Take stamp duty as an example. Under the Stamp Duty Act, all conveyances of property in Gibraltar by companies, including Government-owned companies, are subject to the payment of stamp duty at the prescribed rate. Through searches conducted at the Land Registry I have identified various large, or certainly at least four large transactions between Government-owned companies which merely switch direct ownership but nevertheless generate substantial stamp duty revenue.

1355 The first one, GCP Investments, a Government-owned company, on 1st July 2014 sold 14 Government properties – including No. 6 Convent Place and the Main Street Post Office – to GAR Ltd, another Government company, for a combined value of £40,292,975.59. The total stamp duty paid was £1.4 million. The Government’s explanation for this transaction was given simply as rationalisation.

1360 In the second transaction Gibraltar Land (Holdings) Ltd sold – yes, sold – the Eastside Reclamation again to GAR Ltd, another Government-owned company, on 22nd May 2014 for the grand total sum of £75,469,680 and this generated £2.6 million in stamp duty for the Government.

1365 The third transaction, Mr Speaker, was between Gibraltar Air Terminal Ltd and Gibraltar Land Holdings Ltd and the Crown on 20th May 2013, whereby Gibraltar Air Terminal Ltd surrendered its existing lease to the Crown, and then Gibraltar Land Holdings purchased the Air Terminal for £90 million and then gave a leaseback to Gibraltar Air Terminal Ltd for 20 years at an annual rental of £5.4 million. This then miraculously generated stamp duty of £3.3 million and revenue to the Government on the sale of property, of £90 million.

1370 Mr Speaker, in answer to questions the Government has stated that the amount of stamp duty receipts in respect of such related party transactions for the financial year 2014-15 was £7.1 million.

1375 In the financial year 2016-17 we know that the Government earned an exceptional amount of approximately £14 million from the sale of the six housing estates, which were sold for a consideration of £397 million from Gibraltar Residential Properties Ltd to Gibraltar Capital Assets Ltd. That, Mr Speaker, is usually ungenerously called, in accounting terms, manufactured income, since it arose from the Government’s own financing transaction between two Government-owned companies, i.e. with itself.

1380 So, Mr Speaker, from this we can determine that the Government was, in 2014-15 and 2016-17, able to create artificial stamp duty income of at least £21 million into the Consolidated Fund, and these are purely from transactions originated and directed by itself and not from independent economic activity in the private property sector. Indeed, only last week the Hon. Mr Bossano confirmed that these transactions had no economic effect other than to create revenue in the Governments books while creating an opposite expense in the books of Government companies. These should, of course, cancel each other out, but they do not. It flatters the revenue of the Government and extracts cash from Government companies.

1385 I move on now to the question of property sales. Within the Improvement and Development Fund there is always a head 102 in respect of Government property sales. I, as indeed any ordinary citizen, would reasonably expect that these are to third parties.

1390 I have already identified one transaction in respect of the Airport that moved £90 million from Government-owned companies in 2014 on to the Government’s books. In fact, in answer to questions in this House we have been told by the Government that receipts from property sales to Government-owned companies have been £90 million in 2012-13, £37.1 million in 2013-14, and £26.4 million in 2015-16. That is a total of £153.5 million of related party property sales prior to this financial year. And, in addition, the Principal Auditor revealed in his report for 2014-15 that the mysterious GAR Ltd had purchased the Mount, of all things, from the Government for a consideration of £8.2 million in 2014-15 and the proceeds were paid into the General Sinking Fund, of which I am so fond.

1400 Mr Speaker, unless all this property has been sold on to the private sector by those Government-owned companies, all that has happened is that the Government has extracted cash from its own companies and replaced it with property in the books of those companies while recording a sale in its books.

Let me move on to the other type of transaction: the Savings Bank purchasing or funding of public assets.

1405 This Government is in the habit of making announcements in which it is taking a financial interest only for us later to find out that it is being structured differently so that the Government actually does not bear the direct financial burden.

1410 Take, for example, the announcement in November 2014 that HM Government of Gibraltar was going to buy back Telekom Slovenije's 50% shareholding in GibTelecom for a consideration of €47.7 million, or effectively £37.8 million. Subsequent to the event it was found that the 50% shareholding representing the B shares was in fact bought by the Savings Bank and not the Government. We now know that the remaining 50%, representing the A shares, were also bought, this time from the Government, directly by the Gibraltar Savings Bank prior to the General Election for a further £37.8 million, making a total purchase value by the Savings Bank of £75.6 million, which benefited the Government's financial position. In addition, the Savings Bank, via its subsidiary GSBA Ltd, purchased the North and South District Post Offices as well as the Treasury building in Main Street.

1415 By way of example, in last year's Budget speech the Chief Minister proudly announced, in respect of the LNG plant:

The LNG plant will be operated by Shell whose presence in Gibraltar will be through a 51% subsidiary aptly named Shell LNG Gibraltar Limited. In order to reduce the overall cost of this contract over its 20-year life to the Gibraltar taxpayer, the Government will own the remaining 49% of the shares ensuring Government shares in the economic benefit of this arrangement.

– 'the Government', note –

The total cost of the facility is circa US$ 144 million over a period of two years, and at the end of the 20-year contract period the plant will revert to full Government ownership for a nominal payment.

– 'the Government', mark you.

1420 A Companies House search conducted on Shell LNG Gibraltar Ltd revealed that it is not in fact owned 49% by the Government but by Credit Finance Company Ltd instead. So of the £35 million total cost, its share, the £17 million, will not be funded by the Government but de facto the Gibraltar Savings Bank via Credit Finance. And so the Government has thus, from the examples I have listed, benefited by £92.6 million due to the Savings Bank's largesse in purchasing Government assets or taking on its obligations.

1425 Mr Speaker, this, together with the other types of transactions I have identified, brings the running total to £246.1 million, which if reversed would wipe out not just this year's projected surplus of £75.8 million but also the entire combined cash balances of the Consolidated and Improvement and Development Funds of £122.9 million and theoretically leave us in a loss-making position.

1430 Of course the Government could borrow to replace the money it has used. This is where the financial alchemy of turning deficits into surpluses comes into being, by the use of the £400 million in Credit Finance Company Ltd, and now of course we have the £300 million in Gibraltar Capital Assets Ltd. It is here, Mr Speaker, where the Government's interpretation of the rules on public finance and borrowing by Government-owned companies utterly failed the smell test.

1435 Let me move on to discuss the Government's direct and indirect debt. The official gross direct debt of the Government is £447.7 million, or £319.8 million net, which is made up of £247.7 million of debentures – held by the Savings Bank, by the way, with no fixed maturity – and £200 million of bank borrowing. The bank borrowing is provided £50 million by NatWest maturing in March 2020, and £150 million by Barclays maturing in two tranches, one of £100 million in January 2019 and the remaining £50 million in June 2020.

1440 I heard the Chief Minister remark this morning that the Financial Secretary would be looking to extend the maturity dates of direct Government debt and I assume he means the bank debt, 1445 and of course we can only welcome the Financial Secretary's efforts in ensuring these facilities are rolled over.

But, Mr Speaker, of course this was pretty much the gross debt position in December 2011, which stood at £519.8 million gross, or £234 million net, with the exception that debentures in issue were £319 million held by pensioners and the general public. It is well known that the Government asked pensioners to swap their Government debentures for Savings Bank debentures and we have already in this place debated whether the Savings Bank's liabilities are a contingent liability should or should not be accounted for in the Government's books, as occurs in the UK for National Savings and Investments; but for now that is not the point I wish to make.

1455 In the creation of Credit Finance and the Savings Bank then making a £400 million investment into it via preference shares, it effectively created a backdoor funding method for Government companies that could borrow for projects or buy assets from the Government, as described earlier.

1460 Gibraltar Investment Holdings has borrowed at least £330 million from Credit Finance at a cost of 6½ % per annum or £21 million a year. Incidentally, Mr Speaker, I cannot find any recent financial information in respect of Credit Finance on the Government's website. The last information I have seen was updated in July 2016 and certainly there is nothing in respect of 2017.

1465 This is where the catch-all of pooling of the cash of the Government and its companies comes into play. The Government now, via Treasury, effectively acts as banker to its companies, taking deposits and giving loans but none of it considered an official debt of the Government.

We have seen how in the past projects were funded by the Government via the Improvement and Development Fund, and that is the amount that the Consolidated Fund has to give to projects and has dropped dramatically since 2011. Projects, we hear, are now funded directly by the companies using cash from this now famous pool, provided of course in the main by Credit Finance.

1470 Mr Speaker, we can be absolutely sure that without the creation of Credit Finance and the use of this £400 million from the Savings Bank the Government would have had to borrow that amount for itself to fund its many capital projects since 2011.

1475 So, Mr Speaker, we know what the direct debt is – it is in the book – so let's start a tally of what we shall call indirect debt.

We will start with Credit Finance: £400 million effectively borrowed from the Savings Bank. Call it preference shares, call it what you want.

1480 GCP Investments Ltd: £17.1 million borrowed from Barclays Bank, secured on Government property including the City Hall.

ES Ltd: £55 million from Lombard plc secured for the construction of a new power station.

And now, of course, Mr Speaker, Gibraltar Capital Assets Ltd: £300 million loan notes, secured on six public housing estates.

1485 That adds up to £772 million in addition to the official gross debt of £447.7 million, and that would take us to a gross debt level of £1.2 billion or a net debt, if you wish, of at least £1,092 million at 31st March 2017.

Total liquid reserves, which included the cash held by Government companies, fell by £160 million from £294 million as at 31st March 2014 to £134 million as at 31st March 2015. That is an enormous drop in cash in one year.

1490 Mr Speaker, it is now evident to me that prior to the last General Election the Government's available cash position was in fact much worse than we could possibly have imagined. It is no wonder that the Government thought it would be a good idea to change our net debt legal borrowing limit in early 2016 from 80% of recurrent revenue to 40% of GDP. It is also evident that the Government must have known it needed to borrow more money and it was dishonest to suggest in its manifesto that it would actually reduce debt levels.

We have heard a lot in this House about Gibraltar Capital Assets Ltd. I do not think that anyone can be in any doubt – other than, of course, the Chief Minister himself – that this £300 million borrowed by mortgaging six housing estates is a debt of Gibraltar, all of us, and repayable by Gibraltar, all of us. This is not an investment; it is a borrowing.

1500 We still do not know the terms of the option agreement by which the loan note holders may sell their interest to the Government, and the Government refuses to provide the Opposition with a copy of the private placement memorandum setting out the terms of those loan notes. But we do know that the notes mature in five tranches over 31 years with a composite rate of 3.85%: tranche A of £35 million at a rate of 3.31%, the first 15 years mature in 2031; tranche B, 1505 another £30 million at a rate of 3.67%, a 20-year note matures in 2036; tranche C, £38 million at a rate of 3.81%, a 25-year loan note maturing in 2041; tranche D, £105 million at 3.98%, a 30-year note matures in again 2046; and finally, Mr Speaker, tranche E, £92 million at a rate of 3.98%, a 31-year note matures in 2047.

1510 In that period we will need to pay interest – and this is just the interest – of £341 million, in addition to the repayment of the loan amount. The Chief Minister likes to refer to this money now as his war chest, and yet since the Budget last year we have not heard of a single project that will generate an economic return, despite it costing us, just this year, £11 million in interest payments. We have only heard today of some idea of an involvement in a Coaling Island 1515 reclamation to generate some economic return. The rental income of the housing estates mortgaged will only come, at the most, to £3 million. It does not cover the interest cost. This has had to be made up by the Government by an £8 million housing allowance, which is paid by another Government-owned company which we were told only last week is in fact the company that sold the estates in the first place. If this makes sense to anybody listening, please explain it to me.

1520 So when the Chief Minister claims that the Government's direct debt is falling let's not forget that he has loaded up on indirect debt at almost twice the amount. What worries me is that we do not seem to have any plan as to how we will repay all of this. The General Sinking Fund, which Mr Bossano correctly points out was created in November 2012, only has a balance of 1525 £5 million in it as at 31st March 2017, and from what I gather there is no set formula to set money aside into it to provide for repayment of even the £447 million of direct gross debt, let alone indirect debt. Mr Speaker, we really do need a debt management plan.

Looking at the scrutiny and management of public finance and Government-owned companies, the Chief Minister is only too fond of boasting that his Government is the most transparent and we are now having 10 meetings a year. We in the Opposition can ask as many 1530 questions as we like and there is no need for any further scrutiny of our public finances. Mr Speaker, you will be delighted to hear that I will not attempt to replay the debate on the need for a Public Accounts Committee – other than, of course, to reject the Chief Minister's counterarguments, if you can call them that. In fact, I find his new role as self-proclaimed defender of heads of department somewhat at odds with the ticking-off he gave them on 1535 9th December 2015 as to overspending in the fourth quarter. Mr Speaker, let me demonstrate that although we may have had more meetings of this House, we are simply not getting answers to our questions in the way the public might expect.

Let me start by way of example with this famous Government-owned company called GAR Ltd. GAR Ltd, from the transactions I have identified, has purchased somewhere in the order of 1540 at least £124 million of property from either Government-owned companies or the Government with absolutely no explanation as to where it got the money from or why it is doing this. GAR Ltd has, as far as I can tell, no mortgages charged against it – at least from the last search I conducted – from any leading bank that we know of, and so we can only assume it has borrowed the money from another Government-owned company such as Gibraltar Investment Holdings or 1545 indeed the infamous pool.

In relation to one specific transaction, the £40 million purchase of property, including No. 6 and the Main Street Post Office, and the question as to where the money for this came from, this is the answer the Chief Minister actually gave – and I quote from Hansard:

Mr Speaker, I do not have the detail of where GAR obtained the money from. The hon. Gentleman is right in that it is one of the constituent elements of the question but I do not have the detail in the answer of where GAR obtained the money from. I assume it has either been dealt with by way of inter-company loans or it has been dealt with from own funds of GAR.

How is that a useful answer to a direct question?

1550 The audited accounts of Credit Finance are not yet available, despite its creation over five years ago, but even if the accounts were available, audited and filed at Companies House, the Government will not provide the Opposition with full information. This is the answer to a recent written question I tabled, and I quote:

Can the Government please provide a full copy of the accounts and associated notes of Gibraltar Strand Property Company Limited as at 31 March 2014 given that its balance sheet has been filed at Companies House on 23 May 2016?

1555 The answer, Mr Speaker, from the Government:

No, Government only provides the information that the Company is legally required to publish.

1560 So, Mr Speaker, what is the Opposition here to do? The Opposition's ability to scrutinise Government companies is in fact no better than the general public's. How then can we hold the Government to account when so much of its activity is deliberately structured and financed through Government-owned companies? And these are outside the remit even of the Principal Auditor. How can we in fact know the true level of this community's indebtedness or otherwise at all? This is not transparency, it is simply obstruction and it is contrary to the way our Public Finances should be conducted.

Mr Speaker, let me turn now to advance Budget measures, the forecast outturn and the cost of living.

1565 Traditionally, increases in taxation, whether direct or indirect, are announced as part of the Budget session. This Government has seen fit to increase social insurance by 10% outside the Budget and there have been increases in the level of fees across the board from car park rentals to MOT fees and other licences and new fees introduced such as the approved contractor annual fee. These are all borne by all and sundry, effectively a form of taxation and conveniently sidestepped in the Chief Minister's Budget speech: we did not hear of one taxation in terms of the individual consumer, other than import duties.

1575 The Government's larger than expected surplus is entirely due to revenue being £63 million greater than expected. This can be broken down as £35 million more in taxes, especially corporation tax, and £14 million more in duty, namely import duty. In a post-Brexit environment I truly hesitate to suggest that this growth in income is sustainable and note that the estimate of revenue in 2018 is more conservative but still higher than estimated in 2016. I note that the Chief Minister this morning referred to a reduction in tax arrears and having collected one fifth of tax arrears. From the information I can see in the Principal Auditor's report, that should equate to at least £6 million, so that, the corporation tax of £5 million and general taxes, at least £6 million of that is in respect of arrears. But I will not be ungenerous. We again have to congratulate the Financial Secretary for having kept net – and I say 'net' – departmental expenditure within 1% of the 2016 estimate, albeit there was still an overspend of £6.6 million.

1580 In regard to the Estimate Book for 2017-18, I would ask for an explanation as to why the brought-forward Consolidated Fund balance as at 1st April 2016 is £84.7 million versus last year's closing balance of £ 80.9 million at 31st March 2016, a difference of some £3.8 million.

I would also like to know why, for the actual public debt charge in 2015-16, there is no Sinking Fund contribution, whereas as late as last year's outturn we expected a £4.5 million contribution.

1590 Why was it that the interest on Government debentures was so incorrectly estimated in 2015-16 as £7 million when the actual turned out to be £11.6 million? Surely the Government knows how much interest it is charging itself, since it holds them through the Savings Bank.

1600 In respect of the Improvement and Development Fund I can only see £45 million as being allocated for capital projects in 2017-18 and the bulk of this, being £28.6 million, is in respect of MoD relocation costs and the tunnel project. I do not see the cost for building new schools. I do not see the cost for building the sewage treatment plant. I do not see the cost of building a national theatre. But then I guess there is still life left in this Parliament for the Government still to build these and meet its manifesto commitments. My colleagues will speak more about these projects.

1605 The Budget session for most people is about how it will affect their pocket directly; it is not about GDP or national debt levels or who did what when and how. At the last measure, inflation is running at 2.7%. This was confirmed by the Chief Minister this morning and also, in addition, by the Hon. Mr Bossano. The public sector pay rise this year of 2.75% will deliver a real pay rise of only 0.05% as opposed to last year's real increase of 2.25% with inflation at 0.5%. Workers in Government rental accommodation are also facing a 3% rise in rent and across-the-board increases in fees for licences and other Government services. With the increase in social insurance of 10% already having been implemented, workers will be feeling the pinch very soon, and in the absence of any real tax breaks – we did not hear anything this morning which translated to anything substantial – which they might expect to be entitled to if the Government is reporting such huge surpluses. Trickle-down economics: give the workers their refunds. With such a large surplus, workers are also entitled to expect their tax rebates to be paid on time and not when the Government feels like it. It is only fair. (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desk) (Interjections)

1620 If I may move on, Mr Speaker, to the Gibraltar Savings Bank and the issue of rainy day funds, the Government and the Hon. Mr Bossano boast of the great success of the Gibraltar Savings Bank in attracting deposits and generating profits and accumulating rainy day reserves, but let me dispel part of that as being another piece of financial alchemy.

1625 First of all, let me explain how the Savings Bank has been able to generate surpluses. Close to 70% of all its assets – the things the Savings Bank holds – are either invested in Government debt, companies or other entities. As at 31st March the entire £247 million gross debt of Government debentures is held by the Savings Bank and it pays on average 6%, and Credit Finance's £400 million of preference shares yielded an average of 5.6%. Credit Finance in turn is receiving 6.5% for the money it lent to Gibraltar Investment Holdings. On-call bank accounts, including a £69.5 million deposit at the Gibraltar International Bank, yielded a paltry 0.2% and listed bonds 0.8%. So the majority of the income of the Savings Bank is de facto controlled and determined by the Government.

1630 The Government pays at the most 5% on debentures and recently has dropped the rates on new debenture issues and ordinary accounts, and it pays itself hardly anything on Government moneys held in on-call accounts, and thus it can make as much or as little surplus in the Savings Bank as it wishes. It is not rocket science, or even financial genius worthy of the Nobel Prize in Economics: it is simple accounting and sleight of hand.

1640 What I will not dispute, Mr Speaker, is that as at 31st March 2017 the Savings Bank is expected to report a surplus of £5.9 million for that year, which is lower than the £6.8 million in 2016, and record an accumulated surplus of £32 million, that although a reserve is of course available for use by the Government in future – and that is, in fact, a true rainy day fund.

1645 The Government may boast that the Savings Bank deposit base has grown from £987 million in 2016 to £1.3 billion in 2017, which is – I am surprised they have not used the statistic – a 33% increase, but what the Government has not said is that Government deposits in the Savings Bank in that period grew by £241.6 million from £77.6 million to £319.2 million held in the on-call investment accounts at the Savings Bank – in fact through the famous cash pool. If you strip that out, non-Government deposits have grown from £909 million to £995 million, or 9.5%, which perhaps is not a disrespectful growth in deposits, though certainly not 33%.

1650 Mr Speaker, where did the Government find £241 million in 2016-17, in one year? Could it be that the net proceeds of the £300 million mortgage of the six housing estates, which we understand was concluded in May 2016, has been added to the Treasury cash pool at the Savings Bank? Well, that would be my guess, and so the growth in deposits in the Savings Bank is nothing to boast about, given that the origin of the money is simply more indirect borrowing. (Interjections)

1655 I again urge the Government to release the audited accounts of the Savings Bank on a timely basis. The Hon. Mr Bossano has the audited accounts for 2016 and yet inexplicably refuses to publish them in the Gazette. Mr Speaker, I tried to amend the legislation to ensure a more reasonable timetable for publication but the Government, following its policy of transparency, voted against this. And when Mr Bossano sends out his glossy publication – albeit for outdated 1660 accounts – to his account holders, he, as he has admitted today, fails to include the statement of investments showing how their money is used. He tells us in this House that he provides it to me: well, why doesn't he provide it to them too? I do not see what the issue is. This is not transparency in any shape or form. It is the control of information by a Government whose dogma is strict financial secrecy, Mr Speaker. (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.) This is not 1665 transparency. (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) Has the Chief Minister quite finished?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): No. I was saying that here is a couple of fools who are answering an argument that has not been put to them. Shall I say it again?

Hon. R M Clinton: Please, yes, say it for the public to hear.

Mr Speaker: Order! Order!

1675 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, he is calling us fools.

Mr Speaker: Order!

1680 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, let me turn to the other favourite rainy day fund of the Hon. Mr Bossano, namely Community Care.

I have in the past disputed whether this can actually be called a rainy day fund as it is not technically in the control of the Government. According to the GSLP/Liberal manifesto at the last election, the reserves of Community Care stood at £100 million at March 2015. In the five years to 2020 they claimed that would reach £230 million, which I think has been repeated today. For 1685 the past two years a total of £40 million has been given by the Consolidated Fund to Community Care and for this coming year another £20 million is projected. From the Estimates Book in prior years the annual cost of Community Care is around £16 million a year – and I am happy to be corrected by the Hon. Mr Bossano – so on a best guess, with a surplus of maybe £4 million a year on this level of contribution, I can only see Community Care achieving a reserve of maybe £120

1690 million to £130 million by 2020. To achieve £230 million, either the Government will have to gift £100 million of the Consolidated Fund's reserves just before the General Election, or perhaps the trustees can turn £100 million into £200 million in five years by judicious investment.

I sincerely hope that this large amount of money is not also being directed to support Government capital projects or companies, because if it is and Gibraltar suddenly needs the money it may not be readily available. I would welcome – I am sure the Chief Minister will respond – the Government's thoughts on the future funding of Community Care and indeed any information on how that money is invested and managed for the people of Gibraltar.

Mr Speaker, inwards investment. We have yet to see any major projects come to fruition.

1700 We were told about the Eastside Bluewater project to much fanfare in June 2015 only for it to have gone very quiet, and no sign of the promised £83 million premium from the developer. I repeat: £83 million, Chief Minister. Nothing happened, Mr Speaker. Nothing happened.

Last year the Chief Minister teased us with an exciting reclamation project at Coaling Island. Mr Speaker, nothing happened.

1705 And now we hear this morning that we, the people of Gibraltar, using the money from mortgaging the housing estates, are in fact going to be partly financing that development: inwards investment from our own money. And of course that famous word we all so love in this House: the Government will make an announcement 'shortly'. I wouldn't hold your breath, Mr Speaker.

1710 We heard at the Finance Centre lunch in London in October 2015 that London and Regional were the preferred bidder to develop the Rooke site, and nothing happened.

In his New Year's address this year the Chief Minister said:

Many other young people will be very happy to hear that you will soon be receiving – 'soon' I guess is the same as 'shortly' – letters to start the process of purchasing new affordable homes at Bob Peliza Mews and Hassan Centenary Terraces.

Yes, Mr Speaker, nothing happened – nothing happened.

1715 And talking about nothing, I was surprised not to hear of a boast from the Chief Minister in his Budget address about Bob Peliza Mews or Hassan Centenary Terraces – or is it that nothing is going to happen on those either? I truly appreciate that attracting inwards investment is difficult, especially in this post-Brexit environment, and I will of course support all efforts in that regard. However, I would ask that we as politicians, albeit myself a novice in the eyes of that side of the House, refrain from making announcements until the ink is dry on the agreement and the money is in the bank. (Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely right.) In an uncertain age, our people want to hear about certainty and not imaginary projects. We do not want to hear 'shortly'; people want to hear what is going to happen. And so, Mr Speaker, I would encourage the Chief Minister in his response to explain to the people of Gibraltar what is happening with Bob Peliza Mews and Hassan Centenary Terraces.

1725 Turning to small businesses, I have heard the Hon. Dr John Cortes, the Minister for Education, on two recent occasions encourage our students to look to the private sector and not the public sector for future employment. (A Member: Hear, hear.) Mr Speaker, the Government is quite rightly identifying the private sector as the true driver of employment and wealth creation and for that I congratulate the Minister. But in this regard, in order to encourage innovation and the entrepreneurs of the future, we need to make starting a business as easy as possible. I know that the Hon. Mr Costa tried his best to reform business licensing but this needs simplification, especially as regards the business premises requirement. I know the Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses and the Chamber are working closely with the Government on this matter and I hope progress will be made soon. The cost of renting premises and stores I am told is 1735 understandably a huge business cost for start-ups and again I would welcome any plans by the Government in this regard.

Mr Speaker, turning to financial services, during the year we have seen new legislation brought to this House in respect of foundations, which I welcomed at the time and I still do, but we need to continue to evolve our product offering so as to keep pace with our clients' needs and indeed competitors in other jurisdictions.

1740 I have noted the Government's support for the development of Gibraltar as a Fintech hub and the joint Government and Financial Services Commission consultation paper entitled 'Proposals for a Distributed Ledger Technology (DLT) Regulatory Framework' – a bit of a mouthful and nobody actually understands what it means but it sounds good! This also I am happy to support but with the proviso that the risk is correctly identified and managed so there can be no reputational damage to the jurisdiction, and I am sure the Minister understands that point.

1750 I, along with, I am sure, all the Members of this House, lament the departure of the Newcastle Building Society and indeed other job losses in the banking sector, but speaking from experience I can say that this is in fact a worldwide problem and not a Gibraltar-specific issue as banks continue to retrench and preserve capital after the 2008 financial crisis. But this is not to say that we should resign ourselves to the risk of being unbanked. We need to encourage existing retail banking operators not just to stay but to expand their offering where possible.

1755 The Gibraltar International Bank continues to fill the gap left by the loss of Barclays and I look forward to seeing their full financial statements for 31st March 2016 and not just the highlights picked out by the Minister. This bank needs to be a success, not just for the sake of the business community but for the community as a whole. It has to be a safe place for our savings and a source of financing for mortgages and loans, which are the lifeblood of any thriving economy.

1760 I would ask the Minister, who I know will be speaking shortly, if he could explain why the bank has undergone a recent capital restructuring such that it has converted its ordinary shares into two different classes of shares, namely A shares and B shares with the B shares having no voting rights. It would seem to indicate to me there might be some intention to place the B shares ... I am asking the Minister because the shareholders' resolution was in fact signed by the Chief Secretary on 25th April this year and I would welcome any thoughts from the Minister as to what it is that the Government intends as regards the shareholding of the International Bank, seeing as it is the sole shareholder.

1765 I again thank the board and the staff of the bank for their efforts and I of course wish them well.

1770 As regards the financial services regulation, I still await news as to the rewrite of our financial services legislation, especially in the light of Brexit. It will no doubt be an interesting debate when Gibraltar considers its own Great Repeal Bill and what should be kept and what should be discarded while of course preserving the highest possible standard of regulation and remaining best in class.

1775 Mr Speaker, also pending is the appointment of a Financial Services Ombudsman and I look forward to hearing more on this matter from the Minister.

Financial services is an important pillar of our economy and we need not only to protect it in the post-Brexit environment but also to grow it in a way that encourages new players to set up in Gibraltar, and in this regard the Government has my full support.

1780 Turning now to heritage, Mr Speaker, the achievement of World Heritage Status for Gorham's Cave was a truly remarkable achievement and a credit to all those who promoted the project, not least Prof. Clive Finlayson. We should not underestimate the importance of both our natural and historical heritage for our people and visitors alike.

1785 I have long felt our social history has been somewhat neglected, all too often in favour of military history. I am pleased to see the Deputy Chief Minister's initiative in that the 50th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum is being remembered and celebrated – unfortunately, Mr Speaker, I missed it by five days. It is important that future generations are taught the importance of that day, and not just once a year but in classrooms as part of their education. To this end I would like to see the Government encouraging more young people to take an interest in our rich heritage, whether in schools or in partnership with the Heritage Trust.

1790 There are still many heritage projects to be completed, such as the Northern Defences, which I know the Deputy Chief Minister has spoken on already, and others to be started, such as the Moorish Castle complex. Thankfully, the importance of these sites is well understood and I am sure will be well protected.

1795 Last but not least, Mr Speaker, I would welcome the long overdue Heritage and Antiquities Act, especially with regard to a revised listing of protected buildings, and I would be grateful if the Minister, in his address, could give an indication as to when he proposed to bring the Bill to this House.

1800 And so, Mr Speaker, in conclusion, as I said in my opening, the numbers never lie, but it is much too easy for this Government to distort and hide the real numbers. I regret that I have grave reservations as to what reliance can be placed on the completeness of the information in the Estimates Book and thus the Appropriation Bill for 2017-18, and for the reasons of lack of transparency as to the financial state, activities and accounting for debt of Government-owned companies, I simply cannot support this Bill.

1805 I again call for the Chief Minister to give up the portfolio of Finance Minister and allocate this to another Minister perhaps to his left. It is not healthy for the CEO to also wear the hat of finance director; there always needs to be a tension between the two to guarantee financial prudence.

1810 We as a community need to be prepared for the unexpected, as much as we can, in this post-Brexit world. I am confident that we as a people will find a way to succeed no matter what the odds, but we must keep a close eye on the public purse and indeed those who control the purse strings.

1815 That being as it may, the watch word – and we have heard this word many times today – the watch word is prudence, not austerity as the Government would have the people believe the Opposition advocate, which we do not: prudence in planning for the future in this uncertain world and prudence and transparency in our public finances at all times.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if there is anyone left awake, I entreat them to come back tomorrow, at 9.30 in the morning.

1820 Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn to tomorrow morning at 9.30am.

Clerk: Meeting of Parliament, Tuesday, 27th June.

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I have the honour to present my fourth Budget speech, dealing with each of the areas that I have the privilege to have responsibility for.

10 Mr Speaker, before I get into the substance of what I would like to discuss and address the Parliament with today, I think it is important to touch on a number of areas which we have been talking about both at this time, the Budget session, but also in the immediate period where I think all Members of the House recognise the really quite challenging time in which we are living. I do not believe Gibraltar in recent years has had to face the challenges that we have had this past 12 months since the voting of the referendum, and consequently it is my view that as politicians we all have an extra responsibility in this particularly challenging time to take what we do more seriously and to look at and consider all the aspects of what each and every one of us does in our political lives – because the challenges are, Mr Speaker, serious.

15 When I consider some of the exchanges we have been having and I have been listening to in the last day and also in the last week – particularly, for example, the incident over the concern of the GSD on our security, and that concern was expressed by posting a photograph on the World Wide Web of a hole in our frontier fence which had been fixed three weeks before, is just not serious, Mr Speaker. Indeed, I do not believe that we are the only ones who were concerned and did not agree with that statement, because on the very Facebook page of the GSD that post, that press release, only had four likes, and when you think that there are six Members of the GSD Opposition, it is clear that not even they agreed with the very statement that Mr Phillips released. (Banging on desks)

20 Mr Speaker, we really do need to do serious politics. We really do need to be more mature in the way that we think, in the way that we operate. To express a concern about security and then to predicate on that a photograph on the World Wide Web of a breach of our fence – had it been real; thankfully it was not, because it was already blocked – and not to recognise the need that there is to maintain, especially at this time, security to the best of our ability, was in my view completely irresponsible and completely outrageous, as the Chief Minister himself described.

25 Mr Speaker, if I can move on to the contributions of the two big guns of the GSD who spoke yesterday – and I do not use the term ‘big guns’ because I believe them to be big guns but only because they are much bigger than the others that will follow them –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Because that's all they have left.

Hon. A J Isola: What it is it that they have told us? Well, in the same way as we have the 40 gimmick of the security fence – something that they think will resonate with people – we now have the new gimmick, and the new gimmick is really to dramatise. Today's front page of the Chronicle: 'Feetham denounces dangerous farce that undermines parliamentary governance'.
Another gimmick, Mr Speaker. The Opposition have demonstrated again, in my view, their irresponsibility and their lack of serious thought and process, because what in fact they are 45 doing by voting against the Budget, because of what they call a farce, is voting against the funding for our Health Services, our schools, our Police, our Fire Brigade, our ambulances, our Civil Service – indeed, Mr Speaker, even this House.

Why? What is it we have done in the Budget book that is different to what has ever been done before? (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) You end up asking yourself is 50 this the same GSD that was in government for 16 years. Well, with the exception of the Father of the Opposition, if I can call him that, it does not look like it. Yes, some have gone, and then some more have gone, and then even more recently the good lady has gone, but how can a party that has been in government for almost 16 years, with the trust of the people for that period, lack the very basic element of consistency in philosophy and political belief? You have to measure a 55 party by its record, you have to measure a party by what it says in this House, and of course you have to measure what they say as against what they have done, and when you compare the GSD of today and the GSD of yesterday, let's look at precisely what they are complaining about.

I start with the use of companies. I contested the 1996 by-election with the Father of the House, where the GSD spent the best part of a year talking about the secret web of companies 60 that the GSLP were managing and using to run this place. Mr Speaker, it was a suggestion of – I will put it blindly – corruption, it was a suggestion of improper and inappropriate accounting, it was a suggestion of many things but all relating to the use of private companies by the Government for the manner in which they ran the administration. And so if you were going to be consistent, the first thing you would do after you get into Parliament is stop the companies; but 65 of course, as we all know, for 16 years they ran the companies and indeed, if memory serves me right, they actually expanded the use of the companies. But that is not enough, because when they now come to this Parliament and talk to us about transparency, lack of accountability, isn't it odd that in those 16 years in all of the companies that they operated to run the public administration they never even filed accounts. (A Member: Hear, hear.) The accounts of these 70 companies were never filed in 16 years of them being in government – and they come and talk to us about transparency, about accountability! Mr Speaker, these are just words which the public will know – we have been there before – are simply not serious.

And the use of off balance sheet accounting, Mr Speaker: have they forgotten, for example, 75 the hospital, which is at least in leaseback so it is not debted to rent? Have they forgotten the things that in 16 years of GSD were used and done every minute of the day? And that is exactly what today they are complaining about. It is as if it is all right for them to do it but not for anybody else to do it. So it is wrong when we do it, but it was absolutely fine when they did it.

And then of course the Minister of Finance should not be the Chief Minister. Well, that perhaps could be the reason why Mr Clinton's life in the old GSD was short lived. I can imagine 80 him suggesting to Sir Peter Caruana (Laughter) that he should not be the Minister of Finance, that it should be somebody else – it cannot be the CEO or the Chairman and therefore he should move on. Never in a million years would the current Leader of the Opposition have had the thought – or courage, better said – to suggest to Sir Peter that he should move on and let him or another become the Minister for Finance. We know the function of the Minister of Finance and 85 we know that it has always been, certainly since the new Constitution, in the domain of the Chief Minister and it is absolutely right and proper that it is.

Mr Speaker, all of these things when they qualm them up together lead them to the conclusion that we should have a Public Accounts Committee. Well, again, when you have been 90 in Government for 16 years surely you might have mentioned it in the 16 years. Surely you might have said, 'Maybe we should consider ...' – not like now when they are in opposition, they demand that we have a Public Accounts Committee. So, again, what is it that has changed since 2011 to today that makes them believe that we should have a Public Accounts Committee, that we should have civil servants in here cross examined by Members of Parliament as to why they 95 have taken decisions? Surely politicians are here to take responsibility. We have no fear in taking responsibility for absolutely everything that we do. And indeed, for those who will remember political history, this Parliament has had a Public Accounts Committee before and it was stopped. It was stopped for good cause, and when the review was carried out more recently it also did not recommend a Public Accounts Committee. So why now? Well, the answer is simple.

100 If they were in government I have absolutely no doubt that we would not have a Public Accounts Committee. And interestingly, whilst we were in opposition we never suggested to the Government at the time that they should have a Public Accounts Committee – because we do not believe it works in a community like ours. Consequently, my plea is let's be consistent, let's think through the things that we need to be dealing with, let's look at the challenges, but let's stop the drama – or, I would call more appropriately, the farce that we have heard in the past 105 day as to how this Opposition believes this Government should be running its affairs.

Mr Speaker, moving on swiftly, I would like to start with financial services.

The result of the Brexit referendum in June 2016 was not initially viewed as a positive development for Gibraltar or indeed its financial services sector, as the loss of our EU passporting rights was unwelcome. It became clear to us in the months following the 110 referendum that the actual volume of business being conducted throughout the European Union was actually small, and we were predominantly a jurisdiction which worked strongly with the United Kingdom, the World's fifth-largest economy.

Mr Speaker, I must pause to mention, applaud and commend the exceptional work of my friends the Hon. Dr Joseph Garcia our Deputy Chief Minister, and Mr Michael Llamas QC our 115 Attorney General, for their precise, detailed and methodical work in preparing our "Heat Maps" of our entire economy which enabled us to engage quickly with others with accurate, factual and compelling data. The many months of very hard work have been invaluable and they should both be most seriously commended for this work. (Banging on desks)

I must also mention my friend the Chief Minister, who has, since the referendum, 120 demonstrated and proven himself to be a remarkable leader. We needed calm action, intelligence and strategic thinking at a time when we were facing our most uncertain period in recent history. He led the team with our Deputy Chief Minister and Attorney General which met with the Prime Minister, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Foreign Secretary, Secretaries of State, Ministers and officials, and secured by last October a commitment from the United 125 Kingdom government for UK access, which has enabled us all to focus on the opportunities that this will bring. I cannot stress enough the importance of his work this past 12 months, and on behalf of our entire business community I thank him for his staggering effort and leadership, which has much strengthened confidence in these difficult times across the entire business community. (Two Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

130 Mr Speaker, in considering opportunities and the relevance of UK market access, we must remind ourselves that there are a large number of financial services firms that passport their services into the UK from continental Europe. Whilst most of the UK press has been about UK businesses needing to plan their post-Brexit strategies in order to protect their existing markets, there has not been so much press about passporting services into the UK post Brexit. Gibraltar's 135 unique trading relationship with the UK allows us to position ourselves as a gateway to the UK and the world's fifth-largest economy both today and post Brexit. This is especially true in the insurance sector, where we continue to work with firms considering Gibraltar as their base for business, complying with EU legislation and regulatory standards but with a pro-business friendly approach and culture.

140 Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister has already mentioned on a number of occasions the 26 licences that the FSC has granted since the Brexit vote and the 20-odd that are in the pipeline. It is important to reflect as to why this is happening and to obviously welcome and encourage more to come. Of course there are also a number that are not within those lists which are at 145 what we call the pre-application stage – in other words, in discussions but applications not formally submitted.

We continue to work with delivering Part VII transfers from the UK, and recent court decisions will, we believe, facilitate this and in further developing other structures which we are working on with the Gibraltar Financial Services Commission and the professional sector. In the last 12 months we have worked with a number of parties about establishing new life insurance companies in Gibraltar, in particular for pension transactions such as bulk annuity transfers and longevity swaps. The number of these types of transactions has been gaining momentum in recent years and the expectation is that this sector will expand considerably over the next five to 10 years. We intend to position Gibraltar as a domicile for this type of insurance activity.

150 Mr Speaker, the new personal pensions regulations were introduced at the end of March 2017 and were drafted to ensure that the Gibraltar Qualifying Recognised Overseas Pension Scheme (QROPS) continued to meet the requirements of Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs, which were due to change with effect from 6th April 2017. There have been a number of profound changes to the QROPS sector over the last 12 months, with HMRC removing a number of jurisdictions from its recognised QROPS list and introducing, to our surprise, a new 25% levy 155 on pension transfers from the UK, which whilst not affecting all transfers is likely to lead to a significant reduction in QROPS business for Gibraltar and many other QROPS domiciles. Having worked with HMRC since December 2015 in this area, the result was deeply disappointing and we continue to work to explore opportunities in this space. We remain committed to supporting the pension sector as it seeks to introduce new pension and savings products and to begin to 160 reposition itself following the unexpected introduction of the 25% levy on pension transfers.

Mr Speaker, we are also exploring further improvements to the PCC legislation with the sector to enable their further use and we expect these to be considered fully with the GFSC very shortly.

165 The insurance and pensions sectors are very well represented by Mr Michael Ashton, who has the energy and drive of a teenager but the knowledge and experience of a master. It rings similar, Mr Speaker, although not comparable to the Father of the House. We are indeed fortunate to have him – and, of course, the Father of the House.

170 Earlier this year we completed the review and implementation of what has become known as "STEP legislation". The enactment of the Private Foundations Act completed the delivery of the STEP Gibraltar wish list submitted to Government some years ago. I am grateful to the private sector and in particular the STEP association for their support in helping us to complete this process.

175 Family offices is one of the areas that we have particularly focussed on and continues to provide successful outcomes, impacting favourably across a number of specialist practice areas for local professional firms. We have agreed a way forward with the Philanthropy Forum and will continue the good work they have started in reviewing our legislation and making it fit for purpose.

180 In May we published for extensive public consultation a document entitled – and I agree with my friend it is a mouthful – 'Proposals for a DLT Regulatory Framework', the result of a huge amount of work undertaken by Government, the Cryptocurrency Working Group and the Gibraltar Financial Services Commission, as well as a number of leading representatives in this field. The consultation period ended in early June and we are currently considering the feedback received. The interest generated by this proposed regulatory approach has been significant and we hope and expect to introduce this framework in January 2018. We believe Gibraltar is well 185 placed to move swiftly in this interesting and fast-moving area. My sincere thanks to the Cryptocurrency Working Group, the GFSC and Sian Jones, our consultant, for their professional and dedicated work, which of course is ongoing.

190 Mr Speaker, the Fintech space is a fascinating area and although, as the hon. Member mentioned yesterday, there is risk attached, it is an area which is attracting considerable interest. The framework that we have proposed is innovative, it is new and no other jurisdiction has approached regulation of this sector in quite the same way. As a consequence, we have been delighted to receive the interest that we have. The framework will actually seek to regulate people for DLT where they are not already regulated. So, if somebody already has a banking licence or Mifid licence or a funds licence, they will not actually need to obtain a new licence –
195 they will simply need to add on to their existing licence the fact that they will be engaging in DLT. This will mean that it will shortcut and short-circuit the need for many of our financial services professionals today to specifically apply for new licences. And similarly, if we have people exclusively engaged in DLT they will be able to obtain their own licence.

200 Mr Speaker, our Category 2 and HEPSS products continue to provide effective solutions and are attractive to the international client. As the Chief Minister announced recently, we will reconvene the Cat 2 Working Group to further consider their proposals.

We also continue to grow our social media presence as a method of increasing awareness to a wide yet appropriate audience at a very low cost. Our database stands in excess of 5,100 individuals, which we interact with almost on a daily basis. Our electronic bookshelf hosted on 205 ISSUU.com now has 137 publications covering the full range of topics that are of interest to our readers. These include self-generated fact sheets, articles, manuals and guides created by private sector firms. Our audience has read these publications more than 11,150 times.

210 Mr Paul Astengo has driven all these important projects forward – as well, of course, as dealing with the continued business development throughout the United Kingdom and Switzerland. He is a joy to work with and ever dependable in the many areas we have asked him to work in: a true and trusted professional.

In the area of funds, we have worked more closely than ever with the Gibraltar Funds and Investment Association (GFIA), reviewing our legislation, considering improvements and new innovative changes which will serve us well in the future as we face the post-Brexit era. As the 215 Chief Minister announced at the recent Accountants' Dinner, we expect to have the first phase of changes in our legislation in early July. I am most grateful to Mr Adrian Hogg, its president, as well as Jay Gomez, Joey Garcia and James Lasry, all of whom work closely together with the executive to deliver the best for their sector and Gibraltar plc. I must also thank Sarah Hall and Julian Sacarello from the GFSC, who have made this happen.

220 Mr Tim Haynes, working at Gibraltar House in London, continues to support the funds and private client space in London, where his extensive knowledge and contact base in this sector have contributed to the success of events hosted at Gibraltar House, and this will continue as we now start, with GFIA, in hosting monthly seminars in London targeting the professionals in this area.

225 The time dedicated to business development remains strong, with Mr Astengo and Mr Haynes focusing primarily on London and the UK generally, and Mr Ashton focusing in Asia, together with Mr Jason Cruz, whose sterling support continues to open up opportunities across all sectors of our business community in Asia.

I am pleased to update Parliament on the progress of the Gibraltar International Bank. I am 230 delighted to report that the bank continues to deliver above expectation in both its performance and its service levels, and this is especially pleasing as we have witnessed the unfortunate further reduction in the provision of banking facilities in Gibraltar. We were right to have decided to set up the bank in 2013, right to have established an independent board of directors and right to have allowed the executive team to get on with the job of driving Gibraltar 235 International Bank forward. The results speak for themselves: just two years after its doors opened, the bank has over 10,000 accounts opened, £440 million deposited and over £90 million in loans. I must again thank the board of directors, Lawrence and Derek, and each and every member of the team at the bank for their spectacular work.

240 We have also continued the excellent work on our Legislative Reform Programme, which we expect to complete early in 2018. This will have a significant impact on both the regulator and private firms and I am confident that this will be most welcome by all. The first sector consultation will commence on 12th July and continue for the rest of the year. I am grateful to the Finance Centre Council for agreeing to be actively engaged in this process. They have agreed to set up a dedicated subcommittee to consider and consult with us on all the pre-consultation 245 documents that we will be sending them on a very regular basis for the remainder of this year. Sarah Hall and Ernest Lima have driven this project with us and I am grateful to them also.

The quality of the work of the Financial Services Commission in all of these areas is also worthy of mention. Each of the members of the many teams I have worked with have delivered professional, dependable and expert advice and support to a high quality, from its Chairman 250 Jonathan Spencer and its CEO Samantha Barrass to all the other individual members of the team. My sincere thanks to them all.

Mr Speaker, Government is most appreciative of the work of all private sector firms, associations and individuals who work with us throughout the year. The list is endless but we are grateful to each and every one of them, as we are especially to the members of the Brexit 255 Working Group, who have excelled in their detailed work on the best way forward for our jurisdiction.

Mr Speaker, before turning to gaming, I must thank Mr Jimmy Tipping, the CEO and my right hand man in this area, and his fantastic team at Gibraltar Finance for the superb work they deliver every year and with such calm and ease. Jimmy has inter alia driven our complex 260 discussions on the UBO register, which was launched yesterday, and will perhaps be best remembered for his outstanding performance in defending Gibraltar's corner at the often hostile PANA Committee hearings in Brussels.

Mr Speaker, in turning to gaming, I would say that notwithstanding the tumultuous political year in Europe and especially the UK, some in the popular media wish to find bad news stories 265 about the remote gambling industry rather than the good news it remains. I will take this opportunity to confirm that none of our licensees is currently undertaking a Brexit-based restructure that might see its Gibraltar establishment transplanted to a different jurisdiction. Both my staff and myself are in regular liaison with all of our licensees. And yes, while the shape and features of Brexit create uncertainty and licensees change the nature, size and shape of their operations as markets, products, technology and the political landscape develops, Gibraltar licensees are looking at the mitigating factors that they may need to apply should some of the Brexit risks materialise. That is not planning to leave Gibraltar, but sensible and prudent scenario planning by sensible and prudent companies, the type of company we are keen to license and welcome to Gibraltar.

None of us here can predict what a 2019 Brexit will look like – indeed, whether it will be in 270 2019 or we may only have clarity of what it will look like in 2019 – but what I can assure Members is that as those details do become clear this Government will still be pressing for measures and taking its own measures to ensure that the Gibraltar arrangements remain the most attractive and supportive in Europe, if not the world.

The major players in this industry continue to beat a path to our door to invest here, to 275 operate here and to be associated here as they have done for the last 20 years and more. As in previous years, there remains a constant flow of highly credible and respected names in the remote industry engaging in discussions with our licensing and regulatory teams about Gibraltar licensing.

Such enquiries and developments have been taking place at a time of unprecedented mergers and acquisitions (M&A) in this sector. We are now in the fourth year of escalating M&A 280 that far exceeds the impact of Brexit, and M&A is not going to end soon. M&A has affected over half of all our licensees and 15 of the current crop of 30 licence holders. In four years it has seen

285 nine licensees absorbed into bigger companies and those nine licences expire, and six other licensees become significant parts of bigger companies. This consolidation means that the total number of licensees is standing still, despite the new arrivals. In the last 12 months, from April 2016 to March 2017, we have seen five new operators issued with licences, whilst five existing licence holders have been surrendered, with two of our biggest licensees merging. Where there were 31 licensees at this time last year, there are now 30, but I anticipate a possible four more being issued in months to come as licensing plans come to fruition, but likewise consolidation and the apparent loss of licences will also continue.

290 Correspondingly, employment in the sector has seen continued growth of 101 posts during the year to a new high of 3,353 as at 31st March 2017, and as the Chief Minister has already mentioned, an increase of 9% from October 2015 to October 2016. We must not forget that staff can be hugely unsettled by the wave that industry consolidation may bring. However, this is the nature of this incredibly dynamic industry and we are happy to work with the industry and their 295 staff to ensure that the Government can play its part in supporting this sector, which continues to thrive.

Mr Speaker, Government receipts from the industry – charges, taxes, fees – continue to increase significantly as the industry grows, and will be reported separately. However, the closure of the GBGA POC tax case does create the opportunity to review and reshape the way in 300 which the gambling industry contributes to the revenues of Government. I plan to discuss with the industry in months to come how we can both modernise and consolidate the current charges into a simpler and more consistent model of taxation and fees. It is incumbent on me to make clear that this is not a proposal to implement a structural increase in those charges, but look to bring them up to date and better reflect the revenues and costs of the industry some 20 305 years since they were introduced. This work will also allow us to resurrect the review of the Gambling Act, initiated in 2014 but deferred for 12 months following the Brexit vote.

Perhaps the biggest change this year will be the retirement of our Gambling Commissioner and Head of Regulation, Mr Phill Brear, at the end of this year. Phill will have served a full 10 years in his posts here in Gibraltar and seen through a transformation of the industry 310 between 2007 and 2017, a transformation that he believes is yet to end. The process for the appointment of his replacement, indeed likely replacements, is now underway and I am confident we will have a strong new team identified and in place by the time Phill's tenure comes to an end in October. Phill's contribution to this sector cannot be underestimated and it will be difficult to replace him. He has been an exceptional servant to Gibraltar and I repeat my view that he is one of the best – if not the best – online gaming regulators in the world (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) and we are most fortunate to have had him here. His contribution is recognised by the industry, regulators and governments and I am equally confident we will soon conclude arrangements that ensure both a smooth transition for the new team as well as, I am delighted to report, his continued involvement in the development and oversight of the gambling industry in Gibraltar.

Likewise, another stalwart of the Gambling Division has recently moved on. Lorraine Britto 315 has been the driver of the engine room of the Gambling Division for some eight years and is soon to be replaced. I take this opportunity to thank once again the outstanding efforts of Lorraine and thank her for her work with us, and indeed the licensing and regulatory teams, in maintaining Gibraltar's reputation as a first-tier jurisdiction. Their work continues to be exceptional.

320 Mr Speaker, I will end by emphasising that Government remains committed to a strong and supportive legislative, regulatory and taxation regime for the gambling industry, remote and non-remote. I will continue to meet with industry leaders on a regular basis to ensure their interests and concerns are properly understood and Gibraltar remains the preferred jurisdiction for their operations.

325 I must also thank the Brexit Working Group for their continued expertise and support as we jointly plot the exciting future for this sector.

Mr Speaker, I turn to the Liaison Department, which was set up in September 2013. Its function has evolved over time from its original concept – to facilitate and support the gaming and finance centre industries with their interaction with all Government Departments. Their work is constantly recognised by these sectors as they continue to provide necessary support to them. The unit also provides invaluable assistance to my Ministry in a number of different areas as we work towards developing a new framework for interaction between citizens, businesses and Government. I am most grateful to Lizanne Ochello and Tania Pereira for their work in all of these areas and more.

335 If I can move to commerce, it has been a pleasure working this year with the Chamber of Commerce and the Federation of Small Businesses in meeting their members' needs. They are always forthright, honest and well-intended and, although we may not always agree, we certainly make progress for the benefit of Gibraltar plc. We have worked on many areas this year and we will, as a result of this close working relationship, shortly be consulting on further improvements to our business environment as a result of that close working relationship.

340 Mr Speaker, if I may turn to the Office of Fair Trading, or the OFT as it is better known, I am happy to report that the OFT has finished its first full year of operations, making substantial advances in the manner in which it delivers its services for the benefit of businesses and consumers alike. During this time the Office has settled well into its new regulatory role and has made noteworthy progress in trying to meet the ambitious objectives and responsibilities set for it by the Fair Trading Act 2015. As with any new project, it has been a steep learning curve for the Office and its staff, particularly with the addition of new responsibilities, and consequently this project remains very much a work in progress.

345 We are working on a review of the Fair Trading Act, together with the Federation of Small Businesses and the Chamber of Commerce, which will make the process of setting up business in Gibraltar even simpler and more efficient while at the same time bolstering the protection afforded to consumers.

As an aside, Mr Speaker, it is interesting to note that the OFT was introduced by my good and learned friend, Minister Costa, really at the request of the Chamber of Commerce and the Federation of Small Businesses. They, in fact, drove the detail of what Government was seeking to achieve and it is right that we review the steps that we have taken with them, and ironically at their request a change in the number of the things that they originally asked us to implement in the legislation. So it is an example of that continuing partnership that we enjoy with both business associations. I have no doubt that once these changes are drafted and announced they will be most welcome by the business community.

350 The OFT has been given the responsibility of regulating high value dealers and real estate agents in Gibraltar from an anti-money laundering and counter-terrorist financing perspective. On 15th September 2016, the OFT was appointed as a supervisory authority under the Proceeds of Crimes Act 2015 with the objective of preventing the laundering of illicit funds using these businesses. This is a substantial new role, working relentlessly to set up new, practical anti-money laundering measures and procedures for the effective regulation of high value dealers and real estate agents. All this is also being done in anticipation of Gibraltar's upcoming Moneyval assessment, which is due to take place at the end of next year.

365 I now turn to the OFT's consumer protection responsibilities. The nature of the work carried out by the team, which was previously the Department of Consumer Affairs, has shifted from a mediatory role to a regulatory one. The ultimate aim of the current protection team is therefore to prevent significant harm to consumers in Gibraltar and not to offer redress.

370 I now turn to business licensing. Since the introduction of the Act which extended the requirement for licensing to service providers, the number of licences issued by the Business Licensing Authority has more than doubled. There are now approximately 2,000 licensed businesses operating in Gibraltar. The Office has been extremely busy dealing with a constant stream of applications. This surge, while expected, has led to very high workloads as the previously unlicensed businesses have been applying for their new licences – unlicensed not 375 because they were in breach, but because they were not required to. I am happy to say that the team has dealt with this extra work well.

In terms of tackling unlicensed businesses, a strategic programme has been introduced to tackle this issue on a sector by sector basis. The business licensing team has the ability to deploy its consumer protection enforcers to investigate businesses that it suspects or is informed are not in possession of a valid business licence. I must thank Mr Francis Muscat and his team for 380 their superb work in making a success of this new and exciting project. We have lots more to do in streamlining and improving these processes, but this is only possible because of their commitment and ability to respond to these challenges and to embrace further responsibility in the manner that they have. I am grateful to each and every one of them.

Mr Speaker, I now turn to my responsibilities for the Royal Gibraltar Post Office (RGPO). I am 385 looking forward this year to engaging with the management and staff of the RGPO, together with UNITE, to review all aspects of the postal service. There is no question that as technology reduces the use of ordinary mail, and the global economy and in particular online purchasing significantly increases the quantum of postal purchases and parcel deliveries, there is an opportunity to review how we operate and serve the public's needs in the best way possible. I 390 intend to work through all of these areas with the team at the RGPO and Unite and am confident that we will together agree a sensible and fair way forward for all parties concerned. These discussions will start immediately. I must thank the entire team at the RGPO for their continued work and dedication in meeting the needs of our community, and I know they will be willing partners in this process.

Last year the RGPO announced that it was the first postal service to launch the UN Universal Postal Union Customs Declaration Kiosk System, which sends advance electronic information to other countries. As from 1st January 2020 it will be a mandatory requirement for all postal items containing goods to send advance electronic information to all the other authorities around the world.

Mr Speaker, in April this year the RGPO signed the new multilateral agreement in respect of a new tracked packets service and in September the RGPO has planned negotiations with Royal Mail to discuss the introduction of the new International Merchandise Returns Service (IMRS), which is a tracked postage-paid returns service designed to meet the demands of bulk mail operations. Growth in this area may present significant opportunities for the RGPO to grow its business. The Government is looking at ways to adapt its products and services to make bulk mailing operations based in Gibraltar more attractive.

We are also working with British Airways World Cargo on the possibility of introducing radio frequency identification transponders to give 100% visibility of mail bags in the BA cargo shed at 395 London Heathrow to create more visibility of the transport of mail.

Mr Speaker, since 2013 the Post Office has co-ordinated a local letter-writing competition with the Department of Education. Each year the winning letter is forwarded to the UN UPU International Letter Writing Competition. In 2016, Anna Grech from Westside Comprehensive School became the first Gibraltarian to reach the top 13 out of 980,000 applicants, for which I 400 presented her with various prizes donated by the UPU – a remarkable achievement and a real attempt to preserve the magical art of letter writing.

Mr Speaker, my thanks to David Ledger, Sabina Pitaluga, Joe Brosco and all of their teams for their hard work during the course of the year.

I now turn to ITLD. HM Government of Gibraltar aims to be the leader in providing digital 405 electronic services by making the best possible use of information and communication technologies, to bring interactive Government counters to the doorsteps of citizens and businesses, providing services anytime, anyhow and anywhere. But that is easier said than done, especially when you are simultaneously engaged in keeping the entire Government network

I must thank the IT team for their excellent work in dealing with recent well-reported cyberattacks which have seen them covering our systems 24/7 to ensure we are as best protected as we can be. They have served us well and we are truly grateful to them. There is much work to be done in the area of cybercrime and we will continue to develop our plans for this. I would like to thank Tyrone Mañasco and his team of professionals in the IT Department for all their hard work during the year. I have personally seen the extent of their remit and am most grateful for their commitment to serving our needs.

420 Mr Speaker, Government is committed to delivering e-Government and a huge amount of work is being undertaken to deliver this. Yes, this is taking longer than we would have liked, but I am confident that we will deliver a service which the community will appreciate and be proud of once it arrives.

We are reviewing every single aspect of our IT systems, including all arrangements with the existing suppliers of services in this area and the internal arrangements within Government Departments in what our needs are and how we operate. All of these are being audited, as are our intended digital strategy. We are taking time to verify our systems and our needs to ensure compatibility and functionality across all our services. In brief Mr Speaker our Digital Strategy will deliver:

430 eAdministration will provide the entire Government with an operational system that will revolutionise how we work. The first phase, our procurement system, has already been introduced and suppliers are registering as we speak and we expect to go live very shortly. Any provider of goods or services to Government, its agencies or its companies will require to register on our system.

eCitizen will provide all citizens with a secure online portal to co-ordinate their entire interaction with Government.

435 eBusiness will provide a secure online portal for businesses to transact their business with Government directly and indirectly.

Mr Speaker, this resumé belies the extent of the change and the efficiencies that this will provide us with. There are a number of workflows running in parallel which will deliver a new way of doing business with Government, all built on a stable, robust and resilient network.

440 This is an enormous undertaking and I am grateful to all the many parties who are assisting us in making this a reality. Mr Stephen Ramagge and Cristabelle Barnett from our Procurement Department are currently working on the procurement system and I would especially like to mention them and thank them for their work in bringing this project in that phase to its fruition. I must especially thank Mr Julian Baldachino, who is driving this project across Government with an enthusiasm and energy which is critical to the success of this project. His determination matches Government's desire to make this a reality and he is ably supported by Mr Karon Cano, on secondment from our IT Department for this project.

445 Mr Speaker, a truly exciting time for the Government. I am very excited about the work as I believe this process will bring about perhaps one of the largest transformational changes the Government has seen, and certainly in the last generation.

450 In closing, I would like to thank my Secretary, Lourdes Piri – who incidentally had her husband and daughter receive medals at the Island Games in Gotland yesterday – and all the team in my office who are always there for me, providing a professional service and always supporting the work I do with a smile and a grin on their faces, whatever the challenge. They are a credit to the Civil Service and I am most grateful to each and every one of them.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Dr John Cortes.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):

Mr Speaker, during the first seven months of the last financial year I was Minister for Health; and 460 so, while my friend and colleague the present Minister for Health will of course cover this period, it would be remiss of me not to highlight one or two of the significant developments during that time.

To my mind, the one most worthy of mention was the opening of the chemotherapy suite, which counted on the significant support of Margaret Ayling in memory of her late husband 465 Leslie, known to many in this Chamber.

Also of note were the introduction of a full acupuncture service by chartered physiotherapists, and the extensive preparatory work for the opening of both Bella Vista and Hillsides at the former Royal Naval Hospital site, which my colleague has now very successfully opened.

470 Above all, I would like to thank all the staff and management of the GHA and ERS who worked with me at the time, for the support and loyalty they gave me during my five and two years respectively as their Minister and for their dedication and professionalism. I wish them and the new Minister every success in the future.

Mr Speaker, in that reshuffle I retained responsibility for public health. By promoting public 475 health and health awareness we aim not only to improve people's health but as a result reduce the cost of healthcare provision for conditions that can be prevented or improved.

In 2014 I announced the second Health and Lifestyle Survey, to take place in 2015. This was successfully carried out by the Public Health department in 2015 and published last year. The report contained a wealth of information about the health and lifestyle of the Gibraltar adult 480 population, including some sobering revelations for our society: the levels of obesity remain high – three out of five adults in Gibraltar are overweight or obese; smoking levels are high, higher than in the countries chosen for comparison. The good news was that alcohol consumption is generally low at all ages and Gibraltar people have a generally healthy attitude towards sunbathing behaviour and cancer risks.

485 Key events in health promotion have included participation in awareness campaigns for World Mental Health Day, stroke and stroke prevention; World Diabetes Day; World AIDS Day; support for Childline; World Cancer Day and No Smoking Day.

The Public Health department teamed up with GHA professionals to present a five-week teaching programme on sexual health for the older Bayside students and it is planned to extend 490 this programme to Westside School.

The department teamed up with the Care Agency and the Police to deliver a series of presentations on binge drinking, alcohol awareness and addiction at Westside and Bayside and with the College to discuss the delivery of sessions on personal health and wellbeing.

495 There has been collaborative working with the Breathe Easy Society, Clubhouse, the Gibraltar Alzheimer's and Dementia Society, and the Environmental Agency, among others.

The Public Health department, soon to be rebranded as Public Health Gibraltar, has published numerous articles and video clips and is working with the Alameda Wildlife Conservation Park to discuss promotion of a reduction in the consumption of meat on both health and sustainability grounds.

500 A new Health Improvement Strategy will be launched by the end of this year for the next three years, commencing January 2018. It will continue to build on the priority areas identified previously, including healthy eating; reducing the harm from tobacco; exercise; preventing, detecting and reducing the burdens from diabetes; improving sexual health; and promoting mental health and well-being. In addition, the new strategy will aim to make progress on two 505 key manifesto commitments of the Government: lifestyle improvement and the 'Health MOT' programme; and the self-care approach, encouraging all citizens to take control of their health and develop self-care awareness.

According to the World Health Organisation, childhood obesity is one of the most serious public health challenges of the 21st century. The Faculty of Public Health warns that unless these 510 trends are halted, being obese substantially increases the chances of serious medical problems. The Public Health department analysed data from the heights and weights of reception year children in Gibraltar over the years 2011 to 2014 and found that nearly one third of children were overweight; over the three years the pooled prevalence of overweight and obese children was around 26%; and there are more overweight boys than girls in all three years. To tackle this emerging and serious problem of childhood obesity, the Public Health department has been participating in a new initiative aimed at developing joined-up strategies through a multi-disciplinary group, the Children Healthy and Active Multi-Agency Panel (CHAMP) led by a consultant paediatrician. The group has a wide participation across agencies and departments, including the GHA, Education, Social Services, Sports and Leisure and Youth Services. The group will collaborate to produce a Childhood Obesity Prevention Strategy and will be making recommendations. It is not intended to pre-empt these, but one recommendation that has been consistently made in recent years is likely to be raised again: that of reforming school tuck shops.

525 Mr Speaker, I am still Minister for the Environment. As a passionate environmentalist as well, I will never feel that enough has been done for the environment. That of course protects me from possible criticism from Members opposite should they say that I have not done enough, as I will happily agree!

530 These last six years have seen the Department of the Environment and Climate Change network regionally and internationally. We have proudly flown the flag of environmental governance and leadership, leaving our mark in the international arena. The continuing attendance of our scientists at UN and Mediterranean Conferences of Parties highlights the valuable contribution that Gibraltar makes and the recognition it receives at an international level. I am proud to have co-chaired the second meeting of the Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies Environment Ministers' Council in Alderney in April. The meeting was a resounding success as we discussed areas of common interest and concern, most notably climate finance, the Paris Agreement, Brexit, environmental funding and the role of Her Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom in environmental protection within the Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies where it has a role. We have set ourselves targets upon which we aim to deliver by our next meeting in 2018 in the Isle of Man.

540 Mr Speaker, the devastating effect of plastic on the marine environment is a subject which has come to wide public attention in a big way only in the last few years. We all know now how plastic kills whales, dolphins, turtles and seabirds. It is likely also affecting human health as it insinuates itself within our food chain from plankton through shellfish and other molluscs to fish and hence to us. In this context I must highlight our work with the Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses and the Chamber of Commerce in banning plastic bags and the use of microbeads. It is very encouraging to see how businesses of all sizes, in responding to us and to the Nautilus project, are acknowledging the issue of plastic bag pollution and are voluntarily moving away from plastics. We will continue to work with them to develop this initiative further until we fully achieve our aims.

550 Mr Speaker, the green filter within the much improved electronic planning process is constantly proving to be an effective environmental screening tool. To highlight this point, departmental scientists and technicians have attended 26 tender boards, reviewed 650 building applications and assessed a myriad of EIAs. The Department, in conjunction with Town Planning and NGOs, is currently working on a guidance document to increase biodiversity in Gibraltar's urban environment. This document complements the policy of installing bird and bat boxes within the urban fabric and to encourage green and brown roofs. By introducing and progressing this filter, we are ensuring that development continues in Gibraltar in an environmentally considerate manner, with many projects improved environmentally before they enter the formal planning process, hence facilitating their acceptance.

560 Moving on to waste management, recycling figures show an increase of approximately 59% in recycling of mixed packaging waste such as plastic and cans, and an increase of 120% in cardboard and paper, thanks to the support of the public and commercial outlets. Additional recycling bins for various waste streams will be provided in the very near future to further increase our recycling rates. Waste electronic recycling figures also continue to improve with a further 68% increase during 2016. Overall, therefore, there has been an 88% increase in our recycling rates, which reflects also the success of the eco-park. Gibraltar's waste cooking oil bins are also proving successful with a 600% increase in collection rates. In the light of this, the Government expects this year to achieve total self-sufficiency in the handling of waste, increasing local recycling and processing further, introducing new streams, including treatment of organic waste, significantly reducing the amount that needs to be exported, and so moving away from any form of incineration.

The work of the litter wardens continues and, as a result, the number of instances of fly tipping continues to reduce as the use of time-lapse cameras helps us to tackle the problem. 'No dumping' signs continue to be placed in hotspots to further remind the public that, in Gibraltar, bins are only a short distance away. There still are a few significant problem areas, where we will be increasing our efforts. These matters form the main subject of discussion at the Litter Committee, but we must recognise that the solution to the problem of litter rests not with those who clear it but with those who deposit it. Litter awareness will therefore be another strand of work for the coming year.

As the House is aware, we are also in the process of reviewing the provision of the main cleaning services in Gibraltar, something that we will do with the certitude of achieving a cleaner and tidier Gibraltar while ensuring that the interests of employees are protected.

Mr Speaker, as I stated recently and as was the subject of a recent Government press release, in the light of the European Court of Justice judgment over our lack of sewage treatment, I can confirm once more that the Government is fully committed to a sewage treatment plant and is about to enter detailed discussions with a view to achieving completion within the next 30 months.

Collaboration with NGOs continues. Regular meetings take place, involving both departmental officials and myself, with the Gibraltar Ornithological and Natural History Society and the Environmental Safety Group, notably but not exclusively within the Brexit and the Environment Working Group. Meetings with the Nautilus Project, a more recently established group, have also begun and I am very pleased that all the Gibraltar environmental NGOs work together in many areas. This can only be good for our common aim of improving our environment.

The Nature Conservancy Council continues to be consulted on all issues associated with the protection of Gibraltar's natural environment, in line with my statutory obligations under the Nature Protection Act.

Work continues within schools to promote environmental concepts, to encourage recycling and help urban wildlife, and this will be developed much further this coming year. (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Hear, hear.)

The Department has also embarked upon the ClimACT project with the University of Gibraltar and institutions in Portugal, France and Spain. This has resulted in environmental audits of eight schools, looking at energy use, water, transport, procurement and green areas. The project will continue into the next school year, when reports on each school will be delivered.

The Government's geoportal continues to be well used. This interactive portal is being updated and now provides a great deal of electronic spatial data for Gibraltar; this was unheard of before we came into Government. The Department of the Environment continues to spearhead the use of GIS. To date more than 23,505 geoportal visits have been registered from 150 countries. The geoportal continues to support the local public and especially the private sector, which continues to be the largest user of our geographical information system assets. This year the Department has relied on GIS to support and develop innovative wildlife awareness-raising programmes such as the Pallid Swift cameras and the Vulture Tracking Programme, which have a great following and are placing Gibraltar in the spotlight of regional wildlife conservation efforts.

615 Government remains fully committed to tackling the causes of climate change and last November requested from Her Majesty's Government of the United Kingdom the extension of the Paris Agreement to Gibraltar. A reply is awaited.

As part of its obligations under the Compact of Mayors, Gibraltar now provides a city-level inventory of greenhouse gas emissions. Gibraltar is one of only a handful of cities that have 620 reported a fully complete inventory and has in fact been commended by the Carbon Disclosure Project for the completeness of its submission.

Mr Speaker, I am particularly delighted to inform this House that air quality in Gibraltar is the best since records began 12 years ago and probably the best for decades. (Banging on desks)
(Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Hear, hear.) We now have the lowest ever levels of PM10 particles, 625 with the level even at the traditionally polluted Rosia Road now below what we recorded as background levels at Bleak House when recording began. (Two Members: Hear, hear.) PM2.5 particles are also at their lowest ever. Significantly, both are below the EU maximum permissible levels. Following a spike in 2014 when the fire at the moribund Waterport Power Station required the use of the just as moribund dirty diesel power stations in the South District, I am 630 happy to report a rapid drop in pollution levels of nitrogen dioxide since 2015. This downward trend continued in 2016. Concentrations for Rosia Road were compliant – that is, below the EU required level – for the first time in the 12-year history of air quality monitoring in Gibraltar. (Banging on desks) This is a tremendous achievement and proves the determination of the Environment and Climate Change department, the GEA, and the Department of Transport in 635 achieving better air quality. It also shows that the Opposition has been totally unjustified every time it has tried to cast doubt as to our intentions and our ability to improve Gibraltar's air quality.

Government is now setting itself an ambitious target to reduce emissions from manageable sources by 50% by 2030. This will be achieved in large part by the improvements derived from 640 the new gas power station, but other measures to tackle building efficiency and transport emissions are also planned. Emissions from ships, for example, will be greatly reduced via the provision of shoreside power. Traffic will be tackled through the implementation of the STTPP, with the Department of the Environment assisting in particular with the development of electric vehicle infrastructure and improving electric and hybrid vehicle uptake. The Department will also 645 be working with the Ministry of Traffic and Infrastructure to roll out other measures in the plan, such as those which encourage walking and cycling throughout Gibraltar.

Targets for building energy performance were made more robust at the start of this year. This effectively means that developers will be improving their standards in order to meet the minimum requirements, and this is being reflected in the increased number of applications going 650 forward to the DPC which include solar PV and solar thermal installations as a matter of course. This is most important and not just another regulation. Energy efficiency reduces costs to developers, occupiers and taxpayers, reduces demand on power generation and also benefits air quality.

Mr Speaker, London is a city challenged by air quality issues, and the Mayor of London's team 655 is making huge efforts to improve this. I am happy to report that, following the initial contact made by the Chief Minister, I have been in contact with Sadiq Khan and that his environment team and mine will be pursuing contacts aimed at exchanging information whereby we will no doubt benefit from the experience of London in this field.

The GHA solar project has now become a reality and will use energy from the sun to provide 660 hot water throughout St Bernard's Hospital. Initial estimates suggest it could result in fuel savings of approximately £50,000 a year. Other renewable energy projects will also come to fruition over the course of 2017 as the Government remains committed to producing 20% of its energy from renewable sources.

665 The Energy Savings Opportunities Scheme was launched towards the end of last year. This requires large organisations to conduct energy audits every four years with a view to improving their performance over time. I urge all businesses to make use of the services now available from energy auditors to tackle unnecessary energy use within their organisations.

670 The last 12 months have seen a huge effort going into the new power station project, the associated new high voltage distribution centres, infrastructure, the new high voltage cabling network and the adjacent LNG facility. The new generators are in place. Construction of the LNG tanks is progressing very well and they will be arriving in Gibraltar in the coming months. Meanwhile, the GMES ex-MoD power station is now only on stand-by mode, resulting in the great improvements to air quality that I have already reported.

675 Improvements to the public lighting network continue with replacement of street lights with LED or low-energy lanterns reducing overall consumption. The programme of installation of smart meters will continue to be rolled out.

A total of 181.1 million units of electricity were billed last year, with the total amount collected being £25.65 million. The total installed generating capacity at the end of the year stood at 76.98 MW.

680 The number of consumers rose by 622 to 20,427. Despite this, CO₂ emissions saw a slight decrease from 161,543 tonnes in 2015 to 161,358 tonnes in 2016, reflecting the impact of the use of energy-efficient devices and increased energy awareness.

685 The Authority continues to upgrade and expand the network and the SCADA control unit that is used to monitor the generation and main distribution system, thus providing a better and faster response when dealing with power outages.

Training and development of technical staff continues this year with an emphasis on the new power station and its new technology.

690 Work is also programmed to continue on the replacement of substations, which now will be replaced to increase the reliability and robustness of the high voltage network. I am pleased to report no power outages due to problems of generation and the only case to report being one caused by the severing of a cable at a building site. How different the situation, Mr Speaker, to that which we inherited in late 2011, when power cuts were the order of the day due to old and insufficient plant, and when pollution was rife. In this context I would also like to express my gratitude to the CEO of the GEA and his team for successfully managing the major challenge of commissioning our new gas-fired power station.

695 AquaGib Ltd has maintained and improved on its levels of service and performance indicators in respect of the provision of potable and sea water, and sewerage services in Gibraltar. The company has continued to invest in capital projects as part of its asset replacement plan aimed at maintaining and improving the water infrastructure. The current approved investment plan is set at £3.2 million over the five-year period to 31st March 2020. During the last financial year, capital projects included: replacement of potable and sea water mains, and of customers' water meters, meter cupboards and meter manifolds; replacement of saltwater pumps at Moorish Castle Reservoir, North Mole, Gun Wharf and Haynes Cave; and replacement and installation of new Programmable Logic Controllers for Governor's Cottage reverse osmosis plants. Projects planned for this year include continuing the replacement of pipes and equipment and replacement and installation of new membranes for Governor's Cottage plants A and B, which will increase their efficiency. In addition to the above, AquaGib will invest approximately £650,000 in this period in replacing the high-pressure pump, variable frequency drive, energy recovery system and booster pump on each of the four reverse osmosis plants at Governor's Cottage. This investment has a payback period of around two years and will result in an energy saving of approximately 30%, worth thousands of pounds per annum.

710 Mr Speaker, the Department of the Environment's coastal and ground water monitoring programme continues to operate smoothly in conjunction with the Environmental Agency. Samples continue to be collected on a weekly and monthly basis from coastal monitoring sites, groundwater aquifers and from all of our designated bathing areas. The Department also collects and monitors marine sediment, phytoplankton, fish and shellfish tissue samples. In addition, this year the Department has begun a marine litter monitoring programme. Through the use of these data, both Gibraltar's coastal and ground water aquifers are seen to be meeting the objectives set out in the Water Framework Rules and the Marine Strategy Regulations. I am 720 pleased to confirm that our coastal waters are currently achieving good chemical and ecological status.

Almost all of our beaches have seen an improvement in water quality under the classification of the Bathing Waters Directive. Eastern Beach, Little Bay and Camp Bay have gone from good in 2015 to excellent in 2016, Catalan Bay went from sufficient to good in 2016, and Sandy Bay went 725 from poor to sufficient. Western Beach kept the same status of poor in both years. We all know the story of Western Beach well and the Government will not stop lobbying in Brussels, beyond Brexit, until Spain puts measures in place to resolve this problem.

Mr Speaker, until last year our beaches were only under my remit from an environmental perspective but after last year's Cabinet reshuffle beaches in their entirety, that is to say as a public amenity, now fall under my responsibility. I am most grateful to my friend and colleague the Hon. Samantha Sacramento for her work and dedication in this area in her time there. Similarly, I would also like to thank the former head of the Department, Nicky Guerrero, for his 730 work in managing one of our most popular assets. The Beaches Division now forms part of the Department of the Environment. Although I have only been working with this team for seven short months, I am delighted to welcome this very professional and dedicated group to our Environment and Heritage family.

We have begun work in earnest and are already making changes to the lifeguard service with our primary responsibility to ensure that people in the community enjoy swimming in a safe environment. This year the lifeguard induction course was expanded considerably. New 740 resources have been purchased, including observation chairs for all our beaches and the bathing pavilion, as have new RLSS regulation rescue boards, to ensure that these individuals have the tools they need to perform their duties efficiently and professionally. We will have a total of 42 lifeguards this summer and a total of 13 accessibility attendants. We will take stock after this year's bathing season and develop an induction manual with an exam to be completed by all 745 future lifeguards.

Further to all this, beachgoers this year will have the added facility of an extra beach storage unit for public use at Sandy Bay, Eastern Beach and Catalan Bay. This will greatly improve the free storage capabilities already in place at these beaches. Unfortunately, the weather delayed our pre-season works programme slightly, but I am happy to inform this House that all works will 750 be completed within the next few days.

Our beaches have suffered greatly this winter as a result of increased storm damage. We have had 10 episodes of adverse weather, which have affected all beaches to varying degrees. Four of these were severe. The beaches which suffered the most structural damage were Camp Bay and Catalan Bay, with Eastern Beach and Sandy Bay having the highest deposition of marine 755 litter as a result of the storms. In addition, the northern end of Eastern Beach had the added inconvenience of the adjacent tunnel works. This said, the department has worked tirelessly to ensure all repairs were carried out efficiently and I must also thank our colleagues in the Technical Services department for their assistance and support in this respect. Catalan Bay in particular has undergone a major renovation, not only in structural repairs but also in the removal of approximately 3,600 tonnes of rocks and the deposition of close to 10,000 tonnes of 760 screened sand as part of much needed beach regeneration. The Government will now consider, in consultation with residents, how best to protect this beach in the future, as the predicted increase in storm surges will undoubtedly threaten serious detrimental impact on this beach and could threaten the integrity of the sea wall.

Mr Speaker, this year saw the publication of the revised programme of measures on marine surveillance which has been submitted to the European Commission. The document sets out measures that will help to achieve and maintain Good Environmental Status in British Gibraltar

770 Territorial Waters and so fulfil the requirements of the Marine Strategy Framework Directive, consistent with the Government's commitment to a clean, safe, productive and biologically diverse marine environment.

In parallel with this work and with monitoring of marine litter and marine noise, the Department's scientific divers, now formally qualified as such, continue to monitor the progress of our restoration efforts, including the oyster and seagrass regeneration projects. Monitoring invasive seaweed has also become the remit of the Department's scientific team, in addition to protection of marine fauna such as cetaceans, sharks and seabirds.

775 The underwater camera continues to be very popular with the general public and is receiving widespread attention from citizens and scientists alike in Germany, the USA, the UK and other parts of Europe.

780 A salient example of the success of the Government's creation of marine conservation zones is Seven Sisters Marine Protected Area. This designation has helped preserve an expanse of natural reef habitat that was becoming increasingly difficult to find in the Bay of Gibraltar. A wide variety of marine life can now be seen flourishing in this area, and evidence suggests that the populations of some fish species, such as breams and groupers, are increasing there. The protected area in the new offshore reef at Sandy Bay is yielding similar results.

785 Mr Speaker, Gibraltar is now a world leader in protection of sharks, rays and skates, having become one of only three countries in the world to provide near complete protection to these in a move that has received worldwide attention and the praise of many international organisations and individuals, including UN Patron of the Oceans Lewis Pugh. According to the latest assessment of sharks in the Mediterranean carried out by the International Council for the Conservation of Nature, at least 53% of the sharks and rays native to the Mediterranean Sea are at risk of extinction and require urgent action to conserve their population. This latest move by the Government of Gibraltar will help ensure that British Gibraltar Territorial Waters are a refuge for these species and is in keeping with the Government's wider mandate to become a leader in the application of regional marine protection conventions such as the Barcelona Convention for the Protection of the Mediterranean Sea.

795 Mr Speaker, Government's commitment to the protection of marine resources and fish stocks is undeniable. We are clearly beginning to see the results of our conservation measures despite the hyperbole associated with foreign fishing vessels. Angling is now licensed and the problem of dozens of non-resident anglers lining our shores has completely disappeared.

800 The Fishing Working Group continues to meet on a regular basis to discuss the sustainable management of marine resources in our waters. Once again, I want to thank all of its members who give their free time for this vitally important role. As an example of the Group's work, a temporary ban on octopus fishing was implemented from 15th April to 15th May this year, a pioneering measure in the history of marine conservation in Gibraltar. The aim of the ban was to improve breeding success by protecting octopus when they are laying eggs. Similar bans are regularly implemented throughout the Mediterranean but no previous Government of Gibraltar has had the courage and commitment to do this. Other bans, targeting vulnerable species and areas over defined periods of time, are also being considered by the Group, along with reviewing new and additional minimum sizes for fish in BGTW.

810 Mr Speaker, we are now well into Gibraltar's third Bluefin tuna fishing season. This continues to be managed exceptionally well with officials from the department and the Landing Point staff monitoring and recording catch data.

815 I cannot emphasise enough the importance of this fisheries work. As the status of our waters within the EU changes with Brexit, it is hugely important that we show the world – which is watching closely – that we are perfectly able to manage our waters environmentally and that our waters are indeed ours to manage. Any relaxation of our efforts at protection, or of the seriousness with which we regulate tuna fishing, would be jumped upon by our enemies to make a case against our jurisdictional authority. This is why we will continue in this and other areas of environment to not only keep to EU standards but to surpass them too.

820 Mr Speaker, having a dedicated environmental enforcement division has demonstrated to many, including other governments, the EU Commission and the Secretariat of the International Convention on the Conservation of Atlantic Tuna, otherwise known as ICCAT, that Gibraltar is serious about environmental protection. The Environmental Protection and Research section has been working 365 days a year to ensure that environmental legislation is adhered to. In 2016, 825 the team reported 24 individuals for process in connection with offences against the marine regulations. Dedicated operations targeting specific breaches of the legislation are now occurring. Operation Spearfish, for example, proved extremely successful and has practically resulted in the cessation of the once-rife illegal spearfishing activities in BGTW.

Ensuring that vessels comply with the cetacean protocol is another important part of the 830 section's remit. Whales and dolphins are fully protected under local and international law and it is in our best interest to ensure that maritime activities, including the activities of tour operators, are consistent with the conservation objectives of the Government. In connection with this, the Department is considering designating an area within our waters as a dolphin reserve.

835 The team also carries out an important role when it comes to marine research and wildlife rescue. This year, turtles and numerous birds, including Griffon Vultures, Short-toed Eagles and Gannets, have been rescued. The release rate is high, thanks to the sterling work carried out by the GONHS Raptor Unit and the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic.

Moving on to environmental health, the Environmental Agency continues to work and advise 840 me in the areas of nuisance, building control, waste regulation, ship sanitation, COMAH, food inspections, food import controls and much else. Work last year included 1,200 inspections to ensure hygiene in food premises and 109 ship sanitation certificates, a relatively new service in our Port.

The Agency services and calibrates our three air quality monitoring stations, liaising with 845 pollution specialists, and continues to form part of the European Network of Drinking Water Regulators (ENDWARE). It continues to participate in the EU Vectornet programme, which is studying the distribution of the mosquito, tick, sand fly and other disease vectors.

The Agency's new website has been launched, providing easier access to users for the 850 dissemination of environmental information, and in the next few weeks all forms within the website will be able for filling in online. The mobile App 'Gibenviro' continues to be improved and provides information to the public on a variety of environmental topics, including bathing waters and recycling.

The Agency continues to advise the Government on all relevant legislation. Currently it is 855 doing sterling work with the Health and Safety Laboratory in the UK as the process of designing and constructing an LNG plant at the North Mole proceeds.

Mr Speaker, the state of the North Front Cemetery was the subject of a motion debated in 860 Parliament some months ago. I was very pleased that we were able to come to a consensus during the debate and agree on the final motion. I am conscious that some time has elapsed, but things can take time if we want to get them right. I am more than happy to announce that a contract has been awarded to an experienced contractor for the upkeep and maintenance of the planted areas of the cemetery. Discussions are advanced and work is due to start on 1st August. A maintenance programme has been prepared by the Department of the Environment in consultation with the Botanic Gardens, who have provided their input pro bono. This will ensure that areas of vegetation are maintained and not allowed to become overgrown and create 865 problems of access to visitors. There will also be a programme of planting of shrubs that are attractive and can survive the sometimes harsh conditions of the site. In addition, a Bill for an Act to replace the current outdated Cemetery Act will be published shortly. All told, the coming financial year will see great improvements to the state of the cemetery and I am confident that it will finally cease to be a source of embarrassment and consternation.

870 Mr Speaker, green spaces are a great benefit to our environment, with Commonwealth Park providing what most, even the erstwhile critics on the other side of the House ... an essential

875 area for leisure and respite from the stresses of city life as well as a filter for pollutants. We continue to plant trees wherever possible and we are seeing that we are victims of our own success – we cannot find places to plant them – as last year’s output of 193, although higher than it ever was pre 2012, is considerably less than that reported in previous years. That said, we will continue to explore areas where trees can be planted and, in so doing, increasing habitats for birds and insects within the urban environment, providing shade and removing carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

880 The Gibraltar Botanic Gardens at the Alameda continue to grow more beautiful and at the same time expand their work on taxonomy, ecology, conservation and, very particularly, education. Its partnership with the University of Gibraltar resulted in the University’s first Erasmus student, Elizabeth Ulloa Chaura from Chile, doing a three-month traineeship at the Alameda. April 2016 saw the 200th anniversary of the opening of the Gardens, marked with the opening of a tropical glasshouse. The gardens continue to raise their profile as a centre of excellence for the study and cultivation of succulents. The gardens’ curator has hosted visits to Gibraltar from high-profile succulentists, keen to view the Alameda’s important work in this field. Other work by the curator has included the exploration of new habitats for cacti in the Caribbean and visiting other botanic gardens to advise on succulent plant curation. The children’s education programme continues to go from strength to strength, with the gardens’ education team further improving its links with local schools and capacity to advise and assist these with the development of their own gardens.

890 The International Garden Photographer of the Year is arriving in Gibraltar for the first time next month. This promises to be a world-class outdoor exhibition that will undoubtedly attract considerable attention from residents and tourists visiting the Rock. To mark this occasion, the Department of the Environment and the Gardens have teamed up with the Photographer of the Year to introduce a new award known as Green Gibraltar, details of which will be announced shortly.

900 Mr Speaker, so much has changed in the Gibraltar Nature Reserve since I came into office in 2011, but it is also true that there is still so much to do. As part of the Government’s commitment to improving the value of the Nature Reserve, the Department published the Gibraltar Nature Reserve Management Plan as a consultation document in September. The plan contains a wide range of action points for the Upper Rock and other areas of ecological importance that were afforded protected status in 2013. Providing new facilities, improving existing sites and reintroducing species all form part of the numerous measures included in the consultation document. Many of these are well underway.

905 Perhaps more importantly, Mr Speaker, building on the success of the consultation process, I will shortly be making major strategic changes to the management of the Gibraltar Nature Reserve. These changes, informed by the draft management plan and by experience in protected areas elsewhere, will come at little financial cost but will project our Nature Reserve, with all its various types of heritage, well beyond our borders. Meanwhile our day-to-day work continues, with habitat management and creation being carried out in key locations and a number of initiatives to re-wild the reserve.

910 Mr Speaker, it is fair to say that the collaborative work of the Department and the GONHS has saved the now not so secretive Barbary partridge. I remember when the Opposition used to goad me with accusations that I was going to be singlehandedly responsible for the extinction of the Barbary partridge. How wrong they were yet again, Mr Speaker!

915 Our efforts are now focused on more ambitious initiatives. Earlier this year, the Department began a project aimed at attracting the osprey, a spectacular fish-eating bird of prey, back to the Rock. A successful reintroduction programme is currently underway in Cádiz and the Department of the Environment has recently joined the regional efforts to increase population numbers in consultation with the GONHS as well as regional experts from Andalucía. The installation of artificial nests with decoys is aimed at enticing passing ospreys to stay. Plans to reintroduce other species are also active.

925 We will continue to vigorously pursue our policy of improving the Gibraltar Nature Reserve. The beautification works currently underway at Douglas Path, Mount Misery and Europa Foreshore serve to demonstrate this ongoing commitment and there is much more to come.

Mr Speaker, tourist sites are another recent and welcome acquisition of my portfolio. Once again, I have acquired an excellent and dedicated team of administrative staff and site officers whose knowledge and experience in managing a tourist product are invaluable to Gibraltar.

930 The Tourist Board's past investment in its sites in the Upper Rock coupled with the transformation of the Nature Reserve have made all the difference in upgrading this asset. This year we will introduce an audio guide system at the World War II Tunnels. The feedback received from visitors to Windsor Bridge has been excellent and I have no doubt that the Skywalk will have similar success. It is due to be completed in a few short weeks and opened to the public shortly after as part of a larger renovation project within the Mount Misery area. Other improvements will also be seen soon in the Europa Point area, including new viewing platforms and interpretation.

940 Mr Speaker, I can report that, as a result of the culling programme, the long-term trend in the breeding population of gulls in Gibraltar continues to be one of decline. Despite the limitations in gull control that are imposed when working in an urban environment, surveys show that the urban population now appears to be decreasing as well. Indeed, the number of house calls received and attended by the Avian Control Unit decreased substantially during 2016 and this is most likely as a result of the sustained effort in controlling the gull population in built-up areas as well as elsewhere around the Rock. This often difficult and dangerous work, which includes removing nests from tall rooftops, is one of the most valued services that is performed for the public by the Avian Control Unit, and their efforts and dedication deserve to be highlighted. Although the general trend of gulls in Gibraltar is one of decline, a small increase in breeding birds has been detected on the Great East Sand Slopes, where the topography makes control using the current methods difficult. Discussions are currently underway to explore other more natural options for controlling nesting gulls on the eastern slopes, including the reintroduction of predators such as the red fox.

950 Mr Speaker, from the outset, our management of the iconic Barbary macaque has progressed in ways that avoid the need for extensive culls, such as used to be the case in the past. While contraceptive implants have been used for several years now, they are of limited duration and sometimes not 100% effective. As of September last year, the Macaque Management Team, run by the Department of the Environment and which includes the GONHS and the Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic, has introduced surgical contraception by way of laparoscopy. The Gibraltar Veterinary Clinic has so far treated 29 macaques from most of the groups, approximately a third of the females of breeding age. It is important to note that the animals that have been contracepted are females which have already had one or more young in past years, so they are not denied the opportunity of becoming mothers. This is crucial in macaque society. The numbers of females sterilised in this way is also limited so that there will always be some within every group which will bear young. This method will have the long-term effect of stopping population growth, while allowing social structures to remain and not threaten the continuation of the Gibraltar macaque population. All this is being monitored by the team in consultation with Prof. Agustin Fuentes of Notre Dame University, Indiana USA, a great friend of Gibraltar and Chair of the Macaque Research Panel.

960 As an additional management tool, this year has also seen the start of a programme to carry out genetic fingerprinting of the whole macaque population of Gibraltar. Correct management of our Barbary macaques is essential, and not just to reduce the nuisance they can cause in built-up areas. This species is endangered, as reflected in the recent up-listing of the species to Appendix I of the Convention on the Illegal Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora. The up-listing, which was supported by the International Primate Protection League (IPPL) and over which I was consulted in my personal capacity as a macaque conservation biologist, 975 highlights the importance of the species and of Gibraltar as a refuge for this primate which is facing disappearance from its North African habitat.

Monkey Talk Gibraltar continues to work closely with the Department in all areas of education on the macaques, and I thank Brian Gomila for his energy in promoting responsible enjoyment of our monkeys.

980 Mr Speaker, I believe it is fair to say that the Government has largely resolved the problem of macaques impacting on our built-up areas in a large way, which, as I said repeatedly, would take a few years of patient work. We are in an exciting position where we can now fine tune our management methods so that all of us can once again start to think of our monkeys in a positive light and as an asset to Gibraltar.

985 Mr Speaker, the reshuffle also delivered Heritage on to my desk. I must start by paying tribute to the excellent work which my predecessor, the Hon. Steven Linares, carried out until I took over late last year. His exquisite restoration of Wellington Front is but one example of his achievements. (Hon. Chief Minister and Hon. Miss S M Sacramento: Hear, hear.)

990 I am excited at the prospects ahead, particularly in areas where Heritage, Environment and Education, all areas now under my responsibility, can come together. The expanded Department of the Environment, Heritage and Climate Change now includes a Heritage Division with three officers, and is therefore more resourced than ever before. It is important that the different stakeholders have available points of contact and support within Government and with this comes a sense of common purpose.

995 Following consultation with stakeholders, a new Heritage and Antiquities Act is in the final stages of preparation and will be published as a Bill very soon. This will clearly define the responsibilities that will govern all Heritage matters, including an expanded listing of assets in its schedules. The Act will set up a Heritage and Antiquities Commission. I have additionally revived the Heritage Action Committee in a revised format as a smaller outfit of key players who can 1000 advise me when quick action is required. It will continue to function as it will complement and not be replaced by the Commission. I am pleased to report to having chaired two meetings of HAC so far and these have proved very useful and productive. The next stage is the development of a Heritage Management Plan, a tool to give effect to the requirements of the Act. The plan will identify those areas of heritage which we regard as important and value the most. It will also 1005 allow developers to have a clear picture of how their proposals might be viewed in the context of heritage, which will be useful for planners. In this way we will develop a coherent strategy, where development and heritage are de-conflicted at an early stage. Work has started on a draft and I will publish the final document after consultation with stakeholders, when it is completed.

1010 Over the coming year, I will be looking at further ways of managing and improving our heritage. We are blessed with a richness of heritage that is the envy of many, but this brings with it responsibility. Government cannot tackle so much on its own or at once, so we will be looking at ways in which we might attract outside investment. The Moorish Castle is one area that is being looked at after the World Heritage success. Its restoration is something that the Gibraltar Museum, currently the managers of the site, are keen to embark upon and I am 1015 discussing with them ways of achieving this goal in the medium term. Plans will be developed during the course of this financial year.

This is the first Budget speech after our success on the World Heritage front, so I feel it is essential that we should acknowledge this success, without doubt, as the most important achievement in Gibraltar's heritage history. I wish to record here the huge contribution made by 1020 my colleague the Hon. Dr Joseph Garcia, who steered the bid through to its positive conclusion, and once again my predecessor as Minister for Heritage, Steven Linares. (Banging on desk) The bid took many years to achieve and hurdles to overcome and we now look forward to the next chapter in the story. In recognition of the efforts made, I must also thank and credit the countless hours dedicated to this achievement by the team of professionals and support staff
1025 within the Gibraltar Museum led by Clive Finlayson, who helped not only with the research and promotion but the logistics and refurbishment of the site and its access. (Banging on desk)

I am pleased to announce that the new viewing platforms at the Europa Advance Batteries have now been completed and that I am currently finalising plans for their opening. From here visitors will enjoy magnificent views of the Gorham's Cave Complex, the imposing Rock itself and the Strait of Gibraltar and the north coast of Africa beyond. Access to the caves themselves has to be strictly controlled because of the nature of the access and also the sensitivity of the site, so the viewing platform will accommodate a large public. This type of solution has been applied at other World Heritage Sites with similar characteristics and we will strive to make the site as accessible as possible within its constraints. We have already improved walkways, which means that two levels of access down to the caves are now possible. One of these allows close views without affecting the site at all and will permit us to have more visitors going down to the caves than before to enjoying their splendour and majesty. We will always be looking at ways, especially involving new technology, of making the site accessible to the widest possible public. While on the subject, I am pleased to report that the Gibraltar Museum will this year be returning to the two months of excavation at Gorham's and Vanguard Caves, starting very shortly.

The Gibraltar Museum recently boasted an attendance close to 2,000 people at their Open Day. It shows that heritage is very much alive in Gibraltar, and this House needs to be aware of this. The Museum has completed a full refurbishment in two years. Last year the Chief Minister opened a new wing on the ground floor which highlighted the now globally popular Nana and Flint. They have been a remarkable success. This year I was able to complete the circle by opening the brand new wing on the first floor dedicated to military and social history with a gallery which is very close to my heart: ornithology. We have a museum worthy of being called our national Museum, reflecting the diversity of our history, natural history and heritage.

The dissemination of heritage information at all levels is something that we need to encourage. I am pleased to confirm that steps are being taken in this area with the view of producing a series of publications, some of which will integrate heritage and the environment.

The Heritage Division has also participated in other projects of international importance, such as the restoration of the 16th-century Franciscan frescos discovered at the Convent. This project emphasises the importance of collaboration, as it was jointly co-ordinated and funded by the Convent, the Gibraltar Heritage Trust, the Friends of Gibraltar Heritage, and of course the Government.

Another milestone in the protection of our heritage was the relocation of the old MoD gatehouse at the entrance to the former dockyard. This clearly demonstrates that this Government will do everything in its power to preserve our buildings of historic importance.

The Gibraltar Heritage Trust enjoys a very good and open relationship with the Department. They are firm in their advice and we welcome this, consulting them on many matters and not just for statutory reasons. We believe in collaboration and common objectives and we should also include and thank all the volunteers who give of their free time. We value their support.

