British, in Children's Services; the one in an indefinite contract was a care worker, British, in Disability Services.

1085 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I perhaps ask the hon. Lady, would she be gracious enough to provide a photocopy of the answer given, as there were so many details involved that that would help, certainly, the Opposition benches.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker. Would you like it now, or after?

1090 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I think that we can certainly move on to the next question.

Mr Speaker: Very well, thank you.

1095

Mount Alvernia Nursing Co-ordinator post

Clerk: Question 144, the Hon. J J Netto.

1100

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, is the Minister for Social Services now in a position to provide a definitive answer to Question No. 764/2012, in relation to the review of the post of Nursing Co-ordinator at Mount Alvernia?

1105

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

1110

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, Question No. 764/2012 asked if the vacant position of Nursing Co-ordinator at Mount Alvernia had been filled. At the time, the post was being filled in an acting capacity, and it continues to be. The service continues to be reviewed.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the hon. Lady state whether the person who has now filled the post on a permanent basis was an employee of the Care Agency?

1115

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I have not said that the post has been filled on a permanent basis. I have just said that it is being filled in an acting capacity.

1120

Disability Team Leader post
Conclusion of review

Clerk: Question 145, the Hon. J J Netto.

1125

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the review stated in answer to Question No. 766/2012 has now concluded; and, if so, what is the conclusion in relation to the post of Disability Team Leader?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

1130

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, we have been working in collaboration with the Acting Team Leader of the Disability Services and the Team Leader of the Adult Services, and the review of the entire Disability Service is almost concluded.

1135

In light of the above reply, I am not yet able to disclose what the conclusion in relation to the post is, other than to say that there is a massive review of the Disability Service.

Hon. J J Netto: I believe, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Lady said that the review is almost complete. If that is the case, can she perhaps tell Parliament when she will be in a position to provide the information in relation to the conclusion of such a review, which is basically what I am asking?

Hon. S J Sacramento: Well, quite hopefully, by the next sitting of Parliament, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1145

Tangier View Residential Home Manager post

Clerk: Question 146, the Hon. J J Netto.

1150

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say if the review quoted in answer to Question No. 767/2012 has now ended; and, if so, state what the conclusion of such review is in relation to the outstanding post of Residential Home Manager in Tangier View?

1155

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality and Social Services.

Minister for Equality and Social Services (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): The review quoted in Question No. 767/2012 is almost concluded and a restructure is being planned for the new financial year, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am glad that my prompt in my question has made it that all the different reviews are now almost complete.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Don't flatter yourself.

Mr Speaker, in response to that gratuitous remark, I think the hon. Gentleman should not flatter himself because the target is the new financial year.

1170

Bleak House courses Provision made for students

Clerk: Question 171, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1175

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Training state what provision has been made for those students who voluntarily attended the Bleak House courses of literacy, numeracy, IT and life skills, which were last held in May 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

1180

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183 and 184.

1185

Employment and Training Company Ltd
Number of companies signing contracts

Clerk: Question 177, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1190

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment please state how many companies have signed contracts with Employment and Training Company Ltd as at 31st January 2013?

1195

Future Job Strategy
Types of training

Clerk: Question 178, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1200

Hon D A Feetham: Is the Minister for Employment now in a position to provide details of the type of training that each Future Job Strategy trainee placed in Government Departments, Government Companies or Authorities is receiving and which he said he would write to me about at the last session of Parliament?

1205

Future Job Strategy
Number of trainees placed

1210 Clerk: Question 179, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state, as at 31st January 2013, how many Future Job Strategy trainees were placed in the private sector and how many in the public sector?

Future Job Strategy
Number of trainees in permanent employment

1220 Clerk: Question 180, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many Future Job Strategy trainees have been employed permanently, following successful completion of their training (a) in the private sector and (b) in the public sector?

1225

Future Job Strategy
Number of trainees failing to complete training

1230

Clerk: Question 181, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many Future Job Strategy trainees have failed to complete their training since the scheme was instituted on 1st February 2012?

1235

Future Job Strategy
Termination of training

1240

Clerk: Question 182, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many trainees have had their training terminated in the public sector, or by companies in the private sector, other than for reasons that the trainee has been permanently employed?

1245

Employment Training Company Ltd Trainees not receiving training

Clerk: Question 183, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state whether there are any trainees getting paid by the Employment Training Company Ltd who are currently not receiving any training, either within the private or public sector?

Construction Training Centre and Gibdock Trainees in structured schemes

Clerk: Question 184, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1265

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Employment please state how many people have been taken on at the Construction Training Centre or Gibdock for structured training schemes since 1st January 2012?

1270 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, of those who attended the courses in May 2012, 14 went from ETCL into employment, 10 went directly into employment, 19 continue in ETCL/SEC, nine we have had no further contact with, and two are currently registered unemployed.

1275 As at 31st January 2013, 184 companies had signed contracts with ETCL.

Further to Question 28/2013, the answer is no.

As at 31st January 2013, 289 trainees were placed in the private sector, and 205 within the public service.

1280 Following employment training with ETCL, 101 trainees have been employed in the private sector and 10 in the public service.

Twenty trainees have failed to complete their training.

Other than for the reason of having found them permanent employment, 39 trainees have had their training terminated.

1285 The employing company is not aware of any trainee that is not receiving any training.

To date, no-one has been taken on at the Construction Training Centre or Gibdock.

Hon D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just simply on a Point of Order, because the Hon. the Minister for Employment has, in the past, lumped all Future Job Strategy questions that I have asked him into one and answered them. Very often, I go back and I look at the answers, and in fact he either has not answered one particular question or an aspect of a particular question.

1290 In my respectful view, I do not think that it is parliamentary and I do not think that it is within the spirit of Standing Orders for there to be a bunching up of questions – and effectively, we are talking about (Interjection by Hon. J J Bossano) eight or nine questions bunched up (Interjection) – with no reference, when he gives me the answer, to the number of the question, and it really is very difficult to follow, from this side of the House, which answer relates to which question.

1295 I really do not think that it is within the spirit of Standing Orders or the Rules of the House for there to be answers to questions in this particular way.

1300 I ask one question, I require an answer for that question, and quite frankly, it is very difficult to actually follow the answers the hon. Gentleman has given to the questions that I have asked.

Mr Speaker: Since time immemorial, Ministers have had discretion to lump together and answer whatever questions they have wished. That has always been the practice.

1305 I understand the problem, the difficulty, which the Leader of the Opposition says that the Opposition have in placing, as it were... in identifying what part of the answer has to do with which particular question. I can understand that that is a problem for them.

Because of that, and because there are a number of questions, I am prepared to be liberal in allowing them whatever time they feel is necessary to be able to ask supplementaries, but as I say, there is nothing in Standing Orders that prevents a Minister from answering any number of questions together.

1310 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, that is certainly the case, but Standing Orders also provide that the questions that we ask ought to be answered, and that must mean that there must be a correlation between the answer and the question.

1315 What I am inviting the Hon. the Minister perhaps... What I am inviting, Mr Speaker, and urging upon him, is that perhaps he ought to urge the Minister to identify, at the very least – even if he bunches them, at the very least identify – the question he is answering with the information he is providing, because it really is very difficult to follow the actual answer to the question, particularly when we are talking about not three questions, but we are talking about eight or nine questions.

1320 Mr Speaker: Again, I understand the difficulty.

Let me say this: in about half an hour's time or so, we hope to have a short recess of 20 minutes or so, and I will be liberal perhaps. If, between now and then, hon. Members of the Opposition have not been able to fully pursue the supplementaries arising from this answer that they feel that they need to pursue, I will be liberal in allowing them to come back, to return to these questions and ask the necessary supplementaries. Beyond that, I really do not feel that I can go.

1325 I have only seen the answer myself now, so I cannot ask here now and then, immediately, the Hon. Minister who has answered it, which paragraph refers to which question, but outside the pressure of the House, perhaps in the Antechamber, one or two of the hon. Members of the Opposition could do precisely that and then, as I say, I will allow them to come back to this main answer and pursue it to the extent that they feel is necessary.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that.

1335 It is not the fact that Mr Speaker does not, in fact, provide us the indulgence, because he has in the past provided us the indulgence; it is about the practice. I just do not think that it is proper parliamentary practice and it is within the spirit of Standing Orders to provide answers to questions in this way, without identifying, at the very least – even if he bunches them – indentifying the questions. But so be it, Mr Speaker, and I will –

1340 Mr Speaker: No, the problem is where do you draw the line. You can lump together two, three or four – it has happened today and yesterday – and there is no problem. Now the hon. Members of the Opposition are having a problem, but I cannot give a strict ruling and say you may only lump together three, four, five or six.

1345 The Hon. Leader of the Opposition must understand that the Speaker only has those powers under Standing Rules that hon. Members decide that the Speaker should have. If hon. Members consider that the Speaker does not have enough powers, they know what steps they have to take.

1350 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, just in terms of how parliamentary these things may or may not be, I offer the hon. Gentleman the opportunity to reflect on the fact that, when we were sitting in Opposition and they were sitting on this side of the House, we often endured the bunching of a number of questions, sometimes two or three, in relation to a particular subject –

A Member: That is what I just said.

1355 Hon. Chief Minister: – sometimes 20 or 30. On one particular occasion, Mr Speaker, I recall the Hon. the previous Chief Minister bunched, I think, a historic 60 questions together, or so, in respect of Mr Licudi.

I urge the hon. Gentleman to think that if it is unparliamentary now, it was unparliamentary then.

1360 Mr Speaker: I would say this, if the Hon. Chief... (Hon. Chief Minister: Of course.) In my time – and in the time of the Hon. Member, Mr Bossano – this number of questions would not have been lumped together, but if a practice has developed over the last 20 years, where even more... then, if you tell me that 60 questions have been lumped together, 10 is no great number. But when I was sitting on those benches, you hardly ever had answers to more than two or three questions lumped together, and I am sure the Hon. Mr Bossano will corroborate that.

1365 Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

1370 If I may just say this: for the purposes of trying to take forward debates in this House, many of those questions which are lumped together are the questions, in the last Parliament and in this Parliament, that are prefaced with ‘How many...?’ Mr Speaker, when I became a Member of this Parliament in 2003, I started the practice of asking many of those ‘How many...?’ questions – or rather, questions which prefaced with ‘How many...?’ – by written question, and asking a political question the following Parliament if I found that the data I had been provided with gave rise to any such potential political question, if I may put it that way.

1375 I just invite hon. Members, who have the right to decide absolutely for themselves which questions they put in writing, or which questions they put orally, that if they are seeking questions which are about statistical information, they have three courses: ask them orally; ask them in writing, in which case they have the information and they can analyse it before they then ask a parliamentary question in the next Parliament, in the next meeting, which is now every month – before, it was two or three times a year; or, approach us and say, ‘Look, I am going to be asking this statistical question in every Parliament – can I invite you to put this on the website, so that I can look at the numbers and ask my political questions based on the numbers on the website?’

1380 I do not know if that is of any assistance, Mr Speaker.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker?

1385 Mr Speaker: Yes, just a moment.

1390 There are two immediate courses of action that the House could take. One is to ask the Hon. Minister whether the Members of the Opposition can have a photocopy of the main answer immediately. The other one, of course, is as I said, we were going to have a break at about five – we could have a recess now for about 20 minutes, which will allow the hon. Members of the Opposition to look at the answer in detail and to identify them with any of the questions. I am open to whatever the...

Hon. D A Feetham: The first suggestion would be fine, Mr Speaker.

We, on this side of the House, are also interested in moving forward. It is not really about this particular session; it is about how we move forward.

1395

I have already, in relation to statistical questions, invited the Hon. the Minister for Employment to provide me with those statistical questions on a quarterly basis. I think that I suggested, in relation to unemployment figures, that he provide me with those on a quarterly basis, and perhaps I also invited him to place them on the website.

1400

Not all these questions are statistical questions, and the point that I was making is that, perhaps in future, when he answers them – and he is not going to have answer to me, because it is Mr Bossino who is taking over the relevant portfolio – that he might want to consider actually identifying the question that he is answering when he actually provides the answer, and that would be helpful.

1405

In respect of the 60 questions that were bunched together, I am aware that, in the past, 60 – or a large number of questions – have been bunched together. They were of a statistical nature, and hence could be provided in a schedule. (Interjection) Mr Speaker, that is my recollection.

Some of these questions are not statistical, they are political in nature, and hence I have chosen on this occasion actually to ask them across the floor of this House. On other occasions, I have also asked them in written format.

But the point was to try and, at the very least, elicit the information, not only for ourselves but also for the purpose of Hansard and anybody else who looks at Hansard or is listening to the debates.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I might just deal with that point, as a point of information, it is not true to say that the questions that have been bunched together are statistical questions in the past.

(Hon. D A Feetham: The 60, or so.)

In fact, a lot of questions, particularly the 50 or 60 that were bunched together, were not statistical; they were about when Government was going to do things and particular aspects of what Government was going to do in relation to a traffic plan, ironically. So, Mr Speaker, it is not true to say that only statistical questions have previously been bunched together.

1420

But if I may just say, Mr Speaker, and end with this, we are going to be dealing with a motion sometime later today about televising proceedings. I think it is in all our interests, if the House does approve that motion and if we do go ahead and televise proceedings, that we do not start with very low ratings because all we are doing is asking each other about numbers.

1425

I have said what I have said about how I feel statistical information can be provided more easily to hon. Members for their analysis and then their political questioning, and it is a matter for them how they take it forward.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I accept that entirely. What I do not accept is that all the questions that I have asked are of a statistical nature.

1430

Further, simply because one asks a statistical question does not mean that there is not a political motive behind it, and indeed political supplementaries that arise from it. The hon. Gentleman has enough experience of my questions of the Hon. the Father of the House to know that most of the questions that I do ask have got a political content to them.

1435

I am interested in how we proceed in future and how, obviously, to make the proceedings as fair and effective as possible. I would have thought that it would be possible, certainly, to consider all these issues, not in the context of the motion later on, in relation to televising of the debate, but in the context of the debate, that no doubt we will have, in relation to parliamentary reform later on this year.

Hon. E J Reyes: May I...

1440

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in fairness to the Minister for Employment, he has also provided me with the answer to the question on debentures. I do not know whether this is...

Hon. J J Bossano: Oh well, it should not be there (laughter).

1445

Hon. D A Feetham: I have got the answer to the question that I have not asked! I do not know whether he wants that back? (Interjections)

Hon. Chief Minister: You can start thinking about it so that [inaudible].

1450

Mr Speaker: Perhaps you might return it to the Chair.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: And Mr Netto's questions are also here.

Hon. D A Feetham: And Mr Netto's questions are also here.

1455 Hon. J J Netto: He can leave them here if he wants.

Mr Speaker: Given the information which now is in the hands of hon. Members of the Opposition, how would they like to proceed?

1460 A Member: Carry on.

Mr Speaker: Carry on.

1465 Hon. E J Reyes: May I then, Mr Speaker... In relation to the answer provided by the Minister for Employment that refers specifically to Question No. 171, if I noted the figures accurately I believe, Mr Speaker, that 19 trainees still remain on the ETCL and two are registered as unemployed. That makes it a total of 21.

1470 Can I therefore take this opportunity, Mr Speaker, to urge upon the Minister for Employment to think carefully about what I hinted about last time, is that the value of offering important courses that lead to accredited qualifications in numeracy, literacy and information technology would help to enhance the employment prospects of these individuals.

1475 I was urging him last time, even offering to meet up with him... I know he has been busy because he has been representing this House in international matters, which makes all of us in Gibraltar proud; but nonetheless, Mr Speaker, it is 21 youngsters who are currently not in permanent full-time employment, who I believe would benefit greatly if they had the opportunity to attend some sort of courses that led to accredited qualification.

1480 Perhaps, together with the Minister for Education, we can even have a cup of coffee and what is known as a general chit-chat about the value that would obviously allow these 21 youngsters to improve their employment prospects.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, there are two registered unemployed. The others – the 19 that the hon. Member is referring to – are, in fact, getting paid. They are in employment; they are not unemployed.

1485 In the Support and Employment Company they have got indefinite contracts. They are placed somewhere with an open contract because... the Member may remember that, having identified the category of people who were with special educational needs, many of whom were there already before 2012, the position was that we initially put them in ETCL, the same as everybody else.

1490 So, everybody who was on the VTS went into the ETCL in February, and then, a few months later, those who had been identified to have limitations, in terms of being able to obtain a job in the open market – which was not a question of improving their skills; it was their ability that was involved – in those cases, we actually gave them all indefinite contracts.

1495 So that is why the 19 are ETCL/SEC. SEC is the Support and Employment Company. These people completed their literacy and numeracy courses in Bleak House, and when they came out, they continued to be paid by the company, like they were being paid while they were doing the courses. They are in areas in the private sector, many of them, but with a commitment from the placement that their placement will not end, that they will continue to be paid a wage and that they will be entitled to an old age pension and so on eventually, because they are now covered by social insurance, and that they will be getting annual pay rises in line with the minimum wage.

1500 So the reality of it is that we know of two who are seeking employment – because they have registered unemployed – out of the whole group, and there are nine who have not come back for anything, and we do not know... They are not either in employment or out of employment; they have simply fallen under the radar.

1505 The 19 are likely to continue to be where they are, and if they can benefit from any other courses, there is no problem in sending them; they are all on our payroll, anyway.

So that is the position. It is not that there are 21 who need to be given a job; there are only two.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, thank you, Mr Speaker, the Minister for Employment has clarified a little bit.

1510 However, if you subscribe to the philosophy of lifelong learning, I think these 19, together with the two unemployed, would certainly have a far better future working life if they were able to top up on their qualifications.

I will leave it at that, Mr Speaker. Perhaps it is an item of lifelong learning that I can take up with the Minister for Employment when the House meets again, after the refurbishments that are planned.

1515 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in answer to Question 178 – I think it is in answer to that Question, because he refers to Question 28/2012 – where I asked:

'Is the Minister for Employment now in a position to provide details of the type of training that each Future Job Strategy trainee placed in Government Departments, Government Companies or Authorities is receiving and which he said he would write to me about...?'

– he has said no. Can he elaborate as to why it is not possible or he is not in a position to provide me with that information – bearing in mind that he said that he was going to write to me on the last occasion – without me writing to him?

1525

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, it is not related to him writing to me; it is related to the fact that what he asked me for the last time and what he is asking me for this time are not the same thing.

He said, the last time, that the information that he was looking for was the numbers in each area and that he would be happy to get that from me on a quarterly basis because he wanted to see, from one quarter to the other, how many people were in one area and how many were in another area.

On this occasion, he has asked me to give him the type of training. The type of training has nothing to do... well, it has something to do with the area when it comes to Health and Social Care, because that is only available in the areas... So, if I tell him there are 20 people in Health and Social Care, it follows that the training that they are getting is in Health and Social care; if I tell him there are 41 in the Construction Industry Training Centre, it follows that it is construction; but if I tell him that there are some people in the tourist and the transport area, that does not tell him the training.

1535

Therefore, what I can give him is the breakdown that he asked me for the last time, not what he is asking me this time.

1540

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, can he please provide me with that? It may well be that we have been at cross purposes. Can he provide me with that?

Hon. J J Bossano: Yes. I have got the figures here for the October numbers. If the hon. Member will bear with me, I will find the supplementary.

1545

In Care and Social Services, there were 55 – this is at 1st December; the figure will have changed in January because some people have now moved on – Education and Health, 18; the Construction Training Centre had 41; Gibdock had 23; the Treasury, Tax Department and Post Office had 18; Human Resources and the Employment Service, 14; Tourism and Transport, 13; Sports and Culture, 14; Electricity Authority, four; Consumer Affairs, one; the Courts, one; the Maritime Administration, four; and Housing, one.

1550

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much.

1555

Just moving on, in relation to the 101 trainees who have been employed in the private sector – presumably after being placed there on the Future Job Strategy Scheme – when I was Minister for Justice and I looked at the figures, when I was working during the last year with my very good and hon. Friend, Luis Montiel, as he then was, we looked at the figures, in terms of the success rate of the VTS Scheme, and the success rate of the VTS Scheme was roughly about 28%. That was the success rate in terms of people placed and then being taken on permanently.

1560

Now, in a year, we have had 101 trainees who have been taken on permanently, out of nearly 500 who were originally taken on as part of the Future Job Strategy scheme. So, at this stage, there does not actually appear to be an improvement in terms of the historic rates at which employers are taking people on on a permanent basis. Does he accept that, and can he explain why he has not been able to effectively have any improvement on the figures when we were there as part of the VTS Scheme?

1565

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I do not accept that, no, because I would have to go back and check whether his recollection of what was happening when he was there is accurate. The fact that he states that he came up with a figure, together with his good friend, Mr Montiel, is not sufficient to persuade me.

1570

I have to tell him that, in fact, from the perspective of the commitment to employ, it is almost 100%, the result. The hon. Member will remember how he wanted me to agree with him that the Scheme had been a failure in the first month, when only five employers had turned up. The 101 who have been employed as a result of the 11 months is three short of the people who committed themselves. There were 104 employers who were supposed to be taking people on – 101 have taken them on and three have received invoices. I do not know whether that is enough to persuade him that this scheme is producing better results – which I am sure he wants to see as much as I do; I am sure of that.

I will go back and check his figures, because in fact the information that we used to get before, and which I continued to get after 9th November 2011, was that the previous scheme consisted of many, many people being recycled, and the figures that I have of people certainly who have been in the scheme in several cycles already, before 2012, would be higher as a percentage than the figure that he is quoting. So it may be that there are people who had got a job and then lost their job, and then came back, because it is not clear that they were unemployed in between.

I can tell him that there are people – because we check if they have been in the system before, when they come in – who have been in and out of the VTS three or four times, and they have now gone into employment for the first time from the Employment Company. But it may be that employers have taken them on and then subsequently laid them off, but I do not know.

But I will certainly look at it, and if indeed the figures are as he has said, then clearly there is room for improvement because the one we have got now is better.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what about the other... We are talking about 101 who have found permanent employment. There are also 10 in the public sector, and I presume that the 10 in the public sector... we are dealing with social workers or we are dealing with (Hon. J J Bossano: Care.) care or nurses, who have, in relation to those, proper structured training with a view to a job.

But what about the other 350 who signed 11-month contracts with ETCL at the beginning of February, when the scheme started? How confident is the Hon. Minister that they will also be able to be placed? Because of course, the success or otherwise of the scheme cannot be judged just simply by how many one places in the private sector with willing employers. The success or otherwise of the scheme has to be judged on a global basis, bearing in mind the amount of people who signed contracts with ETCL, came into the scheme in February 2012, and who were actually guaranteed jobs at the last Election by the Party opposite.

1595

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I think I have explained it all before to him, but I will explain it again.

1600

Mr Speaker, the people that we took on initially we took on even though, from the previous administration, they had a six-month stint in the Vocational Training Scheme, which did not require us to keep them on until they got a job. But we felt that, since we are offering that to newcomers, it was only fair that we should give it to the people who were already there in January.

The difference between those people, some of whom we still have and are now in their second year – I think we have got about 89 of them left – was that they were not selected by the employer. The fundamental difference between the two systems, which we think makes this one have a higher potential for success, is that this is a situation where it is demand led, not supply led.

On the previous scheme, the employers who were approached initially by us and told, ‘You have to sign a partnership agreement with us,’ said, ‘Well, I don’t want to sign a partnership agreement. As far as I am concerned, I have got people here that I don’t need and I don’t want. They are nice people, they are hardworking people, they are good people, but I don’t need them. I was only doing the Government a favour in order to take them off the unemployment list, because they didn’t cost me anything – no social insurance, and they just got an allowance.’ That is the position that still leaves us with a remnant.

In the subsequent cases, the person has been taken on because the employer, who has got to give them the job, selects who he takes on. We send candidates; they select one. The one they select gets given a job with the Employment Training Company, and the prospective employer signs a partnership agreement guaranteeing that the job that has been open, which is a job that needs to be filled permanently, will be filled with that person, if that person is suitable, and they have a month to determine the suitability.

1615

The 101 who have been taken on are all the people who were taken on at the end of that period of commitment by the employer; and, as I have said, there were only three employers who, at the end of the training agreement, tried to argue that the guys were not suitable. We did not accept that argument because it is very clear that, if we accept that argument, then all that will happen is that employers will take them on as long as it is paid from the public purse and stop taking them on when they have got to put the money in their own pocket.

1620

So the answer to his question is that the people who are there we are committed to keep until we find them suitable... but it is a declining number, and I am optimistic that we will be able to find them all work. It is not a problem that is going to increase, because the system now does not lead to a situation where we are, as it were, forcing people onto employers that the employers do not want to have. That cannot happen, and therefore the criteria that we are applying creates a different kind of relationship.

1625

In many many cases, of course, we are using the opportunity of the fact that... We have been doing it with the construction industry, where the previous Government introduced a system that the allocation of contracts would be that people would have to give three prices, but as well as having to compete on price they would be competing on the number of jobs they offered those unemployed. In those circumstances, the guy cannot say, ‘Well, look, I did not want the guy that you sent me.’ They select who they have.

1630

So, I certainly will look at the figures that he has given, and I will see, if we are not being as successful, where we are going wrong, but I do not believe that is the case.

1635

Hon. D A Feetham: Did he say that out of the original... He mentioned the number of 89. I thought he said out of the original 450 to 500 who were taken on at the beginning of February of last year, 89 of 1640 that number are included within this 101; the remainder are people who may have, off their own backs or in conjunction with the ETB, found an employer who is willing to take them on on the Future Job Strategy scheme and then have been taken on permanently.

1645 So, am I right in saying that, out of the 400 to 500 people who were originally taken on on the scheme in February 2011, 89 have found permanent employment?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, that is not what I was saying. I was saying that, of the people who still remain in the scheme, there are 89 of those who were there initially.

1650 There are a number of other categories in the breakdown that he has asked me for in this and in previous questions, which are the people who found employment, but not with their placement provider.

This question was quite specific. The 101 are where the employer signed an agreement and has honoured the agreement. There are three cases where the employer signed an agreement and tried to walk away at the end.

1655 There are other categories. There is another group of people in the numbers that I have given him – if not in this month’s question, in the ones that he asked me last month – which was the number of people who had actually used their skills with one provider and finished up with a different employer, because of course the commitment is only on the part of the employer. There is no... Some employers feel that it is a bit one-sided, particularly where they feel that they can train somebody to do something and then somebody else can poach them, because only the employer has an agreement to keep the employee. The employee has no agreement to stay there.

1660 But the 89 figure that I have given him, from the top of my head, is what I think still remains of the original and still continues to be in ETCL because we have not yet found them a permanent placement.

1665 Hon. D A Feetham: In relation to the 205 within the public service... and I know that there have been exchanges across the... I have asked you in the past, and the hon. Gentleman has not wanted to commit himself – and probably he is not going to commit himself again, but I will ask it.

1670 One of the concerns that certainly we have on this side of the House is that if you have 200 – it is quite a large number of people – within the public service, some of whom it may be particularly difficult to find a job within the private sector for, for whatever reasons relating to their background... Now I do not call them unemployable, but there are people who are more advantaged within the labour market than others – criminal records, or for whatever reason. One of the things that certainly concerns me is that we do not end up in a situation where a person who is particularly disadvantaged – because, for example, of his criminal record – by default actually remains in the public sector ad infinitum, on a permanent basis, whereas somebody who has been well behaved, who has not got a criminal record, because of his potential attractiveness to private employers, is found a job in the private sector.

1675 Can he give us an indication of what is going to happen with these individuals if, in the long run – say, for example, by the end of the Government’s term in office – they have not been found permanent employment? Is it the hon. Gentleman’s intention to leave them within the public sector? What is going to be the position with these individuals?

1680 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, Mr Speaker, I have just given him a breakdown of where they are. The breakdown was for 207, because in January two of the 207 found employment. They happen to be the two that show an increase from the eight in the public sector to the 10 in the public sector. I told him in the last House that there were eight people who had found jobs in the public sector, and I told him they were all in the Care Agency and that there were 207 placed in the public sector without a guarantee of employment. Right. Well, now the figure is 205, because two of the trainee carers have now been given jobs because they have completed their care training. Right.

1685 It includes 41 in the Construction Training Centre, it includes 23 in Gibdock, and it includes the people I have said we kept on simply because they were there and we did not want to finish them. But I need to remind him that in fact what was happening in many instances previously was that people were being taken into community care projects because they came out of having problems and having been to court and all that kind of thing – he will remember that – and that is part of the public sector.

1690 So, people were saying, ‘Well, look, what do I have to do to get a job in community projects? Go first... So, I punch somebody and I get a job in community projects; if I don’t, then I have to work in the private sector and get paid less – £80 less a week – as a labourer?’

1695 So, what worries him was happening with the people he was being lobbied by just before the Election, and what I am telling him is, in fact, that I am confident that we will be able to place everybody in jobs in the private sector, or that if they get into the public sector it will be because they are applying in competition with everybody else, like 600... A lot of these people are part of the 600 who have applied for public sector jobs. They are entitled to apply. They may not get it, but maybe one or two may, and that figure will bring the total down.

I cannot predict what the position is going to be in three-and-a-half years' time, and I would not commit myself to what I would do with a position that I do not know what it is going to be. What I can tell him is the degree of confidence that I have, and the degree of confidence is that we will be able to place them all.

1705

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, this particular issue is a very, very difficult issue, and certainly we were very, very careful, when we were in Government, about employing people in the public sector, because everybody on... in circumstances just outlined by the hon. Gentleman, because the reality is that everybody wants to be employed, or a lot of people want to be employed in the public sector, (Interjection) and...

1710

Sorry, I beg your pardon? Do you want me to give way, Mr Linares? I will.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): [Inaudible]

1715

Hon. D A Feetham: No, I did not.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I am quite happy to clarify, Mr Speaker, that we all, on this side of the House, actually believe there was quite an expansion of the public sector when they were in Government, (Hon. S E Linares: Absolutely.) so we are quite surprised to hear those remarks.

Hon. S E Linares: Including in the Culture and Heritage Agency, of which many were employed from outside.

Hon. D A Feetham: We will see during the Budget, and we will see in the forthcoming years, how much public expenditure actually goes up by, because it has certainly gone up by a record amount in the last year.

But look, let me continue with the serious effectively questions and answers that I am having with the Hon. the Minister Bossano, and leave subsidiary issues to one side.

This is a difficult issue – it is a very difficult issue – because of course you have people who may be very disadvantaged in the labour market. All these people, certainly the ones that I have dealt with, want to be employed within the public sector.

1730

There are many, and there have been many who have come to my office, who have complained to me that what was originally promised at Election time – and we have had a debate, and I am not going to reignite the debate – is not what is being delivered now. What was promised then was a job in the public sector.

1735

Of course, people feel – and it has been expressed to me, and I am concerned – that the more attractive you are to employers, the more likely you are to go and find a job in the private sector: the least attractive, the more likely you are to remain in the public sector.

But can I ask the Hon. Minister this question: the Government has a commitment not to, effectively, sack anybody from the Future Job Strategy Scheme and the public sector until that person has either... has found a job, other than, for example, sacking them on grounds of misconduct or... So everybody who is there will remain there until they have found a job in the private sector. Is that the position? Or the public sector, if they are training?

Hon. J J Bossano: It is not actually that they have found a job. It is that I get paid to find them jobs, Mr Speaker. I do not expect the people to find jobs for themselves. We have got an Employment Service, we employ 50 or 60 people, and they are there to help people into work. The reason why we exist in the Employment Department is to find work for people. We do not say, 'It is up to you to find your own job.' We expect employers to open vacancies with us, and we expect to reduce the unemployment because we actively do something about it.

1745

What I am telling the hon. Member is that we have got people whom we took on because they were there when he was in Government, and those people are the most difficult ones to place, but I am confident that we will place them.

1750

Now, he wants me to give him a commitment – what will I do if I fail? Well, I am not in the business of, first of all, assuming I am going to fail, and then giving him the commitments that he thinks I should give if I fail.

1755

Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Speaker, that is not the point I am making. I am asking the hon. Gentleman to effectively tell this House whether these individuals are going to remain within the public sector until they are able to be placed in the private sector. That is the question. It is a very simple question, that under no circumstances are these individuals going to be sacked by ETCL, other than for reasons of gross misconduct. That is the question, it is a very simple question, and I think it ought to be capable of a very simple answer by the hon. Gentleman.

1760

1765 Hon. J J Bossano: Of course it is capable of a very simple answer by this hon. Gentleman.

The hon. Member, when he was complaining about my grouping all these answers together, said that many of these were not, in fact, statistical questions seeking information, that they had a political element in it. I will tell him what the political element is: you are damned if you say yes, and you are damned if you say no.

1770 If I say yes, they are going to be kept, he will then say, 'Ah, well, now none of them are going to be interested in working in the private sector because you have just given them a job for life,'; and if I say no, then he will say to me, 'Ah, you have broken your manifesto commitment and you have done a u-turn' So, the answer is I am not going to tell him.

1775 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, doesn't the hon. Gentleman accept that politics is about making and defending decisions? Will he make a decision, and will he defend it?

1780 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I understand one thing: that in the 40 years that I have been in this Parliament I have never seen any Minister take their decisions on demand from the Opposition. They take their decisions when they see fit, and they inform the Opposition of the results.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

1785 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, moving in relation to the Construction Training Centre and Gibdock, can he explain why the policy, if it is a policy... why there have not been any recruitments into the Construction and Training Centre and Gibdock since they took over office on 9th December 2011?

1790 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, Mrs Speaker, because we intend to replace what training has been provided there before by something that is more effective, both in terms of the numbers that come out with qualifications and the suitability of those qualifications for the industry.

1795 As a consequence of the fact that we have been monitoring and getting detailed breakdowns of what has been happening to those who have gone in – where we have, for example, two people completing NVQ level 2 and 40 going in, which is certainly not consistent – it is quite obvious that the Construction Training Centre did not come up with the success rate that he claimed for the VTS, because the ratio in the Construction Training Centre, and to a lesser extent in Gibdock, has been that the drop-out rate has been very, very high. You get a lot of people coming in and a lot of them drop out before they get to level 1, and then you have people who do not continue beyond level 1.

1800 In a situation where the cost of operating the centre is in excess of £600,000 and the cost of the trainees is another £400,000 on top, and what you get is two painters coming out of an institution that costs £1 million a year, we feel something different has to be done. I am happy to say that Dr Coram is the one who is putting the package together as to what is going to be put in place and that there is a working party with representatives from the colleges, the comprehensives and input from the industry which will be putting proposals to me, and I expect that, at the latest in September, we shall be in a position to take in more than would have been taken in two years under the old system.

1810 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, certainly this is worrying from the Opposition's point of view. It is worrying on a number of levels. It is worrying because, although certainly I would like to give the hon. Member the benefit of the doubt, he has some previous form in relation to closing construction centres, and he did close the two construction centres that were operational prior to ceasing being the Chief Minister of Gibraltar in 1996.

Also, Mr Speaker, it is of concern knowing how... I hesitate to use 'obsessive', but how concerned perhaps the hon. Gentleman always is about pounds, shillings and pence, and he has emphasised the cost of the Construction and Training Centre.

1815 It is also of concern because if one looks at all the training that used to take place – and I use the term 'training' loosely, because... In fact, I use the term 'training' loosely, even in relation to the Future Job Strategy, because with the VTS, as indeed with the Future Job Strategy, one is not talking about structured training; one is talking about placing somebody on a job so that they learn on the job. It is on-the-job learning, or training, but not structured training as such. The structured training was from the Construction Training Centre and from Gibdock.

1820 Can he alleviate concerns on this side of the House that, one, this is not money motivated; two, that he does not intend to do what he has done in the past, which is just close the Construction Training Centre and not replace it by a proper training centre where people can, at the end of the day, come out with a structured qualification that can serve them for a career in the future; and that the new scheme, or the new 1825 set-up that he is going to be replacing this one with, will enable or will involve people coming out of it, at the end of the day, with qualifications – NVQ qualifications, or any other qualifications that involve proper structured training – that will allow people to use their skills to obtain jobs in the construction industry and other industries that are relevant to the training?

1830 Hon. J J Bossano: Taking the last part of the question first, I can tell him that what will start this year will produce more people with UK construction qualifications in the distribution of the skills that the industry requires than has been produced in the last four years by the Training Centre; greater numbers than in the last four years with qualifications – predominantly City & Guilds – in the construction trades, and that the thing is being put together by the professionals involved in education and training.

1835 I can tell him that I will not be doing what he claims I did, because I did not do it the last time either. What I did – as I keep on reminding him, and he can go back and check for himself – was to stop a system where people used to get paid pocket money and come out as boy labourers, which was not much different from the VTS. What eventually replaced it was the Construction Training Centre, which in the first year, in 1995-96, produced 20 NVQ level 2s, as opposed to the two that were produced last year.

1840 So, in fact, what is obvious is that the success of what was created by the GSLP in 1995-96 was 10 times more than what it is producing today, and the fact that the GSD did nothing in the intervening 15 years to upgrade and make the place better and more customer orientated has been what requires us now to put right the state of affairs due to their negligence over the last 15 years. I hope that keeps him happy.

1845 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, thank you very much; it does not, but that –

Mr Speaker: May I say to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition that I allowed him a very lengthy preamble to the previous supplementary question. I have been very, very liberal, and therefore I would ask him and enjoy upon him that he should make his questions shorter and sharper.

1850 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much, and of course I will endeavour to do so.

Can the Hon. the Minister for Employment tell us, or give us an indication of the cost of the new scheme to the Government that he is proposing introducing? I cannot believe for one moment the hon. Gentleman has not thought about the prospective cost of the new scheme.

1855 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I do not expect it to be less than the present one, because it is going to involve many more people. There are no costings, because I have told him that it is still in the hands of the people who are putting the package together and who will be putting proposals to me. But I do not expect it to be costing less; if anything, it will cost more.

1860 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Employment tell us by when he intends to have this new scheme up and running?

1865 It is a matter of concern that he is effectively doing away with the Construction Training Centre and Gibdock, which are the only two places, really, where one is coming out with structured training of this sort, and I would have thought that it would have been important for the Government to put something in place as quickly as possible.

Can he provide us with an indication of by when this is going to be up and running, or the target date?

1870 Hon. J J Bossano: I have told him already in the original answer, September at the latest – in the original answer to one of the original supplementaries, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Shall we go on to the next question, then?

1875 Unemployed Moroccan workers
Number in receipt of benefits

Clerk: Question 172, the Hon. J J Netto.

1880 Hon. J J Netto: Can the Minister for Employment with responsibility for Social Security state how many of the 42 Moroccan workers registered unemployed, as answered in Question 1055/2012, were in receipt of the Social Security pension, an occupational pension, or Social Assistance?

1885 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment, Question 172.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question with Questions 173 and 174.

1890

Disability Allowance Delay in processing applications

1895 Clerk: Question 173, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Social Security give an explanation as to the delay in processing the Disability Allowance applications given in answer to Written Question 6/2013?

1900

Old Age Pension and Minimum Income Guarantee Increases

1905 Clerk: Question 174, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Can the Minister with responsibility for Social Security say whether he intends to increase the Old Age Pension on 1st April, 1st July, or any other date in this year, and whether the Minimum Income Guarantee will be increased on the same date as the Old Age Pension?

1910

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, of the 42 Moroccans, one was in receipt of Old Age Pension and two were in receipt of Social Assistance.

1915

The Department does not keep records of people's occupational pensions.

In the past four years, the time taken to decide on a claim for Disability Allowance has ranged from one day to 357 days. There is therefore not a much greater delay currently, but one factor affecting the decisions to grant Disability Allowance is the need to establish criteria for the exercise of this discretion, given that previous decisions did not apparently follow a given set of criteria.

1920

The policy, as has been explained previously, as regards the Minimum Income Guarantee and the Old Age Pension, is that they will be increased at around the same date and that the differential between them will be maintained, and it is intended that this will be with effect from 1st August 2013.

1925

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in relation to the first question, the answer provided in Question 172, the Hon. Minister said that there was, out of the 42, one Moroccan national with a Social Security pension and two with Social Assistance, and that the Department does not hold any information with regard to occupational pensions.

1930

I wonder whether the Department of Social Security might not have the information as far as occupational pensions are concerned. I would have thought that perhaps the Minister would have taken an interest in knowing whether the balance, which is 39, are with no income whatsoever or some income perhaps of some sort.

1935

The point I am trying to make here, Mr Speaker, is that we are talking about a group of Moroccan workers who have lived, worked and resided in Gibraltar probably for 40 years, or thereabouts, and I would have thought that some of the officers that he has, either in the Employment Service Department or the Social Security Department, would have been providing interviews to these Moroccans to ascertain whether they are destitute or they are not destitute.

1940

Can the Minister perhaps tell us whether any exercise has been done, or is intended to be done, to ascertain whether there are 39 Moroccans who are registered as unemployed, trying to find a job on the basis that they have no money whatsoever, or some small amount of money, as an income?

1945

Hon. J J Bossano: The answer is no, there is no exercise being done, or intended to be done, or has ever been done.

Presumably, it is not that when the hon. Member ceased to be a Minister everybody became destitute. Either they were destitute the day after the Election and the day before, or they are not now.

I have never known the Department to ask people, when they become unemployed and they turn up at the counter looking for work, 'Are you destitute, or are you not destitute?'; and if we did, I do not see why it should be based on nationality.

1950 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, whether based on nationality or not, I would have thought that, as a so-called socialist, he would have had his interest at heart in knowing whether there were people who are destitute with no income at all, particularly so, given that he is the Minister for Social Security and Employment.

1955 Hon. J J Bossano: To my knowledge, so-called socialists are not people who are interested solely in destitute people provided they are Moroccans.

The hon. Member seems to think that somehow we should be asking people something we have got no reason or right to ask. If somebody is destitute, they do something about it themselves.

1960 As far as I am concerned, it is quite possible that there are people in Gibraltar who are not getting Social Assistance and are not seeking Social Assistance, but I have already told him that there are two of them who are in receipt of Social Assistance. To my knowledge, in the 15 years that they were in government, in the eight years we were there before, and in all the years that the AACR was before us, nobody went out canvassing people to ask for Social Assistance if they did not do it voluntarily.

Mr Speaker: Any other questions?

1965 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker.

With the information that the hon. Member has already provided me in the previous question, we find, for instance, that there are four Moroccans aged 60 registered unemployed, there is one aged 61, there are 12 aged 62, there are 10 aged 63, there are eight aged 64, one aged 66, two aged 67, one aged 68, one aged 69, and two aged 72.

1970 Given the advanced age of these particular individuals, one would have thought that the only reason why they are still going there to get registered and signing on as unemployed is because... The most obvious reason is that they have no income whatsoever, or very little income at all, which is probably not the case perhaps with Gibraltarians, because Gibraltarians, given this particular age, will be entitled to a number of benefits that the Moroccans are not entitled to.

1975 Does the Hon. Minister not feel, given his credential as a socialist, that there is a need to ascertain whether there are people in Gibraltar who worked in Gibraltar, who reside in Gibraltar, contributed in Gibraltar, paid their taxes, paid their social insurance, who are destitute – or not? Does he have an interest about it?

1980 Mr Speaker: [Inaudible] ... old age pensioners.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I know, clearly, that the hon. Member thinks that I am more of a socialist than he is. That is quite obvious from his questions.

1985 Hon. J J Netto: No, I do not think that at all.

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I think he does, because he says why is it that I, as a socialist, do not do something that he, as a socialist, did not do in the four years he was there.

1990 The Moroccan who is 72 now was 71 a year ago and was destitute already and he was the Minister – so why did he not do it when he had the chance to do it, if it is such a socialist thing to do? And if they are people who have been here all their working lives, how come they do not have an old age pension?

1995 I am surprised there is only one with an old age pension. I would have thought that if we have 42 people who have been 40 years here, as he claims, they would all in 40 years be entitled to an old age pension. But I can tell him that these are not people who have appeared after 2011; they are people who were there before 2011 and therefore all the things that he is telling me I should be doing as a socialist are things that he could have done and chose not to do. I do not criticise him for it, because to my knowledge nobody ever has done it before, here or anywhere else. Where there are other countries with socialist Ministers of Employment to my knowledge, they do not go out canvassing the unemployed to see if they are destitute and want money.

2000 Hon. J J Netto: Well, Mr Speaker, I am not going to dwell too much on the question of who is the socialist but I can tell you, as a supplementary question –

2005 Mr Speaker: I do not think we need to debate the degree of socialism of any hon. Members.

Hon. J J Netto: No, Mr Speaker, but if I may, the one thing that I did as a socialist when I first got elected as Employment Minister in 1996 was to lift the instruction that he had left in the ETB then not to regularise the position between 200 and 300 Moroccans who had jobs but he had given instructions that 2010 they should not be established and registered as employed. That was one of the things I did as a socialist and one of the other things I did also as a socialist –

A Member: That is not a question.

2015 Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member have a question?

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, I do and I apologise. (Laughter)

2020 Moving on, Mr Speaker, to Question 173, in relation to the Disability Allowance application, he keeps saying in his answer that he feels that there is a need for the criteria to be looked upon. Could he perhaps expand on what he means that the criteria have not worked well which gives rise to the applications being considered for such a long time and by when he will be in a position to determine new criteria, if new criteria are indeed required?

2025 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it is not that new criteria are required; it is that there are no criteria. That is to say that, as far as I can make out, whether the answer is yes or no to a claim for Disability Allowance is where there is discretion, which is if it is not at birth. If it is birth, it is mandatory and if it is not at birth, it is discretionary.

2030 I have not been able to find out from the Department what were the sort of boxes that needed to be ticked for the answer to be yes or for the answer to be no. The only thing that we have been able to find in the system that was introduced in 2007 by the Hon. Mrs Del Agua, when she was in office, is the one that says that the payment of the allowance shall be suspended if the disabled person is employed in a full-time employment.

2035 Now, that is the only criterion that really says if you are in full-time employment, the answer has to be no, because if you are taking it away from the person who is getting it, then logically you cannot be giving it to the people who are not getting it because they are in full-time employment.

2040 Apart from that, the guidelines that are available, for example, say that somebody who is attending St Martin's and St Bernard's Occupational Therapy or an approved disabled children centre outside Gibraltar on a full-time basis qualifies for the allowance, so that is one criterion. Right. If they are in those institutions, they qualify for the allowance. If they are not working they qualify for the allowance.

2045 But there is not a... For example, it talks about a severely disabled person, but it does not say what constitutes 'severely' disabled and what constitutes less. These are not things I think that we can judge, so we need to have a situation where there is a set of guidelines which then, if somebody says, 'Well, why has the answer been no in my case and yes in some other case?', we can give some kind of explanation.

2050 The only guideline that I have got, which says, 'The following are the disability criteria as defined in the discretionary social assistance arrangement' was introduced in 2007. Before that apparently there was nothing at all and here, the only thing that is clear in these criteria is if you are working, you do not get it.

2055 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I mean from recollection the criteria that the Department used to have was that when an application for Disability Allowance was placed at the Department, basically what the Director of the Social Security Department used to do is to refer that application to a board of medical people, basically to determine the extent of the severity of that disability. Based on the report by the medical professionals, the Director would either confirm yes or no in terms of providing the Disability Allowance. I think it was as simple as that.

2060 I can also accept that with the passage of time, nowadays there are many other sorts of illnesses, that perhaps, when the original criteria done, may have changed and needs to be considered. But other than the possibility that when the Director of the Social Security Department may refer the application to this particular panel of doctors, right, and the doctors, for their own specific circumstances in St Bernard's Hospital, may not be able to attend the meeting, therefore there is a delay on this, I just cannot see any logical reason why there should be a delay.

2065 I can accept that you may have to have – and quite rightly – an updated criteria on much more wider things that today are accepted as a disability. I accept that, but given the amount of applicants now and the time that they have been waiting for a result, I would have thought that for most of them, if not all of them but probably most of them, it would have been sufficient just to refer the matter to the doctors.

2070 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, this is going back to the original question, Mr Speaker, and the answer to the original question is the answer that I have already given.

I accept that the decision may have been delayed more than necessary because we are trying to see if the pattern of decisions in the past is an indication of what it should be, given that we would like to have something that is more, if you like ticking boxes rather than appearing to be personalised shall we say, which is something that some people complain of, but I have told him that in fact it ranges from one to 367 days. In looking down the list over the last four years, which I have done, before I came to the House with this answer, as a general rule the ones that are decided very quickly is where the answer is no. So in most cases, the ones that took a very short time were because it was obvious that they did not fit in the pattern of previous cases, and the answer was simply no.

2075 The ones that possibly are more marginal are the ones that take longer and the ones that are very clear-cut may take less. But I cannot... All I can tell him is that I accept the point that we need to move on this and take a decision fairly quickly, but I cannot take it any further than I have already.

Mr Speaker: Any other question?

2080 Hon. J J Netto: Just one more, Mr Speaker, and then I will not be pressing any more than that. Perhaps he may not even have the information in front of him, but does he know when was the last time that the medical board met to consider the applications?

2085 Hon. J J Bossano: No, I do not have that information. I will find out. I have no knowledge of that.

Long-term unemployed
Number having served prison sentences

2090 Clerk: Question 175, the Hon. J J Netto.

2095 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment say how many long-term unemployed persons – that is, being registered for more than one year – there are who have previously served a prison sentence and have had a history of addiction to drugs or alcohol, the information of which is collated by the Employment Officer, stating the period registered as unemployed and the assistance given by the Employment Service to help such persons obtain employment?

2100 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): None, Mr Speaker.

2105 style="text-align: center;">WOPS
Fulfilment of manifesto commitment

Clerk: Question 176, the Hon. J J Netto.

2110 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government state if they have now fulfilled their manifesto commitment in relation to WOPS?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

2115 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Can the Minister provide the details, then.

2120 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the details are, Mr Speaker, that the manifesto commitment was that we would reintroduce a scheme for the current civil servants if there was an interest in that and there is no interest and therefore there is no need to do it. Nobody is interested in the current Civil Service and the people who had opted out previously would be given an opportunity to come back in again.

2125 So far I think we have had five or six of the 5,000 pensioners writing in saying they are interested in the possibility of returning the money, but they have not decided that they are going to return the money until they get told how much it is.

2130 The Treasury, of course, is engaged in calculating the manual process, because they have to go through each individual file, find out the year when the person stopped, find out how many years between stopping and retiring there have been, what would have been the amount that they had to pay if they had continued, plus the amount that they would have to give back that they have received and make an adjustment of 3% per annum for inflation. We think it is very likely, in fact, that the six pensioners concerned, all of whom are in fairly advanced years, will realise that for the life expectancy involved... The whole purpose of paying for something to make a provision for your widow, frankly, is only a sound

2135 investment if you die young and then the widow gets the money for a long time; but if you are in your late 80s or 90s and you suddenly have to give back thousands of pounds in the expectation that somehow you will pass away before your wife does, and she will get a pension that she otherwise would not have got, the figures do not look good. But people will still be able to do it if they want to.

2140 The difficult technicality is not in the payment, but in the calculation of how much they have to pay in, which is what is taking place now. But it seems unlikely that there is going to be anybody... Out of the six, there may be one or two towards the younger end of the age spectrum that may be marginally better off, but it is not...

I think if they had done it at an earlier stage in their lives, it would have made more sense to do it.

2145 Hon. J J Netto: First of all, I am grateful for that information, particularly with the former employees which are now retired, but I suspect, Mr Speaker, that there is some kind of miscommunication taking place, because the only reason why I raised this particular question in the first place is because some of the pensioners, particularly some of the pensioners in the Gibraltar Pensioners Association, have said that they have found themselves not knowing where to go, because when I first originally asked this question 12 months ago, at that time I think the hon. Member, the Minister said they would have to address their concerns to the Human Resources Department, which they did – this is what they are telling me – and they actually wrote to them. After a couple of months, insisting that they wanted to know what was the scheme going to be like, in terms of considering their options, the Human Resources Department then referred the matter to the Financial Secretary, then the pensioners tried to pursue it through the Financial Secretary and then ultimately – this is what I am told – the Financial Secretary has said no, this has got to go back to the Minister himself.

2155 So can I just suggest to the Hon. the Minister that to be able to ensure proper communication between what is happening and by whom to the former employees, that at the very least he may, if he has not done it yet, provide a meeting to the Gibraltar Pensioners Association to inform them exactly what is happening, and then for them to consider whether it is something they want to take forward or not.

2160 Hon. J J Bossano: The people that have actually shown an interest in this have actually written to me about it and I have made sure that the Treasury Department is working on this.

2165 I think part of the problem is, of course, that they think it is taking a long time and it is simply not an easy thing to do. It has got to be done one by one manually and you have got to do the calculation for each person. It is a good thing there are only six, because if there were 5,000 asking for this, it would be an impossible task.

But in any event, they have already got an appointment to see the Chief Minister on this one and I have no doubt that they will go into the whole thing at great length.

2170

Government Debentures Redemption of Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures

2175 Clerk: Question 185, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister explain the policy behind the recent offer to holders of Government Debentures to replace those holdings with corresponding Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures?

2180 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Mr Speaker: Question 185, on the Gibraltar Savings Bank.

2185 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with 186.

2190

Government Debentures
Replacement with Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures

Clerk: Question 186.

2195 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please explain why the letters dated 1st February this year to holders of Government Debentures maturing on 31st December 2015 contain notice of the Government's intention to redeem those Debentures in full if none of the options contained therein are chosen by the holder, but the letters to Government Debenture holders dated 20th December 2012 in respect of Debentures maturing on 31st December 2013 do not contain such a notice?

2200 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment.

Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): Yes, Mr Speaker.
The policy of the Government is to redeem existing Government Debentures and not offer any new issues. These are repaid in cash from Consolidated Fund reserves. As has been the practice in the past, holders are given the opportunity of reinvesting part or the whole of the proceeds in Debentures usually offering equivalent or better terms.

2205 The replacement Debentures will now be Savings Bank issues.
The Debentures that mature on 31st December 2013 would have been repaid in full on that date if no one had opted for early repayment in response to the letter dated 20th December 2012. There was no need to provide six months' notice because the early indication from the holders was that the options provided for reinvestment were likely to be taken up by the vast majority and, in any event, giving notice would only have brought forward the redemption by a few months.

2210 In the case of the 31st December 2015 redemption, since the early repayment involved a longer period, it was necessary to indicate to the holder that the intention to redeem the Debentures and repay the amount in cash was the policy that the Government is pursuing, so they would know where they stood.

2215 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I knew that the hon. Gentleman would sooner or later conduct a palace coup, but it has taken me by surprise that he has conducted that coup as early as just over a year into this term.

2220 But Mr Speaker, can I ask the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise what the total value of the Debentures to be potentially transferred into the Gibraltar Savings Bank by these two transactions was at the end of last year.

2225 I ask that question. I should have prefixed it with this: the Principal Auditor's Report of 31st March 2011 said that the total value was £29.1 million. I suspect it is already very close to that, but obviously there may have been people who have redeemed in the intervening two years, so I do not know the exact figure. Does he have that figure to hand?

2230 Hon. J J Bossano: No, let me just first answer the first part of his question. He is mistaken in thinking that I am planning a coup, but I accept that if I ever decide to have one, I will go to him for advice because he is the master! (Applause) Sometimes his coups do not work and sometimes they do. I can think of two examples, one where they did not work and one where they have! (Laughter)

2235 I think the figure is probably higher than that, but I cannot tell him off hand whether it is or not. But he is wrong in... I mean he is wrong... Strictly speaking, he is saying, look, we are sort of transferring the thing because at the end of the day, if people have no –

Hon. D A Feetham: Potentially, I said, it should be transferred.

2240 Hon. J J Bossano: Yes, but the point is that, of course, the obligation is to pay cash and therefore people can either re-invest or not re-invest, but there is no... we are not... As far as the Government is concerned, the background to this is that in 2005, when the then Government took the decision to stop the Debentures being issued by the Savings Bank and instead decided to move them to being issued by the Government – for many years they had been from the Savings Bank – I think one of the elements in it which made sense was that in the Savings Bank, for every £100 that you issued in Debenture you had to increase the reserves of the Savings Bank by £10. That is no longer the case but that meant of course that 2245 if there was £200 million of Debentures from the Government, you had £200 million in the reserves. If that had been in the Savings Bank in 2005, they would have required £220 million. Therefore the answer is that it is not because we need to attract this money into the Savings Bank that we are offering the alternative, but because we accept that the rationale, as it was explained in Parliament, was to provide a savings vehicle that gave a more attractive rate of interest than was available in the market. We feel,
2250 therefore, that we must continue to do that particularly for those who have enjoyed it until now. It may not always continue to be so.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, my old friend, Mr Bossino was actually agreeing with you on your successful coup part of it, Mr Speaker! (Laughter)

2255 The Hon. Minister has not answered the question, with respect. I prefixed, I used the words 'potentially to transfer'; perhaps I should have asked the question in these terms: what was the value of the Government Debentures in respect of these offers as at 31st December of last year? Does he have the figure of the value of these debentures as at that stage?

2260 Hon. J J Bossano: No, but I think it was much higher than the figures he has mentioned – probably twice as much. I think it would probably be closer to £60 million than to £30 million, the two of them combined. I think, pretty sure.

2265 Hon. D A Feetham: And, Mr Speaker, does he have a figure in terms of the value of those people that have chosen to transfer into the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Hon. J J Bossano: Probably around 50 out of the 60, and that does not mean that the remaining people will not, because we have told them that we are going to give them six months' notice anyway.

2270 Hon. D A Feetham: Does he accept that the effect of the transfer into the Gibraltar Savings Bank is a reduction in public debt by effectively £60 million?

2275 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, first of all, it is not a transfer; it is a repayment of public debt – something which I would remind him he felt quite strongly about in 2003. Maybe he does not remember the debate we had on the radio, but I do. On that occasion, he was in fact very critical of the former Leader of the Opposition, who wanted to repay debt by issuing debt and argued that it was not the right thing to do.

So in fact what we are doing is something he believed in very strongly in 2003, when he had a much more conservative view of public debt.

2280 The effect of it is that the reserves will go down by £50 million and the debt will go down by £50 million, and there will be zero effect.

2285 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, in fact the debt goes down by £60 million, because only £50 million has been transferred to the Gibraltar Savings Bank, but £60 million has actually been redeemed – was the answer he gave me.

Hon. J J Bossano: £60 million, yes.

2290 Hon. D A Feetham: So it is £60 million, sorry yes. He has obviously misunderstood the point that I was making in the radio debate, because the point I was making there was that the public debt, the gross debt was £78 million; that the borrowing limit at the time in terms of the statutory borrowing limit was £100 million; and that if you took into account off-balance sheet transactions, such as PFI arrangements in relation to the hospital, it probably took you over the £100 million. Indeed, in light of the debate that is taking place in the United Kingdom and most experts now agree that PFI arrangements should be on-balance, not off-balance sheet transactions, I was right in relation to that debate and I was not wrong. That is the point that I was making.

2295 But Mr Speaker, does he accept that although that amount no longer appears as public debt in the Government accounts, the Government continues, effectively, to be responsible for the £50 million that has been transferred in to the Gibraltar Savings Bank, by the fact that the Government effectively guarantees all monies within the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

2300 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, to the same degree that it was responsible for the £200 million in the Savings Bank when he was in office, yes.

2305 Hon. D A Feetham: So does he not accept that insofar as these transactions involve a reduction of public debt in the sum of £60 million, £50 million of which has been transferred to the Gibraltar Savings Bank, that it is a reduction by virtue of transferring from the left pocket of the Government into the right pocket and as far as an exercise in the reduction in public debt is concerned, it is a pretty meaningless exercise?

2310 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I do not think it is a meaningless exercise, unless the Opposition now has moved to say that any money deposited in the Savings Bank is public debt. If that is what he is saying... He is now considering that all the money in the Savings Bank is public debt. The fact that the money is taken out of the Government Debenture or is taken out of a deposit account in Barclays Bank and put in the Savings Bank does not alter the definition of public debt. It is not the source of the money; it is the fact that it is a charge on the Consolidated Fund and what we are doing is that the reserves will be smaller and the debt will be smaller, obviously, and therefore the net position remains the same. That is what we are doing.

2320 The hon. Member seems to be saying that the net position does not remain the same, that we owe £50 million more. I do not agree with him.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well I am afraid that, it is a clever answer but that is not the point that I am making nor – 2325 Hon. J J Bossano: What is the point?

Hon. D A Feetham: He knows that it is not the question that I am asking.

2330 Does he not accept that the transfer into the Gibraltar Savings Bank transfers... effectively, it involves taking out of the figures of public debt, in terms of the Government accounts, that £60 million, but effectively transferring £50 million into the Gibraltar Savings Bank, whilst it does not appear as public debt because it appears only in the accounts of the Gibraltar Savings Bank, the Government still guarantees that money and insofar as it involves an exercise of reduction in public debt, it is a pretty meaningless exercise? That is the question.

2335 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it is a question which makes no sense at all. That is the point I am trying to get him to understand, Mr Speaker, because if he is saying, if the money used to be borrowed by the Government from me and I get paid back that money and I put that money in the Savings Bank, it is a meaningless exercise and the public debt is the same.

2340 Well, if the public debt is the same, then it means that if I take my money out of an account with a bank down the road and I put it in the Government Savings Bank, the public debt has gone up. No, so he is now saying – which presumably would require us to redefine in the law the public debt – that public debt consists of the money that is charged onto the Consolidated Fund and the money that people take out of the Consolidated Fund because they get their Debentures repaid and then choose to reinvest that money in the Savings Bank of Gibraltar, as opposed to the Barclays Bank or any other bank in Gibraltar. Well, the answer is no, I do not agree with him. I do not think it is a meaningless exercise. In fact, it was never thought to be a meaningless exercise before.

2345 I have already reminded the Member that part of the rationale of moving the money from Savings Bank Debentures, which it was until 2005... Up to 2005, it was the Savings Bank that was doing it. After 2005, the Government issued a press release in 2005 announcing that they were discontinuing Savings Bank Debentures and instead issuing Government Debentures. Now that was not because they wanted to increase the public debt and that was their philosophy – at least that is not what they were saying then. What they were saying then was that, look, this is money that we are not borrowing because we need it, because the money will be put into the reserves and cannot be touched; it is money that simply because the Savings Bank says that for every pound that somebody puts in the bank, the bank has to have £1.10, but whereas if it goes into the Consolidated Fund reserve, you do not have to have, that you have £1 for £1, it means that the Government does not have to tie up capital in the reserves of the Savings Bank.

2355 That was true until several years later, the Government came to the House and decided to do away with the reserves of the Savings Bank, so the rationale of the advantage of doing it from the Consolidated Fund was in fact no longer applicable. Because it is no longer applicable, there is no longer that reason there and therefore in our view, we should only borrow money as a Government because we intend to spend it, not borrow it in order to put it into a cash reserve that cannot be touched.

2365 Mr Speaker: Look, we are now debating the level of public debt. (Interjections) The question about the notice that was given to debenture holders, letters written to them and a question on the Government, what is the Government's policy to replace... now is becoming a debate on public debt. I would invite hon. Members to debate the question of public debt whenever they want to, but not under the guise of this question.

2370 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, it is an integral part of –

Mr Speaker: It is and it is not.

2375 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, of course it is, because –

Mr Speaker: If it is an integral part, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition could have put a separate question on the question of public debt – which he has chosen not to do.

2380 Hon. D A Feetham: No.

Mr Speaker: – which he has chosen not to do, which he has chosen not to do.

2385 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have asked in my first question to explain the policy behind recent –

Mr Speaker: Right and that has been explained and there was no reference, in explaining that, to public debt.

2390 Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, it is our position that effectively (Mr Speaker: Fine.) it has been in exchanges –

2395 Mr Speaker: Fine and I allow you to debate, I allow you to debate that position. If you want to debate that position today, on the adjournment, I will allow you to do that; but what I am not going to allow is a continuing debate. You have now had 15 minutes on the public debt. I am not going to allow a continuing debate on public debt, because you are going to debate it today, you are going to debate it in May, you are going to debate it when the Estimates of Expenditure come.

2400 At any time that the Hon. Leader wants, I invite him, bring a motion on the question of public debt and allow other Members of the House to contribute to that, because when you have a mano a mano between two of you, you are effectively denying the right of other Members to take part in a debate. That is what you are doing and that is contrary, certainly to the practice in the House of Commons. It is contrary to that practice.

2405 I have allowed... The hon. Member cannot say that I have not allowed him five or six questions on the public debt. I have.

Yes, I am sure...

2410 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I wonder if I could be allowed to rise from my seat on the back bench to ask the hon. Member... and being careful to limit my questions to supplementaries that relate to the original subject. If I could rise from my seat on the back bench to ask him whether he had the pleasure of watching the Leader's debate on the eve of the voting at the last General Election and whether he might have been amused to hear me say, in that debate, that the then Opposition Party need not offer to take four years to reduce the gross public debt, because they could do that in four minutes, precisely by the mechanism that the question reflects.

2415 Therefore, my making the point – does he recall – that the relevant economic debate is not the level of the gross public debt which could easily and quickly be reduced by the very mechanism to which this question relates, and that therefore it was the net public debt that was relevant at the time?

2420 And, Mr Speaker, in that context does the hon. Member not agree that the exercise – I will not repeat it – that he has been debating, which I acknowledge is what has been taking place between the Leader of the Opposition and he, really demonstrates that whatever other purpose reducing the gross public debt in this way may serve, it does not alter the net public debt and therefore does not alter the financial situation of the Government of Gibraltar in any macro-economically meaningful way.

2425 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I cannot agree that it can be done in five minutes because we have tried to do it in six months and they are attacking us for taking six months! (Hon. P R Caruana: Figure of speech it was [inaudible]) I suppose if the GSD is in Government, five minutes is okay and if we are in Government, six months is too little!

2430 I agree with him that this has the effect of making the gross debt smaller and therefore it does not have the effect that was being suggested by the Leader of the Opposition that the gross debt is now being transferred to the Savings Bank –

Hon. D A Feetham: That is not not the point that I was making.

2435 Hon. J J Bossano: But it will have no effect on the net debt because in fact the amount that gets repaid will be reduced on the balance sheet, as it were, from owing £60 million and having £60 million in the kitty, to owing £60 million less and having £60 million less. The results will be less.

But we expect to be able to reduce the net debt as well.

Hon. P R Caruana: That will be a different [inaudible].

2440 Mr Speaker: Any other questions?
We will now have a recess of 20 minutes.

The House recessed at 6.05 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 6.25 p.m.

Student teacher's year in Gibraltar Application process

Clerk: Question 187, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2455 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education advise what the application process for those wishing to do a student teacher's year in Gibraltar is and what allowance is payable to them?

2460 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2465 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, students wishing to participate in the student teacher year in our schools have to apply in writing to the Director of Education. The programme will usually commence in October after an induction session delivered by one of the Education Advisers. Suitable placements are identified according to the applicant's qualifications and experience. The allowance payable is £156.75 per week, which is the same as other trainees in Gibraltar get.

2470 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, is this year in Gibraltar a requirement before embarking on a qualified teaching course, either a degree in education or a PGCE?

Hon. G H Licudi: As far as I know, no it is not, but some students do take the advantage of applying for the student year, either before going to do a B.Ed. or even after a degree and before going on to do the PGCE and I understand we have currently a total of 11 student teachers in our schools.

2475 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: And Mr Speaker, how does the year work? Is it two terms in the preferred either primary or secondary sector and one term in the other sector, or does the Director of Education decide or the student decide?

2480 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, as the original answer says, the placements are identified according to the applicant's qualifications and experience and depending on what the applicant wants to do. I do not have specific information as to how the allocation process in fact works, but I will be happy if the hon. Member wants to write to me to provide the information to her.

Maintenance Court Orders
Number in breach for non-payment

2490 Clerk: Question 188, the Hon. J J Netto.

2495 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice state how many Maintenance Court Orders are in breach for non-payment since this question was asked in Question No. 456/2012, broken down by sex and length of time, and in how many of these cases are the courts intending to enforce the Order in accordance with Part V of the Magistrates' Court Act?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2500 Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Magistrates' Court currently has 78 Maintenance Orders on its records. The court is aware that 17 are currently in breach. Of the 17 in breach that the court is aware of, the breach is due to non-payment by males. Out of these 17, five have active court dates; one has a warrant out for arrest for non-appearance; one has an Enforcement Order from the Magistrates' Court in place; and three have Default Warrants. The remaining seven are currently pending review.

2505 The list of arrears of these seven is as set out in the table that I am happy to pass on to the hon. Member.

Mr Speaker, I should clarify when I say the list of arrears, it is the list showing the length of time in breach in respect of arrears.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 188/2013

Breakdown of Maintenance Order breaches known to the court, by length of breach
(as at 1 February 2013)

2510

Number of cases	Length of time in breach
1	1 month
3	2 months
1	3 months
1	5 months
1	8 months
7	Total

2515

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, perhaps the Hon. Minister can help me: I am trying to analyse the figures he has just provided me, with the previous figures from the last time I asked this question in May 2012. Now, in the new figures being provided just now, there is one person with eight months which is the length of time which is in breach. In the old figures, we have one particular person – this is going back to May 2012 – that the period of time was 148 weeks. Are we talking about the same person or is it a different person; and secondly, whether that is the person where an arrest warrant has been issued?

2520

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I do not have that specific information, but it seems extremely unlikely, if not impossible, that in respect of a length of time of breach in May 2012, which is the date the hon. Member has given of 148 weeks – which is almost three years.

Hon. J J Netto: One hundred and forty-eight weeks?

Hon. G H Licudi: One hundred and forty-eight weeks: that is almost three years. Now the longest time in breach is eight months, so it cannot possibly be related to the same person. I do not know whether the warrant of arrest is in respect of that one.

2530

In any event, it should be said that the warrant of arrest has nothing to do with the length of time in breach. The warrant of arrest is following an order made for the person to appear in court and that person does not appear. It is not correlated to the length of time of breach; it is just that the court makes an order for appearance and the person does not appear.

2535

Juveniles below 18 years
Number appearing before the Courts

Clerk: Question 189, the Hon. J J Netto.

2540

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to Question No. 805/2012, can the Minister for Justice say as at 31st January 2013, how many juveniles below the age of 18 have appeared before the Courts of Gibraltar broken down by month and including the following: (a) their sex; (b) their age; (c) the charge or charges; (d) whether the courts have found any of them guilty; and (e) the sentence passed, if any?

2545

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the information requested is set out in a table which I now hand the hon. Member.

As I said in answer to Question 805/2012, the definition of 'juvenile' changed when the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act came fully into force on 23rd November 2012. Therefore, in the table, the number of juveniles arrested up to 23rd November 2012 relates to persons below the age of 17 and since then, to persons below the age of 18.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION 189/2013

Mr Speaker: Next question.

2560

Domestic violence
Details of cases reported

2565

Clerk: Question 190, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice state how many cases of domestic violence have been reported to the RGP since Question No. 806/2012 to date, showing the number of persons affected by such violence, their age, sex, the number of persons arrested, if any, and the person's charged?

2570

2575

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, a total of 30 reports of domestic violence affecting 39 persons of which 30 were females and 9 were males have been made to the Royal Gibraltar Police from 13th September 2012 to 31st January 2013.

A total of seven persons have been arrested of whom two have been charged.

Not all 30 were subjected to actual physical violence.

2580

The ages of the persons affected are shown in the schedule which I now hand to the hon. Member.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION 190/2013

2585 Hon. J J Netto: There is one particular thing I do not seem to understand from the information just passed on, the schedule just passed on. Right at the very top, it says 'Age not known – 12'. Can the Minister perhaps provide some clarification what that means?

2590 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am simply assuming for present purposes that when the Police have attended, they know in respect of these incidents 12 people were affected, but they have not actually taken down the age of the particular person.

Hon. J J Netto: Ah, because they have not been recorded.

2595 Hon. G H Licudi: It should be said that, although we have quite a number of reports, as I said in the original answer, not all these reports involve physical violence. In fact, most of them do not involve physical violence and that accounts for the fact that out of 30 reports, only seven persons have been arrested, of which two have been charged.

2600 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Sexual assaults
Details of persons charged

2605 Clerk: Question 191, the Hon. J J Netto.

2610 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice state if there have been any persons since Question No. 807/2012 who have been charged with sexually assaulting another person, broken down by month and provide the following information (a) the number of victims, their age and sex; (b) how many cases have now been heard in the courts or are waiting to be heard; (c) of those cases heard, how many have now concluded; and (d) the sentence of those found guilty?

2615 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2620 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, there have been no persons charged with sexually assaulting another person since Question No. 807/2012.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 192, the Hon. J J Netto.

2625 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I have just a second to look back at some of my notes before going to the next question?

Mr Speaker, in relation to the answer provided back in September 2012, the hon. Gentleman said and I quote:

2630 '... from 1st January 2012 to 12th September 2012, a total of two persons have been charged with sexually assaulting juveniles. One person was charged in January 2012 with sexually assaulting one victim; and another was charged in March 2012 with sexually assaulting two victims. Court proceedings are still ongoing.'

2635 Can I ask the hon. Gentleman whether he knows if those court proceedings have now ended in relation to those particular cases he cited back in September 2012?

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker, he can ask and I do know. Those cases are still pending.

2640

Pornographic pictures of juveniles
Persons charged with illegal download

2645 Clerk: Question 192, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice state how many persons, if any, have been charged with the illegal download of pornographic pictures of juveniles since Question No. 808/2012, broken down by month and provide the following information: (a) the number of persons that have been found guilty in the courts and the sentence given; (b) the number of cases pending a hearing at the courts; and (c) the age and sex of those awaiting a hearing and of those found guilty?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2655 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, there have been no persons charged with illegal downloading of pornographic pictures of juveniles since Question No. 808/2012.

2660 Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, but perhaps can the Hon. Minister provide some information in relation to the last question which he was asked which was back in September, when he said then, and I want to quote him it correctly:

2665 'Mr Speaker, from 1st January 2012 to 12th September 2012, one person has been charged with the illegal download of pornographic pictures of juveniles. The person concerned is a 67-year-old male. Court proceedings are still ongoing.'

Can I therefore ask the Minister for Justice whether he is aware that this particular case is now finalised or is it still pending to be heard?

2670 Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker, that case is no longer pending. The issue has been finalised. It was reported in the press very recently. It is public information, but I am happy to provide the relevant information, given that it relates to an earlier question.

2675 The person charged in respect of that particular period was sentenced in the Supreme Court, following a plea of guilty. In respect of count 1, which was possession of indecent photographs of children, he was given 18 months imprisonment gross or 12 months net, given that he had a third of the sentence reduced for his early guilty plea. On count 2, distribution of indecent photographs of children, the sentence was six months' imprisonment gross and four months net – again a third reduction for an early guilty plea. Count 3, distribution of indecent photographs of children: six months' imprisonment gross and four months net – a third reduction again for an early guilty plea. Count 4, distribution of indecent photographs of children: six months' imprisonment gross and four months net for an early guilty plea.

2680 All sentences were stated to run concurrently. Therefore the net sentence imposed was 12 months' imprisonment.

2685 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, as a consequence of the recent sentence, there has been some debate and there has been some concern raised by members of the public in relation to suggested deficiencies in the law in terms of the length of sentence. Does the Hon. the Minister for Justice not agree with me that 2690 actually, post the Crimes Act and, indeed, post the Crimes Pornographic Materials Act which we introduced and was passed by this House unanimously, with the agreement of everybody in this House in 2010, there is no such deficiency and that in fact, in relation to distribution, for the very first time distribution over the last two years has been made a criminal offence and also the maximum sentences are 10 years?

2695 Now, I am not asking the Hon. the Minister for Justice to obviously comment on this particular case; I am asking him to comment on the law as it stands at the moment, in terms of possession of indecent photographs and also distribution of indecent photographs. It is certainly our view that the law as contained in the Crimes Act does provide for very tough penalties, regardless of what sentences judges impose. Does he agree with me that they are adequate and if not obviously, what does he intend to do about it?

2700 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member says, it is entirely inappropriate to comment on the sentencing by a court in any particular case and to say whether that reflected any inefficiency or deficiency in the law or whether it was right or wrong. Those are matters for the judge and it is not right that we should comment on that at this stage.

2705 What I can say is that the Crimes Act was brought fully into force in November 2012. It was debated during the time that the hon. Member was Minister for Justice. It does contain a comprehensive list of offences in respect of sexual offences, including sexual offences concerning juveniles. We are entirely satisfied that the law as it stands is adequate to meet the necessary requirements, in terms of giving the judges the powers that they need to have to deal, as they consider appropriate in the circumstances of any particular case, giving them the tools that they need and to show the revulsion that society has in respect of this type of offence.

2710 Clerk: With that, we come to the end of answers to Oral Questions.

Questions for Written Answer

2715

Answers to W18 to W31/2013 tabled

Clerk: Answers to Written Questions, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2720 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the answers to Written Questions numbered W18 to W31/2013 inclusive.

2725

GOVERNMENT MOTION

Installation of video cameras into Parliament Chamber Motion carried 2730 Clerk: Government Motion, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

2735 This House agrees, as part of the refurbishment of its facilities, to install video cameras to provide a live video and audio feed of its proceedings on its website and facilitate the transmission of that feed to the media.

2740 Mr Speaker, this Parliament has changed massively since we were elected on 8th December 2011 and it is important to understand what those changes have been to date and how they have come about.

2745 First of all, as I have previously referred to the House at the Ceremonial Opening, we established that the address of His Excellency the Governor on a Ceremonial Opening should be dealt with in the style of the address by Her Majesty at the State Opening of Parliament – that is to say, as a speech that reflects the political programme that the people have elected in the General Election that precedes the creation of a new Parliament.

For the reason I set out in my first address to this House as Chief Minister, that was, in our view, a huge step forward and exactly as it should be in an emancipated environment where the Crown in Parliament gives effect to the will of the people.

2750 At that Ceremonial Opening, I indicated that we were also ready to start the process of making other changes to the day-to-day workings of this Parliament.

We have already introduced, very successfully, the practice of publishing legislation as Command Papers. That practice now allows for wider consultation on all new areas of legislation, even before such legislation is published as a Bill.

2755 In the 14 short months since we assumed office, we have consulted with the Opposition, drafted terms of reference for an Independent Commission on Democratic, Political and Electoral Reform, we have established that Commission under your chairmanship, the Commission has held meetings deliberated and reported and last month, I provided copies for the Members of this House and this month I have tabled a report so that the public can have access to your findings.

2760 And perhaps the biggest revolution that this community has seen in its democracy under my leadership of this House has been my convening of monthly meetings of this Parliament. That has truly, in my view, delivered real democracy to our community in the increased questioning and debating that it delivers.

2765 There is now a WiFi network for Members and journalists available in this House. Moreover, we now publish a parliamentary timetable so that Members opposite, the Press and the Public know when particular questions and matters are going to be dealt with. That, Mr Speaker, is a massive change from when we were in Opposition and we were not even told when we might adjourn to. I worry that this is sometimes taken for granted and I am being asked about timetabling, when in fact the timetable is already published by the House.

2770 All of that helps, in our view, Mr Speaker, nonetheless to open up the business and processes of this House to the general public. The culmination of that approach that we have taken to the opening up of our Parliament is the advent, finally, if the House approves it, of video broadcasting of the proceedings of the House.

2775 I said also during the Ceremonial Opening, barely 14 months ago, that I hoped that the cameras that were in the House then to film that ceremonial event would not disappear for the rest of the lifetime of this Parliament. Indeed, Mr Speaker, hon. Members will recall that in our Policy Paper on Parliamentary Reform, we had already stated before the Election that:

2780 'A GSLP/Liberal Government would, immediately after the Election, start the process of holding monthly meetings of Parliament for questions, legislation, Government and Opposition motions. This in itself will very probably require that the post of Speaker should become full-time and that there should be a Deputy Speaker appointed, including such additional support staff as may be necessary. In addition, a parliamentary timetable will be published on the first parliamentary day of each month, so that the public and MPs would know when items would be coming up for debate. There also clearly needs to be a Parliament website, independent of the Government's website, where all debates would be broadcast live on-line and archived. The proceedings of the House should also be televised on GBC TV or the Corporation's own website on the basis of consultation with the Corporation. The website would contain copies of Hansard, thus parliamentary questions and answers.'

2790 I am very happy, Mr Speaker, to say that the issue of a video broadcasting of the proceedings of this House has long been a personal desire of mine, in the process that I have referred to of opening up Parliament to take it closer to our people. In the first Budget session of the House in which I had the honour to speak in 2004, I took the view then and I quote:

'... that there also clearly needs to be a Parliament website independent of' – 2795 Oh no, that is the wrong quote! In fact, Mr Speaker, I said that then also in 2004:

'there also clearly needs to be a Parliament website independent of Government's own website where all debates will be broadcast and archived...'

2800 'As for broadcasting, we already do more than many of the other territories which only offer highlights of their Parliaments but we must not consider that enough. If GBC is to feature a blank screen or a three hour loop of repeats during the day, we can use that time when we are on in this House, to reach out to the people who put us here. In my personal view', I said then, 'we should assess the cost of televising the proceedings of this House and debate seriously whether we want to go down that road'. I recognise then, Mr Speaker, that that was 'not a partisan issue because I was conscious that I was then echoing the Hon Mr Azopardi's words in 2003, in what was his last budget speech', and I went on to say 'that I might not be speaking to the preference of everyone on the then Opposition benches. In fact, I think this may be an issue then, Mr Speaker, where the Leader of the Opposition and the Leader of the House then actually found themselves in agreement. The House must reach out through the media to its masters in the population. Not just at election times. We must make better facilities available here for members of the press, and we must not scrimp and save on that. It is too important.'

2810 That was in 2004, Mr Speaker. I recognised then and I recognise now that the Hon. Keith Azopardi QC had already raised the issue the previous year in his final Budget address to this House in 2003, when he was Deputy Chief Minister. He had then said this:

2815 'One looks at the public gallery and there are not many people that come to this House and it should concern Members that that is the case, it certainly concerns me', he said, 'because this House should be in touch with the people and the people should be in touch with this House. The people elected the Members of this House and we need to encourage participation in the affairs of this House and we need to ensure that we communicate and transmit public information to the people and I am concerned that there is a level of disinterest and that has to do with the working practices of this House and I believe that we should take an opportunity to review the working practices of the House to make sure that we reach the people much more. It is a question of restructuring timings, of sittings, restructuring the way Question Time is set up and need I say also my personal view is yes, perhaps we should debate whether we should televise part of the proceedings of this House.'

2820 That is the end of the quote from Mr Azopardi.
2825 Neither he nor I, Mr Speaker, found favour with the then Leader of the House, but I continued to press the issue.

During the course of the Budget debate in 2006, I pursued the matter further, stating that:

'... we as a Parliament should very seriously consider the broadcasting of the proceedings of this House. Indeed,'

2830 – and I now quote, Mr Speaker:

2835 '...when I say broadcasting I mean video broadcasting. In order to stimulate debate on the issue I am considering moving a motion at the next meeting of this House on the issue. Even if only for a few news report snippets or some appropriate 'specials', or live daytime transmissions when the House sits. My views are firmly in favour of clearing out the cobwebs and allowing in the cameras. I am speaking for myself in this respect. Indeed it is now over 20 years since video killed the radio star, everywhere except in this House. Indeed, I think it is fair to say that we are now probably the only European democracy that bars television cameras from showing our constituents our faces whilst we argue or agree. Voters are limited to judging our temperaments from interviews but are prevented from seeing our interactions in this heart of our democracy. No wonder we are left alone to our debate. Let us face it, these days if it is not worth televising, it cannot be worth watching live. Indeed even for this debate'

– the Budget debate that it was, Mr Speaker –

2845 'even for the plato fuerte of the Chief Minister's Budget address and the Leader of the Opposition's reply, we have been joined almost by no member of the public. I believe that we as a Parliament must reach out collectively to our community and we cannot do that without allowing the cameras into our Chamber.'

That is the end of that quote.

2850 Mr Speaker, I would be delighted to take the House through some more of my Budget interventions, but I think what I have already stated illustrates sufficiently the fact that this has been an issue that I have personally been pursuing for all the years that I have been in this House.

Hon. Members will know that your own Commission's Report has been clear and positive on the issue of televising parliamentary proceedings. In paragraph 2.13, the Commission has set out the following:

2855 'We have considered whether sittings of Parliament, or any part of them, should be televised. There has been broad support from responders for the televising of proceedings. We have concluded that the sittings of Parliament should be televised but not the proceedings of standing or select committees.'

2860 And then your Recommendation 17, which states the following:

'We recommend that consideration should be given to televising the proceedings of Parliament and we further recommend that in the event of a privatisation of the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation, the arrangements for the televising of parliamentary proceedings should be guaranteed.'

2865 In fact, Mr Speaker, let me just point out that there is no question in the plans announced by the Government that there might be any privatisation of GBC. That is not at all what our plans for the creation of this subsidiary of GBC, to be known as Gibraltar Entertainment Network, amounts to.

2870 Perhaps most interestingly, Mr Speaker, is the remark the Commission has set out that there is broad support from responders for the televising of proceedings. I have always considered that would be the case amongst the majority in our community. The fact is that, although there may not be many people who enjoy watching BBC Parliament quite as much as I do, and I am sure all other Members of the House, most of our community are now used to seeing excerpts of interventions by party leaders and other relevant parliamentarians on the daily news. There is therefore no doubt in my mind that the majority of our community are looking forward to being able to see the workings of this place in glorious 2875 Technicolor when relevant and not just on ceremonial occasions.

2880 So, Mr Speaker, against that background, we are shortly to be in a position to deliver video broadcasting of this House as part of the installation of high quality video cameras during the refurbishment of this House which we are about to undertake. The concept that the Government's IT Department has recommended, having considered a number of different options, is one which involves installation of three high definition cameras. Two will be on opposite sides of the Chamber. I do not want to look like a stewardess on an aircraft, but two will be on opposite sides of the Chamber and will be able to show each side. These cameras will be installed as unobtrusively as possible within the furniture that is being installed as a result of the refurbishment.

2885 Another, the third camera, will be installed in an area of the Gallery, in order to show Mr Speaker and a wide shot of the whole Chamber. Zooming in will also be possible depending on manual operation or previously fixed default options.

2890 In the same way that the cameras will be integrated into the furniture, so will the new microphones be. The microphones will operate the cameras to the extent that the shot will change based on which microphones are on. The system will work initially on the basis that the camera will show the side of the House on which a person is speaking. If microphones are on both sides at any one time, the shot will move to the shot from the Public Gallery which covers the whole Chamber and Mr Speaker.

2895 The raw feed should in our view be available on the Parliament's own website – www.parliament.gi. The said raw feed will be made available also to GBC and any other journalistic entity recognised by Parliament. In the Government's view, it should nonetheless be Parliament that retains the copyright on all of the images and sound, as I believe is the case today in respect of our audio feed.

I understand that GBC have already started to consider with the Government's own IT Department how to take the best quality feed from here.

2900 I further understand that it is proposed that GBC will be provided with a fibre link so that they have the best possible quality feed. They may wish to transmit live when they have nothing else on their schedules, i.e. before 19.30 hours, or they may simply wish to put it on their website or both, Mr Speaker. Those, Mr Speaker, I consider are matters for the GBC to determine at this moment, but because it is a public service broadcaster, I have little doubt that the public will likely expect them to carry the feed at times when they are not otherwise transmitting scheduled programmes.

2905 Other journalistic entities may also wish to carry the live feed: the Chronicle, Panorama, New People or Vox. All have websites which they may wish to have this raw feed feature on. The Parliament should not deprive, in my view, any such entity of the raw feed.

2910 So, Mr Speaker, that deals with how we will film the proceedings and how the signal will be shared with the public by Parliament and more particularly with broadcasters and journalists. But how to regulate the use of these images is a matter of some complexity. There are already rules in place in respect of the Westminster Parliament. I can see that there is a lot there that we will not need to concern ourselves with, as it covers filming of Committees, Westminster Hall debates and the like, and I am grateful to you Mr Speaker for having provided information that was provided to the House by the Westminster Parliament.

2915 We can derive some guidance, Mr Speaker, on the subject of broadcasting of debates in the main Lords and Commons Chambers and the rules which apply there and I think that is very useful indeed. There are actually Rules of Coverage at Westminster that seem to be helpful in some of the parameters that they set out on how images should be framed, for example.

2920 I am going to propose that we should adopt some parts of those rules at the next sitting, by way of another motion that I hope will be the subject of agreement across the floor before it is put. We cannot, however, do that exercise until we have the cameras up and we can define the angles of coverage properly.

2925 For example, Mr Speaker, it may not be possible to insist on a head and shoulders shot in some instances, which is what the Westminster rules provide for, but from what I have seen, we will be able to frame some rules around the Westminster model. Also, we need to remember that in this Chamber, we also do some of our work sitting down in Committee Stage, especially at Budget time and that may require some amendments to the angles of cameras, which may need to be manual and at times the ushers may have to assist in the way that the cameras are moved.

2930 There therefore remains a lot of technical work to be done, which will require input from the contractor and the IT Department. That work will have to start in late April, when the main refurbishment works in this Parliament have been completed, according to the timetable that we have been provided with and the technical adjustment work can then start in earnest.

2935 Mr Speaker, we are on the cusp of a transformational moment for our community and our Parliament. This is a hugely exciting time for our community. The democratic leadership we are providing is opening up this place to everyone in every way, whether it be timetabling the things that happen here so people can tune in or opening this place up by making it truly accessible, as we have said we will do in the second phase of the refurbishment, this Government is opening up Parliament and that is better democracy.

2940 As we do that, Mr Speaker, I trust we shall be able to count on the support of Members on the other side of the House, despite Members opposite having previously not necessarily been in favour of allowing cameras into this place. There is no need now, Mr Speaker, to exclude cameras. There is no need, Mr Speaker, for us to remain a Parliament that transmits only by audio by medium wave with an almost constant interference. There is no need, Mr Speaker, to stay stuck in the past, if technology can bring us closer to our people and perhaps, Mr Speaker, with the advent of video, all hon. Members may also, myself included, at times when tempers flare, have some thought for moderation as we will be seen by all those who wish to tune in.

2945 Mr Speaker, for all of those reasons, I have great pleasure in commending the terms of this motion to the House.

2950 Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Chief Minister.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, this side of the House will be supporting the motion as moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2955 I recall as a young man with a keen interest in politics when the possibility of televising the proceedings of the House of Commons was resisted by the then Prime Minister, now Baroness Thatcher. She opposed the reform and raised concern for the good reputation of the House. MPs were concerned about television trivialising Parliament and shied away from broadcasting on many occasions in the 1960s and the 1970s, when there were three or four attempts to do so.

This House, Mr Speaker, will not find such objection or concerns from the Opposition.

2960 As a party which believes in and values openness, we welcome this initiative and the motion which is the catalyst for it. Broadcasting of parliamentary proceedings form part of our Election Manifesto which I, along with the other GSD candidates, defended at the last General Election and before then, it featured in the previous Government's motion brought in the name of the former Chief Minister.

2965 Parliamentary proceedings which are quite properly open to members of the public in the Public Gallery and can be heard via the airwaves should also, as a matter of course, be televisually available to that same public. It brings further openness and hopefully engages people more in the political process.

As is reported in the UK Parliament website and I quote:

'Televised proceedings led to a substantial increase in the number of news reports featuring the Commons.'

2970 And Mr Speaker, if I could just briefly read from page 10 of the House of Commons Broadcasting Committee on the Rules of Coverage, which is the First Report of Session issued in 2002-03, where it says:

2975 'We are also conscious that great efforts are being made to re-engage the general public in politics, to tackle voter apathy and in particular to interest young people in politics. The Modernisation Committee has also stressed the importance of making the House more accessible and said in its Second Report, Session 2001-02, and quotes from the Report...:

'It is important that the House makes maximum use of the TV media to convey a sense of the Commons as a working environment and a forum of serious and challenging debate.'

2980 All of these features, Mr Speaker, must be good things and we hope that they too will be the effect in Gibraltar of broadcasting to the public and our proceedings here. We therefore have no difficulty in supporting the motion.

2985 It is important to note that what the motion does is to allow and provide for the installation of cameras as part of the refurbishment of this House's facilities. Those are the terms of the motion. It is that discrete issue which this House is approving today.

2990 But Mr Speaker, and reference has been made to it by the Chief Minister, it is also important that we agree rules and guidelines to cover issues such as the nature of shooting and editing. This should be done as efficiently as possible by way, for example, of Select Committee, which I am confident would be able to quickly deliberate on these issues, possibly within the two-month break before the next sitting.

2995 The House of Commons Broadcasting Committee has produced rules of coverage which cover in a detailed but far from lengthy way broadcasting of both Houses of Parliament. And Mr Speaker, in the BBC website, it provides a very useful summary of what those rules of coverage include and they provide, for example, for no internal editing of speeches; when using two sections of a speech a definite break must be provided to make clear the two sections are not continuous; no speeding up or slowing down of the pictures or sound; parliamentary material can be used only in news and factual programmes or for educational purposes; no parliamentary recording may be used in light entertainment or fictional drama programmes or programmes of political satire. Parliamentary material may be used in the factual parts of magazine programmes, but must always be kept separate from musical, fictional or humorous items.

3000 The rules themselves, Mr Speaker, deal with issues such as picture direction and instruction on how events are to be treated. In more particular terms, they prohibit, for example, the showing of the Press and Public Gallery; the filming of disruptions in the Gallery; close-up shots of Members or officers' papers.
3005 They provide for a standard format for depicting the Member who has the floor: in the House rules, they provide for example and the Chief Minister himself mentioned it, a head-and-shoulders shot and not a close-up.

The Report also made a reference to webcasting, which is likely to be, as the Chief Minister has already indicated, what the Government is proposing to do and in relation to that, Mr Speaker, if I can quote from the House of Commons Broadcasting Committee's Report, where it says:

3010 'The fixed nature of webcams means that most of the rules of coverage will not apply. However, the direction of the shots for a webcam might need to be defined in the rules of coverage and there should be further discussion on whether the public gallery should be shown in webcasts.'

3015 So there is still some work to do in relation to the rules, even if it is a webcasting nature.

Mr Speaker, given the nature of the services which have been outlined by the Chief Minister, these other points may or may not be relevant, but one of the issues which I had in my mind, when I first read the motion, are things like: is there anybody who will be directing the camera shots. Should the House employ a television director or camera operators to ensure that the service is properly provided?

3020 And Mr Speaker, I go back to the quote I attributed to Baroness Thatcher, that it is important that in order to ensure that the good reputation of the House remains intact that we, as a controlling party, should make every effort to make sure that this is the case.

Mr Speaker, I would also like to read briefly from page 3 of the Report I have been referring to throughout the course of my submission, which reads:

3025 'The rules of coverage were devised to ensure that the House retains control over how it was portrayed on television'.

This is something that I think we need to ensure ourselves here. They provide specific guidelines for picture direction and instruction on how specific events such as disorder are to be treated. Finally, the television director – in that case in the UK – should have regard to the dignity of the House and to its 3030 function as a working body, rather than a place of entertainment.

Mr Speaker, I also refer to the Chief Minister himself, when he said in this House last year that the cameras were to be allowed in by agreement, when we were satisfied, and I quote:

3035 '... across the floor of the House that we have the necessary infrastructure to ensure that those watching will see more than just the top of our heads.'

We of course cannot be satisfied until the refurbishment works have been completed and the cameras installed, that the necessary infrastructure, in that sense, is there. What we should also be concerned about, however, Mr Speaker, is that the necessary infrastructure in terms of the rules are in place and that 3040 that be achieved with consensus as quickly as possible, in order to quite properly bring the availability of what happens in this House to members of the public in a modern way.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

3045 Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the motion?
If not, I shall ask the mover to reply, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

3050 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, may I first of all thank the hon. Gentlemen for the consensual way in which he has approached his Party's response to the Government's motion on this matter. He is absolutely right, of course, about what the terms of reference of this motion are: they are very restrained. They are very, in fact, constraining terms. This motion does not allow that the House should start televising its proceedings, for all the reasons I think I have dealt with and that he has also alluded to in his intervention.

3055 He has gone into more detail today on what it is that the rules provide for. He has given a flavour of what the issues that I think are relevant for the next motion should be and that is the motion where I believe that the House should be adopting those rules and I shall certainly be in touch with him to try and see whether it is possible for us to agree which of those rules from Westminster we need to be looking at in some detail and adjusting for the purposes of the Gibraltar rules.

3060 As I said in the course of my intervention, Mr Speaker, and I think he has recognised from the course of his intervention, fine tuning those rules is not something that can happen until we know exactly what it is that we can get. I think that we are very close to that, but because there is great specificity in the rules as to angles, etc, I think it is important, because of the nature of this Parliament, which is different to the Westminster Parliament, that we look at what we do and it maybe that we need to have one rule for 3065 normal debates and Question Time and one rule for Committees, where we are all sitting down at Committee Stage and the cameras may need to move or we may need to accept a different shot is going to be available in those instances.

3070 Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is right to say that the then Leader of the House, Baroness Thatcher, then Prime Minister Thatcher, in 1989 was against the idea that the cameras should come into Westminster. They, I think, have proved an important part of bringing people closer to proceedings in the Chambers there have been performing for the cameras. I actually think that to an extent, in the early stages, the criticism was that Members felt constrained by the cameras. They were not acting up to them, but things appear soon to have got back to normal, in particular the rowdiness surrounding Prime Minister's Question Time.

3075 Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman referred also to Mrs Thatcher's concerns about the dignity of Parliament and whether the cameras should affect that. I think that we are more responsible for the dignity of Parliament than any particular piece of technology. I will put my hand on my heart and say that all of us, myself included, sometimes fail to live up to what each of us might on our cooler moments think is the required dignity that we need to bring to the debates in this House. I do not believe that technology actually pushes us in one direction of dignity or pulls us away from dignity.

3080 But if anything, as I said during the course of my intervention, I hope it will temper us, when we realise that we might be watched by 30,000 people or more, and not just by the few that have shown their support for our democracy by being in this Chamber when we debate, in the Public Gallery.

3085 So, Mr Speaker, all that said, I shall certainly pursue being in contact with him to try and agree those parts of which rules are relevant that we believe we can work on together, and perhaps even once the refurbishment is ongoing, which we see as a refurbishment of the House and it belongs to the House and not to any one particular party, be in touch with him to deal with that issue.

3090 If I may just deal with one particular point before I give way, the hon. Gentleman is right to say that there was a motion in this House in the dusk of the previous Administration that referred to televising and that the manifesto of the Party which he now sits within this House referred to televising of debates, but I do not think that it would be contested by the previous Chief Minister that... There were 16 years in which to do this and it was not done because the Party now opposite was not convinced at any time in those 16 years until the very end, that there might be some value in it, despite my encouragement that they should consider doing so, at least from the day that I got here and when their previous Deputy had even suggested that himself from this side of the House in 2003.

3095 But we welcome that they have changed their views on that and that they are now able to vote with the Government on this particular motion and before I sit down, I will give way to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

3100 Hon. D A Feetham: I am very grateful to the Chief Minister.

In fact, may I say, just on some of the last points that he made that I personally stood for election on a platform of a commitment to televising Parliament in 2003 and, indeed, I had the privilege of forming part of a Government that brought a motion in 2010 effectively supporting the televising of proceedings in this Parliament.

3105 But, Mr Speaker, the rules of the House in terms of televising of parliamentary proceedings are going to be phenomenally important and effectively nothing can happen without those rules. If it is going to be dealt with, I do not think it is appropriate for it to be dealt with bilaterally between the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition. My hon. Friend Mr Bossino suggested the establishment of a Select Committee. Can I urge upon the Chief Minister that idea: perhaps setting up a Committee of three people on our side and three people on his side, to actually consider the rules and not to get to a situation where effectively we get to a draft presented to Parliament which has only been considered by two or three individuals?

3110 I think there ought to be more than two or three individuals considering the question of the rules, before a draft is actually produced to Parliament, so that Parliament can vote upon it in a motion.

3115 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, yes, the 2003 manifesto that he stood on – I believe at that time it was with the Labour Party – also contained the provision to introduce capital gains. I hope he is not going to change the GSD so much that they are going to start proposing that, because the effects on our finance centre might be as dramatic now, as it would have been then, if he had won!

3120 Well, Mr Speaker, look, if there is to be a Select Committee, then it will be set up on the basis of the standard manner in which Select Committees are set up.

The reason that I have suggested I should be in touch with Mr Bossino is because before we even get to that stage, I think there is a lot of work that can be done simply to refine what are a large body of rules into the rules that may be relevant to Gibraltar. It may be that the Government considers going down the route of a Select Committee. If I decide to do that, I shall certainly be in touch with him, (Hon. P R 3125 Caruana: If the hon. Member will give way.) but there are a number of issues that we can deal with, which I think everybody will agree with. This is not rocket science, from the point of view of what it is that needs to be agreed; neither, in my view, does it require six Members of the Parliament which involve three Ministers spending time considering issues which may actually be quite straightforward.

3130 But I recognise the Hon. the previous Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. P R Caruana: I am obliged to him.

3135 Mr Speaker, I always have had... and the Hon. the Chief Minister is quite right in saying that we had 16 years in which to do this and did not. I think that reflected principally my view that in a small Parliament like Gibraltar, having the cameras in here would just increase the extent to which we all played to the cameras, rather than got on with it. It is a view that I think has become old fashioned now and it probably is the right time for the House to do this.

3140 I do not regret not having done it, because I remain actually quite concerned about the effects that the cameras might have on our proceedings; but I recognise that the way that things have moved in other Parliaments, the practices, the incidence of instant information and instant footage of everything have moved in a way that makes it inevitable. I think it is therefore right and to be applauded that the hon. Members do it, now that they are in a position to do so.

I will of course, from my more humble seat on the back benches, support the Opposition's vote in favour.

3145 But if you will just allow me to say something in half jest, in response to his quip to the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition that he hopes that not everything in the Labour Party's manifesto will become GSD policy. The other day, I was at home, nostalgically perusing some of my old political papers and I came across a statement by him, committing himself solemnly that, if ever he got into the Office which he now occupies, he would introduce a road toll on Line Wall Road: I hope he does not intend to proceed with that either! (Laughter)

3150

Hon. Chief Minister: I am very grateful, Mr Speaker, for the opportunity to come back at him and tell him that if he actually watches that, the only people who talked about introducing a toll on Line Wall Road were the people who wanted to denigrate what I had said. But luckily, because there was a camera present, he is able to watch –

3155

Hon. P R Caruana: It is in print!

3160 Hon. Chief Minister: It is in print and in the voice and speech of the then Minister for the Environment, I believe, or if not, one of the new Members of the Opposition. There is a video, Mr Speaker, of what I said at Sacarello's exactly about that and it does not involve the introduction... a solemn commitment to introduce any toll on Line Wall Road – although Mr Speaker, if I was going to introduce it on any road, it might be in Irish Town or Line Wall Road that I might be tempted to introduce such a toll!

3165

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, you wouldn't collect much while I was a pedestrian! (Laughter)

3170 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful that there appears to be unanimity across the floor of the House now to do this. I believe that the hon. Gentleman is right, that actually the time has come whatever the views of some of the more veteran Members of this House may have been in the old days, because of people's desire for information today, the need to see it to believe it, then I think that it is high time that we took the step to bring the cameras into this House if, post the refurbishment, we have been able to agree the rules and we are all happy with what we see that the technology can produce.

3175 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

3185

Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

Clerk: Bills: First and Second Reading. A Bill for an Act to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

3190

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act be read a first time.

3195

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Act 2013.

3200

Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

3205

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time. Mr Speaker, in brief, the purpose of this Bill is to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act so as to make provision for, first, the waiving of visa requirements in specific circumstances; second, formal entry permits; third, requiring visitors in certain circumstances to deposit their passports or other travel documents; and for related matters.

3210

Mr Speaker, clause 2(4) makes several amendments to section 11A of the Principal Act. In particular, it introduces new subsections (3A) and (3B).

Section 11A(1) provides that the Government may direct the Principal Immigration Officer to waive the carrying out in circumstances described in such a direction of any control, powers or functions required and permitted under the Act on any persons or category of persons specified in the direction.

3215

Subsection (3A) therefore provides that any direction under 11A(1), which relates to a category of persons described by virtue of their being nationals of particular countries who hold valid multiple entry Schengen Visas shall be published in the Gazette. Subsection (3B) provides that any direction made under section 11A(1), to which subsection (3A) applies, shall include a waiver of the requirements to be in possession of a valid entry permit.

3220

Further, the direction will specify that the waiver does not entitle the holder to seek employment in Gibraltar or to have access to publicly funded benefits in Gibraltar and shall specify a period that such a person is authorised to remain in Gibraltar, which shall not exceed 21 days.

3225

Clause 2(4) further amends section 11A of the Act, by adding new subsections (6) to (8), which empowers the Government to direct that particular persons be excluded from the remit of any direction under section 11A(1), where it is of the opinion that the exclusion of that person from Gibraltar is conducive to public security concerns. That person's character, conduct and association may be taken into account in reaching that decision.

3230

The Government shall also direct the particular persons to be excluded from the remit of any direction where the reason for the exclusion is the safeguarding of the internal security or defence of Gibraltar. The reason for the exclusion is of such a nature as to fall within the Governor's constitutional responsibilities and the Governor has informed the Government that such exclusion needs to be made.

3235

Clause 2(5) inserts a new section 17A on Entry Permits. Entry Permits can be issued by the Authority or the Principal Immigration Officer and will entitle the holder to enter into and remain in Gibraltar during the period of validity of the permit. An Immigration Officer, however, is empowered to refuse a person leave to enter into Gibraltar if, in his opinion, it is undesirable to give that person leave to enter on the grounds that the person's exclusion is conducive to the public good or public security. The Immigration Officer may take into account the person's character, conduct and associations and such a decision can be taken, notwithstanding that such a person is a member of a class to which a direction under section 11A(1) applies. Such a refusal must be reported to the Principal Immigration Officer and to the Authority.

3240

The Bill further amends the power to declare prohibited immigrants and the effect of such declaration under the Act. Under the new section 52(1A), the Government should direct the Principal Officer to declare any non-Gibraltarian to be a prohibited immigrant where it is necessary for the safeguarding of the internal security or defence of Gibraltar, the declaration is of such a nature as to fall within the Government's constitutional responsibilities and the Governor has informed the Government that such a declaration is to be made.

3245 The Bill also amends the proviso contained in section 53(1), which originally provided that the Principal Immigration Officer could grant a permit to a prohibited immigrant, permitting him to enter and remain in Gibraltar for such period and to such conditions as he could direct, notwithstanding that the entry and presence within Gibraltar of that prohibited immigrant is unlawful.

3250 This proviso has now been strengthened in that the Principal Immigration Officer must obtain the consent of the Government, Governor or the Authority, as the case may be, and in the circumstances specified therein, before he can grant a permit to a prohibited immigrant permitting him to enter and remain in Gibraltar.

3255 Finally, clause 2(3) empowers the Principal Immigration Officer to require visitors seeking any permit under the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act or to whom a direction made under section 11A(1) applies, to deposit their passports. This is principally a power to be used in respect of non-EU nationals, of course, at the borders.

3260 Mr Speaker, I said in my address at the time of the Ceremonial Opening that I wish to see our nation making efforts to build bridges with our southern neighbour, Morocco. For that reason, the first direction to be made will be in respect of nationals of that kingdom to promote their ability to visit Gibraltar as tourists, if they already hold valid multiple entry Schengen Visas. We expect other directions to follow to allow nationals of other states from which Government and the tourist industry may wish to promote visitors.

I commend the Bill to the House.

3265 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker.

3270 I rise to speak on the Bill, as I have recently been honoured with shadow responsibility for matters relating to immigration and it is my privilege and honour to speak for the first time in the context of my new portfolios.

I took the opportunity earlier of speaking to the Hon. the Chief Minister informally about the purposes of the Bill and I was very grateful to have that discussion with him. That has certainly been of assistance.

3275 For the Members of this side of the House who will, Mr Speaker, be supporting the Bill, this is an initiative that seeks to facilitate visits to Gibraltar by a category of persons that may have hitherto been unable to or put off by the administrative difficulty of doing so and by enabling them to gain access to our shores, to bring business and additional spending power to Main Street as one of the offshoots of the Bill is certainly a principle, one which we are happy to and will indeed support.

3280 I would, however, just like to take the opportunity to raise a matter of concern for Members on this side of the House, a concern relating to the potential for individuals to remain in Gibraltar beyond their welcome and the difficulties that may then arise in ensuring that certain individuals return from whence they come at the relevant time. I do, however, Mr Speaker hasten to add that I am conscious of the various checks and controls proposed within the body of the Bill, but perhaps the Hon. the Chief Minister could provide details in his reply of any systems, checks, protocols, perhaps, that he, in his discussions and consultations with relevant stakeholders, may have identified as appropriate and desirable, in the context of ensuring that what comes to this House as a Bill designed to add some zing to one of the main engines of the community does not turn instead into a burden on it.

3285 That said, Mr Speaker, I reiterate the Opposition's support for the Bill and hope, as I am sure all Members of this House do, that this initiative may bring added activity for the benefit of our small business community for years to come.

3290 Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. the Chief Minister wish to exercise his right to reply?

3295 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am delighted that the hon. Gentleman is going to shadow me in relation to matters related to personal status, immigration. He and I have been firm friends for many years and although we may not be able to agree on many things, at least where possible, we can have a word outside this House to deal with issues that may facilitate its workings, as we have today.

3300 Mr Speaker, what we are doing and what we are intending to do is designed to appeal and to be available only to actually quite a defined type of individual and this is an individual who holds a Schengen multiple entry Visa. Therefore, these are individuals that other Member States of the EU have granted – those Schengen Group of the EU Member States – have granted multiple-entry visas to. In those circumstances, the individual who is in Gibraltar is able to travel into Spain and into the rest of the EU with no administrative burden being put in his way.

3305 So somebody who has a Schengen multiple entry Visa were to come to Gibraltar under what we might loosely call the 'visa waiver programme' and outstay his 21-day benefit visa waiver for Gibraltar, then he is not a person who could only in those circumstances assume deportation, be deported by the airport to the United Kingdom. The hon. Gentleman may know that there are some issues with deporting people through the United Kingdom to another state from which they may originate.

3310 So they would be the individuals who could be deported from Gibraltar to Spain. Now, what class of individuals are we talking about? Principally, the Government believes it has identified groups of people who will likely come to Gibraltar for no more than three days, perhaps long weekends, at a push perhaps a week. That is likely to be the market, but there could be circumstances where individuals could outstay their welcome. We have not acted without working very closely with the Borders and Coastguard Agency, who are in very close liaison on these matters – as the former Chief Minister will know – with the Special Branch and the international law enforcement entities – to ensure the security issues that might relate to an individual coming to Gibraltar are adequately dealt with.

3320 It is not as if people will simply be let in with a visa waiver and we will not know how many there are or where they will be staying. This will be a system akin to the mechanisms used in the United States, where on a visa waiver – he may remember the old style, before ESTAs, where he had to fill in a green visa waiver form if he was a British National, where you need to tell the authorities where you are going to be.

Of course, an individual could simply lie on the form – and then find him amongst 520 million people across the expanse of the great United States. In the similar circumstances here, that person would have to hide themselves in two-and-a-half square miles, amongst 30,000 people. It is not impossible.

3325 The hon. Gentleman may know that there is a list of, I believe, no more than a handful of people who are illegally in Gibraltar. They are known to the Government. The issues there have been what to do with deportation, because those are issues which are historic, and literally you are talking about people who either have illegally gained access to Gibraltar and have come to the attention of the authorities, but either they have been here for 12 or 15 years when that has happened, or there is what I might loosely call a 'sob story' behind the whole thing.

3330 That is not the sort of individual that we believe we are dealing with here, but if it were, suffice to say that I have told him that the authorities are aware of each of those individuals, where they are and where they sleep, and the absence of deportation has more to do with administrative process or politicians being asked to interfere to stop processes.

3335 Before he jumps to his feet and asks me what I am doing stopping a deportation process, if that is where I am leading to, this is something that comes from way before our time. He will see that, actually, this is not a huge problem that is likely to materialise, but the technology that is going to be used when taking people's passports – the visa waiver does not mean that you do not check the passport or the Schengen multiple-entry visa – and the follow-up that there will be on where these people are going to lodge themselves whilst they are here, I think has satisfied the Government that we can do this without the risk of an influx of people who may then wish to remain and we would not be able to deal with.

3340 Let me leave him with just this thought: the Schengen multiple entry Visa has to be valid for more than six months for the visa waiver programme to apply on the 22nd day of the visa. In other words, you have to have a Schengen multiple entry visa valid for six months and 22 days if you want to stay in Gibraltar for 21 days so that the deportation through the easiest route will easily be possible.

3345 I trust that satisfies the hon. Gentleman. I am grateful for him having indicated the support of Members opposite.

3350 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Act 2013.

Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting 3360 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read – Sorry...

Mr Speaker: Committee Stage.

Clerk: Top of page 40.

3365 Hon. Chief Minister: I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken later today, if all Members agree.

3370 Mr Speaker: Do all Members agree the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

3375 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act 2000 for the purposes of conferring greater independence upon the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, converting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from a corporation sole to a corporate body governed by a board and matters ancillary thereto, appointing a Deputy Chief Executive Officer, making provision for the treatment of the revenues of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority and for exempting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from liability to Income Tax.

The Hon. the Chief Minister.

3385 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act 2000, for all the purposes that the Hon. the Clerk has read out, be now read a first time.

3390 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act 2000 for the purposes of conferring greater independence upon the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, converting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from a corporation sole to a corporate body governed by a board and matters ancillary thereto, appointing a Deputy Chief Executive Officer, making provision for the treatment of the revenues of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority and for exempting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from liability to Income Tax be read a first time.

Clerk: The Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Act 2013.

3400 style="text-align: center;">Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

3405 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time. Mr Speaker, can I just ask hon. Members whether they have received the letter with amendments that was handed in this afternoon? Grateful.

Mr Speaker, this Bill is for certain amendments, which I will deal with in detail below and of which I have given notice identical to that published as Bill No. 2/2013.

3410 The Government is of the view, Mr Speaker, that this Bill is necessary in order to comply with the provisions of the Better Regulation Directive – which is Directive 2009/140/EC – which was transposed into Gibraltar law on 26th May 2011 by amending the Communications Act 2006.

The intention of the Better Regulation Directive was to strengthen the independence of the national regulatory authorities in the electronic communications sector.

Recital 13 of the Directive states as follows:

3415 ‘The independence of the national regulatory authorities should be strengthened in order to ensure a more effective application of the regulatory framework and to increase their authority and the predictability of their decisions... to ensure that, in the exercise of their tasks, a national regulatory authority is protected against external intervention or political pressure liable to jeopardise its independent assessment of matters coming before it.’

3420 In the case of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, however, under the Principal Act it can be argued that pressure could potentially be brought to bear through Government’s control of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority’s funding.

The Directive also states, in article 3, that:

- 3425 'Member States shall ensure that national regulatory authorities exercise their powers impartially, transparently and in a timely manner.'
- and article 3a states that:
- 3430 '... national regulatory authorities responsible for ex-ante market regulation... shall act independently and shall not seek or take instructions from any other body in relation to the exercise of these tasks assigned to them under national law...'
- 3435 In Gibraltar, we have a situation where the Government is a shareholder in the dominant provider of the communications networks and services. This, coupled with the provisions contained in subsections 8(3) and (4) of the Principal Act relating to the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority having to take into account Government policy, is contrary, arguably, to the independence referred to in the Directive.
- 3440 Recital 13 also states that it is important that national regulatory authorities should have their own budget, allowing them, in particular, to recruit a sufficient number of qualified staff. This would seem to be inconsistent with sections 9, 10 and 12 of the Principal Act as it is today.
- Further, article 3a goes on to state that:
- 'Member States shall also ensure that national regulatory authorities have adequate financial and human resources to enable them to actively participate in and contribute to the Body of European Regulators for Electronic Communications...'
- 3445 The Government feels that this Bill will achieve the independence required by the Directive.
- The purpose of the Bill is as set out in the Long Title. The Long Title explains that the Bill makes provision for the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to have greater independence. It converts the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from a corporation sole to a corporate body governed by a board. It provides for the appointment of a Deputy Chief Executive Officer. It makes provision for the treatment of the revenues of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority and exempts the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from liability to income tax.
- 3450 Clause 2(2) deals with the amendments to the Long Title of the Principal Act, which in essence only requires the introduction of a reference to the Deputy Chief Executive Officer.
- 3455 Clause 2(3) amends section 2 of the Principal Act by inserting definitions for 'business', which is relevant for the new sections introduced to clause 2(60), and 'Chairman', 'Deputy Chief Executive' and 'Gibraltar Regulatory Authority member', all of which definitions give effect to the purposes of the Bill. Other definitions are of a clarificatory or consequential nature.
- 3460 Clause 2(4)(a) amends section 3(2) of the Principal Act by establishing the composition of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, which is to consist of a Chief Executive Officer, a Deputy Chief Executive Officer and a minimum of two and a maximum of three other persons who are to be appointed by the Minister. The Chief Executive Officer is to be the Chairman of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority.
- 3465 Clause 2(4)(b) replaces section 3(3) of the Principal Act and provides for the establishing of the period and term of appointment of the persons to be appointed to the board by the Minister.
- Clause 2(4)(c) replaces section 3(4) of the Principal Act and provides for the resignation of the Chief Executive Officer and the persons appointed by the Minister.
- 3470 Clause 2(4)(d) replaces section 3(5) of the Principal Act and empowers the Minister, after consultation with the other members of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, to declare that a person's office as a member of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority is to be vacated in certain circumstances.
- 3475 Clause 2(5) amends section 4 of the Principal Act by establishing that the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority shall be a body corporate with perpetual succession, having a common seal, and makes provision for the affixing of the common seal and for the signature of certain instruments.
- It also provides for the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to sue and be sued in its corporate name, and for the service of process or notice.
- 3480 Finally, it provides for the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, the members of its board, or persons employed or taken on secondment by it, not to be treated as a body of persons exercising functions on behalf of the Crown or as servants of the Crown.
- 3485 Clause 2(6) introduces a new section 5 in the Principal Act. This new section deals with the meetings and proceedings of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority. It provides for the constitution of a forum and the requirement for a Chairman to preside at meetings of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority. It provides for the calling of meetings with the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, for voting at meetings, the keeping of proper minutes, and for the making of written resolutions.
- Clause 2(6) also introduces new section 6 that provides for the appointment of the Chief Executive Officer, the terms of his appointment, his functions and responsibilities, and for the appointment of a Deputy Chief Executive Officer in his absence.
- Clause 2(6) also introduces new section 7, that provides for the appointment of a Deputy Chief Executive Officer and provides for his replacement in certain circumstances.

Clause 2(6) also introduces new section 8, that establishes the functions of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority.

3490 Clauses 2(7), (8) and (9) provide for amendments to the Principal Act which are clarificatory or consequential in nature and deal with amendments to do with punctuation and numbering.

Clause 2(10) omits the requirement for the approval of the Minister in the delegation by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority of the discharge of functions, thereby strengthening the independence of the GRA.

Clauses 2(11), (12) and (13) deal with numbering and renumbering.

3495 Clause 2(14) introduces a new section 9(5) in the Principal Act, which provides for a person, to whom functions have been delegated by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, to be given a certification of his authorisation, and for the production of the same if requested by any person affected by the exercise of those functions.

3500 Clause 2(15) introduces a new section 10 in the Principal Act that provides for the payment by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority of salaries to the Chief Executive Officer, the Deputy Chief Executive Officer, such persons as the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority may employ or take on secondment, to a person or agency to whom functions have been delegated, and for the payment of such expenses as the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority may be liable to pay as the result of the exercise of any one or more of its powers.

3505 This new section 10, however, empowers the Minister to determine other expenses and allowances to persons appointed, employed, or taken on secondment by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority.

It is thought that these provisions are contrary to the desire to grant greater independence to the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, and I therefore give notice that, at Committee Stage, I intend to move the following amendment to the Bill:

3510 'In clause 2(15) of the Bill at sections 10(a)(ii) and 10(b)(ii) of the Principal Act replace in each subsection 10(a)(ii) and 10(b)(ii) the word "Minister" with the words "Gibraltar Regulatory Authority".'

3515 Clauses 2(16) to (26) provide for amendments to the Principal Act which are clarificatory or consequential in nature or deal with amendments to do with punctuation and numbering.

Clause 2(27) provides, through newly renumbered section 11(3) of the Principal Act, for the independence of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority when exercising its functions, taking into account public policy only to the extent that it is lawful to do so.

3520 Clause 2(27) and (28) also provides, through newly renumbered section 11(4) and new sections 11(5) and (6) of the Principal Act, for the requirement of a member of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to declare an interest in any matter coming before the GRA.

Clauses 2(29) and (31) deal with renumbering.

3525 Clauses 2(30) and (32) amend the newly renumbered sections 12(1) and (2) of the Principal Act by allowing the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to do all things necessary, ancillary or incidental to the carrying out of its function without the imposition of limits set by Parliament. This is designed to grant the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority greater independence.

Clause 2(33) clearly establishes, through the newly renumbered section 12(2)(b) that the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority shall have the power to contract with any person for the supply of personnel.

3530 Clause 2(34) omits from the newly renumbered section 12(2)(d) the requirement for the consent of the Chief Secretary before the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority can employ or take on secondment persons for the purposes of performing certain functions of the GRA. This is another provision designed to grant the GRA greater independence.

3535 Clause 2(35) provides through the introduction of new section 12(2)(e) for the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to be able to establish and maintain schemes for the payment of pensions or other benefits to employees.

Clauses 2(36) and (37) deal with numbering and renumbering issues.

3540 Clause 2(38) omits from the newly renumbered section 12(3) the requirement for the consent of the Chief Secretary before the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority can establish the period, terms and conditions of employment of such persons as the GRA may employ or take on secondment.

Clause 2(39) introduces new sections 13 and 14 in the Principal Act that provide for the identification of the source of the revenue of the GRA and the investment of such revenue – section 13; and for the establishment and operation of a general fund into which all monies received by the GRA are to be paid, out of which all payments made by the GRA are to be made – section 14. Indeed, section 14 also gives the GRA the power to borrow monies with or without security.

3545 Clauses 2(40) and (41) deal with renumbering and an amendment to the header of newly renumbered section 15 of the Principal Act.

Clause 2(42) replaces previously numbered sections 10(1), (2) and (3) with new sections 15(1) to (5). These impose obligations on the GRA with regard to accounting records or financial statements and the auditing of the same. It provides for the appointment of an auditor and the method of his reporting.

3550 Any direction by the Minister with regard to the statements of account and any involvement by the Principal Auditor is omitted thereby strengthening the independence of the GRA.

Clause 2(43) introduces new section 16 in the Principal Act imposing an obligation on the GRA to prepare and furnish to the Minister annual estimates of income and expenditure and such additional information and explanations as the Minister may require.

3555 Clause 2(44) deals with renumbering.

Clause 2(45) replaces previously numbered section 17(1) and extends immunity from suit to the GRA members, officers and servants and any delegatee of functions.

Clause 2(46) deals with renumbering issues.

3560 Clause 2(47) introduces a new section 17(3) that authorises the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to indemnify existing and former members, officers or servants for the cost of defending any action brought by a third party in respect of the discharge of their powers and functions.

Clauses 2(48) and 2(49) deal with renumbering and numbering.

Clause 2(50) introduces a new section 18 into the Principal Act.

3565 New section 18 provides for the issuance of notice by the Minister to the GRA to be followed by application to the Supreme Court in the event of non-compliance, requiring the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to comply with the provisions of the Principal Act. It is thought that these provisions are unnecessary, given that there are adequate remedies available by means of the application of general law in the event of non-compliance by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority with the provisions of the Principal Act.

3570 Further, the new section 18 does not sit well with the intention to strengthen the independence of the GRA. I therefore give notice that at the Committee Stage, I intend to therefore move its removal. At the Committee Stage, I also intend to refer to the renumbering of sections required, as a result of the removal of section 18.

3575 The consequential renumbering will be the following: section 19 is renumbered so it now becomes section 18, all the way through, Mr Speaker, in section 20, 21 and 22, so that those are numbered with one number below. The reference to section 22 in section 17(4) of the Principal Act now therefore becomes a reference to section 21. Sections 23, 24 and 25 are renumbered with one number less.

3580 Clause 2(50) also introduces new section 19 into the Principal Act. This new section has the effect of prohibiting the issuance of a process of execution by attachment of property or other similar process against the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority.

Clauses 2(51) and (52) deal with a renumbering issue and the consequential amendment.

Clause 2(53) introduces a new section 21 into the Principal Act and exempts the income of the GRA from income tax.

3585 Clauses 2(54) to 2(59) deal with numbering and renumbering.

Finally, Mr Speaker, clause 2(60) inserts new sections 24 and 25 into the Principal Act.

Section 24 authorises the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to petition the Supreme Court, with the consent of the Minister, for the winding up of a company that appears to the GRA to be undertaking business without authorisation, licence, notification or registration required for the undertaking of business or has had its licence, authorisation, recognition or registration cancelled or suspended.

3590 Section 25 provides for the Minister at the request of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to direct the Registrar of Companies to deregister any Part IX companies, in similar circumstances as those set out in section 24 to which I have just alluded.

I commend the Bill to the House.

3595 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, the Opposition will be supporting the Bill.

3600 The Bill, Mr Speaker, provides for the conversion of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from a corporation sole, that is to mean an individual which under the current Act, the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act, is effectively the Chief Executive – under section 3(1) is the Chief Executive – so one individual into a corporate body governed by a board, led by a Chief Executive.

3605 In fact, my understanding – I will be corrected if I am wrong – is that this Bill follows and places the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority on the same... it uses the same model on which the Financial Services Commission is based nowadays. Indeed, there is more than one analogy that one can draw with the Financial Services Commission, because of course, hon. Members of this House, or some, may actually remember that in 1989, when the Financial Services Commission Act or Ordinance, as it then was, was introduced by the then GSLP Government, the Financial Services Commission was a body. It was a group 3610 of people, and amendments were forced – I think I am right in saying – by the United Kingdom to that Act, to convert the Regulatory Authority from the Financial Services Commission to the Commissioner, one individual. Of course, it was always a matter of concern, certainly – and a matter that we wanted dealt with, when we were in Government – to actually change that. It certainly is not a model that is conducive to a proper independent regulatory authority, to have one individual that is effectively the regulatory authority for something as important as this, and indeed something as important as the Financial Services Commission.

3615 So we do believe that by changing the regulatory body from one individual into a corporate body governed by a board, then led by a Chief Executive, that will strengthen the independence of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, not diminish it, and as a matter of principle, we will be supporting the Bill.

3620 Mr Speaker, what I would like is for the Chief Minister, if he may, to provide some clarification in relation to two aspects.

In relation to the proposed section 13(1) and its interaction in relation to 14(1): under 13(1) the revenues of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority shall be such fees and charges as may be payable to the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority under the Act; and then (b) such funds as may from time to time be voted by the Gibraltar Parliament; (c) such funds as may properly accrue to the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from any other source.

3625 So effectively, the intention appears to me to be to make the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority as self-sufficient as possible and if there is any deficiency, to have then the funds voted in Parliament and it is proper to do so, because of course, then Parliament remains... there is an oversight from Parliament in relation to any excess expenditure, over and above that which the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority generates off its own bat, so to speak.

3630 But then if one looks at proposed section 14(3), it says:

3635 ‘The Gibraltar Regulatory Authority may borrow such sums as the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority may require to enable it to discharge its functions and for the purposes of meeting expenditure of a capital nature.’

Now, does the Hon. the Chief Minister think that that may impact on the model as established in 13(1), which is self-sufficient – if you require anything else you come to Parliament to ensure that it is voted by Parliament? Because it does appear to me that, of course, if it does not generate any income, it is not voted for by Parliament but it can borrow, then obviously it is circumventing the very careful structure that is established in 13(1), which is generation of income, alternatively anything in excess of that, you have got to really vote it in by Parliament.

3640 If it does cause concern, perhaps it can be dealt with by way of an amendment at Committee Stage, so that at least there is some oversight by the Government Minister in relation to the borrowings by the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, because it appears to me to be a very wide power indeed, provided to the Authority and odd, in the light of the structure and the scheme of things as set out in section 13(1).

3645 May I also ask the Chief Minister what is meant in clause 2(47), (3) by – and I read from the Bill:

‘The Gibraltar Regulatory Authority shall (unless bad faith is definitively found to have existed)...’

3650 What does ‘definitively found to have existed’ mean? Definitively found by whom? By the courts? Can he expand and elucidate on that, please.

Thank you very much.

3655 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman for indicating that his party is going to be supporting this Bill.

He has indicated that this is in fact the same model as the model of the Financial Services Commission Act, and that is in fact the case.

3660 Indeed, Mr Speaker, the issues that he has asked us to look at come from very similar provisions, if not identical provisions, in the Act which he says he believes this is modelled on and therefore he is pleased with.

If I can just say to him, the hon. Gentleman has said – and I am grateful that they are going to support this, but he said something during the course of his intervention, which I need to take up – he said that they had wanted to make these changes when they were in Government. May I simply say that these changes... this Act was made when they were in Government.

3665 If he wants to...

Hon. D A Feetham: What I said was that in relation to the Financial Services Commission, having one individual as the regulator, that was always a bugbear with the GSD Government, because it was always a UK appointment and on top of that, the Authority was one individual. The propensity for control 3670 over that individual and then interference in the regulatory system was obviously very clear to us and that was what we, as a matter of principle, were against.

3675 Hon. Chief Minister: I see, Mr Speaker. Right, because this Act is a 2000 Act, which is an Act that they introduced at the time, and it is principally something which is led by European legislation that has to be adopted as a result of Directive obligations. As I said during the course of my intervention, this is about updating the Act, to ensure that it does comply with the required EU measures.

3680 So in relation to the clauses that he has referred us to, clause 13(1)(c) and its interaction with 14(3), and the statement as to definitive findings of bad faith at 2(47)(3), I am advised that those are identical to provisions in the Financial Services Act.

3685 What do they mean and what do they do, Mr Speaker? Well, my understanding is that what you do in 13(1) is you set out how the Authority, the GRA, is able to fund itself. You say in 13(1)(c):

‘such funds as may properly accrue to the GRA from any other source.’

3690 Then you say in 14(3), by allowing the borrowing, in effect that that is a proper other source. So I do not see that there is necessarily a conflict with that. In fact, I think it helps the independence of the Authority not to be reliant on the Government hand-out in 13(1)(b), in particular in circumstances where the Authority is able to persuade a lender that it should borrow money.

3695 Lenders these days, as the hon. Gentlemen know, sometimes do not lend money even to people who can demonstrate that they are solvent. So the GRA, if it is going to borrow money, is going to have to demonstrate its solvency and its ability to pay back. In those circumstances why should – (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham) - when I will finish the point. In those circumstances, why should the Government, Mr Speaker, constrain the GRA from being able to borrow commercially at arm’s length, if it believes that that is a proper course for it to raise funds.

The hon. Gentleman wants to say something.

3700 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, thank you very much.

I am not saying that they are in conflict or contradictory; what I am saying... what I am asking the Chief Minister is to explain whether he feels that there is potential for a circumvention of the oversight of Parliament in relation to any excess expenditure.

3705 Because the scheme is self-funding, if you cannot self-fund, you then come to Parliament to ask for funds to be voted, but of course if the Regulatory Authority, rather than come to Parliament to have funds voted, borrows the money, if it borrows the money, it is then liable to repay the money. It does seem to me as if there is a potential there for there to be a circumvention of the parliamentary oversight, in not allowing the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority to fund itself over and above income it generates, other than in circumstances where Parliament intervenes, and that is why I am suggesting that perhaps, in order to actually prevent that, that the hon. Member might consider an amendment that allows Ministerial oversight of the borrowing because, of course, Ministers are accountable to this Parliament and, at the very least, there might be a closer nexus between that and 13(1).

But that is what I am asking the Hon. the Chief Minister to explain.

3715 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not believe that there is such an issue and I will tell him why. Section 13(1), he said, had very carefully framed – those were his words – how the Authority was to receive its income. There are, of course, the direct fees and charges that will be raised by the GRA. There is the potential – not the requirement, but the potential – for a parliamentary vote of funds, but there is the third limb. That third limb – a third limb which he has himself said is very carefully drafted – provides for this other income, such other funds as may properly accrue.

3720 So, Mr Speaker, I do not see that in allowing, in the definition that 13(1)(c) purportedly creates, of another source of income, properly accruing to the GRA the potential for borrowing, that we are doing anything to allow the GRA to circumvent Parliament. All the GRA will be able to do in those circumstances is to raise commercial borrowing.

3725 Now, is the hon. Gentleman saying, ‘Well, look in the circumstances where the GRA is able to raise commercial borrowing and it should not have had it and therefore comes into default in respect of those obligations, it has raised money which has accrued to it without the supervision of this Parliament and could land the taxpayer eventually in some permutation with a bill’? Well, look, I suppose that that is technically possible. But you do not create an independent statutory body and staff it with people so that 3730 they go out and create liabilities which then fall back on the taxpayer. You have got to accept that, if you are creating a creature that is truly independent, it has those abilities and it is led by people who have the responsibility not to act in that way.

3735 So I do not believe that it creates a difficulty for this Parliament. We are not letting the GRA so out of our sight that it will no longer be subject to the scrutiny of this Parliament. Look, everything is subject to the scrutiny of this Parliament and should we consider that it was going to act improperly, we always have the ability to come back and amend not so much 13(1)(c), but 14(1)(3), I do not think that that is an issue at all.

3740 If I may just, Mr Speaker, in relation to the other point that the hon. Gentleman referred us to: section 19 of the Financial Services Commission Act, which is a 2007 piece of legislation in its latest iteration, actually reads:

'The Commission shall unless bad faith is definitively found to have existed indemnify...'

3745 So that is a direct lifting from the Act that was passed in 2007, in respect of the Financial Services Commission. What does that mean? Well, Mr Speaker, we are legislators here, not judges. In my view, it very likely means that a court needs to find that there has been bad faith before there is any possibility of the section being engaged.

3750 So, Mr Speaker, I thank him for indicating that his party will support this Bill and I note those two points. I trust that he has been satisfied with my explanations.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question which is that a Bill for and Act to amend the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act 2000 for the purposes which I set out during the First Reading of the Bill be now read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

3755 Clerk: The Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Act 2013.

3760 Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

3765 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

3770 Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

3775 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Public Health Act. The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill for an Act to amend the Public Health Act be read a first time.

3780 Mr Speaker: I now put the question which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Public Health Act be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Act 2012.

3785 Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

3790 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time. Mr Speaker, this Bill is relating to the Public Health Act as it affects rates and it is to give effect to aspects which were included in the Chief Minister's Budget speech regarding a discount for early payment of rates which is being increased from 5% to 10%. That is in relation to certain businesses, offices, workshops, construction and manufacturing industries, as mentioned in the Budget speech.

3795 And that for new companies, there will be a discount for early payment of rates of 50% for their first year of trading.

There is another part to this Bill in which it adds casinos to the rates discount, in relation to the Smoke-Free Environment Act, which had not been included when the Act had originally been passed by this House.

3800 At Committee Stage, Mr Speaker – and Members should have received a letter to the effect – I will be proposing a number of amendments which relate largely to typographical omissions, notably adding the word ‘casino’ in all the appropriate clauses instead of in just the one.

I commend the Bill to the House.

3805 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I will now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Public Health Act be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

3810 Clerk: The Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Act 2012.

Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012

3815

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

3820 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE

3825

Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012

3830 Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

3835 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills, clause by clause: the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013; the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013; and the Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012.

3840

In Committee of the whole Parliament.

Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

3845

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee Act.
Clause 1.

3850 Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill

Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Clause 2 stands part of the Bill.

3855 Hon. S M Figueras: I am sorry, I do have an observation to make in respect of, in respect of that. In clause 2(4)(d), there is no reference that that amendment should be in subsection (4) of the relevant section.

It says:

3860 'for "The" substitute "Subject to section 17A(5), the";'.

It does not say in which subsection it should be. However, looking at the, looking at the original Act, that should be in respect of subsection (4).

3865 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman

Clerk: Could I have sight of that, so I can record that, please.

3870 Mr Chairman: I will now put the amendment.

Clerk: So the amendment reads:

In clause 2(4)(d), 'in subsection (4) for "The" substitute "Subject to section 17A(5), the";'.

3875 Mr Chairman: Are all Members in favour of the amendment?

Members: Aye.

3880 Mr Chairman: Clause 2, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: The Long Title stands part of the Bill.

3885

Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

3890 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority Act 2000 for the purposes of conferring greater independence upon the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, converting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from a corporation sole to a corporate body governed by a board and matters ancillary thereto, appointing a Deputy Chief Executive Officer, making provision for the treatment of the revenues of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority and for exempting the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority from liability to Income Tax.

3895

Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

3900

Clerk: Clause 2.

3905 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have given notice of a number of amendments where what we will do throughout the Bill is in these particular instances change the word 'Minister' for the words 'Gibraltar Regulatory Authority'. That occurs in section 2(15) of the Bill and 10(a)(ii) and 10(b)(ii) of the Act where those replacements should occur.

The Clerk has it in the letter and he can see exactly what it is that occurs.

Clerk: Then we are deleting –

3910

Hon. D A Feetham: We are quite content for that letter to effectively stand as –

Mr Chairman: So all hon. Members are agreed to the amendments which have been circulated by the Chief Minister. Therefore clause 2, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

3915 Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: The Long Title stands part of the Bill.

3920 Clerk: I think I just wanted to ask a question that is in relation to page 22 of the Bill. We are talking about removing section 18? That is being deleted?

Hon. Chief Minister: That is right, that is the other substantive amendment, (Clerk: Absolutely.) then everything else is renumbering.

3925 Clerk: Absolutely.

3930 Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Public Health Act.
Clause 1.

3935 Mr Chairman: Clause 1 stands part of the Bill.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Chairman, I refer –

3940 Mr Chairman: Is it clause 1 that you have an amendment?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: There are amendments in clauses 1 and 2.

Mr Speaker: Clause 1, yes.

3945 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Chairman, we are happy for the amendments to –

Clerk: But for Hansard purposes, we need to... please.

3950 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Chairman, in which case:

'In clause 1(3), after "2(1)" insert "(1A)",.'

'In clause 1(4), for section "2(3)" substitute sections "2(3) and (3A)".'

3955 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree to the amendments moved by the Hon. the Minister?
(Several Members: Yes.)

So clause 1, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

3960 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Chairman, in clause 2:

After subclause (1), insert the following subclause: '(1A) In section 277A(b) after "bar" insert "casino".'

3965 In clause 2 also:

After subclause (3) insert the following subclause: '(3A) In the proviso to section 277B(2), after "bar" insert "casino".'

3970 Thank you.

Mr Chairman: Do all hon. Members agree to these amendments?

3975 Members: Aye.

Mr Chairman: So clause 2, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The Long Title.

3980 Mr Chairman: The Long Title stands part of the Bill.

BILLS FOR THIRD READING

3985 Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013
Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013
Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012
Third Reading approved; Bills passed

3990 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

3995 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013, the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013 and the Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012 have been considered in Committee and agreed to, with amendments, and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

4000 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013, the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013 and the Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012 be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against?
You wish to take them one by one? Okay.

Clerk: For the purpose of Hansard.

4005 Mr Speaker: Very well. Those in favour of the Immigration, Asylum and Refugee (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.
Those in favour of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

4010 Those in favour of the Public Health (Amendment) (No. 2) Bill 2012? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION

4015 Clerk: Private Member's Motion, the Hon. D A Feetham.

4020 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

'THIS HOUSE NOTES:-

4025 (1) The statements made by the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom, Mr David Cameron, during the course of a speech at Bloomberg on 23 January 2013, that he plans to renegotiate parts of the UK's relations with Europe and put that changed membership package to the British people in an in-out referendum by the end of 2017 should the Conservative Party win a majority in the UK Parliament at the 2015 General Election.

4030 (2) The immense implications for the stability, prosperity and security of Gibraltar of any renegotiation of UK Membership in the EU and the importance that Gibraltar properly considers and is prepared to face any of the challenges emerging from any renegotiated status (if any), including engaging the UK at the earliest possible, and at every material, juncture.

4035 And this House agrees that it is important in the face of such challenges for there to be unity of purpose and approach amongst its members, and it agrees that the Leader of the Opposition and the Chief Minister should meet in order to discuss the creation of a cross-party committee to deal with those challenges on a cross-party basis.'

4040 Mr Speaker, this is a neutral motion designed to allow Members of the House to debate in a constructive spirit what is a tremendously important issue to this community. It is in that spirit that the Opposition invites Members opposite to agree to the terms of this motion.

These are issues which transcend party politics and on which both sides of the House and, indeed, both leaders should be able to put their political differences to one side and work together for the better of this community.

4045 Hon. Members will note that the motion does not seek to commit this House to the creation of a cross-party committee at this stage, but to allow the House to debate these issues and recommend that the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition should meet to explore such a possibility.

4050 On this side of the House, we remain willing to work in the public interest together with the Government on any issue of vital importance to Gibraltar, irrespective of personalities, the internal party political issues that divide us or the personal likes or dislikes. It is in that spirit that I move this motion.

4055 Mr Speaker, everyone in this House will be aware of the recent statements and indeed commitment of the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom to engage with its EU partners in order to attempt to renegotiate the terms of the United Kingdom's membership of the EU and then give the people of the United Kingdom the simple choice, as he calls it, between staying in under those new terms or leaving the EU. It is, of course, a moot point whether, firstly, he will succeed in his endeavour to negotiate new terms and, secondly, whether the Conservatives will win the General Election in 2015. It is only if these two conditions are fulfilled that the issue of an in-out referendum would bite. A week in politics is a long time indeed; two or three years can be an eternity.

4060 But whilst recognising these important caveats and the fact that these conditions might not be fulfilled, we cannot afford here in Gibraltar to wait without giving very careful thought indeed to the eventual outcome of this process, its implications for Gibraltar and the way we need to tackle them.

But before I move on to that, I would like to say a few words about the general debate raging not only in the United Kingdom but amongst the citizens of many other countries of the European Union.

4065 Mr Speaker, speaking only for myself when I say this, and comment on this part of the wider debate, I have a lot of sympathy with the views expressed by the Prime Minister on the general malaise in which the European Union finds itself in. There is no doubt, in my view, that there is a disconnect between the people of the EU and those that make decisions at EU level, and that this is being intensified by the very solutions required to resolve deep economic problems facing countries all over Europe and which we have been luckily spared in Gibraltar.

4070 Public disillusionment with the EU in the UK and elsewhere is at an all time high. The five principles which the Prime Minister outlined as part of his vision for the European Union fit for the 21st century may resonate in a small community such as ours and an economy such as ours: competitiveness and the importance of the integrity of the single market; flexibility and the importance of not being weighed down by a 'one size fits all' approach to European integration; the importance of recognising that not everything can or should be harmonised, particularly in the areas of social affairs or crime, where people at local level are far more adept at making these decisions than at central level; democratic accountability and the principle that national parliaments are and will remain a true source of democratic legitimacy to the people; finally, fairness in the way arrangements for the Eurozone are enacted, which is of course important to Britain and Gibraltar because we are both outside the single currency.

4080 Mr Speaker, much of what he said made sense to me personally.

Of particular resonance to Gibraltar, perhaps, is the way he developed his first principle that, and I quote:

4085 'At the core of the European Union must be, as it is now, the single market. ... But when the Single Market remains incomplete in services, energy, and digital – the very sectors that are the engine of a modern economy – it is only half the success it could be.'

4090 I say 'particular resonance', because I am sure the Chief Minister and the Minister with responsibility for gaming will remind Government Ministers in the UK of precisely that principle and statement, when they discuss with them the decision of the United Kingdom to tax bets at source and the completeness in the single market in the provision of such services that that entails.

But Mr Speaker, much as I admired the courage behind his speech and the persuasiveness of what he said, his speech has huge implications for Gibraltar.

4095 Should the Conservative Party win, the UK will have an in-out referendum. Personally, I do not believe the UK will vote to leave the EU. Since 2004, Britain has been the destination for one in five of all inward investment into the EU. Continued success in that regard is dependent on access to the single market. Therefore, British businesses and jobs are dependent on it. As the Prime Minister put it, if the UK left the European Union, it would be a one-way ticket, not a return.

But it is those very same reasons and many more that should be of concern to us here in Gibraltar. Our financial sector, our gaming sector, our attractiveness as a financial centre generally, our relationship with 4100 our neighbours to the north, as the Chief Minister likes to call them, would be fundamentally affected by a decision of the UK to opt out of Europe. As everyone in this House knows, we are members of the EU by virtue of UK membership.

4105 Whilst we transpose our own Directives in this Parliament and there may be EU measures where Gibraltar is referred to and dealt with separately to the UK, our membership of the club derives from UK membership of that club. One of the issues which need to be considered, however far-fetched it may have been a few years ago, is whether it is possible to remain within the club, if the UK exits. I am not asking the Chief Minister to provide me with a view across the floor of this House, for obvious reasons, nor whether that has formed part of his discussions with the United Kingdom, recently. I am quite happy for him to brief me in private.

4110 But even if it were possible, it could have deep constitutional implications for our relationship with the United Kingdom in the long run. Indeed, having a referendum here in Gibraltar, in the context of a wider UK referendum, important as it would be for the principle of public participation and consent, it would, from a practical point of view, be like a drop in the ocean, when, if viewed simply, as part of a UK referendum, unless any re-negotiated terms worked for us or we had the ability to make a different decision to the United Kingdom.

4115 And that is really the key issue for us. Will we be able to influence any terms, so that they work for us and will we be able to do anything other than what 62 million others in the United Kingdom may vote for?

4120 If it is possible for us to influence the terms of any re-negotiation, our efforts must be directed at that and, in my view, early and continued engagement of the United Kingdom Government at every material step of the way is vital. But for whatever reason we cannot influence those terms, we need to look at the affect of any emerging package on our social, political and economic structures and plan ahead as to how we are going to meet those challenges.

4125 They do not have to be mutually exclusive and, indeed, engagement of the UK, even if we cannot influence any terms, will allow us to formulate a clearer picture of the implications for Gibraltar.

4130 Mr Speaker, I do not say that the way that I have proposed to deal with this issue in the motion, i.e. a meeting between us to explore the creation of a cross-party committee, is the only way; but I believe it is a good constructive start. This is an issue which, in my view, has such deep political, social economic and constitutional implications that it does require a cross-party consensus approach. Although I make no dogmatic assertion of the fact, it is my belief that the general public would welcome the cross-party cooperation on this potentially among the most important issues Gibraltar may ever have to face.

I therefore commend this motion to the House.

4135 Mr Speaker: I now propose the motion in the terms moved by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

4140 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I think it is fair to say that the hon. Gentleman put his motion before he heard the answer to his question which dealt with issues relating to progress in respect of discussions in respect of the same subject matter, and which I answered yesterday. So, to a very great extent, a lot of what he has said this afternoon or evening, he will know has been dealt with in the answer that I gave him when I talked about the early engagement that there had been, long before the Prime Minister's speech at Bloomberg, between my Government and the Government of the United Kingdom on this issue.

4145 I think that I saw from his demeanour yesterday that he was positive about how the Government had led on that issue, in particular the fact that the Government made clear that we had had a very early indication, from what we were perceiving from the news media in the UK, that things were going in this particular direction – in particular, the constitution by the Foreign Secretary of the balance of competences review, which, as I told him during the course of my answer, Gibraltar has formed a full part of.

4150 But I think it is fair to say a number of things whilst trying to retain the neutrality of this debate and what I recognise, if it were ever to become a reality, would be an important social-economic issue for Gibraltar. Mr Speaker, I believe that when people truly want to co-operate with each other – and I have said this before – they pick up the phone and they talk to each other. They do not put motions. They certainly do not, Mr Speaker, Twitter that they are going to try and create a cross-party consensus.

4155 Mr Speaker, I am particularly surprised that those who have criticised Members of this side of the House for making statements on Facebook should have made statements on another social network about things which then materialise into a motion.

4160 But I am going to suspend my disbelief and I am going to deal with this matter on the basis that it has been put by the hon. Gentleman, as if it were a neutral attempt to work together; but he will know, Mr Speaker, that I said the same thing two years ago, when Mr Caruana said in public what were the criteria he was going to set out for me to attend the United Nations with him, when I was Leader of the Opposition. I said then, as I say now, Mr Speaker, that my phone line is open and my door is open to any Member opposite who wishes to co-operate with the Government. If they truly want to co-operate with the Government, they are free to get in touch and we can consider whether that co-operation is possible.

4165 Excuse me, Mr Speaker, for being sceptical when the invitation to co-operate appears for the first time in a motion and we are not contacted before that motion is put; but I will suspend my disbelief and I will deal with this as if it were not a political device designed to garner some support for an attempt – a purported attempt – to be constructive or positive. So I will deal with the motion as if it were genuinely put, and I accept the hon. Gentleman’s position that it is genuinely put.

4170 Mr Speaker, as I told him yesterday, because we have been working on this subject now for over a year, we have made a lot of progress in understanding, at the technical level, where it is that the United Kingdom is taking this matter.

4175 It was obvious to us that the writing was on the wall that the Leader of the Conservative Party was likely to be put in a situation where a similar statement to that made by the Rt Hon. the Prime Minister was imminent.

4180 So, Mr Speaker, the engagement began very early and it began both at a political, official and technical level, and the work has been ongoing. As I told the hon. Gentleman yesterday, because this is such a sensitive issue at every level... he has said social and economic and cultural, and the issue of our neighbours to the north, Spain. He could refer to them in many ways; Spain and our neighbours to the north is one way of referring to them.

4185 Of course this does raise a lot of issues, but Mr Speaker, that does not mean, in our view, that the engagement must be exclusively political at this stage. It may be that things do become much more concerning to the Government, and at that stage there may be a need for a cross-party political engagement, but I think it is important to take stock of where we are today. The hon. Gentleman has alluded to this, and I think it is important that I develop the point further.

4190 There are three main political parties in the United Kingdom today represented in the House of Commons. Two of them are in Government. This is quite an extraordinary thing for the United Kingdom: two of them are in Government. The leaders of all three of those main political parties are of one mind. They all three say that the United Kingdom should stay within the European Union and, to different extents, talk about wanting to have a new agreement on Europe.

4195 We can speculate as to what the party politics behind that may be, but we are facing a situation not where one party leader is talking about wanting to leave the European Union and two are not; we are talking about three party leaders talking about remaining in the European Union, one of them saying more vociferously than the other two, ‘We need to renegotiate the terms.’ Hence the balance of competences review, which was designed to understand, at a UK level, to what extent has the European Union flowed into EU law.

4200 It would have been dangerous, Mr Speaker, in our view, not to engage technically with the UK whilst it is doing that exercise, and we are technically engaged with the UK in that exercise. As I told the hon. Member, we are also working with the Future of Europe Department, which is a department now of the Foreign Office, to understand technically where the negotiations are going and ensure that the issue of Gibraltar is at the forefront – because, of course, our neighbours to the north would want to take advantage of any such renegotiation to do that which they try to do on an everyday basis, despite the United Kingdom’s, today, full membership of the EU, as it is today, and Gibraltar’s membership with it under the provisions of the Treaty.

4205 So, Mr Speaker, we agree it is fundamentally important to be on the front foot on this issue. We have been on the front foot on this issue, even before it was in the headlines. The fact is, Mr Speaker, that we could get to a stage where Gibraltar wants more Europe than the UK. In other words, not where the United Kingdom has the leader of one of its principal political parties urging, in a referendum, should the Conservative Party win the next election, that people vote for an exit to Europe if they have not been able to negotiate a satisfactory new engagement with Europe. We could reach a much more interesting, and therefore potentially complex situation, where the Conservative Prime Minister, if he has won the election, has managed to renegotiate the terms of entry into the EU, but that is not enough Europe for us. In other words, the UK stays in but with less Europe, and there are parts of that new understanding where Gibraltar wants more Europe than the United Kingdom.

4225 Now, in reverse, we could have those issues materialising during the course of the negotiations that the United Kingdom is doing in order for a next Conservative Prime Minister, if there is to be one, to recommend that the United Kingdom stay within the European Union to his party and to the country. So, Mr Speaker, I think it is actually potentially much more sophisticated than just a Brit exit referendum that we may be looking at, although of course that is a possibility.

4230 Now, Mr Speaker, how to deal with those issues in a way that I think addresses the necessary concern that we must all have to ensure that we are dealing with it: well, Mr Speaker, what I am going to commend to the House is that we continue to do it as we are doing it, at an intergovernmental level, which is where the issue is and should be today, both at official level, at a technical level and at political level.

4235 Mr Speaker, there is an issue here that we also need to understand, which is that Gibraltar has sometimes done very effectively, which is to deal not just with parties in government in the United Kingdom, but to have, as we have had very successfully, a cross-party support for Gibraltar's position in the United Kingdom.

4240 Why do I say that, Mr Speaker? We are all politicians in this House – except Mr Speaker, who has now graduated to a much finer post than that of a mere politician – but the polls in the United Kingdom today suggest that there may be a different party in government in the UK after the next General Election. I am not going to speculate about the polls, but let us all at least agree that we are far enough away from the General Election in the United Kingdom that which party will form government in the United Kingdom after the election is not yet clear.

4245 The Labour Party has a position today in respect of these issues, which the Leader of the Labour Party, the Rt. Hon. Mr Miliband, has said may develop, because there are a lot of UK General Election issues live about whether people are offered the choice in respect of Europe, or not offered the choice in respect of Europe.

4250 What I want the hon. Gentleman to understand from that is that my particular view is that we need to be engaging at an intergovernmental level as a Government, but we also need to be engaging with the All-Party Gibraltar Group and we need to be engaging with our respective contacts in all the British political parties to ensure that people understand there is a Gibraltar dimension to this UK issue.

4255 Mr Speaker, there are, for the reasons that the hon. Gentleman has enumerated, and I believe I have also gone through from a different point of view, many contingencies between today and where a potential referendum on Europe – exit or new agreement – might be put to the British people; so many that, short of doing that official and technical engagement at a political intergovernmental level, pursuing the point, there is very little to discuss, other than what do we do in a doomsday scenario.

4260 The hon. Gentleman has said many things in the way that he introduced his motion. He said that he wants us to put aside personal likes or dislikes when dealing with this motion and perhaps coming together to discuss this issue.

Let's be very clear, Mr Speaker: I neither harbour nor will harbour a grudge in respect of any matter, in respect of any Member of this House – any Member of this House – that might prevent me from acting in concert with any Member of this House, or all Members of the House, on matters which are in Gibraltar's best interest.

4265 Absolutely no question of likes or dislikes affecting the way that we should approach this and where there needs to be a cross-party approach. Likes or dislikes are so irrelevant that, in my view, they need not even be mentioned; but the hon. Gentleman has mentioned it, so I put it there for him to know that he need not mention it again, because on Gibraltar issues, where Gibraltar needs to come first, where there are serious issues that face us politically, socially, culturally or otherwise, he will always be able to approach the Government, if he wishes, and the Government expects it will always be able to approach Members opposite to seek consensus and a way forward in the interest of our community.

4270 Could it be any other way? Well, Mr Speaker, I put it to all Members that it could not, it should not; it never has been the case and it never can be the case if we are truly Gibraltarians who care about Gibraltar first. He knows, Mr Speaker, that it is my view that, where we can work on a cross-party basis, we should, where it is necessary.

4275 But Mr Speaker, for all of those reasons, we have taken the view that what he has proposed, which is to meet, to discuss, to create a cross-party committee... To create such a committee is not what is necessary today, but that is not to say that nothing is necessary today.

4280 So, Mr Speaker, what I am going to propose on behalf of the Government, trying to maintain that neutrality of approach and that attempt to find consensus... Mr Speaker, in order to make it easier for Members to understand – I am going to propose amendments to the motion – I am quite happy to circulate to Members a note of what it is that I am going to propose, so that they can see for themselves what it is that the amendment will do and why I recommend it to the House.

4285 I am going to propose an amendment, Mr Speaker, taking the motion as it stands, that does the following. I will move the word 'Notes' from where it appears, Mr Speaker, to put it at the beginning of the first paragraph, so: 'This House: (1) Notes the statements made by the Prime Minister of the United 4290 Kingdom, – and I think, Mr Speaker, that we need to take out ‘Mr David Cameron’ and put in ‘The Rt Hon David Cameron’ and then insert ‘MP’, because we are referring to the Prime Minister in an official document of this Parliament – ‘during the course of a speech at Bloomberg on 23 January 2013, that he plans to renegotiate parts of the UK’s relations with Europe and put that changed membership package to the British people in an in-out referendum by the end of 2017 should the Conservative Party win a majority at the 2015 General Election,’ – and then I would insert ‘in the United Kingdom’.

4295 Mr Speaker, I do not share the view that that is what the Bloomberg speech is about, but the characterisation of it is sufficiently neutral and that I am quite happy to accept it for the purposes of this motion.

Mr Speaker, we would then delete and propose the deletion of (2) and the final paragraph as they stand, and we would propose to insert this wording:

4300 (2) CONSIDERS that the potential withdrawal of the UK from the EU is therefore dependent on a number of variables which are impossible to predict at this moment in time;

(3) WELCOMES that the Government had already discussed the matter at an intergovernmental level with the United Kingdom even before the Prime Minister’s speech;

4305 – Mr Speaker, I recognise that the hon. Gentleman did not have that information until after he had put his motion and after I answered his question –

4310 (4) NOTES the commitment made by the Chief Minister earlier in this meeting to keep the Leader of the Opposition informed on a confidential basis;

– which he will recall is what I agreed to do yesterday, when he asked me to do that as a result of the question –

4315 and

(5) REQUESTS that Parliament be kept informed of any significant developments in this regard.

4320 Then, Mr Speaker, I have set out the motion as it would read thereafter, so that hon. Members can see it.

4325 Speaking to that amendment, Mr Speaker, I would say this: what the hon. Gentleman’s motion did was say let us meet and consider the creation of a cross-party committee; what this motion, as amended, would do is to keep that principle alive in the context of my giving him confidential briefings, as I said yesterday during the course of Question Time that I would do. They cannot be otherwise, other than by meeting, and we may have to speak on the phone on some occasions but I am quite happy to meet to give him those confidential briefings.

Because we then agree, Mr Speaker, or the House requests in this motion, that we keep the Parliament informed, then absent those things which are confidential, the House will also have such information as it is possible to give the House.

4330 Why am I so keen on that confidentiality, Mr Speaker, and why am I prepared to share the information confidentially with the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition? For this reason, Mr Speaker: as I told him during the course of the question yesterday and the short exchange that we had with it, I think that he and I have already said things which have dealt with the sensitivity of this matter for our community, and I think it is important that we do not lay a trail, whether it be for our neighbours to the north or anybody else that might harbour our community ill intent, that we actually take advantage of the opportunity that there is, as I am offering it to him today, for there to be confidential exchanges between the Leader of the Opposition and the Chief Minister on subjects of these sorts, which are of national importance, and come back to this Parliament when necessary and when we are able to do so. Mr Speaker, I will, of course, trust him with that confidential information, as a Member of this House.

4340 I have said before, Mr Speaker, that I believe that the United Kingdom benefits from having the status of Privy Councillors, which certain senior Members of the House of Commons on both sides enjoy and are able to share information which is in the public interest which they need to have should they, in emergencies or otherwise, be making decisions or making statements.

4345 I think this is an opportunity to have that meeting that he proposed in his motion – but not to have one meeting in order to create a select committee, but to have a number of meetings where I brief him and share confidential information as it comes to me, come back to this House if necessary, and then, perhaps jointly, if necessary, move a motion to create a select committee of the House.

4350 I actually believe that there is nothing that he and I cannot do in such confidential engagement – and decide, if necessary, to agree to work together on – that we need to do sitting in this Chamber round the table of the select committee; because, Mr Speaker, I must tell you, in order to have such a select committee, if we were to have one, I would have to ask that committee to sit in camera, and therefore, Mr Speaker, I do not believe that select committees sitting in camera is the way that we should be going forward.

4355 The hon. Gentleman has from me, in the speech I made when he became Leader of the Opposition, that I would be generous in the way that I dealt with him whilst he holds that post. I am extending that generosity by amending the motion to set in train there the commitment that I gave yesterday, in answer to the question, to share information with him confidentially on this subject, to work together confidentially, as we may.

4360 Of course, Mr Speaker, we can agree that he share information with his Members of Parliament. I consider that all of us have taken an oath to this place, and that information which I give him we can agree can be shared with them, and we can work together as we decide we have to, if we have to, on any of these issues.

4365 I put it to him, Mr Speaker, and I put it to the House, that this is the responsible way to progress, so that we can have a motion that all of us support, that is in the interest of Gibraltar, that creates the cross-party atmosphere that is necessary with the confidentiality that is also very necessary to ensure that we protect the interests of this community should matters become as sensitive as they could, and in the already quite sensitive circumstances that I have alluded to and in respect of which I have already offered him yesterday, in answer to his question, an element of confidential briefing and working together.

4370 Mr Speaker, he said things, when he introduced his motion, which he couched in neutral terms, which I did not take, as he knows now, in neutral terms. I preceded my intervention by dealing with those neutral terms equally neutrally. I hope that those are now behind us. This is too important. The amendment that I am proposing, I believe, deals with these issues, so I assume he may want to speak on the amendment, but Mr Speaker I commend the amended motion to the House.

4375 Mr Speaker: I now propose the question which is the amendment moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

That means that all Members of the House are able to speak on his amendment, including, of course, the Leader of the Opposition, if he wishes to do so now.

4380 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes.

Given that I have the opportunity of effectively, certainly on my motion, speaking last, I will say a few words on the neutral statements that the Hon. the Chief Minister made, and then I will focus on the substance of it.

4385 Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister talked about early engagement and he reiterated the fact that there had been early engagement with the United Kingdom. I certainly welcome that during our exchanges during Chief Minister's Question Time, and I do not resile from that. The purpose of the question that I asked was to establish whether there had been early engagement. I welcome it and I congratulate the Chief Minister for having had that early engagement.

4390 Mr Speaker, he also said that perhaps the purpose of the motion had been to garner support by projecting ourselves as being constructive. Well, look, the reality is you are either constructive or you are not constructive, and the fact of the matter is that we believe that this motion was a constructive step by the Opposition to extend the hand of political friendship to the Government of the day on an issue that is extremely important to this community.

4395 He also mentioned my Twitter on the subject of the suggestion of a cross-party committee. I do not think that one can elevate that to the same level of announcements on Facebook in relation to the fishing dispute, with respect to the Chief Minister.

4400 I believe that members of the public are entitled to know what the Opposition's policy in relation to this is. I was asked by constituents what is the Opposition's policy in relation to this, because there is a concern out there in the community on this issue – rightly so, because it is an important issue – and I took advantage of tweeting and basically setting out what the Opposition's... Well, my view – because, in fact, I think that I tweeted it before I became Leader of the GSD – is that I believe that there ought to be a cross-party committee established to actually discuss this and all the permutations. I thought I would clarify that before I deal with the substance responding to my motion and also talking on the amended motion.

4405 Mr Speaker, we will be supporting the amended motion. I certainly said that there was more than one way one can skin a cat during the course of my submissions on my motion, and certainly we believe that, although it does not go far enough, it is constructive enough to be able to have the Opposition's support.

I certainly think that the Hon. the Chief Minister is minimising the potential impact of this, because his focus has been on the in-out aspect of the referendum. In other words, his focus, and indeed the way that he has amended the motion in paragraph (2), says:

4410

4415

I have actually said there were a number of variables and a number of preconditions to in fact a referendum taking place, but it is not... I think that the issue that will face Gibraltar, and the more important issue, is not whether the UK will leave the EU; I actually think that the UK will not leave the EU and the people of the United Kingdom will not vote for leaving the EU. The issue is the impact of any renegotiated package; in other words, the terms upon which any agreed terms of any renegotiated membership of the UK within the EU. That certainly is a possibility. I think it is a real possibility, and that is what we really need to be considering.

4420

I think that the amended motion, with respect to the Hon. the Chief Minister, does not really consider the potential impact of this issue and the potential importance of this issue in the way that I had drafted in my own motion, which was much wider, which was to consider how, potentially, the UK might renegotiate its membership and how that renegotiation impacts on Gibraltar.

4425

Having said that, I certainly believe that, myself... It gives me an opportunity... What the Hon. the Chief Minister is suggesting gives me the opportunity of sitting down with the Chief Minister, talking to him about my thoughts on the matter and how I think that there might be an impact, and what are the areas that I think that the Government ought to be alert to, and it gives me an opportunity, certainly, to influence any discussions that the Hon. the Chief Minister may have with the United Kingdom.

4430

Therefore, I think it is worthwhile, we welcome it, and that is why we are going to be voting in favour of it, but I would urge on the Chief Minister to look at it not in terms of the in-out referendum. I did notice yesterday, when he was answering questions, when he answered the question that I asked on this issue, that he made great play, rightly, on the fact that there are discussions at a very advanced stage of Gibraltar participating in any referendum.

4435

I actually think that that is, with respect to the democratic principle of consent, a subsidiary issue, because we could be landed in a situation, by the time that we get to the question of a referendum – and bearing in mind that that referendum is seen in the context of a referendum with 62 million people – of really being saddled with a situation which we cannot affect and we cannot alter.

4440

My concern is trying to look for ways in which we can engage the UK, identify areas that are of concern to Gibraltar that the UK ought to take into account, and that that be included within any discussions there may be in the UK about renegotiations on any renegotiated package of EU membership.

So we certainly will be voting in favour of the amended motion, and I hope that this is one of many occasions in which the Government and Opposition, on issues that affect Gibraltar and that are of vital importance to Gibraltar, can co-operate across the floor of this House.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to contribute to the amendment proposed by the Chief Minister?

If not, I will ask the Chief Minister to exercise his right to reply on the amendment.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful.

I thank the hon. Gentleman for having extended his congratulations to the Government and to me personally, as he did a moment ago, for having secured this engagement, as we have now for some time.

4455

Mr Speaker, I do not want to labour the point about Twitter – I think this is much more important than that – but I am reminded of the fact that, in fact, it was the leader of the PDP, Nicholas Cruz, who came up with this issue of a cross-party approach, and that is what, actually, the hon. Gentleman's tweet was about, agreeing with Nick, which is what gave rise to this Coalition Government, I think, in the United Kingdom – and I agree with Nick – during the leaders' debate in the United Kingdom. But anyway, that is just colour.

Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman for agreeing his side's support for this motion.

The one issue that he has taken, which is that he says that our motion is limited to the principle of the potential withdrawal, I would invite him to reconsider, for this reason... Although he is going to support it, I would invite him to reconsider supporting with the caveat that it should be wider, for this reason: we have not changed his paragraph number (1) and his paragraph number (1), as drafted, and the reason we have not changed it is because his paragraph number (1) talks about putting the changed membership package to the British people in an in-out referendum.

Mr Speaker, I told him, when I spoke originally, that I did not accept that that was an accurate characterisation of the Prime Minister's speech, necessarily, but that I did not think much turned on it.

4470 Mr Speaker, the Prime Minister has left open the possibility that what is put to the British people is actually just ‘Let’s get out; there is no satisfactory renegotiation.’ And so, in the realms of what a Conservative Party may put – having jumped through all the contingencies that we have discussed – in 2017 to the British people, there is ‘Let us stay as we are,’ ‘Let us stay on these renegotiated terms,’ or ‘Let us just get out, because we have not been able to renegotiate in any way.’

4475 The way he has put it is not that sophisticated, if I may say so, but it is actually quite satisfactory for the purposes of what this House has to do today, hence why I accepted it, but it sets out – if I may, I will give way in a moment – but it sets out that there is that potential of a changed membership package, and that is actually what concerns us the most.

4480 Because I do not think that it is likely, given the politics of today, that there will be a ‘Let’s get out’ referendum. There is more likely to be a ‘Let’s accept this renegotiated package’ referendum, which is what he has put in his motion, and that is what creates the possibility that there may be, actually, a danger in the new package for Gibraltar.

Exiting the EU creates the concerns that are as massive as the hon. Gentleman and I have agreed. Staying as we are today creates the concerns that we all have about the EU, although we have the advantages that we have.

4485 But look, I guess that all of us were as disappointed as the other in respect of the way that the European Court of Justice dealt with the SAC on a technical point, and in particular the way that they appointed a Spanish judge, who used to represent the Kingdom of Spain, making the arguments that were the arguments that we were putting in that case. So the EU today has failings, even for those who are supporters of the EU.

4490 So, Mr Speaker, if he will allow me, I say to him the motion, as redrafted, allows the possibility of new membership package and the possibility of withdrawal already in it, but what it does is create the mechanism, already implicit in my answer yesterday, for that exchange to which he referred to earlier.

Mr Speaker –

4495 Hon. D A Feetham: Will he give way?

Hon. Chief Minister: Oh yes, the hon. Gentleman wants to make a point.

4500 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I do not think that the hon. Gentleman really is accurately characterising the speech or the position of the Prime Minister in the United Kingdom.

What he has actually said in the United Kingdom is that he is not going to be putting to the people of Gibraltar... It is not his view, nor the policy of his party or the Coalition, to put the issue of leaving the EU in a vacuum. What he is saying is, ‘I am going to be asking...’ In fact, he says in his speech:

4505 ‘The next Conservative Manifesto in 2015 will ask for a mandate from the British people for a Conservative Government to negotiate a new settlement with our European partners in the next Parliament.’

It is that renegotiated package that he will then put to the people of the United Kingdom in a referendum in a question: either this renegotiated package, or out; not our existing status and out. It is the renegotiated package and out.

4510 What I am saying is that the dangers for Gibraltar are not in the out – I think that the UK will not out from the European Union; it is in those renegotiated terms, and it is the renegotiated terms that I am urging the Chief Minister to focus upon, and it is influencing those renegotiated terms that I am urging the Chief Minister to focus upon.

4515 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we agree, and what is happening is that I am saying, ‘Look, the motion gives us, as amended – keeping your wording on the package and our wording on potential withdrawal – enough room to do that.’

If we are genuine about co-operating, then the wording on the motion is not going to affect that, because all we are saying is what is the characterisation one way or the other.

4520 So let us just, in my view, Mr Speaker, if we are going to go down the road of agreeing, let us take the step of agreeing this motion in these terms, and let us start the work, as soon as we are able, of talking about these issues face to face, subject to the confidentiality that I have referred the hon. Gentleman to.

4525 I think that it is important that we should start to do that, whether it is on this subject, Mr Speaker, or perhaps on another. Because it is important that the community, when it values the work that politicians do in this place and assess what it is that politicians in this Parliament provide for our community, they should not just define our contributions as having been able to make a better or worse pithy statement across the floor of the House when we are dealing with each other at Question Time, that we have actually bitten the bullet, where it is necessary to do so, in order to have these exchanges.

4530 I tell him and I tell the community – and it is important that the community have this in mind – that the Government has taken the steps necessary, to date, to take these steps, and I acknowledge his congratulations for us having done so, for having had the foresight to do so and engage technically, officially and politically, as we have to date, and I am prepared to include him in my confidences in respect of those issues so that, if necessary, we can act together if the time should ever come.

4535 This would be an issue of great importance nationally, as much as the issue of joint sovereignty may have been in its day.

So, Mr Speaker, just on the amendment as proposed, I now sit down.

4540 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the amendment moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

What is now before the House is the amended motion, and that means that any hon. Member, except the Chief Minister, is able to speak on the amended motion.

If no hon. Member wishes to speak on the amended motion, then the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition can exercise his right to reply on the motion.

4545 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have already exercised effectively my right to reply, and I am very grateful to the Chief Minister for giving way so that I could further explain what our position is in relation to the importance of focusing on the renegotiation of those terms.

4550 Clerk: Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I think I should now put the amended motion to the House. I now put the question, which is the motion originally moved by the Leader of the Opposition, as amended by the Chief Minister, do be carried. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

4555

TABLING OF DRAFT ESTIMATES OF REVENUE AND EXPENDITURE 2013-14

Ruling by Mr Speaker

4560

Mr Speaker: Before the Chief Minister moves the adjournment, there is a matter of clarification that I want to acquaint the House with.

Section 69(1) of the Constitution requires that the draft estimates of revenue and expenditure for the next financial year should be laid before Parliament not later than 30th April this year.

4565

Having regard to the fact that the House is going to be refurbished, that is not going to be possible. Therefore, what I am ruling is that the requirements of that section of the Constitution will be satisfied by the delivery of the estimates to hon. Members on a confidential basis, even though no formal tabling will have taken place and I understand, in fact, that that has been the practice in recent years.

4570

Clerk: The Chief Minister.

CONDOLENCES

4575

Condolences to Mr Hubert Corby, former Member of the House on the death of his wife

4580 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, before the Chief Minister rises, presumably to adjourn... If he is not going to rise to adjourn, I will sit down, but if he is rising to adjourn...

May I, certainly on behalf of this side of the House – and I am sure that I speak also for Members opposite – extend my sincerest condolences to Mr Hubert Corby, who was a Member of this House for a number of years, whose wife, unfortunately, sadly passed away today.

We, certainly on this side of the House, feel the sad loss, not only for him, but for many of us who knew Mrs Corby personally. She was a delightful lady and a member of the GSD for many many years.

Mr Speaker: I must associate myself with... It has been a shock to me. Both Hubert Corby and Mariola were personal friends of mine.

4590 Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment (Hon. J J Bossano): I am glad the hon. Member has remembered to bring this matter up, because in fact Hubert had friends who crossed the political spectrum, and Mariola as well. They were very close friends of both Rose and myself, and clearly we share the feeling of loss.

4595 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, may I associate the whole Government with those feelings of condolence to an ex-Member, who has actually been a Minister as well as being just a Member of this House.

ADJOURNMENT

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn.

4605 But before I do, Mr Speaker, may I simply ask hon. Members to reflect for a moment that this is the last time that we will see the House like this.

As they know, the House will not meet again until the May session. The works to strip away almost 50 years of panelling and the (Interjection and laughter) fossils that have grown begins tomorrow in order that the work can be done on time.

4610 I had my fingers crossed that everybody would agree to take the Committee Stages today; otherwise, we might have found ourselves with more than just a mace to deal with in the morning.

Mr Speaker, this has been a place where history has been made in this particular incarnation, and I trust that, with the work of all the Members here, whatever it is that we may be trying to achieve on a particular issue, it will be a place where, in its new incarnation, we will continue to make history for the good of our nation.

I now move that the House do now adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the adjournment to hon. Members, may I just remark that, shortly after hon. Members elevated me to this high position, someone asked me, 'How did you find the House?' I said, 'Well, after 20 years, I found it the same, only much worse.' (Laughter) So, when we next come, it is going to be very much an eye opener, and one looks forward to that.

I will now propose the adjournment of the House sine die. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

4625

The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 9.15 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

AFTERNOON SESSION: 3.00 p.m. – 5.50 p.m.

Gibraltar, Wednesday, 15th May 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.00 p.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE, in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: M L Farrell Esq RD in attendance]

PRAYER

Mr Speaker

5 Mr Speaker: At this juncture I am going to ask the Chief Minister because he would like to address the House following the sad death of the Hon. Charles Bruzon.

In Memoriam

Hon. Charles Bruzon

10 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this is the first time that the House will have to mourn the passing of a Member from the Government Benches.

15 His passing is, for the House, quite like the passing of any Member, whatever side he might sit on. He is one of us that has passed in the lifetime of this Parliament whilst he was a servant of the House and whether he was sitting today on the Opposition benches or on the Government Benches, we have lost one of us.

I know that people from across the House have already indicated the affection and the regard in which they held Charles Bruzon. Speaking for the Government, I think I reflect the views also of the whole House when I say that he will be very sadly missed. He was very sadly missed when he was not here as a 20 result of illness and hon. Members opposite expressed sentiments wishing him a recovery, much as those of us on this side of the House very much hoped that he would soon be with us.

I will take this comfort and I hope that hon. Members across the floor take this comfort also, the words you have spoken in the Prayer opening the session are not the words of the Prayer as it used to be before this Parliament. The prayer was changed, principally as a result of Charles' desire to update it –
25 and I think with your assistance – into the words that we have heard you utter today. So, all of us will note that every time we hear that prayer at the beginning of every session of this Parliament we are hearing Charles' words.

Before I sit down and call for a minute's silence, I will give way to the Hon. the Leader of the 30 Opposition if he wishes to say anything.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, on behalf of the Opposition, on this occasion, I wish to associate myself entirely with the words of the Chief Minister.

He not only has spoken on behalf of those on that side of the bench but he also speaks, on this 35 occasion, for those on this side of the bench.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, therefore without more, I would call on all hon. Members to keep silent for one minute in honour of the late Charles Bruzon.

40

Refurbished Chamber
Thanks to all involved in project

Mr Speaker: Before we proceed any further, we are making history, of course, as we sit here in this 45 refurbished Chamber at this very moment. It is a far cry from the Chamber that we had for decades, perhaps since the 1950s, which was drear and unprepossessing.

I think, whatever one might say, this is an enormous improvement. I am reliably informed that the 50 fossils of the cockroaches have been consigned to the dustbin of history and whilst we may have a few teething troubles over the next few days, I am sure we are all much happier to see something that befits the times in which we live.

I would like to congratulate on my own behalf all those who have worked in refurbishing the Chamber, for the very hard work that has been put in, in a very, very limited period of time. So I thank all the workers and all those involved with the project on behalf of all of us.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, thank you for those words.

This refurbishment is the fulfilment of a manifesto commitment of the Party today in Government and I think it is worth saying that thanks must go, in particular, to your staff for not just putting up with the works whilst they were ongoing – we were not able to move them out to other offices – they have had to 60 put up with the work, much as one sometimes has to put up with work at home whilst kitchens or bathrooms are refurbished and we all understand the annoyance that that causes! But they have not just done that, they have also been a source of guidance for those who were in charge of the refurbishment, giving hints and tips here and there of how the refurbishment should take into consideration the peculiar workings of a Parliament such as this one.

So, thank you, Mr Speaker, to you and to your staff for not just putting up with the works but also for 65 the input you have provided in the period. I think thanks must go, on behalf of the community, to those who have been involved in the 'nitty gritty' of the work, in particular GJBS and their sub-contractors for, as usual, delivering this project – an excellent product and all of it on time. Timing is particularly important when dealing with an institution like Parliament that now meets on a monthly basis and had foregone one of its meetings in order to ensure that the work of the refurbishment could progress. I think 70 this demonstrates GJBS's ability to deliver on Government projects, on time and as a 'best in class' company that delivers excellent results.

I think, because this is the Chamber of Gibraltar's Parliament, it is also important to highlight that all of the woodwork that we see around us, even the panels that we see, the furniture and the chairs, some of which come from that debating Chamber from the 1950s and have been re-done, have been produced in 75 Gibraltar by Gibraltarian craftsmen. I think, in particular, in this Chamber, that is an important point to make and I wish to thank them for having been able to deliver on time.

Mr Speaker, in coming days and during the course of the debates that I expect we will have during the course of the consideration of the Independent Commissions Report, this House will be considering the use of the cameras that we now see have been installed in order to broadcast the proceedings of this 80 Parliament, once we have adopted the rules relevant to broadcasting etc. I think that will be a very important step forward for our community, when this Chamber will not just have been brightened up, it will also be opened up to the whole community so that they can see what is ongoing and the work that we do here.

85 Today I understand that the cameras are on, simply for the purposes of testing. Nobody will be able to access the images that the cameras produce today but Members of the House will be able to see, in order to inform the debate that we have, what it is that the cameras do, what sort of angles they produce, so that we can then make a determination of whether or not we agree to the broadcasting, having seen the sorts of images that are going to be produced... but I do hope that the Budget debate this year will be a Budget debate that people can watch in glorious technicolour and not just listen to in Dolby.

90 Mr Speaker, I think it is important to thank Carl Viagas, who has led for the Government as Project Manager on this project. He has delivered now, for successive administrations, a number of different projects and his work is always to the standard that is required of him by the Taxpayer, so sincere thanks for the delivery of this first phase of the works and, in particular, to the Deputy Chief Minister who has led politically for the Government on this particular project. As usual, anything that the Deputy Chief Minister touches is delivered on time and to the usual very high standard, so thank you also from 95 Ministerial colleagues to him.

Mr Speaker, you have had circulated to all of us new rules on how to use the technology. It is just a button for a microphone but it triggers all sorts of technology nowadays! I think you have indicated that we should see how we go in using this new system of getting up but not speaking, seeking your eye in order to make points. It may be that it is not as workable as we need it to be for the Parliament to have life: it may be the price of bringing cameras into the House. I know you are keen to see how we go with it, so I am grateful that you have given us an indication of how you would like to see us use the technology. From this side of the House, of course, you can count on our co-operation – and I am sure from both sides of the House – so that whenever somebody is speaking, somebody else pressing the microphone button does not interfere with that, in particular for the purposes of Hansard, so that we always have a record of what is said in this House.

I think today is a momentous occasion but only the beginning because we still have to refurbish the ante-Chamber to provide more offices and to provide spaces for Members of Parliament on both sides of the House to be able to do their work, for Select Committees to be able to carry out their deliberations and, in terms of the access to the Parliament, also to ensure that there is an accessible entrance for those who may not be able to negotiate the stairs.

Thank you, Mr Speaker, for the opportunity to record the changes in our Parliament.

I am reliably informed that the carcasses of the cockroaches have not been confined to the dustbin of history, they are being studied by Dr Cortes every evening to determine exactly what species they were!

Hon. D A Feetham: Now, Mr Speaker, thank you very much.

The Opposition, too, would wish to congratulate everybody involved in relation to this project. I know Carl Viagas very well. Carl Viagas helped me immensely in relation to both the Prison project and also the Court project, which was a very difficult project indeed and I see that there are similarities in the internal décor of the Magistrates' Court and, indeed, the Supreme Court to some of the furniture that we see today in this renovated Parliament Chamber.

Mr Speaker, I would also, of course, like to thank all those involved, the contractors, GJBS, as well as thanking members of staff for their patience during the renovation period. I know, again, having been involved in other projects, that it is not easy to have a situation where there is an ongoing project and, at the same time, the building itself, or the vicinity of the buildings being renovated, are being used as working offices.

It is indeed a great improvement on the Parliament that existed as we knew it a few months ago. What is important in our view is not that this is an improvement in the comfort of MPs or that it is an improvement in the internal decoration: clearly, it is. It is, of course, important from the point of view that the dignity of Parliament is, of course... the Parliament of all Gibraltarians is, of course, enhanced by a project and an improvement of this nature. But the importance in our view is that it allows greater access for democracy inside this place and allows us to pursue what is a joint initiative of this House, an all-partisan initiative of this House, which is to allow cameras and better technology, that allows us to effectively take proceedings of this House and of this Parliament out there to members of the public. In that regard, I note that the Hon. the Chief Minister would like to see Parliament televised for the Budget session, that will also be very welcome certainly on this side of the House, but of course the Hon. Chief Minister needs to contact us and I expect that he will do so during the next few weeks, to finalise the rules in relation to the televising of proceedings for Parliament. The quicker that we do that the better because then it will allow us to have that joint aim which is televising of Parliamentary proceedings, and televising of the Budget session in particular, that that will come to fruition by next month.

So, to sum up, Mr Speaker, my congratulations to everybody involved in this project. We certainly believe that it is a huge improvement and we have no hesitation in recognising that.

145 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I wonder if I might be allowed to say, I believe that, in the absence of the Hon. the Minister for Employment, I am the Father of the House (Acting) and, in that capacity, perhaps I might be, sort of, humoured just for a moment.

150 First of all, I think it would be churlish not to congratulate the Government for having prioritised this project: I think that they are to be congratulated for that. It is something we could have done in sixteen years and did not prioritise and I think it is correct to recognise that it has been right, on their part, to prioritise.

155 Secondly, speaking as something of a traditionalist, I think it is also right to recognise that there is just enough, sort of, genuflection to those of us that are very traditionalist and I think the right balance probably, all around us, between modern facilities and traditional facilities and I am particularly keen to note that some of the older bits have been retained.

160 If I could just be allowed one small element – not a criticism – just an expression of personal preference, of course different people would have different tastes and it might be that the majority of the House does not share it, I would have preferred to have seen a different arrangement behind the Speaker's Chair and perhaps the Government is still in time, if it is minded to, to consider restoring the traditional shield there. I do not know if that is the intention and that it is only temporary but I think, with that improvement, I think the Government is to be congratulated for this project.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the statements of both hon. Members.

165 I should have said that there are still matters to be dealt with. One of them is that the Government agrees that the depiction behind the Speaker is not perhaps the one that we imagined it would be and that, therefore, there was an element of restoration perhaps of what was there to come – and there may be some technical changes to be made.

170 For example, I understand that additional cameras are to be added to provide the sorts of angles that I think we all expected we would see. Those, I understand, will be installed today or tomorrow or in the coming days and some other tweaking.

175 Mr Speaker, this is the Parliament Chamber of Gibraltar and all the Members of it, if they have an opinion, should feel free to express it either directly to the Government or through the Clerk so that, having started today to use this renovated Chamber, we improve on it if we can, working together to deliver the best product for coming generations. I do hope that this Chamber will be the place where matters relating to the affairs of our nation are debated at least for another half century, given the very good use that we got out of the old Chamber.

180 Order of the Day

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

185 Clerk: Meeting of Parliament Wednesday 15th May 2013.

(i) Oath of Allegiance; (ii) Confirmation of Minutes – the Minutes of the last meeting of Parliament, which was held on 15th, 21st and 22nd February 2013.

Questions for Oral Answer

SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

230

City Fire Brigade Audit Report findings

Clerk: Question 218/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

235

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to the answer given to Question 95/2013 can the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies give this House the findings of the Audit Report of the City Fire Brigade?

240

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, H. M. Government, together with the management and staff representatives of the City Fire Brigade, with their Unions, are now analysing and studying the Report.

245

The findings of the Report will be made public in due course.

Clerk: Question 219, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond...

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes. Mr Speaker, is there any particular reason why the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies cannot provide a copy of this Report at this present moment.

That is one supplementary and another one is, what timeframe does he envisage expiring before he can provide a copy of this particular Report to my hon. Friend?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, first of all, the Report is a report which we have to discuss. I think it is only fair that we do so, we discuss with the staff, management and the people concerned.

Therefore, what we are doing currently is having discussions with them. The timeframe we are hoping will not be more than two months. Therefore, after that, if it protracts a bit more, so be it but we are intending to make it public after that, once we have had the discussion with staff and management.

260

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

265

City Fire Brigade
'Train the Trainer' course

270

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies explain why, as per Table FB.2 on the Government website, no-one has yet undergone the 'Train the Trainer' course with the City Fire Brigade Fire Prevention Officer since 9th December 2011?

275

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

280

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the 'Train the Trainer' course was specifically devised for the GHA at their request so that some of their members of staff can deliver refresher fire safety training at departmental level. Nine GHA members of staff received the 'Train the Trainer' course in 2011. This course is different from the basic Fire Safety Course, which continues to be delivered by the Fire Safety Department.

285

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say what the requirement is for trainers to receive continuous training development in order to update their skills?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, all GHA employees receive the basic fire safety courses delivered by the CFB Fire Safety Officers as part of their induction to the GHA, so it is everyone.

290

Government premises Number of fire drills

Clerk: Question 220, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

295

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies say how many fire drills need to be conducted per year in Government premises?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

300

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no fire drills need to be conducted in Government premises unless they are specifically identified as part of a risk assessment. However, schools must ensure that fire drills are carried out periodically.

305

Mr Speaker: Any other questions?
Next Question.

310

Medical Priority Despatch System
Progress in going live

Clerk: Question 221, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

315

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Civil Contingencies update this House on any progress made in introducing the new Medical Priority Despatch System and say when it will be going live?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

320

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, discussions have been held between officials of the Departments concerned, with a view to presenting the inter-Ministerial Committee of Ministers some proposals.

325

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in October of last year the Minister stated in a press release that the system was going live in Spring of this year, 2013. Can the Minister advise when this Spring?

Hon. S E Linares: Well, we are still in Spring but there will be probably some more delays, maybe go just slightly beyond Spring.

330 Mr Speaker: Next question.

335 Sports Grants
Details of awards since Question 97/2013

Clerk: Question 222, the Hon. E J Reyes.

340 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sport and Leisure provide details of payments made, since the answer to Question No. 97/2013, in respect of 'Sports Grants' under each of the following: (a) Grants to Sporting Societies; (b) International Competitions; (c) Sports Development Projects; and (d) Hosting of Special Sports and Leisure Events?

345 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the Member opposite details of Sports Grants awarded since the answer to Question 97/2013.

Schedule to question 222/2013

a) Grants to Sporting Societies:

Tenpin Bowling	5,000.00

350 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, does the Minister happen to have at hand a bit further... sort of broken down of the grants made?

If I take under section (a), it says 'Swimming Championships': I would like to know if that refers to locally hosted championships or whichever type. I know there are international competitions but there could be other types of championships and so on.

355 I do not know if he does have available today, or I am even willing to wait until he can procure the information so that one is a bit more informed of where exactly, or what exactly, the swimming championships and so on entails.

360 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I do not have that information with me, but if the hon. Member writes to me I will give him all the information in detail, of where... because there are headings... and as he was the Minister for Sports previously: he should know that the grants to sporting societies, when it is related to a championship, it is a local championship, when it is international competitions – (b) – it would be going to an international competition and so on, but if he wants more details I am willing to wait for his letter and give it to him.

365

Cultural Grants
Awards since Question 99/2013

370

Clerk: Question 223, the Hon. E J Reyes

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Culture provide details of any further Cultural Grants awarded since the answer to Question No. 99/2013.

375

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth, (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, since my answer to Question 99/2013, a further £79,564.75 has been awarded.

380

This information is already updated on the Government website.

Hon. E J Reyes: I do not doubt the veracity of what the Minister says now, but at the time of the deadline of posing the Questions the information was not available on the Government website.

385

I have been through this in previous months, hence why I pose the Questions and both the Speaker and the Chief Minister have, on previous occasions, agreed that if it was not available on the day that the Question had to be handed in, then, in some shape or form, the Government would provide that across the floor.

390

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I have the information, actually I brought with me a whole breakdown of all the expenses, which I am willing to pass on to the hon. Member as soon as a photocopy is made.

Supplementary to question 223/2013

Cultural Grants paid since Q99/2013

Elena Scialtel's book "Nepenthes"	864.75
The Music Festival (Gibraltar) Ltd - Song Festival part grant	20,000.00
Craig MacDonald - part funding for "Live at Moorish Castle"	2,000.00
The Music Festival (Gibraltar) Ltd - Song Festival final grant	30,000.00
Gibraltar Regiment - steel band	2,000.00
Bayside Comprehensive School	1,500.00
Gib Fringe - part funding first Fringe Festival Gib	4,000.00
Transitions Dance Academy	7,500.00
Publication of book, "We thank God for England"	7,200.00
Colourworks Limited - Sponsorship for Runway 2013	4,500.00

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

395

Victoria Stadium
Improvements and modifications for UEFA approval and certification

400

Clerk: Question 224, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I need to clarify: I may have, in my keenness, sort of, going back over previous notes of Parliament sessions, I think I have got a bit of repetition. No. 224 and 226... it is the same question, just obviously referring to different Question numbers, whether the subject has come up

405 before, so I do not know whether Mr Speaker would like me to join them up, which I will do, to... tackle this Question. Then, if the answer is forthcoming, there may even be a need for me to withdraw No. 226, but all that...

410 Mr Speaker, I am grateful, and therefore Question No. 224 is: further to the answer to Question No.
15/2013, is the Minister for Sport now in a position to provide this House with details of all improvements and/or modifications which will have to be carried out at Victoria Stadium, inclusive of players, officials' and spectator facilities, in order to meet UEFA requirements for the hosting of official international football matches?

415 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question, together with Question 225 and 226, so therefore it just avoids what he has just stated.

420 Clerk: Question 225.

425 Hon. E J Reyes: We got it. Question No. 225, Mr Speaker, sir: further to the answer to Question No
98/2013 can the Minister for Sport and Leisure now confirm that the football pitch at Victoria Stadium has achieved full approval and certification, thereby meeting UEFA standards for the playing of international competitions?

Clerk: Question 226.

430 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 100/2013, is the Minister for Sport now in a position to provide this House with details of all improvements and/or modifications which will have to be carried out at the Victoria Stadium in order to meet UEFA requirements for the hosting of official international football matches?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

435 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, Government is already working with the Gibraltar Football Association and the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority to make the necessary modifications to be able to host international competitions at the Victoria Stadium and make it a category 2 UEFA standard.

440 For information on UEFA standards, the hon. Member opposite can log on to ...and there is a website address, which I will not go through it, but I will give him the copy, because he can get it online and therefore he will have all the information that he needs as to UEFA standards there.

Mr Speaker: Any supplementaries?

445 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, sir, although I may be able to access this website and what is required, that does not put me in an updated position of what is already available and what may have been modified at the Stadium in the, what, 17 or 18 months that I am no longer the Minister for Sport, and therefore something could have been done in the meantime and therefore there is work done and not still pending...

450 Mr Speaker, I can bear with the Hon. Minister and wait for, perhaps, that information because it is a... as well when it comes to Budget time. It allows both sides of the House to see how much is being pumped into that area and whether it makes sense if there is suddenly a big figure, rather than my rumbling upon why such a big expenditure it is 2 and 2 equals 4 and it could be because of these requirements and so on.

455 Also bear in mind, Mr Speaker, that both sides of the House are extremely keen and great followers and, hopefully, within days now we will become Team 54 in UEFA, joined with today's good news that Charlton Athletic will be coming over and playing at the Stadium. We want to impress the visitors not only with our football playing but also with our facilities, of which we all want to be really proud.

460 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, it is too early and I would be... It is confidential, as he will know, about budgets and therefore I am not privy to what is going to happen, or at least I cannot anticipate what this Parliament is going to pass or not pass at budget time. But I can assure the hon. Member that we are working very closely with the GFA, that we are looking in order to put the Victoria Stadium into a Category 2, which is like a minimum category of the stadium, in order to have international competitions and we are even looking at some areas in which the Stadium can become even Category 3, so only in 465 parts.

So we are working closely with the GFA and it would be pre-empting at this time if I give the hon.

Member any information on how we are working with the GFA and the GSLA. I hope the hon. Member understands that.

470 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may be of assistance to the House, the hon. Members have indicated that, of course, although we are keeping our fingers tightly crossed for what may happen on 24th May in London, we should take nothing for granted and, in fact, what happens in London is not a political issue that Gibraltarian politicians would ever dare to delve into, other than to reaffirm that I am sure – whatever Party might be in government at any particular time – we would ensure that the sporting facilities necessary for our footballers will be made available.

475 But I would just highlight at this point there are different criteria for different sorts of UEFA competitions, that Members will be aware of, and this is publicly available information on the UEFA website. There are different standards that UEFA require for different types of matches and at different levels of competition, and it may be that some of those are things that we can aspire to, in the context of the Stadium that the hon. Member is asking about – Victoria Stadium – and some which are just simply impossible to aspire to in the context of Victoria Stadium, because of its environs: but the hon. Member also knows that there are opportunities for the development of footballing areas outside of where Victoria Stadium is today which are being considered by the GFA and the Government.

485 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries?
Next Question.

490 Sports and Leisure Authority
Appointment of Centre Manager and other staff changes

Clerk: Question 227, the Hon. E J Reyes.

495 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Questions Nos. 101/2013 and 102/2013, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure confirm that the post of Centre Manager, together with any other vacancies within the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, have now been filled on a permanent basis.

500 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 228.

505 Clerk: Question 228.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of any changes there may have been in respect of persons employed by the Sports and Leisure Authority since the answer provided to Question No. 104/2013?

510 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the vacant post of Centre Manager was filled on 1st March 2013. This has been the only change of the staff complement of the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority.

515 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that, Mr Speaker.

I am not entirely clear, by the post of Centre Manager having been filled in has it not created a knock-on effect and therefore a lower down grade has a vacancy – or was the successful applicant an external candidate to GSLA employees?

520 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, the vacancy was advertised internally and therefore somebody from the GSLA filled that post and the post... it is projected to advertise the vacancy in the near future.

Supplementary

530 Hon. E J Reyes: If the Hon. Mr Speaker would allow me, is reference to Question 223, which was answered a short while ago but the Hon. Minister has now kindly passed on to me the details of the cultural grants, I do have a small supplementary from there. I see that £1,500 has been granted under heading of Bayside Comprehensive School, can I please have some details as to what sort of cultural event or facility, or whatever, was granted to the school, so that it is clear to me that it was a cultural related matter and not just the purchase of, for example, mathematics text books.

535

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, unfortunately I have not got that information, but I will pass it on to the hon. Member, if he so wishes, later.

540

Gibraltar RFU
Development discussions

545

Clerk: Question 229, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure state if he has, since the answer to Question No. 934/2012, held discussions with the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union in respect of providing renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of the sport; and, if so, provide details of any agreements/understandings reached?

550

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

555

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no formal meetings have been held since my answer to Question 934/2012 but have met informally with members of the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union in March.

560

Victoria Stadium playing surface
Approved by International Rugby Board

Clerk: Question 230, the Hon. E J Reyes.

565

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 105/2013, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure now confirm that the playing surface recently installed at the Victoria Stadium enjoys full approval and certification by the International Rugby Board?

570

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the situation remains the same. HM Government is still awaiting the certification from the International Rugby Board.

Hon. E J Reyes: Any indication, Mr Speaker, on a time span, or whatever, when this is expected?

Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, I can tell the hon. Member that an international rugby match was held in Gibraltar in March this year between Gibraltar and Cyprus. A representative of the IRB was present and was very satisfied at the playing surface, so that does not equate to actual certification but, again, we are trying to pursue to have it actually certified by the IRB.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, but although I agree that certain individuals may start to moot that the facilities look good and so on, do we have an estimated date, a target date, by which we think we will probably have the certification?

585

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I wish I had it now. It is a question of the GSLA following it up constantly with the IRB. Until the IRB actually sends that certificate we can keep on following it up with them and I think the GSLA – I know that the GSLA – is also following it up with a company that actually laid the turf, so that they can see if they can also press on to the IRB about the certification.

590 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I might also assist the House in this, the hon. Gentleman knows that there is another issue pending in respect of rugby in Gibraltar, and that, therefore, pressing too much just for the purpose of getting a certification might not be in the interests of local rugby, given that there are bigger issues at stake.

595 For example, if the issue had simply been to get UEFA to say yes or no to whether Gibraltar should form part of its Association, no is the quickest answer that somebody can give. Therefore, I think he will know what I am referring to and that it is for that reason, that there are bigger issues at stake than just the certification of the pitch... which is obviously acceptable because it has already hosted international events.

600 Hon. E J Reyes: No, I understand that, Mr Speaker.

605 One of my reasons for following this up, as well, is, like the Minister was saying, the contractor has come and laid the pitch, there are snagging periods and warranty periods and so on, and in being prudent and so on we have got to make certain that we do not sort of run out of time where one can go, I know the company that has sold it is not one of those cowboy companies and so on and are probably interested in carrying out further works in Gibraltar in the future but, for the interest of sports lovers and the rugby fraternity itself, I think we – both sides of the House – owe it to them to give reassurance that we will follow it up and provide the best facilities that are most affordable for this community in as soon a time as possible.

610 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, the guarantee of the company that laid the turf was for the football and that certification has been given. What we have tried now is to get the certification of the IRB, which is what we are following, we are trying to get.

615 Like I said in answer to a supplementary before, the rugby fraternity, as international, are happy with the turf. They were here, they played Gibraltar, Cyprus. They were extremely happy because it is... if I remember correctly, they equated to the Saracens pitch in London: it is exactly the same turf and they are quite happy about the quality and the turf that we have got, it is just a question of trying to get a certificate that just gives us a certificate, basically.

Gibraltar Cricket Association Discussions over renewed facilities

Clerk: Question 231, the Hon. E J Reyes.

625

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Sports and Leisure state if he has, since the answer to Question No. 1018/2012, held discussions with the Gibraltar Cricket Association in respect of providing renewed facilities for the playing, teaching and development of the sport; and if so, provide details of any agreements/understandings reached?

630

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

635 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no further formal meetings have been held since the answer to Question 1018/2012 but I have met informally with members of the Gibraltar Cricket Association at the launch of their new logo in March.

Europa Sports Ground Details and cost of works carried out

640

Clerk: Question 232, the Hon. E J Reyes.

645 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 106/2013, can the Minister for Sports and Leisure provide details of works and cost carried out at Europa Sports Ground, together with pertinent information in respect of any other works which are planned but not yet commenced or completed?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

650 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the following are the details of recent works and their costs, carried out at the Europa Sports Ground: recycled turf for rugby and cricket training, excavation, preparation, laying of sub-base, removal of debris, etc. and laying down of 3,019 sq. m. of turf – £68,172.62; Repairs to perimeter fence and accesses – £1,340; Repairs to cricket playing area, including laying of turf at cricket wicket – £7,128.80; This is a total of £76,641.42.

655 There are still some minor items to be invoiced by the contractor: these are not expected to be over £3,000 in total.

660 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I just missed the first figure, because the turf that was laid for training, when the Minister spoke about 3,019, I thought it was the figure which I noted and then it happened to be square metres, so can I actually have the financial figure as well.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, if he wants, I will pass him over all the information.

ANSWER

THE HON THE MINISTER FOR SPORTS, CULTURE, HERITAGE AND YOUTH

Mr Speaker,

The following are the details of recent works, and their costs, carried out at the Europa Sports Ground:

Recycled turf (for Rugby and Cricket Training):

Excavation/preparation/laying of subbase/removal of debris etc and laying down of 3019 sq m of turf: £68172.62.

Repairs to perimeter fence and accesses: £1340.00

Repairs to cricket playing area including laying of turf at cricket wicket: £7128.80

Total as at 9 May 2013 is £76641.42

There are still some minor items to be invoiced by the contractor. These are not expected to be over £3,000 in total.

665 Mr Speaker: Next question.

670 Youth Clubs
Volunteer recruitment and opening

Clerk: Question 233, the Hon. E J Reyes.

675 Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 107/2013, can the Minister for Youth confirm if the campaign to recruit volunteers to work in the Youth Clubs has now been completed and, therefore, as from when does his Ministry expect to open youth clubs every weekend as per his Party's manifesto commitment?

680 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, as stated in answer to Question 107/2013 the campaign to recruit volunteers to work in youth clubs is continuous. The youth clubs are currently working on projects which include weekends.

685 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, do we have a concrete date by when we expect the youth clubs to be open every weekend.

690 Hon. S E Linares: No, sir.

695

Queen's National Theatre project
Involvement of Gibraltar Amateur Drama Federation

700

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture provide this House with details of reasons why the Gibraltar Amateur Drama Association has not been invited to form part, nor consulted on the matter, of the Committee which is tasked with advising the Government in respect of the recently announced Queen's National Theatre project?

705

710

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Committee set up to advise the Government on the refurbishment of the Queen's National Theatre is made up of individuals and not any organisations or any representatives of any organisations. One of the things that the Committee will be asked to do is to consult organisations such as GADA and others.

715

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, one sees from the press release of those nominated and invited to form part of the Committee that this has been an invitation to individuals. But is the Minister aware that there has been great disappointment within those involved in the amateur dramatics world, that a long established drama association, which is apolitical and therefore would always wish to work well with whoever is in administration at the time, have not been involved as, in many ways, they would have expected to be leading players in this respect, even though there is a consolation that some individuals who also happen to be part, and members of GADA maybe, but they are not there other than in their own capacity and therefore not representing the proper collective views of GADA, which has always been well respected in this community?

720

Chief Minister (Hon F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I draw the hon. Gentleman's attention to the last sentence of what the Hon. Minister has said, and that is that one of the things that the Committee will be asked to do is to consult organisations, such as GADA and others.

725

The hon. Gentleman knows that Gibraltar is rife with talent, whether it is in dance, or in drama or in any of the other disciplines that are displayed on a stage, and therefore there is a proliferation of organisations, all of which represent an element of expertise and the Government had a choice of simply selecting all of those organisations and asking them for a representative to put on this Committee or to appoint individuals who have specific expertise, some of them across those different organisations, and asking that Committee to make recommendations to the Government and, in doing so, to take into consideration the representations of the organisations that are relevant and, indeed, to meet those organisations.

730

The hon. Gentleman may not be aware but the disappointment expressed by one particular organisation has now been tempered and that some of the things that might have been said in public are not the current position of those organisations, having now understood what the intention of the Government is.

735

But, of course, Mr Speaker the whole point is that the Government is taking the view that it does not know best on how to create a theatre and how to deliver what that theatre must contain in order to be a new theatre for our community that fits its needs both in respect of amateur dramatics such as that new theatre may be relevant to amateur dramatics and the sort of touring productions that all of us would like to see able to be hosted in such a facility.

740

Mr Speaker, I put it no higher than that, other than to say that we believe that the expertise is there to give us that advice in the Committee that we have constituted, that the Committee will want to talk to these organisations and that therefore we will be able to deliver a new theatre, fit for purpose, within the lifetime of this Parliament.

745

Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful to the Chief Minister, Mr Speaker. Yes, in the light that consultation will take place with bodies which, of course, will include GADA does change and does calm matters.

750

I feel that, at the time of drafting this I think the Chief Minister and the Minister for Culture can both understand that – I even feared there may be a certain amount of resignations, if not even a block resignation by GADA, sort of saying no-one is really interested in us and they are not taking us seriously. That would be a sad day for Gibraltar, but I think, from that answer, one can safely deduce that the consultations and exchange of ideas will come forth and certainly if, at the end of the day, we are going to get a better product for Gibraltar and, at the same time, ensuring that GADA's views are taken into account, like everybody else's, but given that sense of appreciation, then we are starting to head in the right direction, Mr Speaker.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for his words, except for the fact that he suggests that this represents a change in the point of view of the Government and what it is that we have asked the Committee to do. It does not.

760 I am expressing to him now what I have expressed to the Committee and what the hon. Member will be asking the Committee to do and what it was the intention that the Committee should do from the very, very beginning. In fact, I think that I may even have expressed sentiments to this effect during the course of the lengthy interview I gave GBC or, if not, during the course of the press conference that we gave at the Queen's Cinema on the day of the launch of the Committee and the announcement that we made. So 765 he should take it from me that this is not a change of position, this is actually the position that was adopted and hence why he need not have feared that there might be mass resignations from any particular organisation, feeling that they were less than appreciated. Indeed, in the time that we have been in office, we have worked with GADA and supported GADA in its productions and they can continue to count on the support of the Government as much as they had it before the announcement of the Queen's Cinema and the Committee that has been put in place as afterwards.

770 The hon. Gentleman will know that certain plans were envisaged for Ince's Hall which might have required changes to the way that GADA was housed. Some of those changes may still be required and GADA will form part of the re-provisioning of what it is that GADA have, so that they can continue to produce amateur dramatics for our community, given the investment that this Government is making not just in respect of the Queen's Cinema but also, of course, as he knows, I have made some announcements
775 in respect of Ince's Hall and how that might be refurbished, and there may be some changes to those, to the detail of those plans. So he can rest assured that everyone is not just appreciated but they form an important part of what it is that we want to do.

780 Of course, it is difficult to see how one can be accused of wanting to be all things for all men and having disappointed some others – so it is either one or the other.