This year also saw the renovation of anchors by volunteer Bart van Thienen, of Europa Foreshore fame, come to fruition with a deployment at Ocean Village, with a number of others in the pipeline. (Banging on desk)

Looking ahead to the rest of the year, we are consolidating our mobile heritage asset register that will keep track of all our moveable heritage such as cannons, cannonballs etc. As part of this process, we intend to promote an initiative to encourage the registration of artefacts of heritage value that persons might have in their possession. The intention is that the individual would be allowed to retain the artefact after it has been recorded for posterity. We will also be concentrating on developing plans for the refurbishment and maintenance of the City walls and fortifications, amongst them the Northern Defences where, as the Deputy Chief Minister described yesterday, sterling work has been carried out over the past few years. But there is still a lot of work that needs to be done and many heritage assets that need repair and maintenance, such as the World War II structures in different areas of the Upper Rock or, as I have already mentioned, the old prison compound at the Moorish Castle. These should be seen as 1080 opportunities for urban regeneration and new tourist attractions, enhancing walks and bringing these areas to life again.

Mr Speaker, my responsibility for urban renewal is now integrated into my Heritage Division. The Urban Renewal Committee is now meeting and is reviewing legislation that will encourage renewal and protect the urban environment, and I want to thank once again my friends Samantha Sacramento and Paul Balban for their contribution to this committee. In this role, I seek to encourage the sort of development that will revitalise our urban areas while protecting their features. I am therefore pleased to see projects developing such as at Police Barracks and the boutique hotel in the Upper Town. Ways of formally encouraging such schemes are being considered. In collaboration with the Ministry for Culture and the Gibraltar Heritage Trust, we will shortly be launching a new street art initiative to also refresh some of our more drab urban areas.

The Garrison Library is another of my new responsibilities, and one that has changed considerably since it was handed over to Government in 2011. It is now used on a daily basis by local researchers and students alike, who make good use of its collections. The library has been building on its research output, with its focus on Gibraltar, through key projects, including an ESRC funded project together with the University of Essex on a major history of Gibraltar, with close to 400 interviews conducted which will be made available to the public. The Government funded the final conference for this project, which was a great success and which took place in the Garrison Library in February. Another major project, the Encyclopaedia of Migrants, is another example. Working with EU partners, funded by the EU with Government support, this has allowed this project to produce an important insight into migrations, including those in Gibraltar, and will culminate in a conference here in Gibraltar this week. Every year, together with the office of the Deputy Chief Minister, the Garrison Library organises an international symposium on self-determination, which is now in its fifth edition. Mr Speaker, as a former member of the Garrison Library Committee many decades ago, I am very excited to build on my new working relationship with the library team with a view to ensuring we protect it for future generations as the rich historical and cultural treasure that it is. I will be working closely with the team to assess ways of making improvements to the library, including increasing its revenue streams.

Mr Speaker, I see the coming year as one of consolidating systems for the protection and management of our rich natural and historical heritage. While this is being done we will be looking at new tangible projects where we can begin to make a difference in terms of sites and attract investment.

Mr Speaker, as you have seen, the daily work of the revitalised Department goes hand in hand with contributors from other Government Departments. Using our collaborative ethos, the newly constituted Department now works closely with colleagues in Town Planning, Land Property Services, Housing and the Technical Services Department. Preserving our heritage really is a team effort.

I repeat: this administration's environmental ethics have always been deep rooted, from the days that the first GSLP Government created a Ministry for the Environment in the 1980s for the first time in Gibraltar, and have never consisted of doing the bare minimum in order to comply with law, whether it be local or international law. Our track record clearly proves this, as there can be no doubt that, based on the foundations of decades ago, this GSLP/Liberal Government has achieved more for the environment than any other in Gibraltar's history. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) And this is for good reason, Mr Speaker. Environmental issues are no longer fringe. Environmental stories now regularly make the headlines and are not just the cute and cuddly good-news story at the end of a bulletin, for climate change is the greatest threat to the world as we know it. Dare I say, Mr Speaker, in these difficult days of despicable, criminal, terrorist attacks, that in the medium to long term climate change is an even bigger threat. These are not my words, Mr Speaker. Richard Clarke, the former National Co-ordinator for Security and Counter-Terrorism in the United States, surprised a TV interviewer when he stated just this on the day after the Manchester bombing. If left unchecked, climate change will result in more death and more suffering than the world has experienced in decades. Floods, drought, famine, extinction of crop species and migration en masse would all occur as a result. Is this the world we want to leave our children and grandchildren? We must all play our part. We must live more sustainably. We must reduce our consumption of electricity and power, our use of plastics and our reliance on meat products as food. Apart from environmental sense, it makes financial sense too. These are not examples of Kellyanne Conway's famed alternative facts. Each and every one of us has a duty to move firmly towards functioning sustainably; and as representatives of the people, for us this is especially relevant. As the great US equal rights campaigner John Lewis once said: 'If not us, then who? If not now, then when?'

Mr Speaker, as this House is aware, the University of Gibraltar is an independent entity, but I would not be doing it justice if I were not to mention at least some of the achievements of the past year and plans for the coming one. I will quote from a letter I recently received from Prof. Christina Slade, interim Chair of the Academic Board:

As Chair of the Academic board of the University of Gibraltar I am writing with the support of the Board to commend the work of the executive over the past eighteen months and to congratulate HM Government of Gibraltar for their initiative....

The complex policy frameworks necessary for a university are in place, including quality assurance, academic governance and higher degree and research procedures. In the first 18 months there have been 278 students (45% higher than expected) in 19 courses. 13 nationalities are represented.

The University is now recognised by and has associate membership of such major bodies as the Universities UK and the Association of Commonwealth Universities.

Highlights over the past year have included the launch of the Commonwealth Scholarship funded by the Government, the doctoral programme, establishment of key advisory groups, establishment of Professional Certificates of Competence, and developing of external sources of income.

The University has ambitious plans, which include the construction of student accommodation, a new language centre and business school and, in collaboration with the Department of Education, the offering of a Gibraltar custom-made Postgraduate Certificate in Education. I would like to commend the board and the Vice-Chancellor for their work in driving the University forward with such commitment.

Mr Speaker, this is of course my first Budget speech as Minister for Education and I want to thank my predecessor, my colleague the Hon. Gilbert Licudi, for his great work in this area. It was from him that I inherited two new schools and the University, and also a most professional Department that functions extremely efficiently and well. I am also happy to say that now, as then, education remains a top priority for the Government.

Indeed the last financial year has seen substantial change and exciting developments. As we look into the future I am extremely confident in our ability to build on what we have already achieved, delivering on a change programme that will allow our youth to develop as citizens in an ever-changing world, ready to make an important contribution to Gibraltar's future and beyond. Investment in Education is what ultimately should allow Gibraltar to thrive as we face the challenges that will invariably be thrust upon us.

As my friend the Chief Minister mentioned yesterday, Government's commitment towards higher education is unparalleled. Financial year 2016-17 saw 318 mandatory undergraduate scholarships, 169 postgraduate scholarships and 28 discretionary awards. This amounts to a total of 515 new scholarships – a year-on increase of 89 awards. The number of students who have benefitted from higher education during 2015-16 amounted to over a thousand – 1,038 to be exact. Moreover, further opportunities for personal development continue to be accessible through distance learning courses and the highly successful Washington Internship Programme, which has now run consecutively for four academic years and has provided a total of 79 graduates with unrivalled professional experience and knowledge through select work placements.

1175 The proficiency of the public service has a direct impact on all the community, and as such it is imperative to ensure that personnel receive continuous professional development and statutory training to deliver an effective service. An investment of over £½ million was allocated for this specific purpose and has, to name a few, provided specialised essential courses in the 1180 fields of Financial Services and Gaming, Tax, Archives, Maritime Law, Economic Development, Technical Services and Town Planning. Professional development continues to be promoted through management and leadership courses, teacher training programmes and accountancy.

The private sector has also benefitted from over £150,000 of central training funds, and whilst accountancy and maritime operations continue to be the primary courses in demand, it has also promoted other sectors such as the Gibraltar Dental Association, with dental nursing 1185 diplomas for nurses practising in this field.

The Student Support Homework club has been a resounding success and provides the ideal set-up and environment for students to study after school hours.

The financial year also saw the launch of the new Project Search. This has been set up specifically to assist school leavers with special educational needs to identify apposite 1190 employment and support the transition.

The minor works programme for financial year 2016-17 included external and internal refurbishment works and was designed to complement Government's plans for the redevelopment of various schools under the umbrella of Education, and primarily, but not exclusively, targeted schools that are not earmarked for redevelopment. These included the 1195 continuation of the Design and Technology workshop overhaul at Bayside School and works to improve accessibility at Westside School, which included constructing an extension to create extra classroom space for the Learning Support Unit, the installation of a lift to access first floor specialist rooms and the rendering of the external façade. Additionally, the Gibraltar College has gained an extra ICT suite and the replacement of windows to improve ventilation. Rendering and 1200 painting works to the external and internal façade of St Joseph's First and Middle schools were completed, thus extending the lifecycle and heritage value of this historical building and providing a much-needed facelift. The reception lobby shared by both schools was redesigned to improve security and control access. An elevated first-floor extension was constructed in St Mary's School to provide an assembly/indoor activity facility large enough to host the entire 1205 pupil population, and a full double-glazing window replacement was undertaken in all communal corridors to improve ventilation and building insulation. Works at St Paul's School included repairs to part of the external façade, the refurbishment of the student library and removal of timeworn skylights, with modifications to the roof structure and tile covering to improve building insulation. Structural works were undertaken at St Bernard's Nursery to address water 1210 ingress and preserve the value of this old building. The window replacement programme was sensitively undertaken to optimise the use of natural lighting whilst observing its unique heritage. The final stage of the window replacement programme at Bleak House, another heritage building, was completed, and all obsolete air-conditioning units were replaced to comply with EU regulations.

We are now about to embark on the works programme for 2017-18. This will include redesigning the reception and lobby entrances to both secondary schools and relocating the school secretaries' offices to augment student safety and monitor access. CCTV will be installed strictly around the school perimeters. Some essential works will be carried out at Bayside and Westside, primarily to ensure compliance with health and safety standards and to make certain 1220 that the premises are fit for purpose and the school continues to operate effectively until new premises are delivered. Works listed for the Gibraltar College include reconfiguring the Resource Centre. The John Mackintosh Hall annexe building will benefit from a much-needed sports hall window replacement and overhead doorway canopies to protect students and the building façade from inclement weather. The renovation of St Joseph's Middle and First Schools will 1225 continue on to the last stage of the external programme – the refurbishment of the Band Room, housing the music suite of St Joseph's Middle School – and will commence the first stage of the 1230 internal refurbishment programme, that is all top floor classrooms, corridors and stairwells and offices. In addition, the linoleum replacement schedule will also be continued and an extra area of canopy roofing will be installed in the playground of St Joseph's First to provide shelter for the 1235 little ones. In the same vein, it is also sensible to continue investing in the preservation and expansion of St Mary's School building to meet the increasing demand of pre-schooling and growth in pupil population. This will entail part reroofing to address rainwater ingress, building a ground level extension and covered play area to relocate the nursery area and enable additional classroom space, and structural works to ensure the integrity of ground level flooring. A survey 1240 of the drainage system servicing the school and surrounding elevated areas is currently taking place to identify an effective method of rerouting the excessive volume of storm water that can collect in the area to prevent further damage to the school building and property during torrential rain. Works earmarked for the Hebrew Primary School include repairs to flooring, the refurbishment of the lobby area and refurbishment of the assembly hall. Varyl Begg Nursery has 1245 historical issues with humidity and water ingress, so the extension that serves as the reception/lobby entrance will be renovated. Additional temporary classroom and toilet facilities will be made available at St Martin's School to absorb the increase in pupil numbers expected in September 2017. Plans for St Paul's School include the refurbishment of the pre-school nursery facilities, the installation of a ramp at the school's main entrance to improve accessibility, damp proofing and redecorating works to a number of areas and rerouting of storm water drainage.

1250 Mr Speaker, on matters relating to special educational needs it is crucially important to note that the rise in the number of children requiring additional support is remarkable. Teachers and learning support assistants have therefore received further training in special needs in order to deliver the best provision possible. All six special educational needs co-ordinators, known as SENCOs, successfully completed the National SENCO Award course. There have been organised talks on Tourette's and autism from visiting speakers attended by teachers and learning support assistants, and a number of teachers have travelled to conferences in the UK with the aim of 1255 increasing their knowledge and then sharing good practice with other members of the profession. Furthermore, workshops have also been organised on different areas relating to special educational needs.

The secondary sector continues to develop more vocational courses through ASDAN, the Award Scheme Development and Accreditation Network, supporting children who perhaps cannot cope with the demands of the GCSEs. This gives them an alternative pathway and an opportunity to showcase their knowledge and skills.

1260 Last year a number of teachers completed the Dignified Care and Responsibility Train the Trainer course; this year these teachers have delivered the course to a number of schools and will continue to do this next academic year until all schools have been covered. Our teachers and support staff need to know, and indeed feel reassured, that their safety and that of the pupils under their care is paramount.

1265 On assessment of pupil learning, a change to the National Curriculum and the assessments of pupils with the removal of levels has necessitated engagement in collaborative work with schools, subject leaders and experts in the UK. Formative assessment refers to the part of everyday teaching and learning that enables a pupil to build on their learning; summative assessment gives information on a pupil's overall performance at a specific point in their 1270 learning. Both are considered crucial in order to guarantee that all children reach their maximum potential. We have therefore invested a considerable amount of time and effort in order to address these changes and come up with viable mechanisms to guarantee success.

1275 Teachers can and do make a tremendous difference in the lives of the young people under their tuition and in their care, and as such can impact on the wellbeing of the children and their families. Just as the reverse is true, so also the right teacher at the right time can define a child's wellbeing and ability to fulfil his or her full potential. In fact, quality assurance is high on our agenda. This year we successfully launched a revised code of practice for teachers in partnership with the Gibraltar Teachers' Association. The main aim is for teachers to be well informed of 1280 what is expected of them as teachers. It affords us the tools to celebrate good practice and challenge underperformance when this happens. The safety net of the code gives us the 1285 procedure whence to trigger disciplinary, capability and grievance procedures should this be necessary. We will also be developing and enforcing a zero-tolerance policy to ensure the profession is treated with respect and that teachers can go about their duties with confidence that they are fully supported.

1285 We also have plans, in partnership with the University of Gibraltar, as I briefly mentioned earlier, to produce a bespoke Postgraduate Certificate in Education, offering a single pathway into teaching and making us the gatekeepers, assuring the quality of the product. This should enable us to have more of a say in terms of recruiting the best teachers possible, using our schools as teaching practice schools, monitoring student teachers at all times and guiding them 1290 through the process.

Mr Speaker, a post of Assistant Education Adviser has been regraded to full adviser, and the roles of education advisers have been redefined to reflect our emerging needs. Areas such as child welfare, staff management and curriculum development with quantitative and qualitative quality assurance will now be the responsibility of the successful applicants, who will be in post 1295 by 1st September this year. We will also be moving in all areas relating to leading through technology in education.

The focus on improving interactivity through technology and how to make this more effective in teaching and learning continues to be the main driving force of the use of technology in our schools. The initiative centres predominantly around access to handheld devices for teachers 1300 and pupils. Training on how to operate within this platform has been provided through an Apple educator offering in-services and online access to teachers. What began two years ago as a project pioneered at St Bernard's Middle School has been laid out to other schools to varying degrees. Governor's Meadow First School and St Martin's Special School in particular have received equipment and training that has allowed them to make significant headway in using 1305 these technologies. The planning stages to equip and train staff at St Mary's First School, St Joseph's First School and Middle School are already arranged and set for the coming academic year. As well as this, all other schools continue to develop this initiative within certain year groups and classes and it is expected that the full programme will be rolled out in stages to all schools. The technical infrastructure of schools is a key factor in the successful development of 1310 this programme. It relies on robust and secure access to the internet. This will be provided in all schools this year, whether or not they form part of the new schools project.

The Department of Education has worked in conjunction with the Kusuma Trust, University College London and the University of Gibraltar to provide training in programming and coding for teachers. The course was taught by lecturers from UCL's Faculty of Computer Science.

1315 The Department of Education continues to develop and formalise an initiative started by my predecessor to consolidate Gibraltar Studies. Much progress has been made, initially at first and middle school level, and we will see important developments during the coming academic year.

A substantial amount of work has also been carried out in relation to child protection and safeguarding. The Tier 2 Safeguarding course has now been revamped in line with the Signs of 1320 Safety model, and four of the designated officers from different schools have attended this. The rest will be completing it in October. Since October, 86 teachers plus learning support assistants have completed the Tier 1 Safeguarding course. Plans are well underway to ensure that more teachers receive this training throughout the next academic year.

We are currently reviewing and assessing all our procedures in relation to child protection, 1325 revising our policies, training and retraining teachers, offering in-service provision, sending teachers on conferences abroad, working closely with the Royal Gibraltar Police, Care Agency and the Youth Service. We take these matters very seriously and will leave no stone unturned in order to guarantee the protection of children at all times. Recent work on a Sexting Presentation produced in partnership with other agencies and aimed at parents is testament to this 1330 commitment.

The addition of an auxiliary role to the team of educational psychologists (EPs) has allowed our existing EPs to engage in more in-depth complex work with our rising number of Special Educational Needs pupils. The assistant, a fully integrated member of the team, completed a Joint Council Qualification approved Certificate in Psychometric Testing and Assessment and 1335 Access Arrangements, which allowed her to cover all academic assessments, thus helping with the transition and exam access reviews. This year, the team of psychologists additionally benefitted from the support of an intern from the University of Louisiana. Plans are already 1340 underway to continue to afford other interns the opportunity of accumulating the necessary hours required in a professional setting and to take advantage of this in order to help and support our schools. The team of psychologists also continue to deliver on their drop-in evening clinics aimed at parents and carers who have concerns about their children's learning, development or behaviour.

Mr Speaker, child and adolescent mental health is a subject of great concern. I co-chair the CAMHS Committee with my colleague the Minister for Health and Care, and we will this year be 1345 making recommendations on ways to improve provision and to support the professionals, including the teachers so often in the front line in helping young people with mental health concerns.

The recently launched language school at the Gibraltar College continues to attract attention. There are currently 118 pupils enrolled – 95 reading Spanish and 23 French – across different 1350 age ranges, starting at the early age of six. The value of this initiative is more than significant: bilingualism is part of Gibraltar's very being. Research points at bilingualism giving both an educational advantage to children and delaying the onset of dementia in the elderly by at least five years. We will not let bilingualism die. Not only are we investing in the language school, but I am also commencing a dialogue with the Department and headteachers to study ways of 1355 actively encouraging bilingualism day to day through our schools.

Mr Speaker, changes are afoot in the way that we teach our children, and there are many more changes to come. This will include a review of holiday periods and term lengths, and of the provision of subjects such as religious education, languages and music.

One thing that will certainly not change is the commitment to charity work. Throughout the 1360 academic year schools have served the community, of which they are an integral part, tremendously. Numerous charities have been supported, thousands of pounds raised, countless hours invested in order to support those in need. Worthy of mention is the Holding Hands initiative held at Bayside, Standing Strong against Domestic Violence, and indeed the Mental Health Awareness Week organised by Westside.

We also continue to work in partnership with the Kusuma Trust and we are extremely grateful for their ongoing support every year in events such as the British Science Museum Outreach Programme and Maths Week. The ever popular university talks and interview techniques session or indeed the Excellent Students for Top Universities continue to be fully 1365 funded by the Trust. Additionally, once again this year their Firetech Coding initiative has been immensely valuable in showing young children how to code.

Mr Speaker, it has been an absolute privilege to have worked for the past eight months in Education. I have loved every minute. I have met, and met again, so many people, teachers, support staff, admin staff, and of course the students themselves. In my visits to every school and college I have learnt so much, and realised so many things. We have a tremendous wealth of 1375 talent and absolute dedication to education and to our young people. I have seen that our education system is working well but that there is also huge untapped potential. I have every intention of tapping it and making it flow.

The 1974 Education and Training Act is absolutely out of date. Together with education professionals I am working on a thorough review of the Act, which I will be bringing to the House 1380 before the year is out. I will be reactivating the Advisory Council on Religious Education and reviewing its composition and function in keeping with Gibraltar's diverse society.

1385 Mr Speaker, in the context of widening the ambit of Education, I would like to highlight and thank the board and sponsors of the Young Enterprise initiative, and of course those participating students and the teachers. Year in, year out, our young people excel in the work that they produce and gain skills outside the classroom which will serve them well in later life.

Because education spills over into Culture and the services offered by the Youth Service and youth associations, and by dance, music and performing arts academies and groups, I work very closely with my colleague the Minister for Culture and Youth, Steven Linares, in building bridges between us all.

1390 Mr Speaker, as the Chief Minister announced in his speech on opening this debate, the recommendations of the working party on co-education have been accepted by Government. The working party believes that education should be much wider than the purely academic and the educational environment should reflect reality as it is – that is to say males and females going about their lives, socially and at work, side by side. It should nurture in children, from the very onset and throughout their schooling, belief in the self-evident fact that, although not the same, men and women are equal. This should also help them develop social skills with ease as they interact with members of the other gender on a daily basis under the supervision of their teachers.

1400 The deliberations, discussions and research lead to the conclusion that a smooth transition from single-gender to co-educational structures should see both social and educational benefits from a school environment that is more attuned to society than the mono-gender model, which, for a range of historical and other reasons, reflects past and not contemporary societies and their values. The interpretation of education goes clearly beyond schools as mere examination factories obsessed with examination results. Education is an open-ended process which works largely through conversation, example and relationships. It must be dialogical rather than just curricular.

1405 Schools should endeavour to aim at forming and educating the whole person in the belief that all persons should have an equal chance to share in the life of the community and the wider world. Education should lead children to seek and uphold the truth, to be critical and to be able to discriminate positively, to be respectful of others and of the environment; it should encourage interaction with others to arrive at informed, committed action. It is an ongoing cognitive, emotional and social process; a process of living in which the end is not the important factor, but the process itself.

1410 The working party therefore firmly believes that a co-education setting is the best way of achieving this vision of education. Government will therefore fully take on board these recommendations. The changes envisaged for the better are substantial as we will be taking this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to reform education further.

1420 Once again the Chief Minister referred to some of these. In our proposals, all first schools take on children from pre-school to year 2, substantially increasing nursery provision and therefore operating the same system of catchment areas for nurseries as we do for schools, thereby eliminating the need to allocate places after assessing the individual needs of respective families. High attainment in first school should correlate with attendance at Government nursery. Furthermore, an additional and important advantage is that children move to middle school at the end of Key Stage 1; the formal assessment opportunities and quality assurance mechanisms are therefore improved as a direct result of this.

1425 Middle schools remain of similar size, taking children from year 3 to year 6, setting up a smooth transfer at the exit phase of Key Stage 2, with all the pertinent formal assessments completed across all our middle schools in line with what happens in England and Wales. This arrangement once again makes it easier to quality assure and track the journey of children. We place a very strong emphasis on added value; schools must ensure that all children develop their true potential. We therefore need the assessment structures in place to ensure that we can confidently measure this. This arrangement is expected to create a more standard entry into secondary education.

1435 Students then would commence their secondary schooling at Bayside and Westside at the start of Key Stage 3, at the beginning of year 7, with both schools operating on a co-educational basis. With GCSE getting harder, it is important to have the specialisation from year 7. A totally new Bayside and Westside School will be built and would accommodate the changes.

1440 Post-16 provision will operate completely under a consortium arrangement jointly administered by the two respective headteachers of Bayside and Westside and the Principal of the Gibraltar College, with the College additionally providing a completely revamped vocational framework. The Gibraltar College will continue to deliver on adult education and professional courses, with the recently established language school for children expanded to include Mandarin and computer programming, and the teaching of English as a foreign language enhanced.

1445 Vocational pathways will also be introduced at an earlier stage in the new Bayside and Westside at the exit phase of Key Stage 3 to include structured outreach work-experience programmes. This fills a big gap in our current education setup.

1450 Mr Speaker, I wish to thank all the members of the working group on co-education for the professional way in which they have tackled their task. I recall that the Opposition chided the Government with revealing the names of the members of the group, implying that this did not in fact exist, despite my predecessor having clearly stated that the group had indeed been formed. I am proud to name them all again by way of thanking them for the important task that they have performed. They are: Michelle Barabich, Headteacher of Westside; Michael Tavares, Headteacher of Bayside; Kenneth Saez, Headteacher of St Bernard's Middle; Dymrna Holmes, 1455 the SEO of the Department of Education; Stuart Borastero, the President of the Gibraltar Teachers' Association; Angelique Linares, a parent; Steven Reyes, a parent; and of course Darren Grech, accomplished swimmer and acting Director of Education, who pulled it all together and makes such a tremendous contribution to education day in and day out. Many professionals, groups and members of the public made valuable representations to the working group and I 1460 thank them all for this. Every single representation was given full consideration.

1465 Mr Speaker, as the Chief Minister also proudly announced, Government will also build a new St Martin's School, Notre Dame School, St Anne's School, Governor's Meadow School, Bishop Fitzgerald School, Bayside and Westside. (Banging on desks) Already a strong and dedicated team is hard at work in preparing these ambitious but perfectly achievable projects, which will be carried out avoiding disruption to the students. The details concerning all of these will shortly be announced. As you can imagine, it will involve careful planning to execute, and stakeholders, especially the teaching profession, will be fully and intimately involved in planning and rolling out these changes. Indeed, Mr Speaker, I intend to create a number of focused working groups to guide us through the details of the changes and the proposals announced today, in order to 1470 ensure that our children and our children's children reap the benefits of these exciting times.

1475 One important aim is the increased involvement of teachers outside the immediate remit of their schools and classrooms. There cannot be any distance between the Department and the schools. Teachers, especially heads and deputies, have a tremendous part to play in progressing education and they must play a larger part in this at departmental level.

1480 Mr Speaker, the perception of education is changing. It is much more than exams and much more than schools. It is how society prepares its children and youth to take their place in our beloved community. Today we have seen that huge steps are being taken to take this forward.

1485 Over the past eight months or so I have visited all the schools, most on more than one occasion. Most recently, over the past few weeks I have been to the comprehensive schools to see the students sitting some of their major examinations with great discipline and commitment. In a couple of months' time we will all be taking pride in the exam results of our students. I will be the first there to congratulate them, but at the same time I will be thinking of all those young people of the same age who did not do so well or did not take these exams because their abilities or their interests are in other areas for which we do not currently provide in the right way or at the right time. 'Education', said William Yeats, 'is not the filling of a pail, but the lighting of a fire.' We will light that fire in each and every one of our young people, regardless of their interests, weaknesses or strengths.

1490 To end, Mr Speaker, I would like to thank all of the staff of the Departments, schools and colleges, the University, authorities, agencies, companies and contractors – too many to mention by name – who work in any and all of my areas of responsibility, for their contribution to making Gibraltar work. I want to thank all students, from the very youngest to those in higher education, and especially their parents for the interest they show in our schools. I want to thank the volunteers, from those who work on projects to those who serve on committees or boards without payment and without any expectation of recognition or reward. I want to thank the 1495 associations and societies with an interest in my areas of responsibility for meeting with me and pushing their subjects responsibly and with commitment. I want to thank the three Unions with which I work closely: the Gibraltar Teachers' Association, Unite and the GGCA. I would like to thank all those with the courtesy to invite me to functions, performances and events, and to apologise for those which I cannot attend, usually due to work commitments. I want to thank my 1500 CEOs, directors and other senior staff for putting up with my passion and with my wish to relentlessly progress our agendas and our manifesto. I would like to thank you, Mr Speaker, and the staff of our Parliament, and of course my small but dedicated and loyal personal staff for their support, professionalism and friendship. And I would like to thank my family for understanding that I sometimes cannot be with them when I would really want to.

1505 Finally, Mr Speaker, I would like to thank the people who make my job worth doing: the people of Gibraltar. I was put here by them, I work for them, I do it for them. They make it worthwhile. (Banging on desks)

1525 Mr Speaker: There is no point in doing so now.

Hon. Chief Minister: In that case ...

1530 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, it is an honour to rise today as Minister for Infrastructure and Planning to give my sixth Budget address since this Government was elected into office in 2011.

1535 I will start with my ministerial responsibilities for Technical Services. Technical Services is truly an inter-ministerial Department that works throughout most other Ministries and Departments and whose responsibilities lie in providing technical advice within the disciplines of engineering, drafting, surveying, planning, construction, management and infrastructural maintenance and development. It is a vibrant and challenging Department where no two days are alike.

1540 Technical Services has now seen the development of a totally new discipline within it, that of traffic planning. Technical Services has always had responsibility for roads and highway maintenance but traffic and transport planning management, which is a speciality of engineering, is not a technical field that has existed within the Civil Service structure in the past. As a result, this year will see the introduction of a new post, that of Transport Planner. The new post holder will be responsible for all matters relating to the recently launched Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan – or STTPP, which is how I will refer to the plan from here on.

1545 Therefore, Mr Speaker, during the past financial year the Department has continued to provide technical support to Government Ministries and civil servant departments on a wide range of construction-related matters as well as meeting its defined responsibilities for maintaining public infrastructure, namely roads and highways and the sewer network.

1550 Mr Speaker, with respect to cliff stabilisation and rock fall protection projects, during financial year 2016-17 the Department was involved in the construction of a new high-capacity rock catch fence on the Eastside slopes just to the south of Both Worlds. This represented phase 1 of a larger project aimed at providing additional protective measures to reduce the risk of rock falls in the area. During the current financial year, the Department will extend the work carried out under phase 1 and provide an additional 60 metres of high-capacity catch fencing in 1555 the same area. Additionally, the Department will continue to monitor and develop cliff stabilisation schemes in line with Government's ongoing cliff stabilisation and rock fall protection programme.

1560 Mr Speaker, with regard to highway maintenance, the works programme has once again been successful over the past year with ongoing repairs to roads, footpaths and retaining walls. In addition to the above, the Department continues to successfully manage road closures and diversions on the public highway, both for its own in-house works and for all other utility companies and contractors. All road closures are assessed and carried out in a manner that allows essential works to be undertaken whilst allowing vehicles and pedestrians to circulate in a safe manner with the minimum of disruption. The increased construction activity generated by 1565 new projects over the past few years makes this task increasingly difficult. In order to reduce the impact as much as possible, road closures are avoided during peak times wherever possible, and after hours and weekend work is a condition that is normally imposed on contractors in order to minimise the inconvenience to the public.

1570 Mr Speaker, this year will see the continuation of the road resurfacing programme. Last year, major resurfacing works were undertaken at Cumberland Road and at the Sundial Roundabout, and recently Governor's Street was also resurfaced following the completion of the STTPP project for that area. During the current financial year, funding is being sought for resurfacing works at both Rosia Road in the area of New Harbours and along St Bernard's Road.

1575 Mr Speaker, I am pleased to state that the second phase of the project to fill the joints in the paving on Main Street was completed last year. The works entailed the lifting up and re-laying of the stone blocks and the filling and stabilising of all joints using a special polymer. In line with our manifesto commitment, we are pleased to announce that phase 3 of this project will continue this year and will see the filling of the joints extend southwards along Main Street and its side streets.

1580 Mr Speaker, during the past year Technical Services Department was also involved in the reconstruction of two retaining walls. The first works carried out were along Lower Castle Road at the entrance to Moorish Castle Estate. The existing wall had developed a significant bulge that was of growing concern to the Department's engineers as this could lead to internal instability and ultimately collapse. A section of wall was therefore demolished and reconstructed using the same materials. The second retaining wall reconstructed was at the site of the City under Siege exhibition within the Upper Rock. Following heavy rains in late November last year, a section of retaining wall collapsed and led to concerns of further instability that could affect the entire historical site. Technical Services developed a new design, and works were carried out as a

1585 matter of urgency. In both circumstances the walls were found to have significant heritage value

1590 so works were carried out in close consultation with the Ministry for Heritage, once again demonstrating the importance of interdepartmental co-operation between Technical Services and other Government Departments.

Moving now on to arguably one of the most important parts of our essential infrastructure, our sewerage system, during the past year the Sewers Section of the Department has been 1595 carrying out significant works to maintain the public sewerage network as part of Government's commitment in this area. A new storm water culvert, one metre in diameter, that doubles up as a combined sewer overflow, was laid at Europort Avenue from its junction with Queensway to the area of Charles Bruzon House. It was laid during the summer school break in order not to disrupt normal term-time school operations. This was successfully completed together with the 1600 construction of two deep access manholes to assist in future inspections and maintenance programmes. The project also saw the introduction of additional road gullies in the area to reduce the risk of flooding along Queensway in periods of heavy rain.

Apart from the works at Europort Avenue, the Department has been working on a scheme for the relining of the existing foul sewer network along Devil's Tower Road. The increase in 1605 developments along Devil's Tower Road has required the existing network to be upgraded to cope with additional flows in the area. It is expected that these works will be completed during the course of the current financial year.

The condition and upkeep of Gibraltar's main sewer and storm water drainage networks continues to be a matter of great concern for the Government arising from a lack of sufficient 1610 investment and neglect over many years. This Government is still playing catch-up as a result of these years of neglect. The Department, as part of its maintenance programme, will therefore this year be continuing its major desilting and cleansing works to the main sewer along Rosia Road and southwards towards Camp Bay. Other works will include improvements to the storm water systems at both Prince Edward's Road and the southern end of Main Street where 1615 flooding has become an annual problem during periods of very heavy rainfall.

Mr Speaker, the replacement and enhancement of pelican crossing lights and equipment is a function of Technical Services' Department Highways Section and has continued in a number of locations working jointly with the Gibraltar Electricity Authority. The provision of pedestrian crossings and their locations is now planned, taking into account the recommendations of the 1620 STTPP and the Traffic Commission. The programme to improve walking routes continued during last year with the installation of new pedestrian crossings at a number of key locations. These included a new crossing along Harbour Views Road, providing improved access to St Bernard's Hospital and a new light-controlled crossing at Europa Road to provide a safe crossing point for visitors to the recently inaugurated dementia unit, Ocean Views. The lack of a crossing in this 1625 particular location was something of great concern to GADA, the Gibraltar Alzheimer's and Dementia Association, as the new facility would require a safe pedestrian access. This pedestrian crossing has probably been the most technically challenging crossing to deliver, given the existing geometry of the road. A series of traffic calming measures were also required to help improve both pedestrian and vehicular safety in this area, known for its many sharp corners, and 1630 especially taking into account the unique needs of the facility and its users.

Mr Speaker, following the successful introduction of the initial pilot countdown timer at the Haven crossing on Line Wall Road, further countdown timers were recently installed at Waterport Road, at Queensway and at Europa Road adjacent to Ocean Views. These countdown 1635 timers inform pedestrians of the time they have left to cross and drivers as to when it is safe to proceed, therefore improving safety at these crossings. A firm objective of the STTPP is to provide safe pedestrian facilities to help encourage walking as the best alternative to motorised travel and transport. The Government will continue to provide further countdown timers at other crossings, and in future all new traffic light sets purchased for new locations or to replace existing sets will have countdown timers installed as a standard feature.

1640 During the coming year, the Department will continue to provide additional pedestrian crossings at a number of already identified locations, including Europa Road by Shorthorn Estate and Rosia Road in the area of Bayview Terraces, as per the recommendations of the STTPP. The provision of these crossings is seen as important in the context of improving walking routes, as already mentioned, which is an important and fundamental element of the Traffic Plan.

1645 Mr Speaker, I recently announced the publication of the Government's Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan. This project was a key manifesto commitment for the GSLP/Liberal Government. A study of this magnitude has never been conducted locally with regard to traffic and transport, together with its effects on our environment as a whole, in a way that is both scientific and solid in its grounding. The Plan has seen a multi-departmental team approach 1650 involving the Ministries of Infrastructure and Planning (Traffic and Transport) and the Environment.

The research and preparatory background for this extensive document saw many months of painstaking groundwork and research, something which I am eternally grateful to those within the Traffic team, the Technical Services Department and also the Civil Service for, who embarked 1655 on weeks of data collection, questionnaires and surveys to be able to provide the solid groundwork required for such a plan. The work has encompassed very wide consultation. Opinions and feedback were sought from a wide sector of the community, including members of the public, NGOs, commercial entities and associations, tenants' associations, other interest groups, schoolchildren, essential services, and of course the road user, often each with very 1660 competing interests. Our traffic consultants, Mott MacDonald, who are worldwide professionals in this field, have provided the technical expertise to complement the wealth of local and professional knowledge that already existed within the Technical Services Department and have been instrumental.

The Plan has considered everything from the needs of children and vulnerable groups within 1665 our society to the needs of businesses and visitors alike. No plan will ever be able to satisfy every sector's interests and there will be a need to strike a balance between these, once again, conflicting needs.

Key improvements in the use of public transport will no doubt provide a more reliable service with improved journey times and higher levels of punctuality, which I am certain will be 1670 welcomed by its users. No stone has been left unturned in order to formulate a plan that we will be proudly able to call all of ours, Gibraltar's Plan.

Using the most innovative and latest techniques we have developed the tools by means of digital traffic modelling to help us predict the reaction and behaviour of traffic, following a proposal for change. In this way, we may now start to analyse what effect a proposed change 1675 will be likely to have with respect to traffic flow before we even carry it out.

Mr Speaker, this Plan is clearly a live document, one that will evolve and grow with us. As Gibraltar grows and our needs change, so will it too. It is our intention that the Plan will be a fluid plan, one that is malleable to our needs. I am personally satisfied that this has been in fact achieved and that all the work done will see a truly valuable result that we can all be proud of.
1680 Not all the concepts within the Plan will be achievable – some will require further work, others will be economically unviable and others may simply never come to be, at least not at this moment in time – but the Plan will hopefully open our minds to the vast potential that exists for improvement, and for the need to change our mindset in the future.

But, Mr Speaker, change is change, and human nature does not adapt easily to change at first. With time, I trust that we as a community will all be able to appreciate the bigger picture and will begin to understand that things have to change if we are to make inroads into our health, our environment and our wellbeing, making Gibraltar a more attractive place to live, work, visit and do business in the future. The Plan is hence simply that: a plan. There are general principals, aims and targets set, and ideas for potential pilot schemes for us to explore, some 1685 relatively inexpensive to carry out, others more ambitious. This is by no means a finite list and we will be developing further ideas and plans in the future as we evolve as a people. With time, it will hopefully change the way that we live so that we can improve sustainability.

Mr Speaker, Gibraltar has an extremely high vehicle occupancy rate per capita, yet our largest 1695 constraint is our size. Reducing our reliance on private transport, our beloved cars and motorbikes, will be one of the hardest things to achieve; but through encouragement, education and perseverance perhaps we may be able to achieve a change in the way that we move, sharing vehicles, either by way of our buses, public services or through other more innovative ideas such as car-sharing or car clubs, for example. We cannot forget the importance of walking and cycling with regard to our traffic and our environment, but also the undeniable and positive effects that 1700 it has on our general health, our fitness and our physique.

Changing our mindset – especially one that spans so many generations, when our cars were an extension of our very own living room, our only means of independence and freedom, our rite of passage at a time when many generations shared one single flat – will be one of the most challenging hurdles to overcome. This is something that will task our generation and those in the 1705 future. As science develops so too will our means of local travel. Already we are seeing how hybrid and electric vehicles are slowly becoming more prominent in our society and we need to further encourage the use of these. I greatly appreciate the support that we have received so far from many sectors of the community and sincerely hope that we will continue to have the same support as we now embark on the next stage of the Plan, its implementation in earnest.

1710 Mr Speaker, in the short time that the Traffic Plan has been published, a number of initiatives have already been rolled out: Redibike, our bicycle sharing scheme, the launch of the pilot residential parking scheme for zone 1, the completed bus tracker, the speed limit review, Governor's Street pedestrian improvements, and speed cameras. Other initiatives had already been implemented: the pilot roundabout at Glacis Road, pay and display schemes in numerous 1715 locations, countdown pedestrian timers, new pedestrian improvements at the Trafalgar interchange and, even before that, the introduction of environmentally friendly staff car vehicle fleets. I had made it clear on numerous occasions in the past that regardless of the status of the final plan – that is, regardless of whether the Plan had been published or not – its key objectives were already being rolled out.

1720 Mr Speaker, as part of our review of car parking in Gibraltar, a number of new pay and display areas have already been implemented. These include those at Line Wall Road, Watergardens and Portland House. The philosophy behind the introduction of the pay and display areas is to provide a turnaround of parking facilities at key locations for the benefit of all.
It is through parking and its control that we may be able to eventually reduce car usage within 1725 what are described as key environmental zones within the Plan. This year, further pay and display areas are earmarked for Glacis Road, Waterport Road and Grand Parade.

Technical Services Department has been instrumental in developing a pilot residential parking scheme for the area of Alameda Estate and Trafalgar House. Mr Speaker, you may ask:
why pilot? Well, simply because we are entering uncharted territory and we will need the 1730 flexibility to be able to adapt the concept of residential parking to make it a scheme that works as well as possible for as many as possible. This pilot residential parking scheme has taken on board concerns raised by tenants of the area and has aimed to de-conflict the shortage of parking for the various types of user, be they residents, commuters or tourists. The scheme will see the introduction of exclusive residential parking areas, pay and display shorter-term parking 1735 zones and free parking. It is hoped that this will go some way in improving the situation in the area. The scheme was officially announced on 26th May and will fully come into effect on 1st July, merely days away now. Residents are not forced to be part of given residential schemes, and in fact those who are in Government arrears, as per Government policy, will not be able to be part of the scheme in any case.

1740 There will be small administrative charges associated with the scheme and these are set as a first step in trying to tackle the issue of car ownership, an underlying matter of concern within the Traffic Plan – hardly a prohibitive sum, but it is a fair start in starting to at least recognise, if not start to address, the local phenomenon of the second car. Providing free residential parking would simply not dis-incentivise a reduction in car ownership and migration or increased 1745 dependence on the public transport network. With an excellent free bus service there is no better excuse, even if it is only for the environment, than to get rid of the second car and keep the one environmentally friendlier car for those trips across the border or the local supermarket shop. Mr Speaker, what is evidently clear within the Plan, and even clearer to those who drive around endlessly looking for somewhere to park their car, is that we have a problem and we need to recognise that. With one of the highest rates of car ownership in the world, we simply cannot sustain the numbers of cars we own as a population. As a result of zone 1, we have discovered that there are a considerable number of couples, mainly pensioners, that own at least two cars – in some cases where only one of the couple drives! The two-car principle, that of the shabby rock runner and the better, more up-market car for those trips across the border, is clearly still alive and well – but this is the whole point, the real crux of the matter: it is the old rock runner that generally destroys our environment, the vehicle that emits those nasty fumes, carbon monoxide, nitrogen dioxide and particulate matter, the vehicle that competes for that extra parking space, while the main car is snugly parked away safely. The old banger is the vehicle that has the greatest likelihood of being parked in that illegal spot where the chance of that nick, scratch or dent is the greatest, but that is its entire purpose: its state and condition does not matter to us and in the end it is most likely the vehicle that will remain derelict for months or years before it is spotted taking up that valuable parking space. This is where the change in mentality needs to come, at least for the good of our environment, and this needs to start in earnest through education. It is mainly through education, especially of those more receptive to the warnings of today’s experts reference our suffering environment – that is, our younger generation, our children and grandchildren.

Mr Speaker, in conjunction with residential zone 1, the Department is working on plans for further residential parking schemes in both the Town area and the South District and it is expected that these will be rolled out during the latter part of this year.

Mr Speaker, furthermore, as part of the Traffic Plan, a project to construct a new roundabout at Devil’s Tower Road is already well advanced within the planning stages, having already received the green light from the DPC. This roundabout, once constructed, will increase driver options when leaving Cemetery Road, allowing vehicles to turn left and travel south to Europa Road should they choose. It would also allow quicker access into that same commercial area and be particularly useful to access the very busy church of St Theresa’s and Devil’s Tower Road car park.

Mr Speaker, as part of the STTPP the Government has also recently introduced the new Redibike bicycle-sharing scheme. It is hoped that Redibike will encourage the public to think of cycling as a healthier and environmentally friendlier alternative to other modes of transport. A hundred and forty six persons have registered on the scheme so far. This is the first phase of a wider scheme, a scheme that has been privately sponsored by Gib Oil Ltd and consists of 105 bicycles and 120 docking points in 13 different locations throughout Gibraltar. I would like to extend my gratitude to our sponsors Gib Oil Ltd – especially Mr Harry Murphy, who is busy collecting medals for us in Gotland – who have gratefully supported us in this very important Traffic Plan initiative. All Redibikes are fitted with a carrier, a locking device and a bell, and will be available to rent at all times of the day and night. These bikes are sturdy and virtually vandal-proof with drive shafts fitted instead of the traditional bicycle chain mechanism for propulsion.

That was all that I was going to say on this matter – until my better judgement told me otherwise following the latest activity on social media regarding the failed Gibi Bikes scheme and following on from the hon. Member opposite’s comments on Viewpoint recently. This is not about red or blue, as perhaps the blues would like you to believe. This is not about Government deliberately and intentionally bringing about the demise of the Gibi Bikes Scheme purposefully, alluding that this was done to discredit the GSD initiative without consideration whatsoever to the cost of the scheme to the taxpayers, as the blues would like you to believe. The concept of a bicycle-sharing scheme is in fact a very good one, and it is a scheme accepted and promoted throughout many cities worldwide. That was not and is not the issue. If the GSD wants some credit, well done to them, Mr Speaker, very well done. But the concept was not their concept, they did not invent it, they adopted it, which is great – it is great for the environment and it ticks all the boxes of any traffic plan worth its salt. This is why our Traffic Plan also contains a bicycle-sharing scheme. Had Gibi Bikes succeeded then it would have been one thing less that we would have had to do.

I will not make further comment about past traffic plans at this point, unless I am pushed, Mr Speaker. Gibi Bikes was an abject GSD failure. It was badly researched, badly executed and badly procured. Once again, it was not about red or blue. Although the demise of the scheme came before my time as Minister for Transport, it was not because they were coloured blue, I can assure you. It was for the following reasons, Mr Speaker.

The Gibi Bikes project was introduced and operated by a company which had no previous experience of running such a scheme – Gibraltar was their first project, their test project. Almost all of the Gibi Bikes equipment was substandard. The anti-theft devices, the electronic tags and the locks were all of poor quality, hence the system failed regularly. Maintenance was poor and there was a lack of spare parts from the suppliers in the UK. The bicycles themselves suffered badly from corrosion. The scheme started with 130 bicycles and 13 docking stations. Only six months later, only 47 bicycles remained and eight docking stations were available for use. In fact, Mr Speaker, many bikes were permanently locked in their stations, failing to release due to software malfunctions, and other bikes simply went walkies – stolen, Mr Speaker. The scheme which cost the taxpayer over £300,000 back in 2011, operated for only six months before it closed and its supply company in the UK folded. That is the story as it is, Mr Speaker –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Disgraceful! Nothing to laugh about.

Hon. P J Balban: The only thing is that it is far better, politically, to blame the Government, blame us, for the failure of Gibi Bikes.

Furthermore, bicycles had to be collected at night, stored and brought out again in the morning, which was hugely labour intensive. Why would that need to be the case, Mr Speaker? Redibikes stay out all night, having been implemented and hence tested in many cities, not least in the north west of England in not such a sleepy town, Liverpool, a major city with safer, quieter areas and the noisier and let us say more boisterous areas, and it rains there too. They also have the reds and the blues there, Mr Speaker, but their reds and blues are more to do with sport. But I am sure that many a fan would have had a good ride on a bike after a match late at night, and there they are: bicycles trialled and tested in a real-life laboratory, not tested in Gibraltar by a company trying their luck with bicycle-sharing schemes. Redibikes took their time, yes, Mr Speaker, just like the Traffic Plan took its time, and that is the way it was going to be. In this way things have been done well, or at least as well as humanly possible.

1835

Mr Speaker, you may ask what became of those blue bikes. Well, thanks to the staff and mechanics down at Gibraltar Bus Company Ltd, a total of 52 bikes have been put together out of 130 bikes that once were. An announcement will be made shortly – yes, ‘shortly’, Mr Speaker, one of the pet hate words of the hon. Member across the way – when these bikes will be presented to a charity, all for a good cause; so the story does have a happy ending of sorts.

1840

Mr Speaker, also as part of our commitment to encouraging cycling, a major review of our existing road network will also be carried out this year to assess the feasibility of introducing dedicated bicycle lanes, where possible and indeed if possible, linking the Frontier to the south of Gibraltar. This will be by no means a simple feat, as there are many difficulties associated with Gibraltar’s size, especially when trying to marry and share the very limited space available between vehicles, cyclists and pedestrians. Nevertheless, the Government is committed to exploring this matter in a holistic way in order to try to introduce improvements, where possible, in order to encourage this healthier alternative to motorised forms of transport common today.

Mr Speaker, another major Traffic Plan initiative launched recently has been the introduction of speed cameras at a number of known speeding hotspots throughout Gibraltar. This builds on 1850 the recent initiative of introducing speed indicator signs and is primarily aimed at making our roads safer by way of speed management. The speed cameras are fixed devices set up, as a pilot 1855 first phase, at Devil's Tower Road, Europa Advance Road and Rosia Road in an effort to reduce speeding in those particularly notorious hotspots. These locations were chosen on the advice and recommendations of the RGP, who are the experts on the ground. The cameras will be a valuable deterrent and will complement roving speed cameras already used by the Police throughout Gibraltar. The static speed cameras have already seen a visible reduction in speed on our roads. This will hence statistically help reduce risk to both road users and pedestrians alike 1860 from the consequences of speed-related accidents. Additionally, a reduction in speed has positive effects on the environment, helping to reduce noise pollution and emissions. Since the scheme went live, over 1,920 persons have been caught speeding. The initiative will continue to be monitored but so far the intention is to further improve the current set-up by introducing rear-facing video capture to the existing cameras and introducing additional speed cameras in other major roads throughout Gibraltar.

I would like to take this opportunity to mention the RGP, the legal team that drafted all the 1865 relevant legislation, the staff at the IT and Logistics Department, Technical Services, our back office at Gibraltar Car Parks Ltd and all those who have assisted us with this STTPP project.

Mr Speaker, Technical Services Department, in conjunction with the RGP, will continue with its full review of the present speed limits on all of Gibraltar's roads, and in the coming year improvements will be made to signage and road markings on a number of our arterial roads, 1870 including Europa Road, Queensway and Line Wall Road. Furthermore, we have, upon the advice of the RGP, also recently amended legislation to make the Road Watch offences punishable by way of fixed penalty notices (FPNs), hence reducing unnecessary and valuable court time and making the process much more efficient.

Mr Speaker, if there has been one thing that I feel has made the biggest difference as part of 1875 the Traffic Plan to the enhancement of our public transport offering, it has surely got to be the bus tracker. This is a major STTPP achievement. I am most proud that this project has been carried out in house by the staff of the IT and Logistics Department, a project that has been technically very complex to put together, one that has been developed on a route-by-route basis over time. As a result, it is now possible for bus users to track their bus and therefore manage 1880 their personal time accordingly, knowing exactly where the bus is at any given moment in time and at what time they are able to meet it at the bus stop as opposed to having to wait for it to arrive. The STTPP stakeholder surveys highlighted that one of the reasons detracting potential bus users was the perceived uncertainty of the service, leading to a lack of user confidence. The new bus tracker reverses all these potentially negative attributes that could dis-incentivise bus 1885 use. Public transport is a vital part of our transition from using our own vehicles and moving to more sustainable modes of travel and transport. The last route to go live was the night bus route. Since the night bus tracker went live, there appears to have been at least a 50% increase in take-up of the service, which is very positive indeed. Government is looking into the possibility of extending its fleet management system in order to provide passenger real-time information 1890 to bus users at the bus stops. This will allow those citizens who do not have access to smartphone devices or internet access to be able to track their bus in real time at their bus-stop.

Mr Speaker, one of the most important issues raised by the Traffic Plan regarding pedestrian safety was that of Main Street during the early-morning delivery hours. These hours directly 1895 conflicted with pedestrian movement, making this a serious safety concern and one that had also been highlighted by the Commissioner of Police. The Traffic Plan emphasised the problems faced by pedestrians and especially persons with mobility problems while trying to transit through Main Street amid goods vehicles unloading merchandise and doing their daily morning deliveries. This was even more relevant when cruise ships, especially large ones, were in port, resulting in thousands of passengers mixing with the local population and the local and cross-1900 frontier workforce. This provided a very poor image generally, both aesthetically and environmentally, and was most importantly seen as a major safety and security concern for Government within the busy Main Street. It has been as a result of close networking with the Chamber of Commerce, the GFSB and other commercial entities generally that we have been able to agree on improved delivery times. I wish to express my gratitude to the commercial business community for supporting the Government's proposals and agreeing and accepting the new delivery hours, which although inevitably will mean a change in the way things are done in town, it has generally been accepted that this will in fact be better for the tourist product and for Main Street users generally. In this respect the Ministry for Commerce, led by my colleague Albert Isola, have also been instrumental. Technical Services are now involved in the process of procurement of retractable bollards and will investigate the range of products available in the market for these purposes in the first instance. Once a suitable product is identified, Technical Services will then be involved with the infrastructural preparations for the set-up of a permanent retractable bollard system, which is planned for the near future and is expected to assist the policing of delivery hours in town.

1915
Mr Speaker, the full initiative, as already described and set out within the STTPP, included the creation of new loading hubs and the reduction in the hours of delivery within our highly populated Main Street. I am pleased to announce that this has now been done. New Main Street access times have now been set between 8 a.m. and 9.15 a.m. with final exit being no later than 9.30 a.m. Furthermore, an additional delivery window has been set between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m., the last exit from the pedestrian zone being 8.15 p.m. A number of new delivery areas have been created to allow deliveries to take place outside of these hours in dedicated hubs within John Mackintosh Square, Cooperage Lane and Convent Place. These will be controlled by means of permits issued to commercial entities by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Department. Deliveries in these new areas will be exclusively on a permit holder basis and the hours will be between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday to Friday, and Saturdays between 7 a.m. and 2 p.m. These new delivery bays are distinct to the loading bays that already existed in town.

Mr Speaker, one of the major issues raised by the business community was the abuse that existed regarding loading bays generally and the difficulty that businesses were facing when trying to access these bays. As part of the plans within the Traffic Plan, new legislation will prohibit the use of loading bays by the general public during delivery times but will allow their use after hours and on Sundays and Public Holidays, where appropriate, for parking. Nevertheless, the Traffic Plan recognises the need that residents have too, and to this end the Department is looking at the possibility of creating short-stay drop-off areas for residents and visitors over and above the creation of further pay and display zones which would allow visitors to park within the distinct residential zones.

Mr Speaker, once again I must thank the RGP, especially the Commissioner of Police, who has been advocating these improvements for Main Street and who has shared the same vision for Main Street – that is, for a safe, modern shopping and business hub.

Mr Speaker, the Traffic Plan would be impossible to achieve without meaningful and effective policing. It is to this end that the Ministry for Infrastructure and Planning, whose responsibility is also for traffic and transport, will be working closely with the RGP and with Gibraltar Parking and Management Services Ltd, who manage our newly contracted team of PMOs and our team of transport inspectors, whose role will be to see that the policies within the Plan succeed.

Mr Speaker, before moving away from Technical Services I would also like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Infrastructure Section of the Technical Services Department for their hard work and commitment during those times in the past year where Gibraltar has suffered from storms and very heavy rainfall. It is thanks to the hard work and dedication of this team, who work on those cold, dark, blustery and rainy nights whilst most of us are sheltered within the warmth of our homes, that the impact of these storms is not greater on both our sewerage and road networks. Thank you.

Finally, Mr Speaker, funding is once again being requested this year for the purchase of equipment to allow the Sewer Infrastructure Section to continue to expand and provide an enhanced service in respect of its inspections of the sewer network. This also applies to the 1955 garage and workshop, where funding for new equipment is also being sought. They will continue to provide a service to maintain the fleet of Government vehicles, including the refuse-collection vehicles.

1960 Mr Speaker, the Technical Services Department is one of those Departments that is rarely in the limelight but works tirelessly behind the scenes to deliver on their defined responsibilities maintaining public infrastructure and to support and provide technical advice to other Government Ministries and Departments in order to deliver on the Government's extensive and comprehensive programmes.

1965 Mr Speaker, turning now to public transport, the new MAN buses continue to provide Gibraltar with a modern bus service. Providing an efficient, comfortable and user-friendly bus service is critical in meeting the objectives as set out within the Traffic Plan. The Traffic Plan highlights the importance of public transport to support people's quality of life and economic well-being. Its primary aim is to encourage greater use of public transport by providing a high-quality, reliable, stable and well-maintained network.

1970 Mr Speaker, the investment in the six new buses for the Upper Town has greatly improved the service to this area. I am pleased to announce that the procured Ford Transits have proved to be powerful enough to deal with steep inclines while at the same time providing an adequately comfortable climate within for its users. This also includes the much needed and much sought after service to Mount Alvernia, where this innovative small bus design and investment has given wheelchair users greater access to the bus. Three out of the six new buses have wheelchair lifts fitted.

1975 Mr Speaker, the introduction of the night bus route itself is also a major positive change to our public service offered during the weekends. This was a Traffic Plan recommendation as set out in the draft 2015 document. Today's present route evolved from two distinct trial routes, namely N8A and N8B, to become the one unified route today, N8. Night bus usage is slowly increasing and this is especially so on specific events, for example Calentita Night, GMF and Summer Nights. There have been almost 1,700 passengers more this year compared to last year.

1980 Mr Speaker, a new branding for the Gibraltar Bus Company, which will involve the launch of a new bus logo both for the buses and new bus stop signage is already in progress. This will improve the visibility of bus stops, especially for those not familiar with the location of the bus stops in their immediate surroundings. The present arrangement of buses stopping at each bus stop creates unnecessary delay and inconvenience to traffic flow. By reintroducing the concept of the request stop it may be possible to improve timetabling and hence efficiency. This will need to go hand in hand with a targeted awareness campaign as bus users have become used to buses stopping at each bus stop by default. Bus stops that become request stops will be clearly labelled to avoid confusion.

1990 Mr Speaker, in order to continue to improve the public transport service, Government has increased the transport inspector complement by two, thereby bringing the total complement to seven officers. These officers are now fully trained to ensure that our public transport meets the expectations of its users and that service providers fully abide and conform to all the legal requirements under the Transport Act. Transport inspectors have the role of enforcing the Transport Act and hence public transport operators and transport undertakings. They strive to ensure adequate taxi service at the Airport terminal at key arrival times. Transport inspectors are also responsible for policing the use of permits to enter pedestrianised zones and are assisting with recent measures regarding the introduction of the new delivery hours in Main Street and Irish Town.

2000 Mr Speaker, the Government continues to work with the Gibraltar Taxi Association in order to jointly identify strategies to continue to better the taxi service throughout Gibraltar. It is only through user feedback that we may be able to truly ascertain whether service actually improves or otherwise, and there is unfortunately still reluctance to bring complaints to the attention of the Transport Commission. In an attempt to improve transparency, new external rear signage was agreed which makes it easier to identify taxi licence numbers. The GTA has increased its 2010 service by way of their fleet of private hire vehicles, which now have two drivers, providing longer service hours. The GTA itself proposed a new shift roster for taxis while on city service, once again providing greater breadth in the service hours. Furthermore, the relocation of the taxi rank at John Mackintosh Square adjacent to the Parliament Building itself to outside the City Hall should result in an improvement to the city service. Nevertheless, it is clear that much work still needs to be done. It is in fact the GTA committee who are often the most self-critical, and many taxi drivers generally agree and support these measures with a view of safeguarding their business by providing an adequate service to the population from taxi ranks and from the Airport alike.

2015 I wish to thank the GTA and its members for their willingness to help improve what is already a very difficult service to provide amidst daily traffic pressures, especially around the Frontier and the Airport. I hope that amid our colourful and noisy meetings we can continue to seek ways to further improve the service to all during this coming year.

2020 Mr Speaker, I now turn my attention to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Department (DVLD). Procedures for the introduction of the tachograph card in Gibraltar are now ready. The Department has been closely working with the Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency in the UK for the introduction of the tachograph cards that will serve our drivers, operators and enforcement agencies. All the administrative procedures – that is application forms, information letters and databases – are now in place. A memorandum of understanding and a service level agreement drafted jointly by the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Department and Government Law Offices has already been agreed by the DVLA.

2030 Mr Speaker, drivers of transport undertakings wishing to complete the driver Certificate of Professional Competence (CPC) initial qualification and periodic training can obtain the training that is continually being provided by the DVLD. So far, 29 drivers have successfully passed the Bus Certificate of Professional Competence and 36 drivers have successfully passed the Lorry CPC initial qualifications. Government, in an effort to ensure that all directive requirements are fully met, will continue to deliver the 35-hour periodic training for existing drivers during 2017-18. Presently, in total, 183 bus and 97 lorry drivers have successfully attended the CPC periodic training.

2035 Mr Speaker, taking into account the safety requirements of vehicles in Gibraltar that carry dangerous goods is of great importance, and in accordance with the Transport (Carriage of Dangerous Goods by Road) Regulations 2010, the Government has invested in training to ensure that all of the technical staff at the Motor Vehicle Test Centre are now fully trained and qualified to assess vehicles that carry dangerous goods by road. This training has been carried out locally by a qualified instructor from the Driver and Vehicle Standards Agency from the UK. At present, eight vehicles used for the carriage of dangerous goods locally have been issued with the relevant ADR certificates.

2045 Mr Speaker, the introduction by this Government of the Motorcycle Compulsory Basic Training Course (CBT) for riders continues to be a tremendous success. Feedback from parents and the public at large has been extremely positive. A hundred and seventy two individuals, mainly under the age of 17 years of age, have been trained over the past year. I am very confident that this Government's training incentive is constantly contributing in continuously improving road safety and reducing motorcycle accidents, especially in first-time motorbike users. This initiative falls directly in line with the general principles of the Traffic Plan regarding road safety. Since the CBT scheme was established, a total of 1,260 persons have completed the course in order to acquire their learner's licence.

Mr Speaker, due to an increase in need for counter services as a result of the CBT, ADR and CPC over and above the usual traditional counter services provided by the Department, the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Department, as a means of improving customer service, has introduced a bespoke business counter that is assisting businesses with the aim of reducing respective waiting times. This counter has been operating daily since last year and the feedback from its users has been very positive. Furthermore, the Department continues to use e-Government information and communication technology as a tool to achieve better customer services. The public can presently actively access a number of online DVLD services and applications via the new e-Government portal, mainly roadworthiness test bookings – the MOT – driving licence and theory test bookings. This is proving to be very popular and is allowing customers to access and pay for such facilities at any time from the comfort of their own homes. Government is also considering other measures and incentives in order to offer customers additional e-Government opportunities, thus allowing the DVLD to cater for the increase in market demands and service requirements.

Mr Speaker, the Traffic Commission continues to meet on a monthly basis. The Traffic Commission is constantly working to assist our citizens in all matters relating to traffic. The Commission is also heavily involved in recommending to Government the improvement of facilities and eco-friendly traffic advice regarding new project applications submitted to the Town Planning Commission. It is via the Traffic Commission that road users are able to interact with the Ministry and Departments so that their concerns and suggestions can be considered. It is also via this forum that other large Government initiatives receive recommendations and approval.

The Transport Commission works hand in hand with all the transport undertakings, the Bus Company and the Gibraltar Taxi Association in order to mutually find strategies to continue to better both commercial and public transport services in Gibraltar.

I would like to extend my gratitude to all the members of both Commissions, many of whom give up of their own personal time on a voluntary basis for these purposes.

Mr Speaker, the DVLD has gone a long way in establishing a linked-up database with other member states in accordance with EU directives. The DVLD is sharing European Register of Road Transport Undertakings, known as ERRU, via the Driver and Vehicle Services Agency. This allows for a better exchange of information between member states so that the competent authorities can better monitor the compliance of road transport undertakings with the legislation in force.

EUCARIS – the European Car and Driving Licence Information System – is another example of information exchange system that DVLD uses to provide the infrastructure and software to other countries in order to share their car and driving licence registration information. This system will ensure the assistance in fighting car theft and registration fraud within Europe.

Mr Speaker, the Cross Border Enforcement Directive has been the latest directive to be transposed into our laws. The practical procedures refer to the pursuit of traffic offences committed by drivers of a car that is registered in a EU member state other than the member state where they were detected. The implementation of this will offer an automated tool for enforcement authorities in the member state where the offence was committed to pursue and fine the drivers of cars registered in another EU member state when they commit traffic offences there.

Mr Speaker, I am fully satisfied that to date all EU directives relating to traffic and transport have been fully implemented.

Finally, Mr Speaker, I now turn my attention to my responsibilities for town planning and building control. The Town Planning and Building Control Department continues to deal with large numbers of applications in the administration and enforcement of the Building Regulations. During 2016, the Department has received 632 planning and building applications, 16 demolition applications, 48 advertisement applications, 32 tree applications and 24 tax relief applications. That is a total of 752 applications for 2016. If we exclude tax relief applications, there have been a total of 728 applications this year compared to the 544 applications received 2110 in 2015 – that is a significant increase of 33%. Some applications were large and complex involving environmental impact assessments and have also required extensive discussions with respective applicants to try to achieve the highest standards of design.

2115 Building Control has also been working on the introduction of what will be known as ‘Part R’ – that is access to and use of buildings under the provisions of the Public Health Act. At present, our building rules do not make adequate provision for this very important building aspect – rules which will undoubtedly in future be provided for with the necessary legal framework to make buildings safe and accessible to all. By introducing these rules, we are bringing our legislation 2120 closer to that of the United Kingdom within this very important area. The objective is to enable all people, regardless of disability, age or gender, to gain access to buildings and hence use its facilities. These will therefore benefit the wide spectrum of special requirements that are increasingly prevalent in our society today as our life expectancy, in conjunction with better medical care, improves. The document is in its final stages and should be able to take effect sometime shortly after the introduction of the Disability Act.

2125 Mr Speaker, Government and MoD projects continue to be submitted to the Development and Planning Commission (DPC) for guidance and advice. In 2016 the forum considered a total of 45 planning, building and demolition applications from Government and the MoD projects alone. The DPC provides advice and guidance on such applications, which are then considered by the Government and/or the MoD in finalising their plans.

2130 Mr Speaker, DPC meetings continue to be held in public with a total of 12 meetings held in 2016. In addition, the DPC’s subcommittee meets regularly to determine minor applications. In 2016 there were 40 meetings of the subcommittee. This process greatly helps in speeding up the decision-making process. All agendas and minutes continue to be made available online, together with application forms and planning guidance, ensuring that the planning process remains open and transparent, facilitating ease of access to relevant planning information and documentation.

2135 Mr Speaker, the e-Planning service, which was launched in October 2015, continues to operate successfully. The service allows anyone to search and view the details of any application submitted after the launch of the service, including all the plans and other documents submitted with its respective application online. This makes it much easier for the public to be able to see what is being proposed and members of the public can even submit comments in respect of any 2140 application through this e-service. Furthermore Mr Speaker, e-Planning makes it much easier for applicants to submit their applications online. Planning applications can be submitted online in their entirety without the need for a given applicant to have to deliver a hard copy of such application to the Department’s counters at Town Planning and Building Control. During 2016, just over 60% of all planning and building applications were submitted online.

2145 Throughout 2016 the staff at Town Planning have continued to develop the e-Planning system. Numerous improvements and enhancements having been implemented, predominantly on the back end of the system, in order to improve the internal flow of information to make the processing of applications more efficient. The system has also greatly reduced the need for paper copies of documentation, resulting in savings to both applicants and the Department.

2150 The same e-Planning system has been useful to disseminate information about applications to members of the DPC ahead of meetings. A specific feature has been developed for e-Planning that now allows DPC members easy access to the details of every application that is due to be discussed at DPC meetings. This makes it easier for DPC members to familiarise themselves with the details of applications prior to the DPC meeting and therefore allows for better decision-2155 making.

2160 Mr Speaker, in May of this year, I was pleased to announce another improvement to the e-Planning service comprising the addition of a facility to allow the public to carry out map-based searches for applications online. The public can now view what applications have been submitted in any given area by way of a map view and can also access all the details of the applications displayed. This is yet another example of how the planning process is being made much more accessible to the general public. This is considered of utmost importance as planning decisions may and can have a direct impact on people's immediate surroundings and their environment and therefore have a bearing on their quality of life.

2165 Town Planning staff will continue with a rolling programme of improvements to the e-Planning service to improve both internal systems as well as to further improve the services being offered to the general public. In particular, staff will be working on the introduction of a facility that will enable applicants to also be able to pay application fees online. This will therefore be much more convenient and efficient for applicants, who will no longer have to visit the Department's counter to pay in person or have their payment sent by post.

2170 Mr Speaker, the Department also continues to develop its Geographical Information System (GIS) to enable it to record and analyse data geographically. The Department has recently completed development work that allows it to manage geographical data in a much more user-friendly and efficient manner. This in turn allows for better integration between the Department's geographical data and the e-Planning service.

2175 Mr Speaker, I am pleased to say that we expect to be in a position shortly to bring before Parliament the new Town Planning Act together with its subsidiary legislation. I am also pleased to announce that my staff, working closely with the staff of the Government Law Offices, have reviewed and published amendments to the Town Planning (Environmental Impact Assessment) Regulations in May this year. The enactment of these Regulations ensures that we continue to 2180 be fully compliant with the latest EU Directive on Environmental Impact Assessments.

Mr Speaker, the Town Planning Department continues to encourage property owners to improve the appearance of their buildings through the Tax Relief on Façade Improvements Scheme. During 2016 there were 24 applications under this scheme. A similar tax relief scheme has been introduced to encourage the use of solar water heating and photovoltaic cells as a way 2185 of contributing towards sustainable energy generation; a scheme my staff are encouraging homeowners and developers to make use of, when applicable.

Mr Speaker, following the incorporation of the post of Urban Renewal Officer into the Town Planning Department in 2015, we have been able to focus more attention on this important 2190 issue. In this respect, the Department works closely with my colleague the Hon. Dr J Cortes, who leads on urban renewal. Work is currently focused on identifying specific buildings in need of refurbishment and encouraging owners to undertake improvement works to maximise the use of these properties, thereby bringing new life back into such urban areas.

Mr Speaker, I would like to conclude my contribution to my address today by thanking all my staff, who have worked so hard to see our commitments become a reality. My thanks go not 2195 only to those who ensure the rolling out of our commitments, my senior members of staff, but also to all those who do not go by unnoticed, who perform all the valuable functions within the Civil Service throughout all the various Departments and offices.

I also wish to reinforce my appreciation to all the staff here within Parliament, whose role is to ensure that proceedings run as smoothly and efficiently as they do and who are always there 2200 to help when necessary.

In particular, I would finally also like to thank my personal ministerial staff for all of their help and support during the past year. It has been a very busy year and they have lived up to the expectation, as usual.

Thank you. (Banging on desks)

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I move that the House now recess to 2.45 p.m.

Procedural –
Length of Ministers' speeches

2210 Mr Speaker: Before we do, there is something I want to say. We have been listening this morning for three hours and 25 minutes to three speeches from Ministers. I would have liked to have heard a Member of the Opposition have the opportunity to reply before we broke up the morning session. That would have been far more satisfactory and would have kept a sense of balance, which there has not been in the debate this morning.

2215 Hon. Members, and here I am referring to Ministers in particular, have heard me tell them that many of the answers that they give to questions are too long, particularly when replying to supplementaries, and that I have no power in the Rules to limit that – I would like the answers to be shorter. But I do have powers when it comes to debate, and the powers are twofold: first of all, I can interrupt speeches in respect of relevancy, and that is a matter for my discretion; and I can also withdraw the permission that I give all Members to read their speeches. Members will have heard me say in the past that as far as I am concerned it is not a very clever rule, that I do 2220 not see a problem really with Members reading their speeches, but it is a rule and I am going to read it out:

A member shall not, except with the permission of the Speaker or Chairman, read his speech, but he may read extracts from written or printed papers in support of his argument, and may refresh his memory by references to notes.

I find, and more so ... with the exception of the Chief Minister, because when the Chief Minister introduces the Appropriation Bill it is a practice that ... and given what has happened in the last year, the Chief Minister has a perfect right to make a speech of two hours and more. But 2225 the speeches of Ministers are becoming exponentially longer and they are going into unnecessary detail.

Two years ago, one of the Ministers spoke for over two hours and I saw that he was getting tired. Afterwards, I took him aside and I gave him some advice. He took the advice and last year the speech was about an hour and equally effective, if not more so.

2230 I think Ministers are making the mistake of going into so much detail that no one at the end of the day is going to know what they were really talking about. They have too many Departments under their belts and they feel that they have to deal with each and every single one of them.

2235 I honestly do not think that it is a satisfactory state of affairs when three Ministers spend nearly three and a half hours this morning ... I want Ministers to reflect on what I am telling them. It is controversial – I realise I am doing a Bercow (Laughter) – but perhaps I ought to be controversial. And as I say, ultimately, if I want to, I can interrupt Ministers and all other Members, prevent them from reading their speeches when they will only have to have a few notes and the speeches will be longer.

2240 They are getting far, far too long. It is not necessary to go into so much detail. They come here ... One of them remarked this morning that he thought he was going to speak for 25 minutes. Well, he did not: he spoke for 45. And another one said, 'I'm just going to speak for a bit over an hour.' No, he spoke for an hour and a half! When you read a speech, when you have prepared a speech, you may think it is going to take an hour. In the event, you take an hour 2245 and 20 minutes or an hour and a half.

I am sorry, but I do have to speak from my heart and tell hon. Members when I find that matters are not proceeding satisfactorily. I am empowered by the Rules to do so and I would ... Maybe it is too late this year for Members now to cut down their speeches, maybe it is too late, but if I am still around next year – if you want me here and I am fit enough and healthy enough 2250 and I am still around – I will expect you to come up with much shorter speeches next year.

The House will now ... Yes, Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, you have made a statement which I think I need to deal with.

Mr Speaker: Yes, by all means. I thought you might have reflected, discussed it with your Ministers and then perhaps this afternoon tell us what is the consensus view. But anyhow, you have the right.

2260

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I am going to tell you what I think because I think it is important that the House should be aware that Ministers are told to come and give information to the House about their briefs.

2265

We are in a situation where we are damned if we do and we are damned if we do not. We are damned if we do give too much information; we are damned if we do not give the information. This will be a theme of what I will say in my reply during the course of the rounding up in respect of this debate.

2270

This is a debate where in all the time I have been in this House we have heard lengthy statements from all the Ministers I have shadowed, whether they were Members opposite or Members now on this side of the House, dealing with the issues that they are responsible for in respect of the appropriation that we are concerned with. We had lengthy interventions yesterday from Members opposite: I assume that what you are saying is not just applicable to Members on this side of the House – it must also be applicable to Members opposite.

The reason that Mr Speaker has had to hear three speeches from Ministers has been because we have had to move one of the Ministers who would have spoken later in the order – Mr Isola – because he is going to travel to do Government business during the course of this debate, although he will be back in time for the end of the debate.

2280

Mr Speaker, the Government wants to see an interspersed of numbers between the Ministers and the Members opposite but there are 10 of us and there are seven of them, and so therefore on some occasion that alternation of one to the other cannot occur.

2285

The Government wants to see short and punchy speeches, but in the context of this debate we sometimes have to spend time giving information. I have no desire to speak for three hours but sometimes it is necessary, in order to give all the information, to do so. I would have expected, Mr Speaker, that the community, as you have said, would want to hear the information that I was going to put in the public domain yesterday and the information that Ministers have put in the public domain today. But of course, as on every occasion, what you say is something that we will, of course, consider carefully and we will reflect on in the context of preparing for the debate next year.

Mr Speaker, coming to Parliament without notes or indeed without a written speech is not, in my view, a recipe for people to speak for a shorter period; it may in fact be a recipe for people to go on and on and to become circular in what they say. So I think you are right to give us permission to read speeches in this debate, you are right to bring to our attention that they need to be as short and as punchy as possible, but I think it is also true that Members opposite will want to hear the things that Ministers deal with in order to be able to get up and reply to the things that are said – although all too often one delivers a speech and gets a reply to a Facebook post that is six years old.

2295

Mr Speaker: I would like to tell the Chief Minister that between 1972 and 1991, during all the years when I was a Minister, a Member – 16 years a Minister and four Leader of the Opposition ... eight Ministers only, which meant that we probably had an even wider portfolio than Ministers have now, and speeches never went in excess of an hour. I commend that to Hon. Ministers.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, if I can just deal with that point – and it is not often that you and I are replying to each other, but between 1969 and 2006 the most important

2305 portfolio, which was the portfolio of Public Finance, was held by somebody who was appointed to this House, by His Excellency the Governor. Now we have a lot more responsibilities and that is why we have more Ministers. But it is also true, Mr Speaker, that in that time the Budget did not exceed £100 million. In the context of the Budget that we are dealing with today, where we 2310 are dealing with a turnover in the billions and a spending budget of £600 million, there is a lot more to talk about.

Mr Speaker: The House will now recess until quarter to three this afternoon.

The House recessed at 1.03 p.m.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I am delighted to have the opportunity to present this, my 5 second Budget speech, to the House. It is my intention to begin with traffic and transport, an area which regularly attracts great public interest for all sorts of reasons, whether it be our ability to use our vehicles, our inability to park our vehicles, vehicle ownership, public transport, cycling, walking – and the list goes on.

Of course this year, in fact only last month, we finally saw the publication of the 10 Government's Sustainable Traffic, Transport and Parking Plan – the STTPP. This epic document has been almost six years in the making and the story behind it has become a veritable saga. Its publication was to put into reality the Minister's utopian dream for transport in Gibraltar, the panacea to all of our woes. Well, what an anti-climax that turned out to be. (Interjection)

Yes, the document is voluminous, with appendices running to several volumes, but it is long 15 for the sake of being long because it repeats itself frequently and with each repetition little, if anything, of value is added. (A Member: Hear, hear.) It is as if someone has said, 'Look guys, it's taken a long time to put this together, make sure it's really long; hopefully that way it'll look great but no one will actually read it.'

But not only is the document excessively long, when you begin to look at it you realise that it 20 is mostly not even a plan. It lacks conviction, it tentatively proposes reviews and considerations without placing any pressures of when these proposals might be delivered or even if they will be delivered. There is no indication of how much these proposals might cost or how we might measure a successful outcome, as the performance indicators are virtually unintelligible. I have already described this document as more of a manifesto than a plan – it is not even that, it 25 amounts to little more than a survey. It does contain some useful facts and figures, that I cannot deny, but as a structured plan of how Government's transport policy for the next 10 years or more will be shaped and delivered it falls woefully short.

Let's look at some of the reasons for saying this, Mr Speaker. The survey suggests we must encourage cycling and walking. (Interjections) Part of that should be the introduction of a local 30 bike-hire scheme. This thankfully has now been introduced after much delay. Let's not forget we were told this scheme was imminent at the last election. I think this Government has a very different interpretation of the definition of words like 'imminent' and 'shortly' than does the rest of the English-speaking world. Nevertheless, we now have a scheme. (Interjection) The trouble is we had a scheme six years ago and all this Government has achieved now is to bring us back to 35 square one, only six years later. It did not take £½ million survey to tell us that this is a good idea, what it needed was common sense and enough environmental awareness to recognise that the existing bike scheme should have been allowed to continue and then be replaced in due course. (Interjections)

40 Cycling should be encouraged of course for both personal health and environmental reasons and I am at one with Government in supporting such an objective. The STTPP, however, again falls short in this respect. To get people to switch their mindset you do need to make cycling, above all other considerations, safe; then you have to allow access to where people wish to go. The plan does suggest some cycle lanes in the obvious and easy-to-access areas, such as Rosia Road, but it does not set out how we can achieve a comprehensive network of cycle lanes, 45 (Interjection) and therein lies the real challenge in getting the public on their bikes – a challenge which the document falls far short of addressing.

Then of course there is the condition of our roads, which go far in discouraging anyone from adopting any form of two-wheeled transport. The only noticeable improvements in the past 12 months have been a new surface to part of Cumberland Road – not the entirety of it, part of 50 it – and the resurfacing of the Sundial roundabout; and this at the Minister’s own admission. The major thoroughfares have been otherwise untouched leaving Winston Churchill Avenue, from the Frontier to the Sundial, in deplorable condition, Glacis Road barely passable to those on bikes, pedalled or motorised, and the condition of most of Queensway and all of Linewall Road very poor indeed. All of this, combined with poor drainage on most of these roads, leads to a 55 scenario thoroughly discouraging for anyone who may wish to take to cycling; even walking becomes almost impossible in wet conditions, where one must hop between the various ponds that form on the roads or risk a soaking from a passing motorist.

Government really must look at this aspect of our road network and do much better in maintaining it, if it really is trying to encourage more people to cycle and walk. Currently there 60 are so many disincentives – be they safety, air quality or the dreadful condition of our roads – that we have very far to go in this direction. I applaud those who have, despite all adversity, taken to cycling and I hope to see the conditions on our roads improving for them.

The STTPP talks about the introduction of residential parking zones. Of course, like the bike-hire scheme, we were seeing these introduced six years ago. This was put on hold, according to 65 the STTPP, in order to study the inherited scheme in detail and carry out a substantive and authoritative plan. Well, it has taken the best part of six years to do that and what do we get? I quote: (Interjection)

As part of a new parking strategy it is recommended to consult more widely with local communities and estate representatives to determine the level of desirability for introducing new parking zones elsewhere in Gibraltar as there was much concern regarding the lack of consideration to visitors, carers and commercial entities for deliveries of goods.

Government puts on hold a scheme only then to come back after six years with a recommendation for more consultation! And therein lies the rub. The document, this survey, is 70 simply full of recommendations to consult, consider, review, study and investigate, and this is precisely why the document is a disappointing anti-climax. I would have expected all of this work to have been done, to be part of the document, completed with the help of those expensive consultants, and for the document to set out a very clear roadmap on the way forward. It does not do this. It is a starting point, but the trouble is the starting gun was fired six years ago and 75 the Minister is now hopelessly behind.

Mr Speaker, straying briefly from the STTPP, I must address the confusion – not to say utter chaos – that is Government’s policy on parking. Firstly, we seem to have witnessed the total eradication of the concept of a park-and-ride scheme for tourists coming in through the Frontier, a concept introduced by the previous GSD administration and apparently supported by this 80 administration in their 2011 manifesto. Of course, such a system would lead to fewer tourist vehicles competing for the scant parking available in town and would, in turn, not only assist residents in parking but would have improved air quality in our urban areas by getting cars off the streets. Other benefits of fewer vehicles coming into town would have been better safety for

85 cyclists and more pleasant conditions for people to walk in, both stated objectives of this Government, and yet a scheme which could have had so many positives seems no longer to be on the table. I would encourage Government to rethink this.

90 However, Mr Speaker, not only is the park-and-ride scheme concept not to be pursued, but Government introduce another policy to make matters in our urban areas even worse. They ban tourist vehicles from the Upper Rock! They say it is to benefit the environment there, but it is to the detriment of the environment and air quality within the urban areas in which the vast majority of us live and breathe. So the trees of the Upper Rock and the monkeys get cleaner air, while most of the people of Gibraltar get poorer air as yet more tourist vehicles drive round town looking for, and competing for, those same scant parking opportunities that the rest of us who live here need to go about our daily business or even just access our homes.

95 So, Mr Speaker, having pursued policy which effectively ... I will not say deliberately, because I hope such a mess has not been created with malice aforethought, but which nevertheless results in more parking pressure in our urban areas, the Government then adopts a zero-tolerance policy on incorrectly parked vehicles. In the space of a month, and with no warning, we see a huge leap in the number of parking tickets to residents and clamps to tourist vehicles. 100 From December 2015 through to August 2016 not a single vehicle was clamped – not one. Come September 2016 and suddenly in that month alone 341 vehicles were clamped. For fixed penalty notices we see a rise from 1,018 in September 2015, a very reasonable number already, to 2,652 in September 2016; October 2015, 1,087 and October 2016, 2,817. These are huge increases.

105 The policy does not target nuisance parking, as would be right – vehicles stopping in red zones, vehicles causing an obstruction. No, soft targets are chosen and whole streets given tickets for no real purpose other than to perhaps boost Government revenues – a taxation of motorists through the back door and a charge on tourists which must leave them with a very poor impression of Gibraltar. Look at it from their perspective: there is no park-and-ride, so they came to visit the Upper Rock but cannot drive up there; they struggle to find parking anywhere 110 else and when they finally do, and they can go off to spend their money in support of our economy, they come back to find their vehicle clamped because they missed the poorly indicated sign that street cleaning was going to take place in the car park on that day. I do wonder what they tell their friends and relatives when they return home. (Interjections)

115 The upshot of Government's policy on parking has been to simply make everyone's life a misery while making cycling and walking on our streets more challenging and the air we breathe more polluted. Well done. (Interjections)

120 Mr Speaker, returning to the STTPP, I will say that it does contain some attractive concepts, and encouraging electric and microcars caught my eye. I have returned recently from a trip to Rome, where microcars were exceedingly popular and there were virtually no big 4x4s on the roads. I am not sure what incentives are offered in Rome, but perhaps Government ought to look at these as the current incentive packages Government offers have had virtually no impact on the habits of vehicle owners, and the STTPP offers little further guidance apart from setting aside more parking spaces for microcars. So, again, a suggestion with no clear strategy for implementation.

125 Likewise, one of the grander schemes is the pedestrianisation of Market Place: it looks very good and is certainly not to be dismissed out of hand, and pedestrianisation of other areas such as Main Street has been very successful. But the STTPP makes the suggestion without any firm data on how this will impact traffic flows on Queensway and in particular on the Waterport roundabout, an area that already becomes very congested with lorries and buses competing 130 with the many pedestrians coming down from the cruise terminal. (Interjections) Air quality in this area is already poor and a comprehensive study is required to determine the impact of the closure of Market Place. This area is pedestrianised of course for Calentita and it works then, but will it work on weekday rush hours? This is the kind of informative detail which I would have hoped to find and which is sadly lacking in the STTPP.

135 Mr Speaker, I was not going to raise the issue of speed cameras, until the Minister himself raised it in his intervention, and what caught my ear during his intervention was the remarkable admission that only one aspect of vehicles, and not the rear aspect of vehicles, is currently being 140 photographed by the speed cameras. This was something I asked him in Parliament a while ago and which he was very secretive about. Mr Speaker, it is a staggering omission that this should be so when the whole and primary reason for introducing speed cameras in the first place was in order to moderate the speed of moped riders, particularly young men on mopeds, who were the most vulnerable in terms of safety on our roads. And yet, other than face recognition, we have no means of identifying people speeding on motorbikes and mopeds, particularly if they are wearing a full-face helmet.

145 Something else the Minister mentioned in his speech – which I find scandalous, to be honest, not to mention discriminatory – was his attack on pensioners, that they should not enjoy the right to own cars like anyone else. It was a bizarre statement for him to make, to single out pensioners in this way as if they should not have the right to own what he quotes as a ‘rock runner’. Even there, his arguments were flawed. He described the rock runner and in the same 150 breath almost he said ‘that vehicle which is permanently parked, occupying a parking space’.
Well, that is not the case; the whole purpose of the rock runner is for people’s day-to-day getting around Gibraltar.

The vehicles that need to be tackled are the abandoned vehicles on our streets but certainly not those vehicles used by pensioners to get around Gibraltar because they wish to protect the 155 large investment they have made in the vehicle they use at weekends to go into Spain or wherever they choose to go with them. Ridiculous, Mr Speaker; ridiculous that the Minister should target old-age pensioners in this way. (Interjections)

It is important that we act responsibly, particularly in areas where strategies designed to improve the quality of life of the community are concerned, for that is the intention and the 160 motivation of all of us in this House, unlike this administration – which I have demonstrated was ready, not to say eager, to wipe out any legacy of the previous administration regardless of cost or impact to the community. Thus Gibi Bikes were abolished, thus HEOs were removed, thus resident parking schemes were halted, thus buses were replaced for less user-friendly versions – and all to bring us back to square one later. (Interjections)

165 We on this side are more interested in the long-term interests of our community and would be happy to work with Government and to participate in the many consultations, considerations, reviews, studies and investigations suggested in the STTPP in order to give our community a consistent transport strategy for years to come.

Mr Speaker, I move now to matters affecting the environment, and another issue that has 170 become a saga of mythological proportions is that of the sewage and waste treatment plants.
Let me remind Government that this is a project they presented in their 2011 manifesto. Not their 2015 manifesto, their 2011 manifesto, that false dawn manifesto which the Chief Minister would have us believe was delivered 100%. Except it wasn’t – far from it, actually: there is no underground parking at Commonwealth Parade; there is no Naval Ground Park; there is no 175 South Barracks Park or relocation of GBC; the Eastside reclamation remains unbeautified as was promised; the problems with the taxi city service have not been addressed; the problem of sewage at Western Beach was not immediately tackled and remains a problem; there has been no regeneration of Rosia Bay; there is no park-and-ride scheme from the Frontier to reduce the number of tourist vehicles on our street – it no longer even seems to be a consideration; there is 180 no new road to the south district; and the paving in Main Street has not been made safe for women wearing heels. And all this just within the portfolios I have as my responsibilities. I know this is history, but the record must show that that particular manifesto was never delivered in full despite claims otherwise.

Returning to the sewage treatment plant, I accused the Minister of abject failure on this 185 project a year ago in my Budget speech and I can only accuse him of precisely the same failure today without providing a single good reason or explanation. A year on and still not even a contract award for construction, let alone an operating plant. We have a promise that it will be done in 30 months' time. Well, we shall watch and see. The Minister recently reiterated his commitment to the Paris Agreement on climate change as if our global contribution was significant. I think the Minister has his priorities very wrong. 'Mr Environment', as the Chief Minister likes to call the Minister, has been in his Ministry for nearly six years and still we pump raw sewage into the sea, knowing full well the environmental damage that this causes. There is no excuse. It is shameful. He used to criticise the former GSD administration for planting the wrong plants at the children's park at Europa – and now, year after year goes by and nothing is done about the travesty that is a sewage outflow just a few metres from that park.

I know that this is not a sexy project; I know elections are not going to be won and lost on this issue. I also know that we will never be able to make true the claims of this Government that Gibraltar is at the forefront of the environmental agenda while this base practice is permitted to continue. It is my duty to ensure that Government and the Minister are held to account until they deliver on this promise, and it is the Minister's duty to deliver on that promise.

Mr Speaker, an issue which in the last year has drawn much public discussion is that of the maintenance and poor condition of the North Front Cemetery. In the last year we have seen a public petition raised, asking that action be taken by Government to improve the condition of the cemetery. We have seen regular, almost continuous, criticism of the state of the cemetery on social media. We have had discussion in this House, and indeed last November we unanimously passed an amended motion which I brought to this House. Please allow me to refresh your memories on that motion, it read that:

This House recalls that North Front Cemetery is the place where our loved ones are laid to rest, considers that there has always been room for improvement to the condition of North Front cemetery and that this has been the case under successive governments.

Notes the importance of continuing maintenance to the state of the cemetery, recognising the efforts presently being made in that direction and supports the Government's plans to review relevant legislation and to provide a management programme for the maintenance of the cemetery.

This was last November and we as an Opposition were sufficiently gracious to allow Government to make its claim in that motion that it was making efforts to improve the maintenance of the cemetery, (Interjection) but we did so in the hope that Government would be spurred on by this to press ahead with developing and delivering a maintenance programme. Sadly, and to the great frustration of many, we have seen nothing of the sort in the ensuing seven months. If a management programme for the maintenance of the cemetery has been developed it is certainly not one that has yet to be given effect, judging both from the continued poor condition of the cemetery and the constant concerns raised by the public of its condition. These concerns just fall on deaf ears, it seems.

The motion notes the importance of continuing maintenance of the cemetery. We spend around £½ million a year paying people to maintain the cemetery, and a huge proportion of that is on overtime. Our community has a right to expect better value from that. Our community has a right to expect that the place in which our loved ones are laid to rest is looked after in a manner respectful to those loved ones. (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.) Our community has a right to be heard on this issue and Government has a responsibility to act promptly and appropriately to deal with this issue once and for all. What we have seen from Government is simply not good enough and I implore the Minister to give the cemetery the priority it deserves and that the people wish it to have.

Air quality in Gibraltar has also been cause for much debate this year and it is an issue that affects every one of us. The fact is that standards are simply not good enough. The air that we breathe is some of the worst in Europe. While monitoring of air quality has been an important and welcome step, the fact that such monitoring simply reveals, quite literally, how eye-wateringly poor that air is across a range of pollutants is deeply concerning. Anecdotal information indicating people suffer from respiratory ailments while in Gibraltar, symptoms they often find relieved during periods of absence, supports the data and I would ask Government to consider conducting a full survey of this to properly ascertain the impact of poor air on people's quality of life.

235 I have already touched on this subject while discussing Government's parking policy. As vehicles are one of the three major contributors to pollution in our air it is inevitable that poor management of transport policy will result in worse air quality. (Interjections)

240 Large vehicles, or large diesel-engined vehicles, are particularly damaging in terms of pollutants. I did notice the reference in the STTPP to the new bus fleet with the latest approved Euro-type engines – the implication being that these represented an environmental enhancement over the previous fleet. It is somewhat ironic therefore that Government should have sold this fleet not overseas, thus removing it as a contributory factor to poor air quality, but to a local private bus company so that these older vehicles are still on our streets, entirely negating the positive impact claimed in the STTPP of the new bus fleet with their latest Euro-compliant engines. Not only was this done with no consideration for the environmental impact, it was done for the paltry figure of just £15,000 – just over £1,000 per bus sold. I suppose someone must have done very well from this deal but it certainly was not in the interests of the people of Gibraltar.

250 One of the other significant contributors to our poor air quality is power generation. The advent of the new power station is of course expected to improve matters, but the location remains one that I simply cannot agree with. (Interjection) Setting that aside, however, it was disappointing to note that Government has ruled out the use of electrostatic precipitators to remove harmful particulates should the generators be required at any point to run on diesel. While I understand that that is not Government's intention, the contingency must be there for a reason and Government had previously committed, largely due to the close proximity of their station to urban areas, to use the best available technology to remove pollutants from the power station's emissions. Government has reneged on that commitment by not including electrostatic precipitators and this will be to the detriment of air quality in general and in particular to those – and there are many – who reside upwind of the power station.

260 Bunkering is the other major contributor to poor air quality and it is also a major contributor to our economy, but that is not to say that we must not endeavour to minimise its impact on the community and find ways of doing this business in the most environmentally friendly way. We need to be honest with ourselves about our environmental record. (Interjection) We cannot keep saying what an excellent record we have and how well we are doing, when we are not. Not really. The first step in actually making real progress is to recognise our frailties.

270 While projects such as placing bird-nesting boxes on buildings, managing the tuna catch, underwater cameras, the reintroduction of the Barbary partridge and other species are all important – and indeed I congratulate the Minister on the detailed work in these areas and other areas – these are small things in comparison to the real challenges we face. Sewage treatment, air quality, and yes, issues like the cemetery which affect many people. We need to see ourselves through a lens of objectivity and recognise that we are far from world leaders in environmental matters, that while recycling our waste is rising, it is far from comprehensive and there is a long way to go. We have far to go in the use of renewable energies to generate power, rather than fossil fuel. We have a few solar panels dotted about the place heating water or powering street lights; we have a trial wave generator occasionally boiling the odd kettle because much of the time it does not work at all. We need to step away from making such things sound as if they are hugely progressive projects in order to look good in the local media, because they are not. It is quite simple: they are not hugely progressive, they represent the smallest of baby steps and we need to be honest with ourselves and recognise this in order to begin to make real progress.

280 The Minister issues press releases stating our continued commitment to the measures stated in the Paris Agreement on climate change as if we are a global contributor, but we are not even listed in that agreement as a contributor. We need to get our priorities right and focus on the 285 local and the regional. Our global impact, negligible though it is, will improve through these means.

I know that this cannot be done quickly and that plans for environmental improvement in a community our size must be long term – probably longer than the term of any individual Government or Minister. It is therefore with some disappointment that I say Her Majesty's Opposition remains excluded from all committees which may have a bearing or influence on future policy. Of course Government makes policy, that is accepted, (Interjections) but a particular Government may not be there to see policy come to fruition or indeed continue to deliver a policy with consistency. Environment is one area where cross-party agreement, at least in those areas requiring long-term consistency, may be desirable. I invite the Minister to consider this if he is genuinely interested in establishing Gibraltar as a global leader in environmental policy.

295 Finally, in terms of environment, I join with the Minister in congratulating Mr Bart van Thienen for his tremendous voluntary contribution at the foreshore and hope that the Government will support his application for citizenship.

300 A Member: What has one thing got to do with the other?

Hon. T N Hammond: Because it's the right thing to do, that's all. (Interjection)

Mr Speaker, moving on to Brexit, where I shall not dwell overly long, it has of course been over a year now since that referendum – (Interjection)

305

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Point of order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What is the –?

310 Hon. Chief Minister: The point of order is that the hon. Gentleman has raised a point specific to an individual across the floor of the House, not in congratulatory terms but in respect of an application –

Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano):
315 For nationality.

Hon. Chief Minister: – for nationality; and that is out of order, Mr Speaker. If it is an attempt to curry favour – (Interjection by Mr Speaker) Well, indeed, but it is an attempt to curry favour with an individual in the Chamber, Mr Speaker. (Interjections)

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, moving on to Brexit, where I shall not dwell overly long, it has of course been over a year now since that referendum, a year in which the British Prime Minister triggered Article 50 but sadly left direct reference to Gibraltar out of her letter to the European Union; a year in which the European Union responded to that letter from Theresa May triggering Article 50 and pointedly did not exclude Gibraltar from their response; a year in which we, representing Her Majesty's Opposition, have set out what we believe should be Gibraltar's objectives from the upcoming negotiations – free flow at the Frontier, be a part of any deal the United Kingdom makes with the EU, continue to have access to United Kingdom markets and be part of any agreements made by the United Kingdom with other nations beyond the EU – and it is heartening to say that both sides of the House are entirely aligned on these objectives. These points have been set out and maintained by the GSD since the result of the Brexit referendum was known.

335 It has been a year in which we have not always agreed with Government on the manner in which they have conducted themselves on Brexit. Above all, however, it has been a year in which all in this House have been broadly aligned in the interests of Gibraltar, where there has been healthy debate and ultimately the establishment of a Select Committee to try and provide support to Government, listen to the community and assess the direction being steered by Government. (Interjections) We agree entirely with the Chief Minister that our sovereignty forms no part of the Brexit negotiations, that the Kingdom of Spain should not raise its hopes in this regard or see Brexit as an opportunity to forward its misplaced claims. It was a GSD administration under Sir Peter Caruana who negotiated the double lock on sovereignty, a mechanism which assures our sovereignty and an achievement which we on this side of the House are proud to defend.

Mr Speaker, finally, health and safety, and of course the recent tragic events that we have witnessed at Grenfell Tower in West London. First of all, I must pass on my deepest condolences to all those families affected by this tragedy. The horrors there have highlighted the potential risks of high-rise living and the extreme importance of managing fire risks. Pressures in Gibraltar will always be to build upwards, it is inevitable, but we must always do so safely. I have welcomed the recent statements by Government reassuring the public that the refurbishments of Government-owned estates and particularly the cladding used is of an entirely different nature to that used at Grenfell Tower, and that additional fire prevention measures were put in place to ensure proper fire protection.