Culture and Heritage Agency
Changes in personnel since Question 103/2013

785

Clerk: Question 235, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Culture and Heritage provide details of any changes there may have been in respect of persons employed by the Culture and Heritage Agency since the answer provided to Question No. 103/2013?
790

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, there have been no changes.
795

Work on heritage sites
Details and cost

800

Clerk: Question 236, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Heritage provide details of all works, together with respective cost, undertaken at any heritage-related site; stating by whom these works were carried out, as well as confirming that the Gibraltar Heritage Trust was duly consulted before commencement of any works?
805

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, sites that appear listed under the relevant schedules of the Heritage Trust Act and have had works carried out to them are the Grand Battery and Parliament.
810

In relation to Grand Battery Phase 1, the works consisted of removing and clearing of debris to expose the eighteen embrasures and fire steps. This has allowed for the salutes by the Royal Gibraltar Regiment to take place in the area. The Heritage Trust Board was duly consulted and the scheme was approved. The scheme was also approved by the Development and Planning Commission. The contract, with a value of £73,445.92, was awarded to GJBS. It was completed on 11th June 2012.
815

820 Works to Parliament, as we have all heard this morning, Phase 1 consisted of a complete refurbishment of the debating Chamber and public gallery: new audio and visual equipment has been installed, new air conditioning equipment fitted and new furniture manufactured.

The Heritage Trust Board was consulted on 20th December 2012. The contract, to the value of £678,000, was awarded to GJBS.

825 Two other sites, even though not listed under the Gibraltar Heritage Trust Act, were presented to the Board of the Trust before works were carried out: these are to the Main Guard and Devil's Gap path.

In relation to the Main Guard, phase 1 works, which are located at John Mackintosh Square, consist of replacing the existing roof. Being the Heritage Trust's office, the Board has been, and continues to be, consulted on this project. The contract value of £100,113.57 was awarded to Koala Limited.

830 In relation to the Devil's Gap path works, this consists of clearing up and making safe a footpath that connects the Upper Town area with the Upper Rock Nature Reserve. The Heritage Trust and the Development Planning Commission have been duly informed before work commenced.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, my question was 'works undertaken at any heritage-related site'. If I can bring in a couple of matters that perhaps the Minister can shed some light on that.

835 I know that recently, and also because the RGP had posted notices and so on, some works have been carried out at Parson's Lodge and therefore the Minister might have some information in connection with that. One also sees, walking up Main Street, that there is scaffolding and works being carried out at the Convent, which I believe is a heritage-related site and, if my recollection is correct, it is even listed in the Act and therefore does require the proper permits, after due consultation with Heritage Trust. Likewise, works going on at Wellington Front and Douglas Cave, which I believe are very much heritage-related sites.

840 So, does the Minister have any information relating to those four that I have just brought up?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, in relation to the Wellington Front, this was commenced by the previous administration so it is a continuation of what was started then and in the Convent, likewise. 845 These were approved by the previous administration and therefore we are just continuing the project.

I do not know which others he mentioned... the other two he mentioned.

Hon. E J Reyes: Douglas Cave and Parson's Lodge are the other two, Mr Speaker.

850 Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, those two are not heritage sites... Well, Parson's Lodge obviously is, but the works done there were not of a heritage nature so, therefore, it does not apply because, as the hon. Member knows – he must have gone to Parson's Lodge before – down below there is the... what is used for the excavation of Gorham's Cave by the Heritage Division. They use kitchens and they use other places within Parson's Lodge, which is not of a heritage nature. 855

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, that part of Parson's Lodge may not be, strictly speaking, protected by the Heritage Act but because my question read heritage-related site, can we have some information of what works and what costs have been carried out there at Parson's Lodge? Can I start with that, Mr Speaker? 860

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, if he gives me notice specifically of that question, I will answer it. I mean, he stated... now he is homing in onto Parson's Lodge, which is not the heritage site that he is asking details for.

865 I am willing to pass on to the hon. Member the information he seeks.

Hon. E J Reyes: I am sorry, Mr Speaker, but I disagree. Parson's Lodge is a heritage-related site. That is what my wording says. I did not specifically home in, perhaps, on the words 'Parson's Lodge' but I think Gibraltarians who know the area would certainly call it a heritage-related site.

870 Also, Mr Speaker, can I come back on the other points. Work at the Convent and Wellington Front may have been started whilst I was Minister for Heritage but since I am not answerable for that since 9th December 2011, I think I am entitled to seek that information across the floor of this House, can Mr Speaker, rule on that, please.

875 Hon. S E Linares: So the question is what is the ruling from the Speaker?

Hon. E J Reyes: The question is, Mr Speaker, can I have then the information of anything that has happened in any of these sites since 9th December 2011? Also my question was because I have worded it a heritage-related site and not exclusively sites or areas of a site that were specifically listed in the Heritage Act, can I have some information pertaining to Parson's Lodge as well?

880 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I have already answered the question. The works related to the area of Parson's Lodge has not got any heritage implications. It was to do with dampness of the place underneath, which is not a heritage site.

885 We did not actually tamper, because, if not, we would have consulted the Heritage Trust and it would have had to go through the DPC, which I can say that Wellington Front and the Convent never went through, but we are going through the DPC and consulting the Heritage Trust. Therefore, what I am saying to the hon. Member is that the works done – and I will give him the information – but it is not related to heritage, it is related to other works that are done in the area which have no heritage implication.

890 For example, I can say that the place where the excavation... the archaeologists that come to do excavations in Gorham's Cave usually stay there the night. They stay at the bottom of Parson's Lodge: they have a place and it was damp – the wall was damp, so that was fixed. That is the works but it did not have any heritage... nothing was touched at the top of Parson's Lodge, so the works are not related to heritage sites as such. That is what I was trying to say to the hon. Member, so I have answered the question.

895 Mr Speaker: Is the Hon. Minister saying that he was not in a position to answer that Question because he took that question of Parson's Lodge as being outside the ambit of the Question, but that he is in a position, not today, but to provide the information later. Is that the case?

900 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, I do, but it is not answering the specific question. I mean, this is extra information that I am giving. That is why I said if he wants to pose the question I can either do it by him posing another question or me giving him the information. What I am saying is it is not related to heritage.

905 Mr Speaker: What does the Hon. Mr Reyes say about that?

Hon. E J Reyes: I will gladly receive the information if he has it, Mr Speaker.

910 Mr Speaker: Next...

Hon. J J Netto: Could I?

Mr Speaker: Yes?

915 Hon. J J Netto: I would like to ask a supplementary question if I may in relation to Wellington Front, picking up what the Hon. Minister was saying basically was that it is a continuation of the work carried out beforehand by the GSD Government. As far as I can recollect, the work that was carried out was mainly refurbishment of the vaults within Wellington Front. Is that still the case today?

920 Hon. S E Linares: Well, Mr Speaker, there are other works that have been done: not only the vaults, the vaults was not part of the works.

925 The works that have been carried out recently are to do with the problems of flooding, which has been traditional to the Wellington Front and therefore what needs to be done there. Infrastructure has been put in place in order to alleviate the flooding and that means that the Technical Services Department is working on having a type of pumps and equipment that will deal with the actual flooding of the whole area, so that is the works that have recently been done.

Mr Speaker: Yes?

930 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Yes, Mr Speaker, in relation to the building that is by the pétanque club, could the Hon. Minister say is this a permanent structure, has permission been sought from the Heritage Trust in order to erect a permanent structure there at North Bastion?

935 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, the pétanque is a completely different issue, so if the hon. Lady would like to ask me a specific question on the pétanque I will answer it because, again, it is not related to the heritage part of the question that the Hon. Member, Mr Reyes, has asked because it is now going beyond what the questioner has asked me.

940 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I may, coming back to the Wellington Front, the Minister said that the work was due to flooding of the place. Is the work being carried out by GJBS or by any other private contractor?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I would not like to say who the contractor is because I am not sure so, therefore, I would be misleading this House, should I give him the company that is doing it. So therefore I would ask the hon. Member if he wants to ask that specific question to put it to the House.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Reyes, does he...

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful sir. Am I getting some information now, which I think the final wording was that the Minister did have some information he was going to pass it on. Am I to wait for that before Mr Speaker says to move on to the next Question or what is happening sir, can you please update me, I am a bit lost at the moment.

950

Mr Speaker: I was under the impression that the Hon. Minister was prepared to make that information available in due course. That was my understanding.

955

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, absolutely, Mr Speaker, because it was not part of the Question. I am willing to give him the information but I have not got it here with me now.

Hon. E J Reyes: Then we agree to disagree because I still maintain that the wording in my question was heritage-related site and not necessarily to those on the schedule there.

960

Mr Speaker, sir, one of the locations that is actually on the schedule of the Heritage Act is the King's Bastion and I believe some works have had to be undertaken there recently. Is the Minister able to provide us with any information in respect of that location?

965

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of any works being done in King's Bastion that I can recall. That answers again the question. So, again I would need notice of that question specifically with King's Bastion.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, the Minister also doubles up as the Chairman of the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority and some of the facilities were recently closed because some works had to be carried out. The advice to public users was that some works were being carried out and nothing else: I do not know under which sort of portfolio he can assist us, but can he please provide some information either as Minister for Heritage, or as Chairman of the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, what is actually happening at the King's Bastion Leisure Centre – and may I add, as well, allay some fears? Someone says they are constructing new bars or whatever... maybe he is aware of that information.

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of all that information that the hon. Member is saying.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, then, Mr Speaker, despite my having given notice of heritage-related sites – and that includes the King's Bastion Centre – the answer is 'no', he is not providing any information across the floor.

980

Mr Speaker: The reality is that the Hon. Mr Reyes, you have asked a question related to heritage matters. A fairly detailed answer has been given, you have then raised other matters where the Minister has told you that, in some cases, they do not have implications for heritage, nevertheless he has undertaken to provide you with as much information as possible. Now you are raising the question of King's Bastion, where the hon. Member seems to be aware that there is some work going on there, which the Hon. Minister does not seem to be aware is the case, and which may, in any case, not have any heritage implications. I do not see how we can progress the matter any further.

990

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but you see the confusion appears to be in the way that the Question has been interpreted. The question is the cost and the work undertaken in any heritage site, it does not necessarily have to be heritage-related work, it is the work on a heritage site, that is the question. Now, the Hon. Minister has interpreted it as heritage related work. That is not the question, it is work on heritage related sites.

995

Mr Speaker: I do not know how the Minister has interpreted it but when I look at it I also notice that he has been asked to confirm that the Gibraltar Heritage Trust was duly consulted. The Gibraltar Heritage Trust are normally consulted on matters which have heritage implications. If that is not the case, then perhaps I am wrong.

1000

Hon. D A Feetham: Not necessarily, not necessarily you may have work undertaken on a heritage site that requires consultation with the Gibraltar Heritage Trust but it may not be heritage-related work, it 1005 just has an impact on heritage, or it may have an impact on the site, obviously, because the work is being undertaken on the site, but he has asked about work and the question is quite clear, he has asked about works, all works, at any heritage related site. Now we do not want to make a mountain out of a mole hill. That is the question, that is the question. There is no confusion in the question it is the way that the Hon. Minister has interpreted it. If he can provide the information at a future date, we are satisfied with that.

1010 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I might, I think that the question actually creates considerable confusion, for this reason: there may be works ongoing at what is a heritage site – and King’s Bastion Leisure Centre is an area that I think all of us agree is a heritage site – which may not be being carried out by the Government. Hon. Members know that, in fact, they granted concessions in that area to operators of facilities, and operators of facilities may be carrying out works which have absolutely 1015 no implications for the heritage of the site, where they themselves may have sought either DPC consent, or not required DPC consent, or where they may have consulted with heritage and short of sending a civil servant or the Minister round to each heritage site in Gibraltar to see what may be ongoing there, I think it is actually quite impossible, other than with the generosity of the hon. Member who has answered the question, to say, or to have responsibility for those works.

1020 The hon. Gentleman has asked about what is ongoing at the King’s Bastion Leisure Centre. Those may be works undertaken by one of the landlords of one of the bars there on one of their bars, in other words not on any of the fabric of the place but what is done on their bars. Perhaps if the hon. Gentleman tells us where he says that work is ongoing at the King’s Bastion Leisure Centre, the hon. Member may actually be able to particularly check – because those works may have finished by now – may particularly 1025 check what those works were and what implications, if any, they had.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, that, with respect, cannot be a reasonable interpretation of this question, for the simple reason the Government is only responsible for Government business to this House. We cannot ask questions about private contractors. They are not responsible for that: the question 1030 is obviously related to works that are effectively Government approved or Government involvement works, no other work. We cannot expect the Government to be accountable to this House for the work undertaken by a bar privately, by a privately owned bar, and it is not reasonable to interpret the question in that way.

1035 Mr Speaker: I get the impression from what I have heard this afternoon that the Hon. Minister has given a bone fide answer, based on information that he has.

Matters have been raised by the Hon. Mr Reyes on which the Minister does not appear to have information, but he is not reluctant to look into the matter and see whether he can obtain that information. I do not get the impression that the Minister is avoiding answering matters for some hidden motive or 1040 other. It is just that he does not seem to have the information because he interpreted the question in a particular way and the ambit of the question has been widened somewhat. I think the Hon. Mr Reyes can refer to whatever other sites he is aware of where there is some work going on, make that information available to the Minister and I think the Minister has undertaken to look into it and provide information.

1045 There will be an opportunity to provide the information later on during this meeting of the House, because we are going to be in session for a few days. Is the Minister satisfied with that?

Hon. E. J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

1050 Yes, like you rightly say, we might be here for a few days. I will wait to see what the Hon. Minister can provide me and then, if need be, I can give him due notice of further questions that I may have arising out of that information. It would save us all a lot of time if he provides me with that information, rather than my duplicating it there, and would work forwards from henceforth.

1055 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, for clarity, the information that he has asked me is to do in relation to Parson’s Lodge, correct? Because there have been other areas that have been mentioned across the Opposition side, not only Parson’s Lodge, Kings Bastion, Pétanque, Convent, Wellington Front... I mean, what I said to the hon. Member is that I will give him – because he pushed me on the Parson’s Lodge issue – that I will give him the information to Parson’s Lodge. I think it is only fair that, should the other Members and himself want further clarifications on all the other ones specifically, they can ask the question in another session in this House and I will be happy to give them all the information that they 1060 seek. Just for clarity’s sake, when I told him that I can give him the Parson’s Lodge information, that is what I offered to this House.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1065

Waterport Power Station
Type, capacity and number of generator engines

1070 Clerk: Question 237, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities please say the type, capacity and number of engines operating from Waterport Power Station during 2012 and 2013, and provide on a monthly basis the megawatts produced (particularly at peak periods of consumer demands)?

1075 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the type, capacity and number of engines operating from Waterport Power Station during 2012 and 2013, has been as follows:

1080 3 x KV12 Mirrlees M3 diesel engines, with an output of 5.2MW each.
 3 x Caterpillar skid mounted generators, with an output of 1.4MW each.
 4 x Caterpillar skid mounted generators, with an output of 1MW each.
 The winter peak in 2012 was 35.1MW. The summer peak in 2012 was 32.8MW.
 The winter peak for 2013 was 34.2MW

1085 Mr Speaker, I could go on with the energy produced into the Gibraltar grid, which there is a whole chart here, which I should be really reading to this House since it is an oral question, but I am quite happy to pass this information to the hon. Member via photocopy and then it saves me having to read the whole lot! I am willing to do so anyway, so it is up to him, Mr Speaker.

1090 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful to the Minister.

Energy produced into the Gibraltar grid:

2012	Waterport Generated MWh	2013	Waterport generated MWh
JAN	7,684	JAN	5,104
FEB	7,438	FEB	4,506
MAR	7,256	MAR	5,121
APR	5,670	APR	4,616
MAY	7,836
JUN	7,684
JUL	8,257
AUG	8,185
SEP	7,718
OCT	8,317
NOV	7,779
DEC	7,659
TOTAL	91,488

Mr Speaker, I think we can carry on to the next question, if that is OK.

1095 style="text-align: center;">North Mole Power Station
Type, capacity and number of generator engines

Clerk: Question 238, the Hon. J J Netto.

1100 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities please say the type, capacity and number of engines at the North Mole Temporary Power Station (connected to the Waterport Power Station) and provide on a monthly basis the megawatts produced (particularly at peak periods of consumer demand) by this temporary station since commencement of operations?

1105 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the North Mole Temporary Power Station is comprised of the following:

5-x T60 Caterpillar Solar skid mounted turbines, with an output of 5MW each

The energy produced in megawatt hours to date is as follows:

1110 December 2012 – 2,392 MWh

January 2013 – 8,176 MWh

February 2013 – 7,644 MWh

March 2013 – 8,116 MWh

1115 April 2013 – 7,756 MWh

The peak power generated into the Gibraltar electricity distribution network from the North Mole temporary Power Plant has been 18MW to date.

1120 Temporary Power Station at North Mole
Need for reinforcing high voltage network

Clerk: Question 239, the Hon. J J Netto.

1125 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I just ask before saying the next Question whether the hon. Gentleman may provide me a copy of the figures of the previous question, so I can have them available, if that is no problem.

1130 Hon. S E Linares: No problem, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: Shall I move on, then, to the next Question?

1135 Mr Speaker, given the recent incorporation of the temporary Power Station at North Mole, could the Hon. Minister with responsibility for Utilities explain if there is a need for reinforcing the high voltage network?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1140 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, with the commissioning of the North Mole temporary Power Station new high voltage cables were indeed laid between the new site and Waterport Power Station. These new cables have reinforced the high voltage network accordingly.

1145 Hon. J J Netto: Right, I take it that what has been reinforced is the connection between the North Mole temporary Power Station and the link to Waterport Power Station. But I think my Question basically was much more wider than that, in the sense of the whole grid. Does the Minister feel that the whole grid needs to be reinforced?

1150 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, it is not whether I think that it should be reinforced, it is the technicians themselves who decide what type of distribution network is needed, and therefore they are quite confident that by only laying that cable the distribution of the power is at the voltage that is needed to be done. If not, they would not have done it, I presume.

1155 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may assist the hon. Gentleman, I think that the answers that he is getting arise from the wording of his question about the high voltage network. Because there is a particularly high voltage that is going to come from where the present temporary Power Station is sited – and where it is very likely that the future power station may be sited – to Waterport Power Station, what is today Waterport Power Station, which is still very likely to be where the distribution network starts.

1160 If he is talking about the whole of the distribution network, then he will have seen that, on a number of occasions when I or the Hon. the Minister for Utilities have spoken about the infrastructure as it is today, then there is certainly a lot of work that is going to be done to that infrastructure, to the distribution network, which is not just high voltage network cables, it is all of the distribution network in Gibraltar, because he may have heard me say that the power cuts we have been experiencing, in particular since the arrival in Gibraltar of the turbines that are at the north end of the North Mole – the north western end of the North Mole – are not related to generating capacity. They are related very often, if not exclusively, to problems with the distribution network, but that is not just the high voltage network but different parts of the distribution network, and what is happening, Mr Speaker, is that the work on that distribution network

1170 is ongoing work now. It is no longer related to the implementation of the new power station tender programme, although that may require high voltage parts of the network to be upgraded at the same time or in parallel as the whole of the distribution network is in the process of being upgraded, because that is now so aged that a lot of the failures are there.

1175 There is also not just the problem with the age of the network but you will also have heard me say that some of the schematic of that network is not entirely up to date. When contractors want to do work in different parts of Gibraltar, they may not have a clear schematic that they are going to go through part of the distribution network and therefore cause a power cut: you will recall that one of the power cuts, I believe in April of last year, which was before the arrival of the turbines, when we did not have the generating capacity, was, nonetheless, caused by a major failure in the distribution network because a contractor went through a cable without knowing it was there – because the schematic was not as it should be.

1180 I hope that assists the hon. Gentleman with understanding why the hon. Gentleman was talking about that area in respect of high voltage network alone.

1185 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, indeed, Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister's intervention has been quite useful in terms of getting into a much wider picture, which I was trying to get at.

In relation to the upgrading of the distribution network, does the Government have a timeframe as to when the different elements of this are going to take place?

1190 Hon. Chief Minister: Can I ask the hon. Gentleman to note that this is an item that will form part of the debate on the Appropriation Bill and that he might have a better opportunity of seeing how we cast the timetable as a result of what he will be told in that debate.

1195 North Mole temporary Power Station
EU Directive on Noise Levels

Clerk: Question 240, the Hon. J J Netto

1200 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities please state if there have been occasions in which the engines at the North Mole temporary Power Station have exceeded the EU Directive on noise levels, either on its own or in combination with Waterport Power Station and, if so, could the Hon. Minister say on how many occasions this has happened and for how long?

1205 Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the EU Directive on Environmental Noise does not apply to noise from industrial emissions. It applies in Gibraltar to noise from traffic.

Ex-OESCO Power Station
Type, capacity and number of generator engines

1215 Clerk: Question 241, the Hon. J J Netto.

1220 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities say the type, capacity and number of engines or skids at the ex-OESCO Power Station, and provide on a monthly basis the amount of megawatts produced (particularly at peak period of consumer demand) since December 2011, either by the previous owner or the current ones, into the Government Grid?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1225 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the type capacity and number of engines operating from the ex-OESCO Power Station is as follows:

3 x KV16 M1 Mirrlees engines, with an output of 5.1MW each (2 units decommissioned, 1 unit under repair)

2 x K6 M1 Mirrlees engines, with an output of 1.8MW and 2.5MW respectively (1.8MW unit decommissioned)

- 1230 1 x K8M1 Mirrlees engine, with an output of 2.5MW
 1 x KV12 M2 Mirrlees engine, with an output of 5.1MW (decommissioned)
 6 x Caterpillar skid mounted generators, with an output of 1.4MW each.
- 1235 Mr Speaker, as I did with the previous Question, if the hon. Member and Mr Speaker allows, I will pass on this information, because I could go on again every single month giving him a figure which he will ask me to pass on – so I will directly pass it on to the hon. Member.

- 1240 Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.
- 1245 Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, just to add in the information that I am passing over to the hon. Member, in all the information that we are passing over, he has got to realise that, as from December 2011 when we came in, the OESCO Power Station, for example, has been going down and down and down in the production of the megawatts, so much so that in January 2013 it was producing 1.669 MW, as opposed to April 2012, when it was producing 8,067. The same has happened with the other information that I have given the hon. Member.
- Hon. J J Netto: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.
- 1250 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Ex-OESCO Power Station
 Government's contractual relationship with current operators

- 1255 Clerk: Question 242, the Hon. J J Netto.
- 1260 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities say what is the contractual relationship between the Government and the current operators of the Ex-OESCO Power Station?
- Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.
- 1265 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the current operator of the Ex-OESCO Power Station, Bolaños General Mechanical Engineers, have been contracted by the Gibraltar Mechanical Electrical Services Company, a wholly owned HM Government of Gibraltar company.
- 1270 Hon. J J Netto: I think perhaps I got a bit confused – if the Hon. Minister could clarify – are we talking about a perfectly private company or is he talking about a different kind of Government-owned company? Which of the two?
- 1275 Hon. S E Linares: No, Mr Speaker, Bolaños General Mechanical Engineers is a private company that is contracted by GMES, which is the Government wholly-owned company.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, in that context can the Minister for Utilities say what is the unit cost of energy that the Government has to pay to the company for the energy that is being produced?

1280 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I think it is fair to say that we would need, on this side of the House, notice of that question. But, if I can just clarify to the hon. Gentleman, the production of electricity is something that is being done by the owner of the units, which is GMES. So that cost is being borne by the Government. There is a contractual arrangement with Bolaños to operate the units so there is a cost of operation but the units are owned by the Government and the fuelling of the units happens internally. It happens at a GMES level. So I think, with notice, the hon. Gentleman can have the cost per unit but that is not going to give him details of the contract with Bolaños, if that is what he is seeking to obtain, because we are not buying units of electricity from Bolaños.

1290 Hon. J J Netto: I think, Mr Speaker, we are getting confused because the Hon. the Chief Minister is mentioning GMES when I was actually mentioning the ex-OESCO. Now to my understanding if I am wrong, please correct me but we are talking about two different entities.
Is that –

1295 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, but OESCO no longer exists. This is the issue. This is what the hon. Gentleman has explained to him before, OESCO no longer exists.
OESCO was an operator, the operator and owner of those units under the original contract with the Government. OESCO is now out of the picture; the units are owned by the Government and are owned in GMES. GMES also owns and operates ISGS under the agreement for which the transfer of ISGS was negotiated and GMES was created. In respect of the units at the ex-OESCO facility, that operation is being done by a contract between GMES and Bolaños by Bolaños – but we are not buying units of electricity from Bolaños, as we were buying from OESCO. That is the issue.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary? Next Question.

1305

GMES Power Station
Type, capacity and number of generator engines

1310 Clerk: Question 243, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities say the type of engine, capacity and number of engines at the ex-ISGS, now known as GMES Power Station, and provide on a monthly basis the amount of megawatts produced (particularly at peak periods of consumer demand) since December 2011 by them into the Government Grid?

1315 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth.

1320 Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the type, capacity and number of engines operated from the ex-ISGS, known as GMES Power Station, since 2011 is as follows:

2 x K8 M1 Mirrlees Diesel Engines, with an output of 2MW each.

2 x K8 M2 Mirrlees Diesel Engines, with an output of 2MW each

1 x KV 16 M1 Mirrlees Diesel Engine, with an output of 4.6 MW.

1325 Again, I could go through the whole list but I would rather pass it on to the hon. Member and again emphasise the fact that not only the ex-OESCO Power Station now operated and maintained by Bolaños and owned by GMES, the emissions are very, very low down the South end of Gibraltar due to what is seen in these tables as the lowering of the production of electricity.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

GMES Power Station
Government's contractual relationship with current operators

1340

Mr Speaker: Question 244, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities say what is the contractual relationship between the Government and the current operator known as GMES Power Station?

1345

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture Heritage and Youth.

1350

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, GMES Power Station runs the ex-MOD Inter-Services Generating Station which was transferred, under the previous Administration, on 1st December 2011 to HM Government of Gibraltar. The arrangement to operate and maintain this power station was between HM Government of Gibraltar and MOD, as detailed in the transfer agreement agreed by the previous Administration, of which he was a Member.

1355

Energy International Inc.
Contractual relationship with Government

Clerk: Question 245, the Hon. J J Netto.

1360

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister with responsibility for Utilities explain to this House the contractual relationship between the Government and Energy International Inc. for the supply of electricity into the Government grid?

1365

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Sports, Culture Heritage and Youth.

Minister for Sports, Culture, Heritage and Youth (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, this Question will be answered together with Question 434.

1370

Clerk: We now move on to the Questions to be posed to the Deputy Chief Minister. This will be answered later during the session.

Mr Speaker: May I clarify, Question 434 is not being answered just now, is it? (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham)

1375

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No, Mr Speaker, the position of the Government is that 434 is a Question to the Chief Minister and it will be dealt with...

Mr Speaker: Therefore, the previous Question and 434 will be answered together by the Chief Minister, okay?

1380

DEPUTY CHIEF MINISTER

1385

Development and Planning Commission
Timeframe for Government projects requiring approval

Mr Speaker: So we are at Question...

Clerk: 410.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister say whether the Government has reached a decision on a timeframe for Government projects to require the approval of the Development and Planning Commission in terms more specific than 'sometime during its first term of office'?

1395

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, the timeframe for this to happen is linked directly to the new Town Planning Legislation which the Government is presently considering.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the answer, Mr Speaker.

I note that the reform of Town Planning Legislation is a matter that has been raised in the House on a number of previous occasions and I wonder whether perhaps the deputy Chief Minister is in a position to provide us with some kind of update as to how long he expects that process might take?

Hon. Dr. J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, I cannot provide him with an update in terms of how long it is going to take but I can tell him what has happened up to now.

We have considered at a political level two drafts of the Town Planning Legislation. There is a sub-committee made up of the drafter, the Town Planner and myself. There is a meeting of this group again next week and we are very keen to progress the matter but I cannot really tell him when it is going to go through, except that the Government is giving it priority.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am conscious of what the Deputy Chief Minister has very helpfully said and I am grateful for his contribution.

1415

I am only going to ask, in the hope that there may be some general idea of whether we are talking weeks, months, years, in relation to this process. I am not going to pin him down to a specific timeframe but just a general idea would be very helpful at this juncture.

Hon. Dr J J Garcia: I think I can safely say, Mr Speaker, it is not going to be years. It is not going to take as long as that but I would not like to commit myself to weeks or months because I really do not know how long it is going to take. Sometimes you get other things and you have to, sort of, put this to one side. But I know there is a meeting set down for next week where we intend to look at some policy issues in the new legislation and, hopefully, once that meeting is over, we will have a clearer position of how far we have to go.

Hon. S M Figueras: Well, in that case, Mr Speaker, will the Deputy Chief Minister be amenable to a request in writing for an update following that meeting in the next couple of weeks?

Hon. Dr. J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, I will be happy to update the hon. Member either in writing if he cares to write to me or, indeed, if he raises the question again at the next meeting of Parliament.

1430

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, given the plethora of manifesto commitments in the GSLP / Liberal manifesto, in terms of capital projects, and in the light of the answer that he has given today, does he envisage that most of those projects will, in fact... the decision to proceed with those projects will be kick-started prior to this legislation being introduced, or does he envisage that, in fact, some of those commitments may be tested under this legislation?

1435

Because of course, the problem here is that he has already said that it is not going to be this year and, assuming that the Government wants to complete its many Government projects on time, it is going to 1440 have to kick-start them quite soon. So the legislation is not going to be this year but, at the earliest, next year. Is it not the case that the majority of those projects that are Government projects will not be tested in accordance with any new legislation?

1445 Hon. Dr J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, the answer I gave the hon. Member was that it was not going to take years, not necessarily that it would not happen this year. It may well happen this year, I cannot say at this stage.

1450 Obviously, I think it will be the case that some projects will be tested under the new legislation and others will not. It just depends on the timing of these projects. This is very much the same issue that faced them in Government, when they were confronted with the new Gibraltar Development Plan that came out in 2009, which included already some projects that they had in mind, which they had envisaged, but which had not actually happened. But in our view, I think I can safely say some projects will be tested under the new legislation and others will not, but it is difficult to say which will and which will not.

1455 Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, can he confirm, therefore, this is not a case where, effectively, the Government will attempt to proceed with some of these projects in advance of this new legislation to prevent those projects to be tested properly under its stated policy in the manifesto of full planning permission which, no doubt, will be the subject of the legislation when it is introduced to this House.

1460 Hon. Dr J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, the policy at present is that projects are going to Planning as soon as they are ready. That is what is happening at the moment.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1465 Old Police Barracks block
Plans for redevelopment

Clerk: Question 411, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1470 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister say whether Government has any plans for the development of the area of the old Police Barracks block on Castle Road?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

1475 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, a tender for the redevelopment of Police Barracks into residential accommodation was published in the media at the end of last year.

Mr Speaker: Next Question. Yes?

1480 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, can the Government or can the Deputy Chief Minister, Mr Speaker, update the House in relation to where we are with that particular tender and those particular plans, please?

1485 Hon. Dr J J Garcia: Yes, Mr Speaker, the tender closed at the end of March and the Government is now considering the different submissions.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can he say how many tenders have been received by the Government in respect of this particular development?

1490 Hon. Dr J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, It would be helpful, I think, to the Government on this occasion not to give the number of tenderers. I would be happy to do so privately in the ante-Chamber if he wishes to have the information but it is a situation which arose also when they were in office, where they were faced with a particular number they did not want to disclose.

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS,
PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

St Michael's Cave Contract works

1500

Clerk: Question 202, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1505

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise the House which companies carried out the works at St. Michael's Cave and whether these went to tender?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1510

1515

Miami Convention Identity and cost of Government delegation

1520

Clerk: Question 203, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism provide details of who attended the Miami Convention as part of the Gibraltar Government delegation this year, together with a cost of such attendance?

1525

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1530

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport, and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule that I now hand to him.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION NO 203/2013

Miss Edwina O'Mahony of Gibraltar House in London attended the Seatrade Cruise and Shipping Convention in Miami.

The costs were as follows:

Flights	£1679.29
Accommodation	£1014.61
Subsistence	£255.52
Travel expenses	£155.25
Total	£3104.67

Miss O'Mahony represented the Gibraltar Tourist Board on the Medcruise stand and there was no cost for this.

Miss O'Mahony has attended the convention in previous years.

1535

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I return just to ask a supplementary in relation to the previous Question, the one about St. Michael's Cave, if that is at all possible. I appreciate your indulgence.

Mr Speaker: Yes.

1540 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, is the Minister satisfied with the works that have been undertaken to St. Michael's Cave and in particular the frontage which was, in fact, the subject of a photograph in the Gibraltar Chronicle on 4th April 2013.

1545 The reason why I ask is there has been a lot of comment publicly by members of the public about this and certainly we do agree with some of the criticisms – with many of the criticisms – that have been made in relation to that particular frontage, that it really is not appropriate – (A Member: Aesthetically.) aesthetically pleasing, yes, thank you very much – and certainly not appropriate for that particular site. I just wonder whether, perhaps, the Minister has reconsidered, or considered, some of those criticisms and perhaps thought about revising or asking for further works to be done in order to improve that particular frontage which, quite frankly, does not appear to be what is required? It really is not something that is commensurate with that particular site.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, has the hon. Gentleman actually been to visit?

1555 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I actually take my dog up the Mediterranean Steps and then I come down via the road outside St. Michael's Cave, so I have, yes.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in that case the hon. Gentleman surely will agree with me that the change to the entrance to St. Michael's Cave is certainly a far cry from the dilapidated and neglected state that it used to be before. I think we can share that across the floor of this House...

1560 It is not for me to obviously counsel the hon. Gentleman on how he asks his questions to me but he needs to be aware that the comments that were made by his supporters on Facebook only served to very much alienate and incense the hard workers of the GTB who spent a lot of time, effort, energy, hard work and dedication on the works that were conducted at St. Michael's Cave.

1565 Whereas he and I may say that perhaps the aesthetic front to the entrance of the cave was not what he or I may have chosen, had the picture been put before me, he has to agree with me that the works inside the cave are magnificent. In the first place, for the first time in our history, there is access to people with disability (Applause) so now people with disability can access the cave and enjoy the wonderful concerts and other events that take place in St. Michael's Cave. There is, of course, as well, the widening of the steps in St. Michael's Cave, which has allowed for a much better throughput and thoroughfare of the hundreds of people that come to these events. (Interjection)

1570 I am answering his question. He can then of course... I will give way before I finish the answer to the supplementary that he has just asked me.

1575 Also, we have increased the auditorium for 400 seats to 600 seats and the Azamara event was certainly testament to how well received the increase has been. There has also been the lengthening of the steps so that, when people walk in, there is a greater safety distance so all in all, I would say that the works at St. Michael's Cave are 9.5 out of 10 and whereas the aesthetics of the frontage may not have been the one that I personally would have chosen, had I been shown that, I definitely allowed the workers and the people that advise me and do the work for the GTB a full run to be able to exercise their judgements and their professional expertise.

1580 As I say, Mr Speaker, on the basis that we have spent almost, or a little over, £500,000 on much needed embellishments and repairs on St. Michael's Cave, if the only thing that I can be criticised for is the fact that I did not oversee the particular signage that comes just in front of the cave, I am happy to accept that criticism without failing to mention the incredible hard work of the GTB.

1585 Before I finish my answer I will give way, as I promised the hon. Gentleman.

Mr Speaker: I will allow another supplementary on this matter because, strictly speaking, we are getting outside the ambit of the Question, but I will allow another supplementary. Yes.

1590 Hon. D A Feetham: Not from the Leader of the Opposition...

Mr Speaker: We are getting out of... the Question is, which company has carried out the works, whether they went out to tender. That has been answered. You have asked a supplementary, which I have allowed, and I will allow another supplementary and then we move on.

1595 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much.

1600 Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism really does not need to take the comments that I made personally. It was not a criticism of him. It was not a criticism of him personally. Indeed, I did prefix my question by the fact I did assume, in my question, that he had not in fact seen that particular frontage, or approved that particular frontage, before the work was actually undertaken. My question to the Hon. Minister was, now that he has seen that particular frontage and, given the criticisms, which I believe are entirely justified – and I do not think that the Hon. the Minister's comments about the comments made by 1605 members of the public, that all those comments are partisan, and neither can I accept that the comments made by so-called supporters of my Party are partisan comments... they are comments based on what is a pretty awful frontage, in the context of, yes, the excellent work that the Minister's staff and the rest of this particular company has done on the inside. I was not criticising the work on the inside and I have no hesitation in saying that there has been an improvement to the inside, in the same way as every Government in the history of Gibraltar always improves aspects of our tourist product and I have no hesitation in commending that.

1610 But, the question was, does he, in the light of the fact that he has seen this frontage and that, really, he agrees with me that it is not the frontage he would have chosen, that perhaps he might not go back to GJBS, or whoever it is that is in charge of this, in order to change that frontage because, in my view – and certainly it appears to be his view – it is letting down the rest of the excellent work that the Government has done in relation to this particular site?

1615 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place, simply to say that I welcome the fact that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition accepts that it is excellent work because it is, in fact, excellent work.

1620 In taking the points that he makes in preface to the supplementary to the question, which I believe is a repetition of the first supplementary, he and I both know that the comments on Facebook were completely partisan. I can remember the names of GSD Executive members who were castigating me personally by name for having allowed that particular atrocity. Yes, if he goes to Gibraltar Politics he will see that there... and it was referred to me and printed for me and, of course, I immediately circulated it to the GTB so that they could see the sort of comments that were being made.

1625 Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman wants me to believe that he was only criticising the frontage but that he thought the works were excellent, he would have prefaced his supplementary by saying 'notwithstanding the excellent work, the frontage is horrible'. But he did not say that, he just said 'the frontage is horrible: are you thinking of doing something about it?' So I cannot accept that as being an honest part of his answer and for his comments, which I am afraid I must take issue with, when he said that all previous Governments have done work on the Upper Rock, he knows that is a big, big lie.

1630 Let me tell him why it is not true to say –

Mr Speaker: On a Point of Order, would he withdraw the word 'lie', please.

Hon. N F Costa: I will withdraw the word 'lie', to say that it is not true.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, there is –

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, I withdraw it and I will tell him why –

1640 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I, just as a Point of Order –

Mr Speaker: Will both Members sit down: both Members sit down.
Now, on a Point of Order, I categorically ask the Minister to withdraw the word 'lie'.

1645 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, I have done it.

Mr Speaker: Then, when he has done that, he is going to continue to answer the supplementary question. So therefore the Leader of the Opposition does not have the floor. Is that clear? The Leader of the Opposition does not have the floor.

1650 The Hon. Minister is going to withdraw the unparliamentary language and then he is going to get on with answering the supplementary, which is the subject at the moment.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I had a Point of Order. If you do not want to listen –

1655 Mr Speaker: Do you have a different Point of Order to the question of a 'lie'?

Hon. D A Feetham: It is a slightly different Point of Order.

Mr Speaker: Okay, what is your Point of Order?

1660 Hon. D A Feetham: I did not mention the Upper Rock. I mentioned the 'tourist product', not the Upper Rock. Now, you know, it may assist the hon. Member to recognise – 1665 Mr Speaker: Just a moment. That is not a Point of Order, it is a point of fact. It is nothing to do with Standing Orders, it is a point of fact and there are different opinions about fact.

It is not a Point of Order, so the Hon. the Minister.

1670 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, if the hon. Gentleman did say the tourist product the point that I was going to make remains exactly the same, which is as follows. He said that all past Governments have improved the tourist product. I will tell him why this is not the case.

If we go back just five financial years, over five financial years there was an allocation of funds of £925,000. We allocated, in one financial year, £1 million and we spent in one financial year almost that £1 million. So it cannot be true to say, Mr Speaker, that his Government, when they were in post, did in fact do a lot to improve the tourist product, when the figures speak for themselves.

1675 And, in order... (Interjection) Well, he did ask the supplementary in preference to the... (Interjection)

Mr Speaker: Minister, may I draw your attention – in my view, the word ‘true’ is also unparliamentary. It may not be... You can use a word like ‘correct’: it may not be ‘accurate’ to say: right... but not ‘true’ or ‘untrue’.

1680 Hon. N F Costa: Accurate. And to answer the supplementary question, the matter has been considered at meetings.

1685 Mr Speaker: We are going to move on to the next Question, because being the excellent lawyers that they are, they have just been scoring debating points and we are going to get on with the business.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker I have a supplementary that is relevant to the information that the Hon. Minister has, if I may. Thank you.

1690 Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister mentioned the increase in auditorium capacity. Has there also been an increase in toilet facilities to cater for this?

Hon. N F Costa: I do not know the answer to hand, but I can certainly tell the hon. Lady that the toilets are now fit for purpose and before they were not.

1695 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Clerk: Question 204, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1700 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism provide details of the Government’s cost of its recent attendance at the FIA WTCC in Morocco?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1705 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I am slightly confused (Laughter) and would request your assistance. I was happy not to ask any supplementaries in relation to Question 202 and then we moved on to 203 when I put the Question, but then I do not think I have been given the opportunity to ask supplementaries in relation to that Question and that is where the confusion lies.

1710 Mr Speaker: Yes, yes, so the hon. Member now wishes to ask a supplementary to Question?

Hon. D J Bossino: 203 –

Mr Speaker: 203. Very well, I will allow that.

1715 Hon. D J Bossino: – in respect of which the Hon. Minister handed over a schedule to me.

1720 I note, Mr Speaker, that there was only one attendee, a Miss Edwina O’Mahony of Gibraltar House in London. Is there any reason why the Minister himself did not attend? I understand, Mr Speaker, that the practice, when we were in office, was that the Minister would attend these conferences. I am not sure, I think he did attend the last Miami conference last year when he was already in office and the question to the Minister is simply to ask why it is that he decided not to attend. Was it cost-related or particularly, Mr Speaker, because of the emphasis that he has publicly laid on personal contacts and how he claims that this is bearing fruit?

1725 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am only surprised that the hon. Gentleman should have asked me the question because he was gracious and generous to come to see me in hospital at the time and he knows that I was unable to fly to Miami. But I will, of course, forgive the question because, as I say, he was very kind to have visited me at the time and I was in fact very touched by the gesture.

1730 As I have said in previous answers, it is not the objective of the Government to attend the event for the very simple reason that business is not conducted during the course of the event and what happens is that Government officials attend the week before, which allows the Government the opportunity to meet face to face with the top executives. Because, on this occasion, I was unable to attend, Mr Nicky Guerrero, the Chief Executive of the GTB and Mr Peter Canessa of Gibraltar House attended on my behalf and visited the very same people that I would have met, had I been able to attend – but that was before the convention, not during.

1735 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I did not forget that... I did not forget that he was, in fact, in hospital but I was not conscious of the dates, to be honest. But I suppose the question which arises is a question of Government policy: maybe he can confirm, and I can glean from his answer, that this is the case, that it is Government policy for the Minister to attend these pre-convention meetings in the future.

1740 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker.

1745 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, obviously the pre-convention meetings will carry a cost. I appreciate perhaps that the question would have to be slightly amended to take account of that cost so that the Minister can provide this answer to the House. I assume that the Minister would have no difficulty in providing that information to the House but is it the case that he has not provided this information because he has specifically answered the question, as specifically posed?

1750 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is correct.
The reason for handing him over the schedule that I did, with the cost that I did, was because the Question related on the attendance of the Government to the event. I will have, of course, no difficulty whatsoever in handing over to the hon. Gentleman the costs, if he were to write to me, I will provide it to him immediately.

1755 I would avoid using the phrase ‘pre-convention meetings’. It is not as if there is a convention and there is a format whereby top cruise executives are available to meet. The way it works is that, six months before, we liaise with the top executives and the different cruise companies and therefore make our own personal arrangements in order to be able to meet with them. Everyone always agrees that the best time to go and talk to them is before the convention because, once the convention starts, in fact they go elsewhere because there really is no time to be able to conduct business during the event.

FIA WTCC in Morocco Cost of attendance

Clerk: Question 204, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1770 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism – oh, yes I have posed that question already, yes – provide details of – it was not particularly well phrased – the Government’s costs of its recent attendance at the FIA WTCC in Morocco?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1775 Minister for Tourism, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with the information requested.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION NO 204/2013

MARRAKECH	£
SUBSISTENCE	1,345.02
HOTEL ACCOMMODATION	2,450.00
TRAVEL EXPENSES	1,970.00
RECEPTION ON STAND	391.00
MISCELLANEOUS	416.35
COURIER COSTS	2,519.28

Further costs detail, in relation to the Chief Minister and his party to this event, are already available on the Government's website.

1780 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I take it from the endorsement at the bottom of the table, where it reads 'Further costs detail, in relation to the Chief Minister and his party to this event, are already available on the Government's website', that what I have been provided does not provide the totality of the Government's cost of attendance at this event and what I would need to do is marry this information with the information which is provided on the website. Is that correct?

1785 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, to clarify, the information that I have provided to the hon. Gentleman relates to my party, that is to say myself and the persons from the Tourist Board who attended. The information in respect of the Chief Minister and his party are on the Government website.

1790 Hon. D J Bossino: Of course Mr Speaker, just as a point of clarification, the Question actually related to the Government's costs, not only in relation to the Hon. Minister's Department. But certainly, as a matter of practice, I do appreciate that there is a Standing Order in place that states that if there is information that is publicly available it is not necessarily to be provided in this House. But I think that the Speaker has said in the past that it would be helpful for Ministers to provide this information in a schedule so that one can have the totality of the information, the instant that I seek it from the hon. Member.

1795 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I think what you have said – and you said it in a manner that the Government has said that it agrees entirely – is that if something is not available on the Government website at the time that Questions are being asked then it should be provided here even if subsequently it has been put up on the Government website. But this is information which relates to something that happened some weeks ago and therefore would have been up on the Government website, I assume, for some weeks – and, in fact, it was confirmed to me by the hon. Gentleman that it was – so really it is a question of that being published information which he needs to marry to the information he has been given today.

1800 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, two supplementaries from me in relation to the data that is available on the Government's website. The first is to ask the Hon. Minister whether it is expected that we will go through the list of each individual Minister's expenses to understand who attended the event and therefore what the global cost of the Government's attendance at an event was.

1805 Hon. Chief Minister: In answer to the first supplementary, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister said who it was who attended apart from him. It was the Chief Minister who attended, apart from him, and he will see there was a public statement at the time, saying that it was his Ministry and me that attended.

1810 Hon. S M Figueras: I see and I am grateful. I merely pointed it out because it strikes me that it would perhaps be more useful, if at all possible or practical, if the information in relation to the cost of an event globally were published on the website. I merely say it by way of suggestion as something that the Government may want to consider, moving forward.

1815 Hon. S M Figueras: I see and I am grateful. I merely pointed it out because it strikes me that it would perhaps be more useful, if at all possible or practical, if the information in relation to the cost of an event globally were published on the website. I merely say it by way of suggestion as something that the Government may want to consider, moving forward.

1820 However, having had an opportunity to quickly look at the travelling expenses of the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, as published on the website, there seems to be an inconsistency which perhaps he can address for me in that there is a trip to Marrakesh listed as at 4th to 8th April. Are these the same dates? Is this the same event? Before I proceed, obviously, can the Minister confirm whether this is in respect of the same trip?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, great. Well, in that case, I am merely highlighting the anomaly that the accommodation in the schedule to the answer that the Hon. Minister has very helpfully provided this afternoon, this hotel accommodation is £2,450 and the published information online says that the accommodation is just £400, so there is a slight inconsistency there and there is also an inconsistency in respect of the subsistence as well. Perhaps he could just provide some further details on this.

1830

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, that is because that is the cost of my accommodation, the Minister's accommodation.

1835

The schedule that I handed over to the hon. Gentleman, as in the past always, that I have passed over information to the hon. Gentleman, relates to the Minister and his party but on the website, if you read it actually states, cites the Minister, so it is the cost of my accommodation.

1840

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. Member... Is that the two supplementaries you have asked?
The Hon. Mr Bossino...

Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful.

Mr Speaker, if I can quote I think it is the Chief Minister in the Gibraltar Chronicle article of 11th April, which reported on this. He said: 'I believe we have reached a very wide audience indeed and that we will see real interest emerging from Morocco in Gibraltar's potential as a tourist, shopping and commercial destination.'

1845

In these circumstances although I appreciate it has only just gone one month I think since the Government attendance, has there been any such expression of interest, given my own area of responsibility and given that I am quoting that particular quote in the tourism sphere following that attendance?

1850

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am delighted to inform the House that, last week, we received the 1,000th visitor from Morocco availing themselves of the visa waiver programme coming through the land frontier. I think that demonstrates that, in the six to eight weeks that this visa programme – (Applause) Thank you – the six to eight weeks that the visa programme has been in place, we have received 1,000 visitors that we would not otherwise have received. In particular, I think that we have not yet started the programme of advertising and promoting Gibraltar to the maximum possible extent, although the attendance at that particular event, which is a very high profile social event in Marrakesh, was one of the things that we have been advised we should be doing and I think is now reaping rewards.

1855

In fact, I am told by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism that, as at midnight last night, we had received 1,144 visitors from the Kingdom of Morocco, availing themselves of the visa waiver programme facilities. I think that, Mr Speaker, demonstrates an extraordinary success on the part of the Minister for Tourism in respect of this particular policy, one which I am delighted hon. Members opposite welcomed at the time that it was introduced by us.

Tourism Fair in China Government attendance

1870

Clerk: Question 205, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism confirm whether the Gibraltar Government attended a tourism or any fair related to any of his other portfolios in China and, if so, who attended together with the costs of such attendance?

1875

1880

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, I am very pleased to confirm that the Chief Executive of the Gibraltar Tourist Board and the Director of Gibraltar House in London very ably represented Gibraltar at the World Travel Market Vision Conference China and the China Outbound Travel and Tourism Market from 8th to 11th

1885 April. I myself was looking forward to attending again. Unfortunately, I was unable to do so but I take the opportunity, once again, to thank the hon. Gentleman for visiting me: I seriously was very touched!

The WTM Vision Conference brought together senior tourism officials and travel professionals from all around China and other parts of the World. The event included a VIP workshop and presentation.

1890 The China Outbound Travel and Tourism Market is the only travel trade B2B event dedicated to outbound travel from China. Many outbound tour operators and corporate travel organisers from China attended, with the Gibraltar stand receiving nearly 300 enquiries at the three-day event. Gibraltar featured in the event's daily newspaper and Nicky Guerrero carried out a short introduction to the destination for Chinese Television.

1895 Gibraltar had its own stand, featuring images of Gibraltar, noting the key attractions. These were written in Chinese, 1,000 brochures were printed for the event, with over 700 distributed. In addition, both delegates had bi-lingual business cards printed. The Visit Gibraltar website continues to be available also in Chinese.

1900 The feedback is that interest in Gibraltar was very strong, as Chinese tourists are seeking new destinations to explore whilst in Europe. Chinese visitors are not looking for beach destinations but require history, heritage and, as a list topper, a quality shopping experience – things, Mr Speaker, that Gibraltar rightly boasts of in abundance.

Much of the outbound tourism market from China remains in the luxury bracket, with most tourists having high levels of disposable income. Gibraltar's product makes it ideal for this market and can be sold as the perfect add-on to a trip to Europe.

1905 The costs for the event are detailed in the schedule that I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman.

SCHEDULE TO QUESTION NO 205/2013

WTM VISION CONFERENCE AND COTTM CHINA - COSTS

	£
SUBSISTENCE	737.57
HOTEL ACCOMMODATION	2,400.00
FLIGHTS	5,052.00
STAND/SPACE RENTAL	3,145.10
MISCELLANEOUS	862.00

1910 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just by way of confirmation, can the Minister confirm... I would ask him to confirm that there were two attendees at this event. Is that correct?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker.

1915 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I appreciate that the Minister did not attend personally, although he would have loved to: I am sure that is the case. But, the reports that he has received from these two gentlemen who did attend, are they positive enough to suggest that he will be attending next year? I assume this is an annual event and what is the Government's intention in relation to this event, whether it intends to attend on a future occasion?

1920 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, the importance of this event was, of course, to start breaking into the Chinese market. We have just spoken across the floor of this House about breaking into the Moroccan market and how we have been able to bring a certain number of visitors to Gibraltar. It will not be as easy to do that with China, of course, not merely because of the length and distance between Gibraltar and China but the reports have been very encouraging so far.

1925 As I said in the answer to the Question, the criteria for Chinese tourists seem to be quality, heritage, history and what they call the 'bragging effect', to be able to say: 'We have been to Europe, but you have not been to Gibraltar. We have!' Also luxury shopping which, again, plenty of that experience in our Main Street. We have been able to establish good contacts already.

1930 Had I been able to attend, I would have, of course, had the chance to perhaps have made some diplomatic contact then. I was unable to do so, but the tourist contacts that have been established, to my mind are good stepping stones, whereas it is the intention, to answer the question of the hon. Gentleman, to attend next year. The point now, and the objective now, is to work on these contacts to see how we can market Gibraltar effectively in a cost effective way and where in China we should be marketing – of 1935 course, given the size of the country – and how, in other words building a marketing strategy to be able to do so and bring Chinese tourists over.

Mr Speaker: Yes, any...

1940 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Tourism also say whether there is any communication between his Department – certainly himself and other Government Ministers – because it strikes me that China is not only an important market in terms of tourism, but it is obviously an important market in terms of inward investment into Gibraltar in other ways. Can he or somebody on the Opposition benches – sorry, on the Government benches – enlighten us as to whether there is going to be a holistic combined approach to China as a global market of investment to Gibraltar, not necessarily tourism?

1945

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there is a holistic combined approach to China as a source of investment and tourism on the Government benches.

1950 Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

Can the Chief Minister perhaps provide us with some further information as to what other areas of investment the Government is looking at in relation to China as a market. We already know that it is being targeted from a tourism point of view. What other areas of investment does the Government hope to attract to Gibraltar from China?

1955

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, it would be premature at this stage to say more but there have been extensive contacts with a number of Chinese entities.

1960

Tourist sites
Details of refurbishment programme

Clerk: Question 206, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1965

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise this House whether the Government intends to continue with its refurbishment programme of tourist sites and if so provide details of what this will comprise?

1970

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Yes, Mr Speaker, I can most certainly confirm that the Government intends to continue with its excellent refurbishment programme of tourist sites to make up for the many years in which there have not been.

1975

I will be happy to provide further details (Applause) – thank you – once the funding allocation for the proposed improvements has been confirmed after the Budget session.

1980

Regeneration of Sandy Bay Report and tenders for work undertaken

Clerk: Question 207, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1985

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Tourism advise whether the works for the regeneration of Sandy Bay went out to tender?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

1990

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 208.

Clerk: Question 208, the Hon. J J Netto.

1995 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government please provide to Parliament a copy of the extensive engineering studies report carried out in relation to the Sandy Bay work, as stated in the Government press release number 291/2013?

2000 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

2005 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the contract for the regeneration works at Sandy Bay has not gone out to tender because of the specialist nature of the works. The project has been awarded to Van Oord (Gibraltar) Limited, who are a major civil engineering contractor with extensive experience in coastal works both locally and internationally.

2010 Following a tender process, the Government engaged a specialist engineering consultant to undertake the necessary engineering studies and provide advice and recommendations on the works required at Sandy Bay up to conceptual design stage. This report has been used by the contractor for the works as the basis for the preparation of the final detailed design. The Government will not provide copies of the highly technical engineering reports as these are for internal use.

2015 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I do take note of the fact that the Government will not be providing the copy but the reason why I asked my question is that, whilst accepting, on the one hand, that these are, to quote the Government press release, 'extensive engineering studies', it seems to me that those extensive engineering studies will be in line with the environmental issues or environmental information that goes hand in hand in the kind of assessment that the consultant has provided for and my view is that, whilst it contains environmental information, such environmental information should be made public, not just to Members of the Opposition but, indeed, to any member of the public. At the end of the day people – if we follow the European philosophy of providing environmental information – are entitled to find the particular information containing Government contracts or at least where consultants provided these studies for Government. So, in the context of that, I wonder whether the Hon. the Minister will rethink his position and provide a copy to the Opposition?

2025 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in short the answer is that, no, I will not rethink my position, for a very simple reason. The environmental concerns, of course, will be undertaken at the EIA and that is a public document so any environmental concerns he may have would be published in due course so he can take a look at that and then ask any questions he deems appropriate. The engineering studies relating to coastal defences, of course, look at entirely different things.

2030 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may just make a suggestion to the hon. Gentleman. Can I suggest that he asks Question 209, which deals with a very similar subject, and the information he gets there may assist him in the formulation of further supplementaries on both subjects. I do not know if that is of assistance.

Works at Sandy Bay Submerged groyne structures

2040

Mr Speaker: Question 209.

Clerk: Question 209, the Hon. J J Netto.

2045

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government say whether the recently announced works to be undertaken at Sandy Bay will include the provision of submerged groyne structures in order to reduce erosion of sand from the beach?

2050 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

2060 Hon. J J Netto: I think, Mr Speaker, that I have seen some sort of visual of these particular groynes actually going out and they are, as I saw them, two sorts of piers which go sort of vertical in this 90 degrees on the edge of the waterfront going out to sea. But my question is a slightly different one to what I was trying to find out from the Minister whether, in addition to those particular two piers going out vertically from the front line of the beach whether there is another submerged groyne lying horizontally towards the edge of the actual beach itself. In other words, what I am trying to find out and perhaps using the opportunity the Chief Minister offered me previously, is whether there is some study being conducted, whether it is being done by the engineers themselves before, or whether it is being done separately, whether there is, sort of, any study being conducted so that, whether they have considered, in addition to those two external piers, a further one lying horizontally submerged in order to avoid the erosion of sand from the beach.

2070 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the question that the hon. Gentleman... is now clear to me. If I read off the advice, the information provided to me by the Technical Services Department, it says that there is the option to construct a submerged break water connecting both ends of the curved groynes to provide greater protection if it is deemed necessary in the future. But their advice to us now is that the curved groynes that are jetting out onto sea will provide sufficient protection.

2075 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister provide that advice to the Opposition?

Hon. N F Costa: I just have.

2080 Hon. J J Netto: No, no. The advice given to the Government. The full advice?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have already said in the answer to the first question that he asked me on this subject that it is not appropriate to provide copies of studies. We are just following on the policy that they adopted during the time of the unfortunate rock fall where they said when they sat on this side of the House that to provide copies was not appropriate.

2085 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am not asking questions about rock falls. I am talking about questions in relation to the Government project which they have announced. My point of view...

2090 [Interruption by a mobile phone ringing]

A Member of the public: Sorry.

Hon. J J Netto: Shall I sit down and wait for...

2095 Mr Speaker: It was a member of the public. I think the mobile phone has been switched off. They have expressed their regrets. Thank you.

2100 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, as I was saying, I am not asking questions about rock falls. I am asking questions about a particular Government project and the point I am trying to labour on is that these are projects which in one way or another impacts on the environment and we are talking about environmental information and I am saying in the context of that, I think that the Opposition and the public in general, are entitled to find out what advice, in terms of studies that have been given to the Government, so that we can make the same assessment or different assessment to the advice that the Government is giving. So my question to him is whether he is willing to provide that advice or not?

2105 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if I may assist here. The question of what kind of coastal protection is provided in Sandy Bay, I think is certainly being tackled now in a way that was not tackled before. We will recall that about two years ago a considerable amount of sand was placed in Sandy Bay which was washed away the next winter as I had predicted at the time. What is being done now is two groynes, I almost said grains, that is the sand. Mr Speaker, there are two groynes which do not quite go at right angles to the shore. They are actually, in what you describe as a pincer movement and do provide a certain amount of protection from the sea when it comes slightly from the south and slightly from the north. I think what my hon. Friend is saying is that the advice being given is that it may not be necessary to have a submerged groyne but it may become necessary depending on the effect after the first winter or during the first winter and that the option has remained open. So it is not the intention at the moment to do it but depending on the results of the proposals as they are planned at the moment, the decision will be taken as to whether a submerged groyne will be necessary in order to protect the sand further.

2120 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, my question is not what happened two years ago...

Mr Speaker: Could I please ask the Hon. Mr Netto. Given that the microphones are directional. I have just noticed that when the Hon. Mr Cortes moved the microphone, the loudness of his voice was considerably enhanced. So would he try to do the same thing. Direct it towards him more closely to see whether it will in fact improve the sound level.

2125 Hon. J J Netto: Okay. Thanks very much Mr Speaker. Is that better? Yes. Well Mr Speaker, as I was saying my question is not about what may or may not have happened two years ago. My question is what is happening now. I am talking about an issue where environmental consideration has been taken into account in relation to the project that is going to be undertaken and it may or may not in the future, the Government having to revisit this again to provide a further submerged groyne for avoiding an erosion of sand from the beach. That may not happen. But that has got nothing to do with my question. My question for the fourth, perhaps the fifth time now is, given that we are talking about environmental considerations which are part and parcel of the studies that have been given to the Government, will the Opposition be also entitled to have that environmental information? Yes or no?

2130 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is not a question of what may or may not have happened in 2009. It is a question of what did happen then and the sand did go as I predicted, explicitly, in various letters which were not replied to but that is history, Mr Speaker. The question as to whether the environmental information will be provided, I think we are talking about several things. We are talking about a very technical, structural, geological report which my hon. Friend has decided is not appropriate to make public and that is his decision and not mine and the environmental statement which I will be very happy to share with the Opposition. Mr Speaker, it will, in fact, be a public document. So the environmental information can be provided.

2145 Mr Speaker: Another supplementary.

Hon D A Feetham: Yes. Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism I think in answer to one of his previous supplementaries or the supplementaries from my colleague Mr Netto, I think said that an EIA had to be conducted. Did I hear that correctly? Does it have to be conducted or has it already been conducted and has been taken into account in the production of a report because it strikes me that if the Government takes a decision to proceed with a particular project, unless...

[Technical Interruption]

2155 Mr Speaker: We need to stop a moment because there is a technical problem. The most convenient thing I think is to have a short recess. Okay. The House will now recess for a few minutes.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, it is my intention to adjourn the House at 17.55 hrs in any event. We are in the middle of a supplementary. I do not know whether that might make Mr Speaker wish to recess and I can stay until we finish this question even if it is after 6 o'clock, but then I have to leave ...

Mr Speaker: So it is your intention to adjourn in a few minutes.

2165 Hon. Chief Minister: Exactly. Yes, but I am quite happy to come back if you want to finish with the supplementary ...

Hon D A Feetham: I do not mind asking... Well, the problem is Hansard. He understands the question, I do not mind continuing. The problem is of course Hansard. But, I do not mind continuing.

2170 Mr Speaker: Since we are very near to this stage when an adjournment was going to be made I now propose that we adjourn to tomorrow at 3.00 p.m. The House will now adjourn to tomorrow at 3.00 p.m.

Sandy Bay – Question 209/2013 Further supplementary questions

Clerk: Mr Speaker.

15

Mr Speaker: We are at supplementaries arising from Question 209. I think yesterday evening the Leader of the Opposition was going to raise a supplementary.

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Thursday, 16th May 2013. Answers to Questions continue.

20 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I think we left it in my having to answer a supplementary from the Leader of the Opposition of the question of an environmental assessment at Sandy Bay, if I remember correctly. (Mr Speaker: Yes.)

25 If I may Mr Speaker, yes, I can confirm that indeed an environmental assessment has been carried out and the recommendations have been taken into account and are being carried out and I have asked my office to prepare a copy which I will very gladly have delivered to the Opposition to the Hon. Mr Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I just for the sake of clarification – and I am grateful to the Minister for what he has just said – could I also have it in electronic form, if this is at all possible?

30 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Certainly, Mr Speaker, I will make arrangements for that to happen.

CHIEF MINISTER

35

Charities List allegedly discouraged by GSD

40 Clerk: We now move to the Questions which are being posed to the Hon. the Chief Minister. Question 412/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister say when he will be writing to me with the overdue list of charities the GSD allegedly discouraged the contributions and work of?

45 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the letter has been sent to the hon. Lady today.

50

Charities Government policy on annual grants

Clerk: Question 413, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

55 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can Government explain the policy of giving annual grants to individual charities and if so, from which Government Department's budget and which criteria are used to determine which charity is to receive a grant?

60 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

65 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, Government does not have an established policy or set of criteria when awarding grants. As has been the established practice with the previous Administration and probably even earlier, grants are awarded at the Chief Minister's discretion to cases identified as deserving of financial assistance. Grants are paid from the central vote for 'grants'.

Aviation measures Spain's withdrawal from Cordoba Agreement

Clerk: Question 414, the Hon. P R Caruana.

75 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister provide to the House an update on the position that has arisen as a result of Spain resiling from its commitments under the Cordoba Agreement in relation to not seeking Gibraltar's exclusion from new EU measures, and specifically the recent aviation measure in which the Gibraltar suspension language was included?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

80 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the whole House will agree with me that the unilateral withdrawal by the Kingdom of Spain from its obligations under the Cordoba Agreement is an entirely unacceptable manner of conducting international relations between governments.

85 For information, let me remind the House that on 1st December 2011, the European Commission adopted a proposal for the recast and replacement of Regulation 95/93 of 18th January 1993 on common rules for the allocation of slots at Community airports. That original 1993 Slots Regulation contains the pre-Cordoba suspension language.

90 Recital 29 and Article 1(2) of the Commission's 2011 Proposal contained the new post-Cordoba language. The proposal was discussed at Council Working Group level in October 2012. It was at that meeting that Spain sought to replace the post-Cordoba language with the pre-Cordoba suspension clause. After a heated debate the result was that neither the post or pre-Cordoba language would be contained in the replacement measure.

It is of course Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar's position that any new aviation measure that is silent on its application to Gibraltar Airport is applicable to Gibraltar.

95 In similar vein, on Wednesday, 13th March 2013, the European Commission adopted a proposal for an EU Regulation amending the 2004 EU Regulation on denied boarding compensation and other passenger rights. The 2004 Regulation still contains the suspension clause. The proposal for the amendment does not seek to remove the suspension clause. Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar considers this to be contrary to what was agreed at Cordoba. This is also the position of Her Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom.

100 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, I recognise from what the hon. Member says, not just a recital of the facts which are correct, but also a political position and a political judgement with which I, speaking for myself, from the lonely back benches, would fully subscribe to.

105 Mr Speaker, whatever might be the difference in language – in other words, Counsel decided not to include either the previous language or either the pre- or post-Cordoba language, but new language – I think it is true to say that nevertheless the effect of that language is suspension, and that Spain should be doing that is certainly unacceptable and perhaps capable of being categorised because it is Spain, but what of the EU Commission, Mr Speaker? Does the Government feel it will be able – through the UK obviously, I am not suggesting that this is something that the Gibraltar Government could do – to hold the Commission to the fact that it was notified of these agreements, Spain committed itself in a letter to the Commission not to seek exclusion language, the Commission accepted that, acted accordingly on a number of cases of which presumably the Government is aware, and in those circumstances has the Government been able to obtain any advice as to whether there may be any basis to pursue the Commission in law, not for Spain's behaviour, but for its own behaviour in terms of 'flip-flopping' between acceptance and not acceptance of things communicated to it?

115 Hon. Chief Minister: I am delighted to say that I share the Hon. previous Leader of the Opposition's attitude to 'flip-flopping' as being entirely unacceptable.

120 But if I can just go back to how he started his intervention, in case he misunderstood something I said, which I think it is important for him and the House to have clear: I did not say that there was new language included in that particular measure which does not contain the suspension clause, or the Cordoba clause; there was no language included – so neither the suspension clause nor the clause that Cordoba proposed should be included. Just that he said 'new language'; there is no language.

125 Hon. P R Caruana: So there is no suspension – I beg your pardon, Mr Speaker.

130 Hon. Chief Minister: There is no language, and therefore what I told the House was the attitude of Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar and of the United Kingdom is that therefore that measure, absent language, applies to Gibraltar.

135 Now, he is absolutely right that there are a number of levels to this matter. There are the political levels and there are the legal levels and those apply also in relation to a number of different parties, the Kingdom of Spain and the Commission, and all of those matters are the subject of on-going discussion and negotiation – discussion and agreement with the United Kingdom and discussion and negotiation with the Commission.

140 With Spain, as the hon. Gentleman would expect, there is nothing but a position put in public, from which they are apparently refusing to budge, despite what that may say for what value one can put on the agreements entered into by the Kingdom of Spain.

This is not an attempt to re-negotiate a part of what was agreed at Cordoba; this is a unilateral withdrawal by one party, giving no notice to any of the others, other than a public statement to that effect and actions in the Commission... sorry not in the Commission; actions in the European Union discussion groups leading up to the presentation of a final directive.

The hon. Gentleman is right that it can create legal issues, not just against Spain, but also against other relevant parties that may assist in the conspiracy, if I can put it that way, to exclude Gibraltar once again from measures that clearly apply to Gibraltar.

145

Hon. P R Caruana: If I may, Mr Speaker, is it implicit in what Spain has done and what he has seen more technically – I mean, I have only seen what has appeared in the press – but is it his assessment of what he has seen that Spain has done, that of course in resiling from the non-use of the suspension language from EU Directives affecting aviation, they have also resiled from the other elements of the Cordoba Airport Agreement, for example to link the terminal directly to the Spanish side through a so-called northern entrance.

150

155

Hon. Chief Minister: I am conscious of how sensitive the ambient microphone is.

Mr Speaker, in answering the hon. Gentleman's question, let me give the House another piece of information, which may be useful for us all to be aware of. In a Boletín Oficial del Estado issued last week in Spain, which is the Spanish equivalent, as Members will know, of the Gazette, the Kingdom of Spain circulated as the measure giving effect to a measure on EU-US Open Skies which had been agreed during 2011, a document which shows that agreement and the effect of it, including the Cordoba language.

160

Now, I believe, Mr Speaker, that that is because at the time that that agreement was negotiated and agreed between states, including the United States and the 27 Member States of the European Union, the Cordoba language was in it. So it is therefore impossible actually for the Kingdom of Spain to resile from that. So at the same time that Spain is putting one legal position in discussions with the Commission and other Member States in the EU on current measures, she is publishing in her Boletín Oficial del Estado an agreement with the United States containing the Cordoba language. I think it is important that the House should be aware of that.

165

Now, the hon. Gentlemen will know from his time at No. 6, after Cordoba and after the Gibraltar Airport works were substantially completed and those adjoining the frontier were substantially completed, at least in terms of the infrastructure of the building, that both with a Socialist government in Spain and the months that he was in office, whilst there was a Partido Popular in office in Spain, the issue as to the building of that additional entrance into the building related more to who owned the land and how that transfer of land was going to happen to the relevant Spanish airport authority, which I think is AENA, rather than any desire to build or not build and of course the amounts available to build infrastructure projects of that sort available to the Spanish state, given the present circumstances.

170

No notice has been given to the Government of Gibraltar, and I believe no notice has been given to the government of the United Kingdom at least none that has been communicated to us and we would expect it would be communicated immediately, that Spain is resiling from that aspect of the Cordoba Accords. It may simply be because the issue as to the land has not been resolved and there may be no intention of resolving it.

175

The hon. Gentleman knows and I will not shy away from it, the policy of the Parties now in Government has consistently been that should that part of the agreement go ahead, our position is and I think this is where the important difference lies between the position of the Government of Gibraltar today and the position of the Government of Spain today, that we would seek to re-negotiate parts of that because although he was satisfied with what he negotiated, he knows our public position in respect of that. But we have received no notification that Spain is not going to proceed with that aspect of its obligations under the Cordoba Accords.

185

He also knows, of course, Mr Speaker, that although Spain resiles unilaterally from its obligation in relation to the suspension clause relating to Gibraltar Airport, that Spain expects other parties to the Cordoba Accords to maintain their obligations and perform their obligations under those agreements. I think the most salient of those is the continued payment of Spanish pensions, which is an obligation of the United Kingdom as a signatory to those Accords and the United Kingdom keeps to its agreements. I think that is exactly how international state parties should approach international obligations.

190

195

Hon. P R Caruana: But, Mr Speaker, would the hon. Member agree with me – and I am conscious that I do not want to encourage him to say anything publicly that he should not – but that the mutual obligations to release Gibraltar Airport from the then existing EU user restrictions, the applicability of EU Directives, the suspension of EU Directives to our terminal, to our Airport, was the quid pro quo for allowing them to connect directly to our Airport and that they could not have one without the other. In other words, they could not be, feel, entirely, and another thing is the Gibraltar Government may unilaterally decide that it is willing to allow it, but that is a matter of choice for the Gibraltar Government. Spain could not insist on being allowed to communicate directly with our terminal to the north, whilst at 205 the same time not adhering to the quid pro quo which it gave in return for that, which was the release of Gibraltar Airport from EU suspension.

200

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think that the hon. Gentleman, in making that intervention, highlights this issue, which I think is also important: we talk in shorthand about the Cordoba Accords, but of course the hon. Gentleman came back with a number of different agreements which were, if you might call it, in different silos. I spoke about pensions but of course that is in a different silo, so to speak, from the Airport. This particular part of the Agreement does include these issues of different access to the terminal, the suspension clause etc.

210 But may I just take the hon. Gentleman a step further and say this to the House: the suspension clause that had made its way into European legislation speaks not just of Spain's attitude in the late 1980s to Gibraltar Airport; it speaks to a much less virtuous period in British diplomacy's attitude to Gibraltar. The suspension clause, the hon. Gentleman will recall, was actually a measure agreed between the United Kingdom and Spain, in order to allow Directives to proceed without the argument on Gibraltar holding them back and therefore Open Skies proceeded and we were excluded from it, etc.

220 I think we are now in a much more virtuous place for British diplomacy. I think it is clear that the United Kingdom will not allow Spain to believe for one moment that there will be an agreement between them to insert a suspension clause, so that therefore measures that might not otherwise go forward will go forward. I am sure that he will agree with me that it is exactly right that that should be the position of the United Kingdom and it could not be otherwise.

225 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes indeed, Mr Speaker, subject only to another important change that has happened since and that is the advent of qualified majority voting, which does not mean that the UK veto can prevent that very eventuality from resulting.

230 Hon. Chief Minister: Or vice versa.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, but qualified majority voting means that the UK would have to gather enough support to defeat the measure because of Spain's insistence on the Gibraltar action.

235 Well, I am grateful, Mr Speaker, to the Chief Minister for bringing the House up to date on that and simply to repeat to him at a personal level that if he feels that the Government will benefit from any nuanced insight that may not appear from the papers that might help the Government that he thinks I can contribute, I am very happy to do so.

240 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful for that offer from the hon. Gentleman. He knows I have taken him up on that offer in relation to a number of different matters and if it were to become necessary, of course I would call him to assist us in relation to any issues where we need to interpret anything that happened in his time and that is not clear from the documentation available.

245 But can I just address this issue of qualifying majority voting, Mr Speaker. In fact, QMV may be something that bites in the other direction as well. Of course, it depends how these measures originate from the Commission and what he must have been told and I am told and is obvious politically from simply following European politics is that it is sometimes harder to change a measure than it is just to keep a measure as it is. If the measures originate in the Commission without suspension language or with the Cordoba language, which is where I agree the Commission is obliged to set any measure relating to aviation with the post Cordoba language, then the exercise is to remove, and that is harder. To simply keep as it is, it is easier to garner votes and proceed in that context.

250 Mr Speaker, I do not think there is anything more I can usefully add, other than to thank the hon. Gentleman for his offer of assistance.

255 Duty payable on bicycle parts and accessories
Government policy

Clerk: Question 415, the Hon. S M Figueras.

260 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister state the Government's policy in relation to duty payable on bicycle frames, components and accessories generally and, specifically, in respect of promoting local businesses engaged in the sale of these goods?

265 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

270 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, with your indulgence before I answer this question, I meant to say something before I started answering all of these questions, which I would be grateful to be allowed to say now. It is simply this: this is the first time that I answer questions in this House having had all of these answers prepared without the assistance of Marisa Dobinson, who was in charge of preparing parliamentary answers not just for myself, but for all others. It is a testament to how well she planned her succession that I have been able to do this month just with Julie Bruzon, the Chief Secretary and the whole of the rest of the team that prepare parliamentary answers for me and for the rest of my colleagues. I would like to thank her for the work that she did for the period that I have been Chief Minister and I am sure that the Hon. the previous Chief Minister would share my views.

275 Mr Speaker, import duty on bicycles is 0%. Import duty on bicycle parts and accessories is 12% . The Government is considering representations made in respect of these goods.

280 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the contribution, Mr Speaker. I have raised the issue in the context of representations that I myself have received from business owners dealing in these goods who allude to the fact that there is a difficulty or they are experiencing some difficulty in terms of competing with the on-line businesses that so many locals avail themselves of their services.

I am grateful for the contribution and I would end by asking the Hon. the Chief Minister whether this is something that he expects will be considered in time for the Budget session?

285 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that would be telling! I have to fall back on the Chief Minister's privilege of telling the House what the Budget measures will be on the day of the Budget; but I hear what he says.

290
Hybrid/alternative energy vehicles
Registration in Gibraltar

295 Clerk: Question 416, the Hon. S M Figueras.

300 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister say how many hybrid/alternative energy vehicles have been registered in Gibraltar since the introduction of the Government's various fiscal measures designed to incentivise the purchase of said vehicles, detailing whether said vehicles have been purchased for private, commercial or Government use?

Clerk: Answer, the hon. the Chief Minister.

305 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 417.

310
Hybrid/alternative energy vehicles
Government incentivisation policy

Clerk: Question 417.

315 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Chief Minister state the Government's policy in relation to the continued or enhanced incentivisation for the purchase and use of hybrid and other alternative energy vehicles in Gibraltar.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

320 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there has been one hybrid vehicle and three electric vehicles registered in Gibraltar since the introduction of the Government's fiscal measures.

The hybrid is a private motor vehicle. There are two electric mopeds and one electric private motor vehicle.

325 In order to promote the acquisition of hybrid vehicles, Government has reduced the import duty on these vehicles when imported via licensed motor vehicle dealers in Gibraltar. The duty will decrease from 8.25% to 6.25%, depending on cubic capacity, to a flat 2% across the board. He will recall that from the last Budget session.

330 Moreover, upon registration of a hybrid vehicle, the purchaser will receive £500 cash back. Therefore the purchase of a hybrid vehicle will result in a tax-cut and cash-back incentive to the consumer, as provided for in the GSLP/Liberal manifesto. Furthermore, Government is also looking at such vehicles for its own fleet to lead by example and hopes that this measure will encourage consumers to consider hybrid vehicles, not just because of the saving on fuels and the lowering of emissions but also because of the savings on import duty and the cash back on registration.

335 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, perhaps the Chief Minister could just clarify for me because I did not quite get what he was referring to in relation to the reduction from 8.25% to 6.25%. That was in relation to which vehicles, sorry? I had always understood that the duty was 2% for hybrid vehicles across the board.

340 Hon. Chief Minister: Well it is now, Mr Speaker, but the position from which we changed – in other words, the position before the Budget – was that depending on the cubic capacity, the duty was either between 8.25% to 6.25%; and the change implemented in our first Budget was to reduce it to 2%.

345 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.
Is it safe to say that given that the Hon. Chief Minister has kindly noted that it is the delivery of a manifesto commitment to come up with these incentives, which certainly this side of the House welcomes, that it is something that will continue for the foreseeable future, something that will, if reviewed, only be enhanced for further incentivisation?

350 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it would certainly be the case, until I assume we get to zero and there is little more we can do once we get to zero in terms of import duty. With zero import duty, I do not know how much cash back people would need in order to be incentivised to purchase the vehicles. There has to come a tipping point, where encouragement is given and cannot go further. But certainly the position has been to incentivise in a way that is quite dramatic compared to what it was before.

355 I sincerely believe that this is the technology of the future and I think it is actually coming by way of technology and less by way of an incentivisation of people, but there may be more things that we are able to do, in order to incentivise the use of such vehicles.

360 One thing that is certainly in my mind, and I do not want to be questioned about this in the future, if it has not happened in the next 35 days – so the hon. Gentleman, please note that I am not setting any time limit on when this could happen or how it could happen – but he will understand, like I do, that if you have got an electric vehicle, you need to charge it, so we need to start looking at how we provide for charging stations in public parking in Gibraltar, and one of the things to provide may be that the electricity may be provided at no charge for a particular period – something which may be electronically possible, given that when you plug in you need three hours to charge and you will get three hours of electricity and then the whole thing might switch off after that.

365 Those are the sorts of things that we can do, beyond simply touching the duty and touching the cash-back element.

370 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for that contribution.
Perhaps the Hon. the Chief Minister will be assisted by my contribution in this context, because I was certainly coming to ask about incentivisation beyond pure fiscal measures, so I am grateful to the Hon. the Chief Minister for his indication in that regard.

375 Is the Government considering, or would it consider, the possibility of – in consultation with, say, the Electricity Authority and other relevant agencies – the requirement moving forward in respect of new builds for electricity infrastructure to be installed at parking level, because certainly in the use of electric vehicles, that, I believe, is more of a concern than having a charging station wherever you are going to charge your car, if you have been unable to charge it overnight in order to be able to use it in the morning. I wonder whether the Government can confirm if this is something that is on the radar or something that they will consider moving forward as a possibility.

380 Hon. Chief Minister: It is very much on the radar. It is a pity that recently completed developments do not already have that, but new developments will very likely incorporate measures to deal with these issues. Some existing developments will likely be retro-fitted and new public parkings are likely to provide for this.

385 But how it is going to be provided, in particular in public parkings, is an issue where you may have areas which are open to the elements. The other side of the coin, of course, is that in public parkings, it may be possible to set up what you might notionally call ‘solar charging stations’ and we are looking at that in detail, so that instead of displacing emissions by plugging a vehicle into the grid and the emissions would be much less than what the internal combustion engine produces – but there may be an element of 390 an emission, if you are relying on a power station, until of course that power station does not produce emissions, at least dangerous ones – then it may be that solar charging stations are a solution, especially in places with weather as privileged as the ones we enjoy here.

395 Sunborn Floating Hotel Project
Establishment

Clerk: Question 418, the Hon. S M Figueras.

400 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister say whether the establishment of a floating hotel in Ocean Village Marina is a done deal?

Clerk: Answer, the hon. the Chief Minister.

405 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Without being demoted immediately, I am delighted to take this question with the others that relate to Sunborn. Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 419 to 423.

410 Sunborn Floating Hotel Project
Wildlife habitats; contracts; infrastructure;

415 Clerk: Question 419, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment please state if, in the vicinity of where the floating hotel is to be sited, there are Ribbed Mediterranean Limpet and Spider Crabs' habitats?

420 Clerk: Question 420, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government state if there is any contractual relationship between the owners of the floating hotel and the Government and, if so, what is it based on?

425 Clerk: Question 421, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government state whether the infrastructure to accommodate the floating hotel is going to be paid by the Government, the owners of the floating hotel or the owners of the Ocean Village and what is the cost to any of these entities?

430 Clerk: Question 422, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government state if there is any agreement/contract in place between the Government, the owners of the floating hotel and the owners of the Ocean Village and if so, could the Government provide a date on which such an agreement or contract has been signed and give details of such?

Clerk: Question 423, the Hon. D A Feetham.

440 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please provide details of (a) the costs already incurred by the Government and (b) the overall estimated cost to the Government of the Sunborn Floating Hotel project?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

445 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, in order to encourage the relocation and establishment in Gibraltar of the five-star Grand Luxury Floating Hotel – the Sunborn, Gibraltar, I can confirm that the Government has committed itself to assist in any way that it can to make this project a reality.

450 This includes working with the owners of Ocean Village to ensure that the infrastructure in the area of the proposed berthing of the vessel is in place, such as any dredging work and sheet piling which is required to enable the vessel to be manoeuvred into position.

The Government is also working to provide the necessary infrastructure works to ensure adequate and sufficient provision to the five-star Grand Luxury Hotel of the required utility services. The municipal areas surrounding the hotel will also be beautified by the Government with greenery that is in keeping with what would be reasonably expected of a five-star Grand Luxury Hotel resort in Gibraltar.

455 I am aware that there are some concerns expressed by residents of the area and the ESG about some aspects of the infrastructure works to be carried out, as well as what the berthing of the vessel at Ocean Village may entail. I will be meeting the ESG on Monday to address their concerns and discuss with them how best to incorporate these into the plans.

460 Although some of these infrastructure works are to be paid for by the Government, as would be the case in respect of any development, the final cost of which has not yet been established, there is no direct contractual relationship between the Government and either the owners of Ocean Village or the owners of the floating hotel to provide these works.

465 Separately, I think it is fair to congratulate Ocean Village for having secured the agreement of Sunborn to berth what appears to be a magnificent vessel at their facility.

The cost incurred by the Government to date in connection with this project is £137,440. There is continuing discussion between the various parties on specific project items and it would not be appropriate to disclose estimated project costs to the Government until those discussions have been concluded and costs agreed.

470 Turning now, Mr Speaker, to Question 419, there are no Ribbed Mediterranean Limpets in the immediate vicinity of where the floating hotel is to be sited, although they do exist in some areas of rock revetments on the approaches to that location. For that reason, silt curtains will be deployed in areas to be dredged close to locations where Ribbed Mediterranean Limpets exist, to contain any suspended sediment and avoid any impact on said populations.

475 There are, however, a small number of Spider Crabs in this general area, but as part of this project, the Department of the Environment, in conjunction with appointed contractors, is currently surveying the area with divers and relocating any Spider Crabs that may be found.

480 Spider Crabs are also found in both western and eastern shorelines of Gibraltar, favouring the more sheltered areas. It should be noted that the population of Spider Crabs in Gibraltar has been maintained in a healthy state, as a direct result of the protection measures laid out in the Nature Protection Act 1991. Had this species not been protected, the current situation would have undoubtedly been very different, considering that this species is harvested commercially.

485 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, therefore could the Chief Minister provide a simple answer – and I note the lengthy answer that he has provided, but a simple answer – to the question that my hon. Friend, Mr Figueras, has asked which is, ‘Is the floating hotel in Ocean Village Marina a done deal?’ because from what he appears to have said, indeed it is a done deal?

490 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, he should ask the people who appear to have done the deal: Ocean Village and Sunborn.

495 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can I take it therefore from the answer that he provided a few moments ago, his lengthy answer, the Government is wholly committed to this particular deal taking place here in Gibraltar and will do everything necessary in order to make it happen?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I fear he did not hear what I said. I will read the first sentence of what I said to the House a moment ago:

500 ‘... in order to encourage the relocation and establishment in Gibraltar of the five-star Grand Luxury Floating Hotel – the Sunborn, Gibraltar, I can confirm that the Government has committed itself to assist in any way that it can to make this project a reality.’

505 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in relation to this question of Spider Crabs and also the Limpets, has an environmental impact study actually been undertaken and, if so, was it undertaken prior to the works having commenced, for example dredging works having been commenced in the area?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I understand that if he looks at the documents that were filed before the DPC, the Government has confirmed that such a study is, has or is being undertaken.

510 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, that does not really answer the question. 'Has or will be undertaken' does not answer the question as to whether an environmental impact assessment has and did in fact... was in fact undertaken prior to the works in this area having been undertaken, for example, the dredging. Now, if he does not know what the answer is, perhaps the Minister for the Environment does.

515 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I am looking through the questions and the hon. Gentleman has not given notice of such a question.

If he wants an answer to a question like that, which is asking for a particular factual answer to be given, I am quite happy to get the information and provide it to the House, but he needs to give me notice of such a question.

520 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister confirm that substantial dredging works have been undertaken in this particular area?

525 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I can confirm that no dredging works have been undertaken in the area to date.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, perhaps I can be of assistance to the House in saying that I have seen the papers filed with the Development and Planning Commission in respect of the infrastructural works – infrastructural works which were not listed as a Government project in the agenda of the meeting, but I understand were stated to be so at the meeting itself.

530 In those documents, though I do not have a copy of them with me, there is, in the application form, reference to an environmental impact assessment ongoing in the application form. However, I understand from my hon. Friend, Mr Netto, that during the meeting of the DPC at which this matter was discussed, it was decided that a screening process should be undertaken in order to determine whether a full-on environmental impact assessment should be conducted.

535 My question to the Hon. the Chief Minister is this: my understanding is that the vessel – and the value of the initiative of which is not in question in this House today, because we are talking about issues which are entirely distinct from that assessment – the vessel was already on its way at the time of that meeting of the Development and Planning Commission.

540 Mr Speaker: Question, please. You say 'my question is' – please get on with the question.

Hon. S M Figueras: My question, Mr Speaker, is if that was the case is it not rather unnecessary to take a matter before the Development and Planning Commission, when it has already been decided that it is going to go ahead, no matter what?

Hon. Chief Minister: That was not the case, Mr Speaker.

550 Hon. J J Netto: Yes, thank you, Mr Speaker. I have got actually a number of questions, so I will try and keep it as short as possible and see what response I get from the Minister for the Environment.

555 The Chief Minister, in his contribution, made an over-optimistic assessment in relation to the Spider Crabs. Whether the Chief Minister likes it or not, it is an endangered species and this is why it is in the schedule of the Nature Protection Act. So the question is, Mr Speaker, given that we now know that someone has instructed people to remove the Spider Crabs from the location where the dredging is going to take place, can the Minister for the Environment please tell the Parliament, who actually gave those instructions and whether a licence was issued for that purpose?

560 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am dealing with these questions and the hon. Gentleman, if he gives notice of the question, will have the information that he requests. That is not information that he has requested.

565 But, we have not talked about removing Spider Crabs, we have talked about – because that might suggest removal of them to the pot in which they are going to be cooked – they are being moved, in order to be able to continue in their protected existence.

Hon. J J Netto: Well, I think, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Chief Minister simply does not know what he is talking about, hence the reason why I am directing the question to the Minister for the Environment who certainly knows what I am talking about.

570 In relation to the removal of the Spider Crabs, does the Minister for the Environment not realise that we are at the moment in the spring bloom season, which means that female Spider Crabs are in the reproductive cycle, thereby any disturbance which we now acknowledge has taken place and probably without a licence, as it should be done under the Nature Protection Act, has taken place, which will mean this endangered species will have a less reproductive season this year, as a result of the actions of the Government?

575

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have told the hon. Gentleman that if he wants information about when licences have been granted, etc he should give notice of the question or write to me and I will give him the information.

580

In the question that he has just put, he has said that no licences have been granted, when in fact, that is not the answer that I gave him.

Now, this is a Parliament where we are accountable for the actions of the Government, Mr Speaker. Of course, if there are issues which could affect the reproductive capability of Spider Crabs, it is an issue that would be relevant to the Government, because this Government cares about the environment and cares about how we do things.

585

That is why, Mr Speaker, the hon. Members had the opportunity of seeing these issues listed for the DPC. That is why, Mr Speaker, he is being told the Spider Crabs have been moved. That is why, Mr Speaker, we do so much of what we do.

590

But, the hon. Gentleman should rest assured, there is no question of this Government doing something to endanger any endangered species which is actually doing so well, given the protection it was afforded under the 1991 Nature Protection Act. I am not going to say to him, Mr Speaker, that it appears that it is him that does not know what he is talking about, because I am actually trying to avoid that this debate should... or this question-and-answer session should descend to that level; but if he thinks that he scores some political points by starting his questions like that, it is a matter entirely for him.

595

A Member: Hear, hear.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask the Minister for the Environment whether he can confirm that a licence has been issued and if any licence has been issued, will he provide a copy to Parliament?

600

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have told the hon. Gentleman that the question about the licence is one on which we would require notice, and I am dealing with the questions in relation to this matter which, because it represents an investment of £150 million for the people who are bringing the vessel to Gibraltar, is an important issue affecting the macro-economic state of our economy.

605

Therefore, Mr Speaker, he has not been told he will not be given the information; we have told him that if he writes in or if he puts the question with notice, he will get the information, and the only additional element in what he has asked for now is whether he can have a copy of any such licence. Mr Speaker, giving him information or giving him a copy of the licence for me is exactly the same and he will be able to have a copy if he requests it.

610

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I understand that the company, Steel Mac is undertaking some work in relation to this particular preparatory work in relation to this particular project. I had understood that some of the work that they were undertaking was of a dredging nature; but can he enlighten the House as to what kind of work Steel Mac is undertaking in relation to this particular area, please?

615

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am afraid that the hon. Gentleman should not believe every rumour he hears on the street.

As far as I am concerned, there has been no dredging whatsoever. I know that Steel Mac is one of the companies that has tended to do work for the Government, but I do not know whether it has already been granted any works, because certainly in the information that I have been provided, there is nothing suggesting that the sort of work that they do has been undertaken in any way, to date.

620

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not – 625

Hon. Chief Minister: But if he wants, I can try and find out. I am very happy to go back and find out whether perhaps some of the things that neither he nor I might associate with the work that Steel Mac does, and which has resulted in £137,000 already being incurred, has been done by that company. I am quite happy to check and give him the information when we next meet, which is likely to be on Monday.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, I am very grateful for that.

No, I have not heard this particular rumour in the street; in fact when I was parking my car, one of the directors of Steel Mac actually told me himself that they were about to go and do some preparatory work for this particular project. That is exactly why I am asking the question! I had assumed that it related to some dredging work and I have been provided some information, unrelated to Steel Mac, that dredging 635 works had been undertaken in the area. But, if the Hon. the Chief Minister says that no dredging work has been undertaken in the area and that is confirmed as well, by the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, then I will accept it.

640 But, does the Hon. Chief Minister not agree with me that this appears to be a project that is being pushed through by the Government with really undue haste – it is a project that apparently is being ploughed ahead with in the absence of a full EIA, when we know that this is an area where there are Spider Crabs that are protected by the Nature Protection Act, and that is common ground across the floor, when we know that there are Ribbed Mediterranean Limpets, not in that area but in the vicinity that in fact may be, could be affected – I do not know, I am not an expert, but could be affected – by any dredging works that are conducted in the area; that we know also, because GONHS issued a press release, I think it was last year or the year before, that this area is a breeding ground for sea bass, which in fact was something that GONHS at the time were saying ‘What a great area we now have for the breeding of this particular fish’?

645 In the light of that and the fact that there are works that are being undertaken in the area, the absence of the EIA works in the area, this is a project that appears to be being pushed ahead by the Government with complete undue haste and with disregard for areas such as the environment, as my hon. Friend, Mr Netto, was asking about, without proper regard to those, just simply to get this particular project here to Gibraltar so that the Gibraltar Government can say, ‘We have brought £150 million of investment’ – good as that is for Gibraltar.

655 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I could not disagree with him more. It appears that when we move quickly on a project, we are proceeding with undue haste; when we do not move quickly enough, we are not going to fulfil the manifesto commitment and we are going to fail to deliver. Well, Mr Speaker, nothing could be further from the truth and the fact is that this Government is the one that is subjecting projects which it needs to undertake – infrastructure projects, or aspects of a project which it needs to undertake – to a planning process, where the Hon. Mr Figueras said, during the course of which, the environment was discussed and the work to be done in respect of environmental assessments, etc was considered and will be done.

660 The question is, Mr Speaker, is the hon. Gentleman saying to me, with a straight face, that we should not even do the things that do not affect the environment and the EIA? Perhaps he should say to me, ‘Are you satisfied that none of the things you have done to date are the sorts of things that need to be considered by the EIA and the screening?’ If he had asked me that question, Mr Speaker, I would say to him, I am satisfied, because of the advice that I have and the advice that the Minister for the Environment has, that none of the works done to date are the works that should be the subject of any aspect of environmental screening or an EIA. Therefore, I am very happy that the works done to date do not exclude any concerns that may be raised by an EIA.

670 Now, is he saying, or could he also be asking, ‘Is the Chief Minister satisfied that the results of an EIA will not prevent the vessel from coming and therefore that the money expended now will be thrown away?’ I am satisfied, from the advice that I have, that an EIA in detail or any other environmental screening process which may be undertaken – EIA, screenings, etc... All of those have a fixed meaning in law and let us talk about them generically. I am satisfied with the advice that I have that whichever one of those is pursued will not result in anything being put to the Government or resulting that would prevent the vessel from coming to the location where Ocean Village and Sunborn have agreed it should come, and that therefore the works which are preparatory and which do not require environmental assessment of any sort should proceed.

680 Now look, Mr Speaker, in those circumstances, what is it that the hon. Gentleman would have done if he was in Government – not move a muscle until he had the EIA? Well, I have to put it to him, Mr Speaker, that that would be completely contrary to the way that they have conducted themselves for the 16 years that they were in Government, and it would be completely contrary to what is reasonable, because Mr Speaker, although I believe that they acted without the concerns of the environment that they now appear to have, in many of the instances where they acted, where they have defended in this House, Mr Speaker, that Government projects should not go to the DPC, well, Mr Speaker, I put it to them that what is perfectly reasonable and is perfectly proper and I would have supported, if this had been what they had done, when they were...

690 Mr Speaker: I think the Chief Minister is in danger of widening the ambit of the debate considerably.

695 Hon. Chief Minister: In that case, Mr Speaker, I will move quickly just to answer my own question, which is this: (Laughter) it is very simple, it is absolutely right and proper, in the absence of an EIA or a screening assessment, to do the things which do not require an EIA or a screening assessment or any other such environmental requirement – the things which do not require it – and then awaiting the result of any such environmental process, progress with such other works as may be necessary, and if one is advised, 'Look, this environmental assessment could go either way', well then you do not spend a penny and you wait. But if you are told, 'Look, the assessment has to be made, the results are likely to be either to do (a) or to do (b), but they are not going to be...' and this is what the environmental experts at official, technical and political level tell you, then you can progress to do the works which are preparatory.

700 I think that in the interests of the macro-economic benefit of the community, that was exactly the right way to progress, and I will add this: in the 16 years, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Members enjoyed the benefit of governing our community, they sought extensively, rightly, to attract five-star hotel offerings to Gibraltar. Mr Speaker, we have achieved bringing one such five-star hotel offering to Gibraltar and I expect that at least this aspect of the proposal is welcomed by them. I am grateful that the hon. Gentleman has recognised that a project of £150 million is good for an economy that is going to benefit to the tune of approximately 150 jobs.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker.

710 Mr Speaker: I will allow one further supplementary on this matter. (Interjections) That is my ruling.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, if it is your ruling and I cannot persuade you otherwise, that is fine.

715 Mr Speaker: You are taking... Now both the Government and the Opposition are widening the aspect of this specific question to a debate about what one side or the other was doing in power. I am prepared to accept a supplementary question from each of the Members of the Opposition that have been asking questions on this issue. I will allow one from each of you, and then that is it.

720 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, at the end of the day, whatever your ruling is your ruling is, but I do have quite a number of supplementaries.

725 Mr Speaker: I will allow Mr Netto, who was asking the original question, to get on with supplementaries. I will try to be lenient with him: we will see how far it goes, but if the matter gets out of hand, I will then move on.

730 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I will try for the matter not to get out of hand, but you see, Mr Speaker, can I ask the Hon. the Chief Minister this: that of course it was them that came into office promising a new dawn, and therefore it is not good for the Chief Minister to refer back to GSD practice, when they stand for change and a new dawn. What we are exploring here is the extent to which the party and the Chief Minister that placed so much emphasis on the environment, when he was Shadow Minister for the Environment, is now riding roughshod over the environment in order to get this project going and paying lip service to the planning process, when the whole thing is just simply a done deal.

735 Now, Mr Speaker, what was the point of going to the DPC on a project like this, when the Government appears, for all intents and purposes – for everything that the Chief Minister has said today indicates and confirms that – that really it was a done deal and there is nothing that the DPC could have said to have actually altered the Government's course in relation to this?

740 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, to an extent, I am left wondering whether the hon. Gentleman actually did anything whilst he was in Government for four years. The hon. the back bencher who has just left was negotiating to use the plot which is known as the Old Yacht Club plot for a Hilton Hotel. I am going to explain this in stages, so that the hon. Gentleman understands it, because I do not think he quite understands the implications of what he has asked.

745 The Government was negotiating to lease that plot to a group that would build a hotel, which would be called the Hilton. Hilton is an international hotel brand. The agreement would include an agreement with Hilton and the developers of the plot and financiers of the plot, for it to be used as a Hilton Hotel. The agreement would stipulate how many floors could be built. The agreement would stipulate how the hotel should be run and for how many years. The agreement would be entered into between the Government and the third party that acquired the plot and Hilton and the financiers. By the time the Government signed the agreement, the individuals in question would not even have made a public statement, except that it came out by chance, in something the previous Chief Minister said in the Budget. Once the agreement was signed, it would then have been taken to the DPC by those third parties. The DPC has a majority of Government Members on it. In those days, it was the Minister in the Government that would have done the agreement.

755 Mr Speaker, is the hon. Gentleman saying that there was no point going to the DPC in respect of agreements done by the Government for buildings to go up in the centre of our city, because the person who would have ceded the land had a majority in the DPC?

760 Look, the reality, Mr Speaker, is that two parties have done an agreement: Ocean Village and Sunborn. In the context of that agreement being given effect to, the Government has to do works leading up to the area. In the context of the Old Yacht Club site or any site in Gibraltar where somebody is going to develop, 'infrastructure' implies the Government doing work, and therefore infrastructure is taken to the edge of the plot, right.

So in the context of this project, infrastructure involves taking services to the plot and, because we care about the environment – not just saying, 'Float it in, mate!', but actually looking at what has to be done, so that when it does float in, the environment is not disturbed.

765 If the hon. Gentleman was saying to me, 'How dare you go ahead with this project without removing the spider crabs, without protecting the limpets, without talking about an EIA! How dare you go about this project, as we would have, without taking it to the DPC!', then I would say, 'Look, fair enough. Although you would have done it that way, it is right that you say to us, because we have always said that we care about the environment and we will subject ourselves to the planning process for guidance, that how dare that we should do it that way.'

770 Well, we have not done it that way. That is why it is a new dawn. That is why these issues have been ventilated and considered in the DPC. That is why the environmental issues are being taken into consideration, and that is why this is being done properly. Properly done, it will still result in a £150-million investment for our community and 150 jobs.

775 I just wonder, although he is in a sedentary position, what the Opposition spokesperson for tourism thinks. I assume that he supports the fact that we are going to receive a five-star Grand Luxury Hotel in Gibraltar and, having heard our explanations, I also assume that hon. Members opposite will be satisfied that the new dawn has come, that the environment matters and that the DPC has had a look-in where otherwise it never would have.

780 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Netto has a number of specific supplementaries arising from the questions which... three or four of them that he asked, which I think he is entitled to ask, and then I will allow Mr Figueras to come in.

785 Hon. J J Netto: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker, the Hon. Chief Minister just said that things have been properly done. I think that is the word that he used. Well, Mr Speaker, if things are properly done and if the tonnage weight of the floating hotel is more than 1,350 tonnes, perhaps it may be – I am not a lawyer – that he is in breach of the European Directives in relation to environmental assessment.

790 If the hon. Members with an iPad looked at, very quickly, Directive 2011/92/EU on the European Parliament and of the Council of 13th December 2011 on the assessment of the effects of certain public and private projects on the environment – if he looks at that Directive and he goes to Article 2, where it says:

795 '1. Member States shall adopt all measures necessary to ensure that, before consent is given, projects likely to have significant effects on the environment by virtue, inter alia, of their nature, size or location are made subject to a requirement for development consent and an assessment with regard to their effects. Those projects are defined in Article 4.'

800 Article 4:

'1. Subject to Article 2(4), projects listed in Annex I shall be made subject to an assessment in accordance with Articles 5 to 10.'

805 If the hon. Gentleman goes to Schedule I, 'Projects referred to in Article 4(1)', it says:

'4. (a) Inland waterways and ports for inland-waterway traffic which permit passage of vessels over 1 350 tonnes;
(b) Trading ports, piers for loading and unloading connected with land and outside ports (excluding ferry piers) which can take vessels over 1 350 tonnes.'

810 So, Mr Speaker, my non-lawyer's reading of the Directive is that, at the Development and Planning Commission, when the Environmental Safety Agency said, 'Let's go for a full environmental impact assessment', and the Government said, 'No, we are not going along that route; we are going to have a screening process', what they should have done, in my opinion, is to abide by the European Directive. So perhaps the Minister for the Environment can say that.

815 And can the Minister for the Environment also say whether, prior to the meeting of the Development Planning Commission –

Mr Speaker: I do not think the hon. Member is making it very easy for anybody to answer a supplementary question where the preamble for the matters that he has raised...

820 Look, Question Time should be short, sharp and to the point! We really are widening the whole purpose of... We are getting into a debating situation, which is what hon. Members have been doing for many years and which they should not have been doing, because it is contrary to Standing Orders. I am here appointed by them to implement Standing Orders, and I not going to allow it, because you are now debating.

825 How does the hon. Member think that anyone can keep track of what he is reading in order then to answer what should be a supplementary question? I find it very difficult to follow and I may have to give a ruling on the matter.

830 He really has to make up his mind. I have told him before and I tell the other Members: short, sharp and to the point; if not, I will move on to another Question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, as Leader of the Opposition, of course, I heed what Mr Speaker says and I will have a conversation certainly with my own Shadow Cabinet team on this side; but of course, surely it must also apply to the length of the answers and the...

835 Mr Speaker: Did he not hear me tell the Chief Minister that he was widening the aspect of the matter? Surely, he heard me say exactly that.

840 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, in relation to... Mr Speaker is talking generally: Mr Speaker spoke about a ruling and...

Mr Speaker: If I may. I am speaking generally and it has arisen because of what is a supplementary question by the Hon. Mr Netto, which I think makes it very, very difficult for anybody, with all the best will in the world, to be able to answer and to deal with that matter. You really cannot do that. What you can do is to ask a series of short, sharp, specific supplementary questions, but not five minutes of preamble. I have told him that before and I repeat it.

845 The House cannot do business in this manner – this is not what Question Time is for. You know that. You have been told that beforehand and I have been enjoining upon Members that if they want to, this matter of the floating hotel could have been the subject of a debate. They could have brought a motion. Instead, they have preferred to bring five or six Questions and I have allowed half an hour on that already, but I am not going to be any more lenient than that.

850 Now that is my ruling and I hope Members will stick to that.

Hon. J J Netto: Yes, Mr Speaker, and definitely I will take your advice on board. So, could I ask two short questions to the Minister of the Environment.

855 Has the Minister for the Environment, in this particular case, had a meeting with the Nature Conservancy Council to determine the effect or likely effect that can happen on spider crabs and limpets as a result of the dredging. That is the first one, and the second one, is there a requirement to inform the European Commission as a result of having two endangered protected animals before any work commences?

860 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not think those are in the nature of a supplementary in any way arising out of the questions, but I want to deal with the issue that the hon. Gentleman raised in the beginning.

865 If he looks at the application for planning and building control approval, which is Form 1, and he looks at question 15 – environmental impact assessment – instead of ‘Yes’ or ‘No’ he will find that the words written in there are ‘currently being done’. So, Mr Speaker, although I do not accept anything he has said about the advice that he is giving the House about his interpretation of the Directive, which may be entirely wrong – and I have not read it but I rely on what I am told by those who advise me – then the form certainly sets out what the position that the DPC considered was.

870 Finally, can I say to him, Mr Speaker, that he had the benefit of attending the DPC meeting because it was not held in private, or in secret – another one of the manifestations of the new dawn, which brought the DPC into the public domain. I am quite happy Mr Speaker to allow the Minister for the Environment to deal with the other issue, if you think it is appropriate.

875 Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Mr Netto have any other supplementary? If not, I will ask Mr Selwyn Figueras to come in.

880 Hon. J J Netto: I understand that the Minister for the Environment is going to answer some (Mr Speaker: O.K.) of those questions.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): I just want to... I am aware that this discussion is going beyond the realms of a simple supplementary to a simple question, but I will answer that the Nature Conservancy Council has been consulted and, in fact, the Nature Conservancy Council is consulted regularly. I meet with them very regularly one every month or once every two months. I was a member of the Nature Conservancy Council during the time of the former administration. I no longer am, and I was never consulted – It is being consulted on this – not once. Well, perhaps for a couple of licences, but there was no consultation on any projects, and there has been no action and no planned action that requires the European Union to be informed at this stage.

As the Chief Minister has said, no action has taken place that would negatively impact the natural environment and those matters are subject to assessment and have been the subject of discussion with the Nature Conservancy Council and other experts in the field. And I think people who know me would know that I would work extremely hard to ensure that any impact of any such project is virtually negligible. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Applause)

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask just one more question to the Minister for the Environment? In relation to the contamination of the soil, perhaps can the hon. the Minister inform the House as to what type of contamination are we talking about, as to the threshold of the contamination we are talking about and the likely affect of any disturbance of any soil within the area.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am dealing with five, six questions here. Not one of them mentions contamination of soil – not one of them. I do not know how the hon. Gentleman thinks that a detailed question like that can be answered in respect of contamination when they have not raised the issue and we do not have the information before us, because it is a pretty detailed supplementary. He should just have put the question.

Hon. J J Netto: The only reason why I mention it is because this is public knowledge in the meeting of the Development and Planning Commission. Both the Government and the Chief Minister were there. All the officials were there from the beginning: it was said we have contaminated soil. It is not something I have invented.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, what I would say with respect to the hon. Gentleman, referring to your ruling, this is Question Time, this is not dissecting the DPC on what it discussed. This is Question Time.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Netto has been a Minister in Government before, as I have been, and he knows that when Questions are put to him here in Parliament his civil servants have prepared for him a number of supplementaries and matters that may arise, contingency matters and information that may arise in Question Time: in other words, a brief is prepared always for the Minister. There is a limit of what can be covered in any brief, humanly speaking, and sometimes the reality is that the information which is asked for in a supplementary is just not available at a particular moment.

Mr Selwyn Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, just one final supplementary. Can the Chief Minister, in the light of the fact that he has referred to it on a number of occasions, explain how in his assessment this represents an investment of £150 million in Gibraltar?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, given the value of the vessel and the work that is going to be done by Ocean Village and the owners of the vessel to bring it up to the standard required for it to operate in Gibraltar, the number of jobs it is going to create and the activity it is going to create. So he needs to understand a £120 or £130 million vessel is floating into Gibraltar. That means a lot... (Interjection) Sorry, the hon. Gentleman wants to ask me another question – about what? [Inaudible] Right, so if somebody brings something worth £120 million to Gibraltar, does he think it is not worth £120 million in Gibraltar? It then starts to operate commercially as a hotel and creates 150 jobs... I mean, again, Mr Speaker, I assume that his spokesperson for tourism would be delighted with what is going to happen.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I would have deferred my question to my hon. and Learned Friend but I am pretty sure it does not work that way, so I am grateful for the answer.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I do not know whether in fact the Minister for Employment agrees with the Chief Minister in relation to this, but you see there is a distinction and I do not want in any way, in what I am going to say, the question that I am going to ask him, to actually detract from the fact, which is our principal position, which is... look any investment, whatever the value, coming into Gibraltar is a good thing. Our questions have been directed at a different... they come from a different angle, an angle of a Government saying one thing and doing another.

945

But it is self-evidently not the same, you see. If in Gibraltar you build something worth £150, well maybe he could learn a lesson from me, I do not know. I know that he thinks he cannot but if you build something in Gibraltar worth £150 million, that is an investment of £150 million into the local economy. If you are bringing in a ship, whose value the Government says is £120 million but, in fact, that ship can leave Gibraltar tomorrow and there goes your £120 million investment, it is self-evidently not the same. Does the Chief Minister not agree with that?

950

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, of course if it is built here it means one thing and if it floats in it is another – but there goes your £150 million investment. I am afraid I am going to have to give him a short lecture in economics: it is not our £150 million investment and therefore it does not float away from us as our investment.

955

So the hon. Gentleman, Mr Speaker, needs to think about what he says. And also, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman says that they have come at this from the point of view of questions to demonstrate a Government that says one thing and then does another. I think, Mr Speaker, what is clear beyond peradventure at the end of this process, having heard the answer, is that this is a Government that has said one thing and it did exactly what it said it was going to do.

960

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

965

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker? (Mr Speaker: Yes) May I just ask one question that is a simply 'yes' or 'no' answer, which I had as one of my list of supplementaries, and it is simply this. Has the Government agreed to provide, either in principle or otherwise, any soft loans in respect to this particular project?

970

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would need notice of that question. This is not any of the issues that have been raised in respect of this matter, so if the hon. Gentleman gives notice of that question for the next meeting I can try and find out exactly what the detail of anything related to soft loans might be, but I have no information with me today on that.

975

Lobbyists and political consultants
Government engagements and relationships

980

Clerk: Question 424, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state who, other than his wife and Mr and Mrs Cortes, accompanied the Chief Minister to the Candlelight Dinner inauguration event in Washington earlier on this year?

985

Clerk: Answer, the hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, assuming he does not mean the 10,000 other attendees, I will answer this question with Questions 425 to 429.

990

Clerk: Question 425.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state who procured the invitation to the Candlelight Dinner inauguration event in Washington earlier on this year?

995

Clerk: Question 426.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide to this House a list of all persons engaged by the Government as lobbyists and political consultants at public expense since 11th December 2011?

1000

Clerk: Question 427.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state what, if any, consultancy or other arrangements does the Government have, or has had, with Mr Juan Verde either directly or indirectly through an entity in which he has an interest?

1005 Clerk: Question 428.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state what payments have, to date, been made by the Government of Gibraltar to Mr Juan Verde or any company in which he has a direct or indirect interest in respect of any consultancy or other arrangements, identifying the payments on the dates they were made and the purpose for which they were made?

Clerk: Question 429.

1015 Hon D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister please state whether Mr Juan Verde is a director or shareholder of any company (or the parent company of any such company) submitting any tender or offering to undertake any work or project for the Gibraltar Government?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1020 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 426 on lobbyists and political consultants my answer remains, as my earlier answer to Question 1084/2012, namely that we will continue the practice of the previous administration and not provide a breakdown, what we give is in exactly the same form as it was given to us by Members opposite when they were in administration.

1025 In relation to all matters relating to the attendance by the Minister for the Environment and myself at various events in Washington DC and Mr Juan Verde, the answer remains as my earlier answers on this subject.

The hon. Gentleman has pressed me on this before and the Government has provided answers, in fact we can exchange many press releases as well. Continuing to press me will not elicit further public information beyond that already provided. I have told him, and I have said in interviews, that I do not believe sharing information of this nature publicly is in the public interest of Gibraltar.

I have also said that I intend to set up a status akin to that of the Privy Councillors in the United Kingdom, where information of this nature can be shared. That may even require legislation.

1030 He should, nonetheless, understand that his pressing and his Party's statement on this subject have been seized upon by our nation's political opponents in an attempt to damage our continuing and successful objective of advancing Gibraltar's cause internationally.

1035 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, when in trouble always hide behind potential attacks on Gibraltar by those who are our detractors!

1040 Hon. Chief Minister: Can I have a Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What is the Point of Order?

1045 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has suggested that I have misled the House by trying to hide behind something, suggesting that there is not something there which is real, and I therefore ask that he reconsider how he has phrased his preliminary remarks.

Mr Speaker: Is the Hon. Leader of the Opposition satisfied that his remarks are well motivated.

1050 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am quite satisfied that my remarks are within what are acceptable by Standing Orders and are within the ambit of political comment that is common in this House and has been common in this House for decades.

1055 Mr Speaker: I would ask hon. Members to try to keep the temperature down, you know, not to make the kind of remarks which will just set the pot boiling, more than what is necessary. I think we are all grown up, we are all responsible people and we can conduct our affairs responsibly, and I think that it will stand to the credit of all hon. Members in this House if they do that.

1060 I told them when they gave me the honour of sitting in this Chair that I was determined to maintain the dignity of Parliament, but they have to have an important role in that, and I hope that they can keep a semblance of decorum so that people outside do not have to be continually complaining, as they do. I get very often approached by people saying that they do not like, they regret, what is going on in this house. They need to keep matters under control. So, I would please ask hon. Members to be sensible in this respect and now that we are inaugurating this wonderful new Chamber that it should be primarily to their credit because they are the Members of Parliament and nobody else – and that is what they get elected for.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, can I say that I am happy to associate myself with the motivational intent behind his statement.

1070 Mr Speaker will, I think – I hope – have noticed that, in fact, certainly from this side of the House, we have attempted, certainly since I have become Leader, and I am not suggesting that that was not the practice earlier, but we have made a conscious effort to try and dampen down temperatures in this House. But of course, Mr Speaker, in the cut and thrust of politics...

1075 Mr Speaker: May I add one thing, I will say this also to the Chief Minister, that the moment that I read the last paragraph of his answer – and I am going to read it out, ‘He should, nonetheless, understand that his pressing and his Party’s statements on the subject have been seized upon by our nation’s political opponents in an attempt to damage our continuing and successful objective of advancing Gibraltar’s cause internationally’ – the moment that I heard that I said, Mr Speaker, you now have a difficult job on your hands.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, may I continue with my supplementaries, if I may, and no doubt both myself and the Chief Minister will take your words on board very seriously indeed.

1085 Mr Speaker, if I may start with Question 426, which is a question about lobbyists and political consultants. I did, in fact, go back to Hansard and I did read the answer that he gave to my hon. and Learned Friend, the former Leader of the Opposition and Chief Minister, Mr Caruana, and what he said was this – and this is the reason why I asked the question – what he said was this: ‘Mr Speaker, the amount paid, the amount paid by the Government in respect of lobbyists and political consultants since 8th December 2011 amounts to a total cost of £170,221. The Government will follow the practice of the previous administration and give no further breakdown of that sum.’

1090

So the answer that he gave to that particular question, although I recognise the question actually went wider than that, because it was both a list of lobbyists and the amount, the answer that he gave was in relation only to the amount of money. So is the Chief Minister, therefore, satisfied that, or is the Chief Minister now effectively changing what was the position then of not providing particulars in relation to the amounts? I have not asked what amounts have been paid to whom, just for a list of those individuals that are under the employ, so to speak, or have an arrangement with the Government for political lobbying.

1095

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, thank you for your remarks about the conduct of proceedings in this House with which this side of the House entirely associates itself. I note what you said about the last paragraph but you should also note, Mr Speaker, that I have said things similar to that in the past and the questions keep coming.

1100

Mr Speaker, what the Government is going to do is what hon. Members opposite used to do when they were in Government, and that is to give heads of expenditure but not give breakdowns, because if they did not give breakdowns then certainly they did not give names because they did not give breakdowns, and therefore the position is exactly as it was when I last answered the question in this House.

1105

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much.

1110

Mr Speaker, did Mr Juan Verde procure the invitation to the Candlelight Dinner inauguration event in Washington?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have answered questions similar to this, and I have answered the question in the answer I have given already. The hon. Gentleman does not say to me...

1115

Hon. D A Feetham: Point of Order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What is the Leader of the Opposition’s Point of Order?

1120

Hon. D A Feetham: The Point of Order is very simple. The Hon. the Chief Minister has made a statement saying that he has answered a question on this. Now, insofar as what he is saying, and I think that is what he is saying, that he has answered a question – this question – in this Parliament or anything related to Mr Juan Verde in this Parliament, that is clearly not the case.

1125

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in reply, I would refer you to the second paragraph of what I said, which was as follows: ‘In relation to all matters relating to the attendance by the Minister for the Environment and myself at various events in Washington DC and Mr Juan Verde, the answer remains as my earlier answers on the subject’. Then I went on to tell him that, however much he might press us on those, I would not give further answers. Not giving an answer that a Member likes does not mean not having answered.

1130

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker he is obviously not going to answer that particular question.

Is he aware, Mr Speaker, that right up to a day or two after we issued our first communiqué in relation to the Washington visit, just before in fact, just two days, just before two days after we issued the communiqué, that Mr Juan Verde in his website, www.juanverde.net, included the following statement:

1135

‘Nowadays he acts as adviser and consultant for a large number of internationally notorious companies in both Europe and the United States. He is adviser for institutions like the International Advisory Board of the Government of Lithuania and the Government of Gibraltar’.

1140

Two days after we issued our press release, that statement was removed from Mr Verde’s website. Can the Government confirm that, indeed, prior to the removal – and also whether it continued after the removal of that statement from the website – that Mr Juan Verde was, in fact, an adviser for the Government of Gibraltar?

1145

Hon. Chief Minister: Two supplementaries are contained in that question, Mr Speaker. The first is was I aware of the statement of Mr Verde’s website and the second, a different one, about the status of Mr Verde’s relationship with the Government of Gibraltar. On the first, of course, the answer is yes, because it has formed the subject of public statements that the hon. Gentleman’s party have issued on the subject. And on the second, Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave a few moments ago.

1150

But Mr Speaker, let me put it to him in explicit terms. The work that he and his Party have done on this subject has resulted in diplomacy at the highest levels of the Spanish Government, raising an issue with diplomacy at the highest levels of the Government of the United States, asking that Gibraltar no longer be assisted. Mr Speaker, is it that he cannot join the dots? Well, Mr Speaker, if he can, and I assume that he can, why does he want to join the dots for those who want to attack us?

1155

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I will obviously, in the light of the statement that you made, shy away from my original statement, when he first made that particular point, about the Hon. the Chief Minister hiding behind that particular argument in order not to answer any questions.

1160

Mr Speaker, moving on to Question 428 – and I really, with Mr Speaker’s indulgence, need to take the Chief Minister back over Hansard before I actually ask my question – in November 2012 my hon. Friend, Mr Figueras, asked the Minister for the Environment to provide a full account to this House of expenses incurred by the Government in the hosting of the Thinking Green Conference in October. The Thinking Green Conference is connected to this because, of course, it is common ground that payments have been made to Mr Juan Verde, who was a speaker in relation to that particular conference. Now, so, the question was ‘full account of expenses incurred’, and in answer the Minister for the Environment then provided a schedule, and in that schedule he said that the total cost was £215,000 and that the contractual payment to Chrand Limited was £166,351.

1165

Then, in supplementaries, my hon. Friend, Mr Figueras, asked how much of that 166 referred, or related to – £166,000 – related to the speakers, and the answer was €150,000 and, in fact, that is reflected in a table which is Government-awarded contracts over £2,000 by direct allocations since the General Election, which is Table GC1 of 2012, and there we see the figure of €200,000, which roughly equates to £166,000, which was the answer the Hon. the Minister of the Environment gave to Mr Figueras.

1170

Then, in February of this year, Mr Figueras asked about a further notice, GC6, which is Government-awarded contracts over £2,000 by Ministerial application – by Ministerial application – and in relation to Chrand there is €100,000. Now, in total, that is €300,000, (1) in relation to contracts by direct allocation €200,000, and €100,000 by direct Ministerial allocation. Mr Figueras asked, well, what does this €100,000 relate to and the answer was it was two equal payments of €50,000: it was for the organisation and management of the conference, including security services for the guest speakers and fees for both speakers. That was the answer. Can he confirm, if he can, whether that answer is, in fact, an accurate answer. I am not suggesting that he has given it attempting to mislead the House, but I found it an odd answer, and I am just asking the Chief Minister to confirm it, in the light of the fact that there are two notices, one allocating a contract by direct allocation – €200,000 – and then, later on, direct ministerial allocation, what appears to be a further €100,000, in the light of the answers to the questions that my hon. Friend Mr Figueras received in November of last year.

1175

1185

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman starts in very pejorative terms, referring once again without pretending not to refer to it, to his argument that the Government is somehow ‘hiding’ and that is a pejorative term, behind something. Mr Speaker, you have made a ruling on that and therefore the 1190 hon. Gentleman should try and stick to it because otherwise every time he talks about not being in favour of 'Punch and Judy' politics, the argument to him should be well then stop punching.

Mr Speaker, I do not have notice of the question that he has given. He has given me a whole list of figures, referred to a Hansard and to a Table. I have had a quick conversation with the Hon. the Minister...

1195 Mr Speaker: May I ask the Leader of the Opposition what was the date of that Question, the Hansard. The date please.

1200 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the date of the Question about the €100,000, the previous Questions were in November of last year, the previous questions. The one about the €100,000 that I found odd in the light of the answer to the previous Question, and both Tables that appear to indicate an aggregate contract for €300,000 was in February of this year.

1205 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not have that information with me but, having quickly spoken to the Minister for the Environment, he seems to consider that those are exactly right. It may be that in a Table something has been doubled up but I do not have information in front of me to be able to give him, in respect of those figures, the confirmation that he is seeking – but I am quite happy, if he writes to me, to let him have that information. But, he should not under-estimate, however much he might want to politically try and deal with the point in this House, he should not under-estimate the political importance of what I have told him has happened as a result of their press release.

1210 I ask him, Mr Speaker, and I appeal to any statesman-like qualities that he may have, to consider very carefully what I have said and the effect of what they have done.

1215 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, of course I consider very seriously the effect of everything that I do. What I am not going to do is shirk my responsibility and my duties as Leader of the Opposition in the desire to keep the Government and to bring the Government to account because there are other issues which I am not now going to discuss – not appropriate, because Mr Speaker would intervene. There are other issues that actually impact on this, of a local nature but, of course, Mr Speaker, he knows – because he practised at the firm of which we were both partners for many, many years – what the number of Hassans is and, of course, it is perfectly possible for him to pick up the telephone and to phone me and to brief me, or to tell me what is on his mind because it is a little difficult for me to accept some of the bare statements that he has made today.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I know that he...

1225 Mr Speaker: If the Chief Minister has nothing new to add...

Hon. Chief Minister: I do have something, Mr Speaker. I do.

Mr Speaker: You do?

1230 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I know that he does not want to believe the things that I say but he should take it from me that what I tell this House on this subject is clear and unequivocal and true. Of course, he must bring the Government to account but with what I have told him in mind.

1235 Mr Speaker, I have to say I have been a partner of Hassans for many, many years. I think he has been a partner of Hassans for enough years that you can count on the fingers of one hand. Of course, I could phone Hassans but what I have said repeatedly, Mr Speaker, is that if they want the information, they should feel free to contact me and I am quite happy to give them a briefing.

1240 I have talked about the Privy Council-style status. I do not think I can over-estimate that. What I am saying, Mr Speaker, is a complete departure from the way in which we have run our affairs before. I am saying there is information that I sincerely believe it is in the national interest that the Government and the Opposition should share and that we should set up a process for that information to be shared which is watertight. I have said that will happen and it will.

1245 But I have said, across the floor of this House – and the hon. Gentleman needs to go back and look, given what he has just said – if you want the information, call me and I will share the information with you, I will give you the information behind the Speaker's Chair and the offer was flatly rejected in relation to this particular issue, lobbyists. Now it may be that the hon. Gentleman does not recall that. I am happy to sit down with him to give him this information, Mr Speaker. I am talking about Hansard so he can go back: I am not suggesting this has happened off the record and they have said no. I am suggesting to him that he should check Hansard. I do not know whether it was him or the previous Leader of the Opposition, the offer was made during the course, I think, of this year or the end of last year 1250 and it has been rejected out of hand. If he has got a different attitude, which I would welcome, I am delighted to give him a briefing on that and, when I give him the briefing, on the other matters that I have agreed to give him a briefing on. But he cannot expect me to pick up the phone and call the firm of which I have been a partner for many years, to speak to him, to give him information that he has said, or his party has said, they do not want in private.

1255

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I have one more supplementary.

Mr Speaker I am not going to prefix this supplementary with any political points, tempted as I am to do so but, Mr Speaker, I note that Mr Juan Verde is stated on the Presidential Inauguration Committee website to have made three donations – they are very transparent in the United States – three donations to the Presidential Campaign. One was for $600, another for $600 – three for $600 on three separate dates – and one for $50,000, which roughly equates to about €50,000. Can the Hon. the Chief Minister categorically state to this House that he has absolutely no knowledge that that donation from Mr Juan Verde to this particular committee has come from the proceeds of any monies that have been paid by the Gibraltar Government directly or indirectly to Mr Juan Verde?

1265

Hon. Chief Minister: Not only can I confirm it, Mr Speaker, but if he goes back and sees the answer I gave when they first started asking questions about this, I categorically denied it. Mr Speaker, he says that he does not want to make political points but then he goes on to say that the United States is transparent and tries, by a sideline, to suggest that somehow here we are not.

1270

Look, Mr Speaker, he has made all the points that they have made in their press releases, now again in this House. All the old points made again. Mr Speaker, look we are all bi-lingual so we will understand what it is that I mean by this, but one just wonders whether they are just green with envy that it was this Chief Minister that had his photograph taken with the President of the United States.

1275

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, just on that final statement that he has made, if I may...

1280

Mr Speaker: But, the last one. If the Chief Minister now replies to you, I will not allow you to stand up again to ask another question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Perish the thought, Mr Speaker!

Mr Speaker, well on that point of the photograph, I was not going to bring it up myself but, given that he has brought it up, we are very curious, certainly on this side of the House, as to whether he can answer this. Does that cropped photograph with the President of the United States... was Mr Juan Verde cropped out of that cropped photograph with the President of the United States?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I fear that the hon. Gentleman is afflicted with the malaise that I suggested that he was afflicted... Look, Mr Speaker, that is not a cropped photograph, it is a photograph and I have told the hon. Gentleman everything that I am going to say about that event.

I would put it like this to him, just to end the debate because, unfortunately, it has become a debate. If whilst they were in office they had been offered the opportunity to have the Chief Minister of Gibraltar exchange views with the President of the United States and be photographed with him, would they have taken the decision not to go ahead with that if it did not mean having to pay a penny, as I have already confirmed was the position for Gibraltar?

1295

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1300

Libel action by Ministers Government policy

1305

Clerk: Question 430, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister state whether it is Government's policy to fund all libel claims brought by a serving Government Minister against a media publication?

1310

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

1315 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker can he provide this House with information as to what is Government policy, or the criteria forming Government policy, for the funding of libel claims by Government Ministers, not only against media publications but anybody else?

1320 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would have thought it was obvious. When somebody is insulted by virtue of their office and what they have done in their office and defamed for that reason, then it is absolutely, in our view, appropriate that the cost of any such libel action should be borne by the taxpayer.

1325 There should be very few circumstances when it arises, Mr Speaker, for example where newspapers publish remarks made by Members of the Opposition which have been made clearly without thought or understanding the consequences of what they are saying: like, for example, comparing something that a Government Minister might say to things that might be said by somebody as contemptible as Mr Jean-Marie Le Pen demonstrates that the person who makes the comparison has not got a clue what Mr Jean-Marie Le Pen stands for and how quite contemptible and defamatory it is to be compared to them.

1330 Mr Speaker, there are circumstances when one in politics needs to have broad shoulders, a broad back and just keep going and ignore the ignorance of those who might make such remarks and those who report them have no fault in simply reporting them. But there are circumstances where things are said which are so highly defamatory of people who have been acting in the conduct of their offices, that it would be appropriate for the taxpayer to fund such claims and there are circumstances where things may be said where it would not be appropriate, even if it is defamatory and actionable, for the taxpayer to foot the bill of such action because the remarks may be of a more personal nature or in the context where the person has not been exposed to the criticism as a result of their office but more as a result of their conduct unrelated to their office.

1335 I would have thought it was pretty obvious, Mr Speaker, but I am quite happy to explain it to him in those terms.

1340 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, what is the Government's policy, for example, on funding libel claims by former Government Ministers in relation to allegations made about that former Government Minister in the conduct of work that he has undertaken whilst he was a Government Minister?

1345 Mr Speaker: No, I am not allowing that supplementary because the original Question is very clear: 'Can the Chief Minister state whether it is the Government's policy to fund only libel claims brought by a serving Government Minister against a media publication?' A retired Minister is not a serving Government Minister and therefore that supplementary is outside the ambit of the original Question, so I am not allowing that supplementary.

1350 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I will bring the ... all it is doing is for me then to bring a question on notice next time round.

Now the reason why I am, if I may Mr Speaker – and I am trying not to be as reasonable as possible in relation to this – the reason why I am bringing up this particular point, is of course, one can envisage circumstances Mr Speaker whereby a former Government Minister, the day after he leaves office, is defamed in exactly the same way as the Chief Minister has just described with a serving Minister.

1355 Mr Speaker: I agree with...

Hon. D A Feetham: Therefore, I would say, well, what is the difference?

1360 Mr Speaker: If I may. I agree with him. It could happen in the case of someone who was serving in a Government twenty years ago.

Hon. D A Feetham: Exactly.

1365 Mr Speaker: Right, but I do not think that it is fair, under the ambit of this Question, to expect the Chief Minister to stand up and give a considered answer.

I think the matter can be raised formally. I invite the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition to put a Question on the Question Paper on the Agenda for the next time, asking what would happen to the present Speaker if someone were to libel him because of something that he is supposed to have done twenty years ago and perhaps the Chief Minister will give a considered reply.

1370 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker I am quite content to give notice in relation to that question although I suspect that the Chief Minister probably knows what the answer to that question is.

May I then move on to another supplementary? Obviously, if the Chief Minister is right, I do not know if he has done libel claims, I certainly have done libel claims in my time professionally, there is 1375 always going to be a judgement that is going to be made in relation to these things, because we are in politics, the cut and thrust of politics being as it is there are going to be things said about us and there have been things said about all of us, quite nasty things, that are possibly libellous but that you just simply take in your stride and you just take it as being part of the job.

1380 But my question to the Chief Minister is, how does the Government intend to decide where on what side of that particular equation the facts fall?

1385 Is this a decision, for example, that is taken just simply by Government Ministers or, in the formulation of that policy, is it the Government's policy to effectively outsource, if I can use that word – it is probably the wrong word – a recommendation to somebody else that may not be Government Ministers – for example, I do not know, the Chief Secretary or somebody else – because otherwise we are left with a situation where, effectively, it is Government Ministers deciding to use taxpayers' money to fund libel claims against third parties.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is certainly not a case of that, it is certainly not a case of that.

1390 Of course, if anybody who was a serving officer of the Government were libelled as a result of something he has done as a serving officer of the Government – he has given the example of the Chief Secretary. Of course it would extend, in my view, to them but it is that I have answered his question and his question is about Ministers.

1395 Hon. D A Feetham: He has not understood my question, my supplementary.

Hon. Chief Minister: No, no, no. In giving the answer that I gave, I gave it about Ministers because it was asked about Ministers.

1400 Hon. D A Feetham: He has not understood my supplementary.

Hon. Chief Minister: No, I have understood your supplementary. I have said of course it extends to people who are not Ministers. It extends to other officers of the Government...

1405 Hon. D A Feetham: But I have not asked...

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, then, why did you refer to the Chief Secretary?

1410 Hon. D A Feetham: I have not asked whether it extends to other Members of the Government. What I have said is that, in the decision as to whether to fund a particular libel claim – you yourself referred to the fact that there are some serious libel claims, others less serious, and I agree with that, that is what I am saying – but of course somebody has got to make the decision. Somebody has got to make the decision as to whether taxpayers' money is used to fund a libel claim. Presumably, that is obviously going to be the Government of Gibraltar but if the Government is making that decision and it is not – I use the word 'outsourced' – seeking advice from somebody else as to whether it would be appropriate in the circumstances to use taxpayers' money to fund libel claims... That is the context that I used the Chief Secretary, whether it is the Chief Secretary who advises the Government.

1415 Look, in this particular case, given these guidelines that we have here, I believe that it would be reasonable for the Government to fund a libel claim against a third party and what I am saying is, does the Government have that kind of safeguard, that kind of third party input, into the decision to fund libel claims against a third party – hence my reference to the Chief Secretary.

1420 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, let me then deal with a number of issues. First of all, it does extend, not just to protecting serving Ministers, it extends to protecting other members of the Government and that would include officers like the Chief Secretary, which is how I thought that he was bringing him into the equation.

1425 Indeed, Mr Speaker, there is an argument that anybody who is libelled in the conduct of their profession is covered by the liability of the employer and I am grateful that Mr Speaker has said I do not have to answer the question about past Members but, intuitively, I think I know what the answer is but I will take advice on it if the hon. Gentleman puts the question.

1430 Mr Speaker, Government policy – the hon. Gentleman is asking about Government policy, he did not ask me about the mechanics of how we deal with that, he asked me about Government policy – Government policy, as he must know, is the policy of the ten people who sit round this table, therefore Government policy is determined by the Ministers. But, whether, then, that Government policy can be implemented in the Westminster system of Government that we have, also requires that the Civil Service gives effect to it. Of course, in the way that I handle Government affairs, I work very closely with the Chief Secretary in the implementation of Cabinet decisions and Government Policy. It is the role of the 1440 Civil Service not to roll over and say ‘Yes, Minister’, it is the role of the Civil Service to say ‘Minister, in this situation, I do not think it is appropriate for you to engage with public finances in this way.’ And, of course, that would involve, Mr Speaker, an element of interaction with the Chief Secretary and others who may be relevant in terms of mechanics and the way things are done.

1445 Hon. D A Feetham: So in relation to the recent, for example, the recent libel claim that the Hon. the Minister for Employment brought, the mechanics just in relation to that is there is a collective decision made by the Cabinet as to whether to fund that particular libel claim, as to whether it is meritorious – it has got to be considered by somebody – and then that decision by the Cabinet is then referred to the Chief Secretary, on a bilateral basis between the Chief Minister and the Chief Secretary, and if the Chief Secretary says, ‘Yes, this is appropriate’, then it goes ahead and that is, in fact, what happened in the libel claim with the Minister for Employment?

1450 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is now asking me about specifics, not about Government policy. I am going to go back in my mind, I think it is almost six months, to tell him that that is exactly the sort of way that I believe we handled the matter at the time. He will be delighted to see that things have changed quite considerably and that the Civil Service has an important role to play in the administration of Gibraltar’s affairs now.

1455 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1460 Government rental estates
Refurbishment costs

1465 Clerk: Question 431 is to be answered by the Chief Minister in conjunction with Question 341, so we are now going to go to 341 and the question is for Mr Reyes, the Hon. Mr Reyes.
Questions 341, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1470 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to Government’s recent announcements can the Minister for Housing – in this case, it is going to be the Chief Minister – make available to this House, details of the scope of works and cost in relation to all refurbishment works which are to be carried out in Government rental estates, including details of which companies have been awarded which specific contracts?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.
Question 341.

1475 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): The answer to this Question will be answered with Question 431.

Clerk: Question 431, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1480 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide the estimated costs of the refurbishment works to Laguna, Moorish Castle and Glacis Estates?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1485 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested in Question 341 and can confirm, Mr Speaker, that the estimated costs of the refurbishment works to Laguna, Moorish Castle and Glacis Estate is in the region of £51 million.

Answer to Question 341

Summary Of Jobs

Laguna , Glacis and Moorish Castle Estates major projects

Generally, detail scope of works are compiled from standard technical documentation and publications. However, an overall description of the works to be carried out comprises the following:

1. The recladding/insulation of the residential blocks – together with the replacement of windows (doubled glazed windows) will improve the energy and acoustic performance of the buildings and address any water penetration problems via the façade.
2. The construction of mono-pitched roofs to Laguna Estate, Moorish Castle Estate and the low-level building to Glacis Estate – to address the current roof problems.
3. The provision of lifts to each block, where possible – to lessen the burden of stairs to the existing flats.
4. The provision of defined individual clothes drying areas – in order to conceal what can amount to a necessary but untidy practice impacting on the first impression of the estate.

Contractor: GJBS

Contract Sum: £51,000,000 (includes Housing Works Agency Contingency £3,168,765)

Contractor: Profield Contractors Ltd
Contract Sum: £1,272,833

1495 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister provide some details to this House, or an idea of how the £51 million is going to be funded? Is it going to be funded by borrowing or is it going to be funded through Government surplus?

1500 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we are already seeing on the Order Paper the fact that the Appropriation Bill has been published. The Appropriation Bill will be debated, I am happy to tell Members as they might expect during the course of the next sitting of Parliament in June and I do not think it is appropriate for me to go into spending matters at this stage. He will have an opportunity of seeing details during the course of that debate.

1505 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.
I see that in the part relating to the Glacis Estate, point number three says a provision of lifts to each block, where possible, to lessen the burden of stairs to the existing flats. Am I being over-ambitious, Mr Speaker, in reading into that... I have some tenants who, sort of, wish to have their fears calmed down, that the lifts may not actually reach to the level of the landing of a particular floor but will be sort of at mezzanine level, half way between one floor and another and, therefore, there will be the use of stairs necessarily involved. Is that, perhaps, the way the Government at this particular stage is able to answer when he says 'where possible to lessen the burden'? Will this still require, in some cases, the use of stairs 1510 in order to get into or out of the lift to their own flats?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in some instances the lifts may be on a mezzanine level. They may not be on the absolute flat, but somebody who has gone up six flights of steps may only have to go up half as a result.

1515

I assume, Mr Speaker, that that fear has arisen from the way that they installed lifts in Glacis Estate, which was on the mezzanine level, not for a bad reason, Mr Speaker, because in some instances it was feared that if the lifts went down to the ground level, children, in particular those blocks that are closest to the schools, might be tempted to be interfering with the lifts all the time. So what they did, which was to fit the lifts in a way that only got to the mezzanine level, is maybe what we have to do in some instances, but not all. But it will certainly lessen the burden of six flights of steps if somebody only has to go up half – obviously the judgement that they made and not one with which we disagree.

1520

Hon. J J Netto: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

1525

I do not know whether the Hon. the Chief Minister may have at hand the information I am requesting now. In relation to the same point, point number three on the question of the installation of lifts and with the qualification ‘where possible’, I assume by now he must have had some kind of a technical report as to where this is possible from an engineering point of view and where it is not possible, whether it is in Moorish Castle or Laguna Estate.

1530

Does the Chief Minister have that information available, as to which particular blocks or the number of blocks, say, in Laguna and the number of blocks, say, in Moorish Castle will be installed with a lift and how many will not because there are good reasons from an engineering point of view that they cannot be installed?

1535

Hon. Chief Minister: I have the information, Mr Speaker, broadly. I do not have the information in detail because he has not given notice of the question but I am happy to tell him that there appears that there may be no blocks that will not have lifts installed, except that there may be some difficulty in the way that the lifts are installed in one particular block at Moorish Castle Estate. One particular block, but I understand that in all others there should be very few, if any, real engineering difficulties and therefore that information I can give him.

1540

Queen’s National Theatre project Cost to Government

1545

Clerk: Question 432, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1550

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please provide details of the overall estimated cost to the Government of the Queen’s National Theatre project?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1555

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there is no overall estimated cost at this stage, given that Government is being advised by the Committee appointed to consider what should be included in the project. There is a budget, of course, but it would be inappropriate to present such a budget at this stage, as this would influence the value of tenders for the works.

1560

New permanent power station Update on Government plans

Clerk: Question 433, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1565

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, this is a question that I lodged with Parliament and, on the same day a notice appeared, an official notice appeared in relation to the –

1570

Mr Speaker: Yes, but we are not going to go into that, are we? You are going to ask a question and you are going to get an answer.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I was explaining why.

1575 Mr Speaker: What I am saying is that we are not going to debate... We are not going to debate the question of the official notice that came out, that is what I am saying.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, absolutely not. I am just explaining why I am asking the Question when a statement has already been made. That is all, because listeners may find it odd, but Mr Speaker promised that he would allow me leeway in relation to supplementaries.

1580 Can the Chief Minister please update the House as to where the Government is with its plans in respect of a new permanent power station for Gibraltar?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1585 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am delighted to inform the House that the tender advert in respect of the new power station was published on 8th May 2013.

Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much.

1590 Mr Speaker, has the Government made a firm decision in relation to the location of the new power station and is that decision reversible in any way or is the decision firm and the Government really intends to go ahead with the location of the power station in that area?

1595 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it is as firm as it can be at this stage. In other words, the location is based on the advice that we have as to the types of engines that we expect people will tender to provide, the type of fuel we believe can be used, the way that that can be made completely and entirely safe and the way that the emissions and the noise can be dealt with to such an extent that there will be no noise whatsoever which would cause any ambient concerns for people living anywhere near the area or even working anywhere near the area – and that there are no emissions that would cause any concern to anyone.

1600 Because the huge step forward we are going to take by having not proceeded with the previous plan and proceeded with this plan is such that we will have a modern installation, as long as the tenders comply with what we are advised they can comply with and, therefore, Mr Speaker in the event that none of the tenderers were to come up with the proposals that we expect, given the specification we have set out in the tender, well look, then it might be that we would have to go back to the drawing board. We certainly do not expect that to be the case and we will be able to give satisfaction to anybody who might live anywhere near the area – and ‘near’, let us face it, includes anywhere in Gibraltar – that they will suffer no noise whatsoever and that they will have absolutely no danger to them from emissions that may come from the generating sets that are used. I think that is an important issue to always constantly remind the community of.

1610 Should it be that we do not get offers for the types of sets that we have set out with the advice that we have had in respect of what those sets do in terms of noise and emissions, then it would be back to the drawing board. I sincerely doubt that we will ever find ourselves in that situation.

1615 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, well, Mr Speaker, just in relation to that, can I take it that the Government has already had conversations, without revealing who they are, but can I take it that the Government has already had conversations with people that might be interested in this particular project and that, in fact, the Government has already discussed the potential location and whether it is do-able?

1620 Hon. Chief Minister: The Government has discussed what could happen in relation to power in Gibraltar with a myriad number of entities that were in contact with the Government as a result of our announcing that we were not proceeding with the previous power station. We have discussed internally with those that advise the Government technically of where the best option for a power station should be. We have looked at the options that were looked at by the previous administration and why they were looking at those options and we have discussed with some of the parties that have raised the issue with us, some of the locations that they put to us and when they have asked us, some of the locations that were under consideration by the Government.

1630 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in its press release in relation to, which closely follows the actual official notice that came out, the Government talks about a land reclamation that would be necessary, in order, as part of this particular project. Can he tell me whether the land reclamation is to the north of the North Mole, or is it to the west of North Mole or both?

Hon. Chief Minister: To the west of the North Mole.

1635 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is he satisfied that this particular project is in no way going to be interfering with the approach flights for planes that are landing on Gibraltar Airport. Obviously, that is something that must have been considered but is that an imponderable or a variable that could potentially affect whether the Government goes ahead with this particular project or not?

1640 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as he would expect, we have satisfied ourselves of the fact that it will not interfere with a flight path, nor limpets nor spider crabs. (Laughter)

Hon. D A Feetham: I will follow Mr Speaker's ruling and attempt to keep the temperatures down.
1645 Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Chief Minister have a timeline in relation to the construction of the power station beyond the actual awarding of tenders later on this year. How long is it likely to take to build this particular project, which is obviously going to be a substantial one?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am tempted to refer the hon. Gentleman to the notice. The notice does set out what the period should be and that is eighteen months. If he has not seen it, it is in paragraph 1650 three of the notice.

Hon. D A Feetham: So the answer is eighteen months from the time that the tenders are awarded, not 1655 eighteen months from the notice. If the notice is clear in relation to that, I had not unfortunately seen it but I would appreciate clarification from the Chief Minister in relation to that.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman should know how these things work. The 1665 closing date for the submission of tenders is 1st August 2013. The eighteen months do not run from then, they run from the awarding of the tender and the agreed mobilisation date, which is the completion process. In other words, when we agree that works must start, the clock starts to tick for eighteen months.

1660 Hon. D A Feetham: So then I have to, I am afraid, come back to my original question: it is eighteen months from the award of the tender. Can he tell me, more or less, from when he expects that eighteen month timeline to actually run? We know that close of tenders is in August. This can, of course, be quite a complicated process. I mean, it is a major, very substantial investment, certainly would have been the 1665 single biggest investment when we were in Government. I think the cost was about £150 million, the cost of the power station that we were proposing. So I am just really looking to see whether the Government expects to complete this power station prior to the next General Election or after the next general election, obviously, if elected.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, well that is much clearer.
1670 The aim of the Government is to complete before the next General Election but, of course, it is within the gift of the Chief Minister to call an election sooner than contractors might expect and therefore I hesitate to put them on notice but it could happen at any time.

1675 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister provide this House with an indication of how the addition of the power station west of the North Mole will interact with the cruise liner business at, effectively, the same location?

Hon. Chief Minister: It will not cause any difficulty whatsoever in respect of that matter, in the same 1680 way that we have ensured that the crustaceans that I referred to earlier have been considered and the flight path. Obviously, the issue of cruise ships has also been considered.

Hon. D A Feetham: Is the Chief Minister, just for the benefit of my hon. Friend, Mr Netto, is the 1685 Chief Minister saying – because I thought that he was just simply jesting – but is the Chief Minister saying that, in the context of the reclamation that might be undertaken on the west side of North Mole, that the Government has also taken into account, or conducted some form of environmental study as to the impact on, crustaceans and limpets and that sort of marine life.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we have considered all of these issues. We have not yet done the 1690 studies necessary because when we consider them we have the benefit, in the inter-Ministerial Committee, of the man who would have carried out the assessment. We think we have a pretty clear idea of what the result will be. But, of course Mr Speaker, this, like all other Government projects will go – because there is a new dawn, and we do what we say we do – to the DPC. Therefore, of course, all of those issues will also be considered there and in public, Mr Speaker, not in private, as used to be the case 1695 before.

1700 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, how realistic is it for the Development and Planning Commission, in an application, or even if it is advice and guidance in relation to this particular project, that it is capable of influencing this particular project? Really, you know this is – and we accept – a project of immense importance to this community and, again, it is a project that the Government appears to be committed to delivering for Gibraltar. At the end of the day, what I am concerned with here is about not paying just simply lip service to the Development and Planning Commission when the reality of the situation is that the Government really wants to pursue this particular project but, quite rightly, because it is important to this community, in the same way as it wants to proceed and plough ahead with the floating hotel.

1705 Hon. Chief Minister: Very realistic, Mr Speaker, because you see whereas, before, the project would not have gone to DPC, the decisions in respect of the project would have been made by the Government without going to the DPC, and the DPC then was private and would not be public, this will go to an open DPC meeting for guidance. Therefore, Mr Speaker, it is very likely that the DPC will, as usual, make important and relevant points because, you see, Mr Speaker, being inclusive and being prepared to listen to what the DPC says and what the public says does not mean that one has to abandon a project.

1710 You see, it is not if you go to DPC this is delay and this means there is no project... DPC meetings occur very often, the input provided from the Chairman down and the public, is positive, it informs the Government when it carries out projects. The projects do not have to stop: they progress and are better as a result of that process. That is why I commend to the hon. Gentleman that, now he has become Leader of the Opposition, he should change the policy of his Party, as set out by the previous Leader, and embrace the concept of a public planning process to which the Government should submit itself, at least initially, for guidance and subsequently to be bound, and eschew that the policy they pursued previously, and which was defended by the previous Leader of the Opposition, of going back to a less than open planning process which would not bind the Government... Mr Speaker, I think that the hon. Gentleman is in time to make that change, do the volte face. It will work wonders for him!

1715 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, does he not agree that perhaps it is preferable to adopt this approach, which is to accept that politics is about making and defending decisions and that you cannot be all things to all men? And does he not agree with me that this and, indeed, the other example, the floating hotel, is just precisely an example of that, of the Government really wanting to be all things to all men, when the reality is that people out there would respond to the fact that the Government would say ‘Look, this is a decision we are taking because it is in the best interests of Gibraltar and therefore it does not have to go to Planning because it is in the best interest of Gibraltar. So be it.’ But this is a half-baked, half-cooked procedure of going to the Development and Planning Commission for advice and guidance when no-one in Gibraltar actually believes that they will have any influence at all on the ultimate decision. Is that not correct?

1720 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, it is not and I will tell him why it is not. The hon. Gentleman talks about being all things to all men but let me show him why that every time he says that it reflects on him.

1725 You see, Mr Speaker, they come here and they say it is very wrong that the Sunborn is a done deal and you should have gone through the process that you say that you subject yourself to and it is only a rubber stamp. Then they say you should make a decision and you should see it through. Well, Mr Speaker, we are doing exactly what we said we would do and we commend our policy to them but I am very heartened to see that I was wrong to think that the Party would move when the leadership changes. It is still exactly where it was.

1730 Being all things to all men, Mr Speaker, is saying that a Party is such a broad church that it involves right wingers and people on the centre left and people on the left. Mr Speaker, that is what led me to have to say to him at the last budget session, when he was not even Leader of the Opposition then, that he should re-evaluate his politics of left, right, left, right, because that will not ever get him anywhere.

Portable T60 turbines
Cost of lease to the taxpayer

1740 Clerk: The Chief Minister is going to be answering Question 434, together with Question 245, which was posed by the Hon. Mr Netto yesterday.

1745 Question 434, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state what the total cost has been so far to the taxpayer of the portable T60 turbines, or temporary power station, which the Government is leasing from Energy International?

1760 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I will answer with Question 245.

1765 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the...

Clerk: That question was posed yesterday and the Chief Minister needs to answer, as in the prepared answer.

1770 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the relationship with Energy International is as set out in the publicly available Government Press Release 740/2012. Although that is publicly available information and I have no need to bring it to the House, for the hon. Gentleman's ease of reference, I now provide a copy of that press release to Members opposite.

HM GOVERNMENT OF GIBRALTAR PRESS OFFICE

PRESS RELEASE

No: 740/2012

Date: 8th November 2012

Security of Electricity Supply: The Short Term Solution

- New North Mole Temporary Power Station Announced.
- Immediate Reduction in Noise & Emissions in South District and Waterport.
- Oesco and MOD Power Stations to be shut down in silent hours.
- Waterport to reduce activity by up to two thirds in silent hours.
- Plans for a Permanent New Power Station to be announced in Next Quarter.
- Consultation on-going with relevant unions.

In order to ensure security of electricity supply, HM Government of Gibraltar has entered into a two year arrangement (with the option to extend to three) with Energy International Inc of the USA for the supply of temporary electrical power using rental turbine power, dual fire generating sets that will allow the servicing of existing generating plant to be undertaken whilst increasing the resilience of the installed generating capacity. The units will be fuelled with diesel.

The turbine units will be installed at the north western end of the North Mole, away from residential areas.

These units operate on proven technology and are extremely reliable. They also incorporate "SoLoNox Low Emission Technology" which is considerably more environmentally-friendly compared to the diesel engine technology that has been used in Gibraltar for power generation for the last eighty years. The new temporary units will each provide up to five mega watts of generating capacity and are designed to run twenty four hours a day. The twelve skid generators imported by the previous administration (eight rented and four bought outright) were capable only of one mega watt generating capacity each and were not designed to be run continually. These skid generators may soon become surplus to requirements.

The Government envisages that the new temporary power plant will be fully operational by mid December 2012. This is just before the winter peak demand. The new facility will enable Government to improve security of supply during peak demand periods when power cuts have previously occurred as a result of a lack of generating capacity.

The advent of the new temporary power station will also, importantly, permit for variations in the operating regimes of all three existing power stations in Gibraltar resulting in an overall lowering of emissions. In particular NOx emissions are predicted to reduce by 40 % per mega watt generated by the new temporary power plant immediately.

The aim is also to reduce the operational running of the power stations in the South District and in the Waterport area whenever demand allows during the silent hours, without comprising the security of supply. This will immediately massively lower the emissions and reduce the noise levels in these areas during these periods.

The Government of Gibraltar is also continuing to identify alternative ways of further reducing the emissions arising from the production of electricity in Gibraltar. To this effect Government is already working with Energy International on the fitting of Catalytic Reduction technology (known as "Scrubbers") to these turbines. The fitting of such scrubbers will further reduce emissions by another 97%. These will, however, have to be fitted at a later date due to design and availability issues that need to be resolved. The Government's first priority, however, has been to secure the reliability of electrical supplies for the winter peak demand and to service the existing engines to improve their reliability and performance, which in turn further increase security of supply and reduces emissions.

The Government of Gibraltar continues to engage with main players in the energy industry exploring alternative technologies to determine a permanent solution to Gibraltar's electrical needs. This solution must provide secure supply and massively reduce Gibraltar's carbon footprint.

1775

Chief Minister, Fabian Picardo, said: "As I have said previously, security of Gibraltar's electricity supply is one of the most important issues for my Administration. We have been working tirelessly on this issue in the past eleven months in an Inter Ministerial Committee and with our electrical, technical, environmental and financial experts. We are now ready to announce this excellent temporary solution that is designed to ensure security of supply – something which the previous administration's one mega watt skid generators demonstrably did not do. We have actually engineered a solution that gives this security whilst also reducing emissions hugely at first and even more so (almost to 1% of current emissions from the existing facilities) with "scrubbers" fitted."

"The good news is that the noise nuisance and pollution from all existing power stations in the South District and Waterport will be eliminated or very significantly reduced during silent hours and also to a lesser extent during the day."

"We are also working with the unions so that employees of these facilities are not victims of these changes or of the permanent solutions to be finalised shortly – but participants in it."

"The next step is to finalise our determination on the long term solution by the decision on what permanent power solution is to be chosen. Again environmental, noise and cost issues will be relevant alongside security of supply in the final determinations we have to make in this respect. At the same time, we are at a very advanced stage in the introduction of renewable energy sources from different types of technologies. These are the right decisions for our community and I am delighted to have led the Committee in its deliberations to date and going forward to the stage when we announce the permanent solution for power generation for the future."

1780

The total cost incurred to date in connection with the temporary power station from Energy International has been £1,698,445.93. In addition, costs totalling £258,000 have been incurred by the Gibraltar Electricity Authority in the preparatory site civil works, purchase of materials and high voltage grid reinforcement. Members should note that we are not 'leasing' a temporary power station, as the question implies, just the turbines.

1785

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can he just repeat the figure, what has been incurred so far, the £1 million, I just did not quite catch that £1 million and something?

Hon. Chief Minister: £1,698,445.93.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, can the Chief Minister tell me how much of that actually relates to relocation of these particular engines to Gibraltar and how much this actually relates to the rental element of it, because presumably there must have been a cost in terms of relocation of the turbine engines to Gibraltar. I will tell you what I am trying to do. I am trying to calculate, eventually, project what the cost might actually be in terms of the rental over the period of time that it will take the Government to build the new power station.

1795 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not have that information in detail, with me, and in fact I believe that the contract does not envisage that there should be a cost other than the leasing cost, but there may be a mobilisation cost which is absorbed as part of the lease.

1800 I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answers I have given in this House before, I do not have them with me. I think I gave, either to the House or perhaps at the time that I was interviewed by the local media, an estimate of what the costs would be to run these sets per year and how that cost would change depending on how they were fuelled, whether they were fuelled with diesel or whether they were fuelled with gas and what the savings overall would be when they were fuelled with gas. He may want to refer to those if that is the information that he is seeking. It may be that it may have been something I said when he was not in the House at the time. I think this goes back to either the December, January or February session I believe I was answering questions from Mr Figueras but it may be that I was answering questions from an interviewer that same day.

1810 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I think that, I believe, that there is a fixed rental amount per month, and then there is a variable rental amount that depends on the actual usage. If I write to the Chief Minister, can he provide, because, of course... I am not sure whether the Government has actually disclosed what the fixed amount is per month, but will he disclose that if I write to him, and will he disclose the amounts that have been incurred per month, if I were to write to him? Is that something that he is prepared to provide me, or is it something that he considers to be of a commercial nature that he is not prepared to provide?

1815 Hon. Chief Minister: I do not consider it to be of a commercial nature and if the hon. Gentleman wants to write to me, then I can give him the information and see whether it is made up as he suggests it is, or not. Why is it that he thinks it is made up like that?

1820 Hon. D A Feetham: Because the same people that used to inform him now inform us in the Opposition. I am pretty sure that, in fact, that is the way that the arrangements are operating. If it does not, then it does not: he will say to me that is not the way that it is operating... But I am grateful to the Hon. the Chief Minister for informing me that he will provide the information if I write to him.

1825 Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.
Certainly if he writes to me I will give him the information, and I shall tell the people that used to inform me to stop informing him! (Laughter)

1830 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?
Yes, the Hon. Mr Netto.

1835 Hon. J J Netto: Thank you, can I ask the Chief Minister whether, in terms of the contractual relationship, is it one which is direct between the Government and Energy International or if there is any intermediate company between the two?

Hon. Chief Minister: There is an intermediary between the two, Mr Speaker.

Hon. J J Netto: And the name of the intermediary company?

1840 Hon. Chief Minister: Gibraltar Mechanical & Electrical Services Company Limited, which is GMES, the Government wholly-owned company.

Hon. J J Netto: And is this a company that employs a number of people at the moment, or is it not?

1845 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, he will recall that I talked to him about it yesterday. It is the company that was set up by his administration when the ISGS, which is what we call the MOD power station, was passed on to the control of the Gibraltar administration. It employs a considerable number of local people.

1850 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1855

Airport runway tunnel
Update on Government plans

1860

Clerk: Question 435, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister update the House on the Government's plans either for a tunnel under the runway or any alternative?

1865

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the re-design of the road and tunnel project is now complete. Preparation of the supporting tender and contract documents is ongoing. We are already at the pre-qualification stage of the tender process. The project team have also been involved in preparing the Government's case for the OHL litigation, as he might know.

1870

Hon D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, has the Government made a decision as to whether to continue with the plans for the tunnel under the runway or is the Government considering an alternative to, effectively, what were our intended plans?

1875

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government has gone out to tender to complete the tunnel, and I have said this to the House on a number of occasions and before he presses me further I think he should speak to the previous the Leader of the Opposition because he and I had a discussion about these issues and why it was relevant that he should not press me further.

1880

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, perhaps the Hon. the Chief Minister and myself can have the same discussion rather than just for myself to go to Mr Caruana.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1885

Hon. Chief Minister: Delighted to have that discussion, Mr Speaker.

I did not realise that they were not on such fluid speaking terms as they might have been before, but I realise the previous Leader of the Opposition is engaged in his private practice now.

1890

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Bizzy Bee Limited
Provision of services to Government

1895

Clerk: Question 436, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1900

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister please state whether Bizzy Bee Limited has been engaged, or is to be engaged, by the Government to advise it on construction, road works and machine hire?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1905

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government has neither engaged, nor does it presently have any intention of engaging, Bizzy Bee Limited to provide any such advice to the Government. If the hon. Gentleman is referring to the copy of the Chronicle that suggested they did, it jumped out of the page at me and I immediately asked who on earth these people were and why it was that they felt they needed a trade licence to advise the Government.

1910

Hon. D A Feetham: Well, yes, it did, I have to say, jump out at me as well, that they were applying for a trade licence solely in order to advise the Government of Gibraltar on construction, road works and machine hire. I, in fact, then conducted a company profile search on this particular company and certainly one of the shareholders, I know, is a GSLP member, but I am not making any allusions in relation to that. What I am going to ask is so the Chief Minister can confirm that, in fact, there had been no discussions at all between any branch of the Government or any Government Department and this particular company in relation to the provision of advice to the Government on construction, road works and machine hire, and that it was just simply a moment of supreme optimism by this particular company to apply for a trade licence to do precisely that.

1920 Hon Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I can confirm that entirely, and I will tell him more. What has happened after 8th December, is that the identity of people, whether it is of people who are supporters, members or activists of the GSLP or members, supporters or activists of the GSD, or of the PDP or of any other political party or persuasion is completely irrelevant to the consideration that the Government may make to whether they get contracts or not. So, the hon. Member likes to make allusions and then say he is making no allusions, he should rest assured that he need not make those allusions, although I can see exactly where he is going in the next Question.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

1930 Hon D A Feetham: But I have not finished.
Yes, was the Chief Minister aware that, in fact, in today's Gazette this particular company has now widened its application for a trade licence to include other things that were not restricted to advising the Government, because, of course, if this particular company had done anything other than advise the Government on any of those matters it would have been in breach of its trade licence? Is the Chief Minister aware that today, on the day that I am asking this particular question, there is a notice in the Gazette widening the ambit of the application for a trade licence by this company?

1935 Hon. Chief Minister: Not only am I aware of it, Mr Speaker, I have a copy of it, and the hon. Gentleman might like to know that, as a result of that advertisement that appeared and the enquiries that I made, the people who had placed the advertisement were told by the Trade Licensing Department that they had got it completely wrong, and I think the Trade Licensing Department gave them the advice that they needed in order to be able to advertise their services adequately, Mr Speaker.

1940 He will be delighted to know that the Trade Licensing Department is so proactive in the pursuit of ensuring that people comply with their obligations under the law, whatever political persuasion they may be from.

1945

Government and Public Service employees
Details since 10th December 2011

1950 Clerk: Question 437, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1955 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister provide a list of (1) Civil Servants (2) GDC employees (3) Statutory Agency and Authority employees and Government Company employees that have, since December 2011, been transferred from the post that they occupied on 10th December 2011, giving a breakdown by entity, employee, post occupied on 10th December and the post transferred to?

1960 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I will answer this Question together with Questions 438 and 439.

1965 Clerk: Question 438.

1970 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Chief Minister provide a breakdown in respect of the number of (1) Civil Servants (2) GDC employees (3) Statutory Agency and Authority employees and (4) Government Company employees that have been employed in posts in those entities since 11th December 2011, excluding Future Job Strategy trainees?

Clerk: Question 439, the Hon. D A Feetham.

1975 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister give details of all persons, if any, employed by, or promoted to a more senior position within the Government, the GDC, or any Government Company, Agency or Authority without a public advertisement of vacancy followed by a selection board in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1980

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Member the schedules with the information requested.

There was a short pause.

2050

Hon. Chief Minister: Does he have it?

Hon D A Feetham: Yes, thank you.

2055 Hon. Chief Minister: Right. Mr Speaker, he will see that, in answer to Question 440, we have not been able to give registration number, registered address, name of directors and shareholders and the date of incorporation, because many of those companies are no longer with us at Government Offices but there are three which I draw his attention to, Economic Development & Employment Company Limited, Supported Employment Company Limited, and Construction Training Company Limited. Those are actually Government companies so we are able to give him the details of those. I have got company profiles here to give him of those three companies. He can have copies of them if he wishes, but I have only got one copy myself.

2060 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he said Economic Development & Employment Limited, Supported Employment Company Limited and – 2065 Hon. Chief Minister: Construction Training Company Limited.

Hon D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I have a supplementary. Mr Speaker? (Mr Speaker: Yes.)
2070 The three companies that the Hon. the Chief Minister has identified as being Government companies, can he confirm that these are all companies that participate in the Future Job Strategy Scheme. I recognise one, which is the Supported Employment Company Limited, I think is one, but I am not sure about the other two.

Hon. Chief Minister: They do participate in the FJS, Mr Speaker.

2075 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, there are thirteen companies, or companies originally incorporated at No 6 Convent Place, and then there is a further seven companies originally incorporated at 31 Town Range.

The first supplementary is, 31 Town Range: can you just remind me, is that the annex to No. 6?

2080 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, the annex to No. 6, I think is another address. This is opposite the annex to No. 6.

2085 Hon. D A Feetham: Sorry, is that the new offices now of the Minister for Employment or the old offices of the Minister for Employment?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would hardly describe it as new. Anybody who has seen the state of it would see that it is hard to describe as a new anything, but it is a place where the Minister for Employment and Inward Investment does some of his work, but it is not the ETB.

2090 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in relation to all these companies – seventeen – leaving aside Economic Development, Supported Employment and Construction Training Company Limited, are all these companies... do all of them continue to have a registered office at No. 6 Convent Place, or which ones of these continue to hold offices at No. 6 Convent Place? Does he have the information as to which ones continue? Or alternatively 31 Town Range?

2095 Hon. Chief Minister: As I understand it, Mr Speaker, the three that will continue to have No. 6 as a... well, in fact, not even No. 6 206-210 Main Street, Gibraltar, are the three I have referred him to, Economic Development & Employment Limited, Supported Employment Company Limited, and Construction Training Company Limited. The others either have 31 Town Range or are in the process of being moved out of 31 Town Range. None of them have No. 6 as their registered address at the moment.

2100 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, of course, we brought into the public domain Construction & Maintenance Company Limited, which was first, when it was incorporated, called ETB One, Now that was, until a month ago, at No. 6 Convent Place. It has since been moved out of No. 6 Convent Place, is what the Hon. the Chief Minister is saying and that the others have been moved out? Have the others been moved out subsequent to the exchange of press releases between the Government and the Opposition or was it before? Does he have that information?

2110 Hon. Chief Minister: That one, and the others, were in the process of being moved out before the exchange with the Opposition, as a result of my having seen that No. 6 was used as the address for the incubator and that my view was that it should not actually be No. 6 that was used as the address for the incubator.

2115 Hon. D A Feetham: Just so that I get this right, they have been moved out of No.6 Convent Place – the Chief Minister says that was in the process prior to the exchange – but they have been moved out of No. 6 Convent Place subsequent to the exchange of press releases. Correct?

2120 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker. I said what I said – before and after the exchange of press releases.

Hon. D A Feetham: Does he have the information as to how many before and how many after?

Hon. Chief Minister: No.

2125 Hon. D A Feetham: Can he at least tell me whether the majority was before or the majority after.

2130 Hon. Chief Minister: No, because I do not have the information. He has not asked me on what dates they moved. If he had asked me on what dates they moved, I might have tried to get the information, but it may not be possible for me to get the information because that may require a full search at Companies House and may not appear on the profile. He will know that profiles tell you what registered addresses are but it does not actually tell you when the registered address was changed. That would require a search of the file, which is something that is available to the general public.

2135 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister tell me whether it was his idea to use No. 6 Convent Place as the registered address of these so-called incubators, or was it the idea of the Minister for Employment?

2140 Hon. Chief Minister: It was the idea of neither, Mr Speaker. The idea of the Party that won the election – the Parties that won the election – and put in their manifesto was as set out in the press release in which we answered the issues set out by hon. Members opposite, that there should be an incubator and, in the process of incorporating these companies for the incubator, somebody in the process of incorporation put down No. 6 Convent Place. He will see that, even when the Government incorporates companies, we do not actually use for Government companies No. 6 Convent Place as the address, it is 206-210 Main Street, but I assume that he supports the policy of assisting companies in this way and getting business back to work, as they used to say in another place, about a similar policy.

2145 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I do not accept for a moment that this has anything to do with incubating companies, I am afraid, and that that is a political excuse that the Government has come up with because it has been rumbled after our press release exposing ETB One as being one of the companies that was registered at No. 6 Convent Place. But can he identify, Mr Speaker, whose idea was it to register these companies at No. 6 Convent Place and whose idea was it to register a further seven companies at the ministerial address of the hon. Member to his left?

2155 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman says he does not want to make political points, then he talks about ‘not accepting’ that something that the Chief Minister has said – in other words suggesting it is not true – and talking about people being ‘rumbled’ which, of course, pejoratively, means that you are doing something which you should not be doing and are found out. Then he says, Mr Speaker, that he does not believe in Punch and Judy politics! As I told him before, Mr Speaker, if he does not believe in Punch and Judy politics, he should stop punching.

2160 But, anyway, Mr Speaker, it was neither the idea of the Chief Minister nor of the Minister for Employment and Inward Investment to use No. 6. I have explained to him what the circumstances of No. 6 being used were. The press release which was issued on the subject talked of ‘an administrative error’, but it was the idea of the Chief Minister and of the Minister for Inward Investment and Employment to use 31 Town Range, because we believe, contrary to their view, Mr Speaker, that it is right to incorporate these companies using a Government address, and to create that incubation process and to give life to people who wish to create companies in order to become self-employed and be able to work in their professions.

2165 Mr Speaker, we make absolutely no apology for it. It is the policy of this party. It is the policy of this Government. We think it is the right policy to put people in a position where they can carry out their professions in circumstances where they are not able to fund the incorporation of companies. In fact, Mr Speaker he might find that there are many governments that are doing exactly the same things, or very similar things, around the world and this is a very positive step forward.

2175 Hon. D A Feetham: So, Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister of Gibraltar does not think that there is anything right and, indeed, he believes... (Hon. Chief Minister: Wrong.) Is wrong, I beg your pardon –

2180 wrong – and he believes that it is entirely consonant with principles of good governance to have private companies, owned effectively by private individuals, registered at the address of Government Departments, with the provision of effectively nominee shareholders who are public servants acting as nominee shareholders – and I mean I do not know whether in relation to any of these companies, there is also the provision of nominee directors – he thinks there is absolutely nothing wrong with that? One supplementary.

2185 The second supplementary, which is my last: he does not think that there is anything politically, remotely politically, suspicious about the fact that Construction and Maintenance Company Limited, which is a company that was incorporated over a year ago, continued to have public servants as nominee shareholders and continues to be registered at No. 6 Convent Place – over a year – and that no-one knew about this particular incubator scheme until we raised it in our press release and the Government responded?

2190 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I do not think that there is anything remotely politically suspicious but I am given to believe, Mr Speaker, that those who accuse of paranoia being on this side of the House continue to suffer the same sort of paranoia on the other side of the House.

2195 Mr Speaker, the principles of good governance that we stand for are the ones that we demonstrate in everything that we do every day, much better than the previous incumbents, for this reason, Mr Speaker, in the time that we have been in office, we have not funded a party political newspaper to the tune of £150,000. In the time that –

Mr Speaker: This is really a matter which I consider to be irrelevant.

2200 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, in the context of answering points which are party political and are made thrusting at the Government and our good governance record, in every parliament in the world I believe it is proper to reply with points which relate to when hon. Members were in government. But, if you would rather I did not, then I will not. I will not refer to their abysmal record on good government and will continue just with the bare answer on this point.

2205 What has happened, Mr Speaker, is that companies have been incorporated and for the period of incorporation have had a Government registered office and Government officers as shareholders. The minute that they are handed over to the person for whom they have been incorporated as part of the incubator process, they are then taken over by those individuals. In some cases, Mr Speaker, we are not dealing with individuals who deal with companies every single day of their lives and some administrative oversights have occurred.

2210 Mr Speaker, what is it that they think that they have ‘rumbled’? They have rumbled nothing. This is a good policy for our community. This is the right policy to get people to work, Mr Speaker, but as usual, hon. Members’ opposite seem to be against anything which reduces unemployment and which gets people to work. Well, we stand by what has happened. We believe it is the right policy. It will continue to happen for many years. When he carries out searches he might find that the people who he sees are behind these companies might even surprise him, Mr Speaker, and I commend to him another volte face, that he should adopt this policy as the right policy for our community. Not only is there nothing wrong with it, it is absolutely the right policy and it is in line with the clear view that this Government has of what is good government, adhering to internationally accepted principles – something which, if he would care to have the debate and put the motion, I would be delighted to debate with him with more cut and thrust than, perhaps, Mr Speaker is minded to allow, and perhaps rightly, during the course of Question Time.

2225 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, can I ask the Chief Minister this: when was the scheme, this incubator scheme, actually announced so that people out there could take advantage of this very generous offer that the Government is making of incorporating companies, providing public shareholders? When was this incubator scheme announced publicly and can he point me in the direction of that publication, please?

2230 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I may not be able to give him the exact date because I cannot remember on what date we actually released our manifesto but I think it was roughly two weeks before the last General Election and then, of course, the minute that we were elected, the information was available in the ETB. He himself has referred to when these companies were incorporated and the information has been available there, certainly from 9th December, when we got our feet under our desks and the Minister for Employment and Inward Investment was at work. He will be delighted to know that even if he were to turn up now and seek to establish himself in a trade for which he may not be yet known – he may be a great carpenter, for all I know – he would be assisted also.

2240 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I have a supplementary which relates directly to the matters raised in Question 440 and that is that the original Question requested information in relation to directors, registration number, date of incorporation and shareholders information, which I cannot glean from the schedule that has been provided.

2245 Hon. Chief Minister: I fear the hon. Gentleman was not listening when I was giving the oral answer to that question.

I told him, Mr Speaker, that we are unable to give that information without ourselves carrying out profile searches at Companies House because, you see, these companies are no longer registered at these addresses and therefore we would have to be able to give that information because the companies are with us. They have now passed on to third parties, who may have changed shareholdings from what they originally told us they were going to change it to. We would have had to go to Companies House and obtain profiles and that is an exercise that hon. Members can do now that they have the company names. It is not information which, in order to be accurate, we can give you.

2255 It may be – but I do not know – that we might be able to give the names of shareholders and names of directors that we were asked to put down when the companies were transferred but that may not be the names of the directors or the shareholders today. Therefore, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the service available from Companies House so that if they obtain profiles they will be able to see which of these are some of them may still be in the process of the changeover.

2260 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, will the Hon. the Chief Minister be happy to provide the information that they had available at the time when these companies were incorporated at either No. 6 Convent Place or 31 Town Range, for what that may be worth to the Opposition, upon request?

2265 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, when they were incorporated they were very likely just to have a Government address, a Government officer, and a Government shareholder. Does he mean when they first moved out?

2270 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, when the Opposition first became aware of the information in relation to ETB One, I believe it was, the director was, in fact, not a Government officer and, for what it may be worth, if it is not too much hassle, then would the Government be able to provide us with that information, upon request, when they receive it.

Hon. Chief Minister: If we have it, Mr Speaker, but what I am telling him about ETB One, which he was told in our press release was that that was an administrative error, that somebody changed a director but not the rest of the information which had to be changed.

2275 The hon. Gentleman laughs! I do not know why it is that he laughs: he seems to have really a mind which imputes the worst to everyone. I trust that he does not want us to impute the worst to him, but perhaps one wishes to be dealt with as one deals with others.

2280 If we have the information, and the hon. Gentleman puts the question, then I will be delighted to give it to him but it may be that we do not have the information. That is what I am saying to him. We certainly do not have the information of what they are today with any level of accuracy.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the Opposition will formulate the Question for the next session of Parliament in that specific respect and if the information is available, then it is. If it is not, then we will make enquiries as to why not.

2285 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just in relation to the last statement of the Chief Minister, it does really remind me of the words of Oscar Wilde: ‘Simply because I am paranoid it does not mean that they are not out to get me.’

2290 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, except that I did not realise this was a poetry lesson and that the hon. Gentleman was supposed to get up to ask questions.

I am absolutely out to get him. He is absolutely right. I do not think he should ever become Chief Minister of Gibraltar and I will continue politically to strive to ensure that this Party remains here and he never makes it. But that is life!

2295 Mr Speaker: I take it that the Hon. Mr Bossino has a supplementary and not a clever remark (Laughter).

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, a supplementary question and that relates to the scheme which the Hon. the Chief Minister has referred us to in this Parliament, where he says that all the information is 2300 available at the ETB. I raise this and would ask the question is whether he can confirm that all the details of the policy are available and whether, if I write, perhaps, to the Minister for Inward Investments and Employment, he will provide me with the detail of the policy because he also refers us, Mr Speaker, to what is in the manifesto and, I will quote. It is actually very basic information: it is only one paragraph and it reads:

2305

‘Investments will be made in small workshops and business units with admin support and tax/social insurance breaks to help encourage and nurture the setting up of new businesses. This will help foster entrepreneurship at all levels of our economy.’

2310

So you can understand that the detail which appears to be now unravelling before us in this Parliament – that the Government is actually providing incubator services with a registered office and directorships and shareholders – is not set out in the manifesto and I would ask him to confirm the information which I am asking him to confirm in this question.

2315

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, this sets out the policy. What he is now talking about is how the policy has been implemented and I am delighted to be able to share that with him. In fact, I am working with the Federation of Small Businesses on exactly those issues and with the Minister for Inward Investment so, if he writes to me, I will be delighted to let him have the details.

2320

And again, I mean he actually, in my view, is a very talented lawyer but if he has other talents and wants to set up a small business then I would be delighted to recommend him to the Minister for Inward Investment, who knows him well enough himself to know he would make a good job of most things he turns his attention to.

Adjournment

Mr Speaker: The Chief Minister.

2330

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House do now adjourn until Monday, 20th May at 3.00 p.m.

2335

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that this House do now adjourn until Monday, 20th May at 3.00 p.m.

I now put the question which is that this House do now adjourn until Monday, 20th May at 3.00 p.m.
Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed

This House will now adjourn until Monday, 20th May at 3.00 p.m.

The House adjourned at 6.07 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

AFTERNOON SESSION: 3.00 p.m. – 6.10 p.m.

Gibraltar, Monday, 20th May 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.00 p.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE, in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: M L Farrell Esq RD in attendance]

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Monday 20th May, 2013.

Mr Speaker: Before we proceed with Questions, the Chief Minister has asked leave to make a Statement.

5 The Hon. the Chief Minister.

10 Writ of Election Statement by the Chief Minister

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, with your permission, I rise to deliver a Statement of Information to the House.

15 Mr Speaker, a few moments ago I met with His Excellency the Governor, at the Convent, and advised him to issue a writ for an election to fill the seat vacated by the death of the Hon. Charles Bruzon. I advised His Excellency to issue the writ for that by-election to be held on 4th July. Importantly, Mr Speaker, the business of Government and of this Parliament will continue whilst the by-election process is under way.

20 That will, no doubt, make huge demands on the staff of the Parliament, because although this is not a general election we are now meeting monthly as a Parliament and that timetable will not be abated by the calling of this by-election. I understand that the timetable will require candidates to have signed nomination papers before noon on Thursday, 13th June.

I believe, Mr Speaker, that this is a historic occasion. With all the surviving Chief Ministers, elected 25 Members of this House today, or you as a Member of this House today, I believe it is true to say that this is the first time that a Chief Minister has come to this House from the Convent, having convened an election for a vacant seat, in the history of the by-elections held in our democracy. In doing so, Mr Speaker, I believe I am demonstrating that, where possible and relevant, the Government will seek to make statements of national importance in this Parliament.

30 Mr Speaker, an election, whether for one seat or for all of the seats in this Parliament, in other words whether a by-election or a general election, is an important democratic opportunity to test ideas, to consider political performance and to hear the voice and will of our people.

35 I trust that, in particular, given the tragic circumstances which give rise to this election, all those who contest the seat will do so in the spirit of presenting their policies and ideas to the electorate genuinely and honestly, presenting their respective visions for the future of our nation with tenacity but with respect and presenting always the best of each of themselves.

Our nation is an established and respected democratic tradition which, once again, comes to the fore today because, however tragic the cause of this election, the cause of democracy requires that we press on to hear the will and voice of the people of our nation.

40 Mr Speaker, I confirm that the Gibraltar Socialist Labour Party, which I lead, will in coalition with the Liberal Party present a candidate to fill the seat presently vacant. The selection process within the GSLP will start tonight at our AGM and our candidate will be presented to the electorate at the end of that process.

45 Finally, Mr Speaker, when I arrived this afternoon I found that the Clerk has facilitated to me a note from Mr Faulds in the Tynwald in the Isle of Man, who do our Hansards. In an email from him he says this: 'In noting the changes to the technical way in which we record our proceedings, may I say that the Hansard team has been shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mr Bruzon' and then he goes on to say 'who invariably managed to sound polite and understanding even during difficult debates.'

Mr Speaker, thank you for your indulgence in allowing me to make this Statement.

Questions for Oral Answer

55

TOURISM, COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS, PUBLIC TRANSPORT AND THE PORT

GibiBike parking stations

Potential safety hazard

60

Clerk: Answers to Questions continue.
Question 210, the Hon. J J Netto.

65 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, is the Government aware that some of the parking stations for bicycles belonging to the Gibraltar Bus Company in various areas around Gibraltar have exposed electricity cables and metal rods lying on the ground, and that this is likely to be a safety hazard and if the Government is aware of this, when will it take steps to deal with this potential danger?

70 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the areas the hon. Gentleman refers to have already been made safe.

75 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Member for that particular answer because, obviously, the sooner the potential hazard is removed the better to avoid any particular action, but could I quickly ask the hon. Member, because I am informed that at the particular bicycle station which is sited in the Port area next to the Coviran run supermarket that considerable members had seen on Saturday – Saturday 11th May at 10.00 o'clock at night – two particular workers, working with a van called Site Trading Limited, actually go to the bicycle station, put their headlights on and then started removing the cables and metal rods. Once they had finished all that particular work, they actually laid a concrete slab to finish the particular job.

Why do this kind of work on a Saturday at 10.00 o'clock? Has the Hon. Minister got an answer for that?

85 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the specificity of that question would require notice. I would have no idea why a particular company would proceed to do works in a particular way at a particular time. Surely, the hon. Gentleman should be satisfied that having brought to my attention the fact that there were certain areas of Gibraltar that may not have been particularly safe, I moved immediately to make them safe?

90

Bus advertising contract
Details of tenders

95 Clerk: Question 211, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, good afternoon.

100 Can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port provide this House with details of the offers of revenue made by tenderers for the advertising contract in respect of the buses prior to the award of the contract to Big Publications Limited during 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

105 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question Nos. 212 and 213.

Clerk: Question 212.

110 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port provide this House with details of the level of advertising revenue being generated by Big Publications Limited to the Government since it secured the contract for administering advertising on the buses in 2012?

115 Clerk: Question 213.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port confirm the purpose for which a payment of £15,000 was made to Big Publications Limited in December 2012, described as, and I quote, 'Provision for Bus Advertising'.

120 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr. Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 211 and 213.

125 Clerk: You now need to answer Question 21...

Hon. H F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, I will now hand over to the hon. Member a schedule in answer to Question No. 211/2013.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 213

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO 211

130

	Big Publications	FotoGraphiks	Sign- IT	ColorWorks
Offers of Revenue	Estimated maximum income to Bus Company	Estimated maximum income to Bus Company	Estimated maximum income to Bus Company	Estimated maximum income to Bus Company
	£122,034.00	£54,000	£54,880.00	£86,400

Mr Speaker, it is not appropriate for me to disclose, across the floor of the House, the specific profits or losses of a private company, even if that company has been contracted by the Government to provide a particular service. I will, of course, one year from the date that the Government entered into the contract 135 with Big Publications, be more than happy to indicate whether or not the Government has received the expected revenue as indicated in answer to Question 212/2013.

In answer to Question 213/2013, I confirm that upon commencement of the agreement Big Publications Limited received the sum of £15,000 to cover initial costs relating to the productions and installations of the advertisements. These costs have been paid back in full to the Gibraltar Bus Company Limited, as stipulated in the agreement.

Hon. S M Figueras: Thank you.

140 Mr Speaker, in relation to the point that the Hon. Minister makes about disclosing information about profits or losses, with respect to the Hon. Minister it is not what the question is requesting. It is requesting information in relation to the offers of remuneration, effectively, that the tenderers in the process had made to the Government, which are the basis of Question 211. I would ask the Minister whether their decision in that respect has precluded him for reviewing that particular information?

150 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in respect of the question that he asked me as to the offers of revenue, I have answered the hon. Gentleman by providing him the schedule. I see that he accepts that I have... Therefore, in answer to the second supplementary, I am not sure whether he withdraws it in the light of the schedule that he has now seen?

155 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, indeed I am happy to withdraw the supplementary. I had not actually noticed that the schedule dealt with specifically that information.

Another supplementary in relation to 211 was whether the Minister had been able to check if the process of procuring the services, the renewal of the contract or the awarding of a contract to Big Publications Limited, had been or the process as a whole, had been as a result of the termination of the existing contract. I will remind the Hon. Minister, to assist, that in a discussion with my hon. and Learned Friend Mr Bossino, the question had been asked and the Minister at the time was unsure of whether that had been the case, and he undertook to check that for this House.

160 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, Hansard will reflect that I did ask for specific notice of that question. It is not a question that has been asked. If he does ask, I will answer the question, but that is not the information that I have before me.

165 Hon. S M Figueras: Not to be petty, Mr Speaker, but I have a copy of the Hansard and he did not request notice of the question, particularly given the fact that it was a relatively straightforward matter. Be that as it may, Mr Speaker, it is something that I will pursue with the Hon. Minister after this session.

170 In relation to the payment of £15,000 that was made to Big Publications, I note the answer of the Hon. Minister that the £15,000 has now been paid back in full and that it was a payment to assist in relation to the initial start up costs of that entity. Can the Minister say whether this had been the case or whether the Government had had to provide any kind of financial support to the previous contractor, before the award of the contract to Big Publications Limited. (Interjection)

175 Yes, Mr Speaker, I will just repeat the supplementary. Could the Hon. Minister say whether his Government had needed to contribute financially to the contractor that was in place before Big Publications Limited in relation to the production of the advertising?

180 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman knows that if I have the information before me I always give it to him, but I do not know the answers to questions in relation to previous contracts entered into by the last administration. If he asks me the question, I will be more than happy to give it to him. If he writes to me or if he gives me notice of the question. I can answer questions about the current contract but I am afraid that I cannot enter into the specifics of the last contract.

185 Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for his contribution. I will review the answer and the schedule and revert, if necessary, at the next session. I am grateful.

190 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have the schedule in front of me – the answer to Question 211 – and it says ‘estimated income to the Bus Company’. Can the Minister explain how that is calculated as I understand with this particular answer there is no guaranteed income to the Bus Company. This was an estimated maximum income by each of the tenderers, but can he explain to the House how the income to the Bus Company is going to be calculated, in relation to the successful tenderer, please?

195 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, with pleasure.

Each of the tenderers had submitted the amount that they would charge per advert, where it is on the rear of the bus or on the side. The only tenderer that had submitted different prices depending on the 200 location of the adverts, differently to the other tenderers, from the supplementary information that I have before me, related to Big Publications. Without giving the name of any particular tenderer, there was one tenderer that cited, for instance, bus rear advert £300 per month – which came up to £3,600 a year – and side windows £250 per month – which amounted to £3,000 a year. In relation to Big Publications, which was the company that was awarded the contract, you had a much more sophisticated pricing structure: for instance, bus rear advert, £4,000; bottom side banner, £1,000; top side banner, £1,000; entrance mat, 205 £750; entry doors, £1,000... and it carries on and catalogues how the company intends to charge and therefore generate the revenue for the Bus Company. Of course, like the hon. Gentleman rightly says, it is an estimate of maximum revenue annually for the Bus Company.

210 Gibraltar Bus Company withdrawal of court action Compensation paid to Mr Sardeña

Clerk: Question 214, the Hon. S M Figueras.

215 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port say whether any compensation has been paid to Mr Peter Sardeña in respect of the Gibraltar Bus Company's withdrawal of its defence in respect of his unfair dismissal claim.

220 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr
Speaker, the claim has not progressed to a final hearing.

225 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I think the position is that it is the compensatory element of the claim which still requires determination by the Industrial Tribunal. Perhaps the Minister can confirm whether that understanding is, in fact, correct. Secondly, Mr Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister whether he has any indication from the Government lawyers as to when they expect that the hearing will take place.

230 Hon N F Costa: Mr Speaker, on the last occasion that, or perhaps not the last, but the second last occasion, when the hon. Gentleman asked me questions about this case, I particularly made the point that the matter is sub judice and that I will not be entering into the realm of answering any matters relating to the case.

235 As to when the case will be heard, there is a tentative date of when the next hearing will be, but I am not in a position to tell him what exactly the matters are that will be determined.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, but surely it is a matter of public record that, in fact, the Government withdrew its defence to the unfair dismissal claim so that, therefore, without going into any of the facts of the case – we are not asking that – what we are asking is, is it not the case that all that needs to be determined is just simply the quantum of any damages and compensation payable. Nothing 240 else, that is the...

245 We are not asking, with respect, the Hon. the Minister to actually overstep the line into any discussion of any of the details of the case. All that has been asked is whether just simply quantum of damages and quantum of compensation needs to be determined and a timeframe in which the Minister believes that that will be, in fact, be determined.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I already mentioned, the matter was fully ventilated during the course of a question and answer session, as to when I expect the matter to conclude, hopefully during the course of this year.

250 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, one final supplementary.

Just for the sake of clarification, can the Hon. the Minister say whether his first answer – I will give the Hon. Minister the opportunity to listen to the supplementary – could the Hon. Minister say whether his first answer means that no payment has been made to Mr Peter Sardeña?

255 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the Question specifically asks whether there has been, and I shall read it, so as not to make a mistake: 'whether there has been any compensation paid to Mr Peter Sardeña as a result of the unfair dismissal claim'. The answer is that the matter has not yet progressed to a final hearing, so surely it is implicit in my answer what the answer is. But the matter is sub judice and he 260 should not be asking me any further questions.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, subject, of course, to what the Hon. Minister is saying about the matter being sub judice, I have to disagree with him that the answer that he has provided actually answers the question, and that is whether any compensation has been paid, whether on an interim basis or otherwise. The answer that the Hon. Minister has given is that the matter is yet to go to hearing, and whilst the Hon. Minister may say that it is implicit in the reply that no payment has been made, I am asking the Minister the question for his confirmation in explicit terms.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I practised employment law humbly for nine years and never once have I ever heard of an interim payment being made before a final adjudication on quantum.

Hon. S M Figueras: Sorry, but can the Hon. Minister confirm that no payment has been made, then?

Hon. N F Costa: I have already exhausted the answer to the Question, Mr Speaker.

275

Gibraltar bus fleet Update on replacement

280 Clerk: Question 215, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port provide this House with an update in respect of the replacement of Gibraltar's bus fleet?

Clerk: Answer, the hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the Procurement Office Tender Board met recently to consider the tender for the procurement of eco-friendly buses. At present the tender is at stage two. Buses are being tested for suitability throughout the Gibraltar road network and an evaluation process is ongoing.

290

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for his answer in that regard. I wonder whether perhaps the Minister might be able to give us an indication as to how long he might anticipate the process to take from this stage. I understand that it will be subject to a number of factors, but any indication at this stage would be helpful.

295

Hon. N F Costa: Well, Mr Speaker, I will provide him with the supplementary information that was provided to me by the Tender Board and that may assist us both in making an educated estimate. The Procurement Office has met on various occasions, the last time being on 29th April, to decide on the tests to be undertaken by the buses that have been brought over to date.

300

The tender procedure is still ongoing and, of course, as I have said in the answer, the Government is testing potential vehicles.

A prospective vehicle was tested last week, last week as at the date that the answer was drafted, and other vehicles are expected to be tested within the next couple of months. After all the vehicles have been tested, an expert technical report is submitted. The Procurement Office will then make a recommendation to Government.

GPS-enabled tracking device on taxis Update on installation

Clerk: Question 216, the Hon. S M Figueras.

315

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port say whether the installation of a GPS-enabled tracking device on Gibraltar's taxis has now been completed and how the Government expects that this will alleviate the issue of availability of taxis at Gibraltar Airport at peak times?

320

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

325 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the installation of the new meters, which incorporate a GPS tracking device, has been almost entirely completed, although they are not yet in service, pending completion. The meter will be fully operational once the calibration service that has been tailor made to meet Gibraltar's requirements is complete.

330 Due to the fact that these newly incorporated taxi meters are a modern and reliable dispatch system, Government is confident that good communications between the vehicle and a central office will go a long way to alleviate the availability of taxis not only to the Gibraltar Airport but all around Gibraltar.

For instance, this booking system is optimised to automatically assign jobs to the nearest vehicle. It even looks into the future, by analysing each vehicle's job queue: the system is capable of determining which vehicle will be closest at the scheduled time of pick up.

335 Moreover, the installation of these newly incorporated taxi meters will also allow all the vehicles' job details to be tracked.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for that.

340 I have a number of supplementaries that I am going to be asking, but they are going to arise in the context of other Questions along the Order Paper and it would probably be best to take it in the next Question.

345 PSV access to airport/border
Alternative during peak times

Clerk: Question 217, the Hon. S M Figueras.

350 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, can the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port say whether the Government is exploring access options for public service vehicles to the area of the airport/border for use during peak times as an alternative to the current runway crossing?

355 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

360 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, Government is considering a number of such options.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. Minister say how far along in this exploration of options the Government is, and is he at liberty to provide this House with some details of what it is that they are looking at.

365 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, at this point I would only like to say that there has been some extensive consultation with different operators, different interested parties, Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses, the Chamber of Commerce: they all, of course, have an input and a stake into considering this matter. I would not at this point like to give any details because the matters discussed have been extensive and we are not in a position to firm up any of the options that have been discussed.

370 Perhaps, if the hon. Gentleman wishes to ask me this question in a couple of sessions' time, we may be able to be more accurate or fuller in the answer.

375 TRAFFIC, HOUSING AND TECHNICAL SERVICES

User and trip survey
Timetable for completion of Mott Macdonald Report

380 Clerk: Question 318, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether the Government has established a timetable for the completion of the Report by Mott Macdonald following the conclusion of the user and trip survey underway in Gibraltar?

385

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the first draft of the sustainable traffic, transport and parking plan is expected to be completed in late 2013 for internal review. It is expected that the final version of the plan will be ready during the first quarter of 2014.

390

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister confirm whether the Report will be published?

395

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the Government will publish the Report once it is completed.

Hon. S M Figueras: In relation to the survey that is currently underway, some concerns have been expressed to us by constituents about the manner in which it is being conducted. The comments have been limited to saying that constituents have been pulled over when they were on their way to work and that they were, and I quote, 'being harassed' in respect of the survey. Is the Minister able to say whether this, in fact, has been the case or what the MO has been in that context during the survey?

400

Hon. P J Balban: What people feel when they have been pulled over is very much up to the individual, whether they feel harassed by having been pulled over or not. Obviously, the actual surveys have been conducted in the way that the consultants conduct the surveys world-wide, as to the best practice, and people are not obliged to have to give any information if they do not wish to.

405

All that happens is that they are briefly pulled over to one side, some of which do not even say 'Look, I am in a rush and continue.' You know, the survey literally takes minutes – in fact, it takes a minute! As to being harassed, personally I sincerely think not.

410

Hon. S M Figueras: I would say to the Hon. Minister that it is only in relation to the fact that they actually do get pulled over first thing in the morning when they are heading to work, that they consider they are getting harassed.

415

More generally in relation to the survey, is that now complete or is that still underway?

Hon. P J Balban: The survey phase is programmed to be finished the first week of June.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

420

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, just to understand this: in terms of the stages, by the first week of June, the user and trip survey is expected to be finalised and the Minister has advised this House that he expects to receive, internally, the Report in October of this year, I think he said, or at the end of this year. Are there any stages, anything else, any activity which needs to be undertaken by the Government between the closure of the user and trip survey and the production of the report internally to the Government?

425

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, now begins the process of actually taking all that data that has been collected, which is a vast amount of data that has been collected by different methods of survey, and all that data will then be used to collate the Report. So now we come into the biggest part of the process, if you so wish, which is the sorting out of data and from there preparing a recommendation as to where we go from here.

430

Hon. S M Figueras: One final supplementary, Mr Speaker, if you will allow it.

435

I have personally in this House commended the Minister in respect of the initiative in relation to the traffic lights at the junction of Europort and Queensway, as an initiative taken by the Government outside the scope of the user and trip survey and my question to the Hon. Minister is this: given that there is some time still for the completion of this survey and certainly eventually for the implementation of whatever plan may arise from it – are the Government's plans for development and infrastructural implementation of solutions that they are aware may be relevant today, are those plans on hold pending completion of this survey and the plan that will follow it?

440

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, things that are seen as urgent have been tackled as, for example, the lights in question. There are other things like speed ramps perhaps that could be considered urgent and 445 they will not wait for the outcome of the plan itself. But, obviously, to have contracted consultants to give us advice and for us not to wait to be able to heed their advice before we progress in the bigger light of things, I think that would not be recommended. So, as I said, the plan will give us ideas and give us a way forward generally but the actual consultants review will not stop us from continuing with what we are 450 doing at present if we feel it is urgent or necessary.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

455

Improving road safety for cyclists
Advanced stop lines and riding in non-pedestrian areas

Clerk: Question 319, the Hon. S M Figueras.

460

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services state the Government's policy in relation to the use of advanced stop lines for cyclists on our roads to improve safety for the growing number of cyclists on our roads?

465

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 320/2013.

470

Clerk: Question 320.

475

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services state the Government's policy in relation to the use of bicycles on non-pedestrian sections of Main Street and Irish Town during off peak periods and at weekends to improve the safety and incentivise the adoption of cycling as a means of alternative transport as well as a leisure activity.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

480

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the sustainable traffic, transport and parking plan will look at ways of encouraging alternative forms of transport, including cycling. It is, however, too early to say what Her Majesty's Government policy will be in this respect and what measures will be necessary to implement these.

485

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, a number of non-Governmental organisations – one in particular springs to mind in town without my car – has, over the years, made certain recommendations in relation to advancing the use of bicycles as an alternative form of transport in Gibraltar. Can the Minister say whether there are any red lines in the sand beyond which they will not go, whether there are any initiatives which they will simply not entertain, whether they are recommended or not – in particular, whether either of these two falls within that category?

490

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in terms of cycling, the Government, as we know, are very keen on encouraging a shift towards alternative forms of transport and the Government will look at different ways of making this possible and go beyond simply just ordering and placing bikes on stands and no more. We will be looking at every method possible to encourage the decreased use of cars and other forms of vehicles that produce emissions and, obviously, cycling is one of these that we are keen to look at.

495

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for that but can the Minister limit himself to saying whether either of the two initiatives mentioned are off the cards, so to speak?

500

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, until we get the results from the traffic plan the consultants have been briefed as to where the Government wants to go and, as I have said already, the Government wants to encourage a shift in transport to other more environmentally friendly methods, inclusive of cycling. So it is not until we get a full idea back from the consultants we will be in a position to actually state where we go from here. Needless to say, the Government is looking at different ways of making the cycling experience more enjoyable and safe in Gibraltar.

505

Trafalgar Interchange Possibility of pedestrian crossings

510 Clerk: Question 321, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether the Government is contemplating the installation of pedestrian crossings within the Trafalgar Interchange?

515 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the sustainable traffic, transport and parking plan will carry out a comprehensive assessment of Gibraltar's transport network and consider what improvements can be made. It is too early to say what these will be but the possibility of introducing new pedestrian crossings in the Trafalgar interchange area cannot be discarded.

525 Car parking spaces at Commonwealth Parade Number prior to work on Commonwealth Park

530 Clerk: Question 322, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say how many car parking spaces were available at the site of the Commonwealth Parade prior to works on Commonwealth Park commencing?

535 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there were a total of 342 existing car parking spaces at the site of the Commonwealth Parade prior to works on Commonwealth Park commencing.

540 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. Minister tell us how far along the Government is in delivering its Manifesto commitment to doubling that number of parking spaces?

545 Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member ask that question again, please, because I am not sure whether it really does arise from the written Question.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, yes, I am happy to ask the question again. The number of car parking spaces –

550 Mr Speaker: You have asked how many car spaces...

Hon. S M Figueras: – there were before the start of Commonwealth Park – correct – and that is relevant, Mr Speaker, because there is a Manifesto commitment to double the number of parking spaces available.

555 Mr Speaker: And you have been told that there were 342.

Hon. S M Figueras: Correct, and my supplementary was – 560 Mr Speaker: I understand the question now. Your supplementary.

Hon. S M Figueras: Is how far along is the Government in delivering its Manifesto commitment of doubling the number of car parking spaces?

565 Mr Speaker: I am sorry, I will pull that supplementary out. It does not arise from the Question. I have brought the Members' attention to the rules. A supplementary question must not introduce matter not included in the original Question. That is not included. You have asked a specific Question: how many car spaces were there, and you have been given the answer, 342. Now you are introducing 570 something which is new. It is not in your original Question, therefore I rule it out.

Next Question.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, with respect I could re-phrase the Question and that may help to – 575 Mr Speaker: I will let you try to re-phrase the question. Yes, go on.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, could the Hon. Minister provide this House with details of the number of car parking spaces that have been provided in the alternative, having lost those parking spaces to the commencement of works on Commonwealth Park.

580 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I am asked precisely that question in one of my questions further down in the order paper.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

585

Parking at Catalan Bay
Additional spaces for bathing season

590 Clerk: Question 323, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether additional parking for Catalan Bay is planned to be provided before the start of the bathing season?

595

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

600 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there are currently no plans to provide additional parking at Catalan Bay over and above those which existed last year.

Highways Enforcement Agency
Role in traffic and parking management

605

Clerk: Question 324, the Hon. S M Figueras.

610 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing, Health & Safety and Technical Services state the Government's policy on the Highways Enforcement Agency's continued role in assisting the relevant authorities in the management of parking and other road traffic issues today and in the future?

615 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Highways Enforcement Agency has for some time been seconded to the RGP and is a key component in traffic management.

620 Working singly and alongside RGP officers, they perform a whole host of services, including enforcement of the Traffic, Parking and Waiting Order, enforcing the Traffic Act, clamping and towing away of vehicles, including abandoned and derelict. In addition, they assist the RGP with traffic control at both public events and with the border queues. Their future role will be reviewed in line with the recommendations arising from the Government's Traffic Survey, which is in the process of being compiled.

630 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for his answer. Perhaps he can provide some clarification to report... I have not seen official press releases on the subject but I am given to understand that part of the review, or a review, had already been conducted that had seen some changes affected to the Agency. If this is not the case, I am happy to be corrected certainly and if it is, then I would be grateful for some details of that review, if it has happened.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I must clarify that the actual... the hon. Gentleman is asking about the Highways Enforcement Agency.

635 The Highways Enforcement Agency does not exist: there is no such Agency. These are Highways Enforcement Officers who came under Gibraltar Car Parks Limited and now they are seconded to the Royal Gibraltar Police. The Royal Gibraltar Police are in charge, or responsible, for the officers and they are briefed and conduct duties as given by the RGP and not by Gibraltar Car Parks.

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

640 That is, in fact, what I was referring to and, yes, the use of the term 'Agency' was accidental. So the officers have now been seconded to the Royal Gibraltar Police, as the Hon. Minister has told us. As a result of what initiative or factors was this change effected?

645 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, they have in fact been seconded for quite a while, I believe it was sometime in June last year that they were seconded. The idea behind it was to try to actually combine all, to have the enforcement of traffic under one umbrella, as opposed to having the parking management on one side, RGP on the other, so we thought it was a much more effective way of running management under one umbrella.

650 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I potentially run the risk here of having my supplementary overruled as inadmissible but I will ask it and take Mr Speaker's guidance on it. Were there any changes to terms and conditions associated with this re-allocation to the Royal Gibraltar Police of the officers?

655 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this is a secondment, so the terms and conditions have remained identical.

Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, other than the secondment, can the Minister advise this House whether there were any other features which distinguish what was GSD policy when we were in Government?

660 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker, we assume that we know what GSD policy was, based on what was public, but we do not know what it was that the thinking behind the creation of those Highways Enforcement Officers was, other than what was made public.

665 But there is a major difference in policy, Mr Speaker. We believe in one unified command of traffic and that comes under the RGP, not that there should be two diversified centres of command of traffic.

Mr Speaker: Next Question.

670 Frontier traffic management
Response to Spanish policy

Clerk: Question 325, the Hon. S M Figueras.

675 Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether the Government is exploring, or has explored, in conjunction with the Royal Gibraltar Police and Highways Enforcement Officers the possibility of developing a system or protocol to divert queue traffic and/or streamline the deployment of the third lane in the area of the frontier/runway crossing/Winston Churchill Avenue to enable a quicker response to the now well-documented strategy employed by Spanish frontier officials of freezing traffic going through the border without warning.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

685 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, a tried and tested traffic diversion is in place to deal with the impact of traffic fluidity created by the border queues. The diversion is subject to a staged response and this is dependent on the volume of traffic on our roads and the restrictions in place at the frontier. The three phases are designed to seamlessly interlink and maximise traffic fluidity towards the frontier while catering for local traffic.

690 Phase 1 consists of the implementation of the third lane up to the Sun Dial Roundabout. This phase can be implemented in a very short time period with signage permanently available at the frontier. Queuing can take place across the runway but only when the Airport is closed.

Phase 2 consists of diverting Spain-bound traffic along Devil's Tower Road with a single carriage way being dedicated to this. In this phase, traffic is asked to turn around at the Ariel Farm Roundabout.

695 Phase 3 incorporates the use of holding areas in the East Side. Season permitting, the diversion extends to make use of the reclamation area and Eastern Beach Car Parks. Clearly, this cannot be used during the summer season and, therefore, following a consultation and feasibility process between the RGP and Government Technical Services Department, a plot of land situated on the southern side of the 700 reclamation area by the approaches to Catalan Bay has been identified as a holding area. It is envisaged that this area has the capability of accommodating approximately 600 vehicles and works are scheduled within the next week and the area should become operational within a fortnight after this.

705 Dudley Ward Way tunnel
Protection of pedestrians

Clerk: Question 326, the Hon. S M Figueras.

710 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether the Government is considering strategies to protect pedestrians in Dudley Ward Way tunnel?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

715 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Government is currently not considering any strategies to provide pedestrian access along Dudley Ward Way tunnel. In this respect, the tunnel remains exactly as on 8th December 2011.