Prevention is of course the key. Our community has limited resources for dealing with major incidents and this is clear when you see the kind of response to serious incidents that we have witnessed in London or Manchester. This is not to say that the men and women of our emergency services are in any way less capable than their counterparts in the United Kingdom because that is of course not so; it is simply that we cannot draw on the same resources as would be available there. We need to be all the more cautious in minimising our risks accordingly. I trust that the Government will still be conducting a full fire safety review of Government high-rise housing stock, and I repeat my call to consider extending that review further to include those estates which are partly Government owned, to provide further assurance to our community that our homes are safe from fire. I further ask that the Government makes public, or at least shares with residents, the results and recommendations of such surveys when they are complete and acts as swiftly as possible to address any issues that are raised. I also ask that the Government undertakes to conduct similar tests on the cladding of buildings as those which have been conducted in the United Kingdom, and not just rely on manufacturers' reports for assurances.

Finally Mr Speaker, I would like to thank you, the Clerk of the House and all the staff of Parliament, for the help and support that they have offered and that I have received in this last year. Thank you. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Gilbert Licudi.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I start my address with Tourism.

Mr Speaker, this important sector will continue to play a crucial role in the next stage of our challenging future.

Last October, the responsibilities for running visitor attractions, mainly within our Nature Reserve, and the provision of beach facilities were transferred to the Department of the Environment. This element of the tourism industry is now overseen by my colleague the Hon. Minister John Cortes. This change has allowed the Gibraltar Tourist Board to concentrate more effectively on promoting Gibraltar abroad as a tourist destination as well as developing new and diverse opportunities for the industry. Consequently, the increased budget figure for marketing this year will allow us to strengthen the job of selling the destination and attracting more visitors to our shores.

Our partners in the industry tell us that the growth of the weddings and MICE markets is consistent, and we will pursue the MICE element in particular this year. MICE, or 'Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Exhibitions', is a form of tourism which attracts large groups of people. MICE tourism is usually planned well in advance of the event so it is absolutely crucial to stay ahead of the game and get in early. Only recently, the GTB exhibited at the Meetings Show in London. This is one of the most prestigious events of its kind. It benefits from a hosted buyers programme that delivers tangible, potential business directly to those promoting their products and services at the event.

Our participation at the World Travel Market, the industry's leading exhibition will continue in partnership with the local tourism industry. So too the road shows, such as those held in the UK earlier this year and in Morocco last year.

Mr Speaker, in this electronic age the GTB is shortly to enhance the effectiveness of its website and will have a new brochure, available electronically to download. This will also help to make tourism information available more accessible. Our efforts in making social media work harder for Gibraltar are evident, as an increasing number of both public and private sector entities embrace the Gibraltar branding and use it to jointly promote the Rock. The GTB's activities on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram are always well received and we ensure that we support other events through this medium.

Event-led tourism continues to be an important element of our tourism strategy and the results are there for all to see. From chess, backgammon to darts, music, food and literature, to name but a few, Gibraltar is fast developing a reputation as the place to travel to, to experience this all. We continue to work closely with our colleagues in the Ministry for Sports and Culture.

The Gibunco Gibraltar International Literary Festival has certainly become one of the most prestigious events we host in Gibraltar and one which the GTB works tirelessly to deliver. We were delighted to announce that Her Royal Highness the Princess Royal has agreed to continue her patronage of the Festival for a further three years. This year will see the fifth edition of the Festival and it is indeed a testament to all those involved for such a young Festival to have reached the dizzy heights already.

Mr Speaker, I was delighted and honoured to present the Gibraltar Lecture at the FT Weekend Oxford Literary Festival once again this year. Laurence Rees delivered a deeply moving and captivating lecture about the Holocaust. We are honoured that he has accepted our invitation to repeat the lecture at the Gibraltar Festival in November this year.

We have recently announced the participation of some prestigious authors and celebrities and I am thrilled to see the Festival once again become a benchmark for others of its kind around the world.

Mr Speaker, I would like to thank the main sponsor of the Festival, the Gibunco Group and all the sponsors and partners who make it possible for the Festival to take place. I am delighted to say that the financial burden on the Taxpayer continues to lessen, as the Festival grows in popularity and reputation year on year.

Mr Speaker, all these efforts and more are showing positive results in our visitor numbers. We have more visitors by air, by sea and the number of coaches bringing day visitors to the Rock is also on the increase.

It is certainly gratifying to see in the Hotel Occupancy Survey that the total number of arrivals at hotels in 2016 reached a record high, showing an increase of 18.9% over 2015, and to see that the largest gains came from tourist arrivals that grew by 25.6% over 2015.

Mr Speaker, commercial aviation in Gibraltar saw record passenger numbers in 2016. We welcomed a record 50 flights per week in the peak summer months, with August being a record month for passengers, with 60,360 passengers handled. Looking at 2017, record passenger numbers have already been broken in the first few months of the year.

We continue our one-to-one contacts on a regular basis with the airline industry. This is wholeheartedly welcomed by the airlines that frequently comment on our proactive approach to ensure that they are always in possession of the most up-to-date information on Gibraltar.

We also continue to participate in the ROUTES Europe development forum, where airlines and airports come together to do business.

440 In 2017, we will see existing routes consolidating even further, with load factors expected to be up and flights operating even fuller than they were last year, increasing passenger numbers and throughput at the airport.

Mr Speaker, the cruise industry continues to show consistent signs of growth. In 2017, 252 calls are already expected. This is an increase of 12.5 % on last year. Seven cruise ships will make their inaugural calls at Gibraltar, with one in particular, Panorama II, making a total of 21 445 scheduled calls in the year.

This year the wharf at the Mid-Harbour Marina was also used to berth one of the smaller cruise ships, as the North Mole was fully booked with other cruise ships in port on that day.

Our regular contact with the industry either face to face, at the Seatrade Global events and through the membership of MedCruise, allows us to be prominent in the eyes of the cruise 450 industry. Our partners in the local shipping industry play an important role in all the aspects of the points I have covered, and we are grateful for their support in the day-to-day task of promoting Gibraltar and making sure that our clients and visitors get the highest levels of service and the best experiences.

Only last week, we hosted the 50th General Assembly of MedCruise, the Association of 455 Mediterranean Cruise Ports. This Association also includes ports in the Black Sea and the Atlantic Islands. Over 100 delegates attended the three day event and carried out important business discussing the state of the industry. This was the second time in recent years that Gibraltar has hosted the event.

Mr Speaker, as a Government we have embraced tourism and seen significant growth. Our 460 commitment to the task of selling our unique destination will continue with fervour and pride as we showcase to the world what it is that we have to offer.

Mr Speaker, I now turn to Employment matters.

As at October 2016, the total number of employee jobs in Gibraltar increased by 929, from 465 26,144 to a record high of 27,073. This is the highest number ever recorded. In October 2015, the highest number of Gibraltarians in employment stood at 11,010. I am pleased to announce that in October 2016, this number rose to 11,065. This is also the highest number ever recorded.

Private sector growth has risen by 907 – that is 4.5% – from 20,070 to 20,977 in October 470 2016. The public sector saw an increase of 23 – that is 0.4%. Average gross earnings is now £28,751.62.

Mr Speaker, we have the lowest number of Gibraltarians unemployed ever recorded. Despite the challenges Gibraltar has faced and is facing, our unemployment has this year once again reached record low levels. 2017 has seen the lowest ever level of recorded unemployment in 475 history. The number of unemployed persons in Gibraltar stood at 111 as at 31st May 2017. This is the lowest level ever since records began. The published first quarter average of unemployment is 216, also a record low – the lowest first quarter average on record!

Mr Speaker, the Department of Employment has undergone a number of operational 480 changes. In the past six months, the Department has been working tirelessly to improve the quality of the services it provides to all its customers, by reviewing all of its processes and systems. It is finalising the digitising of all forms and continues to work to offer online facilities to ease the administrative burden on businesses and strengthen the service provided to the public.

In the last few months, one of the key initiatives undertaken by the Department involves meetings with a cross-section of employers to assess and assist them with any historic issues they may have had when dealing with the Employment Service. One of the main issues that 485 needed to be addressed is the registration of detached workers and short-term business visitors. I am pleased to announce that we will shortly be in a position to offer businesses a new faster and streamlined process of effecting such a registration.

Mr Speaker, the Labour Inspectorate is tasked with the regulation and enforcement of our employment laws. This Government is committed to eradicating illegal labour in order to ensure 490 that all businesses are compliant with the Employment Regulations. This is in fact one of the main issues the business community has requested that we investigate and deal with. A new programme of inspections will be rolled out within the coming months, which will ensure a level playing field is maintained within the job market.

495 The Department has recently produced an information leaflet, which provides essential information to anyone considering setting up a business, trade or profession in Gibraltar. This has been a first for the Department of Employment providing this essential information on-line, in an easy and accessible manner and has proved to be a valuable resource and point of reference to both employers and employees.

500 Mr Speaker, the local branch of the Chartered Institute of Personnel and Development (CIPD) held two events this year in connection with the recent changes to the Employment Tribunal legislation. The first was held in July 2016 in conjunction with various law firms. The event provided an opportunity for HR professionals in both public and private sectors to gain an understanding of the legislative changes and how they apply to them in practice.

505 This was followed up in April 2017 with a simulated Employment Tribunal hearing, giving attendees a flavour of what it is actually like to go through the process. In the role-play scenario, a team of expert employment lawyers recreated the workings of a tribunal in a safe and non-critical environment, with a question-and-answer session afterwards. Attendees were able to understand the procedure of giving evidence, cross-examination and re-examination and discuss their perceptions of the evidence given and what the case outcome might be.

510 Mr Speaker, the Department of Employment, as part of its Careers Development Service, is proud to offer the enhanced services of a dedicated specialist team of Employment Co-ordinators. The purpose of the Co-ordinators is to match the skills, qualifications and experience of those seeking employment with the current employment requirements of local employers.

515 Employment Co-ordinators work closely with employers across industries to help facilitate efficient identification of the available workforce and in turn facilitate the effective matching of those seeking work with relevant available vacancies.

520 These officers are available to all members of the public who are registered with the Department of Employment. Registered persons unemployed or looking for alternative work are given guidance and the opportunity to review all the vacancies that are open publicly and apply to those to which they find of interest.

525 In addition, the Employment Service provides one-to-one clinics whereby each person's employment needs or concerns are assessed, followed by the development of an action plan, which may further include referral to the Employment Counsellor. Where necessary, for enhanced CV production, interviewing skills and referral for onward training opportunities can be provided.

530 The Department is also in regular contact with our secondary schools and the Gibraltar College so that any other service which they feel would benefit their students will be discussed with a view to implementation. With that in mind, the Department of Employment has made available Employment Counsellor to attend the Department of Education with a view to addressing any employment or personal issue that a prospective school leaver may have and to prepare that person to start employment on a positive note.

535 The Careers Section delivers orientation workshops for students at the Gibraltar College, Westside and Bayside Secondary Schools. The workshops allow students who are thinking about leaving the education system to have the opportunity to explore the options available to them in the job market. These workshops are proving to be a success. On the one hand, the students are in an environment where they can talk openly about their expectations, fears, doubts, etc. before they finally decide whether to leave the education system altogether.

540 The transition from education to employment is always a challenging one. The timing of when to do this or even start thinking about the prospect is perhaps one of the most important decisions a young person has to take. The Department can be very useful in bridging this gap by supporting them in the decision-making process.

For those students that have decided to leave the education system, the Careers Service provides dedicated support. Interview techniques are practiced and assistance is provided in 545 formulating a CV and cover letters for job applications. The purpose of these sessions is to ensure that first time job seekers can rely on a Work Ready Toolbox to assist them in the process of getting a job.

Mr Speaker, the Government has responsibility for the Gibraltar and the Airport Fire and Rescue Services. 2016 was a year of steady progress for the Gibraltar Fire and Rescue Service (GFRS) maintaining the three-year targets set in the 2016 Integrated Risk Management Plan.

550 The senior management team is also driving a modernisation programme for the Service involving the Fire Control Room, Operations Room, M/T Workshop and the recently established Health and Safety/Welfare Office.

555 The development of the Control Room has seen the implementation and upgrade of standard operating procedures, an improved training programme that will enhance emergency call management, restructure of supervising and reporting lines and enhancing command and control competence.

560 In addition, Training Management System software – known as the Red Kite – is being implemented at the GFRS. The software will capture and record Personal Development and Maintenance of Skills processes, monitor minimum levels of competencies within the various training programmes and keep a track of assets and equipment. The same software is being used by the Airport Fire and Rescue Service for a similar purpose.

565 The Operations Room at the GFRS has been redeveloped into a multi-function facility that has the capability to perform as a Station Command and Control HQ during a fire related incident or as an alternative multi-agency Silver Command post. In addition, it is also being used as a secondary lecture room for operational training events and as a study room for those members of the Service looking to develop their careers further.

570 Mr Speaker, the Government continues to invest in essential plant and equipment. As part of the GFRS fleet replacement programme, we have acquired two fire appliances, an auxiliary vehicle and a potable pump with a combined value of £287,000. The two new appliances should be built by September of this year. The ultimate beneficiary of this replacement programme is our community.

575 The GFRS forms a vital part of Gibraltar's future development. It is involved in major projects such as the pre-construction phase of the LNG power station and the Airport tunnel. The main objective of this early involvement by our fire personnel in both these projects is to familiarise themselves with potential risks in order to assist in the implementation or creation of emergency response plans. The primary aim of these plans is to mitigate the effects that an incident could have on first responders, our community and the environment. In addition, a contingent composed of GFRS Senior Management, Operations personnel, and members of the Environment Department, have travelled to the UK and Norway to obtain first-hand knowledge on LNG plant operations, safety and security, and emergency response capabilities.

580 Mr Speaker, last October, a team of four firefighters from the GFRS travelled to Montgomery, Alabama in the US, to represent Gibraltar in the 25th Anniversary of the World Fire Fighter Combat Challenge. The aim was to gain and share experiences and importantly to try and make it past the qualifiers. What followed exceeded all expectations: not only did the team achieve their goal of making it past the preliminaries, they battled their way to the world finals, finishing in a fantastic second place and bringing home the silver medal. My heartfelt congratulations to the team for their fantastic achievement. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

590 Mr Speaker, the Airport Fire and Rescue Service (AFRS) has had a busy period of activity during the last 12 months. During the financial year, AFRS has teamed up with various UK-based fire training institutions, the GHA Ambulance Service and other professional bodies and undertaken training and Continual Professional Development.

Two new recruits have been taken on to supplement the AFRS complement and these are now back from the United Kingdom, where they undertook their Initial Firefighter's Course at the International Fire Training Centre in Teesside.

595 Recently, HMGoG awarded a tender for the replacement of the fire vehicle fleet, which will entail an investment of just over £3 million. This project will be co-funded with the Ministry of Defence (MOD). The new airfield rescue and firefighting vehicles should be delivered in the next 12 months and replace the existing MOD vehicles, which are between 17 and 18 years old. This investment will bring up-to-date technology and considerably enhanced fire-fighting resources 600 and capabilities to the airfield for the benefit and safety of the flying public. Two new Operational Support utility vehicles will also be procured.

The AFRS also unveiled new kit that affords firefighters the essential protection to deal with the full range of fire and rescue incidents.

605 The AFRS continues to work closely with the GFRS to promote synergies, having recently signed Interoperability Memoranda of Understanding in respect of both aviation-related incidents and to support the GFRS at any other incident throughout Gibraltar.

Mr Speaker, aviation fire-fighting is heavily scrutinised and subject to a rigorous compliance regime. The AFRS recently underwent a UK Civil Aviation Authority audit, with only relatively minor issues to report. The senior management team are rightly proud of this result, if you 610 consider the significant administrative challenges in the transition from the MOD to HMGoG that this has represented to the team in such a short period of time.

Mr Speaker, with regard to the Gibraltar Air Terminal itself, and as I have already mentioned, 2016 saw Gibraltar International Airport breaking all historical records of both passengers and flights handled. The new services from Monarch operating four times a week from Gatwick and 615 easyJet operating twice a week from Manchester contributed to what was an already busy schedule: 548,230 departing and arriving passengers were handled in that year, which was an additional 103,894 or 23.4% more than in 2015. Similarly, 4,968 commercial aircraft were recorded, which reflects an increase of 868 or 21.2% growth from 2015.

620 The passenger figures for the fourth Quarter 2016-17 already shows an increase of 13.6% in January, 20.2% in February and 17% in March in comparison to 2016. This would indicate that the trend is continuing and the capacity available is being taken up, which will assist in consolidating the routes.

Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar International Airport was recently shortlisted by PrivateFly, a leading online booking platform for private aviation charter, in its Most Scenic Airport Landing 625 Poll for 2017. Thousands of global travel fans voted in the poll, with over 122 different airports around the world receiving a mention, including those chosen and shortlisted by PrivateFly's expert judging panel. I am happy to report that Gibraltar came out in fourth place, behind Nice in the Cote d'Azur in France, Donegal in Ireland and Saba in the Caribbean.

630 The Air Terminal has also been very active in staff training with all the different organisations continuing to improve on their interoperability and ensuring that they achieve compliance with the high standards that are set by the aviation industry.

Mr Speaker, the Port of Gibraltar continues to see growth in activity across nearly all sectors of the industry. This is despite the continuing slowdown in global economic activity, overcapacity in shipping across the world and stiff regional competition.

635 Specifically, 2016 saw an increase in both the number of vessels calling at Gibraltar for bunkers – up 2.6 7% on 2015 – and in the quantity of fuel delivered. The GPA also recorded a rise in ship-to-ship transfers in the Bay of nearly 15%. Off port limit transfers were also up by just under 6% and increases were also seen in occupancy rates at the Eastern Anchorage.

640 This positive trend is reflected more widely in the total number of vessels calling at Gibraltar, including cruise ships and superyachts, which saw increases of just under 10% and 24% respectively. An increasing number of superyachts have also taken advantage of the new berths at the recently commissioned Mid-Harbour Marina. Of note, we have seen a threefold increase in superyacht nights since the berths became available, with almost 40% of superyachts calling at Gibraltar now staying for at least one night.

645 Working closely with the recently formed Gibraltar Yachting Business Development Association (GYBDA), efforts continue to market Gibraltar as a key hub in this sector, highlighting the wider range of services available and the easy access to so many attractions.

Initiatives which were introduced some 18 months ago to promote the Port of Gibraltar continue to have a positive impact, with Gibraltar hosting the extremely successful International Bunker Industry Association annual convention in Gibraltar last November, for the first time ever, with over 150 delegates from around the world visiting Gibraltar.

655 With the support of the Government, the GPA has continued with its targeted marketing campaign, directly engaging with ship owners and operators as well as attending key industry events around the world, including Singapore, Athens, Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Dubai, thereby providing an opportunity to reinforce the Port's reputation in the regional and global stage. Attendance at these events has also resulted in the Port being invited to give presentations or sit on panel discussions at high profile bunkering or shipping conferences and this has provided an opportunity to update the audience on recent developments and initiatives aimed at further improving the Port of Gibraltar's efficiency and standing.

660 The Gibraltar Port was also invited last year to join the Society for Gas as a Marine Fuel, a non-governmental organisation established to promote safety and industry best practice in the use of gas as a marine fuel. With over 100 members, the Society includes key ports such as Singapore, Rotterdam, and some of the most well-known suppliers and operators in this field. This represents a key step for the GPA, allowing it to draw on the technical experience and expertise present in the Society.

670 Mr Speaker, as previously announced by the Government, a new Vessel Traffic Services system has been purchased by the GPA. This new system will be housed in the nearly completed Port building at Lathbury Barracks and should be ready for testing in late autumn with the goal of going live shortly after. This is a significant investment. However, it serves to demonstrate this Government's clear commitment to ensuring that safety, particularly in our busy waters, always comes first.

675 Mr Speaker, an important aspect of the development of the Port is the continuing excellent relationship between the GPA and the private sector port operators and service providers who work very closely to support the shipping community in our efforts to maintain Gibraltar's reputation as a centre of maritime excellence.

Mr Speaker, I turn to Gibraltar Maritime Administration (GMA).

Once again, the Gibraltar Ship Registry has retained its 'White List' status worldwide and remains one of the top 20 in the world. This is reflected in the annual International Chamber of Shipping's 'Flag State Performance Table' for 2016-17.

680 In addition to the improvement in quality, the overall Gibraltar fleet – both yachts and ships – has increased 6% between 2015-16. We now have more than 1,200 vessels registered in Gibraltar, despite challenges such as, as I have mentioned, the global depression in the international maritime market. This is a testament to the excellent products on offer at the Registries, as well as the supporting services within Gibraltar.

685 The Gibraltar Yacht Registry introduced the 'Small Ships' Registry' in July 2016 and the take-up has been very healthy, with 47 new registrations up to the end of 2016 and a further 27 this year.

690 The GMA has once again been providing training for a number of independent authorities throughout the past 12 months, including the Royal Gibraltar Police, the Gibraltar Port Authority, the Danish Maritime Administration and the Isle of Man Registry. The latter two have used the GMA as a base for Port State Control inspections and surveys, which is the internationally agreed regime for the inspection of foreign ships in other national ports.

695 The GMA's Seafarers' Section continues to issue a significant number of provisional and full-term certificates, with more than 4,700 completed during 2016. I am pleased to announce that the GMA will shortly be introducing a new web portal for seafarers' certification and online payment platforms this year. International and local clients will soon be able to apply, manage and receive seafarer documentation on a 24/7 basis.

700 In December last year, Captain Rob Cumbes retired as the GMA's Chief Surveyor. Captain Cumbes has provided many years of Service to the Government and I would like to thank him for this and wish him a long and happy retirement. I also take this opportunity of congratulating Mr Dylan Cocklan on being successfully appointed as his successor in June 2017.

705 From the outset, the Government has sought to attract and train Gibraltarians to pursue a career in the Maritime Sector. I am happy to inform this House that Mr Ashley Perez and Mr Martin Caruana have now completed their Port State Control Officer training in January 2017 and are fully qualified to serve as Marine Surveyors.

710 HM Government's strategy for the GMA over the next two years is to continue maintaining its high level of quality service, increase the fleet size by bringing in business from new geographic areas and further develop its position as a training hub. The GMA is the international maritime gateway for businesses into the Gibraltar market and Gibraltar offers the full spectrum of maritime services, from finance to insurance, crew certification to ship suppliers. The fact that the fleet continues to grow and yet still maintain its international accreditation as a high-quality registry is a testament to the Government's investment in the Department and the hard work the staff at the GMA have proactively put in.

715 Mr Speaker, I turn to Civil Contingencies. A number of exercises to test threat assessments have taken place during the last 12 months. I briefly summarise them as follows: two counter terrorism table top exercises of one day duration; one dry run nuclear exercise; a full scale nuclear exercise; a full scale counter terrorism operational exercise; a full day table top workshop for HMGoG support services aimed at the aftermath of a major event; two plane crash exercises aimed at the management of specific areas, friends and relatives centres and the airfield apron. A further exercise to test the management of an incident at senior level is now 720 been planned.

725 The Civil Contingency Department is working on contingency plans to cover any major incident concerning the provision or use of LNG and also the Airport tunnel project. Once these plans are completed, they will form part of the Major Incident Response Plan and will be exercised in order to ensure that known threats can be adequately managed in a co-ordinated, efficient and safe manner.

Mr Speaker, the challenges we all face in an uncertain world are many and it is right for the Government to continue to invest time, resources and money to prepare against a major incident that we all hope will never occur.

730 Mr Speaker, turning to the International Exchange of Information: in addition to handling day-to-day Exchange of Information on Request in tax matters with TIEA-partner countries and negotiating further international agreements, Gibraltar Finance has continued to lead on the implementation of the various international tax compliance-related initiatives. Gibraltar Finance co-ordinated the automatic exchange of financial account information with the USA under FATCA for the second consecutive year in 2016 and the automatic exchange of financial account 735 information with the UK under the bilateral Intergovernmental Agreement for the first time, also in 2016.

740 Preparations are underway to automatically exchange financial account information with the first wave of countries by the end of September 2017. Gibraltar Financial Institutions are required to upload their submissions to the Government's automatic exchange of information portal www.aeoi.gov.gi by the deadline of 31st July 2017.

745 Work is now underway on implementing the OECD's Common Reporting Standard on the automatic exchange of financial account information in terms of 'activating' the exchange of information relationships with partner countries.

Following a positive OECD Phase 2 Review in 2014, where Gibraltar was rated 'Largely Compliant' and a satisfactory OECD assessment of Gibraltar's Confidentiality and Data Safeguards in 2015, the OECD has announced that a Phase 3 Review of Gibraltar's 'Legal and Regulatory Framework and Implementation of the Standard in Practice' by the Global Forum on Transparency and Exchange of Information has been scheduled for the first half of 2019.

750 Mr Speaker, the relevant amending legislation implemented by the Government to comply with the OECD Global Forum's Phase 2 recommendations was the Partnership, Trustees and Tax Information (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2016. This Act, which amended three separate pieces of primary legislation – namely the Partnership Act, the Trustees Act and the International Co-operation (Tax Information) Act – came into effect upon publication in the 755 Gibraltar Gazette on 1st December 2016.

Mr Speaker, on Social Security, I take this opportunity to welcome Mr John Reyes as the new Director of Social Security. Mr Reyes took up his new position in March this year and I wish him all the best in the new role.

760 The Department of Social Security is already offering their customers the facility of having their housing rent deducted from benefit payments thus relieving them of the burden of either going personally to the Housing Department to pay in person or having to set up a direct debit or standing order arrangement to settle their monthly rental bill. This simple step has also had a positive impact on rent arrears. The process makes things easier for the tenant and the Government and reduces the risk of defaulting on a payment.

765 Mr Speaker, the Department of Social Security will shortly be benefiting from a new software application system. One of the main benefits of the system is that it will eliminate the duplication of data, therefore delivering a more efficient and effective service to the public. By way of example, a birth certificate submitted when claiming a particular benefit will be stored in the database and the information can be used again at a later date for processing future claims.
770 Simple steps like this make a big difference to the Department and its beneficiaries.

The software will also streamline the information currently held in manual records, therefore highlighting and eventually reducing any inconsistencies in the system. It will also serve as a sophisticated analytical tool with the ability to produce statistical data that can analyse the impact of projected expenditure in relation to any given benefit.

775 Finally, Mr Speaker, I wish to thank my staff and all those who work in the various departments and organisations which form part of my ministerial responsibilities. I am grateful to all of them for their support and dedication.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

780 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Neil Costa.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, little did I suspect, when I first stood for election in September of 2007, that I would be serving my community and the good people of Gibraltar for at least three terms. As I reflect on my concept of time – which is 785 solely that it flies, Mr Speaker – I stand proud to deliver my 10th Budget address as a Member of Parliament, and sixth as a Government Minister. Today, Mr Speaker, I deliver my first Budget as Minister with responsibility for Health, Care and Justice.

In line with many other western nations, it makes sense for Gibraltar to integrate Health and Social Care, and during the course of my Budget address I will provide details as to the synergies 790 between both and the steps that we have already taken to align care in the health and care settings. Similarly, as Minister for Justice I have been in a position to move quickly in the drawing up of legislation that relates to the care and the protection of our community – for instance, the Government's legislative reforms in respect of the safeguarding and protection of children, more of which I will say later.

795 Mr Speaker, before I continue I will literally beg for your indulgence, as I had prepared a speech in the tradition in which I had heard all previous speeches in my nine years in the House, which is from a prepared script. Notwithstanding, in the limited time available, I have sought to shorten my contribution in line with your direction before lunch. I will therefore ask my teams not to think for a moment that I consider any of their work any less important by not mentioning 800 any aspect during the course of my contribution.

Mr Speaker, I turn firstly to my responsibilities as Minister for Health. Political observers, and, I think, the wider community, will have noted the ongoing reforms and the substantive changes at the GHA.

Our model of healthcare puts primary care at the forefront of health services and is well 805 understood to be the gatekeeper to secondary care services. A strong Primary Care Centre will take excellent care of our community and keep many medical services within the primary care setting and away from the hospital.

In this last financial year there has been an overall comprehensive review of all primary care 810 services by the clinical and management teams. The findings of the review have resulted in the introduction of some highly effective reforms and creating better access to our GPs, better patient choice, enhancements to the existing services and a more streamlined service overall. The GP complement currently stands at 23 general practitioners divided into three area groups of between six and eight practitioners. In order for the House to fully understand the work of our GPs, it is important to set out the daily context. The Primary Care Centre offers between 815 nine and ten thousand appointments monthly, it receives approximately 55,000 calls monthly and, regrettably, on average, 450 patients do not attend their appointments each month. As a result, this last financial year has seen important changes to the distribution of appointments and, in particular, the availability of appointments to patients.

The introduction of the on-day clinics has proved a successful initiative, in particular 820 benefiting patients who need to be seen promptly by a GP and who cannot wait or plan ahead. The new service consists of a full clinic per clinic area on a daily basis, which is automised and releases appointments daily at 8.15. Patients who have been unable to make an appointment with their GP of choice can attend the on-day clinic with no pre-booked appointments. This represents a significant change in how appointments are offered and how much more 825 responsive we can be to patients' needs. In total, over 200 appointments are released on a daily basis for the same day, taking into account emergency clinics, emergency overflow appointments, critical ill appointments for urgent patients and the on-day system.

The repeat prescription system has been hugely successful, Mr Speaker, launched on 830 6th February. The service has a dedicated counter at the PCC main reception desk and allows patients to request a repeat of their regular medications without necessarily having to see a GP. The patient's medical record is checked by their GP before the prescription is issued to ensure safety and the involvement of a clinician at all times. The number of prescriptions from the start of the service to the end of May is 1,659, which equates to freeing up an average of almost 400 appointments every month. This is a clear illustration of how we have listened to the comments 835 of patients and have responded promptly, providing better patient choice.

The sick certificate telephone service is a modern and creative solution to the problem of 840 appointments being used for patients who are not in fact seeking medical care, but simply a certificate to allow them to stay at home and recover from a minor illness. On 6th March of this year, a dedicated telephone service was introduced where a phone call can now be made to request a sick certificate for up to two days at a time, no more than once every three months. The service is operated by qualified nurses who are formally trained in telephone triage and any certificate issued is recorded in the patient's clinical record. The initiative is designed for patients who have minor self-limiting illnesses who do not wish to be seen by a doctor but who need rest and self-care at home. The innovation supports the Government's public health message for 845 keeping minor and infectious illnesses away from public places, such as the PCC and the A&E department. To date, this service has become increasingly useful with each month that passes. For example, in May, 298 sick certificates were issued, representing a saving of 298 GP appointments in one month alone.

Both of these new initiatives combined are now releasing more than 700 appointments each 850 month. Based on the increase in use of these services since launch, we are fully expecting the number of patients using the services to rise. To put it in context, Mr Speaker, this has completely mitigated for any loss of appointments due to non-attendance and more besides. Further, and crucially, these two reforms alone have released pressure on A&E and emergency services and have allowed GPs to spend more time with their patients, improving the quality of the care provided.

Improvements to care services also occur behind the scenes with a project to scan and digitise all patient paper notes and upload the information to individual electronic records. This huge undertaking of 60,000 sets of notes will eventually release up to six PCC clerks to attend to patients face to face and on the telephone. This will result in improved customer service, making things easier for patients to navigate through a very busy department. From a clinical governance and safety perspective, it also raises standards of care by ensuring that a patient's full medical record is always available to their GP and any important past medical events can be easily viewed and accounted for.

Mr Speaker, the aim of the Government is to repatriate services, also extending to bringing back primary services from secondary care so that services can be developed that integrate closely with overall community care, so that whole teams of professionals can be involved from allied health professionals to pharmacists to nursing staff and to GPs.

In line with the Government's Strategic Plan for the PCC, GPs are now being encouraged to develop special interest roles. Palliative care, dermatology, cardiac rehabilitation, clinical supervision, women's health and child health are among the special interests being developed. One of the most successful of these GPs with special interest initiatives is the very popular Dr Ferrera of the dermatology clinic. In February of this year the demand for dermatology appointments was such that my Medical Director approved a significant increase in the time devoted by Dr Ferrera to dermatology from two clinics a week to five. Dr Ferrera will therefore see between 15 and 18 patients per clinic, equating to a total of over 80 dermatology clinic appointments a week for him alone. Dr Ferrera also works with a highly trained and professional nursing team who have specialist training in their own right. These skilled nurses undertake an enormous variety of skin treatments, including dermoscopy to check moles, minor operations, patient reviews after treatment and chronic skin disease management. Perhaps the jewel in the crown of the service is that the team also work with a visiting consultant dermatologist who comes every two months from the UK for two to three days at a time and who provides specialist advice for patients, support and training for our team.

I am sure Mr Speaker, that we can all appreciate that living in a high sun exposure area means that dermatology is a vital service for the health of our community. It is my belief that such a service portrays the best of primary care – medical treatment, health promotion and health surveillance in a familiar but professional setting.

Capitalising on the enormous success of the dermatology GP specialist interest initiative, on 16th March 2017 we introduced a GP with special interest in musculoskeletal medicine to speed up the management of medical problems that can often lead to patients missing work and losing mobility and independence. Dr Elaine Flores is currently working at St Bernard's Hospital to help us reduce waiting times for patients waiting to be seen in an orthopaedic clinic. Mr Speaker, it is fair to say that the success of this reform has taken, pleasantly, all of us by surprise. In less than two months Dr Flores has been able to reduce orthopaedic waiting times by a staggering five months. By mid-May she had seen 179 patients in total – new and review patients – and between 15 and 20 new patients every week with a clinic commitment of five clinics a week.

It is envisioned that the service will eventually be transferred to the Primary Care Centre and all patients referred to orthopaedics by a GP will be seen and examined by the specialist GP first. Minor practical procedures can be carried out in a short timespan and patients needing consultant opinion and surgery can be streamlined into the hospital in a way that really does demonstrate how fortunate we are to have integrated medical services working closely for the best outcome for our patients.

Mr Speaker, it is my firm conviction that a strong primary care service guides and elevates all aspects of healthcare to our community. I have a team of primary care clinicians, managers and admin staff of whom I am immensely proud. Day to day and without fail they deliver high-quality professional care to every member of our community from the youngest to the oldest, and while doing so they still manage to suggest and implement improvements in care to better serve all of the community. I am humbled by their dedication and honoured to lead them. Whereas it is impossible to name all of our dedicated staff, I wish to thank the leadership of our Deputy Medical Director and lead GP Dr Krish Rawal, and our PCC Manager, Rose Suissa. They truly represent the best in all of us, are patient and compassionate and are forever considering ways to improve the service.

In respect of secondary care, I cannot overstate the impact of placing clinicians at the forefront of managing services. The strong leadership by practising clinicians and a key focus on repatriating services back to Gibraltar is already paying enormous dividends in terms of patient care and the streamlining of resources.

Mr Speaker, the steadfast commitment of the Government to improve the quality and the delivery of healthcare continues with a firm focus on supporting and strengthening the emergency services. I was proud to announce the first in a series of steps in the A&E department which saw the deployment of two additional A&E charge nurses. The deployments have ensured that a highly skilled senior member of the nursing staff leads and manages the A&E team in every shift. The charge nurse role is crucial, as they are the frontline management on the shop floor. They are responsible for organising and supporting the whole clinical team on each shift and ensure that all A&E patients receive high-quality, safe, compassionate and timely clinical care.

Further still, Mr Speaker, the GHA will employ a consultant in A&E to provide clinical leadership and a senior presence in the Department and lead in the development of services. The advert for this post was published in May 2017 and applicants' interviews will take place on 10th July. For such an important element in the medical care of our community, this senior role will further reinforce my drive to have the subject matter experts, namely clinicians, delivering, guiding and progressing care.

The Day Surgical Unit represents one of the biggest and most gratifying successes of the past financial year, for which fulsome credit must be given to my illustrious and hon. predecessor Dr John Cortes, who, if I may add, also brought back the heart and compassion to the GHA. I must place on the record my gratitude to Sandie Gracia, our Nursing Director, who was also a driving force in this very successful project.

The Unit continues to expand its services by undertaking further procedures, including cardiac procedures, urology surgical lists, dermatology sessions, as well as general surgery and anaesthetic lists within its own theatre suite.

The House may recall that the Day Surgery Unit continues to undertake over 90% of all elective surgery, with even more surgical procedures now being performed using keyhole techniques that allow for patients to heal sooner and return to the comfort of their homes on the same day with the assurance of a quality aftercare service provided by the Day Surgery Team. From January to the end of May, a total of 1,126 day surgical procedures have been carried out, compared to 1,095 procedures for the same period last year.

Mr Speaker, I am equally delighted to reiterate that there have been no cancellations of surgical operations due to lack of beds since January of this year. In the same period there has been a notable improvement in performance figures for surgery at St Bernard's. In the first four months of this year the GHA carried out 161 major surgical procedures requiring in-patient stay –nearly double the number performed in the same period last year. If the current trend continues, the GHA will conduct almost double the number of major surgeries this year compared to last year. As a result, waiting lists across all surgical procedures have been significantly reduced. For example, a patient requiring planned surgery under the care of the general surgeon will now be offered a surgery date approximately four to six weeks later as a 955 matter of routine. This very welcome increase in the number of major operations carried out is thanks to the increased availability of beds at the Dudley Toomey Ward, enabling it to cater for an increased number of surgical patients.

Mr Speaker, it also gives me great pleasure to announce that GHA has recruited a full-time renal specialist consultant. Dr Simon Lines starts work on 10th July 2017. While he will need time to settle in to his new role, he has already actively engaged with the invaluable and very active 960 Gibraltar Dialysis Association to help him develop a service of the highest standards. This represents a quantum leap in the treatment of 26 of our most unwell patients who have the security of a professional service provided by dedicated and experienced practitioners.

The House will recall that in September of last year the Hon. the Chief Minister and my hon. predecessor opened the new Ayling-Buttigieg Chemotherapy Day Unit, which focuses on the 965 treatment of solid tumours. This includes five chemotherapy stations and is open three days a week.

The management and administration of chemotherapy to cancer patients who are often very unwell and possibly not fit to travel must surely represent one of the fundamental reasons why we would wish to repatriate services and treat patients ourselves with our own teams and with 970 the support and backup of all the clinical services our Health Authority can offer. The Unit is already making a massive positive difference to the lives of many patients, and, just as importantly, to their families. This Unit is a perfect illustration of how a local multidisciplinary service can provide platinum-standard care.

Mr Speaker, the Critical Care Unit is also going from strength to strength, with the number of 975 fully trained staff having risen under this administration. In May 2011 there were 28 registered nurses, comprising two charge nurses and 24 staff nurses, plus two enrolled nurses. Today, there are 30 registered nurses, comprising: three charge nurses – in other words, one more charge nurse than under the previous administration; 27 staff nurses – in other words, three more staff nurses; and one nursing assistant. Every member of the Unit's nursing staff is fully trained, 980 qualified and experienced to work in the high-pressured environment of intensive care, taking care of our most unwell patients.

Not only are the nursing staff fully trained, but many are volunteering for more specialist training to enhance patient care in house. In this respect, four nurses are due to attend UK-based training in haemofiltration, which is a highly specialised and crucial service.

985 Moreover, Mr Speaker, it also gives me great pleasure to say that to strengthen and work with our excellent critical care nurses, on 6th May the GHA advertised for five new anaesthetists and interviews took place on 14th June. This recruitment will establish an additional tier of anaesthetic doctors. Overall, a team of senior consultants, junior intensivists and an impressive nursing team will further improve the quality of care in the CCU. The new tier of anaesthetists 990 will increase resilience, as two anaesthetists will now always be available out of hours to attend to simultaneous emergencies and emergency surgery.

The elevation in the critical care teams has been enhanced by the raising of clinical care standards. The implementation of the National Early Warning System – NEWS, for short – 995 programme has replaced the Modified Early Warning System. The NEWS is a platinum-standard, evidence-based, clinical assessment tool to monitor patients using observations such as pulse rate, blood pressure and respiratory rate. As these measures change, clinical staff are able to monitor improvement and deterioration in a patient's condition, leading to safer and more timely and effective medical and nursing interventions of acutely ill patients. The NEWS system is now in effect across the whole of the GHA, including the nursing clinics in the Primary Care 1000 Centre, and demonstrates how we are embracing the highest standards of evidence-based clinical care.

As the House may recall, the GHA has advertised and is in the process of recruiting two matrons at St Bernard's. Following advice from our clinicians, the position of matron is being brought back to Gibraltar to further improve the patient experience and co-ordinate the changes 1005 in systems for enhanced and safe high-quality health care, in conjunction with the Nurse Management Team. Our health professionals will also benefit, as matrons will provide encouragement and motivation to members of the nursing team and support staff. Further, not only will the matron be an asset across a whole range of multidisciplinary clinical areas, but will also provide a source of information and choice for patients, together with a reassuring physical presence that can make a positive difference when a person is recovering from illness. Matrons will also contribute to patient management, ensuring measures to reduce length of stay and facilitate early discharge.

Mr Speaker, may I, with your leave, take a moment to pause and to reflect on the fact that we are blessed in Gibraltar to enjoy the benefit of the Clinical Nurse Managers, so very ably led by the Director of Nursing Services, Sandie Gracia, and who truly are of the most passionate, committed, dedicated, professional and compassionate individuals I have ever had the pleasure to work with and are an asset to the GHA. I meet with them often, Mr Speaker, and it is always a pleasure to learn from them and to work with them in improving the delivery of healthcare to our community.

1015

Mr Speaker, the House would expect from a Government a medical team dedicated to bringing services back to Gibraltar that we improve on the Sponsored Patients department. I am very pleased to note that our highly competent Medical Director, Dr Danny Cassaglia, whom I cannot praise enough, has introduced a new software system that ensures that all sponsored patients' care is overseen by a GHA Consultant, thereby certifying that patients are being seen regularly and also co-ordinating care with the external hospital, ensuring that patients do not have to travel unnecessarily to Spain or to the UK. I am sure that we all agree, Mr Speaker, that patients who can be medically attended to at home should be seen at home to avoid the unnecessary and additional stresses of travel. It is possible for a medical service outside Gibraltar to wish to continue to see a patient simply because that is the system they run locally, without taking in to account the very tiring experience of travelling for a medical appointment or review, and the stressful experience of being away from home and family while undergoing treatment. To that end, my Medical Director and his team have set up a Tertiary Services Review Board to review the details of every patient who travels out of Gibraltar for medical care. The newly constituted Board, that met for the very first time on 4th May, is comprised of highly specialised and experienced clinical staff who are able to make decisions on where best to provide the optimal care for a patient. Cases are reviewed on an individual basis to guarantee a personal and compassionate review on best care.

1035

As the House may recall, the GHA has introduced a new medical app for its clinicians that enables them to access pathology test results much more easily from wherever they are, on their smart phones and other mobile devices, 24 hours a day. The recently introduced Modulab app is safe, easy to use, password protected, encrypted and follows best practice as applied in other locations. The app provides additional and enhanced means of retrieving information to those methods already in existence and allows the clinicians to directly contact the patient simply by pressing an icon on the app. Additionally, the app will avoid the need for follow-up appointments to review blood results, therefore releasing much needed slots for the general public at the PCC. I wish to thank the GHA's Pathology Services and the GHA IT Management and Technology department, and to congratulate both departments for the great teamwork and successful collaboration that brought the project to fruition.

Mr Speaker, on 18th May the Government published a Bill to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act to provide for changes in the management structure of the Health Authority. The main change, announced by the Chief Minister during last December's Parliament, is that the current statutory post of CEO will be abolished. The majority of the current functions and duties of the chief executive will be performed by the GHA's Medical Director. The change, we believe, is hugely important for two reasons. First and foremost, it strengthens and cements the policy of the Government that the GHA should be clinically led, whereby the most important decisions and roles, including the chairmanship of the management board, are made by experienced consultant-level senior medical professionals. It places the post of Medical Director, for the first time, on a statutory basis, which the Government believes reflects the importance of the role. The move reflects changes that have been ongoing within the GHA since the retirement of the previous chief executive, where there has been a gradual transfer of non-statutory functions and duties to the Medical Director and a greater involvement of the Medical Director in other decision making. The Bill also includes changes to the structure and nomenclature of management posts within the GHA. In our view, the Bill establishes clear distinctions between clinical and non-clinical functions and management lines at the GHA. The role of Deputy Medical Director will also become a statutory post to allow for continuity on occasions when the Medical Director is unavailable. The Deputy Medical Director will also be a member of the management board in his own right.

Mr Speaker, in the same way as I said earlier that I cannot praise Dr Danny Cassaglia enough, let me also place on the record that Dr Krish Rawal is similarly a consummate professional and caring GP. We are indeed blessed to have this dynamic duo at the forefront and at the heart of Gibraltar's healthcare.

Mr Speaker, the GHA is in the process of repatriating, as I have said, as many services as possible to Gibraltar so that patients can be treated at home. We are looking to repatriate further services, including more complex urology surgery, vascular surgery, cardiology, paediatric surgery and MRI services. This is likely to occur by expansion of our already successful visiting consultant service and the employment of more specialist work to the GHA.

Mr Speaker, in recent months the headlines in the UK have been about an NHS in crisis. One report refers to NHS surgeons kicking their heels as bed shortages delay operations, with another report referring to babies waiting on the floor at A&E and pensioners on trolleys for over 14 hours. Twenty NHS hospitals in the UK had declared black alerts because patient safety could no longer be assured. As hon. Members know, this, thankfully, is not the case in Gibraltar's GHA. The excellent professionals of the GHA are doing, if I may say, a sterling job for the community and it would be churlish, in my view, for us not to recognise the excellent work and the important investment we have made in the health services of our nation.

Mr Speaker, it was the increasing pressure on beds towards the end of 2016 which resulted in plans to further enhance the bed management system. This was achieved using a three-pronged approach: an active bed management strategy was implemented in January this year and weekly meetings are held with a multidisciplinary team, including a dedicated social worker and provision of packages of care to support vulnerable patients in the community; immediate temporary expansion of long-term elderly care beds by converting the cardiac rehabilitation gym into a temporary ward – the temporary ward has already been decommissioned, due to the successful transfer of our long-stay elderly to Hillside's Dementia Residential Home; the expansion of elderly care provision in the community, including the opening of the excellent Bella Vista Dementia Day Centre in January of this year and the full opening of Hillside's Dementia Residential Home. Further, the Government is presently working to increase bed capacity to John Mackintosh Home at the old St Bernard's Hospital by converting the ground floor into a ward with an additional 16 beds. All of these improvements have resulted in greatly increased average daily bed availability, resulting in an average of 31 daily available beds.

Mr Speaker, the House will also be happy to know that the number of dementia long-stay patients has decreased from 29 patients – 22% – last year, to a remarkable six patients – only 5% – in June of this year.

It is also important to note that since January of this year, even before the transfer of long-term-stay elderly to Hillside's, daily bed availability was around 20 as a result of the bed management structures that have been recently introduced.

As part of the Government's commitment to enhance and improve the services provided by the GHA's Ambulance Service, five new ambulance care assistants have been recruited and will commence employment with the service as soon as their induction training is completed next month. A further three ambulance care assistant vacancies have already been advertised locally and interviews are taking place shortly. The recruitment, Mr Speaker, will enable the GHA to 1110 absorb the responsibilities of the third frontline emergency ambulance service, currently operated by the Gibraltar Fire and Rescue Service and which also includes the provision of a new 1115 emergency ambulance expected to be delivered by July this year. A second emergency ambulance unit has also been placed on order and is expected to be delivered by December also of this year. The arrival of these two new emergency ambulances will allow the Ambulance Service to a phased replacement programme over the next seven years as advised by our ambulance team. In this respect, all fleet vehicles will undergo major renovations as required 1120 after five years. After this period, all vehicles will be replaced from frontline duties after seven years' service, or as required following technical advice. The process will significantly increase the service's fleet resilience – in other words, high dependency units will be replaced with emergency ambulances that may be used locally and in Spain and patient transport services will be replaced with a conventional patient transport service. The existing vehicle maintenance and renewal programme ensures all GHA's frontline vehicles are apt to safely respond to local pre-hospital emergencies and also conduct emergency and routine transfers of patients into Spain.

1125 Having all of Gibraltar's pre-hospital emergency response assets under the same umbrella will automatically standardise training, development and protocols, allowing better co-ordination in responding and dealing with emergency callouts.

Mr Speaker, the Information Management and Technology team continue to manage the GHA's extensive computer and network infrastructure, which, due to the opening of the 1130 excellent new facilities at Bella Vista and Hillside, continues to expand and increase in complexity. Additionally, the team are involved in planning various development programmes in order to enhance the robustness and security of our IT systems and ensuring that all systems remain current and fit for purpose.

Over the past year, the department has engaged in the following projects – although believe me, Mr Speaker, when I say that the list is by no means exhaustive: the chemotherapy suite 1135 installation of telephony and IT equipment; the complete redesign and relaunch of the GHA website; the excellent in-house developments and improvements of the bespoke sponsored patients system, the human resources system, the hospital stores inventory and stock control system, and an estimates submission and management system.

There is a growing need, in my opinion, Mr Speaker, to implement videoconferencing 1140 technologies across the GHA, which is planned for the coming year. This will help to reduce the number of times patients need to travel to care providers outside of the GHA, as well as reducing the number of visits from visiting clinicians who will be able to interact via videoconference rather than having to travel to Gibraltar.

Mr Speaker, let me now move towards an integral part of Government plans towards 1145 maintaining the highest standards of patient care. In my opinion, nursing comprises the engine of any care and medical service provider. Such is the importance of nursing that without it service delivery would totally collapse. It is because of this that I am determined to focus on the provision of quality training and development of our nursing personnel. In order to accomplish this aim, I will ensure that the School of Health Studies is both physically and financially properly 1150 resourced. The School of Health Studies oversees and approves all education and training for all GHA staff and works collaboratively with other agencies such as the Care Agency and Education.

Mr Speaker, it was this Government and my hon. predecessor that reintroduced enrolled nurse training to ensure that nurses who are not on the professional register achieve a high standard of patient care through continuous education and development. Development of the 1155 Qualifications and Credit Framework are nationally and internationally recognised with the assistance and support from professionally registered nurses, allowing a non-academic route into the nursing profession for those with no formal academic qualifications. This ensures fitness for purpose and fitness for practice. From a career perspective, there are enrolled nurses who have chosen to become registered nurses through the student nurse programmes where 1160 appropriate: an example of encouraging staff to step on to the career ladder. Numbers recruited to this programme have increased year on year since the relaunch of the programme from across the GHA and Social Services. The programme is now 18 months long, with further plans to develop and extend the programme.

1165 Traditionally, Mr Speaker, ongoing training needs of nursing assistants have been limited to induction training and attendance to mandatory training updates. The introduction of the NVQ/QCF Level 2 qualification by this Government has instrumentally transformed opportunities. This approach has allowed those with Level 2 qualifications to apply for Level 3 – enrolled nurse – pathways and subsequently on towards the Bachelor of Science, should they wish to progress even further.

1170 My Ministry and the School of Health Studies believe that we now have a substantive pathway of entry into the nursing profession both for the academically inclined student and the not so academically inclined. The increase in continuing professional development for registered staff is also helping to encourage lifelong learning and there are opportunities to actively encourage staff to consider master's degree level modules.

1175 Mr Speaker, I now turn my attention to a crucial and important subject matter – finance and procurement. The GHA has ended the financial year with, in my view, an unacceptable deficit. My commitment to our taxpayers is that in my first year as Minister for Health the GHA will come within budget whilst improving patient care. My mantra, Mr Speaker, has become to increase patient care at better value for money. To this end I have set up a series of financial control measures in conjunction with the new Head of Finance, Mrs Jessica Montado, who I have to say has thrown herself in the deep end with an enviable degree of commitment and attention to detail. The most salient part of our reforms consist of a monthly meeting held on the first Friday a week after the close of the month, with all Heads of Departments, where we review every single head of expenditure line by line. If any subhead is in deficit I require a full explanation for the reasons and the steps being taken to ensure that the next month will reflect expenditure within budget. In this crucial mission I am ably led by the Hon. Minister Bossano, from whom I am yet to leave a meeting without having learnt at least two things new, and the guidance and direction of the Financial Secretary, both of whom attend these meetings.

1180 Further, Mr Speaker, the House will be happy to know that the Finance department is improving processes, which will deliver better budgetary control and financial balance.

1185 Further still, Finance has introduced automated financial analysis reports, which generate automatically every morning and are currently being sent to all budget holders on a daily basis. The initiative has already had tremendously positive feedback, with budget holders querying items and allocations as well as questioning their budget before the purchase.

1195 In addition, the Finance team are also heavily involved with the Government's current e-Government initiatives, ably led by my hon. Friend the Hon. Minister for Commerce, which aim to deliver an electronic procurement system in a centralised way for the whole of the public service, together with a purchase to pay system and an enterprise resource planning system.

1200 Mr Speaker, a major role of Procurement is ensuring value for money from suppliers in line with procurement regulations. I am pleased to note that there has been a lot of work behind the scenes on the procurement front, where the team have been dedicating the majority of resources into setting up revised and updated measures.

1205 A new stores computerised system is also currently being progressed in house and we are now at the populating data stage of the implementation. The new inventory/stock control system will provide us with a number of various reports on all stock items, such as usage and costs by wards and departments, as well as alerting the section on when to reorder goods.

1210 Mr Speaker, I will now turn to mental health, which during the financial year has seen the mental health in-patient services adapt, develop and progress further as they settle into their new surroundings one year on. The magnificent Ocean Views opened its doors to the public in February of 2015 and the continued development and commitment to service users is clearly evident by the progress and positive changes witnessed. This is only the beginning and a number of positive changes and improvements have been identified – working closer with local health care and social services in order to develop the forward-thinking service that the community in Gibraltar expects and deserves.

1215 Mr Speaker, in respect of Mental Health Services, which continue to provide consistent and supportive community care for service users with complex and enduring mental health problems, a great deal of work has gone into raising awareness and, in turn, helping the general public develop a better understanding of mental health issues.

1220 Work has also been undertaken in reconfiguring some services in order to improve access to the teams. This has been achieved through increased consultant psychiatrist clinics and face-to-face community mental health staff contacts. This change, in easier access to community services, has seen a 14% increase in this last year in engagement of service users and their families.

1225 Mr Speaker, I am very pleased indeed to be able to reiterate that my Ministry and the Mental Health team are excited with the most recent enhancement to the service, which as from Monday of last week saw the phased introduction of an outreach support component for community patients. The addition to the community services is composed of three experienced qualified nurses and the development of the current service will see the addition of a nursing afterhours on-call service, including a mental health support line which will be available to our 1230 known patients/carers, incorporating a combination of phone and physical presence where necessary; support structures for people moving into sheltered/supported flats in the community from Ocean Views; managing patient case load that require more input or monitoring, increase in frequency of home visits, checking compliance with medication afterhours, on weekends and on bank holidays. The new component will be an addition to the 1235 existing on-call team.

Mr Speaker, the Bella Vista Dementia Day Centre officially opened its doors in January this year. The exciting new development has seen GHA professionals and the private sector working in tandem to bring the project to fruition. The new and magnificent facility, the first of its kind on the Rock, will offer 90 places at any one time. As the House knows, the Dementia Centre is managed by MedDoc on behalf of the Gibraltar Health Authority.
1240

Mr Speaker, I take the opportunity to thank the project team tasked with the planning and commissioning of this innovative facility. Great attention to detail was taken in all aspects of planning, and special consideration was taken throughout to ensure that not only the facility but also all furniture and equipment, from design to colour schemes, was dementia friendly.
1245

Mr Speaker, it would also be remiss of me not to place on the record my deepest gratitude to the Gibraltar Alzheimer's and Dementia Society for the work that they have done in helping us to furnish the facility, working closely with the project team, and the work that they continue to discharge with so much passion and commitment and the comfort that they give to the families of those that live with Alzheimer's and dementia. Thanks are also due, of course, to all the charities that have assisted us.
1250

For the purposes of further elucidating the House, Mr Speaker, I add that the first floor opened for full days in February of this year, the second floor in March, and the third floor in April. The service has very quickly been able to assess and integrate those patients who have needed and wanted to, into its programme. There is no waiting list at present for the Day Centre – referrals are assessed within the week of being made and subsequently these individuals are offered places. At the present rate, the trend is that approximately half of the individuals who are being offered places are accepting. Significantly, referrals are being received from those persons with mild/moderate dementia, which is the target population for a centre such as this.
1255

Further, Mr Speaker, a general practitioner is providing clinics within the centre. Day Centre patients therefore do not need to attend the PCC for their routine appointments. Huge thanks are therefore also owing to MedDoc and their very able team of caring professionals.
1260

Mr Speaker, I now turn to Elderly Residential Services. As the House knows, an entirely new residential facility for persons with Alzheimer's and dementia was opened on 24th April of this year. Hillside is located at the site of the old Royal Naval Hospital and close to the Bella Vista 1265 Dementia Day Centre. The new residential facility provides care and accommodation for 52 patients diagnosed with dementia and in need of full-time, high-dependency, specialist care. The Hillside design focused on maximising the comfort and well-being of patients. Features such as 1270 en-suite bathrooms and increased floor area in bedrooms and communal areas were incorporated into the designs, together with all necessary equipment to give residents the highest possible standards of care. The construction phase presented many challenges, Mr Speaker, which had to be overcome, as the original project by the previous administration envisaged 92 beds, subsequently reduced in number to create a fit-for-purpose facility with better and more spacious living conditions. Hillside boasts a fully equipped kitchen area, 1275 snoezelen room and chiropody and other services. There is also a garden area with different types of flowers and plants for sensory stimulation. All rooms are coloured for dementia, while furniture has been specifically designed as recommended by our UK dementia consultants. The soft flooring throughout the building similar to that in toddler parks and signage is also dementia friendly. Verandas on the various floors have been opened to enhance views and give a greater sense of unrestricted space to patients. There will be eight beds available to provide respite for 1280 family carers.

Mr Speaker, it would be a gross dereliction of duty if I did not thank Susan Vallejo and the superb team at the ERS for all of their efforts in bringing yet another milestone project to fruition under a GSLP/Liberal Government. (Hon. Chief Minister and Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: 1285 Hear, hear.) One of the most wonderful aspects of my new responsibilities, Mr Speaker, if not the most fulfilling, has been the opportunity for me to meet with so many compatriots who carry their vocation in their heart and their soul and who are always willing to go the extra mile for those in their care. I cannot praise them enough, Mr Speaker.

As part of the continuous professional development of nursing staff within the ERS, annual updates on mandatory training are being carried out. In collaboration with GHA professionals, 1290 staff receive continuous in-house training in various areas of nursing for elderly care. In addition, accredited modules, delivered through the School of Health Studies, have been made available for elderly care nursing staff. Staff from different areas of the service have, for the first time, been able to participate in a leaders and management courses. Major training has been carried out in dementia train the trainer courses. The training has been enhanced with a particular focus 1295 on dementia and Alzheimer's in addition to the introduction of accredited courses in recreational activities. The ERS has also introduced palliative and end of life courses.

The ERS has seen the introduction of two practice development nursing sisters after having undertaken training in the UK. ERS qualified staff are currently participating in mentorship with the GHA School of Health Studies to support the ongoing training of all of our staff. Currently, 1300 ERS senior staff are undergoing training that will qualify them to become internal verifiers and will allow them to assess and oversee all of the NVQ training. Further, a total of 11 nursing assistants have joined the enrolled nurse training programme and have developed to qualified nurses. Four ERS nursing assistants are currently undertaking a degree level course with the School of Health Studies which will eventually see them qualify as registered nurses.

1305 Further still, Mr Speaker, three GPs have been introduced within the ERS to provide medical specialist care to all residents. The ERS will also see the introduction of a dedicated speech and language therapist and an occupational therapist.

For the enhanced safety and welfare of both residents, staff and visitors, around-the-clock security guard presence and CCTV have been introduced.

1310 Mr Speaker, turning quickly to activities, when we first came into office ERS employed
 1.5 activities co-ordinators at Mount Alvernia and one activities co-ordinator at John Cochrane Ward and Calpe Ward. This administration has increased to five activity co-ordinators at Mount Alvernia and three for the wards. As the House will know, the cherished residents of our care homes and the wards have access to a safe outdoor environment across all locations. Outing 1315 activities are numerous and there is an internal health and safety policy in place, the objectives of which are to safeguard the residents and staff when undergoing outings. The policy sets out

1320 the roles and responsibilities of staff to ensure that residents going on an outing are well prepared, that the loading and unloading of vehicles is carried out safely and that the venue of choice is appropriate for the residents attending. Outings are pre-arranged and only residents who have given consent are taken. Staffing levels are adjusted to ensure appropriate supervision. Staff in attendance always includes a qualified nurse. Venues visited by residents are risk assessed; so are the residents attending. Outings depend on the outcome of the assessments. We also have a bus with wheelchair access, which operates between 10 in the morning till eight at night, to convey residents to different venues. In addition, ERS has allocated 1325 a member of the activities team specifically to the second floor of Mount Alvernia, where there are principally residents with dementia. This member of staff permanently organises activities tailored to the cognitive capacities of the residents, so that all residents, independently of their cognitive impairment, can have an adequate activity to their degree of dementia.

1330 Mr Speaker, all residents are encouraged to participate in the outings which are organised; however, there are residents who do not wish to participate and we respect their choice. We also facilitate an extensive indoor programme for residents who are unable or choose not to participate in outdoor recreational activities. At this juncture, I wish to place on the record the fantastic job that the Friends of Mount Alvernia carry out with the residents and who provide assistance when some big outings are organised, and also the assistance provided by members 1335 of the Jewish community.

1340 Mr Speaker, in light of the above it would be remiss of me not to highlight that outings under the previous administration in 2010 totalled 35 a year. In 2016, there were a total of 170 outings, which is a welcome increase of 385%. And despite all that we have done, we are not complacent and we are determined to keep developing and improving the services which we provide to our elderly.

1345 Mr Speaker, I turn to the Care Agency and I start with the Adult Social Services. As the House knows, the overall aim of Adult Social Services is to provide the highest possible standard of service and care. Adult Social Services provides and commissions a range of services for different groups of people who are considered to be vulnerable as a result of different health or social care needs.

1350 During the last financial year Adult Services received 627 referrals for social work assessment and support. These referrals are received not only from other professionals but members of the general public who are either self-referring or from relatives or neighbours who wish to raise concerns about a vulnerable person. This represents an increase of 136 from the previous year.

1355 Domiciliary care continues to be provided to assist vulnerable, elderly or sick people at home. The cost of providing care has been negotiated carefully with care providers to deliver the best value-for-money services possible. This has meant an increase in the number of hours available without an increase in the overall cost. At present, 263 members of our community are receiving domiciliary care. Mr Speaker, I am sure that all Members of the House will applaud and welcome the Government's determination to ensure that all our elderly who can continue to enjoy life in the community do so under appropriate and fully assessed packages of care. It is a truism that governments should be measured by how they care for the most vulnerable members in their communities, and by that measure there is no doubt that we on these benches are trying our hardest to guarantee that our elderly and vulnerable community members have the right level
1360 of care and support at home. Such a community-centred approach to care also removes what in my view is the evil of our elderly becoming institutionalised in hospital in circumstances where this could have been entirely avoided by a compassionate approach to health and social care. A compassionate approach to social care, Mr Speaker, in fact also makes economic and financial sense, as it is far more cost effective to develop individual packages of care than for an elderly 1365 person to become a long-stay patient in hospital.

Mr Speaker, it may well be prudent to pause and note that domiciliary care and support services in the UK have never been free. Most people have to pay something towards their own care and some will have to pay for all of the costs. In the UK, the local council may cover some or 1370 all of the costs of care but they are always means tested. The level at which persons begin to pay for their care is capped at £23,000, which means that in UK persons will not receive free social care if they have £23,000 in savings and property. In Gibraltar, Mr Speaker, as we all know, this is not the case. Persons requiring social care are not means tested and are provided with the free care and support services that they require.

1375 Mr Speaker, moving on to safeguarding, awareness continues to increase every year. In the last financial year, 30 referrals in respect of a range of different alleged abuse of vulnerable people were received and assessed. These referrals have been received from both professionals and also people in the community, clearly demonstrating that the public is becoming more aware of the issues and that it is everyone's responsibility to protect the most vulnerable in our community.

1380 Two additional social workers have received training to become designated risk managers and close working relationships continue to develop and strengthen with all departments involved in these arrangements. An increase in designated risk managers has meant that the number of assessments completed has doubled over the last financial year. In addition to this, specialist training has been undertaken to support people with specific learning needs. This has 1385 strengthened the already close relationship that Adult Services has with the Learning Disability Service.

Working relationships with the RGP in the area of domestic violence has continued to develop, including training carried out recently, and expanded throughout the last financial year.
Clear co-ordination and procedures from both Departments are now in place in relation to 1390 domestic violence cases. The inter-agency procedure makes the multi-agency approach of offering joint support seamless and beneficial to families who experience domestic violence.

Moving on to the day centre at Waterport Terraces, Mr Speaker, I am pleased to note that it continues to provide an excellent and popular service to our senior citizens, who have been involved in a range of different community events. The centre has recently been refurbished to 1395 increase the number of facilities available. The service is valued not only by those who attend, but also the carers who are able to leave their relatives in a safe, warm and caring environment, knowing relatives' support needs will be met and they will have the opportunity to enjoy themselves with their peers.

Mr Speaker, the House may recall that the Child Protection Committee was restructured and 1400 the composition revised in December last year. The Child Protection Committee is responsible for co-ordinating with the relevant organisations on how they should best work together to safeguard and promote the welfare of children and young people and ensure that they provide an effective service. The Committee is also responsible for the training of all professionals working with children and analysing trends in children's safeguarding issues to advise the 1405 Government on the development of appropriate services and resources. The Committee now acts as the Executive Committee and delegates operational functions to the relevant responsible officials.

To ensure the Committee's ongoing professional development, the Care Agency organised a three-day training event, delivered by a senior consultant from Barnardo's in February this year.
1410 The programme was divided into three segments. Additionally, the previous financial year, the Safeguarding Training Sub-Committee, comprised of practitioners from the Care Agency, the GHA, the RGP and the Education Department, delivered a total of nine Tier 1 Safeguarding training workshops, where a total of 240 professionals from different departments and agencies were trained; and a total of two Tier 2 Safeguarding training workshops, where a further 29 1415 professionals were trained.

The Child Protection Committee has been working on specific areas to ensure the safety of children. One of these is online safety and, as such, a working party led by the RGP has developed an anti-sexting awareness presentation aimed at parents and adolescents.

Another important area is vetting and members of the Committee have been working with 1420 the Ministry of Culture, the GSLA and the OFT, and considered systems on how to ensure all groups, associations and businesses that work with children are adequately vetted. In this respect, Mr Speaker, I wish to place on the record my thanks to my hon. Friend and colleague, Mr Steven Linares, for the serious work the GSLA has already undertaken to introduce robust safeguarding procedures in respect of registration processes for entities using Government facilities, namely sporting associations, commercial fitness groups and leisure providers. May I also thank Mr Reagan Lima for having picked up the baton in this respect with so much commitment and enthusiasm. I am sure the whole House will applaud all efforts undertaken to protect and safeguard children in the public sphere.

Mr Speaker, Children's Services encompasses all social work with children and their families. The Care Agency's vision, with which I am sure all hon. Members agree, is that children deserve the best start in life. They deserve the best opportunities, as this will undoubtedly influence the decisions and paths they choose later on in their journey through life. I do not think that we can underestimate the critical importance, therefore, of this service.

It is important to highlight, Mr Speaker, that Gibraltar Children's Services, under the leadership of my hon. predecessor, has moved from being a reactive child protection led service to being an active, early intervention focused service. This will have a long-term beneficial impact on children and families, giving them increased opportunities to succeed and achieve, while also having the longer-term benefit of being cost effective, as the consequences and aftermath of abuse costs are great and can be seen in issues related to mental health, criminality, family unit breakdowns and parenting issues.

Mr Speaker, the House will recall that Children's Services has adopted the Signs of Safety model into Gibraltar's social work service because of the positive impact it has on children, families and the general community in areas in which it is already practised.

The Children's team continues to work with between 200 and 250 children at any given time, and received 471 referrals in the last 12 months alone. There has been, however, a significant decrease of 57% in the number of children in need of child protection plans, and I think this is an important statistic as it can be directly attributed to early intervention and family support work that has been conducted with families, meaning that issues have been dealt with in a timely manner at root, avoiding situations for children becoming high risk.

The Government's commitment through Social Services, together with the RGP, Health, Education and Youth Service amongst others, along with the focus on earlier intervention, means that vulnerable families in Gibraltar are being provided with the highest standards of support and protection.

Further still, Mr Speaker, the Children's Services team has evolved towards alternatives to residential care for children. In having the flexibility to organise and restructure teams depending on the needs of the community, the Care Agency has inevitably enabled the deployment of resources to areas of greater need.

During the last financial year, the overall aim has been to reduce the number of children that become looked after in residential settings, as the understanding is that no matter how much training, support, supervision and funding is invested in residential services, children want to and should grow up in family units, which is the best place for them. To have the opportunity to grow up in a healthy family unit is the aspiration for every child and we must do all that we can towards that noble endeavour – I would say, Mr Speaker, towards that human right.

With this in mind, the strategic plan consists of further investing in the Fostering and Adoption Service. The annual awareness campaign recruited 11 applicants for fostering and adoption. The successful training programme for prospective foster carers and adoptive parents guaranteed that the applicants favourably considered domestic adoption and long-term fostering for children in Gibraltar. In this respect, Mr Speaker, we have seen a significant increase in children in foster placements in the last year, from three to nine children, which is a solid 200% increase. There has also been a 60% increase in children being cared for in family placements – that is from 10 to 16 placements in the last financial year. The Fostering and Adoption Service has worked very closely and actively with the Children's Residential Services to 1475 ensure that any children who require care should be placed across placements within family units. The placements ensure the well-being of the child and provides the type of continuity of care only a family can provide. Training has been provided on a number of topics over the past 12 months to social workers, foster carers, prospective adopters and members of the Fostering and Adoption Panel to ensure the learning is embedded into practice.

1480 Mr Speaker, the Therapeutic Team continues to offer a range of specific therapeutic expertise and support. This takes place through their ongoing continued work with the Children and Families, Disability and Probation Services.

1485 The key elements of the Therapeutic Team's service provision for the previous financial year have been: provision of ongoing consultation and working in collaboration with social work colleagues on all cases – a total of 142 clients received ongoing weekly or fortnightly therapeutic interventions and support; individual assessments and evaluations, including court requested reports – these included 45 cases requiring a more extensive, systematic and comprehensive review in addition to the therapy already being offered; a total of 22 clients have undergone the co-parenting programme to address acute acrimony in separation and divorce cases – I know that the Hon. Mr Phillips was asking me about that in a previous answer to questions; a total of 18 clients have engaged and undertaken the Freedom programme, which deals with domestic violence.

1490 Mr Speaker, in respect of Disability Services, the Service has made a great effort to ensure that training is more specialised to learning disabilities and tailored to the specific and current needs of service users. An intensive programme of in-house and outsourced training has continued to provide the staff with professional development. In this respect, there has been an 8% increase in training hours provided in relation to the previous year; and feedback from staff has been very encouraging, with 89% recording a very high satisfaction level.

1495 There are service users who continue to receive consultancy support from Care and Support in the UK. The consultations are organised with a multidisciplinary team, comprising, amongst others, psychiatrist, learning disability nurses and an occupational therapist. During their four visits throughout the year, the following have been devised according to individual needs: positive behaviour support plans, forensic and learning disability assessments, sexualised behaviour guidelines, and pathways and formulations of care. It is extremely important to ensure that the best care plans are put together to best meet the needs of our service users, allowing for a fuller integration into the community.

1500 The Supported Employment Scheme, Mr Speaker, offers sheltered employment for service users of St Bernadette's Resource Centre and the Dr Giraldi Home, and this continues. As of February 2015, there were 10 service users completing employment; there are nine companies involved. To date, feedback has been extremely positive, which is reflected in both the companies' and service users' comments and level of participation. We are very thankful and appreciative of the support provided by these companies and would encourage other employers to consider the value and benefit that their organisation could provide to individuals.

1505 Mr Speaker, St Bernadette's Resource Centre welcomed two new service users in September. The Centre has developed a transition programme for young persons with learning disabilities so that they can begin to be integrated into the care as soon as they leave St Martin's School. This enables a seamless service where support and education continues to be provided.

1510 Afternoon Respite Service from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. has offered a total of 16,000 hours, and during the same period Overnight Respite Service has totalled almost 14,500 hours, which represents a 57% increase in the amount of afternoon respite and a 4% increase in overnight respite hours, which has enabled service users to enjoy breaks from their families and undertake activities in line with their abilities. Activities undertaken are outings within town, amongst others.

1515 Within Dr Giraldi residential services there have been four admissions during the last financial year and three new flats have been opened and refurbished dependent on the needs of the residents. There has been, Mr Speaker, a move towards flats in the community and away from 1525 the main residential setting. This has enabled the integration of persons with learning disabilities into the community, where they can live within flats in safe and supportive neighbourhoods. And once again, Mr Speaker, in that respect I wish to thank the hon. Lady, Samantha Sacramento, who has been instrumental in moving as quickly as she did to allow us to have properly resourced community flats to achieve the aims I have just mentioned.

1530 Three of the new admissions have come about due to the successful transition programme between children and adult disability services, where those who are known to be moving from one service to another are co-worked between the two services, ensuring tailor-made plans are facilitated and individual moves are consistent and provide continuity.

1535 In November 2014, a Service User's Wishes and Feelings Questionnaire and a Nearest Relative Questionnaire were introduced. The degree of satisfaction from service users and relatives has increased, importantly. An example of improvement is that in the previous financial year there was 85% satisfaction in the attendance at the Centre, whereas in this financial year 95% of service users have expressed that they are happy to attend the Centre. This, of course, Mr Speaker is very welcome news and reflects the sterling and hard work by my hon. 1540 Predecessor, which she discharged in her stewardship of the Care Agency and her dedication and passion in improving all areas of the service.

Mr Speaker, as a Government we are committed to further protecting and promoting the interests and welfare of persons with disabilities through the development of effective policies and the creation of training programmes for care staff at St Bernadette's and Dr Giraldi.

1545 Mr Speaker, it is simply not possible to name all the excellent professionals at the Care Agency, and so I simply thank all of them for their dedication, commitment and professionalism and to let them know that we all sincerely appreciate their hard work.

Mr Speaker, I turn now to my Justice responsibilities and I start with the men and women who day in and day out keep us safe: the Royal Gibraltar Police. The force is committed to 1550 providing the best value for money to the community and maintaining a fair work-life balance for its workforce, police officers and civilian staff alike.

The report conducted by Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabularies concluded that whilst the force faced a high demand load, it did not fully understand its demand profile. Therefore, to best utilise its available resources, the organisation carried out an in-depth needs-based analysis 1555 of its current demand profile. This has led to a major restructure of the organisation's existing resources and the manner in which it carries out business in order to improve service delivery. The organisation has moved away from its long-established four shift system and adopted a new five shift system. The old seven-two working day to rest day split has been replaced with a six-four cycle. Whilst this has meant slightly longer working days, the cycle provides for better rest 1560 periods and adheres to the Working Time Act provisions. Significantly, an element of overlap has been built into the new shift pattern, which ensures more staff are available at times of greater demand, as indicated by the demands analysis.

The RGP will continue to self-assess its demand against its capability and remains committed to working with the Government in pursuit of improving service delivery to the community. In 1565 this context, the RGP is submitting a business plan for further consideration.

Mr Speaker, the force restructure has meant a change in the manner in which the organisation carries out its business. The force fervently believes in keeping the community at the heart of how it carries out its functions, and with this in mind adopted a neighbourhood 1570 policing philosophy and created a Neighbourhood Policing Unit. This ensures that police presence in areas such as residential estates, upper town, etc. is maintained. Uniformed officers are also tasked with conducting focused patrols. These are designed to tackle specific issues in specific areas and at specific times.

The RGP continues to invest in our future generations and therefore has maintained its School Liaison Officers. These officers continue to work closely with schools, youth clubs and 1575 organisations. They deliver talks and presentations to various age groups, covering a broad range of subjects such as stranger danger, cyber bullying, sexting, drugs awareness and binge drinking. Additionally, these officers deliver seasonal themed talks, which include but are not limited to Halloween talks.

1580 During the last five years, the force has been actively involved in the planning and development of an integrated IT platform across multiple business areas, not just within the RGP. The platform is modular in approach and addresses business areas such as custody, case management, personal history and crime recording. Whilst not an entirely paperless system, it will greatly facilitate the documenting and recording of information. The case management module, for example, once in operation, will see a seamless transition of case dockets from the 1585 the moment they are initiated, through the investigation phase to their final destination at the courts for trial.

Once completely delivered, the entire platform will consist of 15 modules, of which 10 will be in use by the RGP. The other modules will be used by, amongst others, the Office of the Attorney General, Probation Service and the Prison Service. The project is currently in the delivery phase, 1590 with four modules – Occurrence Book, Crime, Intelligence and Personal History modules – already in operation. The next module due for delivery will be the Custody module and the Command and Dispatch module. This will encompass all custody procedures from reception through detection to final resolution.

During the course of the last financial year, the RGP has increased the number of resources it allocates to the investigation of financial crime. In part, these increases are governed by the MoneyVal requirements. The organisation now has two separate departments investigating financial crime and money laundering: the Financial Crime Investigation Unit and the Money Laundering Investigation Unit. Both units are led by a detective inspector and consist of two 1595 detective sergeants and six detective constables. The units also have a terrorism financing investigation capability.

The Money Laundering Investigation Unit currently has 10 ongoing investigations involving circa £1.7 million. In a separate case already dealt with by the courts, over €10,000 has been forfeited. In addition to this, five other cases are subject to either restraining orders or money has been seized pending further investigations or court decisions.

1600 Mr Speaker, as we all know, Gibraltar sits geographically at a major maritime crossroads. In addition to being a major artery for commercial maritime traffic, the Straits of Gibraltar is one of the main trafficking routes for the movement of drugs from the North African coast to mainland Europe. The RGP's maritime assets are therefore at the front line of the international fight against this illicit activity. Police motor boat crews, together with their local partner agencies, patrol British Gibraltar Territorial Waters to deter and interdict any such activity taking place. In 1605 the final quarter of the last financial year, over five tonnes of cannabis resin valued at an estimated £25 million have been recovered from the sea, and several RHIBs have been seized. The RGP's fleet of vessels is intrinsic to these successes. Despite its purpose-built vessels, however, these operations are not without risk, with RGP officers being regularly exposed to and 1610 having sustained serious injuries in the past.

The fight against trafficking is not constrained to that occurring across the Straits. Earlier this year, the RGP, together with Customs and Port Authority partners, executed a major intelligence-led anti-drug operation on motor vessel Mount Faber. The vessel, currently in Gibraltar for bunkers from Colombia. Intelligence shared by international law enforcement 1620 contacts suggested the vessel had been attached with a parasite container with a substantial amount of cocaine. Following an exhaustive search of the vessel and its hull, the latter requiring the use of specialist diving contractors, the container was found with approximately 108 kgs of cocaine concealed inside. The street value of the drugs was estimated at around £6.5 million.

Mr Speaker, the force, as the House may recall, also acquired several portable breathalyser units and drug wipe test kits prior to Christmas last year. The equipment enables officers to 1625 conduct breath tests on drivers suspected of driving whilst over the prescribed limit at the time of being stopped. Similarly, the drug wipe kits enable the officers to confirm whether a driver has traces of drugs on him, alerting to the possibility that the driver may have been consuming

1630 drugs prior to driving and therefore still under its influence. Whilst individuals testing positive would still need to be further tested at the police station, the tests have reduced the number of individuals arrested on suspicion of these offences and subsequently released when testing negative or under the prescribed limit of alcohol.

1635 Mr Speaker, I know that we are all in this House extremely proud of our men and women of the Royal Gibraltar Police and I wish to place on the record our sincere thanks for their tireless work and for keeping all of us safe.

I turn to the Gibraltar Law Courts. Following recent retirements of Justices of the Court of Appeal, this year we have seen the swearing-in of two new Justices: the Rt Hon. Sir John Goldring and the Rt Hon. Sir Martin Moore-Bick, maintaining the complement of the Court of Appeal at five members.

1640 During 2017, following advice from the Judicial Service Commission, five new Justices of the Peace were recruited and appointed.

As reported in previous years, there continues to be no backlog at the Magistrates Court and the Supreme Court in respect of dates being provided for criminal trials and for civil and family applications waiting for first-hearing dates.

1645 The Gibraltar Courts Service continues to modernise and improve the services provided to court users. Since October last year, court users enjoy the use of WiFi facilities in all courtrooms. The Gibraltar Courts Service website continues to be regularly updated with judgments being available for the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal since 1997 to date, and since January last year sentencing pronouncements for criminal trials at the Supreme Court are also being made available to download from the website, thus enabling the general public and service users to keep up to date with court decisions.

The Laws of Gibraltar Judgments website continues to be up to date with all reported judgments since 1812 available for download, with future reported judgments to be uploaded subsequent to their publication in the Gibraltar Law Reports volumes.

1655 Organised visits to the Gibraltar Law Courts arranged by the Gibraltar Courts Service in unison with the judiciary remain popular with local middle schools as well as with overseas colleges and universities, where students gain a good insight of how the justice system works in Gibraltar and helps to enhance the reputation of our legal system in respect of external visitors.

1660 The Gibraltar Courts Service is constantly looking at ways in which to improve their services and level of performance, with court users today enjoying a modernised, open and approachable court service through which the public can have access to the justice system. Mr Speaker, I wish to thank the excellent staff at our Gibraltar Court Service, as well as our Justices of the Peace and judiciary.

1665 In respect of the Prison Service, I am glad to say that it has been another generally uneventful year for the Service. The atmosphere within the Prison Service is relaxed and positive. Statistics in respect of prisoner indiscipline remain static at around 2.5 cases per month, most of these being minor infractions.

1670 In respect of population figures, the first two months of 2017 show a decrease when compared to last year, while the subsequent months show an increase. Daily average inmate population figures for January stood at 47 prisoners, down from 57 last year. March 2017 saw an average of 55 prisoners, up from 51 prisoners in March 2016. The average population for the last financial year stood at 53 prisoners, down from 59 prisoners in 2015-16. Between April 2016 and March 2017 there have been a total of nine female admissions and five juvenile admissions.

1675 In respect of rehabilitation, the Prison continues to be well served by professionals offering a variety of programmes to assist offenders in breaking the offending cycle and becoming productive members of the community. Visits by different counsellors and a psychologist provide a valuable service in this respect. Organisations like Narcotics Anonymous that attend weekly are very popular with inmates. Vocational activities, including woodwork and handicraft classes, are typically well subscribed. Sports and exercise is ever present and encouraged by 1680 Prison management. Educational classes are providing many inmates with the opportunity to learn and achieve qualifications in a variety of subjects.

The management of sex offenders has been an area that has seen a considerable increase in resources required over recent years, due to the rise in prisoners committed to prison for such offences. In this respect, the Prison has been actively involved from the outset with the Public Protection Unit. The Prison has four fully qualified designated risk managers who work with sex offenders and produce valuable assessment reports that assist in the management of such offenders once they are returned to the community.

1690 Prison representatives continue to attend the Foreign Office Overseas Territories Directorate conferences every year. This gives Prison management the opportunity to share experiences with counterparts from the other territories and explore common areas, concerns and aspirations.

In terms of industrial relations, Prison management continues to work with staff representatives in a holistic and constructive way. The conclusion of the resource review for the Service is anticipated to further enhance the service that the Prison can offer in the future. This will not only benefit staff but will also allow for the expansion of rehabilitation programmes.

1695 The Prison Board continues to provide a valuable service to the community through their frequent inspections and meetings, keeping Prison management in check and ensuring that prisoners are well treated and that their grievances are heard and addressed.

1700 Prison management continues committed to its core precepts: keeping safely those in custody, looking after them with humanity and encouraging their self-respect; assisting them in leading law-abiding and useful lives whilst in prison, with a view that this is continued once they are released back into society.

The Office of Criminal Prosecution and Litigation within the Government Law Offices is predominantly our Criminal Prosecution Service. As such, criminal litigation has occupied most of its time. Since the introduction of the Criminal Procedure and Evidence Act, there are now increased pre-trial functions required of prosecutors in each case that appears before the court. Disclosure has become quite a substantial item and the sort of case review that is now being conducted by the Office of Criminal Prosecution is much more detailed than it was in the past. The Office of Criminal Prosecution is therefore, Mr Speaker, much better equipped to deal with and manage serious crimes of this nature. Recent convictions have undoubtedly increased public confidence, resulting in members of the public coming forward with historical complaints. As a result, we have also seen an increase in Public Protection Orders obtained.

1710 In terms of convictions generally, Gibraltar compares favourably with the conviction rates of England and Wales.

1715 Mr Speaker, the Office of Criminal Prosecution also works closely with the Care Agency in matters concerning child protection, elderly care services, adoption, fostering and special guardianship. The Office of Criminal Prosecution is represented on the Fostering and Adoption Panel and is also involved in the development of the Overseas Territories Safeguarding Children Committee, where, along with other Overseas Territories as Bermuda, the Cayman Islands and the Falklands, Gibraltar is leading on developing and enhancing several areas of child protection, such as the mutual recognition of orders.

1720 Mr Speaker, I turn to matters regarding legislation and I highlight some of the issues we have dealt with and which we are currently working on.

1725 This year we enacted and commenced the Crimes Act, which fulfilled a manifesto commitment in that it made provision for a specific offence to combat revenge porn. The Act created a new offence of disclosing private sexual photographs and films with intent to cause distress. The Act also updated the offence of meeting a child following sexual grooming by changing the minimum number of communications from two to one, which brings the offence in line with its UK equivalent. Following representations from the Gibraltar Women's Association, an additional offence to target paedophiles who communicate sexually with a child was included. This means that it is now a criminal offence for a person aged 18 or over to 1735 communicate with a child under 16 years old if the communication is sexual or if it is intended to elicit from the child a communication which is sexual. I am particularly grateful, therefore, to the Gibraltar Women's Association for their support in this area and for actively coming forward with relevant, proportional and practical proposals in strengthening our laws. We are all agreed, Mr Speaker, that sexual offences against children are horrible crimes and that it is vital to protect children from falling victim to such abhorrent behaviour.

1740 Mr Speaker, a Bill for a Law Commission was published in March this year. This Bill provides for the creation of a statutory body made up of myself, Her Majesty's Attorney General and experts in different fields such as education, the environment and financial resources, which will be tasked with examining various areas of laws which may either be obsolete due to the passage of time since they appeared on the statute book, or require amendment due to particular local circumstances. As the Parliament will be aware, it is intended that one, if not the first, project that the Commission will be asked to undertake will be to review local sentencing laws to ensure that they cater for the needs of Gibraltar, rather than being tied to sentencing guidelines which have evolved for another jurisdiction with its own particular issues that do not necessarily apply to Gibraltar. As a result, it gives me great pleasure to announce that the following eminent members of our community have agreed to be appointed Law Commissioners: Mrs Justice Prescott, Learned Stipendiary Magistrate Charles Pitto, John Restano QC, Mark Isola QC, Dr Liesl Torres, Dr Joey Britto and Mr Lawrence Podesta. (Banging on desks)

1750 Mr Speaker, progress is being made on the publication of a Bill for a Legal Services Act. Parliament will be aware that a formal joint consultation was undertaken last year. We will publish this Bill in July. As a result of this, consultation changes have been made and a further consultation on a draft code of conduct to support the proposed law is being undertaken with a deadline for responses in September. The Bill as currently proposed and the draft code of conduct will affect all persons who provide legal services, including those employed as in-house lawyers. It is this Government's intention that the Bill will become law and be commenced by the end of September of this year.

1760 Mr Speaker, the Government is also progressing substantively on discussions with the Bar Council on reform to the legal assistance legislation. This does not mean that we have stayed still in the interim to address some of the more serious issues that relate to that legislation. The Government has already amended the law to allow for legal assistance to be granted in cases before the Parole Board and also before the soon to be in place Mental Health Tribunal. I very much look forward to pursuing my discussions with the Bar Council to finalise our joint reforms.

1765 Following this Government's desire to ensure that our local judicial decisions are subject to rules and regulations which take local circumstances into account where this is appropriate, this Government will publish in July a Bill for a Damages Act 2017. This will ensure that the so-called discount rate for calculating damages in personal injury cases is one which is appropriate for Gibraltar and not one necessarily tied to the UK. The rate will be set by the Chief Justice after consultation with the Financial Secretary, so as to ensure it is both independent and accurate.

1770 Mr Speaker, I have just relayed to this House the many policies on which we on this side of this House were elected in respect of health, social and elderly care and in relation to justice, and which I am implementing by the good offices and the unstinting efforts, competence, good cheer and enthusiasm of my many teams who are flat out working to improve, to deepen, to better, to perfect and to do more in serving our community. I have mentioned many of them by name, but I cannot name them all in one speech, save to here and now thank them for day in and day out carrying their community in their hearts and minds and going the extra mile to help, to assist and to be of benefit.

1780 All that I have reported to this House, Mr Speaker, reflects the facts on the ground. However, to hear the Opposition's incessant caterwauling, complaining and prophecies of doom – which, incidentally, would make Prince Hamlet of Denmark seem joyous and a violent party animal by comparison – one would be forgiven for thinking that Gibraltar is not the safe, progressive and prosperous community it is in fact. It would seem, Mr Speaker, that the Opposition's existence is 1785 oxygenated by the construction of a parallel and false reality, which, if it shattered like a cheap mirror, would bring down on them the damning realisation, obvious to everyone else in Gibraltar, that they are, certainly in their current constellation, politically finished. The last financial year has been replete with many instances where the Opposition has been caught out in their shrill, inherently contradictory and oftentimes patently disingenuous political discourse; 1790 and whereas in the last four years I have avoided preparing a Budget contribution that mentions the Opposition, I think that this year they have been especially solicitous of my views on their performance and on their disservice to the community, and therefore hereby highlight their most sublimely outlandish policies.

Mr Speaker, I start with the Opposition's incongruous position on the parole of Mr Marrache, which they shamelessly tried to milk, only to end up with a bitter taste in their own mouths. The 1795 House will recall that the Court of Appeal delivered a judgment in relation to my appeal against the judgment of the Hon. Mr Justice Adrian Jack in connection with the parole of ministers, the main point in issue being whether I had the power to discontinue a set of proceedings commenced under section 54 of the Prison Act crafted by the Opposition when in Government.
 The Court of Appeal unanimously held that the Minister for Justice does have the power to 1800 withdraw a section 54 application prior to its determination by the Supreme Court and that such a construction 'of the law both accords with principle and has practical benefits'.

The background relating to this matter is well known, Mr Speaker. The Board, guiding itself by the law passed by the previous administration, recommended Mr Marrache's release on licence. I asked the Board to reconsider its recommendation. It did so and it confirmed its 1805 advice. As I was still in disagreement with the Parole Board's decision, I applied to the Supreme Court for it to determine the matter. The law passed by the GSD administration is silent as to the procedure I had to follow in respect of such an application, and so – rightly, in my view – I followed the legal advice from Government's Queen's Counsel and senior Crown Counsel as to the form of the application. After I filed the application, however, further evidence emerged that 1810 dealt with my concerns, and again following legal advice, I issued instructions to withdraw the application to the Supreme Court. On the advice received I was convinced that the legal test in the GSD's law had been met in full. The Supreme Court disagreed with the procedure I had followed and questioned whether I had the power to withdraw the application. The Court of Appeal unanimously determined in my favour.

In any case, Mr Speaker, it is important to note that the Hon. Mr Justice Jack had previously 1815 accepted in his ruling that the Government's view was perfectly arguable and that the final disposal of the matter, including the licence conditions, was perfectly satisfactory. The Opposition, unsurprisingly, made no such mention in their politically pernicious press releases; nor did they ever concede the point that in the UK and in all other democracies governed by the 1820 rule of law, it is neither extraordinary nor unprecedented for independent judiciaries, like our excellent judiciary, to freely examine and decide upon the use of statutory powers by Ministers.
 Indeed, it is the right manner in which such differences are settled in a vibrant democracy that holds judicial independence as sacrosanct.

Further still, Mr Speaker, as the Court of Appeal rightly states in its judgment, the appeal 1825 raised an important point regarding the powers of the Minister for Justice and duties under the Prison Act. The Court of Appeal has now made it clear beyond any doubt that where a Minister – any Minister – considers that a particular course of action is mandated by compelling reasons of justice or the public interest, it would be 'a dereliction of his duty as a public authority if he did not take the course of action'. In fact, the Court of Appeal stated that in this particular case it 1830 would have been counterintuitive if I could not revise a decision on receiving further information. In short, and contrary to the GSD's mean-spirited and poisonous suggestions, I had at all times acted correctly. As a result, for the Opposition in their many press releases to lecture me to the contrary and insinuate that I was not undertaking my statutory duties seriously and that my actions may have had an adverse effect on Gibraltar's international reputation had been 1835 shown by the Court of Appeal's judgment to be not just incorrect but misconceived and not just 1840 a little pathetic. Entirely unsurprisingly, the Opposition did not retract their statements and instead issued a press release – a rather touching one, really – expressing surprise that I had issued a press note on the Court of Appeal’s judgment, even though they erected their usual circus tent in this House and pressed us for answers on this case, knowing fully well that the matter was sub judice and after I had made the point that I would make a statement at the conclusion of the appeal.

1845 And further still, Mr Speaker, the Leader of the Opposition should know that at all times, even if I had made a wrong decision – we are all human, we all make mistakes, and even if I had made a wrong decision, which it has been determined I had not – it was always in good faith and on the premise of the highest-quality legal advice and evidence available to me. On this premise, for the Opposition to have suggested that I may have received calls for my resignation if the Court of Appeal had disagreed with my decision is shockingly as asinine as it is hypocritical because I cannot recall a single occasion where a GSD Minister resigned following a judgment decided against them – and I can think of many decisions which were held against them when they were Ministers and the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition was the Minister for Justice.

1850 Did they think that I or the community would have forgotten that there were various such cases, such as the Privy Council’s decision – the highest court in the UK and all the concomitant expense that that entailed – against the GSD Government’s appallingly discriminatory and unconstitutional policy on the allocation of Government housing in the case of Nadine Rodriguez?

1855 Did they forget, Mr Speaker, that when they were in Government they spent part of our national treasure, over £100,000, in trying to stop a person in a loving and stable relationship from adding her name to her partner’s tenancy, solely on the basis that they were a same-sex couple? Shame on them, Mr Speaker. They spent taxpayers’ money and deployed the full and formidable machinery of the Government all the way to the UK’s highest court to stop a loving couple from enjoying the same rights as other couples because of their petty, mean and dinosaur-like prejudices. These are the values that the GSD represents. (Several Members: Hear, hear.)

1860 Or the case –

1865 Mr Speaker: Have you finished?

Hon. N F Costa: Almost, Mr Speaker.

1870 Mr Speaker: Please come to a conclusion.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Okay?

1875 Hon. N F Costa: Yes.

Mr Speaker: I am going to tell you why in a moment.

1880 Hon. N F Costa: Or the case of Social Services and Joanna Hernandez, where the Government sought to advance the most ridiculous argument to redefine what “a week” means in law, and so despicable were they in their callous litigation against personal individuals that they argued the point all the way to Gibraltar’s Court of Appeal.

1885 It reminded me of a wonderful quote by Groucho Marx that he must have been thinking of this GSD Opposition when he said politics is the art of looking for trouble, finding it everywhere, diagnosing it incorrectly and applying the wrong remedies.

1890 Mr Speaker, Mr Llamas has turned out to be a political gift that has kept on giving, and I was sorely tempted but I will not refer to Dog-Gate, but I must refer to the misconceived statements on the Care Agency's subcontracted workforce, once again in circumstances where I had been unable to answer his questions in Parliament because Mr Llamas did not attend Parliament 1895 himself to ask them. Mr Llamas was clearly unaware that investment in Gibraltar's domiciliary care had more than quadrupled over the last five years and that the Government must look at the best ways of maintaining the highest possible standards and providing the best care to some of the most vulnerable members of our community whilst ensuring value for money. It has 1900 already been explained to Mr Llamas that care in residential facilities is subcontracted to cover different types of leave and to cater for an increase in service needs. Carers who are subcontracted to work at Dr Giraldi Home do so continuously, alongside Care Agency staff, and are vetted to discharge their responsibilities to the Care Agency's exacting standards. What 1905 really was quite something, Mr Speaker, was for the GSD to have suggested in its press releases that the work done by subcontracted carers is inferior when the GSD used exclusively subcontracted workers for domiciliary care. They are just not serious, Mr Speaker! And in any case, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition also sought to get in on the action by complaining about the number of subcontracted workers at the Care Agency, even though I have explained 1910 ad nauseam that all subcontracted workers are carers and, as I explained already, in the UK persons pay for their domiciliary care so surely if the GSD are complaining that we are using subcontracted care then they must be suggesting that we either charge the most vulnerable in our community for care and support because we must therefore employ everybody directly by the Care Agency ... and if that is their position they should come up and say so. What does he want? Does he want the most vulnerable Gibraltarians to be charged? Does he want Government expenditure to increase even more? He cannot have it both ways, Mr Speaker, although they will certainly try.

1915 It is this Government that deeply appreciates the vocational work that care workers undertake for those in our community. The Government recognises that the work is often as challenging as it is rewarding and it is right that care workers are provided with the support necessary to fulfil their responsibilities effectively. As a result of negotiations with Unite the Union, the Government submitted a package of proposals to Unite the Union in line with their original concerns for their consideration and 72% of care workers of those participating in the ballot voted in favour.

1920 Mr Speaker, once again reflecting on the Opposition's un-choreographed tap dance, I was reminded of another delightful quote, this time by Albert Einstein: 'Only two things are infinite, the universe and human stupidity, and I'm not sure about the former.'

1925 And then, Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition returned to his favourite political hobbyhorse, GHA morale, and he repeated the accusations that he made on GHA morale. Mr Speaker, we have had the discussion across the floor of the House and the press releases, so I will not repeat it save to just say once again that 61% of doctors said that they were not low on morale.

1930 Mr Speaker, if he wants to talk of an independently verified, scientifically taken poll, then we must refer to the independently verified survey that was carried out at the Gibraltar Health Authority when the nursing section of Unite put a series of questions to allied health professionals, doctors and the ancillary staff. In that staff morale survey, contrary to the one which was an informal consultation where 61% said there was no low morale, asked if staff morale had improved in the new hospital 97% of everyone polled said no; 98% did not think that it was safe to practice and to fill wards and departments at their full capacity with the current staffing levels; 97% did not think that senior management listened to their concerns; 90% did 1935 not consider staffing levels adequate. That did not happen when we were in government, Mr Speaker; it happened 10 years after the GSD had been in office and responsible for the GHA.
(Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) So when they were in government, 97% of their nurses thought they were doing an appalling job – and they have the cheek and the temerity to raise a perfectly proper internal discussion, which was leaked, among doctors.

1940 Mr Speaker, I really could say a lot more about the unsubstantiated gossip they bring to this House, the callous concerns that they try to raise, but I think what best summarises my view of the Opposition is that for them it is better to remain silent and be thought a fool than to speak and to remove all doubt. (Banging on desk)

1945 And so, Mr Speaker, as I conclude I would like to take the opportunity to thank my wonderful staff at the Ministry: Simon, Zoe, Elizabeth, Louise-Anne, Natalie, David, Kevin, Martin and Evelyn, who do an amazing job.