720 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, the Question is asked in the context of being aware that no pedestrian access is allowed in Dudley Ward Way tunnel. Certainly, the signs have been there, and have always been there, since the tunnel reopened.

725 However, the reality is that pedestrians do access the tunnel and, in that context, it may well be that the Government's answer to the supplementary is 'Well, the pedestrians that do access the tunnel in contravention of the rules, which are clearly set out, take their lives into their own hands.' But I would be grateful if the Minister could tell this House what the Government's policy is in relation to protecting those pedestrians who do, in a way, take their own lives into their own hands in the tunnel.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the situation is exactly the same as it was prior to 8th December 2011.

730 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, that was then. This is now. Can the Minister tell this House whether today's Government of Gibraltar is planning, or is considering, taking any steps to protect pedestrians who access Dudley Ward Way tunnel?

735 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the tunnel was opened by the previous administration and obviously I would have thought that they would have been, you know, should have been just as concerned about the safety of pedestrians who were then also not allowed to walk through the tunnel and it was by way of signage that they were advised not to.

At the present moment this sign still exists, the tunnel is in exactly the same position as it was then and people are adverted that the tunnel is not a place where they should be walking and it is not safe to do so. Those that decide to walk through do so with that in mind but it is not something that we will change.

740 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Gibraltar's roads
Large-scale resurfacing

745 Clerk: Question 327, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services say whether the Government is planning any largescale resurfacing of Gibraltar's roads?

750 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the physical condition of our road network is such that investment in its repair is considered necessary by Government. As stated in my 2012 Budget Speech, it is this Government's intention to accelerate the annual planned works on our roads over the next three years to correct this.

755

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, has the acceleration taken place already?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the roads in question are being assessed at present and, obviously, this will start pretty soon. We will need to correct and put right what has been left to go to pot for many, many years, so it is this Government's intention to actually start fixing our roads, as promised within our Manifesto and in my last year's Budget Speech.

Government motor vehicles and plant
Details of acquisitions during 2012-13

Clerk: Question 328, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide this House with a list of all motor vehicles and plant acquired by the Government during the financial year 2012-13, detailing the following information in respect of each of them – make and model; field type – petrol, diesel, hybrid, electric, other; emissions; efficiency ratings, the identity of the dealer from which it has been purchased, the process by which the vehicle was acquired – tender or other; the Government Department to which it is assigned and the use to which it will be applied.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to him.

785

Mr Speaker: In order to make progress, may I suggest that we carry on with the next Question which is down to the Hon. Mr Reyes and then, if the Hon. Mr Netto wishes to ask a supplementary arising from his perusal of the schedule, he can do so.

Proposed housing developments
Update to Table PC1 and details

790

Mr Speaker: Question 329.

Clerk: Question 329, the Hon. E J Reyes.

795

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government provide updated details pertaining to Table PC1 which was last updated on their website in January 2013 and, in particular, can the Minister for Housing furnish this House with a breakdown of details in respect of proposed housing developments, thereby indicating to whom and when these payments were made, together with the purpose or purposes for which these consultancies were required.

800

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

805

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member pertaining to Table PC1 is contained in a schedule which I now hand over to him, together with a breakdown of details in respect of the proposed housing developments.

Mr Speaker: In view of the fact that the next Question also is probably going to have a schedule attached to it, may I ask the Hon. Mr Reyes to ask Question 330.

815

Reallocation of empty homes
Update to Table H48 and details

Clerk: Question 330, the Hon. E J Reyes.

820

Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government provide updated details in respect of expenditure incurred as from December 2012, which is the latest available date shown in Table H48 on the Government's website, in respect of contracts awarded for making empty homes suitable for reallocation, stating to whom payments were made, how much has been paid and indicating if they were for repairs or cleaning?

825

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

Mr Speaker: We are now back to Question 328.
Are there any supplementaries arising from the answer to that Question?

Hon. J J Netto: No, Mr Speaker.

835

Mr Speaker: I will give the hon. Mr Reyes, or any other Member of the Opposition, an opportunity to study the schedules in case they have any supplementaries.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

840

On the table provided for Question 329, the third item from the bottom lists £28,900 paid as preparation for tender packages for Government Housing Schemes for four sites. I see that, previous to that, the sites that these were indicated by location. Does the Hon. Minister have any indication of location for those four sites?

845

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, would the hon. Gentleman repeat the supplementary, please.

850 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker. I was noting that, in the first set of information provided – for example, No. 1 says conceptual designs for use in Devil’s Tower Road housing – so we have an actual location. On the third one from the bottom the expenditure relates to preparation of tender packages and it refers to four sites but no indication what those sites are. Therefore, I have no idea if they refer to the same sites as the ones before. Am I wrong in assuming it is Devil’s Tower, Europa, North Gorge and Bishop Fitzgerald, or is it something else? Could it be different sites? That is what I am asking.

855 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am handling, as the hon. Gentleman knows, an element of these projects at No. 6. That is a generic package for the four of the estates which will be for affordable co-ownership.

I think he will be able to determine from the information that he already has that Bishop Fitzgerald, for example, is not going to be a co-ownership estate, it is going to be for elderly residents and, therefore, the remaining sites will be the ones to which this generic package applies.

860 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, on the lower part, referring to Table PC1, where it says ‘number of private consultants’, the £10,467.50 there is a mixture of – am I right in assuming? – co-ownership would be the Aerial Farm and yet Bishop Fitzgerald is a rental... Are those two inter-linked and not therefore separate rental and co-ownership?

865 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, what the final entry that the hon. Gentleman is referring to, relates to, is an assessment of tenders. That is both in relation to co-ownership and in relation to non co-ownership estates. It is an assessment of the tenders submitted to build. It has got less to do with the documentation that would follow which is what the other one, the tender package, related to.

870 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, those private consultants engaged by the Government, is it possible to have an indication who these private consultants are?

875 Hon. Chief Minister: Well Mr Speaker, it is who it says they are, JLC Consulting Limited is a company and Belilo’s Limited is a company. I think, in both instances, the names of the companies represent the names of the individuals who are behind them.

Hon. E J Reyes: That does clarify that one, Mr Speaker.

880 Clerk: Question 331, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I thought the Clerk was going to prompt us if there were any supplementaries in respect of 330. May I?

885 Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, sir.

890 The final words of my Question 330 asked for an indication if they were for repairs or cleaning. Can the Minister guide me that the information has been provided and guide me a bit through the table. It is a bit too much to digest in just a few seconds.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, at the bottom of that table it says ‘All works involve repairs, with the exception of Greenarc and Incharlah, which were involved in cleaning’.

895 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you for that clarification, Mr Speaker. Therefore especially seeing that, in some cases, the repairs being carried out are much bigger sums than others, does the Minister have an indication as to the number of properties that it refers to? Is it just one particular flat or does it refer to half a dozen of them and so on?

900 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the cost is indicative of the state of the property. Obviously, a property which is in a close to derelict state would cost more than a property requiring minor works.

905 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, thank you for that but it still does not say whether each one of those sums just refers to... For example, if I may perhaps explain myself further, in January 2013 there is a payment of £40,468. Is that just in respect of one flat or could it be that there is more than one home involved in that sum?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, to give a precise reply to that question I would have to ask but the way 910 I see it, the way I believe it is, is that each of these refers to either a flat or one building and whether the building could have three flats, or whether it is a flat on its own, it refers either to a flat or a building that could contain more than one flat. But to give you a precise reply based on that I would have to find out for him.

915 Hon. E J Reyes: I accept, Mr Speaker, that the Minister wants to make certain he has the correct information. Could it be possible for him to pursue that information for me and pass it on, if possible, during the tenure of this particular sitting or session? If not, as soon as possible thereafter he can forward it to me by correspondence or whatever.

920 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, if the Gentleman would care to write to me, I will happily provide him with the information he is requesting.

Mr Speaker: If the hon. Member writes, the Minister can deal with the matter sooner than if he waits for the Hansard.

925 Hon. E J Reyes: Not my experience with all the Ministers on that side of the House, Mr Speaker!

Hon. Chief Minister: Or, Mr Speaker, indeed, ours when we used to write and perhaps not ever get a reply!

930 Mr Speaker: Next Question.

Ministry for Housing and Housing Works Agency
Details of comprehensive review

935 Clerk: Question 331, the Hon. E J Reyes.

940 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 886/2012, can the Minister for Housing now provide this House with details of the comprehensive review which Government is undertaking of the Housing Works Agency and the Ministry for Housing?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

945 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this matter remains a subject of consideration by the Cabinet.

Co-ownership of residential property
Procedure for returning Gibraltarians

950 Clerk: Question 332, the Hon. E J Reyes.

955 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing explain what procedures should be followed by Gibraltarians who, after having co-owned a residential property in Gibraltar but then subsequently sold and moved to reside in Spain, in order to be once again eligible to either rent or repurchase on a co-ownership basis back in Gibraltar?

960 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

965 Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, irrespective of whether a person who sells a co-owned or an unrestricted property goes to live in Spain or not, the sale of a property in Gibraltar is governed by the 5(d) Clause introduced on 5th August 2005. Hence a previous home owner is not eligible to become an applicant for Government Housing again unless they can satisfy either of the requirements (a) and (b), as follows:

(a) If the sale is as a result of a separation, then the Deed of Assignment of separation or divorce papers need to be provided. The Housing Allocation Committee will consider the case and recommend it to the Housing Authority, the acceptance of the application for Government Housing or otherwise

(b) If the sale of the property was not as a result of a separation, then a financial assessment must be

970 completed as at the time of sale, together with supporting documentation. The result of this financial assessment is referred to the Housing Allocation Committee who, in turn, recommend to the Housing Authority if the application for Government Housing may be accepted.

975 Reference a previous home owner repurchasing within a co-ownership estate, consent for such purposes are directed via LPS. Gibraltarians would require proof of residence for one year in order to qualify.

980 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I realise that the policy is a policy that we instituted when we were in Government, but does he not agree with me that the policy perhaps ought to be reviewed to actually make it more flexible?

I will give him an example of somebody who came to see me recently, who I felt had a genuine case for inclusion within the Government Housing List. This is a couple who effectively sold their property here in Gibraltar and then bought a property in Spain. They have gone through financial hardship in Spain – well, financial hardship in their lives – they have had to sell their property in Spain and lost everything that they made here in Gibraltar on the sale of their property. Now, because they sold a property here in Gibraltar, it means that they are not allowed onto the Housing waiting list. In that kind of situation, they have been told that they are not eligible to go onto the Housing waiting list.

985 Now, that is the kind of example where I believe that the Housing Department ought to be more flexible and ought to look at the individual circumstances of the case and see whether it is a genuine case. Does the Minister not agree with me or, indeed, the Chief Minister, that perhaps that particular guideline ought to be looked at in order to give the Housing Department a little bit more flexibility to look at the individual facts of each case in a little bit more detail?

995 Chief Minister (Hon F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, in fact the Housing Allocation Committee is the one that, initially, is charged with looking at the enforcement of these rules. This is the famous Clause 5(d) that was introduced by hon. Members when they were in Government. There are a number of discretions which can be engaged in the right case. The hon. Gentleman probably understands that there are many cases which may be deserving at first blush but that there is a hierarchy of deserving cases and that not all cases can be considered as deserving in present circumstances. I am not going to make much of this but the hon. Member knows – and I am sure he accepts this is a factual issue – that on the day that we were elected, there were 1,500 people on the Housing waiting list. That causes a number of different problems because, of course, the circumstances that he explains, which we may all agree are the sort of circumstances that should engage the discretion, also ignore that there are much more deserving circumstances than those. That is not to say that, in the hierarchy of deserving circumstances, there are not all those on that list who might feel that theirs is the most important case but, as his predecessor will know and I, unfortunately, am now more than aware of, there are some very, very deserving cases in Gibraltar where discretions have to be exercised. It is sometimes incumbent on the persons who have to make these decisions, to tell people that, although they may be uncomfortable in their present circumstances, they should actually be grateful that they are not in the most deserving cases when things have to be moved, sometimes overnight, to deal with issues – because there are some very, very serious issues that his predecessor and the Housing Allocation Committee have come across, where it is necessary to have the ability to act in a moment.

1010 Now, Mr Speaker, in circumstances where, hopefully, the Housing Waiting List will be eradicated, it will be possible to look at these issues all over again and, therefore, before the end of the lifetime of this Parliament, I trust that people who are in such circumstances will be able to be accommodated by the changes we hope to introduce to the way these lists are compiled. It is not, I am sure, Mr Speaker, either under their administration or our administration that somebody whose case is deserving is not assisted, but there has to be that hierarchy of deserving cases, unfortunately.

1020 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I fully realise that there has to be a hierarchy of deserving cases and, indeed, the issue here is not that the rules are changed so that somebody can actually skip the queue and go at the top, or near the top. The issue here is that, because that particular individual had a home that was owned under co-ownership terms and they sold, in order to buy a home – in the particular circumstances that I am referring to, a home in Spain – they have lost all their money, they have lost everything that they have made, as a consequence of the situation, the property market in Spain. Indeed, there may be other circumstances: one of the issues that we had to also grapple with when we were in Government were a number of debates, internal in relation to 5(b), was whether 5(b) operates unfairly, for example, to somebody who is a father in a divorce situation and does not have the children. It is one of the reasons, actually, that motivated me to introduce and to push quite heavily this question of joint parental responsibility and joint residence in relation to family cases, because once there is a joint residency order, then that joint residency order can then be taken to the Housing Authority and, of course, on that basis, then instead of being granted for example a one bedroom or a studio flat, they can take into account that the person has a number of children as well that not only belong to his wife but belong to him. They are his children.

1035 Now what I am saying to the Hon. the Chief Minister, it is not about skipping the queue, it is about opening that particular Clause 5(b) which I always felt could have harsh consequences if one was really bookish about the way one operated that Clause, and it is there for everybody to see, to introduce an element of discretion so that not that anyone skips the queue but that, in appropriate circumstances, you allow somebody in, if necessary obviously at the bottom of the queue on the Housing waiting list.

1040 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not 5(b), it is 5(d). It is 5(d).

Mr Speaker, I think it is worth reading the clause to the Parliament: it is two sentences. The relevant part is this:

1045 'People who have been home owners and have chosen to sell their homes'

– the words 'have chosen' are important –

1050 'to sell their homes shall not be entitled to go on the public waiting list unless, in the judgement of the Housing Allocation Committee, the sale was genuinely necessary or there is some justification for being admitted. No other person shall be allowed to earn over-crowding points when people move into his home after having sold their own home unless the Housing Allocation Committee rule that the sale was genuinely necessary.'

1055 There are, in that sentence, Mr Speaker, a number of discretions that can be engaged. The first is a judgement about whether somebody has chosen to sell a home or not. In the example that the hon. Gentleman has given, there is a clear choice. In the examples where there is a marital breakdown issue, or where there is another reason why a couple have to sell their home, then the first limb of that section is not engaged. There is no choice there.

1060 Then, Mr Speaker, the question of the judgement of the Housing Allocation Committee comes in, as to whether the sale was genuinely necessary or – and this is the wider discretion, Mr Speaker – where there is some justification for being admitted. So, Mr Speaker, we have considered very carefully whether this clause should change. But our determination has been that there are three gateways through which the discretion of the Housing Allocation Committee can be engaged, should they consider that there are reasons why, in deserving cases, people should be allowed to go back on the Housing waiting lists.

1065 What I am saying to him, Mr Speaker, is that in the circumstances of a waiting list which, on 9th December, was 1,500 people, the Housing Allocation Committee has been very reticent to ensure that it allows those discretions to engage only in circumstances which are the most deserving. There are deserving cases where people have not, in my view, been able to persuade the Housing Allocation Committee, perhaps harshly, and people have not been allowed back on the list.

1070 Now, in the context of a Housing waiting list that is more manageable – and there are changes to the way that the Housing waiting list is compiled, all of which we have said we are looking at in the context of housing everybody who was on the Housing waiting list on the 9th December – I believe it will be possible to be much more amenable to allowing individuals in circumstances such as the ones that he has described to come back on to the public waiting list. But that is not because there are not already discretions that can be engaged to allow registration of people in genuinely deserving cases. But I think that the way those discretions have been exercised at the moment reflects the dire circumstances that we inherited.

1075 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

1080

Government Housing Rental Estates
Details of contract cleaning

1085 Mr Speaker: Question 333, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1090 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of all contracts to carry out cleaning of communal areas in Government Housing Rental Estates, inclusive of the names of companies contracted and cost?

Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon P J Balban): Mr Speaker, three contracts will be awarded to clean the communal areas, El Turno, on a yearly basis, as follows:

1095 The company contracted: ESSL at a total contract sum per month of £10,816.
The company: JFM Shine at a contract sum per month of £3,328.
The company contracted: MCS with a contract sum per month of £2,392.
At present they have been engaged on a trial monthly contract.

1100 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, were these contracts awarded as a result of a tender process, or how did they come about to contracting these?

1105 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the contracts were actually... following a tender and, in each case, it was the cheapest of the companies that were the cheapest price were the ones that were contracted.

Mr Speaker: Question 334, the Hon Mr –

1110 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, could I ask a supplementary question perhaps on Question 333. Obviously, the Government – and I take on board the fact that it is the type of work that goes out to tender and the company will provide the services, so therefore there is no interference between Government and the company how to run the services as such, but I have heard some constituent people say that, in the context of Laguna Estate, there are just two cleaners doing El Turno, so to speak, for the whole number of blocks that there is. Putting such an amount... a volume of work on just two particular persons to do such a vast area is a huge demand, which probably takes, I do not know, all day probably. Is there any relationship, you know... I know the Government does not intervene in what the company does, but is there any relationship that, perhaps, too much work is being placed by the company on too few individuals to do this type of work?

1120 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the Government will be looking into this.
This is, as I said, a trial so it is happening on a monthly basis on a trial basis. At the end of the day, as you rightly say, it is the company that decides, you know, how many cleaners they have per estate... and the Government does not interfere with that. Needless to say, if the job is seen that it is not being well done, or the Government sees that other things could be better, the company will be told and if it is not to their satisfaction then, obviously, we would have to review this in the future.

1125 Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker – sorry sir – seeing that the contract awarded to one of the companies is thrice that given to the others, is the Minister able to provide information of which of these companies cleaning contract pertains to which particular housing area?

1130 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, the first company, it is thrice because they have thrice the amount of work.

1135 ESSL is responsible for the Estates, Mid Harbours, Glacis, Laguna and Varyl Begg Estates, whereas JMF Shine is responsible for Alameda Estate and MCS does Moorish Castle Estate, Edinburgh and Chilton Court.

Homes and residential properties Sale details

1140 Mr Speaker: Question 334, the Hon. Mr Edwin Reyes.

1145 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details, if any, in respect of homes or residential properties sold to persons or companies other than by those sold by an Official Public Tender process or to ‘Sitting Tenants’ since January 2012?

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

1150 Mr Speaker: Just a moment: that Question – was it 334, or 335?

Hon. E J Reyes: 335.

1155 Mr Speaker: Have we dealt already with 334, or have we jumped it?

Hon. E J Reyes: We have left it out, Mr Speaker, sorry.

Government rental properties Details relating to use of scaffolding

1160 Mr Speaker: Right, Question 334 then, the Hon. Mr Edwin Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, whilst I ask that Question, seeing that the Hon. Minister said there was a schedule, can we anticipate the time, because you normally then have to allow me a few seconds... Perhaps one of the ushers can start to – 1165 Mr Speaker: Yes, I will allow the schedule to be circulated because we make better progress that way, so let us go back to 334 now. The Hon. Mr Edwin Reyes.

1170 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.
Question 334: can the Minister for Housing provide this House with an updated list of all Government buildings used for rental accommodation which, since 6th March 2013, have had scaffolding erected, indicating the dates when the scaffold was first erected, the companies contracted to erect these, cost incurred and estimated date of dismantling?

1175 Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

Mr Speaker: This is a rather lengthy schedule. I would like to call the next Question, if I may.

1220

Government rental homes
Details in respect of outstanding repairs

1225

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Edwin Reyes, Question 337.

1230

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer to Question No. 43/2013, can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many of the 288 applicants who were assigned a home during 2012 are still waiting for repairs to be completed, stating if these works are to be carried out by the Housing Works Agency or by contractors, stipulating which contractors, if any, will carry out the works, and the cost?

Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, none of the 288 applicants who were allocated a home during 2013 are awaiting repairs to be completed. All 288 have signed the Tenancy Agreements and have taken the key to their property.

1240

Hon E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, because, last time, the Minister in his answer said that there was a difference between assignation and allocation, I have purposely used in my Question the 288 applicants who were 'assigned'. I note that the Minister, in his reply, has used, instead, '288 allocated'. Can I, therefore, Mr Speaker, try to explain myself? Are there any applicants who were assigned homes and are still waiting for those to be fully repaired and so on, and therefore that is why things when they become allocated... if I understood in the last Parliamentary session the Minister correctly?

1245

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I should have said in that Question who were 'allocated', not 'assigned', but if you look at the reply once again, it says clearly all 288 have signed the Tenancy Agreement and have taken the key to the property. So, regardless of whether it was allocated, the persons have taken the keys to the property.

1250

Hon. E J Reyes: Because, if I may, Mr Speaker, it therefore follows that they have now accepted the key and are now, therefore, eligible to pay full rent and so on and there is not that lead-in period, yes? I have understood it correctly?

1255 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is right. When the person takes the key, it is because he has accepted the property and that is when the tenancy begins.

1260 Government rental homes
Details in respect of urgent decanting

Mr Speaker: Question 338, the Hon. Edwin Reyes.

1265 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting from their homes, since the answer to Question No. 149/2013, indicating the reasons why, the dates when said decanting became necessary and the dates when these tenants were able to return to their homes?

1270 Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 338

A total of five tenants have required urgent decanting. The reasons why, the dates when said decanting became necessary and the dates when these tenants were able to return to their homes, is as follows:

	Reason	Date decanting became necessary	Date when tenant returned home
Tenant 1	Severe water ingress as result of storm	22/2/13	10/4/13
Tenant 2	Remedial works necessary	8/4/13	22/4/13
Tenant 3	Major works	1/3/13	Permanent decanting
Tenant 4	Govt projects	5/3/13	Permanent decanting
Tenant 5	Govt projects	5/3/13	Permanent decanting

1275 Mr Speaker: Now the schedule here is quite short, so we will pause for a few moments to allow hon. Members of the Opposition to ask supplementaries before we move on to Question 339.

1280 Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker... Can the Minister provide a little bit further information: the tenants, numbers 4 and 5, the reason for decanting says 'Government projects' – can he enlighten us with a bit more detail in that respect?

1285 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, may I ask the hon. Gentleman to repeat the question. I was absorbed by the coughing.

1290 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, sir, I was saying that, from the schedule, tenants numbers 4 and 5, the reason for the decanting means Government projects. I am imagining from there that it does not necessarily follow that it was because the house needed major repairs or major works, like I am interpreting tenants 1, 2 and 3 were. So can he explain what the 'Government projects' were and that might clarify the matter?

1295 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, with regard to tenants 4 and 5, those two were decanted as a result of the ongoing decanting – started by the previous administration – of police barracks. With these two families, the decanting of the building is now complete.

Hon. E J Reyes: Is it similar with tenant number 3? Does the Minister have any additional information?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the third family decanted was as a result of major works required to 1300 the roof of the property.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, but I see, Mr Speaker, that the Minister has listed that one as being a permanent decanting, so if that roof is being repaired is the Government not willing to offer that family the opportunity to return back to that home?

1305

Hon. P J Balban: For more specific... I would need to ask my staff but the actual supplementaries that were prepared for me state that... I mean, no doubt, I would think that the works required were so great that the family was permanently decanted, either because they just... I do not know the reasons why it was permanent. I would just assume that the works were too great to have them back. I would need to find out.

1310

If the hon. Gentleman writes to me, if he is very keen to know the particular details of that family in question, well, that circumstance in question, to let me know and I will find out the specifics.

1315

Assigned Government rental homes
Required repairs: details of allocations and assignments

1320 Mr Speaker: Question 339, the Hon. Mr Edwin Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, sir, can the Minister for Housing provide details as to how many of the rental homes assigned so far in 2013 still require repairs to be undertaken, indicating how many will be repaired by: (a) the Housing Works Agency; (b) sub-contractors; and (c) the assigned tenants themselves?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 340.

1330

Clerk: Question 340, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details in respect of how many rental homes have been; (a) allocated; and (b) assigned since the answer provided to Question No. 147/2013, showing the room composition of the respective homes?

1335

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Traffic, Housing and Technical Services.

1340 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I will now hand the hon. Member a schedule containing the information requested.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 340

Answer to Question 339

A total of 10 flats have been assigned so far in 2013. The repairs are to be undertaken by the following:

- (a) Housing Works Agency - 1
- (b) Sub-contractors - 6
- (c) The assigned tenants themselves - None.

The other three flats were, at the time the answer was provided, accepted. We are in the process of assigning them either to the Housing Works Agency or to a sub-contractor.

1345

Answer to Question 340

A total of 63 rental homes have been allocated and/or assigned as follows:

ALLOCATED
1RKB	2
2RKB	12
3RKB	30
4RKB	9
5RKB	0
TOTAL	53

1RKB	0
2RKB	1
3RKB	7
5RKB	0
TOTAL	10

1350 Mr Speaker: Does the Hon. Minister have any supplementaries – the hon. Member, sorry – have any supplementaries?

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker does the Minister have information pertaining to, in the first part of his answer, under (b) sub-contractors, there are six of them, does he have any information in respect of who these sub-contractors are?

1355 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, no, unfortunately not.

1360 Hon. E J Reyes: Would the Minister accept, Mr Speaker, that if I wrote to him, he will he give me the details of the six sub-contractors and I will throw in, as well, an indication of the estimates costs that will entail. Can we come to that gentleman's agreement, sir?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, if the hon. Member cares to write to me, I will provide him with the names of those six sub-contractors.

1365 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, so that it is for the future record, and especially on Hansard.

I accept the note that the other three flats were, at the time the answer was provided, accepted. Then they are in the process now of assigning them either to the Housing Works Agency or to a sub-contractor. In order that we have updated information... perhaps the Minister, once he knows exactly they are going to be the Housing Works Agency or sub-contractor, or in what ratio between the two of them, how can we get that information and therefore it becomes part of the Parliamentary record?

1370 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, I was very careful, when actually preparing the questions. Obviously, I was preparing these questions some time back and things can change so he can either pose the same question next month and we can give him an update or he can write to me and we can update that, if necessary, if there has been a change. There might not have been.

1375 Clerk: In writing to the Hon. Minister, that information will not be recorded in Hansard, so I think perhaps you might wish to consider asking the Question again next time.

1380 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, thank you for that advice. I was conscious of that, which was why I looked with my school child type of smile for guidance for those who have been here far longer than I have. Yes, I shall consider that, Mr Speaker, and then take a decision whether I wish to write or to pose it in the next parliamentary session.

1385 Clerk: Question 341 has already been answered in a previous sitting, so we are now going to proceed to Question 385, and those are Questions which are going to be posed to the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.
385.

1390 EDUCATION, FINANCIAL SERVICES, GAMING, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND JUSTICE

Companies Registry
Number of company incorporations in 2012-13

1395 Clerk: Question 385, the Hon. S M Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, 1400 Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice say how many new companies were incorporated in Gibraltar by the Companies Registry in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1405 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the new companies incorporated in Gibraltar by the Companies Registry in 2012 and 2013 are as follows: 2012 – 1,912; 2013 up to the end of April of this year – 170.

1410 Mr Speaker: Any supplementary? No.

Companies Registry
Number of company liquidations in 2012-13

1415 Clerk: Question 386, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1420 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice say how many Gibraltar companies (a) commenced liquidation proceedings and (b) were liquidated in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Answer. the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1425 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, in answer to part (a) of the Question, 228 Gibraltar Companies commenced liquidation proceedings in 2012, and 65 companies commenced liquidation proceedings in 2013 – so far in 2013. That is January to April. Part (b), 146 companies were liquidated in 2012 and 50 companies have been liquidated in 2013, again January to April.

1430

Financial Services Commission Company / Investment Fund statistics for 2012-13

1435 Clerk: Question 387, the Hon. S M Figueras.

1440 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice say how many new Gibraltar companies or entities were licensed by FSC in 2012 and 2013 (excluding the extension of licences of existing licensed companies) providing a breakdown by class (i.e. professional trustee, insurer, bank)?

1445 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker I will answer this Question together with Questions 388, 389, 390, 391 and 392/2013.

1450 Clerk: Question 388.

1455 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice state how many Gibraltar companies or entities surrendered their FSC licences in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Question 389.

1460 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice state how many FSC regulated companies or entities ceased trading but are not subject to liquidation or bankruptcy proceedings in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Question 390.

1465 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice state how many FSC regulated companies or entities were subject to liquidation or bankruptcy proceedings in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Question 391.

1470 Hon. S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice please provide a list to this House of investment funds liquidated in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Question 392.

1475 Hon S M Figueras: Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice state how many investment funds surrendered their authorisation or licence in 2012 and 2013?

1480 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the statistical information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule that I now hand to him.

1490 With regard to Questions 389 and 390, the Government is not able to say how many FSC regulated companies or entities ceased trading or were subject to liquidation or bankruptcy proceedings in 2012 or 2013 after they surrendered their licences. Perhaps I should explain a little bit more about that last remark.

1495 Mr Speaker, the hon. Member – and I see that he is getting the schedule now – if the hon. Member looks at the schedule, there is a column which is headed ‘liquidation’, and at the last column of that schedule – 2013 – the hon. Member will see three companies in liquidation – that relates to insurance companies – and these are companies that commenced liquidation proceedings without surrendering their licences. What happens after they surrender their licence we are not able to say.

Perhaps we can assume, and it is only speculation and an assumption, that if an entity, all it does is FSC-regulated activity, and it surrenders its licence then that entity or that company ceases to trade.

1500 There are some... for example, in the headings, the hon. Members will see ‘EIF Directors’. The fact that an EIF Director surrenders a particular licence, as an EIF Director, does not mean that that person ceases trading altogether. Equally, we are not able to say, after they cease trading, which of the companies have actually commenced liquidation proceedings.

1505 The hon. Member will have had, in answer to an earlier Question, the numbers which have commenced liquidation proceedings and the numbers liquidated in 2012 and 2013. It is not possible to correlate those numbers with a surrender of licences unless we went through each particular file, looked at each company that had commenced liquidation proceedings or had been liquidated, checked whether they had been an FSC-regulated entity and surrendered their licence and then I would be able to give that list. So that is why I have qualified the answer by saying that we are not able to say how many of these companies, after they surrender their licences, actually cease trading or are subject to liquidation proceedings.

1510

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Minister for his answer.

1515 One particular number that stands out in relation to what has gone off 2013... and that is the column of company managers in relation to Question 388 and 392 surrendered, and that is 15. It is a significant number and I wonder whether, perhaps, the Minister can offer some indication of why that number is quite so significant. I am certainly not aware of reasons for that, and if he is not and he requires notice of it, then I will be happy to provide him with it at the next session.

1520 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the specific reasons, but what I have looked is at the trend over the last few years, and the fact that the numbers that stand out are company managers is a case in point in 2009, 2010 and 2011. In 2010, for example, there were 20 company managers licences granted and 38 surrendered, so that seems to be a common trend over the years, but if the hon. Member wants more specific information about these particular company managers, I will be happy provide it if he were to write to me or give me notice.

1525

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary arising from those numerous questions?
Next Question.

1530

ECJ ruling on Jyske Bank
Implications for financial sector

Mr Speaker: Question 393, the Hon. Mr Figueras.

1535

Hon. S M Figueras: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice set out the Government's assessment of the impact of the recent ruling by the European Court of Justice in the Jyske Bank matter, case C-212/11, for local banks and other financial services providers?

1540

Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1545 Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice
(Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, this matter is still the subject of proceedings in the Spanish Courts. An assessment of the impact of the ruling will be made once those proceedings are concluded. I will, however, be happy to give the hon. Member the Government's initial assessment but I am hesitant to do so publicly, given that there are ongoing proceedings. There are, in fact, live issues in those proceedings still.

1550

Hon. S M Figueras: I am grateful for the Hon. Minister's reply in this context and I am alive to those issues.

I will happily take him up on the offer of the discussion behind the Speaker's Chair. I am grateful.

1555

IOSCO Multilateral Memorandum of Understanding Government legislation to enable signature

1560

Mr Speaker: Question 394, the Hon. Selwyn Figueras.

Hon. S M Figueras: Yes, Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice say if the Government is now in a position to pass relevant legislation and thereby procure Gibraltar's removal from the IOSCO list of non-signatories to the 1565 Multilateral Memorandum of Understanding as soon as possible?

Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1570 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government expects to be in a position to publish a Command Paper with a draft of the relevant legislation soon.

1575 Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say when he expects... he has just soon, before he rises to repeat the answer. Is he in a position to say when, whether there is a timeframe in mind for this?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I expect that to be within a matter of weeks.

1580 Sex Offenders List
Number of individuals

Mr Speaker: Question 395, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1585 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice say how many individuals are on the Sex Offenders List?

1590 Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, there are currently three persons on the Sex Offenders Register.

1595 Rehabilitated sex offenders
Monitoring in the community

1600 Mr Speaker: Question 396, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice say what monitoring or spot checks are carried out on those who have served a sentence for sexual offences and are back in the community?

1605 Mr Speaker: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1610 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, under Part 13 of the Crimes Act 2011 and subject to the provisions contained therein, in particular section 306, persons convicted of a sexual offence set out in Schedule 3 of the Act are liable to be placed on the Sex Offenders Register.

Persons on the Register become subject to a monitoring and visitation regime combining, at the RGP's discretion, pre-arranged visits and checks conducted without prior notification to the registered sex offender.

1615 The regularity of these visits and checks is determined by the assessed risk that the registered sex offender poses to the community. The risk assessment is undertaken by trained RGP officers, acting as designated Risk Managers at the time the individual is put on the Sex Offenders Register. Designated Risk Managers will put together a risk management plan. Those involved in the management of sex offenders may include, apart from the RGP, the Prison Service, the Care Agency, the Probation Service and the GHA.

1620 Persons who have been convicted of sexual offences, who have served their sentence and are back in the community, that do not meet the section 306 registration criteria may, nevertheless, become subject to inclusion in the RGP's Integrated Offender Management Programme, which incorporates all criminality. This is a new programme by the RGP which will be commenced shortly.

1625 As with the management of sex offenders, the Programme is based on risk assessment. Persons assessed by Designated Risk Managers to pose a risk to society are approached by police, who may then recommend their inclusion in the Integrated Offender Management Programme. If the offender consents, they may then enter into an agreed programme designed to manage the risk of their re-offending. This is voluntary but the UK experience on which this programme is based shows a good proportion of engagement between offenders and the police service.

1630

In addition, there are provisions in the Crimes Act to deal with convicted sex offenders who are not captured by section 306 of the Act, provided that the offence for which they are convicted is included in Schedules 3 or 4 of the Act. Under section 326 of the Act, I, as Minister with responsibility for Justice, may direct the Attorney General to make an application to the Magistrates' Court for a Sexual Offences Prevention Order.

1635

The making of a Sexual Offences Prevention Order will lead to the individual being placed on the Sex Offenders Register and may include other conditions and restrictions.

The monitoring regime pursuant to a Sexual Offences Prevention Order is similar to the one for registered sex offenders, although frequency and intrusiveness may increase.

It should be noted that Sexual Offences Prevention Orders can also be applied for in respect of sex offenders registered under section 306 of the Act when it is assessed that additional restrictions are required in order to protect the public or any particular member of the public from serious sexual harm.

Furthermore, under section 341 of the Act, which deals with sexual activity or sexual communications with children, I, as Minister with responsibility for Justice, may direct the Attorney General to make an application to the Magistrates' Court for a Risk of Sexual Harm Order.

Here again, the monitoring regime pursuant to a Risk of Sexual Harm Order is similar to that exercised in respect of registered sex offenders and is designed to protect children from harm from the defendant.

Applications for a Sexual Offences Prevention Order and a Risk of Sexual Harm Order can be made, provided that the statutory criteria is satisfied, regardless of the date when the offence was committed, whether it was committed before or after the coming into force of the Act and whether the offence was committed in Gibraltar or abroad.

1650

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Minister for Justice has broken it down into various categories and, broadly speaking, one of those categories are offenders that may be subject to the Crimes Act, but then, of course, there are offenders that because the Crimes Act came into operation subsequent to them, for example, leaving H M Prison, many of these provisions – I think all of them, but I will be corrected if I am wrong, I have not actually looked at whether some of these Prevention Orders actually apply retrospectively – may I please – regardless of the legislative changes that the Government made, in order not to make the Sexual Offenders Register retrospective last year.

1655

He may recall that, of course, the Crimes Act has only become operational towards... it was sometime – November of last year, thank you very much. Prior to that, of course, the Government had taken the decision not to make the Sexual Offenders Register retrospective and, as part of the arguments that the Government then deployed justifying that, the Government said well, the Police do monitor these people.

1660

Now, I note that in the answer you said that there is going to be a programme of monitoring for those who are not covered by the Crimes Act, shortly, but what is the position in relation to monitoring of those individuals at the present moment prior to the new policy being introduced? Because, of course, it was that very same argument, the fact that these people are monitored anyway, the argument that was deployed by the Government in order to justify amending the legislation so as not to make the Sexual Offenders Register retrospective.

1670

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the premise upon which the hon. Member asked the supplementary is completely mistaken. He started by saying many of these provisions and these orders do not apply retrospectively before the coming into force of the Act.

1675

The hon. Member had heard the last couple of sentences, or indeed the last sentence of the answer that I gave and I will repeat it for his benefit. Applications for a Sexual Offences Prevention Order and for a Risk of Sexual Harm Order can be made, provided that the statutory criteria is satisfied, regardless of the date when the offence was committed, whether it was committed before or after the coming into force of the Act and whether the offence was committed in Gibraltar or abroad. This deals with the issue that I know the hon. Member raised in press releases at the time, when we were having this discussion, and we even considered this matter in this House, as to whether these Orders were available or whether there was any protection from people coming from abroad and whether anything could be done to protect the public from harm in respect of offences committed prior to the coming into force of the Act.

1680

These Orders are available where the Royal Gibraltar Police assesses, through the designated Risk Managers, assesses that there is a risk in respect of any type of criminality. This does not just apply to sexual offences. It applies to offences in Schedule 3, which are the sexual offences and Schedule 4, which are wider offences, as the hon. Member will know. If there is a risk of sexual harm or sexual offences

1685

1690 being committed, then an application can be made and I, as Minister for Justice, can direct the Attorney General to make that application and that application, as I have said, can be made regardless and is completely unaffected... The provisions that I have quoted in respect of these type of Orders are completely unaffected by the amendment that the Government made, I seem to recall it was last year, in relation to these provisions. Those amendments only affect the issue of automatic notification.

1695 The second part of the supplementary talks about monitoring. What we said last year was that persons who have been convicted of offences previously are known to the Police. If the Police, therefore, assess that people who are known to the Police involve any kind of risk which justifies an application to the Court, we have the statutory mechanism for the Police, after having assessed that risk, to advise me and, if I am satisfied that an application needs to be made to the Court, then I will direct the Attorney General to make that application to the Court. Therefore we consider that all the bases are covered.

1700 The hon. Member has mentioned that the Integrated Offender Management Programme is due to be commenced shortly but that is a separate issue. That is a specific programme which is modelled on what exists in the UK and it affects all types of criminality and that involves engagement with the offender. It involves coming to an agreement with the offender for the monitoring in the future of that offender and that involves monitoring for the purposes of reducing any risk of re-offending. It is part of a rehabilitation process of the offender and I am sure the hon. Member will be glad that such a programme will be put into place and will wish the RGP generally every success in reducing the risk of re-offending and the rehabilitation provisions which they are intended to address.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, of course I do and I think that it is a worthwhile programme indeed.

1710 But, with respect, he has not really answered the question. I quite understand what you are saying, that last year it was possible for the RGP to advise you that there is a particular individual who is particularly dangerous and therefore ask you to make an Order, actually, as from November of last year – that is when we introduced the Crimes Act, sorry, the Crimes Act was brought into force, it was obviously introduced by us when we were in Government. I quite understand that the RGP advises you to make an application, you then make an application, but that is not the substance of the question that I am asking.

1715 What I am asking is... well, you decided to amend the legislation in order not to make the list retrospective and one of the arguments that you deployed in relation to that was, well, these people are sufficiently monitored now, anyway, without the Crimes Act. They are sufficiently monitored because this was pre-Crimes Act. They are monitored by the Police. Now the hon. Lady has asked a question about monitoring – what monitoring or spot checks are carried out and, of course, it appears to me, that actually until you introduce your very worthwhile scheme, the position in terms of monitoring continues to be the position in terms of monitoring that existed last year, save that, now, post- the Crimes Act, what you can have is a situation where the Police ask you to make an application.

1720 But I am not asking about applications, I am asking about monitoring because it is important to the community. What monitoring is actually taking place now and what monitoring was taking place last year to justify the Government's policy in terms of not making the list retrospective?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, it seems that the hon. Member is quite intent on re-opening the debate, notwithstanding that the debate, which we had last year, we have already had in Parliament and which was based on a full – 1730 Mr Speaker: Yes, and I must remind Members that they cannot go back to matters which have been debated here in the House within a given period.

1735 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, this is not about me opening the debate on the amendment to the Sexual Offenders Register, it is the fact that the Government spoke about monitoring: she has asked the question, the hon. Lady has asked the question, about what monitoring takes place. We received an answer in relation to – which I have described as a very worthwhile initiative by the Government – as from the next few weeks they are going to up the monitoring structure or scheme for these types of individuals, but what monitoring actually takes place now, or took place a year ago? That is nothing to do with the debate that we had.

1740 Mr Speaker: Let us see if we can have an answer to that question.

1745 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, let me say, first of all, that this is an initiative by the RGP. This is not something that the Government itself has looked at. It is certainly a laudable and worthwhile initiative but it is an initiative by the RGP.

The hon. Member says that last year we spoke about monitoring... I do not have the record of what we talked about last year but my recollection is that it was felt that the people who have committed offences previously are sufficiently known to the Police for the Police to be able to assess as and when they 1750 consider necessary, in respect of any type of criminality, whether or not those persons should be included in the Sexual Offences Prevention Order. So the only thing that has changed is that the automatic notification procedure in respect of previous offenders is not automatic, it is subject to the RGP making 1755 an assessment of that risk, advising me of that risk and I, being satisfied of that risk, giving a direction to the Attorney General. So the automatic notification procedure has simply been changed to an assessment of risk procedure and an advice given to me and then an application is made to the Magistrates Court. We consider that that is the right approach, that that is the way to proceed, and I am not sure whether it is too early to say, but the system seems to be working.

1760 Hon. D A Feetham: Can the Minister for Justice allay any concerns that there may be in the community in relation to this and confirm to this House that this new scheme that is going to be introduced in order to, effectively, assess and monitor – and I think it is very worthwhile that one has a scheme that involves not only input from the Police but also from Social Services and any relevant 1765 service that may be able to provide any worthwhile contribution in relation to these types of offenders – that this will also apply not only to offenders that are subject to the notification procedures – I think it is Section 306 – but also to those that the Government took off the Sexual Offenders Register when it changed the law? And that the scheme is going to be operated not only in relation to those individuals, the ones that have been removed, not only in relation to individuals that the RGP thinks may be a risk and advises the Minister to make an application, but also at a lower level because, Mr Speaker, in fact in order 1770 to properly assess whether people pose a risk, you have obviously got to do a risk assessment? Therefore, my question is can the Minister confirm that this is going to be applicable across the board, whether you are on the Sexual Offenders Register or you are not on the Sexual Offenders Register?

1775 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, let me correct, first of all, what the hon. Member has said in suggesting that the Government took certain people off the Sexual Offenders Register. Let us not forget that there was nobody on the Sexual Offenders Register when we came into office. The legislation had been passed but they decided not to commence it and, therefore, not to start a Sex Offenders Register before they left office. Even though they passed legislation in June, I seem to recall, by December that 1780 had still not been commenced. So we certainly did not take anybody off the Sexual Offenders Register.
What we have done is commence the provisions which have now led to certain people being included in the Sex Offenders Register.

And I can confirm, Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member has asked me to do, that this is a scheme that applies across the board. As I stated in the answer to the original question, it applies to all criminality and it does not depend on when a particular person was convicted. It certainly applies across the board, as the 1785 hon. Member suggested it should. It certainly does.

1790 Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you, and the Minister is absolutely satisfied, is he, that none of the amendments that he made last year in relation to the Sexual Offender Register provisions of the Crimes Act, in order so that list is not made retrospectively – let us not forget the effect of that amendment was that it took out, from the scope of the legislation, some 24 individuals would have been within the scope of the legislation, had he not made the amendment that he brought to this House – is he satisfied that none of the amendments that he made last year to the Crimes Act will have a negative impact on the ability of the RGP to actually require these individuals to go through that kind of assessment which, of course, is a 1795 very intrusive assessment? My gut feeling, in relation to something like that, is that it may require some sort of statutory underpinning to allow it. But I am just asking the hon. Gentleman whether he is satisfied that there is no impact.

1800 Hon. G H Licudi: Well, Mr Speaker, I am entirely satisfied that the statutory provisions which are in place and which were enacted by the hon. Member, and commenced by us, are sufficient in order to provide the protection which is necessary.

In respect of the persons that the hon. Member has indicated, if there are any of those individuals that are assessed by the Royal Gibraltar Police as posing any particular risk, such that certain restrictions should be included – and let us not forget that this is not just about inclusion on the Sexual Offenders
Register, because the tools which are available now are tools to go to Court and include restrictions in 1805 respect of what an individual can do or cannot do – and therefore I am entirely satisfied that those tools are available to the RGP, to myself as Minister for Justice, to the Attorney General, to make that application to the Court. Therefore, there is absolutely no need for any concern.

The hon. Member talks about concern in the community. It seems to me the only persons creating that concern are the hon. Members. There is no concern because the tools are there and can be used 1810 effectively.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

Adults working with children
CRB checks in voluntary sector

1815 Clerk: Question 397, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Justice explain what the process is for adults to be able to work with children in the voluntary sector. Do they require a licence to do so and how are Criminal Records Bureau, or CRB, checks conducted in Gibraltar?

1820 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1825 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, there is currently no statutory provision requiring adults who wish to work with children in the voluntary sector to be licensed or formally vetted. The process of vetting adult volunteers is determined by the practices and policies of the organisation in question.

1830 It is open to an organisation to require the adult volunteer to provide a certificate of good conduct from the RGP or from the Criminal Records Bureau in the UK, or to authorise the organisation to vet the volunteer through RGP checks or to provide references. But the law does not expressly require them to do so.

1835 This is a gap in our legislation which has been identified by the Government. The Government is, therefore, already looking at the introduction of statutorily mandated vetting of adult volunteers who work with children and vulnerable adults.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: I am grateful for that, Mr Speaker.

1840 I know that the Care Agency conducts checks – obligatory checks – on its staff. Can the Minister confirm that, at present, the Education Department, GHA and other Government Departments where staff are in contact with children, also conduct obligatory checks?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether the hon. Member is asking the question in respect of the same... I am not taking a Point of Order in respect of this; I just want to understand the question. The question was originally about those who work with children in the voluntary sector. The hon. Member has talked about people who work for the Care Agency.

1845 The Care Agency certainly conducts all those checks, as do all other Government Departments and authorities in respect of any person who is going to be engaged to work with children or vulnerable adults. That is a process that the Government always goes through.

1850 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Minister, no doubt, is aware that, in the UK – and we did take this into account but we decided that we should keep them for the time being separate but open to review in the future – the UK has actually moved from having various lists, for example, a Sexual Offenders List and a list of people that are unsuitable to work with children. We have a list, we introduced a list of people who are unsuitable to work with children as part of the Children's Act and, of course, we passed the legislation through Parliament in relation to the Sexual Offenders Register...

1855 Is it part of the Government's future plans to consider whether to have one database, one list, kept in one central databank in relation to these issues or is that something that the Government is not considering?

1860 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, this is the administration of the scheme that would be introduced and certainly the Government, in looking at the legislation, will look at how it should be administered and what the most effective way is.

1865 I am grateful for the comment on the possibility of one list and integrated database or the possibility of different lists. All those things will certainly be considered as part of the legislation that the Government is considering, in terms of what is the most effective way of putting that into practice.

Transport for educational and sporting needs Increased provision

1870 Clerk: Question 398, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education provide details of what plans the Government has to 1875 increase provision of transport for educational and sporting needs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1880 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Department of Education has a dedicated twenty-two seater bus which is used for the schools' education and sporting needs. Additional transport facilities are provided whenever necessary, either by private operators or by the Gibraltar Bus Company. Arrangements with the Gibraltar Bus Company involve an extra bus which is operated during term time to take children from the Mid Harbours area to Sacred Heart School, an extra bus from Catalan Bay and an extra bus from the South District. On top of this, changes to bus route No. 1, which runs between Market Place and the Upper Town, means that the bus also picks up and drops off children from Mid Harbours.

1885 The Government considers that the current arrangements are adequate but will continue to monitor this and will increase transport facilities if this is thought to be necessary.

1890 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm if, by now, we already have in place the driver for this twenty-two seater bus which, in previous answers, he said they were in the process of completing the selection procedure?

1895 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, in respect of the specific person to be engaged as a driver, the selection process has been completed, a person has been selected and the information I had last week is that the appointment was simply subject to a medical. The person has already gone to the medical check-up and the Government is awaiting the results, or rather Human Resources Department is awaiting the results, simply to finalise the arrangements.

1900 I should say that, although that process has taken longer than perhaps I would have liked, we have had a driver available, both somebody who is employed by the Education Department and, when necessary, we have been able to call upon drivers employed in the Government's garage section.

Therefore it is not as if the bus has been idle all along but that selection process is almost complete and I very much hope that the driver will be engaged at the earliest possible opportunity.

National Institute for Adult Continuing Education Plans and timescale

1910 Clerk: Question 399, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education say what plans and timescale this Government has to establish a National Institute for Adult Continuing Education as per their Manifesto commitments?

1915 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1920 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the position remains as stated in the answer to Question 900/2012.

Mr Speaker: Any supplementary?
Next Question.

Old St Bernard's Hospital Conversion to school use

1930 Clerk: Question 400, the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education confirm if any section or sections of the old St. Bernard's Hospital will be converted into a school or schools in order to cater for the replacement of the present St. Bernard's First and/or Sacred Heart Middle Schools?

1935 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1940 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government is working on plans for the old St. Bernard's Hospital site and an announcement will be made soon.

Hon. E J Reyes: Therefore, Mr Speaker, there are no concrete plans yet that the Minister could inform us in respect of the future for St. Bernard's First and Sacred Heart Middle Schools.

1945 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I expect to be in a position to make an announcement on this very soon, certainly before the House next meets.

1950 Old St Bernard's Hospital
Demolition of ex-Sisters' quarters

Clerk: Question 401, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1955 Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government confirm if they have any plans to knock down the ex-Sisters' quarters at the old St. Bernard's Hospital and, if so, provide details of such plans.

1960 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government does not plan to knock down the ex-Sisters' quarters at the old St. Bernard's Hospital.

1965

School drop-out rate
Academic year 2012-13

1970 Clerk: Question 402 the Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Education state how many 15-year olds have dropped out of school so far during the academic year 2012-13, providing a breakdown by school?

1975 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1980 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, fourteen 15-year olds have dropped out of school during the current academic year, ten from Bayside and four from Westside.

1985 Countering tax evasion
Formal mechanisms

Clerk: Question 403, the Hon. P R Caruana.

1990 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Government say whether it will enter into a FATCA agreement with the United States of America?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

1995 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 404 and 405/2013.

Clerk: Question 404.

2000 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, can the Government say what is the formal mechanism by which Gibraltar is subscribing to the G5 pilot multilateral automatic exchange of tax information with the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Spain and Italy and when will its provisions become binding on Gibraltar?

2005 Clerk: Question 405.

2010 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, in its Press Release No. 289/2013, dated 2nd May, the Government said that 'the other element in eliminating any remaining hiding places is to improve the availability of information on beneficial ownership' and that the Government was committed 'taking this agenda forward'. Can the Government say what measures it envisages to take this agenda forward?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

2015 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, on 2nd May 2013 the Government issued a press release entitled Eradicating Tax Evasion in which, inter alia, it stated that Gibraltar was committed to entering into a FATCA agreement with the United States of America. In that press release the Government also announced that it has committed to being part of the pilot multilateral automatic exchange of tax information with the UK, France, Germany, Spain and Italy. The manner in which that pilot will come into effect is still not finalised. The Government will be having further discussions with the UK on the formal mechanism by which Gibraltar will subscribe to the pilot, as well as on the timing of the implementation of the pilot.

2020 The Government has also committed to taking forward the agenda on the availability of information on beneficial ownership in the context of the fight against tax evasion and fraud. It is right that criminals should not be able to hide behind structures to evade their responsibility to pay tax. The whole agenda on transparency and on exchange of information for tax purposes is based precisely on that premise. Gibraltar will continue to take such measures as may be necessary as part of a global strategy against tax evasion. Gibraltar will therefore continue to negotiate and sign Tax Information Exchange Agreements to build on the twenty-six TIEAs which have already been signed. Gibraltar will continue to work with, and assist, the OECD in Phase 2 of the peer review, which is expected to commence in 2014.

2025 It will be recalled that the report following Phase 1 of the review was, to a very significant extent, favourable to Gibraltar. There were several recommendations made which Gibraltar has not only taken on board but has passed the necessary legislation in the form of amendments to the Companies Act, the Trustees Act and the Partnership Act. These amendments create statutory requirements in relation to the keeping of proper books of account and the maintenance of records identifying settlors, trustees and beneficiaries of trusts. The legislation also abolishes share warrants to bearer.

2030 In addition, the Government introduced legislation earlier this year to transpose the new Mutual Assistance Directive – that is, EU Directive 2011/16. As confirmed to us by the OECD, this includes TIEA-equivalent provisions with all EU States. This is in addition to the bilateral TIEAs which we already have with some EU States. It is thus now open to all EU States, including Spain, to make a TIEA or TIEA-equivalent request to Gibraltar. This legislation also provides for some automatic exchange of information as from 1st January 2015.

2035 Gibraltar thus complies with all international standards and requirements and is at the forefront of the global fight against tax evasion. We will continue with this agenda as we have shown with our commitment with a FATCA agreement with the US, a FATCA style agreement with the UK and being part of the pilot on automatic exchange of information with the EU G5 countries.

2040 Gibraltar is a part of a group of nations setting the standards for the eradication of tax evasion. In doing so, Gibraltar has emphasised the fundamental importance of maintaining a level playing field in the international financial services area and the need to take firm enforcement action against non-compliance. The Government is equally committed to act in consultation with the financial services industry in Gibraltar when addressing all of these issues.

2045 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, Mr Speaker, there is no doubting the international political momentum behind the campaign to eradicate what the Hon. Minister refers to as illegal activity and I think it is right that Gibraltar should not be left in any sort of exceptional category in that and that was certainly my policy when I had the ministerial responsibility that he now has for Financial Services and I am sure that the Hon. Minister was not intending to suggest, when he says that the signing up to the public availability of information on beneficial ownership, reflected any desire that Gibraltar should not be a place where criminals can hide their ill-gotten gains or words that he may have used to that effect.

2060 We have not had such a regime in the past and, of course, much as we are willing to subscribe to changing international consensuses, by the same token we are not recognising that the last fifty years of our financial services industry has been based on ‘harbouring criminal activity’. The fact that the international community changes the goalposts is not to suddenly and retrospectively criminalise what we 2065 were all doing at a time that the international community had not yet moved the goal posts to cover it. I think it is important that, as we move along with the times, we do so in terms that does not signal, sort of, historical unacceptable behaviour.

But can I just ask the hon. Member by way of supplementary – and I apologise for that long preamble – a supplementary in relation to Question 403, whether the hon. Member is able to give the House any 2070 assurance that, having committed to a FATCA agreement with the US, whether the Government will insist on this being a direct arrangement, a direct agreement, between the Gibraltar Government and the United States Government and that it will be signed by the Gibraltar Government and it will not be Gibraltar having extended to it the UK’s Agreement with the United States on FATCA?

2075 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I entirely agree with the preamble which the hon. Member has indicated, has set out, which suggests that these are not new measures which in any way signal that Gibraltar was something different in the past, that in Gibraltar, ill-gotten gains could be hidden away because that is something that Gibraltar has not played a part in for many, many years. But there is, as the hon. Member has again alluded to, a global agenda on this. There are things which are moving at a pace 2080 and which Gibraltar is a part of, so there are new initiatives being taken as part of the agenda which Gibraltar has already put in place in respect of our own provisions on anti-money laundering, on anti-terrorist financing and all the measures that we have taken previously to make sure that tax evasion has absolutely no place in a jurisdiction such as ours, such as Gibraltar.

With regard to the FATCA Agreement, I can confirm to the hon. Member that the contact we have 2085 had in relation to FATCA has been direct with the United States. In fact, the first contact where we had a discussion was in South Africa, where I attended the OECD Global Forum on Transparency and Tax Information Exchange, where the US Representative was there and made a presentation and a speech in relation to FATCA and we had an engagement with the US Representative directly at that time. It was followed by a press release, I seem to recall, the following week by the United States, which 2090 acknowledged that it was already engaging in discussions with Gibraltar in relation to this. So it is certainly our intention to continue to have these discussions with the United States, to finalise the terms of the arrangement, and to sign up directly with the United States and not in the form of any kind of extension to any existing Agreement. That is certainly Gibraltar’s intention and it is Gibraltar’s commitment, as well, to do it in that particular way.

2095 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): If the hon. Gentleman will just allow me to say something in respect of how he couched his preliminary remarks.

The hon. Gentleman said that Gibraltar was not in an exceptional category, or should not be seen to be in an exceptional category, but I think he will agree with me that Gibraltar, to a very great extent, benefits
 2100 from being in one particular exceptional category and that is that we are the only one of the Overseas Territories that, as a member of the European Union, has been complying with obligations emanating from Brussels from the moment that we were required to comply with them.

If he will just allow me this comment, if he looks at exactly what it is that is behind the agenda today, it is almost the G8 and the rump of the 27 Member States requiring that others play by the rules that they 2105 have set for themselves. And I think the exceptional category that Gibraltar is entitled to say it belongs to, in respect of Overseas Territories financial services centres, is that we are the only Overseas Territory financial services centre that has complied with the rules that have applied amongst the 27 Member States of the European Union from the moment that we were required to comply with them. We are, therefore, in a different category to those other territories that are now signing up to much of what we have been complying with for some time.

2110 Of course, he knows and he will have seen, that a lot of what is being played out in the press, if I may say so, is about the tax avoidance agenda, but when he looks at the detail of what it is that we are looking at in terms of these agreements etc., it is the tax evasion agenda. There was a very salutary intervention last week in the UK Parliament by one of the heads of HMRC, who told a Select Committee of MPs that 2115 they need to understand that tax avoidance is actually complying with the rules that are laid down by the national Parliaments as to what it is that a particular individual or company needs to pay in respect of tax.

I think, Mr Speaker, it is important to have those things in mind when we look at where Gibraltar is on the radar in respect of all those issues and where Gibraltar can expect to sometimes be seen as a class apart. It is sometimes unfortunate when we are listed just with other Overseas Territories and I am sure 2120 his battle when he had the hon. Member’s portfolio and my portfolio for Finance, was very often actually to show that Gibraltar was apart and not just one of the list of Overseas Territories that deals in financial services.

2125 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, of course, Mr Speaker, the exceptional category I was describing was the negative one, in other words that we should not be in an exceptional, out of the mainstream... and thought to be non-compliant. Of course, I do welcome what the Hon. the Chief Minister has now said, that Gibraltar, having complied with a certain number of EU-related measures over the years, should indeed 2130 welcome a re-levelling up of the playing field in our favour, so to speak, by bringing others into a net where we have been for some time: that is true. Whether this G5 European version of FATCA amounts to no more than bringing others up to speed with where we already are, or whether it will take us all, including us, further forward than where we currently are, in other words amount to additional measures, 2135 restrictions, disclosures, transparency, of course remains to be seen and takes me, if I may, to my first supplementary to the Hon. Minister – I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his explanations to me in that respect – whether the Hon. Minister is aware whether the UK Government has shared with him, what will be the process for establishing the detailed content of the European version of FATCA. Is it identical to the US version so, if we look at the US FATCA model agreement, is that what is going to emerge as the intra-European version? Is there just a borrowing of the concepts but the detail may be very different and, if it is the latter, is there a process now going to take place and has the Gibraltar Government been offered, or promised or going to be allowed, any contribution, albeit through the UK, into that process?

2140 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, it is our clear and firm understanding that what we are talking about in relation to the pilot on Automatic Exchange between those G5 EU countries is essentially a European FATCA, so it is to be modelled on the European FATCA... (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Well, the American FATCA, on which the UK FATCA-style arrangement is also going to be modelled. So we are starting with the US FATCA, that is being transformed into a FATCA-style arrangement with the UK on 2145 the same basis and it is that which is also being used, as we understand it, as the model for the pilot with the G5 countries.

Yes, Mr Speaker, perhaps I should also add that, as I mentioned in the original answer, we already had provisions in the Mutual Assistance Directive, which we have already transposed, which involve automatic exchange of information as from 1st January 2015. So, in a way, what has been proposed at a European level with these G5 countries is an acceleration, on a pilot basis, of measures which we already 2150 have in place in our legislation.

Hon. P R Caruana: Finally, on this one, Mr Speaker, is the hon. Member able to tell me whether it has been shared with him whether there is any intention that there should be an element of retrospection to the European version of FATCA? I have in mind a situation where, for example, we just need to be 2155 careful where countries like Liechtenstein, having negotiated an agreement, for example, with the UK that allows UK taxpayers who have arrangements in Liechtenstein to sort of regularise them, if I can just use a neutral phrase, in a way that avoids them being criminalised as a result, that we should find ourselves in a worse position: in other words, that customers of Gibraltar financial services should suddenly find themselves, that the guillotine comes down one day without an opportunity to regularise, 2160 for example by the application of retrospective measures, without the same opportunity to regularise your affairs ahead of incurring criminal sanction, that customers of Liechtenstein, by bilateral agreement, will have had the opportunity to do.

There is a, sort of, tension there, indeed, I read – and the Hon. Minister may not have seen it, he may be interested to know of it – I read the other day on an aeroplane some clever tax planner actually 2165 suggesting, in the context of all these initiatives of European FATCA, that the escape route for clients of the Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies was actually to now transfer their business to Liechtenstein so that they can exit to the UK from Liechtenstein, rather than from Jersey, Guernsey or Gibraltar because, in that way, they can take advantage of the Liechtenstein cleansing arrangements, if I can call them that.

2170 Would the hon. Member consider raising this issue with the United Kingdom Government to see if such a buffer period, or buffer arrangement, can be written into our arrangements with the UK and with other European countries through the G5 pilot as well? It is not right that Liechtenstein should have an advantage in that respect.

2175 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, it is certainly true that no country should have an advantage over us in any type of arrangement and that is why we say in both our press release and the answer that I have given today that Gibraltar needs to be part of a group of nations and that there must be an international level playing field of which Gibraltar forms part.

2180 Specifically on retrospection, let us not forget, Mr Speaker, that we are simply talking about exchange of information, not the creation of new criminal penalties retrospectively and there is a general consensus that, in respect of criminal investigations, there should be some retrospection, some element of retrospection. The hon. Member may recall that we passed legislation, or we brought in legislation, recently because we had a gap in respect of our TIEA requests which did not provide for the passing of 2185 information retrospectively in respect of a criminal investigation – that was a gap which we cured following a particular request. But it is certainly an issue that we will be raising with the United Kingdom and it is certainly an issue that we will be alive to and we will certainly not want any particular jurisdiction to have any kind of advantage over Gibraltar when Gibraltar forms part of these arrangements.

2190 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, I have one supplementary to ask in relation to Question 405 but, just before I move to that, I mean this is an important issue, I appreciate that we are talking just about exchange of information and not the creation of offences but the question that will be pressing people who are suddenly caught out by a new initiative is, alright, if I decide to be compliant as of now, will 2195 information about me from five years ago be subject to being disclosed under this arrangement. Now there is a difference there between the case where there is a specific request in the context of a criminal investigation which is undertaken – which is the case that he is referring to, where retrospection... there is a very big difference between that and automatic exchange of information, as a matter of wholesale compulsion, in respect of everybody, going back five years. In other words, here is everybody's banking
2200 information in relation to Gibraltar for the last five years, French Finance Minister. You know, that is a wholly different situation and that is where Liechtenstein has got... Liechtenstein's deal with the UK allows, in respect of the past, people to extricate themselves from any uncomfortable place in which they may find themselves without the sanction of criminality, provided that, for the future, they do... and that is the disadvantage.

2205 But in respect of Question 405, can I just ask the Hon. Minister, I do not know if the hon. Member is aware – this is the question about... 405, as you will recall, is the question about the beneficial ownership transparency... The hon. Member may be aware that the internet is a-buzz today, online news about letters that the Prime Minister is alleged to have written to all the Overseas Territories, including our own, telling us to get our house in order and that transparency means, basically, that the beneficial ownership
2210 of every company should be known. I think those words are actually quoted on the BBC website. My question was whether the hon. Member... I mean, alright, we know that the Government has signed up to transparency on this – and I know just how Governments come to sign up to these sorts of things: I have been there, I have got the T-shirt! – the hon. Members are now being made to wear the T-shirt and I hope they enjoy it more than I did. This is an inexorable direction of travel, and I acknowledge the difficulty involved in one jurisdiction resisting or, indeed, I do not agree that it is sensible that we should resist 2215 in terms of the opprobrium that comes with it.

That said, is the hon. Member able to shed any light upon what form that will take? There are various models. There could be... the Prime Minister might have meant that the information of beneficial 2220 ownerships of companies and trusts, I think they said, might just be available through private enquiry from one regulator, from one authority to the other, or I have also heard mooted the idea of a more public arrangement, a public register of these things. Is the Government aware yet of what may be involved, what sort of ideas are being mooted and is there anything that he can say to the House at this stage about this?

2225 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, we are certainly aware of the letter that the hon. Member has referred to. The Chief Minister has received that letter and we have seen that letter.

As the hon. Member says, one of the important issues is that beneficial ownership should be known and that is absolutely right. Beneficial ownership – 2230 Hon. P R Caruana: I have not said that...

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, no, the quote, (Hon. P R Caruana: I see.) the apparent quote that the hon. Member said: beneficial ownership should be known. There should not be situations where structures are set up, either with financial services providers in Gibraltar or other kind of arrangements and that 2235 beneficial ownership is not known... (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) Of course, people, yes, and we provide... (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) No, (Laughter) I am not talking of publicly. Beneficial ownership clearly needs to be known. One of the issues that we dealt with quite recently was the abolishing of bearer shares... That is a case in point, where it is important that that should be the case and beneficial ownership should be known.

2240 The hon. Member says that there are various possibilities being mooted. There is a possibility mooted of a central register, there is a possibility mooted of a public register, but these are just possibilities. I mean, Gibraltar will certainly be examining those possibilities with the United Kingdom but, in respect of the fundamental premise that everybody who deals with a corporate structure or trust structure should know where the beneficial interests in that lie and, therefore, if information were to be required to be 2245 made available under whatever arrangement we make – whether it is a pilot, the UK FATCA, or the US FATCA – that the information should be known to that entity, then that is absolutely right. But, in terms of where we are going to get to about those various possibilities, that is still clearly a matter that is being considered and there is nothing concrete at this stage.

The Chief Minister may want to add to that.

2250 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, yes, I am grateful to the hon. Member for giving way.

The hon. Gentleman is right that this letter that has been sent to all Overseas Territories leaders raises this issue of beneficial ownership and how that is somehow going to be reflected and he will know from the agenda that was set out, I think, two or three weeks ago, which led to a press release also by us and by H M Treasury and some of the other Overseas Territories, where Gibraltar was actually specifically taken out of the list of all the other Overseas Territories and put in a paragraph on its own that dealt with all the issues that Gibraltar already complied with. This question of the beneficial ownership was already on the radar.

2260 I am happy to tell the hon. Gentleman that I have not detected anything, in the letter from the Prime Minister to me, that concerns me about where that agenda may be going because I agree that we – and that is how the Prime Minister put it – do need to know who is the beneficial owner of companies doing business, or trusts that own companies that do business, from each of our particular jurisdictions.

2265 Of course, this is where Gibraltar has already got the upper hand, because since 1994 when the anti-money laundering Directive first became an issue on the agenda, Gibraltar practitioners have had an obligation to know who the beneficial owners behind the structures that they are dealing with are. The question is whether we now take a further step and take that information as to beneficial ownership out of the hands exclusively of the practitioners and put it in some sort of central registry, but accessible only, accessible only to law enforcement agencies and tax enforcement agencies in the context of tax claims, and tax claims in that context would mean claims for tax due. In other words, somebody who has not managed to avoid a tax liability, has incurred a tax debt and there is now an attempt to understand where that individual has beneficially parked that potential tax liability in cash somewhere else.

2270 In that context, I think that a lot of this, Mr Speaker, is about finally levelling the playing field for Gibraltar and requiring many of the other Overseas Territories to do things that Gibraltar has not yet done and that further step of considering, because we are not being told that this is something that the G8, or that the European Union, has yet determined must happen, that the information as to beneficial ownership should pass from the hands of the practitioners into a central registry – but, even then, certainly not on the basis of automatic exchange. That is not where the agenda is at the moment. (Interjection by Hon. P R Caruana) I hope that is useful.

2280 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, it is, and even more useful if he could answer this final question.

Can I safely interpret, can the House safely interpret, what he has just said as meaning that he is not aware of any plan to make this information about beneficial ownership which passes, as he has described it, from the practitioners to this central law enforcement – if it happens – but that he is not aware of any proposal or discussion to make it the subject matter of either public inspection ability or of automatic exchange, automatic and spontaneous supply at the end of the year like, for example, FATCA-style information?

2290 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I think it is fair to say that there are groups of countries that would wish to see that be automatic and groups of countries that do not necessarily agree that it should be an automatically accessible register. But, Mr Speaker, he will no doubt agree with me that this raises issues beyond tax.

2295 We have got to understand that the United Kingdom and the Overseas Territories and the Crown Dependencies are not Civil Law jurisdictions and, therefore, the concept of equity exists in our law, where people have rights of ownership that are not recorded in writing. Now, is it that the United Kingdom is saying that it is going to do away with centuries of law as to equitable ownership? I think that is also an issue to be flagged up when understanding how this could work. If it were to be made to work in a Civil Law-style system where everybody needs to have written down what their legal entitlements may be, this is then very easy to transpose to a register because the information exists elsewhere. He will know, as well as I do, Mr Speaker, that there are very complex trust arrangements which are often set up for reasons completely unrelated to taxation. Some of them may be set up for business purposes unrelated to taxation, complex ownership structures; some of them may be related to families and inheritances etc. and, of course, the very concept of the secret and the semi-secret trust of the United Kingdom – which had nothing to do with tax in the 19th century and had more to do with whether a particular individual had more than one mistress and more than one illegitimate child – you know, complexities beyond tax...

2300 Now, I do not see that the United Kingdom is saying we are going to do away with the concept of equity and that all beneficial ownership must be recorded. What I do see is that that which jurisdictions like Gibraltar have been doing, for the purposes of ensuring that crimes are not committed using companies and trusts as fronts – and, therefore, we have recorded the beneficial ownership behind those 2310 types of vehicles for those purposes – will now simply put that information either in the public domain, or very easily accessible, when there is no need, because of a tax claim being met, in a central register, or that that is even possible in all instances because of the concept of equity sometimes complicating the principle of beneficial ownership.

2315 The hon. Gentleman will have seen, as I have, that there have been articles in the press in the United Kingdom, they have been very critical of one particular device, which is that idea that you might designate a charity as the beneficiary of a trust, simply for the purposes of hiding those who might be the real ultimate beneficial owners, or the parties the trustees may wish to see, or trustees may be required to benefit, by settlors.

2320 That, I think, has created a lot of opprobrium in the United Kingdom, because charities' names have been taken in vain. The charities do not even know that they are named as beneficiaries of trusts. They sometimes do not even receive a benefit before they are removed, and all of this, I think, is playing to an agenda where, you know, where austerity is an issue in many Member States, and the rich or big companies are being seen to 'get away' with not paying their tax liabilities.

2325 Now, in everything that I have seen there are two types of approaches. One of which is: you will be able to access this information when the claims are made, because there is evasion, which is a criminal offence or fraud. And then there is another agenda that comes from some European countries, which is to say we should have free access to that information.

2330 He will know, as I do, and all practitioners in this field will know, that if there were to be registers of beneficial ownership available for free access by States whose taxes may have been avoided, not evaded, as a result of particular structures being used, then those registers will only show States how their laws have been avoided. In other words, not that any crimes have been committed, just that their laws are deficient by allowing particular structures to be set up to avoid taxation being paid.

2335 There is a tension there, but I do not see that the United Kingdom is yet of the view that this should be automatically available for exchange. Will the United Kingdom move towards that before the G8 meeting? Will it move towards that after the G8 meeting? These are issues that we all need to keep under constant review, always remembering that Gibraltar has been complying with the same obligations as the United Kingdom, as members of the European Union now, for the better part of 40 years.

Hon. P R Caruana: It will not escape him, of course, that the – 2340 Mr Speaker: Could I ask the hon. Members to endeavour to bring these very interesting exchanges to a conclusion.

Hon. P R Caruana: Well, my contribution will be that I will not ask my last supplementary.

2345 Mr Speaker: No, no, please do. Please do.

2350 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, does the hon. Member acknowledge that the danger for us in particular is that, albeit that a register might only show that a law has been... French law, for example, has been successfully avoided, the danger is, for us, that because some countries regard Gibraltar, wrongly, as a tax haven, they automatically disregard any structure located in a tax haven, so then the distinction between evasion and avoidance is lost. Because they say if you are set up in Gibraltar or in the Channel Islands, I am not interested: it is yours. That is the danger.

2355 The hon. Member's analysis, shed of prejudices about places, is fine, but coupled with the prejudice about certain places, which is, to boot, reflected in some national laws – Spain's for example – puts us in a position where we are not free to argue the distinction, and clients here will not be free to argue the distinction that he has intellectually, correctly, made, but which, in practice, will not avail them.

2360 Hon Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, we are alive to those issues and that is why I told him that there are Civil Law countries that do not understand the concept of beneficial ownership in the same way that we do. Of course, he is right to add the layer that there are – and I think it is principally Civil Law – countries that also do not appreciate the distinction between evasion and avoidance, and simply have a view that, if you are located in a particular jurisdiction, then you are to be regarded as having been involved in something which cheats their exchequer. Those issues are all live issues, he will be happy to know.

2365 The letter from the Prime Minister does not look quite like the articles about the Prime Minister's letter. I am sure he has had that experience, as well. It is actually an invitation to be involved in a conference about these issues, to consider these matters further.

Financial Services Commission CEO Local appointment

Mr Speaker: Question 406, the Hon. Mr Feetham.

2375

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Government's policy with regard to appointment of the new FSC CEO, that it would be desirable for the individual to be local?

2380

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government's position is that the person found to be most suitable for the job should be appointed as the new Chief Executive Officer of the FSC.

2385

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for Financial Services and Gaming perhaps update the House on where we are with the recruitment of a new CEO for the Financial Services Commission?

2390

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member knows, it is the Commission that appoints, subject to the approval of the Minister with responsibility for Financial Services. As the hon. Member will know from public pronouncements, a UK firm has been engaged to assist in this process. The closing date, I cannot remember offhand, I seem to recall was the 17th May, so we have either just passed the closing date or are very close to the closing date for applications. So those who are now looking at this particular firm in the United Kingdom, will now be assessing and analysing the applications that will be made, or have been made, in order to make their recommendation to the Commission initially.

Company gaming licences
Number granted and surrendered in 2012-13

Mr Speaker: Question 407, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2405

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, will the Government state how many new companies were issued with gaming licences by the Minister as licensing authority in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, in 2012, 4 new...

Mr Speaker: You were going to answer together with 408.

2415

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I apologise, I will answer this question together with Question No. 408/2013.

Clerk: Question 408.

2420

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, will the Government state how many existing Gibraltar gaming companies surrendered their licences or ceased trading in 2012 and 2013?

Clerk: Could I ask the hon. Member to repeat the Question again, please?

2425

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Government state how many existing Gibraltar gaming companies surrendered their licences or ceased trading in 2012 and 2013?

2430

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, in 2012 four new companies were issued with a total of five remote gambling licences, and one existing licensed company was issued with one additional remote gambling licence.

2435 One new company has been issued with one licence in 2013.

Two companies surrendered two licences in 2012. One was surrendered as part of a company restructure, which resulted in a new company being issued two licences. The other licence was surrendered as a result of the licensee selling the company to a new operator, which was issued with a new licence.

2440 In 2013, one company surrendered two of its four licences for operational reasons, and one other company ceased trading in Gibraltar.

Hon. S M Figueras: Mr Speaker, alive as I am to potential sensitivities, I wonder whether perhaps the Minister can say which licensee ceased trading. It was the last part of his answer in 2013?

2445

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the company that surrendered its licence was Partouche. Partouche is a French, mostly land-based casino operator. They obtained their licence in 2008 in anticipation of providing a French-focused operation. The reality is that the operation never took off and they never had more than a handful of employees in Gibraltar, and they have now decided... In fact, I am not sure whether... I did not actually say that the company 'surrendered' its licence: the company ceased trading. It simply did not renew its licence when it came up for renewal. So it did not actually surrender the licence.

Financial and Gaming Sector
Details of conference attendances

Clerk: Question 409, the Hon. D A Feetham.

2460

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Government please provide a list of all conferences, seminars and events attended by Government (including Ministers) in the Financial and Gaming Sectors in 2012 and 2013, listing each one, who attended at Government expense and the cost involved?

2465 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice.

Mr Speaker: This is a rather lengthy schedule. I will allow hon. Members of the Opposition to study it and raise supplementaries subsequently.

I think we can now move on to the next Question because it involves another Minister.
Question 343.

2475

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if it is of any use, I am going to move the adjournment now so hon. Members may wish to come back with supplementaries when we return.

2480

Mr Speaker: We are on supplementaries, then, arising from Question 409.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I understand that my microphone was not on when I read out the answer. Perhaps I can just answer it again and this is to 409.

The information requested by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule that I now hand to him.

ADJOURNMENT

2490

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn to Thursday, 23rd May at 2.30 p.m.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Thursday, 23rd June (Hon. Chief Minister: May.) 23rd May at 3.00 p.m. (Hon. Chief Minister: 2.30 p.m.) At 2.30 p.m.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, did you say Thursday 23rd?

2500 Mr Speaker: Yes. I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Thursday, 23rd May at 2.30 p.m.

Having confirmed that Thursday is 23rd May, (Laughter) I now put the question, which is that this House do now adjourn to that date at 2.30 p.m.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed

The House will now adjourn to Thursday, 23rd May at 2.30 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

Clerk: Mr Speaker. Sitting of Parliament, Thursday 23rd May, answers to Questions continue.

Commonwealth Park Cost of consultants, alternative parking and soil contamination

5 Clerk: Question 246/2013, the Hon. J J Netto.

10 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment confirm the total amount of money paid to consultants since 9th December 2011 in relation to the Commonwealth Park, indicating the dates of individual payments and their corresponding amounts and say whether the Minister thinks that further work by the consultant is required. Further, can the Minister provide this Parliament with an executive summary of the salient points contained within any and all reports prepared by the said consultants?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

15 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question Nos. 247 and 248/2013.

Clerk: Question 247.

20 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide Parliament with a timeline for the completion of the Commonwealth Park, highlighting the specific timeframes within which the main construction elements of the project will be undertaken, as well as the number of alternative parking spaces that will be provided as a result of the loss of parking spaces at Commonwealth Parade and the site or sites for alternative parking?

25 Clerk: Question 248.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment please say if the soil at the Commonwealth Park is contaminated?

30 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as I have stated before, the works at Commonwealth Park are programmed for completion in Spring 2014. The construction of the main elements are subject to change as works progress, other than for the planting of trees which must take place in Autumn.

35 The parking spaces from Commonwealth Parade have been re-provided at the new Queensway Car Park, adjacent to the King's Wharf development. These total 365 in number and represent an increase of 23 when compared to those at Commonwealth Parade.

The soil at the site is not contaminated.

40 The information requested by the hon. Member in relation to payments made to consultants since 9th December 2013 is contained within the table which I now hand over. The consultants engaged shall be involved until the completion of the project.

Mr Speaker, let me just add that I cannot provide a summary of reports as we have had no reports: the consultants have been mainly involved in design and we have plans, but not reports as such.

45 Tercentenary Hall, Dr Giraldi Home and Tangier Views
Details in respect of solar panel installation

Clerk: Question 249, the Hon. J J Netto.

50 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what are the surface areas of the Tercentenary Hall, Dr. Giraldi Home and Tangier Views, where solar panels are going to be installed, and state the amount of energy produced individually by these sites?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

55 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 250/2013.

Clerk: Question 250.

60 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state the name of the company installing the solar panels at the Tercentenary Hall, Dr. Giraldi Home and Tangier Views, the contractual arrangement that exists, if any, and whether these works went out to tender?

65 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker. Firstly, I would just like to clarify that the systems to be installed are solar thermal and not photovoltaic. Therefore, they will be producing hot water and saving energy, rather than producing electricity directly. The surface areas for each building are as follows:

70 Dr. Giraldi Home – roof area 976 m<sup>2</sup>; Tercentenary Hall – roof area 204 m<sup>2</sup>; note this is only part of the flat roof and Tangier View – roof area 391 m<sup>2</sup>

75 It should be noted, Mr Speaker, that this is the available surface area for each building, not all of which will necessarily be covered by the solar thermal panels. The exact area to be used will depend upon the contractor's proposal, which has not yet been awarded. The tender specifications aim to meet the hot water system load over 70% of the year. To aim for 100% would over-specify the system, with a need to reject energy in the hot summer months and would introduce inefficiency.

80 These tenders for the design and build of solar thermal installations were sent to the Official Journal of the European Union on 14th March 2013. As per EU procurement rules, the tender remained open for fifty-two days, with the closing date being 7th May 2013. The Tender Board for this project has not yet been convened and the contract has not been awarded.

85 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I take on board what the Minister said, that the contract had not been awarded but could perhaps the Minister provide some information whether a contractor has already been selected and, if so, whether there is a tentative date as to when the commencement of the works might commence?

90 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, I believe that, as I said, the tender process is still on-going. The closure for the receipt of applications was 7th May 2013. My information, when my officials drafted this response, is that the Tender Board has not yet been convened. I have not been informed that it has since. I do not think it has: I have no information on that but we have not awarded this to any contractor because I do not even know who has applied, Mr Speaker.

95 Solar panels on Government properties
Rolling programme and timetable

Clerk: Question 251, the Hon. J J Netto.

100 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment please state if there is a rolling programme to install further solar panels in Government properties and, if so, could the Hon. Minister provide the corresponding timetable, citing the buildings and the timing for installing the panels?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

105 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there is no rolling programme for this. However, Government continues to investigate possible opportunities for the installation of these systems on Government buildings in order to increase the percentage of energy in Gibraltar produced from renewable sources and in order to encourage private initiatives of a similar nature, by leading by example.

110

115 Government buildings
Renewable energy feasibility studies

Clerk: Question 252 the Hon. J J Netto.

120 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, has the Government conducted any studies, either in-house or extended, to determine the suitability and location to install renewable energy products on Government buildings and, if so, state whether this has been done by a company, stating the name and cost to Government.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

125 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Government relies on the in-house expertise of its technical officers to determine potential locations for the installation of renewable energy systems. A preliminary exercise has been conducted to identify buildings which might be suitable for such works. This was done in-house at no additional cost to Government.

130

Marine electricity generation
Feasibility for Gibraltar

135 Clerk: Question 253 the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment please say if electricity generation using marine currents has now reached a stage where it is commercially feasible in our own environment?

140 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

145 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, our understanding is that this technology continues to be at a prototype stage, with different models still being tested and further work commencing on the installation of arrays of marine turbines. The industry believes that commercial deployment of marine ocean current technology remains fifteen to twenty years away. However, we continue to be engaged with a number of entities in order to determine what possibilities exist in Gibraltar.

150 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Minister for the Environment say whether, in relation to the contact they have with these entities to determine how feasible this is within our own marine environment, whether the Government is proceeding on the basis of putting some of these prototypes... to determine whether it is viable or not depending on the currents available in certain locations around Gibraltar?

155 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we have not yet signed any agreement with any entity but we are talking to several entities – I am not exactly sure, it may be two, but I would not like to commit myself to that – looking at the possibility of prototypes in Gibraltar. Clearly, the arrangements where this might or might not happen will be specified when we reach some kind of understanding. We are, at the moment, at the discussion stage.

160

Department of the Environment
Details of environmental contracts

165 Clerk: Question 254, the Hon. J J Netto.

170 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide copies of the contract between the Department of the Environment and the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic, Wildlife Gibraltar Limited, GONHS and the Helping Hand Trust to the Opposition.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

175 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, it is not our policy, as in fact it was not the Opposition's when in Government, to make copies of such contracts public. In any case, Mr Speaker, all these contracts are the same contracts as those left when the Opposition was in Government and have not been altered in any way since 9th December 2011.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I hear that the Hon. Minister says that it is not their policy to provide Parliament with copies of the contract and that they are basically just maintaining the position, as he 180 alleges, of the GSD Government when in Government. My view, Mr Speaker, is that these contracts do have, within the contract, environmental information as to the services that they provide within the remit of the contract and, therefore, will the Minister not agree with me that the contracts providing the 185 environmental information... it is information that should be made available, either to Parliament or, indeed, perhaps to members of the public if they wish to obtain such environmental information within the contract.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, a number of observations there, if I may.

190 These contracts were all prepared at the time of the former administration. I have said there have been no changes at all to any of those contracts. In fact, at least one or two, the hon. Member opposite and I discussed them and agreed them together, so there is nothing mysterious or secret or nothing that the hon.
Member opposite is not aware of. There was no attempt or intention or willingness I think at the time, for the Government of the time, to make these contracts public, whether or not they contained environmental information.

195 As to whether they contain environmental information, I think I would need to seek legal advice as to whether it is the sort of environmental information that would come under the definition of that sort of environmental information to which the public have a right of access. Basically, they are schedules which define what a contractor has to do as part of its duties. I think there is a danger if contracts of any type are made public, that this could prejudice negotiations between Government and different entities when they 200 are discussing contracts. So I do not agree with the hon. Member opposite. I am willing to take legal advice on that but I do not think I can support that request.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, of course the contracts have been concluded: there are no negotiations with other entities therefore it cannot possibly prejudice any such negotiations. I understand 205 what the hon. –

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker –

Hon. D A Feetham: Do you want me to give way?

210 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: A point of fact, yes.

Hon. D A Feetham: Do you want me to give way?

215 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, if I may, Mr Speaker. I just wanted to point out that the precedent of releasing these contracts could mean that other entities in discussion could have the concern that they might be made public. That is the point that I made, not that these are under discussion.

220 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes and I accept that the Government has taken the policy decision on not disclosing these contracts and certainly, on this side of the House, we accept that. But will he agree with me – and I am asking about Government policy in the future – will he agree to, if there is a change in the scope of the services that are provided by any of these entities under the contracts, will he agree to provide that change or some information in relation to the change of the scope, should the question be asked in the future?

225 I can tell the hon. Gentleman that the disclosure of contracts will not be the subject of questions in the future. You have made your position clear and we are not going to ask you to alter that again, but if there is a change in the scope of the services provided, then surely, of course, that is something that we are entitled to know, should we ask about it in the future.

230 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition is asking whether Government may change its policy on this particular point. I do not make Government policy. I am a Member of the collegiate Government and therefore it is not something that I could say myself at this point in time. It would need to be discussed with my colleagues.

245 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, certainly. The information requested by the hon. Member is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to him.

Mr Speaker: Yes, please.

260 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Very good.
Figures for culling by GOHNS 2008 – 2,303; 2009 – 4,562; 2010 – 4,075; 2011 – 3,491; 2012 – 3,391.
Figures for FERA, which is the UK agency contracted since 2009. Clearly, there are no figures for 2008. 2009 – 3,812; 2010 – 5,508; 2011 – 5,708 and 2012 – 2,694.

265 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, do I understand this correctly that, in 2009, therefore, there are two separate sets of culling by two separate sets of entities, so it is GOHNS 4,562 and then FERA 3,812?

270 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, this was an initiative of the former administration who, at considerable expense, brought over a group of shooters from the United Kingdom to carry out a cull over four years. It was a four year agreement which finalised last year.

275 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, obviously there has been a considerable amount of culling over this period of time, all the way to 2012. We see that there are still a considerable number of seagulls in Gibraltar. Does the Government envisage any kind of change of policy in relation to its approach to seagulls and can the Hon. the Minister please provide some details in relation to that?

280 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, we are looking – I think I may have mentioned this in last year's Budget Speech but I may not have – at increasing the, shall we say, resources put into culling and I will be referring to this in the debate on the Appropriation Bill as part of my Budget Speech. I will be giving details then.

285 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but Mr Speaker, the emphasis in my question was slightly different. The answer really is that it is a continuation of the policy of culling, but is there any variation? In other words, does the Government envisage anything else other than culling in order to control the seagull population? I know that, for example – a number of years ago we had spoken about this because it interests me at a personal level – GOHNS introduced a number of foxes in the Upper Rock. Unfortunately, we do not know what has actually happened with those foxes that were introduced and I think the hon. Gentleman told me that perhaps they are no more, sadly. But are there initiatives of that sort in order to help control the seagull population?

290 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, there are. A number of possibilities are being discussed and I hope to have details available shortly, but I do not have them yet because we have not finalised what 295 those arrangements might be. I know, Mr Speaker, that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition, being a resident of the Upper Rock, would love to see all sorts of animals, as would I, but it is complicated. One needs permits and so on and I am not in a position yet to confirm that. I am sorry.

300 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am not asking for the hon. Gentleman to confirm what decision has been taken, I am asking the hon. Gentleman to just give us a flavour of the types of initiatives that the Government is currently considering. I do not want to steal his thunder for his Budget Speech. I understand that, but if he could give us a flavour I would very much appreciate it and very much welcome it.

305 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: It does include very much the flavour that the Leader of the Opposition has alluded to, but I do not think I can really go further because it involves other people we are discussing with and I am not in a position to say anything at this stage. I think I have answered my question, though: I have provided the figures and a little bit more.

310 Mr Speaker: And the Speaker has been very liberal because this is a Question purely about statistics and now we are dealing with policy. I think the matter has been aired sufficiently.

315 Barbary Macaques on Upper Rock
Optimum numbers, population, culling, management and control

Clerk: Question 256, the Hon. J J Netto.

320 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say what is the optimum number of Barbary Macaques that either the Hon. Minister or the professionals advising the Government think is adequate to maintain the biological integrity of the population in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve with minimal conflict levels with the neighbouring humans?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

325 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions 257 to 265/2013.

Clerk: Question 257.

330 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide the population of Barbary Macaques between 1988 – 2012 on a yearly basis?

Clerk: Question 258.

335 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say if there has been any colonisation of built-up areas of Macaques on a permanent or semi-permanent basis in the last sixteen months and if so, where?

Clerk: Question 259.

340 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say when the new immunological contraceptive method for female Macaques started, how many females have been treated so far and provide details of how this programme will be implemented over the next few years, in order to arrive at the optimal number of Macaques envisaged?

345 Clerk: Question 260.

350 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state the method of contraception used between 1988 – 2012 and the number of female Macaques provided with such contraception on a yearly basis?

Clerk: Question 261.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment please say whether during 2013 355 there has been any culling of Barbary Macaques and if so, how many?

Clerk: Question 262.

360 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say if he is now in a position to state whether the Government has entered into agreement with other authorities for the purpose of exporting Barbary Macaques and if so, could the Hon. Minister inform Parliament of the countries and numbers involved?

365 Clerk: Question 263.

370 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, following the lecture given by Professor Agustin Fuentes in the Elliott Hotel on 3rd March 2013 he stated in answer to a question from me that ‘many of the management measures have already been implemented in the new management plan for Macaques locally’. Therefore, could the Minister for the Environment say what measures in the new management plan have already been implemented and when?

Clerk: Question 264.

375 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, following the visit of Professor Agustin Fuentes and the representative of the National Geographic to Gibraltar, can the Minister for the Environment provide Parliament with a copy of the report submitted to the Minister with regard to observations, findings and recommendations?

Clerk: Question 265.

380 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Environment please provide Parliament with a copy of the Gibraltar Macaques Management Plan?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

385 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, as it is a slightly lengthy answer and I have one schedule, I think what I will do is I will hand the schedule over now and the Members of the Opposition can peruse it as I deal with the rest of the Questions.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 265

Answer to Question 257

Barbary Macaques population list

Year	Population Estimate
2000	126
2001	153
2002	176
2003	205
2004	223
2005	214
2006	242
2007	241
2008	241
2009	212
2010	182
2011	175
2012	183

390 Mr Speaker, now to the answer. The marketing plan of two decades ago recommended a population of 180 Macaques on the Rock. This has, through the years, served as an approximate guide to the preferred numbers. However, as with everything in nature, one cannot be exact as, in the context of conflict with humans, five monkeys in the wrong place would be worse than 1,000 not in the wrong place. The precise number will, therefore, depend on the structure and location of the groups, as well as on the management regime. Therefore, although the figure of 180, which is close to the present population, remains in the background, there could be a variation in both directions.

395

400 There is no population list available that goes back to 1988. The Gibraltar Government only took over the management of the Macaques through Sites Management from the MOD in the early 1990s – it may have been the late 1980s, but I think it is the early 1990s. MOD records have not been located nor have Sites Management records and that is a pity, Mr Speaker, because obviously there is gap in what we know about the history of our Macaques.

405 The Gibraltar Ornithological and Natural History Society took over the management of the Macaques in December 1999, from when figures are available, and that is the schedule that I have handed over to the hon. Member.

410 Colonisation of any area, built up or otherwise, by Barbary Macaques is not a one-off process; it will involve exploratory and quite natural movements which may lead, if resources such as food and shelter are located, in a more or less gradual shift in home range centred around these resources. Whilst some such movements have occurred, as they always do, there has been no colonisation of any built-up area on a permanent or semi-permanent basis in the past sixteen months.

415 Regarding contraception, no immunological contraception has yet been carried out. However 21 Macaques were ‘contracepted’ last year through hormonal implants, as opposed to the 21 in the previous five years together, or an average of about four a year. The figures are 6 in 2007; 3 in 2008; 5 in 2009; 4 in 2010; 3 in 2011 and 21 in 2012. Contraception over the next few years will involve identification of matriline, that is the female lines, within packs, then specific females will be identified and implanted. This will not only slow population expansion but specifically expansion of family groups within packs. The end result of this is that packs will be more contained and less likely to split. Previously, this has not been possible due to the lack of resources available.

420 Government is also looking to invest and allow the permanent surgical contraception of females whose genetic material is already heavily represented within the population. This will, therefore, negate the need to trap females so regularly.

During the past year, six Macaques have unfortunately been put down for veterinary and behavioural reasons.

425 Mr Speaker, discussions continue with a number of entities with a view to exporting Macaques, although no agreements have been finalised. Professor Agustin Fuentes of Notre Dame University gave, if I may say, a fascinating explanation of the research being carried out on the Macaques. This presentation was his, as an independent scientific authority, and therefore I cannot know exactly what measure he was thinking of when he replied. I can, however, report on the following aspects of the plan that have already been acted upon, together with the season when they commenced on the ground – (a) Increased research effort, in Spring 2013; (b) Remote monitoring of Macaque movements, Spring 2013; (c) Production and distribution of information leaflets, Winter 2012/2013; (d) Measures to reduce access to refuse bins, Winter/Spring 2012/2013; (e) Clearing of vegetation on the Upper Rock, Autumn 2013; (f) Increased human resources, Autumn 2012; (g) Increased used of contraception, Autumn 2012; (h) More proactive management of groups, Winter 2011/2012.

435 These measures have been introduced gradually over the past sixteen months and they represent a new philosophy in management. The visit of Professor Fuentes, Dr Lisa Jones-Engel and the National Geographic Team was very recent. I would like to point out that this visit was funded by National Geographic and other US Institutions and not by the Gibraltar Government.

440 No report as such is expected; rather, the results will appear in the forthcoming scientific publications, which take time to produce. I have, in fact, Mr Speaker, been able to put my hands on a publication which covered an earlier visit in 2008, which referred to the extraordinary fact that the Macaques in Gibraltar are almost totally free of disease and I have, for the benefit of the hon. Member, made a copy that he might be interested in.

445 Mr Speaker, Parliament will, indeed, be provided with a copy of the Gibraltar Macaque Plan, which is currently being prepared for publication. It is expected to be launched within the next eight to ten weeks during Professor Fuentes next visit to Gibraltar.

450 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I may, I am grateful to the Minister, first of all, for the information but he has just completed by saying the report – the new management plan – will be ready for publication, I think he said, in about eight weeks from now. Can I ask the Minister, then, whether despite not being ready for publication purposes, whether I can get a copy right now, preferably in electronic form?

455 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, yes, the Macaque Plan is, for all intents and purposes, completed as the hon. Member opposite will know because I used to do a lot of drafting for his Department. I would like to look at it again so a few words may change, but I will certainly endeavour, over the next few days, to facilitate a copy.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I thought I heard the hon. Gentleman say that, under the management plan, I think it was, that the optimum amount of Macaques that were envisaged was 180. I 460 note that from the figures here that, in 2011, it was 175 and in 2012 it is 183. So at the moment, it is more or less the numbers that are envisaged as optimum under that report. What figure below this 183 figure does the Government envisage that it wants to reduce the population of Macaques, given his statements to this House in the past and why that effective discrepancy between what the report says and effectively...?

465 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, as I introduced the subject of the optimum number, I did say that five monkeys in the wrong place is worse than 1,000 not in the wrong place. It really depends on what the monkeys are doing. If we had one particular group that was, shall I say, in an awkward situation, then we could have 50 Macaques but then we would have to do something about that. That is why I said 470 180 is a figure that has been presented in the past: the actual figure that could be stabilised could be more or could be less, depending on what the groups are doing at that given point in time. That is where we are now in trying to determine not exactly numbers, but the location of the groups.

I am not sure if I have explained myself properly but what I am saying is there can be flexibility in both directions. It is where they are, not how many they are.

475 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, no, I understand that entirely. I am just trying to reconcile that with statements that the hon. Gentleman has made both in this House and outside this House. Because the hon. Gentleman outside this House, and here as well, has said, that the Government is actively looking to exportation of apes in order to reduce the numbers. Either you have already made an assessment that there are packs in Gibraltar in relation to certain areas that are problematical and, therefore, the only way that 480 you can deal with those, bar culling, is by exporting them, in which case the Government is therefore accepting that there is a problem present at the moment or, alternatively, you say well we have not made the decision because we do not know what are the optimum numbers. Therefore, we cannot... how on earth did the Government come to the decision that it wants to export all these monkeys to Africa?

485 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, what I am saying is that it depends on what the situation is at any particular point in time. At the moment there are probably two groups that I can think of that we could do without them being where they are. Therefore, if we had an agreement tomorrow to export animals, those would be the groups targeted.

490 But if the agreement is in a month's time and by that time, because of management or because by natural movements they have moved away from that area and another group has come in, we would have to re-assess which is the one that we would have to take. What I am saying is that we have to be flexible because we are dealing with natural systems but I take the hon. Member's point.

495 Hon. D A Feetham: What effectively, therefore, you are saying – and just correct me if I am wrong – you are accepting that there are a couple of populations that are problematical at the present moment, but that you hope that you will be able, through measures that you are introducing, to make them non problematical. In other words, to push them up to the nature reserve, but if that is not possible therefore you are looking at exportation because culling is out of the question.

500 Now do you... if that is the position I would appreciate it if he would confirm it and, if it is, what is the timescale for exportation of these apes because, of course, if they are problematical – and the hon. Gentleman appears to accept that they are being problematical, – it is a problem for the people that live in these areas.

505 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Yes, of course, and we are trying to make them less problematical.

Our prime need is to ensure that the human population does not feel uncomfortable or stressed in any way. So, yes, the main thrust will be to try and control where they are but, at this point in time, there are a number of discussions still on-going and I cannot give a timeframe. No, I just cannot give a timeframe.

510 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, if those talks – and the hon. Gentleman and I again have spoken about this, we share an interest in this, quite apart from the politics... this is not easy, the question of exporting these animals to North Africa. He knows that and I know that. If it becomes an impossibility of exporting these animals to Africa and they continue to be problematical to those areas, will this hon. Gentleman give an undertaking to this House that the party opposite will grasp the nettle and will consider culling as a proper management tool?

515 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that is a hypothetical question.

Mr Speaker: Which, may I say, was asked in February as well, exactly the same question.

520

Upper Rock Nature Reserve Wildlife Wardens

525 Clerk: Question 266, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say when will the Department of the Environment employ the Wildlife Wardens for the Upper Rock Nature Reserve that the Hon. Minister, when not in Government, so vociferously advocated for?

530

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, when I was not in Government I did many things, most quite gently, actually, and not vociferously, and while I advocated Wildlife Wardens, this is not something that I was particularly vociferous about.

535

Mr Speaker, the preparation of the management plan for the Upper Rock Nature Reserve is in progress. This is considering the need for Wildlife Wardens specifically for the Upper Rock. However, it must be remembered that wildlife wardening is not just required on the Upper Rock and the whole question of such wardening is currently under consideration.

540

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, does the hon. Member think that, during the course of this year, we will be able to see the Wildlife Wardens being established, whether it is in the Upper Rock Nature Reserve or within the whole of Gibraltar?

545

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this will depend on the outcome of the work that we are doing at the moment. I cannot confirm or deny the possibility.

550

Western Beach
Compliance with EU swimming standard

Clerk: Question 267, the Hon. J J Netto.

555

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say whether, come this summer, the quality of the water at Western Beach will satisfy the mandatory EU Standard for swimming for beachgoers?

560

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, it is impossible to predict water quality in this scenario. If trends from previous years continue, we expect to see a marked improvement in water quality in coming weeks. Relevant Government Departments are monitoring the water quality at Western Beach very closely.

565

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I do not remember badly, when this question has been raised in the past, the Government I think has alluded to the fact that if they were to see no improvement on the Spanish side from La Línea in relation to dealing with the discharges from the sewage drain waters, that they would take legal action – I think it says in relation to European Union. Could the Minister perhaps update the House on this front?

570

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is something that I would rather discuss with the hon. Member opposite behind the Speaker's chair.

575

Jellyfish increase Method of control

580

Clerk: Question 268, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, further to Question number 742/2012, can the Minister for the Environment say if he is now in a position to state what were the proposals that were being considered 585 last September by the various Ministers in relation to the increasing number of jellyfish in our waters, particularly during the summer season, and what measures, if any, are going to be put in place this year to minimise the extent of this problem for beachgoers?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

590 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the increased occurrence of jellyfish in the Mediterranean region is expected to continue. As stated in my answer to Question No. 742/2012, this is a result, among other factors, of over-fishing and climate change.

595 The proposals considered last year largely revolved around the use of nets to minimise the number of jellyfish reaching our beaches. The Gibraltar Tourist Board, in close consultation with the Department of the Environment, have purchased special nets known as jellyfish booms that are designed to keep jellyfish out of bathing areas and allow relatively safe bathing.

Specific areas in our beaches have been identified and designated for this purpose. These nets are tailor made to suit the physical characteristics of individual beaches and may vary in size. The nets and areas will be surveyed by the beach lifeguards on a daily basis.