I also wish to place on the record my sincere thanks, Mr Speaker, to you and to your fantastic Parliamentary team: Paul, Frances, Kevin and Danny, who are unfailingly patient, kind and helpful. (Banging on desks)

1950 Thank you.

Procedural

Mr Speaker: Clearly I am very sorry, but I have to tell the Hon. Minister that I find it very difficult to analyse and to see what is the relevance of the personal statement that you have made regarding the Isaac Marrache parole case to the estimate of expenditure for any of the Departments for which you are responsible. There is no connection, it is irrelevant, and what you should have done instead is, at the beginning of this meeting of Parliament, made a personal ministerial statement on the issue. That was the time and that was the place for you to defend yourself correctly, but not at the end of a speech on the Estimates of Expenditure. No matter how liberal one is, I find it difficult to see what is the relevance between that and what we are on about. I am sorry, that is my ruling.

1960 We will now have a recess until six o'clock.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker –

1965 Mr Speaker: Chief Minister, we are going to have a recess until six o'clock. Please –

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if you –

Mr Speaker: I am very tired.

1970 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: This morning you asked me whether I wanted to have a break; I did not. Now I need to have a break, Chief Minister. Therefore, we will have a recess until six.

1975 Hon. Chief Minister: We will recess –

Mr Speaker: I will allow you afterwards to say whatever you want.

Hon. Chief Minister: We will recess immediately, then, Mr Speaker.

1980 Mr Speaker: Thank you.

The House recessed at 5.39 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 6 p.m.

Procedural

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1985 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, thank you.

Just on the issue that we were dealing with before the recess a moment ago, I am grateful. I rise to express the gratitude of the Government for the two indications you have given during the course of this debate as to how you would like to see ministerial contributions handled in future.

1990 The practice of the House since I have been a Member has been that this debate is a report, and I say as much in the context of my introduction usually, not just in relation to the number of the estimates, not the letter of the law literally but the number of the estimates that we are looking at, but also a general debate, and therefore Ministers have traditionally contributed in a wider view of their responsibilities rather than in a narrow view of their responsibilities.

1995 In respect of the final issue that you raised in respect of Mr Costa's contribution, the way the Government determined we should respond in respect of that matter was in this debate because of the consequence for the outturn figure of the legal fees incurred in the context of that debate. But we of course entirely accept that your suggestion may even have been a better one and a more topical way of dealing with the issue if we had done it at the beginning of this meeting rather than during the course of this debate, which is so lengthy that indeed many Members are in and out and not everyone may have heard what the Hon. Minister said. So we will certainly bear that in mind next time, that there is a topical issue that relates to cost and is about this time of the year. Rather than simply sweeping it up into this debate we will certainly consider making a more timely intervention as a ministerial statement in pursuit of your ruling.

2005 Mr Speaker: I can see that, to the extent that substantial legal fees were involved; I can see the relevance of that. Fair enough. It is a point that had not quite occurred to me. Nevertheless, I will say this: if the Hon. Minister had approached me before the meeting, explaining that he intended to answer criticism and defend himself, I would still have advised him to do so at the beginning of the meeting, make a ministerial statement and get it off your cuff, and then obviously if something arises during the course of the debate on the Estimates, fair enough. Okay?

2010

2015 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is good advice well received on this side of the House.

Appropriation Bill 2017 –
For Second Reading –
Debate continued

Mr Speaker: So, where are we? The Hon. Elliot Phillips.

2020 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, thank you for your direction and I welcome the comments in relation to the last part of the Hon. Minister's comments in relation to the Marrache case. I thought for one moment we would escape the annual rant of the Minister for Justice, but alas we did not, and I felt that I was almost transported to Bayside Comprehensive again during an A-level literature lesson with Mr Gonzalez. But here we are. Mr Speaker, I also thought we possibly could have been transported to the Globe.

2025 But the relevance of the issue relating to the Marrache case is clearly one of cost, and the parole case. This side of the House has made clear that it expects an answer in relation to the costs of all of this litigation deployed by the Minister for Justice and why he did not feel the need

2030 to instruct able and local counsel in this jurisdiction rather than go to probably the world's most eminent QC to conduct a very simple administrative question to be put before the court. But look, he clearly fails to have confidence in the local Bar and I am sure that will be felt quite extensively by that decision, Mr Speaker.

2035 Moving to more germane matters, it is a privilege to form part of our political debate at such an interesting time in our history. The political landscape across the globe is moving in a treadmill-like fashion and we are certainly moving along with it. We are living through a monumental period in our history and we all face significant challenges as a result of the United Kingdom's decision to exit the European Union. In addition, our communities face threats to our 2040 peace from extremism. We, as a community, have to be united behind our political leaders and community leaders against the horrific scenes unfolding in the United Kingdom and across the world. We must continue, all of us, to condemn the actions of those who would seek to create fear and chaos on the streets of peaceful communities. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

2045 Mr Speaker, we are fortunate to live in a small but relatively safe part of the world and I am sure that all of us would not want it any other way. We are an accepting, tolerant and peaceful community, and whilst we watch from afar the terrorism on the streets of the lands of our cousins, we must remain vigilant always to those who would seek to threaten our way of life.

At this stage, Mr Speaker, I would pause to congratulate all those who work within the law enforcement agencies and those who work hard to keep our community safe. I would also echo the words of the Minister for Justice in respect of those who work at sea, who curb the illicit traffic of drugs and tobacco.

2050 It is right that we had the recent exchange on the question of our security; and, although there is a different approach and difference of opinion, we hope that the exchange did in some way remind our community about keeping vigilant.

2055 Opposition politics, Mr Speaker, is not easy, as you yourself will know, and I do not think anyone on this side of the House who took the oath for the first time ever thought it was going to be. Being an Opposition Member of this House brings with it huge responsibility to hold the Government of the day to account and also serve our community in a way which represents their needs. We promised to work for our constituents, help where we could, but most of all we promised to listen. Whilst we promote the politics of individual and collective responsibility to our community, there is no escape from the fact that there remain large swathes of young 2060 people who are distant from politics, a number of them without opportunity. And whilst the Hon. the Chief Minister repeats his mantra that things could not be better, that is certainly not what is being felt by many young people that we see and many people that we speak to.

2065 It is right, Mr Speaker, that our agenda in opposition has been progressive and positive, in stark difference from the reactive politics we are seeing being played out on the Government benches. Policy by policy the GSD continues to lead and mould the political debate here and outside this place. We led the debate and supported co-education as far back as 2014 (A Member: Hear, hear.) and now the Government follow. (Interjection) Well, we couldn't in 2014 for one simple reason: we were not in Government. But anyway ... our Government to change the age boundaries and changes to key stages were announced by the GSD back in 2014 and 2070 now fully adopted by the Government three years later. Where we lead, the GSLP follow. Next we will hear, Mr Speaker, that Bayside is being replaced by the stadium project, and Governor's Meadow and Bishop Fitzgerald will move into the Westside Comprehensive complex. Yes, more initiatives by the GSD back in 2014.

2075 On providing our young people with equivalent opportunities in skills and training and the creation of a modern-day apprenticeship, we led the debate, and it would appear from the Chief Minister's statement on a new style of apprenticeships that the Government are following where we have led.

On the creation of means testing of Government housing we continue to lead the debate on that subject.

2080 On public finances we lead the debate by being the advocate for prudence, responsibility and the creation of a Public Accounts Committee. Save for the last point, it would appear that the Government are trying at least to put up a front in terms of prudence.

On ridding our community of a culture of entitlement, promoting civic responsibility and respect, we have led the debate in our community. (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.)

2085 The Chief Minister's intervention yesterday about promoting hardworking people looks as though it was lifted directly from our manifesto at the last election. I suppose we should be flattered by this imitation, happy for the Government to tick off our promises.

On sport, again we led with a joined-up agenda which proposed the magnificent development of Victoria Stadium in order to bring football back home.

2090 Where we lead the debate, others have followed. Perhaps that is what Opposition politics is about: challenging the Government, showing them that there is a better way. We will continue to lead the debate in our community in a way which serves the best interests of our community as a whole.

2095 Mr Speaker, the GSD is the natural party of government and many of our citizens are experiencing the false dawns and seeing the significant fault lines and the shaky foundations of the GSLP/Liberal Government. The GSD will always be the party which protects the most vulnerable in our society, because whilst we focus on building an economically and politically stable prosperous community we do so in order to better help those less fortunate in our community.

2100 Participation in politics must be about ensuring that our children can continue to grow up, as we all did, in a Gibraltar which is safe, secure and prosperous. I have said it before, that the principal way in which we provide long-term prosperity for our community is investing in our people, Mr Speaker. Our people ultimately are our only asset and without that investment we will be nothing. We are as strong as our weakest link and therefore we must ensure that we provide sufficient support for those who really cannot help themselves. That is why my Budget address will focus on the creation of better opportunities and young people.

2105 Much of the work that the Opposition have focused on this year and which we will continue to be focused on relates to that very subject, about creating better opportunities for young people and investing in their future. Our young people need opportunity and a hope for a better future. The numbers of young people and parents of young people worried about the future and that of their children is shocking, Mr Speaker, and we must do more to provide opportunity and hope for those people who do not see any progression because of the archaic training practices of the Government. Not a day goes by without a young man or woman coming to me or Members of the Opposition complaining of the lack of opportunity, complaining about the future job opportunities in this community.

2115 We have consistently advocated for the promotion of skills-based learning and the development of apprenticeships. The call from the unions and the Chamber during the election campaign was one. We are on a skills cliff edge and we need to do something about offering young people hope for a better future in the job market. The Government clearly do not agree with a policy which puts at the centre the objective of creating better opportunities for young people. The Government have at every corner attempted, in and outside this place, to denigrate the policy of the GSD amongst business; I have seen it with my own eyes. The Government's orchestration, namely writing to businesses up and down our streets seeking to undermine our work on apprenticeships, is having the opposite effect. Even today I received a number of emails copying me in to the letter sent by the Hon. Mr Bossano, who referred to later the 800 letters, and telling me what a disgrace it is to see such a letter being written to them.

2125 Our policy on apprenticeships and a modern skills programme has received overwhelming support from members of the public who remain very concerned about the opportunities for the next generation. I take the opportunity to thank the thousand that support our programme for better opportunities – a dynamic, progressive and forward-thinking policy which will create a diversified, highly adaptable, trained workforce for the job market.

2135 The Government continually hails the £66 million – or, put it another way, £1 million a month, or nearly £1 million a month – spent since February 2012 on the Future Job Strategy as a success. It is not. It fails to inspire our young people, it fails to provide sustainable opportunity for our young people, and worse still it will create a lost generation of young people devoid of opportunity and hope. It is regrettable that this will be the legacy of the Future Job Strategy.

2140 As I said, Mr Speaker, the Hon. Mr Bossano has spent an inordinate amount of time trying to denigrate our policy, going to the extent of using his own Department for political point scoring. As he said yesterday, he sent out the 800 letters to businesses about our policy. Needless to say, and the feedback I have received today is that they have approached me and one has actually described the conduct as despicable. I am not surprised, Mr Speaker, by that at all. This is the GSLP through and through, a party which purports to represent the worker. They do not. They represent nothing of the sort. The Government's policy is one of simply filling skills gaps as they go along without any thought to how our community will look or where we want to take the community in the future. We must at all costs look towards building a highly skilled, adaptable workforce in the modern technologies. But this is not new. We have continually raised the issue of training at the political level at every opportunity that we can.

2145 Be that as it may, and leaving aside the 800 letters and waste of paper, I was gratified yesterday to hear of another Government U-turn and its new commitment to technical education and apprenticeships. It again demonstrates a recognition and completely vindicates the GSD's policy in this area. We started the debate on the modern-day apprenticeship, which is about learning and not working, and it would appear some on the Government benches are starting to get the message. The Government now, for the first time, has started – and the Chief Minister mentioned it – a new style of apprenticeships, something which the Hon. Mr Bossano has been denigrating for years, and now we see a conversion of some sort. Again, I welcome the Government's U-turn on apprenticeships.

2150 Many hon. Members in this House have been here for many years and I think we were all impressed to hear that this was the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister's 19th Budget address. There are three Members of this House who are just shy of 40 – I believe the Hon. the Minister for Justice, the Hon. Mr Llamas and myself. I note that my old adversary at the Bar, the Minister for Housing, has recently reached a particular milestone and no longer belongs to the under-40s. I wish her many happy returns. (Several Members: Ooh!)

2160 But on a serious note, what does this say about the House generally? Why are we not trying to fill some of these seats with younger Members? Is this a reflection of the younger generation's disengagement from political life and service? Engaging our young people at every level of political life is important. We as a community should actively encourage political participation by our young people. Generally, young people are distant from decision-makers and that cannot be right. When I speak to young people, many say that they are simply not engaged or that they simply do not trust politicians. We need to change that thinking through education. I understand that the former Minister for Education was supportive of expanding the Gibraltar Studies course beyond year 3 and year 4, although we need to work within the curriculum. I really do feel that whilst learning about our culture, heritage and natural environment is a positive experience, we do need to understand our development of us as a people and the main players who have built modern-day Gibraltar. I was gratified to see our celebration referendum exhibit – more of that, please, Mr Speaker. I think we need to go further, so that young people can have a wide appreciation of Gibraltar itself and its role in the wider world. If we truly want to encourage wider participation of young people in politics, we must create civic pride, responsibility and respect through programmes which teach our young people about what it is to be Gibraltarian and our values. Young people are important and we must not lose sight of that.

2175 Mr Speaker, I have said that we are fortunate to live in a relatively ... I know I am boring some over on the other side of the House, but I will continue. We are fortunate to live in a relatively safe community, but that does not mean that we do not have our fair share of problems. The scourge of drug-related crime appears to affect our community in the same way it does others.

 2185 We note the Government's suggestion to take stock and progress made in this area in yesterday's announcement of a summit. Although I do not doubt the commitment by the hon.
 Lady who has taken back this portfolio from the Chief Minister, we simply need to do much more about addiction and drug-related crime from a rehabilitation perspective.

2190 The Government this year presented the community with mixed signals on the question of legalisation and/or decriminalisation; however, it was clear that the Government has now cemented its views on this important question, and in that regard I recall a synergy between the position of the Government and the Opposition, where both my learned and hon. Friend and I participated in a GBC Viewpoint on the subject alongside the hon. the independent Member.

2195 I have spoken at length with addicts and those in recovery, and I am sure that my hon. and learned Friend opposite has as well, and the message I receive is that addiction is a lifelong issue that needs a lifelong response for those who are recovering. I know that we have hardworking professionals within the service and we need to harness support right across all Government Departments. Substance abuse and addiction is not only an issue for the addict; it affects the core of family life and its wake can be felt in society as a whole, and the response must be co-2200 ordinated and multi-agency. Over the last five years, various inter-ministerial committees have been established to tackle drugs and substance abuse, but what we need now and the message I am receiving is action on the part of those committees.

In relation to the point made by the Minister for Justice in relation to legal assistance, what we need to do and need to ensure is that those who most need to access justice can access 2205 justice, and I would invite the Minister to make sure that steps are taken to really progress the level of access afforded to those who really need to instruct lawyers.

In relation to prisons, one point I would make just in response to the Minister for Justice's comment that five juvenile admissions had been made at the Prison ... in my respectful view to the Minister, an adult prison cannot be the place for a child; it can never be a place for a child. I 2210 know that those are sentiments that he echoed when he was sat on this side of the House –

Hon. D A Feetham: On many occasions.

2215 Hon. E J Phillips: – on many occasions, I am reminded, but I think we need to now look at ways in which we create a possibility of some alternative to prison for young people. It is not right, in my respectful submission. There are circumstances where they are placed in the adult prison because there is nowhere for them to go. I have heard the argument, Mr Speaker, relating to the use of prisons for young people and the fact that it would be hugely costly to the taxpayer to have a specific institution to house juvenile offenders, but I would ask the Minister, 2220 if he could, to take a look at that issue. It does affect a number of people, particularly young people, which I think he would agree, and the message that I would like to repeat is that an adult prison is not for a child.

In relation to prisons more generally, I remain convinced that we can do much more than we are doing in the area of rehabilitation of offenders, particularly those with substance abuse 2225 problems. Reoffending is linked to a lack of opportunity, and whilst those convicted of crimes must make reparation to the community, we must ensure that those with criminal convictions can access opportunity so that they can re-enter mainstream society; a criminal conviction cannot be a lifelong stain on the individual. It is hoped that Government policy on second-chance education may go somewhere in rehabilitating offenders back into the community. We 2230 need to create further training in and outside the Prison which targets the solid rehabilitation of an offender into mainstream society.

In relation to the Employment Tribunal, we highlighted a number of serious difficulties being experienced by claimants and other service users at the newly reformed Employment Tribunal.
 Whilst we supported the new regulations establishing the rules and the constitution of the 2235 Employment Tribunal, it is clear that there are a number of mechanical difficulties and a significant backlog of cases. By identifying the problem and raising it to a political level it is understood that the Government has now engaged a qualified mediator to deal with the backlog. We welcome the Government's reaction to our press release and we will continue to monitor the situation closely.

2240 One key observation we make is that we continue to make constructive proposals for the creation of a courts and tribunals service. We would invite the Government to think again and look at ways in which we can offer a centralised infrastructure for the provision of tribunals, which will improve the service ultimately to the public.

2245 We in the Opposition have been looking at ways in which the Courts Service could be assisted by the e-filing of court documents, and I know that the Minister talked about, in his address, the ways in which the Courts Service is actively looking at ways of doing things better. As the Government will know, the courts of England and Wales have piloted schemes in relation to e-filing of documents and have now recently rolled out the digital filing of court documents. We would invite the Minister for Justice to look at introducing a system by using existing digital

In relation to a question that was posed in the last session of Parliament, we talked about the investigation of major fraud cases and we note from the statistics that were provide that over a third of all major fraud cases were 12 months or older. We would ask the Minister to again take a look at why that is and why do a third of major fraud investigations – which are those that are 2255 over £10,000, as so described to me before, complex major fraud cases – are taking so long to reach either prosecution or at least a determination of that particular investigation.

Mr Speaker, in relation to education, we note the full adoption of GSD policy on education. We will support the policy but we will reserve our position insofar as the practical application and the rolling out of co-education in Gibraltar. The Chief Minister spoke, in his address, of a 2260 214% increase on spending on tertiary education, and of course it is right that we continue to support those who wish to continue their education by taking advantage of further and higher education opportunities, but we cannot ignore the needs of those from whom higher education does not, for one reason or another, feature. This is why the Opposition supports the introduction of industry-designed degree apprenticeships, which are described by the 2265 Department of Business and Innovation Skills in the United Kingdom as an innovative new model bringing together the best of higher and vocational education. More of that, Mr Speaker, in due course.

The Government has promised before, in its glossy manifesto, five new schools – now, I believe, seven. Many are asking questions: where are the plans; how will the Government fund 2270 these commitments, particularly given that the book makes no reference to a provision for it; and how will the works be managed in already very busy areas? All of these questions by the public are genuine concerns, particularly from parents, educators and students alike. Mr Speaker, not one brick has been laid and it is clear that the Government will not be able to build five – now seven – new schools, as it promised our community in 2015.

2275 Of course, whilst building new schools it is important that there are other pressing issues raised by the GTA. We note the existence of a social partnership agreement between the GTA and the Government, and although that should open a framework for co-operation between the profession and the Government, much more needs to be done. I spoke of how important our young people are, and our teaching professionals are as important to the development of our 2280 young people. Our teachers are on the bleeding edge and the front line each day and we need to listen to them more closely and create better working relationships with our teachers. At this point I would like to take the opportunity to thank all teachers for the work they do in shaping our children. I cannot think of a more demanding job than being charged with the responsibility of shaping our future citizens.

2285 Mr Speaker, in relation to the University, we in the Opposition are creating very strong links with the University and hope to create a solid dialogue with the University outside this place. Although we may have concerns as to the level of funds afforded to the University by the 2290 taxpayer, it is fair to say that we have always wished it well. Indeed, we believe that the direction of travel under the stewardship of Professor. Tilbury is the right one and we are impressed to see that there are significant synergies between the Opposition's policies and apprenticeships and we are happy to see the University is looking into areas of development that we have been focused on for some time.

2295 In summary, what I say about the copy-and-paste job of this Government on education and training, this Budget, apart from those measures, and, Mr Speaker misses the point. It fails to provide opportunities to our young people, it fails to provide a strategic plan for the future generation, and what we will do on this side of the House is remain vigilant as to the progress and implementation of these important policies. (Banging on desks)

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Is that it, Mr Speaker? Well, I suppose he is busy.
Mr Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn until tomorrow at 9.30 in the morning.

Clerk: Wednesday, 28th June, Meeting of Parliament.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Samantha Sacramento.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is my sixth Budget address. This year, I rise with a considerably shorter title. Mr Speaker will be happy to hear that this year my speech will also be considerably shorter.

10 For over five years, until the last ministerial reshuffle, I held the Social Services portfolio, a Department that I worked on with great vigour and passion because I do not exaggerate when I say that it needed to be rescued from near disaster after having been neglected for so many years. In this context, it gives me great satisfaction to have handed it over to my successor as a properly structured and resourced Department with a clear business plan and a direction, and more so when I heard the updated statistics from my friend Minister Costa yesterday, as these 15 are all the results of my hard work coming to fruition. I am very heartened by the statistics that he represented.

Mr Speaker, my star sign is Taurus, and something popped up on my newsfeed last night on Taureans: it described us as hardworking and focused on specific goals. The safeguarding of children and child protection was one of the principal reasons why I stood for election, so seeing these things that I implemented starting to materialise makes all those long, sleepless nights worthwhile, because I have achieved that goal. In particular, seeing the implementation of the Signs of Safety policies that I set up is wonderful and it is reassuring to hear that it is a success. Incidentally, the other one was that Taureans are very stubborn – that, of course, is also true.

20 Finally, Mr Speaker, when talking of how great it is to see my things coming to fruition, one of my first flagship projects was the residential dementia facility at the old Royal Naval Hospital site. I planned the remodelling of a place that was not fit for purpose to the magnificent facility that it is today. It is just amazing to see all the designs that I had to visualise on paper not only come to existence but also to see it up and running and making such a difference to the quality of life of its residents, something that would not have been the case had I not changed the old 30 plans I inherited from the previous administration.

I miss my colleagues at the Care Agency. We have a bond that was formed from working so closely in the trenches – literally, Mr Speaker – in the first few years, when there was virtually no management and very little professional staff. I have no doubt that their good work will continue under the leadership of their new Minister.

35 Mr Speaker, let me start with a responsibility that is not actually in my title, which is maybe why it is short! I suppose that there is simply no nice or elegant way of saying that I am the Minister for drugs, and to say that I am the Minister with responsibility for drug and alcohol rehabilitation services, awareness and strategy and policy development is a bit of a mouthful. But everybody in this place, relevant professionals, stakeholders, service users and those who matter, are fully aware that drugs is my responsibility, and that is what counts. Basically, the point that I am trying to make, for the avoidance of doubt, is that all Government Departments and services that in any way deal with drugs report to me as the Minister tasked and entrusted with this responsibility by the Chief Minister.

I was very pleased to have once again been returned the responsibility for drugs following the last ministerial reshuffle, as this was previously a department within the Social Services structure, as it always has been since the inception of the Care Agency in 2009. Mr Speaker, it must be recalled that this is a therapeutic service and not a medical one.

The Government's view on drugs is clear and unequivocal, and when I say that I say so as the view of the whole Government and not just mine. There is no question of drugs in our community being legalised or decriminalised. We and all our professional advisers are acutely aware of the damage that drugs cause to lives and families, and there is absolutely no evidence to suggest that legalising drugs would mean otherwise. I trust that this reassures the families who may be worried that drugs would be legally available to their children.

Of course I make the distinction between the recreational use of drugs and drugs for medical reasons, the latter which would be acceptable in defined circumstances and where the substance is also licenced.

It is important to recognise the GSD Opposition's support of the Government on this critical issue. It is right that they do so and I am grateful to Mr Phillips for his public statement during his intervention yesterday and that he also recognised the work that I have done on this front.

Mr Speaker, drugs misuse has ramifications throughout all of our community, and that is why the Government employs a holistic approach and we continue to build on the success of our services year on year.

Let me explain, for the avoidance of doubt, to anyone who may not understand what the services of my drugs department entail. There are two services: the rehabilitation services, and the policy, strategy and awareness responsibilities. The rehabilitation service has two strands. It consists of a residential service at Bruce's Farm and the same programme and outreach is now also offered in the community, including prison. Each is able to offer a full rehabilitation programme to suit the specific needs of our service users. All our services are continually reviewed and actively pursuing the best prevention measures and outcomes for those affected. From a strategic perspective, we will continue to develop consistent and unambiguous policies. As a caring Government we must develop measures to reach out and actively target those who need help to overcome the consequences of drugs misuse.

Addressing the issue of addiction is a complex matter because therapy cannot be forced upon anyone. Those accessing our services often present with chaotic and challenging circumstances. We have for a few years now organised very well the co-ordination of a number of agencies so that a holistic treatment programme is in place with timely assessments, psychiatric input, detoxification and a wide range of support services. The programmes have to be needs led and require robust care plans, family support, community outreach support and aftercare. Partner agencies need to provide a seamless service for healthy recovery paths. An overarching principle is that the service user is always involved and at the centre of our care planning process. We aim to empower them to be part of the solution and not the problem.

Over the last 12 months there have been positive developments regarding partnership agencies and how they interact with each other in the interests of our services users. We have instituted enhanced protocols with the Housing Department – and I should expect so, because the Minister for Housing is fully committed with Mental Health because of course the Minister for Health is equally committed – and the Probation Services and the Police and the Care Agency, because of course the Minister is committed. Of course, because we provide a holistic approach, I also work very closely with my colleagues the Minister for Education, the Minister

90 for Youth and the Minister for Sports. Our protocols are set out on the basis that we all work together on the provision of an integrated rehabilitation and recovery service to provide the best possible outcomes for those on their path to recovery.

Bruce's Farm continues to strive to become a centre of excellence in providing effective holistic treatment and aftercare for people in Gibraltar who access the service. Our robust care plans, which support the recovery process for each service user, are put in place when someone 95 is admitted. The exit meeting, equally as important on completion of the programme, will consider what aftercare is required to support reintegration of the person in the community.
This will include, when appropriate, an outreach package of support. The service user is central to the process and attends all meetings having a clear voice regarding their views, progress and ongoing needs. Meetings are now multidisciplinary and partnership agencies each assume 100 ownership of the role that they play in the person's recovery as part of the package of support.
This approach is already paying tremendous dividends: 2016 saw the busiest year at Bruce's Farm since its inception; we had a total of 48 admissions where the yearly average in the four previous years prior to 2011 had never exceeded 25. I am proud to state that under my tenure Bruce's Farm has seen its five busiest years.

105 Many former service users who have undergone the Bruce's Farm programme continue to retain contact and seek assistance through the Community team. Additionally, the Community team provides a focus for any individual who may want to be informed or access our range of services. Importantly, prisoners are offered counselling and assistance as part of their pre-release process. The Community team also offers support and treatment within the community 110 and to those in contact with the criminal justice system. An important part of the team's role is that of raising awareness about the effects of drugs and alcohol and the impact this has on mental and physical health. We will continue to develop awareness campaigns targeting specific issues and sectors within our community, particularly the young people. And I am delighted to announce that one of the priorities in our business plan this year will be to work with the 115 Minister for Education and the Department of Education and our youth services in our prevention through education programme.

Mr Speaker, indeed, I have also just this morning opened a seminar of public servants that has been organised by my highly committed Drug and Alcohol team to mark the occasion of World Drugs Day on Monday. This forum, which was packed, boasts over 60 delegates 120 representing all Government Departments and public bodies who have a part to play in tackling the harms that drug misuse exact upon our community. It will serve to showcase our services among our partner organisations, how we interact with them, and to consolidate and improve, where necessary, all the systems and processes that we have all worked so hard to implement in the last year.

125 It is important, Mr Speaker, to acknowledge the role that voluntary organisations play, enhancing the work of the statutory bodies. Alcoholics Anonymous, Narcotics Anonymous and Families Anonymous and significant family and friends of the service users all play a crucial role in providing support and services to those at all stages of their recovery. We have developed a close synergy with these voluntary organisations, as a majority of their members are former 130 service users of ours. Regular dialogue occurs, providing support to these groups as well as feedback on how our services meet their needs. Our counsellors will often continue to provide family support and counselling services long after the initial treatment period.

Mr Speaker, I think it is clear that no one, regardless of where they sit in this house, can disagree on the continuing improvements that we have made and continue to make both in 135 terms of the quality and the increasing range of services that we provide.

Turning to Housing, Mr Speaker, we continue to make unprecedented developments in housing on all fronts and at every level. Homes matter to people, and people matter to us.

Let me commence with our most recent notable achievement, and that is the 142 homes that we have recently delivered to our elderly community: our flats at Charles Bruzon House and Sea 140 Master Lodge, which are purposely built for elderly individuals so that they can live at home independently for longer. These flats have been meticulously designed in consultation with all the relevant experts to incorporate the latest accessibility features, such as colour contrast to assist the visually impaired, spacious layouts to provide for turning circles for wheelchair users, non-slip tiles and panic buttons to name but a few of the innovative features. The Housing Works Agency's painstaking attention to detail while engaged in the snagging process has ensured that the design and construction specifications were exactly adhered to. The building clearly provides a convivial family atmosphere, particularly with the communal lounge areas provided, which I am sure will serve as a venue for many a celebration. Having met the tenants on a number of occasions since they have moved and hearing of their positive feedback, as well as that of their families, all of whom express delight with the quality, design, functionality and finish of these purpose-built developments, I can say hand on heart that this new accommodation represents a valuable and significant addition to existing Government rental stock. (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

The construction of these homes of course has a knock-on effect on the housing waiting lists and we will see the real effect of that very soon. As people move into their new flats, they are vacating larger Government rental accommodation, which has now started to be returned to our stock. These need to go through the process of cleaning and being refurbished over the next few months and this will then enable us to start allocating them to those on the housing waiting lists, so we will see considerable movement of the lists in the next six months, I am delighted to say. I am convinced that this type of accommodation is the best that we can provide for our elderly community; the people from the generation that has done so much for Gibraltar deserve nothing less. And this is how we get vacant flats returned to our stock, so therefore I can very proudly announce that we will continue to construct this type of accommodation.

I can also announce that we are about to commence the refurbishment of Bishop Canilla House before that block which houses so many of our elderly community falls into disrepair. The refurbishment will entail the replacement of the entire roof including the lantern roof, the part enclosure of the balconies and the applying of external cladding system to the façade. The upgrade will greatly improve the overall environmental performance and characteristics of the building. Works have already started on the lifts and will include replacing one of the standard lifts with a stretcher lift and also upgrading the other. And insofar as the other block of elderly flats, Albert Risso House, repair works here are ongoing as we continue to remedy the shortcomings in the design because those who commissioned it did not do so with as much love, care and attention as we did in our elderly flats. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.)

I am pleased to say, Mr Speaker, that the major refurbishment works to the estates that were forgotten and neglected by the GSD are now in their final stages. These projects show our investment in the living conditions of our tenants as their blocks are enhanced and beautified and these projects evidently contribute to visually transform what was previously a dreary, lacklustre and neglected architectural scenery at Gibraltar's land entry point. To appreciate the magnitude and success of our Government's enterprise, the scope of these projects has augmented, far beyond the original consignment for the refurbishment of the building fabric, to encompass the upgrading of electrical, communications and highways infrastructures that service these estates. These estates – Glacis, Laguna and Moorish Castle Estate – are, as I said, in the final stages of completion and, as I said in Parliament last week, will mainly be completed by the end of this year and some next year. I am very proud of our Government's huge investment in our people, Mr Speaker. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

These, of course, are not the only refurbishment works that we are undertaking. Turning to Alameda Estate, the works at Picton House are now almost complete and the preparatory works for Victoria House are well underway with works scheduled to start in the next few months. This will be followed by works to Alameda House, the last block remaining on this estate, both of which will be completed in the lifetime of this Parliament. We have also almost completed the refurbishment of the New Police Barracks. These works have been on schedule and are practically complete and we are expecting that the three new lifts that we have installed here will be operational next month.

195 Mr Speaker, the tragic disaster following the fire at Grenfell Tower in West London two weeks ago has been very prominent in our minds because one of the contributing factors to the blaze was the cladding. We have, of course, cladded some of our blocks as part of our refurbishment and we were extremely concerned to provide public assurance of the safety of our works. Immediately upon hearing of the fire, I consulted the Chief Technical Officer and the Principal Housing Officer for assurances as to the works on our estates. The Principal Housing 200 Officer and I spent the whole day meeting with all other relevant Government officials and our contractors looking at every detail and can confirm that both the materials and the method used in our cladding systems are different to those used in the blocks in question in the UK and are safe. Mr Speaker, on that day a meeting was convened by the Chief Minister and, following that, we issued a detailed and lengthy statement.

205 I have also set up a fire safety review working group comprised of the top Government officials and instructed them to look into fire safety and prevention measures in all our housing rental stock and co-ownership estates. I chaired the first meeting last Friday, and while I am satisfied of the assurances that I have been given as to the safety of our cladding system, I have also arranged for these to be independently tested and verified in the UK in an abundance of 210 caution. Safety of citizens, Mr Speaker, is of paramount concern to us and we look at every detail to ensure that our tenants are not at risk. I now await the outcome of the report. In fact, today our Principal Housing Officer is at a housing conference in the UK. The theme of the conference has changed at short notice and understandably there is now a great emphasis on fire prevention and themes of this nature are considered in the course of the next few days 215 while the conference is going on. I am receiving daily reports from the Principal Housing Officer, who is telling me how absolutely valuable attendance at the conference is.

Mr Speaker, the refurbishment of our housing estates will, of course, continue. The Housing Department and the Housing Works Agency have jointly devised a five-year plan of 220 refurbishment works, so that the remaining housing stock can also benefit from major refurbishment. We will not neglect our housing stock or its tenants. This programme includes the six remaining blocks at Chilton Court and Edinburgh Estate. With regard to Chilton Court, initial preliminary investigations are being undertaken with a view to replacing the roof covers to two blocks within this estate and these works are scheduled to start next year. Our continued refurbishment will also include external refurbishment to Schomberg House, Stanley Building, 225 Heathfield House, Willis' House, Coelho House, McMillian House, Knight's Court, Vineyard House, Rosia House, Penney House, Belvedere House and Scud Hill House, and external refurbishment and new lifts will be part of the programme at Tankerville House, Harrington Building and Churchill House.

Finally, Mr Speaker, we are currently refurbishing Sea View House in Catalan Bay, and I am 230 delighted to announce that our housing stock at Catalan Bay will not only undergo a refurbishment but a transformation. We will paint our stock in the prettiest of pastel colours to create a marvellous village to be admired and, I dare say, envied by other Mediterranean coasts. (Banging on desks) I have already discussed this with my senior housing officials and we are waiting to devise a colour scheme with the town planner, so that it can be put to the residents of 235 Catalan Bay for consultation. Not only will this be a marvellous enhancement of our housing stock, but it will no doubt also make for a magnificent sight for all to admire, including tourists.

Turning to the operations of the Department, Mr Speaker, we have made many changes to streamline the running of the Department and make it more efficient. This has enabled us to provide a faster turnaround to both tenants in the delivery of their repair works, as well as to 240 allocation of flats to those on the housing waiting list. We also work much better with other stakeholder Departments, making the whole process seamless. Furthermore, we have also introduced a paperless billing system as part of the Government's drive for the Thinking Green

Agenda, where the option of email billing is offered, and to date 660 tenants have taken up this option.

245 Of course I must mention the results of our very successful arrears collection strategy. It must be recalled that the housing rent arrears escalated by 600% when the GSD were in office. In March 1996 when the GSD first took office, the balance of arrears at the time was £655,031. It continued to increase year on year until it reached £4 million by the time they left office in December 2011. Had we continued to follow the trend of the rent arrears, had we not 250 intercepted and commenced the execution of our collection of arrears strategy in January 2016, the arrears would today be in excess of £7 million. But instead, I made an announcement last week that the balance of our arrears was below £5 million. Since I made that announcement just under a week ago, I am delighted to report that we have since recovered a further £18,000 and the current balance of rent arrears is £4,977,410 – a remarkable achievement in a very short 255 period of time, even if I do say so myself. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker, for the period since the arrears started to accumulate, since 1996, there was a culture of expectation that there would be no consequences for non-payment of arrears of rent. During a GBC interview last week I was asked by the interviewer what I had done to recover the arrears, and when I watched my interview back I had said, ‘Well, I sent people letters,’ and it 260 sounded quite silly when I was hearing it because it is quite incredible that for this period of time people were not even told that they were in arrears, let alone action the chasing of them. To be honest, such a simple thing as sending letters to people saying ‘you are in arrears of rent that need to be paid’ had an effect that really did not have any cost consequences for the Government or the taxpayer; it was a simple administrative exercise that we did.

265 In addition to that we have implemented various strategies which have been very effective, not least the deduction of rent at source for all public servants and the tremendous volume of debtors who have been seen by the people in my Department – they have seen almost a thousand people in this period. People are not entitled to luxuries such as berths at the Small Boats Marina or parking spaces for their cars if they are in arrears of rent, and the point that I
270 need to make is that the Government makes the distinction between people who do not pay rent because they would rather sustain a more luxurious lifestyle and people who genuinely cannot pay rent for reasons of genuine hardship. It is the latter who are not a priority but it is the former against whom we will absolutely enforce, because it is now high time that the taxpayer must be stopped from having to subsidise these luxury lifestyles of people who do not 275 pay rent because they simple do not want to and because they think it is acceptable because they have been getting away with it for so many years.

I am grateful to the GSD, and Mr Clinton in particular, for their acknowledgment of the progress that I have made in the recovery of the rent arrears – thank you. (Banging on desks)

280 Finally, Mr Speaker, turning to a matter that so many in our community have been eagerly awaiting, and that is of course the announcement on the construction of further affordable homes. There is of course a lot of mischief making by the Opposition benches because they love to do that when we make announcements that are so good and so significant and important to the people of Gibraltar, and they are loving the fact that there has been a slight delay in making announcements on this front. But nothing needs to be read into this. There has been a delay due 285 to technical reasons of infrastructure. Infrastructure is an important preliminary issue and we wanted to get every detail right before making any further announcements. This may affect the footprint of the new development to some extent but not in a way that will be disadvantageous. I expect that the technical advice and the administrative process will be complete before the end of this year and I am delighted to announce that we will be in a position to have started the 290 process of selling our new flats and give so many people the opportunity to be homeowners once again. I will be in a better position to make a more detailed announcement in September.

So, Mr Speaker, after that very important announcement on progress, it just leaves me to thank the Principal Housing Officer, all my staff at the Housing Department, particularly those who have been instrumental in the collection of rent arrears, the Housing Works Agency and

295 also LPS, GRP, GJBS and all the small building contractors who now undertake the household repairs and refurbishment works. A special mention to my PAs: Daniel Payas, who is actually at the Island Games in Gotland and has received quite a few medals already (Two Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks); and to Krystle Acolina, who despite a very important milestone in her 300 life next week is also in the UK accompanying the Principal Housing Officer at the housing conference. Despite their very junior grades, they are literally my right and left hands when it comes to housing and I wish to thank them. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

Mr Speaker, finally turning to my last portfolio, that of Equality, what a wonderful progress and a magnificent year for equality in Gibraltar this year has been (Two Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks); I really could not ask for more. I take great pride in being Gibraltar's first and 305 only Minister for Equality. It was the foresight of our Chief Minister who recognised the importance of equality matters and the importance of having a Minister and a Department dedicated to developing the equality agenda, (Interjection) and I wish to give the Chief Minister my heartfelt thanks both for doing it and for allowing me the continuity to be able to complete all the tasks that I had set on my agenda. But I really need to credit the tremendous progress 310 that we have made in this year to my excellent and fabulous new team at the Ministry of Equality. This is headed by Sabina Guillem and her two officers who have joined our team very recently, had no previous experience of matters of equality but have truly embraced the principles. Really, I can literally say that not only is my Department running with the concept, they are flying with it, because the outcomes that we have had in the last year are the most 315 positive that we have and I am tremendously proud of their work, their progress and how they are assisting all our other Government Departments in ensuring that the Government's equality agenda is met.

Mr Speaker, as you will recall, last year we passed in this House an amendment to the Marriage Act to enable people of the same sex to get married. This was a manifesto 320 commitment that we had to consider the principle. It was something that was obviously very important to the community, something which we consulted on extensively – in fact it was the consultation that had generated the most response and the most interest – and a group of Ministers appointed by the Chief Minister to consider these issues spent a lot of time considering all the individuals' and groups' points of view. We came to the conclusion that we 325 did; I am very proud that we are where we are and we have made the progress that we have on that front.

Mr Speaker, the most progress that we have made on the equality strands this year, and which was a priority in my Department's business plan, is of course on disability equality. The passing of the Disability Bill is imminent before this Parliament and will be undertaken as soon as 330 the parliamentary diary and commitments permit. In the meantime, because equality and diversity and particularly disability equality are not just about a legislative framework ... Of course our new law is important and I cannot wait for that debate in this House, but perhaps more importantly than the legislative framework is the information and awareness that we have invested in delivering, because for the legislation to be successful we have to ensure that we win 335 the hearts and minds of our community and we have to make sure that our community embrace the principles of disability equality, because that is the only way that our law will succeed.

Gibraltar is an extremely caring community and as a Government we have been leading from the front. We have set the benchmark and have been the role models to ensure that we are setting the standards for disability equality. In the last year I think I have probably lost count of 340 all the training seminars and workshops and awareness days that the Ministry of Equality has provided to our community, both to managers and professionals in the public sector as well as to people in the private sector. I really have to thank the Chamber of Commerce and the Gibraltar Federation of Small Businesses for embracing our initiatives and supporting them throughout. They are an essential part of the puzzle in the delivery of our mandate of inclusion 345 and I am tremendously grateful to both chairs for having met with me, discussed it at length and supported wholeheartedly our awareness events.

Mr Speaker, the strategy in relation to disability equality I would say has three strands in terms of awareness. We can break it down into the physical accessibility to environments and we have provided training to professionals to ensure that they are aware and buildings are accessible to people with disabilities, because as my hon Friend Minister Balban explained yesterday, shortly after we pass the Disability Bill we will be changing the building regulations to introduce part R, which will mean that all new buildings and any buildings that require refurbishment have to be completely inclusive to people with disabilities. So we have provided, for the last four years, training on that front to make sure that we have done enough in terms of capacity building so that when the time comes and the new legislation is introduced everybody is equipped to understand it and process it properly.

We have also been delivering training to frontline staff on how to communicate with people with disabilities in a way that is respectful – and we call it disability etiquette, Mr Speaker – because we need to make sure that people who are delivering services to individuals with disabilities do so properly, and that is what will make it truly inclusive. We also have a particular training on autism, which we provide at a professional level to those who work with people who are on the autism spectrum: professionals at the GHA, the Care Agency and the Department of Education. But more importantly we have devised a programme delivering support information and training to parents. We had our first session a few months ago and it was tremendously popular and was welcomed greatly by parents and the societies, and we have a schedule of further training for parents organised for the autumn.

Mr Speaker, before I turn to another equality strand, I cannot thank enough the groups and societies and individuals who come and see me and with whom I consult when we are preparing our policies, because of course our stakeholders' advice and their guidance is absolutely essential so I really wholeheartedly wish to thank everybody involved.

And of course, Mr Speaker, the final strand of equality that I wish to speak on is that of gender equality. In our business plan this year we have concentrated a lot on disability equality because of the new legislation that we will be introducing and I wanted to make sure that everything was in place. Once that starts to settle down in the next few months the Department will turn its attention to really focus and develop gender equality in the same way. You may recall that earlier in the year, in March, I announced a working group to look at issues of the gender pay gap and women in the economy. That is a study that of course is very involved, will require resources, but it is something we are very keen to develop and to finish because we have to make sure that the equality agenda continues to be rolled out. When I am speaking of this I am reminded of the very kind words of my good friend the late Juan Carlos Perez, who at the end of November when I was selected as a candidate for election for the GSLP, he was the one who broke the news to me in these words – he called me up and he said, 'Samantha, a woman's place is in the House.' (Banging on desks) I will always remember those words, Mr Speaker, because one of the things on my agenda is clearly for there to be more diverse representation of our community in this House.

Continuing on the theme of gender equality, the final topic that I wish to speak on is that of domestic abuse. The Ministry of Equality deals with this at a strategic level. I chair a working group of multi-agency professionals, the work of which is ongoing, and we look to see how we can support victims of domestic violence and how we can work with perpetrators of domestic abuse with a view to breaking the cycle, and of course in circumstances when children are involved, ensure that they obtain the proper support.

The final point on equality is that I would like to mention my role as Chairman of the senior management board of MAPPA. MAPPA is a multi-agency public protection forum where we deal with the management of sex offenders in Gibraltar. This is a very serious matter, one which we have invested in heavily in the last three years to ensure that the Gibraltar public are protected and also, and importantly so, that our professionals work with the perpetrators in the prevention of further offences, thereby minimising the risk. Mr Speaker, I am very proud of the developments and the works that have been undertaken by my Department in this regard, and by of course all the agencies that sit on the senior management board of this committee and 400 also the people on the front line and the people at middle management of the MAPPA structure, which is understandably very complex.

So, Mr Speaker, to round up it just leaves me to thank incredibly my personal staff in my private office. They are the people who look after me day in day out, ensure that my work is done, ensure that I get to places on time – and if I am late it is entirely my fault, not theirs, but it 405 is usually because I have to be in two places at once. I have, I am delighted to say, a truly excellent, dedicated, hardworking and loyal team. I could not be happier with the people I have around me and the work that they do not only for me but for the community which I serve. Yes, Mr Speaker, I am very lucky indeed.

At this point I would like to thank Albert Bruzon, who very recently retired, and I would like to 410 mention the effect that the Opposition have had in Mr Bruzon's retirement, because they have been playing politics. We are in this House to do politics, not to play politics and not to play with individuals. Mr Bruzon had to retire ... He did not have to retire, but he retired from his previous post on account of ill health, and a few months later when he recovered he returned to public service only temporarily for a fixed period at a lower grade and only for a few days in order to 415 assist me to see particular projects through. Mr Bruzon, who is a longstanding, very loyal and dedicated public servant, a person who has dedicated his career to the public service, did not deserve to be named by the GSD so publicly in the way that he was, and I wish to publicly thank Mr Bruzon for his dedication to the public sector, to the Civil Service and for the work that he 420 has done with me over the years. He has worked very diligently and I dare say even very protectively of me, and I am sure that he has always delivered such diligence, loyalty and hard work to all the Ministers he has worked with.

So, Mr Speaker, on that note, once again I wish to thank everybody who has helped me in the last year – my staff, people who I see, people who I consult.

Mr Speaker, that was 45 minutes – I hope you find that acceptable. Thank you. (Banging on 425 desks).

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I rise to deliver my second Budget speech, focusing on care and 430 tourism. I will once again strive to provide my humble opinion of Government's performance, whether good or bad.

Last year I dedicated a great deal of my address to the Disability Bill. Although this Bill has not been presented to this Parliament, I trust and hope that it is imminent and I shall be debating the detail and merits of the Bill at an appropriate time. For the time being, I shall say that it 435 adopts more principles of the UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities 2006 than the Command Paper published in October 2015. It will reinforce some of the basic human rights enjoyed across society as being rights equally to be enjoyed by anyone with a disability.
But the work is not complete; further work must be done to extend the full definition of equality to all members of our community, creating a truly equal and inclusive Gibraltar.

Last year, I took the opportunity to congratulate the Government for making public areas 440 such as playgrounds more inclusive; however, despite welcoming a refurbishment to the playground at Europa Point, it is regrettable that persons with disabilities are still not catered for at this playground. I hope the Government will rethink its inclusion policies in playgrounds and add disability-specialised equipment when reviewing our playgrounds in the future.

The Government has over the past year increased its capacity in full-time care for adults with 445 disabilities. It has increased the number of flats from six flats as at December 2015 to the 11 flats which we have today. I understand that the majority of the additional flats are actually within our community, and as such commend and applaud the Government for this initiative. However,
I continue to have concerns. Over the past three years we have seen a surge in subcontracted 450 staff, of care workers, such that the service is split on an almost 50-50 basis between directly employed employees and subcontracted workers, with most of the new flats dependent on subcontracted workers. Mr Speaker, service users are there for the long run, they are not there for the short term, and with this policy we need to recruit ... If we have long-term service users who are going to be in their flats for a long time, we need to cater for them with a long-term vision. I do not necessarily disagree with having subcontracted staff, as long as the conditions which they have offer them stability and a secure job with working hours and a contract in order to enable a worker to plan a career and a life, but more importantly provide a continuity of care for the service users, who are the priority in this equation – especially if they claim they have record surpluses.

Domiciliary care, a policy properly initiated and developed by this Government, a policy which I fully support, is also heavily reliant on subcontracted workers ... actually, I think it is 100%, and these subcontracted workers are on zero-hours contracts. We must remember that in times of care one's dignity and vulnerability is fully exposed. The relationship with carers should be a constant and special one, one cherished between the parties involved. However, I am concerned as to the real effect of the care in this sector due to the lack of continuity of care.

465

Last year I also congratulated the Government for the inclusion in the Estimate Book of Project Search. Only last week I asked the Government what inroads had been made with regard to Project Search or any similar supported internship projects. Minister Bossano replied: 'There has been no further development of Project Search or other supported internship model.' Thankfully, Minister Cortes knows otherwise and has acknowledged and launched the project, a step in the right direction. I now urge the Government to grow and broaden its approach in order to tackle this adequately.

Now, Mr Speaker, I would like to deal with the lack of prioritisation given by this Government to St Martin's School and Early Birds Nursery. Before I make the point, and in expectant anticipation of the 'blame the GSD' chief ministerial tirade when he exercises his reply, let me remind him that he has been in Government since 2011 and is therefore ultimately responsible for the situation this school is currently facing. In 2012-13 the number of students stood at 48. There has been a steady increase year on year in student intake with a sharp rise in the coming intake for 2017-18 of 66 students, a percentage increase of 37.5% on this Government's watch. Delivering a new school should have been a priority; instead, these incoming children will have to be taught in the deplorable surroundings of portakabins placed on a small car park. I say this in light of a Government that has tried to make cheap political points on this issue. Yes, the GSD did not have this in its manifesto, but I can assure you that I would have yelled from the rooftops if our team had been elected into government and not prioritised the refurbishment of a school in need and done a refurbishment of No. 6 at £6.5 million or the Small Boats Marina at £25 million instead of catering for those most in need of our care – and they claim to be a socialist Government. It is indefensible and shameful and will be a shameful black mark on this Government's tenure in office. St Martin's school is also in need of a new bus. The Government knows this and committed itself to providing it in last year's Budget. Nevertheless, a year on and there is still no bus and no mention of when this bus will be delivered.

It is, however, commendable to both the Government, for offering courses, and teachers who have taken the offer of undertaking courses in special educational needs. SEN is on the rise and we must ensure we learn and adapt to provide the best educational platform possible to ensure we maximise students' potential.

Moving on to tourism, a sector which has so much more potential but is still not being given the priority it deserves, we need to build strong foundations in this area in order to stimulate economic activity which is viable and enduring, particularly in the post-Brexit environment. The tourism sector is doubly important as it is intertwined with the offering for our community, and we should endeavour to ensure that our offering is available to tourists as well as our citizens. A good starting point would be, for example, the World War II Tunnels, which are still closed on Saturday afternoons and Sundays. Gibraltar must become a viable destination beyond a cruise call or the off-chance day tour because you happen to be within our proximity. We really need to wake up and smell the coffee. The tourism sector should not be operating, as we have been operating for years, on an April-to-October season basis. All around the world tourist destinations are trying to level out the peaks and troughs in the tourism sector. This can only be achieved by maintaining and provide an offering all year round. We have to broaden our product. We have to professionalise our sector and raise the bar. Post-Brexit our tourism sector is bound to change our market, but we have a rough diamond the size of the Rock. A year has already elapsed and we are not in a much better position than where we were last year. We need to be ready for this change and pre-empt the change, develop the markets which will boost our economy, embrace the best we have to offer together with other markets in our proximity which could work in tandem. I acknowledge and support the Minister's recent trips to Morocco and look forward to seeing the fruits of such visits.

Mr Speaker, I fully agree and support the business-related tourism through Meetings, Incentives, Conferences and Events – otherwise known as MICE – the Government is embarking on. It has the potential of leading in the tourism market and providing a new niche with great economic returns. However, we need a round circle product – visitors want to work and play – infrastructure and technology to energise the visitors and thrill-attractions which create the platform required. WiFi hotspots, although located in key areas, are limited in websites users can access. We must ensure to provide further connectivity to all sites, as encouraging tourists to share and post their visit to Gibraltar will certainly boost the #visitgibraltar.

Wedding tourism plays an interesting role in our market. This market can grow further, but we need to ensure that our product is up to standard. Our Registry counter looks so outdated and is crying out for a refurbishment; sadly, it does not provide a good first impression.

And talking about first impressions, Mr Speaker, we seriously need to address our first point of entry via sea, but more importantly via our border with Spain. Apart from its outdated image, it lacks maintenance therefore making the area look unclean.

Mr Speaker, we also have been approaching the summer bathing season as a mid-June to mid-September season. I acknowledge that the battering storms we experience may provide hurdles, but these are no less than hurdles faced by the coastlines in the Iberian peninsula which are open for business all year round, and they bounce back from storms within an appropriate period. A year-round maintenance policy must be implemented sooner rather than later. The official summer season deadline to restore most of our beaches to bathing conditions has elapsed and we are still seeing last-minute works being carried out on our beaches – without mentioning Camp Bay and Little Bay, which have been left very much wanting and should have been tackled a lot earlier as they look a complete mess.

We must consider and respectfully value and analyse the tourist experience in Gibraltar. What are tourists seeing, experiencing and living? What image and memories are they taking with them? We must be monitoring and assessing by looking at statistics which the Minister for the Environment does not see the need to obtain. The need is vital to assess the movement of tourists in the Upper Rock, to see how tourist sites are performing, to monitor their performance and the historical lesson being taken back by tourists. I can assure this House that it does have its value, as I dread to fear that many just come to the top of the Rock to admire the view – but it offers so much more. I do have my reservations as to whether tourist sites and beaches, fundamental pillars in the tourism sector, should be managed by the Environmental Ministry rather than the Tourism Ministry.

In the Upper Rock there has been a great deal of work carried out, more notably the suspension bridge inaugurated last year and the glass look-out, which unfortunately has not opened in time for this year's tourism peak. However, in the meantime there are serious hazardous areas in the Upper Rock which are in so much need of refurbishment and should have, in my opinion, been prioritised, especially in light of a surge in walking visitors.

We have also seen an investment of £135,000 in O'Hara's Battery, an attraction which has been closed since October 2016 and Government have been unable to commit as to when it will be open. This is one of the works from a £1.3 million-worth of works which have been awarded 555 without proper local procurement directives being taken, as highlighted by the Principal Auditor last year. The reason for its permanent closure is lack of manning levels; however, within the same breath the Government deems fit to spend £19,000 on street art, which they claim to be a tourism initiative, but does not have the capacity to open O'Hara's Battery. The Government have simply not been able to match the cart with the horse.

560 I look forward to the focus the Government will be giving to urban regeneration from a tourism perspective and would expect to see tangible results from this project in the near future, given the Government first announced this back in 2013.

I note with delight the increase in air connectivity resulting in record-breaking records in the number of passengers handled by the air terminal. The positive impact on recurrent aviation fees is encouraging, with an increase of £1.2 million for 2016-17 and an increase of £1.5 million estimated for 2017-18 when compared to 2015-16 – an increase of 33%, an additional £2.8 million of recurrent revenue over two years. I also note the cruise industry breaking records in 2016, and scheduled to have an even better 2017.

570 Mr Speaker, unfortunately the same cannot be said about our land visitor arrivals, which continue to drop from a 11.4 million record in 2011 to 9.4 million in 2016. This represents a 17% overall drop in five years.

The increases in volume of passengers travelling by air and sea have simply not been able to restore the tourist expenditure with the estimate for 2016 standing at £211.91 million, still 24% lower than the figure as at 2011 when the increasing trend of tourism expenditure reached a historical record of £279.79 million. In 2012 the figure dropped by 12.5% to £244.75million. In 2013 it dropped by a further 15% to £207.24 million. In 2014 tourism expenditure hit a 13-year low of £168.04 million, a staggering 39.94%. How does this generally affect Gibraltar PLC? Well, Mr Speaker, it translates as a potential loss of at least £367.08 million in tourist expenditure since 2012 to date had the expenditure levels been maintained.

580 The revenue collected by the Upper Rock Nature Reserve has also fallen, from £3.26 million to £3.07 million, a fall of 5% despite an increase in the number of visitors to the Upper Rock of 13.5% from the previous year. Since the foreign vehicle ban in the Upper Rock, the method of travel to the Upper Rock has naturally changed. When comparing 2015-16 to 2016-17, cars have reduced by 99%, coaches have increased by 10%, taxis by 38%, walkers by 80% and cable car by 20%. Despite the transport sector directly benefiting from the policy, there is one sole transport person or company which has failed to pay £108,000 in entry fees.

I understand that our official tourism website is being reviewed. I must say that it is regrettable that it is not being expedited. The same can be said for the Upper Rock Nature Reserve app. I would not have envisaged this to be a monumental task or to take this long and would have expected a simple bridge-over of issues, such as the possibility to download a brochure that could have been added in the interim.

595 Last year I also highlighted the Europa Point waste ground by the lighthouse, an eyesore which we have endured for the last seven years, and rather than spending £25,000 on providing a 'dog park' at the Alameda Gardens it is my opinion that it would have been far more useful to have landscaped the Europa Point waste ground and put that money to better use.

Swiftly moving on to the Port, despite bunkering going up and cruise liner passengers going up, the recurrent revenue for the Gibraltar Port Authority is estimated to go down in the current financial year by 1.9%. I note the Gibraltar Port Authority has been actively involved in attending seminars and conferences abroad, thereby raising its profile internationally; this can only be of benefit to Gibraltar PLC's future in this sector. Last week, the Minister for the Port announced he will be extending compulsory insurance obligations to all vessels in Gibraltar. I have been highlighting the issue for some time and welcome this policy measure.

600 Finally, Mr Speaker, I would like to thank you, the Parliament staff and all civil servants who ensure that Government answers are put together in what are sometimes lengthy, time-consuming answers during Parliamentary sessions. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Steven Linares.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, this is my 18th Budget speech and my sixth as a Government Minister.

I will begin my speech by giving a synopsis of what has been achieved in the past year in relation to Culture. As it is now known, when we entered into Government we found the mess that was concocted by the previous administration weeks before a General Election in relation to the Gibraltar Culture and Heritage Agency. The replacements and reforms that we have undertaken have proved now for the past three years to be not only the right decision but also a great success. The formation of Gibraltar Cultural Services and having the Ministry of Culture running different events has gone a long way in promoting, enhancing and developing our local culture to the rest of the world.

In conjunction with the Gibraltar Tourist Board, the Gibraltar Literary Festival was organised as part of the events-led tourism initiative. This event, now in its fifth year, has proved to be one that has given Gibraltar the academic as well as cultural profile comparable to any literary festival held in the UK or elsewhere. In fact, we have given the GLF our own local flavour. It has brought to our shores many intellectuals, writers, commentators and others, giving the GLF a unique prestige.

The annual Drama Festival held in March 2017 was the biggest to date with 17 entries, a whole week of theatre. We now see international drama groups participating from the UK and from Spain.

GCS have started work on a major retrospective exhibition for January 2018 that will celebrate fashion design in Gibraltar. This is part of our ongoing cultural development initiatives.

The same can be said of the Gibraltar World Music Festival, which we sponsor. This festival is now being commented on around the world as one which is exporting our harmonious society. This year the theme of 'Uprising' has attracted the coverage of international TV channels. 'Convivencia' was the motto this year and workshops and seminars were held in our University that analysed how religious and cultural diversity and how religious differences can live in a small society such as ours.

The Gibraltar-Berlin Art Residency Project will take place for the second year. In July this year we will see Shane Dalmedo, our local artist, taking up an art residency in Berlin and a Berlin artist doing a residency in Gibraltar. This initiative is proving to be very successful in exporting our artistic talent. We again financially supported the participation of local artists in competitions abroad, such as the Royal Academy of Art Summer Exhibition and others.

GCS is responsible for overseeing and organising traditional events in our calendar such as Miss Gibraltar, Spring Festival, Autumn Programme, Summer Nights, Gibraltar Fair, national celebrations, New Year celebrations, international art competitions, literary and poetry competitions, and classical concerts in conjunction with the Philharmonic Society, amongst others.

In May this year, Shakespeare was back in town. As part of the Spring Festival, Hamlet was performed and a number of workshops for schoolchildren were held. These workshops were carried out by the Young Shakespeare Company, who were especially flown over from the UK.

The GCS will also be heavily involved in the opening and closing ceremonies of our Island Games in 2019.

On 2nd June, GCS organised the second anniversary of the opening of yet another manifesto commitment of having a National Art Gallery, as we all know named the Mario Finlayson National Art Gallery.

Apart from developing, promoting and supporting cultural events, GCS also do facilities management. They not only run the Ince's Hall, Mackintosh Hall, Retreat Centre, the Central Hall, the Gibraltar Exhibition of Modern Art, Fine Arts and the Gustavo Bacarisas Galleries, they also now help many groups and associations with the maintenance of their premises. When we came into government we realised that premises of which the Government was the landlord

660 were not being maintained, and this resulted in one of the tenants making a claim for damages due to water ingress. Now we have a programme of maintenance which identifies problems in premises, and GCS will deal with these issues soon so that tenants, groups and associations can continue with their good work. They have repaired and fixed things like the roof of South Barracks Recreational Rooms to avoid further water ingress; repairs to lighting, guttering, façade and installation of hand rails at the South District Senior Citizens' Social Club; repairs to the 665 caving-in of the floors at the Gibraltar Downs Syndrome Support Group Unit at the Retrenchment Block; repairs to roof and guttering at 35 Town Range and 72 Prince Edward's Road, and many more. This we do because we value the work that all these groups do for our society.

The Mac Hall Library has gone through a massive transformation in 2014, and I am glad to say 670 that the Hon. Roy Clinton visited the library recently and found out the extensive improvements that the library has gone through – pity he didn't mention it in his address. New books are constantly being purchased and CCTV cameras installed in the children's area, fiction section, main reception and reference rooms.

As to repairs at the theatre, which is now complete, these consists of refurbishment of the 675 sound and light control room with new sound and light equipment; new floors and seating; removal of seats to create disabled access; increased capacity from 380 to 408 seats; new curtains; new carpet for the upper theatre gallery; new frosting to main doors; LED lights replaced for the courtyard area; extra furniture bought; new doors; new ticket office built for public use and hire; landscape posters displayed; and many more improvements which have 680 made the Hall a place which we can now be proud of. I see the hon. Member is giggling underneath, but these are actual improvements since 2011, since we came into government, because they had it totally neglected. The same can be said with many improvements at the Fine Arts Gallery, the Gustavo Bacarisa Gallery, the Central Hall and the Ince's Hall.

I would like to say at this point, Mr Speaker, that GCS is also heavily involved in making sure 685 that child protection for all cultural groups is a priority. They are working hard. Every group that is a cultural group has to register with GCS that they have a programme for child protection.

The Ministry of Culture has also been heavily involved in organising events such as the Jazz Festival, Winter Party in Town, Darts Trophy, pool and snooker tournaments.

The Ministry of Culture is and has been leading on the organisation of Gibraltar Calling. We 690 have been working for the past two years to be able to partner with the biggest brand in the world and the most important music TV channel, that of MTV, to be able to deliver a music festival that will be shown around the world. Our GMF was one which was very successful and attracted our locals as well as tourists to our shores. I would like to take this opportunity to thank those who were involved in the GMF in having helped us produce the biggest event in our 695 social calendar, and I hope that they will continue to be involved in Gibraltar Calling.

It is obvious that the vision that we had as a manifesto commitment is now reaping the benefits. Our policy of events-led tourism is working and the figures of hotel occupancy, as all the other statistics that the Chief Minister mentioned in his address, show this. We now have 700 moved this event to the international arena and the representatives of MTV, who were very impressed at our product, have teamed up with my Ministry to create an event which will be beamed live to more than 30 countries. The value of this is immense. To give you just a snapshot of the benefits of this partnership, I will give this House a few figures – and I will also give the hon. Members who are talking, if they want to listen, these figures.

The following figures are only conservative estimates in relation to the media value that 705 partnering with MTV will mean. The TV programmes being produced, which will be broadcast in 30 countries and have an audience of about a billion, are estimated to have a value of £½ million. The 1,500 minimum 30-second broadcast advertising spots are estimated to be £150,000. Twenty-plus social media posts with a reach of three million-plus and one of its Twitter accounts having a following of 15 million-plus people is estimated at another £150,000.
710 Press coverage via MTV will reach upwards of £1 million in media value. Minimum total forecast of the media value is therefore £1.7 million. All the above does not include the events and tourism marketing we do ourselves via our own websites.

715 MTV is without doubt one of the biggest brands in the world. Gibraltar can benefit from the brand association to project its forward-looking position in the world. When talking to MTV's director and producer of Gibraltar Calling when they visited Gibraltar last week, they mentioned the fact that they wish to do filming of programmes for their channel here, since Gibraltar has not only a lot to offer in cultural and social events but also because of our unique surroundings and geographical position.

720 Now that this event is being filmed, Gibraltar will have a lasting legacy from the festival. Multiple high-quality media assets will be generated, which will be used by other Government agencies to promote Gibraltar, in particular as a music and cultural destination.

725 Gibraltar has been able to leverage MTV's relationship with artists to attract top talent on excellent commercial terms. Within the festival industry the current line-up is being seen as of a very high standard, some of whom performed in the Glastonbury Festival last weekend. (Hon. Chief Minister: Jeremy Corbyn!) Well, we can invite him as well to give us a speech, but I would rather have you as the socialist giving a speech!

730 One important aspect of the value of this event is the fact that many of the tickets sold to date for Gibraltar Calling are from people who intend to come to Gibraltar for the event. We expect to sell much more than we did last year, but taking the same figures of last year's GMF, at which we had over 2,500 people from abroad coming, means that the economy in general benefits in the region of £½ million. Therefore, taking together only the estimated media and visitor value of the event to our economy, our economy can easily be said to be in the region of £2.2 million. These are obviously very conservative estimates and do not include the cultural, social and other benefits to our community.

735 At this stage I would like to just go off script and tell the hon. Member about tourism: that we are not a destination for the bucket-and-spade brigade. We are a destination where we attract people to events, and this has been working now since we started doing events-led tourism. The hon. Member must recognise that all the events that we do attract many tourists to Gibraltar.

740 Mr Speaker, I now move on to GAMPA. In the 2011 manifesto we committed to three main things that we believe to be of great benefit to our society. These are learning an instrument, having a youth orchestra and the setting up of an academy for performing arts. I am delighted to say that the academy called the Gibraltar Academy of Music and Performing Arts, referred to as GAMPA, was set up in September 2015 at 63 Flat Bastion Magazine, Flat Bastion Road. For this, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Mr Freddie Gomez for having cleaned up, looked after and maintained Flat Bastion Magazine for many years. He did this voluntarily without any help from the Government at the time. After he had been using the premises for years, he handed them back to Government and he is thrilled that his hard work is now used for the community in the form of the Academy. Since its set up it has been a great success, so much so that it has already outgrown these premises and GAMPA is currently outsourcing spaces in South Barrack Road Recreational Rooms as well as the drama studio and music room in Bayside Comprehensive. We are looking at alternative premises where we can house all students in the same venue and hold all classes in a centralised place.

755 When GAMPA initiated the Learn an Instrument campaign, one of the commitments in our manifesto, they realised that many children did not know the variety of instruments there are. Therefore they offered a total of 32 places for middle school children to learn instruments such as brass, flute, saxophone and clarinet. This promotion has been extremely positive.

GAMPA has developed the Infant Music Club, where children from as young as four years old can start learning an instrument and become interested in music.

760 GAMPA has become the official representative of Charanga music in Gibraltar. More than 10,000 teachers use Charanga programmes in over 3,000 schools. It produces engaging, exciting, innovative digital music teaching and learning resources in both primary and secondary schools to support music teachers and their students.

765 GAMPAs been working very closely with the Parasol Foundation in order to develop the Parasol Foundation Scholarship Programme. This programme has been designed to help the next generation of musicians and actors develop and have more teaching contact and prep time. This programme has been renewed for another year.

Two scholarships for excellence and promise were offered to students who show a high level of skill and have the potential to excel. Three scholarships were offered to beginners who showed potential and have achieved quite a lot in a short space of time.

770 Ensemble scholarships are open to all students of the Academy. GAMPAs been offering string ensemble, woodwind ensemble, corps of drums ensemble, aural skills and vocal ensemble classes in order for children to accompany and to play as part of a group. This will develop their ensemble skills with a view to having children play together to fulfil another manifesto commitment to form a youth orchestra. These classes have no maximum limit of students.

775 Further scholarships were offered to students with financial hardship. I am glad that this happens, because some of the children are not able to do it and I am glad that GAMPAs taken this on. Extra-curricular activities can prove to be expensive to a student who feels they really want to dedicate themselves to a certain series of classes.

780 All in all, the success of GAMPAs been such that we are looking at expanding to have more premises to be able to cope with the demand.

Together with HM Government, the Parasol Foundation have also supported the Academy with a scholarship for drama and by purchasing music books in order to complete the Academy's library, as well as funding of more instruments.

785 The ABRSM – I hope Mr Speaker does not ask me what these mean – exams have been taking place in Gibraltar for decades under the supervision and management of the College of Further Education. It is important to note that it also does singing and performing courses, of which recognised examination has been conducted. GAMPAs therefore become an examination centre for the ABRSM. The Trinity Rock and Pop exams have proved to be very successful and the Trinity College London Drama exams. Every exam has been allocated a level and a number of credits in the Qualifications and Credit Framework (QCF) in England, Wales and Northern Ireland. GAMPAs very proud to be offering tuition and examination opportunities to students who choose to study classical, pop and rock music as well as acting and drama.

795 Mr Speaker, I now move on to the media, which forms part of my responsibilities for the first time. I have been able to closely work with the Chief Executive of our national broadcaster GBC to ensure that standards of service are maintained and, where possible, improved. GBC is a far cry from the television and radio station of just five years ago due to the lack of investment by the previous administration, with huge improvements having been carried out to its programming since then. This has happened thanks to the funding provided by our Government and the commitment of its management and staff to make it work. The efforts have paid off. The feedback received by the Corporation continues to suggest that a majority of viewers and listeners enjoy GBC radio and television Gibraltar programming. Live and on-demand programmes via GBC online have a good following too, as do their social media platforms, where GBC News is relied upon as an authoritative and reliable source by thousands.

800 TV shows such as the recent Port Ops, which focused on activities in the Gibraltar harbour, The Collectors, which showed the unusual collections owned by several Gibraltarians, and Rock Explorers, which every week shows a different element of local natural history, are shows that would only be produced by a local channel, proving GBC's value to the community. There has been a significant number of local series and specials produced during the past 12 months, with these including the ordination of Bishop Zammit, which was broadcast live from Malta, as well as his installation at the Cathedral of Saint Mary the Crowned, also covered live. This year GBC has also carried live several Gibraltar-related political events from Westminster and the United Nations, ensuring viewers and listeners remain well informed on issues that affect them. This is also the case with respect to the current Island Games in Gotland, where there is a team of GBC journalists and producers who are reporting on Gibraltar's participation.

815 In addition, GBC Sports Awards, which has been a firm fixture of the annual social calendar, was once again aired in March, and I take this opportunity to once again congratulate the winners of these such deserved trophies. As Minister for the Media and Sports, I am really pleased that GBC has taken this initiative in which sportsmen and women are rewarded for the 820 hard work and effort they put in to be able to at times reach very high standards at international level.

I must also mention the GBC Open Day, which last Christmas raised an incredible £142,000. The Open Day is an institution on the Rock, for which it is extremely gratifying that our national broadcasters lead on the event, which is followed by practically everyone in Gibraltar, knowing that their donations will help a variety of local worthy causes.

825 The last 12 months have seen several staff changes at Broadcasting House, with some of the household names we have been used to over the years either retiring or leaving to pursue other projects. In particular, I would like to thank Mr James Neish, Christine Clifton-Psaila and Stephen Neish for their many years of service to the Corporation, while wishing the new faces and voices who have replaced them every success in their new careers.

830 This Government continues to provide GBC with the funding required to keep up with technology. This year, the focus has been on the replacement of the ageing TV studio lighting grid with much more environmentally friendly LED lights, the first phase of which has now been completed. The second phase of this project will take place during this financial year. The station's satellite transmission facilities have also been upgraded, including the replacement of 835 two 25-year-old dishes with new motorised ones that will allow greater reliability and flexibility for satellite reception, which is being used more frequently as GBC provides coverage of a greater number of international events, including the football.

Mr Speaker, GBC is swimming against a tide of international broadcasters that are made available locally by cable operators, which is not easy but proves its worth by providing well-840 produced local content and quality imported programmes. However, it does so from a building that is far from ideal and which in all honesty has seen better days. It therefore remains this Government's intention to relocate GBC for the Corporation to enjoy the working conditions the staff deserve and which will no doubt encourage them to build on their current successes.

As happens in all areas, there is always room for improvement. I therefore must pay tribute 845 to the around 80 staff employed by GBC, who are at all levels ensuring that Gibraltar has a successful public service broadcaster with high editorial standards, who give of their free time to ensure that things like Open Day ... as well as to the members of the public and commercial sector who support it and give so generously, and that reflects the Gibraltarian identity through numerous locally produced programmes.

850 Moving on to the Youth Service, I can announce that it has undergone a number of significant changes, most noticeably within its structure and staffing arrangements. All the administration that was working from Montagu Bastion Youth Centre has now been transferred to the City Hall.
This has meant that the supporting role to the service has increased since they can now double up with officers based at the main office of the Ministry of Culture. The qualified element of the 855 Youth and Community workers can now work from the Youth Centre and can dedicate their time to direct contact with the young people.

The complement now of the Youth Service consists of a principal youth and community worker, two seniors and 5 JNC qualified youth and community workers (YCWs). It is great to have seen that two of these YCWs have gained their qualifications locally via courses accredited 860 by De Montfort University in Leicester.

One further change implemented by our Government recently is that of regularising the employment status of all youth support workers. These workers, who are complementary to the work of the YCWs, are no longer on a supply basis but on a contract that gives them continuity.
So much for what the hon. Member Mr Llamas said. They are also being trained in order to raise 865 the standard of work done to achieve best practice.

Since the New Dawn of 2011 we have been keen for the Youth Service to encourage volunteers to help deliver youth work. This House will recall that volunteers were done away with by the previous Government and we believe that volunteers in the past contributed many positive things to the service. Therefore the Youth Service has introduced to everyone interested in working with youngsters a locally recognised and assessed course in Understanding Youth Work for volunteers and support workers. This year trainees were able to select the assessed or non-assessed route. The non-assessed route offered the trainee a certificate of attendance along with the chance to volunteer their services to various youth work projects. Due to the success of our training, we have once again offered Understanding Youth Work training to youth work trainees, who started the course in October 2016 and will have completed their training by this Friday.

Professional development is paramount for youth workers and to that end we are committed to supporting the staff to be able to train and learn new innovative ways to be able to deliver an excellent service. From the principal youth worker and his two seniors, who have undergone training on issues relating to grievance, discipline and dismissals ... to train all others in the service courses to do with Safeguarding Children, Health and Safety, First Aid at Work, Basic Fire and Rescue Training.

The Youth Service has been part of the Multi-agency Child Protection Committee since it was formed in 2015. It is imperative that child protection is at the heart of all agencies, associations and entities that are in contact with children. (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) The Youth Service is a member of the Child Protection Committee, and following a request by the Care Agency in November 2015 the Youth Service agreed to join the Safeguarding Children and Young People training team as from January 2016. The Youth Service has increased its commitment to support child protection in Gibraltar. They have subscribed to the Signs of Safety model by committing themselves to taking a multi-agency approach in managing safeguarding issues and placing the welfare of children and young people at the heart of everything they do. In addition, the Youth Service will very soon be in a position to support the Care Agency by committing a senior member of staff to becoming a Safeguarding Children Tier 2 trainer for the multi-agency team.

All Youth Service staff underwent a very successful weekend of personal professional development training, taking of their own time, that focused on the importance of supervision in youth work.

Since the MoU was signed by the Youth Service and the RGP, they have been able to build and establish a professional relationship of trust that has made significant progress in many areas that has improved the service to young people in this community. As an example, the RGP Charity Committee has helped in the funding of residential weekends away for youngsters on which some officers accompanied them. In turn, the RGP have benefitted from the Youth Service since they are providing training to new recruits regarding working with young people in our community. This partnership has also allowed both entities to be able to work with the neighbourhood to be able to understand community problems more closely.

Mr Speaker, at this point I would like to say that it was sad to hear the Hon. Elliot Phillips, who has not been hearing any of our speeches, and yet he spoke yesterday about many of the things that he did not even hear, and he is not here today to listen to all the good things that we are doing with the young people in our youth clubs and the Youth Service, and how we protect young people and how we look at issues of drugs and even youth justice, which he mentioned yesterday and he is not here to listen today. I would like to compliment the Youth Service because they do an excellent work. I do not know how many thousands of people he has queuing up either at his home or at his office, which he mentioned yesterday – thousands of young people going to him and telling him how bad things were. Well, I don't know, but even in the youth clubs ... We have four youth clubs and we do not get thousands. We get hundreds, but not thousands. He must have queues all down College Lane.

Mr Speaker, I carry on by saying that our Government continuously invests in the refurbishment our youth clubs. The Plater, Dolphins and Laguna Youth Clubs have undergone some significant interior refurbishment works that are complemented by new modern and up-to-date kitchens for young people to use and learn necessary life skills. One facility which we have invested in – unlucky that the Leader of the Opposition is not listening – and will soon be completed is that of the Girl Guides’ hut in the Upper Rock. This hut could no longer be used, since it was not fit for purpose, yet we found that the previous administration had plans for it but never started it. Grins from the opposite Members. We will see a new floor added to the accommodation and more beds. It will have new kitchens and the building will be accessible to all. The Girl Guides, who do a great job in forming the lives of young girls, have been asking for this for many years but it has gone to deaf ears. Therefore it gives me great pleasure to be able to deliver the state-of-the-art premises where they can continue to do the magnificent work that they do.

Our Government values the contribution of the Youth Advisory Council, which already has representatives from the Duke of Edinburgh, Girl Guides and Scouts. We have therefore seen fit to expand its membership to include the RGP, Education Department, GHA, Care Agency, St John Ambulance and the Drugs Co-ordinator. All these entities have a lot to contribute in helping deliver quality youth work.

Further to the Council, as Minister for Youth I have felt it important to give young people a voice in our community, again rebutting what the hon. Member stated yesterday – that we do not listen to young people. The Youth Service set up a number of meetings with young people where they could raise any issues they had with me. This year, members of the Youth Forum focused mainly on issues regarding education. As a result of these meetings, young people have had the opportunity to meet with the Minister for Education Dr Cortes, with the Director of Education, with the Principal Youth Officer and with me at the Youth Centre to discuss issues that concern them. The Youth Service is working closely with the young people so that the issues raised by them are taken seriously and acted upon.

There are many projects that are run by the Youth Service. These range from developing photographic and filming skills to personal and social development opportunities and even fun activities.

The Luce Foundation project has allowed youngsters to attend residential weekends where they experience activities which deal with environmental issues, issues of citizenship, Personal, Social and Health Education, and challenge them to take life decisions to be able to be responsible citizens.

Mental Health is an issue which concerns young people, and to this end not only have the Youth Service engaged in helping fund-raise, for example with Clubhouse, but they are also in discussion with the GHA officials on how a mental health service for children and young people could be set up. Drugs, cyber bullying and youth justice are also issues that the Youth Service participates in forums on to advise Government.

I will not go through all the projects that the Youth Service has been providing the youngsters with throughout the year, since these are too numerous to mention, but one that sticks out was the winning of the first prize of the youth section in this year’s cavalcade; a lot of hard work took place and I would like to congratulate them on this achievement.

Mr Speaker, the Youth Service takes the youth seriously. They work hard. Again, I must say the five-minute speech that the hon. Gentleman, Mr Elliot Phillips – who came for five minutes, spoke for five minutes and left – was absolutely saddening, to be nice to him, because he has not recognised the hard work, the increase and all the things I have said. He would have listened to it today and he would have learned something from what all the Youth Service is doing.

(Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I think this will be a convenient point at which to have a short ... before the Minister no doubt calls upon the House to acclaim last night's historic victory by Europa Football Club against the Welsh All Saints. So we will have a recess of 15 minutes.

The House recessed at 11.25 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 11.40 a.m.

Appropriation Bill 2017 –
Debate continued

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Steven Linares.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Thank you, Mr Speaker.

The Kings' Bastion Leisure Centre also comes under my remit as Minister for Leisure. When we came into government in 2011, the Kings' Bastion was a massive drain to the economy. It was costing – and I hope people take note of this, because it is interesting, though sad as well due to the economic drain – £2.6 million per annum with a mere £60,000 in revenue. After making changes and terminating lucrative contracts which were signed by the greatest

Gibraltarian in history – the previous administration – and reforming the way in which it was run, we now see the deficit massively reduced.

Employees of KBLC were employed by the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority (GSLA), and the revenue of the GSLA was actually fictitious since it was transferring money from one Government-owned company to the GSLA, which is also a Government entity. By transferring these employees to the Bayside Complex, where they were asking for more staff, and giving a contract to other GSLA employees who formed their own company, has reduced the running costs substantially. Now the KBLC is costing annually £1.6 million and is making revenue of £½ million and increasing every year. As can be seen, KBLC decreased their running costs by £1 million from £2.6 million to £1.6 million and have increased the income from £60,000 to £½ million, resulting in a significant reduction in the overall deficit. At the same time, they are carrying out the following improvements to the facilities.

The fitness gym: a complete overhaul of the men's and ladies' changing rooms; all old equipment has been replaced with new equipment and an outdoor gym has been created in the back patio. The amusement arcade has seen the replacement of worn-out carpet tiles with high-quality fitted carpets in the games vaults and vaults repainted in bright colours. KBLC has cladded the ceiling and refurbished the Line Wall Road entrance to match the works carried out at the main entrance and they are in the process of repainting all the ironmongery, including columns and gates, on the Line Wall facade of the building. On the second floor, the cinema foyer area and toilet corridor has been repainted. Some damaged glass panels around the terrace areas have been replaced. Entrance tunnel and toilet passage walls painted and cladded with wood-face bricks.

1000

In the ice rink, new skirtings have been fitted to complete the refurbishment that was started in 2015. I would like to take this opportunity to say that the ice rink is a disaster in relation to the running cost. Whoever thought – probably the greatest Gibraltarian in history – of putting the ice rink on a second floor did not contemplate the amount of money it would cost in electricity. It is like having a fridge all day opened at the beach in the month of August. We are now looking at the possibility of putting solar panels on the roof, but we are finding it difficult due to the fact that even the roof is slanting the wrong way.

Leisure Management Services, which are contracted to run KBLC, have agreed with the GSLA to provide basic maintenance services at the Bayside Complex and have employed an additional maintenance staff member to cope with the extra work. This will provide more income to help them meet their running costs.

1015 During the current financial year LMS will be upgrading the consoles and software used at the bowling alley and will start work on replacing the bowling ceiling as well as installing LED screen panels for the back end of the bowling lanes. The latter will be useful in attracting marketing revenue. LMS, on behalf of KBLC, has entered into an agreement with the Gibraltar 1020 International Airport authorities for the provision of a children's play area within the departure lounge of the airport, where they can install some more arcade machines. Both these initiatives will provide additional income streams for KBLC that will help them in reducing their overall running costs. I would like to congratulate both the management and the staff of LMS for having taken the task of running the Leisure Centre with a budget of less than £1 million from the previous set up and at the same time improving all the facilities – a far cry from what we 1025 inherited in 2011.

I now move on to my ministerial responsibility for sport. Phase 1 of the works at the GSLA swimming pool complex has been completed, with phase 2's final completion scheduled for this summer. The works have included the installation of a second filter for the accessible pool as well as the installation of systems that will automate chemical dosing, backwashes and 1030 automatic readings of water turbidity. Improvements are already noticeable in terms of efficiency, and once completed the reconfiguration will result in savings in chemical consumption, water consumption and maintenance costs.

Let's not forget that the photovoltaic panels, which cost £680,000, from which £290,000 came from the EU – i.e. the expenditure of Government was £390,000 cost to the taxpayer – has 1035 now been paid by savings. The saving to date is approximately £720,000. Not only are we making these savings with the photovoltaic panels, we are producing electricity in excess of what the swimming pool needs and therefore we are also feeding this to the main grid. The best of the system is that the facility is functioning virtually at 0% carbon emission. Additionally, these works form part of a scheme to offer the general public an enhanced service resulting in 1040 the facility opening seven days a week.

Improvements are scheduled to take place in many areas in the Bayside Sports Complex. To begin with, and due to the fact that the three-padel tennis courts are extremely popular, they have suffered a significant amount of wear and tear and therefore we will be resurfacing after the Gibraltar Calling Music Festival in September. Currently, the turfs of these courts are laid 1045 over sand substrate and users have been complaining that this is causing issues with the playability of the surface and in particular the ball bounce. Therefore the resurfacing will also include this time round the laying of a porous concrete base to replace the current sand substrate. This will resolve the current issues such as the ball bounce.

The boathouse area will undergo an extensive refurbishment this summer. The building, 1050 which has been extensively used since it was built over 10 years ago, requires works to address water ingress as well as requiring improvements to the general areas. It has been the temporary home of the GFA for the last four years and they will be moving out imminently. It will now continue to house the associations which currently hold office space but will also become the official home of the Gibraltar Island Games 2019 organising committee, including the Games 1055 director.

As is well known, the GSLA is charged with looking after the playgrounds and parks around Gibraltar. Within the GSLA there is a maintenance team who regularly go round the playgrounds and parks, mending, fixing and/or replacing the equipment. All the playgrounds and parks now have a notice where there is a hotline number for the public to contact should they see that any 1060 of the equipment needs repair. The team will go out to fix on the spot, make safe and/or take away to repair. Apart from the continuous maintenance, every financial year there will be a continued programme of upgrades to the parks and playgrounds. The Chilton Court housing estate has been earmarked as an area that requires attention. This is an old park and play area that was inherited when the estate was transferred to the Government. Various options are 1065 currently being considered for the area with the tenants association liaising closely with the 1066 GSLA.

The Government, via the GSLA, has been involved with the following events locally and internationally both at a logistical and financial level. Mr Speaker, with the football, as in the UEFA Futsal, I do not think I should go through all of them, just to highlight, for example, the 1070 snooker, the pool, the darts, helping with the chess, the junior chess, backgammon, squash open, international regattas, Harley Davidson, even the International Song Festival. I have just left a few out there, Mr Speaker, because I will not go through them all. In addition, the GSLA offers logistical support and facilities for the local sports associations to complete their leagues and development programmes throughout the year as well as assisting schools in fulfilling their 1075 PE curriculum both at the Bayside Sports Centre and at the GSLA swimming pool.

The Summer Sports and Leisure Programme 2016 once again improved on its previous year's attendance, registering over 9,500 throughout its different elements over six weeks. The Sports Train offered sporting and leadership activities every weekday in the mornings for seven- to-14-year-old children. The Children's Corner offered appropriate sport and recreational activities 1080 three days a week. The family evening sessions noticed a marked improvement with the attendance of nearly 40. The Stay and Play programme offered sport, physical, arts and leisure activities for children with disabilities five days per week. This element in particular needed to review its scheduling, given the significantly higher attendance, and with this in mind the temporary staff complement has been increased for the upcoming programme. In addition, the 1085 Care Agency will be actively involved in the induction training programme for 2017, adding to the quality of delivery whilst safeguarding the interests of leaders and users alike.

The GSLA also worked in partnership with sports associations –28 in total – to provide a wide range of sports coaching courses and taster sessions with children and young people. Other positive leisure providers, including the Government, the Ministry of Environment, the GHA and 1090 the RGP ...

Mr Speaker, such is the success of this sporting programme that the sponsorship arrangement with NatWest has been extended, and we are grateful for their continued support.

The Government, via the Gibraltar Sports Advisory Council (GSAC), which is administered by the GSLA, has continued to support local athletes and teams when they travel abroad to official 1095 international competitions. The GSLA advocates the fact that it is not purely to be a member of the international body, but local entities need to be active within them by participating in events and competitions or by participating at congresses or annual general meetings.

Sports development initiatives have also been supported with a view to increasing the qualifications, knowledge base and experiences of local coaches and administrators. This is 1100 particularly relevant as it will reduce the need for the importation of officials for the 2019 Island Games. Part of the legacy element of the Games is not just the physical infrastructure but the knowledge base and experience gained in the lead up to and during the Games that will improve the chances of Gibraltar being represented internationally as umpires and officials. I would like to, at this stage, congratulate Nathan Stagno for having obtained his MBE for being one of the 1105 best referees, umpires, of hockey. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) This will increase the pool of qualified sportsmen and women and will raise Gibraltar's profile even higher as a host location for international events.

In addition, some individuals who presented cases for financial support under the "Elite Athlete" category have been supported. Applications were considered by the relevant 1110 subcommittee on a case-by-case basis.

The review of the guidelines – and I think this part is important for the sporting fraternity – for registering sporting associations has been completed with these becoming criteria.
Registered sports associations, leisure providers and commercial entities have been informed of the new requirement, and, if it is not met, it will result in allocations and/or funding being 1115 withdrawn. The main points to note are regarding training, with all coaches and leisure providers having to attend relevant Safeguarding Children and Young People workshops, the nomination of welfare officers within registered governing bodies, the submission of an up-to-date child protection policy and proof of RGP vetting and relevant documentation from country of origin. The GSLA will assist all those concerned with training and support, and whilst there will be a transitional period whilst training is arranged and undertaken in the short term, the criteria will be stringently enforced in the future. Child protection is therefore a must from now on.

Preparations for the 2019 Island Games are well underway. The organising committee, led by Linda Alvarez, is making significant progress in key issues such as accommodation, travel logistics and sport-specific requirements. There is regular contact with those associations involved in the Games and with the key stakeholders like the RGP, GHA and Technical Services to name but a few. Several members of the organising committee are now in Gotland, where Gibraltar will host an information evening – in fact, it is this evening – for all of the other member islands, to provide an update. In addition, meetings have also been scheduled with the International Island Games Association Executive Committee and several reps will also address the annual general meeting, which they did last night, held as part of the Games in Gotland. Mr Speaker, I was only in Gotland for hours but in the opening ceremony and all the receptions you could see the buzz of people wanting again to come to the Island Games in Gibraltar, which I think is brilliant because of the way that all the organising committee were dressed with the '19' and Gibraltar and everybody was asking questions on when it is and all that. So I am really pleased that it is going really well.

1125

1135

Mr Speaker, the Government announced on 18th April that an agreement had been reached with the Gibraltar Football Association (GFA) on the constitution of a UEFA Category 4 National Football Stadium in Gibraltar. As is well known publicly, the GFA initially had objections to the Victoria Stadium as the venue for the new stadium. The Government has been assisting the GFA with a view to identifying an alternative site for the construction of a stadium in Gibraltar.

1140

On 20th March 2017 the GFA wrote to the Government informing that all sites had been considered, in particular Europa Point and Lathbury Parade, and said that they had turned out to be unviable for a number of reasons. The GFA informed the Government that it had explained its predicament to UEFA, who in the circumstances accepted the lifting of the standing objection to the Victoria Stadium on condition that the GFA acquired exclusive ownership of the Victoria Stadium. Government therefore happily acceded to the request. Given the current importance of that site to all other sports, the Government agreed to sell the site of the Victoria to the GFA for £16.5 million, which represented a fair value for the site and the cost of relocation of the sports that presently use that site.

1145

The sale includes the old Victoria Sports Hall and the right to redevelop the area of Winston Churchill Avenue and the adjacent petrol station upon relocation of the latter after opening the tunnel under the runway. The sale does not include the Tercentenary Hall or the rest of the Bayside Sports Complex. I would like to put to one side or at least quash all the rumours that have been going banding about that we are also selling the hockey pitch. The hockey pitch is not part of the sale to the Victoria Stadium; it is only the part of the track, the stadium and pitch 2, and obviously the sports hall, as I mentioned.

The sum of £16.5 million is the amount that the Government will invest in re-providing the sports facilities presently provided for at the Victoria Stadium. In addition, the GFA will continue to allow the use – and this is important again for the people to understand this – of the Victoria Stadium for a number of community events and school use where this deconflicts from the GFA's own football requirements, which will then have priority on that site.

The GFA will pay for the purchase in three instalments with funds it will receive exclusively from UEFA and FIFA: two instalments of £5 million, which will be paid in this current financial year; and a third payment of £6.5 million, which will be paid in the financial year 2018-19. In addition, the GFA will invest in the region of £15 million in the redevelopment of the Victoria Stadium and the old Sports Hall. As a result, Gibraltar will enjoy a National Football Stadium which will be developed at no cost at all to the taxpayer.

1170 The Government will be investing the entirety of the sum of £16.5 million paid for the Victoria Stadium to redevelop the sporting infrastructure of Gibraltar affected by the sale. It will do so for the purpose of leading a total revolution and transformation of the sporting facilities available in Gibraltar and will do so in time for the 2019 Island Games. All these facilities will be developed by the Government as Government projects but will nonetheless be submitted to the Development and Planning Commission in line with current practice and will be developed with the new rules on accessibility of buildings forming part of the planning process.

1175 I think it is important at this stage to say that the Hon. Minister for Equality and Housing mentioned the fact that the law on disability will be coming in, but I can tell the hon. Members and Gibraltar that all the planning that we are doing is now abiding by the new law, so therefore these projects are already looking at the new law, as opposed to what we have currently. In addition, the Ministry for Sport will continue to work with the GFA and all the relevant sporting 1180 organisations and representative bodies in order to get the results right on this investment in sport in Gibraltar.

In relation to the question of re-providing or re-siting sports facilities, we will be developing the site of Lathbury, where there will be an 800-seater, 400-metre, eight-lane track. This athletics stadium facility for athletics will also be a general purpose sports field and will be made 1185 available to football and other sports in Gibraltar. This facility will therefore be larger than the current track at the Victoria Stadium.

Within the Lathbury complex a 52-metre pool will be built, which will fulfil yet another manifesto commitment. This new swimming pool will be a 52-metre, eight-lane pool with seating capacity for around 400 spectators. The Gibraltar Amateur Swimming Association is 1190 assisting the Government to ensure that this new pool facility complies with all international requirements.

A full-size football ground which can double up as training pitches, especially for children, will be provided. This will be available to the GFA, to all the GFA league clubs, as well as to rugby. This facility will include a communications centre, a boardroom, a press area, a lecture room, an 1195 infirmary and coaching and anti-doping rooms. In addition, a gym and indoor warm-up area will be provided.

New offices for the Gibraltar Amateur Athletics Association for the Gibraltar Amateur Swimming Association are also being developed as part of this new and exciting facility. The whole area will also benefit from a huge underground 1,200 parking space area. Facilities for a 1200 cafeteria will also be provided.

The athletics and playing field facility is anticipated to be ready by December 2018. I know that come December 2018 we will say, 'Why haven't you finished it?' Well, there might be a bit of slippage, but that is my target.

A full 100 metre x 68 metre plus 10 metre dead ball international size rugby ground, a cricket 1205 pitch and football training pitches will be constructed in a facility which will also be owned by the Government but run by a trust that will be comprised of the sports that will be using it and Government. The Government is working closely with the Gibraltar Rugby Football Union on the development of the rugby pitch in order to ensure that it complies with the necessary international standards. In addition to the rugby pitch, the facilities at Europa will also provide 1210 for a rugby clubhouse.

The provision of facilities for an oval, 120 metres by 110 metres, is also catered for in this redevelopment. Three indoor and three outdoor cricket nets will also be provided. The Government is working closely with the Gibraltar Cricket Association to ensure that the development complies with the relevant international criteria. In addition, a new modern and 1215 fit-for-purpose clubhouse and pavilion will be provided for the Gibraltar Cricket Association. The outdoor facilities will have a 1,200-seater spectator stand.

Importantly, the Europa sports redevelopment will provide a 42-bed dormitory for visiting sporting associations and teams. This will be available to teams and associations of all sports and will assist in the development of Gibraltar as a centre for sports training.

1220 The development at Europa will include a new 49 metre by 33 metre sports hall and events space. This facility will be multi-functional. Also included will be six new squash courts with 1225 provision for 80 audience seats. Darts will have 12 practice lanes – oches, they are called – provided within a 4 metre by 10 metre space. Additionally, boardrooms, offices, lecture rooms, gyms and treatment rooms will be provided, together with a rehabilitation centre. The sports hall will replace the Old Victoria Sports Hall, which will nonetheless still be made available to the whole community by the GFA in a manner that de-conflicts from their own needs. The Europa Sports Hall will provide for futsal, basketball, netball, volleyball and badminton, as well as for other indoor sports.

1230 None of the developments at Europa impinge on the existing playing facilities for children or the heritage assets in the area.

The Government's plans also provide for the construction of a much needed new facility for Special Olympics Gibraltar. The development will also be in the Europa area. The facility will be attached to a further new community sports hall and gymnasium with treatment and changing facilities as well as a bar, restaurant and kitchen. The technical designs in respect of the new 1235 Special Olympics facility will be the following: a sports hall, gym, male and female changing rooms, treatment room, office, bar, restaurant and kitchen. These facilities, although built for our Special Olympians will be a place which all other sports associations and entities will be able to use. The concept of these facilities is for it to be inclusive and accessible for all.

1240 The construction of outdoor and indoor facilities in the area of Europa Point for all sports will also be helpful in the development of the University of Gibraltar and its ability to offer sporting-related courses as well as making sporting facilities available to students of the University as it grows and expands.

The construction of the new sports hall and events space at Europa will require the relocation of the existing facilities of the Gibraltar Target Shooting Association. The Government 1245 is presently engaged in discussions with the committee of the GTSA on the development of a new shooting range. The Government is also already in contact with the International Sports Shooting Federation in order to ensure compliance of any new facility with the international requirements for sports shooting.

Mr Speaker, in conclusion, be it the changes we have implemented in relation to the mess of 1250 the defunct Gibraltar Cultural and Heritage Agency, be it the reforms we have done on the Kings' Bastion Leisure Centre, be it the increasing of the funding to our cultural fraternity, be it the increasing of the funding of our sporting associations, be it the construction of the new Girl Guides' hut in the Upper Rock, be it the hosting of the Island Games in 2019, be it the Europa Point complex, be it the Lathbury Swimming and Athletics Centre, be it the wonderful Special 1255 Olympics complex, be it the partnership we have done with MTV in relation to the Gibraltar Calling Festival, no one can question the advances this Government have made and will continue to make in the governance and development of our country. (Two Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) The future is bright and all our citizens know that there can only be one way forward and that is to invest in our people. I am honoured to be part of a Government that is 1260 forward thinking and has a clear vision, from the way we are dealing with Brexit to the way we deal with day-to-day issues and all other aspects of governance.

I would like to thank all those NGOs such as the Youth Advisory Council; the Youth Forum; the Gibraltar Sports Advisory Council; all the cultural groups from the arts, drama, photographic and dance fraternities; all the members of the governing bodies of those sports which are involved in 1265 delivering the state of the art facilities which will leave a lasting legacy well after the Island Games has passed and well after we have all passed; the organising committee of the Island Games, who do this without any financial interest; the team at AKS and Orfila's that are producing all the architectural and technical designs for all the sporting and cultural projects which I am involved in; those at Technical Services who help me steer these projects.

1270 Thanks also go to the staff at the Gibraltar Cultural Services, at GAMPA, at the Leisure
Management Services from the Kings' Bastion Leisure Centre, at the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure

Authority, at GBC, at the Youth Service. Mr Speaker, last, you and your staff at the Parliament; and last, but definitely not least, my staff at the Ministry of Culture, without whom I would not be able to implement all the positive policies and manifesto commitments in which I am involved.

1275

I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Edwin Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I wish to start my contribution today with matters pertaining to housing. In respect of repairs and refurbishments of Government rental homes, what has happened over the last few years is that an ever-increasing number of home refurbishments are contracted out to private companies without going through any type of transparent and accountable tender process. Furthermore, feedback from tenants who have had remedial works carried out in their homes indicates that more often than not the quality of the finished product leaves somewhat to be desired.

Last year, Mr Speaker, I mentioned that the Ombudsman had, in his annual report, said that his office continues to face difficulties when seeking information related to works which had been passed by the Housing Authority on to the Gibraltar General Construction Company Ltd, known as GGCC, which is the entity tasked with repairs to rental housing stock. When the works will be undertaken or indeed who will carry out the works is not information available to the Ombudsman directly from GGCC. Sadly, the Ombudsman had to add in his report:

It is very often a very tedious and difficult exercise to obtain information via the Housing Manager – who in turn finds it difficult to obtain information or indeed even replies from GGCC. Over a year on, of the above-mentioned situation we still have not seen any remedies to the system, so therefore it still prevents the Ombudsman from providing a proper and efficient service to those who have lodged a complaint – which in general are in respect of delays as tenants want to know when works will be undertaken.

Mr Speaker, these difficulties which the Ombudsman highlighted in his report continue to coincide with the feedback I still receive when meeting with tenants during clinics I hold with them. There is little faith among tenants that Government will fulfil their obligations as landlords in a timely and satisfactory manner. Surely tenants who fulfil their obligations, such as being up to date in payment of rents, should be treated with greater respect and priority.

Mr Speaker, the Opposition agrees with Government that action needed to be taken to ensure all tenants are up to date with rents due. Indeed, I have personally in the past stated approval of the actions taken by the Minister for Housing for having commenced a programme of agreements which should ensure all debtors are up to date with their rents within a given period of time. However, it is also equally just that tenants should have remedial works carried out to an acceptable standard within a reasonable period of time. If the Ombudsman finds it difficult to get answers to his questions, one can only then imagine what it is like for a tenant trying to obtain any answers directly by themselves.

1300

I have also, during past Question Times, asked what plans Government has for the future of the Housing Works Agency. The reply has been to the effect that this is being discussed with the workforce and their union, but I regret to note that this does not seem to have yet been settled. I wonder if Government can commit themselves to a specific target date – after all, this can only be for the benefit of both the workforce and Government tenants as a whole.

1310

Mr Speaker, Government had a 2011 manifesto commitment to provide a home to everyone on the housing waiting list and also on the pre-list as at 9th December 2011 – that is the allocation of homes to all applicants before what was to be the next General Election, which came in late 2015. The pledge was to eliminate the then existing waiting list and pre-list. Unfortunately, this target was not met by the time the 2015 elections came along, and I am still sad to note there are, in June 2017, still applicants who have not been allocated a home despite being on the waiting list prior to that date of December 2011. A very serious explanation is surely owed to those applicants as to why Government has still not fulfilled its promise.

1320 The Government's website with statistics in respect of the Housing Department is still not available. I feel that perhaps Mr Speaker would also appreciate a revival of these statistics online, as it does curtail questions which I otherwise have to pose in this Parliament. I wonder if Government are now in a position to say by when the website with statistical information pertaining to housing matters will be fully operational.

1325 Based on the June 2017 figures I was given at Question Time, there are currently 960 applicants on the waiting list proper, with an additional 269 on the pre-list giving us a grand total of 1229 applicants. Mr Speaker, these statistics show how the election pledges made in 2011 under the heading 'Waiting reduced to 3 years max', and then further stating 'The supply of new homes will be kept under review in the light of applications received from 9th December onwards. Nobody in future will have to wait for more than 3 years to be re-housed.' This, Mr Speaker, has have simply not been met.

1330 And, Mr Speaker, the 2011 promises went even further. They were reinforced in the section dedicated to youth under the subheading 'Housing'. It read as follows:

Young people who are entitled to housing (as provided for in the Housing Act) will not wait more than 3 years for a home.

1335 Mr Speaker, it is a fact that there are still housing applicants who, despite the promises, are still patiently waiting to be allocated a home. What adequate explanations, I ask, does Government have that will satisfy these forgotten applicants?

1340 Mr Speaker, there are some very serious and genuine applicants who cannot aspire to purchasing their own home due to financial restraints. Despite the popularity of co-ownership schemes, this Government has, with the exception of homes allocated exclusively to senior citizens, failed to build any new homes for rental purposes. This sad situation is not the Gibraltar I would love to see, that is a Gibraltar caring for its citizens who genuinely are not able to own their own homes.

1345 Mr Speaker, we were awaiting, perhaps during this budget debate, details of the Bob Peliza Mews and Hassan Centenary developments. The Chief Minister had mentioned in the New Year that letters were being prepared to go out to prospective purchasers, but it now seems that infrastructure issues have delayed this project. There seem to be some modifications as to the footprint of the project and we will have to wait until September for more details to come forward. I hope that in September there will be a firm commitment which will be adhered to as to when these houses will actually be ready to allow the new purchasers to be able to move in.

1350 Mr Speaker, the Opposition had suggested prior to the last General Election that rents in respect of new rental homes allocated should be means tested. Not everyone is able to obtain a mortgage and therefore purchase their own home through the popular co-ownership scheme. However, there are many who can afford to purchase and yet they opt out of doing so, knowing that their monthly rents are a pittance when compared to the level of their personal wages.

1355 Many new homeowners have expressed to us their feelings of unfairness, as the only way in which they could obtain a home in keeping with their family requirements was through co-ownership, and this brings with it new financial burdens and in some cases has even led to hardship. Their claim of unfairness is that not only do they now have a mortgage to pay – I will give you an example: it will be around £200 a month for a two-bedroom home – they

1360 additionally have to pay community fees or service charges, which at current rates in some co-ownership estates are even greater than what a Government rental tenant pays in rent per month. Indeed, there are more and more people asking why should the tax payer have to subsidise rental homes, given that the annual cost of expenditure for upkeep of rental homes is greater than the sum received from rents due.

1365 Mr Speaker, there are now many Gibraltarians who have moved into their new co-ownership homes. I have had an opportunity to see some of these homes myself and I am happy to report that many aspects of these new constructions are very welcome by their new owners. However, there are some aspects which I would like to bring to Government's attention in the hope that the relevant Minister will be able to look into this further.

1370 Numerous purchasers at Eastern View Terraces have continuously brought to my attention –

A Member: Beach View Terraces.

1375 Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Beach View Terraces. Sorry, a slip of the tongue. Purchasers at Beach View Terraces have continuously brought to my attention their concerns in respect of the quality and reliability of the lifts installed. A recurring example of why the lifts give serious cause for concern is the unfortunate frequency with which they seem to break down. Last year I mentioned that I sincerely hoped that this would be looked into with some priority and that, likewise, proper monitoring during the installation of lifts at the existing rental estates which are currently having these installed will take place. It is still sad to say that the problems with the lifts at Beach View Terraces continue as a recurring nightmare for many residents.

1380 Mr Speaker, I would like to ask the Hon. Minister once again to spare some time and look into the numerous new problems which have arisen within many homes in the estates where refurbishments are presently being undertaken. I have received information from tenants – even with photographic evidence, which I can share, if so required – showing that as a result of the cladding and installation of new roofs they are now suffering from water ingress, an issue which tenants say had never occurred in the many years they have been living in their homes. In wishing the Minister all the best and hoping that refurbishment works are completed as per the reviewed schedules she has recently provided through answers to questions I have posed in this House, I appeal to her personally that new remedial works such as those I have just given examples of are also completed within the same time span as all major works are due to be completed.

1390 The revised completion dates have recently been announced as December 2017 for Glacis and Moorish Castle Estates, but for Laguna Estate the projected completion date is December 2018. These completion dates will be of little comfort to the tenants presently residing in these Estates. Not only are they, in many cases, fed up with the long delays, as they had been led to believe the works would be completed much sooner, but they are desperate with the disruptions being experienced. Tenants were expecting some inconveniences whilst works were being undertaken, but the way works have been programmed and the manner materials have been stored or left lying around in the area has in many cases led to desperation. Loads of concerns in respect of health and safety have been expressed and to be able to offer such little hope of a normal living area until December 2018 will unfortunately come as no consolation.

1400 The Opposition recently wrote to the Minister for Housing in respect of concerns arising from the saddest of incidents at Grenfell Tower. We are confident that the pertinent authorities are looking into these health and safety matters, such as we have been informed by the Minister already in this House, but we would welcome a public statement explaining eventually what fire safety tests have been conducted and what the full result in respect of Gibraltar's housing stock is. We patiently await these results.

1410 The positive side of the refurbishments is that one day residents should be able to pride themselves about their dwellings and surrounding areas. However, whether one can attribute the cause of increasing unsociable behaviour within the estates to be a by-product of ongoing works or not remains to be seen. Decent and law-abiding residents of housing estates are desperate to see the appropriate authorities making a concentrated effort to stop this unacceptable unsocial behaviour as soon as possible.

1415 Likewise, Mr Speaker, routine maintenance works in other rental estates such as Mid-Harbours does not seem to be happening to tenants' satisfaction. I know the Chief Minister has not long ago visited this estate for himself and I am hopeful he will have instructed routine maintenance works to be carried out. However, there needs to be a maintenance team all year round ready to tackle any necessary works. Gibraltar should be efficient in the way it maintains its housing estates without the need to have to appeal directly to the Chief Minister for any works to be tackled.

Mr Speaker, moving on to sports-related matters, I wish to commence by saying that I am a firm believer in unity, where possible, for the benefit of Gibraltar's greater interests. I am glad to see that Government continues with the long-existing policy to assist all local sporting bodies to overcome any foreign government's politically inspired attempts to block our membership and/or participation in international sporting events. (Banging on desks) In the past, we have rejoiced together in respect of landmark achievements, namely the acceptance of the Gibraltar Football Association as a full member of UEFA and then FIFA. The policy of assisting sporting associations will certainly continue to receive the Opposition's wholehearted support and I sincerely wish other sporting associations, such as rugby amongst others, all the very best in their continuing battles to obtain their respective international memberships, which are rightfully and legally theirs. (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

The GSD Opposition wishes the Gibraltar Football Association all the very best in finally having its own stadium. It is particularly pleasing to hear that the National Football Stadium will now be sited at Victoria Stadium, (Banging on desks) a location first promoted by the GSD. It seems that where there is a will there is a way, and therefore the GSD was not wrong from the outset in choosing Victoria Stadium as the best site for a UEFA and FIFA fully approved football facility.

The terms and conditions settled by the GFA mean that they will become the custodians of Victoria Stadium and we will offer our full support to the GFA in this respect because there have already been more than enough delays in ensuring home matches are played at home – and that means within Gibraltar itself. It is indeed a great pity that the first round of qualifying home matches in respect of Champions League and Europa League competitions have for the first time this year required players and spectators to make the tedious journey to Faro in order to compete in these prestigious competitions. I must take this opportunity to wish players, officials, and not least the faithful spectators, a safe journey to and from Faro. May the best of Gibraltarian luck accompany Gibraltar's teams in all our matches. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker, I mentioned before ... You beat me to it; we did have a conversation behind the Speaker's Chair this morning and you beat both the Minister and myself in offering our unanimous congratulations to Europa FC. I managed to see, I think, 90% of the game online. It was a magnificent performance. We were 1-0 up – I nearly got the prayer book out when it was 1-1, but the efficiency of our players managed to give us a 2-1 away win, so we certainly look forward to a continued success when we play at home, albeit in Portugal.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): The players, not the prayers!

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes! We also take this opportunity to wish St Joseph Football Club, who I see from social media are already in the blue bus making their way to play their home game, and Lincoln, who I believe are playing away this week, the best of luck. When duties from this Parliament do not prevent, I will certainly try and be present at all the home matches, as has become now my tradition.

The latest developments which should see an improvement to football facilities in Gibraltar will be accompanied by an opportunity to re-provide facilities in favour of other sports elsewhere in Gibraltar. I sincerely trust that the funds which will become available from the premiums paid by the GFA are used wisely and in close consultation with the relevant sporting bodies so that Gibraltar may continue to produce worthy local athletes and develop its sporting talents to the envy of many of our sporting opponents in official competitions.

1470 I am grateful to the Minister for the abridged explanations he gave us of facilities and I certainly wish him to know that I am more than willing to sit with him as often as needed behind the Speaker's Chair so that together we may produce the best facilities and therefore have the best set of local home-grown athletes that will become the envy of many around the world.

1475 With your leave, Mr Speaker, I would like to repeat an offer I made last year during the Budget debate. I offered to the Minister, saying that although I am a firm believer that individual sports governing bodies should be allowed to manage their own affairs with no political interference, I urged him, in his capacity as Chairman of the Sports and Leisure Authority, to take a particular interest to ensure that publicly owned facilities are used in a fair manner for the benefit of all sports lovers. There is both a duty and moral obligation for the Gibraltar Sports Authority to ensure that, where desired by a club or individual citizen, membership in the relevant local governing body is open to all in an equal and fair manner. I offer myself to sit down and discuss with the Minister for Sports and Chairman of the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority possible avenues which may be looked into in order to set up a special independent body tasked with matters pertaining to and requiring arbitration related to local sporting issues. Some disputes have been dragging on for far too long and I am hopeful that by working together with all affected parties solutions can and should be found.

1485 Whilst we have been debating this year's Budget in Parliament during the course of this week, other Gibraltarians have been proudly representing Gibraltar at the 2017 Island Games in Gotland. I am sure I speak once again for the whole House as we offer our collective congratulations to all participants who have achieved podium medals, but we also thank those participants who may not have been as successful in their achievements. We are proud of them because their efforts, always to the best of their ability, continue to make us proud of our sporting fraternity. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) . (Banging on desks)

1490 In recent Questions I asked the Minister for Sport what were the plans for the future use of the Old Garrison Gymnasium. Through his reply this House was told that refurbishment works were being carried out so that this facility could then become available for use by our local sporting fraternity. However, it has been brought to my attention that over the last few days a sign is now situated outside the Garrison Gymnasium signifying that these premises have been allocated to Europa FC. An update with details of any deals that may or may not have been entered into is therefore something which this House should be provided with.

1500 To conclude, Mr Speaker, I wish to reaffirm my personal thoughts that through the collective celebration of social events, participating Gibraltarians continue towards reinforcing our identity, our culture and our history as a people and as a community. Both the performing and fine arts fraternities always prove themselves to be very proactive within their own specialised areas and I take this opportunity to congratulate all the groups and individuals who have done Gibraltar extremely proud through their international participations and in numerous cases even top awards gained. It is always a personal and collective pleasure to be able to say how proud we are of the international achievements of all our fellow Gibraltarians. (Banging on desks)

1510 Mr Speaker: And last, but not least, the Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

1515 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, before I start, I would like to echo the words of Minister Linares and my hon. Friend Edwin Reyes, and take this opportunity to congratulate the wonderful achievements of our sports men and women at the Island Games in Gotland, and to Europa FC on their win last night. (Banging on desks) As always, Mr Speaker, our homeland is doing great, and from this small corner of the House I want to send them my heartfelt congratulations as the medals and victories keep coming in.

1520 Mr Speaker, it was on this occasion a year ago that I stood up to address this House with my maiden Budget speech. As it happened, this was also my first major contribution as an independent member of opposition, and I used it as an opportunity to make my intentions as such clear to both the House and to the people of Gibraltar as a whole. At the time, I was naturally anxious at the turn my parliamentary career had taken, but I was nonetheless always secure about the decision I had made. Over these months, I have been working hard towards meeting these intentions and trying to demonstrate to the electorate that I deserve the privilege they afforded me at the 2015 election. My status as an independent Member has only increased 1525 the sense of responsibility I feel at serving the people of Gibraltar, and 12 months later I can confidently declare that I have found my feet in the business of this House. For that, Mr Speaker, I must thank you and your staff – Danny, Kevin, Frances and of course Paul – for the guidance I have received in terms of parliamentary, clerical and administrative procedures, as well as for the helpful advice that has been provided to me in the discharge of my responsibilities. As an 1530 independent Member of this House, this assistance has been invaluable to me, as it is easy to feel somewhat adrift when one does not have the backing of a party machinery or even the Leader of the Opposition's part-time salary. I have always found your staff approachable and willing to help, (Banging on desks) and I have never felt left to my own devices when finding my way through the practices of this Chamber.

Likewise, I am grateful to all my parliamentary colleagues for their support and encouragement, because while we may all have differing ideologies and approaches, I am in no doubt of the commitment that both benches have to our nation – a commitment that I constantly aspire to replicate in my endeavours. I feel particularly indebted to Minister Neil Costa, who has always treated me with respect and who has always shown himself willing to listen to my ideas and to the concerns I have taken to him. Many have been the times that I have consulted him outside the context of the parliamentary debate and he has proved keen to engage with me and to develop a close partnership for the benefit of the people of Gibraltar.

Finally, and most importantly, I would like to thank the many people who have reassured me, counselled me and congratulated me either in person or by other means. The kind words I have received over this time have further convinced me of my purpose in this House, and the apprehension I may have felt a year ago has been replaced with a stronger sense of conviction to serve this community and continue in the work that I have been carrying out since my first Budget response.
1545

As I reflect on these past 12 months, Mr Speaker, I appreciate what a steep learning curve my first year as a Member of this House has been. There is a great deal that I have had to learn about diplomacy, negotiation, procedure, public relations and the many facets that shape a modern politician. In many ways, in fact, this has very much felt like going back to school, although in school I never got sworn at for failing to do my homework. But it is a learning process that I have enjoyed, and I look back at this year with both fondness and pride.
1550

I am proud of the fact, for example, that this year this House took a momentous step towards a fair society for all by legalising single-sex marriage. I was encouraged that we acknowledged that our democracy is mature enough to recognise the rights of others, regardless of sexual orientation. It will be remembered, however, that I felt that the Bill did not go far enough in eliminating the final bastions of discrimination in our community by allowing Government employees to refuse to discharge their duties on prejudice grounds. To my mind, this ground-breaking Bill that aimed to eradicate discrimination with one hand was devalued by allowing it with the other ... undermining the Chief Minister's claim earlier this week that 'on this side of the House we do not believe in discrimination'. I remained unconvinced by the Government's explanations and reassurances, as I felt they did not address the principle being protected. This is not giving same-sex couples exactly the same rights, as per the Chief Minister's assertion. I was therefore proud to have fought against this clause, and was pleased that three Members of the Opposition broke ranks against their own leader and supported my amendment. This unusual act showed me that this is a House with a conscience, and I daresay that there were more than a few individuals on the opposite side who would have liked to have done likewise.
1565

The debate we all had about mental health and the motion that was subsequently carried through also assured me, Mr Speaker, of this Parliament's genuine commitment towards representing the interests of the less fortunate members of our society. There is no doubt that

1575 mental health patients in Gibraltar are now better served by the decisions we have made in this Chamber, and we have repeatedly demonstrated that we have listened to the concerns of those most affected.

1580 What I was less encouraged by, however, was to see this debate tarnished by an Opposition heavy in its criticisms but light in its proposals, and by a Government focused on trumpeting its own successes while, as usual, belittling the efforts of the previous administration. This conduct is unbecoming of our status as politicians and does little to protect the vulnerable. Of far more value, I felt, was for me to engage with stakeholders in the mental health field – professionals, patients and families – and to come up with a constructive strategy of proposed solutions to improve the services currently available to these individuals. At the same time, the amendment which I proposed eliminated all the unnecessary propagandist bluster, in the process showing that it is possible for the Government and an Opposition Member to engage in constructive dialogue with the sole aim of helping our community and dispensing with the trivial games that so often blight Gibraltarian politics. I was pleased to see the Government recognise these efforts and include some of my amendments while withdrawing elements of their own; my only regret, however, was that my Opposition colleagues failed to acknowledge the merits of both the amendment and of my efforts, so I still feel that this was a wasted opportunity to show true unity in the House where the interests of our community are concerned. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.)

1590 Since then, and as a result of this motion, there has been some progress in how these interests have been further developed. In addition to this, I must, for example, congratulate the volunteers of the Samaritans service recently established on the Rock, as this will give sufferers of mental health issues the independent telephone helpline and other help that we advocated in this House. This is undoubtedly a step in the right direction, but I am disappointed that some of the other measures that we agreed to – such as the publication of data related to mental health matters, and the appointment of more educational psychologists with expertise in these fields – are yet to materialise.

1600 Where I sadly failed to enjoy the support of either side of the House, however, was in the issue of medical cannabis. This was an exciting debate, one that once again demonstrated that our community is more than ready to engage with controversial topics in an intelligent, mature and passionate manner. The public discussion, which reached its zenith in the GBC Viewpoint programme that saw this subject at its heart, exposed troubling discrepancies in Government policy towards cannabis-related medications, with doctors unsure about their legal rights and patients frustrated about being denied treatments that could improve their quality of life.

1605 One could not engage with this debate, Mr Speaker, without empathising with the plight of members of our community who wake up to the prospect of constant pain, a reality that afflicts their lives and those of their families. This debate led to the Government approving the use of Sativex, a cannabis-derived product that is widely available in the United Kingdom but, until then, denied to patients in Gibraltar – or, even worse, made available to only some. I was glad that the inconsistencies in this had been resolved as a result of this debate, but once again I felt that these measures did not go far enough.

1610 I put forward a list of proposals that would have seen Gibraltar take the lead in the prescription, production, supply and research into these products, a strategy that would have embraced innovative thinking in the field of medical science and would have provided both patients and doctors with further treatment options based on the benefit of a natural product. Sadly, I did not win the argument, but I am proud that I fought for this important cause and that I stuck to my progressive principles. I am confident that, in time, these products will become increasingly available to local patients, but what saddens me, however, are the many pained tears that will be needlessly shed in the meantime.

1620 In my inaugural Budget speech last year, Mr Speaker, I vowed to take the Government to task on matters where I felt it was necessary. My record over this time has proved how committed I have been to this. I have drawn the Government's attention to issues as diverse as the worrying

1625 hole regarding student loan payments, where it transpired that Government was not even aware of this historical debt while local students were being chased up to pay debts defaulted by the Government; of broken promises made to the Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association, who in this Budget still receive little attention, despite the Chief Minister's boasts 1630 trendy concept of co-education and how a focus on this should not detract from other priorities facing our education system; on the poor security of some of our schools; on the issue of taxi licences; and even on the state of the paving in Main Street. In some of these cases, Government has itself commended my contributions and has taken action on the issues I have raised. On other matters, regrettably, they have not been so forthcoming. For example, I congratulated 1635 Government on making the Victoria Stadium a smoke-free zone, but I proposed a further ban on smoking in children's play parks. This is something which Government said they would review but, as yet, nothing has materialised. My opinion, as well as one shared by many parents, is that this common sense solution should be implemented with no further delay.

There are also still grave questions that need answering on some aspects of the purchase of 1640 the new Calpe House building. Our community is rightly very proud and fond of this institution, but the asbestos issue has cast the light of scrutiny on some seemingly opaque practices, leading me to call for a Government-led investigation, calls that have hitherto fallen on deaf ears. I have fought this fight on my own, but it is one that I am willing to continue until this Parliament gets the answers that it deserves. Likewise, I famously challenged the Government on school lunches, 1645 a matter that still does not seem to have been satisfactorily resolved. In some of these cases, I have found the Government's response to be evasive, defensive and, in this last example, downright belligerent.

All of this flies in the face of the nonsensical accusations that have been levelled my way that my role is to be a cheerleader for this Government. The evidence clearly demonstrates that 1650 nothing could be further from the truth. I have criticised the Government on a wide range of issues, but where I have disagreed with them I have tried to offer pragmatic solutions rather than standing on the sidelines picking holes. And when I have agreed with them I have said so, because Gibraltar is as fed up of criticism for its own sake as it is of those constant reminders of the GSD's 16 years in office. In fact, Mr Speaker, those detractors may wish to consider instead 1655 those times when I have supported the GSD Opposition in their dealings with Government. I fervently agreed with them, for example, on the issue of the lamentable state of North Front Cemetery, and wholeheartedly supported the motion tabled by my hon. colleague Trevor Hammond, and I am sure that he matches my disappointment in seeing that this House's resolution has not yet completely rectified the situation.

1660 Like the rest of the Opposition, I also expressed concern at the £300 million mortgage taken on Government housing estates, a matter which I will take up more forcefully later in my response to the Budget but which at this point serves as an example of the times when the entire Opposition has been united on a matter of grave importance.

I have appreciated the Opposition's support on some of the other issues I have raised, 1665 particularly that of staff morale and discontent at the employment practices in the GHA, an issue which I first raised in this House and which has been pursued further by my Opposition colleagues. Despite this Department's huge budget – one that is warranted, given its importance to our community – the GHA still went over budget by 15% in the last financial year. For this cost, we would not be blamed for expecting a Rolls-Royce service that is fit for the purposes of 1670 each and every one of our citizens. Instead, however, we are seeing a staff that feels demoralised and burnt out and which recently threatened to walk out over these conditions.
Likewise, we are seeing patients who, as a result of this mayhem, find themselves lacking confidence in this most crucial service provider. There are also concerns about how the integration of the Care Agency with the GHA is being handled. The Care Agency employees are 1675 apprehensive about some posts being eroded by this process, and it is clear that there need to be more detailed consultations with employees as this delicate negotiation proceeds. A common complaint among Care Agency and GHA employees is the lack of response to their concerns, and I am sure that they would appreciate greater openness and inclusion as these important decisions are made.

1680 Mr Speaker, I will continue to take this Government to task on issues of health and also housing, because most of the priorities concerning the many constituents who have come to see me over this time have revolved around these two portfolios, and I will continue to fight on their behalf, be it on my own or with the other individuals sitting on this side of the House. This is not about party politics, but about doing what is right; and besides, I am a 41-year-old mother of 1685 four – I think my cheerleading days are long behind me. Instead, what Gibraltar needs are politicians of conscience and of a sense of responsibility, and working towards meeting those expectations is all that matters to me.

Education is another important priority for our community. Mr Speaker, I have been determined to continue my involvement in this area with regular meetings with the Gibraltar 1690 Teachers' Association and by reaching out to the main stakeholders in the educational field, namely teachers and support staff, parents and of course students. It must never be underestimated that teachers are responsible for the future of our community, and we must never set them or the students in their care up to fail in this responsibility. Government must support educators as their current successes will breed future ones, and unfortunately I have 1695 often found myself dismayed to learn about the issues that teachers confront on an almost daily basis. We are talking about a profession with noble intentions and with the interests of students firmly at heart; but sadly we are also talking about one that is regularly frustrated and demoralised in the exercise of its crucial duties.

A main complaint is that of environment. Many of our school buildings are in a serious state 1700 of disrepair. There are issues of overcrowding, of underinvestment, and of facilities and equipment that are well past their sell-by dates. How can we expect our teachers and students to thrive in these environments? (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) Five, six, seven new schools have been promised within this term of office – I do not know how many – but so far we have seen little of substance, one has to admit, with teachers instead facing the uncertainty of 1705 rumours and having to deal with a make-do culture that is inappropriate to the demands of the profession.

There are also issues with recruitment, selection and promotion, with schools sometimes having to wait lengthy periods for vacancies to be filled. This has a significant impact on school planning and continuity, as well as on pupil progress. Furthermore, these periods of uncertainty 1710 have a devastating effect on teacher morale and on the very fabric of a school staff. It is clear that a far more modern and expeditious process is required, not just new schools, and one that moves away from tiresome bureaucracy and that more truly reflects the needs of schools. Head teachers should not have to face having to prepare for new school years without their school's complement being filled, and a proactive system that pre-empts forthcoming vacancies would 1715 go a long way towards ensuring an efficient process that would ultimately best benefit our students.

Security is another grave concern for Gibraltar's teachers. It is a sad reality that access to some of our schools needs to be more tightly regulated. I do not feel that this is the correct forum to give precise details on some of the holes in the security of particular schools, but I 1720 welcome the Minister of Education's commitment to rectifying this situation as soon as possible, because the reality is that we cannot continue to expose our teachers to any dangers that are presented by their profession and by the current times, and I am pleased to see that this is being made a priority.

Likewise, we also need to recognise that the ICT provision and support in our schools is failing 1725 to keep up with the advances of the technological age, placing education at a significant disadvantage. Our students need to be supported to succeed in the world of tomorrow, and this requires investment in the ICT of today. It is simply not acceptable for teachers and students to have to work with outdated and occasionally faulty equipment, and proper investment in these areas will demonstrate to these stakeholders that their contribution to our society is valued.

1730 Mr Speaker, there are also concerns about the programme that is currently offered in our secondary schools. While it is right that we celebrate our schools' successes at GCSE and A-Level, we also need to consider what is on offer for students with different abilities who can still make a valuable contribution to our community when given the correct support and curriculum. A clear vocational programme with long-term aims needs to be designed in order to address this 1735 gap in our educational sector, ensuring that there is no shortage of skilled labour in the Gibraltar of the future. The College of Further Education's role in all this should also be examined, given that some of its former responsibilities have now been redistributed to the secondary schools and to the University of Gibraltar.

1740 The educational sector is being placed under tremendous pressure to succeed amid very difficult circumstances, and it is a testament to the integrity and professionalism of teachers and support staff that our students are succeeding despite these difficulties. They also raise issues in areas such as lunchtime provision and health and safety in schools, all valid criticisms from the people at the front line of education. Many point to the University of Gibraltar and question why our younger students cannot have access to similar investment.

1745 And, of course, many in the profession would also welcome precise details about how the move to co-education is going to be implemented, with teachers and parents expecting clarity on what could potentially be one of the most important educational decisions our community will face in generations. By ignoring our educators, Mr Speaker, we do a huge disservice to our children.

1750 Our children now need to be placed at the forefront of our priorities, because Gibraltar is facing one of the most turbulent and uncertain times in our history. The result of last year's EU referendum has made many Gibraltarians feel uneasy about our future. There is a natural concern about how Gibraltar will continue to prosper outside the common market and about how our neighbours may exploit the situation to further their ambitions and make life difficult 1755 for Gibraltarians. The reassurances that have been given by the UK government are welcome, but they do not fully eliminate the doubts we now face. Of course, this situation is not one of our choosing, but we must nonetheless accept it and present Gibraltar's case with both eloquence and passion. To that end, Mr Speaker, I presented a submission to the House of Lords EU Select Committee's inquiry into the implications of Brexit for Gibraltar, the only elected 1760 Member of this Opposition to do so. I felt it was my duty as a parliamentarian to supplement the Government's submission and clearly communicate the concerns among our community. It is easy, among the talk about the economy, trade, movement, customs and all the intricate technicalities of a Brexit negotiation, to forget the human angle, and I felt it was important to impart to the committee the worries of the average Gibraltarian who faces this future and this 1765 uncertainty. These worries were confirmed when the EU's negotiating guidelines revealed the infamous clause 22 – now clause 24 – that effectively grants Spain a double veto over Gibraltar issues relating to Brexit negotiations. Once more, it was necessary for Gibraltar's politicians to mobilise themselves in defence of our rights as the world's media spotlight cast a bright light on this injustice. I appeared on both British and Australian television and radio, while also 1770 submitting articles to international publications, continuously defending Gibraltar's cause and drawing attention to the hypocrisy of Spain and the EU's stance. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) At these times, I have consulted the Members opposite and ensured that Gibraltar was presenting a united front on all matters relating to Brexit. (Banging on desks)

1775 I have given the Government both time and space to co-ordinate their efforts in these troubled times and have offered them my support and my advice – for what it is worth – and I have done all this, Mr Speaker, because this is a time too critical for party politics and partisan priorities, and one instead of concord in our vision for a post-Brexit Gibraltar. I have spoken to visiting MPs and MEPs, and while I might feel that the Brexit Select Committee should be meeting more regularly, I have taken my membership of this body seriously simply because

1780 Gibraltar cannot afford for this to go wrong. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) And it will not go wrong, Mr Speaker. Gibraltar has weathered so many storms that fate and injustice have thrown in its path, and we have always emerged stronger and more dignified. We have coped with sieges and floating batteries, with bombs and evacuations, with closed frontiers and naval incursions, and I have no doubt that once again Gibraltar will emerge from 1785 this confusion as a prosperous and thriving community, as ever an example for the world to follow.

My attention now turns to this year's Budget. The annual debate of the Government's financial plans for the year ahead is a necessary demonstration of the openness and transparency required in a modern democracy. Parliamentarians should never forget our 1790 responsibility towards the taxpayers of Gibraltar, and it is imperative that these discussions are had. The issue of such transparency has been given significant focus by my Opposition colleagues, especially Roy Clinton, who have been calling for a Public Accounts Committee to be set up in Gibraltar. I sympathise with the principles behind this plea, but I also understand the Government's concern with the logistical and administrative problems this could cause. Indeed, 1795 Mr Speaker, you better than anyone will probably remember that my father's AACR Government adopted a similar move in the 1980s, only to find the system unsuitable. So, in an attempt to satisfy both sides of the argument, I once again repeat my call, as I did last year, for an Autumn Budget Statement, similar to the one had in the United Kingdom, that will add a layer of transparency and accountability to how the Government uses Gibraltar's money. This would 1800 present a valuable opportunity for parliamentarians to monitor spending without over-taxing civil servants with tasks that may remove them from directly serving the public, and I trust that a Government that has always prized transparency will not hesitate to consider the idea.

But, for now, I would like to thank Government for providing this year's Budget book – this Budget book – but I feel compelled to ask: where is the other book, (Banging on desks) the one 1805 with the details of borrowing and spending of all Government-owned entities and, most importantly, the spending that has been conveniently kept out of the public eye through financial engineering and legal opinions? Because, my hon. Friends, we are being asked to assess a Budget that is incomplete and presents only a part of the Government's borrowing and spending. There is an equally important budget of borrowing and spending that is never 1810 reported, debated or accounted for. This must change. Otherwise, this can feel like a hollow process, and one that does not give the appropriate scrutiny to how Gibraltar's finances are handled. (Hon. R M Clinton: Hear, hear.) There is no real distinction between the Government's useable cash reserves and the pools of cash held by Government-owned companies. Similarly, there is no material difference between the debt held by one public entity and another. It is all 1815 public debt, just as all Government spending is public spending. It should all be reported and accounted for to Parliament in this Budget. Pretending there is a difference and labelling some of the Government debt as unrelated to the public sector is doing a great injustice and the people of Gibraltar cannot be kept in the dark any longer. Across the community there is a growing demand for the Government to present the true picture of public finances and 1820 spending.

It may be a tough fact to swallow, but public debt includes the borrowing of public sector entities. This is the case in the UK, in the EU and across the world. Otherwise, does it not show the budget process to be little more than a sham?

Mr Speaker, our Government taxes and borrows in order to meet planned expenditure, so 1825 therefore I petition the Government to report on all current and planned Government expenditure. This is the only way to prevent our people feeling that they are being kept in the dark about what is being spent by Government-owned companies. It is wrong, Mr Speaker, to pretend that this spending is unrelated to the public sector, and I urge Government to rectify this issue in order to achieve the full transparency that this electorate deserves. (Banging on desks)

1835 It is illogical, Mr Speaker, that what is missing from this year's Budget is the largest financial transaction undertaken by the Government this past year: a £300 million loan, mortgaged over the lion's share of Government-owned housing – our prized assets; £300 million amounts to over 97% of net public debt forecasted for March 2018. It is hugely material to the Budget presented. As much as we may be lured to believe that this loan is an investment in Gibraltar, the cold fact is that it is not an investment: it is a mortgage on our estates. (Banging on desk) When the term 'investment' is used to describe a loan, people are being misled in a fundamental and diametrically opposed way. It is abundantly clear that the groups that lent the money to the Government did so in return for a first lien on 80 estate buildings and a Government guarantee to return the capital with interest.

1840 Let's be very careful about what we are doing and saying here. If we are saying that the London lenders who provided the capital are bearing the risk of the investment, then we are also saying that there is a chance that the Government will default on the £300 million loan and the estate homes repossessed.

1845 So, what are the Government's spending plans for the £300 million? How much has already been spent? What are the returns from this spending that our estates are collateralising? This is also the Budget that I would like to hear about, and I cannot sit idly by and watch the people of Gibraltar being presented with only half the story. (Banging on desks) We deserve more, Mr Speaker, much more. Government has said that this borrowing is earmarked for infrastructure and other profitable ventures, not manifesto commitments or ordinary Government spending. However, we are yet to receive in this Budget or elsewhere detail of the actual use of proceeds. Gibraltar has made a significant infrastructure investment in the east side that has been looking for a developer for several years. How does the Government plan to be more successful with additional infrastructure investments and land reclamations while the east side reclamation lies barren?

1850 Much of regular Government spending, such as roads, parks, health services, education-related spending and university fees, have no specific identifiable monetary return. Can the Government guarantee that the borrowed money will be used to invest in projects with a higher return than the return promised to our lenders? What is the planned timing for the undisclosed spending? If we are indeed headed towards harsher times, then we need to tighten our belts and take prudent measures rather than doubling down by borrowing large amounts at a time of increased Brexit-related uncertainty. We should be protecting our borrowing capacity, rather than burning straight through it.

1865 For the sake of transparency and accountability, Mr Speaker, it is important for a broad range of information on public sector liabilities, obligations and contingencies to be made readily available, whether or not formally included within Government balance sheets. Concerned Gibraltarians see the increase in off-balance sheet borrowing from the savings bank followed by the estates mortgage as clear evidence that the Government has over stretched financially, and, as a result, it is now having to mortgage the family silver. But how can Government reassure us to the contrary when we are not actually entitled to scrutinise them?

1870 Debt is highly addictive, Mr Speaker: the more you borrow, the more you need to continue borrowing to keep up with the increased spending levels. If the Government's first term spending was partially funded by the debentures of pensioners and savers, and the second term by the mortgage of our housing estates, how will the commitments of a potential third term be funded? When we increase borrowing and spending in an unsustainable way, we are selling off our future income – we are spending today our children's income of tomorrow.

1880 Mr Speaker, we live in a world that does not respond well to a lack of transparency. We have witnessed economies suffer and even collapse as a result of incomplete government reporting and unchecked spending. Typically, when the actual state of government finances emerges, addressing the problem becomes costly and painful.

We need Gibraltar to run a sustainable, responsible and fully transparent sector. There is no viable alternative, not even on a temporary basis. The stakes are too high. It is not important 1885 who started borrowing and spending off balance sheet; what is important is who has the courage to end it. I implore the Government to find that courage for the good of our democracy and for the security of our future.

1890 The Budget is also an exciting time for a politician because it sees the Gibraltarian public engage more directly with this House. To this end, I publicly invited Gibraltarians to submit issues and concerns that they would like raised in this Budget session. Their responses ranged from much anticipation about the long-awaited tunnel, which is causing chaos and mayhem on our roads, to much concern on general Government overspending, or even to an elderly gentleman telling me that he was denied use of the hydrotherapy pool due to lack of manpower, as was the excuse given. So, Mr Speaker, it seems we cannot even get our basic needs to run smoothly, and yet there we are borrowing £300 million that we cannot even ask questions about.

1895 The state of our schools was also a big worry for many parents who spoke to me about the deplorable condition of the toilets and walls, with classrooms suffering from lack of heating in the winter and air-conditioning in the summer. And even if, Mr Speaker, we have been promised five, six, seven state-of-the-art new schools within this electoral term, this does not excuse what our children and teachers are enduring in this day, every day. Unsurprisingly, I received a number of complaints from parents about the state of St Martin's School. These ranged from severely cramped conditions to the fact that portakabins seem to have been added to the most impractical of places. This is causing chaos at pick-up and drop-off times, particularly for children in wheelchairs, and I can only imagine what the situation must be like on rainy days. Even if a state-of-the-art new school is planned for St Martin's, Mr Speaker, the current building cannot be neglected in the meantime in this way.

1905 I also received concern about the shortage of businesses open on weekends, especially when cruises are in town, as well as the lack of tourist attractions open on Bank Holidays. This dents our tourist product and economy at a time when we should be looking to be more dynamic than ever, Mr Speaker.

1910 So, offering our citizens a chance to express their thoughts and ideas about the current state of our homeland made for an interactive exercise that reflected the anxieties of the average Gibraltarian. In addition to mentioning these issues at this stage, I would like to reassure the respondents that I will be drawing the Government's attention to their concerns over the course of the parliamentary year and hope to get helpful and purposeful answers over the course of these debates.

1915 Individuals from the finance sector, for their part, also reported some reflections. With reference to insurance firms, in Enterprise we have seen a failure that sent shockwaves across Europe, yet any introspectiveness has been slow to progress, and if there have been findings they have not been made public. If we see another failure on this scale, can we recover, is the question. And as for gaming, with Paddy Power and Betfair leaving Gibraltar, and 888 and others mulling their positions, can we continue to use our tax regime as the primary draw for gaming firms? Access to the EU is no longer on the table. Uncertainty prevails, yet the current administration has placed us in a position of debt, the extent of which we have never seen and cannot see at the moment. Is austerity their answer? Is this another sign of a dark budget that must be brought to light, Mr Speaker? We have also seen Barclays leave, and Newcastle Building Society recently announced its departure. Last year, NatWest revealed that 13 staff members are being made redundant, despite the high-profile departure of Barclays. Why are we seeing workforce being trimmed when there is more demand on their service? We should seek assurances that they would remain, Mr Speaker, because we need a global bank for our global marketplace.

1930 With reference to distributed ledger technology we must be cautious in our approach to the regulation of virtual currencies, which are still immature and subject to skirt money laundering laws and legislation relating to the financing of terrorist activities. We must ensure the same strong controls and diligence that we hold our financial services to should not be compromised

1935 in our attempt to attract these firms to Gibraltar, and no shortcuts to regulation should be put in place. We should work with the early pioneers in these fields, while being bold in seeking to be a global leader in this space. These are all valid questions and concerns from experts in this field, Mr Speaker, and I look forward to raising their concerns more directly in Parliament and receiving suitable clarifications and reassurances from the Government benches, because this is 1940 exactly what this Budget process should involve, Mr Speaker. This is a debate, an exchange of ideas where we consider various views and form conclusions based on what is best for the community we represent. As a Member of the Opposition it is my duty to challenge this Bill and continue taking the Government to task. It would be remiss of me not to raise the many concerns that are being expressed by members of the financial sector about the lack of clarity 1945 and transparency in this Budget.

I am disappointed that some of the issues I have raised about education, health, housing, transport and many others are being neglected, and I worry about how sustainable these public debt figures are for our community – and I pray that the Government is correct in all its calculations and reassurances.

1950 However, I must say I find the Opposition's unprecedented decision to vote against this Budget irresponsible, cynical and completely against the interests of Gibraltarians. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) Irresponsible, because if it were to take full effect, the consequences to the community would be devastating, paralysing our community in its entirety from our schools to our economy and our essential services. (Banging on desks) None 1955 other than Sir Peter Caruana himself – who has been dubbed as the greatest Gibraltarian of all times, although maybe I have a different view about that (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) – the own GSD's own erstwhile leader, once remarked that it was important for all parliamentarians to vote in favour of a budget 'in order not to deprive the Government of funding and civil servants of their pay'. I therefore find this move to be little more than a 1960 cosmetic and sterile marketing stunt that smacks more of desperation than it does a responsible approach to politics.

I have decided, instead, to put the interests of Gibraltarians first, as did the greatest Gibraltarian of all times. (Banging on desks) It has been a longstanding tradition for politicians in this House, in an act of statesmanship and responsibility, to vote in favour of budgets, even if, as 1965 is the case with this one, they have honest doubts about them. I will not deploy gimmicks which undermine the welfare of civil servants and basic public services, if only symbolically, and I will not allow my vote, meant to represent only these interests, to be abducted in this way. I will therefore honour this longstanding convention and vote in favour of the Budget, notwithstanding the many criticisms I have already made. (Banging on desks) But this support, 1970 Mr Speaker, comes with a word of caution. I urge the Government to heed the concerns that have been expressed from these Opposition benches on issues of transparency and rigour.
These concerns are not just from the mouths of opposing politicians, but also from financial experts and members of our community who are genuinely anxious about our nation's spending.
The questions that are being asked are legitimate ones and the Government needs to address 1975 them, because if the Government does not heed these concerns it may find that it will not just be Opposition votes that it will risk losing.

So, to conclude, Mr Speaker, we are coming to the end of an eventful period, both for myself and for the political world as a whole. As I look back over these past 12 months, though, I find myself increasingly secure in my role, a far cry from any doubts I may have had when I addressed 1980 this House at the last budget session. From what has been termed by some as this 'rocket chair', where two former Chief Ministers have sat before, from the minority status that has in times been enjoyed by the likes of Joe Bossano, Dr Joseph Garcia, Peter Montegriffo and Sir Peter Caruana, I have been able to discern my role most clearly: to provide a constructive opposition, one that challenges the Government when it is warranted but supports it when it is deserved.
1985 My role here is not to simply pick holes, but to help fill them and to provide Gibraltar with the honest and productive democracy it merits.

1990 My position has given me an invaluable vantage point from which to obtain a true sense of the needs of our times. Mr Speaker, I have come to realise that this is a time for courage, not cowardice; a time to step forward and show face, not to hide behind fake profiles; a time for leaders, not mouthpiece activists; a time for stability, not disarray; a time for solutions, not problems; a time for criticism, not ridicule; a time for constructive proposing, not destructive opposing; a time for hope for a better future, not a craving for chaos in order to reach one's personal goals; a time for conviction, not indecision; a time for leading, not in-fighting; it is, Mr Speaker, a time for something new.

1995 People all over the world are crying out for a new kind of leadership, Mr Speaker, one that reflects the real hopes and aspirations of the people, built on the values of generosity and closeness, on honesty and on a bold, optimistic approach to politics. In response to massive global challenges, people are starting to vote not only with their minds but also with their hearts. I believe that here too, in Gibraltar, people want politicians who are close, honest and understand their real aspirations; politicians who work for their citizens, not for partisan visions, egos or agendas. (Hon. Chief Minister: Hear, hear.)

2000 I became an independent MP because I was not ready to let myself be dragged into the mire of mudslinging politics. (A Member: Hear, hear.) I will therefore not respond to insults and petty accusations thrown at me in this House. Nor will I engage with social media bullying, through fake profiles or not – not even, for example, with the Leader of the Opposition, who hides behind the profiles of members of our community to fight his battles against me. (Interjections)
2005 And you, Mr Speaker – (Interjections)

2010 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, a point of order!

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: And you, Mr Speaker: stand up and be counted!

Hon. D A Feetham: A point of order! (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

2015 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Stand up and be counted! Stand up and be counted! (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Hon. D A Feetham: A point of order, Mr Speaker!

2020 Mr Speaker: May I ask –

Hon. D A Feetham: Point of order, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Order!

2025 Hon. D A Feetham: Point of order, Mr Speaker.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: If I may finish –

2030 Mr Speaker: May I ask the hon. Lady to sit down, and I ask the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition to sit down – and they are not to shout at me. I have told him before that I am not prepared to have him shout at me. If you want to raise a point of order, you do so calmly, but you do not shout at the Speaker. If he is in doubt as to where that comes from, he can read through this, as I was doing yesterday afternoon, anticipating, as I was, some trouble.

2035 Now, what is your point of order – and tell me, what is the Standing Order? What is the rule from this book under which you are raising your point of order?

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the point of order is very simple. The hon. Lady has got to make herself responsible for any allegations that she makes before this House. She has said that I am hiding behind a fake profile or a profile from a member of this community. That is utterly false, and therefore if she has any evidence in relation to that she should bring it – or what she can do is not hide behind parliamentary privilege and therefore make the allegations outside, where at least I can then basically challenge her. (Interjection) (Mr Speaker: Order!) Mr Speaker, there is a rule in this House that you cannot make allegations without making yourself responsible factually for them, and what she has said is utterly not true.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that. I think it is very important for the Leader of the Opposition to demand clarification.

I actually know the person that the Leader of the Opposition hides behind and I met him in Irish Town and asked him why he was speaking against me about Calpe House – Mr Michael Bain – and he told me, ‘Well, you know, it’s the Leader of the Opposition, who uses my profile,’ and I told him, ‘There’s a very easy way’ – (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham) Mr Speaker, can I speak now, because I did not interrupt him. I said, ‘There’s a very easy way to stop that by changing your Facebook profile,’ and he shrugged like he did not really feel like he wanted to ask the Leader of the Opposition to do that.

So I am very, very comfortable with what I am saying in Parliament –

A Member: It’s in Hansard.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: – and I want the media to know that they are welcome to interview me outside whenever they want and I will repeat the accusations because I know that they are true and I was told by the very person; otherwise I would not be so irresponsible. And let me say, Mr Speaker, he also attacks you under the profile of Michael Bain. (Interjection) Anyway, if I can carry on –

Hon. D A Feetham: Outrageous, Mr Speaker!

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Yes, what is outrageous is for the Leader of the Opposition to be using another member of the community’s profile instead of dando la cara as the Leader of the Opposition should. (Banging on desks) (Hon. D A Feetham: Outrageous!) Yes, it’s very outrageous – it’s never been seen before!

Hon. D A Feetham: You’re destructive!

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Yes, yes, I’m destructive –

Mr Speaker: Would the hon. Member please sit down.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I’m destructive to your aspirations!

Mr Speaker: Since 9.30 this morning we have had an excellent debate in which very high standards have been achieved and in which elected Members have been doing the business for which the electorate have put them here and pay them, by and large, most handsomely. I would urge hon. Members to keep to that high standard. It is a pity that at the end of nearly four hours of excellent parliamentary debate anyone, by an injudicious word, should lower the standard and bring the House into disrepute.

I urge hon. Members for the rest of this session: keep your cool. Do not shout, keep your cool – if you do not, one of you may have to sit in this Chair because I am not prepared to allow this House’s standards to be lowered. I have always said that I am the Speaker of Parliament, 2090 dedicated to maintaining the dignity of this Parliament for the sake of the city and the nation that we all love. So keep your cool and let us see if we can finish the session, renewing tomorrow morning as we have done up until now.

The hon. Lady.

2095 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, as I was saying, I did not leave the comfort of a party bench for this, and I did not expose myself to attacks from both sides of the House to engage in a childishness that disappoints and alienates the electorate. This is the real toxic behaviour we suffer from, Mr Speaker, and I have moved away from this for good. My job is to propose and to be useful for the Gibraltarian electorate, and this is what allows me to stay relevant, even if I am on my own. So I will continue working for the good of the people of Gibraltar regardless of how this impacts on either of the parties in this House. I work for them now, not for any of you.

2100 I feel that this new direction is just beyond the horizon, that these uncertain times are calling for an end to a stagnant political scene that has been dominated by the same two parties for over 25 years. These 12 months have shown me that I am ready for the next challenge in my political career – to offer Gibraltar new options, new ideas and new directions. I have proved that there is room in this House for a different way of doing politics, and I hope that the people of Gibraltar feel excited, like I do, about the possibilities that this could offer. I face the next year with optimism, with energy and with an unshakeable belief that the next 12 months will see us all emerge stronger together.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

2115 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker, I rise, to start my right of reply, to recess the House in order to do that tomorrow, but I would just ... I do not think I can recess the House immediately without saying that it looks like the countdown to ignition on the rocket chair has started. There is much that the hon. Lady has said with which I agree, much with which I disagree, and much which I just cannot believe; and as I pick my jaw up off the floor she has obviously taken off her rose-tinted spectacles and put on her Hassan-framed spectacles – I think she imitates her father in that respect.

Adjournment

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I adjourn the House, Mr Speaker, to tomorrow at 10 a.m., when I will exercise my right to reply in respect of the Bill.

2125 Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn to tomorrow at 10, when we will hear the Chief Minister's winding-up speech.

The House adjourned at 1.37 p.m.

Clerk: Meeting of Parliament, Thursday, 29th June.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker, what a year it has been since I last summed up a Budget in this House, in political terms at an international level but indeed in political terms at a national level, and some of the things that we are seeing played out on the benches opposite are really without precedent in the parliamentary history of Gibraltar. But the political history of Gibraltar is something that we shall look at now in some detail in the context of this debate, in the context of Budgets, Appropriation Bills, debates on the Estimates in this House since the 1969 Constitution, to understand what it is that has played out in the past 72 hours and the import of what it is that some purport to do in this House.

Mr Speaker, perhaps it is because it is already summer that some of the debates get heated and people get hot under the collar, because it was not ever thus in this debate. It was not always an acrimonious debate, where people got hot under the collar and said things about their opponents that are really, although parliamentary, not designed to produce a Parliament working together. And of course I say all that under the spectre of the first time in the history of this Parliament – indeed, in the first time of the history of democracy in Gibraltar, going back before the lifetime of this Parliament and before the 1969 Constitution – that an Opposition has threatened to vote against the appropriation sought by the Government.

But of course I say an ‘Opposition’ for shorthand. I should say an ‘official Opposition’, because the hon. Lady, although she has had a hammer-and-tongs go at the Government in some of the things that she has said, understands the importance of voting in favour of this appropriation. And I thought I might be able to say the ‘official Opposition’, and yet last night on the principal television news programme I find out that it is not even the whole of the official Opposition that is going to take that position. I know that Mr Reyes, for very good reason, which he has explained to me – he had the courtesy to explain to me in person yesterday – is not going to be here and is therefore not going to be able to exercise his vote, but it is the first time that a Leader of the Opposition has said, ‘I am going to lead such of my faction as might decide to follow me on this occasion to a negative vote on the Estimates.’

If that is going to be a parliamentary change, Mr Speaker, we need to understand whether it is a good thing for Gibraltar that that is going to change or a bad thing for Gibraltar that the tradition is going to change. And if it is a bad thing for Gibraltar that it is going to change, Gibraltar will know how to deal with those that have brought about a bad change for Gibraltar, because all of us who are here are passionate about Gibraltar – and let me make space for one of the persons who has been most passionate in his life and has demonstrated it with his contributions in this House for many years.

40 Mr Speaker, we are all passionate about Gibraltar and that passion for Gibraltar is supposedly what brings us here to make the effort to be in politics, to make the sacrifices that being in politics entails. We are not supposed to be here for our egos, we are not supposed to be here to give full vent to our political ambitions or indeed our accounting peccadillos; we should not be here for anything other than for Gibraltar. Wherever Gibraltar puts us, on that side or on this side, our first and guiding principle must be to do right by Gibraltar. We do that in an adversarial system and we have to therefore do it by way of confrontation. I defend the adversarial system, 45 I think it is a good thing for Gibraltar, but always with us in an adversarial system being advocates for Gibraltar, not for ourselves individually, as some appear to be. And yet in this debate some people have come apparently not caring about Gibraltar and not caring about the consequences, of the things they have said and of the things they have said they will do, on 50 Gibraltar.

Some people, Mr Speaker, seem to care more about the headlines they might grab than on the effects their words could have on Gibraltar, and I am going to focus on two. I am going to focus on Mr Feetham and Mr Clinton, because I think what I have to say about this subject has to do with them and not with the other Members – even of the official Opposition, let alone 55 Mr Llamas. Being rivals in an adversarial system should not seek to bring us into a situation where, in order to undermine each other, we forget about the interests of the client, although I know many instances where perhaps we might have that discussion about some on the other side and their client might not have been the most important thing in their minds.

So let's do this exercise, Mr Speaker, looking at the political history of Gibraltar, and let's see 60 what the political history of Gibraltar teaches us about debt, hidden debt, company debt, inflated accounts, flattered accounts, allegations of bankruptcy and allegations of potential bankruptcy. I am going to start in the administration of the IWBP in 1969-72. History, we all know, will teach us everything and it is a fool that thinks that history will teach us nothing, but history is sometimes a dense subject. If anybody thinks that this is going to be a dense exercise, 65 they would be wrong. This exercise I think is going to be very informative, and anyone who is even in the slightest a political buff or a political geek is going to enjoy it, and anyone who has the economic interest of the history of Gibraltar and the future of Gibraltar in mind is going to see how important it is to do this exercise.

Mr Speaker, I have pleasure in telling you that you are going to feature prominently in the 70 historical exercise I am going to do. Given the experience that we always refer to you having, you are therefore an important participant in the exercise I am going to do.

I cannot, I confess, find a good record of Hansard reflecting the debates on Estimates between 1969 and 1972; I can find the vote but I cannot find the detail of the debate. There is a much better Hansard available for 1973 onwards, which is the AACR administration, and so I am 75 going to be able to quote more extensively from there. But let it just be clear on the record that between 1969 and 1972, with Bob Peliza as Chief Minister, Sir Bob Peliza as he then became and Speaker of this House also, and Joshua Hassan as Leader of the Opposition, the fearsome political operator – you do not become Chief Minister of Gibraltar for 40 years without being a fearsome political operator and it is obvious there are people in this House who have his legacy, 80 Mr Speaker. On that occasion, in those three years, with Peter Isola as an independent Member of the Government, and Joe Bossano the king across the water at that time, on no occasion did the Opposition, the AACR, which had then been in government for 20 years and found itself for the first time in Opposition, did they ever vote against the Estimates or did they even threaten to vote against the Estimates. Probably nothing worse than being in Government and suddenly finding yourself on the other side, and yet they knew how to deal with that, raising points but 85 not threatening to vote against.

The record of Hansard starting in 1973 gives us a much better flavour of the debates that were ongoing, and I can see, reading it and reading those Hansards, this House comes to life again with its old wood panelling that some so miss. It really comes to life, and I can see that the political rivalries in those days were not soured by personal animosity. There is a magnificent quotation from Joe Bossano speaking from the Opposition benches for the first time, doing an economic analysis that ... Maurice Xiberras said:

‘It is the first time we have had a Gibraltarian do such an economic analysis and not a Financial Development Secretary brought from the UK, and what a good thing this would be for the history of Gibraltar to have a Joe Bossano in this House.’

Nothing has changed there, Mr Speaker. Joe Bossano is your shadow but he speaks before you in the context of that debate because he shadows other people, and I think he spoke just after the Financial Development Secretary had presented. But he says something to you, Mr Speaker. He quotes something at you which you had said on television in a debate in the context of some industrial strife in 1972 in the run up to the general election, and these will be the watchwords for my reply during the course of this debate. This is what Joe Bossano says you said on television, and you then later in the debate accept it is what you said:

We have not been elected to preside over the liquidation of the society which, though admittedly imperfect, has been built over the years by Gibraltarians of goodwill. Gibraltar will not be destroyed, so help us God.

Bossano quoting Canepa and saying Canepa is right. We have not been elected to preside over the liquidation of a society which, although admittedly imperfect, has been built over the years by Gibraltarians of goodwill: Mr Speaker, I fully adopt your words and the quotation of you from Joe Bossano.

What was going on at the time? What was the debate about? What was the Opposition, then the IWBP before the Hattersley memorandum, saying in ... I see Mr Llamas has just arrived; I have never been so pleased to see him, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) Before the Hattersley Memorandum, what was the IWBP Opposition saying to the AACR that had just got back into government? Well, this is how you reflected, in reply to Joe Bossano, what Joe Bossano was saying of the AACR in 1973’s Budget:

Sir, ever since we resumed this evening at 9.30 p.m.

– late sittings in those days –

we have been hearing the Hon. Mr Bossano mainly on a very – for me, practically a layman in financial matters – very informative discourse on the finances of the territory. I do not think it is within my province to even attempt to answer many of those diverse weighty matters that he has raised.

It sounds like a Cabinet meeting, Mr Speaker!

A message, sir, that has, however, got through to me, has been that of –

– and this is what Bossano was saying – muddy, hidden-away-somewhere estimates, particularly revised estimates, inflated, sinister transfers of money from the recurrent expenditure into the Improvement and Development Fund, underestimated revenue from a conservative Financial Secretary, or at least underestimated revenue expectations. This is the message, sir that has got through to me and I see it purely under the general heading, or under the general accolade that I expect to be levelled at this Government of being arch super cicutas. However, sir, considering myself, as I say, in these financial matters purely a cicutilla, I do not think I will comment on that.

Well, Mr Speaker, the things that Joe Bossano was saying in 1973 do not seem a million miles different to the things we have heard, apparently as new discoveries from the putative Accountant General opposite! (Laughter) But that was in 1973 – 44 years ago; I was one year old – and the Opposition were saying that the Government was hiding money, hiding transactions, that you were inflating the estimates, that there were sinister transfers of money from the Recurrent Expenditure Fund to be flattered into the Improvement and Development Fund projects.

Mr Speaker, it is exactly the same thing Mr Feetham has been saying for the past five years. Maybe he is a better student of history than I thought. One of the degrees that he has – because 120 I do not know how he managed to get us to pay for more than one – is History, and he is saying the same thing to us that Joe Bossano said to you 44 years ago. So I suppose there is no point getting hot under the collar because of the things that they have said to us this week – Mr Feetham and Mr Clinton, and even Ms Hassan Nahon, although in a much more elegant tone – exactly the same things that Joe Bossano was alleging against you and Joshua Hassan 44 years 125 ago. You see, the only clear distinction, which comes across even then, is that Joe Bossano's position that there is nothing wrong with borrowing as long as it the right sort of borrowing designed for the right sort of purpose, not to pay recurrent expenditure and always in a way that can be repaid and the money invested in income-producing projects.

Mr Speaker, the most important thing to note about the debate in 1973 and the reason why I 130 went to the Hansard is that despite all of these allegations – hidden funds, inflated estimates, etc., all of the same things we heard this year – the Opposition voted with the Government to approve the Budget.

Mr Speaker, as history moves on the rows get worse. Usually we think that in the halcyon old 135 days people were just more polite to each other. Actually, what I detect is that the Budget seems to come later in the year from March, April, May, June, and by the time it gets to July there is very little elegance left in the House. I think it has got more to do with the temperature than it does with the age.

But having read what I read when I started the exercise, I am almost minded to sit down, allow them to do what they like and know confidently that our society will not be liquidated, we 140 will not be destroyed and it is very likely that in 40 years somebody called Hassan, somebody called Bossano, somebody called Feetham and perhaps even somebody called Isola and somebody called Picardo might get up and say the same thing, whoever is here, and yet society will not be liquidated, we will not be destroyed.

But let us cut forward 18 years. In that period there are absolutely no instances of the IWBP 145 voting against the AACR, the DPBG voting against the AACR, the Gibraltar Democratic Party voting against the AACR, or even the GSLP in the period 1984 to 1988 voting against the AACR; robust debates, the same sort of issues, but never a vote against. I wonder what it is that makes the hon. Gentlemen opposite think they are better than Bossano, than Hassan, than Peliza, than Xiberras, than Caruana, that they have come up with something that those giants had not 150 thought of.

In 1990, Mr Speaker, Joe Bossano is Chief Minister, you are Leader of the Opposition, and there is an independent Member in the House. Still, Mr Speaker, I find it remarkable when I look 155 at the Hansards, the relationship between you – although ideologically, for some reason not in the same party, dancing on a pinhead of differences, but still hugely affectionate. Now that you are Leader of the Opposition, Mr Speaker, this is what you have to say about the 1990 GSLP Estimates:

I shall be dealing not just with what the Estimates for 1990-91 reveal but, what is just as important, if not more so, in our view, with what they do not reveal.

Mr Speaker, we really need to think of something else to say to each other next year.

To finance this growth, the GSLP are taking a huge gamble with their economic plan, a plan which is dependent on investments from outside and investments from the Government by way of an unprecedented level of borrowing. The Government already has powers to borrow up to £100 million.

160 A huge amount in those days; £100 million must have seemed an impossible number in those days. Debt was then something like £6.4 million in 1988 when you left, and now it was going up to £100 million.

It is the taxpayers of today and not tomorrow who for many years to come will have to pay back these huge debts.

Twenty-seven years ago.

If the gamble does not come off and Gibraltar cannot pay back these loans, then our people, the most important resource we have, as Mr Bossano is so fond of telling us, will be the ones who are going to arrive at the crossroads where one of the signposts points to bankruptcy.

165 That was very robust, Mr Speaker; it was a very robust speech. It goes on. I wish I could read everybody the whole of it. It was well informed. I could see Bossano with his economic plan versus Mr Canepa with his view of how things should be done – a very robust debate, almost saying, Mr Speaker, you could take us down the road of bankruptcy. We have heard it all before, Mr Speaker. What did you do? Page 145 of the Estimates. Despite that very robust countering of the Estimates presented by the Chief Minister of the day, following tradition, Mr Speaker:

We will vote in favour.

Mr Speaker then put the question, which was resolved in the affirmative and the Bill was read a second time.

170 Well, Mr Speaker, as we all know, bankruptcy was not the result of those eight years of GSLP Government. You can have many differences of opinion about what the GSLP Government of 1988 to 1996 did, but what it did not do was lead us to bankruptcy. In fact, Sir Peter Caruana, in his own valedictory speech in this debate two years ago, said that those eight years, giving huge credit to Joe Bossano, are what enabled us to deal with the change from an MoD economy to a private sector led economy. And so, far from bankruptcy – although he kept saying that in the four years between 1992 and 1996, to only take it back in 2015 – what Peter Caruana found was pots of cash. This is exactly what he had to say in the Hansard of 2015. Talking about Mr Bossano in very affectionate terms, with Joe Bossano appropriately not here to hear him, Mr Speaker:

175 the great divide

– said Sir Peter Caruana of him and Joe Bossano –

in domestic economic terms was Joe's, I suspect, still held 'rainy day fund' mentality when it comes to economic stewardship versus our approach at the time which was that Gibraltar needed to spend, to grow, to reposition, to create an environment, to create a climate, a fiscal as well as a reputational environment, in which further investment would become more attractive to foreign investors and that way start a snowball rolling which only Government funding at that time could really do in sufficient measure.

180 So, GSLP rainy day fund. No longer allegations from Caruana versus Bossano of bankruptcy – a rainy day fund. Spending profligacy: GSD policy. So the idea that somehow today the GSD is telling us that we have to have something called a rainy day fund, as if that were something that we needed telling, Mr Speaker ... This is beyond a joke, and this is too serious now for jokes because we are spending, we are investing, but we are also maintaining rainy day funds, something they did not maintain, as we found out when we were elected.

185 Anyway, I have got to 1990, and 21 years after the 1969 Constitution no Opposition had ever voted against the Budget presented by a Government, even though the accusations flying across the floor of the House were as tough as they are today; perhaps more elegantly put and perhaps, until 1991-92, with less animosity injected into them.

190 So let's look at what happens when Sir Peter is first elected. Brace yourselves, Mr Speaker, if those who are watching think that they know what the relationship between Bossano and Caruana was like because they remember that it was difficult, but let me read you what Joe

Bossano said to Peter Caruana when he was first elected into the House in his first Budget debate – because I must say I found it to be in disappointingly fond terms, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) Joe Bossano, as Chief Minister, said this to the newly elected independent Member, Peter Caruana:

Mr Speaker, before I make my contribution on the Estimates of Expenditure, and indeed on the state of the economy, I would like to take the opportunity as Leader of the House to welcome our newly elected Member and to say that we look forward to his constructive contribution to the debates in this House.

195 He had not opened his mouth yet.

He occupies, of course, the seat that I had for 16 years, – she knows which one that is, Mr Speaker, the rocket chair –

so he can now start getting used to how long it takes to move from that side of the House to this side of the House. We believe that the role of Parliament has to be not simply to try and trip up the Government but also to help the evolution of good government by making positive suggestions when Members on the other side see things that they in principle are not opposed to, which I think must be a fair proportion of the work that we do.

Exactly as you said Joe Bossano had behaved in the context of his contribution to the Estimates in 1973.

We understand that there are things where there are fundamental policy differences, but in principle, when they are opposed to it we would expect that we would be able to make contributions which would enable us to improve the quality of what we hope to be able to do for the benefit of the people of Gibraltar, and as I say, Mr Speaker, I look forward to his positive contributions.

200 So it was not just Sir Peter being fond of Joe Bossano; in the early days it might have gone a different way.

And then Peter Caruana started his analysis, Mr Speaker. This is the first GSD analysis of a GSLP Budget on record. It is in March 1991. It is essential that we look at what the GSD was saying in 1991, Mr Speaker:

Ministers in this Government, who in effect spend their time wheeling and dealing behind closed doors in relation to public assets that they are not willing to account publicly for what they are doing.

Exactly what we have been told today, or this week.

Mr Speaker, it is, in our view, incorrect and indefensible that public assets and money should be injected, invested or in any other way made available to private companies, whether they be Government-owned or joint venture companies, without public accountability of that fact. The fact of the matter is that hon. Members opposite should not forget that, unlike the practice in the United Kingdom, there is no filing of accounts by companies at the Public Companies Registry and that therefore if the Government is not prepared to give information the information simply never becomes available. Mr Speaker, joint venture companies are, in our view, not just joint venture companies but they are generally being used by this Government as a means of taking traditional areas of Government activity for which they were accountable out of the public political arena and into the commercial field, where they are politically unaccountable.

205 I just think that actually Roy Clinton is a much better student of history than the history graduate, Daniel Feetham, who just pulled this out, did not feel like coming up with new arguments and thought he would just adopt Caruana's.

210 Mr Caruana is saying the same thing we are hearing now about companies, but with the caveat, he says, 'It's because in Gibraltar companies do not file accounts and therefore I can't get my hands on the accounts.' What he did when he was elected was he passed a directive which required the filing of accounts, filed the first year of accounts and then never filed them again – and added to the companies. So what was a sin became a virtue.

He goes on:

I think, Mr Speaker, there is no precedent anywhere else

– I do not know whether I hear Clinton or Caruana speaking now, Mr Speaker – and, to the extent that we are in Gibraltar, distorting the operation of traditional parliamentary democracy.

215 Is this Monday – or is this 16, 15 years ago?

I have not been able to find a single parliamentary democracy that allows elected Ministers of the Crown to sit as directors in a dual capacity in the commercial sense, Mr Speaker, and then, when asked to give information on companies in which public moneys have been invested, to say that as chairman of the company they cannot be revealed.

He did not change the practice when they took over, Mr Speaker; in fact, they did not even file accounts.

This is a serious distortion of the quality and nature of parliamentary democratic Government as it has hitherto been known everywhere else in the world. Of course, Mr Speaker, we are free in Gibraltar to invent new systems of constitutional government, and then of course it will be up to the people to express a view as to whether they want it or not.

220 So the hyperbole of the denial of democracy, the hyperbole that this only happens in Gibraltar and does not happen anywhere else, which we have heard again and again and again this week. But then also the constitutional argument: this is not allowed under our Constitution in 1969, the argument Clinton puts – Mr Clinton – in the context of this year's debate, unless we design a new Constitution. And yet, Mr Speaker, this Chief Minister, Peter Caruana, when he won, designed a new Constitution and the new Constitution that he designed allowed for everything that he was doing, which is what we have continued doing.

225 He went on:

There is a significant amount of public money in the Gibraltar Investment Fund

– Gibraltar Investment Holdings –

which presumably has been invested in private companies. Mr Speaker, the reality of the matter is that 24% of Government expenditure is now voted on the basis that this House does not know exactly how it is going to be used. The 24% of the money that this House will vote on this Appropriation Bill is in effect voted for, at least by the Members on this side, on a blank cheque basis.

Can they please come up with something different for Opposition, Mr Speaker?

I think that this House should know the full extent of the Government's borrowings either directly or through companies. Mr Speaker, on the question of Government borrowing generally – and of course I hasten to say that it is an entirely legitimate tool of Government economic management and planning, which I have not in itself criticised.

Mr Clinton does, it seems.

However, Mr Speaker, there is concern again, which I bring in from outside this House, as to the extent to which the present borrowings of the Government may become a burden to this and future generations of Gibraltarians if these policies do not work – and again I say that we all hope they will.

230 Well, everything is the same in the analysis from Caruana in 1991 as from Mr Clinton today, except for that last limb, that last important element where Peter Caruana says, 'I hope that these policies will succeed.' There is that underlying pointing out the problem but hoping that it is not a problem and that this works for Gibraltar. I detected that in the things the hon. Lady said. I did not detect an iota of that in the things that Mr Clinton and Mr Feetham said; I almost felt as if they were cheerleading for our failure, Mr Speaker.

235 Mr Caruana then said:

The jury is out on the question of Government borrowings and Government expenditure until such time as we know exactly what these borrowed funds are being applied to.

Exactly the same: tough – his first intervention already showing his ability to advocate in this House in a way that was then to become legend. Six hours he replied for on one occasion. Very tough from the first moment. You should not have welcomed him so graciously, in my view!

240 The Attorney General reported in those days under the 1969 Constitution. The vote was taken. Everybody in the House voted in favour of the Estimates. So, on exactly the same arguments, exactly the same level of gravity, but with a desire to see Gibraltar succeed, not fail, the GSD, then represented through an independent Member, votes in favour of the Estimates.

245 Well, Mr Speaker, the first thing to note about that extract, of course, is that this is a GSD that runs arguments about pots calling kettles black, because when they came into Government they did more of the Government borrowing, they did Government trading companies, they alienated a larger part of the Budget and they found not bankruptcy but pots of gold – but they always voted in favour of the Budget.

250 But that was in 1991. In 1995, in political terms, Peter Caruana was circling for the kill. He would be Chief Minister within a year. All of the same arguments, the raising of the temperature, the borrowing etc., all of the things he would start doing himself within a year and a month, Mr Speaker. But listen to this:

We will take no further part in the debate on the Estimates and the Appropriation Bill and the remainder of the speeches that we were going to make on a departmental basis will be brought to this House by us as substantive motions at the next possible opportunity, which is either this meeting if it is not now adjourned sine die, or in the next meeting if it is adjourned sine die.

255 They walked out. The argument for walking out was about directives, direct rule and sharing information on direct rule etc. – all of the arguments we have heard already – but even then, 1995 ... I cannot even imagine in my mind a time when I remember Gibraltar more polarised than in 1995, Mr Speaker. The confrontation between the GSD and GSLP was at its highest. People who had been friends were not talking to each other; it was affecting families. Peter Caruana walked out of the House but he did not vote against the Estimates of Expenditure of the Government. Peter Cumming was an independent Member, Mr Speaker, and he voted in favour of the Estimates. So the GSD has never voted against a GSLP Budget and the GSLP has never 260 voted against a GSD Budget, and every independent Member I can find a record of has never voted against the Government on the Budget.

265 But what is really remarkable, Mr Speaker, is that in this Second Reading when they are going to exercise this right to vote in a way that is to deny salaries to civil servants, to close schools and hospitals – and I will come to that in a minute – they have not said one thing about departmental expenditure, not one thing. They have not said, ‘You are going to spend too much in this Department and therefore I am voting against; you are going to spend not enough in that Department and therefore I am voting against.’ They just come up with this overarching constitutional argument, which we have heard a hundred times before deployed by every person who has been on that side of the House as if it were the Opposition tool book – except 270 for Joe Bossano, who made a different argument as Leader of the Opposition – and they say, ‘We are going to vote against.’ I do not know whether they have even bothered to understand the departmental expense.

275 In 1997 Joe Bossano was now Leader of the Opposition. He had been Chief Minister of Gibraltar for eight years, at that time the most powerful man in Gibraltar. Joe was a particular brand of Chief Minister who was seen by people as an impregnable intellect on issues of finances. He comes to a Budget debate where the person presenting to him clearly knows less about the Gibraltar economy than he does, although a very able advocate – what does Joe Bossano do? He says this:

if there were no doubt about the accuracy then we can only describe the effect on the future of our economy and the policy which is going to be implemented over the next 12 months in one sentence, Mr Speaker, never in the history of Gibraltar have so few spent so much in such a little time and on top of it expect to have so little to show for it. We will nevertheless support the Appropriation Bill.

In 2004, very concerned about some aspects of supplementary appropriation:

But we will be of course be supporting the Appropriation Bill as a whole.

280 In 2009, Mr Speaker, I found myself in the very difficult position of having to stand in for Joe Bossano and for Mr Licudi, who were not in the House, during the Appropriation debate. I supported the Estimates. I said this, which I said every year that I was in Opposition:

Gibraltar cannot be without an appropriation and we will therefore be supporting the expenditure proposed in the Bill and the schedules on the terms already identified by the Leader of the Opposition, and we predict that in the next budget there will be no increases in Social Security ...

– because we thought that was going to be the election year.

285 In 2010 the same thing, and in 2011, when I was Leader of the Opposition, I made exactly the same point but I said this:

Gibraltar cannot be without an Appropriation and we will, therefore, be supporting the expenditure proposed in the Bill and its Schedules with the observations that my fellow Opposition Members will be making in the coming hours and days ...

Mr Feetham is not the first Leader of the Opposition I have had to face from these benches. Peter Caruana went from being Chief Minister to being Leader of the Opposition. No sooner had he found himself on that side of the House, one of the things that he said to us in the context of the Budget debate that he was dealing with as Leader of the Opposition was this:

I have to admit, Mr Speaker, that I had forgotten how easy and different life looks from this seat. When one does not have the responsibility of governing, critical comment is absolutely free of charge.

290 My goodness, they have taken the lion's share of the free-of-charge in the past 72 hours!

Hon. Members on the Government benches who were in Parliament in Opposition before will, I am sure, already have discerned the difference – of course you do; you feel the sense of responsibility that there is in Government – but there is a sense of responsibility also to be had in Opposition. In that Budget debate, Mr Speaker, the Opposition led by Peter Caruana voted in 295 favour of the Estimates presented by Fabian Picardo as Chief Minister.

Something started to change, though, and in 2014 we saw the first fault line appear. In 2014, with a much stronger Opposition team – not the one that he has got today but what had been a team for government of the GSD, which they have now lost; not with novices around him, Mr Speaker – Peter Caruana finds himself as a backbencher and Daniel Feetham is Leader of the 300 Opposition, and for the first time there is a whisper that the Opposition is going to vote against the Government. But they all voted in favour. Why? Well, the party whip, then the backbencher, ensured that whatever the new leader might have thought, they were all quickly told, 'Ssh, vote in favour.' I had called a division because I had got the whisper that they were going to vote 305 against, and they all voted in favour because if you are going to vote against you have to put your name to it and not hide behind a crowd of nays. And this is what Peter Caruana said to explain the vote immediately after they had all voted yes despite Daniel Feetham wanting to vote against:

Mr Speaker, pursuant to the long-standing Parliamentary tradition that the whole House supports the Appropriation Bill in order not to deprive the Government of funding and the civil servants of their pay and thereby not meaning any more support for their spending plans than they meant when they used to support our spending plans, we have voted yes.

So the kernel of the idea comes into the head of the new Leader of the Opposition, but the general of the troops stops them from making the mistake of voting against.

310 We do not know what it is that the hon. Member meant now when he said the Opposition will be voting against the Budget, because it is not even the whole of the official Opposition that is going to be voting against the Budget if what we saw on television last night is true. It is not the whole of the Opposition benches. Ms Hassan Nahon has been very clear in her criticisms but will be following the tradition. She will be no less tough than some of the people I have read 315 extracts from, all of whom ironically went on to become Chief Minister. Mr Llamas has said what he has said. I congratulate him for it and I will be dealing with that in a moment. I do not mean to just throw him a bone, if you will excuse the pun. Mr Reyes is not here. So really, Mr Speaker, that just leaves four individuals. Is that what he meant when he said the Opposition will be voting against? In a Chamber of 17, four will be voting against? That is what he can muster on 320 this most important of issues that we deal with? Ask Mr Clinton whether he thinks appropriation is important or not. On this most important of issues that we deal with there has been no collective decision-making when an announcement has been made of how they are going to vote.

So that means that for the second time in the short life of this Parliament Mr Feetham is not 325 going to be followed by the people who are apparently in his party whip in Parliament. The first he argued was an issue of conscience. The second is not an issue of conscience; this is the whole underlying edifice of politics for the next year, the Estimates, the spending. Since he became Leader of the Opposition, Mr Speaker, not only has he lost two votes in this Parliament – or votes in this Parliament from the people around him; he loses most votes in this Parliament 330 when he goes against the Government – he has lost another Member. Before the election he had lost a Member, Mrs Isobel Ellul-Hammond, who made a statement publicly about what her views on him and his leadership were. She did not use the word ‘inspiring’ in the context of her explanation, Mr Speaker. Ms Hassan Nahon. Today we have heard that Mr Llamas is not voting with him. Ms Hassan Nahon mustered four votes, I think, out of seven on that side in respect of 335 the civil marriage matter. This is really quite incredible. This is not leadership; this is collapse. Peter Caruana built up from one to seven, from seven to eight and from eight to 10. He is managing to take the GSD from where it was at 10 – he got it when it was at seven and he has managed to keep it at six. I wonder whether it is going to stay at six, Mr Speaker.

I want to commend Mr Llamas for his statement last night, because Mr Llamas is a civil 340 servant when he has not been a parliamentarian, and so therefore, as a civil servant in the Tax Office dealing with revenue etc., he must understand the lunacy of putting at risk the salaries of the excellent public servants we have in Gibraltar, with all the consequent consequences; because if this Budget were not to pass – in other words, if what we are proposing were not to occur ... And this is a place called Parliament – we come to parlay and persuade each other – and 345 they have said vote no. So, far from failing to persuade their own people, imagine if they had managed to persuade our people, or imagine if a Minister had got ill. Albert Isola was travelling yesterday – he had to meet Treasury people in the United Kingdom. Joseph Garcia was in Brussels on an exhibition that had been fixed some months before and we could not change the date; we had to have it, unfortunately, on the same date as the Parliament. Eight-seven,
350 Mr Speaker. One Minister ill, and Steven was in Gotland if he had not been able to get back: what is the effect of what the hon. Gentleman was saying?

Perish the thought, Mr Speaker, that he should ever get his way in politics, but imagine if he had. We know what the effect is because we have seen it. In the United States, when budgets do not pass government shuts down. Civil servants stay home and they are docked their pay and 355 usually a compromise is done when they are about to close hospitals and schools. Or is it that they are saying that they were taking the luxury of voting no in the full knowledge that it was a gimmick that was not going to in any way affect the result of the Budget? Because, if what they had come here to do is gimmicks, I would seek to persuade them to do what Peter Caruana did in 1995 and just walk out. It is a gimmick, it never works for the people who walk out, but at 360 least it saves us time. Government shutdown led by Roy Clinton and Daniel Feetham – Roy Clinton with the new arguments he has found, which you can find by going just to any standard Hansard of the past 20 years (Laughter): schools would close, the hospital would close, people would die, Mr Speaker, (Interjections) because of the nonsense –

365 Mr Speaker: Order!

Hon. Chief Minister: Oh, Mr Speaker, no, if the hon. Member wants to clap when I say that the consequence of their actions would be that people would die, I think people will realise what it is that he is like and what it is that matters most to him. He is looking to shut down the Government, to stop the salary of every civil servant. He used to say that civil servant pay is not based on merit. (Interjection) That is what he said: Civil Service pay is not based on merit. Today he has gone a step further: he has tried to stop civil service pay, Mr Speaker.

370 Our elderly care homes would close. There would be no domiciliary care. There would be no police, there would be no ambulance, there would be no fire service, there would be, in effect, no security, Mr Phillips. This would not be a hole in the fence; this would be a whole shut down. (Laughter) That is what they were risking with the vote. They were risking Gibraltar becoming a failed state. They were risking Gibraltar becoming Venezuela, Mr Speaker. They would have brought about that which you said please God would never happen and Joe Bossano agreed. They would have liquidated the state, Mr Speaker. That is what the effect of Daniel Feetham having a majority in this House on this vote would have meant.

375 The political irresponsibility is legion, historic, and all because of an uppity accountant, retired banker, who thinks that a number should be on a different side of the line than on the other. Better and tougher inquisitors than them have taken governments to task more effectively without having to risk shutdown or lockdown, and every civil servant, teacher, policeman and fireman should know that the GSD voted not to pay them this month – well, some of the GSD, Mr Speaker, if Mr Llamas does what he told us he was going to do last night.

380 And they decided it even before they got here. They came with prepared speeches that said they were not going to vote in favour of the Budget. The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition said it in the first two paragraphs of what he said. Isn't this a Parliament? Aren't we here to persuade each other? As you rightly said, I come with a prepared speech because I come to persuade with the Bill, with carefully worked out costs and import duty reductions etc., and tax benefits that trickle down to the people who need to share in the wealth of our community. They have to come to listen and then make a decision as to what they are going to do. They came ready with one view only, at least some of them: they were going to vote against.

385 But, Mr Speaker, I am going to do the exercise now, in detail, of taking them through the numbers that Mr Clinton took us through – once I have dealt with Mr Feetham – to demonstrate that they are wrong even on the premise that they make the argument. But I will say this, Mr Speaker: as we continue in this debate I assume they are not going to be asking us questions in committee. (Hon. N F Costa: Certainly not.) They are voting against the Bill (Hon. N F Costa: Exactly.) because they say the Bill does not disclose expenditure. They say that this does not disclose what we are going to spend on. Every question they ask us in the Committee Stage legitimises the book and the spending set out therein and delegitimises the nonsense position that they have taken, (Hon. N F Costa: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) because we will be showing how much detail is before the House and it will be depriving of legitimacy the ridiculous notion that somehow we are not accounting to this House for the spending.

395 I am going to have to deal with Mr Clinton and Mr Feetham together in the context of some of the arguments that they have put, and then of course I will also deal with Mr Feetham in the context of the shocking revelations that we heard yesterday from Ms Hassan Nahon about Facebook.

400 Mr Speaker, that is, I suppose, where I have to start, where he started, on Facebook, because he started his reply to the Chief Minister on the Appropriation Bill 2017 –

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker –

Hon. Chief Minister: – in respect of a Facebook –

415

Mr Speaker: Do you have a point of order?

Hon. Chief Minister: Let me finish the sentence – in respect of a Facebook post by me of 2011. I will now give way, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What is your point of order?

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I believe under the rules of debate there is a question of relevancy to the Budget.

425

Mr Speaker: Relevancy?

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes: what has Facebook got to do with the Budget debate?

Mr Speaker: There is a rule about relevancy: it is in the Speaker's discretion to decide what is relevant and what is not.

I can never recall an instance where the Speaker has ruled irrelevant any part of any speech made by a Member of this Parliament during the debate on the Appropriation Bill. If I am wrong – because I was not here between 1992 and 2012 – I would be grateful if that were to be pointed out. If I am correct in that no Member of Parliament has ever questioned the relevance of what some other Member of Parliament has been saying during a debate on the Second Reading of the Appropriation Bill, then it is because successive Speakers have felt that this is a debate on the state of the nation and that everything that arises during the course of debate should be allowed by them.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will tell the hon. Gentleman, in reply to the point of order, what is the relevance of Facebook. I am going to deal with the things that Mr Feetham said about my – (Interjection) No, I am putting my arguments on the point of order, Mr Speaker. The relevance of Facebook is that in the printed version, the fourth page of what Mr Feetham said, he dealt with my Facebook post of 2011 and I am about to deal with my Facebook podcast of 2011. It is a post – a podcast is a video post, Mr Speaker. He dealt with what I said on Facebook in 2011 and I am going to deal with what I said on Facebook in 2011, and therefore Facebook is relevant. But of course I recognise that they are in a very uncomfortable place when it comes to Facebook.

Mr Speaker: Now, Mr Clinton, yes.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, would you accept that the Appropriation Bill is no different to any other Bill and that you are still free to rule any way you please, regardless of what may or may not have happened in the past? I still make the point as to relevance and would ask you to keep an eye on relevance in the ensuing debate.

Mr Speaker: Well, of course I do keep an eye on relevance, and I had reason when I chastised Ministers the other day for the very lengthy speeches that they were making – three speeches taking three and a half hours. I made mention of relevance, of the need for relevance.

460

I think the Hon. Mr Clinton said that this Appropriation Bill is different to other ... (Hon. R M Clinton: No different.) Is no different? Of course it is no different and relevance is applicable, but as I say, the attitude of Speakers over the years has been that they should be as liberal as 465 possible, and I certainly am not going to be the first Minister that tells a Member taking part in a debate to sit down because what he is saying is no longer relevant.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am exercising my right of reply. They raised my Facebook podcast of 2011 and the hon. Lady raised Facebook yesterday in the context of what she said, and I am going to reply to the things he said about Facebook and the things she said about Facebook and the things he said she said about Facebook and who he appears to be on Facebook, because I am exercising my right of reply, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: May I say in that case what was irrelevant was what we were getting from Members of the Opposition; that must have been irrelevant. (Laughter and banging on desks) Before the Chief Minister's reply is irrelevant, exercising his right to reply, before what he says ... If what he says is irrelevant, it must be in answer to what Members from the Opposition benches were saying, and that must have been irrelevant – and I allowed it to be said and I did not intervene.

480 The Hon. Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you, Mr Speaker, for the logic, because they need that lesson in logic, in particular because in the 2017 Appropriation debate the first thing that the Leader of the Opposition wanted to talk about was the podcast on Facebook of 2011. How could the podcast of 2011 be the first thing he wanted to talk about, Mr Speaker? (Hon. J J Bossano: It's irrelevant.) I fail to see any abject relevance, except of course that I have not had time ... Because I try and treat this Parliament with respect and prepare for debates here as best as I can, I have not had time to check what Michael Bane had to say about that podcast. (Laughter)

485 Mr Speaker, the Hon. Leader of the Opposition tweeted yesterday, or retweeted, Mr Llamas's Budget speech and the following GSD tweet – the position of the GSD, one assumes:

The Budget is a fiction and farce. It is imperative that the GSD vote against it and retain credibility and not be tainted by supporting it.

490 So he was saying the GSD it is imperative vote against the Budget – the GSD. I do not think he had watched NewsWatch when he did that, Mr Speaker. But it must be great to be him – well, whoever he may be today. It must be great to be him because he obviously lives in a world where everything everybody does which is a good idea was his idea: his ideas for Bayside, his ideas for the Victoria Stadium, his ideas for Rooke, his ideas for Europa. He is the most deprecated person in history, he has the best ideas in Gibraltar and we do not realise how good he is – except I suppose we do not even know who he is anymore. People who are watching what is happening in Gibraltar can see that all he wants to do is claim credit for everything that goes right, and that is why, I assume, he started by saying that this debate had been turned into a farce. He said it was a farce because of borrowing by companies. Well, Mr Speaker, we know that he was a Minister in a Government that created the trading web of companies, and we know that other Leaders of the Opposition have said that before, but nobody has said it is a farce and nobody has decided to vote against as a result of that.

500 So it is a farce, I suppose, for the GSLP to continue the practices of the GSD. What a scratched record, Mr Speaker. I have not heard him say anything different in the past four years since he has been Leader of the Opposition in this debate. With him I always wonder whether he knows what he is talking about, but in grammatical terms does he know that the Oxford English Dictionary defines a farce as 'a light, humorous play in which the plot depends upon a skilfully exploited situation rather than upon the development of character', or 'humour of the type displayed in such works' and 'a foolish show, a mockery of a ridiculous sham'? I am guessing he was reaching for the third definition, because character is not something that people associate with him. And I think that is certainly the best way to describe what unfolded – after he got up, not before: an utter farce, because no sooner had he started than he was talking about Facebook. Little can he have imagined, I assume, what relevance Facebook would have had by the end of the debate 48 hours later.

515 But it was my Facebook post that he was talking about, Mr Speaker, because I post on Facebook in my own name. It was six years ago, it was nascent technology. I put the video up on Facebook – I was the Leader of the Opposition then – and the House was already aware of the Facebook post because it was actually debated in this House. I posted on Facebook in July and the Hon. the then Leader of the House, the Chief Minister, Peter Caruana, put a motion down to 520 debate my Facebook post and nothing else in September. He called it a grubby Facebook post. (Hon. N F Costa: Hear, hear.) How could it be grubby? It was in my own name – it is grubby to do things in somebody else’s name, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) That is grubby, Mr Speaker. It is not grubby to do things in your name. And then we came here and I was told I was unfit to govern because of my Facebook post in my own name. I do not think Peter Caruana would say today 525 that I am unfit to govern, but I will not say that others are because I said then that I thought it was improper that somebody should say you are unfit to govern – it is up to the people of Gibraltar to decide who is fit to govern, not to the person who wants to continue governing. But the good thing about this post, which I put on Facebook in my own name, is that it is never going to go away. And I do not take it down, I keep it there, because it gets more likes every year. At 530 about this time of the year it gets a lot of likes and it gets a lot of views. At least it is me, Mr Speaker, that puts these things up and I do not do so in another name that might become the bane of his existence in the long term. I suppose for him these days when he powers up the PC and Windows says ‘Where do you want to go today?’ he just sees the words ‘Who do you want to be today?’ instead of ‘Where do you want to go today?’ Or maybe he uses Mac and those 535 issues do not bring a smile to his face.

But the surprising thing was that he was talking about issues of public finance but he has passed the portfolio on. Another one of the remarkable achievements that he has under his belt is that he is the first Leader of the Opposition not to deal with issues of public finance. He has passed that on to Roy Clinton. He is supposed to deal with health issues. The Leader of the 540 Opposition is supposed to deal with health issues and external relations – I guess the one thing that the Constitution says none of us is supposed to be involved in and we are all involved in all the time. He said a couple of sentences about the risk of Brexit, he was not here to hear Joseph Garcia, who is the Hon. Minister for Brexit, and he said a couple of sentences about Health, but nothing special – the things he had been saying for six months about morale etc., and the rest 545 was public finance.

Doesn’t Mr Clinton say that the chairman should not also be responsible for public finance? Or is it that he sees himself as First Lord of the Treasury, not the Chancellor of the Exchequer, but still with overall responsibility? Well, I do not know how he sees himself, because you see now my shadows on public finance are the hon. Lady and Mr Clinton. But on my Facebook post 550 never has so much been spoken for so long and for so often about something recorded so long ago. Therefore, I think he is probably now the first shadow Minister for social media, or the first shadow on social media. Some of the records he is breaking are magnificent for us, Mr Speaker – like, for example, when he has public meetings of his party and they have to remove chairs to pretend that they at least were able to get a few people into the room; or the fact that he has 555 lost two ladies in the context of two parliamentary terms; and he is the only leader in the history of Gibraltar to have had his whip defied twice.

But I think the important thing is that he has been the Leader of the Opposition – Leader of the Opposition, not Member; I will come to that in a minute – who has been absent for longest in the context of this debate. He has been here sporadically. Members can come in and out, 560 Mr Speaker, but if there is one obligation of somebody who says they are in leadership in this community, it is the Chief Minister’s obligation to hear every speech from Opposition Members to be able to exercise the right of reply and the Leader of the Opposition’s obligation to be here for the Budget debate if he is going to pretend to be able to deal with issues. I am guessing he 565 was professionally engaged and he had to be out of here. I understand that there were issues in the court in which he was involved, Mr Speaker, maybe even important ones, but he always says that his obligations here are more important than his obligations to his clients – that is in the Hansard – when he wants to pretend to be the best leader of all time. But when it comes to not the nation’s but his own, he has to be in court and not here. Sixty thousand pounds for a part-time job is not enough to keep him here in the debate where we are going to vote him the 570 £60,000, Mr Speaker.

Anyway, their ostensible reasoning, after dealing with my Facebook post and everything else, for voting against is that we have £772 million of borrowing via Government companies. We do not accept those figures and I will deal with them in great detail in the context of my response, but let’s just start with a couple of sets of facts.

575 The Government has secured an investment in Gibraltar of £300 million. The House and the community know about it. Do they know about it because Inspector Columbo and Inspector Clouseau have been able to unearth it? No, Mr Speaker, they know about it because I got up in this House in the context of this debate last year, just after those agreements had been inked, and told the House, and because I took them to a meeting where I explained the detail of it with 580 all the professional advisers present. So there is nothing hidden in companies. How can you sustain the argument that something is hidden when the person you are alleging the hiding against is the person who told you under the glare of cameras, Mr Speaker? It is not as if I told them somewhere and they can pretend to have found out where we were not heard; I told them here. So where is the hidden £300 million? And I told them that I will tell them when we are 585 going to invest that money, because it is going to profit Gibraltar – and I will come to the detail of the numbers in a minute.

Second fact: the Government of Gibraltar has created Credit Finance Company Ltd to invest the money of the Gibraltar Savings Bank. Why are we doing that: in order to produce the returns to pay the depositors their interest of 6%, 5%, 4%, or whatever it is. How did they do it – 590 because they invented the pensioner’s debenture at 5%, Mr Speaker: they did it by taking the interest out of the taxpayer’s pocket and paying it to the saver. We think a more prudent thing to do, whilst always retaining the possibility of using the taxpayer’s pocket – because that is what the law says – is to try and get the money to work for that 6%. We told them. How can it be hidden? Neither Columbo nor Clouseau have worked that out: we told them.

595 Mr Speaker, they have come to this House – and Mr Clinton in particular, and I will take him through it – to say, ‘I have discovered the secrets filed in the public register.’ If that is not a nonsense, nothing is, but to use a nonsense as a pretext for the most reckless parliamentary act in the post-war history of Gibraltar really demonstrates what must be bad faith, because if we had sought to hide something we would not have filed public documents about it. We would 600 have done what they did. We would have said, ‘Well, the law says that we have to file things in Companies House – let’s not file them,’ because the law said that they had to file accounts of Government companies and we are still trying to reconstruct them, although I will come and tell them a little bit about that in a little while, about the accounts that are ready.

So the idea that the Opposition is somehow being denied information is an utter joke of 605 Peter Sellers style proportions, Mr Speaker, and the idea that we are giving them less information ... Not only do we come to the House every month, not only do we give them information – our Budget Book, the Budget Book that they say discloses less information, has 256 pages of information; their last Budget Book has 190. I should be saying to them, ‘Where are the other 60 pages of information that we should have had?’ Where is the hidden information 610 and all the statistics that we put online? They do not even have to ask the questions. We had to ask for that information and sometimes we did not get it. We put it all online every month, and if it is not put up in a particular month let us know and we will put it up. More information, more detail, more transparency. Mr Speaker, we are putting online statistics since January 2012 dealing with everything that we used to ask about in this House on the Care Agency, on Credit 615 Finance, on culture and education, on electricity and employment. I could go on. I could read the list – it is a whole page of information. They do not care, do they – they do not go and look at it, because they do not ask us questions based on the information. They do not crunch the numbers; they just want the numbers. Well, there they are, they can have them. They can have the additional information in the Estimates Book and they can have all of the statistics. We used 620 to have three chances a year to ask a question, sometimes two in an election year. They say, ‘Well, no, this is a matter of principle.’ It is only the indignant middle class that can take that attitude, Mr Speaker.