600 However, the public is still urged to be cautious, as the nets cannot be 100% effective, especially in heavy seas.

605 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, can the Minister advise that it is Government's intention to protect all of the beaches. Is that the case? I think he mentioned certain areas. I would like him to confirm whether the Government's policy is, in fact, to protect all of the beaches.

610 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, subject to confirmation by the Hon. Minister for Tourism, who is, in fact, leading on this, my understanding is that the intention is that areas in all of the beaches, or at least most of the beaches, will be so done.

I cannot recall which the first area was going to be, but the intention, subject to confirmation – I am sure we can confirm it later – is that most of the beaches will have at least an area with jellyfish booms.

615 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, maybe this is not the place – Gibraltar's Parliament – to ask the Hon. Minister this question, but I do not understand exactly how, what the mechanics are, how this actually works...

Mr Speaker: Will the hon. Member please depress the microphone so that it is more directly...

620 Hon. D J Bossino: The question, Mr Speaker, is what the mechanics of this are, yes, in relation to the jellyfish nets, if I can put it in those terms, as I do not know what the exact term is.

625 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, is the hon. Member asking how the nets work? How they work? Right, well it is a net that is suspended in the water floating, which hangs down to the sea bed, and therefore, in relatively calm waters will stop most jellyfish from coming in, because the mesh is so small the jellyfish cannot come in, but as I said in heavy seas there will be movement and some jellyfish could come in... so there will be fewer jellyfish.

These have been tried in other parts of the Mediterranean, Greece in particular, and I believe these are being brought over from Greece.

630 Obviously, we cannot guarantee 100% success, but we are told that certainly they will improve the situation.

635 Department of the Environment
Publication of 2012 Annual Report

Clerk: Question 269, the Hon. J J Netto.

640 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment say when will the Department of the Environment Annual Report for 2012 be published?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

645 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as is customary, the Annual Reports are published after the air quality data are ratified in summer.

The Department of the Environment Annual Report 2012 will, therefore, be published in the autumn of 2013.

The 2011 Report is available on the Government website.

650

Environmental EU Directives Annual Reports sent to European Commission

655

Clerk: Question 270, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide Parliament with a copy of all annual reports sent to the European Commission with regard to compliance on transposed Environmental EU Directives?

660

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, Annual Reports are sent to the Commission for the following three directives:

665

The Air Quality Framework Directive; The Drinking Water Directive; and the Bathing Water Directive.

Because the hon. Member has not requested a timescale, annual reports are provided for the last five years. I would like to explain, Mr Speaker, that what I am handing over to the hon. Member are copies of the Drinking Water, and the Bathing Water Directives. The Air Quality Framework Directive, is such a massive document, that printing it would have taken a long time and a lot of paper, it will be emailed to him by the Environment Agency and I would ask the hon. Member if he has not received it by tomorrow, if he contacts my office I will make sure that he gets a copy. If it is too large to email we will burn it on a disc so that he can have it promptly.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, if I may, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment did mention that the Annual Reports were in relation to three particular Directives and he then went on to mention the three particular Directives. I was wondering whether, in addition to these particular three Directives, there are other Annual Reports that the Department of the Environment has to submit to the European Commission Directorate on the Environment.

680

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there are other Reports, but they are not annual: they may be after five or six years. The question specifically referred to Annual Reports. There are some written questions which refer to some of the other Reports, to which the answers will be provided at the end, as usual. But the Annual Reports, I am informed by my officials, are these three, annual as opposed to more periodic. If he specifically is interested in any other, if he specifies it then, obviously, that will be provided.

685

Fishing and marine conservation Report from commission of experts

690

Clerk: Question 271, the Hon. J J Netto.

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment provide Parliament with a copy of the report from the commission of experts on fishing and marine conservation which was received by the Government on 20th December 2012?

695

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the report from the commission of experts on fishing and marine conservation is currently being formatted for publication and will be out shortly.

700

Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can I ask, in broad terms, what I asked before, which is even though it is being reformatted for publication, could I have a copy of it straightaway?

705

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, this is a highly sensitive report, which has to be handled in a sensitive manner, and I say shortly... the wait will not be long, and therefore I have to decline the request.

710 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, why draw a difference between not providing the Opposition with the report and actually briefing the Mayor of La Línea with the report? Why should the Mayor of La Línea take a preferential treatment in knowing the content of the report than the official Opposition in Parliament?

715 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether this is an acceptable supplementary, but I have not briefed the Mayor of La Línea about the report and I do not believe any of my colleagues have, either. They may have mentioned it, they may have had a discussion around it but I can, very categorically, certainly from my point of view, state that it has not been discussed.

720 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in fact that cannot possibly be the case, because there is a press release emanating from No. 6 –

725 Mr Speaker: Yes, but with all due respect, this does not arise from the Question at all. It is completely and utterly out of order.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am not going to argue with Mr Speaker about this, but I – 730 Mr Speaker: Of course you are not going to argue. I am the one who is responsible for interpreting the Standing Orders (Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely.) and that is my ruling and you will sit down. We will go on with the business.

(Interjection by the Hon. D A Feetham.) No business to raise that matter as a supplementary. It does not arise from the question at all. Members have got used, over the years, to doing that far too often, and I propose to implement the Standing Orders.

735 Hon. D A Feetham: And Mr Speaker, I will have something to say –

Mr Speaker: And if the hon. Member does not like it – 740 Hon. D A Feetham: I will have something to say during the –

Mr Speaker: You can say whatever you –

Hon. D A Feetham: – debate on parliamentary reform.

745 Mr Speaker: The report –

Hon. D A Feetham: – will not be able to shut me up on this matter.

750 Mr Speaker: If the hon. Member –

Hon. D A Feetham: It is an important issue to the Opposition.

755 Mr Speaker: The report has got nothing to do with me as Speaker. That is a report for Parliament to debate, and the fact that I happen to be the Speaker is purely coincidental.
Next Question.

Upper body lymphoedema treatments Process and care pathway

760 Clerk: Question 272, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

765 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, before asking my Question, may I take this opportunity to congratulate Mr Freddie Pitto on his selection as the new Chief Executive of the GHA and I wish him all the very best in this important and challenging role.

Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain the process, including equipment used and the care pathway, breast cancer sufferers and survivors go through in order to receive upper body lymphoedema treatments?

770 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, patients are referred to the nursing team by a medical practitioner or breast cancer nurse. The patient is then assessed to determine the grade of lymphoedema and best treatment option. This may be manual drainage or a combination of manual and mechanical drainage using the Flowtron Lymph Assist. This treatment is sustained by a determined level of compression support, using either a system of compression bandage or measured sleeve which the patient will wear.

780 Patients will invariably continue to use the compression sleeve long term, as required, since lymphoedema is a chronic long term condition affecting the majority of patients who undergo treatment for breast cancer. Therefore, part of the treatment includes educating patients on management of the condition and prevention strategies to avoid recurrence of the acute phase. Following treatment in the acute phase, patients are reviewed as required.

785 I am supporting the Breast Cancer Support Group in their tremendous efforts to raise awareness of the condition, and studying ways in which we can resource this service more.

Upper body lymphoedema treatments Training and CPD

790 Clerk: Question 273, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

795 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise what training and CPD health professionals receive for administering upper body lymphoedema treatments to breast cancer sufferers and survivors and how many of them are there who offer this?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

800 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, health professionals in the GHA follow an 11-day training programme offered by LEDUC UK, a professional association of lymphoedema practitioners.

The training is comprehensive and includes assessment, diagnosis, skincare, multi-layer bandaging, manual and mechanical drainage within the programme content.

805 Annual updates are provided for health professionals already trained and practising in this field. There is currently a team of four nurses and two physiotherapists who can offer such treatment. However, this is not exclusive to breast cancer patients. There are other patients who can acquire this condition.

Hon. D A Feetham: We will be asking no more supplementary questions, so we can –

Plastic surgery initiative Xanit Hospital, Benalmadena

815 Clerk: Question 274 the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say whether the plastic surgery initiative, in order to reduce the waiting list in breast reduction surgery, will continue at Xanit Hospital in Benalmadena?

820

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

825 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the plastic surgery initiative includes both more frequent visits from UK plastic surgeons and outsourcing operations to surgeons who have been validated by our visiting consultants. Surgeons who operate in Xanit fall into this category. Therefore it is likely that the facilities in Xanit will be used in the future. I stress the word ‘facilities’. The surgeons do vary.

Hydrotherapy pool at St Bernard's Hospital
Date of opening

835 Clerk: Question 275, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise when the hydrotherapy pool at the Physiotherapy Department at St Bernard's Hospital will be opened in order to offer therapy for those patients who need it?

840

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, when the hospital was built, the infrastructure was not provided. No resources, including human resources, were made available to provide the service. The possibility of resourcing this is being considered, although the patient demand for this service, as it does not exist, is not known.

Emergency ambulance
Callout procedure

Clerk: Question 276, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

855

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise what the procedure is if an ambulance is called in an emergency and the two emergency ambulances are otherwise engaged and unable to attend to the call-out?

860

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if both GHA emergency ambulances are committed on a call and a third emergency call comes in, the City Fire Brigade ambulance will be dispatched.

875

Clerk: ...

Hon. I M Ellul-Hammond: I apologise, yes.

Mr Speaker, following the announcement of the retirement of the Chief Ambulance Officer, can the Minister for Health say whether a replacement has been identified, who this person is and when the post will be filled?

880

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the post of Chief Ambulance Officer is being considered as part of a wider GHA management restructuring exercise, and the imminent completion of GHA's paramedic students' course at the end of the year.

885

An external review has been commissioned to advise on how best to configure the ambulance services in Gibraltar to improve the service to our local population and make best use of these new skills. Once this review is complete, a decision will be taken on this specific post.

890

In the interim, a development opportunity has been created, for a nine month period, for two officers to cover the duties within the existing job description. Following a selection process, Kyrone Celecia and Adrian Gerada were selected and commenced their duties on 1st April 2013, the day after the incumbent had retired.

895 They have now started a structured development programme, which includes a management course affiliated with Durham University, and management placement in the UK with the London Ambulance Service.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Dennis Duarte for his work as Chief Ambulance Officer and to wish him a long and satisfying retirement after many years serving the public, not least as Commanding Officer of the Royal Gibraltar Regiment. This is well deserved.

Post-A&E Department care Procedure

905

Clerk: Question 278, the Hon, Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise what the system is for a patient who is attended to at the A&E Department, is then found needing secondary care or further tests, but not necessarily immediately? Will that patient need to go back to Primary Care or will the patient be fast-tracked from A&E?

910

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

915

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, if a patient requires further investigations as an out-patient, they will be discharged from A&E with a GP referral form, (Discharge letter A&E – Request for follow up by GP). That is the name of the form in the GHA system.

920

Orthoptist service Upgrading

Clerk: Question 279, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

925

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say whether there are any plans to increase the Orthoptist service within the Eye Department of the GHA?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

930

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, not at this time.

Clinical Governance Review
Cost breakdown

Clerk: Question 281, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain to whom £128,611.88 for the Clinical Governance Review was paid to and for what exactly?

940

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

945

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the payment was made to Langan & Schroter for the review into the GHA. The breakdown is contained in the schedule that I now hand over.

Answer to Question 281 of 2013

Clerk: Question 282, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

955

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, following on from Question No. 117/2013, can the Minister for Health advise when the GHA Review document will be published?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

960

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as I have stated several times in this House, it was the view of the Board of the Authority and the Executive that steps should be taken to remedy some of the shortcomings highlighted in the Report before this was published.

I am pleased to say that the planned management restructure is now in the process of being implemented and publication will follow shortly.

Clerk: Question 283, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, following on from Question No. 118/2013, can the Minister for Health say when the new GHA website will be ready?

975

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

980

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the website will be live in June 2013. There has been a slight delay – I had announced it would be ready in April – due to technical issues which are now being finalised. It will be followed by a period of testing before going live.

Free complementary therapies
Government policy

985 Clerk: Question 284, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, Can the Minister for Health say what the Government policy is on offering complementary therapies free of charge on the GHA?

990 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, complementary therapies have not generally been provided in the past.

995 However, when recommended by a medical practitioner, the following have been considered: (a) Manipulation therapies (by trained and accredited chiropractors/osteopathy for back pain) referred by the Pain Clinic, and; (b) Acupuncture for the relief of intractable pain, by trained and regulated acupuncturists, when referred by the Pain Relief Service.

GHA Speech & Language Therapy Department
No. of trained paediatric and adult therapists

1005 Clerk: Question 285, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state how many paediatric and adult speech & language therapists are employed in the GHA Speech & Language Therapy Department, giving a breakdown of permanent and contract employees?

1010 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the schedule I now hand over contains the information requested.

Answer to Question 285 of 2013

Speech and Language Therapists

	1 Paediatric Special Needs	- Permanent contract
	1 Paediatric	- Permanent contract
1015	1 Adults	- Permanent contract
	1 Manager (no clinical responsibilities in SLT)	- Permanent contract
	1 Adults (emergency cover Mt Alvernia)	- 3 month contract
	1 Paediatrics (not employed by GHA but assigned to Department under Graduate Scheme)

Repeat prescription service
Nature of changes

Clerk: Question 286, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1025 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain the No. 122 of the Government policies actioned, as per the Government's press release number 815/2012, which says 'change repeat prescription system'? Can the Minister elaborate on how the repeat prescription has changed?

1030 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1035 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the repeat prescription system has changed in that it has now been integrated with the appointment system and allows patients to access their next review appointment for further repeat prescriptions. This now works as follows:

1. A patient can access their next review appointment for repeat prescriptions by coming to the Primary Care Centre when they are down to their last prescription and, by showing this prescription, they will be booked into an appointment with a GP of their choice, before they are out of medication. This has been audited for the first six months since its introduction in October 2012 and, so far, all patients who have used this system have been able to get an appointment with their GP of choice.

2. If a patient runs out of medication and has no more prescriptions left they can present at the Prescription Advisory Unit, where they will be issued with another month's prescription, which they can, in turn, present at the PCC counter as their last prescription and get their next review appointment.

1040 Most GPs are now issuing stable patients with six months of repeat prescriptions at a time, which means that if the patient remains well they will only need to attend the PCC twice a year for review prescriptions which, for most patients, is an acceptable and recommended frequency of medical follow-up.

New-born babies
Screening for hearing

1055 Clerk: Question 287, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if Government has plans to introduce hearing screening for new-born babies?

1060 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, arrangements to start neonatal screening are well under way. We are waiting for an extra scanner and up-dated software. We are also arranging a training programme locally with the equipment suppliers for both Health Visitors/Nurses and the Audiologist.

1065 I am hopeful that we can start the service within a few months.

Primary Care Clinic
Ministerial initiative and move to Rainbow Ward

1070 Clerk: Question 288, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond,

1075 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say when the Primary Care Clinic for children will be moved to Rainbow Ward?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1080 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Question 291/2013.

Clerk: Question 291, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1085 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain how his second 'Ministerial Initiative' in relation to children's health, which he committed to in his Budget speech, has borne fruit and been taken forward?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1090 Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, meetings have been held with the paediatricians and general practitioners and a number of initiatives are under discussion, including the possibility of co-siting primary and secondary care for children.

1095 Assistant nursing positions
Number filled since 2012 Budget

Clerk: Question 289, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1100 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health state, of the 33 new assistant nursing positions earmarked by the Budget of 2012/13, how many have been filled on a full-time basis?

1105 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, all 33 posts were filled with full-time staff at the time.

1110 GP contract
Improvements in service provision

1115 Clerk: Question 290, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain whether the GP contract has been dealt with, after the Minister for Health said in his Budget speech of 2012 that a concern of his was – and I quote – ‘the failure to deal with the impact of the GP contract’.

1120 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, what I was referring to in my Budget speech last year was the fact that, when the Government of the time signed the contract with the General Practitioners in 2007, they agreed to reduce the maximum number of patients seen from 20 to 18 for routine clinics and from 50 to 35 for emergency clinics. This potentially converts to up to 20,000 fewer slots a year.

1125 Mr Speaker, I was not decrying the reduction in patients seen per doctor, as overcrowding slots is good neither for patient nor doctor. My concern was the fact that this had not been compensated for, contributing to some of the problems of difficulty to get appointments.

1130 I have been meeting regularly with the GPs on such issues, and we are identifying improvements. In the meantime, we have taken some steps to improve the situation. These are the provision of a locum as additional long-term cover, and the consolidation of the buddy system at weekends.

1135 GHA complaint system
Working procedure

1140 Clerk: Question 292, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain how the new GHA complaints process will work?

1145 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the matter is currently under discussion with the Ombudsman and I intend to lay a Bill before Parliament in the very near future.

1150

Free dental care
Entitlement and registration

Clerk: Question, 293, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1155

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise which adult groups are eligible for free dental health care on the GHA and the process to go about registering for this free service?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1160

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, any person with exempt status or under the District Medical Services who is in receipt of a Welfare Grant or benefit is eligible for free dental healthcare.

Applicants will complete a form where income is declared, and so eligibility is determined.

1165

Sponsored patient escorts
Allowance entitlements

1170

Clerk: Question 294, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise on the allowance entitlement for an escort of a sponsored patient who is either a friend or a family member, other than the spouse?

1175

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1180

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, all official sponsored patient escorts are entitled to the same allowance, regardless of relationship.

Details on how the allowances are worked out – and they have not changed since 9th December 2011 – is given in the schedule that I now hand over.

Answer to Question 294 of 2013

Households weekly income – ½ the household weekly outgoings = Disposable income is X

If patient & escort live in the same household then the max allowance of £854 – X = weekly sponsored patient allowance

If patient & escort live in separate households then the max separate allowance of £427 – X = weekly sponsored patients allowance.

The max rates for a patient staying in rented accommodation is £427 each total £854

The max rate for patient staying in Calpe house or friends and family £157 each total £314

A computer formula works out based on where the patient is staying.

1185

Mr Speaker: Would the hon. Lady ask the next Question while she reads the schedule, please.

1190

Sponsored patient escorts
Allowable hours outside Gibraltar

Clerk: Question 295, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise what the maximum 1195 length of time an escort is able to remain with a Sponsored Patient, while receiving treatment outside of Gibraltar, and remain in receipt of an allowance?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1200 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there is not a maximum length of stay for an escort to remain with a sponsored patient. An escort is provided to a patient whilst receiving treatment or actively involved with the tertiary centre. The escort, throughout this time, is entitled to remain in receipt of an allowance.

1205

‘Healthy living’ policy for over-60s
Abdominal aortic aneurysm screening

1210 Clerk: Question 296, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health advise whether abdominal aortic aneurysm screening, for the over 60 year olds, will be considered as part of the Government’s ‘healthy living’ policy?

1215

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1220 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Indeed, Mr Speaker. Discussions are advanced on the introduction of screening for abdominal aortic aneurysm, with a multi-disciplinary team actively planning the programme.

1225

‘Enrolled’ nursing grade course Recognition and validation

Clerk: Question 297, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1230 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if the new ‘Enrolled’ nursing grade course is recognised and validated by Kingston & St George’s University and by the Royal College of Nursing? What training will be offered and what accredited qualifications will be attained?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1235 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the NVQ Level 3/Enrolled Nurse training is validated, not by Kingston & St George’s University but by Edexcel, a UK based education and training establishment which gives the student a qualification which is recognised both nationally and internationally. The Royal College of Nursing is a professional association for nurses and is therefore not a validating authority for any nursing programme.

1240 The training will consist of a 55 week programme which is split between clinical practice and theory. Students will spend 36 of these weeks in clinical practice, achieving clinical competencies linked to the NVQ 3 qualification. The remaining weeks will be spent in the School of Health Studies for the theoretical component, which will be assessed using various assessment methods.

1245 When these students have completed and have been successful, this qualification will be recognised by Kingston & St George’s University as an entrance to the degree programme, (together with 5 GCSEs, including English and Maths) should these students want to progress to Staff Nurse level.

Numbers awaiting surgery Waiting list initiatives

Clerk: Question 298, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1255 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health say if he is satisfied with the current level of people awaiting surgery, at 1,044, and what is the GHA doing to address this and bring the numbers down?

1260 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I think I should first comment that the number of people on a waiting list varies depending on the balance between those leaving the list and those entering; and does not provide a picture of surgical activity, rather the relative rate of surgery as against identification of the need for surgical intervention.

1265 The important issue, however, is not the number of people on these lists, but how long they wait. Having said that, no, Mr Speaker, I am not at all satisfied.

I am working with the theatre teams and management on a number of initiatives that are aimed at reducing these numbers drastically.

1270 Achieving this is involving changing ways of working that have remained unchanged, and even unanalysed, for years. Fortunately, I have a team of greatly re-invigorated professionals who have responded magnificently to my initiatives and who will, I am certain, achieve this.

1275 Maximum number of registered pharmacies
Discrepancy in legislation

Clerk: Question 299, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1280 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health explain the discrepancy in answer to Written Question No 245/2012, where it states – and I quote – ‘There is no maximum number of pharmacies allowed to register and dispense medication prescribed by the GHA’, and the ‘Medical and Health (Registration of Pharmacies) Regulations 2008’, under Section 69 of the ‘Medical Health Act’, which provides conditions according to the location and number of existing pharmacies?

1285 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

1290 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there is no contradiction or discrepancy, and the hon. questioner seems to have either misread or failed to understand the legislation.

Section 69 of the Medical and Health Act states – and I quote –

1295 ‘No premises shall be used for the sale by retail of any medicinal product (other than a medicinal product specified in the general sale list) or poison unless the premises have been registered as a pharmacy by the Board’.

This clearly does not limit the number of premises that can be registered.

The 2008 Pharmacy Regulations list, in section 6, a series of criteria that the Board has to consider in order to be able to register a pharmacy. Provided these criteria are satisfied, the premises may be registered as a pharmacy.

1300 The statute does not provide a limit to the number of pharmacies. Therefore, Mr Speaker, my answer to Written Question No. 245/2012 is absolutely correct.

1305 ENTERPRISE, TRAINING, EMPLOYMENT AND HEALTH & SAFETY

Future Job Strategy; Maritime Cadet Training Scheme Employment details and statistics

1310 Clerk: We now move to questions being posed to the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Question 342, the Hon. D J Bossino. Question 342.

1315 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment confirm that Employment and Trading Company Limited, Construction and Training Company Limited, Supported Employment Company Limited and Grad Limited are involved in the Future Job Strategy scheme, whether any other companies have been set up and who the managers of each of these and any other companies which may have been set up are?

- 1320 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.
- Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this Question together with Questions, 345, 346, 347, 363, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 356, 358 and 362.
- 1325 Clerk: Question 345, the Hon. D J Bossino.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide details of the training, to include qualifications, which is undertaken by trainees of the Future Job Strategy, who are trained for specific jobs such as carers in the Care Agency and the School of Nursing?
- 1330 Clerk: Question 346.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question No. 852/2012, can the Government advise how many of the successful applicants for the 40 AA grades were on the unemployment list and for how long, or employed pursuant to the Future Job Strategy?
- 1335 Clerk: Question 347.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House if the arrangements for apprenticeship schemes have been finalised?
- 1340 Clerk: Question 363.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise on how many occasions... (Interjection)
- 1345 Clerk: Question 363. Sorry.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can Government provide details of how many Trainees have been enrolled to pursue Vocational Apprenticeships... 363? (Clerk: 363)
- 1350 Mr Speaker, this is Mr Reyes' Question.
- Clerk: Question 363, the Hon. E J Reyes.
- Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government provide details of how many Trainees have been enrolled to pursue Vocational Apprenticeships since January 2012, giving a breakdown of start dates as Trainees, type of accredited course or courses being followed and projected date or dates for completion of any training being undertaken?
- 1355 Clerk: Question 348.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House how many potential employers have, to date, signed contracts with Employment and Training Company Limited or any other Government company participating in the Future Job Strategy, guaranteeing employment to participants of the scheme, with details of the numbers of participants in respect of each company?
- 1360 Clerk: Question 349.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House how many employers participating in the Future Job Strategy have reneged on the job guarantee?
- 1365 Clerk: Question 350.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise what determines the duration of the fixed term contracts provided under the Future Job Strategy and who determines it?
- 1375 Clerk: Question 351.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question No. 987/2012, can the Minister for Employment provide an update of the employers who have signed contracts with Employment Training Company Limited in respect of Future Job Strategy trainees and have the benefit of a contract with the Government, any public authority or Government owned company for the provision of goods and/or with a value in excess of £2,000?

1385 Clerk: Question 352.

Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question No. 180/2013, can the Minister for Employment state how many Future Job Strategy trainees have been employed, broken down by month, indicating where they have been employed?

1390 Clerk: Question 353.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise on how many occasions he has met with trainees on the Future Job Strategy scheme since it began on 1st February 2012?

1395 Clerk: Question 356.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise how many of those trainees who were originally with the VTS on 1st February 2012, continue to be employed by ETCL or any other Government-owned employer companies participating in the Future Job Strategy?

1400 Clerk: Question 358.

1405 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide current details of how many individuals are participating in the Future Job Strategy, with details of where they are carrying out their placement/training, to include private entities or individuals (such as private companies or partnerships) and in each case the names of such entities and names of the Government Departments, Agencies and Authorities; which Future Job Strategy company they are employed by; what the duration of their contracts are; and how many of these trainees have guaranteed jobs following conclusion of their Future Job Strategy contracts?

1410 Clerk: Question 362, the Hon. E J Reyes.

1415 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government provide details of any changes there may have been to the statistics published on its website at Table ED 18, which shows the total number of Gibraltar students undertaking the Maritime Cadet Training Scheme, but which currently only provides details up to 2nd May 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1420 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, there is a parent company, Economic Development and Employment Company, of which the four companies mentioned in the Question are subsidiaries. The parent company and the subsidiaries are managed by Civil Servants and GDC employees in the Ministry of Enterprise, Training and Employment, with the support of some of the graduates in training.

1425 In the Care Agency the trainee carers are provided with the necessary experience to meet the requirement that enables them to take up employment and, in the case of the School of Nursing, they are currently being trained to obtain a BSc. in nursing.

Of the AAs – the 40 AAs – two were from the unemployment list, one of whom had been registered since 20th February 2013 and the other since 25th July 2012 and one person was a former trainee.

1430 The arrangements for apprenticeship schemes have not yet been finalised, and therefore no apprenticeships have been started yet.

211 potential employers have signed contracts to provide employment to trainees placed with them in the private sector.

The number of trainees per employer is as follows:

1435 136 employers with 1 trainee each; 37 with 2; 16 with 3; 4 with 4; 3 with 5; 3 with 6; 7 with 7; 1 with 9; 1 with 10; 1 with 17; and 1 company with 21

4 employees have failed to honour the Future Job Strategy job guarantee. 4 Employers, sorry – employers. I think this is the same figure that I gave the last time in the answer, so I do not think there has been any increase.

1440 The standard policy in terms of length of training is to provide trainees for a 3-month period, but, where the training requires more time because of the nature of the work, the officer in the Employment Service dealing with the placement provider can authorise a longer period.

Further to my answer to Question 987/2012, I am informed that the following two companies have Government contracts with a value in excess of £2,000; GibrFlora and AM Capurro & Sons.

1445 Since the answer to Question 180/2013, the number of trainees employed has been, by month, as follows: February – 16 in the Private Sector and 7 in the Public Service; March – 18 in the Private sector; and none in the Public Service; April – 16 in the Private Sector, 6 in the Public Service. I have met all the trainees on one occasion at the beginning of the scheme.

1450 93 trainees who were in VTS prior to 1st February 2012 continue to be employed by the Employment Training Company Limited.

1455 As I have explained on a number of occasions previously, trainee carers in the Care Agency and trainee nurses in the Health Authority are guaranteed employment on completion of their training, as are trainees in the Private Sector covered by Business Partnership Agreements. The duration of the contracts depends on the nature of the training, other than those individuals that were inherited from the previous scheme, the number just given, and still remain in training pending the opportunity of finding them suitable employment. The number in this group is the subject of a separate Question, which I have already answered.

The overall number of trainees as at the end of March 2013 was 193 in the Public Sector and 260 in the Private Sector.

1460 Statistics regarding the Maritime Cadet Training Schemes are reviewed on a monthly basis. They were updated in September 2012 to include a new cadet. They will soon be updated again to reflect that this cadet has left the course.

1465 GDC employees
Details and grades

Clerk: Question 343, the Hon. D J Bossino.

1470 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment provide the numbers of new employees which have been employed by the GDC since 9th December 2011 and how many of those have been recruited from the pool of Future Job Strategy trainees?

1475 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): 343? I will answer this Question with 344.

1480 Clerk: Question 344, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House how many individuals are currently employed by the GDC, with details of the grades they hold and where they are currently placed?

1485 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, six persons have been employed by the GDC since 9th December 2011. None have been recruited from the Job Strategy trainees.

1490 As at March 2013, there were 88 employees in the GDC in the following grades: 1 Finance Centre Director; 1 Manager, Employment Service; 1 Legislation Officer; 1 Grade 5T; 3 Grade 5; 17 Grade 4; 14 Grade 3; 29 Grade 2; 19 Grade 1; 1 Traffic Warden; 1 Industrial Grade.

1495 They were placed as follows: 3 employees at Convent Place; 5 in the Housing Administration Department; 3 in Family & Community Affairs; 1 in Education; 3 in Financial Services; 35 in the Employment Department; 2 in Port & Shipping; 32 in Tourism; 2 in Public Transport & Commercial Affairs; 1 in Culture & Heritage; and 1 in the Legislation support Unit.

1500 Unemployment trends
Details, benefit and resident construction workforce

Clerk: Question 354, the Hon. D J Bossino.

Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment advise this House how many of the vacancies opened at the ETB have been filled by individuals who are in employment?

- 1505 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.
- Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with 355 and 357.
- 1510 Clerk: Question 355.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister for Employment report any progress, if at all, in relation to the building up of a resident workforce for the construction industry, as he has stated previously in this House?
- 1515 Clerk: Question 357.
- Hon. D J Bossino: Further to Question No. 1059/2012, can the Minister for Employment state how many people were registered unemployed as at the end of the fourth quarter of 2012 and the first quarter of 2013 and on a month by month basis since September 2012, the number of applications made and accepted for unemployment benefit.
- 1520 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.
- 1525 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, in the calendar year 2012, 5,545 vacancies opened at the ETB have been filled by individuals in employment.
- Based on the records of the Employment Service – which are not 100% accurate – the resident workforce in the construction industry increased by 40 since December 2011.
- 1530 The total number of persons registered unemployed as at the end of the fourth quarter of 2012 was 403, that is Gibraltarians, and the number at the end of the first quarter of 2013 of this year was 463.
- The number of applications made and accepted for unemployment benefit by month is as follows, since September 2012: September – 42 received; 44 approved: this is because, in fact, it can be received in one month and approved in the next. October – 52 received, 45 approved; November – 48 received, 40 approved; December – 28 received, 33 approved; January 2013 – 44 received, 31 approved; February – 33 received, 35 approved; and March – 46 received, and 35 approved.
- 1535
- Inward investment
EU development aid and private funding
- 1540 Clerk: Question 359, the Hon. D J Bossino.
- 1545 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment provide details of any development aid and EU funding which has been approved since the Government took office?
- Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.
- 1550 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker I will answer this question together with Question 360.
- Clerk: Question 360.
- 1555 Hon. D J Bossino: Can the Minister with responsibility for inward investment report to the House what inward investment has come to Gibraltar since 9 December 2011?
- Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.
- 1560 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, there has been no development aid granted in the period in the question.
- Since December 2011, the following ERDF funds have been provided and I will give the hon. Member the recipient's name and the amount provided.
- 1565 CMCI Limited £9,986.03; Jury's Café and Wine Bar Limited £69,820.20; Eazi Telecom Limited £148,140.92; Brilliant Nurseries Limited £19,920; i-Golf (Gibraltar) Limited £140,429; Arena Leisure Limited £34,083.01; Rock Cool Limited £19,786.80; Oasis Eatery Limited £10,523.75; The Mexican Grill Bar Limited £53,013.16; Classic Cuts Limited £15,879.25; The Crab Shack Limited £15,873.42;

1570 Driver and Vehicle Licencing Department (which is a Government Department) £29,256.92; Gibraltar Chronicle Printing Limited £9,461.54. There are four Tourist Board Projects which received, in turn, £141,183.44; £28,962.87; £50,731.69; £44,420.38. Casa Brachetto Limited received £18,949.09; Siddharth Limited £9,804.55; Piece of Cake Limited £11,247.07; GibCargo Limited £19,948.92; Free Style Leisure Limited £19,912.24; Mr Noodles £18,003.12. That is the complete list of EU Funding.

1575 As regards the investments, in the calendar year 2012, 400 new business activities were registered with the Enterprise and Employment Department. Some 10% of these new employers involve participants from outside Gibraltar which, in some cases, amounted to 100% of the ownership.

Accommodation for Moroccan workers Replacement for Buena Vista and Devil's Tower Road Hostels

1580 Clerk: Question 361, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1585 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise what plans they have to rehouse the Moroccan workers in Gibraltar after they vacate the Buena Vista and Devil's Tower Road Hostels?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

1590 Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the Government is currently considering a number of alternative options.

Factory Inspections
Statistics and accident details / Health & Safety Committees

1595 Clerk: Question 364, the Hon. J J Netto.

1600 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety please clarify why, in the monitoring activities carried out by the Factory Inspector for the month of January, February and March of 2013, as shown in the Government website in Table HS.1, there are a total of one hundred and seventy-seven activities, of which one hundred and eleven were carried out in the construction industry?

1605 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training and Employment and Health & Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer the Question together with Questions 365, 366, 367, 368, 369,370 and 371.

1610 Clerk: Question 365.

1615 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety provide Parliament with a summary of the two major reportable accidents, one in February and the other one in March, as reported on the Government website under Table HS.2, stating, amongst other things, the name of the company in which such employees worked and the reason for the accidents as judged by the Factory Inspectors?

Clerk: Question 366.

1620 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government say if the existing Health and Safety Committees that exist in Government Departments, Authorities, Agencies and Government-owned companies collate health and safety statistical information regarding the organisation they belong to?

Clerk: Question 367.

1625 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment and Health & Safety please say what Health and Safety training has been provided to Future Job Strategy trainees either whilst working for Gibraltar Employment Training Company Limited or while seconded to another company, since commencement of this Government policy?

Clerk: Question 368.

1630 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Government name the various Health and Safety Committees which exist in Government Departments, Authorities, Agencies and Government-owned companies and state the number of occasions when such committees met during 2012 and 2013 on a monthly basis?

Clerk: Question 369.

1635 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health & Safety say if, following the recently acquired software programme for the Factory Inspectors, they will now be in a position to renew the publication of annual reports on statistical information on Health and Safety?

Clerk: Question 370.

1640 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Health and Safety provide Parliament with the names of the companies that were issued with two prohibition notices and two improvement notices in January and February 2013, the site in which the notices were issued and stating the period covered by the prohibition notices before the companies complied with the terms of the notices.

1645

Clerk: Question 371.

1650 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker can the Minister for Health and Safety provide the April 2013 statistics on monitoring activities, occupational reportable accidents, enforcement activities, number of times legal advice has been sought and reasons for Factories Inspector issuing Improvement and Prohibition Notices, as these figures were not available at the time Notice for Questions was given?

1655 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the monitoring activities are carried out by the Inspectors on the basis of their professional knowledge and experience.

I can only surmise that the higher incidents of monitoring of construction sites is due to the fact that, unlike other establishments, different building sites are constantly closing and being opened whilst a bank or a shop, for example, continues to provide the same working environment, once inspected. In addition, the last report published for 2006 showed that accidents on building sites far outnumbered those in other industries.

1660 Details of the two accidents referred to in Table HS.2 are as follows:

1. The major accident that occurred on 15th February 2013 concerned a qualified electrician aged 52. He fell off a step ladder whilst repairing an electrical fault at a school, causing a fractured right wrist.
2. The major accident that occurred on 19th March 2013 concerned a 40-year old. He slipped on a slippery surface whilst delivering 18.9 litre water bottles, causing breakage and displacement of the bone on the right hand.

1665 The Inspectorate considers that extra care and attention by those involved could have been exercised and are nonetheless satisfied that no further investigation was needed. I am informed, as regards the question of the committees, that no such committees have ever existed within Government Departments, Authorities, Agencies or Government-owned companies. Therefore, there have never been any meetings of any such committees.

1670 The Employment Training Company does not undertake any work itself. Its employees are placed with training providers, who give them the same Health and Safety training as they give the rest of their staff in the same work environment.

1675 I am informed that the last Annual Report was produced by outside consultants in 2007. I am not aware why it was discontinued nor that the issue was that the right software was available since the Inspectorate, I understand, was not involved in its production previously.

Two prohibition notices were served, one in January on Suite 18-20, Block 3, Water Gardens for not complying with the Construction, Design, Management Regulations, and one in February on North Mole Industrial Park for not notifying the project as per (CDM) Construction Design Regulations.

1680 The two improvement notices were in February on 265 Main Street for non-compliance with Workplace (Health, Safety & Welfare) Regulations and Control of Asbestos at Work Regulations. The second, in February, was on 309 Main Street for non-compliance with Workplace Regulations in relation to fire extinguishers, escape routes and general housekeeping. All the parties complied with the requirements within two or three days.

1685 Health and Safety statistics for the month of April 2013 are as follows: monitoring activities – meetings, 8; advice, 7; complaints, 1; inspections, 15; follow-ups, 3; and site visits, 12; occupational reportable accidents – 3 minor accidents; enforcement activities – nil; legal advice – nil; reason for Factory Inspectors issuing Improvement and Prohibition Notices – nil.

Financial Services and Gaming Jobs lost and created in 2012-13

1695 Clerk: Question 372, the Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister please state how many jobs were lost in (a) the Financial Services Sector and (b) the Gaming Sector in 2012 and 2013.

1700 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health and Safety.

Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment, and Health & Safety (Hon. J J Bossano): I will answer this Question together with Question 373.

1705 Clerk: Question 373.

Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please state how many new jobs were created in (a) the Financial Services Sector and (b) the Gaming Sector in 2012 and 2013.

1710 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health & Safety.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, it is impossible to provide the information requested without a manual check for every month of 2012 and 2013 of every single employer classified within the Financial Services Sector and the Gaming Sector.

1715 The Question requires that, in respect of each such employer, the job titles be examined in order to establish whether all the jobs that were registered with the Employment Service on 2nd January 2012, for example, were still there on 3rd January 2012 and, if not, how many had ceased to exist, as opposed to becoming vacant. Equally, there would have to be another exercise to look at the jobs on 3rd January 2012 to discover whether any new jobs had been created in addition to the jobs existing on 2nd January 2012 or to replace any jobs lost.

1720 The Gaming Industry, in particular, has a huge turnover of staff which may simply be replacing people leaving or maybe new jobs being created. In any event, the records of the Employment Service are not so accurate that they can be relied upon as evidence of the existence of any other jobs in these two sectors or any other sector of the economy, for that matter, since the registration of termination of contracts is frequently submitted after long delays or not at all. All that I can tell the House is that there is no evidence of an overall reduction in size of the two sectors in 2012 or 2013.

1725 On the basis of the numbers registered in the ETB under the industry Code for Banking, Insurance and Finance, there were 3,732 persons in employment in December 2011, 3,786 in December 2012 and 3,877 on 31st March 2013. Therefore, subject to the caveat that I have entered as to accuracy, the trend shows an increase in December over the previous year and an even bigger increase in the first quarter of this year.

1730 As regards Gaming companies, this is not a classified industry group and we therefore have to rely on the information provided by individual employers on the filling of vacancies and notices of terminations. For 2012, terminations were 662 from all the companies collectively and vacancies filled 1,028. For the first quarter of 2013, terminations have been 157 and vacancies filled 247. These figures indicate that the numbers in employment grew in both 2012 and the first quarter of this year in Gaming, as well as in Banking and Finance.

1740 Government and Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures Value, breakdown and investments

Clerk: Question 374 the Hon. D A Feetham.

1745 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide the total value of Government Debentures outstanding as at 11th December 2011?

1775 Clerk: Question 379.

1780 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide a total value of Government Debentures which, since 11th December 2011, have been withdrawn or redeemed and then reissued or reinvested in Debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 380.

1785 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister provide a total value of Government Debentures which, since 11th December 2011, have been withdrawn or redeemed and have not been reinvested in other Government Debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 381.

1790 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister state what is the current maximum limit that any individual or entity can invest in Debentures or other debt security issued by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Question 382.

1795 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please state the total value of Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures or other debt security outstanding as at 11th December 2011, how much is held by (a) residents of Gibraltar and how many of these are individuals or companies and (b) non-residents and how many of these are individuals or companies?

1800 Clerk: Question 383.

1805 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please state, out of the total value of Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures or other debt security outstanding as at 1st May 2013 how much is held by (a) residents of Gibraltar and how many of these are individuals or companies and, (b), non-residents and how many of these are individuals or companies?

Clerk: Question 384.

1810 Hon. D A Feetham: Will the Chief Minister please provide a breakdown showing how the proceeds from Gibraltar Savings Bank Debentures, or other debt security outstanding as at 1st May 2013, is invested or has been used by the Gibraltar Savings Bank?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Enterprise, Training, Employment and Health and Safety.

1815 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the total value of Government Debentures outstanding as at 11th December 2011 was £320,616,300. As at 1st May 2013, the amount was £169,814,800. The total value of Savings Bank Securities outstanding as at 11th December 2011 was £261,689,867, broken down as follows:

	Monthly Income Debentures	£11,617,600
1820	Pensioners Monthly Income Debentures	£7,717,400
	Other Special Debenture Issues at 2%	£4,291,193

	5-Year Fixed Term Monthly Income Debenture (January 2018)	£52,267,900
	Limited Issue Fixed Monthly Income Debenture (31 December 2013)	£4,221,600
	5-Year Fixed Term Monthly Income Debenture (March 2018)	£44,610,100
1850	Other Special Debenture Issues at 2%	£2,344,118

Mr Speaker: Has the Hon. Minister, perchance, missed the Fixed Monthly Income, December 2015, £31,233,100?

1855	Hon. J J Bossano: I may have done, in which case I will read it out just in case:
	Limited Issue Fixed Monthly Income Debenture (31 December 2015)	£31,233,100
	10-Year Accumulator Bonds
	Maturing in February 2012	£877,300
	Maturing in May 2012	£2,856,400
1860	Maturing in August 2012	£662,200
	Maturing in November 2012	£569,100
	Maturing in January 2013	£2,754,600
	Pensioner Accumulator Bond
	Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bond, April 2012	£1,457,000
1865	Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bond, August 2012	£2,133,300
	Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bond, November 2012	£495,200
	Monthly Income Pensioner Accumulator Bond, January 2013	£1,905,000
	Ordinary Deposits	£57,748,117
	Non-Government Call Accounts	£1,271,283
1870	Government Accounts (tentative)	£221,791,332

Since 11th December, the total value of Government Debentures redeemed is £233.6m. The holders of the Debentures re-invested £65.9m in other Government Debentures and £123.8m in other debt securities of the Savings Bank and withdrew £43.9m: that is they were repaid in cash, that amount.

1875 The only current maximum investment is in respect of Ordinary Accounts, where it is £100,000 per person, or in Monthly Income Debentures, where it is £50,000 per person

The information detailing the values of Debentures or securities of the Savings Bank held by 1880 residents, non-residents, individuals and companies for 11th December 2011 is not readily available and may take some time to compile from a manual examination of each individual account – it is not held in electronic form – so I will provide that to the Member when the exercise is completed. The position for the current date, of course, is much easier and has been done and, therefore, I can tell him that, on 1st May 2013, non-residents, all of whom had individual accounts – there were no company accounts for non-residents – held less than 1% of the value of the total debt of the figure that I have already given him. In respect of the residents, who were 99% of the total, less than 1% of that 99% was held by local companies, so 99% are residents and 98 of those 99 are individuals and not companies.

1885 The list of investments of the Gibraltar Savings Bank is contained in the schedule which I now hand over to the hon. Member.

EQUALITY, SOCIAL SERVICES AND THE ELDERLY

1895

Chaplow Wilson Associates Alzheimer and Dementia design projects

Clerk: Answers to Questions continue.

Question 300/2013, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1900

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say what were the last five Alzheimer and Dementia design projects Mr Bob Wilson from Chaplow Wilson Associates advised on, not necessarily in Gibraltar, giving the dates?

1905

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, Mr Wilson has informed me of the following – after thirty years in the building industry, latterly as a Managing Director, he commenced his involvement with designing for people with dementia almost twenty years ago with Methodist Homes for the Aged, a major national operator in the field of dementia care in the UK. Whilst with MHA, he created a design concept for one of the first purpose-built design dementia homes in the UK which was completed in 1996 and is still regarded as a leader in the field.

The successful design concept was quickly repeated in a second home in Stoke-on-Trent and in several other existing homes across the UK, where extensions to provide dementia care accommodation could be provided. On leaving MHA in 2000, he set up Chaplow Wilson Associates to provide specialised services in designing for dementia. He was also invited by the Joseph Rowntree Foundation to join a Professor of Dementia Care at Northampton University to produce a Good Practice Guide for the design and management of care homes for people with dementia, published in 2002. It is regularly used as a reference document.

1915

Furthermore, Mr Wilson has conducted feasibility studies and has advised various commercial organisations. He has also contributed to workshops and presented papers for designing on dementia. The following list shows significant projects in which Mr Wilson was a consultant advisor –

1925

Methodist Homes for the Aged Guernsey Limited 2005/2010 – this was a finalist in the highly-regarded Pinders Healthcare Design Award; Whitepost Healthcare Group Limited, 2008/2009; St. John's Home, Northampton 2005/2006; Lancashire County Council 2003/2004; Colten Healthcare Limited 2002 – Winner of the Pinders Healthcare Design Award.

1930

National Dementia Strategy
Date of publication

1935

Clerk: Question 301, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1940

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say when the Government will be publishing its National Dementia Strategy for the treatment and care of people with Alzheimer and Dementia and what will the Strategy include?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1945

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Care Agency is working with the GHA on a National Dementia Strategy. This project is led by the GHA and involves a multi-disciplinary team of relevant professionals in this field.

1950

The Strategy document is still a draft working document and, as such, I cannot at this stage say what it will include but, generally, it will deal with the incidence of dementia, services and facilities available. It is envisaged that the plan will be published at the end of the year. I would add that action in dealing with dementia will not await the publication of this document.

1955

RNH Alzheimer and Dementia facility
Date of completion

Clerk: Question 302, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1960

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say what the date of completion for the Alzheimer and Dementia facility at the former RNH site is?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1965

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, on the current timescales, we envisage that it will be completed by the end of this year. As with everything in major construction works, it may be that this means early next year.

1970

John Mackintosh Wing elderly accommodation
Cost and timescale of conversion to Dementia facility

Clerk: Question 303, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

1975

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services confirm that the completed – since April 2012 – brand new independent living quarters for the elderly at the John Mackintosh Wing of the former St. Bernard's Hospital will be gutted and converted into a dementia facility and how much will this cost and when will this be ready?

1980

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

1985

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Government embarked on show-casing these flats to approximately 150 pensioners who were the target residents for these flats, which were built by the previous administration. The result was outstanding, in that only four or five people seemed interested and even these were subject to conditions such as the choice of flat. The main criticism by the public was that the flats were too small and that they were not in an accessible area. This is in addition to the criticism by professionals as to the layout of these flats.

With regard to the practicality of the use of these flats, they could not be offered to people with mobility issues as it was practically impossible to move around the flat with a Zimmer frame or wheelchair and the shower step was too high and with no support.

The real question should be why it was that the previous administration spent over £3 million on a design that would not meet the needs of their targeted audience. After this fiasco and misuse of public monies, this administration is working on a design that will have facilities to care for people with Dementia and Alzheimers and will also have a wing for semi-independent living. Some of the gutting has 1995 already commenced. The full, detailed designs have yet to be finalised and therefore the cost of such a conversion has not yet been stipulated.

2000 Registration of death
One stop, simpler system

Clerk: Question 304, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2005 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services advise how the one stop system and simpler procedure after the death of a family member is being addressed, as per the request of the Gibraltar Senior Citizens Association?

2010 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, following representations made to us by the Senior Citizens Association, we are looking to establish a one stop system for the purposes of registering a death. Once arrangements have been finalised, Government will make an announcement.

2015

Care facilities for looked-after children Ratio of staff per child

2020

Clerk: Question 305, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state how many care workers in care facilities are assigned per looked-after child, as at 30th April 2013.

2025

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, staff ratios for the number of care workers assigned to looked after children vary. Generally, the ratio of care worker to looked-after child is one to two. If a child has a disability which results in the need for greater care or has challenging behaviour, the ratio could be one to one. On 30th April 2013 this ratio was applied.

Looked-after children
Counselling sessions

2040 Clerk: Question 306, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say how many looked-after children are currently attending counselling sessions and who provides this service?

2045 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, currently six looked-after children attend counselling sessions provided by the psychological and therapeutic team at Social Services of the Care Agency.

2050

Care Agency
18-year old looked-after children

2055 Clerk: Question 307, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say how many 18-year old looked-after children remain within the care of the Care Agency and, if so, explain why they have not been integrated back within the community?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, there are none.

2065

Secure Children's Unit
Location, resources and details

2070

Clerk: Question 308, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services advise where the Secure Unit for children with severe challenging behaviour will be located, what specialist care plans will be provided for these children and what resources will be available either in-house, the Care Agency or externally for the needs of those looked after children?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Care Agency has not yet determined where the secure unit for children with severe challenging behaviour will be located.

2080

Options are being considered in regard to the service being either independently placed, or coterminously placed, within a Challenging Behaviour Unit. You will recall, however, that it was the GSD administration who removed the secure provision from the Children Act 2009.

2085

St Bernadette's Resource Centre
Maximising service users' potential

2090

Clerk: Question 309, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in the Government's Press Release No. 173/2012, the Minister for Social Services stated that her ultimate aim for St. Bernadette's Resource Centre is to have a programme that will maximise the potential of each service user. Can the Minister advise whether she has achieved the goal set and what more needs to be done?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, as stated in the press release, the ultimate aim for St. Bernadette's is to have a programme that will maximise the potential of each service user. This is part of the on-going review of the disability services.

St Bernadette's Resource Centre
Expanding and improving service

2110

Clerk: Question 310, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in the Government's Press Release number 173/2012, the Minister for Social Services stated that she would like to explore how such centres are run in other places, with a view to expanding and improving the service that is offered in Gibraltar to adults with learning disabilities. Can the Minister advise what centre or centres she has visited, what she has learned from visiting such a centre or centres, and what, if any, initiative has the Hon. Minister introduced as a result of the visits?

2120 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the centres I have visited are as follows: Bangeston Hall, UK; Asansul Centre for Adults in Palmones and various Asansul Centres in La Línea 2125 During all these visits I have held meetings with the management of these centres and have discussed general issues such as managing the centre, activity programmes and staff training.

Following my visits I have discussed matters with the Care Agency management as part of our continuous review of the disability service.

2130

Provision for disabled Improvements

2135 Clerk: Question 311, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, in the Government's Press Release number 801/2012, the Minister for Social Services stated then that we have made significant improvements for the disabled. Can the Minister advise what these improvements are?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since taking office, equality is on this Government's agenda and we are undertaking a robust review of all matters, including disability.

2145

I am delighted to say that the following steps have been taken so far: assessment of the Gibraltar Parliament and plans to make it accessible as part of the refurbishment; assessment of St. Michael's Cave as part of the refurbishment and making it accessible – a platform lift installed for the use of wheelchair users and accessible toilets; accessibility audit of the Gibraltar International Airport; accessibility audit of the GSLA shallow pool and surrounding area, installation of a new hoist for disabled bathers into the sea, repair of the hoists into the pool and repair of toilet facilities; accessibility to Gibraltar beaches, Catalan Bay, Camp Bay and improvements to Eastern Beach; provision for people with disabilities at major public events, such as National Day, the Mega Concert and the Three Kings Cavalcade; celebration of International Day of people with disabilities for the first time; working on the creation of a disability register; working on disability legislation and, in particular, the UN Convention on the rights of people with disabilities; programme for disability awareness training being prepared for public service employees; funding of civil and public servants attending BSL Level 1 and 2 courses; programme for installation of voice synthesizers in lifts in Government estates; review of the Care Agency Disability Service and investment in staff training; establishment of Supported Employment Limited; increase of disability allowance by 16% with effect from August 2012; abolition of input duty on any vehicle which is adapted for the use of a person with a disability; additional funding for the contingencies budget; increase of 50% on top of the present rates of all sponsored patients in respect of sponsored patients who are disabled, changes to the assessment of disabled person's tax allowance and of the allowance based system.

Protection for the disabled United Nations Convention model

2170

Clerk: Question 312, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services advise when the Government will legislate to further protect disabled people using the terms of the United Nations Convention on the rights of disabled persons as a model?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is currently being addressed. I am working with our lawyers on this important piece of legislation and aim to introduce it as soon as possible.

2180

British Sign Language Course
Cost of Government funding

2185 Clerk: Question 313, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services state how much it cost for Government to fund the Level 1 British Sign Language Course of March 19th 2012?

2190 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

2195 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is a course that is organised and run by GHITA (Gibraltar Hearing Impaired Tinnitus Association). Government did not fund the course as such but paid for the fee for individuals from Government Departments who attended as part of the Government's Disability Awareness Policy. The cost of this was as follows: Care Agency, two attendees, cost £550; GHA, three attendees, cost £850; Department of Education, three attendees, cost £870.

2200 British Sign Language Course, Level 2

Clerk: Question 314, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2205 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say who will be funding the Level 2 British Sign Language Course and state how much it will cost?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

2210 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is a course that is organised and run by GHITA (Gibraltar Hearing Impaired Tinnitus Association), not the Government and I am, therefore, unable to comment how much the course will cost. I can confirm that the following employees of Government Departments will be attending: Care Agency, one attendee, £500; GHA, one attendee, £500; Department of Education, one attendee, £500.

Vulnerable adults with mental health issues
Social Services safety net for those on remand

2220

Clerk: Question 315, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2225 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services advise what the Social Services safety net is for vulnerable adults with mental health issues who may be on remand for months?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

2230 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, people on remand are the responsibility of the Prison Service. Adults with mental health issues come under the remit of the mental health team at the GHA, not the Social Services Department of the Care Agency. This has always been the position.

2235 Anyone with on-going mental health issues, to include those on remand, would be reviewed and receive treatment from the psychiatrist from the Mental Health Team at the request of the Superintendent of the Prison.

2240 Rehabilitation at Bruce's Farm Numbers and details

Clerk: Question 316, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2245 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services say how many individuals have been undergoing rehabilitation at Bruce's Farm over the last eighteen months on a monthly basis and for what type of addiction?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

2250 Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, in the month of December 2011 there were two individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of January 2012 there were six individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of February 2012 there were six individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of March 2012 there were eight individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol and gambling addiction; in the month of April 2012 there were eight individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol and/or gambling addiction; in the month of May 2012 there were five individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of June 2012 there were six individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug addiction; in the month of July 2012 there were five individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug addiction; in the month of August 2012 there were three individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of September 2012 there were three individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of October 2012 there were seven individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of November 2012 there were five individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of December 2012 there were four individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of January 2013 there were four individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of February 2013 there were four individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol and/or gambling addiction; in the month of March 2013 there were three individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; in the month of April 2013 there were five individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction; and, from the beginning of this month to 22nd May, there were four individuals undergoing rehabilitation for drug and/or alcohol addiction.

Shop Mobility services
Suppliers of wheelchairs and scooters

Clerk: Question 317, the Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond.

2280 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Social Services provide this House with the names of all companies, trusts or charities involved in supplying wheelchairs and/or scooters to the Care Agency for the Shop Mobility services of Gibraltar since December 9th 2011?

2285 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly.

Minister for Equality, Social Services and the Elderly (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since 9th December 2011 no companies, trusts or charities have been involved in supplying wheelchairs and/or scooters to the Care Agency for the Shop Mobility services.

Questions for Written Answer

2295 Clerk: With that, we come to the end of Answers to Oral Questions and now we move to Answers to Written Questions.
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2300 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the answers to the Written Questions numbers W32/2013 through to W58/2013.

Mr Speaker, I regret to say that it has not been possible in the time available to provide the answer to Written Question number 55, which will be provided as soon as possible and certainly before the end of the current meeting.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

2305 Clerk: Suspension of Standing Orders, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I beg to move, under Standing Order 7(3), to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with Government Bills.

2310 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

BILLS

2315

FIRST AND SECOND READINGS

Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

2320

Clerk: Bills, First and Second Reading.

A Bill for an Act to amend the Development Aid Act: the Hon. the Chief Minister.

2325 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Development Aid Act be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Development Aid Act be read a first time.

2330 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Development Aid (Amendment) Act 2012.

2335

Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

2340 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker I have the honour to move that the Bill now be read a second time. Mr Speaker, the purpose of this Bill is to designate the Chief Minister, or such Minister as he may designate from time to time, as the person with responsibility to administer the provisions of the Act and that should be done under the proposed amendment either by the Chief Minister or from the person designated by notice in the Gazette.

2345 Mr Speaker, I circulated an amendment that I trust hon. Members have received after discussion with the Hon. the previous the Leader of the Opposition, Mr Caruana, as to the standard wording that would be used in that type of designation under previous sections that had been amended in that way, which would read as follows: 'Minister means the Chief Minister or such other Minister as the Chief Minister may, from time to time, designate by notice in the Gazette.' I understand that, with that amendment, hon. Members opposite would not have an issue with the proposed change and we are quite happy to move it in those terms.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the Question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Development Aid Act be read a second time.

2355 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Development Aid (Amendment) Act 2012.

Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading 2365 of the Bill be taken today, if all Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

2370

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

2375 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Tobacco Act 1997, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Tobacco Act 1997 be read a first time.

2380 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Tobacco Act 1997 be read a first time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2385 Clerk: The Tobacco Amendment Act 2013.

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

2390

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

This Bill introduces two amendments to the Tobacco Act which extend the powers of the Magistrates Court in relation to things seized or which come into the possession of a Police or Customs officer in connection with any criminal offences under the Tobacco Act 1997. Essentially, the Bill gives power to the Courts to act in respect of such property as it may consider appropriate, something which we are advised the Courts at present have found that they do not have, given the exact terms of the Tobacco Act 1997.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the Question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Tobacco Act 1997 be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2405 Clerk: The Tobacco (Amendment) Act 2013.

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2410

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

2415 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

2420

Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Port Act: the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

2425

Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr

Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Port Act be read a first time.

2430 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Port Act be read a first time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Port Act (Amendment) Act 2012.

2435

Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012
Second Reading approved

2440 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

On 6th December of last year, the Government introduced the Port Amendment (No. 2) Rules and the Gibraltar Merchant Shipping (Prevention of Pollution from Ships) (Amendment) Regulations 2012. The purpose of these measures was to stiffen penalties for polluters in British Gibraltar territorial waters. The Government hopes and expects that the new penalties for would-be polluters, which are in line with other European jurisdictions, will be dissuasive, even as they are proportionate. On the same day, the Government published the present Bill.

2445 We did so in order to clarify the already ample powers conferred by section 19 of the Port Act to make Rules such as the Port (Amendment No. 2) Rules, in particular the creation of indictable offences. We have done this, Mr Speaker, by proposing that the present section 19, paragraph J, of the Port Act, which deals specifically with penalties, and which is one of numerous, but non-exhaustive matters cited in section 19, for which the Government can make rules, is substituted with a new section 19J. The new section 19J makes express reference to the creation of indictable offences and expressly disappplies any limitations on penalties provided by section 23B of the Interpretation and General Clauses Act.

2450 As a further point, Mr Speaker, I have noticed that section 2 of the Bill says that the Port Act (Amendment) Act is amended and, of course, this should read 'the Port Act is amended'.

2455 Mr Speaker, this House will recall that, last year, in connection with the second reading of the Trade Licensing (Amendment) Bill, I expressly thanked the Hon. Mr Bossino for having called me before the debate to express his views on certain aspects of that Bill and, for the purposes of Hansard, I note that the hon. Gentleman wrote to me to set out three legal points in respect of this Bill that we currently debate, and which did prompt me to consider both the Bill and the Rules afresh in the light of the hon. Gentleman's queries and to once again consider the matter with my legal team.

2460 After due examination of all of these legal issues with Counsel, I have been satisfied of the position. I called the hon. Gentleman to discuss the reasons why I was satisfied with both the Bill as currently drafted and the Rules as currently drafted. Following our telephone discussion, however, I have agreed with the hon. Gentleman to amend the Port Rules in the manner that I have provided. I have shown him a copy which we have discussed behind the Speaker's Chair and with which he is content.

2465 Simply for the purposes of Hansard, Mr Speaker, I note that whilst the amendments to the Rules are not, in my view, and as I have advised the hon. Member, strictly necessary, I do take the point of the Hon. Mr Bossino that, given even the slightest chance that a would-be polluter may escape prosecution, it is best to err on the side of caution and effect the amendments that he proposed and which I will publish in the new Rules in the Gazette.

2470 I therefore take the opportunity to once again thank the hon. Gentleman for this constructive approach, which I am sure all hon. Members agree makes for better laws being enacted. In the light of the above, Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the Question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill?

2480 Hon. D J Bossino: Yes, Mr Speaker, simply to confirm that the Opposition will be supporting this Bill and, in relation to the points that – I was just about to say my hon. Friend – the Hon. the Minister for the Port has said, as to the modus operandi which certainly I have adopted and he has gratefully accepted, in terms of making any technical issues which arise and putting them to him by e-mail and by telephone prior to the meeting of the House, is one when there is co-operation on the other side, can work to everybody's benefit, both in terms of occupying less time in this Parliament and, also as the hon. Member opposite rightly mentions, coming up with better law. So long, of course – and with this caveat – that it is set out, for the purposes of Hansard, what points were, in fact, raised, and I am satisfied that the hon. Member has done that.

2490 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill – does the hon. Mover wish to reply?

Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, thank you.

2495 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Port Act be read a second time.
Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Port Act (Amendment) Act 2012.

2500

Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2505 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

2510

Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013
First Reading approved

2515 Clerk: The Bill for an Act to amend the Licensing and Fees Act: the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port.

2520 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Licensing and Fees Act be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Licensing and Fees Act be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Act 2013.

2530

Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013
Second Reading approved

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

2535 Mr Speaker, this Bill amends the Licensing and Fees Act by changing outdated references to 'Financial and Development Secretary' and references to 'Governor' throughout the Act. In the circumstances, references to 'Financial and Development Secretary' throughout the Act have been changed to Financial Secretary: similarly, references to 'Governor' throughout the Act have been changed to Government.

2540 These changes are in line with the Gibraltar (General Amendments) (No. 1) Act 2007 and therefore reflect the language currently used in Gibraltar legislation.

I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the Question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

2545 I now put the Question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Licensing and Fees Act be read a second time.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Act 2013.

2550

Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

2555 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

2560

COMMITTEE STAGE

2565 Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012
Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013
Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012
Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013

2570 Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills, clause by clause: The Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012; The Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013; The Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012; and the Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013.

2575

In Committee of the whole Parliament

2580 Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Development Aid Act.
Clause 1

2585

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2.

2590 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there is a letter that has been circulated to Members which reflects the amendment I propose to Clause 2, that it should read as follows:

'Minister means the Chief Minister or such other Minister as the Chief Minister may from time to time designate by notice in the Gazette'.

2595

Mr Chairman: Does any hon. Member wish to speak on this amendment?
I now move that the amendment be approved.
Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

2600

Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: The Long Title.
Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against?

2605

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2610 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Tobacco Act 1997.
Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2615 Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2620 Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2625 Port Act (Amendment) Bill 20102
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to Amend the Port Act.
Clause 1.

2630 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.
There is an amendment to Clause 1 involving change of the title.

2635 Minister for Tourism, Commercial Affairs, Public Transport and the Port (Hon. N F Costa):
Yes, Mr Speaker, to change The Port Act (Amendment) Act to The Port Act.

Mr Chairman: Does any hon. Member wish to speak on the amendment, which changes the title from 'Port Act (Amendment) Act' to Port Act?
Carried.

2640 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, the change that I propose relates to Clause 2, not to Clause 1.

Clerk: In Clause 1 the law is cited as 'The Port Act (Amendment) Act'. Is that correct?

2645 Hon. N F Costa: That is correct.

Clerk: Right, so the change appears in Clause 2, when it should read 'The Port Act'.

2650 Hon. N F Costa: That's right. Yes, Mr Chairman, to clarify, there is no amendment moved in respect of Clause 1. Because Mr Clerk pointed to me, I assumed we had moved to Clause 2.

Clerk: Clause 2.

2655 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Chairman, as previously stated, 'The Port Act (Amendment) Act' is amended to 'The Port Act.'

Mr Chairman: Does any Member wish to speak on this amendment, which is consequential to the amendment to Clause 1?

2660 So Clause 2, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2665 Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013
Clauses considered and approved

2670 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend The Licensing and Fees Act.
Clause 1.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2675 Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2680 Clerk: The Long Title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

2685 BILLS FOR THIRD READING

Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012

Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013

Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012

2690 Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013

Third Reading approved: Bills passed

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2695 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Development Aid Act (Amendment) Bill 2012; the Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013; the Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012; and the Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013, have been considered in Committee and agreed to, with amendments, and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

2700 Mr Speaker: I now put the Question, which is that the Development Aid (Amendment) Bill; the Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013; the Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012; and the Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013, be read a third time and passed. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? (Interjection)

I am advised that, for Hansard purposes, we should take them individually. Very well.

2705 I now put the Question, which is that The Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012 be read a third time and passed.

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

No, we still have not got it right. Fortunately we are in Committee...

2710 Those in favour of The Development Aid (Amendment) Bill 2012? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Those in favour of the Tobacco (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Those in favour of the Port Act (Amendment) Bill 2012? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Those in favour of the Licensing and Fees (Amendment) Bill 2013? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

ADJOURNMENT

2720 Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that this House do now adjourn to Tuesday 4th June 2013 at 9.15 a.m. At that time the House will have an opportunity of considering in detail the proposals of the Commission on Democratic and Political Reform.

2725

Mr Speaker: I now propose the Question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Tuesday, 4th June at 9.15 a.m.

I now put the Question, which is that this House do now adjourn to Tuesday, 4th June at 9.15 a.m.

Those in favour: (Members: Aye.) Those against? Passed.

2730

This House will now adjourn to Tuesday, 4th June at 9.15 a.m.

The House adjourned at 6.10 p.m.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE GIBRALTAR PARLIAMENT

MORNING SESSION: 9.15 a.m. – 12.55 p.m.

Gibraltar, Tuesday, 4th June 2013

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 9.15 a.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: M L Farrell Esq RD in attendance]

Order of the Day

Clerk: Sitting of Parliament, Tuesday, 4th June 2013.
Suspension of Standing Orders, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

5 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker I beg to move, under Standing Order 7(3), to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with a Government Statement and to lay the Fishing Report on the table.

10 Mr Speaker: Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Independent Expert Report on the management of Marine Living Resources Statement by the Minister for Health and the Environment

15 Clerk: The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

20 Minister for Health and the Environment (Hon. Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, HM Government of Gibraltar is today publishing the Independent Expert Report on the Management of Marine Living Resources in the waters around Gibraltar which has been produced by the working group set up last year to consider and report on these matters. The Report analyses the international context of marine protection, assesses in-depth the range of fisheries data and other information available and identifies the gaps that exist.

25 The Report reflects the views of the authors, who are experts in this field, and has not in any way been influenced by Government. Its main conclusions are that the basis for Gibraltar's environmental protection laws are sound; information currently available is insufficient to provide clear results on the state of fish stocks. HM Government of Gibraltar should, therefore, continue to act in keeping with established precautionary principles of conservation and pursue active management of the marine environment and future changes to environmental management must be dependent on these issues.

30 Since receipt of the Report, Mr Speaker, HM Government of Gibraltar has been considering its recommendations and preparing a Marine Strategy for Gibraltar. The full effect of this Strategy will be seen in months to come and will include: (1) regulations to control marine recreational activities that will allow these, while providing safeguards for the local environment and support for Gibraltar sea users. These regulations will, in particular, affect diving activities and rod fishing and will be published very shortly; (2) increased resources for environmental protection and enforcement; (3) measures to increase the populations of all marine species; (4) increased monitoring and collection of data to allow for the ability to respond quickly to changes; (5) a review of current management based on the success, and predicted success, of the above initiatives.

35 The planned Strategy will make allowance for changes to laws to allow sustainable fishing practices with sustainable fishing methods where all the relevant local stakeholders consider it would be appropriate. Details of each specific action and revised legislation, all of which are currently being worked on, will be published in the coming weeks and months, with the whole process being completed in the autumn.

40 The forthcoming legislation, which has been discussed with all the relevant major local stakeholders, including the Nature Conservancy Council, Nature Conservation NGOs, angling, spear fishing and diving groups and commercial operators, will be published and will introduce the essential principle of active management of our marine resources.

45 This will include the ability to respond quickly to changes in the status of said resources as detected by an improved monitoring system, whilst nurturing and enabling the sustainable use of the habitats naturally surrounding us.

50 The Report will be available very shortly, Mr Speaker, on the Government website – within the next half hour – and printed copies can be obtained from the Department of the Environment at Duke of Kent House.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

55 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, certainly on this side of the House we welcome the publication of the Report. We think that it does not come a day too soon; indeed, we believe that it probably comes months too late. Despite that being the case, we welcome the publication of the Report and we will consider it very carefully. The Government knows, because we have made statements on numerous occasions from this side of the House, that whatever solution is proposed that is reasonable in order to deal not only with the question of management of the environment and management of fisheries, but also a solution to the current fishing crisis, we will certainly support.

60 I note that the Hon. the Minister has said in his point, I think it is 6, that the Government intends to allow sustainable fishing methods. We will obviously examine that very carefully, as to whether the Government means by that allowing Spanish fishermen to fish with nets of some kind during some part of the year but, as I say, certainly on this side of the House the Government will find that, despite our criticisms of the handling of the crisis and the handling of this particular issue by the Government, that it will find the Opposition supportive in any solution that it brings to this House by way of legislation.

70 Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, just on a Point of Order, did the Hon. the Chief Minister say that it was being 'tabled' in the House?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Yes.

75 Hon. P R Caruana: So the suggestion that we should have recourse to the Government website for copies was not intended for us, it is rather for the public who may be hearing? (Interjections). I see, thank you. I am obliged.

DOCUMENTS LAID

80 Clerk: Papers to be laid.
The Hon. the Minister for Health and the Environment.

Minister for Health and the Environment (Dr. J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay, 85 on the table, the Fishing Report.

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

Hon. Dr. J E Cortes: Copies will be distributed now.

90 Hon. P R Caruana: Oh, I see! Thank you very much.

GOVERNMENT MOTION

Parliamentary and democratic reform
Report of the Independent Commission

100 Clerk: Government Motion, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker: crisis, what crisis?
Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

105 'THIS HOUSE WELCOMES the work done by the Independent Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary reform; FURTHER WELCOMES that the Commission was able to report to the House ahead of schedule; NOTES AND WELCOMES that the Commission has made clear recommendations in proposing areas of reform for the workings of this Parliament and for democratic reform; and WILL NOW CONSIDER in this meeting those recommendations in detail.'

110 Mr Speaker, we on the Government benches have met and considered your Report in some detail and we have agreed the position of the parties represented on this side of the House. I will, therefore, speak on behalf of the Government on the recommendations which arise from your Report and I want to do so by starting the debate on this motion with a thank you to you and all the Members of your Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform for the very timely submission of your Report, because you have 115 done the work of the Commission in much shorter order than we had anticipated was possible.

Indeed, during the course of the debate on this subject before the last General Election, when both sides of the House put their respective positions on the subject of parliamentary reform, it was suggested that our idea of creating a Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform was an attempt to kick this very important subject into the long grass. I think we have demonstrated that this is not the case in a number of ways, not least, Mr Speaker, the speed with which your Commission has been able to report.

120 But the first, Mr Speaker, has been by implementing a number of deep and, dare I say it, revolutionary reforms in the workings of our Parliament immediately after our election. Not least of these has been my own convening of regular monthly meetings of this Parliament. That, we think, has delivered a dramatic change that has been qualitative and not just quantitative in bringing us to this Parliament every month.

125 Indeed, Mr Speaker, you will know that there have been, in previous Parliaments, two or three Question Times, for example, in any one year. Since our election, there has been a monthly Chief Minister's Question Time that I think has now become a part of the natural democratic rhythm of this democracy.

130 Mr Speaker, I think that this is more than just about numbers of meetings. This is about the quality of our democracy and I think it is right to say that we can be justly proud on this side of the House and I can be justly proud as Chief Minister to have ushered in this new era in our democratic development as a people.

135 And it is not just me, Mr Speaker, that has to come here to answer questions on a monthly basis: all Ministers do. The whole Government holds itself up to scrutiny on a monthly basis and that is the sort of democracy that many countries actually do not enjoy and I am delighted that I will always be able to boast and that we, on this side of the House, will always be able to boast that, as soon as we had the power to deliver this change, we implemented it without hesitation.

The issue now, Mr Speaker, for us is how we entrench this change in legislation or in rules so that, whilst we respect the primacy of Parliament and the right of any new Administration to use its majority in 140 this House to convene meetings as it may see fit, we go as far as possible to entrenching this monthly procedure so that it cannot be undone by a new Administration without explaining to the House what it is that they intend to do in place thereof. I think, Mr Speaker, that is one of the issues that we have to consider today.

145 There are many other things which we have read in your Commission's Report and in your recommendations which we have also already done or we are doing –

Mr Speaker: May I interrupt the Chief Minister for a moment?

150 I would be very grateful if the Chief Minister and all Members, when referring to the Report, were to refer to it as being the Commission's Report. It is not my Report, it is not my personal Report, there were four other people and it is not the Speaker's Report, it is the Report of the Commission which, for historical reasons, I happened to Chair and I think it would be much more accurate to refer to it as the Commission's Report.

Thank you.

155 Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you, Mr Speaker, I shall do so, mindful of the fact that, although you Chaired it, as you rightly say, it is not your Report, it is the Commission's Report. If I stray into referring to it once again as your Report, please do not hesitate to pick me up on it.

160 Well, there are other things that we have read in the Commission's Report, Mr Speaker, which we have already dealt with, or are dealing with, and we would like that to be seen as a vindication of the findings of the Commission and illustrative of our commitment to positive reform of the workings of our Parliament and of our democracy more widely. So as I go through the recommendations I think it will be evident that, in many instances, we have already implemented some of them or we are in the process of implementing them.

165 Mr Speaker, we approach the numbered recommendations of the Commission in the spirit of wanting to go even further in the modernisation of the workings of Parliament and mindful of the need for this place to operate as effectively and openly as possible and trying to combine those two criteria.

170 What I propose to do, Mr Speaker, is to take the Parliament through the recommendations one by one, indicating our support, our concern or our disagreement with each of them in turn and the reasons for that concern, support or disagreement because I cannot say that we accept all of the recommendations although, in most instances where we have felt the need to disagree with recommendations, I think you will find that we do so on technical grounds.

175 Mr Speaker, then having heard the contributions of all Parliamentary colleagues who might wish to speak on the subject, I will propose that the motion then be amended to include reference to those recommendations that it is proposed should be accepted by Parliament today after the debate. But I discussed in passing, Mr Speaker, how best to proceed with the hon. the backbencher, for we do have one already, Mr Speaker – Mr Caruana – during the last sitting of the House, and I agreed with his suggestion – he may want to say something about it later on – that we should not turn this particular debate into one about final acceptance and implementation of the recommendations made but, rather, that we should have a debate today on principles, with matters as to implementation and the detail of that left for that much more detailed consideration required, probably by a Select Committee.

180 I will, therefore, also be proposing, Mr Speaker, that the amendments to be moved to the motion as it stands today, after hon. Members who wish to do so have made their contributions, should refer to those recommendations that the whole House believes can be accepted and to the creation of a new and bespoke –

185 Mr Speaker: We may have a procedural problem and that is, in making the amendment, at what stage is the amendment going to be made? Is it at the stage when the Hon. the Chief Minister exercises his right to reply?

190 I am not sure that that is procedurally correct.

195 Hon. Chief Minister: There is a right to move an amendment at any time. We can either agree that I should be proposing an amendment when the last speaker on the other side is about to end and gives way... and, of course, once I propose an amendment, others will also have the right to speak again on the amendment. Or, I can propose the amendment during the course of my reply.

Mr Speaker: If the Hon. Chief Minister proposes the amendment during the course of his right to reply then, of course, that amendment is again open to... it is before the House and is open to everybody, is that clear?

200 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes.

Mr Speaker: We will do that then, yes.

205 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the way I intend to deal with it will be that I will deal with the matters that are raised by Members opposite in my reply initially and then I would move to say, right, having said all that, this is what I think can be distilled into an amendment and this is what I think the Select Committee procedure should look like.

210 Mr Speaker, I do not think that the recommendations of the Commission are an issue for any of the existing Standing Committees – although you could probably shoe-horn some of them into some of the existing committees – as I think some of the recommendations go well beyond the rules and the standing orders. In fact, in some instances, the recommendations may require legislative changes or even new Parliamentary Acts which will have to be brought to this House as Bills.

215 I will, therefore, be proposing that the new Select Committee should be known as the Select Committee on the Implementation of the Accepted Recommendations of the Independent Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform, a mouthful though that is, and I also propose that, in shorthand, the Committee should be known as the Select Committee on Parliamentary Reform.

220 Again, Mr Speaker, we believe that this is a necessary step in order to advance matters quickly but also with full cognisance of the implications of any amendment and having the opportunity to look at the detail of how to implement each of the recommendations off-line, so to speak, in the context of a Select Committee environment. I will also be proposing, Mr Speaker, that the Select Committee, when established, should be made up of three Members of the Government and two from the Opposition, as is the traditional format and, having said all of that as to how I intend to deal with the debate today, let me turn without further ado to the numbered recommendations of your Report, taking each one in turn, although I do intend to take the first two together as the Commission presents them.

225 Recommendation No. 1 reads as follows:

‘We recommend that Standing Orders should be amended to require Parliament to hold a minimum of ten meetings a year, other than in the year when a General Election is held.’

230 Recommendation No. 2, Mr Speaker, reads as follows:

‘We recommend that Parliament should continue to have its Christmas and Easter recesses but the summer recess should last from the end of July to the 3rd week in September.’

235 Well, Mr Speaker, we have already introduced this monthly meeting procedure, as I was saying, and we therefore unhesitatingly agree that the first two recommendations which have given effect to our policies, in effect, in respect of the regularity of meetings, should be accepted by the Parliament.

240 The issues that are left in respect of those recommendations I think are ones for the Select Committee that looks at the detail of this rather than for the House today, which is, first of all, how do we entrench this requirement for monthly meetings, conscious of the fact, of course, that the Constitution provides for a different requirement of regularity so there will be a legislative or a rule-based regularity and there will be a Constitutional requirement of regularity and that those may be different.

245 The recommendation of the Commission refers to Standing Orders but it may be, Mr Speaker, that the Select Committee decides that, actually, it is an amendment to the Parliament Act that is required and, if not required, desirable, and that that may actually lend itself to the rhythm of meetings being more regular without the Chief Minister having to actually convene them in every month but that we have a clear criteria set out either in legislation or in rules, subject to the Leader of the House being able to certify some exceptional circumstances when a specific meeting should not be held, or going beyond particular dates that you have been proposing.

250 For example, Mr Speaker, the refurbishment of the Parliament required that we did not have a March meeting even though we were already in the rhythm of voluntarily calling meetings on a monthly basis and we may very well want, or need, to sit in August. I am reminded of the events of last year and also of the events of the tercentenary, where we wanted to meet on a specific date in August to commemorate the 300 years on the date when it was particularly relevant.

255 There may be, for example, weeks where August starts on a Thursday or a Friday and there may be no reason why the Parliament should not be able to use that final week of July as a full Parliamentary week. Just because 1st August might be on a Friday we should not put ourselves in strictures, that we are not able to use those dates for Parliamentary business, where relevant.

260 Even then, Mr Speaker, when we do that we will still be turning the current position on its head. At the moment we need to understand the current position is that, simply, the Constitution bites and requires us to have three meetings in the year. Therefore, we are voluntarily calling these meetings so, by putting in rules, even if we allow for this potential leeway, we are turning the current position on its head and entrenching the principle of the monthly meeting.

265 Mr Speaker, I think it is also important there should be a clearly understood power for meetings of the Parliament to be called at short notice. The Commission deals with the issue of notice period specifically in its recommendations but the reason for mentioning this now, Mr Speaker, is that, under our current setup, any convocation of a meeting of the House is a meeting for Questions, Motions, Bills and all the other business of the House. I think that the Leader of the House, whoever he should be, should be in a position to convene a meeting of the House on twenty-four hours' notice.

270 I note, Mr Speaker, that there is something in Standing Orders about 'emergency meetings' of the House but there is not much in it at the moment. I think it may be useful for the Select Committee to look at this and flesh out those rules a little bit more so that they are understood by all Members and that that power might be used in a more current and modern context so that, instead of just having 'emergency meetings', perhaps we should have something called 'extraordinary meetings', which are not uncommon in all democracies, where Parliaments can be convened or even recalled at times of national emergency / tragedy. All of those probably come within, or the first of those probably comes within, the definition of 'emergency'. Tragedy probably does not come within anybody's definition of emergency. I am conscious of the fact that we lost a Member of the House and we might all have wanted to come here to recognise that together at that moment or, in the context of great celebration, where the House and Parliament, if it is to play its natural role in the administration of the affairs of the people, may want to have an extraordinary meeting to simply mention a particularly successful event like, for example, the Gibraltar football team winning the European Cup of Nations, as I am sure they will do before this decade is out, if the desire of all Gibraltarians is anything to go by...

285 Anyway, having that power to come on twenty-four hours' notice, without engaging the full gamut of Bill, Question etc. procedure, I think is something that needs to be fleshed out a little bit beyond simply the emergency power which seems to be the one contained in Standing Orders as it is at the moment.

Mr Speaker, Recommendation No. 3, which I move on to now, deals with Question Time and you say this, or the Commission, sorry, says this:

290 'We recommend that Question Time should be guillotined and that the Chief Minister should answer Questions, including supplementary questions, for not more than 3 hours a month and each Minister for not more than 2 hours a month.'

295 Well, Mr Speaker, call me a glutton for punishment, but we do not agree that there should be a specific time limit, or a time guillotine, on Questions being asked by Opposition Members, even though that is actually the case in most parliaments.

Indeed, although you do not point it out in the Report, the UK Parliament involves the procedure for Prime Minister's Question Time allowing Members half an hour for Questions to the Prime Minister in parliamentary sessions weekly whilst the Parliament is in session. We believe, Mr Speaker, in essence, that the time spent on supplementaries should be entirely a matter in Mr Speaker's discretion and based on relevance to the subject matter of the original Question.

300 It has been clear to us for many years that the rules on Parliamentary Questions and on supplementaries have been honoured by their breach and not by their observance – and I am not casting aspersions on Members who are sitting opposite today, and it is for that reason that I have said 'many years' – and you have been highly critical, Mr Speaker, if I may say so, of both sides of the House in your interventions in recent months since your appointment because of our approach to Question Time and you have said repeatedly, you remain vigilant and that we should be more circumspect in the way that both sides of the House approach the Question and Answer equation.

305 I think that we have demonstrated our respect for your views on these matters but, with a clear approach that is based on the existing rules of relevance of supplementaries, short, sharp questions, and answers being equally short and sharp, whilst remaining informative, I am confident that, with those rules observed, there would be no need for a time guillotine. Essentially, our view, Mr Speaker, is that the guillotine should be led by subject and by relevance and not by time, with the caveat that each Question should not last very long but without a time limit. We have seen, and you have mentioned, that some Questions have gone on for half an hour and should certainly not be allowed to turn into these mini-debates that they have become, certainly since I have been in this Parliament from 2003.

310 We are all aware, Mr Speaker, that in the United Kingdom each Question would not last more than a few minutes because, after that, the supplementaries stray from the relevance of the original Question, which is from where relevance should be measured. I mean, relevance should not be measured from each supplementary as you move away from the original subject of the Question: as you know better than us, Mr Speaker, relevance should be measured from the original Question and not from the supplementaries. In that context, Mr Speaker, we think that relevance should be the blade on the guillotine and not the clock.

Recommendation No. 4 Mr Speaker of the Commission says this:

325 'We recommend that if a tabled Question for Oral Answer is not reached during the time allowed in Recommendation No. 3, the Minister to whom it is addressed should provide the answer in writing unless the questioner withdraws the Question or tables it for answer at a subsequent meeting.'

330 For the reasons I have indicated already, Mr Speaker, when dealing with the Commission's third recommendation, we do not think that this recommendation is relevant but, of course, it is something that could be made use of at any time if Members opposite felt, for example, that the information that they have obtained in relation to one particular Question is such that they would rather not continue with a particular Question and say that they would be happy for it to be answered in writing.

335 I cannot see the circumstances where Members opposite would wish to have that mechanism engaged. If there is an oral answer ready in the Parliament they may as well have it, even if it is passed as a written answer at the end of the meeting but we do not think that, absent the time guillotine, there would be no need for this procedure to then be engaged where you have reached the end of the time limit and, therefore, a written answer is provided instead of an oral answer. But I think it is already in the power of Members opposite to say, 'Look, if the Minister is prepared to write to me with the answer to that 340 Question, we do not need to deal with it.'

Mr Speaker, I think it is useful to deal with Recommendations 5 and 6 together. Recommendation No. 5 reads as follows:

345 'We recommend that the period of notice that a Member of Parliament is required to give for tabling a Question at a meeting should be increased from not less than 5 working days to not less than 7 working days before the day on which the answer is required.'

Recommendation No. 6 has to be read hand in hand because it says this:

350 'If Recommendation No. 5 is implemented then we recommend that the period of notice summoning Members of Parliament to meetings should be increased from not less than 7 working days to not less than 9 working days before the date of the meeting.'

355 We think these recommendations are sensible and should be accepted for a number of reasons. First of all, the earlier tabling of questions will assist those in the Administration who are responsible for the preparation of answers. They do, as hon. Members who have been in Government opposite know, have to do a lot of work in a very short period of time at the moment. In any event, Mr Speaker, it is already possible to extend the time available to prepare an answer by simply adjourning the session in which a particular answer is due to be replied to.

360 If I can just explain that, although Members opposite will understand it but perhaps for people who may be listening in, if Members have to give us those 5 clear days' notice, we need to come to the Parliament on the date which we have provided for. We could adjourn the Parliament at any time, even before starting Questions once we have started, or take just those Questions which have their answers already prepared for, and then adjourn Question Time for at least another five days so that the Question 365 Time or the limit for putting Questions again is not engaged and buy ourselves another five or ten or fifteen days, in that order.

That has not been done before but, in the context of wanting to make the lives of those who are doing, if I may call it, not the political work but the grinding work, that goes behind the preparation of answers to Questions easier, we think that giving them the extra two days makes sense. Then, of course, you do 370 need to give an extra two days of notice because, as the rules presently stand, if we are required to give 7 days' notice then, at the moment, the Questions would have to be put in almost immediately, if we just took Recommendation 5 and not Recommendation 6. So we think that they go hand in hand together and, therefore, we think it is something that should certainly be considered favourably.

375 Again, Mr Speaker, this 9-day period of notice I think makes sense for the reasons we have indicated but also with the caveat that the Leader of the House might be able to call the House, in those circumstances that I have indicated, those extraordinary meetings, on twenty-four hours' notice. But if I may just pause there and take a wider view of these recommendations and your earlier recommendations in relation to the monthly meetings, I think it is not impossible for the Select Committee to come back with a mechanism that almost makes the giving of notice irrelevant and where Members know when they have to table their questions in the context of the monthly order.

380 So, for example, we now know, and it is entrenched, that the Chief Minister will deal with Questions on the third Thursday of every month at 3.00 pm. That more or less sets out how the Parliamentary schedule is going to play out in the context of the month. Taking perhaps the day before as the day when Parliament will be convened for the month, it may be possible, when the Select Committee meets, that 385 everybody should know that Questions need to be in by the second Tuesday of the month, for example. Therefore, Members can, on both sides of the House, understand the order of the month and when they need to be making their arrangements to table their Questions, etc, taking into consideration this idea of giving an extra two days and the issue of convening Parliament in nine days because it may be that the Select Committee can come back with a mechanism that does not require the Leader of the House to 390 convene the Parliament but that the Parliament is convened between September and April, for example, on particular months and between April and July on particular days of the month. That, I think, Mr Speaker would obviate all of these requirements as to notice.

If I can move on now, Mr Speaker, to Recommendation No. 7 and Recommendation No. 8, both of which should also be taken together and which read as follows:

395 'We recommend that motions for adjournment should, after giving due notice to the Speaker, also be permitted to be moved at the last sitting in any month if Parliament is not to be adjourned sine die at the end of that sitting.'

and Number 8:

400 'We recommend that both the Government and Opposition should bear in mind the significance of introducing motions in Parliament and thereby obtaining its approval to a specific course of action as proposed in a motion.'

405 Mr Speaker, we of course applaud, and I am sure Members on the other side of the House also applaud, your continued referral of Members to the motion procedure for the purposes of debating matters in this Parliament and the fact that the Commission has also alerted us all to it. It is absolutely right that, for this place to work as it should, and not as it has perhaps in the past years, we should be keeping Question Time as a time for Questions and answers and motion time as the time for debate.

410 For that reason, where it is necessary for there to be an element of perhaps more agility in dealing with motions on the adjournment, we would welcome clarity in the rules so that Members on both sides of the House can be clearer about the procedure and how to activate it as effectively as possible and, in that way, perhaps take away some of the problems that have plagued our Question Time sessions. We think that the issue of adjournment motions is already quite clear but if this is a matter that the Select Committee can make even clearer by proposing new rules or Standing Orders or, perhaps even just guidance notes to some of the existing Standing Orders, then that is something I am sure will be welcomed, no doubt, across the floor of the House so that we perhaps better understood this procedure that seems to have fallen into disuse in recent years.

Let me move now, Mr Speaker, to Recommendation No. 9, which says this:

420 'We recommend that Ministers should bear in mind the significance of making statements on matters of policy or public importance in Parliament, in preference to making them directly to the media.'

(Phone rings) – and the Chief Minister should remember to switch off his phone! With apologies to all Members, Mr Speaker.

425 Mr Speaker, with respect, we think this is only a recommendation that the Commission could make in the context of the way in which we have already changed the way that Parliament works, in that, under the previous mechanism for the workings of Parliament, it would have been wholly unrealistic, in fact it would be well-nigh impossible for important statements to be made in Parliament. There were only two or three sessions of the Parliament in the year, although it was adjourned to a different date during the course of each term. Even in the context of monthly meetings of the Parliament, where we do have many more options available in terms of days when we are in the Parliament, requiring the Government to – and I say 'requiring' advisedly – to make statements of importance in the House, we do not think is possible. It may be more possible if we introduce the right of the Leader of the House to convene Parliament at short notice – on twenty-four hours' notice – but the idea that we might be required to do that, I do not think is something that we can agree to.

435 Your recommendation does not say that. It says that we should bear in mind the significance of making statements in Parliament and I think that is something we can certainly agree with, although I do note, Mr Speaker, that when the Government decides to wait until a meeting in order to make an important announcement, or table a document that does not strictly have to be tabled, as we have today, one does have to read some who talk about us making statements of importance here, then goading us in the press to make them before the date of the adjournment – and I am reminded of the front page of yesterday's Chronicle. But, then again, Mr Speaker, in Government one gets used to the idea 'damned if you do, damned if you do not'. This is a welcome recommendation but it can only ever be just that, Mr Speaker.

445 I think I demonstrated that we do bear in mind the importance of making statements in the Parliament when I came here two weeks ago directly from the Convent when I asked His Excellency to convene the coming by-election and I made the announcement of that publicly here. But the workings of Government cannot be mortgaged to the need to make statements here and not to the press and then to the public in the traditional way. Then again, what is 'a statement of significance'? One man's significance might be another man's insignificance. So I see this recommendation that the Commission has made, Mr Speaker, as one to bear in mind that it is a guidance that the Commission is providing, that Government should, in the words of the Commission, 'bear this matter in mind', but I do not think it is a recommendation that can manifest itself in a new rule.

Recommendation No. 10, Mr Speaker, the next one, is also one which we do not think can become a new rule. That recommendation says this:

455

‘We recommend that the more lengthy or complex Bills, or those which are likely to substantially impact on citizens, should undergo in-depth legislative scrutiny by referring them to a Select Committee appointed for the purpose, i.e. a Public Bills Committee.’

460

Well, as you know, Mr Speaker – and, in fact, you were one of those who negotiated it – the current Constitution has introduced a 6-week period of publication for Bills, which is much longer than was the case before and, in addition, since we were elected, we have also introduced the new concept, not constitutionally required, which is the principle of the Command Paper, which we have modelled on the Westminster mechanism of the same name, and which we deploy when we are dealing with new legislative Acts or changes to legislation which present a completely new area of legislation.

465

Interestingly, Mr Speaker, both in Gibraltar and in the United Kingdom Command Papers are published literally, on the face of them, ‘by command of Her Majesty the Queen’. But the whole purpose of the Command Paper and of the longer period of publication of Bills, is to allow a longer period of public consultation and also, of course, of interaction with Members on the other side, who can make not just public statements on Bills, they can write to Ministers or they can engage with Ministers on the substance of Bills.

470

If I may say so, Mr Speaker, although this Parliament does have a reputation for belligerent debate, I think it is fair also to say that, when it comes to legislation and Bills, people perhaps switch off but there is also a tradition of working closely on Bills and producing the best legislation that we can together, looking at detail. The person who has produced the Bill sometimes is not able to see some of the technical issues that somebody casting a more critical eye over Bills on the Opposition Benches might see, even some of the wording or the typographical errors etc. My experience has been that, unless there are serious policy differences on a particular piece of legislation among Members from different sides of the House, actually the Bills procedure is one that works very well.

475

The Commission’s recommendations in respect of this issue deal principally with ‘lengthy Bills’. We have had two or three lengthy Bills in the past four years which I can remember – the end of the hon. Members opposite tenure in Government and our first two years – principally the Criminal Offences Bills and legislation; there may be soon also some Companies legislation etc. In each of those instances, I think where we have looked at lengthy Bills, we have done so in the spirit of legislative co-operation, which is when most people switch off their listening to the Parliament because that belligerence which people so dislike, when it disappears, makes people perhaps not so interested in the process of this place. But I think that that process, therefore, of working closely together on Bills is there. There is, I understand, already some power to refer Bills to a Committee, not just to the committee stage and perhaps it is something that we need to revive, rather than produce a new rule on because we think that the process is actually working quite well.

480

490

Mr Speaker, the eleventh Recommendation reads as follows:

495

‘We recommend that the Gibraltar Constitution Order 2006 should be amended to provide for the post of Deputy Speaker and that until there is constitutional provision for such an appointment, the Parliament should designate a suitably qualified person to discharge all or some of the powers and functions imposed on the Speaker when he or she is unable to attend meetings of Parliament. Such a person should be selected by Parliament in the same manner as the Speaker.’

500

Well, Mr Speaker, we actually wholeheartedly agree with the sentiments in respect of the post of Deputy Speaker, but our initial conclusion is that it would appear to be very difficult to create this post, other than by a Constitutional amendment, as you have indicated in the recommendation. This is one of the most practical recommendations, in our view, that the Commission makes because it is actually about Parliament being able to work and we need a Speaker to be able to work. We therefore support this recommendation and we consider it should be referred to the Select Committee, in order to enable the Committee to better consider how the issue is raised and the potential appointment of a Deputy Speaker might be addressed in the most effective manner, if possible without a Constitutional amendment.

505

Frankly, I think that this was an issue that has been overlooked at the time that we were negotiating the new Constitution. It was not something that was there before; we did not have monthly meetings of the Parliament at the time that the Constitution was being negotiated, so therefore I think it is something that, in the context of the new rhythm of Parliamentary meetings, does have to be considered. Of course, Mr Speaker, there is provision, in the absence of the Speaker, for a Member to be elevated to the Chair. In a particularly acrimonious debate, who could that Member be? Two spring to mind immediately: the Father of the House, who has been here for longer than all of the rest of us, absent yourself, or the other longest serving Member, the Hon. the previous Chief Minister, the backbencher, Mr Caruana.

510

I do not discard, Mr Speaker, that the Parliament would, in appropriate circumstances, appoint each or 515 either of them to the role. I think it would be hard for each of them, for example, to preside over a budget debate, in the event that it were necessary for you to absent yourself from such a debate in extremis, but not impossible. I think both have had the longevity in this Parliament to understand what the rules of this Parliament are and to adjudicate fairly, in the context of Parliamentary obligations, when one takes that Chair.

520 Would it be, in the context of an acrimonious debate like the debate on the Appropriation Bill sometimes becomes, something that could be done in a way that all parties would feel that they had been 'fairly' dealt with if that person had to make a ruling against their own side – 'Is he doing it just to demonstrate that he is being fair?' – or against the opposite side – 'Of course, he would do that, wouldn't 525 he?' I think, therefore, that there are some circumstances, in extremis, where we might find ourselves in difficulty, without wishing to impugn the integrity of those who might take the Chair, and I have mentioned two, who if they took the Chair, in my view, would be able to discharge their obligations from that Chair with integrity. But, it would perhaps raise, in the public, concerns if there did come a time, an acrimonious moment, and they did have to make rulings one way or the other. Therefore, the mechanism of a Deputy Speaker in a Parliament that meets monthly, I think is one that does need to be considered by 530 the Select Committee.

Mr Speaker, Recommendations No. 12 and 13 I think should also be taken together. They read as follows – No. 12 says this:

535 'We recommend that there should be a review of the present structure of allowances and pensions payable to Members of Parliament and that such a review should be conducted by a body made up of suitably qualified persons from Gibraltar and persons from an appropriate independent authority from the United Kingdom.'

No. 13 says this:

540 'We recommend that any new pension scheme should come into effect for new Members of Parliament elected after the next General Election, thereby safeguarding the acquired rights of current Members.'

Well, Mr Speaker, we think that, taken together, we agree with both those recommendations, given that having... this Parliament, in effect, having made changes, for example, to the Civil Service final 545 salary pension scheme, it would be rather unfair not to also look at what new scheme might be introduced for Members who might be elected after the next General Election. This is certainly something, in our view, that should be referred to the Select Committee for it to determine who should best advise us on the matter. Our own initial view is that new Members of the Parliament after the next General Election should be on the same scheme – I think it is the Provident scheme – as new entrants to the Civil Service, 550 for example. That seems fair and equitable to us but we agree that this should be considered objectively with independent persons, as was previously the case when the allowances were reviewed in the 1970s.

I am advised, actually, Mr Speaker that the present scheme for current Members does not allow existing Members who have something similar to the Civil Service final salary scheme, to have a WOPS 555 element to their contributions and, in that sense, the existing scheme is less generous than the final salary scheme. But, again, I think that this is not an issue for us. I think it is an issue that should be considered by independent assessors appointed by the Select Committee.

I move, then, Mr Speaker to Recommendation Nos. 14 and 15. These say the following and I should also take them together, in fact 14, 15 and 16 I think are usefully taken together. They read as follows, 14:

560 'We recommend that the Rules and the Declaration of Members' Interests should be reviewed by a body made up of at least three suitably qualified persons from Gibraltar, one of whom should be the Chairperson, and persons from an appropriate independent authority from the United Kingdom with experience in this type of exercise. We also recommend that the Register of Member's Interests should be made available on the Parliament's website.

565 'We recommend that the Parliamentary Code'

– this is No. 15 –

570 'applicable to all Members of Parliament should be drafted by the same persons as are specified in Recommendation 14 and that the Parliament should determine its introduction by resolution.'

Then No. 16:

575 'We recommend that a review of the Ministerial Code should be conducted by a body of at least three suitably qualified persons from Gibraltar, that the Code should be drawn up along the lines of that applicable to Ministers in the United Kingdom and that it should be kept under periodical review.'

Mr Speaker, we agree wholeheartedly with these recommendations. A draft is already being considered by Ministers of both the Rules on Declaration of Interest, as well as a Code of Conduct for 580 both Parliamentarians generally and for Ministers specifically. I think this is absolutely an issue to be referred to the Select Committee, as well as the drafts that are already in existence of the new Rules and the Codes, for the Committee to reach conclusions and to make recommendations for the implementation of the new Code. I think we have said already and, if not, Members should know, that we have worked with the Hansard Society in the United Kingdom to look at the detail of these Codes and, in fact, one of the Members of the Commission has been involved in that.

585 I especially think, Mr Speaker, that there should be a mechanism to review such documents as are adopted and as are put in place so that they are living documents and do not just fall into disuse and become irrelevant by the passage of time, never consulted by Members, because when that happens there is, I think, a loss to the community as a whole and a loss to the Parliament. If we just create rules and then put them in a cupboard, I do not think that is an appropriate way of really bringing new strictures to the Parliament and to its Members. I think it is something that should be adopted but with a periodic review procedure so that they are continually looked at.

590 The next recommendation, Mr Speaker, is one which I think is no longer as controversial as it once was, although some Members have been against it completely before, as the Hon. Mr Caruana candidly reminded us at the penultimate meeting of the House, but I think that we are all now of the same view, and that is Recommendation No. 17, which says this:

600 'We recommend that consideration should be giving to televising the proceedings of Parliament and we further recommend that, in the event of a privatisation of the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation, the arrangements for the televising of Parliamentary proceedings should be guaranteed.'

I do not think there is any privatisation with the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation ever envisaged but I think it is important that the Committee's recommendation should certainly be adopted.

605 The House has already had an opportunity to consider this issue at the last meeting before the refurbishment and I think we have now clearly got a majority, if not unanimity, supporting video broadcasting online and on television and we just now need to look at the relevant rules in this respect. I understand, Mr Speaker, that the Deputy Chief Minister yesterday sent the Leader of the Opposition and the Hon. Mr Bossino some draft rules for consideration as to transmission, camera angles etc. They are not complicated rules and we have some guidance already from Westminster on how they have successfully done this. I know that the testing that is going on, behind your Chair, of the equipment is being quite successful, so I hope that we will be able to agree the rules shortly and that we will be ready to transmit, as I have said on a number of occasions, by the time we come to consideration of the Appropriation Bill later on this month.

610 Mr Speaker, Recommendation 18 also deals with media issues, if of a slightly different type. It says this:

615 'We recommend that the Media Director should henceforth be required to prepare and publish an annual report on the activities of his department, which should include a detailed statement listing recipients of the amount of public funds paid to the media. We further recommend that this report should be laid on the table in Parliament.'

620 Well, again, Mr Speaker, we wholeheartedly agree with the principle that a detailed statement of the amount of public funds paid to the media should be published.

625 Indeed, Mr Speaker, we believe that we have led on this issue, given it was one of the issues we were continually obligated to ask about in Parliament. You will recall that we had very clear issues relating to the presently defunct publication, The Seven Days, and the huge amounts expended on it by the previous Administration. For that reason, Mr Speaker, we take the view that the precise amounts paid in respect of Government advertising since the very date of our election should have been, and are, as I understand it, published online regularly and accessible to the public as a whole and not just to Members of Parliament. But we do not necessarily think that getting the Media Director to collate that information into an annual report, because it is already shown with annual totals etc. online, would add much to the equation. We think we have gone further by putting it out into the public domain with regularity. So we think that this is a recommendation that has already been complied with in substance, as the information is there and that we do not need to go further.

630 Recommendation No. 19 then moves to deal with a wholly different matter, which is the manner for convening Select Committees generally. It says this, Mr Speaker:

635 'We recommend that Parliament should make greater use of Standing Orders to nominate select committees, where appropriate.'

640 Again, Mr Speaker, I do not think that this is intended as a recommendation which requires action or a new rule, but it is one which the Commission, I think, wants the Parliament to note. Indeed, Mr Speaker, you know that, during the course of this debate, I have already proposed creating this bespoke Select 645 Committee to deal with the very reform proposals that we are considering. I do not know that we can go any further in that respect because a recommendation to note something that there is already a rule for, I think does not call for much more, other than for Members on both sides to bear in mind those issues when considering how best to regulate our procedures in respect of particular debates, Bills, or anything that may require our Parliamentary attention.