So let’s look at the principle, borrowing via Government-owned companies, and let’s start with where the GSD would have taken this community if they had won the election in 2011 – the 625 stated policy and the things they did not say in the election campaign that we found out later: £1.4 billion of borrowing, in a deal that was entered into with Gibraltar Land Reclamation Ltd which would have given them 1% of the value of the contract, which would have been indirect – in the way that Mr Clinton describes it – off balance sheet borrowing, added to the £520 million that the community already owed and the balance of car parks borrowing and the balance of the 630 hospital borrowing which they had done in 2002-03, would have put this community, if the GSD had won the 2011 election ... goodness knows if they would have won the 2015 election after that as well ... and their power station deal with the 5% escalator ... £2 billion of borrowing by the middle of that term under the GSD. Work that out per capita if you want to panic and scare people, Mr Speaker. That is what they stood for in 2011. That is the mathematical equation that 635 people need to have in their heads when deciding whether they are prudent or not. That is what was hidden and ready to be done, and the increase in the borrowing powers that they were going to come to this House for by a resolution.

But this book, Mr Speaker, that we are debating today is the recurrent expenditure of the Government. There is now some recurrent expenditure in Government companies – that is true.
 640 It did not start in 2011, it did not start in 1996; it started after 1996, Mr Speaker. There is recurrent expenditure in Government companies because the GSD created that, and Mr Clinton was in the executive of that party and Mr Feetham ... He was not in the executive of that party? Well, at some stage he was in the executive of the party, because I remember him being thrown out for rightly defending the New People, and Mr Feetham joined that party. They kept the 645 Principal Auditor away from that Government company recurrent spending and they allowed those Government companies, what is worse, to accumulate huge losses: £100 million in 2011, the £87 million that were accrued by the time that we won the election and the additional amount by the end of that financial year, certified by the then Financial Secretary. You can add that to the £2 billion: £2.1 billion would have been outstanding under them. So companies with 650 borrowing and companies with losses under the GSD.

All of the spending of Her Majesty’s Government of Gibraltar is in this book. That is why it is here, because it is the spending of the Government. The spending of the Bus Company is in the Bus Company. That is how they put it; that is how they designed it. They defended that in the election and they have the gall, having been about to put Gibraltar at £2.1 billion of direct and 655 indirect debt, to say that we are taking Gibraltar to be like Greece. Mr Speaker, they must have been greased lightning, because if we want it to be £772 million of borrowing – wrong figure, but that is the number that they want to give through the companies – plus the £300 million, £1.1 million he said, and they were going to be at £2.1 million and we are Greece, what are they?

I suppose he is thinking, ‘Keep talking, oh, keep talking.’ Mr Speaker, we are not Greece. We are not about to fail. What they have said in the context of this debate is utter tripe and they know it, because Greece was in a situation where it could not pay civil servants – not because of a quirky vote in the parliament led by some beige accountant that decided not to vote the 660 money to pay the pensions. They could not vote to pay the pensions because they did not have the money. They could not pay the civil servants and the pensioners because they did not have the money. They could not rescue their banks because they did not have the money. We are not 665 the money. They could not rescue their banks because they did not have the money. We are not

Greece, Mr Speaker, and we are not Bermuda either, where costs spiralled in the whole of the economy and tourists would not come because the hotels became too expensive.

670 Everything they say is tainted with negativity in an attempt to negatively taint the Government. It is clear that the hopes and dreams of the Opposition are not for Gibraltar's success, they are for Gibraltar's failure. They have tried it with the Savings Bank. They have done everything in their power to create what is known as a 'run' on the Savings Bank. They have done everything in their power for people to lose confidence in the Savings Bank, a 130-year-old 675 institution, and in Joe Bossano, a 78-year-old institution and a very robust one at that,
Mr Speaker.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Safe as houses.

680 Hon. Chief Minister: Every time the hon. Members speak you can detect the deepest of desires to see the failure of Gibraltar's financial system and to try and ride that to glory, to political victory. And yet the only thing that they have told us that we should not have done is the refurbishment of No. 6, which was a capital project four years ago. But he must realise that in making the arguments they make about the information in the book, the credibility of the 685 numbers etc., they are not attacking me; they are attacking the Treasury, the civil servants in the Treasury, the civil servants in the Income Tax department who report the income from the Income Tax Department, the civil servants in the Customs department who report the income from the Customs department. They are challenging the credibility of the Financial Secretary and of the people who work with him. Mr Speaker, the work that goes into producing the Estimates of Expenditure for Gibraltar every year is huge and the people who do that work under the aegis 690 of the Financial Secretary – this one and the previous one, whom I have had the pleasure to work with – are the most dedicated, most stalwart defenders of the veracity and credibility of the numbers that go in that book that one could imagine. They take their responsibilities seriously. They give up family time, they come in at weekends, they stay very late at night. They get stressed about making it right. To come here and to be told that the numbers are lacking in 695 credibility ... These are good people, Mr Speaker; they do not deserve to be spoken of in this way. This is not an attack on me. I receive the book. With Ministers we look at the expenditure we are going to do, we look at the policies to create more revenue – but I receive the book. I sign for it as well. It is my political responsibility but it is the work of some of the most dedicated people that you can imagine, Mr Speaker. And then trying to say, 'Well, our attacks are just 700 political attacks on Picardo, not on the civil servants,' does not wash. It does not wash. They are calling that work unreliable, they are calling the numbers fictitious, they are calling everything about this debate on the Estimates fake. Well, the only thing that is fake is his Facebook profile.

Let's just get a flavour of how made up, contrived and contradictory they are when it comes to the arguments that they put. The Leader of the Opposition has said that we need to invest 705 more in jobs and less in suspension bridges, and Mr Llamas says we need to invest more in tourism as that will create more jobs. So which is it to be? The suspension bridge is a new tourist attraction. We agree investment in tourism creates more jobs. That is why we have spent a collective £7 million in the last five years on the Upper Rock as a combination of recurrent expenditure and capital expenditure. But there are sometimes such differences between the 710 things that hon. Members on the other side say when they are supposed to be representing one point of view that you could drive a land rover between them, Mr Speaker. That is how divided they are.

He tells me that he meets so many people who break down in his offices, crying because they have not got jobs. Mr Speaker, the figure for unemployment as at the close of business last night 715 in Gibraltar is 84 people. It is only the quarterly average, which we think is an accurate reflection of the position – that is the number that tells us where unemployment is going – but the number of people registered unemployed in Gibraltar last night is 84. I guess there might be 84 people coming to see him to cry – and I am the one who says whilst there is one Gibraltarian

720 unemployed I will be fighting to ensure that he has a job – but there were 1,300 when they were in Government, some of those in a scheme, some of them not in a scheme, the ones in a scheme earning half the minimum wage, 400 completely out of a job, with Luis Montiel, then the Minister for Employment, spending his days at the Lunchbox at Europort smoking, not going into the office. That explains it. So when it comes to unemployment he should not pretend to be teaching us any lessons. I remind him that he used to say that 300 was full employment. It would 725 be nice if he congratulated us for reaching the figure that he said was full employment, whilst urging us to continue to look for a job for absolutely everyone, which is what we think should be the case because we do not believe in the concept of the unemployable, which was a principle introduced into Gibraltar politics by them.

But pull the other one, Mr Speaker – it has got a fake profile on it – that there are people 730 coming to see him in tears. Or is it that we should believe the things that he says about unemployment, about the Estimates and even about the media? He says that there is a ring of steel around the Government, that the media does not ask me difficult questions, that they do not report the things he says. Well, there are some media in Spain with which they have become very friendly recently. They report everything they say and none of what we say. Maybe they 735 have got a ring of steel around that media. I understand that the ownership of that particular media goes all the way up to the top in Spain, and they collaborate with it so effectively and so frequently. What have the journalists of Gibraltar done to them? They report what is going on.
Sometimes they do not issue press releases. There are days when they do not issue press releases and they complain about the ring of steel. Well, the Government is 5,000 people 740 working for Gibraltar. There might be three or four press releases in a day; they might be reported in all the media. They do not issue anything, so there is an item of Government press release in a piece of media and they say this is evidence of the ring of steel.

Mr Speaker, he gets paid £60,000 – he should do a bit of work, although I really believe that the more the media give him an opportunity to speak, the better. Jonathan Sacramento 745 interviewed him and that is where he said that £60,000 is not enough, it is a part-time job and ...
The more we see of him the better it does for our re-election chances, Mr Speaker. But between him and Mr Phillips, both of whom have hardly been here, there is £100,000 of spending in this book. Do a bit of work, issue more press releases and you will get in the media – and maybe less photographs of the frontier fence or of any other security issue that you might come across.

750 Mr Speaker, I am about to move on to dealing with issues relating to the few things that the hon. Member said about the GHA, so if this is a convenient moment I might offer people a comfort break.

755 Mr Speaker: Yes, I think the House will now recess for about 10 minutes to have a comfort break.

The House recessed at 11.30 a.m. and resumed its sitting at 11.45 a.m.

Appropriation Bill 2017 –
Debate concluded –
Second Reading approved

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

760 I was saying that the unemployment last night was 84 – before I came to the ring of steel. Of course, we think that the only figure that is reasonable is the quarterly figure – that is the figure that we give and the figure we will continue to give – but I thought it was important in the context of the snapshot of the moment in time, given the rivers of tears that we are alleged to have to suffer in College Lane.

765 Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Health Authority is the highest spending Department in the book. It is almost one fifth of the Government's recurrent expenditure. All of the expenditure of the Gibraltar Health Authority is contained in the book, nobody suggests that it is not, and yet the Shadow Minister for Health has not raised one number in respect of the expenditure that the excellent Neil Costa is going to be presiding over in the context of the provision of health services in Gibraltar, not one. But they are going to vote against the book. They are going to vote 770 against giving people cancer care. They are going to vote against A&E. They complain about waits at A&E: imagine how long the wait at A&E would be if they voted against the Estimates and they were able to succeed in persuading people to vote with them. That would really do, Mr Speaker, for morale in the GHA, wouldn't it, if you shut the GHA down?

775 It was really quite something to see the leader of the political party where morale is obviously lowest amongst the troops – and, Lawrence, do not let them intimidate you behind the door, you do what you think is right – the party where morale is lowest - talk about morale in the GHA and to use as the crutch for that argument a survey that a doctor organised amongst other doctors. Well, okay, I think I could organise a survey that said that morale was high in this House, or I could organise a survey that said morale was low in this House; it depends on the 780 question etc. If you do things scientifically, then it has a different sort of effect. There has been a survey on morale in the GHA. The Hon. Mr Costa referred us to it in passing, but the important thing is that it was an objective survey of morale in the GHA conducted by Unite when they were in Government – in fact, in 2006, just before he took to the airwaves to defend the GSD Government and everything they did and became a candidate for them for the first time – and that demonstrated the lowest possible morale in the history of the GHA under the GSD.

Mr Speaker, the pay scales for nursing in Gibraltar for a staff nurse start £4,500 up from where they are in the UK. The pay scales for a staff nurse in Gibraltar end £7,000 up from where they are in the UK. The pay scales for a nursing assistant start £2,000 up from where they are in the UK and end £2,000 up from where they are in the UK. Morale is not just about money, but if 790 you ask people at the GHA objectively where morale is, you will not get the results that you would get if you conducted the survey in the GSD.

Mr Speaker, given that he is the Shadow for Health and he said almost nothing, given that he is not able to keep a team together because the hon. Lady has gone, given that he is not even able to muster a vote of the people who sit with him in this Parliament on something that he has 795 said is imperative, I find myself in the very difficult position of having to say to him that he must consider his position. It is unfortunate, because every day that I meet people they tell me that whilst he is the leader of the GSD we are safe in Government. In fact, so many people tell me, it is starting to ring true. The man is demonstrating that he has the inverse Midas touch. He has taken a party that was an election-winning machine and turned it into a machine that cannot 800 even vote together.

I came into this debate wanting him to stay as leader of the GSD – until he did the ridiculous thing that he did in saying that they should vote against – because people tell me I am safe whilst he is leader of the GSD; but I hear, sometimes from those who sit very close to him, that they do not want him for leader and that they are marking time to circle for the kill. I hear that 805 there are people coming back to the GSD – people who sat with him on GSD benches and people who sat before him on GSD benches – not to support him but to use him as a prop. As people colloquially say in Gibraltar, para que pierda la siguiente y darle el hachazo y ponerme yo de Leader. Well, until we came into this debate I had his back. I was the person who would have done all the machination necessary to stop anyone from removing him, (Interjection) but given 810 what he has done in the context of this debate and his disregard for the interests of Gibraltar, the sooner they replace him the better, even if they replace him with somebody who has better electoral chances than he ever will, because of the irresponsibility that he has demonstrated in the context of the introduction of his speech.

815 But going back to Facebook, the attempt to get people to vote no and the failure to listen to the advice of Peter Caruana in 2014 and allow himself to be persuaded by Mr Clinton demonstrates, if not a bad faith and a disregard for Gibraltar, then a deep lack of judgement in following the views put to him by Mr Clinton.

820 Moving on to Mr Clinton, Mr Speaker, the whole argument that he puts is not whether something is good or bad; it is about where that thing is. In other words, Mr Clinton is not saying – because he is not developing the argument – debt is good or debt is bad. I assume that he takes the position that Joe Bossano takes, that debt can be good or debt can be bad – debt to pay recurrent expenditure as a noose that gets tighter round your neck Debt to invest, as Joe Bossano has always said – the golden rule of the GSLP – is not a bad thing. He just says, ‘That debt, on which I do not comment, should be on this book, not on that book.’

825 That is what the argument is about. It is actually just a technical argument, because Roy Clinton has not told us, ‘The things you are investing in, schools etc., are bad.’ They always talk about No. 6 Convent Place, he talks about the concert, but they do not talk about the rest of the investments. Of course not, because they want to make an argument but they do not want to tell the people who are beneficiaries of the investment that we are making – in schools, in the hospital, in all the things that the Government is investing in – that they are saying that we should not invest in them. They just want to say, ‘There’s debt: it’s here, here and here, and therefore it should all be here.’ The debt is the direct debt, the debt in Gibraltar Capital Assets and the debt in Credit Finance Company Ltd, the debt I told them about. And he just says, ‘The debt you told me about, Chief Minister, should be in the white book; it shouldn’t be in the separate books that you’re going to file for the company.’ That is what it is all about, and on that basis he is prepared to come here to recommend to his putative leader that they should vote against the estimates.

840 Mr Speaker, his contributions in this debate and in the year and a half that he has been in this House have been so grey that I am almost minded to start calling him Mr Grey, but anybody who has read or watched Fifty Shades of Grey might think that that is a bit too racy for him, (Laughter) so instead of calling him Mr Grey I am going to call him Mr Beige, because I think he is better represented as 50 shades of beige than he is as 50 shades of grey. Beige brings to mind that blancmange feel, that neither here nor there, that no clear distinction, because he does not say, ‘That debt is bad,’ he says, ‘That debt should be here, but vote against every penny of spending.’

850 There have been some great politicians with the surname Clinton, Mr Speaker. He is really letting the family tree down. (Laughter) Gibraltarians are world class at everything that we do – and once again, congratulations to the team in Gotland, who are doing a magnificent job and I look forward to seeing what they are going to do in Gibraltar in the 2019 Island Games when they are at home, with the investment we are making in sport, (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks) an investment Mr Beige might not like – but when it comes to producing Clintons, we are not producing world class. He is no Bill Clinton. The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition used to accuse me of having Clinton moments. Well, he has had a Clinton year, Mr Speaker, and look at where it has got him: one less vote. The game of politics is of getting more votes in the Parliament, not less.

855 Mr Clinton started in this debate this week with the constitutional point: ‘I’ve found a constitutional point which means we must vote against.’ Well, Mr Speaker, I am quite happy to let him have copies of the constitutional point exactly the same developed for the past 35 years, or 44 years, in this House, none of which led to the hubris of suggesting that people should vote against the Estimates.

860 He wanted me to give him a copy of the ruling that a Speaker had made in respect of conflicts of interest at the time that Sir Joshua was in Government and Sir Joshua had asked for a ruling, as if I had to give it to him, and he said, ‘You are not transparent because you won’t give me the ruling.’ I am not transparent because I will not give him the debt, although I am the one who told him the debt of the Government companies, and I am not transparent because I will not recess the House, go in there, photocopy for him the book that lies in the antechamber with all the rulings, bring it to him on bended knee and say, 'Here you are, Roy – is this beige enough for you?' That is not lacking on transparency. That is him having to get off his posterior and get it done because that is what he is paid for, and if he has to go to the public register to find things 870 which are public, he has to go to the public register to find things which are public. He is not entitled to ask for things which are public. We are not his lackeys, Mr Speaker. We are here to govern Gibraltar for the good of all of Gibraltar, not to fetch and carry for him. He is not a bank manager anymore, who presses the button and asks for a coffee and a copy of whatever document he might like, or to be brought his daily beige friend, the Financial Times – a perfect 875 camouflage for him, Mr Speaker.

And then he launches into a tirade where he accuses us of lack of transparency, but goes further. He says that we are not operating by the rules or the rules do not work, although it is the Constitution that Peter Caruana said in 1991 could be moved by the people of Gibraltar to change things. It is the GSD Constitution. They accuse us of not having supported it enough 880 when it was put to referendum. It is their Constitution which allows these things which they were doing. But he says – and this is where it starts to get very nasty indeed, Mr Speaker – that there is some alchemy or sleight of hand. Those are accusations, veiled accusations of dishonesty, Mr Speaker. In case he did not watch the magnificent episode of Black Adder III that dealt with alchemy, it is a truth universally accepted now that alchemy is not possible, and so 885 therefore if we are reporting gold it is because there is gold, not because there is coal that we say is going to be turned into gold and not because we have civil servants or a Treasury that allow us to deposit coal and report to us that there is gold. These are real results, not deserving of the shoddy treatment that he has purported to give them and the attempt at casting them as somehow dishonest.

But the quantum leap that the GSD have taken in the context of this debate is not just to say that they will vote against the Estimates – 'they' such as they may be. It is to move from the Canepa, Bossano, Caruana position, perhaps even the Picardo position in the context of the analysis that they do, although I do not accept it, that we could go bankrupt because of certain policies – it is part of the lexicon of political debate and, as we have seen, it has been since 1971;
890 they have said that we are bankrupt. They have said there is no surplus. Let me do a calculation to show you there is no surplus. I will demonstrate, Mr Speaker, that the calculation is wrong and that there is surplus, but I will not allow them to get away without having the spotlight put on the effect of what they said, which is that they reported to Gibraltar that their interpretation of the Estimates Book of Gibraltar is that Gibraltar is currently bankrupt. Their well-connected 895 Spanish press friends will report that with glee, I have no doubt. They would be wrong to gloat, as they so often are in relation to Gibraltar.

That nonsense argument is followed by an idea that we should be prudent. Well, the first prudent thing to do in an economy is not to talk it down. (Hon. N F Costa: Hear, hear.) The first prudent thing if you want Gibraltar to prosper is not to say that Gibraltar is bankrupt. He talked 905 about his article in The Chronicle where he famously accused me of cheating. Rightly, Members of the media said to him, 'Well, look, you talk about the level of discourse in Gibraltar and you have just accused the Chief Minister of cheating. How can you complain when he comes harder back at you?' That is what his style is, Mr Speaker, his pernicious pen writing mendacious articles on beige paper, and he says in the context of that, 'It's that the Principal Auditor cannot audit 910 these companies. That is absolutely terrible. It cheats the system.' Well, look, if it does, can he please, instead of giving me a hard time, write Her Majesty the Queen a letter and ask her to remove the knighthood from Sir Peter Caruana, because he invented it and one of the reasons for which it was brought was for the prosperity that he ushered in. Or maybe it is that, because of that day he threw him out of Europort for the New People, he does not just dislike me, he also 915 dislikes him and he is not actually just talking about the GSLP in the context of the way that he attacks us, he is actually attacking also the old GSD.

920 He said that our public finances are like an iceberg. Well, it is funny that one of the people on the bridge of the Titanic should finally have seen the iceberg, Mr Speaker. It does not feel to me like Gibraltar is the Titanic – Gibraltar is steaming ahead; it seems to me that there are more titanic problems in the GSD than there are in Gibraltar.

He is so presumptuous that he even called Mr Feetham his ‘learned friend’. That is an unfortunate preserve of those of us who are learned in the law, Mr Speaker. I am not posh and I do not stand on ceremony, but only other lawyers call lawyers their learned friends.

925 The disrespect to the Estimates Book, to the people who prepare it, this Parliament, this nation and the history of this Parliament and this nation in denigrating the work done and arguing that it should not be supported by the House is incredible. Let me be clear, Mr Speaker: there is no artificial income in this book, our accounts are not flattered, the surplus is real and tangible and it is reflected in the available cash reserves, and we have very clear plans to deal with what they are now calling direct and indirect borrowing, our indirect borrowing as they 930 term it and their indirect borrowing. Or is it that he wants to forget the amount of indirect borrowing that we found when we were elected, let alone the indirect borrowing that they were going to enter into, leading to £2.1 billion in total of borrowing?

Mr Speaker, you would have thought that he had forgotten that our manifesto commitment – and he seems to be a bit of a worm when it comes to making sure that he is in the detail of our 935 manifesto – is to have a net debt of zero by the time of the next election. It is not theirs. (Interjection) Yes, indirect borrowing, zero. He has forgotten that. He says, ‘We don’t know what your plans are.’ Well, look, our plans are designed to be self-financing, like in any loan that is taken.

Let’s look at this idea of the artificial surplus and the Government flattering the books. In fact,

940 all he did was really analyse the surplus. He could not debunk it, however hard he tried. You can do anything with numbers, if you like, as he knows; and so, faced with a magnificent performance of the Gibraltar economy as reflected in this book, he says, ‘Right, what can I do to try and get from £78 million down to zero?’ It is a bit like that lady on countdown, Mr Speaker, where you put a number on the board and you try and get it to another number, and he needed

945 to get 78 down to zero: divide by 34 ... How did he do it? Well, he had to become pot calling kettle black because he had to go against all the things that they had done themselves. But he did something which I did not expect an accountant to do. He confused recurrent expenditure and capital expenditure, and the attack was on the basis of us doing what they had been doing by continuing the practices that were there at the time that we were elected – and all of it on 950 the veneer on a lack of transparency. The credibility of that I have already shown is not to be taken too highly.

He forgets that Parliament is here to deal with issues which are not public. In other words, things which are public he has to go and get, things which are not public are to be debated here. And all of that is relevant, all that I am bringing back which I have said before is relevant,

955 because when we were in Opposition we did not find out about the borrowing of the car parks company, because they did not file anything. We found out accidentally. (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) We did not criticise that. We found out what it was for and ... What we criticised was that the money they took when they mortgaged the Treasury was to invest in a private project, not a public project – to invest in a project of a company that was well known to be close to the then 960 administration: the purpose of the loan, not the existence of the loan, Mr Speaker.

And so when he is doing the account that he tries to do, he does not say – and that must be disingenuous because he wants to pull the wool over people’s eyes – that part of the numbers that he is adding are numbers of borrowing taken when they were in Government. So he says it is terrible the borrowing the GSLP have today in Government but he ignores that part of that

965 was taken by them. Forget the system, which I have shown is a system inherited from them, the numbers actually reflect numbers taken from them at not very attractive rates. And then he criticises us because I said that we were going to invest as a Government in the Shell project and now it transpires that the investment has been done in a different way. Well, what is it that he wants: he wants me to tell him early on when we are thinking of doing things or he only wants 970 me to say things once they have been inked, which is what he has said in the House today, or yesterday when he spoke? Because if I speak early on and the final legal structure of ownership is not determined but it is the Government that is considering these issues, and in the end we decide to interpose an SPV to own our shareholding, he says, 'Ah, you said the Government and you've done it another way'; if I tell him once I have just done things – like I told him in the 975 context of this debate last year, 'We have just entered into a transaction for £300 million and this is the first meeting of the House after we have inked it,' – he says, 'You should have told me before.' I just do not know. The goal posts move so much that it is impossible to have a rational, intellectually valuable debate. Zero logic. But look, we will deal with it on the basis of what his last statement has been: only tell me things once they are inked. When he asks me next time 980 about any of the projects that he asks me about every few months, I will say. 'Not inked yet,

 Mr Speaker.' That is it, because that is what he has asked me to do.

But in coming up with the figure of £246 million, which is the amount that he said was the flattering of the accounts that had been undertaken, he has given this snapshot over the past few years but he does not have the decency to say, 'This amount was incurred in this year and I 985 am reflecting it against a surplus in the current year, and so therefore it is not related.' So the £246 million is a cumulative amount and it is not something therefore that is directly related to the £78 million surplus. So he must know that he is being disingenuous. But he fails to identify that the movement of money has not just been in the direction of the Government from Government companies, which he says is the sin – he says the sin is flattering the accounts of 990 the Government by taking money from the companies; he fails to identify just how much money has gone from the Government to the companies, therefore unflattering the accounts.

I think people in this community, Mr Speaker, are clever enough that when they have it explained to them they will understand exactly what it is that has gone on, because, as the Chairman of the GSD said, the electorate in Gibraltar is very intelligent, exactly the same 995 electorate that left him out of this House, I suppose – very intelligent indeed, Mr Speaker.

But the reality that they do not like to admit is that when we were elected in 2011 there was an advance of around £87 million on 9th December due to the Consolidated Fund by the Government-owned companies. That is to say there was a hole in GSD Government company funding of £87 million, because in that way the Government of the GSD had spent money in the 1000 companies without having to put any Government money in and therefore flattered the accounts as at 9th December 2011 by £87 million. So they had £520 million outstanding of gross debt plus £87 million of company debt – plus the borrowing of the companies, which is different.
 The companies owed the Government £87 million and the companies had taken loans. So, when we found that, Mr Speaker ... and Mr Bossano spent a very bad Christmas that year when he 1005 found that hole. If you just take that figure, the £87 million – you forget about the GSD Government company borrowing, just that figure wipes out the surplus of the GSD for the three years before, if you were doing it in the nonsensical way that the hon. Member was doing it, of taking surpluses in the year and taking all of the cumulative amounts of the other years and trying to create some link. But he knows that it was nonsense. I had intellectual respect for him 1010 until he came up with the ruse of voting against the Budget and managed to persuade the character to his right to follow suit. That would have completely wiped out the surpluses. I have the doomsday memo from the Financial Secretary to show it.

What did we have to do? We had to deal with the position, and in order to deal with the position we had to give funding to the companies. So we had to take money from the Estimates 1015 Book and put it in the companies. He is complaining that there is money from the companies coming into the Estimates Book and he is saying it is £246 million. It is not in one year, but he is pretending that it is. So let's do the exercise of demonstrating to him what has gone the other way, what has gone from the Government to the companies. I reckon he knows, because despite him saying that there is nothing in here, he has read every figure, I am sure, and he has read 1020 every figure for the year before and the year before and the year before. And if he has done that, which he should have done if he has pretended to do the exercise that he has told us that he has done, then he would have seen what we have pursued as a prudent policy to get rid of the hole in the companies – in other words, to fill the £87 million, which was £100 million by the end of that financial year, and to not let it accrue again by giving the companies annual 1025 payments. It is in here, it is the £25 million by which we reduced the surplus. If I wanted to flatter the surplus GSD style, the first thing I would do is I would stop giving the £25 million, then I would have declared a surplus this year of £103 million, but I give the £25 million to the companies. How much have we given? I know he is getting nervous now, because this is the big 1030 reveal, this is the moment when I will show that what he was saying was the case was actually the opposite. In 2011-12, at the end of the financial year after we had been elected, we gave £72 million of capital to the companies and £28.3 million of recurring; in 2012-13, £40 million of capital and £17.7 million of recurring; in 2013-14, £40 million of capital and £20 million of recurring; in 2014-15, £9.1 million of capital and £25 million of recurring; in 2015-16, £16.9 million of capital and £25 million of recurring, and £6.8 million to the University; and in 1035 2016-17, £1.8 million to the University and £25 million in the recurring. Not the numbers here, what we have given already.

Has he done the numbers? Has he done the maths? Or are his fingers shaking too much? £326,600,000 more money has flown from the Government to the companies than from the companies to the Government, so his attempt at a purported alchemist is demonstrated to turn 1040 to coal because the argument with which he must have excited the Leader of the Opposition a lot to persuade him to change the practice of every Opposition since the 1969 Constitution at least, is utter nonsense. It is wrong. The numbers are in the books and he should have seen it, and if he did the exercise one way he surely has seen the numbers there. Is he going to give me a credit of £326 million when he was trying to take away the £246 million? Or shall we just agree, 1045 in a collegiate style across the floor of the House, to net it off? I am quite happy to net it off, because it is £80 million net for me. It is £80 million net gone in the wrong direction: £80 million net has gone from the Government to the companies. It is £80 million unflattered in the Government accounts, and therefore the calculation is wrong. But he did it. He said £246 million extinguishes the £75 million. Add £80 million to the £75 million, if he wants to do that futile 1050 exercise, which is irrelevant.

Mr Speaker, then he went on to this business of transferring properties of Government companies, so transferring properties to Government companies, and the value that we get for that and the stamp duty that we get for that. Let me deal with the value first. The correct thing to do, in keeping with general accounting principles, in keeping with the rules, is to transfer for 1055 value, not for nil value, but it was the GSD's practice to transfer at zero value. But if you transfer at zero value, the transaction is invisible. And then imagine, Mr Speaker, if I were to take a Government property and alienate it into a Government company at zero value, there would be nothing seen in the accounts. And then if I were to take that Government company and that asset and either alienate the asset again or transfer the company to a GSLP supporter, it would 1060 be invisible. We did not do that, we did things at real value; they did it at zero value. And why did the Principal Auditor have no oversight of these things, Mr Speaker: because the Constitution that they created did not give him that oversight. With the assets transferred at zero value from the Government to a company, the company can then use the asset to raise money and spend that money. And you can guess what happens then: that money is spent by 1065 the company without parliamentary oversight. That is the ruse the GSD created. If you transfer Government property for value, the value comes into the Parliament and the Parliament then decides what happens to that money.

So what is it that they are complaining about? We discontinued the transfers at nil value and we introduced transfers at real value, with the consequence that stamp duty is payable because 1070 that is what the law requires – but we will come to what the law requires and what the GSD did in relation to the law. This was not a bending of the rules, you will see, Mr Speaker. And as an accountant he should understand that when you transfer an asset, if you continue to have use of 1075 it you have to pay a real market rent for it. They must understand it, Mr Speaker, because if there was a Government that introduced that concept, it was the GSD. The Government of the GSD introduced the sale and leaseback principle when they sold the hospital for £8 million and rented it back. I think the running total is closer to £54 million we have paid now for an £8 million property. I will come to the numbers – I have them here. I would still like to know, and I have not found out yet but I am looking, who earned a commission on that sale of £8 million of 1080 the hospital. I am still looking hard, Mr Speaker. And they did it again with car parks, so they sold the car parks and paid rent for the car parks. Sale and leaseback. They now seem to think that this is a huge sin – well, they should say at least a few Hail Marys themselves. So, if anything, we are paying rent and that unflatters the recurrent expenditure budget of the Government; it makes it bigger, therefore the surplus goes down. The capital goes to the pink pages, to the I&D.

 He was confusing all of that. And, of course, all of this they did without auditing the accounts of 1085 the companies that they transferred Government property to at nil value. Having said, as I have shown, that they would when elected, they then omitted to do so.

This week, after much effort, with many more to come, the directors have signed the accounts for Gibraltar Residential Properties Aerial Farm Ltd, Gibraltar Residential Properties Bishop Fitzgerald Ltd, Gibraltar Residential Properties Coach Park Ltd, Gibraltar Bus Company 1090 Ltd, for 2014; and for 2015, for Gibraltar Co-ownership Company Ltd, Westside Two Co-ownership Company Ltd, Brympton Co-ownership Company Ltd, and many more which are being completed. At last, after so many years of the GSD failing to compile accounts, all of the company accounts are going to be put on a proper footing, something which they denied the public – all of them.

1095 So, doing things at proper market consideration is not to flatter accounts; it is to comply with the law. It is to put the money in the capital account, where it should go; it is to allow this House to see what is happening. It completely skews his allegation that we have done anything which avoids transparency, quite the opposite – they were avoiding transparency with these transfers at nil value and then they did whatever they liked in the companies. This is complex, it is 1100 sophisticated, but, whether they like it or not, Gibraltar is a £1.91 billion business and it has to be run in a sophisticated way. Otherwise, if we just do things in a linear way, it is not going to be positive for the taxpayer because this is a sophisticated society. He was a banker – I assume he was involved in sophisticated finance. Or is he the only banker in financial services in Gibraltar who did no sophisticated finance? I can think of one sophisticated thing he did which then 1105 ended up in the courts, Mr Speaker.

Anyway, compare and contrast. The GSD transferred properties to companies at nil consideration, paying no stamp duty. Once in the companies, they then mortgaged these properties and raised funds. They did whatever they liked, but it was all hidden from the Parliament. Compare and contrast the GSLP. The GSLP sells the properties to the companies at 1110 real value. The real value comes into the book and the spending of that money is subject to the control of Parliament. Simple, Mr Speaker. If it were not that case, he would not have been able to come up with the figure of £246 million. It is a case of res ipsa loquitur: the thing speaks for itself, Mr Speaker. The fact that he is able to do the numbers demonstrates that the numbers are there, which he says they are not. Everything that he says he has found has been hidden in 1115 plain sight. The next thing he is going to find is the Pink Panther diamond, Mr Speaker!
(Laughter).

Now let's move on to stamp duty. When it comes to stamp duty, what we have done is to fully comply with the law. Where properties have been sold by the Government to Government-owned or controlled entities, by paying the stamp duty, by doing the real value, we are being 1120 transparent with the valuations, with the proceeds, with the rental charges. We told him about the £300 million – that led to stamp duty, that is why it is in the book. We told him about the stamp duty when we met him, so who is hiding anything, Mr Speaker? Even in this post-Brexit year, if you take out that transaction from the equation and the Government's own transactions, stamp duty is still up year on year without the Government transaction. So what is it that he was 1125 trying to do: of course, create a veneer of things going wrong in order to try and cause the panic that he has been trying to cause since he started making financial arguments for the GSD in the run up to the 2015 General Election.

I do not know whether he knows, but the 2005 change to the Stamp Duty Act was moved by the then Leader of the House, and it suited the Government of the day just fine to require the Government to pay stamp duty because in effect they took 80 pence in every pound towards being able to raise more debt – because it inflated the GDP and it also resulted in more income for the Government. They invented that, not us.

1135 But do they know that when the sale of the hospital happened they paid no stamp duty, although the rules required that they should? Are they listening? The GSD paid no stamp duty on the transfer of the hospital. I do not know whether the hon. Member is posting as Michael Bane or somebody else, but I do not want to disturb him when he is going through this schizoid Facebook moment.

1140 If they listen carefully, they paid no stamp duty at the time that they alienated the hospital to Europort Holdings, on the basis that the Stamp Duty Act says that Government Departments are exempted. But it was owned by the Gibraltar Development Corporation, which is not a Government Department, Mr Speaker: a failure to comply with the rules. But at least by putting the spotlight on stamp duty I have an opportunity to come here and, it being relevant in the debate, I can highlight that to the general public: a GSD failure to comply with the rules on stamp duty. So, far from using stamp duty to flatter our accounts, we are complying with the law.

1145 And on pensions, far from being a Government without a plan, I think we are the only Government that has a plan. We are the only Government that has had the courage to introduce the commutation principle. The former administration stopped the final salary scheme, but how do you deal with all those who are in the final salary scheme? We have introduced the commutations. They were against it initially. Now they say it is a jolly good idea, but they do not say whether they would continue to do it or not, because they criticise the way we are doing it – so they have to put up or shut up. Are you going to continue with the commutations as we do them, are you going to do the commutations in a different way, or are you going to stop the commutations? If you do not talk about that, then you are not telling us what your plan is to deal with pensions. We have paid £180 million in pensions in the last five years since 2011. We have to deal with this, Mr Speaker. The cost of pensions has increased 320% over the 16 years that they were in Government. It started at around £7 million and it was £21.5 million by 2011. That is why we did not go against the decision of the Chief Minister then to end the final salary scheme. If we had taken a leaf out of their books, we would have jumped up and down on that, we might have made an issue of it and tried to get civil servants' votes. We thought it was the right thing to do. But now you have to deal with the problem that you have. You are pregnant with the problem. You do not just deal with the problem going forward, you have to deal with the problem that you have, and that is why we introduced the commutations using Credit Finance Company Ltd. And by the way, Credit Finance Company Ltd paying the commutations is the best possible business that the Savings Bank can do, because it has the Government paying the pension, Mr Speaker. It is incredible. And they seem surprised that I say the Savings Bank. Is it that they do not hear me every time I say that Credit Finance Company Ltd is investing the money of the depositors in the Savings Bank to produce the return, and the return is the payment of the pensions by the Government? We have given them all the detail, and I commend to them the things that Peter Caruana said about this, because in the end he was persuaded that this was actually a very good thing.

1165 Is he saying, Mr Speaker – because I think that he is seriously, with a straight face, saying this – that there is something risky about this potential asset? How can it be risky? For 30 years the Government of Gibraltar has paid pensions without fail, probably for longer. How can the Government of Gibraltar fail to pay those pensions, which is what Credit Finance needs in order to be whole in respect of the commutations over the long period that it needs to be able to

1180 provide returns to investors? This is probably the most saleable asset that Credit Finance has. In fact, Mr Speaker, I have said it before and I will say it again: Joe Bossano's design of the payment of commutations out of Credit Finance is one of the many things this community will realise is an absolutely ingenious solution to a huge problem that, years from now, people better able to assess it than the hon. Gentlemen opposite, will say was one of the saving graces of this Government, one of the ways that we really averted the big issue that would have hit this community in respect of pensions.

1185 I know that he does not like to be praised – he has just come in at the wrong time then, Mr Speaker. (Hon. J J Bossano: Deliberately.) To stop me! (Hon. J J Bossano: To stop you!)

1190 Mr Speaker, the idea that we have no plan to repay the amount that is what he calls indirect borrowing – and I am borrowing his definitions for the purposes of this debate to counter the things that he says – is nonsense. The initial amount borrowed in respect of the hospital and the sale and leaseback was £54 million in 2002-03. If you adjust for revenue etc., the amount is huge. It is huge. We paid back £15 million in the capital. Do you know how much that has cost us to date, the GSD deal: £61.7 million. So, paying back £15 million out of the £54 million has cost us £61.7 million. With car parks, they borrowed £24.5 million in 2008-09, a 25-year loan maturing in 2034. By the end of last year, eight years after the loan was taken, the £24.5 million loan – do you know how much was outstanding after all the payments? Twenty four million. 1195 Those are the loans they left us with. Not good, Mr Speaker, compared to what we have today, but you have to judge a loan on the day that it is granted; it may have been the best available then.

1200 But look at what we have done with the power station. Forget comparing it to what they were going to borrow on the power station, with the 5% accumulator that they were going to saddle us with. We have got a loan, not for 25 years like theirs but for 10 years. It is £60 million. And by the way, Mr Speaker, their loan would not have been on the balance sheet either. This was another off balance sheet loan that they were going to do. We are going to pay back £8 million per annum starting now, we can fix whenever we want, but we are paying £9 million per annum in the temporary generators, so the net effect of us taking the loan to pay for the new power station is we are going to save £1 million a year because we do not have to take the temporary generators anymore because we have got the new power station which will be paid for by the full amount of the loan. 1205

1210 Will he at least perhaps congratulate Mr Mena for having done such a magnificent job of securing that borrowing on much better terms than anything that happened when the people who wear his label were in government? I certainly congratulate him for the magnificent job he has done just in that respect for this community, let alone everything else he has done. It is a brilliant plan, because he is a brilliant Financial Secretary and a brilliant financial engineer, and I cannot think of anybody more brilliant than Albert Mena and Joe Bossano to be doing this work alongside me and delivering these sorts of excellent results, where we borrow but we save a million in the context of the cost of the borrowing. What a deal, Mr Speaker! But then again, Albert Mena was always much more highly regarded than Roy Clinton as an accountant. 1215

1220 That leads us to the £300 million investment. It is incredible to hear. I will deal with the hon. Lady at the same time as I deal with the hon. Gentleman. Both of them pretend in their presentations that there is everything wrong with the loans. They both said at the time that we shared the information with them, 'This is not a bad transaction.' She said it in her press release at the time, in very fulsome terms caveated with 'but I think this should be on the balance sheet and I think we should have more information', which I will come to now. He said it in the teeth of a cross-examination by Jonathan Scott on Viewpoint. It was his ninth answer, where Scott said, 'Well, would you have done it? Is it a good deal?' ... 'Well, it's not a bad deal – we'll see how it goes.' I have got the transcript, Mr Speaker. (Laughter) He says he did not say it. I have got the transcript. If the hon. Gentleman would just give me a moment, I will read his words back to him. It is towards the end, of course, because it took Roy Clinton a lot of time to be able to say this. 1225

1230 Jonathan Scott: Your mind is open to the possibility that the Government might present some projects, reclamation and others, which have, you know, a good possibility, a likelihood of giving you or the Government that return? You are open to the possibility that in that scenario this would have been a good arrangement to make?

Roy Clinton: Well, look, if the Government doesn't utilise this money in a way that is economically sensible, then they would be negligent, grossly negligent, if they didn't do that with this money. This is a huge amount of money we are talking about: £300 million. So it's an additional amount which the Chief Minister likes to say gives him more firepower, but I don't ever want to come back to the people of Gibraltar saying that the borrowing has come down. If he's had to borrow this money and we're using it for the community, it's fine. It's fine if the money is used properly. History will tell whether it was a good decision or a bad decision, but it has to be used correctly and properly for the benefit of the people in Gibraltar, in the manner that sort of Joe Bossano would have done. He would have invested this in a reclamation project or something to generate a return.

1235 Mr Speaker, exactly. So I do not know what it is that, a few months after that Viewpoint, has led him to get back on his white charger and start to pretend again that there is anything wrong with this borrowing.

1240 But it is going to cost money; of course it is going to cost money. He keeps calling it a loan, he keeps calling it a mortgage, a borrowing. What is wrong with it? It is a mortgage and it is a loan in the car parks company and in the hospital, isn't it? And he does not think there is anything wrong with that. He now says it is a mortgage, it is a loan, it is a borrowing in relation to this £300 million. So what is wrong with it, according to him?

1245 Well, if we look at where the Bank of England's inflation calculator would put what a £100 million was in 1986, about 1988 it would be about £300 million in today's money. So what Joe Bossano did in the time of the AACR – which Mr Speaker was then complaining about as the Leader of the Opposition, which was about £100 million of borrowing – is exactly the same ratio that we are dealing with here.

1250 Let's go forwards. By the time we end up repaying the capital etc. in 30 years' time, depending on the rate of inflation this £300 million is likely to be more like £80 million or £100 million. It is obvious, Mr Speaker, and he knows that, but he does not want to give those figures. He does not want to give the good side of this transaction. Maybe he just feels he is in opposition and he has to say everything in the worst possible way and put it in the worst possible light. But he knows that, Mr Speaker, the amount reduces. You enter into a mortgage today to buy your home for a million, say, and you think, 'My goodness, it's a million!' Thirty years from now when you finish, the same home is probably selling for £100 million and you think that you got a very good deal then. It is about investing, understanding how inflation is going to move. It is sophisticated, but this is a sophisticated society, Mr Speaker. If he is not sophisticated enough to understand this as an accountant, then he is not the man I thought he was.

1260 Anyway, Mr Speaker, in the last 30 years, the period going forward of this loan – but let's look at the past – Government income has increased 750%, so I do not know what it is that he thinks could lead, impossibly, to suggest that people should be voting against these Estimates. All of the things I have demonstrated we are doing, we are doing in the same way that they were doing them. They cheered when their leader got a knighthood for doing them and they are saying that I am taking Gibraltar to rack and ruin and bankruptcy for doing them myself in exactly the same way that has been said from those benches before.

1265 One of the things that they attack us for is investing Savings Bank money and not Government money in GibTelecom. Is it that he thinks that it makes better sense to put our hands in our pockets to pay the debentures, or does it make better sense to take something like GibTelecom into the ownership of the Savings Bank, which then produces the returns through Credit Finance? But in the context of doing so, what he should have said, if he were honest, in his calculation of £246 million – such a pernicious and mendacious calculation which he did, 1270 which I have shown was £80 million off and in the wrong direction – is that we have also unflattered the accounts of the Government because the dividend that GibTelecom would have paid is not here. So we have not got the dividend from GibTelecom.

1275 Mr Speaker, the same is true of Shell, so the Government is not taking the Shell opportunity; we are taking it in another way. Well, look, it produces an excellent return if we decide to do that. What could possibly be wrong with that? What is it that he does not like about the fact that we tell him things are going to happen and then, when we decide exactly the legal structure that they may happen, they may be different? We talk about the Government and then the Government has a company structure that we all know about and we do things through the 1280 company structure. What could possibly be wrong that he cannot ask questions about it in this House?

Mr Speaker, we talk more about the things that he says we do not talk about in this House than we do about the things that we do talk about, because we have talked about the expenditure of all of the Government companies but they have not raised one issue about the 1285 expenditure of the Government, all of which is before the House. It is nonsense! He has asked to speak about the expenditure of the Government companies because it is not in the House, and ignored the expenditure of the Government that is in the House. Why has he done that? Did he forget that he had 254 pages of Government expenditure to go through?

If he is going to ask us questions about it in the Committee Stage, Mr Speaker, so be it, but he will completely delegitimise his argument that there is no spending to vote in favour of or 1290 against, and we might just take the view that, frankly if he is voting against ... He is voting against: why should he look at the detail, Mr Speaker? (A Member: That's right.) Because it is nonsense? He has not, in the Second Reading, addressed any of the expenditure in detail. It is really quite incredible, Mr Speaker. I think he just forgot. Maybe he is more of a novice than he is 1295 an expert, and maybe next year they will approach this debate in a different way.

Caution, they said, was important, Mr Speaker. That is why what they should be doing is celebrating the surplus and not saying that it is not there and that it does not exist. At least the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition said, 'I agree that the Chief Minister has presented a prudent 1300 Budget.' (Interjection by the Hon. D A Feetham) The Hon. Mr Clinton, apparently trying to usurp the role of leadership – because I think he might be one of the ones who sees himself in his place; it is incredible, Mr Speaker, how the biggest people see themselves as rock stars sometimes – is trying to take his place by suggesting there should be more trickle-down measures. Look, you have just said 'Be prudent, be cautious, but now that I want to catch the public's attention, give as much as possible – why haven't you given more in rebates, why 1305 haven't you given more in tax cuts?' He did not seem to realise the allowances had increased in the prudent way as we thought was appropriate. And we will redress the issue of the mess that they left the tax rebates in – I already explained how to do that – but in a way that is sophisticated, Mr Speaker, proper, worked out. I have already demonstrated that 19% is the value of the rebates that we are at and 90% is the value of the rebates that they were at in the 1310 context of the tax revenue.

But Brexit is happening and he is telling us to give more money away whilst telling us that we have no money. He is saying, 'You've got the surplus, give more of it away; but you don't really have the surplus because you've just flattered the accounts.' Brexit is happening. Do they expect us to fiddle whilst the Treaty of Rome burns? Really? Is that the sort of banker that he was – that 1315 whilst Brexit is happening we should be fiddling with these trifling arguments? The public would not tolerate it, Mr Speaker.

They are not going to fall short in Spain of being delighted to report some of the things that they have said, as I suggested earlier, Mr Speaker. Who needs people like Margallo when we have got 'The Roy and Danny Show'! But what they need to do is to stop playing politics. They 1320 need to go home and think carefully about the maturity that they need to show in this debate. They need to think carefully about the fact that the Government had a company structure before we were elected, that it was their company structure, and to think carefully about not sowing panic or even concern amongst people where it is unnecessary. And we have to be clear,

1325 Mr Speaker, related party transactions are not sleights of hand; and if they are, then they did many related party transactions when they were in Government and they flattered their accounts greatly if this is a flattering of accounts, and they failed to chase arrears, leaving us with a huge amount to chase, which the hon. Lady has made a valiant effort of recovering.

1330 They talk about the culture of entitlement, but look, again I am delighted when he is on television because in the same interview with Johnathan Sacramento the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition did not just say that he thought £60,000 was a part-time salary; he, who represents the people and the working classes, he also recognised that the culture of entitlement was created by the GSD. He recognised that in the context of the interview.

1335 And then, if we raise parking fines, or if we raise speeding fines, they make the argument that this is designed to punish the motorist. No, it is designed to stop offending, Mr Speaker. Or is it that motorists are entitled to speed and endanger and entitled to park in a place where prams cannot pass and they think that that is the right thing to do and we should not be fining them?

1340 They said that this is all in the context of £50 million of waste, which is the argument they have been putting for so long, and yet they do not identify one item of waste – well, they identified No. 6, which was a capital project three years ago, and the pop concert because Mr Clinton does not like pop, ignoring the magnificent job that Steven Linares has done in bringing MTV to Gibraltar and the huge value that will have, this year in particular, of putting the word ‘Gibraltar’ on channels around the world, including the United States, and attracting people to our shores. I would have thought this was an excellent thing: £1.7 million of advertising value, Mr Speaker. Or is it that Mr Clinton knows the cost of everything and the value of nothing?

1345 The drama that we have seen played out here, Mr Speaker, in the presentations of Mr Clinton and Mr Feetham ... I know that he has just gone on Twitter to say that I am being theatrical, but it is just absolute drama. Mr Phillips talked about the Globe and all of that, but at least when Sir Peter was here we were transported to a Mansion House speech by a Chancellor of the Exchequer in the style of Peter Caruana, or maybe even a Chancellor in Westminster. But with them there, Mr Speaker, this is not the Globe; this is the theatre of the absurd. It is almost like ‘Tales of the Comedic Unexpected’, Mr Speaker.

1350 There is no failure of transparency here; there is a failure of humility, a failure to appreciate that he has just arrived in this House, a failure to appreciate that he does not understand how Government accounts work and a failure to appreciate that the things that he is complaining of are the things done by the party that he represents.

1355 He is now given to complaining about delays on affordable housing – I guess because we have not made the announcements that we will shortly expect to make; we want to make them as soon as possible. If we had made them ... it is like a flowchart, isn’t it, for Mr Clinton: if they announce the houses, complain that they are going to have to pay for them; if they do not announce the houses, complain that they have not announced the houses. If x opposite is y, if y opposite is x. It is not real politics, Mr Speaker. You can play like that for a little while, but you will be found out very soon – and I am going to do my damndest to ensure that they are found out. Real politics is what Albert Isola was talking about: getting on a plane in the middle of a debate, going to London, having meetings with the Treasury, coming back, bringing more financial services business to Gibraltar, bringing more online gaming business to Gibraltar. Look at the numbers of jobs: that demonstrates that the work is real. This is not fiction. That is real politics. What they are doing is what I identified would happen with the GSD after Sir Peter left, and of course after the hon. Lady left, all of the mala leche and none of the brains of the teams that won them so many elections, Mr Speaker. If Mr Clinton believes all of these things that he is saying, he has got a very simple thing that he has to do to be credible: pick up his chair and go and sit next to her, because whilst he is sitting with the GSD initials he is infected by everything that they did and everything that he is complaining about is everything that they did.

1365 And so, Mr Speaker, what the Government has presented in this House in the context of this debate and in the context of this Estimates Book is not a failure of democracy and it does not fail the smell test. What is a failure of democracy is to tell people how to vote without consulting them, and that is apparently what has happened, we were told on NewsWatch last night, on the other side. What fails the smell test is the stink coming over from the irresponsibility of Members opposite talking about voting against this Budget. That fails the smell test, and they should really reconsider what they are going to do. I even, in an attempt to avoid what they have said they are going to do, I invite them to walk out of the Chamber like Sir Peter Caruana did, in order to avoid having to vote against the Budget – to abstain, to walk out, or even to reconsider and vote in favour, but not to take the step over the precipice to vote to close hospitals and not to pay civil servants, to close schools and not pay teachers. I invite them to do that. It will not be a U-turn if they do not vote in favour – although they do that without a problem; they have done a U-turn on their attitude to Government companies and borrowing – but if they, the pair of them, because they are the architects of it ... I do not know who is the greater fool, the fool or the fool who follows him, but I assume that Mr Feetham is being tutored by Mr Clinton, having averted the bullet when Sir Peter was here. They should hang their heads in shame if they walk out of here having voted against the Budget. It would have been a first and I hope it would be the last that we ever see in an Opposition vote against the Budget. But it is obviously Mr Clinton who is the architect of this nonsense, Mr Speaker, and this is a step as much beige as it is ridiculous and he will be hoist by his own malicious petard if he decides to take this step, and that will be the judgement of history.

He says that there is no project coming to fruition in Gibraltar because the Eastside has not taken off, for reasons that I have explained – I should not have talked about it until it was inked, he said – and the Coaling Island reclamation has not started yet. But what about the World Trade Centre, which started and finished in our time in office? What about the Mid-Town Project that started in our time in office and is ongoing? What about the two new Ocean Village towers that are in progress? What about the Waterside Villas at Ocean Village that are about to start? What about the Gardens of Beauty that are about to start up at the old casino site? What about the Eurocity project, which has got final planning permission? What about King's Wharf II, that has just broken ground? Yes, there are three projects that have not taken off already, but what about all of these? This is again like the £246 million, 'Ha, ha!', but what about the £346 million? It just demonstrates that there is no thinking through of arguments when they are put.

In relation to Newcastle Building Society, of course we lament the fact that it is going. Newcastle were my first lender when I bought my first home, so I am very sorry that they are going. We are constantly trying to bring other banks, we have created our own bank, we hope there will be something in the future which will be more modern as well, but he is a director of a bank still, isn't he – why doesn't he persuade his fellow directors to open another branch? Perhaps he would like to arrange a meeting with me and we can talk about it with his fellow directors. I promise not to tell them what I really think of him, or even to show them how I have had to correct his homework on his mathematics.

How do we grow financial services in Gibraltar with the support of the Opposition by an allegation that we are cooking the books? How do we create the environment for people to come and set up more banks here by saying that Gibraltar is bankrupt? No, that is not the route to prudence, to caution and to helping the Government to grow the financial services business; that is the route to liquidation and destruction, the very thing you said would not happen and will not happen, Mr Speaker.

But look at this hypocrisy: the World Heritage status. I think all of us are justly proud of the work done by Clive Finlayson, of the work done by Steven Linares, John Cortes and Joseph Garcia in respect of the Government aspects of the World Heritage status, although the work was exclusively of Clive and Geraldine – but that required funding and they complain about the cost of things. That required that we put back the bid for World Heritage status which the GSD had stopped. That is how much they care about heritage. That is how much he cares about the heritage of the GSD: he does not go back and bother to find out what it was that they were doing on a particular issue before standing up and making them look ridiculous because they have said one thing when they were in office and done another when they are in Opposition. They did not pursue the World Heritage bid – we pursued it.

1430 Mr Speaker, the fact is that these Estimates contain all the information from Government spending. I have demonstrated how the companies money also comes in here and all of the things that the hon. Gentleman said really do not go to his final sentence of saying that for lack of transparency he could not support the Bill. I have demonstrated the transparency. I have demonstrated he has not bothered to make a point in the Second Reading in respect of the things that are here.

1435 But finally, in respect of the point of whether the CEO should be the chairman or not, is it that he was a lonely voice from 1996 telling Sir Peter that he should not be Minister for Finance, or is it just that he thinks that this particular barrister should not be Minister for Finance? As I have said before, maybe it is because I am from El Calpe and he does not like people from El Calpe, or maybe it is because he might not have liked something I said to him when we were both in the Students' Association, but he thought it was absolutely fine and proper and defensible and he defended and voted for the GSD when the chairman was the CEO and it was Sir Peter Caruana and he was Chief Minister and Minister for Finance, but he just does not think I am up to it. So be it, Mr Speaker – perhaps it is from what he sees on his side of the table.

1445 When it comes to prudence, you have to look at how things are actually developing: the jobs; you have to look at the performance of the economy and not just at these arguments. And if you are going to be prudent in the way you present an argument, you have to look at what you did yourself, because in the same way as when you drink you are in vino veritas, when you are in power you are in poder veritas, Mr Speaker, and in poder we have seen what they as a GSD do: all of the things that they now complain about.

1450 Mr Hammond is the former Deputy Leader who fell from grace – I am told he had designs on the post but it did not quite happen – but I think a better description of him, Mr Speaker, is 'the panic-monger who couldn't scare a fly', because in the same way as Mr Clinton has tried to create panic in relation to the Savings Bank, Mr Hammond is well known for the attempts at creating panic in relation to LNG. My children watch an excellent movie, called Monster's University, that has a school for scaring, where people are taught how to scare – and I commend to the hon. Gentleman that if he wants to try and create panic again he should go back to the school for scaring because his attempts to create panic in relation to LNG failed and I think his attempts now to create panic in relation to the environment and air quality are also going to fail because they are going to come up against reality, against the lowest PM10 in our history. In fact, Mr Speaker, as he was speaking I thought that there is a fantastic song by Albert Hammond which I thought I would dedicate to the Minister for the Environment: All I need is the air that I breathe when John Cortes is Minister for the Environment. Steven Linares: Let me entertain you, (Laughter) and in the case of the Leader of the Opposition that excellent song by the Who, Who are you on Facebook today?

1465 But he complains, Mr Speaker, that we exclude them from policymaking committees. Well, I have no intention of excluding Mr Hammond from policymaking committees. We have always said there is only one person we would not welcome back in the GSLP: Mr Feetham. But if Mr Hammond wants to join the GSLP and he wants to come to our annual general meetings, where we make policy, or to our executive meetings, where we make policy, he is very welcome. We hold our annual general meetings every year – that is why we call them annual, Mr Speaker (Laughter) – and we hold them in the big room next to the little room where they sometimes meet. (Laughter) He can find us there as soon as we get an allocation and he can come and make policy with us.

1475 He went through the STTP in the most ungenerous possible way, pretending that the 15-page document that they had in 2011 was better than the substantial document that Paul Balban has spent so much time and detail and attention preparing. And he said that we have ... It is true that they have become synonymous with succinctness. They think that their plan, which was a few pages, was better than our plan, substantial, and they think that their pamphlet was 1480 better than our manifesto. Well, it did not get them very far. Back-of-a-fag-packet plans do not work anymore. This is not a Gibraltar where we can just do things because we think it is a good idea; we have to work at them and we have to demonstrate that they work. And so he is not going to be able to get on to the STTP as his new panic pony now that he has got off the Shell LNG panic pony.

1485 Neither is he going to be able to show that the GibiBikes are not working magnificently well and that they are not the right thing to have done and to have undone the old GibiBikes that they had, Mr Speaker – the Redibikes are now working very, very well. But he says to us, ‘You should have continued with the GibiBikes and not replaced them, because that was not a good use of money, and you should not have done the Redibikes,’ – although the Redibikes did not cost us any money, they were sponsored independently – ‘but you should change every bus in Gibraltar immediately.’ It is ridiculous! And he then creates a spectre that somehow somebody made a killing on the old buses. We could not get rid of them, Mr Speaker. If he can find somebody who would have bought the old buses from us at real value, we would be very happy to allow him to flatter our accounts for next year by telling us how to sell them.

1495 And then he blames us – this is now the limit of credibility – for the ponds in the road, Mr Speaker. Well, is it that the water was not wet when the GSD were in office and it splashed out of exactly the same ponds? Except that we have done much more road resurfacing than they did in their time. Perhaps in the Jaguar that he drives you do not get so wet, Mr Speaker.

1500 Anyway, I think that it is clear that you can have different policies to promote electric vehicles. Norway has a very good policy and he was telling us that our policy does not work. I think the Norwegian policy does not work in Gibraltar, but if he wants he should be a champion of getting up there and doing something that definitely works. If you put zero duty on fully electric vehicles and on top of that we give a cashback of £1,750, and you put a 100% duty on every vehicle that is propelled by a combustion engine, nobody will buy vehicles with combustion engines. That is the Norwegian policy and it works. Is that what he is saying we should do, Mr Speaker? Does he suggest that as a matter of policy I should put 100% duty on every vehicle that is imported into Gibraltar? Maybe he wants to tell us his idea of that policy, given that he wants to be involved in policymaking with us.

1510 And on parking, Mr Speaker, again it is run with the hare and hunt with the hounds. Problems with parking – ah, well, we have to do something about it, so we increase the parking fines and we police it more effectively: ‘This is disgraceful! People are being clamped, people are being fined!’ Whose side are you on? Are you on the side of the woman pushing the pram who cannot get on to the pavement, or are you on the side of the guy who parks on the pavement irrespective of the fact that the pram and the wheelchair cannot get on it? If you are on the side of law and order you have to say put up the fines and the success of the policy is that there are no fines paid. (Interjection) But whose side are they on? Are they on the side of those who speed by trying to tell them where the speed cameras are and how they work, or on the side of those who want to ensure that for the first time in the history of Gibraltar we have speed cameras and we are going to get more – and this was a trial – and we have displays that tell you what the speed is? I want to commend Paul Balban, Mr Speaker, although he has not shaved, (Laughter) for having been the Minister who has introduced speed cameras in a way that will save lives. I think he is presiding over a very prickly issue on traffic, on parking, on residential services, very prickly indeed, but he is having the courage to do it and they should have the courage to support it – unless they are on the side of those who park illegally.

1525 To take on John Cortes in relation to the environment is a mistake, Mr Speaker. Well, finally, just on traffic, one point. He said again that we had done nothing for parking. I suppose that it may be that he thinks Commonwealth Park extends all the way down to the end of Regal House because we put magnificent designs of trees on the car park and he walks through and just thinks he has reached Commonwealth Park. It is not a park, it is the parking. There are 1,000 spaces, Mr Speaker. In town it is now much easier to park and it is free if you have a Gibraltar ID card. But to take John Cortes on in relation to the environment, when he even insisted that we 1535 plant trees on the side of the car park, (Laughter) is very brave indeed, Mr Speaker. It is risky. He should have done a risk assessment – he would have failed it. He just completely betrayed an utter lack of nous for the environment by saying ‘What is little Gibraltar going to do?’ It is the attitude of Peter Caruana. On that I commend him for GSD consistency, Mr Speaker, because the one thing that we have always been for is think local, act global. The thing that they are for is ‘Let’s do whatever we like in Gibraltar, we’re too little to affect the environment.’ But it is impossible to divert away from the magnificent work that John Cortes has done. Even by trying to no longer ever mention the LNG facility, as the hon. Gentleman is clearly trying to do, we are producing a power station that will produce clean energy. We are very pleased that this is going to be something that by next year will be on track and I think John Cortes has to be commended for the work he has done in respect of ensuring the compliance of that power station with all environmental initiatives and with the relevant environmental groups. And I always have to think, Mr Speaker, when I talk about the power station, that it was Joe Bossano who said, ‘Look, we’re doing the wrong thing with this power station – the right thing to do is to go to gas and not to do it at Lathbury, which would be a blight on the Upper Rock Nature Reserve.’ He was absolutely right, and with his tenacity he was able to demonstrate that it was actually the right thing to do.

1550 Mr Speaker, would you like to recess for a few minutes, or shall I carry on?

Mr Speaker: Carry on.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, when Mr Phillips came into the Chamber for a while, because he has not been here most of the –

1555
Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, a point of order. The Chief Minister –

Mr Speaker: What Standing Order are you referring to?

Hon. E J Phillips: 32A(3).

Mr Speaker: Rule number?

Hon. E J Phillips: 32A(3).

Clerk: 32A(3).

Mr Speaker: 32A(3)?

1570
Hon. E J Phillips: Yes. Mr Speaker, in –

Mr Speaker: I will read it out, shall I:

After all other Members who wish to do so have spoken to the Bill, the Minister of Finance shall have the right of reply. In exercising the right to reply the Minister of Finance shall be restricted to dealing with matters raised during the debate and shall not introduce any new matter.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, the matter that the Hon. Chief Minister is raising was not germane to any Members’ introduction of any matter that they introduced. The Chief Minister attempting to introduce this matter is a new matter, and therefore, Mr Speaker, I would urge you to rule that he cannot raise it.

Mr Speaker: What is the new matter?

1580 Hon. E J Phillips: The matter of my absence from the Chamber during the last few days.

Mr Speaker: I see.

1585 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, speaking to that point of order, the view I would take is that what happens in the debate ... I am just speaking to the point of order so Mr Speaker can rule on the point of order. What happens in the debate is relevant to the reply in the debate, and you were not here – or rather Mr Phillips was not here for most of the debate and therefore that is relevant to my reply, as is the absence of the Leader of the Opposition and the fact that we are about to vote £40,000 for Mr Phillips to be here, Mr Speaker, especially during the course 1590 of this debate, not necessarily at the time when he is not here to hear Members who are making speeches which are not relevant to him, but he was not here for the speeches of the people he shadows and yet he came here and delivered a speech in respect of the things that they had said. That is why it is relevant, Mr Speaker.

1595 Mr Speaker: The hon. Member thinks that it is correct for a Member of the Opposition to make a speech early on in the debate and then absent himself for the rest of that debate and that the mover does not have a right because he infringes that rule, he does not have a right to make reference to the fact that the Member has not been present. That is what you are saying?

1600 Hon. E J Phillips: I am ... Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: To make a reference – I am not saying enlarging on it, but to make a reference.

1605 Hon. E J Phillips: Well, he has already made it in the beginning, Mr Speaker, and then continued to amplify it. That is why I jumped to my feet. But the rule is clear. You can read it again, Mr Speaker, but it is quite clear that he is introducing a new matter into the debate on the Appropriation Bill.

1610 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, it is not new. He is not absent now; he was absent during the debate, so I am dealing with his absence from this Chamber during the course of the Appropriation debate, although he is paid £40,000 to be here and the Leader of the Opposition is paid £60,000 to be here. If they do not have to be here because they are professionally involved in something else, that is no problem, that is perfectly understood, but they should be here to hear the people that they shadow, and in the context of the Leader of the Opposition he shadows as Leader – he should be here for all of the debate.

But look, it does not matter. I am not taking it up with him, I am not taking it up with whoever the Leader of the Opposition may be now; I am taking it up with Mr Phillips, who was not here, although he earns that amount of money. I will go on to explain why I think it is relevant, Mr Speaker. It is relevant for a simple reason. The hon. Gentleman got up to tell us that he feels that he is transported to Bayside or to the Globe Theatre when he is here. Well, I am surprised that he feels transported to Bayside or to the Globe Theatre, because most of the time he transports himself to the Supreme Court or wherever else it is that he was.

He has a brief to deal with issues relating to security, and when he –

1625 Mr Speaker: May I? The problem where a Member, having made a speech, absents himself for a considerable amount of time in the rest of the debate is that he or she may not hear the counterarguments, the points that other Members in the debate are making. That, I think, is of relevance to the general tenor of a debate.

For me, new material would be that ... There are a number of heads of expenditure in the Budget Book. If the Chief Minister were, in his right to reply, to introduce an item, something 1630 which is not in the Budget Book, that is not relevant. A comment to the effect that a Member has not been present here for much of the time, one way or the other, I do not think is new material. It is a fact that something has happened. Material is injecting something in the Appropriation Bill of a financial nature – that would be new material – and to do so when exercising the right to reply.

1635 That applies to this debate or to any other Bill or any motion where, having introduced the motion, the mover not having brought to the attention of Parliament some matter in his opening speech, then chooses to do so when exercising his right to reply and no one can then take him up on it. That, I think, is the established practice of debating. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

1640 That is how I have understood it over the years.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, I do not want to continue to labour the point on this; it is quite clear that you are not with me on the point.

1645 Mr Speaker: In reality, I think it would be in his interest not to labour it. (Laughter and banging on desks)

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, the reason why I say that is I am looking at the rule and it is not about material; with the greatest respect, it is about matters, dealing with matters. It is a question of interpretation of the rules. But, Mr Speaker, if you are not with me, you are not with me.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, now that he is with us, Mr Speaker, (Laughter) although he has only been with us for about one eighth of this debate, despite being paid for all of it, he might like to think that he is not somebody to crow about being transported anywhere because he has not been here for most of what we have had to say. Yet he is the person with responsibility, apparently, for security and justice and he starts by telling us Opposition politics is not easy. Well, I have just read him a quote where Peter Caruana says ‘Opposition politics is very easy compared to what it is like to sit over there’, and he has demonstrated that Opposition politics is easy because he has got up and gone whenever he has wanted to in the course of the three days that the rest of us have been here to listen to our shadows and to listen to the people that we are involved in dealing with.

1655 The least he should do, Mr Speaker, being out of the Chamber as much as he wants next year, is to be here to listen to the people he shadows as a matter of courtesy, and if there is an overwhelming issue, a personal issue, as a result of which he cannot be here, and he says, ‘I am sorry I cannot be here,’ and he explains to the Chair, it is explained to all of us and that is all right. Edwin Reyes has told me he cannot be here today for a very good and compelling personal reason. I made no comment about that and I have told him that I will deal with the issues that relate to my response to him so that they are on Hansard and he can see them when he returns, but I made no comment about his absence.

1665 But the hon. Gentleman deserves to be pulled up on the fact that he was not here and he deserves to be pulled up on the swathes of young unemployed people that he sees, I suppose ... that there have never been so many tears cried by so few at College Lane than the unemployed that cry on his shoulder, on the shoulder of Elliott Phillips. I do not know whether he knows whether it is a young person or whether perhaps it is the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition in one of his Facebook disguises crying on his shoulder. (Interjection) Where are these swathes of young people? Where is the progressive politics that the GSD leads on and leads us on when we were the ones who had civil marriage in our manifesto, when we were the ones that had civil partnerships in our manifesto? They are not leading us anywhere. We are leading this community and it is obvious to anybody who takes a step back and looks at it. So nobody is going to believe that he is going to be the person to save all young apprentices. Nobody is going to believe that he is going to save our security. Nobody is even going to be able to believe that he did anything that was rational or sensible when he published that photograph of the hole in the fence, which he thought was still there.

1685 And when it comes to T-Levels, these are not new apprenticeships on which the Government has done a U-turn because we are now going to force Mr Bossano to do something he said he was not going to do. Didn't he listen to what I said? I think he was here for that, Mr Speaker. What I said was that the school system is changing in the United Kingdom, and in education we follow the school system in the United Kingdom. Apart from A-Levels, they are going to 1690 introduce T-Levels in schools, and schools, Education, is going to follow that – not anything that Joe Bossano is going to be doing any U-turns on. He needs to understand that, so he needs to be here even when he is here. In other words, his head must not be at Bayside or at the Globe Theatre; it must be here at least when he is here, Mr Speaker. Otherwise, if he is going to criticise the Future Job Strategy he is going to do so and crash and burn again because he is 1695 going to forget that under them, as I told them before, the Minister for Employment used to just go to Europort to sit outside a café to smoke as many fags as he could and not bother to employ anyone – and that is when there were real tears as a result of unemployment. And remember the figure I have given today of the number of unemployed last night.

So there are no U-turns, there is no lack of care for our young people – quite the opposite. I 1700 have shown him that there is more investment in tertiary education for our young people than ever before. There is more to do for our young people. There is even a concert that we organised because it was what we thought young people needed here, although it has grown to be an important part of what corporate Gibraltar does.

So, Mr Speaker, to suggest that we are somehow following them is nonsense. To suggest that 1705 nothing is happening on the secure unit for young children when he knows the work that Neil Costa is doing in that respect, the legislative work that he is doing and the physical work that is being undertaken, is utter nonsense.

And to try and curry favour with the GTA saying that the GTA and teachers are all desperate because the Government is doing nothing is nonsense. Because he can say it if he likes – he 1710 might have a mate who is a teacher, who because he is a mate of his might tell him that we should do more – but the reality is that we have a social partnership with the GTA, we are working with the GTA, we are making things happen and we are building seven new schools, seven, siete new schools, Mr Speaker. (Laughter) Mr Speaker, that is the reality of investment in education, investment in young people and delivering on employment.

1715 The same is true of the Police and security. I told him in my main speech – although he was here, he might not have been here listening – we have increased the investment in our Police, Mr Speaker, by £5 million, and in our Customs by even more. So, if there are major fraud cases outstanding, it is because they are very complex and they require detailed work and it is fraud and it has to be undone.

1720 But on security, Mr Speaker, I want to be clear that I am not the only one who thinks he was acting irrationally when he published that photograph. I read an excellent article by Carmen Gomez, in the Panorama on 27th June, setting out exactly how badly the hon. Gentleman had done in the context of that publication. It is on page 7 of the Panorama for that day. I do hope he takes it, Mr Speaker; it is a riveting good read, in particular Carmen Gomez's column. I am not 1725 going to read the whole of it, because it bears reading but it is a little late in the day, although I have got a second wind now as he allowed me a few moments sitting down as he made that silly point about relevance. It starts by saying:

I was horrified to see the same photo which the opposition had supplied GBC TV with the night before, on their news programme [in a Spanish magazine]

It goes on to say:

Bravo gentlemen! Who do you think you are helping? You must have the nous not to do these things.

1730 If he does not want to take it from me, he should take it from Carmen, Mr Speaker, one of our most accomplished actors, who would do a much better job at the Globe Theatre than he ever would, however much he fancies himself.

1735 Mr Llamas started this debate with one complexion, as far as I am concerned, and is ending it on another if he ends it like we were told he would. I wanted to thank him for coming, because there is a very good dog show in Texas this week, there is an excellent one in Lawrenceville in Georgia and another one in Greece and one in Turin.

1740 I do not believe, Mr Speaker, that the things he told us about subcontracted staff make sense. I think if he goes back and reads his contribution he will find that much of what he was saying is inherently contradictory. But the one thing that I will not let him get away with is the idea that we are not somehow prioritising St Martin's School. Let's be very clear: they said in 2015, 'It is not one of our priorities, we will not do a new St Martin's School.' We said we would and we are in the process of delivering it – and we will deliver it, Mr Speaker. He might like to say, 'Well, I wish the first thing you did the day after you won the election was to do St Martin's School.' He would be wrong to think we did not. We immediately started the consultation process, the work necessary to be able to deliver a new St Martin's School, not a school that we hope will be obsolete in five years, and that therefore requires planning – it requires planning to build a school that can be relevant for the next 20 years. The school we have is 30 years old. They did nothing to build a new St Martin's School when they were in Government and they said last time that they sought to be returned to Government that they would not do anything in relation to St Martin's School.

1750 I have told them already that we have invested £7 million in the Upper Rock. I could go through all of the areas of growth in tourism but I have done it already, so everything that the hon. Gentleman is saying, really ... Look, he needs to look at the tourist expenditure survey, he needs to look at the tourism survey, the hotel survey, the air, everything is up. So tourist expenditure is a bit down: does he know how tourist expenditure is calculated? It is a finger in the air. But you look at all the other indicators, and they are up and it must be that the calculation in this respect is not really the most reliable. We know it is not, because it is a finger in the air calculation, but everything else is up. So, if Main Street was down, if profits were down, then you might say tourist expenditure is down, Main Street is closing down, there are problems here; but if everything is up, then we need to look at another way of doing our tourist expenditure, which is just an indicator, Mr Speaker.

1755 And on domiciliary care the work that we are doing is really quite magnificent. We have invested so much more: 263 members of our community are receiving domiciliary care. That is a 611% increase. I commend him, Mr Speaker, for voting in favour of this book in order to provide that care, I really genuinely do.

1765 The other issues he deals with I do not agree with, in terms of the terms and conditions of employment of subcontracted staff and how we need to do things. We have had that debate 100 times. The hydrotherapy pool I think he raised, or maybe somebody else raised – Ms Hassan Nahon raised, so I will deal with it in a moment. But I disagree with him on all of that and I disagree with him on the playgrounds and I disagree with him on the Disability Bill, he knows what we are doing in that respect. It is coming and it is going to be a great Bill and it is important that it comes as soon as possible. And if he is right, then it should have come before. Absolutely right, it should have come before, we all think it should have come before, but it has required a lot of work and it is coming.

1775 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): And they had 16 years in which to do it.

Hon. Chief Minister: And you had 16 years in which to do it, although Mr Llamas did not because he was not here, but the GSD did.

1780 But where he is right, Mr Speaker, is that he is not going to put at risk his children's schooling – they go to the same school as mine – the domiciliary care, the care of our elderly, the pay of civil servants. He is not going to put at risk the fabric of this community. He is not going to vote to liquidate the community, he is not going to vote to destroy it, and I genuinely commend him for it because I know that it must have been difficult to issue the statement that he issued last 1785 night but it will define him politically. It is anecdotal that he was not here one day when he was somewhere else and we have chided him on it etc., but when the time has come he has dressed himself by his feet, as we say in Spanish, and he has made a decision which I commend him for because I think it is the right decision for this community. (Banging on desks) He has fought for Gibraltar, assuming he does today what NewsWatch said he would do, but he has fought for this 1790 community as a whole.

Mr Speaker, Mr Reyes and I have been political opponents in this House – we were both elected in the same year – for many years, but he and I have never had a cross word, even though we have had some very difficult political moments in relation to some matters. But he raised issues of delay in the refurbishment of the estates and he has no legitimacy in doing so 1795 because it is our project and we are delivering it. But look, it is something that we have said before we also regret. We wish it could have been dealt with in another way, but there have been technical problems with electricity etc., and that just cannot be done any more quickly.

He challenges the work at Beachview Terraces but does not challenge the work at Mons Calpe Mews. I think they are both of the same very high standard. We are going to ensure all snagging issues are dealt with and the residents of Beachview Terraces and Mons Calpe Mews have the absolute guarantee of this Chief Minister and of this Government and this Minister for Housing that we will ensure that all the snagging issues are dealt with.

Mr Speaker, Mr Reyes also raised the issue of the Housing Works Agency. I have said that I am working very closely with the unions in respect of the future of the Housing Works Agency, but the future that they left us for the Housing Works Agency was that the Housing Works Agency was a deal that was reducing to zero and that is the Housing Works Agency that they now say we should be somehow reviving. We are working with the unions to deal with it. The plan is not yet settled but it is very clear in my view that it is not something that the GSD can legitimately complain about.

1810 He complains that Gibraltar General Construction Company Ltd is not subject to the Ombudsman. Well, that is because they left us rules where the Ombudsman was not responsible for Government companies; neither is GJBS. And they said there is little faith amongst tenants that Government will fulfil its obligations. Well, when they were in office they had 15,095 outstanding jobs. We have 365, so I am very confident that we are doing a better job than they were and I commend all of the individuals at Gibraltar General Construction Company Ltd, at the Housing Works Agency, at the Housing Ministry etc. who have been responsible for the work that has brought down those figures as they have.

1820 We have constructed already 900 affordable homes and 142 flats for the elderly in five years. Our ratio is better than theirs ever will be and we are saying that we will continue to build, and when we have inked the new deals we will set that out. I am very much looking forward to making the announcement in respect of Bob Peliza Mews and Hassan Centenary Terraces – although if the hon. Lady carries on as she is, we will be building an ... some of my children will be living in another Hassan estate in the future if we carry on like this.

1825 Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady dealt with a number of issues. I have dealt already with the issue of the £300 million loan, although it is very clear that her attitude is a different one and it is put in a different way, but I hope that I have explained to her how it is that we intend to deal with the information in respect of the £300 million. It is clear we have a difference of opinion as to how it should be dealt with but, we do not have a difference of opinion as to substance. In other words, there will be clear statements as to the use of that £300 million and how it is going to 1830 produce profit in order to return the money, because I believe the community should have the information in relation to that, even though I do not share her view that it should be in this book. Perhaps it might be in a different sort of book, Mr Speaker, but I take from her a good-faith view that this is good money, properly obtained, and that we just need to make sure the whole community knows what we are doing with it. She said last year we need to find a better 1835 way of presenting the Budget and this year we have presented it with slides that I hope also make it easier for people to understand what it is happens with their money.

Mr Speaker, she also talked about a hydrotherapy pool. She should know that there has never been a hydrotherapy pool. There was one created when the expensive sale and leaseback of the hospital was entered into – or it was designed as a hydrotherapy pool but it has never 1840 been used and the previous administration turned it into something else, another hole in the ground, a store for something. She stood with the GSD, so I will allow myself at least the slight of telling her that at the time that she stood for election she was standing with a party that had undone a hydrotherapy pool and had created a pool of cash for the companies in the Government, which is how we now deal with that expenditure.

1845 Mr Speaker, I think on education she was a little ungenerous to the hon. Gentleman, Mr Cortes, and a little out of touch with the reality of what is happening in education. There is a dynamic move forward in a social partnership with the GTA in the building of the new schools, in the introduction of co-education, which I think is a continuation of the six years of huge progress that we have made in respect of education and in particular in the security of our schools.

1850 She knows that we have a difference of opinion in respect of the legalisation of cannabis and we have an agreement in respect of the medical use of cannabis which the hon. Lady, Samantha Sacramento, has dealt with at length in the context of constructive debates that they have had in this House on the motion and on the television programme in which they both appeared. We do not think that we should have plantations of cannabis in Gibraltar to convert into medicinal 1855 use of cannabis – but you never know, Mr Speaker, if the rocket chair propels her in this direction Commonwealth Park might be a wholly cooler place to be if she becomes Chief Minister!

Mr Speaker, coming to the end now of my reply, it is clear that those who sit on the benches opposite under the GSD banner are suffering from political Tourette's. They will say the first 1860 thing that comes into their mind and they will not think through what the consequences of saying that is, for Gibraltar. Sometimes they might actually be realising that, and that might be why I have been provided with extracts from one particular social media platform where a person named yesterday in this House, who might turn out to be the bane of the Hon.
 Gentleman's existence going forward, praises the hon. Gentleman to high heaven, denigrates 1865 me and the Hon. Mr Costa ... The hon. Lady told us she also denigrated you, but I have not been able to quite spot the occasion when he does that, Mr Speaker. Perhaps with longer time I will have a chance of seeing what it is that is said in the name of that individual about all of us, and I will smirk to myself picturing the face of this young man.

But the Tourette's that they suffer leads them to an argument that Gibraltar is bankrupt, that 1870 it is a place of absolute and utter nepotism, where the media is bought by the Government and they cannot get a word in edgeways. Mr Speaker, this is a society in which no one would want to live, let alone return a Government with 68% support. This is a society in which one would not want to bring up one's children, and yet this is the society that hon. Members tell us Gibraltar is.
 And in saying so, the hon. Members opposite for the GSD are not just insulting me in a debate, 1875 they are insulting Gibraltar, they are insulting the media, they are insulting civil servants, they are insulting all of the people of Gibraltar who go to work every day to deliver these magnificent results in a non-nepotistic, non-bankrupt, non-media-controlled society. But it is true that a bad workman always blames his tools, so I guess that is why it is that they blame Gibraltar for their own undoing politically.

1880 The hon. Member opposite is the boy who cried wolf. He has been crying wolf since November 2011: 'If the GSLP wins, you're going to bring the whole edifice crashing down.' When 1885 he became Leader of the Opposition: 'Everything's going in the wrong direction. Gibraltar's finances are going to ... We'll be bankrupt before you know it.' Just before the election: 'We'll be bankrupt after the election.' Now at least they are saying we are bankrupt, but of course as long as this Bill passes we will not be bankrupt. Civil servants will receive their wages, teachers will receive their wages, the hospitals will open and the schools will teach our children.

1890 He should know, Mr Speaker, that in a conversation with a contractor to the Government we were talking about payment terms and the man was praising the fact that the Government of Gibraltar pays within 90 days of certification of building work. He said to me the only places where a Government actually pays within 90 days are the United Kingdom, Germany and Gibraltar. Nowhere else does a Government pay within 90 days, and this Government pays within 90 days, this Government pays at the end of the month, this Government pays its interest on savers' deposits. This Government pays its way because we are not bankrupt, because we are a very solvent society, because we are doing very well, because we are very prosperous – and 1895 the boy who cried wolf got it wrong over and over again.

This is not the case of Bermuda, where some were saying things could go wrong and were proved right in the end, although I see him on his knees praying that things go wrong for Gibraltar so that he can say that he was the only one in the wilderness predicting it. I sometimes think, when I see how things turn out for him, that instead of just being the boy who cried wolf 1900 he is actually a lamb in wolf's clothing because he is so ineffective. He is not even able to keep his team together, he is not even able to get them to vote how he wants them to vote, so he is the Leader of the Opposition, Daniel Feetham, but actually in the end he is just a lamb in wolf's clothing or a boy crying wolf. He was supposed to shadow health, not public finances, but he said only a few sentences, Mr Speaker.

1905 I cannot believe that having told us all the things that he told us about, wanting more involvement in relation to Brexit etc., he did not turn up to hear the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister explain the excellent work that he has done this year alongside me and the Attorney General in helping me in relation to the issues of Brexit. He said to me in the context of his winding up that I needed to travel less and I needed to invest more in jobs. Well, I do not travel because I want to, Mr Speaker. I have got to the age in life where I do not want to travel unless I 1910 am travelling with my wife and my children – and that is no slight on the Deputy Chief Minister and the Attorney General, with whom I travel often. I travel because I have to, because in this time in our history the political leader of Gibraltar has to travel a lot to make Gibraltar's point. At this time in our history we have the biggest number of jobs in our economy but we have got a challenge that we have got to face effectively. I do not travel for fun, Mr Speaker, I travel to get 1915 things done and I will continue to do that and not take his advice.

And I will not be able to say that Victoria Stadium was a fantastic idea of his. His idea was to spend taxpayers' money building a stadium there for all sports, something that is not going to happen. And I will not give him the credit of saying that everything that is good in this 1920 community is his idea, because it is not. And everything that is bad is not of our doing – like S&K, which they also created, by the way, and I just do not have time to deal with all of that. But the arguments we are left with are intellectually bereft, politically moribund and economically illiterate, Mr Speaker.

1925 They are about to do something which I hope they will reconsider. We have now heard their views for voting against this Bill. We have heard our views for voting in favour. I really believe that if they were to think carefully they would reconsider taking the view that they cannot support these Estimates and they would support the Bill. They would do so in the context of everything that they have said in their speeches. That would be on the record. Then there is no need even for an explanation of vote because of what they have said. I disagree with it but they 1930 have said it. They could even have an explanation of vote: yes, but with all the caveats that we have set out. They could even abstain. They could even – and I invite them to do so – walk out, instead of voting no. But the historic mistake that they will make for their own political careers and for this community in deciding to vote against this Bill is absolutely the wrong decision to 1935 make. To be prudent they should not vote to stop patient care. They should not vote to stop the great men and women of our law enforcement agencies from having their wage, from having their equipment. They should not vote to require Neil Costa to decant the hospital and to stop the wages of nurses and of doctors. We have such magnificent nurses and doctors, but I am sure they would carry on working even if the Opposition stopped their wages.

1940 Mr Speaker, this is a sad day if they move on to vote against these Estimates, because it will show that there are people elected to this House now, for the first time in our history, who will be reckless as to whether our society is liquidated and destroyed.

I commend the hon. Lady for having set out the position that she has set out. I disagree with much of what she said.

I commend the hon. Gentleman for what he said last night.

1945 Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks) Needless to say, I call a division.

Mr Speaker: Okay. I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to appropriate sums of money to the service of the year ending on the 31st day of March 2018 be read a second time. A division will now be taken.

Clerk: P J Balban. (Hon. P J Balban: Aye.) J J Bossano. (Hon. J J Bossano: Yes.) R M Clinton.

1955 Hon. R M Clinton: Excuse me, Mr Speaker, I really do not understand what this vote is about. Is it about going to the Committee Stage or the Bill itself?

1960 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I commend that the hon. Gentleman does go on that CPA training, because all we are doing is voting on a Bill. We have voted on many Bills since he was elected. This is the Second Reading. This is the substance of the general principles and merits of the Bill and he needs to vote yes or no. This is the vote; this is the moment. (Interjection)

1965 Mr Speaker: Of course. The hon. Member has to say whether he votes in favour, abstains or is against the Bill now before the House. It is the Second Reading. We are on the Second Reading of the Bill. It is so simple.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, Mr Speaker. No, the confusion has been in the way that ... and technically, in fact, Mr Speaker may be right. Mr Speaker phrased it 'We are now voting on whether to go on to the Committee Stage'. That is the way that –

1970 Mr Speaker: No –

Hon. Chief Minister: I now put the question –

1975 Mr Speaker: No, I said I put it that the Bill be read a second time. That is what I put.

Hon. D A Feetham: This is the vote on the Second Reading and it is on the principles of the Bill, absolutely.

1980 Mr Speaker: That is it, absolutely. So how is Mr Clinton voting?

Hon. R M Clinton: No, Mr Speaker.

A Member: Shame!

1985 Mr Speaker: Order, please! Let's have an element of decorum.

Clerk: J E Cortes. (Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes.) N F Costa. (Hon. N F Costa: Aye.) D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: No. Account for the £772 million.

1990 Hon. Chief Minister: Disgraceful, that. Mr Speaker, on a point of order –

Mr Speaker: That remark is unnecessary. When we have a division, you just say aye, nay or abstain. Any other remark is totally out of order and therefore the hon. Member must withdraw it.

1995 Hon. D A Feetham: Absolutely, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Thank you. We can be carried away in the moment. I can understand that passions are running high. I will make allowances for that, obviously. (Interjections)

2000 Clerk: J J Garcia. (Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Yes.) T N Hammond. (Hon. T N Hammond: No.) M D Hassan Nahon. (Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Yes.) A J Isola. (Hon. BILLS

COMMITTEE STAGE

Clerk: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

5

Hon. F R Picardo (Chief Minister): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bill clause by clause, namely the Appropriation Bill 2017.

In Committee of the whole Parliament

Appropriation Bill 2017 – Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to appropriate sums of money to the service of the year ending on the 31st day of March 2018.

15

Mr Chairman: May I ask how the official Opposition are voting on clause 1? Does it stand part of the Bill? I have to say, given how you have voted ... and then I will take it ... If you give me an indication, I will then say 'Stand part of the Bill' and do not have to ask you, but I need an indication.

20

Hon. D A Feetham: No, Mr Chairman. Yes, of course.

Mr Chairman: Fine, okay. So clause 1 stands part of the Bill. Thank you.

25

Clerk: Clause 2.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 1, Treasury; subhead 1, Payroll –

30 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman –

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Are hon. Members voting in favour of the clauses?

35 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Chairman, we have made our position clear. We have voted against on the general principles of the Bill. Now we are at Committee Stage –

40 Mr Chairman: They are in Committee. I think they are entitled to give an indication as to whether they want clause 1 of the Bill, which is going to average whether that clause should stand part of the Bill. That, I think they are entitled to do, and with any other clauses, and then when it comes to the Third Reading of the Bill they can have whatever attitude they want. I think that is the correct position.

May I remind the Chief Minister that I think it would be useful if he were to give the Members an indication regarding the sitting.

45 Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you, Mr Chairman, so what is happening in relation to the Bill is that they are voting against it but they are voting in favour of the clauses standing as they are – okay. We will get our heads round that procedurally when the time comes.

50 The indication I have suggested I would give, Mr Chairman, is that I have got the honour of hosting the First Minister of Wales this evening for dinner at No. 6 at 7.30. The Bill needs to pass and I am unable to come back to the House in the context of the next 48 hours, so therefore I propose to continue, if necessary, until approximately quarter to seven, so that I can receive the First Minister at the entrance to No. 6, and then, if we have not dealt with the business of the House, I intend to return this evening after dinner, at approximately 9.30 or 10, to continue the process of the Bill through Parliament.

55 Mr Chairman: And the position tomorrow?

Hon. Chief Minister: I am unable to attend in the afternoon. I know, Mr Chairman, you have a longstanding appointment.

60 Mr Chairman: I am unable to be present tomorrow morning. Therefore, after today the House would not meet until ...?

Hon. Chief Minister: I think that the date that is convenient is 12th July in the afternoon.

65 Mr Chairman: Right, we back then to head 1.

Clerk: Head 1, Treasury; subhead 1, payroll.

70 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I would just like some clarification. I note that the establishment numbers in Treasury are going up from 89 to 91 – and I am excluding the Central Arrears Unit, which I can see has a separate subhead within Payroll – but I just wonder why it is that salaries are actually decreasing although the headcount is increasing.

75 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, I am surprised that hon. Members are going to engage us in a detailed debate in the context of this part of the proceedings, because they have indicated that they are voting against these numbers and they have said the things that they have said.

80 Frankly, it is very strange indeed to have an Opposition vote against an Appropriation Bill. It is even stranger that the Opposition that is voting against the Appropriation Bill on the basis that it does not disclose any detail is now going to go into detail in the context of what it is that the Appropriation Bill is appropriating money for. It just serves to highlight further the illogicality of the position that I dealt with in the context of the debate on the general principles and merits, Mr Chairman.

85 The answer is very simple: we have not put provision in in respect of vacancies because, as the House knows, we are engaged in a process of assessing how Departments should be, although respecting the complement of the Civil Service, reorganised in the context of more modern efficiencies, and therefore there is not likely to be any direct recruitment which would incur further costs than the establishment set out already.

90 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I am grateful for the Chief Minister's explanation – in which case, why the action to increase the headcount by two?

Hon. Chief Minister: Because those are actually there, Mr Chairman.

95 Hon. R M Clinton: Forgive me, Mr Chairman, but if they are actually there, how is it the payroll has gone down?

100 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, the information that I am being given by the Financial Secretary is that the payroll goes up, not down, and the numbers that I am looking at on page 20 show £2.911 million actual in 2015, £3.164 million estimate 2016-17, which came in at £3.066 million with an estimate of £3.286 million.

105 Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Chairman, the answer is quite simple. If there are two extra bodies there – for example, one of whom is supernumerary – then clearly that supernumerary body is not a vacant body, otherwise it would disappear. So the HEO that is there, which increases it from 89 to 90, is somebody who has been somewhere else and has been brought to this place and brings his salary with him.

110 Hon. R M Clinton: But, Mr Chairman, this does not explain why the salary has actually gone down. Or is it that this supernumerary is being paid under a different head?

115 Hon. J J Bossano: The salary has gone down because not every job on that list ... The jobs that are on the list are the jobs that were there before – the 89, okay? It does not mean that each one of those 89 people are working on 1st April this year. The money that would have been there to employ those people is not there because the job may disappear from this complement and appear somewhere else. So, where there is a movement from another complement to this complement the money will appear here and will have disappeared somewhere else. Where there is a vacancy here that depends on any changes that may happen, the money has not been put here or anywhere else. It would be in the supplementary vote of the £9 million.

Mr Chairman: Any other question on payroll? Payroll stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

125 Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 2, No. 6 Convent Place. Subhead 1, payroll.

130 Hon. T N Hammond: Sorry, Mr Chairman, just one question on a relatively minor issue, I believe. I just noticed under payroll, temporary assistance, that is (d) 00 with a forecast for this last year of £12,000 and then a jump to £70,000. Is there any particular reason for that? Is there any particular assistance being drafted?

135 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, this relates to an individual whose name and salary has been ventilated across the floor of the House, who retired and is for a short period dealing with assisting the Government in a number of matters. We have had a public debate about that.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, would the Chief Minister clarify that that was under the head of Financial Secretary – am I correct?

140 Hon. Chief Minister: No, this is temporary assistance in No. 6.

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes, but the debate we had I think was, last year, under a different head and it would appear under temporary assistance for the Financial Secretary. Is that correct?

145 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Chairman. This is about a gentleman who we have recently talked about in exchanges of press releases during the course of this financial year.

Mr Chairman: Payroll stands part of the Bill.

150 Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, under subhead 2(2)(c), the Mount expenses, I am just curious as to what those expenses might be, seeing as the Government sold the property.

155 Hon. Chief Minister: It is electricity and water costs, Mr Chairman, I am told – provision for electricity and water costs.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, why would the Government still be paying water and electricity costs if they do not own the property?

Hon. Chief Minister: Because somebody has to maintain it, Mr Chairman. Even if it has been alienated to a Government company, somebody has to maintain it.

165 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, on other charges, grants, in subsection (b) I note the forecast outturn is significantly higher than the estimate and the estimate going forward is significantly lower than the forecast outturn. Could one of the Ministers explain the reason for such a high forecast outturn this year?

170 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Chairman. I think this related to an unexpected meritorious request for funding which was agreed to by the Government, which was not anticipated and is not in the yearly requests for funding that the Government usually accedes to.

175 As the hon. Gentleman knows, I have said repeatedly we do not disclose the list of those grants across the floor of the House, but I am quite happy to let hon. Members see what those grants relate to. It is just that if we start talking about who we give money to, others who identify themselves as similar to those who request funding might think that they might knock on the door as well. So we are careful about who we give to and we are careful about advertising who we give to, but we are quite happy to share the information with the hon. Gentleman later if he likes.

180 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, that is understood, but can I just confirm then that the difference is largely based on one single additional grant rather than multiple grants.

Hon. Chief Minister: From what I can see, it is, Mr Chairman, one large additional grant.

185 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, just a question about head 2(16), ex-gratia payments, estimate £50,000, actual £790,000 – if we could have some idea as to why there was such a large increase.

190 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, that one is to a very great extent demand led. It depends what ex gratia payments are paid in the year, it depends what settlements are done and it depends how those pan out. You always have an average and then some years there are more that become crystallised for settlement.

195 Hon. R M Clinton: Would he be able to give an average number of people who have been paid ex gratia payments?

200 Hon. Chief Minister: Not that it means anything, Mr Chairman, because you could have one ex gratia payment of £1 million and then three ex gratia payments of £10,000, but the number is or two, four, six ... seven.

205 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, following on, on line 10, so actually going backwards of course, again a similar question: the estimate of £½ million, the forecast outturn of £800,000 for research development studies and professional fees. Obviously that is quite a significant percentage increase on the estimate. I note the estimate going forward remains £800,000, presumably in line with expectations. What has changed during this last year to generate that extra cost?

210 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, he will see that the actual in 2015-16 was £800,000. I think we anticipated less of that work being done in the context of this head, but in fact the work has been done in the context of this particular head and therefore we think it probably likely now to continue to be done in respect of this particular head.

215 Hon. T N Hammond: I thank the Chief Minister for that answer, Mr Chairman, and would ask a very similar question based on line 14, media monitoring services, and again the significantly higher than estimated cost.

Hon. Chief Minister: We all thought the United Kingdom was going to vote to stay in the European Union, Mr Chairman.

220 Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 3, Customs; subhead 1, Payroll.

225 Mr Chairman: Payroll stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stands part of the Bill.

230 Clerk: Head 4, Income Tax; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill, Payroll.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

235 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 5, Parliament; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

240

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I am just curious about the register of electors expenses. Are we planning to refresh the register of electors next year?

245

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Chairman, after their conduct today, I am thinking of a snap election.

Hon. R M Clinton: Was that a yes or a no? Mr Chairman, I do not think I had an answer: is it because we are going to refresh the register of electors this coming year? I guess that must be the case.

250

Hon. Chief Minister: We may be in the process of establishing the rolling register, Mr Chairman, I think.

255

Mr Chairman: Any other questions?
Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 6, Human Resources; subhead 1, Payroll.

260

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

265

Clerk: Head 7, Immigration and Civil Status; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, just with respect to line 5, contribution to Borders and Coastguard Agency, there is quite a significant rise from the estimate and indeed for next year's estimates. Is there an explanation for that?

275

Hon. J J Bossano: ... [Inaudible] money has gone. There has been an increased employment, I think, as a result of more passengers coming in and recommendations from the CAA inspector team that came out here, which are more or less binding.

280

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you, that is understood. So it is a salary-driven increase.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 8, Government Law Officers; subhead 1, Payroll.

285

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

290

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, with respect to legal advice, under line 7, consultancy services, I do note that the forecast outturn is double the estimate and yet the estimate for next year is back down to close to the amount of the 2016-17 estimate. Again, all I ask is: is there a particular reason why this year was particularly expensive in terms of legal advice, or why so many presumably unexpected costs cropped up in this area?

295

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, a lot of this is Brexit driven, Mr Chairman. There is a lot of advice required in relation to a lot of the detail of what we are doing, and therefore we are taking some of the top legal advice in respect of the matters that we are dealing with. Of course there are ongoing cases and we have an idea of what legal fees are going to be, but we can incur legal bills which we do not expect. We can also seek legal advice that we do not expect to seek, and that has been the main driver in respect of the growth this year – the fact that we have had to go out and get additional pieces of advice that we would not otherwise have expected or wished to have to get.

300

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 9, Financial Secretary's Office; subhead 1, Payroll.

310

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

315

Clerk: Head 10, Office of the Deputy Chief Minister; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

320

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, under 2(2), overseas offices, I note the list of offices and I just wonder do we have an office in Washington that we should be paying for here.

325

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): No, Mr Chairman, there is no office in Washington.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, with respect to 2(7), frontier monitoring expenses, there is an increase of about £110,000 estimated for this next year. Is that due to the introduction of new technology or just maintenance of older technology?

330

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Chairman, it is a combination of both. There is an introduction of new technology at some entry points and there is also a series of maintenance charges that need to be paid for that technology.

335

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, I thank the Minister for that answer. When he says 'new technology at some entry points', because this is the Frontier I assume there is, theoretically at least, a single entry point – and therefore what other entry points might he be alluding to?

340 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, yes, it also refers to equipment which has been installed at the Port and it includes finalising the IPS maritime system as well as two ANPR cameras at the Port. There has also been further equipment requested by Customs at the Port container park as well.

345 Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 11, Civil Aviation; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

350

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

355

Clerk: Head 12, Environment; subhead 1, Payroll.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, just in the cemeteries section, I know there are two sections devoted to salary. Can I just confirm that would be industrial and non-industrial salaries?

360

Hon. J J Bossano: On page 55 at the top it says 'industrial wages' and that covers all the sections that follow, one of which is cemeteries.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
365 Mr Chairman, I am grateful to my hon. Friend for confirming that. The first one is salaries, which is non-industrial; and, I think as said, in the second one it comes under (2) industrial wages, and then that is industrials over the page.

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you. So the non-industrial are office staff largely? I am not clear on that.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The non-industrial will be not necessarily ... The PTOs would be non-industrial. They tend to be monthly paid and the industrial tend to be weekly paid. So the gravediggers and so on will be industrial and the management would be non-industrial, as a general rule.
375

Hon. T N Hammond: I note the discretionary overtime for non-industrial therefore is ... The outturn was £190,000, whereas salaries are £125,000. That is quite an eye-watering, in normal terms, overtime bill for a non-industrial grade, I would have thought.

380

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Remember, Mr Chairman, that the cemetery is operational seven days a week at all hours and has to be because of the tradition we have in Gibraltar of having funerals very quickly, and obviously when the cemetery has to prepare for a funeral you have to have the managers present, and hence the high levels of overtime.

385

Hon. T N Hammond: But, Mr Chairman, the hospital, the Police, the fire brigade, many areas of society run 24/7 and they structure themselves in a way that would not incur quite such an overtime bill – an overtime bill perhaps closer to 20% or 30% of salary, rather than what is approaching 100% above salary.

390

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I do not think that is logical, because if you look at the hospital there are going to be many grades; some of them will attract overtime and some of them will not. When you look at the overall pro rata it is going to be lower than when you have three people doing all the overtime. It is a mathematical argument.

395

Mr Chairman: Payroll stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

400

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I was curious about the running of the Alameda Gardens. Estimate to outturn is about 12% higher and there is a 5% increase forecast for this coming year. Is this not a fixed contract, or is there an element of percentage increases each year or additional costs that can be charged under the contract?

405

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: There are additional costs that add up. For example, in the opening of a tropical greenhouse the spend on water goes up considerably – and when new areas are prepared, particularly on water, and that will put up the bill considerably. And this encompasses all. It is not just a contractual sum, but it is other expenses that are related to, which may not be predicted at the time of the contract.

410

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, can I just confirm for 3(h), it says 'control of seagull GONHS'. I have been in touch with GONHS and they insist they are not part of the gull culling programme. Can the Minister clarify what the position is there?

415

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That has stayed on. It has not been the GONHS contract for about three or four years now. It has just stayed on in the book. I suppose you could call it a typo. It is no longer GONHS, but it has been there and I suppose it has not been picked up.

420

Hon. T N Hammond: It is just that obviously I am sure GONHS would very much enjoy that contract in terms of the finances it brings in, but it seems inappropriate to have them standing by as responsible for control of seagulls when it is clearly not their role.

425

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, what we can do is take that out of the final version of the book and put whatever the correct reference is if we obtain it.

430

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you.

Moving on to other charges, (m) environmental security services, again I note quite a substantial rise from the estimate to the forecast outturns – something like four-times increase. Is that due to the purchase of a particular piece of equipment or a project?

435

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, that was due to the Department taking on a considerable amount of security work, which included Commonwealth Park and some work on the Upper Rock. We have since streamlined the operation and we are providing now the service for ... You will see it has gone back down, so it is now being provided for a smaller amount.

440

Hon. T N Hammond: Presumably, taking on that extra work did not involve taking on extra personnel – so I am wondering how the costs actually arise.

445

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, at the time of the estimates we provided for only a quarter of the year, but then it was felt that we would benefit from extending that, and that is why we had the higher actual outturn. We have since considered that it was probably more than we needed to, so we streamlined the operation and it has gone back down to a more realistic figure for this year.

445 Hon. T N Hammond: Can I just confirm then, environmental security services are – that is salary-driven cost rather than a cost of investment in a particular item or project?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It is a contractual cost. There is a contractor that deals with the security and it goes to the contractor.

450

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, just to confirm, head 2, subhead 3(o) upkeep of cemeteries – I presume that is the new contract that the Minister mentioned during the Budget address.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is correct.

455

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 13, Utilities; subhead 1, Payroll.

460

Mr Chairman: Head 13, Utilities, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

465 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I am just curious. Under 2(3), on the water contribution in lieu of water tariff increases, I notice that 2015-16 was £743,000, the estimate for 2016-17 was £500,000, and the outturn was in fact lower, £320,000. Can the Government explain whether that is because water charges have gone up per unit, or is there some other reason?

470 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Chairman. At that stage we carried out an exercise in which we closed one of the desalination plants and the costs decreased, and therefore there was less cost and therefore it was not necessary to pay that much back.

475 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, under (1)(a), contribution from revenues received, there is a £3½ million increase from the estimate to the forecast outturn. Is there a reason for that?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is an increase in the revenue. (Interjection) Yes, I can only assume that it is a greater amount of consumption. There are more houses, (A Member: More gardens.) more gardens, so it is obviously an increase in consumption that this reflects, as well as obviously the fact that – and we are talking about electricity here – there is ... Yes, I think I mentioned in my Budget speech there has been an increase in the number of consumers, which will have resulted in that, and there are obviously more residential areas. Also, the GEA is particularly good, as are other people not far from me, at ensuring that arrears come in, so there may be an element of that.

485 Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you. Just to be clear, it was not a criticism; it was purely to try and understand why there is such a variance from one column to the next.

Moving on from that, the additional contribution for the estimate this year is down by about £4 million from the forecast outturn of the year just complete. Is there a reason for that?

490 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, the Electricity Authority is obviously running very efficiently. There has been, for example, a decrease in the consumption of fuel due to more efficiency. The non-use of the South District power stations is one example. Also, the fuel hedge which we have just completed was maintaining prices higher. Now prices are considerably lower than the price we 495 were tied up with the hedge, so we are expecting less cost in view of the result of the hedge having been completed.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

500 Clerk: Head 14, collection and disposal of refuse; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

505 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, what I hope is a fairly straightforward question: can the Minister just explain what the difference between disposal of refuse as opposed to other items is? Is it a case of other items being things like refrigerators and such?

510 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, exactly. Refuse is the people who do our bins day to day, and the other is refrigerators, mattresses and other things.

Hon. T N Hammond: Okay, thank you.

515 Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 15, Upper Rock Tourist Sites and Beaches; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

520 Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

525 Clerk: Head 16, Education; subhead 1, Payroll.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I just have one question in relation to 1(1)(f), pension contributions. That seems a decrease from the outturn of £880,000 to £570,000 – I was just wondering why.

530 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That will have been an estimation of the teachers retiring. It was probably ... That is, unless I am advised otherwise, it will just reflect the real situation and the expectation of – 535 Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): And the move to the Provident Fund as well.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, it is about £310,000 lower. It is 30-odd per cent, if not more, 35%, compared to the outturn, and in previous years it has been at about the £800,000 mark. It just seems out of the ball park as such.

540 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, there was an arrangement whereby teachers ... It is a reflection of what is actually expected. Teachers on the contributory pension scheme were given the option of moving into the pension non-contributory scheme, and therefore that had a readjustment and a recalculation. That is the reason.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, under Payroll (d)(iv), temporary cover, I do note the estimate for last year was £744,000. The estimate for this year is almost £1.4 million. I assume that is purely because more supply cover is anticipated, or the requirement for more supply cover is anticipated. Is there any particular reason why we might be anticipating or expecting that to happen?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, again this is based on the expectation of a number of teachers who are going to go on maternity and paternity leave. We are expecting more this year than last, so we have to cover. So this is actually based on a calculation of providing cover for maternity and paternity leave. There are rather a lot of teachers who are pregnant at the moment.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, I presume we have enough supply teaching resource available to cover the anticipated requirement.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: We certainly do.

Mr Chairman: Payroll stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, on 2(5)(b), discretionary scholarships, I note there is a very large increase, but I also note from the analysis that in appendix P that we have an amount of £450,000 going towards Washington internship, which in turn is about £140,000 increase. May I ask why the increase? Is it because you are going to be sending more people, or is it higher expense? And also, in terms of it being half of the discretionary scholarship bill almost, do students get any kind of qualification out of this?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, as I said in my Budget speech, Mr Chairman, education is more than just qualifications and it is preparing our citizens to take a larger part and be better able to contribute to society. Therefore, although this is not the place to justify the scheme, I think it is well recognised, particularly by the young people, so this is to allow the possibility of an increase in the number.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Chairman, I just have one question –

Mr Chairman: Yes, the Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: – on other charges, 14, Project Search. I believe this was in last year's estimate for the same amount, and the same amount has been estimated for this year. Does the Hon. Minister predict that this will be used, expanded? Is he in a position to give details at this stage of what this estimate will entail?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The book shows zero for previous years, so unless this was done by another Department –

Hon. L F Llamas: It was. It used to be under No. 6 in last year's Budget. Unfortunately, I think there is a footer on it.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Sure. Obviously I was just looking at my own particular Department.

No, this is running well and we feel that this, for the moment, can cover this. If it expands and develops, then obviously we would have to deal with it accordingly, but there is enough provision, I think, at the moment. Obviously this is something that the more you throw at it the more you can do with it, but we feel that this is a reasonable amount for this year.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, the hon. Gentleman questions us with the legitimacy of somebody having voted in favour of this Bill, but I note that the footer he has rightly picked up is on the wrong line and in the final version it will be moved to line 14, which is where he has rightly identified it should be.

Mr Chairman: Other charges ... No, sorry. Is the Chief Minister providing an answer?

Hon. Chief Minister: Can I just, for assistance ... I am told by the Financial Secretary there actually has to be a footer on postage expenses as well, so there is a footer missing which will have to be added to show the No. 6 reference.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 17, Gibraltar University; subhead 1, Payroll.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, obviously payroll is zero, but I have just one general observation – and the Government may or may not wish to consider this – and that is in respect of the controlling officer, because I note the current controlling officer identified is actually on the board of the University – it may be more appropriate to identify somebody else, i.e. maybe the Financial Secretary or some other individual as a controlling head.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I do not think there is any need to reply to that. It is not relevant to the Bill.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, we hear what the hon. Gentleman says. It is not a million miles from some discussions that we are having about how to ensure that there is independence in the board versus the way it is structured at the moment, so on that subject it may be that we are not a million miles away from the conclusion that the hon. Gentleman is inviting.

Mr Chairman: Other charges stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

Mr Chairman: Still payroll for University ... [Inaudible] we are... really, Gibraltar University – it is other charges, £½ million. Any questions on that?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, the hon. Gentleman wants to reduce that one? I am quite happy if he wants to move a motion to reduce that head of charge, which he wanted to do last year.

Mr Chairman: Other charges for the University stand part of the Bill. Heritage, head 18.

Clerk: Head 18, Heritage; subhead 1, Payroll.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 2, Other Charges.

650

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, contractor services, heritage, £1.490 million – I believe that was shown under Culture, or part of Culture, in previous years as part of a much larger number. Can the Government confirm that is for the running of the museum, or are there other charges in there?

655

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, that is for the running of the museum and there is also provision for, linked to the museum, the World Heritage site. Yes, Mr Chairman, when it was together with Culture, there was also the Gibraltar Cultural Services, which clearly was higher. That is now under the Ministry for Culture and this therefore has been split up. Now we are only showing the contractors who run the museum. The Culture one will appear later when we look at the Ministry for Culture. This is why it is now split between two.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, subhead 1(1)(a) salaries – in this case I have the reverse of a previous situation, where we have salaries going up from the actual £700,000 to £806,000, and yet the complement seems to be going down.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Chairman, the reason why it has gone down is due to a vacant technical post due to the retirement of one of the technical grades.

Mr R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, it is counterintuitive – your headcount goes down but your payroll goes up. Is it because there is some kind of change in pay structure?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Chairman, there were vacancies in there last year which were not filled, hence the decrease. There were also four members of staff on maternity – unpaid maternity.

745 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Chairman, we pay service charges on the stock and we have greater stock this year through Seamaster Lodge and Charles Bruzon House.

755 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I just note under subhead 2(7) £920,000. Is that an entirely new item or a reallocation from another area?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Chairman, that is as a result of a restructure, and this encompasses the Ministry for Drugs, so this, in the last Estimates Book, came under the Care Agency because this is the Drug Rehabilitation Services. So it is not an increase; it is just represented on a different page of the book this year.

775 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, only one of them was, as I understand it, which was the first one. The second one is not something that has started yet. It is anticipated it will start this year and we thought it more appropriate that it be set out in the context of the Health grants rather than in No. 6, because there is going to be a lot of synergy between the GHA and the magnificent Cancer Relief Centre people, and particularly in the running of their hospice they will need a lot of support from GHA and vice versa.

810 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Chairman, it is for a piece of equipment that is called 'Life Scan'.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, could the Minister advise the total cost and the term under the financing?

815 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, the terms of the financing have not been finalised yet. The total amount is going to be £164,000, so we are looking at financing over a period of five years.

820 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I just have one perhaps generic question but it is related to this: when does the Government decide as to when something should be financed as opposed to purchased outright through the Improvement & Development Fund?

825 Hon. Chief Minister: It is a decision driven, Mr Chairman, by the type of item we are dealing with, the longevity of the value of the item and the urgency in obtaining it. In some instances the Financial Secretary tells us that he thinks it makes sense to finance the item, and in other instances we are advised it is better to finance than an outright payment.

Clerk: Head 35, Employment; subhead 1, Payroll.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, as with some of the other queries about the salaries, as opposed to the headcount, I note under Employment headcount remains 31 for both 2016 - 2017 and the year 2017 - 2018, and yet the salary dives from just over £1 million for 2016-17 in the estimates, albeit down to £755,000 in the outturn, by another £100,000 drop in the estimate for 2017-18 to £652,000. I just wonder how we arrive at that figure, bearing in mind the headcount in total remains unchanged.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Chairman, the relevant figure for this year is the forecast outturn, how much it has actually cost us, and it is now estimated that for next year it is going to cost us a little bit less for the reasons which have already been espoused on this side of the House.

Hon. T N Hammond: What were those reasons? Forgive me.

Hon. G H Licudi: There are jobs that have not been filled and may not be filled and are being looked at throughout ... This is a consistent item throughout the book and it is a matter that is being looked at.

Hon. J J Bossano: ... [Inaudible] I think that Members opposite will welcome, I hope, and that is that if they actually count all the numbers they will find that the total number is down on last year, not up.

Within the Departments the standard practice in the past has been to provide throughout the Departments for the filling of all the vacancies on the basis of making a provision of 50% of the salary, irrespective of whether they were likely to be ... An estimate was made that, on average, if there were 100 vacancies you provided for 50 on the premise that on average it would take six months to get them all filled. Since we are looking at where the efficiencies are going to happen, what we have now got is that that 50% that would have been included has not been included and therefore where the vacancies come, instead of there being an amount in the personal emoluments already there for people who do not exist, it will come out from the combined supplementary head that we have got at the end. We may find that in some cases the final figure, hopefully, will be the reduced figure that we have got. In other words, it will be up.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I do not know if this is a typo, but under subhead 2(5) we have tribunals, income Tax, development appeals, housing tribunal and previously, it says, that 910 was under Justice. I am just a bit mystified as to what it would be doing under commercial aviation.

Hon. G H Licudi: I am not sure that it answers the hon. Member's question, and we may need to find further information for that specific question, but I should say 'commercial aviation', essentially what it encompasses is the office of the Minister. Whereas previously my Ministry came under Justice, following the reshuffle it had to be put under some other head, and the head that has been found this year to put the whole of my Ministry, the Ministry office itself, is commercial aviation, and to that you have to add the running of the Airport, including the Gibraltar Airport and the Fire and Rescue Service. (Interjection) Yes.

920 A separate issue is the tribunals, which involve Income Tax, development appeals and housing tribunals, which as far as I am aware do not come under my Ministry and the hon. Member may be right. It is not something I had spotted and the hon. Member may be right. I have given the explanation as to why commercial aviation is structured in that particular way, but on this particular item the hon. Member may be right and we probably have to put it somewhere else and it has not been spotted previously.

925
Hon. Chief Minister: The hon. Member will see that this has a nominal amount of expenditure in it, so we will see where it would be ... I think it may be left over from the head as it was, the old head.

930
Hon. N F Costa: In any case, Mr Chairman, perhaps to just provide some further elucidation, the Development Appeals Tribunal, of which I am the chair, does not cost any money to the taxpayer, so it will not go anywhere near £1,000; it has always been zero p.

Hon. R M Clinton: No, Mr Chairman, I think my comment was just in terms of where it appeared in the book, but I have no comment about the level of the amounts.

1060 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, the submission from the GRA reflected a reorganisation and, as a result of that, some increased salaries for some officers, which required this contribution.

1065 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I am grateful for that. Perhaps the Chief Secretary can advise the Chief Minister: is my recollection correct that the Regulatory Authority actually has a healthy surplus before this contribution for next year?

1095 Clerk: We now move to clause 4 of the Bill. This is at page 170 of the book. Improvement and Development Fund. Head 101, Works and Equipment; subhead 1, Works and Equipment.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Head 102, Projects; subhead 1, Roads and Parking Projects.

1100

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, if I may, just to check the costs for the highway resurfacing programme under subhead 1: is that specifically and only in relation to the area of the tunnel and the associated roads?

1105 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Chairman, the highways resurfacing programme, no; that is to do with roads generally.

Hon. T N Hammond: Can I just confirm then the entire budget for road resurfacing next year is estimated to be £300,000?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Chairman, that is correct.

1115 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, I am just slightly confused because under head 101, number 1 (0) (iv), there is road maintenance and resurfacing, which comes in with an estimate of £815,000, so if that is ... I am slightly confused as to the Minister's response in that respect.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Chairman, that head includes all the ongoing maintenance to our roads – potholes and mainly works that come out as a result of rain and damage and storms. So that is the lion’s share, if you like, of the money’s being asked for this year.

Hon. T N Hammond: I am just trying to draw a distinction here, or understand the distinction between what constitutes road maintenance and resurfacing, and why resurfacing appears in two separate heads – which is why I asked originally why one was particular to that area of North Front, whereas the other is a more general maintenance and resurfacing programme.

1125

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Chairman, the £300,000 under subhead 1(3) is for the specific project, the highways resurfacing programme. The other subhead, which is 1 (0) (iv), is for general maintenance and repair works. As a result of bad weather, if roads are in a bad state then that is where the money is derived from. The £300,000 is specifically for roads that we feel need to be resurfaced but not as a result of damage caused by storm or wear and tear.

1130

Mr Chairman: Is there a question? Yes, the Hon. –

Hon. T N Hammond: We are still on 102, yes? Head 102, I believe, yes? Under subhead (4)(d), climate change and renewables –

1135

Mr Chairman: We are on head 102, Projects; subhead 1, Roads and Parking Projects. Any questions on roads and parking projects? Stands part of the Bill, then.

1140

Clerk: Subhead 2, Reallocation Costs.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 3, Reclamation Projects.

1145

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 4, Other Projects.

1150

Mr Chairman: The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Chairman, insofar as (4)(q)(iii), repairs to the fence, in light of the recent commitment by the Government to reconstruct and fortify with a no-climb fence, and also given the fact that in 2013 the Government spent £130,000 on the fence itself, surely the figure of £10,000 is going to increase substantially. Can the Government give any indication as to the amounts that would be spent to reconstruct and refortify, including the building of a no-climb fence?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the cost in respect of that fence, the fence that the hon. Gentleman photographed, is dealt with under the tunnel project because it is part of the tunnel site.

1160

Hon. E J Phillips: Just one further question in relation to subhead (4)(z)(w). I understand there is an earmark of £1,000. Again, I would have expected that to be a lot higher, the provision ... new schools.

1165

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Chairman, it is the opening of the head which has to happen for the purposes of the work that will commence. He will see how that project develops. There is 1170 a clear indication from the Minister of a target date for completion, so he will see how the cost is accounted for.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, if I could ask, under (4)(g), Wellington Front 1 development: the estimate was £810,000 and we came in at £1.5 million – I was wondering if there is something special about the overspend.

1175

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Chairman, yes, there were many other works as we got into Wellington Front. We had a fixed contract, as in tender process, but when we went into Wellington Front there were many vaults that needed things like sandblasting inside, which was not part of the contract. Therefore, that is the overspend as such, because when we went there many of the tenants were complaining about the consequences and the things that were happening underneath the vaults, which was not part of the contract. That is why. We went there and we took the decision of doing the vaults as well.

1180

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, on the same subhead, and indeed the same sub-clause, I notice the Wellington Front development remains open with a £1,000 estimate. I was under the impression that the project was complete. Presumably there are still some works to be completed there.

1185

Hon. S E Linares: The project is complete but we have left a sum there in case, because it is an old building ... That is the problem with refurbishing old buildings. Because it is an old building, sometimes things crop up like water ingress from places you never envisaged water ingress coming from, so we left £1,000 just in case, when the winter comes, if we have to do any other works that need to be done we have a head there.

1190

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, if I could reference item (u), Commonwealth Park, £450,000 estimated for this year – if I could ask what that would be in relation to.

1195

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Chairman, final payments. There were funds – as is often the case in major projects – retained for a period of time to ensure that all was well, and now that is due for payment.

1200

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Subhead 5, Equity Funding/Funding.

1205

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: We now move to clause 5 of the Bill.

Mr Chairman: In respect of clause 5, the Hon. Roy Clinton has circulated an amendment which I invite him to move.

1210

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Chairman.

1215

The amendment I propose is that clause 5 be amended by the addition of the following words at the end of that clause, namely, 'no supplementary appropriation is to be allowed to head 52', so that the revised clause 5 would read as it stands at the moment with just those words added at the end, i.e. 'no supplementary appropriation is to be allowed to head 52'.

The reason for suggesting this amendment is that I have noticed it has become the habit when we come to the supplementary appropriations that this particular head 52, which is generally described as 'supplementary provision' and more specifically within the book as being 1225 'to generally fund pay settlements and supplementary expenditure which can be reallocated to other heads of Department as a provision for the year ended 31st March 2018' ... When it comes to supplementary appropriation, a habit seems to have developed whereby rather than, as I believe the Constitution envisaged, the supplementary appropriation be by head ... instead of which we seem to be getting into the habit where a lump sum is appropriated into head 52 and then reallocated out from there, which I do not think was the intention of the rules surrounding supplementary appropriation, especially since this particular head is in the form of a provision, which in my mind you either expend or you do not, but I do not think it is appropriate that it should be added to thereafter.

1230 Therefore, Mr Chairman, what I am suggesting is we add this wording at the end of head 52 so that there can be no doubt in anybody's mind that £9 million is the amount in the head – you can spend that amount and reallocate it but you cannot come back to this House and ask for a further allocation to that head. If you do need supplementary appropriation on other heads, you do it as it was done in the past where you do it head by head, Department by Department, so as to give full visibility when you come to appropriate for the supplementary expenditure.

1235 I believe, Mr Chairman, that is what was done in the past and I believe that is probably what was intended by the Constitution and the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act. What we have is a situation where you have a general account, and I can accept it where it is for use within the year but to add to it after the close of the year seems counterintuitive. That is why I am proposing this amendment. It has no impact whatsoever, as the Members of this House will realise, it has no impact on expenditure, it does not increase any charges, does not decrease any charges. This is purely a question of process and the mechanism by which future appropriations to this Appropriation Bill would be affected. So, in future if there is, for example, an overspend on the Port or education or health, it would come with a specific head attached to it with a specific number, rather than a total that goes into the generic account supplementary provision. I trust that hon. Members of the House will appreciate this is not in any way, shape or form trying to score points, but is just, I think, the proper mechanism by which supplementary appropriation should occur.

1245 Thank you, Mr Chairman.

1250 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Chairman, the Government will not be supporting this amendment.

The hon. Gentleman has said, in the context of the presentation, that the intention, when the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act was done, was that the appropriations which are supplementary should be dealt with in the way that he suggested and not as has been the case.

1255 Of course, I have had to look at what the practice has been. The practice that he is complaining of first arose in 1997-98 when the former Chief Minister was the Minister for Finance. The former Chief Minister, Sir Peter Caruana, amended the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act and led the negotiations on the new Constitution and the presentation of the new Constitution in referendum to the general public – and of course, as he knows, all of these things are linked. Therefore, it is clear that the intention of the person who passed the Bill and who therefore devised this structure is the intention that we are seeing here.

1260 I have looked back at a number of Appropriation Bills. I have looked at the 2008 Bill – it has a similar provision to the one we have today, without the caveat in words the hon. Gentleman has referred to; the 2005 Bill; the 2004 Bill. Mr Chairman, I wanted to look before the new Constitution and after, because of course that affects the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act. I think it is very clear that the introduction of the head was a matter which was brought about by hon. Members' party when they were last in government. It was introduced when the former Chief Minister was Minister for Finance and clearly intention of the legislature has to be inferred from the fact that the person who brought the legislation to the legislature at the time and interpreted the legislation after 2006 acted in the manner that I am setting out.

1270 And so therefore, Mr Chairman, the Government will not be supporting the proposals set out by the hon. Gentleman in his amendment, although I must say it is remarkable that he is 1275 presenting an amendment to a Bill that he intends to vote against; (A Member: Exactly.) so we are going through the Committee Stage, but when we come to the Third Reading they are going to vote against, just like they voted against in the Second Reading. And so they want to amend the Bill that they then allow us to approve on our own.

1280 Well, look, Mr Chairman, we are going to approve it with our votes – and with the votes of the hon. Lady and the Hon. Mr Llamas, if they vote as they voted in the Second Reading – and we are going to approve it on the basis of the Bill presented to the House, not with the amendment that he proposes.

1285 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, just to clarify for the record, whereas I do not dispute that the form of provision or head had been correct, certainly under a previous GSD administration, what we have not seen under the previous GSD administration is a supplementary appropriation to that particular head. I have gone back and looked at the Appropriation Bill for 2010-11 and certainly there was a supplementary appropriation but it was by individual head and not to this supplementary provision head. It is a practice that his Government has fallen into the habit of doing, whereby there is a reallocation of the supplementary provision after the year is ended by bringing to this House a Bill to supplementary appropriate to that head and not to the individual 1290 other heads.

It is regrettable, Mr Chairman, that the Government does not feel able to support this amendment which I think would be useful in future, but I do believe that the manner in which this provision is being used in respect of supplementaries in my view is not what was intended in terms of its original use; and the reason for its creation, as the Father of the House has told me 1295 in the past, was for supplementary pay awards during the year, but certainly not to top it up at the end of the year once you have overspent in Health and Education, and other areas perhaps, and to reallocate out of that. I think that is a use of that particular subhead which runs contrary to what the Constitution says. Indeed, the Constitution, under 69(3)(b), says:

If ... any moneys have been expended on any head of expenditure in excess of the amount appropriated for the purposes included in that head by the appropriation law or for a purpose for which no amount has been appropriated by the appropriation law, the Minister ... shall cause a supplementary estimate showing the sums required or spent to be prepared and laid before the Parliament ...

1300 But if he just gets a lump sum and puts it into this provision and then reallocates it himself and gives us a schedule after the event, there is no way this Parliament has any way of knowing what it is or which heads he is putting a supplementary appropriation to, which is why I was suggesting by all means keep the clause and keep the head but cap it at the amount of the provision as provided in the Bill, and that no further appropriation should be allowed to it.

1305 If the Government is not minded to support my amendment, so be it, but I will have more to say on this when we do debate the supplementary Appropriation Bill.

Thank you, Mr Chairman.

1310 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Chairman, I look forward to see whether he actually comes up with anything persuasive at some stage when he talks about Appropriation Bills, but for now the Government's position is clear and if you put it to the vote we will express our views by voting in the appropriate way.

Mr Chairman: Does anybody else wish to speak on this amendment?

1315 I will therefore put Mr Clinton's amendment to the vote. Those in favour? (Several Members: Aye.) Those against? (Several Members: No.) Carried. The amendment is defeated.

Clerk: We move to page 164 of the book. Head 52, Supplementary Provision; subhead 1, Supplementary Funding.

1320 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: We now consider clauses 6 and 7 of the Bill and we move to page 182 of the book. Gibraltar Development Corporation, Appendix B.

1325 Mr Chairman: This is all Appendix B. Does anybody have any question?

Clerk: Borders and Coastguard Agency, Appendix C.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

1330

Clerk: Gibraltar Electricity Authority, Appendix D.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

1335 Clerk: Housing Works Agency, Appendix E.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Gibraltar Health Authority, Appendix F.

1340

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, just with respect to salaries, again I am not detecting any substantial change in the overall headcount of the Health Authority. I see there are slightly fewer part-time jobs but overall the numbers are, in percentage terms, almost identical – and yet there appears to be a £3.2 million increase in the salaries. Is it understood what the reason for that is?

1345

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Chairman, if the hon. Gentleman would go to relief cover, he will see that there is a drop from £5.6 million to £2.5 million. That is because we have been advertising posts, which will therefore make them salaried officials rather than locum cover.

1350

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, in respect of line 16-17, prescriptions and drugs, I note there is quite a large increase on Group Practice Medical Scheme prescriptions for this coming year, but there seems to be almost a compensating drop in drugs and pharmaceuticals. I would be grateful if the Minister could explain the variation. Are we looking at reallocation or is there some kind of different methodology?

1355

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, I did set out the reasons during the course of my Budget speech. I explained to the hon. Gentleman that the new finance team has implemented a series of controls. We are confident that as a result of the measures being taken and direct negotiations with the different companies that provide the drugs and pharmaceuticals to the GHA we will be able to come lower than we did in this financial year. Of course we will see at the end of the financial year whether we have been successful in that or not.

1360

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, I am grateful for that, but can he explain why the large increase in Group Practice Medical Scheme prescriptions?

1365

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, as the hon. Gentleman may recall, the GHA has been introducing a new electronic system as a result of which there have been some payments to pharmacies that we are catching up on, and that is the amount that will take into account the payments to the pharmacies.

1370

Hon. R M Clinton: Sorry, Mr Chairman, there was a problem with the prescriptions system and this is catch-up payment?

1375 Hon. N F Costa: The GHA introduced during the tenure of my predecessor a new system called EMIS Health – I am sure that my hon. predecessor made comments about it at the time during the course of the Budget speech – and as a result of the change from one system to the other we are just adjusting and pharmacies are being paid as a result of that transitional period.

1380 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: If I may assist, during the time of the transition, because the system was changing, there was a time lag in which the figures actually owed to the pharmacies could be reconciled, so I believe, if memory serves me right, there was a calculation done on 85% of the previous year and that was what was paid, and when the system was implemented it was then adjusted to reflect the actual costs. So there is a backlog there that has to be caught up.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Chairman, on more mundane things, laundry and cleaning on line 24, I am just curious as to how they are going to achieve such a large saving on what is such an essential item.

1390 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, the Financial Secretary reminds me that this was as a result of an internal rationalisation and this was the figure that the finance team has arrived at, and we think that we will be able to provide the laundry services that are provided to the GHA at £300,000 as opposed to £450,000. Once again, as I said to the hon. Gentleman during the course of my Budget speech, we are holding monthly financial control meetings, so we will know, I daresay within six months, whether or not we are on track with the estimates that we are making during the course of this financial year.

1395

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Chairman, in relation to sponsored patients, the hon. Gentleman may recall that there have been exchanges during Question Time in relation to ... I asked whether there had been a change in practice in relation to sponsored patients. That was in March and the hon. Gentleman told me that there was no change in sponsored patients. But this appears to indicate that in fact there is a substantial decrease in sponsored patient expenditure from £19.5 million to £14 million. Presumably there has been a change in practice. Could the hon. Gentleman explain that?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, to answer the various questions that the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has put to me, if you were to consider the estimate that was made for 2016-17, you will see that the amount that was actually spent was almost £8 million more, which means that it has been very much demand led. He says that I mentioned in an answer to a question to him there had been no change in the policy, and I stand by that – there has not been a change in the policy.

1410

I also mentioned during the course of the Budget speech to the hon. Gentleman opposite that – I think it was on 4th May – there has been a committee set up comprised of the most senior physicians in the GHA, where referrals now are checked by this committee and they are either confirmed or otherwise, and after having looked certainly at this subhead significantly, we are confident that we will be able to, as a result of this new committee, which has not changed the policy in terms of when persons are sent to Spain or to the UK but rather it provides a quality assurance that the right decisions are being taken by a wider field of consultants rather than just the one referring consultant ... We think that the £14 million will be the right amount, but once again we will see within the course of the financial year whether we are correct in our estimate or we are not.

1425 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, line 27, motor vehicle and fuel expenses, again I note from the forecast outturn of £250,000 for this year a reduction to £150,000 for next year. I know we were discussing fuel prices earlier. I do not think they are down that significantly to indicate a reduction of £100,000 in the costs. Is there another reason why we may expect that particular cost to go down so dramatically?

1430 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, once again this is an attempt internally by my Ministry and the new finance team at rationalisation, and in an attempt to save money. I would hope that the hon. Gentleman will in due course – if we are correct in the estimate of being able to spend less on motor vehicle and fuel expenses – that he, at the appropriate juncture, congratulate us for being able to do so. But, as I say, where we estimate less expenditure than in the course of this financial year, it is as a result of internal controls that we are implementing. During the course of 1435 the Budget speech I gave indication of the major heads of which we think we will be able to be more financially prudent, and motor vehicle and fuel expenses was one of those subheads.

Hon. T N Hammond: I would be more than happy to congratulate the Minister should he achieve his targets.
1440 Can I just get an assurance that that rationalisation does not involve any reduction in the ambulance fleet, for instance, or in any other mission-critical vehicle, shall we say?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, the hon. Gentleman also was not listening to the course of my Budget contribution. I appreciate that it was probably one of the longest ones, but I did say there that as a result of the increase to the staff of the complement of the Ambulance Service, which was increasing by eight ambulance care assistants, we would actually be taking a new emergency ambulance in July, we will be taking an additional emergency ambulance in December and we will be taking over the ambulance that the Gibraltar Fire Service provides, so there is no question of us spending less. In fact, we are spending more in terms of human resources and resources to be able to service the community, and the Financial Secretary has very helpfully reminded me that with solar panels that should also reduce the fuel spend on the generator.
1450

Hon. T N Hammond: Can I just confirm? So the cost of those new vehicles, which are very welcome indeed ... They obviously do not feature in this head. Did I miss them in the capital expenditure head? Where might I find them? If the Minister could provide guidance.
1455

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, they will be in the capital account: receipts and contributions from the I & D Fund.
1460

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, moving on from that point to line 42, disposal of clinical waste. Again, I know, quite a substantial reduction – I am sure the Minister will say it was in his speech, but it was a very long speech – (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) It is a reduction of £730,000, almost halving the overall bill from the outturn expected. Can the Minister explain how that will be achieved?
1465

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, in the first place, the hon. Gentleman should thank the Chair for the fact that it was only an hour and a half; it was probably more like three hours, but after the Chair's admonition I sought to reduce the speech substantially. I still did not escape a ticking off, however.
1470

In respect of the waste, this is something again that the finance team and I have looked into and we actually think that the money being spent is too high and there are ways in which, by proper education and more robust protocols, we can ensure that the bins, the way that they are used, are used properly, because every time they are taken from the GHA, from any areas of the 1475 GHA, we need to pay a fee, and unfortunately sometimes those bins are full before they ought to be because they are not being used clinically as they ought to be. So we are in the process of issuing entirely new and more robust protocols to make sure that the bins are used properly and the matrons, part of their job will be to make sure that clinicians and nurses use those waste bins properly in order to reduce cost. It is actually, as the hon. Gentleman rightly noted, quite a 1480 high item of expenditure which we think we can greatly reduce.

Hon. T N Hammond: And I promise to congratulate the Minister should he achieve that target also.

1485 One more: going down to security, Mr Chairman, again I note – and in the first instance I do congratulate the Minister in, already, the reduction of the actual to the forecast outturn, but I do notice that again we are reducing the estimate by about 25%, by £90,000. Is there a reason for that? Clearly I am not assuming it is a reduction of security. Is it new technology being introduced, or anything like that, at the hospital?

1490 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Chairman, the Director of Finance of the GHA is outside and they are going to ask the question now, so perhaps if we can move on I will move back as soon as I have the answer for the hon. Gentleman.

1495 Mr Chairman, this is an item of expenditure that I certainly have no recollection of discussing trying to reduce, so it may well be that this slipped the net and it should be exactly the same; but as I say, I will confirm with the Finance Director and get back to him.

Mr Chairman: Any other questions? No. Then Gibraltar Health Authority stands part of the Bill.

1500 Clerk: Gibraltar Health Authority Elderly Residential Services Section, Appendix G.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Care Agency, Appendix H.

1505 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Gibraltar Port Authority, Appendix I.

1510 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority, Appendix J.

1515 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Chairman, line 24, hosting of special sports and leisure events: I note quite a substantial rise in the estimate from the forecast outturn for this year, and indeed last year's estimate, to the tune of about £300,000. Is that because there is a particular event envisaged to happen in the next 12 months that would cover that cost?

1520 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Chairman, it is to do with certain events that we are hosting and therefore we have increased the amount this year. We are hosting more events. Remember that the more events we do, the more tourism we get and the more benefit to the economy generally. For example, one of them is the Pool Masters that we do, and there are other events that we have increased during the year.

1525 Hon. T N Hammond: Yes, I am certainly not judging as to the value; I was only wondering as to the increase in costs. Mr Chairman, thank you.

Mr Chairman: Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority stands part of the Bill.

1530 Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.06 p.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH, OBE, in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: P E Martinez Esq in attendance]

Personal Statement by Hon. D A Feetham

Clerk: Wednesday, 12th July, continuation of the meeting of the House.

Mr Speaker: The Leader of the Opposition has asked for leave to make a Personal Statement.
5 The Hon. Daniel Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, today will be my last day as Leader of Her Majesty's Opposition in Gibraltar and I ask Mr Speaker to recognise my hon. Friend Mr Clinton as Leader of Her Majesty's Opposition as from close of parliamentary business today.

Personal Statement by Hon. L F Llamas

10 Mr Speaker: I have also been asked for leave by the Hon. Lawrence Llamas also to make a Personal Statement.

15 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, further to my Personal Statement last week and for the purposes of recording my change in status in Hansard, I shall be sitting as an independent Member of this Parliament as from today and therefore no longer represent the official GSD Opposition. It is without saying that I will endeavour to discharge my responsibilities with the same vigour and respect as when I started.

20 Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I rise as Leader of the House to acknowledge both of those Statements.

25 In relation to the first statement in this House from the Hon. Mr Feetham and the statements outside of this House by Mr Feetham in respect of his relinquishing of the position of Leader of the party opposite and Leader of the Opposition, he and I had an opportunity to speak on the morning when he made the announcement and I have already said publicly that I call for respect for the decision that he made. But on the last occasion that we faced each other across the notional dispatch box, can I just, perhaps, reflect for a moment that he and I started our political discussions as fierce friends and we ended up as fierce foes, but always in a political sense, 30 certainly as far as I was concerned. We have also been partners, politicians and parliamentarians together, so as he leaves his post as Leader of the Opposition I wish him, of course, the very best at a personal level. He is going to remain a Member of this House, so we will continue to have an opportunity to spar, no doubt, at a political level; and I sincerely hope that at a personal level, 35 given that that was what he expressed was the driving motivation for his decision, I wish him all the best, of course.

Mr Speaker, I recognise that Mr Llamas is now sitting, although not where the other independent Member sits but as an independent Member also, and I applaud him for having had the courage of his convictions during the course of the debate on the Appropriation Bill and recognise that he is now not a Member of the official Opposition.

Suspension of Standing Order 7(1)
in order to lay report

Mr Speaker: Could I now call upon the Chief Minister to move the suspension of Standing Orders for the purposes of laying on the table a report.

45

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I beg to move, under Standing Order 7(3), to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with the laying of a report on the table.

Mr Speaker: Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

PAPERS TO BE LAID

Clerk: Papers to be laid – the Hon. the Minister for Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the table the Crimes Act (Schedule 4 Amendment) Order 2017.

55

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

Order of the Day

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
First Reading approved

Clerk: Bills – First and Second Reading.

We commence with the Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017. A Bill for an Act to amend the Proceeds of Crime Act 2015. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, before this Bill proceeds, Members of the House will know that the publication of the Bill has not enjoyed six weeks – (Interjection by Mr Speaker) The Proceeds of Crime Act, Mr Speaker, amendment ... has not enjoyed six weeks of publication before the House is asked to proceed in respect of consideration of it. I have written,

Mr Speaker, to you this morning certifying that this Bill is too urgent to await six weeks of publication before the Parliament considers it.

70 I understand that the Hon. the Minister for Justice has been in touch with Members opposite in respect of this and that we are able to proceed to consider this Bill, not just on the basis of my certification of its urgency but also on the basis that that is broadly agreed. And so, Mr Speaker, I consider that the provisions of the Constitution in respect of the period of publication required before the Parliament can proceed upon the Bill have been satisfied.

75 Mr Speaker: Having received the necessary notice from the Chief Minister in respect of the urgency of this Bill, we can now proceed with it.

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Proceeds of Crime Act 2015 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

80

Clerk: The Proceeds of Crime Amendment Act 2017.

Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017 – Second Reading approved

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill for the Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Act 2017 be read a second time.

85 Mr Speaker, I have received representations from the Office of Criminal Prosecutions and Litigation regarding the need to introduce the amendment contained in this Bill. Without wishing to reveal any information regarding any ongoing matters, I have been satisfied that all the changes are warranted and need to be made expeditiously.

The Bill amends the Proceeds of Crime Act 2015 (POCA) in order to achieve a limited but important number of amendments.

90 New section 1T is an interpretation section. It provides for the interpretation of certain provisions common to Parts II and III. Previously these were found in section 2 of POCA and could have given rise to some confusion as section 2 is a substantive provision. By removing those parts of section 2 which relate to interpretation and placing them in the new section, 1T will introduce clarity and prevent possible confusion.

95 Sections 2, 3 and 4 provide for the main money laundering offences and these have been recast in the Bill. They are, therefore, not new offences and their origins can be traced back to the UK's Criminal Justice Act 1988. That Act was subject to amendment and later was replaced by the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002.

100 The UK's legislative intent in the 2002 Act, as demonstrated by the explanatory notes to that Act, was to simplify the offences, thereby making them easier to present to a jury. Mr Speaker, in the recast form the offences are aligned to the UK criminal law and, as a result, case law from the United Kingdom will be of assistance in this jurisdiction in the future.

105 For the sake of clarity, the three money laundering offences that are set out in clauses 2 to 4 are: clause 2, entering into an arrangement on behalf of another person to facilitate the acquisition, retention, use or control of criminal property; clause 3, acquiring, using or possessing criminal property; and clause 4, concealing, disguising, converting, transferring and removal from Gibraltar of criminal property. The maximum sentences available for these offences remain unchanged.

110 New section 4A was recently introduced as section 3A, but with the amendments proposed by this Bill it more logically sits after the main money laundering offences. The section is concerned with the consent that the GFU may give to a person making a disclosure to it. Where such consent is given, a person may do an act that is otherwise prohibited. This may arise in cases where there is an interest in a transaction being completed so as not to indicate to the criminals concerned that there is an investigation afoot.

115 Sub-clause (5) introduces a moratorium period, which is 60 working days, and that period applies where the GFIU have refused consent to a particular transaction.

Sections 4B to 4E are new provisions that build on the moratorium period that is permitted in section 4A in cases where the GFIU do not consent to a particular course of action and provides for the court to extend the moratorium to a maximum of 336 working days or, in other words, 120 two years.

Section 4B(8) provides for appeals to the Court of Appeal in connection with points of law.

The Bill retains references to working days, with a maximum permitted period following extensions granted by the Supreme Court to effectively two years. The period of two years is also in line with the maximum permitted period for the detention of cash that has been seized 125 pending investigation as to the source of funds by the law enforcement agencies.

Sections 4G and 4H provide protection from liability where certain disclosures have been made in accordance with the requirements of the Act. In particular, 4H provides for protection for a breach of a restriction on the disclosure of information where the information is obtained in the course of a trade, profession, business or employment.

130 Clause 3(4) inserts a new section 6B. The section restates the offence applicable to relevant financial businesses, having been formally set out in sections 2, 3 and 4. The maximum sentence remains unchanged.

Clause 3(6) inserts a new section 35A. The section enables the Magistrates Court to commit a defendant to the Supreme Court where a confiscation order is being sought, and section 35B 135 builds on that section.

Clause 3(9) amends section 58. In paragraph (a), subsection (1)(c) so that the requirement of belief is amended to suspicion. Paragraph (b) introduces section 58(3A), the effect of which is to open the possibility for restraint and charging orders to be sought at the investigation stage, again in line with the UK. The purpose of a restraint order is to prevent the dissipation or 140 possible dissipation of assets. At present the law is that a restraint order can only be sought effectively following a charge or immediately preceding the charge, and this may well be far too late as many fraud investigations by their very nature take some time to complete and the alleged fraudster may well become aware of the investigation. This power in the UK to restrain during the investigative stages has been in existence for many years.

145 Clause 3(10) confers a power on the Supreme Court to enable it to make provision inter alia for reasonable costs of living, legal expenses and to provide for a person to carry on his trade, business, profession or occupation. These exceptions are not exhaustive. In addition, this sub-clause introduces certain safeguards, now subsections (7A) to (7C), including reporting to the Supreme Court on progress and a duty on the court to discharge an order where a reasonable time has passed and proceedings have not been commenced.

Clause 3(11) inserts a new section 59A for the enforcement abroad of restraint orders.

Clause 3(12) introduces certain safeguards where a charging order has been granted in connection with the criminal investigation, as is the case with restraint orders.

The remaining provisions relate to a number of amendments that are for housekeeping and clarification. They seek to improve on the clarity of the Act and the associated procedures, and 155 state in which court should be seized of particular matters. From these, clause 3(25)(b) is worth highlighting, as it amends the definition of criminal conduct to restore the definition as it had been in section 2(9).

160 Finally, I wish to take the opportunity to thank the Hon. Shadow Minister for Justice, Mr Elliott Phillips and also Mr Roy Clinton for making themselves available at very short notice yesterday to discuss the content of the Bill and its urgent nature.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

165 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill? The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, this Bill will enjoy the support of the official Opposition in respect of this matter.

170 I welcome the comments by the Hon. Minister for Justice. Indeed he did reach out to the Opposition yesterday to explain some of the more sensitive matters surrounding this piece of legislation, of course, when our international obligations are certainly important to all Members of this House and the reputation of this jurisdiction.

175 This enjoys the entire Opposition's support insofar as it will progress through Parliament. I am grateful.

Mr Speaker: Any other contribution?

I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Proceeds of Crime Act 2015 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Members: Aye.

Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017 –

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

200 Clerk: The Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars (Amendment) Act 2017.

Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

205 In the course of considering amendments to the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Rules, itself a part of a broader project that my colleague the Hon. Albert Isola is overseeing to modernise Gibraltar's business legislation, it came to our attention that any such amendments would have to be made by His Excellency the Governor by virtue of his powers under sections 10, 11, 12(2) and 15 of the parent Act. Moreover, beyond his exclusive rule-making power, His 210 Excellency enjoys various powers under section 16 of the Act – for example, to make designations as to the location of street traders or to impose certain requirements on the type of equipment they can use.

These matters self-evidently do not fall within the Governor's special responsibilities under section 47(1) of the Constitution, but are instead the responsibility of Ministers. The Bill is therefore essentially a tidying-up exercise. It ensures that the Act, which was commenced in 215 1954 and last amended in 1982, conforms to the constitutional distribution of powers as between the Governor and Ministers and that the Government can then proceed to make such amendments to the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Rules as are necessary.

Mr Speaker, I commend this Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

220 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill? The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

225 From this side of the House, the Official Opposition, obviously we understand the reasoning for this Bill and it will certainly enjoy our support. I look forward to hearing in due course what the further wider-ranging amendments are going to be.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak? None.

230 I will put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Markets, Street Traders

245

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to provide for the constitution of a Law Commission for the reform of the law and for connected purposes be read a first time.

250

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to provide for the constitution of a Law Commission for the reform of the law and for connected purposes be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Law Commission Act 2017.

Law Commission Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

255

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

In the light of the comments in my Budget speech, I propose to add very little today.

260

The Bill provides for the Constitution of a Law Commission for the purposes of promoting reform of the law. The Commission shall be comprised of no fewer than six members appointed by the Government by notice in the Gazette and shall include the Attorney General, the Minister, no fewer than two commissioners who are barristers or solicitors of at least seven years' post-qualification experience, and no fewer than two commissioners appearing to the Government to be suitable for the role. A quorum of the Commission shall consist of three members. Each member will be appointed for a renewable term of three years.

265

The function of the Commission can be summarised as follows: to receive and consider proposals for the reform of the law made or referred to them by Government; to undertake, pursuant to any such recommendations approved by Government, the examination of any particular branches of the law and the formulation of proposals for reform; to consider and prepare proposals for consolidation or statute law revision in such areas as may be referred to by Government; to provide assistance and information to Government and other authorities on proposals for reform; and to obtain such information as to the legal systems of other countries as appears to the Commission is likely to facilitate the performance of the functions.

270

The Bill also states that the Government and the Commission may agree a protocol regarding the Commission's work. The protocol, among other things, may include matters such as the principles and method which will be applied in deciding the work to be carried out by the Commission and the administrative support which is to be provided to the Commission by the Government.

275

I commend the Bill to the House, Mr Speaker.

280

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill? The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Opposition will support the Bill for the creation of a Law Commission.

285 We understand that it is Her Majesty's Government's intention that the Law Commission will have a very wide remit and will, amongst other things, consider proposals for the reform of the law, undertake examination of areas of the law with a view to formulating proposals for reform, codification and elimination of the anomalies. It is also envisaged that the Law Commission will generally provide advice and information to the Government on reform and amendments of our 290 laws.

We on this side of the House note that the first task of the new Law Commission will be to review our local sentencing guidelines to ensure that they cater for the needs of Gibraltar. I know that the Hon. the Minister for Justice did indicate in his Budget speech that that would be the first task of the Law Commission. I, for one, agree that we should create a body of 295 sentencing guidelines which are Gibraltar-centric and entirely relevant to sentencing and the imposition of penalties by our courts. But a word of caution: in our view there may well be some overlap with sentencing practice of England and Wales. Sentencing practice in England and Wales, of course, is developed over a considerable amount of time and in changing circumstances. As the Minister for Justice is aware, sentencing of offenders is not an easy task. It 300 balances the need to punish offenders, crime reduction, protection of the public, the rehabilitation of offenders and society's need that the offender makes reparation to the community. Sentencing is not therefore an exact science. It balances a number of significant interests with hundreds of years of evolving sentencing law. Whilst I agree that we should review sentencing, I believe that there is a risk that to tinker at the edges of an already well-305 established body of guidance may unravel a number of issues which will later need to be dealt with by the judiciary. I would urge that we exercise a degree of common sense when it comes to that review.

We on both sides of this House who have practised at the Bar will no doubt recall areas of sentencing practising guidance which have little relevance to Gibraltar practice and it is right 310 that the Law Commission are tasked with recommending those changes.

We also suggest that when the Law Commission is formally constituted that it widely consults with stakeholders at the criminal Bar and the Bar Council generally, who will be able to add value to the work of the Law Commission.

We on this side of the House support and welcome each of the Law Commissioners who the 315 Minister of Justice has indicated he will be appointing and we are sure, as part of a wider remit, this will also add value to this important work.

We in the Opposition also suggest that, insofar as the Commission's first task of reviewing our sentencing guidelines is concerned, that some further thought be given to extending the composition of the Law Commission to the chairperson of the Bar Council – whoever that may 320 be at the time – the Superintendent of Prisons, the Drugs Co-ordinator and respective representatives from the Probation Service; and, as I have stated in this contribution, the possible participation of regular criminal law practitioners, who can also add a level of depth of their experience to this process. It may well be that when it comes to addressing other areas of law reform, the Law Commissioners will also be ably assisted by other members of our 325 community who will have valuable contributions to make.

In summary, Mr Speaker, we support this Bill and also commend it to the House.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the Second Reading of this Bill?
I call on the mover to reply.

330

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, very briefly to thank the hon. Gentleman for indicating that the Government will enjoy the support of the official Opposition in respect of the creation of the Law Commission.

I take note of what he says in respect of applying common sense to the endeavour that will 335 be undertaken. In that respect I think that, as he rightly says, the Law Commissioners are supremely suitable to undertake this work, and of course the work of the Commission will very much be underpinned by the evidence and by the advice that will be provided by stakeholders who are actively engaged in this field – such as, for instance, the RGP in terms of criminal sentencing.

340

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to provide for the constitution of a Law Commission for the reform of the law and for connected purposes be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

345

Clerk: The Law Commission Act 2017.

Children (Amendment) Bill 2014 –
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009. The Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

355

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009 be read a first time.

360

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Children (Amendment) Act 2014.

Children (Amendment) Bill 2014 –
Second Reading approved

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009 be read a second time.

365

This Bill inserts a new section 156A into the Children Act 2009 to allow minors over the age of 16 but under 18 years of age to consent to surgical, medical or dental treatment as if they were of full age.

370

There are a couple of typographical errors in the Bill as published which are subject to a letter containing amendments to be taken at the Committee Stage. The amendment replicates the equivalent UK provision which previously existed in local law as section 41 of the Minors Act.

However, this provision was repealed by the Children Act on 14th January 2010 and no equivalent provision was included in the new Act. The reasons for its omission are unknown.

375 The change is important if children are to be treated with equality and as autonomous beings, especially once they have reached the age of 16. The Government is of the opinion that making this statutory change, together with our adherence to the common law in the area following the UK case of Gillick, advocates the rights of every child to self-determination, dignity, respect, non-interference and the right to make informed decisions.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

380 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principle and merits of the Bill? The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

385 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, this is an important amendment to the law, and in fact a consent, as the Hon. Minister knows, in respect of medical treatment, be that dental, surgical or otherwise, is a hugely complex area of the law.

One matter that I would recommend that the Minister look at, at a later stage when we are looking at possibly mental capacity amendments to the law ... is that we remember these provisions and where there is any crossover reference that needs to be made in relation to mental capacity. I do not know. I flag that as an issue now. I also flagged it in previous Bills that were brought before this House last year. But it is an important amendment to the legislation and I welcome the Minister's intervention.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on this Bill?

Does the mover wish to reply? No.

395 I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Children (Amendment) Act 2014.

Children (Amendment) Bill 2014 –

400 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today?

405 Members: Aye.

Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 and the Care Agency Act 2009 and to make consequential amendments to the Medical and Health Act 1997, the Mental Health Act 2016 and other subsidiary legislation. The Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

410

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 and the Care Agency Act 2009 and to make consequential amendments to the Medical and Health Act 1997, the Mental Health Act 2016 and other subsidiary legislation be read a first time.

415

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 and the Care Agency Act 2009 and to make consequential amendments to the Medical and Health Act 1997, the Mental Health Act 2016 and other subsidiary legislation be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

420

Clerk: The Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Act 2017.

Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I beg to move that the Bill for the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Act 2017 be read a second time.

The principal aim of the Bill is to make amendments to the Medical Act in order to introduce structural changes to the Authority.

For instance, the position of Chief Executive of the Authority has been replaced with a new position, the Medical Director. The Medical Director shall be the executive officer of the Authority and shall perform such functions and exercise such powers as are from time to time conferred upon him by the principal Act or any other Act. He also takes the position of Chairman of the Management Board.

A new position of Deputy Medical Director has been introduced as well as Human Resources Manager, which replaces the Personnel Officer; and Hospital Operations Manager, which replaces the Hospital Manager. The position of Primary Care Manager has also been removed.

435

These changes are also effective vis-à-vis the composition of the Management Board. The main function of the Management Board has changed so that now it is their duty to advise and assist the Authority rather than the Chief Executive.

The Bill introduces a regulation-making power which allows the Minister to amend the Act by subsidiary legislation in order to remove, replace or rename any of the posts listed under sections 3(1) of the establishment of the Gibraltar Health Authority; 6(2)(b), duties of the authority, specifically the duty to employ certain positions; or 11(1), Management Board. This is to facilitate future structural changes that may be desired. The regulation-making power also allows for consequential amendments to be made as required in other Acts or subsidiary legislation strictly as a result of any changes made to the principal Act.

The Bill also amends the Care Agency Act by removing duties regarding elderly residential services from the remit of the Care Agency, as the duties now come under the remit of the GHA.

Lastly, the Bill introduces several consequential amendments to primary and secondary legislation to ensure that all newly named positions are referred to correctly in the wider context of the legislative landscape.

445

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 ... Sorry, before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

The Hon. Mr Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I do have some difficulty with this Bill from a structural corporate governance point of view. The role of the chief executive, which the Government are seeking to substitute, is historically very different to that of a medical director. My understanding, as a non-medical man, is that the 460 medical director is usually in charge of the quality of care, the delivery of care and also the ... well, the medical doctoring side of the hospital; the chief executive, certainly in the United Kingdom, has a very different, more holistic role in terms of the overall administration of the hospital.

I fail to see how substituting one title for another actually resolves anything in respect of the 465 GHA. Making the medical director de facto the CEO is just really a change of title, but I do not see how the medical director, as a doctor, is going to necessarily have the skills or the experience to run a hospital in the way that a CEO would have to, and also, of course, be accountable for not just the performance of the medical staff but also in terms of delivery of the service and the overall effectiveness of the service and responsibility to the GHA board, and also 470 in terms of cost and development and expenditure. They are very different strategic roles and you need very different mind-sets overall in order to achieve these objectives, which is why it is usual, certainly in the United Kingdom, that these are two distinct functions and they are not mixed in this way.

I understand the Government's political objective in, as it were, removing the role of CEO, 475 but I do wonder whether overall strategically this will actually deliver the Health Service that Gibraltar needs and deserves.

Also, Mr Speaker, I have attended the various GHA board meetings, as the former Minister will testify and the current Minister will testify, but I did not see anywhere on the agenda any discussion about the restructuring of the Health Service. You would have thought the GHA 480 board, which is the ultimate body responsible for the delivery of healthcare in Gibraltar, would have had at least some discussion about such a major restructuring. Certainly to my knowledge there has been no discussion at the board level as to what it is that the members of that board would think would be expedient. Of course I stand to be corrected by the Minister, because obviously I am not privy to the entire discussions and deliberations of that board, but certainly 485 the public elements of those board meetings and from the agenda that is circulated in advance I am not aware of any extraordinary item saying 'major restructuring of the GHA'. It is the responsibility of the GHA board to deliver our medical services, and so they are the ones who really should have had an input as to this level of restructuring.

And so, in the absence of something that will convince me otherwise from the Minister that 490 de facto combining the role of medical director and CEO in this manner will deliver a better Health Service, I am afraid I really cannot advise my colleagues to support this Bill in this form.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Before I call on the mover to reply, does any other Member wish to ... The Hon.
495 the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo) Mr Speaker, I do not know whether I welcomed him as Leader of the Opposition today or not, but given it is his first intervention since it has been announced that he will be taking the role, at least whilst a leadership election occurs in the 500 context of the other party, I rise to welcome him to that role and to say that, as far as this side of the House is concerned, politics does not have to be a bellicose endeavour and I very much look forward to the opportunity that we might have to work together on aspects that are in the common interests of all of the people of Gibraltar who elect us and who put us here to work in their common interest.

I am disappointed, however, that the first words he utters in this House in the context of the 505 new role are to lead that Opposition into a 'no' vote – something which he appears also to have convinced them to do in relation to the Appropriation Bill, which did not go perhaps as well as they might have wanted.

510 Dealing with the substance of what he said are the reasons for voting against the measure, can I just ask him to reflect on this. The Gibraltar Health Authority was created before the GSLP was elected in 1988 – I think in 1987. (Hon. N F Costa: 1987.) That’s right, and in 1987 the Health Authority did not have a CEO. (Hon. N F Costa: That’s right.) Before 1987 there was a Department of Health – which did not have a CEO; it would have had an SO who then became the new incarnation of management in the GHA absent a CEO. The CEO was introduced by the 515 former administration under Sir Peter as Chief Minister, and the first CEO was a doctor – Dr McCutcheon, to remind us all of who it was. So I think that, to an extent, kills the point that a CEO is not a doctor, because the first CEO was a doctor. So I do not think that the medical profession is excluded from the role of chief executive.

520 Was it a good idea that there should be a chief executive at the head of the GHA? He is, above all else, I detect from the contributions he makes in this House, a money man. What did the CEO’s advent in the GHA do? It led to a steady increase in the costs of the GHA, they say today not matched by the service given to patients – unless they are saying that the service given to patients was magnificent on 8th December 2011 and dreadful on 10th December 2011, where the only thing that changed was the chief executive of Her Majesty’s Government of 525 Gibraltar, not the Chief Executive of the Gibraltar Health Authority.

We have analysed whether or not the advent of a chief executive into the GHA led to better value for money, whether it led to better healthcare or whether it led to reduced cost, and it did none of that. So the decision has been taken that it is possible to have a medical director atop the hierarchy of health in Gibraltar, who has responsibility for medical matters and some matters in administration, without having to have a separate strand of administration which is simply the chief executive, who has become a cost centre, because it is a new liability in salary, a very large one indeed – he will recall that we had the debate about how the salaries of the Principal Auditor and the Chief Secretary had risen, and it was in relation to that – and second, a cost centre because, under the auspices of a chief executive, the increases in cost in the Health 530 Authority were not driven by the increase in salary. So you could not say, ‘Well, of course it’s costing more because we have the same number of staff and they are getting pay rises’; it was an exponential growth in cost, which we do not think necessarily equated to an exponential growth in value for money for the taxpayer or better service.

540 So, in the circumstances, Mr Speaker, I think it is right that we have taken the decision that the hon. the mover has put to the House as eloquently as he has. In particular, just dealing again with the point of whether a doctor can be a CEO of an organisation, the second CEO – which they did not complain about – was a nurse. So I do not think any of the points that he has made raise any issue for the Government in continuing to be persuaded that the course set out by the Hon. the Minister for Health is the right course for this community. It is the right course for 545 healthcare in this community. It pursues an agenda of value for money in respect of the healthcare that we provide for the community and it pursues an agenda of ensuring that a medical director is in charge of decision-making alongside those politically responsible for decision-making.

550 So, in the circumstances, Mr Speaker, I am disappointed that his first act as Leader of the Opposition will be to take us where the last act of the former Leader of the Opposition took them, which was to negative votes on things which are very good for our community. One was to pay for the schools, the hospitals and the civil servants, and the other one now is to reform how we ensure that those atop the structure of Health provide the best possible value healthcare for our community. Nonetheless, I still welcome his appointment and look forward to 555 working with him on other matters.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the Second Reading of the Bill? Does the mover wish to reply? The Hon. Neil Costa.

560 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am also disappointed that the hon. Gentleman will not be voting in support of the Bill, and I will tell him why.

He has said that the reason why he finds difficulty in supporting the Bill is because the roles of the chief executive and of the medical director are quite different, to his mind, and that strategically it makes sense to have a chief executive separate from a medical director. But will he not agree with me that if under the present structure where we have had a chief executive since 1997 there has been an overspend of £89 million over 20 years in the GHA, the CEO is in fact self-evidence of catastrophe? (Hon. Chief Minister: An indictment.) It is an indictment of their structure. (Interjection) But it is absolutely – (Interjection) Yes, but not so soon, Mr Speaker.

570 Hon. Chief Minister: We all know it's a relaunch, not a resignation.

Hon. N F Costa: Therefore, there is an inverse relationship to success in having a CEO at the top of the GHA, proven by the fact that there has been an overspend of £89 million over 20 years under a CEO.

575 Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman says that the Medical Director will de facto become the CEO. The Medical Director will de jure as from today become the Chief Executive, or the CEO, because the Medical Director will be subsuming the powers of the CEO.

580 He refers us to the UK NHS as an example as to why we in Gibraltar should also have a CEO – again, in my estimation, precisely the wrong example. He has read, surely, in the newspapers in the UK the black alerts in many trusts about doctors kicking their heels because, as a result of bed shortages, operations are being cancelled. Cancer operations are being cancelled. Old people are being kept waiting on trolleys for hours on end. The NHS in the UK – unfortunately, Mr Speaker, because it is not something to be gleeful about – is in a state of wreckful disrepair. It is in a very, very bad way. So, if I am going to take an example of a healthcare system, it will unfortunately – and it does pain me to say this – will not be from the NHS, from where we do get guidelines in terms of NICE guidelines and so on. Because, in fact, they are running a huge deficit and also because of the experience of nurses who have not received a pay rise in six years in the UK, which has led to allegations of nurses having to go to food banks to be able to receive food, and all of the instances where there has been a shocking lack of care, medical, surgical and otherwise, in the NHS, the hon. Gentleman really should not be pointing me to the NHS as a model – (Interjection) yes, he did – from which to emulate in order to be able to justify the Opposition's decision not to vote for the Bill.

595 Mr Speaker, clearly the reason for not voting is political and not based on reason, because if it is based on reason, and given that I have just told him that the model to which he refers me to, is run by chief executives, and he knows, because it has been printed in UK press, that it is falling to bits, then surely he has to admit that the CEO is not necessarily the best thing since sliced bread because the NHS is not providing the healthcare that the UK citizens surely deserve.

600 Mr Speaker, we would not be introducing these changes by way of legislation if we did not think that they were appropriate. Does it not make sense to him intuitively that there should be a senior consultant leading a healthcare service? Doesn't it make sense to him, in the same way that you have a Director of Education who is – (A Member: Not necessarily.) Well, Mr Speaker, they say not necessarily ... All right, let me take them through it. It may not necessarily make sense to always have a professional at the top of every single Government Department. You do not necessarily need a person with a tourism masters to run the Gibraltar Tourist Board – a business masters may do, an MBA – but surely for medical services you would expect that a person who has been on the patient side of care, who understands the needs of patients, should be the best person possible to be able to direct from the top how to run a health service. And they keep nodding their heads, so then perhaps maybe we should have a Chief Justice in the courts who is an engineer rather than a lawyer (Laughter) and we should have perhaps some kind of professional actor running the GHA if it is not necessary to have (Interjection) a senior –

610 (Interjection) Mr Speaker, it is not without importance that before the GHA there was a medical department and every single ... Can you believe this, Chief Minister: every single top person – (Interjection) Mr Speaker, sorry. Every single person at the top of the medical department was a senior surgeon, and of course it was a senior surgeon because it makes eminent sense that the person running the Health Service should be a senior practitioner.

615 Mr Speaker, simply to conclude, the hon. Gentleman who does attend the boards, I readily admit. He did, however, miss the fact that I did say in conclusion that we would not be discussing the changes that are taking place in the Bill because the period covered up to March of this year, and that we will be covering the changes that have been brought about by the Bill because we will be covering the relevant period in the next board meeting.

620 Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 and the Care Agency Act 2009 and to make consequential amendments to the Medical and Health Act 1997, the Mental Health Act 2016 and other subsidiary legislation be read a second time.

625 Those in favour? (Several Members: Aye.) That is Government Ministers and ... Anybody else from the Opposition benches voting in favour? No. Those against? (Several Members: Aye.) That is the official Opposition. And the two independent Members – how are they voting? The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon? (Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: In favour. In favour.) In favour. Sorry, I 630 did not get that initially. So the Government and the Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon voting in favour. The official Opposition against. (Hon. L F Llamas: In favour.) The Hon. Lawrence Llamas also in favour. Therefore the Second Reading is carried.

Hon. Chief Minister: By a substantial (Inaudible)

655 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision for persons with disabilities modelled on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Optional Protocol to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, and for matters connected thereto, be read a first time. Clerk: The Disability Act 2017.

Disability Act 2017 – Second Reading approved

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time. In fact, I beg to move that this Bill, the Disability Act 2017, also known as Agnes's Law, be read a second time.

665 Mr Speaker, our Government is one that truly represents equality and diversity, and our track record shows that we recognise the duty of society to treat people of all backgrounds with dignity and respect. There are times when we need to legislate to ensure that there are sufficient protections in place. As a Government, we have an established track record of protecting rights, and this Bill is another milestone in respect of equality. It takes determination and courage of conviction to take action and make real change when it comes to achieving equality in our society, and I am honoured to be Gibraltar's first Minister for Equality.

670 This Bill implements one of our manifesto commitments. The purpose of this Bill is to legislate to further protect people with disabilities using the terms of the UN Convention on the Rights of People with Disabilities as a model. Indeed, the Chamber of Commerce, in its February edition of Chamber News, referred to this Bill as possibly one of the most significant pieces of legislation introduced by the GSLP Liberal Government. This, Mr Speaker, speaks volumes.

675 This Bill is particularly important for me, as it transcends my time as a Minister and has been quite a personal journey for a long time. While in private practice as a barrister, I first met with the Disability Society in January 2006 and offered to help them in their mission to achieve legislation for disability rights in Gibraltar, given the vacuum that existed. I have a very vivid recollection of that meeting over 10 years ago, where I was presented with a draft piece of legislation that had been prepared by the late Mrs Agnes Valarino. Mrs Valarino had previously been the Chairperson of the Disability Society, and at that meeting, when the Committee presented me with a draft, they referred to it as Agnes's Law because they wanted a fitting tribute to a lady who had worked so hard to progress the rights of people with disabilities in Gibraltar. In 2006 I promised to help. Little did I know then how literally this would happen. A true pioneer and champion of the rights of people with disabilities, I felt it only right and fitting that Mrs Valarino's wish to legislate be honoured by referring to the proposed Disability Act in her memory.

680 Members of this House will be aware that a Command Paper was presented and published in October 2015. Responses to that Command Paper were received and the views of the public were taken on board. My Ministry and I have met with everyone who responded to the consultation process, and charities and representative groups. I have also had the opportunity to discuss this with the hon. Member opposite, Mr Llamas, who held this portfolio. I am grateful to 695 everyone involved in the consultation process, which was very favourable and helped to clarify certain points. This is why we introduced the consultation process when we came to office in 2011.

Historically, disability legislation has been an area of law which has been overlooked. The existing Equal Opportunities Act 2006 is specific to employment-related matters alone. The 700 Disabled People Act 1992 is outdated and fails to meet the demands of a modern and inclusive society such as the one that this Government is building. For this reason, we have decided to repeal the Disabled People Act 1992 and instead publish this new modern piece of legislation which aims to create an equal playing field in all aspects of society for people with disabilities.

I can say with confidence that since we have come into Government equality and inclusion 705 have gained more importance. This I daresay is because of what we have invested in changing our policies and all the work that we have done on delivering training and creating awareness of disability equality principles. It is clear that on this subject we have been leading from the front.

On to the Bill itself, it introduces a standalone piece of legislation for people with disabilities, setting out several principles and obligations that should be considered by any person taking 710 policy decisions or actions, the ultimate purpose being to promote, protect and ensure the full and equal enjoyment of all fundamental rights and freedoms by people with disabilities, and to promote respect for their inherent dignity.

The Bill is modelled on the UN Convention in a way that is relevant to our community. The Bill is not intended to create new rights; these already exist in our law. The fundamental right not to 715 be unfairly discriminated against is already enshrined in our Constitution. This Bill clarifies existing obligations and legal duties and provides a framework to give practical effect to the Convention's aim, which is to provide equal enjoyment by all people with disabilities. This Bill is a significant step forward and will make important changes to the lives of people with disabilities and their families.

720 Mr Speaker, turning to the Bill itself, I do not propose to go through each individual section, as these are quite self-explanatory; but I will only refer to some of the more pertinent ones.

Sections 4 to 7 introduce the definitions and the general principles and obligations of the Act, and in relation to section 6 we will be producing guidance notes to promote understanding of obligations and facilitate the introduction of these.

725 Section 12 sets out a power to introduce policies, strategies and initiatives on awareness raising. While not yet a legal obligation for us, we have nevertheless been leading on this for the last five years. We have invested heavily in training and awareness. We have not only made this widely available to the public sector but also through our hugely successful Equality Means Business seminars for the private sector, which have also been embraced by the Chamber and 730 the GFSB, and finally our Understanding Autism seminars for parents of people on the autism spectrum. The uptake and interest in all of these have been wonderful, and by delivering this intense programme of training we have been setting the groundwork for the implementation of this legislation.

Sections 13 and 14 relate to accessibility and implement a requirement for people 735 undertaking the provision of public buildings or premises to consider and cater for the access and use of facilities by people with disabilities. Again, a lot of work has been done in preparation for this and it is, of course, a continuous process. This, in fact, will be the first section that will have practical implementation almost immediately, as we will introduce the part R regulations of the building rules, which will mean that all new buildings, alterations or change of use of 740 existing buildings must take account of people with disabilities. This will give legal effect to what already exists as a Government policy for the last five years and has been applied to all our Government projects. Again, another example of the Government leading from the front.

Section 23 deals with the collection of useful data and statistics to enable the formulation and implementation of successful policies to cater for people with disabilities. This is something 745 which has always been lacking in Gibraltar and will assist us in making even further improvements in the future for people with disabilities in all aspects of their daily lives. At this point I would like to thank not only my Ministry and the Government Departments who have been working on compiling the disability register, but also the Data Protection Commissioner and his staff at the GRA for their guidance to ensure that we do not fall foul of the data protection legislation in so doing.

750

Mr Speaker, stigma, prejudice and discrimination against people with disabilities is unfortunately still prevalent. Although we still have a long way to go in changing cultural norms, perceptions and attitudes, this law aims to make those rights real by building on and giving effect to the right not to be unfairly discriminated against on the grounds of disability and put the rights of people with disabilities on an equal footing to everyone else.

755

Mr Speaker, if you may indulge me to make the point that a new law is not enough and my work does not stop here ... In order for the rights and the framework to become meaningful, I consider that continuous education and awareness is essential to ensure that the community can properly understand and become more responsible in ensuring that people with disabilities are no longer treated less favourably. We will therefore continue our work at every level in the public sector, particularly in the training of professional staff who work with people with disabilities, those in management and those who work on the front line, the private sector, and of course support parents and families. We need everybody to embrace the principle that, while we provide a statutory framework, we each have an individual and collective responsibility to go beyond this and make Gibraltar more inclusive of people with disabilities. This is about embracing the principles and is about changing hearts and minds.

I would like to acknowledge the work that has been done by the strong and extremely motivated team at the Ministry for Equality on this legislation and, importantly, on the implementation of these principles, and in particular, to Mr Tito Garro, from the Government Law Office, who was responsible for drafting the legislation, and for his advice throughout; and, of course, special mention to the Disability Society, who last year celebrated their 50th anniversary and whose advice and guidance has been very welcome. The Disability Society inspired me when I met them in 2006 and they and the values that they represent continue to inspire me today. Equally, of course, I must refer to all the individuals and other representative organisations who have worked with us and who also represent these goals and values, including the Chamber of Commerce, the GFSB and the new Unite Equalities Committee as well. I will continue to work with all the stakeholders who share these ideals in the implementation of the legislation and the development of Government policy.

Finally, Mr Speaker, I again refer to a very special person in respect of whom this legislation is in honour, the late Mrs Agnes Valarino. I said at the beginning of my intervention that in December last year, when I published this Bill, I announced that it would be referred to as Agnes's Law as a tribute to her and her dedication to championing the rights of people with disabilities. I did not know Agnes personally, but I have always heard great things about her. I have had the pleasure of working with her husband Mr Maurice Valarino in my current role, her son Bernard in my previous role, and also have the pleasure of knowing her other son, Matthew, who among other attributes is a wonderful artist, and a beautiful abstract painting of his hangs in my office.

780

Together with my ministerial colleagues and the rest of the community, we will work together to break down barriers, promote equality and achieve a more inclusive society. Mr Speaker, I am honoured to commend this Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

790

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill? The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

795

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I would like to contribute to this debate. The Bill presented before us adopts more principles of the UN Convention 2006 than the Command Paper issued in October 2015. I must say that it will reinforce some of the basic human rights enjoyed across society as being rights equally to be enjoyed by anyone with a disability. I therefore extend my support to the Government for bringing this Bill to the House.

800 The name given to the piece of legislation, Agnes's Law, is extremely appropriate given the lobbying led by the late Mrs Agnes Valarino, carried out in her life. I did not have the privilege of knowing the late Mrs Agnes Valarino; however, her legacy and those of all involved in bringing this legislation to this House will be known for generations to come.

805 When the Bill was published back in December last year, I wrote to the Minister for Equality with my concerns and those of constituents who had expressed and identified areas where further clarity and detail was required. In my email I included what I felt would consolidate and fulfil the principles of the UN Convention. Last month, in reply to my email, the Minister and I had a discussion covering these areas, where her arguments and those of Her Majesty's legal experts were conveyed, and therefore I have taken those on board in good faith but will reserve
810 the right to return to these in the future, depending on the implementation of the Act. The practical effect of the Act as it stands today extends sufficiently enough to give life to the relevant aspects of the UN Convention.

The UN Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities is an international human rights treaty which has been developed extensively and in great detail. Its principles and objectives are 815 the cornerstone to extend equal rights to persons with disabilities. The Convention has served as a catalyst in shifting the perception of people with disabilities with its charity-based approach to treatment and services to a human rights based approach in which people with impairments are no longer considered medical problems, totally dependent on the generosity of non-impaired people in society, but has fundamental rights to support inclusion and participation in all areas 820 of the community. This is a fundamental basis that I will seek to ensure is taking effect in Gibraltar.

The Government have embarked on a series of awareness-raising campaigns, through seminars and booklets, which appear to be good initiatives as education is key. These campaigns have focused on the public sector, the private sector and parents.

825 My first area of concern is the omission of the amendment to section 38 of the Equal Opportunities Act 2006 to include persons with disabilities within the demographic of society against whom one cannot discriminate against. I am assured by the Government's legal experts, through the Minister, that there is no need, given our Constitution, and I shall not be proposing an amendment on this understanding, even though personally I do not see any harm in simply 830 including it.

Secondly, the UN Convention model includes an independent committee which monitors and reports the implementation and compliance of the Treaty. This differs in the proposed Bill with the responsibility being assumed by the Minister for Equality. It would seem appropriate to follow suit from the UN Convention and designate this responsibility to a committee composed 835 of independent and experienced individuals who hold no conflicts of interest, and with stakeholders. I feel that is particularly necessary in light of the introduction of the term 'as far as reasonably possible', which has been included a total of 17 times in this Bill. It would therefore make complete sense to have a non-partisan, fully independent committee to evaluate and assess all the areas of ambiguity and oversee the implementation of this legislation with 840 absolute autonomy. The Minister has assured me that she is happy to keep an open mind to the creation of an independent committee in the future if needs arise. I shall therefore keep this issue very much alive and shall apply pressure if I feel that the requirement of such a committee is required.

845 The Bill adequately deals with accessibility issues and successfully promotes the rights of those with physical disabilities. However, it is my view that it does not go far enough to legislate in a clear manner what the rights and protections for persons with disabilities are. I had intended to move amendments in three key areas which I feel are missing. However, the Minister has assured me that the issues which I shall be raising are already satisfied in domestic legislation for a considerable time and therefore would mean duplicating legislation, which 850 would be against the advice given by law draftsmen. She has assured me that she will be publishing directive guidelines under the Disability Act provisions. Naturally, I respect her approach and will await a timely publication of guidelines, which I have been assured will commence as from September.

855 The areas which I am concerned about regard clause 19, which covers health. As it currently stands, all this Bill says is that persons with disabilities are entitled to healthcare and are not to be discriminated against. It fails to deliver and legislate as to how the health sector should function, work and interact with persons with disabilities. In future guidelines, I expect the guidelines to set out that the health sector will, as per the UN Convention, which is extensive and detailed in nature, to ensure systems and rights are protected.

860 The Bill does not mention anything to do with work and employment or equality before the law. It is important to transpose all Gibraltar-relevant articles of the UN Convention into domestic law and not cherry-pick parts of the UN Convention or even parts of the articles themselves. If the article is relevant to Gibraltar it should not be omitted. Thus we should ratify them and publish them pending effect so that the community can read and understand where we are aiming and what targets we expect in the near future. I am assured once again that these issues already exist in our legislation. I would therefore expect to see on paper and in practice 865 the commitment and detailed clarification as to what our law should be achieving, as it should be easy to read for all concerned.

870 With regard to work and employment, I will expect the Government to recognise in its guidelines the rights of persons with disabilities to work on an equal basis with others. This includes the right to the opportunity to gain a living by work freely chosen and accepted in a labour market and work environment that is open, inclusive and accessible to persons with disabilities and extend the full details of the Convention.

875 With providing guidelines to provide equal recognition before the law, the Government must reaffirm that persons with disabilities have the right to recognition everywhere as persons before the law. The Government must recognise that persons with disabilities enjoy legal capacity on an equal basis with others on all aspects of life.

880 The Government must take appropriate measures to provide access by persons with disabilities to the support they may require in exercising their legal capacity. This is to include an independent advocacy service. The Government must ensure that all measures that relate to the exercise of legal capacity provide for appropriate and effective safeguards to prevent abuse, in accordance with international human rights law. Such safeguards shall ensure that measures relating to the exercising of legal capacity respect the rights, will and preferences of the person, free of conflict of interest and undue influence, proportional and tailored to the person's 885 circumstances, subject to a regular review by a competent, independent and impartial authority or judicial body. The safeguards shall be proportional to the degree to which such measures affect the person's rights and interests. I feel that this will give persons with disabilities a well spelt out, easy to follow detailed overview of what their rights and protections within our jurisdiction are. It will empower them with the armour and artillery to ensure they are truly 890 equal to freedom of choice and equal in voice.

Mr Speaker: Any other hon. Member wish to reply? The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

895 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, this Parliament has a proud record of standing up for groups who may have previously felt underrepresented in terms of their civil rights, from single-sex couples to mental health patients. Both sides of this House should feel proud that we have helped advance the status quo of minority groups in Gibraltar.

900 While I may have argued on a number of occasions that many of these measures perhaps do not go far enough in terms of fully eliminating the inequalities of our society, it is encouraging to see that progressive voices have an ear in this Chamber. I have no doubt that these groups now feel that they are a part of a more inclusive Gibraltar, and that is a testament to how we as a House have recognised these inequalities and embraced proposed solutions. This Disability Bill takes this notion a step further. It recognises the difficulties that some of the most vulnerable members of our community face and examines how to resolve them. It also acknowledges the equal contribution that many of these individuals can make to society and gives them an opportunity to realise their full potential. It makes those affected aware of their rights and entitlements whilst clarifying the procedures to enable them to access those rights. This acts as a significant development for those the Bill represents, for it is only by recognising these difficulties, this potential and these rights that we can start to do justice to those who may have felt let down by society. I hope that these individuals will now see that we have listened to their concerns and identified with their plight.

As far as I feel this Bill might go, though, I cannot, nonetheless, question a few of its aspects in the hope of obtaining some clarifications and reassurances from Government. I note, for example, that the Bill makes no reference to advocacy, a crucial need for families of disabled persons.

I would also like to express concern at the implications of some of the wording of the Bill. I refer, for example, to the repeated use of the phrase 'as far as reasonably possible' in the descriptions of the responsibilities of the relevant Minister and the individuals with statutory duties as indicated in the Bill. 'Reasonably' is an elastic term that is subject to interpretation, and I would like to ask what criteria the Minister will be using for ascertaining the parameters of this word insofar as the obligations detailed in the legislation are concerned. Will the onus of challenging any interpretation of such a term be placed on vulnerable members of our community, or will this provide relevant parties with opportunities to renege on their responsibilities by protecting themselves behind flexible wording? What safeguards are in place to prevent the abuse of this elasticity, and who will take responsibility for this? It is my view that legislation can only be as effective as the obligations it imposes, and any possibilities for these to be sidestepped through ambiguous interpretations should be kept to a minimum. The fact that this Disability Bill uses this phrase 17 times casts some reservations on its efficacy and I am sure the House and the community as a whole would appreciate some clarification on this matter.

These are the valid concerns of interested and affected parties, not just mine; and while we all naturally, both sides of the House, welcome this Bill and the recognition of the rights of the disabled, reasonable questions have nonetheless been raised that I feel deserve to be answered at this stage. It is my full intention to vote in favour of this Bill, as I feel that it represents an important step in Gibraltar's maturity into a progressive and inclusive society, but I would like to yield to the Minister in the hope that she will provide some answers and reassurances to the issues that have been raised and implement them in a timely manner.

Mr Speaker, I take this opportunity to pay tribute to the late Mrs Agnes Valarino, because it is thanks to benevolent and strong souls like Agnes that societies like ours here today take note of these much-needed steps towards enhancing social justice.

Thank you.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, today we are debating a significant piece of legislation which is indeed a landmark, no matter how you look at it. My only regret – and I think perhaps this House owes a collective apology to those in Gibraltar who are affected by this legislation – is that it was not passed sooner, and I think for that both sides of the House must take equal responsibility. (Two Members: Hear, hear.)

I am aware of the level and degree of consultation that has been undertaken by the Minister in bringing this legislation to the House and certainly this side of the House, the Official Opposition, will of course welcome it and support it. Having said that, the contributions of both the independent Members have corroborated the observations I made in going through the draft legislation, in that it is peppered indeed with, as the independent Members have pointed 955 out, 17 references to language that says ‘as far as reasonably possible’. The question has to be, of course – and of course the Minister will no doubt enlighten us in her response, is – who makes that determination: is there an independent body or commission which will determine what is reasonably possible? Also, there is a degree of discretion by the Minister on a unilateral basis without, it would appear to be, advice from independent bodies or commissions or committees, which perhaps would be preferable.

960 Mr Speaker, the GSLP undertook in 2011 to legislate this within the first year, but as I have said already, both sides of the House have to take equal responsibility for the delay. In the manifesto it said it would be using the terms of the UN Convention as a model and further on introduce legislation in Parliament to give effect to the terms of the UN Convention on the Rights of Disabled Persons and the protocol in Gibraltar.

965 Mr Speaker, at the risk of repeating what has already been said, what has been brought to my attention and the main concern is that yes, this is perhaps a very good first step towards addressing the needs of the disabled, but what we have here is a degree of cherry-picking, unfortunately, of the UN Convention. And certainly, as has already been mentioned, there is no mention in here as to the rights of advocacy for the disabled, which my understanding is it is critically important, especially for those who may not be able to have the capacity to make decisions for themselves. Also, Mr Speaker, there is no mention in here of independent monitoring of implementation and there is a large degree of ministerial discretion.

970 Those are the concerns on an overall basis as to some areas of the Act that may need clarification for us this side of the House to at least understand what the Government’s thinking has been in introducing certain wording into the legislation.

975 Mr Speaker, I have to also pay tribute to Agnes Valarino, who unfortunately I never met or knew, but I know the Disability Society are present in the Chamber and I thank them and all the people who have been a force in ensuring that this legislation is before us here today. I am proud, of course, to be able to support the legislation, albeit with those reservations which we have raised and indeed the independent Members have raised. And I congratulate the Disability Society for achieving this legislation today.

980 Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

985 Mr Speaker: Is there any other contributor to the Second Reading? The Hon. the Chief Minister.

990 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, it is a pleasure to rise in the context of this debate and that the Bill is finally on the floor of the House enjoying its Second Reading. It is a Bill that has been, as Members have reflected, foreshadowed for some time; it is a Bill that has taken a lot of work. Would we have wished to pass it earlier? Of course we would have wished to pass it earlier, Mr Speaker, as we might have wished to do many things earlier in this Parliament, but we just have to get on and do the things that we have to do as soon as we can.

995 So I am surprised that on a Bill of this nature the hon. Member has decided that he wants to talk about blame, because of course the world did not start on the occasion of the first GSD Government being elected or indeed on the occasion of his arrival in this House. But if he wants to talk about blame – which I do not think is what we should be talking about in respect of a Bill as important and ground-breaking as this – then at least if the world had started in May 1996 I trust he would accept that they have to share $\frac{16}{21}$ of the blame for this Bill not having been brought earlier, with us sharing only $\frac{5}{21}$ of the blame for this Bill not being brought earlier, given that they had, 21 years ago, the opportunity to bring a Bill of this sort.

1000 He says this is a first step. Well, Mr Speaker, it is the only step that has been taken in the direction of travel today by this House and it is a step which I think we should all be welcoming. This is a pioneering piece of legislation which this Government is bringing to the House, and I have not heard them congratulate the Government for doing so.

1005 Mr Speaker, the hon. Members opposite who have spoken about more of the substance of the legislation than the Hon. the Acting Leader of the Opposition, have raised points about the phraseology – and both of them are the independent Members, ironically – ‘as far as reasonably possible’. This is not unusual language in legislation, but we need to understand what it is that that provision provides for perhaps by looking at what the opposite would be.

1010 So, if something is not reasonably possible, is that what hon. Members think the House should be embarked on dealing with? In other words, should we commit the community to things which are not reasonably possible?

For the first time, Mr Speaker, I am going to be dealing with a Leader of the Opposition who is not a lawyer and two independent Members who are not lawyers, so I will forgive them for 1015 not having at their fingertips the concept of reasonableness. The concept of reasonableness in English law is the most established concept of English law. It is not, if I could put it this way, like the concept of ‘soon’ or ‘shortly’. It is a concept which is much more subject to objective control than the concept of ‘soon’ or ‘shortly’, which we have had occasion to debate amicably across the floor of the House in the past.

1020 If I marry that with the concern the Member opposite has raised about whether there is an independent monitoring system, well, of course there is, because we live in a society which has three branches of Government and one of them is the judiciary, and when we create a law we subject performance under that law to the third branch of Government, which is the judiciary.
So there is an independent monitoring system, as there is for constitutional rights – it is the 1025 courts. The courts determine what is or is not reasonable and therefore we are imputing a control to all of the responsibilities and obligations which are taken by the Government for itself and for other citizens by the creation of this law.

Mr Speaker, quite unlike all of the Members who have spoken in this debate so far, I have the honour to say that I did know Agnes Valarino. She was very active already when the Hon. the 1030 Deputy Chief Minister and I were taking our nascent steps in politics and was a great advocate for those with disabilities even at that time, and so when the hon. Lady approached me to say that she thought it appropriate to nickname this law the Agnes Valarino Law, I thought it was absolutely right that she should do that because we knew from our own experience that Agnes had been a great advocate for those with disabilities.

1035 Mr Speaker, if I may say so, this is another pioneering step for this House, as the hon. Lady has said, but is another pioneering step for this Government, for this administration, not over the past year and a half but over the past five and a half years, and in each of the steps that we have taken in respect of civil liberties it is abundantly clear that the charge has been led by Samantha Sacramento, whose record, if judged objectively, can only be seen to be an 1040 extraordinary and exemplary one. She has been the most committed advocate for the advancement of civil rights of all the Members of this Parliament in the past five and a half years – and if anybody cares to work out what those letters stand for, they might work out they stand for AACR. So the GSLP Minister in the GSLP Liberal Government has done a magnificent job in that respect. (Interjection) He can speak. Tiene el derecho de hablar ahora.

1045 I therefore, Mr Speaker, commend the Bill to the House. I commend the work of the Hon.
Minister in this respect and I commend the work of those advocates outside this House who have fought so hard for this Parliament to legislate in this way.

1050 Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to contribute before I ask the mover to reply? The Hon. Daniel Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in relation to some of the points that the Chief Minister has made ... because I think they are important, but it is important that we examine some of what he has said because it is all very well and good to actually say ... and I would appreciate if the Hon.
1055 the Minister for Equality were to perhaps address this ... It is all very well for the Hon. the Chief Minister to say the courts know what reasonableness is and they determine what reasonable actions are every day of the week in court cases, but the reality is that, in the first instance, what you cannot do here is basically say that the duty of what is reasonable or what is unreasonable is the courts', because that assumes that effectively everybody is going to have access to the courts, that people who are aggrieved at any decision that is made by a Government Minister in relation to what is reasonable or unreasonable are just simply just going to go off to court and challenge the decisions. That is not real life for you. At the end of the day you are talking about some of the most vulnerable members of society. For us as a Parliament to basically say to those people, 'If you have got a grievance about what is reasonable or unreasonable you go to the courts and you ask for a judge to determine that', that cannot be right, Mr Speaker, and it cannot be within the spirit of what is a major piece of legislation for the benefit of disabled people.

Therefore it must follow that it is for the Government to provide some kind of guidance, either, as the hon. Gentleman to my right or the hon. Lady to my left have said, some kind of committee, some kind of objectively justifiable body that will come to objectively justifiable reasons as to why something is not reasonably practicable ... Otherwise, what we have is a situation where the Minister just simply says, 'This is not achievable, this is not reasonable: if you don't like it, you go to court.' Quite frankly, I think it is important that some comfort comes from the Government in relation to this aspect of the Bill, so that those out there are satisfied that effectively there is at least an overlay on top of Government decisions in terms of somebody determining what is reasonable, who is not the Minister himself, without those people having to go to court. That is the only contribution that I wish to make.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Samantha Sacramento.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, in reply to the interventions, I think I will start with the last one first. The hon. Gentleman did round off by saying that he would hope that it would be without reference to the Minister himself. Well, at least for the time being it will be to the Minister herself, but I am sure that ... Mr Speaker, he knows what I mean.

In relation to what the Hon. Mr Feetham has said on recourse to the courts, I am sure that he must understand that the reference that the Chief Minister made when he referred to the courts was obviously not that people are expected to refer to the courts in cases of ambiguity as to the definition of reasonableness. What the Chief Minister meant – and I think most lawyers here understood what he meant – was that the courts have dealt with these matters before and the courts have issued standard guidelines as to what reasonableness means, and that is what we are referring to. For a piece of legislation to say that something is to be done when it is reasonably practicable or reasonably practical is quite standard and guidelines as to what is reasonable or not are usually provided in the courts through case law. This is the test of reasonableness which applies to many circumstances, and there are tried and tested cases in relation to disability and guidelines that have been established in the cases of disability.

So, because this is a point that has been raised by everybody opposite, I wish to allay everybody's fears in this respect as to the definition of reasonableness. I am sure that there was no mischief intended or any undue scaremongering, but if I can provide clarification as to what that means, there is plenty of clarification as to what it means in case law. It is not a get-out clause in any way; it is just a very standard approach to this. And in any event, I think that the Hon. Mr Feetham must have missed when I ... I did not go through each section of the Bill – I said that I would only refer to the most salient points, and I did start off by referring to section 6, which is the one that gives us power to provide guidance. So his invitation for us to provide guidance has already been catered for and the intention, as I explained in my speech, is that my Department will from time to time be issuing guidance notes.

The Hon. Mr Llamas referred to a conversation that we had where I hoped to issue the first guidance notes in September. In fact, it will probably be earlier than that because the guidance note in relation to access to buildings, the guidance note explaining the effect of the part R

1110 regulations, will be issued sooner. And in fact, Mr Speaker, we hope to, by the end of the week, have a guidance note on the Disability Act itself. I think within a month we will have two guidance notes issued pursuant to section 6 of the Act, so I hope that that allays anybody's concerns.

1115 Going back to the intervention before Mr Feetham's intervention, that of Mr Clinton – and it is ironic that it is only Mr Clinton who says that this could have been passed sooner, when Mr Clinton is the only one who represents a party that was in Government and could themselves have done this sooner. It is very telling that neither of the independent Members have raised this as an issue. Of course, as the Chief Minister said, we would all have wanted this to have been done sooner. When we were very idealistically and happily drafting the manifesto before 1120 the 2011 election – because of the importance that we gave this, we wanted to ensure that we did this as soon as possible – we thought it would have been easy to have done it by 2011. Because of the complexity and volume of the issues involved, that was not possible, but that is not to say that a lot of the groundwork has not been undertaken since then, because, as I referred to in my speech, of course this legislation is important but we ... Mr Speaker, shall I pause a second so we can maybe ...? I hear an echo in the microphone. (Interjection) Of course 1125 the legislation is important, but it goes beyond the legislation, and that which goes beyond the legislation is work that we have been undertaking very intensely and very tirelessly since 2012 by way of reviewing our policies, investing in our services, investing in training and investing in the delivery of awareness training for other groups as well.

1130 Dealing with the issues raised by Mr Llamas and Ms Hassan Nahon, which were quite similar, in relation to the omission of reference to employment, as I mentioned to Mr Llamas in our conversation, if protections exist in other pieces of legislation then they will not be replicated in this Act because then that would make for bad law. And that, Mr Speaker, is protected under the Equal Opportunities Act, which in my initial speech I explained refers to protection from discrimination in the field of employment.

1135 They also referred to the UN Convention, which refers to a committee that monitors the Treaty. The way that conventions are ratified is not the same as when European directives are transposed into domestic legislation. I know that this may seem like technical legal jargon, as Mr Reyes always affectionately refers to me because I am a lawyer, but because I am a lawyer I know what the difference is, and to me it is very clear and the difference is important in these 1140 circumstances because what this Act does is provide for a model of legislation based on the principles of the UN Convention. It is not intended to be and it is not a wholesale replica of the UN Convention; it has to be relevant to our community. There are sections which do not appear in this piece of legislation because they appear in others, and because we are not transposing a UN Convention there is no need to have a committee to ensure that we are complying to report 1145 back to the UN. Mr Speaker, the way that it works is that we need to first have legislation in place that would satisfy the extension of the UN Convention to Gibraltar, and in fact that extension is not in our gift; it is something that we would apply to be extended through the UK and that is a process that takes an extremely long time, but this is how it stands. I hope that explanation as to how the process works is useful.