650 Recommendation No. 20, Mr Speaker, deals with the present system of dealing with petitions and whether it should be modernised. It says this:

‘We recommend that Standing Orders should be revised to improve the public petition system as a way of enhancing public participation in the Parliamentary process along the lines of the system in the United Kingdom.’

655 I think, Mr Speaker, this is one to carefully consider in Committee. Conscious of the fact that there are already rules allowing Petitions to be tabled here and debated, all that is required is that the petition be put to the Parliament. It is then tabled – and it only takes one Member to raise a motion in the terms of the petition for the matter to be debated.

660 So, again, this may be an issue not so much where we need to change our rules but where a rule has fallen into disuse and we need to refresh it. It may be that it needs to be modernised. There have been some changes in the United Kingdom. There are some online petition issues and I think it is something that the Select Committee should look at and that, perhaps, the public need to be made more aware of so that they can become more involved in the workings of this Parliament by making use of the existing or modernised petition rules. Certainly it is something that we think should be put to the Select Committee, for the Select Committee to consider side by side with the more modern rules that have now been adopted in other Parliaments.

665 Mr Speaker the report leaves behind matters dealing with what I might call the inner workings of the Parliament and moves on to issues relating, really, to the electoral system. So I am going to deal with the recommendations that you make in that respect, also on a detailed basis, taking each of them in turn.

670 The first issue that you address is the establishment of the franchise: who is entitled to vote and the collation of the Register of Electors. Recommendation No. 21 says this:

‘We recommend that a rolling register should be maintained for Gibraltar parliamentary elections on the lines of that maintained for European parliamentary elections.’

675 Mr Speaker, this is absolutely something with which we entirely agree and it is our policy on this side of the House that that should be the case. We think that the present system is not the fairest and we should have a permanently open register which closes a fixed time before an election, rather than a register that is sometimes open when an election is called.

680 Indeed, Mr Speaker, if that were already the case, this by-election which has been convened would have benefited from a slightly wider franchise. We are, therefore, convinced that this is the way to progress but with an important caveat, which is this: compiling a register of electors is not an easy task, it is complex and it requires an understanding of the issues that can arise. If I may say so, the present Clerk and Returning Officer has considerable experience and expertise in this field and I think he should be the leading resource for the Select Committee to consult when considering this issue in particular – as if he did not have enough work, Mr Speaker! Anyway, we are lucky enough that our Clerk maintains both the Register of Electors for national elections and the European elections register which, I understand, is open on a rolling basis, so he has got experience of both types of registers. I think it is important that we do not turn our back on that important resource when we are considering how to change our Register of Electors rules.

The next issue, Mr Speaker, deals with election expenses. This is Recommendation No. 22. It reads as follows:

695 ‘We recommend that section 14(2) of the Parliament Act should be revoked and that all election expenses incurred at any time before the date of the poll should be taken into account to arrive at the total amount of election expenses incurred.’

700 Mr Speaker, this is a difficult issue but it is important that election expenses rules are there, they are workable and they are observed, because they are what guarantees the level playing field beyond which parties cannot spend, however cash-rich one party may be compared to another. But to understand the recommendation I think we have got to look at section 14(2) of the Act, which reads as follows:

‘In determining the total expenditure incurred in relation to the candidature of any person at any election, regard shall not be had to any expenditure incurred one month or more before the election, in respect of services rendered or materials supplied.’

705 What that section is trying to do, Mr Speaker – the whole purpose of the clause – is to ensure that the party that knows the date of the election cannot spend before the election without there being at least a hiatus in their pre-election spending.

710 Members will, no doubt, recall before the last election a glossy booklet delivered to all households in Gibraltar which was distributed, I do not know whether almost exactly or just beyond, the 30-day limit before the start of the last campaign by Members opposite. Look, that is the past... we have got to look forward and we agree that section 14(2) is outmoded and is not necessarily working as it was intended to work: but it needs to be addressed. Having said that, Mr Speaker, the recommendation we think goes a bit too far because simply abolishing the time limit may not have the desired effect, and that is what the recommendation says, abolish the time limit. If you did that, Mr Speaker, then you would be left in the situation where all expenditure in the four years and the four year term would be relevant. In fact, if you get rid of a time limit, why just limit to the four year term and how far back do you go? So 14(2) has not perhaps worked in exactly the right way and we need to address the concerns clearly expressed by the Commission in the Select Committee to see what change 14(2) may have to undergo, but I do not think getting rid of the time limit is necessarily the way that we deal with, or cure, the problem.

720 Equally agreeable as to purpose, Mr Speaker, and perhaps less problematic in implementation is the Recommendation at No. 23, which says this:

725 'We recommend that the Election Rules should provide, by means of a schedule, the format of the return of election expenses and the form of words of the statutory declaration.'

730 Mr Speaker, we certainly agree with the Commission that the practices built up, of each party, in the absence of any rules, presenting accounts in their own format, as they see fit, in keeping with general accounting principles, or whatever it is... but the Returning Officer, and even members of the public, who may want to inspect the election expenses are looking at things which are not compiled in the same way and they are, therefore, not necessarily comparing like with like. And a format – in fact, probably just a form not so much a format – a form which the Returning Officer produces to each Party for them to account for expenses in a particular format so that everybody who then has an interest in looking at these expenses can see the same form filed by each Party, or by each candidate, rather, I think is something which should not necessarily be resisted. I think it is something that the Select Committee will want to look at and can produce a form in which relevant election agents can report expenditure in an equal way.

735 The next Recommendation, Mr Speaker, deals with inspection of the returns of election expenses and it says this:

740 'We recommend that section 15 of the Parliament Act should specify that the returns of election expenses can be available for public inspection without limitation.'

Well, you need to put that Recommendation in context. Section 15(5), which is the relevant part of section 15 of the Parliament Act, deals with publication of election expenses like this. It says:

745 'The Returning Officer, within ten days after he receives any return under this section, shall publish in a daily newspaper a notice of the time and place at which the return and the document in support thereof can be inspected.'

750 Well, Mr Speaker, that creates a number of issues. Different parties, or different candidates, may put in returns on different dates and I think the practice of the Returning Officer has been to set a window when they have to be submitted, otherwise he might have to be advertising for Candidate X, 'You can come and see it on this date', for Candidate Y, 'You can come and see it on that date' because of the 10-day limit that operates on him. But, what we do not think this section does is limit how long election expense documentation is available for inspection, although it may have been traditionally interpreted in that way.

755 So this is a Recommendation that the Commission make that we agree should be referred to the Select Committee, even if only to clarify that the Returning Officer is free to designate – although we think he already is, but let us clarify that – that the time and place for inspection could be as wide, for example, as 'at Parliament House on any day until the date that the next election is convened', for example, which would, in effect, allow the documents to be inspected throughout the lifetime of the relevant Parliament, or perhaps even longer, if you wanted to use different language and wanted to have this as a public record that is just publicly available for anybody to inspect. Frankly, in our view, Mr Speaker, this is now information that should be published online and should be available for any citizen who wants to inspect it, like all other Parliamentary information, like the Register of Member's Interests, that the Commission has recommended should also be on line – and we agree.

760 But if there are ambiguities that have led Returning Officers to think that they make this information available only for a specific time, in a specific place, if the internet has overtaken us all and we need to provide new wording, then I think this is something that the Select Committee can look at and resolve quite quickly.

770 Mr Speaker, the next Recommendation deals with contributions to candidate's election expenses during the course of election campaigns. It is Recommendation No. 25 and it reads as follows:

775 'We recommend that every donation over £100 incidental to an election campaign, whether as one donation or as several lesser donations amounting in total to £100 from the same source, should be separately declared in the Return of Election Expenses, together with the identity of the donor.'

780 Mr Speaker, we agree that the candidates' Return of Election Expenses, or the return of a group of candidates, should certainly illustrate who has contributed to the campaign of that candidate. Multiples of £100 does not seem an unfair amount to be referring to, although the Select Committee may think that a slightly larger amount, like £250, may be relevant and we agree that this recommendation as to candidates' election expenses should be referred to the Select Committee for implementation at the next General Election.

The next Recommendation, Mr Speaker, then deals with 'what is an election expense?' It says this:

785 'We recommend that the Parliament Act should provide an extensive definition of election expenses.'

790 For the reasons that have been identified in the Report, Mr Speaker, we need to give some meaning to the rules on spending and we agree. The Select Committee, I think, will need to come up with a definition: it is probably not going to have to re-invent the wheel – there may be definitions used in other Parliaments that we can cannibalise for our purposes.

795 Checking the Parliament Act, it is clear that there is nothing there which assists in the definition of 'an election expense'. One would have expected that the Act would contain a definition of 'an election expense': it is not there, that definition, and perhaps it needs to be there or elsewhere in the rules. I think it is also fair to say that, in the context of the Recommendations that you make, I think there are three areas where the Parliament Act, it is recommended by the Commission, should be amended. It is a piece of legislation from 1950 and those who go online now can see how often it has been amended. It has only been amended five or six times in the past 63 years. I think that demonstrates it is a good piece of legislation which has worked well that now requires tweaking and we should not be shy, in the Select Committee, of making such recommendations for amendment of it as may be necessary in order to update it into the more modern practices that have now overtaken the way in which elections are run.

800 Mr Speaker, the Commission then moves on to Recommendations that deal with 'the vote' and voting. Recommendation Nos. 27, 28 and 29, which are dealt with together, say as follows:

805 'We recommend that early absentee voting should be introduced for electors who satisfy the Returning Officer that they are obliged to be absent from Gibraltar at short notice on polling day for unforeseeable and compelling reasons and cannot recourse to postal voting.'

810 I recall, Mr Speaker, I think in the last two elections there have been a number of pilgrimages organised around the date of the poll, involving supporters of all candidates, and that and other reasons for being out of Gibraltar have led to an ad hoc procedure being set up in some instances.

Recommendation No. 28 then says:

'We recommend that section 20(2) of the Parliament Act should be amended to increase the period between the issue of a writ calling for a General Election and the day of the Election from not less than thirty days to not less than forty-two days'

815 and Recommendation 29 says this:

820 'We recommend that the timetable in Rule 2 of the Election Rules should be amended to set the closing date for the delivery of nomination papers as noon on the 33rd day before the date of the election instead of the present 21st day and, additionally, consequential adjustments should be made in the period of time allowed for candidates to withdraw their candidature.'

825 Mr Speaker, we certainly agree with Recommendation No. 27 on early absentee voting but subject to a mechanism, and I am sure that this is what the Select Committee will want to ensure, being introduced and implemented in the Parliament, which is in this building itself, in other words in the control and under the auspices of the Returning Officer and with appropriate security mechanisms in place.

830 As we all know, who have been involved in elections, Mr Speaker, this place becomes a hive of activity at the time of a General Election. It is also the most secure place where ballot papers etc. are held and delivered. Bringing people into vote will have an effect on the workings of the Returning Officer at the time but, of course, in the context of other changes like, for example, the Register of Electors being open and closing just after an election is called, rather than opening sometimes at the time that a General Election is called for a supplementary register to be prepared, that would take away a huge work from the Returning Officer at the time. We could, instead, have this process of having absentee voting going on in the Parliament in a way that does not upset the working of the Returning Officer. I know it has been done before, it is just a question of agreeing the mechanism, all parties being happy with it, the security of it, so that the integrity of the vote is not in any way questioned, also being dealt with and one that I am sure will enjoy support across the floor of the House.

We also agree, Mr Speaker, in relation to Recommendation Nos. 28 and 29, that the time limits for elections have been too short in the past, in particular because of the complication of supplementary registers of electors being compiled sometimes at the same time. So, again, in the context of an open register, although these issues should be less relevant in the future, and time may not be at such a premium, I think it is still going to be a busy time for the Returning Officer and his staff, as well as for candidates and party workers. So, therefore, we would agree the extension of these relevant time limits but, perhaps Mr Speaker, not to the extent proposed by the Commission.

So Recommendation No. 28, we propose that section 20(2) of the Parliament Act be amended to ‘not less than thirty-five days’, so five more days than the current thirty days, but seven less than the proposed forty-two.

In respect of Recommendation No. 29, instead of increasing the time in Rule 2 of the Election Rules from twenty-one days to thirty-three days, which we think would be slightly too long, we would propose also a time of twenty-eight days.

But that is detail, Mr Speaker, and we are happy to consider that detail with colleagues in the context of the work of the Select Committee and with the Returning Officer, who has the experience of what it is that goes on at the time that the election is called.

Mr Speaker, Recommendation No. 30 we think has actually now been overtaken by events. That Recommendation states as follows:

‘We recommend that the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority should set a code of broadcasting standards for Gibraltar Parliamentary Elections in consultation with the Returning Officer and the Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation in line with the requirements of the European Parliamentary Elections Act.’

Mr Speaker, as you are aware, the Broadcasting Act 2012 does just that. In fact, it is for that reason that we have recently argued in press releases that the composition of the board of GBC, for example, is no longer relevant in relation to balance and appeals from editorial decisions. Well, in any event, this is a Recommendation that is, happily, one that we take the view has already been specifically implemented in almost identical terms to the Recommendation of the Commission.

Still on the media at the time of the election, Recommendation No. 31 says this:

‘We recommend that exit polls should be regulated as to the manner in which they are conducted and that a prohibition should be placed on the publication of their results prior to the end of voting on polling day.’

Mr Speaker, this is already the case by established convention, in our understanding. But it is interesting that there is not... well, there has not traditionally been a legal rule that provides for this. I do not know whether the Regulator may have, in the rules he has made, now dealt with this issue, but it is certainly, in our view, something for the Select Committee to consider because, if there is not already a rule, there certainly should be a rule that exit polls should not be published, or polls should not be published, during polling day.

I do not think it is a rule or a convention that has ever been breached in Gibraltar, but perhaps it is important that we now have this rule. The one thing, Mr Speaker, I would say in respect of Recommendation Nos. 30 and 31 that I have just dealt with, is that, of course, it is very easy to regulate those that cannot escape regulation like, for example, the GBC, and the rules that the GRA makes have to be observed by the GBC as the public broadcaster and conceivably any other broadcaster licensed in Gibraltar is caught by the regulation of the regulatory authority, subject to the Recommendation that you have made, of course.

But how do you regulate the internet, Mr Speaker? That is an issue that goes beyond this debate, of course, but it would be a relevant factor. Who has the power to regulate what is put up on social media, on internet sites, the domains of which are hosted outside of Gibraltar? That is an issue that I think perhaps the Select Committee will need to consider in the context of this business of exit polls etc. because, absent people voluntarily adhering to the conventions that have been followed in the past, it may not be that there is a regulator with reach, like the GRA, that reaches other broadcasters that are licensed. It may be that the Returning Officer, who has responsibility for elections, is the right person to regulate some aspects of this in the – if I may call them – sort of ‘disestablished media’ and that there should be general rules which can catch people in Gibraltar under the powers that the Returning Officer has. Again, something that the Select Committee will have to consider in greater detail.

Mr Speaker, the Report then moves on, really, to the night of the count and making this recommendation at Recommendation No. 32:

‘We recommend that the Returning Officer should give serious consideration to establishing what technological advances are available for the counting of votes and whether these could be adopted in Gibraltar.’

900 Anybody who went through the last count would have been very happy to see a computer tell us the result by 1 a.m. in the morning. But, anyway, we agree that new technologies should be considered but always subject to the integrity of the counting process and of the vote being guaranteed. It has always been guaranteed in Gibraltar, Mr Speaker. Even though we have taken a few hours – five or six hours – to count, we have known that we can count on the integrity of those involved in counting on the night and that we get a very precise and very clear result.

905 I think nobody in this House would want the nightmare of ‘hanging chads’ that we all had to become very interested in, in the early part of the last decade, hanging over an election result in Gibraltar, with our Supreme Court being involved in determining issues and there not being a result announced, when you implement a system that is designed to give you a sooner result. So I think something to look at, something for the Select Committee to work on again, I think, with the members of the House staff and the Returning Officer.

910 Mr Speaker, in Recommendation No. 33, the Commission deals with a proposal to create a Register of Political Parties and also, outside the Recommendation, deal with what political parties should do and how they should run their affairs and all the rest of it. The Recommendation alone says this:

915 ‘We recommend that subsidiary legislation for the registration of political parties, with their basic provisions detailed in the outline proposal at Appendix 1, should be introduced.’

920 and, in doing so, you introduce Appendix 1 into the Recommendation. If I can just take Members of the House to it – Appendix 1 sets out the proposal for registration of political parties, setting out that they must have a constitution, what the executive is made up of, subscriptions, annual general meetings, etc. etc.

925 I think we must part company with the Commission on this issue. We do not believe there should be a requirement of registration for political parties. The constitutional freedom of association in our Constitution, in our view, requires that people should be able to congregate without the requirement to register as political parties. The same is true, you might say, Mr Speaker, in respect of Trade Unions and yet Trade Unions are required to register themselves, but Trade Unions enjoy immunities under our laws for specific purposes and, therefore, the registration engages those immunities. Political parties actually do not enjoy advantages. It is actually Members of Parliament that enjoy advantages and they congregate in groups that they call political parties. But we do not think that it is constitutionally acceptable to require people to register themselves as political parties.

930 If I may just, Mr Speaker, without entering into the politics of it, I know that Members opposite in their political party run things, or have run things in the past, in a different way. It has worked for them and people have accepted that and returned them as a Parliamentary group to the Government benches on a number of occasions. When the Hon. the now Deputy Chief Minister, Mr Bossino, and I were much younger, we congregated around a coffee table and called ourselves a political party and, you know, what is wrong with that? Should we be required to register and to hold meetings in a particular way and should any strictures be put on the way that people organise themselves as a political party? I mean, one wonders what the anarchist party might think of that and they have a right also to regulate their own affairs in such a way as they may on each day decide.

935 So, jesting aside, I think that this could interfere with the right to congregate and associate freely under the Constitution and, therefore, that Recommendation will not enjoy the support of those of us on the Government benches.

940 Neither, Mr Speaker, do we see a need for the establishment of a statutory Election Commission, as recommended in Recommendation No. 34, which reads as follows:

945 ‘We recommend the introduction of a Bill for the establishment of a statutory body to be known as the Electoral Commission, with the basic provisions detailed in the outline proposal of Appendix 2.’

950 Appendix 2, Mr Speaker, to the Commission Report is almost, I must say, a very full proposal for a Bill, with quite a lot of detail and I am sorry to say, because a lot of what has obviously been done by the Commission on that... that we do not think that an Electoral Commission is relevant in Gibraltar. I do not think anybody has ever questioned the integrity of the way that we conduct elections. We are a thriving democracy. It may be rougher or tougher during different parts of the election campaign, but I think that this Parliament has demonstrated that it is elected fairly and freely, successively, there have been transfers of power now on a number of occasions in Gibraltar, to such an extent I think we can call ourselves a mature democracy.

955 The Electoral Commission might actually be an indicia of maturity in other Parliaments, in other democracies. We just do not think it is something which is necessary in Gibraltar because of the mechanisms that we have in place and the control that is in place already through the office of the 960 Returning Officer and the powers contained in the Parliament Act, in particular, if we make amendments to the Parliament Act and we give powers to the Returning Officer in the context of what the Select Committee is going to consider. We will hear what Members opposite have to say about that, but we are not convinced that this is something that requires engagement.

965 We are with you, though, Mr Speaker – sorry, with the Commission, Mr Speaker – on Recommendation No. 35, which states:

‘We recommend that legislation permitting the holding of and regulating the conduct of referenda should be enacted.’

970 Mr Speaker, that has been our policy since Mr Peter Hain’s said that our 2003 Referendum was not valid. Indeed, I think there is already a draft Bill that will shortly be published to deal with this issue. I think we all took the view here that there clearly was power to convene a referendum but, ex abundanti cautela, why not have a piece of legislation that now sets out what the requirement and what the mechanisms for future referenda might be?

975 Then, Mr Speaker, the Commission moves on, hand in hand with all of these issues, how should the franchise be conducted and who should be a part of it. Recommendation No. 36 says this:

‘We recommend that the Parliament Act should be amended to increase the qualifying residency period from a continuous period of six months to a continuous period of three years.’

980 Mr Speaker, we think that is a sensible Recommendation but we think it is something that needs to be considered, and the implications of it need to be considered, in detail by the Select Committee. I think there will be people who will have been here for more than six months before the rules change who might say that they have acquired rights, should an election be called after that period but before they are here for three years, so I think this is an issue that needs to be considered in detail by the Select Committee, although I think it is likely that most of us agree that a residence period of six months is probably now too short for people to know what it is that they are voting on or about and what the parties are. But I think it is one matter that the Select Committee may want to look at in more detail before determining how to accept that recommendation and what the exact time limits should be.

990 We do not agree, Mr Speaker, however with the 37th Recommendation of the Commission, which says this:

‘We recommend that the Parliament Act should be amended to extend the franchise to persons residing outside Gibraltar who are eighteen years or over who are registered as Gibraltarians under the Gibraltarian Status Act and who are (a) in permanent employment; (b) actively involved in carrying on a business; (c) exercising their profession or (d) in full-time education in Gibraltar.’

995 Mr Speaker, this is not an issue that has an easy solution. May I just say that I think people who are in full-time education outside of Gibraltar are already entitled to vote in Gibraltar elections, hence that we have – at Gibraltar House in London, usually – a polling station, so to speak, for ballots to be sent in as postal ballots that are then brought to Gibraltar. Some of them can be sent directly to Gibraltar so (d) in Number 37 we believe is already covered.

1000 Now, the other issue is if people have moved out of Gibraltar, they are literally living out of Gibraltar – not for educational purposes – they have traditionally and historically foregone their right to vote because it has always been a right based on residence. So to make the issue of the right to register based on the other three limbs of No. 37 and registration under the Gibraltarian Status Act is we think, a little bit too complicated and perhaps not quite as fair as it may seem at first blush. For example, somebody may be entitled to register under the Gibraltarian Status Act even though they have only been here three years but they may, for other reasons, be entitled to register. Then, if they maintain a company in Gibraltar through which they do their business, they could go and live anywhere else in the world and be entitled to vote.

1010 Yet you could have people who have been resident in Gibraltar all of their lives but are not able to register under the Gibraltarian Status Act for some other reason. There are instances that come to me, as I am sure they came to the previous Chief Minister, of people, for example, who have been resident in Gibraltar for fifteen years, have gone to the United Kingdom and they are back after eight years and they want to register under the Gibraltarian Status Act and they are not able to because they do not have the lineage, and then they have issues, or they would have had their residence for twenty-five years coming up... There are circumstances like that which create unfairness and, look, the traditional way of determining who is entitled to vote in our Parliamentary elections has been based on residence. We do not think that is an unfair way of determining who is entitled to vote in the future and we would, therefore, propose that it continues to be based – the franchise should continue to be based – on residence, as it historically has been, with the caveat that we do think that Gibraltarians who are studying abroad should be entitled to vote but we think that is the case already and that no amendment is required for that purpose.

1025 Certainly, Mr Speaker, unless I am wrong, in every election in which I have been involved since 2003 those who have been studying in the United Kingdom, Gibraltar students in the United Kingdom, have been able to vote as postal voters and facilities have been put in place to try and ensure that the postal voting mechanism has not thwarted their ability to have their vote counted, by allowing for that to be sent, as I said a moment ago, to Gibraltar House.

Mr Speaker, then Recommendation No. 38 says this:

1030 ‘We recommend that the maximum period of time between the issue of a writ and the holding of a General Election should be reduced from three months to forty-two days.’

1035 Mr Speaker, we think that there are very few circumstances where this would be relevant but we think that limiting the period in this way is not hugely important. We are not persuaded that there are good reasons to amend the Constitution, and this would require a Constitutional amendment to make this change, although it may be something that if there are Constitutional revisions in the future, could then be considered in more detail.

1040 But look, if a Chief Minister wants to call an election in forty-two days’ time he can, if he wants to call it in thirty days’ time he can, subject to the new limits that we are thinking of putting in of perhaps thirty-five. If he wants to give three months’ notice, well I mean that is not a bad thing for others who are going to be involved in the election because they will know for longer. I wager people will get bored of us politicians running around campaigning for a whole three months, but it would not be bad for democracy.

1045 So when would this period be relevant? It would probably be relevant when time has run out for an election to be called and it is called automatically. It is then called for three months thence rather than forty-two days thence, which is what is being proposed. I do not think it is a hugely important issue meriting engagement on amendment of the Constitution: it may be something that, if there are Constitutional talks going on, can be looked at, but we do not think that it would hugely enhance the quality of our democracy to engage just for that purpose.

1050 Finally, Mr Speaker, the 39th Recommendation refers to offices for the Leader and Members of the Opposition and reads as follows:

1055 ‘We recommend that office and secretarial facilities for the Leader and Members of the Opposition should be made available near the Parliament.

1060 We do not believe, Mr Speaker, that services should be provided to Opposition Members alone. Government Members do work as Government Ministers but they also do work as Members of this House. The refurbishment of the Parliament is already underway, Mr Speaker, beyond the refurbishment of this Chamber and will shortly move to a refurbishment of the Ante Chamber and other parts around the building that should, in our view, make it possible to create new spaces for Members generally, not just Members of the Opposition but Members generally, to have available the meeting rooms that the Commission recommends, with some appropriate secretarial support.

I think I speak for ....

1065 Mr Speaker: I hope the Chief Minister will not forget the Speaker.

1070 Hon. Chief Minister: Perish the thought, Mr Speaker. In fact, as it happens, I think you are the only person that has an office at the moment, but the whole idea of the refurbishment is the refurbishment of the whole of the area at the back and perhaps some of the other areas in and around the building and certainly Mr Speaker would not be forgotten in this context. The ability to do the business of Parliament as parliamentarians must depend in having the facilities necessary for us to do that work as parliamentarians. That includes the Speaker, the Clerk and officers of the House, as well as Members on both sides of the House.

1075 But if I might just say, Mr Speaker, in the context of the assistance that members of the staff of the House give Members of the Parliament, certainly my experience when in Opposition was that they were hugely helpful whenever they could. Of course, in the context of an election campaign there is a lot going on and members of the House staff become the Returning Officer’s staff and we cannot expect, at that time, to ask for a copy of the relevant Hansard and get it as quickly as you might on a quiet day in deepest August when there is not an election campaign going on. But, absent that, I found, as I am sure Members across the floor have found, that members of staff of the House are hugely helpful, whether one is in Government or in Opposition. They are blind to where Members sit: we are all just Members, as far as they are concerned, with our different responsibilities and hugely helpful at that.

1080 Mr Speaker I have dealt specifically as I set out to do with the Commission’s Recommendations only 1085 because that, in my view, is what the Commission is putting to the Parliament. I have not dealt with matters on which you have not made recommendations. In particular, Mr Speaker, I note the dissenting opinion that the Commission has provided from Mr Vasquez QC. You have not made a recommendation in respect of the views advanced by him so I have not had to address it, but we take careful note of what he writes: there is no recommendation there though for us to consider.

1090 Mr Speaker, the Select Committee that I propose to establish to look at the detail will need the help and support, as I have said, also of the Clerk but I believe it should also meet at least once with the whole Commission to go through some of the areas that I think should be deferred to the Select Committee so that, perhaps in conversation, we could hear the voice of the Commission and what their concerns were in case we may have misinterpreted any of them. I am conscious of the fact that, although you were the Chairman of it, you cannot from your Chair form part of this debate and, therefore, I think the appropriate process would be for the Select Committee to engage with the whole Commission at the start of its work so that the Commission can inform the Committee of any aspect of its work that may be relevant.

1095 Mr Speaker, finally, I would say that I think I have structured my intervention today on a Recommendation by Recommendation basis so that the position is clear to hon. Members on both sides on each and I will very much look forward to hearing what it is that Members opposite have to say. I would alert the House, Mr Speaker, that my intention would be to hear what other Members have to say and then recess for a short while so that we can, if necessary, consider issues together as to the amendment and then come back and take the amendments during the course of my reply, as I said. I hope that we can have this debate in the spirit of co-operation and not of confrontations because I think that reforming this Parliament and reforming its procedures is improving our democracy for the better. That is what our citizens demand and deserve.

1100 Mr Speaker, at that moment, conscious of the fact that I have been on my feet for quite a while, can I propose that we recess now also for a few minutes in case Members need to have a comfort break or something. I would like to be in the Chamber for the whole of the debate and would not mind a recess of five minutes if you would agree.

Mr Speaker: The House will now have a short recess for ten minutes.

The House recessed at 11.00 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 11.25 a.m.

1115

Mr Speaker: I now propose a Question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Chief Minister. Does any hon. Member wish to speak?

1120

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker.

First of all, may I start by thanking the Commission and you in particular for the Report and the obvious time, effort and care that the entirety of the Commission has taken in producing this Report. Obviously, I speak on behalf of all hon. Members on this side of the House.

1125 Mr Speaker, in relation to the mechanics, I was going to say something about the mechanics that the Chief Minister outlined at the beginning of his intervention in relation to this debate. The Chief Minister and I have already spoken in the anteroom and what I will do is I will allow the Chief Minister to, basically, by way of response, deal with the question of mechanics: because as I understand it, we have agreed, in principle, to move away from what was originally proposed, which was for the motion to be amended in order to include all the recommendations that the Government thinks it ought to include in that motion, to a different suggestion and allow the Chief Minister to effectively outline to this House and, indeed, to listeners out there what we have tentatively agreed.

1135 Mr Speaker, I am going to be effectively talking about general principles. I am going to be focusing on a number of areas. Before I outline those areas, all the hon. Members on this side of the House will have an opportunity and, indeed, will speak on the Report. Isobel Ellul-Hammond will be talking about Part II, although I will be dealing with certain issues in relation to Part II. Mr Bossino will be talking about Part III, Edwin Reyes will be talking about Part IV and Mr Netto will be talking about something that is dear to his own heart – he talks from his own perspective, it is his own view – and that is in relation to the Oath that we all have to swear at the beginning of Parliamentary proceedings.

1140

1145 But, Mr Speaker, in my own intervention what I want to talk about is, first of all, I would like to place this Report and, indeed, the debate on Parliamentary reform into its proper historical context. I think that is helpful and that is what I intend to do; secondly, it is the issue of enlargement, which is of fundamental importance to this side of the House; thirdly, Questions and Answers; fourth Parliamentary timetable; and then, finally, I will talk from a personal perspective, because it is not an issue that, in fact, my Party has a particular policy as an outline, but from a personal perspective I want to talk about something that does not contain a recommendation but it is dealt with by the Report and that is the serving... for nobody to serve as Chief Minister for more than two terms.

Mr Speaker, you can see from the outline of these five points that, in fact, I am not going to be restricting myself to the Recommendations made by the Commission and, indeed, I am going to be talking about areas where this is no Recommendation by the Commission but that are, as I say – such as enlargement – important to this Party on this side of the House.

Mr Speaker, Parliamentary modernisation was always envisaged at some point in the future when we negotiated a new Constitution. In 2007 we moved to a Constitution which, not only, in our view, provides a maximum level of self-government but included, amongst other things, modernisation of the composition of this Parliament and, indeed, the balance of executive competencies. The Financial Development Secretary and the Attorney General were replaced by Elected Members and I had the privilege of being the first Minister for Justice to swear an Oath at the opening of Parliament after the 2007 Election, all as a consequence of the Constitution. Indeed, under that Constitution, this House went from being a House of Assembly to our Parliament. And therein lies part of the challenge for this House, that we have a modern Constitution underpinning a Parliament and yet the organisation of this House, the way it does its business, is based on the architecture, in our view, of a Legislative Assembly underpinned by Constitutional arrangements that this community has outgrown.

Of course, there are other reasons why Parliamentary reform is necessary, not least because we have to make a genuine effort, in our view, to make the proceedings of this Parliament as accessible and as relevant to people as possible. The GSD's longstanding position is that – the GSD's Opposition's longstanding position – is that it is supportive of any attempt to reform and modernise the way that Parliament operates. That is not a position we take for the first time today on this motion, it is a well-established position of this Party going back a number of years. It will be recalled that, in 2009, we convened a Select Committee on Parliamentary reform. I do not want to get bogged down in the reasons why that Committee only met twice; those have been ventilated in the past both in this House and outside the House. But in 2001, the then Chief Minister, Mr Caruana, moved a motion resolving for the House to convert that Select Committee into a Committee of the whole House in order to allow Members to discuss and consider a number of principles that ought to underpin the reform and modernisation of Parliament and its work. Most, though not all, of those principles, with some exceptions, are reflected in the Report and the recommendations that we are considering today.

Thus the motion presented by my learned and hon. Friend included the principle that each Minister should appear in Parliament at least once a month to answer Questions about his or her Ministerial responsibility and that the Chief Minister should answer Questions once every two weeks, with Standing Orders limiting the duration of each monthly session. Whilst recognising that the House was too small to permit the widespread use of multiple Parliamentary Committees as in other larger Parliaments, the motion recommended that there should be at least one standing General Purpose Select Committee, Chaired by a Member of the Opposition, able to summon Ministers, Officials and others in any policy area, as in the case of Select Committees in the UK.

It included televising of Parliamentary proceedings, the modernisation of Standing Orders and the reform of the Rules to ensure that Opposition obtained a monthly opportunity to bring motions for debate in Parliament, which is possible under current rules but, given that only the Government controls the ability to suspend Standing Orders to allow such a motion to be taken before the end of Government business, it also has the ability to delay that motion to a time when it is least convenient for members of the press and therefore least effective.

We can debate as much as we want, but whilst the Government controls the ability to have that debate heard on the political equivalent, in my view, of Siberia on an exceptionally cold day, namely very late on Friday evenings – and I have found myself questioning the Father of the House on exceptionally cold and late Friday evenings – the effectiveness of motions as a means to hold the Government to account will be severely restricted. That is why my hon. Friend Mr Caruana was proposing to reform the Parliamentary timetable, too, and have specific slots for debating Opposition Motions which I hope is an idea that can be taken forward in any future reforms under this process despite the fact that there does not appear to be any Recommendation to that effect.

Mr Speaker, in our view as an Opposition, the single most important proposal by Mr Caruana during his motion was the proposal to enlarge Parliament from 17 to 25 Members in order to allow backbenchers on both sides of the House. During the debate on the 2011 motion in my contribution I said that, whilst I only spoke for myself, the issue of enlargement of Parliament to create backbenchers was so critical that I did not believe we could have profound reform of our Parliamentary system without it. Nothing that has transpired since then has changed my mind. It is, of course, a GSD Manifesto commitment. Unfortunately, Mr Speaker, it is a commitment which cannot be fulfilled, even if we were in Government because, constitutionally, it requires support of a two-thirds majority of this House.

At the time of the 2011 motion this was the only issue that, indeed, separated both sides of the House and it was the only issue that prevented a consensus either on the motion presented by my Learned and Hon. Friend Mr Caruana or, indeed, the amended motion presented by, or moved by, Mr Licudi. It may 1210 be recalled that the then Leader of the Opposition went through the motion point by point, agreeing to all of them except for the enlargement of Parliament for the purposes of creating backbenchers. I hope, Mr Speaker, that I can prevail on hon. Members opposite to support the principle of enlargement of Parliament. I recognise that the issue of enlargement could bring to bear considerations of the electoral system in order to elect any additional Members, but it does not have to be so and my preferred option – our preferred option – for reasons that I will develop in a moment, is to simply increase the number of candidates fielded by political parties at election time.

1215 It was, of course, specifically envisaged that it might be desirable to enlarge Parliament when we were negotiating the new Constitution with the United Kingdom. It was the Gibraltar delegation in the proposals that we put to the United Kingdom that included the power to enlarge Parliament. Indeed, Mr Speaker, if at the time of those negotiations, we on the Gibraltar side felt that for those reasons we should have the power to enlarge Parliament, we must have believed that, at some point in the future, it might be 1220 desirable for us to do precisely that, to enlarge Parliament. Hon. Members who were present during those negotiations, Mr Speaker, the Father of the House, the Deputy Chief Minister and the then Chief Minister, Mr Caruana, will recall the United Kingdom's side of the negotiations at the negotiating forum was concerned that this should not open the door simply to expanding Parliament so that the executive could get even bigger and a Chief Minister could appoint as many Ministers as there were MPs on the 1225 Government side. This is why the Constitution contains a formula which caps the number of Ministers that can be appointed, thus ensuring that the rest of any enlarged Parliament would be effectively backbenchers.

Mr Speaker, I have to respectfully say that I find this part of the Report, at Paragraph 2.17, to lack focus. I do not know whether that stems from the fact that the enlargement of Parliament appears to have 1230 been considered in the context of the creation of constituencies and was thus conflated with that issue or because the Commission was mainly focusing on the issue in the context of Government backbenchers and not Opposition backbenchers. At the very least these appear to be the principal considerations, as far as we can see from the Report.

Again, with respect to my friend Mr Robert Vasquez, who I respect considerably, we are not in favour of the creation of constituencies or wards for the selection of backbenchers. Gibraltar is simply too small, in our view, for such a system to work. The premise for Mr Vasquez's proposals appear to be based on the premise that there is a deficiency in access between constituents and their MP which would be improved by dividing Gibraltar into constituencies. I do not believe that deficiency exists. We are a community of 30,000 people and it is probably one of the few communities in the world where you can 1240 gain access to Government Ministers or Shadow Ministers within a very short period of time. I hold surgeries every other Wednesday and I meet people every Friday. My colleagues on this side of the House have similar systems.

I do, however, agree with Mr Vasquez that when a frontbench spokesman of the Opposition takes up an individual case, either in Parliament or by raising it with a Minister or a Department, it could be 1245 perceived as being tainted by political bias or political considerations. In other words, the governing party may have a tendency to analyse them with suspicion and scepticism and possibly consider them in a negative light. A backbencher dedicated purely to constituency work may not be hampered in that way.
The argument, of course, Mr Speaker, has its limits because the Government and Shadow Ministers in the UK do see constituents at their local constituency surgeries. But, Mr Speaker, the thrust of Mr Vasquez's 1250 minority report is that he very much favours enlargement of Parliament to create backbenchers and we certainly agree with that.

Mr Speaker, I have not conducted an analysis of every other Parliament in the western hemisphere but there cannot be many where those selected to it for the first time are effectively plunged into ministerial or shadow ministerial roles. In other words, that person may find himself or herself as a lawyer, a nurse or 1255 a school teacher one day, and running a Ministry the next simply through lack of choice in the way that we have structured our Parliament. There are many examples where people coming into this Parliament, or the House of Assembly, for the first time, have made very substantial contributions to politics, but it is not a good system: it is not a good system.

It is not only a question as to whether that person is good enough, or apt, for ministerial or shadow 1260 ministerial office, our system may actually discourage people from standing for election, people with expertise in certain fields or the experience of life, who can genuinely make a contribution from the backbenches without wanting to hold ministerial office, or people who may, in time, be the ministers or the shadow ministers of tomorrow, who having had the benefit of a political apprenticeship in the backbenches would be much more prepared for the job they may face in the future.

1265 There are many reasons why people may want to become Members of Parliament but not a Government Minister or a Shadow Minister. There may be professional or family reasons. The fact that someone may want to participate in the political process or the legislative process does not mean that he or she may want to do so full-time to the exclusion of his or her profession or the running of their business. I can think of many leaders in their respective fields in this community that would enrich this 1270 Parliament with their contributions but may not be able to commit to leaving that profession or business for a role as a full-time Government Minister or, indeed, a Shadow Minister. You may also have young children and the time is not right for you to commit to being a Government Minister or Shadow Minister but you still want to, and can, contribute, to the Parliamentary process by becoming a Member of Parliament. The reasons are many and are also varied.

1275 On our side of the House, of course, Mr Caruana is the sole backbencher. No-one can seriously suggest that his contributions to this House are not welcome. We should be encouraging people like Mr Caruana to stay in Parliament, not leave after a term because, if he stands, he is effectively standing for election for ministerial office. In other words, he would be standing for Government, not to be a backbencher on the Government's side. I may, in a number of years, decide to step down as Leader of the GSD. Why should I, after having spent many years on the front bench on both sides of the House, have to decide, in an all or nothing decision, that if I wanted to stand for election, it is to offer myself for election as a Government Minister rather than help my party, and indeed the community as a whole, by effectively being prepared to stand for election as part of a backbench, part of my party's team?

1280 Mr Speaker, this must be one of the few Parliaments in the world in which, if you wish to stand as a Member of Parliament, you are, in effect, standing for the Cabinet or for Government Ministerial Office. I do not believe that that is a credible state of affairs. Not only does our present system exclude people who, quite frankly, we should not be excluding but I believe that having backbenchers would hugely increase the quality of our democracy. It is often said that the most effective Opposition to Governments very often comes from the backbenchers because of the propensity in any given situation, where people feel strongly enough about a particular issue, to vote against the Government. At the present moment, every Member of this Parliament, bar one, is subject to the principle of collective Cabinet or Shadow Cabinet responsibility.

1285 Unless there is a free vote on an issue, or a Member feels so strongly about an issue that he resigns from the front bench or from Parliament, which is after all pressing the nuclear option, he or she have to express their views privately in Cabinet or Shadow Cabinet and, after a decision is taken, support that decision and that line. The ability of backbenchers to break rank from the party line is one of the most enriching factors in any democracy. Further, Mr Speaker, the system we have at present, effectively entrenches people in their Ministerial or Shadow Ministerial position, irrespective and regardless of whether they are doing a good or a bad job.

1290 Neither the Hon. the Chief Minister nor I have the ability to promote or demote people, whether they are doing a good job or a bad job. You could have someone who is only interested in doing the minimum necessary to get through four years and is short-changing the taxpayer and his Party. I suppose a Chief Minister of the day could sack that person but it would seriously hamper the Government of the day if, of course, the Government as, clearly, its policy thinks that ten Ministers are necessary to conduct Government business. On the Leader of the Opposition's side, it would be nonsensical because, other than battered pride, Mr Speaker, the practical consequences, when one thinks about it, is for that person effectively to go from doing some work to doing less work if he were sacked from the front bench to go into the Opposition benches.

1300 It would of course Mr Speaker; allow the promotion of someone else to the front bench or it would allow demotion of someone if we felt that person was not pulling his or her weight. It is how it works everywhere else; by excluding backbenchers from our Parliamentary system we do democracy in this jurisdiction a huge disservice.

1305 Mr Speaker, the irony is that many of the recommendations that are made in the Report, which are very worthwhile indeed, relating to the creation of committees, are when one examines them very closely, dependent for their true effectiveness on the enlargement of Parliament and the creation of backbenchers.

In relation to Select Committees, for example, the Report says:

1310 'There has been broad support from the responders for a greater use of Select Committees as a significant and effective measure in raising the profile and significance of Parliament since, without them, Parliament is handicapped in the general running of Parliamentary business.'

We agree, Mr Speaker, with that entirely but the Commission is absolutely right when it says in the preceding paragraph:

1325 'We have considered whether Select Committees should be created and how they should be made up in order to fulfil their task. We question whether Select Committees would be a realistic possibility given that the matters have become so polarised and confrontational in local politics as to make them unworkable in practice. On the other hand, we feel that a greater use of Select Committees could serve to diminish negative perception of local politics.'

1330 It is precisely because members of the Select Committees are subject to Cabinet or Shadow Cabinet collective responsibility and would bring no independence to bear on the process that it is adversarial and, by and large, it does not work. If we enlarge Parliament and we have backbenchers leading on these 1335 Select Committees, I believe that a completely different attitude would ensue. The same applies to the Public Bills Committee in Section 2.7 of the Report. I doubt very much whether these committees will be as effective as they could be, without backbenchers. The crux of the problem can clearly be seen in the way the Report treats the issue of Standing Committees and the Public Accounts Committee in particular. It says, in the fourth paragraph, section 2.8 that:

1340 'We are of the view that the 1980-84 Public Accounts Committee proved ineffective, impractical and unworkable, particularly because Ministers were expected to scrutinise and question senior executives of their ministerial colleagues' department. If a Public Accounts Committee were to be set up, it would be essential for Government backbenchers to take the place of Ministers. We have concluded that there is no need to establish a General Purpose Standing Committee nor a Public Accounts Committee given that Opposition Members have every opportunity to examine Government expenditure in detail as well as debating the report from the Principal Auditor on the Government Accounts for every financial year.'

1345 In my view, that conflates desirability and necessity with workability under the current system. Of course, it is not workable under the current system of frontbenchers on both sides of the House but the question is whether it is desirable or necessary in a mature democracy and the answer, in our view, is yes, there ought to be some mechanism where Members of Parliament can hold Ministers and Departments to account in 'nitty gritty' terms, much more so than would be appropriate in a normally structured and normally operated Question Time. And it should not just be once a year in the Committee Stage of the Budget that the Opposition Members are given the opportunity to examine Government expenditure, as the Report says. We believe that there is room for at least one Standing Committee of Parliament to serve that role but backbenchers again, in our respectful view, would be essential.

1355 Mr Speaker, of course the devil is in the detail and the issue of enlargement of Parliament necessitates consideration of the means by which we are going to elect Members of that enlarged Parliament. I believe that the answer is very simple; all we need to do is to increase the number of people on a slate at election time from ten to fifteen per party. That would give you more possible variations than the current slate of ten will give you because of the larger numbers, but within predictable parameters. At the moment, you have a ten/seven difference across the floor of the House, or a nine/eight difference. With slates of fifteen, you would have a fifteen/ten a thirteen/twelve or a fourteen/eleven difference.

1365 Mr Speaker, I refer to the words of a member of the Commission, the Hon. Fabian Vinet during the debate on the 2011 motion, when he said:

1370 'As far as backbenchers are concerned, Mr Speaker, their presence can only improve the quality and diversity of opinion in debate. I do not see any reason why a change to fifteen candidates cannot quickly percolate into the minds of the electorate, in the same way as I do not recall any difficulty in the change from eight to ten candidates percolating into the minds of the same electorate as the result of the new Constitution.'

1375 I believe he was absolutely right to make that point during that debate and I adopt those words to make precisely the same point today.

1380 Indeed, I note that the Commission recommends that the consideration of technological advances in relation to the counting of votes should be explored. I cannot imagine that an increase from ten to fifteen votes per person would add any expense or time to the process in the light of modern technological advances. Mr Speaker, the Report says that a majority of twenty-two individuals and one organisation that participated in the process did not agree with enlargement. I note that the Report says that not all responders responded on all the issues. For that reason, and because I do not know how many supported or opposed the idea, I cannot quantify the term 'majority of responders' when, at paragraph 2.17, the Commission says that:

1385 'The majority of responders are also opposed to any increase in the size of the Parliament as the electorate is well served by seventeen elected Members.'

1390 We certainly do not agree that the electorate is well served by seventeen Members, for the reasons that I have articulated. But it is also noteworthy that the GSD and the PDP were, at the last election, both committed to an enlargement of Parliament in our respective Manifestos and over 50% of the electorate voted for those Manifestos. People in General Elections vote for very different reasons and on many issues and I am not suggesting that everyone who voted for both parties were in favour of enlargement but neither do I believe that a consultation exercise, where only twenty-two people commented on enlargement, is determinative of the views of the community on the issue, particularly when the arguments have not been fully articulated. Indeed, I note that in Section 15 of the consultation document – not the Report – three out of four paragraphs of the section on constituencies and Members of Parliament are on constituencies and only one on the issue of backbenchers.

1400 We believe that, bearing in mind the importance of enlargement to this side of the House and to the parties representing over half of the electorate, that it should have been considered as a separate issue, separate from the question of constituencies or wards and that the main arguments should have been canvassed, if we are to rely on the views of responders as representing the views of the general public on this issue. Clearly, we believe we cannot.

1405 Mr Speaker, the Report, not the consultation paper, also says that:

‘...additional expenditure is unwarranted.’

1410 We do not believe that it is unwarranted or that the expenditure needs to be particularly onerous. My Hon. and Learned Friend Mr Caruana, during the 2011 motion, made it clear that we were proposing that a scale of pay in relation to backbenchers should be introduced that was less than for frontbench spokesmen on the Opposition side.

1415 Much may depend on the role they play within committees because, if somebody is clearly performing a role and giving of their time on Select Committees, they ought to, or it justifies, paying more than somebody who is just simply being a backbencher without being involved in a committee. But the benefits to democracy in having backbenchers, when balanced against the relatively modest additional expense, makes the decision, in our view, a relatively easy one when carefully considered and weighed.

1420 Mr Speaker, of course even if we had been elected into Government at the next election we could not force enlargement of Parliament with a parliamentary majority. Constitutionally, it requires a two thirds majority of this House. I note that Mr Licudi, who led for the GSLP / Liberals on the debate on parliamentary reform in 2011, proposed a possible referendum on the issue, on some of the issues that he was then postulating and we were debating in this House. We believe that rather than just simply use their parliamentary votes to block enlargement, the Government should agree to put this issue to the people in a referendum. This is an important enough issue to be put to people and it would be consonant with the views that they expressed on the 2011 motion.

1425 Mr Speaker, I now turn to Question and Answers. We agree partially with Recommendation No. 3 and entirely with Recommendations Nos. 5 and 6. We do not agree with Recommendation No. 4 and we do not agree that each Minister be limited to two hours when, for example, Mr Licudi has a number of portfolios and it would be impossible to do justice to all of them in that time. Our preference, if we are to have a time limit, would be to limit the amount of time per portfolio. But the limiting of time on Question Time is not something that, in fact, we are against: it has formed the subject of a motion that Mr Caruana brought in 2011 and it is certainly something that we can live with and agree with that recommendation.

1430 But the reason why I am dealing with this issue is because there are a number of macro points of importance that we would like to make. Mr Speaker, we agree that Questions should avoid long preambles and that they should be short and sharp, to coin a phrase used by Mr Speaker a number of weeks ago, rather than... but, of course, and I think this is recognised by the Leader of the House during his own intervention, it obviously also has to be reciprocated and answers should be short and sharp, rather than have political speeches. We have no problem with the idea that Chief Minister’s Questions should be limited to three hours provided, of course, the Speaker is alert to the fact that lengthy and perhaps irrelevant answers could very easily be used as a device to run the clock down.

1440 I am not suggesting that that is going to form a feature of Question and Answer sessions in the future because I recognise that the Hon. the Leader of the House has, today, during his own intervention said that he is effectively not supporting the idea of having a limited time for Chief Minister’s Question Time. But, Mr Speaker, I want to say something about the comments made in the Report about the relaxation of the rules in recent years and comments made by Mr Speaker during the last session of Questions and Answers, that many people have commented to him that past exchanges in this House have put people off listening to Parliament. If I have paraphrased it wrongly, I apologise but I think that is the gist of the words that were used or what was said.

1450 It is certainly true that there have been exchanges in the past that do no-one any credit at all. I think that where we have failed in the past is that exchanges across the floor of the House have become, in some instances, personalised. I have had references to members of my family, so have others within this House. There have been excesses on both sides of the House and I recognise that. I have to say, however, Mr Speaker, that, on balance, Members of this House are far better behaved than Members of other Parliaments. I often watch reports on Prime Minister’s Question Time, or Questions and Answers in the UK Parliament, and some of the things that I see, Mr Speaker, make us look like veritable Boy Scouts in the disorder stakes, if I can call it that.

1455 Certainly, we on this side of the House feel very strongly that we also have to guard against the other extreme and that is that Question and Answer sessions become a mechanical exercise devoid of any ability by the Opposition to hold the Government to account at a political level. Our role is to hold the 1460 Government to account by, at times, exposing the fact that the Government has mishandled a particular issue or is mistaken about a particular policy. We make no apologies for that, whether it raises tensions in the House or not, as long as it does not become personalised and we respect reasonable standards of good behaviour.

1465 Of course, Questions have to be factual and they cannot be a pretext for debate but you cannot take the politics out of Questions and Answers with constant interventions from the Chair every time supplementary questions are asked on the grounds that temperatures are rising. Otherwise, the rising of temperatures can be used as a simple device by the Government of the day to force us to move on to the next Question. The consequence will be that we will not be able to do the job that we have been elected to do. Nothing, in our respectful view, will do a greater disservice to the Parliamentary process. Indeed, I predict that people will turn away from tuning in to Parliamentary Questions and Answers which, at the end of the day, must be one of the objectives, given that we have agreed to televise the proceedings.

1470 We are all politicians. People may tune in to GBC or read reports in the Chronicle to find out, I do not know, about how many trees have been planted in their particular area... and that is fine, that is part of information that may be relevant to parts of this community, or the community. But they are also interested, equally interested, in finding out whether the Government has been able to provide cogent answers to the political issues of the day, the issues that are capable in some instances, yes, of embarrassing the Government or the Opposition if we get it wrong.

1475 Mr Speaker, I was watching BBC television on Sunday morning two weeks ago where there were snippets of questions put to Nick Clegg, the Deputy Prime Minister, by a Conservative backbencher. The question related to a leaflet that Mr Clegg had caused to be published with his photograph, advocating an EU Referendum in 2009. The questioner sarcastically asked whether that photograph was the photograph of the Right Hon. Gentleman, the Deputy Prime Minister, or the photograph of an imposter. He was making a political point. It was an effective political point. It provoked a level of noise in the Chamber and much laughter! No-one said 'The question is improper, or it is going to raise temperatures, or do not make clever remarks.' Mr Speaker, if we take out the ability of Members to make political points of that nature, you run the risk of making Question and Answer sessions into a complete damp squib.

1480 The same applies to the issue of supplementary questions; we cannot always get it collectively right. I include myself in that assessment but there has to be some flexibility in order to allow us to do our job. Our concern with Recommendation No. 3 is that it should not be an excuse to turn Question and Answer sessions into anything other than what it is, a political Question and Answer session. I hope that when a point is taken by the Chair about the appropriateness of a supplementary, for whatever reasons, or temperatures do rise, that we are allowed from the floor to explain why we believe it was an appropriate supplementary or why we should be allowed to continue with a particular line of questioning. When you are told... because, at the end of the day, Mr Speaker, every time that the Chair takes a particular point about the appropriateness of a supplementary question, what the Chair is effectively doing is taking a Point of Order. It is saying that question is not within Standing Orders.

1490 On a number of occasions Mr Speaker has said: 'That question does not arise from the original Question.' Well, perhaps if we had been allowed to explain why we are asking a particular question we would have said that Standing Orders provides not that the question arises from – the supplementary – arises from, the original Question, but a supplementary question must not include matter not included in the original Question. The Chief Minister is absolutely right: it is about relevance to the subject matter of the original Question. Indeed, if we go to Erskine May and we look at the admissibility of supplementary questions at Page 305 – 'Oral answers and Supplementary Questions', it says:

1500 'A supplementary question may refer only to the answer out of which it immediately arises.'

1505 Now the point about that is that if a Minister – and I am going to be referring to a particular example at the last session – if a Minister says 'I have not briefed – we have not briefed – the Mayor of La Línea about the Fishing Report', and I have a statement from the Government that, basically, calls into question whether that is correct or is not correct, that is a perfectly valid supplementary question, in our view.

1510 I see that the Hon. the Chief Minister does not agree and that is alright because the point that I am making is that, at the very least, we should be allowed to express why the question was admissible in the circumstances. That is the point that I make. And I accept that. Look, there may be different views, I may not get it right sometimes but at the very least, that I ought to be allowed to express the reason why I am asking that supplementary question and why I believe that the question is admissible, without being told you do not have the floor and without being able to express our views on it. When we are told, Mr Speaker, 'You do not have the floor', we will abide by it but we are entitled to be heard as to where we are going with a particular line of questioning that we may think is actually being quite effective. All that we ask, on this side of the House, is that we are allowed the ability to just simply explain why we think that the question was an appropriate question under the circumstances. That is all.

1520 I hope that the comments I have made are taken in the spirit that they are intended, to be as constructive as possible in the way that these proceedings are conducted in the future, that allows us to do our job effectively, allows the Chair to do his job which, no doubt, he does always to the best of his ability and impartially, and also that the Government does their job in answering Questions.

1525 Mr Speaker, I turn to timetable. The Hon. Lady Mrs Ellul-Hammond will be speaking about parliamentary timetable. Over the last six or seven months Question and Answer sessions have been spread over a number of days and sometimes weeks. Sessions often start at 3.00 p.m. and this inevitably drags Question Time into several days and sometimes several weeks. There should, in our view, and I 1530 think, in his own intervention, I think that the Chief Minister – he will correct me, if I am wrong, in his response – but I detected an acceptance of some of the things that I am going to be saying and certainly an acceptance of moving to a situation where we have more predictable timetables for parliamentary proceedings. There should, in our view, be a system whereby we know in advance that particular Ministers will be asked Questions on a particular day. It is all very well – 1535 Hon. Chief Minister: Will the hon. Gentleman give way?

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, of course.

1540 Hon. Chief Minister: I am not going to interfere with the way that the hon. Gentleman puts issues in this debate and I have kept a note of the things that he has said which I would like to reply to but can I just refer him to the fact that there is already a timetable, which is published and I thought, actually, was distributed to Members of the Opposition, where we set out which Ministers we believe, subject to the vagrancies of how Question Time then develops, are going to be able to answer Questions on a particular date and that is actually made publicly available and it is on the website of the Parliament.

1545 I do not know whether I have the impression that this has been published and it is not getting to them at a particular time, but the impression I have is that not only is it made available to the general public, it is specifically made available to Members opposite and this was an innovation that we introduced when we were elected. I just wanted to ask whether he is making this point in the context of that or not.

1550 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I do not think... I am well aware of the fact that we receive a timetable indicating the order in which Ministers will answer Questions. I do not think – that is not the point that I make. I do not think it actually works. What we are saying from this side of the House is that there ought to be a timetable where, for example, the Chief Minister answers Questions on a Thursday – bar, of course, exigencies of his own business – on a Thursday, but then we have a situation where other 1555 Ministers are also allocated particular times or particular days in a week so that we know in advance when Members opposite will have an opportunity to question Members opposite... because, you see, it is all very well to criticise marathon sessions, as the Report does, but Questions and Answers should be spread over two days at the most. At the moment, Chief Minister's Questions is on the Thursday: it may not be possible to adhere to that timetable, as I have said, every month because of Ministerial demands, 1560 but some system of advanced notice should be agreed. They can plan their personal and ministerial diaries around their timetable because they know when they have to answer Questions or when Bills will be debated but we do not.

1565 My diary is entirely organised around my political commitments – my own diary – but I also have professional commitments, that is the reality of our Parliamentary system. I know that the hon. Member will say to me that they never had notice of when Bills were debated or Questions answered when they were on our side of the House. It is a perfectly valid point but, of course, we have now moved on to monthly meetings, where meetings are being adjourned after just two hours and dragged on for four weeks sometimes, so it is not that we are dealing with Questions on one week – Question and Answers one week – we are sometimes dealing with Questions and Answers over two and – it has happened in the 1570 past – three weeks.

1575 It is simply not possible for Members on this side of the House to plan their diaries around Parliament at the present moment and I give the House this commitment that, if we were elected into Government, if I became Chief Minister and he is not prepared to do it, we would move to introduce a system of fixed dates for Question and Answers, with advanced warning of if those dates are likely to vary, and that will be included in our Manifesto in 2015. In other words, simply because they may not agree to move to a system that I am advocating does not mean that we are not going to be moving towards such a system if we get elected into Government.

1580 Mr Speaker, finally, I want to say something about a Chief Minister not serving more than two terms.
I was the first politician to advocate this policy thirteen years ago. I made submissions to the Select Committee on Constitutional Reform for the inclusion of that policy in the draft Constitution. Some of those who today advocate it opposed it in their own submissions to that very same Select Committee. I am glad that it is a policy that has proved popular and that it is being debated but it is a policy, in my view, that should have been included in the Constitution and it is not apt to be included in an Act of 1585 Parliament. An Act of Parliament cannot bind a future Government. If we were all to agree to introduce an Act of Parliament tomorrow, it could be repealed in the future. Unless it were included in the Constitution – and that is remote – the issue arises as to how anyone could be bound to this policy in the future. It is, therefore, for Parties to decide what policy they may wish to adopt on this issue at any given time. Whilst it is not the policy of my Party, my own position as Party Leader is that if I were ever given the privilege of being elected as Chief Minister in 2015, I would only serve for two terms.

1590 Mr Speaker, finally, I would just like to say this about statements in the House because it is a point that the Hon. the Chief Minister made about... I think what he said was that we had not effectively given... we ‘taunted’ him about the Fishing Report, but of course, it was always his intention to bring it to Parliament at this session of the House. Of course, we did not know that it was his intention to bring it to Parliament at this session of the House! I think what that shows is that perhaps there is a greater need for the Chief Minister and myself, or myself and the Deputy Chief Minister, to discuss these issues outside 1595 this House. If we had been told that the Hon. the Chief Minister was going to be making it public today, we would not have come out on Monday, asking him to make it public. But of course we did not know that.

Mr Speaker, that is my own intervention on that.

1600 Mr Speaker: The hon. Lady. (Interjection by the Hon. Dr. J J Garcia) Are you making a formal contribution, or is it a – ?

Deputy Chief Minister: (Hon. Dr. J J Garcia): Yes.

1605 Mr Speaker: Sorry, I was not aware. Sorry.

Hon. Dr. J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, I welcome the opportunity to make a short contribution to the debate, not least because parliamentary reform is an issue that has interested me for many years. I take the opportunity to thank the Chairman, the members and the Secretary of the Commission for their valuable 1610 work. It would be relevant to start by looking backwards at how we reached where we are today before looking forward into the future. I say this because the procedures of this House over past decades have reflected the level of political emancipation that Gibraltar enjoyed at the time.

1615 Mr Speaker, this Parliament started its days as a debating chamber way back in 1950, when a curious mixture of representatives of the electorate intermingled with the colonial administration of Gibraltar. In those days this Chamber, then a Legislative Council, was presided over by the Governor in full military uniform. The elected representatives of the people of Gibraltar asked questions of the colonial administrators, who were the ones who actually governed. The procedures of this Chamber changed in the late 1950s when the number of elected Members was increased and they came to be associated with the work of Government Departments.

1620 This meant that, instead of questioning the Government – meaning the UK Colonial Government – the elected Members instead questioned each other on the work of the Departments that they were associated with. This experiment was a prelude to full Ministerial responsibility of the Government Departments which came about in the 1964 Constitution. The period from 1950 to 1969 was one of rapid constitutional and political development. It culminated in the creation of the House of Assembly in that year, when the 1625 City Council and the Legislative Council merged to form one single representative body.

1630 It is important to recall that, in 1975, a committee made up of Members of this House proposed the creation of a committee system of administration based on the Westminster Government and Opposition system, instead of being based on the Westminster system, it was based on the system used until recently in Jersey and in some of the Channel Islands. This was included in the proposals and was made to the then Minister of State at the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, Roy Hattersley, as part of the package of proposals for Political and Constitutional Reform.

1635 The so-called Hattersley Memorandum of 1976 rejected practically everything else that Gibraltar requested and suggested that our Constitution, in future, lay in a direction where we clearly did not want to go. However, the committee system of government was not rejected by the United Kingdom at that time. The next major step, in this narrow institutional context, did not come about until 2007, when the 2006 Constitution was promulgated and this Chamber became the Gibraltar Parliament.

1640 It is relevant to point out, in the context of the debate today, that Standing Orders remained largely unchanged throughout, since the days of the House of Assembly. In January 2009, Mr Speaker – the hon. Member has already alluded to this – the then Government moved a motion in this House to create a Select Committee of Parliament to consider desirable changes to the processes and procedures and the manner in which Parliament carried out its business. This was also supposed to look at the desirability of amendments to the Standing Orders of the House, whether the number of Members should be increased and, if so, in what manner and on what terms this would happen.

The Committee met once, on 23rd April 2009. It did not meet again. The hon. Members then in 1645 Government proposed that it should cease to exist and become a committee of the whole House as a General Election approached in 2011. At that time, it was clear that there were two different routes – the route proposed by the hon. Members and the route proposed by ourselves, the then Opposition and now the Government of Gibraltar.

1650 Mr Speaker, we have been consistent in Government with the road map that we spelt out in Opposition. This was to set up a Commission on Democratic and Parliamentary Reform with fixed timescales. That Commission, as the House knows, was appointed on 2nd March 2012. It was tasked with producing a consultation paper within three months: it met the deadline. It was asked to report to Parliament within twelve months of commencing the consultation process: again, it was well within the deadline. Indeed, the work of the Commission and the fact that we are discussing the Report and its 1655 recommendations today, is a tribute to the hard work of all those who have been involved in it, in a process which has been brought to its conclusion in just over a year.

Mr Speaker, my hon. Friend the Chief Minister has already outlined the position of the Government in relation to the 39 Recommendations contained in the Report, those that the Government will be supporting and the mechanism through which it is proposed that these could be taken forward. However, 1660 it is important, nonetheless, to stress that these proposals must be seen in the context of the other reforms to this Parliament that the Government has already implemented. These include monthly meetings of the House, except in the usual recess. This alone is a revolutionary change when compared to what existed before. Questions can now be asked in a timely manner when events are still current. The setting up of a parliamentary website, the faster production of Hansard and placing it online, making wi-fi available in the Chamber and increasing the resources of Parliament are also reforms which have already taken place.

I have said before that it must be very difficult for new Members, on both sides of the House, to envisage today a Parliament where the production of Hansard sometimes took eight months or even a year. Hansard is now available and online in a few weeks. This was not always the case. The point, Mr Speaker, is that there has been substantial reform to the way in which our Parliament conducts its 1670 business already. This has made life easier for the general public, for the media, for the staff and the Members of this House. Indeed, the physical refurbishment of this Chamber, which started life as the Exchange and Commercial Library in 1817, is also an important landmark which has helped this House to move forward with the times through a blend of modern design and traditional features.

In short, Mr Speaker, our actions already and the debate we are having today is proof, in itself, that the Government is serious about parliamentary reform and that it remains serious about it. The concern that was expressed not that long ago in this place, was that the issue was being kicked into the long grass. This has now been shown to be without foundation and now it is up to us, the elected representatives of the people, to take the matter forward.

1680 Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, it is an honour and privilege to address this House on a number of matters which my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition has asked me to deal with, mainly matters affecting the internal workings of this House and its Members.

1685 Firstly, of the Commission's Report in the context of the Chief Minister's attendance at Parliament, as dealt with at Paragraph 2.2: the Opposition has no issue with the Recommendation made by the Commission that the practice which has been observed in this House since time immemorial should continue to be the case and that the Chief Minister should remain at liberty to attend Parliament as he sees fit and, of course, in order to answer Questions made of him. This is not a matter of contention for the Opposition.

I now turn to Paragraph 2.3 of the Commission's Report and the frequency of meetings and recesses. The first observation we would make in this regard is that there is a certain inconsistency in the observations of the Commission and its second recommendation. I recall, as I am sure all Members will, that there was no Christmas recess last year, which observation is correctly made by the Commission's Report. However, at Recommendation No. 2, the Commission recommends that Parliament should 1695 continue to have its Christmas and Easter recesses but that the summer recess should last from the end of July to the third week in September.

The Opposition is of the view that, despite what appears to be a Recommendation based on mistaken facts and inconsistent with the Commission's observations, this Parliament should resolve to meet a minimum of nine times a year in order to allow for recesses at Christmas, Easter and summer, effectively accepting and endorsing Recommendation No. 2.
1700

Monthly meetings of this Parliament, something which the Opposition during its time on the Government benches supported in its own motion in relation to parliamentary reform, have proved beneficial to the discharge of our responsibilities to this community and in this House.

1705 The fact that the House is now meeting on a monthly basis means that the Opposition has ample opportunity to raise and deal with topical issues at a time when they are relevant, as mentioned by the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister. The Opposition is equally aware of the potentially negative 1710 consequences of meeting regularly, mainly and most importantly the possibility of overloading the community on politics. The Opposition accepts that ours is a community which thrives on political debate about it, as with most everything else in life – and it is possible to have too much of a good thing. This is never more so than at the annual Budget debate sessions, lengthy sessions during which a full summary and analysis of the political year gone by and the prospect for the future are delivered in what can certainly be described, in the words of the Commission, as ‘marathon sittings’.

1715 Last year, in addition to the Budget debate sittings, the House then met for Questions later that month. The Opposition is collectively of the view that, in the light of the regularity with which Parliament meets and the high volume of political output being produced by both sides currently, the Opposition will limit itself to asking Questions of the Government in the sitting following the Budget debate to matters we assess require urgent attention in the House.

1720 Mr Speaker, I now move on to Recommendation 2.4 of the Commission’s Report. My hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition has already spoken on this matter, and this is the matter of Questions and Answers. As part of the overhaul of oral Questions and Answers and following on from Recommendation No. 3 to limit Question Time for the Chief Minister to three hours and the Ministers to two hours, we agree on a system of fixed days for sittings of Parliament. However, we suggest for the timetabling of fixed, named days and times in a month, according to the business of Parliament. This certainly helps 1725 MPs plan their work and personal diaries around Parliament, especially for working mothers like myself who have young children and need to plan or arrange for the collection from school or nursery or for their after-school activities.

We feel that it is becoming a feature of Parliament, over the last six or seven months, that sessions are dragging out over two or three weeks. Members of the Opposition are part-time and are less well prepared to make them full-time, which is not our policy; we have to accept that the reality is that professional business and private and childcare arrangements continue. No tentative timetable should be used as an instrument to keep the Opposition MPs guessing as to when they next need to attend Parliament and thus preventing them from planning their diaries. Indeed, this kind of loose arrangement makes family life difficult to plan at short notice and could certainly discourage single parents from coming into Parliament. We very much welcome the monthly meetings of Parliament. However, because of their increased 1730 frequency in the year, we urge for consideration to set a known week a month for Parliament business, as it is now but, despite knowledge that our Parliaments sits the third week of the month, the order of Questions, day or times are arbitrarily set, we have found, on a day-to-day basis, making it difficult to plan other MP business or family business, as I have already mentioned.

1735 Presently the third week of the month, which is earmarked for Parliament business and has Thursday afternoon for Chief Minister’s Questions is very welcome. It would also be welcome if, and I suggest this example just to illustrate the point, Mr Speaker, for example, the Minister for Tourism sat every Wednesday between 9.00 and 11.00 in the morning, the Minister for Justice 11.00 – 1.00; the Minister for Housing from 3.00 – 5.00 or for an hour for each portfolio. This is something that can be discussed in the Select Committee. This would also help the Ministers in conducting their own Government business and be able to plan ahead, knowing that a fixed appearance time and timetable exists. We accept that there has to be flexibility for urgent business but, in those cases, it will be easier for all MP’s, including Ministers, to work around a fixed timetable.

1740 On Paragraph 2.5, Motions for Adjournment and 2.6, Statements by the Government, the Opposition accepts Recommendations 7, 8 and 9 and such Recommendations cause the Opposition no issue whatsoever.

1755 Paragraph 2.7 on the Committal of Bills to Select Committees and 2.8 on Standing Committees: the Opposition accepts Recommendation No. 10, sharing the view set out by the Commission that lengthy and more technical Bills, those which are likely to substantially impact on citizens, should undergo in-depth legislative scrutiny by a committee established for that purpose. Mr Speaker, as the Parliament considers all these issues and drives forward the modernisation agenda, it becomes ever clearer that the case for an enlarged Parliament of 25 Members simply cannot be dismissed, as outlined by my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition.

1760 I take this opportunity to reiterate the view on this side of the House, that the enlargement of Parliament, in the manner explained by my hon. Friend, Mr Caruana, when he had the privilege of leading this House as Chief Minister and obviously my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition today, in the freshly remodelled Parliament Chamber, is critical to the effect of delivery of the modernisation and enhancement of the Parliamentary process in this place.

1765 The increased use of committees, such as the Public Accounts Committee, will provide an opportunity to backbenchers to participate in the legislative process, actively contributing without being required to step into the breach of the front benches. All other arguments in favour of the expansion of this Parliament have been addressed by my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition.

Moving on to Paragraph 2.9 on the Deputy Speaker, we too accept this Recommendation No. 11 in the light of the fact that Parliament sits for at least nine times a year, as per the recommendations outlined 1770 in Section 2.2. We understand that, despite the ability of our present and capable Speaker, but because of 1775 the increase of work Mr Speaker now undertakes, he should be assisted in his Parliamentary duties by an appropriately qualified person such as a Deputy Speaker. We understand there will be occasions when Mr Speaker will not be available to attend Parliamentary sittings, which will continue on a monthly basis, so the chosen Deputy Speaker is therefore able to sit and preside over Parliament in his place and perform his duties in relation to the role, as with other Parliaments around the world. We believe the Deputy Speaker should also be a non-elected Member, like the Speaker, and appointed by the Parliament by a resolution passed by a simple majority of its Members and presented by the Chief Minister, acting after consultation with the Leader of the Opposition.

1780 On Paragraph 2.10, on the remuneration of Members of Parliament, this side of the House does not quite understand what the issue is and, indeed, what the need for a review is. However, we are open-minded about it. If the need for a review is to examine whether new entrants to Parliament should have different terms in respect of pension rights, we will certainly listen to any arguments in favour of it. We believe that there are pros and cons in respect of changing the system with regard to pensions. We do not think the analogy with the Civil Service reforms is helpful as the MP's pension rights are different to those applicable to the Civil Service.

1785 Changing pension rights to contributory pensions may well be attractive to some people because, at the moment, unless you serve ninety months in this House you do not qualify for a pension. What is more, any reduction in incentives to stand for election by curbing the MPs existing pension rights will discourage individuals further from putting their name forward to serve their country. However, we believe the present system does not reward those who have contributed to public life for less than ninety 1790 months, a penalty that Mr Keith Azopardi suffered by a few weeks, despite his service to Gibraltar, and this cannot be right. But as I mentioned at the beginning, we are open-minded about this and will consider any such proposals in this regard in the spirit of constructive dialogue.

1795 With regard to Paragraph 2.11 on the Members Interests and Parliamentary Code, Recommendation
 No.14 is one that also has our unanimous support, Mr Speaker. Seeing that there has been no review of the Register of Members Interests, first drawn up in 1979, it is certainly time to do so. This enables the updating of the rules plus the introduction of a Parliamentary Code, as recommended in Recommendation
 No. 15. As with the UK and in light of the expenses scandal of the UK MPs which started in 2009 and which rocked Westminster, the electorate rightly expects an appropriate Code of Conduct for MPs in discharging their parliamentary and public duties. The purpose of declaring interests is to provide 1800 information on any financial or non-financial benefit received by an MP which might reasonably be thought by others to influence their actions, speeches or votes in Parliament, or influence their actions taken in their capacity as a Member of Parliament.

1805 With regard to Recommendation No. 15, we believe the drafting of a Parliamentary Code to reflect the Code of Conduct for the UK Members of Parliament, where its purpose is to assist Members in the discharge of their obligations to the House, their constituents and the public at large by (a) providing guidance on the standards of conduct expected of Members in discharging their parliamentary and public duties and, in so doing, (b) providing the openness and accountability necessary to reinforce public confidence in the way in which Members perform those duties. We therefore agree it is essential that 1810 suitably qualified persons should be conducting such a review and outlining our Parliamentary Code and we accept that an appropriate independent authority from the UK be commissioned for such a task.
 However, any Code should be approved by a majority of Members of Parliament or any Select Committee convened for that purpose. In line with making our Parliament more open and relevant to the electorate, we concur that the Register of Members Interests should be made available on the Parliament's website.

1815 With regard to the Ministerial Code we also agree with Recommendation No. 16. A review of the Gibraltar Ministerial Code is long overdue since the enactment of the 1969 Constitution. As per the preamble to this Recommendation in the Report, we believe the Ministerial Code should be brought into line with that applicable to MPs in the UK which sets out the rules and standards for Government Ministers. Such a Code helps preserve the public trust in the institution of Cabinet Government and its 1820 principles reassure the electorate that voted them into Government.

The UK's Committee on Standards in Public Life outlines seven principles which we feel should also be applicable to Gibraltar Ministers: (1) Selflessness – Ministers should act entirely in the public interest;
 (2) Integrity – no financial obligations should be accepted if they could undermine the Minister's 1825 position; (3) Objectivity – when making appointments, decisions should be based on merit; (4)
 Accountability – all public office holders are accountable and should co-operate with all scrutiny procedures; (5) Openness – all decisions should be justified and information should be restricted only when necessary for the public interest; (6) Honesty – public office holders are required by duty to be honest in all their dealings and business, and (7) Leadership – the principles should be supported and upheld by leadership and example. Again, any Code should be approved by a majority of Members of 1830 Parliament or any Select Committee convened for that purpose.

Paragraph 2.13 is on the televising of Parliamentary proceedings and as to the Commission's Recommendation 17, this is one of the proposals made in 2011 by my hon. Friend Mr Caruana during his motion to reform and modernise Parliament and its work which read:

1835 "Parliamentary Meetings which are already broadcast on GBC Radio should also be broadcast on GBC television."

Also a motion has already been approved by this House to this effect in February of this year. As a consequence, we are already well on our way to making this a reality. What remains is an agreement across the floor as to the rules governing the televising of proceedings, in terms of 'how and what', as stated by the Hon. the Chief Minister in presenting the motion at the February sitting of Parliament.

1840 The setup is in place and we, as per the many responders to the Commission on Democratic and Political Reform, support this recommendation and as the Hon. the Chief Minister already stated, the Opposition has received yesterday, from the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister, draft rules based on the Westminster model that need looking into in detail and adjusting for the purpose of any Gibraltar rules and then those draft rules will be adopted by way of another motion, as stated by the Hon. the Chief Minister in February. For the public, the televising of Parliament proceedings again improves access to information, making Parliament more relevant and also improves the accountability of the executive.

1845 On Paragraph 2.14, the news media: Mr Speaker, we are neutral on this Recommendation No. 18. However, we do reject completely the third paragraph of the preamble, as we do not agree with the premise under which it is made.

1850 As to the recommendation, we are happy to receive in Parliament any annual report published by the Media Director on the activities of his or her department in the future but are not sure what this has got to do with parliamentary reform. When Reports are laid in Parliament it is because a statute provides for it to be laid. Presumably, the Government would have to amend the Broadcasting Act if we accept this Recommendation. As I said, we are neutral on this issue apart from the statement alleging corruption.

1855 Moving on to Paragraph 2.15 on Select Committees –

1860 Hon. Chief Minister: Can the hon. Lady... could she repeat which paragraph it is she said that she is against?

Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: It is the third paragraph of the preamble, just before Recommendation 18.

1865 Minister for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, is her position that she is suggesting that this is itself suggesting corruption? Is that what she is saying?

1870 Hon. D A Feetham: The Opposition's position in relation to that is that it was a totally unnecessary statement: we do not agree with it. It is certainly a statement that has been made that can be interpreted as a statement of impropriety in the funding of newspapers, so we do not support it. That is the position of the Opposition, as I have stated it now.

1875 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman considers that statement was made of the Government as at before the 8th December 2011 because – although, politically, we might read it in that way, if we wished to – it does not identify any potential government. It says government of the day.

1880 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, indeed, but you have interpreted it in relation to the funding of a particular newspaper: that is how we interpreted it ourselves. To the extent that we do not know what is going through the minds of those who commissioned this particular Report, to the extent that that is an allegation in relation to improper funding of a particular newspaper, we certainly do not agree with it. Indeed, I could have gone further... I do not want this debate to be marred by this particular issue but I could –

1885 Mr Speaker: Would it help if I were to say that the Commission did not receive any representations from any political party other than the PDP. Other than the PDP, all the responders were individuals. They did not represent any organisation and my recollection is that this is a reference to some representation that was received from an individual in respect of this matter.

1890 Hon. D A Feetham: I am very grateful to Mr Speaker but, of course, it may be reflective of an opinion expressed by somebody who has contributed his views in relation to this, but the fact that it has worked its way into the Report, obviously has necessitated, certainly on this side of the House, for us to deal with it. Indeed, it has necessitated the Chief Minister dealing with it because the Chief Minister, 1895 when he was dealing with this particular part of it, he referred to the Seven Days. What the hon. Lady has limited herself in saying is, look, we cannot support this particular paragraph because of the imputation that is made. Equally, she could have said, in response to the Chief Minister and the comments made by the Chief Minister, well it may be a reference to the Seven Days, it may be a reference to the Panorama newspaper, which could be also susceptible to the same comment as the Chief Minister made in relation to the Seven Days. All we are saying and we do not want to mar this debate in any way, shape or form at all, is that we do not support, effectively, the imputation that is made in that paragraph in whatever direction, if I can put it that way, that imputation is directed.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, but this is really quite extraordinary because the hon. Member says he does not want to mar this debate. He goes on to say – 1905 Mr Speaker: May I make one thing clear, we are not in committee and the rules of debate apply. Now hon. Members all have an opportunity to make a contribution to this debate but we cannot have any particular Member, not even a Minister, standing up three or four times unless whoever holds the floor gives way.

1910 Hon. G H Licudi: Yes, Mr Speaker is absolutely right and therefore I would ask – I am not sure who holds the floor at this stage – the hon. Lady if she would give way and it is, in fact, conducive to good debate to have contributions whilst statements are being made, otherwise it just ends up being statements being read out without any debate. So will the hon. Member give way? (Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond agreed to give way) I am obliged.

1915 What I have said, Mr Speaker, is that the Leader of the Opposition has indicated he does not want to mar this debate and he does not know what was going through the minds of members of the Commission when they set out this particular part of the Report and, in particular, that Paragraph 3. But the hon. Lady has used, in this House, the word ‘corruption’ and that needs to be clarified. What is it that she is implying? Is it she is suggesting that the Commission took the view that there was corruption and therefore this Recommendation is necessary to avoid corruption and where does that come from? If that is their view, let them say it.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker.

1925 Hon. G H Licudi: She needs to answer!

Hon. D A Feetham: No, I am the Leader of the Opposition.

1930 Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady gave way.

Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Speaker, this is not... I am the Leader of the Opposition, this is – (Interjections)

1935 Mr Speaker: I think ....

Hon. Chief Minister: May I ask the hon. Member that he seek that the hon. Lady give way to him. That is all that I am going to suggest.

1940 Hon. G H Licudi: Well, I had the floor.

Hon. D A Feetham: The hon. Lady has indicated to me that she is giving way! (Laughter). Therefore, as Leader of the Opposition, I want to explain. Mr Speaker, what the hon. Lady has done is actually alight on a possible interpretation of this particular paragraph. What it says is that 1945 ‘significant public funds have been given to media outlets that have supported the political view of the Government of the day in a manner that may not have been justified’.

1950 Now that is open to interpretation a number of ways, we believe, including an allegation of possible impropriety by the Government of the day. We do not think that that allegation is justified either in, as the Chief Minister pointed out during his own intervention, either in relation to the Seven Days or, indeed, to the funding by us and now by the incumbent Government, of the Panorama newspaper, which is entirely supportive of Members opposite and not of this Party.

Now the hon. Lady – it is up to her – but the hon. Lady is certainly not going to give way again (Laughter) and she is going to continue with her speech. (Laughter).

1955 Hon. Chief Minister: Ask the hon. Lady if she will read again because I thought I had a note of it but I do not and if she will read again, for the purposes of my reply, the sentence that refers to corruption, just so that I have a note of it for my reply.

1960 Hon. Mrs I M Ellul-Hammond: Mr Speaker, I have already given way. I have been very generous to allow this and I would like to make some progress and just move on to Paragraph 2.15 on Select Committees. As to this section, Mr Speaker, the recommendation to nominate Select Committees, where appropriate, is welcomed by this side of the House, especially with the presence of backbenchers in the House. These arguments have already been covered by the discourse from my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition on the enlargement of Parliament and also by comments made by me in Sections 2.7 and 2.8 on Committal of Bills to a Select Committee and Standing Committees.

1965 Mr Speaker moving on to Paragraph 2.16 on Petitions to Parliament: again, in order to make our Parliament more relevant to the electorate and to allow them to engage in debate on issues and policies that are meaningful to the community, this recommendation is welcome. However, the devil is in the detail of how this could be implemented. This system was introduced in the United Kingdom in 2011, whereby a petition on an issue with a minimum of 100,000 signatories is required to be debated in the House of Commons. This does not mean approval of the views of the petitioners. However, it empowers the public, makes them feel included further in the democratic process, where they feel their voice is being heard. In the Scottish Parliament every Wednesday in the Debating Chamber, they have what is called 'time for reflection', where an invited person addresses the Parliament for a few minutes, sharing his or her thoughts on an issue. This type of setup could be considered as an appropriate way for the main mover of the petition to present the issue to the Chamber for further debate.

1975

We considered what an equivalent or, relative to the UK, minimum number of signatories required for a petition to be debated in Gibraltar was. One hundred thousand petitioners is about 1.4% of the UK's population. A relative figure for Gibraltar would be around 40 petitioners, certainly, we believe far too low a figure to endorse debate within our Parliament. So we believe careful consideration needs to be taken as to the minimum number required. We are very lucky to have a very politically aware and participatory electorate, enfranchised and willing to engage in our political and democratic systems. We are also, as a people, very keen to support each other in raising awareness and in signing petitions for causes. As a consequence, the accumulation of signatories to get an issue debated in Parliament could be a relatively easy task in Gibraltar, so a realistic, but manageable figure needs to be set to enhance public participation that does not abuse any new system that may be set up. We propose a minimum of 1,000 signatories to be collected to make this recommendation a reality. However, this would be a matter for the Select Committee to discuss and to agree on.

1980

1985

1990 Mr Speaker, Section 2.17 is on constituencies and the number of Members of Parliament and we concur with the majority of the members of the Commission and do not agree with a division of Gibraltar into constituency areas, nor that MPs should be associated with separate precincts, as explained by my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition. Thanks to the close community we live in, members of the public have easy access to MPs at a community level and have recourse to Ministers directly through daily appointments. The personal contact with the public exists, the MPs are known to them already. MPs are active and interact via community and charity events and outreach programmes. We are in favour of maintaining the status quo, as any move to partitioning Gibraltar into precincts will complicate the simple system of the open door facility that certainly tends to exist with MPs in Gibraltar.

1995

2000 On the point regarding enlarging Parliament, my hon. Friend Mr Feetham has already given this House our views on the matter.

Mr Speaker: We are making –

Hon. Chief Minister: Can I invite you to recess the House until 2.00 pm or 2.15 pm?

2005 Mr Speaker: 2.15 p.m. Yes, we are making... the House is recessing now to an earlier start this afternoon than usual.

The House will now recess to 2.15 p.m.

The House adjourned at 12.55 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 2.15 p.m.

Order of the Day

GOVERNMENT MOTION

Parliamentary and democratic reform Report of the Independent Commission Debate continued

Hon. P R Caruana: Mr Speaker, it is yet another sign of my fall from a great height that I have drawn the short straw of the speaking slot immediately after the luncheon adjournment and I rise to speak for myself, as a backbencher, and as someone who is, as all hon. Members know now, close to the end of his political career and in the hope that my experiences both of the proceedings of this Parliament and, indeed, of General Elections in Gibraltar, may be of some value to those of us all who I think are now doing a good job in this exercise of re-designing and improving the way our Parliament works for the benefit of what might be more than one generation to come.

I think the Government – I think I said it recently – I think the Government is to be congratulated for giving this matter priority and whilst we are slow in this House to recognise each other's achievements, I think on this occasion the hon. Members are indeed entitled to feel a degree – a significant degree – of self-satisfaction at the amount of progress that they have already achieved in the way this Parliament has been working. I think it would be churlish not to recognise that the Parliament is now working in a significantly different and better manner than it has been in the past. And speaking very much as a parliamentarian, I would just take issue with the, I think it was the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister, who when he was listing the beneficiaries of the Government's steps so far, I think put them in an order, I cannot remember the first three, but there was the public, the staff and then, fourthly, Members.

Well, I would have put them in the other order: Parliament is primarily about Members of Parliament and although it is right that we should seek to make Parliament more accessible to the public, more of interest to the public, at the end of the day the most important aspect about the way the Parliament works is that the parliamentarians, the Members of it, should be able to do their very important function, whether you are in Government or in Opposition, in the best possible way.

I think it has also been said – and I would just like to associate myself – there have been statements on both sides of the House about this, and I would just like to personally associate myself with them, that this exercise that we are engaged in represents an important further step in our collective journey as a Parliament and as a political class in this community, following on not just from the very seeds of the birth of democratic enfranchisement and self-government of Gibraltar, as the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister has correctly summarised, but indeed also in terms of how we are going to conduct that exercise in the future. It is an important step. The new Constitution I think created a platform, it finally converted this place into a proper Parliament and, for that reason, I would urge recognising that governments have majorities which it is always legitimate for them to use, but for that reason I would urge both sides of this House to seek as much consensus as possible in this exercise so that the public at large get the sense that we are, together, creating something, not just for this Government and this Opposition, or to the taste of this Government and the taste of this Opposition, but rather for our successors on both sides of the Parliament and, generally, in seeking to improve the architecture of politics in Gibraltar and the Parliament in Gibraltar.

If I could just, Mr Speaker, comment on one of the things that the Chief Minister said, before I express a view on some of the Recommendations. I think the Chief Minister helpfully floated the idea that the members of the Commission should be heard by the Select Committee: I think that is a good idea and I hope it happens. He then said something which I think is not necessary and that is when he said that you, Mr Speaker, will not be able to do it; I do not see that there is a need for that. (Interjection)

I will give way, yes.

Hon. Chief Minister: I am sorry if that is the impression that I gave, Mr Speaker. What I meant was that you could not do it from your position today and that is why you would do it as the Chairman of the Commission in the meeting with the Select Committee but not from the Chair in which you are sitting today.

Hon. P R Caruana: Oh, I see. Because the point that I was going to make – I am grateful to the Hon. the Chief Minister for that clarification, because, of course, we must not lose sight of the fact that the Speaker is constitutionally part of this Parliament as much as he or I. As a part of this Parliament, the Speaker, perhaps not from the Chair whilst he is presiding over the debates across the floor, but in any other part of the parliamentary output methods, I think the Speaker, as a Member of Parliament, is entitled to express his views and, indeed, contribute: indeed, not just the Speaker, but the other people who are constitutionally, under Section 25 of our Constitution, also officers of the Parliament.

The hon. Members will recall that, under the new Constitution, the Principal Auditor, the Ombudsman and the Clerk of the Parliament are also, constitutionally, now officers of this Parliament whose experiences and, indeed, needs deserve also to be taken into account and at least listened to before final decisions are made. So I would not discourage the Select Committee from inviting not just the Speaker, in the capacity as Speaker, ignoring the coincidence that he is also the Chairman of the Commission, in the capacity of Speaker, there is no reason why the Select Committee should not invite the Speaker to put in his – and the other officers that I have mentioned – to contribute whatever they think they may wish to.

Well, Mr Speaker, as is inevitable in a Report of this kind, it is almost impossible that all the contents will be to anybody's liking and it is inevitable that there will be mixed views on individual recommendations and I am certain, that when the Commission crafted this Report it had no expectation that it should be implemented or accepted in full and, indeed, it is necessarily itself the views only of the majority of the persons that sat on the Commission. In other words, it is itself a compromise amongst the Members of the Commission and therefore it should come as no surprise that there will be, on both sides of this House, differences of view on them.

I think, Mr Speaker, if I could just start, I am not going to speak at length on all thirty odd Recommendations and, indeed, most of them I will not mention at all. There are some that I will mention in slower order. In terms of Recommendation No. 1, I think the Chief Minister said that requiring Parliament to hold a minimum of ten meetings a year and enshrining that in Standing Orders, or in the Act, may raise a constitutional issue. Well, of course, that would require careful analysis and careful thought. I doubt that it would, however. I think the Constitution establishes a minimum and, so long as you do not do something that is inimical to the Constitution you are perfectly entitled, I would have thought, to impose, by legislation, the need for more. I think what the Constitution says there is you cannot have less than three.

Hon. G H Licudi: Will the hon. Member give way?

Hon. P R Caruana: I will.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, just to clarify that particular point, I have looked at the Gibraltar Constitution Order 2007 in this particular context and sections 37(3) says that

85

‘There shall be at least three meetings of Parliament... [except in an election year] when there shall be at least two meetings...’

So there would be nothing in conflict with the Constitution if we either had rules or primary legislation which sets out a higher minimum. It would be entirely consistent with the Constitution.

90

Hon. P R Caruana: I am glad that that view might be taken because having established, as a matter of policy, monthly meetings, if it is found to work I think it is right that it should be enshrined, if possible. In other words, that way we consolidate into the practices of this House, as many as possible of the things that are found to be improvements, regardless of which side of the House they may have emanated from. That would be my personal view of the matter.

95

Moving to Recommendation No. 3, as to whether the Chief Minister’s Questions should be guillotined. I think there are arguments on both sides and I think, on balance, I would share the Chief Ministers view that it ought not to be guillotined by time. Of course, the difficulty with guillotine by subject matter is that I am not sure it is true to say that a supplementary has got to relate to the original Question. Supplementaries are also legitimate if they relate to answers given in the answer to the original question or to the immediately previous supplementary. For example, as he knows, Questions to the Prime Minister in the House of Commons have no subject matter. The question is, ‘Will the Prime Minister tell this House what he is doing today by way of official business...’ and, therefore, necessarily, every supplementary does not arise either from the original question or, indeed, in his case, not even from the original answer, which is normally that he says, ‘Well, this afternoon... you know, I am meeting the Prime Minister of France...’ The first real question is the first supplementary.

100

Now, that is a tradition that I do not think we should adopt but certainly I think we need to take care, when we select a guillotine by subject matter, that the guillotine should be correctly defined as relating not just relevance to the original Question, there has to be scope for asking supplementaries arising from the answer, not just arising from the original Question.

110

Indeed, the whole purpose of supplementaries is to seek further clarification on the answer given, not a second bite at the cherry of your own original question. So I think it is right that we should not... and I am gladdened that the Government is not minded to impose a time guillotine, but in choosing the alternative guillotine I think that care needs to be taken.

115

Recommendation No. 4, which I think goes in consequence, and is another reason why I am glad that the Government is not minded to support Recommendation No. 3 is this business of, well, if you ran out of time to answer Oral Questions then they just get postponed to Written Answer. Of course, that would be terribly dangerous politically because, of course, the Government chooses the order in which they answer Questions. So by stacking all your awkward political Questions at the end, you could always help yourself to Written Answers and always avoid the much more difficult political task of defending yourself orally across the floor of this House. I think that would be a serious shortcoming in Recommendation No. 4, which is only relevant to take into consideration I think if Recommendation No. 3 were to prosper.

120

Mr Speaker, a very small point in relation to Recommendation No. 7, which is:

125

‘...that motions for adjournment should, after giving due notice to the Speaker, also be permitted to be moved at the last sitting in any month if Parliament is not to be adjourned sine die at the end of that sitting.’

I think that is a sensible suggestion and the Government agrees with it, which means that it is likely to prosper, but for that purpose it would be important for the Opposition always to know which is the second last sitting, and the Opposition does not always know which is the second last sitting. In other words, if you can only bring a motion on the sitting, but not the one in which it is adjourned sine die, then you always need to know that your current sitting is not the sitting for adjournment sine die, otherwise you are locked out. So it would require that tweaking with the timetabling to make sure that the Opposition always knew at least what was the second last sitting or rather that every sitting, which sitting was not the last sitting.

135

Mr Speaker, I tend to agree with Recommendation No. 8. I think Oppositions traditionally have made insufficient use of motions, substantive motions and motions on the adjournment and I think that we ought to take heed of suggestions that perhaps better use should be made of motions. I think the Hon. the 140 Leader of the Opposition has expressed understandable frustration about these things always inevitably coming late on a Friday evening, as it was historically. That may not be so now, but that is not a reason, I think, why this important weapon in the armoury of parliamentary debate should fall into disuse and, indeed, we need to make sure that it does not.

145 In terms of Recommendation No. 9, the importance of making statements in Parliament rather than outside of Parliament – I have been trying to look for it but have not found it – I understand that this is not just a question of preference: I think that the Speaker in the United Kingdom has made statements about the importance of Ministers making important policy statements in Parliament and not outside of Parliament. At the very least, even if this Recommendation does not prosper, or advantage is taken of the fact that it is stated as a preference to bear it in mind rather than an outright suggestion, at the very least I think, Mr Speaker – and I make this statement not being consciously aware of whether we ever fell into the trap of doing it when we sat on that side of the House: if we did, it still does not invalidate the view – at the very, very, least, I think Governments should avoid making public statements about things about which Questions have already been tabled in the space between tabling of the Question and answering of the Question. I think that is abusive. It is abusive of the fact that the Opposition needed to give you notice and because the Opposition needed to give you notice, they are no longer able to take you by surprise in the context of the parliamentary cut and thrust but that should not be a reason why a Government then rushes to answer the Question in a more benign environment of a public statement in the five days between notice of Question and answering in Parliament and I think that that view might be taken, regardless of the view taken on the main suggestion in the Commission's Recommendation.

150 I tend to take a different view on Recommendation No. 10; I think the Commission's view that there ought to be a Public Bills Committee of this House I think does deserve some consideration by the Select Committee when it is established and I think the hon. Member may have not so much missed the point as skirted the issue when he spoke this morning in explanation of why the Government was not in favour of this recommendation and focused exclusively on the opportunities that now exist for public consultation. This is not about public consultation; this is about the process to which a Bill is subjected once it is in Parliament and going through the parliamentary legislative process. I think it is good. I think we initiated the practice in Gibraltar of legislative consultation at least on the main items of legislation. I think the Government have taken that one step further and I think that that is laudable, too. But the opportunity for members of the public to express the view to the Government about a Bill that the Government proposes to bring to the House is not an alternative to this Parliament giving the Bill proper legislative consideration when it does get to the floor of the House.

160 Mr Speaker, the reality of it is this – isn't it? – there may be issues, from time to time, for legislation that are so politically sensitive, – I don't know, the age of consent or things like that – where there is broad political debate within the Cabinet, for example, about it, or amongst the Opposition Members in their regular meetings. But that is the minority. That is the exception, rather than the rule. The reality of it is that most pieces of legislation are technical, long and involved and really only the Minister moving the Bill and perhaps the Opposition spokesman answering the Bill, really get to read it properly and form an informed view of it.

175 So I calculate that, for ninety something per cent of the legislative process in this House, legislation is probably being made and, therefore, the quality of it – and the opportunity to improve, which is thereby being missed – reflects the work really of two Members of Parliament out of seventeen, for the vast majority of the legislation. Of course, a greater use of a Public Bills Committee I think would require at least the Committee members to get to the bottom of the Bill and there would be more people that would thereby bring to bear their views and their experience and, indeed, their ability to spot points in the Bill and I think there would be an improvement to the legislative process. It may delay the legislative process and the Government may regard that, in certain circumstances, particularly on EU Directives or things of that sort, a handicap, but perhaps it might be possible to build in a Public Bills Committee system with some sort of timetabling involved so that the Government could build it in to its legislative chronology, in the knowledge that it could not delay the Bill by more than a period of time to be discussed. In short, I think that greater scrutiny of the Bill by more people than presently give it, but fewer than the whole House when we sit in committee, I think would be an instrument for the further improvement of the quality of our legislation.

180 If I could move on to Recommendation No. 11, about the Deputy Speaker, well here I would just like to say a little bit more about that. I personally think it is a good idea. I used to subscribe to the view that there might be a constitutional issue. In fact, not only is there not a constitutional issue, but indeed the problem may be more urgent than the Hon. the Chief Minister believes, precisely by virtue of what the Constitution says. Far from... far from... First of all I should say that legislation does not need to reflect the Constitution; legislation needs not to be inimical to the Constitution. This Parliament is free to legislate anything that is not inconsistent with... in other words, anything that is not prescribed by higher legislation, which is what the Constitution is... Did I say prescribed? Yes. Now, if you look at the new regime in the Constitution, and the reason why I say it may be more urgent than the hon. Member thinks is that probably what is now unconstitutional is for a Member of this House to take the Chair during the Speaker's absence.

205 Section 26 of the new Constitution says, first of all, 'The Speaker is now appointed across the floor of the House by a motion of the Chief Minister in consultation...' Then it says:

'No person shall be qualified for appointment as Speaker...'

210 – and this is still old measure –

'No person shall be qualified for appointment as Speaker if
(a) he is an Elected Member of the Parliament.'

215 In the past there was a provision, I think, about a Member of Parliament taking the Chair. That is out. That is not there any more so there is now no provision about a Member taking the place... there is now a provision that says that a Member is not eligible and the sub-section about filling vacancies says that the vacancy can only be filled by someone who is eligible to be appointed Speaker, which is not a Member. So, in fact, if there was a vacancy, if the Speaker, God forbid, were to be taken ill today, we would have to suspend this session of Parliament or, otherwise, now, vote to select a new Speaker under the substantive provisions.

220 But, in any event, be that as it may, I do not think that there is any constitutional issue arising from any Bill or Standing Order that might appoint a Deputy Speaker for reason that 225 'The Speaker of the Parliament shall be appointed by the Parliament by resolution passed by a simple majority of its Members and presented by the Chief Minister acting after consultation with the Leader of the Opposition.'

Then subsection 5, which is the 'vacancy' section, says:

230 'If the office of the Speaker is vacant, or if the person holding the office of Speaker is absent from Gibraltar, or is for any other reason, at any time, unable to perform the functions of his office, those functions'

- so there is now suddenly a distinction between office-holder and carrier-out of functions –

235 '...those functions may be performed'

- not office-holder, somebody who may perform the functions of the office-holder,

240 'by such person (being a person qualified for appointment as Speaker) as may from time to time be designated in that behalf by the Parliament upon motion being presented by the Chief Minister acting after consultation with the Leader of the Opposition.'

245 And I believe that that mechanism would allow the Parliament, by motion, to appoint, after consultation between the Chief Minister and the Leader of the Opposition, a person as Deputy Speaker, to carry out the functions of Speaker only when the Speaker is vacant, the office is vacant or the Speaker is absent from Gibraltar or is, for any other reason at any time, unable to perform the functions of his Office. So if the Speaker says 'Look, Chief Minister or Leader of the House, there is a sitting of Parliament on such and such a day: I am afraid I cannot because I have got a holiday booked, or I am not going to be in Gibraltar or whatever...' a person appointed under this provision by Parliament, in my view, could be a sort of a standing vacancy filler to perform the functions, and we could choose to call it Deputy Speaker, if we want to – 250 Mr Speaker: Speaker's Deputy.

255 Hon. P R Caruana: – or Speaker's Deputy, but I think there is nothing in the Constitution which prevents you from using the nomenclature of 'Deputy Speaker'. The fact that the Constitution says... (Interjection) Yes, alright, but that is very different, (Laughter) that has not got colonial overtures. (Laughter) Again, the fact that the Constitution says that 'there shall be a Speaker' does not mean that the Constitution does not allow for a Deputy Speaker, or that the Deputy Speaker, so even under the terms of the Constitution there is no reason not to use the term Deputy Speaker. So I think that, if there were a consensus around the House for that, I think that is something that the House could get on with quite quickly if it was minded to.

260 Just moving on, I am anxious not to speak for a disproportionate amount of time in this debate. Yes, Mr Speaker, coming to the point that caused a degree of controversy this morning about the news media. I have to say that when I read this particular section I was surprised that this particular comment was introduced. We have heard this morning that it was a comment by one individual and I think a comment by one individual has been disproportionately highlighted, in a way which is unnecessary for the purposes of making the recommendation, which is otherwise a perfectly salutary one. I think, in relation to the debate that ensued this morning, I think it really is churlish to suggest that it is not a reference to the Seven Days when the very subject matter of the comment that surprised me when I read it, reflects precisely the view that the hon. Members, when they were then in Opposition, were making considerable political hay about, I think is a little bit disingenuous.

Look, whether it suggests politically an allegation of corruption or not, I think is moot and for another place at the end of the day. As I recall the jibes that I used to get from the then Leader of the Opposition on practically every... certainly every Budget time... whether it was ventilated at other times as well I do not now remember, was basically that I was using the public chequebook to write cheques to keep my party political newspaper in funds. I mean, whether the hon. Member takes umbrage at the suggestion that some people might view that as political corruption, I do not know, but it should not surprise them that it is open to that possible interpretation. If it is not political corruption, it is political impropriety. I am not sure there is a great difference between the two in political terms. So, and I think this was a red herring and I would urge the hon. Members that we do not allow the exercise in which we are involved in, to get bogged down in really quite unnecessary side debates about the use of words, 'corruption' or not.

I was the principal victim of the remark, of the political attack, (Interjections) and I was surprised to see it in here because, really, there are not more examples of this. In the whole Report, this is the only politically charged comment attributed – I do not doubt that it was said by a contributor – attributed to a contributor, relating to something which was politically controversial and politically charged between both sides of the House. For that reason alone it surprised me because, of course, in relation to other Recommendations, it is possible also to have made politically charged observations.

If I could just leave that commentary to one side and just say something about the Recommendation itself, which I think is a sensible one. Two things, really. First, if there is a preference, I think what should not be the case is that the Government should be unaccountable (Interjections) for the money that it pays out, and to who, for advertising or for anything else. I think the first point to record, of course, is that that was not the case. Whenever the Opposition... you know, Question Time is precisely to elicit information, so a distinction has to be drawn between spontaneously available information and information that you only have if you ask for it. But I do not think that anybody could seriously argue that the information was not made available when asked for and, therefore, it is not the case that, in the past... it did not take the implementation of this recommendation to make sure that Parliament could find out what newspapers were getting what sum of money. Parliament always found out when asked, when the Government was asked. That the Government and, indeed, the Commission consider that it is more appropriate for the information to be available without the Government having to be asked, well, that is a qualitative difference which may, indeed, be an improvement, but it not the distinction between the information being available and not being available in the past.

The other thing that I would say is that I would also be careful, when the Select Committee considers how it might want to implement this Recommendation... is to be careful... Sorry, am I not speaking in the right place? I should stand here, should I? (Clerk: Yes please.) Okay.

Yes, in agreeing to a solution we need to be careful not to mis-characterise the sin or the problem. As it is stated in the recommendation, it says

'Media Director... report on the activities of his department, which should include a detailed statement...'

etc. etc. on the basis that the sin, which is the one that I am complaining about, is that the Government is accused of having given media outlets that have supported the political views of the Government in a manner that may not have been justified.

We just need to be careful about that, that we are not rendering it illegitimate for a Government to advertise in a newspaper, simply because it is supportive of the Government. In other words, it is not a disqualification. There may be degrees which the Commission may think abusive, or which others may think abusive, but we cannot accept, and it should not be accepted, if not least, for the reasons that the Leader of the Opposition has said, that it would render, for example, it illegitimate for the Panorama or any other newspaper that may emerge or that currently exists, that whilst not being an in-house political publication of a political party, is nevertheless aligned in terms of support to a political party. Newspapers are aligned –

Hon. Chief Minister: Not every day!

Hon. P R Caruana: Sorry...

Hon. Chief Minister: Not every day!

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes. Not every day, well that is true. I am not saying... So this is about degree and transparency, it is not about suggesting that Governments should not be free to advertise in newspapers that are supportive of its position.

330 Well, perhaps I think enough has been said about Standing Orders. I have to say, Mr Speaker, that I just want to associate myself from the back benches, with the remarks made by my leader in relation to the expansion of Parliament. I think that anything that allows people to contribute to the governance of Gibraltar, to political debate in Gibraltar, to the quality of legislation in Gibraltar, in whatever measure they are able to, widens the net of people who are available for political activity and Parliamentary participation and thus enriches the quality of parliamentary activity in Gibraltar.

335 I am not going to repeat the points that I think were so ably articulated by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition this morning, except to say that, to the extent that the objection appears to be based on cost, it might even be possible to create a tier of enlarged backbenchers for no stipend, or perhaps only for an attendance fee, a small attendance fee on the days that they do attend sittings of Parliament, something which need cost perhaps very little but it would allow people to be Members of Parliament and to stand for being Members of Parliament, without necessarily exercising an option to stand for Ministerial position at that particular stage of their lives.

340 I personally think that that would be a fulfilment of the reason why this was included without dissent in the Gibraltar delegation which, as you know, is cross-party, of parties represented or not represented, in Parliament at the time of putting that particular measure in. For debate – and a difficult one it will be – if what mechanism you use to choose the backbenchers... I am not suggesting that we should lengthen the ballot paper and give people twenty-five votes, instead of eight or ten or anything like that, but there are lots of mechanisms by which a second tier of MP, elected on a different basis and remunerated on a different basis than the original seventeen, could be devised, I would have thought quite easily.

350 I was also a little bit disappointed to hear the Chief Minister not expressing a great enthusiasm – although I am grateful to him for indicating that his mind was open to listen to arguments to the contrary – on the question of the Electoral Commission. I think to sort of pass off the Electoral Commission as a badge of maturity in those countries that have them, I think is understating the function and the purpose of electoral commissions in those countries. I think having an Electoral Commission is a sign both of mature and immature democracies. In immature democracies it is needed to guarantee the integrity of the electoral process: I do not think any of us would argue that that would be the reason why it is needed in Gibraltar but, as he himself pointed out, electoral commissions are part of the electoral architecture even in the most mature democracies – indeed the mother of all democracies, the United Kingdom. And I think the principal reason for that is not simply to ensure that the UK's reputation for a sort of an independent and free democracy is maintained, but also for it to be visibly demonstrable that delicate decisions about new policy, about new suggestions, about rules and regulations and guidance notes, about the conduct of elections, about the resources available for the conduct of elections, should not be seen – demonstrably be seen – to be out of the hands of the executive, outside of the hands of the Government that will be a contestant in those elections and in the hands of an independent statutory body, a sort of an independent regulator. It has that qualitative virtue to it, that it separates, just as the hon. Members, in one or two other areas of life, have extolled the virtue of independence – they have extolled the virtue of greater independence to the board of GBC and greater independence to the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority, in areas of life which are much less important than the conduct of elections in a democracy. And therefore, it would not be so odd if the same philosophy were carried forward into the conduct of... In other words... a visible... No-one was suggesting that the GRA was not independent, which is not to say that it did not benefit from being seen to be more independent. I think the same philosophy could be applied to the Electoral Commission which would deal with all the things, with many of the things that we have touched on this morning. So it could deal with the electoral role, and the administration of the open lists... it could deal with election accounts and expenses and the monitoring and supervision, and things like that... well all the things that one man is presently doing now could be done by a statutory authority, called the Electoral... the conduct of the election, appeals... if one of the parties wanted to object, or a member or a citizen wanted to petition, this would be done to the Electoral Commission rather than... the whole question of donations, that we have spoken about this morning, indeed the whole question of the introduction of technology, and whether it would enhance or increase the risk of degrading the integrity of the electoral process... That is something that could be viewed at length by a statutory body, an independent statutory body called the Electoral Commission.

380 At the end of the day, we had this issue also with the Public Audit Office and to a certain extent with the judiciary. There comes a time when there are activities which are independent of the Government but which are carried out for us here, in effect by Civil Servants which, rightly or wrongly, are seen to be employees of the Government, and I think the integrity of the system depends – and thank goodness we have always had people who have delivered it – on the attitude by the individual officeholder, to act independently even though he is a member of a body called the Civil Service, which is really the administrative arm of the Government itself. I do not think the world will stop spinning on its axis if we do not have an Electoral Commission. I do not think it is a 'die-in-the-ditch' issue, at least it would not be 390 for me, it would not be a ‘die-in-the-ditch’ issue in terms of obtaining consensus for a list of measures, but I think that it deserves some consideration before it is finally abandoned.

In terms, Mr Speaker, of Recommendation No. 22 –

395 ‘We recommend that section 14(2) of the Parliament Act should be revoked and that all election expenses incurred at any time before the date of the poll should be taken into account to arrive at the total amount of election expenses incurred’

– I agree entirely with the assessment made of that Recommendation by the Hon. the Chief Minister. I think it is unworkable. From when do you start? How does it work? How is it policed? It really deals with the same issue as election contributions and perhaps ought to have been put closer together in the Recommendations, in terms of Recommendation No. 25, which is about election donations: there is something that I would like to say on that, too. The Recommendation says:

405 ‘We recommend that every donation over £100 incidental to an election campaign –’

Well, as of when would these contributions need to be declared? Any contributions throughout the four year term of the Party? There are practical issues about when a contribution to an election campaign is declarable unless, of course, the rule is going to be that all contributions to political parties, regardless of whether they are in the context of an election, should be so declared because it cannot be so easy to defeat...

Hon. Chief Minister: Will you give way?

415 Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, go on.

Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful for him giving way. Just if I can explain to him what my approach to it was and see if this finds some favour with the point he is making.

Recommendation 25 and Recommendation 26 I think need to be read together because it talks about being separately declared in the return of election expenses – this question of the donors – and then the question of the definition of election expenses. So the way we read it was that, when you have got a definition of ‘election expenses’ and this return, which has to be put in to demonstrate what you have spent, those £3,000 that you are able to spend, then it makes sense because then you are reflecting who has funded those £3,000: who has funded that campaign, in effect. I think that is what the Commission intended, because it includes the words ‘election expenses’ in Recommendation 25 at the end of the last full sentence and then it asks us to come up with the definition in Recommendation 26 of what election expenses are. That is how I linked it.

430 Hon. P R Caruana: Well, I can tell him now what the answer will be. The answer will be that nobody funded it because it was funded by the Party out of its general reserves. Of course, reserves created by people contributing money to the Party during the three and a half years leading up to the election. In other words, either we want to know who is funding political parties because we think that they might be doing it for ulterior purposes or we do not, but simply to want to know that information in the context of a particular period of time called General Election time, is both illogical and almost impossible to police because the treasury, the Party’s war chests, will simply be filled up during the non-election period and then be available. Then no-one will have funded the General Election campaign!

435 In addition to that practical difference, I think, Mr Speaker, we need to be careful... and of course there are plenty of models around Europe that we could cannibalise, to borrow a phrase that he used in another context this morning, to get ideas for a regime of this sort. But I think, as with everything, we just need to be clear that there are some differences. There are very few places as small as Gibraltar which elects a Government as powerful as the Gibraltar Government and as influential and powerful as seen locally. As far as the outside world is concerned, we are the Government of a place, small physically and small in numbers, but the perception of the people of Gibraltar is that the Government of Gibraltar is a very powerful body indeed – and is a very powerful body. It is not a false perception, it is a real perception in terms of the community that we are.

440 That leads people, rightly or wrongly – and I hope the hon. Members will allow me to make this point without suggesting that I am making it of them, or inviting them to make it of me, when they answer – it is an inescapable reality that, rightly or wrongly, Gibraltarians, or residents of Gibraltar – not Gibraltarians, residents of Gibraltar – will have a reluctance to be seen to have funded a political campaign and then that their side lost. Rightly or wrongly – let us say wrongly, let us say completely without justification –

Hon. Chief Minister: They fund both sides!

455 Hon. P R Caruana: That is what they usually do, as he knows! (Laughter) That is what they usually do, as he well knows, (Laughter) but we need just to bear in mind that if we are going to create a regime where we are making people who contribute £100, or even £200, to actually identify themselves publicly, we can do it – and there are countries that do do it – but I think that what will happen is that it will discourage political donations to political parties, except from its diehard supporters, who are already identified and do not care. But a citizen who is just wanting to, for example – just to use it as an example 460 – fund the GSD at the next election will be less inclined to do so if he believes that the GSD may not win the next General Election, commensurately will be more inclined to do so and be identified, if he is certain that the GSD is going to win the election, and that is defeating the purpose of the exercise, which is that donations should not be for payback gain depending on the result of the election.

465 There is nothing wrong with financially supporting a political party: indeed, the community ought to be encouraged to make politics viable by contributing to political parties. What is wrong is that they should do so with the expectation of dividend collection if they back the right side and it wins. I think that is something that, when we sit in committee or when the House sits in committee, should... but if it does go for such a regime, I would agree with the hon. Member that the figure ought to be higher than £100 and I suspect by a little bit more than just £250. But, anyway, at that point it becomes a detail.

470 Yes, we had an exchange of views, or the Chief Minister expressed his views, on the question of exit polls. Of course, the famous exit poll – the one that is to blame for the fact that it is even in here – had no prospect of affecting the election result because it was announced after the polls had closed. What we should be concerned is not... I mean, if a particular exit poll publisher, not to mention GBC, if a particular exit poll publisher wants to send its viewers up the garden path for a nervous period of six hours between 475 the time of the closure of the poll up to the moment of the announcement of the result, which is all that happened, fine. But it does not affect the result. That is not true of exit polls that are published during the course of the day, which are the ones that the hon. Member must have had in mind when he said what he said.

480 For example, there is nothing to stop a local newspaper, or a local one of these internet news things now, services now, at two o'clock in the afternoon standing outside a poll, asking people how they voted, and then rushing back and putting it online at four o'clock in the afternoon, where it is still capable... I think that that is something that the Commission is right to signal should be dealt with. But not only that. If it is right to deal with exit polls because it is something that is unscientifically done, in other words a false statement, it does not accurately reflect what it purports to reflect because it is not properly done, if

485 that is the justification, then it is not true only of exit polls on polling day, then it is true of normal polls in the run-up to polling day. In other words, I believe that there should be regulation of the way polls must be conducted. Forget exit polls, normal polls should be conducted from the moment that an election is called because, of course, we all know that public opinion can be, in some measure, led and formed by statements, predictions of who is going to win and who is not going to win. A poll which is not properly conducted and suggests that the hon. Members are bound to lose the next General Election by a margin of 15% should rightly be objectionable to them, just as it would be objectionable if it happened to the Opposition party. I believe – and I am not suggesting... I am not, sort of, inventing sliced bread here – there are many Western democracies, particular in continental Europe, where the conduct of polls are, in some countries highly regulated and in other countries, prohibited during the election campaign period. I

490 would urge the Select Committee to at least consider what degree... but I accept also the comment made that the whole area of the regulation of polls, whether they be exit polls or normal polls, is fraught with difficulty and is not simple. I think that the Select Committee, in my view, but should consider that as well.

500 In terms of the technology of voting, which is Recommendation No. 32, Mr Speaker, I will just say that I am not a great fan of it. True, I am a little bit of a reactionary Luddite when it comes to these things, but it would have to be not just something which avoids the hanging chads problem, with which, arguably, the result of an election was affected, but indeed it is important that the results should be verifiable and the moment you introduce technology, confidence is lost in the audit trail, because the audit trail is what appears on the screen when you press the button on the equipment. There is no sense that you 505 can physically recount votes. At the end of the day, you are asking the same machine that made a mistake to check whether it made a mistake or not. Well, I have yet to find a machine that can spot its own mistake in that way. Perhaps they have invented computers now that spot their own mistakes but, probably having made it once, it is likely to repeat it when you ask it to check again.

510 In terms of the change to the counting process physically, I think that one of the charms and one of the, sort of, traditions of our electoral system is the John Mackintosh Hall on polling night. It is part of our democratic heritage, of our democratic tradition. It does not take so long. I think most political observers look forward to it – most political participants who are not candidates – look forward to it. Well, alright, not the people who have got to do the hard work, Mr Clerk, as Returning Officer, 515 (Laughter) but there is always a demand for tickets... I think it is part of the process of ushering in a new Government or not ushering in a new Government. It only takes a few hours and I would urge the Select Committee and the Government, when it comes to a final vote, just to not introduce unnecessary change at the expense of heritage, at the expense of things that are valuable, and of some value, simply in the name of rushing to the use of technology. Technology has its uses; it also has its dumbing-down consequences, and the balance between the two should not be lost.

520 I agree with – for what it might be worth to him – the views expressed by the Chief Minister on the registration of political parties. In my view, it would be wholly retrograde to register political parties for this purpose, for the purposes stated here, of course. Members of the House, some will be aware and some may not be aware that the system of registration, not political parties, is common place throughout Europe, including the United Kingdom. But the reason why political parties require to be registered are normally for reasons different to the ones that are suggested here. It is not to see that they are democratic, 525 it is not because the state has any interest in whether one particular Party has what degree of internal democracy. This idea that there is some public interest... Look, it is up to the members of the Party to decide how they want to run their Party. The reason why registration of political parties' regimes exists is because of State funding of political parties. In other words, if the State is going to fund a political party, 530 it wants to know... there has got to be some eligibility qualification, there has got to be some means of deciding what is a political party and what is not, otherwise everybody, come election time, would just be sticking their hands out for the State subsidy of elections and political parties. So, if we were introducing a system, which might not be a bad idea, as an alternative to the contributions, if we were introducing a system – I believe the Australians have it, and the Spaniards have it – of State funding of political parties 535 as an alternative – Although, I think in Spain it appears that it runs in parallel, the two systems (Laughter) – then that would almost certainly require this.

The other point is this... the other objection to the suggestion is this. How can you have a system where two or more individuals, if they stand together, have to go through a registration process but independents do not? If I stand by election by myself, I am not a political party and it does not matter 540 whether anybody supports me, whether my emblem is obscene – did it not say something about obscene emblems here? – whether I keep proper accounts or whether I do not... but if there are two of us and we call ourselves a political party, then all these things become important to this debate. I do not support it. I think that it is not in our tradition and, certainly, I personally would not vote in favour of a regime of registrations for these alleged reasons, which is not to say that there are not proper reasons and proper 545 purposes in which you might want registration, but then registration would not be policed by reference to these criteria. There would have to be some more reasonable, less intrusive criteria.

I have said, in terms of Recommendation 34, this is the point at which the Hon. the Chief Minister said that he was not persuaded about the question of an Electoral Commission. The call for an Electoral Commission and having... I am sure, when the Commission recommended the Electoral Commission, 550 they were not impugning or even suggesting an impugning of the integrity of any of our elections in the past and I do not think that would be a sufficient reason not to do it.

I entirely support the referenda Recommendation and I am heartened that the Government will be supporting that.

555 In terms of what I call the 'diaspora vote', which is Recommendations – really they are linked – Recommendation No. 36 and No. 37. No. 36 is the one about whether there should be more than a six month residential period. Well, I personally, if the House will just allow me to express my personal view on the matter, I personally believe that it should be greater than three months. If you have been in Gibraltar for three months and happen to be British – (A Member: Six.) I beg your pardon, six months – you are not a Gibraltar 'belonger' because you have been in Gibraltar for six months. We had this issue 560 with the referendum on sovereignty and things of that sort. At what point do you draw a difference between the governance of a place and the sort of question that you might ask in a referendum?

I think that, frankly, the voting eligibility should now be much more residence-based and the idea that because you happen to be British that you are regarded as an eligible Gibraltar voter after a very short period of time harps back to the past in a way which I think is no longer, perhaps, appropriate. I think a 565 longer period than three months... how much longer then is for discussion, and to see what such examples there are from other places. The diaspora vote, which is Recommendation No. 37, is a different issue. I know – and I do not want to introduce political considerations into this debate – but I think we need to make sure that, if we are rejecting ideas which are both good and conventional and fair, we should not do so because it suits, or does not suit, a particular side at any given time. There was a time – which may no longer be the case, for all I know – where it was thought that Gibraltarians who lived in Spain were much 570 more likely to be GSD supporters than GSLP supporters and, that for that reason, it was always thought likely that the GSD would change the electoral rules to do it – which we did not do – and that the GSLP would not, for the opposite side, the flip side, of the same coin. I think we should continue to resist the temptation to make the judgement along those lines.

575 I think the diaspora, that is to say Gibraltarians who do not reside in Gibraltar or, rather, the diaspora in many other countries, votes, as the hon. Members know, not just in the United Kingdom but in Spain and in most continental European countries allow... In the UK I think you get the vote for a fixed period of time for  $x$  years and, after you have left, in some other countries – America and France – I think it is indefinite. But I think in the UK you get to vote for  $x$  number of years after you have moved out of the UK. So I am not arguing for a particular model of diaspora voting but I think the notion that your links to Gibraltar justify your having the right to participate in the election of its Government, go much wider and much deeper than whether you happen to be residing in Gibraltar at that time. The idea that a Gibraltar who moves off to work somewhere for three or four years – not a student – is somehow thought by our electoral laws to have broken the links with Gibraltar to a sufficient degree to give him no legitimate stake in the choice of Government in Gibraltar I think, is too strict a view of it. Of course, the difficulty is that we have a very particular problem with diaspora voting in Gibraltar and that is that, in most other countries, people who would benefit from non-resident voting rights have actually left to go somewhere further afield whereas, in Gibraltar, the vast majority of these people may well be people who simply live in Spain but, otherwise have, and they are still regarded as part of the community, politically relevant, perhaps even politically active in the local political scene. That is what I think clouds the judgement in a debate in this place, in a way that it might not be clouded in a similar debate in the US Congress or in the French Parliament or even in the British Parliament.

Whilst taking issue with some of the criteria selected by the Commission, I personally, with some modification of those criteria, would have supported, and would support, a carefully thought through and carefully legislated and articulated process of giving a certain defined category of people a vote, even though they do not reside in Gibraltar and I would not necessarily limit it to people who work in Gibraltar. There are circumstances in which I think people who go from Gibraltar to live in France for a year or two, or three, should also retain the right to vote.

The final point, on which I would just like to express a view, is in relation to Recommendation 39. I have been highly complimentary in the past about this Government's decision to prioritise the renewal of this Chamber. I will be less complimentary of a squeezed approach to squeezing more facilities out of the already limited space in the back room. If there was no alternative and that is all that could be done, well, fine: something is better than nothing. But in terms of parliamentary offices, there are several factors that need to be taken into account. Firstly, it is not right that space should be shared between the very people whose independence we have been extolling in the rest of this debate – the Clerk and his staff – that they should have to sit and work and live cheek-by-jowl with Members of Parliament doing constituency work in a sub-divided space of an already limited room, which involves our constituents necessarily coming in here and interacting, perhaps, with members of staff. It is just too cheek-by-jowl and I think that the idea that there should be parliamentary offices is a good one, I think that this Parliament, in physical terms and in quality of work terms and in facilities terms, of which this really is a monument, this first phase, would I think be taken to a very significant additional level if there were proper and dignified offices, not just for Members of Parliament but, indeed, for the staff of Parliament, who cannot be said, even with the space that they have, to be working in appropriate conditions. If the space now has to be shared and sub-divided between their uses and a new use then, of course, they will necessarily be reduced into even less appropriate quantitatively and qualitatively, premises.

The obvious solution is one to the unviability perhaps of which I inadvertently contributed when I was in Government, because the ideal building is the Guard House. The Guard House, which was an empty Government-owned property – and approximate to Parliament – is the ideal building to have, on different floors, both proper working conditions for the staff of Parliament and for the electoral function when they change hats from Parliamentary staff to electoral staff: and also, on a separate floor, upstairs or downstairs, proper meeting rooms, perhaps even committee rooms for Parliament and proper meeting rooms for MPs. I am sure that the Chief Minister, who has demonstrated some flair for charm and persuasion, would be able to persuade the Gibraltar Heritage Trust to accept some alternative and equally dignified premises, and to release those back to the Government for use as an annexe to the Gibraltar Parliament building, which I am sure they would regard as an important contribution by them to an important part of the heritage of Gibraltar, which is our political process and the facilities available to our Parliament.

I am obliged to the House for indulging me at such length.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, this is an important occasion for this Parliament. It represents not just a debate and a discussion on parliamentary reform in general or even just the principles of parliamentary reform, but a debate and specific discussion on specific proposals and recommendations which have been put forward by the Commission.

This is, of course, part of a process that we have embarked on and it is a process, Mr Speaker, that started simply with a conviction – an unrelenting conviction – by the parties which today form Government that it was necessary, not just desirable, but necessary to enhance the quality of democracy in Gibraltar and to enhance the business, the manner, in which this Parliament and this House, as it used to be, goes about its business.

640 The process started with that conviction, it translated itself into a Manifesto commitment, was clearly Government policy, the Commission was set up, a consultation paper was issued, a Report for Parliament was prepared and I would not say that today is the culmination of that, but today is an important step in that process, which will lead to other steps, as the Chief Minister has already mentioned, which will include further consideration, in detail, with regard to implementation of specific proposals by the Select Committee and then coming back to this House for ratification and actual implementation of the reforms.

645 A reform of this Parliament, Mr Speaker, is not just to be welcomed by everyone, it is, in fact, overdue. That is not to say that nothing has happened over the years. The Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister recounted how we have come from a debating Chamber to a Legislative Council to a House of Assembly and then, in 2007, to Parliament and, in particular, with the changes made in the Constitution in 2007, increasing the number of the Members of Parliament to seventeen and some additional changes like the specific office of the Minister for Justice.

650 The fact that there was a need for reform is not just something that was recognised by this side of the House or the Parties on this side, it was also recognised some time ago by the Party opposite when they were in Government. Going back to the opening of Parliament in 2007 – I seem to recall it was 8th November 2007 – the then Chief Minister, Mr Caruana, said this:

655 ‘We need to reform and modernise the way this House conducts its business.’

660 That was in November 2007. Then we had a motion, I seem to recall it was in 2011, where we discussed parliamentary reform and a Select Committee but, as I have stated in a different context, it is simply not enough to pay lip service to principles or conviction, it is actions that are required in order to put those principles and those convictions into practice.

665 Back in 2008 in my very first Budget speech, shortly after becoming a Member of Parliament in 2007, I recalled in that Budget contribution the words of the then Chief Minister in November 2007 and I went on to say:

670 ‘Almost seven months down the line no indication has been given as to when those reforms will be put in place or will be started. There is an urgent need for that reform. Regular Question Times are required and if the British Prime Minister is required to make time available to attend Parliament and answer Questions every single week, unless Parliament is in recess, there is no reason why this Chief Minister should not be required to attend this Parliament regularly for the same purpose. Of course, that would mean that topical issues can be raised at any time, at a time when those issues remain topical. I would urge the Government...’

– this is how I ended the quote –

675 ‘I would urge the Government to start that process of reform immediately. We need to make this House a more dynamic and living organism, with the appropriate level of interaction between Government and Opposition and every reasonable opportunity afforded to the Opposition to hold the Government to account while issues are still topical.’

680 That is what I said in 2008: there was an urgent need and we needed to put things in place immediately. That is exactly what we did when we came into office in 2011 and although this is a process of parliamentary reform we have already seen, again as the Deputy Chief Minister has remarked, the changes which have been made and which, in fact, have been recognised today, by Mr Caruana, as being changes which have brought into effect a different form of Parliament, and in fact a better way of conducting business. In particular, with the result that Members opposite are able to ask Questions and hold Government to account while issues are still topical, as opposed to what happened previously. Those were my views in 2008, they were the views of the GSLP Liberals, they became the views of the Government and that is why we are here today with this particular motion being presented.

690 I do not propose... because the Hon. the Chief Minister has already gone through the whole of the Report, Recommendation by Recommendation, and there are only a couple of Recommendations on which I will have anything to say, Mr Speaker. The first one is in relation to Recommendation 7, which deals with motions on the adjournment. The Chief Minister has already alluded to the fact that Standing Orders provide for motions on the adjournment. The Standing Orders do not mention that it needs to be an adjournment sine die: there is a reference in Recommendation 7 to that. The question really is, do we need any modification or any clarity to resolve any ambiguity?

695 The fact is that we now have monthly meetings except, for example, the end of July, when we may adjourn until September, and the intention must be – and it is perhaps something the detail needs to be considered by the Select Committee – to see whether there is any need to change the specific Standing Order. But the intention must be that every time there is a meeting of Parliament, one of the monthly meetings, on the adjournment to the following month there should be an opportunity to present a motion on the adjournment. I do not read in Recommendation 7 the reference to ‘the last sitting in a month’ as meaning only the last sitting in any calendar month because, if we are in a sitting, for example in June, and we are on 30th June and we are going to extend to 1st July to the final day of that sitting, we do not believe that what we should have is a motion on the adjournment on 30th June and then another motion on the adjournment on 1st July because then we adjourn sine die on 1st July. What we should have, and perhaps we just need clarity to avoid ambiguity in the rules, is that at every monthly meeting of Parliament there should be one opportunity for a motion on the adjournment and that is a principle which I believe we subscribe to.

Mr Speaker, Recommendation 10 deals with the legislative process and the possibility of Bills which are lengthy and complex having to undergo legislative scrutiny by referring it to a particular committee. A question may arise as to what does 'lengthy and complex' mean and when does that engage? Is it just a number of pages? There may be some potentially... any legislation could be complex, regardless of how lengthy it is, and I am not sure that the hon. Member Mr Caruana, when he mentioned the Chief Minister's contribution, understood exactly what our position is. Mr Caruana said that this is not about public consultation and the fact that there are Command Papers and Bills published for six weeks is not the same as legislative scrutiny. That is correct. But to the extent that there is a period of time, not just the six weeks, but the additional period in which the Command Paper is given, gives not only an opportunity to the public to look at the Bill in a little bit more detail but also gives the opportunity to the Opposition.

The fact that, for new legislation, we have set ourselves the principle of issuing Command Papers for at least two weeks, does not mean that it has to be two weeks in every single case. There is a fundamental difference between what happens now and what happened previously. With the regularity of meetings now, if we have a Command Paper stage in which the hon. Members will clearly have an opportunity to look at the Bill and not necessarily comment to the Government at that stage, but certainly to consider any proposed changes that there should be, or any improvement to the Bill. Then there is a six week period. Then we come to Parliament. There is always the opportunity in any particular case for Opposition to suggest to the Government that a particular Bill, even when we get to Committee Stage, should be adjourned to the following month so as to give the opportunity of further scrutiny.

There is even the opportunity of a particular Bill being adjourned not just to a Committee of the Full House but to a particular committee which will look at that particular Bill. So we think that there are sufficient safeguards in the process now to make any changes unnecessary. We therefore suggest that the process gives sufficient time and opportunity, particularly because of the monthly meetings and although, as the hon. Member has said, Government will have a timetable and some Bills will be urgent, there will be occasions where there is a need for further time and adjourning a Bill to the following month to allow that further scrutiny to take place.

Hon. P R Caruana: Will the hon. Member give way?

Hon. G H Licudi: Absolutely.

Hon. P R Caruana: Yes, Mr Speaker, the point that I was making was that no-one is suggesting there is not enough time. If a Member of this Parliament is not going to read a Bill in six weeks, to say that he has eight, instead of six, is hardly likely to increase the chances that he will: it is about process. I mean in the United Kingdom... Everything that the hon. Member has said would apply to the United Kingdom legislative process as well, where they do not conclude that the Committee Stage should not be done on a basis like it is being recommended. No-one is suggesting that there is lack of opportunity, and no-one is denying that, whereas the opportunity before was six weeks, now it is eight or more if the Government gives a longer than two week Command Paper publication period. It is about the obligation by which a group of Members of this House, who have been tasked by the rest of it to particularly look at a Bill, that will oblige a greater number of Members to input into the quality of legislation. He will recall that I made the point that, in effect... let us take the example of a Bill with which he was intimately involved on both sides of the House, the Crimes Bill, or the other one, the PACE equivalent.

I mean, who is pretending that anybody other than the Hon. the now Leader of the Opposition and the now the Hon. the Minister for Justice were familiar with the terms of that Bill? So, in a sense, they were the House for that, they were the House for that and his nine colleagues voted because he said it was okay and these guys here voted – we voted – because he said it was okay. That is all I am saying, that a committee system... it is not about time or opportunity, it is about obligation, it is about architecture of the way this part... the architecture of the resources of this Parliament for giving legislative scrutiny: which is not to say that legislation in the past has been bad, but if we are looking at ways of making this Parliament function more like parliaments in other countries who, presumably, do things for a reason, the speed with which we legislate in Gibraltar is one of the things that characterises our parliamentary tradition in the past. Normally, legislation going through other parliaments tends to take longer and, really, it is only in Gibraltar that you could, with the Opposition's support, get a Bill through in twenty-four hours. You could publish it – before the Constitution, the new one – you could publish a Bill on a Thursday and Friday of next week it could go through all its parliamentary stages and, indeed, the Royal 765 Assent, if you could find the Governor before midnight on Friday. If we are looking at ways of making this Parliament more – I don't know, I don't want to use a word that characterises where we have come from – this would be one,

As I said before, this is not –

770 Mr Speaker: It is not for me to contribute to the debate but I might clarify a matter here that, as Chairman of the Commission, I am aware of. The three barristers who were members of the Commission were particularly concerned about Bills which are of a complex nature and they thought that, in the informal setup of a Public Bills Committee of the House, where legal draftsmen could be involved in the exchanges, the product that would emerge from Parliament would be – could be – a far better one.

775 Hon. D A Feetham: Would you give way? (Hon. G H Licudi agreed to give way)

Mr Speaker, thank you very much to the Minister for giving way. Indeed, in relation to the... he may recall that, in relation to the Crimes Bill and the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Bills, each Bill was seven hundred and something clauses, with twenty-four separate parts to it. It took me, I think it was, 780 three and a half hours to go through my speech on the Second Reading on the merits of the Bill. It is impossible for anybody to actually keep attentive on something as technical as those two Bills for three and a half hours unless they are really, really interested in the subject matter of it! So as my Learned and Hon. Friend, Mr Caruana, says, probably the only two people that actually followed the debate was the Hon. Mr Licudi and myself and it is the way – this device – is a way of involving more people in the nitty gritty of the Bills. We have seen actually that even in relation to the Crimes Bill and the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Bill, there have been, because of its size and the fact that even with my team 785 looking at it for the amount of time that we looked at it – I think it took something like three years to produce those two Bills – it was impossible to spot everything that might have potentially gone wrong with the Bill. There has been occasion already, where the Hon. the Minister has had to bring amendments – small amendments, but still amendments – to this House in order to amend those Bills. Perhaps that 790 could have been avoided had we had a larger team, cross-Party, looking at both Bills.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is certainly right that, in that debate, the main... I do not recall whether we were the only ones, but the main contributors in that debate were himself, the 795 Leader of the Opposition now, and myself. But that debate was on the Second Reading. It was not at the Committee Stage. That was the Second Reading, which would happen in any event. With a Second Reading involving as many Members of Parliament as want to be involved in that debate on the general principles. That did not involve the specific legislative and in-depth scrutiny that would be involved at Committee Stage. What we then did was adjourn to a Committee of the Full House, as we generally do. There is no reason why, in any particular case, we cannot adjourn to a specific committee set up to look at and scrutinise a particular Bill. 800

Sometimes it is true, there will be – no matter how lengthy or complex the Bill, or how much the scrutiny – things that will be missed and we can improve things by bringing draftsmen in but these particular pieces of legislation that have been referred to, there have been one or two teething problems, there have been one or two issues which have been identified as needing to be improved and those things 805 have only come to light on implementation of the Bill.

All I am saying, Mr Speaker, is that the process that we have had in the past, I certainly do not recall a situation, since I have been in Parliament since 2007, where I have sat there and felt 'Well, we are really rushing through this legislation, we are resulting in a bad law.' I have not had that feeling at all in the time that I have been in Parliament. 810

I might not have agreed with the legislation that has been introduced or was proposed by the then Government and not all legislation that we introduce will be agreed by the hon. Members opposite, but that is different from bringing in a piece of legislation that is essentially good law and implements the policy of the Government, and the hon. Member wants me to give way –

815 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, but can he sincerely say that he has been attentive in relation to every single Bill and that he has not fallen asleep on some of the Bills that have been brought to this House. I mean that is the point that, of course, if something strikes you as being odd occasionally or that is beyond the pale or unconstitutional... but, you see, the problem here is that, on some of these very complex, lengthy Bills, half the House just cannot follow the debate or have not read a Bill – these two Bills were huge, 820 huge Bills – except the hon. Member and myself. The point is to try and include more people in the nitty gritty, the detail of the actual Bills.

Hon. G H Licudi: Well, Mr Speaker, I can safely say that I have not fallen asleep once whilst listening to contributions when I was in Opposition, no matter how lengthy the contribution that may 825 have been made by hon. Members.

830 The suggestion seems to be that we need to involve more people, yet it seems to me that the Recommendation is precisely the opposite, to include less people because, at the moment, we have a Second Reading where the whole House participate and whether one, two or three Members participate, that is a matter of choice. There is absolutely nothing preventing all Members of the Opposition looking in detail at any particular Bill. Why the system would be improved if they all suddenly went into a huddle, into a committee, as opposed to being part of the House in a Second Reading, I am not sure. In any event, at Committee Stage, we have a committee of the whole House: what is suggested is that the numbers should be reduced, rather than there should be greater participation. The system now provides for as much participation as is possible, depending on the choice of individual Members.

835 But there will come a time, I am sure, that there will be specific Bills where, in any particular month and, although the hon. Member says, yes, on occasions we have gone through legislation in a particular day, we go through the First, Second, Third Reading, then we go to Committee Stage if all Members agree, then we go back, or rather we come back, for the Third Reading and we pass legislation in a day. But there will be occasions where it will be possible for that greater scrutiny to happen and for the Bill to be adjourned. It is much easier now, as I have already mentioned, because the House is adjourned generally from month to month and, therefore, adjourning a particular Bill for greater scrutiny to the following month will not be a big difficulty in practice.

840 As I anticipate may well happen, the Bill that the Hon. the Chief Minister mentioned, which I hope to be bringing to the House in the not too distant future, that is the reform of the Companies Act – there will be a Companies Bill which is published as a Command Paper – but even before that, there will be a draft circulated for consultation purposes. As the hon. Member knows, because this was set up during his time as Minister for Justice, there is a Company Law Reform Committee of the Finance Centre Council that makes certain proposals and I know that he looked at all those proposals in detail at the time and I have had the benefit of seeing what it was that the hon. Member agreed to or disagreed to. We have acted on those proposals agreeing, by and large, to most of them and when that is ready, hopefully very, very soon indeed, that will be circulated in draft before the publication of a Command Paper to that Committee and there is no difficulty at all in making that draft for consultation purposes available to the Opposition.

845 That is the kind of Bill that will be lengthy, that will be complex, that will introduce new concepts into Companies Law in Gibraltar that we have not had and that will require a certain level of scrutiny. I believe that the system we currently have will allow that. If when we come to Parliament and we go through the Second Reading, there is a need for further time, then such further time as may reasonably be required will be given. All I am saying, Mr Speaker, is that we think the process we currently have in place has built into it the necessary safeguards to deal with all these matters.

850 There is only one other matter that I want to mention and that is the issue of Recommendation 37 and who should be entitled to vote. The House will have heard the contributions on both sides in relation to this matter and I simply want to draw attention to the position of students in full-time education. The Chief Minister said, traditionally, students who are in full-time education have always been allowed to vote and there is a very simple reason. We do not believe that students lose their residence simply because they go off to study. They are temporarily absent, albeit for three terms in a year, they are temporarily absent from Gibraltar and therefore they maintain their residence in Gibraltar, they maintain the right to vote and it is important that they should continue to be included in the electorate and should continue to participate fully in the electoral process in Gibraltar. We do not see that that is going to change or that there is a need to change legislation or the rules in order to achieve that.

855 Thank you Mr Speaker.

860 Hon. D J Bossino: Mr Speaker, I will be dealing with Part III of the Report, which is entitled Electoral Reform. The views which I will be giving will set out basically the views of the front bench of the parliamentary team because, having heard the hon. the backbencher, Mr Caruana, a few minutes ago, I must say that there are some points in respect of which, there is some divergence of views.

865 Mr Speaker, this part of the Report is obviously very wide-ranging and encompasses many of the possible issues which can be considered relevant in the context of electoral reform. Certainly, when I think of electoral reform, I think of particularly the voting system and it is interesting – very interesting indeed, Mr Speaker – that this element of the Report has been relegated to the last point in the section when one would have expected – it is my personal view – to have been at the beginning. It is also interesting that there is no formal recommendation box in the electoral system section, although we appreciate that the Commission does, in effect, recommend a retention of the LV, the limited vote system.

870 Many of the points set out in Part III, Mr Speaker, are not, in principle, objectionable. It is clear that the Commission has been making moves towards greater openness in the way, for example, that Parties are run, how they should conduct themselves during an election in terms of election expenses and how to deal with donations to Parties. But it is, indeed, arguable that these are issues which require a debate on their own, at least insofar as the detail is concerned – and I think the hon. Chief Minister has made that precise point – because the devil, in respect of many of these provisions, will invariably be in the detail 890 and this is very much the case in the context of reform of the system of voting. But at least we may be able to move forward today on matters of principle. I would just like to dwell, before I deal with the electoral system per se, in greater detail on the question of the enlargement of Parliament, which has been already canvassed by the Leader of the Opposition.

895 We have already stated what our preferred option is: we want to see the enlargement of this House and this is a fundamental point which will permeate and impact, in my view, on many of the other recommendations contained in Part II of the Report. For example, the Public Bills Committee which has already been dealt with, Select Committees, frequency of meetings and, indeed, as already stated by the Leader of the Opposition, none of these initiatives will, in our view, properly work unless there are more Members of the House and that they have a backbench status. The other argument in favour of enlargement is the one which says; well, it allows other people to enter into public life, as already dealt with by Mr Caruana, without necessarily forming part of any of the front bench teams. In many large Parliaments this is, in fact, normally the way it works. You spend some time as a backbencher after you have first won the seat and then make your way up the ladder. Such an avenue also allows people to, using the words in the Government's 2011 motion, 'cut their political teeth in Parliament and front line politics' before committing yourself in a more involved way.

900 There is, therefore, a very powerful case, Mr Speaker, in favour of increasing the seats of this Chamber. If one looks at page 25 of the consultation paper and one does a very crude and basic analysis of the table which is there – of the consultation paper, not of the Report – without considering matters such as the level of sophistication of their politics or, indeed, of their societies or the level of engagement of their peoples in a political light of that particular community or, indeed, the level of their constitutional development, one can see various examples where there are populations, tiny populations some of them, in some instances less than us, and they have more than 17 Members. For example, in the case of the Cook Islands, with 20,000 inhabitants, they have 24 Members of their Parliament – and there are other examples set out in the table.

905 One point which I do not think has been made during the course of this debate and which may have been missed in the past, is the added pressure which this particular legislature in Gibraltar has, as a small jurisdiction, because it is tasked with the implementation of many and varied EU legislative initiatives so that the ability to scrutinise many of these legislative initiatives with more time and in greater detail, in the context of a Public Bills Committee, would I think be certainly very welcome indeed and would assist in the workings of this Parliament. In our view, again, this can only be reasonably and more effectively done with more MPs and certainly with more time.

910 If I can deal with the, I think it is the last bit of the, the last section of Part III first which is obviously other than the conclusion which is 3.15, Electoral Systems, first. As stated in the general points that I have referred to, this is a matter which merits very careful scrutiny. We, in the Opposition benches or, indeed, in the Government benches, have not had the benefits of reviewing all the recommendations which have been submitted to the Commission. All we have seen, and had the benefit of seeing, are Mr Vasquez's minority report, as set out in the consultation paper, which provides a very interesting – sorry, and the very interesting analysis – set out in the consultation paper, which has not then found its way into the Report, of the various types of electoral systems. We support the continuation of the limited vote system for the election of an enlarged Parliament of 25 but we are willing to consider the introduction of a different voting system. The retention of the LV system is our starting position, as already stated.

915 What are the arguments in favour of the LV system? I am sure they are many and varied, but these are some of them: firstly, I think it is a system which has provided us with stability in Government for a very long time and I suppose the argument is 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it'. Secondly, it may be one of the factors which have contributed to the development of the Party system in Gibraltar, a system which has often been knocked as producing an overly adversarial style of politics: it has also been attacked – I remember the elections in 1988 – for failing to produce the best brains, with the committee system in the Channel Islands being offered as a panacea, when that system itself has been the subject of criticism and change in these same jurisdictions. But now is not the time to list the benefits of the Party system and the contribution which the block vote has already made in that regard, but simply to say this, and that is that our current system gives a very real choice to the electorate between different and sophisticated programmes of Government on which the Parties are judged every four years at election time.

920 Fifteen votes Mr Speaker, could open the possibility for independents and third Parties – and both the Chief Minister, the Leader of the Opposition, the Deputy Chief Minister and I, have been in that position in the past, when we have been Members of third Parties – to break in. The theory, Mr Speaker, would be that more people than has hitherto been the case, would use their excess votes in favour of such a Party or an independent. However, and I say that with this caveat, given the way that the block vote phenomenon has been instilled in our electoral system hitherto, there is a view that it is highly unlikely that that will happen, even with an increased number of seats and therefore votes available.

925 Although I have outlined what our starting position is, we do not fear, Mr Speaker, the possibility of opening up for consideration an alternative voting system. The minority report suggests that the issue of 950 electoral reform should not be closed and that we, as a Parliament, should not get that impression and I think that Mr Vasquez, in that regard, is absolutely right. It is something that, if we all share and believe in greater democracy and fairness, should be debated and considered further. Again, I recall my GNP and Liberal pastures for one further moment, Mr Speaker, when during the period 1992-96 we campaigned very strongly for a change in the system of voting because it was precisely that election result, i.e. I think 955 it was the January 1992 election result, which brought into sharp focus how it was possible that the GSLP, which had won the greatest number of votes in percentage terms at least, in a very long time – I think it was 72 or 73 per cent – yet could only enjoy eight seats in the House and yet the GSD, at the time with 20 per cent of the votes, enjoyed seven seats on the other side of the House.

960 Mr Speaker, consideration should be given to an alternative voting system in respect at least of the balance of seats beyond the 17-Member compliment and perhaps LV for the core 17 Members. That is our preferred; we have already said that LV is our preferred choice. In other words, Mr Speaker, adopting a mixed system in a way that the additional Member system works in elections for the, for example Scottish Parliament, in that context we would have the best of both worlds. We would maintain a strong and steady Party system but give, at least in theory, when we need to test it on the ground, a greater 965 chance for third Parties and independents to break through. Although again, perhaps arguing against myself, an interesting analysis of the electoral system in percentage terms, as provided I think it is on the Parliamentary website, if one adopted the system that I have just advocated, would only have resulted in Mr Joe Pitaluga's Independent Democratic Party on 24th March 1988, which brought in the first GSLP administration and, in effect, spelled the end of the AACR hold on power for many years, Mr Speaker, as 970 no doubt you will recall, even in those elections, it would have resulted in Mr Pitaluga achieving one seat at 12.4 per cent. I have done an analysis – because I am a geek when it comes to these things – of applying the d'Hondt calculator, which is available online, in respect of all the other following elections and I am afraid that the hon. Dr Garcia would have not won a seat when he stood in 1996 together with the GNP, and certainly not in 1992. (Laughter)

975 Mr Speaker, I now very quickly go on to review the specific recommendations set out in Part III of the Report and starting off with Recommendation 21, which deals with the rolling register. This is something which has obviously become... Obviously, it has, in fact, as a matter of fact, become topical: we, as a Party, issued a press release yesterday on the matter, when we are encouraging the Government to do something about this. The Opposition supports – and I note that the... I think that the Chief Minister also 980 supports – Recommendation 21 and this must be, Mr Speaker, a very reasonable and sensible Recommendation. This system will allow the flexibility which will be required in order to ensure that we, at any given time, have an up to date Register, thereby improving and ensuring fairness. There are – I was just about to say many people – I do not know how many people scientifically, who no doubt are now eighteen and were not eighteen at the time of the last General Election in 2011, or those people who have 985 now become Gibraltarian citizens and reside in Gibraltar –

Hon. Chief Minister: Would the hon. Gentleman give way, just on that point?

990 People who have turned eighteen since the last Register was opened or closed and compiled, are entitled to vote in this by-election if they have turned eighteen. The issue is that there may be some who were not registered by their parents, or who forgot to register, but there will be a large rump of people – the majority – who have turned eighteen and are now going to be able to vote.

995 He should not allow himself to be led down the path of thinking that people who have turned eighteen are not going to be able to vote in this by-election. It is only those whose parents failed to fill in the form accurately at the time who will not be able to vote in this election, if they were left out of the Register for that reason. That is the position.

Hon. D A Feetham: We quite understand what the position is.

1000 I think the point that is being made by my hon. Friend Mr Bossino is that – and I do not want really for the debate to turn on this particular issue now because it is separate and we have issued a communiqué on it – but the point that is being made now is that those people who are eighteen today ought to have, and were excluded, either were excluded from the list by mistake in December 2011, either because their families did not register them or, alternatively, that became of age – eighteen years old – after that date but are eighteen now, ought to be allowed onto the list now. That is the point.

1005 Hon. Chief Minister: If he would just give way... I do not want this to become controversial in the context of this debate.

1010 People, who have turned eighteen after the date of the last election and after the date that the Register closed, are on the Register and are able to vote if they have turned eighteen. That is the position in law. That is the position in the Register, as it is today. People who could not vote on 8th December 2011, because they were not yet eighteen, have turned eighteen thereafter, will be able to vote in this election as long as whoever was responsible for them, when they were under the age of eighteen, filled in the form 1015 accurately. We are, therefore, dealing with an extremely small number of people because there is an extremely large number of people, who are turning eighteen and are able to vote and are on the Register. Therefore, please, the hon. Gentleman should not think that there is anything in the Register barring people who turned eighteen after the date of the last election from voting in this by-election.

1020 They are on the Register and they are able to vote. There is of course always the possibility that somebody has not been registered, whether they were under eighteen at the last election or whether they were thirty-five at the last election and they missed out on registration in the last Register for whatever reason. That is why we agree that there should be a rolling register. But, the argument that they have both put, if they look at Hansard and the way that they have put it, is that there are people who have turned eighteen after the Register was completed who cannot vote. Only those who failed to register, but all those who registered and that is ninety-seven per cent to give you a figure: the rump of those who are turning eighteen after the 8th December 2011 and before 4th July 2013, will vote.

1025 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I understood the point the first time that the Hon. the Chief Minister made it.

1030 The point that we are making and it is relevant to this debate, because we are extolling the virtues of a rolling register, is that simply because your parents did not register you in December, just before December 2011, for that election, should not deprive somebody who is eighteen today but was not registered then, of the ability to vote at this by-election or a future by-election. I mean, I do not know whether I registered – may I say to the Chief Minister – I do not know whether I registered my, at the time, my son Alexander. It may well be that, at the time, I thought, ‘Well, he is only fifteen years of age, why should I register him?’ (Interjections)

1035 Please, may I continue...

Mr Speaker: Order, order.

Hon. D A Feetham: May I continue... may I continue.

1040 Perhaps – I do not know whether I registered it – but there must be some people who thought ‘well why would I register somebody who is under age then?’ But, indeed, look, if there is another by-election – my son is sixteen now – if they were to win this by-election now and there is another by-election prior to the next General Election he may be eighteen, but because I never registered him then, then he does not have the right to vote.

1045 We could say it is the fault of the parents for not registering but, at the end of the day, voting is a fundamental human right. It is a fundamental right pertaining to the individual and in the same way as we say that, yes, we agree there ought to be a rolling list which would deal with this particular problem, we also think that, at this particular election, the Register ought to have been open so that those people who, by mistake... I am not suggesting it is the fault of the Government and if the Government does not sit, or the Hon. the Chief Minister does not sit, behind every single parent, has no responsibility to tell every single parent, you have got to sit behind them saying ‘You have got to register your children’. Look, mistakes happen. These things happen and if we are talking about fundamental Human Rights and the right of people to vote, then the Register ought to be opened.

1055 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman for giving way again.

1060 Look Mr Speaker, I think the position needs to be understood by the hon. Gentleman. The Register that we are dealing with was compiled when they were in Government. The forms that are prepared and which are circulated actually say ‘If your dependent turns of age before x date, then you put him on this form’, and x date is forward quite considerably – I mean the Clerk knows this better than I do – two or three or four years and actually covers 4th July 2013. So we are genuinely of the view that voting is a human right because you should not be in Parliament unless you think that voting and the franchise is a human right. But the issue that the hon. Gentleman Mr Bossino, who was speaking on the subject, made is a different one and I therefore wanted the House to be assured that the position has not changed, that the Register that they compiled is the Register that is current now. Obviously, it is compiled by the Returning Officer, they were in Government at the time.

1065 It is impossible to give a percentage but the numbers of people who are requesting that the Register be opened, compared to what the exercise for opening the Register is today, it will not be... because we all agree that we should have an open Register in the future. It will not be... but the exercise of opening the Register today, with the amount of work that needs to be done in the context of a by-election and the time that there is available for it, does not justify that the Register should be opened for these small amount of people that we are talking about, who were not eighteen at the time. Those who have turned eighteen, the vast majority of them are now going to be able to vote, if they turned eighteen between 8th December 2011 and 4th July 2013. It is very easy to talk, in emotive terms, about the ‘right to vote being a human right’ and all the rest of it, but people also have a responsibility themselves to register themselves and if 1075 the Register has been properly dealt with, then the Government will defend that in the context of the work that has to be done.

I have always believed in the rolling Register and when we introduce it, these problems go away and that is why it is our policy.

1080 Mr Speaker: I really –

Hon. Chief Minister: Sorry, may I just say that I note that the communiqué that they have issued is in fairly belligerent terms and not conducive to the sort of politics that we are enjoying at least today in this House, so I am not going to stray into answering that here but will do so in another place.

1085 Mr Speaker: I really think the Hon. Mr Damon Bossino should be allowed to conclude his contribution.

1090 Hon. D J Bossino: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, and I think if I could just develop the final point that the Hon. Chief Minister has just made, that we really ought to try and make every effort, I think most Members who have spoken on this debate in this House hitherto have said that we ought to make an effort to make this as consensual as possible. In that context, what I would say is that, clearly, I think there is agreement in this House that there ought to be an open – as the Chief Minister puts it, and as the Report puts it – a rolling Register and that, I think, finds agreement on both sides of the House.

1095 But, certainly, just to clarify one point... In fact, as I understand it, I have only briefly looked into it, under section 5 of the Parliament Act 1950 it only allows for publication of the Register every four years, starting from 1st August 2007 so that, for example, if the Chief Minister decides to call an early election or, indeed, the case that we currently face with the by-election, we are basically caught by the position in the Register as it stood in 2011, subject to the point that the Hon. Chief Minister said, if your parents did register you in 2011 as coming of age during the course of the life of the following four years. But there is also – again, I have not looked at this point in any detail – I think there is the possibility for the Minister responsible for elections under that same section, i.e. Section 5, to provide for a supplemental Register which could cure the issue that is now currently the subject of public debate.

1100 But, Mr Speaker, if I could just move on to the following Recommendations and those are, if I could bunch those three recommendations together, Recommendation 22, 23 and 26, which deal with election expenses. I jumped Recommendation 24 and 25 because 26 makes, I think, the very wise recommendation – which we accept – that there ought to be an extensive definition of what ‘election expenses’ amount to. That is certainly something, when I was looking at this from a logical intellectual perspective and legal perspective, I thought that made a lot of sense because, obviously, there is going to be a problem with what is ‘deemed’ an election expense. For example, the banners, the flags and all the other material which was used in both our general meetings recently, would that be caught under that definition? So it is something I think we would need to discuss in quite a lot of detail at the Select Committee which the Chief Minister has suggested he will be establishing.

1105 We would also want to look, in relation specifically to Recommendation 22, at perhaps extending the buffer period of time of one month: that could be a solution to a greater period of time set out in Section 14.2. At the moment it is one month, and if we extended it, say, to six months, it may go some way, Mr Speaker, to addressing the unfair advantage point which is made by the Commission members in its narrative, which is the preamble to that particular Recommendation. One of the technical points which I think we will be making to the Select Committee on this matter is that if any dispute arises as to what amounts to, or does not amount to, an election expense, that there is a procedure set out in the legislation which could allow, maybe, a reference to a judge, or to the Registrar of the Supreme Court or to a Magistrate. We certainly welcome and agree to the setting up of a prescribed form for the election expenses return, which we think would be very useful indeed.

1115 Moving on to Recommendation 24, which deals with the inspection of election expenses, again we agree to that, Mr Speaker, and I concur with the Hon. the Chief Minister entirely. In fact, there is no timeframe, when I looked at this, set out in the statutory provision as to how long those particular documents are allowable for inspection in the House, so it was not clear in my mind why there was that particular administrative practice which limited inspection to one day. Again, consideration can be given to providing, within the statutory framework, the provision for challenges and whether these challenges could be made subject to a statutory limitation period, say, for example, the life of a Parliament.

1120 Moving on to Recommendation 25, which deals with donations over £100, again this has been dealt with extensively by the Hon. and Learned Friend Mr Caruana in his contribution. In a place as small as this, Mr Speaker, this particular Recommendation struck me as being one which will herald a major development. But, certainly, coming from a Party which upholds the principle of greater openness and transparency, it is something which we, in principle, welcome. The point has already been made, and I would repeat it, that we could consider increasing the threshold from £100 to, say, £1,000 or something around about that figure because I assume that it is the public interest consideration behind such disclosure – that it should really bite against corporate donations in particular. I make that recommendation subject to the same source point which is made in the preamble to that particular recommendation, which we obviously support. One should, however, Mr Speaker, take particular care that publication of information of that nature does not make it more difficult for Parties, usually in Opposition, or those Parties which are deemed unlikely to win a General Election – it could be a governing Party – to lose financing because people are less willing to donate to that particular Party. I think that is addressed in the UK, but I could be mistaken, by a system of State financing.

In relation to Recommendations 27, 28 and 29 – I will bunch those three together – which deal with, amongst other things, early absentee voting: that is Recommendation 27. Again, so long as the procedure is safe, fair and subject to scrutiny, we agree with it. Anything which facilitates greater flexibility, with a view to increasing the opportunity for the electorate to cast a vote, will be welcomed from this side of the House. But, again, the devil will be in the detail. We note that the conclusion to investigate the possibility of secure internet voting has not found its way in any of the recommendation boxes in this section but, of course, it would be a technological advancement which would increase the speed within which the votes are counted.

Increasing the time limit, as suggested in Recommendation 28, would undoubtedly lessen the administrative burden of the Returning Officer and his staff and I note that – I have not done the calculation in my mind as to whether it applies, following the Hon. Chief Minister’s intervention this morning – but, certainly, the time period suggested by the Commission in these Recommendations, basically what it does is that the extensions of time between election calling and the date of election and the time... sorry, the period of time between the election calling in respect of the date of the election and the time for presentation of candidates have each been extended by an equal number of nine days. Certainly, interestingly, that would probably allow more time for postal votes to get here on time and certainly more time for campaigning.

In relation to Recommendation 30, Mr Speaker, which deals with broadcasting during the election campaign, again, of course, in principle, we support this Recommendation but with this caveat, that the detail on enforcements has to be considered very, very carefully indeed. We need proper safeguards in statute and it is something we can consider further at Select Committee, rather than in this Chamber, whether, in fact, the GRA should be the body responsible for enforcement of this type of activity.

In relation to Recommendation 31, which deals with exit polls, we have no firm view and will probably, by and large, leave matters on the basis of self-regulation, i.e. as they currently are, save perhaps with regards to the prohibition on publication on polling day. It is fair to say that, other than in 2007, the reliability of these polls, which I think are conducted by GBC, has been quite high in the past, although I do take note of the novel point which was made by the Hon. Mr Caruana that perhaps regulations should be considered and applied in respect of opinion polls conducted not only on polling day but also during the course of the election campaign. Certainly, the prohibition on timings of publication has been adhered to in practice. This is a crucial prohibition, so as to avoid the influencing of voters on the day of the poll and we are persuaded the case for codification of our laws in respect of at least that particular point, given the importance that we attach to it.

Moving on to Recommendation 32, which deals with vote counting, again we support anything which imposes efficiency, or which introduces, rather, efficiency, particularly where – certainly, if our recommendation would find the light of day and support from the other side of the House – there were more Members, and therefore, there were potentially more Members in this House and certainly more candidates, it is something that would need to be looked at very seriously indeed. Of course, again any moves on this particular front would have to be subject to the absolute requirement for reliability and, again, my Learned Friend Mr Caruana made the point, which I was thinking about when I was drafting, when I was reviewing and researching the Report, that there is something in the ambiente when we are vote counting at the John Mackintosh Hall, which I would certainly not want this community to lose, if the matter... like, for example, in Spain, I think by ten o’clock, eleven o’clock, we have an election result, which makes matters, I think, rather boring.

In relation to Recommendation 33, which deals with the register of political parties, this is a matter which is regulated, as has already been mentioned in this House, in the UK by statute. It is the Political Parties, Elections and Referendums Act 2000, which tasks there the Electoral Commission with the responsibility for the regulation of Parties. We do not support, however, the wide-ranging nature of the proposal, as set out in the Report in, I think it is Appendix 1, particularly A4, which I think is probably too much of an intrusion. The first point to make in relation to that, Mr Speaker, is again, there isn’t any... this is a matter which we see no pressing need for in Gibraltar. It is not clear what mischief any such legislation would seek to address and the matter was debated extensively by us internally and we thought why should any law or outside body dictate how the leader of any particular Party should be elected, for example. We certainly agree with the point made by Mr Perez – I think he is the Chairman of the GSLP element of the governing Party – in a recent Viewpoint debate, when he said – I think he made 1200 precisely the same point that I just made myself... Really, what he was saying is that political parties should regulate their affairs as they wish. Therefore, we do not agree that with that particular paragraph. In fact, I am not sure, Mr Speaker, that the statutory framework in the UK – it is certainly in England and Wales – intervenes in the way that is suggested in this particular Appendix in terms of the running of political parties. I think what they are more interested in is the accounts side and matters of that nature.

1205 There are other elements, discreet elements in the proposal, which we have less difficulty with and see the rationale behind them – for example, that a Party should have its name, logos, filing of accounts and issues like that – but, of course, I also note the backbencher’s position in relation to non-support of this particular Recommendation.

1210 Mr Speaker, if I could swiftly move on to Recommendation 34, which deals with the Electoral Commission: again, this is not an issue in respect of which we have a firm position. What did strike us as odd, when we were analysing this particular narrative, is that there seems to be no case made, on the basis of 3.12 for the setting up of such a body. Indeed, some of the respondents did express the view, which I think carried some favour, certainly on this side of the House, that it was unnecessary to have ‘yet another Commission’, with the inherent unwarranted expenses. But, again, much would have to be debated on the detail of the proposal, although I note the Government’s position in this regard, which is that they will not be supporting the Recommendation, unless it has been persuaded by anything that has been said more forcefully by my Learned and Hon. Friend Mr Caruana.

1215 In relation to Recommendation 35, the holding of referendums – I am conscious that I may not be pronouncing the Latin, or using the Latin correctly – we agree with the Recommendation, although we have no issue with the way that referenda have been conducted in the past which, of course, have been devoid of legislative basis. But, again, it is something that we would want to look very seriously at the detail.

1220 The two final Recommendations that I am dealing with, Mr Speaker, are Recommendations 36 and 37. Number 36 we have already discussed and deals with the residency period requirement. Again, there may be some divergence here, in the sense that, in fact, following my research, I have not been able to find any – and I stand to be corrected – residency requirements in the UK. The UK is obviously a larger nation than us and there are probably merits to having a residency requirement in Gibraltar. There are residency requirements in relation to Commonwealth citizens but British citizens, apparently, do not have to reside.

1225 We see no pressing need to extend the residency requirement in Gibraltar. Again, on the basis of the narrative preceding, this particular recommendation box we have not been able to identify a compelling case for extension of the requirement. Reference was made here, in the narrative, to the Commission members being convinced by the ‘strong arguments’. We have not had the benefit of seeing what those strong arguments are and analysing them. At this stage all I can say is that what we have had now is a tried and tested system which has been in place for many years and we would, I think, have to be persuaded by a stronger case than that for change. Again, it may be something that the Opposition Members comprising the Select Committee team may be persuaded by any arguments put by the other side.

1230 In relation to Recommendation 37, the diaspora vote which was referred to earlier, again we would actually agree that, or view this as a Recommendation, certainly a Recommendation which is a step forward in the right direction. As I said earlier, in the UK, in fact, there is no – as far as I could see, but, again, I stand to be corrected – no residency requirement but, equally, there is no requirement for permanency of employment, for example. This is an issue which we have been considering internally and, as part of our debates, we have considered whether it is unfair that somebody who has contributed to Gibraltar previously, whether simply at the lowest possible level of having a job, and is now retired, or at a higher level – I can think of one particular example: people who have contributed to Gibraltar’s political life and have been Members of this House and no longer reside in Gibraltar – whether they should have the right to exercise their right to vote and decide the Members of this Parliament in any electoral process.

In fact, in the narrative before the particular Recommendation, the final paragraph says:

1250 ‘We have concluded that the franchise should be extended to registered Gibraltarians who live outside Gibraltar for as long as they continue to keep close ties with, or interest in, Gibraltar.’

1255 Now, that is something I think we need to look at a bit more closely and see whether that sort of Recommendation, conclusion, that principle, can be extended because if you transpose that Recommendation, or that conclusion, into the... or, rather, you compare that particular conclusion with Recommendation 37, it seems to have not found its way in that particular Recommendation because the requirements set out there are much stricter than what the conclusion provides.

I see that there is what I thought was a security lock – but the Chief Minister, perhaps, might have persuaded me that there may not be such an effective security lock – which is the ability to have a... rather, that it is applied to Gibraltarians, those people who enjoy Gibraltarian status. And thinking about

1260 it, I suppose there are people who are British nationals, who have married in Gibraltar, as a result of that marriage enjoy Gibraltarian status and then they divorce but, as I understand it, Gibraltarian status still applies to them wherever they may go. So, in circumstances like that, if you do not have these 1265 qualifications, then they may be able to exercise the right to vote and I think that would be unfair. But the point I am making is that there are arguments on both sides but that does not mean to say that we should, as a result, slam the door in the face of those people I have mentioned and described earlier, i.e. those people who have contributed to Gibraltar, they have retired and now, for whatever reason, live in Spain or elsewhere.

Mr Speaker, I think I have concluded my contribution.

1270 Mr Speaker: We now have a recess of fifteen minutes.

Hon. Chief Minister: May I just... I understood that the Hon. Mr Netto wanted to speak and it was certainly my intention to recess after that, in order to prepare the amendment. If I could prevail upon you to allow –

1275 Mr Speaker: I understand that the contributions from Mr Netto and Mr Reyes are going to be short.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, yes.

1280 Mr Speaker: If you prefer, we can conclude their contributions, if there is no other Member of the Government, other than you, to exercise your right to reply, then we have a break and you prepare yourself for that.

1285 Hon. Chief Minister: Not so much prepare myself, Mr Speaker, but it may be that we need to have occasion to have a conversation after all the contributions are heard, because we are dealing with this debate in, sort of, a different way to the usual.

Mr Speaker: Yes, alright. Right, I call upon the Hon. Edwin Reyes.

1290 [Technical interruption]

Hon. E J Reyes: Right, Mr Speaker, I shall behave and follow instructions and start again.

I said that I am going to comment briefly upon matters raised at Part IV, where the Commission has rightfully decided to include here other matters that the respondents had raised: the Commission has 1295 decided to include four points, two of which carry specific recommendations, and those are Recommendations 38 and 39, but I shall also comment very briefly on the other two points, although there may not be any specific and concrete recommendations.

On the first of these matters, Mr Speaker, on the fixed term of Parliament, the Commission rightly 1300 reminds us that, at present, section 37(1) of the Gibraltar Constitution Order 2006 sets the maximum period of time between the dissolution of Parliament and the issue of a writ for a General Election as thirty days and the maximum period of time between the issue of a writ and the holding of a General Election as three months. The Recommendation put forward by the Commission says that 1305 ‘We recommend that a maximum period of time between the issue of a writ and the holding of a General Election should be reduced from three months to forty-two days.’

I know the Hon. the Chief Minister already mentioned before that it is not something that he rules out completely for the future, I just want him to know that, from this side of the House, we are not opposed in any shape or form to a Recommendation given by the Commission.

1310 In fact, our feeling, from the general public’s views, is that once the term of office of a Parliament expires after four years, three months on after the thirty days in which notice has been given does look rather undemocratic in this day and age, so reducing that time to forty-two days is certainly something that we tend to believe the general community would welcome. It is their way of perceiving that this Parliament does not prolong its life without a proper mandate and that a caretaker Government does not 1315 really exceed and stretch it’s time to the full limits: and if no Parliament sessions are being held it does, in many ways, sound a bit contradictory to the new method of monthly meetings, which both sides of the House have now embraced, and we are sure is something that is going to stay with us for a long time. So in keeping with that regularity of meetings and so on, I would rather see it in the more near future rather than the distant future that the three months be reduced to, say, forty-two days, as the Commission has 1320 rightly put in Recommendation No. 38.

Mr Speaker, as well, on point 4.3 the offices for Leaders and Members of the Opposition, I made a 1325 quick note and have to say that I agree with the Chief Minister, not only the Leader and Members of the Opposition but even Members sat on the Government benches. There are times and occasions when there are parliamentary matters... you could even view it as being an all-Party matter and therefore it may be extremely useful that adequate facilities are made available to all Members. I note – and I do not think it is a mistake – I think if I know Mr Speaker correctly, I think he has purposely included the words... the final words of his Recommendation are that 1330 ‘...facilities for the Leader and Members of the Opposition’ – and we are now even extending that to Members of the Government, as well –

‘should be made available near the Parliament.’

1335 Yes, Mr Speaker, the backbencher spoke before of the over-crowding of these facilities. Certainly, we know that Mr Speaker has by no means an ideal position, in that he sort of has to toss a coin with the Clerk of the House to see who can attend to private business within the office and the poor Clerk, at times, as I recall having wanted to have a quick word with him in preparation for matters to do with our attendance at the CPA Conference in Sri Lanka and he, being a polite man, said, ‘Yes, but we cannot take over the office or the desk because Mr Speaker may need to attend to some parliamentary business’ and it is un-gentlemanlike not to say – I would even dare to say against the rules – to make Mr Speaker wait outside whilst the Clerk and I have a rather casual conversation trying to make logistical arrangements to attend to parliamentary matters, be it in the wide ambit of the CPA procedure.

1340 So, yes, Mr Speaker, near the Parliament as far as possible would be fine. That would also reinforce what the Hon. the ex-Leader of the Opposition was saying: we can, from there, work as parliamentarians and an example that comes to mind, Mr Speaker, the Minister for Justice is now much, I think in many ways, to be commended, issuing the Command Papers, as an example, before the formal publication of the Bill. Sometimes, the ordinary man in the street wants to talk about those issues with a parliamentarian. As present circumstances stand, the only place where I can get a little bit of privacy is to invite that ordinary voter to come, perhaps to the GSD office, and that person should not be forced to have to come and identify with any one political Party but is rather, as an ordinary citizen, who is entitled to be fairly and democratically represented by Members of Parliament, whatever side of the House, it would be ideal if he had a place here in this building, or near the building, as the Commission has said, so that we can actually meet and discuss and then that all it is going to do is help to contribute to a wider variety of opinions when the time comes for proper discussion or the Bill here in this Parliament.

1355 There are, of course, Mr Speaker, occasionally other matters that pop up that one does not necessarily want to make it come under a Party whip. I am thinking of past examples where we had a Private Members’ Bill, where a particular Party had decided to allow a free vote amongst the MPs on his side and, again, that would be ideal if a situation arose where we had some facilities. Also, Mr Speaker, if I take into mind the Chief Minister did announce, at the very beginning of this term of Parliament, that they were working to be as green as possible, to become as paper-less as possible in many things and so on and I have, on occasions, had to come here and seek assistance from the Clerk in helping me find and locate these charts, these statistics, that Government now publishes on its website and I am conscious that I am infringing upon the work of the other ordinary clerks. I know the Clerk is so generous that he says no, but I do feel, at times, that I am there, members of the public come in and he, like a gentleman, says, ‘Well, wait for a minute’, because there is a time and a place for all sorts of business. So any other facilities that is made available, either in the building or as near the building, will help as well in many ways to ensure that the Clerk remains, and even increases, his efficiency in his contributions to help Members on this side of the House, pose their Questions and make sure that we all have as up-to-date information as possible.

1370 Mr Speaker, I take you to point 4.4, where it says about a purpose-built parliamentary building and the final paragraph there says:

1375 ‘We consider that this subject matter is not within our remit but we are conscious of the fact that the present accommodation for the Speaker, the Clerk and staff needs urgent improvement.’

1380 I want to leave you, Mr Speaker, in no doubt that this side of the House – and I already gather that the other side of the House – all feel that you deserve better physical accommodation, whatever possible, and therefore, although there is no specific recommendation either on purpose, because Mr Speaker did not want to appear to be selfish recommending something or whatever, but that goes hand in hand with the facilities that I think should be made available for the Leader and Members on the Opposition side.

Finally, on point 4.5, Mr Speaker, the composition and procedures of statutory bodies. The Commission says that they have considered a suggestion there should be a review of the composition and procedures of statutory bodies, authorities, commissions and Government-related entities to ensure that 1385 these work better and are more responsive to the public and are more independent of Government. I think,

 Mr Speaker, that in the same way that today we have been able to agree upon many things, I am almost certain that there must be a way forward on this. If I may, with respect, remind the Hon. Chief Minister 1390 what he said when he was sat on this side of the House: he said that he continued to believe that it was, or it is, time for the method of appointment to the board – and he was specifically referring to the GBC board, which I am just using as an example – to be changed, and that a more representative system be introduced to ensure that there is no de facto ability for any Government to control the corporation's board by the manner of appointment of its members. With that spirit in mind, Mr Speaker, I am sure that, if need be, at Select Committee time we can come together and find a modern way forward, where both 1395 sides will be satisfied. One that has been mooted already is that the Leader of the Opposition be allowed to make one nomination to the board and so on. But, again, let us not bog ourselves down in this one today but I want the Chief Minister to bear that one in mind because there is room for discussion and I am sure there is plenty of scope for agreement on that.

And, Mr Speaker, on behalf of if – I may as well with your leave, on behalf of the hon. Lady, who had asked me at one stage whether I would give way to her but she has had to go to attend to a school matter 1400 in respect of her younger son, the hon. Lady wished to offer this comment in respect of matter 4.5. The hon. Lady, in her notes has left me, saying that, where necessary, composition of boards and so on should be changed to improve the constitutional checks and balances on governmental power. She believes that this cannot happen without proper representation from members of our diverse community. This means reflecting the composition of Gibraltar society on these statutory bodies, enabling meaningful checks and 1405 balances on the Government of all Gibraltarians, not of a majority of white, middle-class males. In order to address this balance, she has publicly stated before, and wishes to reinforce, that it would mean actively inviting more women and minority representatives to sit on these bodies. Out of the statutory bodies gazetted so far, only ten per cent of the composition are women, some of whom are the secretaries of the boards, and even less from different ethnic backgrounds. This improvement to composition can 1410 be done quite simply with a little more consideration and active positive discrimination when inviting individuals to sit on these statutory bodies. Membership of a statutory body is not through a process of applying for the role, the assessment of applicants and recruitment of the best person for the job, it is simply through an invitation by letter from either the Chief Minister, or the Minister responsible, to join and form part of a statutory body.

1415 And, with that, Mr Speaker, I give way to the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker, I just rise in relation – I am very grateful to the hon.
 Gentleman Mr Reyes for giving way – I rise to comment on the final sentence of the first paragraph, 4.5, 1420 where it says

'Furthermore, the Police Authority and GBC, for example, should have members on those bodies proposed by the Leader of the Opposition.'

I think the Government ought to really give serious consideration to this. It really prevents the kind of 1425 exchange that perhaps we have had in relation to GBC. I have no difficulty for example in saying to the hon. Gentleman that I think that some of, some of the names that – some I do not know, some of the names that he proposed in relation to the GBC board, for example its Chairman, Albert Mena, are excellent choices and I am sure Mr Mena will be an excellent Chairman of GBC (*Interjection by the Hon.
 Chief Minister.*)

1430 May I please finish? I will give way if the hon. Gentleman –

Hon. Chief Minister: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, because, you see, this debate is about the recommendations in the Parliamentary Reform Commissions Report, not about re-running the issues that 1435 we are fighting about in press releases... but I am going to come to the point made by the hon. Gentleman for Mrs Ellul-Hammond. In particular, the hon. Gentleman has issued a press release, saying that one of the disqualifications for another one of the members of that board is that they are a very close friend of mine. He has now alluded to another individual who I have appointed to that board and praised him. I should just like him to know that he, too, is a very close friend of mine.

1440 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I am very glad that he is a very close friend of his: he is probably not as close a friend of me.

What I am saying is that, in relation to Mr Albert Mena, he is, he would be... I am sure he will make an excellent Chairman of GBC. The problem that we had, certainly on our side, was not in relation to Mr 1445 Albert Mena but in relation to the four names that the hon. Gentleman attempted to introduce to the list that was originally the subject matter of consultation with my predecessor, Mr Caruana.

The point I am making for the purposes of this debate is that if the Government were to accept the 1450 view expressed in the Report, which does not find its way into a Recommendation, but it is certainly the 1455 view the Police Authority and GBC, for example, should have members on those bodies, proposed by the Leader of the Opposition, it would obviate the kind of exchanges and the kinds of comments that we have seen on the question of the composition and the consultation to the GBC board that we have seen. I urge the Government to give serious consideration to this. I can tell him that, should we find ourselves on that side of the House after the next election, certainly we will introduce provisions allowing the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition the power to effectively have positive input into the appointment of at least one member of GBC and also the Police Authority.

Mr Speaker: Do I take it that the Hon. Mr Reyes has concluded his contribution?
 If so, I will call upon Mr Netto.

1460 Hon. J J Netto: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the opportunity of making a contribution to this important subject of parliamentary reform. May I, from the very start, state that what I am about to say is as an individual Member of Parliament and in no way a contribution by the GSD Opposition. Also, I make no apologies for the fact that the subject matter is controversial. I will be addressing all Members of Parliament, regardless of party political affiliation, on the question of the recital of the Prayer at the 1465 beginning of every parliamentary session and, as I will argue in a minute, why, in my opinion, there is no longer a need to continue with this practice.

But before I do this, I would like to take the opportunity to congratulate the Leader of the Opposition and, indeed, my fellow colleagues in the Opposition benches, in allowing me to speak on this matter of individual conscience, in the same tradition as the previous GSD Leader, the Hon. and Learned Peter Caruana QC did when we were in Government, on sensitive issues of conscience, such as the equalisation 1470 of the age of consent for sex at the age of sixteen, even though not all of my colleagues, then or now, agree with my views. These are issues where the GSD Party does not hold individual Members within a three line whip but, rather, allows each and every individual Member to express their own conscience, regardless of Party affiliation, a tradition worth maintaining.

1475 Mr Speaker, the Hon. Chief Minister, in his speech at the first session of Parliament after the refurbishment, did say, inter alia, that the new Prayer which is now recited is due, in large measure, to the contribution the late Charles Bruzon made in order to update the language from the previous one and that, in the opinion of the Chief Minister, this would remind him of Charles Bruzon for the great man he was. I would like to say that Mr Charles Bruzon was to me a very good friend, in which I had the honour of 1480 sharing many good memories either in Parliament or outside. Indeed, our friendship extended to the many CPA Conferences we both attended together, jointly defending the collective Gibraltar position and rising above party political differences, as is common at such conferences. Also, given that I happen to be one of the longest serving Housing Ministers, often in private I would provide him with some useful advice on how to cope with what is one of the most demanding ministries.

1485 However, that said, among the many good qualities that Charles had, was that he was a true democrat and would accept the principle of anyone raising a contrary point of view to the one he would passionately hold: something that I will do now. Mr Speaker, the recital of the Prayer at the beginning of each parliamentary session probably goes back to the period before the House of Assembly. No doubt, this, like many other things we do in our Parliament, is due to the political evolution in Gibraltar from the 1490 British political class, predominantly from the House of Commons. In that political evolution and most specifically in the context of our new Constitution, we have reached a new qualitative stage in our political emancipation that we should, in my opinion, no longer be speaking in Parliament in terms of conducting our proceedings under the cloak of some ancient or religious doctrine.

1495 First of all, when we as parliamentarians get elected into this Chamber we do not exclusively speak on behalf of Roman Catholics per se, Anglicans, Presbyterians, Muslims, Jews, Hindus, Jehovah Witnesses, agnostics, or as atheist. We speak on behalf of all the people of Gibraltar, regardless of any religious views or orientations. Therefore, to impose any Prayer on those people who are not religious, or even to those people who are religious but would keep matters of State and Religion separate is, frankly, an undemocratic act. Mr Speaker, our Constitution may not be perfect, although I would say hardly any 1500 constitution in the world is, but we have gone a long, long way in showing the world how politically advanced we are in Gibraltar.

In fact, if we look at the various tenets running through our Constitution, whether the fundamental rights and freedoms of the individual, the protection of freedom of conscience and the protection from discrimination on the grounds of race etc., it is implicit that the text and vocabulary therein, the 1505 manifestation of a secular framework, which is the only way that we can bind together people of different personal views without offering a preferential treatment to anyone or to one group of people over others.

Living in a secular society and practising secularism in Parliament means adopting the principle of neutrality in a public discourse. Neutrality means just that, neither standing in favour or against religion or any other views. It also means that when we act in a parliamentary session we do so by leaving behind 1510 any private interest. That is, we act in the public interest of all our community. I believe, Mr Speaker, that there should be a clear separation of Church and State and, in particular, the way we run Parliament. To quote Thomas Jefferson, one of the founding Fathers of the American Constitution and the third President of the United States, he said:

1515 'Believing... that religion is a matter which lies solely between Man & his God, that he owes account to none other for his faith or his worship, that the legislative powers of Government reach actions only, & not opinions, I contemplate with sovereign reverence that the act of the whole American people which declared that their legislature should "make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof," thus building a wall of separation between Church & State.'

1520 That was a letter to the Danbury Baptists in 1802.

The wording of the new Prayer, despite its non-denominational basis, still continues to be an affront to the principle of equality that should enshrine the rights of all individuals in our society here represented in our Parliament. There is no need to prefix language of 1525 'counsel, wisdom and understanding' to an Almighty God. In this political Chamber, the counsel, wisdom and understanding that we need to project collectively is derived from the individual Members of Parliament, regardless of Party membership and from the rules and contribution that we all make in the course of our parliamentary life and from the experience of those parliamentarians that have been here before us.

1530 When the new Prayer says

'We',

1535 as in

'We humbly ask you to guide and assist us in our deliberations and in our work', 1540 this means that Parliament is being converted into a Church public event. In other words, Parliament is being converted into a state itself in prayer, manifest in a commitment to religious beliefs and observance. This, therefore, negates the democratic principle of preserving each and every person's right to freedom of thought, conscience and diversity.

1545 I am not saying that, for those Members of Parliament who do wish to have the opportunity of praying before Parliament starts, that they should not have the facility to do so outside this Chamber. I am quite content for some room to be made available to them so that, before entering the Chamber, they can ask for guidance to their respective gods, if that is their wish. Just as I think I should not infringe their rights, they, in turn, should not infringe my rights either.

1550 Mr Speaker, I suppose that, for those who may wish to sidestep the rationale of my argument, they will say why it has taken me seventeen years of parliamentary life to now raise the issue. In response, I would say that it is for a number of reasons. Already I have alluded to the fact that we do have a new Constitution that is, in my opinion, a much clearer secular one from the one that we had before. Secondly, the fact that we have a new Prayer, and the timing of it, comes at a time in which we are almost simultaneously having a discussion on parliamentary reform. Therefore, it is absolutely right that, at this juncture, I should bring up the matter for discussion. As people know, I am an atheist and I make no apologies for the views I have.

1555 In the light of what I have said, Mr Speaker, I would humbly suggest to the Leader of the House, the Hon. Chief Minister, that, on this matter alone, to provide a free vote, as was the case in the Scottish Parliament, so that each Member of Parliament can express and vote in accordance with their conscience. The Leader of the Opposition has told me that he will not impose a three line whip on this issue, even if he does not support a change of the practice. What I find difficult is to continue to stand whilst a Prayer is recited, knowing that this infringes my freedom of conscience and having to acquiesce to a situation in which it negates the principle of equality amongst some Members of the Legislature.

1560 No Member should receive an inferior treatment, as we have all been elected by the people of Gibraltar. I hope hon. Members understand what the issues that I bring to bear for consideration are and that we move forward from a position of respect to everyone.

1565 Thank you.

Mr Speaker: May I say, since I am responsible for the Prayer, in the sense that I begin the proceedings of the Parliament with a Prayer, the House I am sure will wish to hear my views on the matter.

1570 When I was a Member of this House at the time of Mr Speaker Vasquez, Mr Speaker Vasquez not only said the Prayer at the beginning of the meeting, but whenever there was a long period because the 1575 House had adjourned from one day to another, a number of days after the event. I gave some thought to the matter myself this morning, having regard to the fact that we had not met for a week and a half and, having regard to the fact that the business of this House today was a very important business for the good of our community, I gave the matter some thought and I desisted from asking Members to stand for the Prayer. Instead, what I did was – being a believer – I paid a short visit to the Blessed Sacrament and asked my Lord Jesus to help me today in conducting the business of the House in the manner that it should be conducted.

1580 Today, in the world in which we live, atheists are much more militant than what they were forty years ago. I am aware that there has been a Member, another Member in this House since 1972, who also is not a believer but who has always respected the desire of the majority to put our affairs in the hands of He whom we believe is our creator and is our God. The hon. Member has quoted parts of the Prayer but he has also left out another part. He says that he comes here and Members – regardless of whether people are Muslims, Jews or what have you – we are here to look after the interests of all. Indeed, the Prayer reflects that. The Prayer says:

1585 ‘May we act honourably in pursuit of true justice for all our people.’

1590 Let me tell the hon. Member that I do not think that the majority of Members here who are believers should necessarily have a room outside for their prayers. It is not an imposition. The business of the meeting does not begin... the Agenda does not begin with a Prayer. If he, or any other hon. Member, has any objection to the Prayer, what he can do is to join the House after the Prayer. For as long as I am a Member of this House, for as long as I am the Speaker, unless Members tell me otherwise collectively, I will continue at the beginning of every meeting to recite this Prayer and ask God to enlighten all of us here who are trying to work for the good of Gibraltar.

1595 We will now recess for twenty minutes.

1600 The House adjourned at 5.15 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 5.32 p.m.

GOVERNMENT MOTION

1605 Parliamentary and democratic reform
Report of the Independent Commission
Debate concluded: Amended motion carried

1610 Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak before I call on the mover to reply?
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it has been a long day and a very constructive debate and I think it is important that we now try and take this debate on this motion to an equally constructive conclusion. There have been some things said during the course of the interventions which deal with the Recommendations in the Report and I want to go through some of those.

1615 There have been some things said during the course of the interventions which are slightly party political and, with your leave, I am going to at least just put markers down in relation to that but I do not think is in anybody’s interest that we should delve into deeply controversial partisan territory during the course of this debate, so I am going to try and avoid that whilst simply saying, I am not accepting by simply not dealing with them, any of the points that have been put during the course of the afternoon.

1620 The first one, which is one of the issues that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition started with, was this question of whether the current Constitution delivers the maximum possible level of self-government. He knows our position on that and it is important that we all understand that the debate today is not about any of those issues and the detail of any of those issues, it is about the detail of the reform proposals and where we want to go, so I am not going to delve on any of those issues.

1625 He went on to talk about whether, in certain instances, he had been left to debate motions or ask Questions on cold and late Friday evenings – what he called the parliamentary Siberia – and that motions would not be dealt with at peak times and therefore there would be less interest.

1630 When we are looking at parliamentary procedure, we have to understand what parliaments are. We have got to be careful also not to try and turn ourselves into a circus and we have got to try and understand what peak timing is. It may be, Mr Speaker, that with cameras active in the Chamber, a Friday evening that is otherwise cold and bleak at nine o’clock in this place is actually peak viewing time in the warm homes of those who may be watching on television. So yesterday’s Siberia, with the cameras active in the House may become prime time viewing. I think it is important that we reflect that what is going to 1635 happen when the cameras become active – something, as I have said before, I hope will happen soon – is that those who operate news agencies – in particular, in Gibraltar it is GBC and now also the nascent

 YGTV – will be able, whenever a Member has spoken, whether they have spoken at a time which is peak 1640 time or not peak time, if valid points have been made, they will be able to extract the relevant part and put it on our screens. So I think the technology will help in that respect but he has to understand that parliamentary procedure around the world, not just in Gibraltar, puts Opposition motions last on the Agenda unless you are dealing with the adjournment motion that we are going to look at the procedure of in more detail so that Members on both sides of the House may be able to make use of that particular mechanism more often.

1645 Then there is, of course, Mr Speaker, a reference in the hon. Members address to the issue of enlargement of the Parliament and their policy of enlargement to twenty-five. Well, I think that there is an argument and I have not developed this argument any further but I think there is, potentially, an argument that the number of Ministers need not necessarily just be ten. I think there is potentially an argument that it could be eleven because the Chief Minister, if he takes no portfolio, can appoint, in my view, ten Ministers and be Chief Minister himself, absent a Ministerial portfolio. I do not know how it would work 1650 in terms of remuneration, but the way that the Constitution operates is not necessarily always the way that it has always deemed to operat, and if we look at it in some detail, it may be that there are flexibilities there that we had not originally identified.

I am making that point not because I seriously believe that there should be eleven Members on this side of the House, even with the current setup of numbers but because there is another point that I think flows from it quite usefully. That is that they have demonstrated – in fact, in this debate perhaps more 1655 than in others – that it is possible, with the numbers that they have in the Parliament today, to have Members who are on the back bench and I want to thank the Hon. the previous Leader of the Opposition for his contribution today – I will come to it in a minute – but he has made it as a backbencher and, in the course of the contributions from other Members of what we might call the front bench of the Party opposite, they have said that they are not entirely aligned to the points made by the Hon. Mr Caruana.

1660 We have demonstrated and, fortunately, for all the reasons that we are aware of in the past six weeks, that it is possible also to run a Government with one Minister less. We are running Gibraltar with nine Ministers. There is, therefore, the potential, with the existing number, that if we were to gain a seat in the coming by-election with a successful GSLP / Liberal candidate that that person might not need to be appointed a Minister. You would, therefore, have a situation in this Parliament – without enlargement, Mr 1665 Speaker – where the GSD in Opposition have the benefit, as they see it, of a backbencher and we could, potentially, have what was Mr Bruzon’s seat occupied by a Member to whom the Chief Minister does not give a ministerial portfolio. It is a possibility. I am not going to present that option to the people of Gibraltar when it comes to the by-election. I am going to ask them to return a GSLP / Liberal candidate so that I have another Minister available in the delivery of the Manifesto but we have now demonstrated, 1670 in this debate today, that you can run a Government with nine, even in this context, without an Attorney General and without a Financial Secretary, and that you can run an Opposition with six, with one backbencher. So enlargement is not a sine qua non for there to be backbenchers available in the context of this House.

1675 Of course, Mr Speaker, one might be tempted, in the knowledge that it is still possible to convene a parallel election for 4th July for another seat, to invite those who might be holding backbench places here, now that they would not add to the expense of the by-election –

Hon. P R Caruana: Will the hon. Member give way?

1680 Hon. Chief Minister: Of course.

Hon. P R Caruana: I thought he had just welcomed my contribution as a backbencher (Laughter) and, with the very next breath, he wants me out of the Chamber! Well, can he make up his mind?

1685 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I did welcome the contribution. That is why I was about to say that I was tempted to invite him to resign his seat... but, of course, it is a matter entirely for him. It is a matter entirely for him.

1690 Mr Speaker, I do not think that the Report lacks focus on the issue of enlargement. I think that the Commission has dealt with the issue of enlargement actually very clearly and just because the Commission’s majority view is not the Leader of the Opposition’s view on enlargement, I do not think that that demonstrates that the Report is in any way lacking in focus.

1695 The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition also said, in dealing with this issue of backbenchers that, in the lexicon of other parliaments, other MPs had said that one of the most enriching experiences is to defy the Party whip. Well, I think we have just seen one of those ‘enriching experiences’ just before the break and we will see how enriching it is! (Laughter) But, look, I think we need to understand what Party whips mean. Party whips are about votes, not about opinions. Very often, in other parliaments, a Member may get up and say 'I do not agree necessarily with all the reasoning that my Party leadership is advancing on this issue' and yet that Member may, nonetheless, be prevailed upon by the whips system – not something I think we should wish to replicate in Gibraltar – to vote with the Government or with the Opposition on a particular issue. Sometimes, they may just be prevailed upon not to make statements because they are contrary to the opinion that is being advanced by the leadership of the Party.

1700 All of those things which the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition prayed in aid in support of his arguments for enlargement, I think have been demonstrated today, for the reasons I have already given, not to be relevant.

1705 Mr Speaker, you have, in my view rightly, taken issue with Members on both sides of the House in the way that we had unfortunately grown accustomed to deal with each other at Question Time. We might take the view that you have sometimes been too harsh with us. We might even take the view that you have sometimes been too harsh on them. Not a view that somebody who had been in this Parliament perhaps in the 1970s and 80s, when you were here, might take. But for those of us who have been brought up in what I might call the more liberal environment of the past ten years, I think we have all felt the strictures that you have imposed on Question Time and I think, actually, that is a very good thing, although I feel the strictures myself. You are the Speaker and I think it is important that we all recognise, in this Parliament, that you are much like the referee in a football game and, therefore, the referee has to make decisions which are final and players on the pitch need to understand that, even when they think that the referee has got it wrong, defiance of the referee is not an option that should be displayed.

1715 I am not going to suggest that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition's remarks today, in the context of this debate about the subject, have amounted to defiance, but I would say this that, in the occasion that we were talking about, I detected an element of defiance of the Speaker. If we have ever fallen into that trap, then it is something that we should never fall into and I would commend to the hon. Members opposite that, even when we all might take the view that Mr Speaker is being unduly harsh, or we might take a different view on one side or on the other, the recourse in this Parliament should never be to appear even, to defy Mr Speaker on an issue. I think Mr Speaker is approachable enough that we can, in a recess, take up issues with you that we might think have been unfair, almost as if we were asking to view the replay in that football match that I was trying to suggest was a good analogy, but we have to be very careful in the example that we set, not just to keep our debate not personal, which you are imploring us to do – and I think that is a very good thing and we had fallen into the habit of being more personal and I think we should not be – not just to continue to be very vigilant to keep our supplementaries and our answers relevant and informative and, where possible, it is not just a question of not being personal but also trying not to be too partisan when we are dealing just with the movement of information, although we are free to be partisan in the context of motions, but also to set an example in the way that we deal with Mr Speaker's rulings and to be respectful ever and not defiant.

1720 Can I just take up the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition's example, when he was dealing with the issue that he wanted to raise today, which was this issue of the point put to the Hon. the Minister for the Environment about whether or not he had briefed a particular mayor and his answer and whether the Members opposite had a document which suggested the opposite. These things, I think we need to understand, are almost becoming like a cross examination, where a document is produced to put to a witness that demonstrates that he said something which is not quite true. And Question Time, Mr Speaker, is not about that: it is about information. It is not about cross examination in order to prove a point. The Punch and Judy show that we see at 12.15 on Wednesdays at Westminster is not that. Of course, there are political points made but it is not 'Ah this... and here is the document and here is the rest of it.'

1735 The Question Time that the Hon. the Deputy Prime Minister, the Rt Hon. the Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg was dealing with, which I actually saw the whole of, where he had a document produced to him which had his photograph and his commitment, before the election, to put to the Referendum question, is different for this reason: I wonder whether the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition would just take this point from me. The gentleman who got up at what was Prime Minister's Question Time but had become Deputy Prime Minister's Question Time, in the absence of the Prime Minister in a Brussels meeting, put the question with the document as his question. The difference is that, in the context of what happened here, what was put to the Hon. the Minister for the Environment was one of many supplementaries at the end and Mr Speaker's ruling was about relevance... (Interjection) Well, the third or the fourth... about relevance to the issues that were being debated.

1740 I think there is a huge value in Question Time continuing to be political and I accept that that is an important part of what makes Question Time exciting. It is not just the Government as an encyclopaedia exchanging information across the floor of the House. We may as well just put that on a website. But it is about that context of information flow and the politics being interlaced into that without it becoming a legal cross examination, although there are too many lawyers in this Chamber, perhaps, for all of us not to fall into the trap of trying to make it that. So I think, and I will give way to the hon. Gentleman in a 1760 moment, that your strictures in respect of Question Time are appropriate and must be welcomed by both sides as long as they continue to be equally applied to both of us, the answers must be short and sharp and 1765 informative and not delve into the partisan, so long as the Questions are short and sharp and do not delve into the partisan. And if we fall into that rhythm, Mr Speaker, with a lacing of flavour of the political, then we can actually – and I think this is what the Leader of the Opposition would like and I would certainly like – then we can certainly find ourselves with a situation like Prime Minister’s Question Time, which is the bear pit but moves quickly, is about information, and has reached almost that gladiatorial 1770 moment in the week, which everybody who is slightly interested in politics tunes in to see. But I think it requires us all to understand that those strictures are relevant in some way.

I will give way to the hon. Gentleman, if he wishes, now.

1770 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, thank you very much to the Chief Minister for giving way.

Mr Speaker, by the very nature, Question Time is partisan. We are in many instances, in some of the questions that we are trying to ask, not only trying to obtain information but may lead us on a trail of enquiry that may lead us then to make a political point, but we are trying to make a political point in relation to some of the Questions by the virtue of asking that Question.

1775 In relation to this particular episode that I have used as an example, and that the Hon. the Chief Minister is also using as an example, I have to say that the Hon. the Chief Minister was not here at the time. No doubt, he heard it on the radio. But he was not here at the time because it was the Hon. the Minister Cortes.

1780 The answer that was given – and it is verifiable by Hansard – was, that, as far as he was aware – that is what he said – ‘As far as I am aware, the Mayor of La Línea has not been briefed on the Fishing Report.’ And I had a statement and the point that I was going to make is, well, how can that answer be sustainable in the light of a statement that has emanated from No. 6 Convent Place after a meeting with the Mayor of La Línea, saying that she had been briefed on aspects of the Fishing Report. To say that that, somehow, is beyond the pale of Question and Answer sessions, I do not think that is, with respect to the Hon. the Chief Minister, sustainable.

1785 I think what we have got to watch out for in Question and Answer sessions is for those sessions to be getting out of control, for it to be personalised. As long as people follow and observe good standards of reasonable behaviour that we all expect from Members of Parliament in this House and as long as the question, the supplementary, is relevant to the subject matter of the original Question, whether it is political or whether it is statistical in nature, even if it is political, I do not see that it is objectionable. And 1790 of course also, we have got to have regard, as I am reminded by my predecessor, the former Chief Minister and Leader of the Opposition, Mr Caruana, that this arose out of the answer that the Hon. the Minister gave to a question that Mr Netto had asked. In fact, it was the second supplementary – it was not the fourth or fifth supplementary – and matters were not getting out of hand. I was just simply going to be asking ‘Look, how can it be sustainable?’ I think that is not beyond the pale, so to speak.

1795 I accept that we cannot always get it right and none of us – none of us – I accept that we cannot always get it right... I have my views in relation to this. Other views were expressed. I do not think that I went – indeed, it has been subject of comment by former politicians. Mr Maurice Xiberras has also expressed his views, the Editor of the Chronicle has also expressed his view in an editorial. I do not think 1800 that I over-stepped the mark or that my conduct at the time was beyond the pale and we have got to guard against a situation where this becomes... we are treating each other with kid gloves at Question time. That cannot be right: it is just going to put people off.

1805 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I may, the issue is not so much the subject of what was going on, you know the hon. Gentleman says he has a document which contradicts what the Minister says. As ever in these instances, it is very likely that when we look at the document it does not entirely contradict what the hon. Member says but that is the substance of the matter. The issue for me is, Mr Speaker, and what I am talking about in particular, is that what we cannot do is defy the Speaker when we think Mr Speaker may have got it wrong.

1810 What we cannot do, with respect, Mr Speaker, is become – and I do not want this to become a very partisan debate, but because we are talking about Question Time and how it is structured, when we think you get it wrong Mr Speaker – what we cannot do is become petulant and say ‘Now we are not going to ask any supplementaries. ‘Industrial action’ of that sort, although it was very welcome by the Government, because we were able to fly through Question Time, I do not think was conducive to the way in which we have to deal with those issues.

1815 I think that we are all, Mr Speaker, learning lessons about how we are going to get to the right tone and level of Question Time. I think it is right that we are embarked on that journey and that you have taken us there and are putting us on the right track and that is, I think, what I am sure will deliver the right balance so that we get to a PMQ style debate which is as exciting for Members opposite as it is for Members on this side of the House and for those who are watching whilst, at the same time, being 1820 primarily about information and then, as I said, the partisan flavour or the partisan lacing that would make that exciting.

Mr Speaker, I think that to say that we are not doing enough in terms of the timetable that we issue is to ignore what the practice of this Parliament has been for forty years. Again, I – 1825 Mr Speaker: For twenty!

Hon. Chief Minister: I am obliged, Mr Speaker.

1830 For twenty years... Because I think it is fair to say that we are going out of our way to provide a timetable. I think that if we have a Select Committee which looks at the issues that we have discussed constructively, it may be, as I was saying to the hon. – can I just call him the hon. the backbencher: it is easier than the Hon. the-former-Leader-of-the-Opposition-now-the-backbencher – it may be possible to come up with a formula so that all of us know when in the month we need to be where. That makes it easier for all parties and the issue of the timetable becomes even less relevant. But until we have that...
1835 the hon. Members opposite, some of them understand what it is like to be in Government, and they used to call three meetings of the House a year: calling them on a monthly basis, and sticking roughly to where we are, is a relatively hard job and I still, nonetheless, try and make sure that Members know who is going to answer Questions on what day. I do not know whether they are getting the timetable but we certainly try and make sure it is out as soon as possible, so that they have an idea of where we are going to be.

1840 But, of course, then the other issue is this: if you want to have the Minister for Justice, Education and Financial Services between 9.00 and 11.00 on the third Wednesday of the month and then the Minister for Social Services between 11.00 and 1.00, then we have got to have a time guillotine and that is what Members opposite were proposing. I was saying we should not have a time guillotine. Absent the time guillotine, I found myself compiling for this last session a timetable of Question Time which kept 1845 changing because we did not reach the end of particular Member's Questions by the time that we thought we would reach it – although I must say on the last day it flew!

I think Members have to understand, it is either the clear timetable that we can all stick to because we have got time limits, or it is the substance guillotine that is going to allow them to continue to ask questions whilst Mr Speaker indulges them and the subject matter of the supplementaries continues to be relevant. In that context, if we move to a timetable, would it be easier, not just for single mothers, but for 1850 all of us who are professionals, to plan our time better, whether we are in Government or still in the professions – of course, even for Mr Speaker and other Members of the staff of the House – to plan their lives better? I think we should strive for that. The Blair Reforms of the late 90s were designed to try and deal with the influx of what was known as the 'Blair Babes', a very large influx of women Members of 1855 Parliament, who had responsibilities for families that, therefore, required that the time-honoured traditions of the House of Commons be changed.

I think we have changed the time-honoured traditions of this House to an extent, at least for the time that I was here because we no longer sit as late as we used to sit. We try and ensure that we get through the business of the House. The hon. Member talks about Siberia, 8 o'clock on a Friday evening: perish
1860 the thought that you might be involved in a debate, eating take-away food at 10 or 11 o'clock in the evening: not unknown in the period before us. So I think that they need to understand that they have in the Government an ally in trying to ensure that we find a rhythm for the timetable which is as useful for Ministers and for the future Members of Parliament, who might be attracted to an easier running institution, but we have got to then, in the Select Committee, look at that balance between setting 1865 timetables or keeping things relevant during the course of debate because they remain subject-matter relevant.

I do not know whether he wants to make a point.

1870 Mr Speaker: May I explain why I made the comment of twenty years.

I honestly think that Parliament today, with the timetable that it has, is conducting its affairs better than what the House of Assembly used to do at Question Time between 1972 and 1992. In Question Time what used to happen was that there was no proper timetable, other than that it was known that the most junior Minister would answer Questions first and so work up in order of precedence, as it were, of seniority, to the Chief Minister. Now that meant, effectively, that all Members of Government had to be