1150 I hear comments as to who will monitor the legislation. I am perfectly satisfied that appropriate safeguards are in place, because of course at this point I make the point that there is obviously recourse to the courts, and that is always available but obviously recourse to the courts is always used as a last resort. But there will be many independent organisations who are free to make representations and to speak out on behalf of people with disabilities. For the last 1155 five and a half years this Government has operated an open-door policy, where we always listen to and, on the whole, always consider representations that are made by third parties. At this stage, I do not see that there is a need for an external body to check the implementation of the legislation, because there is no suggestion that the legislation will not be implemented to the full effect of the law – literally, Mr Speaker. But again, like everything else, legislation is fluid, and if 1160 there is a genuine need for such safeguards, then if an issue were to arise it is something that we would consider at the appropriate time – but at this point there is no evidence that that would be necessary.

1165 In relation to the point made for advocates, this is already covered to a different extent, depending on the individual concerned and on the mental capacity of the individuals concerned. Advocacy can be made and will be accepted if made on behalf of an individual by parents or by representative groups. Concerns are always heard and considered very seriously. Certainly when I was responsible for disability services I always took on board representations made to me by individuals, by parents and by representative groups, including the Disability Society, and I know that my hon. and learned Friend Mr Costa equally continues that practice. In the case of a person with disabilities, we will always have a social worker as an advocate for them, so that is a further safeguard, and in the case where someone falls within the remit of our new Mental Health Act there will be provision in that Act, where appropriate, for there to be guardians for these individuals, so this is also already covered.

1170 So, Mr Speaker, while points have been made, I am sure I am satisfied that there are procedural safeguards and I am sure that the implementation of this legislation, which we have all long awaited, will be very effective.

1175 Once again, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to make provision for persons with disabilities modelled on the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities and the Optional Protocol to the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities, and for matters connected thereto, be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

1185 Clerk: The Disability Act 2017.

Disability Bill 2017 –
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

1190 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today?

Members: Aye.

1195 Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007. The Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, can I move that the House recess for five minutes so that the Government can deal with a particular issue – not for long, just for five minutes?

1200 Mr Speaker: We will now have a short recess.

*The House recessed at 4.55 p.m.
and resumed its sitting at 5.00 p.m.*

COMMITTEE STAGE AND THIRD READING

In Committee of the whole Parliament

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.

1205 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills clause by clause: the Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017; the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017; the Law Commission Bill 2017; the Children (Amendment) Bill 2014 – obviously 2017; and the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017, as well as 1210 the Disability Bill 2017.

Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Proceeds of Crime Act 2015.
Clauses 1 to 3.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

1215

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act.
Clauses 1 and 2.

1220

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

1225

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Law Commission Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to provide for the Constitution of the Law Commission for the reform of the law and for connected purposes.
Clauses 1 to 6.

1230

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

1235 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.
The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Chairman.

1240 I just have one question and that is in relation to the composition of the Law Commission in clause 4(2). In terms of the composition – no fewer than six and the various members, and looking at the two barristers or solicitors and then two commissioners appearing to go on to be suitable for the role – I was wondering if there is an intention on behalf of the Government to maintain that proportion in the sense of ... It would appear from the reading of this that there is nothing stopping the Commission from having, for example, 20 commissioners appearing to be suitable and just having two lawyers. I know it may sound a ridiculous suggestion, but is there anything perhaps that the Government may want to put in to just tighten it to make sure that that proportion is maintained?

1250 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Chairman, to answer the hon. Gentleman's question, the appointment of the law commissioners was quite a gruelling exercise for us, in terms of choosing persons we thought would be suitable to cover the various purposes contained in the Bill, and so we ended up with a list which we thought reflected eminent members of society who would be suitable to be law commissioners. As the Hon. Mr Phillips said, in respect of any particular subject matter then we would be inviting other stakeholders to either provide evidence or to provide advice to the Law Commission, but not as law commissioners. So, in short, the answer is that we do very much anticipate that this ratio will be kept moving forward.

Clerk: So, just for the sake of Hansard, clauses 1 to 6.

1260 Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

1265 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Children (Amendment) Bill 2014 –

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Children Act 2009.

Mr Chairman: There are two very simple amendments, of which notice has been given. One of them is to change the date from 2014 to 2017.

1270 The other one is a typographical error, really: in clause 2, substitute the word 'undertaken' for 'undertake'.

Do all hon. Members agree that those amendments be inserted?

Clerk: Clause 1 as amended.

1275 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 2 as amended.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

1280

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) Act 1987 and the Care Agency Act 2009 and to make consequential amendments to the Medical Health Act 1997, the Mental Health Act 2016 and other subsidiary legislation.

1300

Clerk: Schedule 1.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

1305

Clerk: Schedule 2.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

1310

Clerk: Schedule 3.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

1315

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Law Commission Bill 2017 –
Children (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017 –

1320 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017, the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017, the Law Commission Bill 2017, the Children (Amendment) Bill 2017, the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017 and the Disability Bill 2017 have been considered in Committee and agreed to with amendments and I now move that they be read a third time and passed.

1325 Mr Speaker: I am now going to put the question in respect of five of the Bills together, leaving the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill to be voted on separately.

So I now put the question that the Proceeds of Crime (Amendment) Bill 2017, the Markets, Street Traders and Pedlars Act (Amendment) Bill 2017, the Law Commission Bill 2017, the Children (Amendment) Bill 2017 and the Disability Bill 2017 be read a third time and passed. All in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

1330 I will now put to the vote the Medical (Gibraltar Health Authority) (Amendment) Bill 2017. Those in favour? (Several Members: Aye.) Those against? (Several Members: Nay.) The Bill is approved. The Third Reading is approved by the Government voting in favour and the two independent Members with the Official Opposition voting against.

1335 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I now move that the House should adjourn to Wednesday, 26th July at 3 p.m.

Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn to Wednesday, 26th July at three in the afternoon.

The House adjourned at 5.10 p.m.

Order of the Day

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 – First Reading approved

Clerk: Meeting of Parliament, Wednesday, 26th July 2017.

Order of Proceedings: Bills.

5 A Bill for an Act to amend the Social Security (Insurance) Act, the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act and the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997; and for connected purposes. The Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

10 Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Social Security (Insurance) Act, the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act and the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997, and for connected purposes, be read a first time.

15 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Social Security (Insurance) Act, the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act and the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997, and for connected purposes, be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

20 Clerk: The Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2017.

Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 – Second Reading approved

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to move that the Bill for the Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2017 be read a second time.

This Bill gives effect to two Budget measures relating to Social Security, announced in 2015, to encourage and assist small businesses and start-up companies.

The first measure was the abolition of the employer Social Insurance contributions on a second employment. Before this measure was announced, where an individual had a second employment both employers were required to pay Social Insurance contributions. With the introduction of this measure, once a maximum contribution is paid by an employer in respect of an employee no further contribution by an employer is required to be made.

The second Budget measure was the introduction of a credit of £100 per employee in respect of the employer's contribution for Social Insurance for companies with 10 or fewer employees. This Budget measure is given effect in this Bill by way of a regulation-making power enabling the Minister to provide for the granting of a credit to employers who employ a prescribed number of employees, subject to such terms and conditions as may be prescribed. The draft regulations will be published once this Bill is published as an Act and these will provide that the credit will be made against the final payment of the year and companies will only be eligible if they have made the required Social Insurance and tax payments on time throughout the year of assessment. For a new company the credit applies to companies with up to 20 employees in the first year of operation.

Mr Speaker, the Bill, given that it gives effect to Budget measures announced in 2015, will apply retrospectively, if approved, to 1st July 2015.

I commend the Bill to the House.

25 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill?

I will now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Social Security (Insurance) Act, the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act and the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997, and for connected purposes, be read a second 30 time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Act 2017.

Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 –
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi):
35 Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today?

40 Members: Aye.

Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007. The Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007 be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Housing (Amendment) Act 2017.

Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, I beg to move that the Bill be read a second time.

This Bill introduces an amendment to the Housing Act 2007. Its purpose is to inter alia provide for the variation of rent charged for Government rental housing stock. The Housing Act does not make specific provision for this.

Section 30A of the Act grants the Minister with responsibility for housing very wide powers to make regulations. Among various other matters, such regulations may prescribe the conditions of occupation of premises of tenants in public housing. The Bill introduces a statutory definition of 'conditions of occupation of premises'. The House will note that this definition includes a wide spectrum of matters, including the terms of any tenancy agreement with the tenant, the levels of rent and other charges payable, the method of payment and recovery of arrears of rent, and the use of public housing, including, without limitation to, the number of occupiers. The Bill clarifies, therefore, the reach of the powers available to the Minister as currently contained in section 30 of the Act.

This House is very well aware of the Government's commitment to public sector housing. We are justly proud of our unprecedented investment in public sector housing and of the significant improvement of facilities to tenants. We remain committed to protecting and enhancing our public housing stock. At last year's Budget speech, the Chief Minister noted that Government would continue to invest in the upgrading of our public housing stock. Indeed, in my own Budget intervention this year I outlined the continued plan of refurbishment works in our housing estates this year and beyond.

You may also recall, Mr Speaker, that the Ombudsman called for a review of the housing rents in his annual report last year. Since the announcement was made, the step has been widely accepted and indeed welcomed, perhaps more on a matter of principle than because of the value of the income that rent increases will generate. Mr Speaker, the House will know that public sector rents have not been adjusted for a considerable period of time – in fact, since 1983 – not even to reflect inflation over the last 34 years. The increase itself is relatively minimal.

In his 2016 Budget address the Chief Minister announced that Government residential rents would be increased – in fact, for the first time in 34 years, rather than 32 years, as he then said – by 3%, which will amount to an average of 60p per week. The increase will amount to 39p for a two-bedroom property at Alameda Estate, or 46p a week for a two-bedroom property at the Mid-Harbour Estate, namely less than half the price of one edition of the Gibraltar Chronicle. I indicated then that this very modest adjustment should continue on an annual basis; and even if this measure were applied annually over the next three decades, rents at that point will nevertheless remain considerably below what they would have been if 1983 rents had increased consistently in line with inflation over the 34-year period between 1983 and 2017. This Bill allows for this to be given effect.

Furthermore, I have also instructed for there to be further amendment to legislation to allow for similar increases to be made to other Government charges, to be increased annually in accordance with inflation. Notice of such inflation will be provided in the Gazette.

This measure is long overdue. The Members opposite have already indicated their support to this principle and I expect, therefore, that this Bill will be supported by all Members of the House as fiscally prudent and sensible. The adjustment is extremely fair to our tenants, but it also provides some rebalancing in favour of the general taxpayer, even though, because of the very modest adjustment, it does not even correct the effects of inflation over the period.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of the Bill? No.

45 I will now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Housing (Amendment) Act 2017.

Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): I beg to give notice that the Committee stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of this Bill be taken today?

Members: Aye.

COMMITTEE STAGE AND THIRD READING

In Committee of the whole Parliament

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister, will you please move that the House resolve itself into Committee.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should now resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bills clause by clause, namely the Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 and the Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017.

Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Social Security (Insurance) Act, the Social Security (Employment Injuries Insurance) Act and the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997; and for connected purposes.

Clauses 1 to 4.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to amend the Housing Act 2007.
Clause 1.

50 Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

There is notice being given of an amendment. It is really a typographical error. Clause 1 should properly be renumbered clause 2, and that is the amendment that is being moved by the Hon. Minister – notice has been given. Do all hon. Members agree that clause 1 be renumbered correctly as clause 2? (Members: Aye.) Carried.

55

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: So clause 2 as amended stands part of the Bill and the long title stands part of the Bill.

Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 –
Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Third Readings approved: Bills passed

60 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Chairman, I have the honour to report that the House has considered in Committee the Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 and the Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 and has passed them with one amendment.

65 Mr Chairman: I now put the question, which is that the Social Security (Miscellaneous Amendments) Bill 2017 and the Housing (Amendment) Bill 2017 be read a third time and carried. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

GOVERNMENT MOTION

Ombudsman for Public Services – Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas MBE appointed

70 Clerk: We now move to Government motions. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

This House approves by Resolution pursuant to section 3(2) of the Public Services Ombudsman Act 1998, the appointment of Mr Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas MBE JP as the Ombudsman for Public Services for all the purposes of that Act with effect from Monday 26 June 2017 for the term of three years.

75 Mr Speaker, Mr Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas is well known to all Members of this House, and indeed to all members of the community. He is a person who has been involved, at times, with the running of elections – both in terms of European elections and parliamentary elections – in the background and in assisting the preparation for that, and he has been involved in the Civil Service since 1974. Indeed, it is really a career that has spanned 40 years in Government services, and in that time Mr Tirathdas has sought qualification in areas beyond just the areas in 80 which he practised in Government.

Dilip started as a clerical officer in the Treasury and his career has really been related to Government finances. He spent a lot of time in the Treasury, in the Secretariat and in the Income Tax Office. No doubt some of that time, Mr Speaker, he may have come into contact with you in your time in Government. He ended up being a very senior officer in Government 85 finance. He was a senior executive officer in the Treasury department, a senior accountant. He then became Accountant General in 1995 and then Financial Secretary from 2007-14. Mr Speaker, a person who has been in Government service since 1974, has served five Chief Ministers at different times, and Dilip ended his career in Government service working very closely indeed with my predecessor, Peter Caruana, and then with me as Chief Minister. He has,
90 of course, also the great distinction of being the first Gibraltarian Financial Secretary, the first Financial Secretary who was appointed after the 2006 Constitution, not as an ex officio member of this House but as one of the appointees directly appointed by the Chief Minister at the time in February 2007.

He is a person who everyone who knows him will say is of a friendly and mild demeanour.

95 The qualifications he sought, as I was saying, when he was dealing with these financial matters in the Treasury went beyond simply the sort of qualifications that one would associate with that. Dilip qualified with a Bachelor of Science from the University of Manchester in Financial Services in 2002, having previously become a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Bankers in September 2001. He took a Bachelor of Arts degree from the Open University also in 100 December 2002 and a Bachelor of Law degree in December 2008, and Dilip was called to the Gibraltar Bar on 20th September 2013, having previously been called to the Bar in the United Kingdom in October 2011.

Mr Speaker, that is the background of Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas, and therefore, when the Government was looking to see who would be a good successor to Mario Hook, who was 105 Gibraltar's second Ombudsman, we were looking for somebody who had a deep understanding of the workings of Government, who had the ability to understand people's rights and who had the maturity and the manner with people that one would expect an ombudsman to have. Indeed, if I may say so, the sort of role that Henry Pinna, as our first Ombudsman, and Mario Hook have carved out for ombudsmen in Gibraltar requires that level of maturity, that level of 110 approachability and that level of impartiality which few in our community can muster.

115 And so, with that in mind, the name of Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas was proposed to the Government and we thought it was absolutely the right sort of characteristics that he represented that would make for a good Ombudsman. Dilip has been holding the post of Ombudsman, as the legislation provides for, for a short period pending the decision of this House by way of approval of this motion, and I can think of no one better to fill this role now going forward, to fill the very big shoes that Henry Pinna created and Mario Hook filled and that are left now in that office of Ombudsman to continue to do the sterling work that that office does, than Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas, and I therefore commend the appointment to the House as set out in the motion. (Banging on desks)

120

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I must, first of all, declare that I have counted Dilip Tirathdas as a friend for many years and I have to admit that I truly admire his dedication and commitment to all things to which he turns his mind.

130

He entered the Civil Service at the age of 17 in 1974 and indeed reached the pinnacle of Financial Secretary upon his retirement in 2012 after 38 years of service. As the Chief Minister has already remarked, he has worked in the Government Secretariat, the Income Tax Office and the Treasury before being appointed as Accountant General and our first Financial Secretary. His dedication and contribution to the Civil Service was quite rightly recognised with the award of an MBE in 2015 for public service in Gibraltar.

135

Dilip has thirsted for knowledge and self-improvement and in his own time he has obtained an honours degree in financial services and an honours degree in law, no mean achievement. He is also a qualified barrister and is a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Bankers. To have achieved all this while also undertaking what was an onerous full-time job is merit indeed and evidence of the commitment Dilip applies to any task at hand. And not content to enjoy his well-earned retirement, Dilip continued his civil duty in having volunteered to be appointed as a Justice of the Peace. And so, Mr Speaker, in summation, Dilip is, by all counts, a jolly fine fellow and a model citizen for us all.

140

Today the Chief Minister is requesting this House to approve the appointment of Mr Dilip Tirathdas as the Ombudsman for Public Services, pursuant to section 3(2) of the Public Services Ombudsman Act 1998. The Public Services Ombudsman Act 1998 in its title describes itself as, and I quote:

145

An Act to make provision for the appointment of an Ombudsman for the investigation of administrative action taken by or on behalf of the Government of Gibraltar and providers of certain services to the general public, to regulate the functions thereof, and for purposes connected therewith.

A bit of a mouthful!

Mr Speaker, the Ombudsman is also an officer of this Parliament under section 25(3)(b) of the 2006 Gibraltar Constitution, and as such the expense of the office is quite rightly a charge on the Consolidated Fund.

The role of Ombudsman is a very important one, in that they report to Parliament and also have wide-ranging powers of investigation as to fair administration by Government. The key to undertaking this duty is the requirement for impartiality and independence, so that public confidence in the office of Ombudsman may never be undermined.

It is our understanding on this side of the House that the previous two holders of the post of Ombudsman did not have any significant record of employment as civil servants, having pursued their careers in the private sector. We have a concern that, given the Ombudsman covers such a wide range of entities, that as Financial Secretary, or indeed during his long career as a civil 160 servant, Mr Tirathdas may have had some direct or indirect involvement such that the potential for conflicts of interest, whether real or perceived by the public, is unfortunately greatly increased.

165 Mr Speaker, an extract from the schedule to the Public Services Ombudsman Act lists the following as areas which would be subject to investigation by the Ombudsman. It is broken down into three areas. Firstly, Government:

1. GOVERNMENT.

1.1. All Gibraltar Government departments and agencies, including, but without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing, the Royal Gibraltar Police.

2. STATUTORY BODIES.

2.1. Gibraltar Health Authority.

2.2. Gibraltar Broadcasting Corporation.

2.3. Gibraltar Development Corporation Limited (GDC), including the Employment and Training Board (ETB), the Tourism Board and any other Sections of the GDC.

2.4. The Development and Planning Commission.

2.5. The Transport Commission.

2.6. The Traffic Commission.

2.7. The Care Agency.

2.7A Gibraltar Electricity Authority.

2.8 The Gibraltar Sports Authority.

2.10 The Gibraltar Culture and Heritage Agency.

2.11 The Borders & Coastguard Agency.

2.12 The Housing Works Agency.

And then, thirdly:

PUBLIC UTILITIES AND CONTRACTORS.

Any person, company or other entity providing one or more of the following services to the Government of Gibraltar or to the general public under the terms of a contract with or a licence issued by the Crown or a statutory body.

In short, anything that has any Government involvement or control.

170 Mr Speaker, apart from the general financial responsibility for Government Departments, the Financial Secretary also has, by way of example, sat on the boards of both the GHA and Gib Telecom. It could perhaps be reasonably argued, as indeed the Chief Minister already has, that Mr Tirathdas, because of his intimate inside knowledge of the workings of the Civil Service and other Government entities, is perhaps best placed to consider complaints against them. On the other hand, we have received representations that the office of Ombudsman may perhaps be seen to be undermined as regards a perceived lack of independence by the general public. On this point the jury is really still out and only time will tell whether the office of Ombudsman should best be undertaken by a retired senior civil servant or not.

175 The other area of concern to us on this side of the House is in fact the manner of selection of the candidate for Ombudsman. At no point that I am aware of has the Chief Minister discussed the appointment of this parliamentary officer with anyone on this side of the House, even if only by way of courtesy, as to our opinion. If such an opinion had been sought, we would have urged that the post be advertised as widely as possible and an independent committee be created to 180 shortlist candidates. Even if the law currently as drafted makes no provision, we think that would be only best practice.

185 According to the 2017 Estimates, the post of Ombudsman currently attracts an annual salary of £83,483, which in itself, if the numbers are correct from the 2016-17 Estimates, is a 16.4% increase on last year. Last year's salary was £71,716 at the maximum level – or it would appear to be an increase of £11,767 from last year. We would be interested to hear from the Chief Minister as to the reasons for such a generous increase, albeit admittedly not his usual 28%. It is a well-remunerated position which no doubt could have attracted interest from inside and outside the Civil Service. We will be interested to hear from the Chief Minister as to what process was followed in selecting the candidate being proposed to this House today.

190 Mr Speaker, given our current reservations as expressed, whereas we have full confidence in Mr Tirathdas as a man of integrity and ability, we do have concerns as to whether a retired senior civil servant is perhaps the best person to be appointed Public Services Ombudsman, and we would have welcomed the advertising of the post within both the public and private sector. And so, unless the Chief Minister in his reply can provide some compelling reasons for the 195 appointment of Mr Tirathdas as opposed to any other potential candidate, either inside or outside the Civil Service, we this side of the House are minded to exercise our right to abstain on his appointment.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

200 Mr Speaker: Before I call on the mover to reply, does any other hon. Member wish to speak on this motion?

I will then call on the Chief Minister to reply.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am very pleased indeed that the passing of the 205 baton has not meant that there is a passing of the page to a more progressive and positive GSD that might therefore more engage with or be in tune with people's views as to how this community should be run, because nothing could be better for us on this side of the House.

I am sorry that the hon. Gentleman's first real substantive intervention as Leader of the 210 Opposition will be to march his troops all the way to the top of the hill, get them to do nothing and march them back down again. But so be it, although I will counsel the hon. Gentleman that that approach and that even mild-mannered belligerence, if I may put it that way, is not really what this community is looking for at this time in particular. People are looking for us to work together and constructively in order to take this community forward. In doing so we each have a role, and the role that is ascribed to me under section 3 ... If the Hon. Mr Phillips cares to listen, 215 given that he at least is here today, he might learn something of the law.

Mr Speaker, section 3 of the Public Services Ombudsman Act sets out what my role is in this, and my role, because the people of Gibraltar have decided it should be, is to appoint a person from time to time to discharge the responsibilities of Ombudsman, and then for this Parliament to make a decision as to who should discharge that function for the period of appointment of 220 three years. So let us be clear about what it is that the law requires before suggesting that even in circumstances when appointments are made by the House we should be going out to advertise. Under section 3, I appoint from time to time but only for a short period and then I bring to the House and the House decides – and I brought a motion.

The hon. Gentleman has not proposed another name. He has not been in touch with me to 225 propose another name, and the fact is that in all of the instances when an Ombudsman was appointed before, there was no phone call from the greatest Gibraltarian of all time to Mr Bossano. Well, I understand that there was not, Mr Speaker. I understand that there was not, and in fact I will tell the hon. Gentleman more: if there was ... And this is now obviously a difference of opinion between a man who is not here and a man who is as to what might have 230 happened 15 years ago.

I shall tell him that when there is in the law an obligation to consult, like for example on the appointment of Speaker, the consultation amounted to, 'Joe, I am going to appoint x as the Speaker,' not 'Joe, what do you think? Have you a name? Should we advertise?' So, even when consultation is required, the GSD definition of consultation is, 'I'm telling you that,' and where 235 consultation is not required there was not even that, and this is does not require consultation.

This is different. This is an appointment by the House, Mr Speaker. The appointment is going to be made by us here today. The notice of appointment done under the Gazette is only a short-term appointment. The job is given by the people in this House through their elected representatives.

240 It is all very well to say that somebody is highly qualified, to go through the qualifications that Mr Dayaram Tirathdas has and say that he is a jolly good fellow, and then to lay into the man – which is, in effect, what the hon. Gentleman has done by saying he is not able to discharge the functions of the office of Ombudsman, despite the qualifications that he has because they impugn his ability to be impartial. How can the hon. Gentleman opposite get up and say that 245 simply because someone has been a civil servant they cannot be impartial? How can he say that?

Mr Speaker, as I understand it, the former Ombudsman did a short stint in the Civil Service as a Crown Counsel defending the Government in court. So, is it that it is only possible to be independent in the assessment of claims about whether the Government has acted 250 administratively properly or improperly – their Government or our Government, because the Ombudsman considers cases sometimes going back seven years, 10 years – if one comes from outside the Government and not from within? Is it that they have forgotten that the person who was Gibraltar's first Ombudsman was the Chairman of Action for Housing? And is it that they do not look at the Ombudsman's report and see that the majority of the complaints relate to 255 housing? So, they do not impugn the impartiality of somebody coming from outside who has taken a position in relation to housing – in fact, they propose them – and yet when somebody comes from the Treasury department they impugn the ability of the individual to be impartial.

Mr Speaker, I understand that they are gasping for political breath and they are looking for any point to take. They should take the good ones, not the bad ones. The crisis in the GSD 260 should not become an issue that leads them, simply in an attempt to stay alive politically – (Interjection) not until I have finished the sentence – to impugn somebody's impartiality and integrity, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the ... It has to be on a point of order. He is not just 265 asking the Chief Minister to give way. It is on a point of order.

Hon. R M Clinton: Absolutely, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: What Standing Order are you referring to, please?
270

Hon. R M Clinton: The question of relevance to the debate, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Relevance?

Hon. R M Clinton: Relevance to the debate. What is the debate – 275

Mr Speaker: You want me to rule on relevance?

Hon. R M Clinton: Relevance to this motion.
280

Mr Speaker: I want to hear you: what is irrelevant? What do you consider to be irrelevant in what the Chief Minister is saying?

Hon. R M Clinton: Any references to the GSD or its future, Mr Speaker.
285

Mr Speaker: Any reference?

Hon. R M Clinton: To the GSD or its future, Mr Speaker. What has that got to do with this debate? (Interjections)
290

Mr Speaker: We have two parties – three parties, sorry – represented in this House amongst the Members. We have two independent Members. Are you asking me to rule whether any references to the future of those parties is relevant? A passing reference? One thing is to enlarge on a point which can be introducing new material when the Chief Minister exercises his right to reply. Enlarging on a point, developing a point, can be new material. A passing reference – is that new material or is that irrelevant?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, may I deal with the point, because –

Mr Speaker: Having heard the Leader of the Opposition, I now want to hear what the Chief Minister's view is on this question of relevance.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, my position – my political position as Leader of the House – is that their party's fracture, the destruction of the fabric of the Opposition –

305

Hon. R M Clinton: I really must object to him carrying on.

Hon. Chief Minister: – of the GSD –

Mr Speaker: I have invited the Chief Minister –

310

Hon. R M Clinton: But, Mr Speaker, this is going well beyond explaining his point.

Mr Speaker: I think the new Leader of the Opposition is not going to make my life easy (Laughter) if apart from raising a point of order he is also going to instruct me as to how I should judge the issue. I hope that he will give me an opportunity to listen to both sides and then perhaps take a view.

315

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

320

On the issue of relevance in debate of the complete fracture of the GSD, of the political crisis that there is in College Lane in respect of the party that was the Government and is now not able even to keep the seats in opposition under its whip, the issue is of course simply this, and it is immediately relevant: they need to be politically somehow relevant to this community, and my case is that they are taking a position against Dilip Dayaram and they are taking other political positions simply to try and remain politically relevant.

325

In this House, when I am addressing how people should vote – and I am addressing 17 Members, two of whom used to take the whip of the GSD and do not any longer – I wish to develop the point that part of what is happening in this House, and perhaps happened in other debates, is that the political crisis in the GSD is infecting the political debate that is put by the leader of that party in this House, who is, for now at least, the Leader of the Opposition.

330

I have read today in one of the local newspapers that there is even an attempt to interpret the Constitution, which they published with great fanfare in 2013, in such a purposive way that it makes it difficult for people no doubt to have confidence in how they interpret everything else.

335

That is why, Mr Speaker, I think that the complete breakdown of a party – that held government for 16 years but now is unable even to hold the seats that it was elected to represent in this House – is relevant to this debate, as it has been relevant in debates in this House in the past to mention many things which might not be directly relevant to the issue of a motion or an Act but which are politically relevant. I will put it to hon. Gentlemen opposite that if they try to restrict what a person can consider to be politically relevant to an argument that they make, they, even from the Opposition seats, will seek to gag debate in Gibraltar – they are even attempting to stop the Chief Minister of Gibraltar from expressing his view.

God forbid that they should ever hold government again, because then we would lose once again freedom of speech in this community in the same way as they excluded The New People from press conferences of the Government whilst they held that office because it simply did not share their views and criticised them. So let us hope that those who represent that attempt to stop political debate do not in the future hold office in this nation. (A Member: Hear, hear.) (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I take the view that a passing reference made about the future of a political party is not irrelevant. Had the Chief Minister attempted to develop the point in the manner in which he has done now, (Several Members: Ah!) (Laughter) I would have called him to order, but that has happened as a result of the point of order which the Leader of the Opposition has raised. (Interjections and laughter) (Hon. Chief Minister: I love it!) But as part of his substantive speech I would have called him to order, but as a passing reference it is not irrelevant. Development of it is outside the scope of the debate.

Please carry on.

Hon. Chief Minister: So, Mr Speaker, as I was saying in passing, the hon. Members appear, because of the political crisis affecting the GSD, to look for any – (Interjection) No, I am just picking up where I left off; I am not going to continue with it. I have explained why I think the political crisis in the GSD has become so relevant, but what I was saying was that they are taking any point they can in order to try and paper over not the crack but the cavern that is appearing in the GSD. That is now affecting Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas. Let's see who it affects next. Let's hope it is not something which goes to Gibraltar's national interest. Let us hope it does not, Mr Speaker. I hope that they take the summer to reflect on where they are and where Gibraltar would expect them to be.

It is true that Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas has not been appointed to a post that requires impartiality by the GSLP/Liberal administration. First, he was appointed by the GSD administration, by the former Chief Minister, to a post that certainly requires impartiality: the post of Financial Secretary, which carries with it statutory obligations, and he discharged that – and I made the point in my speech – in an exemplary fashion both from 2007 to 2011 under the GSD and from December 2011 to 2013 or 2014 under the GSLP/Liberal administration.

This is a man who has demonstrated his impartiality and his ability to be impartial to a GSD administration and to a GSLP/Liberal administration, and so therefore his qualification as a civil servant enables him to understand the very system that he will be involved in looking at and showing is operating in the right way. Can that be done by somebody from outside the Civil Service? Absolutely it can be done: Henry Pinna did it very well. Can it be done by somebody who has less experience of the Civil Service? Absolutely it can be done: Mario Hook did it very well. Can it be done by somebody who has experience of the inner workings of the Civil Service? Well, arguably, it can be done better because he may be able to understand better what it is that needs to be fixed when a complaint comes in. The jury is out, but what is certainly not true and what we think is very uncharitable is the suggestion that he cannot do it because he has been a civil servant.

Mr Speaker, it is a good thing that Mr Llamas no longer sits with the GSD whip; otherwise, he might have something to say about it. If Mr Llamas were in the future to retire as a civil servant, is it that he can no longer ever make a fair decision about the Civil Service and whether they have acted properly or not?

Mr Reyes has been a teacher and in part a civil servant. Is he saying that civil servants are not able to make fair determinations about other civil servants and how to behave themselves? I am sure he is not, Mr Speaker. It is not Mr Reyes's style to take that judgemental approach against people, and yet that is what is happening in this case.

The hon. Members opposite are saying that they do not believe, or they are not prepared to have the confidence that Mr Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas will be able to impartially determine and 395 resolve disputes that people might have with the Civil Service. I will give them all a little bit of a lesson on how speakers are appointed in parliaments. In most parliaments, the speaker is taken from the benches of the parliament and the speaker sits in judgement over the implementation of the rules of the parliament fairly, even though he comes from one side or the other. Hon.

Members may know that John Bercow, the current Speaker of the Parliament in Westminster, is 400 a member of the Conservative Party elected as a Conservative Member of Parliament; he becomes the Speaker and Labour Members have the confidence that he is going to discharge his obligations.

In Gibraltar we have had a tradition of appointing individuals sometimes from outside the House, and in the case of Mr Speaker, somebody who was the Chief Minister and a member of the AACR. But we have also had instances of somebody being appointed Speaker who was not 405 overtly political and did not have that experience but who had indicated his preference for a particular point of view: Mr Haresh Budhrani, Mr Speaker, who explained when he took the Chair that he had had a GSD sticker on his bumper.

Mr Speaker, we have to take people at face value and we have to expect that people will discharge their obligations. What makes it impossible for Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas to discharge 410 his functions as Ombudsman simply because he has been a civil servant, and yet all hon.
Members opposite are able to discharge their functions simply by dint of their election? I know that when they stood for election there were some who were left out of the slate who felt that they could do a better job than the seven who were elected – I can think of one in particular, Mr Speaker.

415 People actually do discharge their obligations. The theory of Members opposite, Mr Speaker – and I am talking about what is left of the official Opposition, the GSD ... The theory of what is left of the official Opposition in respect of the GSD is that nobody has integrity, nobody discharges their functions properly, the media just completely allow themselves to be ridden roughshod by the Government, everybody is lacking in integrity except them; the only people 420 who do a fair job for a day's wage is them, everybody else is taking Gibraltar for a ride, has not got integrity etc.

Well, look, Mr Speaker, the success of this nation demonstrates that people go to work, do their jobs and discharge their functions and they put distance between themselves and their friends because we are a small community and they make fair determinations. And when they 425 do not, there are mechanisms to deal with that because sometimes people just make mistakes, but not through a structural lack of integrity that only appointments by the GSD can fix – which is what the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has suggested. I must tell hon. Members that by the standard that they are seeking to judge others they would have failed tremendously if they looked at the appointments that they made when they were in office in the application of those 430 sorts of standards to the appointments they made to boards etc.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, the Government is very confident indeed that Dilip Dayaram Tirathdas is not just a jolly good fellow, he is not just a person who has rightly been honoured by Her Majesty the Queen by the recognition of a state honour for the work that he has done, he is not just rightly also a person appointed by the Chief Justice as a Justice of the Peace to sit in 435 judgement over people, with the power, when he is sitting on the bench, to imprison people; he is absolutely the right person in this community today to be able to discharge the obligations of Ombudsman and resolve issues which might relate to maladministration as somebody who knows how the system works and will be able to assist claimants to fix problems when they arise.

440 Therefore, Mr Speaker, I deprecate the things that the hon. Member opposite has said and I commend the appointment of Mr Tirathdas to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.)

445

Hon. R M Clinton: Can we have a division?

Mr Speaker: There are eight Government Members present, two are absent, so there are eight votes in favour.

450 The Hon. Marlene Hassan?

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Yes, in favour. Sorry, I haven't asked to speak, Mr Speaker. (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister)

455 Mr Speaker: How are you voting?

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: In favour.

460 Mr Speaker: In favour nine votes in favour.
The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I shall be abstaining.

465 Mr Speaker: You are abstaining and the official Opposition are also abstaining.

Voting resulted as follows:

FOR	AGAINST	ABSTAIN	ABSENT
Hon. P J Balban	None	Hon. R M Clinton	Hon. Dr J E Cortes
Hon. J J Bossano		Hon. L F Llamas	Hon. D A Feetham
Hon. N F Costa		Hon. T N Hammond	Hon. S E Linares
Hon. Dr J J Garcia		Hon. E J Phillips
Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon		Hon. E J Reyes
Hon. A J Isola
Hon. G H Licudi
Hon. F R Picardo
Hon. Miss S J Sacramento

Mr Speaker: The motion is carried by 9 votes and 6 abstentions – (Two Members: Five.) five, sorry, yes, five. And there are, I should have said, two Members of the Government absent and one Member of the Opposition also absent, which explains five and not six.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION

Bill to amend Financial Services (Moneylending) Act – Leave to introduce not granted

470 Clerk: Private Member's Motion. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

Leave is requested of the House to introduce a Bill for an Act to amend the Financial Services (Moneylending) Act in the form attached so as to make provision for the Minister with responsibility for finance to publish in the Gazette details of moneylender licences in issue annually and also to publish notice of revocation and issue of new moneylending licences in the Gazette.

475 My motion, in seeking leave to amend the Financial Services (Moneylending) Act, is not one that this House should have any particular difficulty with, since its objective, being to publish the details of holders of moneylending licences, in fact already enjoys the implicit support of the Chief Minister, who in December 2016 stated he was, and I quote, 'happy to consider making provision to publish the list generally in future'.

480 Mr Speaker, we all recognise that the Financial Services (Moneylending) Act has its origin in legislation and dates back a hundred years to 1917, and that, despite subsequent amendments, it is still, in areas, perhaps out of date or lacking in respect of concepts of modern transparency and disclosure.

485 This piece of legislation has, in recent years, become of increased public interest and importance since the date the Government revealed that Credit Finance Ltd had been issued with a moneylending licence, and yet to this day there is no official register where the public can verify this information. Indeed, other Government-owned entities, such as Gibraltar Home Loans Company Ltd, have also apparently been granted licences by the Chief Minister in his sole discretion, which again cannot be independently verified.

490 Mr Speaker, the question of confidentiality or otherwise of a list of the moneylending licence holders has indeed been discussed in this House for now well over a year. The Hon. Damon Bossino raised it in Question 389/2015 in May 2015 and again subsequently in Question 442/2015 in June 2015, and I myself raised it in December 2016 in Question 921/2016. In answer to all those questions the Chief Minister indicated that he was indeed open to the publication of a list of licence holders, but that in the absence of specific provision to disclose, despite the silence of the Act as to publication, he would not disclose the list openly to Parliament.

500 In my view, this is a nonsensical position for the Chief Minister to adopt, since under the Moneylending Rules made under section 9 of the said same Act there is, in fact, a very specific requirement for any applicant for a moneylending licence to advertise the fact in the Gazette. And so it is patently absurd that the application for a licence has to be made public, and yet the grant of a licence is not. If the application is of such public interest that it needs to be gazetted, then so more should its granting.

505 Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister did, in December 2016, offer to discuss this matter with me behind the Speaker's Chair as to how the list might be published. I politely declined this offer because I could see no point in discussing a subject that was manifestly so simple to resolve and I saw no advantage to the public interest to engage in discussions behind the Speaker's Chair.

Mr Speaker, it is subject matter so simple that the Chief Minister himself said in May 2015 that he would:

happily look into whether this should be something that can be provided for publicly in the future in this House or even perhaps on a register which is maintained on a website. For some reason this is still done by the Ministry for Finance, not by any other entity, but it is something that, at first blush, I agree with him – there is no reason why it should not be made public.

510 Mr Speaker – and I wrote this speech some time ago – in two months, whenever that was ... That was an exchange that happened in this House two years ago and yet nothing has been done to address the matter.

I appreciate the Chief Minister and the Government are busy with Brexit and other matters, and thus, in order to assist the business of this House, I have proposed this simple amendment to the Act, which, if this House agrees, will modernise the Act and will settle the question of disclosure once and for all.

515 Mr Speaker, it cannot be right that the public cannot see who has been granted and holds a moneylending licence, or indeed whose licence has been revoked. It is a matter of public interest.

I will be very surprised if the Government finds itself unable to support my motion as drafted, but if they have some technical difficulty with the wording I have used, in this instance I am open 520 to them amending my draft Bill and motion as they see fit, providing of course that the overriding public interest principle of transparency and disclosure is met.

And so, Mr Speaker, for all the reasons I have just set out, I commend my motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

525 Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am pleased that the hon. Gentleman has at least gone back and looked at what I said in 2015 and 2016, and that I gave him the opportunity to talk to me about how we might deal with this issue short of having to amend the legislation. I was of course going to remind him of that, given that he moved the motion without even the courtesy of a phone call or writing to me to say, 'Look, Fabian, I'm minded to do this in this way. Would this find support? Does this deal with the manner in the way that you might have felt, if I had taken you up in that discussion, that you could support?' He would have found, Mr Speaker, that my answer would have been that I do not support doing things in this way.

Mr Speaker, I am Minister for Finance and I have responsibility for signing these applications, they are vetted by the Financial Secretary, but of course it is also an area of relevance for the Minister for Financial Services. I have once again checked, just in case, but it has been confirmed to me that Mr Clinton has not raised the issue with the Minister for Financial Services, and you would have thought that if there was a genuine desire to act in a way that is in concert and in the interests of the community then a phone call would not have been amiss as an attempt to try and find a common way forward. Otherwise, one is left thinking that this is just an attempt to score a political point – a political point that may not have appeared relevant to Members when they were in Government. For 15 years they had the chance to change this Act. It would have been easy for them to do – they did not do so. Ah, but the Government has now taken moneylending licences – that is why it is relevant now. Is it, Mr Speaker? Is it relevant because the Government has taken moneylending licences? The Government has said when it is taking moneylending licences, has explained why it is taking moneylending licences and is probably the most generous when it comes to determining how to lend money and ensuring – of course, as long as that is secure – that loans should be granted in the parameters that have been explained to this House.

So the issue is really those others that have moneylending licences. It is true they have to advertise that they apply for moneylending licences. It is true. So there is no secret that people are holding moneylending licences, because they have to advertise for that, and so do those who apply for licences to the OFT – the old trading licences, as they used to be called – and yet there is not a list published of those who succeed to obtain licences, and that is exactly the same model that there is here.

I remain open to considering genuinely whether this is something that can be done in some way short of requiring a legislative change, but I am not going to be minded to agree to the Opposition driving the cart on this simply because they have decided that this is an issue that they want to pursue, whether it is Mr Bossino – who, from what one hears, might be one of the people who has decided to try and come back to the fray, although it is all about people coming out of the fray and coming back to the fray, as far as I can see – or he, now as Leader of the Opposition, decides that he wants to continue to promote this matter which he had dealt with before when he was not Leader of the Opposition.

What does it matter that the grant of licences is in the sole discretion of the Chief Minister? Or is he also imputing bad faith to the Chief Minister of Gibraltar when his identity changes on 9th December 2011? Because I will remind him that it was the people of Gibraltar who sacked the previous incumbent.

Mr Speaker, it makes very little sense even to do something potentially sensible in the way that he has done it, which is to present a motion to amend a Financial Services Act without speaking to the Minister for Financial Services or accepting the olive branch of the Chief Minister to have a discussion behind the Speaker's Chair. It really is quite something, Mr Speaker. I say to 575 him, 'Let us discuss it,' and he says, 'I'm not interested in discussing it – you either do it my way or the highway.' That is what he says before he is Leader of the Opposition. That is the attitude he continues to take as Leader of the Opposition. Woe betide us if he ever becomes the Chief Minister of Gibraltar. Woe betide us! But that is the GSD way.

We saw St Peter ruling from St Peter's chair and now we are seeing Roy of the Rovers trying 580 the same. (Laughter) It is incredible that at a time when we should be trying to work together on a simple issue like the Financial Services Act, but which can have consequences ... We should do a consultation with those who hold licences. My inclination, like his, as I have said repeatedly, is that we should publish a list, but to impose that without discussing it with those who hold licences is not the modern way of doing things. It is the GSD way of doing things: imposition of a 585 view, despite an invitation to a discussion.

I remain of the view that this is something that potentially could be a good thing to do and perhaps should be done. I am convinced that this is not the right way to do it, and so I am afraid that the hon. Gentleman is not going to have support from this side of the House when it comes to his proposal. I do not think that the issues that he has raised in the context of his presentation 590 of this motion advance matters any further.

The fact that Credit Finance Company Ltd has a moneylending licence is a matter disclosed by the Government and defended by the Government as a matter of policy, and publishing the name of Credit Finance Company Ltd on a list is not going to change that. It is not going to add to transparency; quite the opposite. We have been more transparent than they ever were about 595 the workings of Government companies.

And so, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is going to find that his motion is not going to enjoy a fair wind. But I will say this: it is a pity that although he moved this motion when he was not Leader of the Opposition, he has decided to continue in this vein as Leader of the Opposition. I hope that as the warmer months kick in – some have called it the Silly Season – that he enjoys 600 more than one glass of warm prosecco and reconsiders his style.

Mr Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on this motion?

I will then call upon the mover to reply.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, as those of us who love wine in this House will know, prosecco is best drunk cold, but the Chief Minister will have his own tastes for wine and how he 605 wants to drink it.

Mr Speaker, all I have heard from the Chief Minister this afternoon is that he wants to vet everything that this side of the House presents to Parliament. It is our right to present motions 610 to this House in any way, shape or form that we this side of the House determine is appropriate, and not that we have to phone the Chief Minister every time we have a motion we wish to present to this House that is, of course, valid with the Speaker's permission.

He raised a couple of interesting points and I am, of course, disappointed that he cannot see it in himself to relinquish the driving of a cart, as he so graphically puts it himself, in that he 615 cannot let go of driving the cart for a minute to perhaps consider the wider public interest, which he himself admits – look, there is merit in publishing this list – but he just does not want the idea to be coming from the Opposition benches. Well, that is fine, Mr Speaker, I will let him take full credit for it. I will let him take full credit for any initiative in respect of publication of a register of moneylenders and I will leave the ball in his court. I certainly expect within the 620 lifetime of this Parliament, as he is so fond of saying, to undertake this consultation with holders of moneylenders' licences, and at the end of that period – hopefully, by the end of this Parliament – find a method other than by legislation, which frankly I find hard to find any other way of doing it. But of course he is the Chief Minister, he is the oracle, he will know better than I, a mere non-lawyer, as to how these things can best be done.

625 Mr Speaker, in the course of his intervention he actually raised perhaps a more important point which is tangential to my motion, and that is the question of public registers. He raised the example of the Office of Fair Trading, where people will apply for licences but there is no way of determining whether licences have been granted. Surely he should make that a matter of urgency to address that, because how else are the public to determine whether someone they are dealing with is validly licensed?

Hon. A J Isola: Will the hon. Member give way?

Hon. R M Clinton: I will.

635

Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member should be aware that, by statute, any premises which is operated under a business licence is obliged by law to have that licence on show. So that is not really a comparable that he should be making.

640 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the hon. Member for his intervention, but of course the –

Hon. Chief Minister: Will the hon. Gentleman give way?

645 Hon. R M Clinton: No. (Laughter)

A Member: No, don't give way.

650 Hon. Chief Minister: In that case he will be deprived of a method of implementation of the system that he is thinking of.

Hon. R M Clinton: Well, fair enough. He is free to do that as he pleases, Mr Speaker.

The point I was going to make to the response of the Hon. Minister who has responsibility for small businesses is there are businesses that necessarily have business waivers and of course there is no way of looking up a name in a register to see are these individuals registered. Again, Mr Speaker, this is tangential to my original motion, but he does raise the point about public registers, which is what the Chief Minister was referring to, and I would urge the Government, if it is not doing so already, to consider this as part of a wider exercise to ensure full public transparency in any form of licence granting.

660 If you go and apply for an insurance licence or any other type of licence, you can quite easily go on to the website of the Financial Services Commission and look it up. You do not have to go to somebody's premises and say, 'Ah, look, there's a licence on the wall.' You can go and look it up quite easily. I am sure this will be something that perhaps the Government will consider in their e-Government programme, to ensure that everything that involves a licence is published. But then again, Mr Speaker, I would not want the Chief Minister to feel that he was losing control of his cart.

670 Mr Speaker, he talked about the GSD imposing things on people, when nothing could be further from the truth. They are the New Dawn Government. Remember, they are the ones who were going to have more transparency than anyone else. Well, Mr Speaker, if they do have it, why haven't they introduced this yet? Why do we have to keep on reminding them to do it? Why is it the Chief Minister says, 'Oh, no, this is too difficult for me to do – I can't publish a list, it's far too difficult'? (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister)

And so, Mr Speaker, there really is not much more for me to say, other than trying to speak louder than the Chief Minister when he is making his snide comments, (Mr Speaker: Order.) is 675 that the ball is fairly and squarely in his court and he can keep on driving the cart, but somehow it may overturn one day, Mr Speaker.

Thank you very much. (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister)

Mr Speaker: I now put the question –

680

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I will call for a division as well.

Mr Speaker: You are calling for a division. Very well.

685 I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition and we will now have a division.

A division was called for and voting resulted as follows:

FOR

Hon. R M Clinton
Hon. T N Hammond
Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon
Hon. L F Llamas
Hon. E J Phillips
Hon. E J Reyes

AGAINST

Hon. P J Balban
Hon. J J Bossano
Hon. N F Costa
Hon. Dr J J Garcia
Hon. A J Isola
Hon. G H Licudi
Hon. F R Picardo
Hon. Miss S J Sacramento

ABSENT

Hon. Dr J E Cortes
Hon. D A Feetham
Hon. S E Linares

Mr Speaker: There are 3 Members absent, 6 have voted in favour, 8 against. The motion is defeated.

690 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it has been a long session, a session which has included the debate on the Appropriation.

If the hon. Gentleman had given way, I would even have shared with him an opportunity to have, during the course of the debate, asked me to look at section 9 of the Financial Services (Moneylending) Act, which allows the Chief Minister to make rules, without the need for changes in primary legislation, to do the things that he wanted.

695 I say that, Mr Speaker, as I start the process of wishing hon. Members a pleasant summer. I know for them it will be a very political time, but I do hope that all of us will be able to enjoy with our families a longer break, and that the musical chairs that we have seen on the other side do not lead to anyone else losing their chair and that we come back ready to work together for Gibraltar, that we come back ready perhaps to leave this behind us – a style of politics that has 700 not been in the interests of Gibraltar – where we are less bellicose and follow more often than not Mr Speaker's entreaties to work together in the best interests of our community.

I therefore now move, Mr Speaker, that the House do adjourn sine die and that, in keeping with the comment in the British newspapers, people do not enjoy more than one glass too many of warm prosecco, because that can lead to the leadership of a party changing even once again – 705 but I do not know whether they are reading the papers.

I move the House now adjourn sine die.

Procedural –
Procedure re leave to introduce

Mr Speaker: If I may, there is a point on which I would like Hon. Members to reflect on, particularly those who are hopefully someday to be involved in the resurrected Committee on Electoral, Political and Parliamentary Reform.

710 There is a fundamental difference between what happens here in this Parliament and what happens in the House of Commons when a Member seeks permission – or leave, shall I say – to introduce a Private Member’s Bill.

715 In the House of Commons, because of the exigencies of the time element, and also because there is a separation of the office of Leader of the House and the Prime Minister, there is a Leader of the House who spends a great deal of time in the House of Commons and who is basically responsible for the agenda, for what Parliament discusses, and therefore any Member wishing to introduce a Private Member’s Bill must ... It is not that they have to have the approval of the Government, no; what they do need is that the Leader of the House will make time available. If the Leader of the House does not make time available for a motion seeking leave to introduce a Private Member’s Bill, then that cannot be done. Time is of the essence in the House.

720 Here, hon. Members have a great advantage in that all they need to do is to give notice of the motion, which if I, as Speaker, find is perfectly acceptable, then goes on to the political agenda. But the difference also is that in the UK it does not go on the agenda until the Leader of the House of Commons knows about it and has seen it, and the Government takes a view whether it is going to be proceeded with or not. Here, the difference is any Member – it does not have to be a Member of the Opposition ... There have been Members of the Government who have introduced – the Hon. Danny Feetham I think did so, asked leave of the House. But if you do not have the approval of the Chief Minister of the day – I do not mean, by that, agreement with the essence of it, but that it should go on the agenda – then it would not proceed.

730 So reflect on that. Consider whether if ever the Rules of the House are amended, how they should be amended. I would like them to reflect because it occurred to me that there is that difference. Here, the Chief Minister is also the Leader of the House. That is not the case in the House of Commons and that can introduce a divergence of procedure.

735 The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 4.26 p.m.

The Gibraltar Parliament

The Parliament met at 3.33 p.m.

[MR SPEAKER: Hon. A J Canepa GMH OBE in the Chair]

[CLERK TO THE PARLIAMENT: P E Martinez Esq in attendance]

PRAYER

Mr Speaker

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

Clerk: (ii) Confirmation of Minutes – the Minutes of the last meeting of Parliament, which was held on 10th, 17th, 29th and 30th March, and 21st, 22nd, 26th, 27th, 28th and 29th June, and 12th and 26th July 2017.

5

Mr Speaker: May I sign the Minutes as correct? (Members: Aye.)

Mr Speaker signed the Minutes.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE CHAIR

Display of new Mace and polished stalactite

Clerk: (iii) Communications from the Chair.

10 Mr Speaker: Hon. Members, I think that it is appropriate that I should draw attention to and highlight that at this meeting of Parliament, just five days after the celebration of the 50th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum, we have on display and are using for the first time the beautiful new Mace. 2017 is a very auspicious year in Gibraltar's history and the new Mace commemorates in a most tangible manner both this 50th anniversary and the bicentenary of this building. The Mace has two dates engraved on it – 1951, when the first Legislative Council
15 was inaugurated by Prince Philip on behalf of His Majesty King George VI, and 2017 – together with the cyphers 'EIR', in lieu of 'GVIR' as in the case of the old Mace.

We are also displaying here in Parliament, for the first time in its new home, the other half of the polished stalactite presented by the late Mr Speaker, Sir Robert Peliza, to Madam Speaker Betty Boothroyd in 1994. I am reliably informed that it is prominently displayed in Mr Speaker's 20 house in Westminster. This other half had been on display in the Gibraltar Museum since then. Engraved on both halves in letters of gold is the preamble to the 1969 Gibraltar Constitution, in itself a direct consequence of the 1967 Referendum. (Banging on desks)

I call the Chief Minister.

25 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, can I say that I think that this is an entirely appropriate way to have commemorated the 200th anniversary of the erection of this building, but also, in particular, a way of representing the importance of this Parliament and its history in the Mace. In 1951 we were not a Parliament, but it is right that we show the longevity and the stability that democracy in Gibraltar has enjoyed in the way that we now have a Mace with us 30 something to think that Her Majesty the Queen has already become the longest-serving British monarch and that the Mace in this place did not have her initials on it but her distinguished father's initials on it.

If I may say so, Mr Speaker, I think that is an entirely fitting way of ensuring that the 200th anniversary of the building in which the Parliament finds itself is commemorated, as is your 35 initiative, if I may say so, of displaying the other half of the stalactite with the preamble of the Constitution in a prominent place in the Chamber. I think that will be a fitting reminder that the sovereignty of Gibraltar is in effect in its people and this is the place of debate and democracy of its people.

40 So the Government entirely associates itself with the things that Mr Speaker has said about the new Mace and the display of the stalactite, and thanks Mr Speaker for having the idea of displaying the stalactite in this place and entirely supports that it should stay there for as long as Parliament is sitting.

45 Mr Speaker: Before I call on the Hon. Roy Clinton, the Leader of the Opposition, may I take this opportunity on behalf of all of us to wish you a very happy birthday. (Banging on desks)

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker. Thank you, colleagues. Yes, it is an auspicious year for Gibraltar and myself: 50 years old and who would know it!

50 Referring to the Mace, far from being a 'fool's bauble', as Oliver Cromwell famously referred to it in 1653, the Mace is really instead a symbol of royal authority and without its presence in this House we could not pass legislation. The Mace is indeed a common and endearing ... enduring feature as well as endearing feature and tradition of parliaments of the Commonwealth and beyond. It has been the focus of protest – from the famous Michael Heseltine seizing and winging of the Mace in 1976 to perhaps the less well known chucking out 55 of the window of the Mace in the Bahamas in 1965, at which point business really had to be suspended. Fortunately, in this Chamber we have no windows, and from our seated positions we would truly have to be athletic to grab the Mace – God forbid!

On a serious note, Mr Speaker, I really must congratulate the firm of Thomas Fattorini, and of course the Clerk, for a very well executed and beautiful Mace.

60 Mr Speaker, it is not just gilt metal but really represents the heart and the soul of this Parliament and the constitutional rights the people of Gibraltar have indeed fought long and hard for. I trust this Mace will grace this Parliament for at least the next hundred years, long after all of us have departed this Chamber.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

65

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

70 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, this year has indeed been an auspicious one for our community, not least in regard to the 50th anniversary of the 1967 sovereignty Referendum.
The Referendum generation voted for freedom over fascism, democracy over dictatorship and strength over submission. That historic vote left an indelible mark on our narrative and was a pivotal step in our development of further civil autonomy as the British Gibraltarian people, and one of those more tangible links to Britain is the Mace, without which this Parliament could not meet.

75 In 1976, as the hon. Gentleman the Leader of the Opposition has just mentioned, the Conservative MP Michael Heseltine seized the Mace from its table and held it aloft while those on the opposite bench sang the Labour anthem The Red Flag. I can assure the House, Mr Speaker, that I will attempt to do no such thing, unless perhaps the learned Members opposite begin to sing Time for Change! Just over 10 years later, Labour MP Ron Brown picked up the 80 ceremonial Mace and smashed it to the floor in protest of the poll tax. Again, I have not read any indication of a poll tax on the Order Paper, so Members can rest assured that I shall not threaten them with a Mace duel!

This Mace lies before us in the middle of this place, occupying the space between the Government and Opposition benches. This Parliament can often appear to be a place of 85 frustration and division to levels that are deemed unnecessary by some of our bosses, the people of Gibraltar. Let the presentation of the new Mace be a symbolic reminder of our duties as Members of this House: the steadfast defence of Gibraltar's interests both inside and outside the House; upholding the values of equality, justice and tolerance; and always working together in a constructive manner for the benefit of the entire community.

90 Thank you.

PAPERS TO BE LAID

Clerk: (iv) Petitions; (v) Announcements. (vi) Papers to be laid – the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the table the Annual Report of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority for the year ended 31st March 2017.

Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

I myself have the honour to report that, in accordance with Standing Order 12(3), the Ombudsman's Annual Report for the year ending 31st December 2016 has been submitted to Parliament and I now rule that it has been laid on the table.

Gibraltar aid to British Overseas Territories in the Caribbean

100

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I want to start today's proceedings by pausing for a moment to address the damage done to the British Overseas Territories in the Caribbean 105 by Hurricane Irma. In doing so, we will not want to ignore in this House the damage done to the rest of the nations in the Caribbean that have suffered devastation in the storm, and indeed to the United States.

The destruction of some of the British islands has been unprecedented. We have all seen on our television screens those terrible images. A new challenge now arises in order to keep the 110 people of the BVI, Turks and Caicos and Anguilla safe and healthy. A relief effort has already been launched by air from London and a lot of the immediately necessary supplies are being flown into the region. In addition, the fleet flagship of the Royal Navy HMS Ocean has been deployed, as hon. Members will know. Ocean's tasking has changed from a Mediterranean one to an Atlantic one. For the Royal Navy the perfect staging post for such a rerouting has, for over 115 300 years, been Gibraltar, and for that reason last weekend we saw HMS Diamond and HMS Ocean passing the baton of their respective taskings between them here in Gibraltar, the home of the Royal Navy in the Mediterranean.

Mr Speaker, the people of the Overseas Territories enjoy a singular partnership. We meet and collaborate regularly in a political group known as the UKOTA, the United Kingdom Overseas Territories Association. We also meet regularly together with UK Ministers as a Joint Ministerial Council each year in London, and before that at a pre-JMC meeting in preparation for that annual event. There are many similarities in the constitutional issues facing all the Overseas Territories. We may be at different stages in our constitutional development in some respects and there are many differences between us also, but the similarities make us kin in many respects.

Mr Speaker, many will recall that the pre-JMC meeting of UKOTA was held in Gibraltar in 2014 and I have a close relationship, together with the Deputy Chief Minister and the Minister for the Environment, with many of the chief ministers and premiers of the OTs and have been in touch with those who have suffered the worst of the devastation through their London representatives in the past days. The Captain of HMS Ocean and the governments of the Overseas Territories have been very clear in their praise for the donations that the people of Gibraltar have been able to make at short notice in respect of the call for support for these territories.

The work to be done now in these territories is reconstruction work. For that reason, through the Housing Works Agency, particularly with the collaboration of the Minister for Housing, Miss Sacramento, and GJBS, we have supplied all building materials that were surplus to our immediate requirements to go aboard Ocean to these territories in the Caribbean. That amounted to 14 pallets of building materials. The Gibraltar Health Authority, with the assistance of the Hon. Minister for Health, Mr Costa, has been able to supply 12 pallets of much needed medical supplies. We have also been able to supply 10 Ssangyong 4x4 pickup trucks, and, given the nature of the terrain to be negotiated whilst the reconstruction effort is underway, I am told that these are going to be very welcome indeed. Indeed, the Captain of HMS Ocean was emphatic when he told me that they were going to be the last thing into Ocean's massive hold as they would likely be the first thing out.

The donations made from Gibraltar by entities beyond the Government have been no less generous. Today, Mike Walliker, the Commander of British Forces in Gibraltar, set out the full list of additional materials provided in a letter of thanks to the people of Gibraltar published in Panorama. In addition to the donations from the Government of Gibraltar, Morrisons matched the purchases of the MoD with a donation of their own. All of Gibraltar's other merchants offered significant discounts to Ocean as she purchased much needed items to take to the Caribbean. Monsignor Paul Bear and Frank Bado organised the delivery of four pallets of clothes, including new clothing donated by the management of Marks and Spencer. The First 4th Gibraltar Scouts Group donated 16 pallets of clothes and some mobile phones. Portman Ltd sourced Ocean's last-minute requirements. Nats, Gib Air, Gib Oil and the AFRS supported at the airfield. Locally employed civilians from across the MoD worked tirelessly at short notice to achieve the turnaround that Ocean needed in order to get going quickly to the Caribbean, and Interserve, Gib Dock, Customs, the Royal Gibraltar Police, the Royal Gibraltar Regiment, the GDP and DGS enabled the logistics effort to progress everything as smoothly as it did. The St John Ambulance Association was also very helpful. Of course, Mr Speaker, that list will not be exhaustive and there will be many more who have helped and who we have left out in the list that the Commander of British Forces sent to Panorama in his letter and that I have set out here today.

Mr Speaker, Gibraltar has, as usual, been done proud by the efforts of its people to assist others in their time of need and has of course once again displayed the strategic significance of Gibraltar for the Royal Navy whenever it needs to quickly rearrange a tasking.

The work to be done in the Overseas Territories of the Caribbean is not immediate work; it is work that is going to take many months indeed, in some instances years, and if there is anything else that Gibraltar can do in this immediate hour of need of the British people of the British 170 Overseas Territories in the Caribbean, I am sure we will not be found wanting. (Banging on desks)

Questions for Oral Answer

HOUSING AND EQUALITY

Q451/2017

Government rental housing estates – Identified allocated parking

175 Clerk: (viii) We now proceed to Answers to Oral Questions. We commence with Question 451/2017. The questioner is the Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise for which Government rental housing estates tenancy agreements include identified allocated parking?

180 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, Edinburgh Estate, Chilton Court, Mid-Harbours Estate and the elderly flats at Sir William Jackson Grove.

185 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for her answer.

In the case where there are tenants with arrears, they enter into arrears agreements and they actually have allocated parking in their tenancy agreements, does she consider it correct that they should have their parking revoked when they have entered into an arrears agreement and are currently up to date on their rent payments?

190

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, before I answer the supplementary, I wish to remind the Members opposite of their premise when we commenced the exercise on the recovery of arrears, where they were actually encouraging us to evict people from their homes. So let me start off by reminding them of that, where they were asking whether we would be evicting people and indeed encouraging us to do so.

195

The answer to the supplementary question is yes, because the policy of the Government is that people who are in arrears should not be entitled to benefits which are seen as luxuries. The distinction is drawn between someone's dwelling and everything else – everything else being parking, on the basis that one can afford a car and therefore one should be able to afford a parking space, sheds or berths for boats in the small boats marina.

200

A separate issue is whether in certain estates parking spaces are included in tenancy agreements. In the case where they are included in the tenancy agreement it is very simple. Because the starting point is that the tenancy agreement has been breached by failure to provide rent on a timely basis as is stipulated contractually, and the ultimate power that the Housing Department has is to evict the person, which we do not – which they would want to, but we do not – then what we do is we sever the issues so that the action taken is in line with the policy of Government.

205

The policy of the Government is that we are not going to evict somebody for failure to pay rent, because that would only cause problems for the person, the family and ultimately 210 everybody else, but someone is not paying the rent on their house, therefore their parking as well, so the Government's policy is that anything beyond the tenancy will not be entertained.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if I can just pause on her last words 'anything beyond the tenancy will not be entertained', in this case does she not accept that these tenancy agreements actually include parking, and if the Government has entered into an arrears agreement and is 215 accepting rent in future at the same rate as they were before, which included the parking, therefore the tenant will not be in breach?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, because they are in breach of the tenancy agreement and therefore the action taken by the Government is as a result of the breach of the 220 tenancy agreement and the breach continues. An arrears agreement is a completely separate matter. The arrears agreement is in relation to the payment of arrears. The policy is in relation to not evicting a person from their dwelling.

On the basis of what was said, I think, on the last occasion of Parliament, where, as I recall, everybody in the Chamber was in agreement on the general principle that if somebody can 225 afford to run a car and pay for the purchase of the car, its petrol, its insurance and its maintenance costs, then surely ... The amount of average rent in Gibraltar for Government tenancies is between £30 and £60 a month, and on that basis the policy decision was taken that if people can afford to run a car, which is a luxury, they can surely afford to pay their rent, and people cannot be subsidised by the rest of the taxpayers and all the other tenants who do pay 230 their rent on time and people who have mortgages and pay their mortgages on time and everybody who is a taxpayer, because somebody owns a car but does not want to pay their rent.

Mr Speaker, we have been through this before. We discussed it at length at the last session and everybody was in agreement.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, the reason I have asked this specific question, for the 235 Minister's information, is that we have come across actual instances where people are in arrears, are paying their arrears, are paying their current rent in future by direct debit, by agreement with the Government, and yet are being denied the use of their parking space which is in their tenancy agreement.

You have to distinguish these particular cases – and it is just an entirely factual question –
240 from other estates, where there are no such allocated parking facilities, such as Laguna or Glacis or anything else. Do not get me wrong, Mr Speaker, it is not that we are against the Government collecting arrears, I do not think. All I am asking is in these particular instances where the tenancy agreement actually included an allocated parking space, from the correspondence I have seen there has been no indication that the tenancy has been revoked or any particular 245 notice has been given to the tenant that their agreement has been revoked for a reason. They have entered in good faith with an arrears agreement prior to, may I say, the policy of collection at the moment revoking parking spaces, and now suddenly they are being told, 'Yes, we did say you had an allocated parking space; yes, you have entered into an arrears agreement; yes, you are up to date on your current rent; but no, you cannot have your parking space.' I am just trying 250 to understand what process the Government followed for these particular estates where the tenant actually has, from what I gather, a right to the use of that parking space.

Again, Mr Speaker, it is not that I have any particular issue with the collection of arrears; it is just in these particular instances where the tenant has the parking space included in their 255 tenancy agreement, what is the Government doing in respect of these?

I hear a sigh from across the floor, but if you are going to remove the parking space from these tenants where they are in arrears and are paying arrears in good faith, surely then you are going to adjust their rent downwards because now they no longer have a parking space which is associated with their tenancy, which they are paying for now.

260 It is a very simple question: has the Government gone through any particular process with these estates different to the others? Have they been sent any additional correspondence different to the others in the sense that these actually in their agreements have allocated parking? It is as simple as that. I am not going into the issues of collection of arrears or anything else, as these particular estates ... What has the Government done different as regards the other estates in respect of those parking spaces? That is all.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, because the hon. Gentleman wants, of course, to run with the hares and hunt with the hounds.

Mr Speaker, there is no such thing, I think, as to entering into an arrears agreement in good faith. You enter into an arrears agreement because you have breached your original agreement, which was to pay rent for a roof over your head. So, if we are going to take about good faith and bad faith, then the starting point is that anybody in arrears has already acted in bad faith by not paying their contractual rent. That is one point, but, from everything that we have heard from the hon. Gentleman, what I think is the point he is trying to make is that people whose parking is included in the tenancy are somehow treated differently to other people in other estates whose parking is not included in the tenancy. If that is the hon. Gentleman's concern, then he can rest assured that there is no differential treatment, because in estates where the parking is not tied into the tenancy, people still need a permit to park in the estate, and if the person is in arrears they will not be granted a permit. So, if that is the question that the hon. Gentleman is asking, then he can rest assured that nobody who is in arrears will be able to avail themselves of the luxury of parking their car – which they can afford, but they cannot afford the rent – in a parking space, because they cannot do it in an estate where they have a tenancy agreement for the parking space or in other estates where they need a parking permit to do so.

So there is absolutely no distinction, Mr Speaker. The policy of the Government is that unless there are exceptional circumstances – such as people who may have disabilities or have a genuine reason for the use of the parking space for a vehicle or have a genuine reason for being in arrears, such as exceptional hardship – then everybody is, he can rest assured that everybody is being treated the same.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I? I rise because the hon. Gentleman, the Leader of the Opposition, brought me into several meetings where this particular issue has arisen, and I would ask the hon. Lady if she is prepared to take advice on this point: that the key issue here is whether somebody is in breach of the tenancy agreement. That is the key issue. If they are in breach of the tenancy agreement then the hon. Lady's rationale follows through and is sound. But if somebody is in breach of their tenancy agreement and then that breach is effectively ... and that dispute is compromised in an arrears agreement because the Government agrees to take x amount by way of arrears, that effectively means that that person, as long as he or she keeps to the arrears agreement, is not in breach of the tenancy. If that person is not in breach of the tenancy, then it is not open for the Government to effectively, as a matter of law, for the Government to then say, 'Well, actually, what I am doing is I am distinguishing between the tenancy and the parking,' because on these estates the parking is part of the tenancy. That is the point and I would just simply invite the hon. Lady to perhaps focus on that point and that ought to provide the hon. Lady with the answer.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I perfectly understand the point that the hon. Gentleman is trying to make, but the hon. Gentleman also needs to understand that by virtue of the breach ... The hon. Gentleman, unlike the Hon. Mr Clinton, is taking a legal approach to this matter, and funnily enough, only an hour ago we were debating in my office the difference in approach by lawyers and accountants, so it is quite funny that we are having this as the first question this afternoon. But in any event, the Hon. Mr Feetham is taking a purely legal approach to this, and therefore the purely legal answer to that is very simple. By virtue of the breach of the original agreement, the Housing Department is perfectly entitled to stop that agreement, sever the agreement, between the dwelling and parking, so we would end up with the same net effect of what we are actually doing now.

315

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q452/2017

Government housing tenants – Employment status

320

Clerk: Question 452. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm the number of Government housing tenants currently employed in (a) the public sector, (b) the private sector; and (c) unemployed?

325

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

330

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, this is not information that the Housing Department holds. For the Government to provide the answer would require a major administrative exercise and it is not possible to undertake that in the time allowed; and it would, in any event, require a disproportionate amount of resources.

Q453/2017

Government rental housing – Refurbishment of interiors

Clerk: Question 453. The Hon. L F Llamas.

335

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to refurbish the interior of Government rental stock in Moorish Castle Estate, Laguna Estate and Glacis Estate as it has done with Rodney House?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

340

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Yes, Mr Speaker.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the hon. Member have a time line as to when these works will be completed in each block in each phase?

345

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, but I do not have it on me. This is part of the ongoing refurbishment programme of the estates, so once the refurbishment is complete it means that everything has been completed, the external works and the internal works.

Q454/2017
Housing waiting list –
Pre-December 2011 applicants

Clerk: Question 454. The Hon. L F Llamas.

350 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of how many people were on the housing waiting list prior to 8th December 2011 who are yet not legally owners or proprietors of a property, including (a) the year the application was accepted and (b) the number of rooms required?

355 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Housing Department holds a waiting list for Government rental stock. It is not a waiting list for legal ownership of property.

360 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, the Government obviously, when they announced the affordable housing, were basing the applications for the affordable housing on those who were on the waiting list. So is the hon. Member able to tell us how many people are still on that waiting list, prior to them coming to Government in 2011, who have yet not either been able to purchase through the private sector affordable housing, or been given a Government rental?

365 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, it is a different question, because there may be people who were on the Government waiting list who purchased, because not everybody purchases, and the affordable housing estates. The hon. Gentleman is asking me for a list of apples when I only hold the list of pears. It is not that I am not trying to be helpful to the hon. Gentleman, but the question that he is asking me is not an answer that the Housing Department will have, because people are free to purchase property on the open market if they wish to.

370 Hon. L F Llamas: But surely those who have purchased on the open market will no longer appear on the housing waiting list. Right?

375 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, it is the formulation of the question that does not get the hon. Gentleman to the answer that he wants. By way of the supplementary that he made, now I have maybe a better idea of the answer that he wanted, so perhaps if the hon. Gentleman is more concise in the way that he formulates the question then I may be able to provide him with the information that he wants, but at this stage the hon. Gentleman is asking me what the waiting list for ownership is. Well, I do not know, Mr Speaker, because it is not information that I could know or could reasonably know. It is just data that is impossible to reliably have.

CULTURE, THE MEDIA, YOUTH AND SPORT

Q412-413/2017
Victoria Stadium –
Payments received; lease

385 Clerk: We now proceed to Question 412 and the questioner is the Hon. R M Clinton.

390 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, what payments has the Government received in the period 30th March 2017 to 31st August 2017 in respect of the announced sale of Victoria Stadium to the Gibraltar Football Association on 18th April 2017?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 413.

Clerk: Question 413. The Hon. R M Clinton.

395 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise if it has signed a lease for the sale of the Victoria Stadium to the Gibraltar Football Association; and, if so, what are the terms of that lease and the counterparties?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

400 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the lease has, as yet, not been signed.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, that was obviously not the answer I was expecting.

405 Mr Speaker: If you ask a question you should always know what the answer is going to be. (Laughter)

Hon. R M Clinton: Well, not this one, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) Unfortunately, I am not a lawyer, but there you go! (Laughter)

410 Mr Speaker, given that some time has elapsed since the announcement on 18th April, is the Minister confident that the original terms will be met as announced at that date – namely, two payments of £5 million in the financial year 2017-18 and one payment of £6.5 million in the financial year 2018-19? Does he have an idea when the lease will be signed and who the counterparties will be? And how does this affect the development of the Victoria Stadium, which is meant to be a £15 million investment by the GFA?

415 Thank you, Mr Speaker.

420 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, as to his former question, absolutely. As to his second question, well, if they are going to do the investment, it is up to the GFA – he should ask those questions to the GFA.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, would the Minister be able to identify who the counterparties to the lease agreement will be?

425 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if a lease has not yet been signed, then it is not possible to tell the House anything other beyond speculation as to who the parties may be. One of the things that may happen is that the GFA may decide to use what is known as an SPV, a special purpose vehicle, for the purposes of being the asset-holding company that they designate. The hon. Gentleman is asking us to speculate, and that is not a good basis on which to ask parliamentary questions.

430 I should just say, Mr Speaker, that one of the things that he has asked in his main question and which he has repeated is for an indication of the terms of the lease. Well, Mr Speaker, the lease is a public document and he can obtain a copy of it, and he should not seek that a Minister stand here and read him a public document.

435 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am perfectly aware of the rule and, as the Chief Minister will by now know, I do do my homework and I did go to LPS – and there is no lease, as he knows, because no lease has been filed because, as he just said, there is no lease. Therefore – (Interjection by Mr Speaker) I beg your pardon?

440 Hon. S E Linares: You didn't even know about it five minutes ago?

Hon. R M Clinton: No, but it is entirely possible, as the lawyers in the House will tell us, that leases can be signed and not yet have been filed at LPS. There can be delays, which is why I tabled the question. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

445 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I know that he pretends to do his homework but I also know that he does not like the Rules of the House, which say that if a document is a public document he obtains it when it becomes public.

Mr Speaker, it would be impossible for anybody to persuade me that it is proper to ask a Minister to come here to read out a lease, even if a lease has been signed on a Tuesday, we have House on the Thursday and it becomes public on the Friday because that is the date that it is registered.

450 What the hon. Gentleman is doing is not his homework; what the hon. Gentleman is doing is trying to pretend to be the class pet or the class swat to ask questions just for the sake of asking them, when he knows that the information is going to be publicly available. He does it in relation to accounts of companies which are filed in Companies House. He does it in relation to other public information, just for the sake of saying 'I am asking questions about things' and is constantly asking us to provide him with courtesy copies in this House of things that are public and things that are on websites. Mr Speaker, that is not the right way to employ the resources of Government. It may be the right way for him to employ his resources and to get off his homework and do some homework.

460 I say that, Mr Speaker, wishing him, of course, the very best on this happy day for him when he reaches his first half century.

465 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q414/2017
Beach evening market –
Reason for absence this year

Clerk: Question 414. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the beach evening market was not carried out this year?

470 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the reason for not repeating the excellent beach evening market idea introduced by us last year was because we introduced the new Summer Nights programme, 'Summer Nights on Tour'. Therefore, it was felt that this would duplicate matters. Next year, Summer Nights could well be extended and both events combined. We will take the question as a positive comment from the hon. Member in respect of the beach market initiative and thank him for it.

Q415/2017
Bars and clubs –
Entertainment licences

Clerk: Question 415. The Hon. L F Llamas.

480

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government considering extending the nocturnal hours on entertainment licences for bars and clubs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

485

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

Q416-418/2017
Gibraltar Music Festival –
Payments to organisers; contract with organisers; tender arrangements

Clerk: Question 416. The Hon. L F Llamas.

490

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state how much the Government will be paying the organisers of the Music Festival this year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

495

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 417 and 418.

Clerk: Question 417. The Hon. L F Llamas.

500

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose the contract between the Government and the organisers of this year's Music Festival?

Clerk: Question 418. The Hon. L F Llamas.

505

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why it did not go out to tender for the organisation of the Music Festival 2017, and whether it will be going out to tender in the future?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

510

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, in answer to Question 416, as I have previously indicated, the cost information is not yet available since invoices will be paid during the full course of this financial year. As always, the final costs are expected to be available in time for completion of the draft Estimates Book and will be debated by this House during the Budget session in 2018.

515

In answer to Question 417, HM Government does not have a single contract with one entity since there are various parts to the organisation of an event such as the MTV Gibraltar Calling. All these contracts are commercially sensitive, given the nature of the music industry.

In answer to Question 418, HM Government did not tender for the provision of services in 2012. It did so in 2013 in order to have continuity over a defined period and to give other event

520 organisers the opportunity to apply. In 2016, which was the end of the term of the four-year contract with the previous organisers, it was decided by Government that in order to move the Gibraltar Music Festival to the next level we needed to work alongside a major media partner.
There could be no better international media partner than MTV for the organisation, branding and distribution of the Gibraltar event. Contacts had been established with MTV and it was then 525 that MTV entered into direct negotiations to produce and brand the hugely successful MTV Gibraltar Calling Festival of 2017.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Minister not able to at least provide a basic figure of what the value of the contracts entered into with third parties for the organisation of the event?

530 Hon. S E Linares: No, sir; I have just explained why.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if it is of assistance, what the hon. Gentleman does have is that he has the cost in the Estimates Book and he is going to get the final cost in the 535 Estimates Book, so he has that number. That number is going to be publicly available. He cannot have the breakdown of what goes to whom, because that is what is commercially sensitive. I do not think we have any problem whatsoever with sharing it with him if he wants, and any other Member if they want, but it is not something that can be made public, because of the commercial sensitivity. So he can have the breakdown on an undertaking not to share it with commercial 540 entities that may be interested in undercutting others etc.

Q419/2017
Queen's Cinema –
Current status and future plans

Clerk: Question 419. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can the Minister for Culture give some information on the current status and future plans for the Queen's Cinema?

545 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, HM Government is currently considering a number of commercial proposals which include a 550 conference/theatre hall for the Queen's Cinema and Queen's Hotel sites.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q420/2017
Lathbury and Europa Point sports complexes –
Fairness of tender process

Clerk: Question 420. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

555 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can the Minister for Sport confirm whether Government will be following a fair tender process when allocating the necessary work required to build the sports complexes at Lathbury and Europa Point?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

560 Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, HM Government always follows a fair tender process when it is required. This has been the case with the building of the magnificent sporting complexes at both Lathbury and Europa Point.

565 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can the Minister give us some information as to when these tenders will be coming out?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the tenders came out, the tenders have been processed and we are at the stage now when one of the successful companies will be informed and start work immediately.

570 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can I return to the question about the Queen's Cinema?

575 Mr Speaker: Yes, indeed.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just on this question of the Queen's Cinema, the Government in 2013 announced some plans for the use of the Queen's Cinema in terms of theatre and other uses. Is it that the Government has abandoned those plans, or is it that the Government is looking at different plans? And can the Government explain why the delay in the development of Queen's Cinema, given the fact that those plans were announced as far back ...
580 My recollection was 2013, but I will be corrected, if I am wrong, by the Hon. Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I do enjoy being encouraged to do the things that the hon. Members opposite say that we should not be doing because we cannot afford them.
585

The Government has been approached by a number of third parties on an unsolicited basis to seek to have the redevelopment of that site include the theatre but with the provision of other facilities above and around the theatre. The hon. Gentleman knows that we do not just enjoy the benefit of ownership now of the old Queen's Cinema but also of the old Queen's Hotel, which provides a larger plot. Really, on an unsolicited basis we have received a number of proposals, all of which are interesting and it is our obligation to consider carefully and then to determine how we decide what to do in the context of that theatre and the proposals that we have received, and whether – given that we have received unsolicited proposals which are very succulent, if I can put it that way, and still provide the theatre – whether we should perhaps go to a public expressions of interest procedure in respect of that site. That might be more beneficial to the taxpayer and would deliver the theatre too.
590

We are in negotiations with some of those who have approached us. Some of them represent entities from beyond Gibraltar and therefore negotiations are not face to face and quick, but they are potentially very attractive and they do nonetheless deliver the theatre project announced in 2013 and then set out in more detail in the magnificent manifesto – in fact, the only manifesto – in the 2015 General Election.

TOURISM, EMPLOYMENT, COMMERCIAL AVIATION AND THE PORT

Q421-424/2017

Monthly visitors to Gibraltar – Breakdown by land, sea and air

Clerk: Question 421. The Hon. T N Hammond.

605 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what are the monthly visitor totals to Gibraltar from January to June of this year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

610 Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 422, 423 and 424.

Clerk: Question 422. The Hon. T N Hammond.

615 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what are the monthly visitor totals to Gibraltar by land from January to June of this year?

Clerk: Question 423. The Hon. T N Hammond.

620 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what are the monthly visitor totals to Gibraltar by sea from January to June of this year?

Clerk: Question 424. The Hon. T N Hammond.

625 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what are the monthly visitor totals to Gibraltar by air from January to June of this year?

630 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Gentleman is contained in the schedule being handed over to him now.

Answer to Question 424/2017

Total visitors arriving in Gibraltar in 2017 is as follows:

Month	Air	Sea	Land
January	12,406	919	676,555
February	15,421	609	718,653
March	19,283	10,227	776,988
April	24,457	40,965	696,403
May	25,812	66,638	830,927
June	24,612	38,406	823,550

Q425/2017
Employment Service –
Notices of vacancies, terms of engagement and termination filed

Clerk: Question 425. The Hon. E J Phillips.

640 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government state the total number of (i) notice of vacancies, (ii) notice of terms of engagement, excluding variations, and (iii) notice of terminations filed at the Employment Service from December 2011 to date.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

645

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, this question is identical to one asked by the Hon. Mr Phillips at the last meeting of Parliament.

650 The statistics for the period December 2011 to the end of May 2017 were provided to the hon. Gentleman already in reply to Question W92/2017.

The figures for the period June to August 2017 are as follows: vacancies, 2,922; terms of engagement, 3,223; and termination, 3,292.

Mr Speaker: Any supplementary?

Hon. T N Hammond: Just returning to these questions and just for my clarification, I asked four questions and I definitely have the answer to three. Can I just confirm with the Minister that if I add the totals here I will get the answer to Question 421 and that there is not another sector that I have missed out somehow – I will have the total totals?

660

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I was expecting that particular supplementary from the hon. Member. I did not know whether it was a trick question, because he asked for visitor arrivals by air, by land and by sea and then he asked separately for all of them. So he has been given by air, land and sea and all he has to do is put them all together. I do not believe visitors arrive in Gibraltar other than by air, land or sea.

Q426/2017
Port rescue launch –
Recruitment

Clerk: Question 426. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise if the under-manning issue surrounding the Port rescue launch and the Gibraltar Port Authority has been resolved, and what were the matters concerning the recruitment of a seaman/mechanic vacancy that required the filling of this post to be considered by the full Cabinet?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I have already alerted my hon. Friend to what part of the answer to this question is going to be.

The vacant post of seaman/mechanic was filled on 7th August 2017. This brought the Port launch to full manning levels. The matter concerning the recruitment for this post, which was considered by the Cabinet, cannot be disclosed for data protection reasons. I am, however, happy to brief the hon. Member on this behind Mr Speaker's chair.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q427/2017
Gibraltar Port Authority –
Under-manning

Clerk: Question 427. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state, since December 2011, on how many occasions has the Gibraltar Port Authority functioned with two crewmen as opposed to three?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, since December 2011 the Port launch has operated with two crewmen on two separate occasions, both being vessel recovery operations.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. Minister have the dates that those two occasions have been?

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, 11th April 2017 and 13th July 2017.

Q428/2017

Maxi Priest video and song – Government involvement re finance and production

Clerk: Question 428. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details, if any, of its involvement in financing and producing the Maxi Priest video and song?

705

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Gibraltar Tourist Board contributed the following to the financing and production of the video and song: flights for Maxi Priest, £248; accommodation for Maxi Priest, £300; production of music video, £6,775. This has proved to be excellent value for money.

Since it was posted at 10.30 a.m. on 3rd August, the video has been viewed more than 155,000 times. Many of these are unique viewers, meaning users who have watched the video once. A quarter of the video's watch time was from the United Kingdom; however, it has been watched on Facebook by Facebook users from as far away as New York, California and Ontario. Maxi Priest has since shared the original post on his own page. Overall, the post has been shared over 2,300 times, an online action that is at the centre of Visit Gibraltar's marketing strategy.

715

The long-term impact is tangible, as the video has directly resulted in an increase of 220 followers on the Visit Gibraltar Facebook page and 150 followers on HM Government of Gibraltar's Facebook page. This represents a new, extended and permanent audience for all other marketing, messaging and tourist information posted to both these pages in the future.

720

Mr Speaker: Before we carry on, I am going to allow the Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon to raise a supplementary on questions relating to the MTV festival.

725

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Yes, it does, so perhaps the Hon. Minister for Culture should be here – I think he may have popped out. Oh, here he is.

Mr Speaker, if I may just pick up on the question by the Hon. Lawrence Llamas at Question 418, when the Chief Minister explained that the opportunity was too good to miss and the branding of MTV was going to give us something unrivalled and all this. Why was it that, for example ... perhaps the same organisers of previous years of GMF could have taken the organising of the festival. When Neon Angel stepped in instead of MTV, the layer of Neon Angel, why couldn't that have been kept by the previous organisers?

735

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Well, first of all, it was MTV's decision, not ours, and therefore we were quite satisfied that Neon Angel were also going to engage – and they did – with the previous organisers, so therefore there was not quite a problem in that Neon Angel, which were assigned by MTV ... and when I was negotiating with MTV and Neon Angel we made sure that the organisers who had previously done the GMF were going to be involved, and that has been the case.

740

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Was there no interest for Gibraltar Government to keep to retain the previous organisers, who had done such a good job, and perhaps ...?

745

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, just for the purposes of clarity and understanding, the previous organisers were involved this year. The previous organisers have done a lot of the organisation this year. If the hon. Lady knows the characters, they have actually 750 been backstage most of the time. They have been people with whom Neon Angel and we have been liaising and with whom MTV have been liaising as well.

MTV organise it like they organise it and there is a reason for that, and it is a well-practised manner of organisation of festivals that they have. That does not mean that there is not a role for people from Gibraltar who have been involved in the past and who have specific local knowledge, understanding and expertise that they bring to the equation. Nobody can praise the former organisers more than the Government. The Government gave the former organisers the opportunity to organise from 2012 before it went to tender. It went to tender afterwards and they got it. They have done a magnificent job of organising the Gibraltar Music Festival, but to reach the international audience that we wanted to reach MTV was required and MTV does things the way it does things in the hundreds of festivals that it organises around the world. But the names of individuals who are involved in organising are very much the people who were also involved through Neon Angel and through MTV in the actual organisation of this year when it came to contracting scaffolding, stages etc., with different opportunities also arising for them as a result of the contacts that MTV and Neon Angel could bring and the lower costs that they are able to provide because of their wider reach in the market.

765 But if the hon. Lady is saying, 'Could you, Government, have done anything to get MTV to organise the MTV Gibraltar Calling International Music Festival with the three guys who organised the GMF?' the answer is we could not have done more, and therefore they were very involved.

770 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Thank you for that. Can I ask, if I may, is it looking like the Government will want to continue this pattern of working with MTV in future years?

775 Hon. S E Linares: Absolutely. It has been a great success and we are looking to even do more with MTV, not only Gibraltar Calling but many other things that we are in negotiations and talking with them about, which will be of huge benefit to Gibraltar. This is a partner that has millions of viewers. And it is not only MTV, Mr Speaker. I must emphasise that it is Viacom. Viacom is a huge company which owns VH2, it owns all the MTVs, Nickelodeon, Channel 5. There is a lot that we can do with them, so I am quite pleased to continue that relationship, Mr Speaker.

780 Mr Speaker: Next question.

INFRASTRUCTURE AND PLANNING

Q429 and 437/2017 Upper Town escalator – Breakdowns and costs of repair

Clerk: Question 429. The Hon. T N Hammond.

785 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, since 1st May 2016, on how many occasions has the Upper Town escalator been unserviceable, and for each occasion for how long was it broken?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 437.

Clerk: Question 437. The Hon. L F Llamas.

790

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a breakdown of the periods of time the escalators to the Upper Town have been out of use and the cost of repair on each occasion since they were installed?

795

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is in the schedule that I will hand over now.

800

Mr Speaker: It is a fairly lengthy and detailed schedule. I think we will move on with other questions and I am going to allow hon. Members to raise any matters in supplementaries after they have perused the schedule. Okay? Next question.

810

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Questions 196/2016 and 232/2017, can the Government say what progress it has made regarding the introduction of no idling signs, particularly in areas which were suggested by the Minister as 'hot spots' last time this question was asked, the Frontier and parts of the Upper Rock?

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Lawrence Llamas has a supplementary arising from Question 437.

860 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, looking at the schedule given by the Hon. Minister, I recall earlier in summer, in June of this year, 2017, and later on, a month later in July, in the press, two stories regarding the Upper Town escalators where the escalators were unserviceable, and I cannot seem to find these on the schedule handed over, as the last repairs were carried out in April 2017 and January 2017, respective of both. Can the Hon. Minister provide any schedules or details regarding this latest breakage in the escalators and whether or not they are actually fixed?

865 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes. Towards the end of May 2017 there were issues because of the torrential rains that Gibraltar suffered. That was the last time the escalator actually broke down. At the moment the repairs are about to commence because spares were required to be brought into Gibraltar especially, and, as I said, they are about to be repaired in the next weeks or so.

870 Hon. L F Llamas: So therefore, Mr Speaker, the escalators have been out of use since May 2017 and, despite assurances given in July 2017 that they were a couple of weeks away, they are still unserviceable and will be fixed within the next four or five weeks. Is that right?

875 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, because of the fact of the spares ... It is not a question of not wanting to repair them; the question is an issue of the spares, and the company which is responsible for the maintenance of the escalators, Schindler, have had to look for these spares that were required because the damage was quite extensive so quite a numerous quantity of spares were required to be able to bring the escalators back to condition.

880 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Trevor Hammond. Do you have any ... [Inaudible]

Hon. T N Hammond: No, I am happy to ...

885 Mr Speaker: You don't have any on 434?

Hon. L F Llamas: Does the Hon. Minister know the extent of the cost of repairing this damage will be, or is it still under negotiation?

890 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, the cost to repair both escalators will amount to £74,316.73. That is £51,237.18 for one of the escalators and £23,078.92 for the second escalator.

895 Hon. L F Llamas: Just one final supplementary, Mr Speaker. Given that obviously ... even though they are supposed to be exterior escalators and they should be able to withhold the weather, will the Government be investing in perhaps covering them up slightly or providing some form of shelter so that this expense is not incurred in the near future?

900 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, these escalators have been plagued with numerous issues and one of them was a lot of vandalism as well. In this last case what happened was that there were especially bad torrential rains. It was not the rain itself, the water is not the issue, the escalators can handle water without any problem; it is what the water brings with it. Unfortunately, it has dragged the silt, the sand and the debris, and that has been what has actually gone into the escalators and caused damage to the steps, and in fact shearing part of the mechanism away.

905 The escalators are designed to withstand the elements; it is just that the sheer volume of what is brought with the water that has caused the damage in this particular case.

The hon. Gentleman also asked the question whether anything is being looked at, and the answer is yes, we are looking at other ways of moving water to see if we can move water and channel it in a different direction, and in fact Technical Services is about to do some extra works 910 in the next couple of weeks to try to move water away from the escalator. But as I said, it is not the water, it is the debris that has caused the problem.

Hon. T N Hammond: Just regarding these latest works by Technical Services, which would seem to at least go some way to providing a solution to avoiding such extreme costs in the future, does the Minister have any idea what those works themselves may cost?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, no I have not got an idea of what those works would cost at the moment.

920 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, bearing in mind that the escalator has been now in position for ... well, certainly since about 2013, what is the anticipated lifespan of that escalator? Will we have to be replacing it in a year, in two years, in 10 years, or will we just be facing large bills to keep replacing parts on it year after year?

925 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, really it is a bit of an unknown. We do not know what damage is going to happen. If he had asked the question, perhaps I would have found out for him. I do not know how long it is envisaged escalators will last. I suppose they last as long as can be expected for these devices. Again, if the gentleman wants me to find out what the longevity expected is, I will find out. Other than that, it is impossible to say.

930

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q435-436/2017

Development and Planning Commission – Applications not complying with Gibraltar Development Plan

Clerk: Question 435. The Hon. D A Feetham.

935

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, since 2012, how many projects submitted for approval to the DPC have been granted planning permission in circumstances where the proposed project did not comply and/or was in breach of the Gibraltar Development Plan, identifying the project and the date the planning permission was granted?

940

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I shall answer this question together with Question 436/2017.

Clerk: Question 436. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, since 2012, how many Government projects submitted for advice and guidance to the DPC have been proceeded with despite the proposed project not complying with and/or being in breach of the Gibraltar Development Plan, identifying the project and the date advice was sought?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

955 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in determining planning applications, whether Government or otherwise, the DPC takes into consideration the contents of the Gibraltar Development Plan 2009, which contains numerous policies covering a wide variety of issues. The DPC will consider each application on its merits and will consider whether the proposal complies with relevant policies of the Plan and will also consider whether there are any other material planning considerations to be taken into account.

When considering the extent to which development proposals comply with relevant policies, professional judgement is used and the Town Planning Department advises the DPC accordingly. The DPC then considers all relevant factors before making a decision.

965 Non-compliance with Development Plan policy generally is normally one of the main reasons for the DPC refusing an application.

Having explained the context of how the Development Plan policies feed into the DPC decision-making process, the hon. Opposition Member will no doubt appreciate that it is not possible to provide a list of applications as requested in his question. To try and review the reasoning for every decision made by the Commission since 2012 would be an extremely 970 onerous task and would require significant professional staff resources to undertake and would divert resources from the day-to-day work of the Town Planning Department.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am asking a question – two questions, but certainly asking a question about one of the cornerstones of the Government’s policy in terms of openness, 975 transparency and in terms of the Government’s policy and changes that they themselves introduced in relation to how the planning process is conducted.

I could give the hon. Gentleman the benefit of the doubt and say perhaps – I do not agree, but perhaps – that is applicable to the first question. I do not agree with that, but perhaps. But the second question is about Government projects submitted for advice and guidance to the 980 DPC. And surely the Government, which has introduced this policy in the first place in order to improve openness and transparency in the process, would want to know how many of the applications or how many of the projects that it submitted for advice and guidance are projects that have not complied or are in breach of the Gibraltar Development Plan and that those are facts and that those statistics are available to the Government, and therefore that the 985 Government would be able to share them with this House and therefore with the people of Gibraltar, Mr Speaker.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I do not think that the hon. Gentleman has really understood what the nature of the reforms made after December 2011 was.

990 So just so he understands why his question, first of all, cannot be answered and, second, why he should not have posed it: before December 2011 the DPC met in private; there was no public access to its reasoning; after December 2011 the DPC meets in public; therefore the question he is asking is about something that is in the public domain. He can sit in the Mackintosh Hall and he can hear the Town Planner say, ‘In the context of this application there was a concern that 995 the Development Plan may be breached,’ or he can hear the development planner say, ‘In the context of this application, like every application filed by the Government, there was no breach of the Development Plan developed by the GSD, not the GSLP.’

So he is asking us, Mr Speaker, about things that happened in public. Mr Speaker, I understand that the hon. Gentleman has a busy practice and he cannot go to the Development 1000 and Planning Commission and sit there as he and I might wish in the later life to enjoy heckling those who might be making the applications, but he is asking about things that have transpired in public, and advice that has been tendered to the Government in public.

There is not a record – in other words, there is not a video – that is saved of that, as there is of the parliamentary proceedings. We cannot go back to it. There is written advice. There are 1005 hundreds of applications, Mr Speaker. There are minutes and it would be a question of going back to those – I think they are public too, they are online, Mr Speaker – and the hon.
Gentleman, if he wishes this information, can do his homework, go online, access the minutes of every meeting of the DPC since the glorious revolution of December 2011 and work it out for himself. But he is asking the Minister or someone in his Department to do that for him when it is 1010 available online.

The hon. Gentleman has risen and asked a question which has perked my interest too. Maybe in future we can just make a note in the event that the Government were ever to file an application itself that breaches the Town Plan or the development planners, it is today. I cannot recall any. Obviously, the hon. Gentleman cannot recall any, otherwise he would have raised 1015 that with us. But however much of a political geek I am, I assure him tonight I am not going to be going online onto all the minutes of the DPC to check the advice that has been tendered in public and recorded, and maintained in public by the Chairman of the DPC who is now the Town Planner.

1020 Can I just remind him, Mr Speaker, that as he led his party for that short period, in that time they took opposition to our reforms and they advised us at one stage to reverse the position and to go back into the manner that they operated the DPC, which was in private and without minutes in public and which would have elicited, had they asked the question of a GSLP Liberal Government that had maintained the GSD way of running the DPC, that is confidential. He is not getting the answer, 'It is confidential.' It is not statistics that is compiled, but he can compile it by 1025 going online and reading the now public minutes of the now public meetings of the Development and Planning Commission. (Banging on desks)

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, he says the short period of time that I was the Leader of the Opposition; I have to say it seemed like an eternity to me, but in any event!

1030 Mr Speaker, yes it is true that we had a different policy to the hon. Gentleman and yes it is true that when we were there these decisions were taken behind closed doors, but presumably they changed the policy and they opened DPC proceedings to the public in order to make it more open and more transparent.

1035 But let me just outline what the hon. Gentleman says so people understand him. What he is really saying is, 'I am refusing to provide you the answer of how many Government projects' – Government projects; those are the projects submitted by them to the DPC for advice and guidance – have been in breach of the Development Plan.' What they are saying is, 'Well, you go to every single DPC meeting. You look at the minutes of DPC meetings and you make your own findings in relation to that.' Mr Speaker, that, in my respectful view, is not the democratic, open, 1040 transparent way of doing things and, quite frankly, I would expect in a mature, open democracy – which presumably that is what the hon. Gentleman, certainly under his stewardship, would describe democracy in Gibraltar – that he, first of all, would have those statistics at his disposal, because those are important statistics, and that he would be able to share it with this House because that is the function of this Parliament in order for the Government to provide 1045 information that, quite frankly, is important.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, does he not agree that the answer that he has provided me is an answer that is not commensurate with the stated policy of his Government of openness and transparency in relation to the way these proceedings are conducted?

1050 Hon. Chief Minister: I never thought I would say this, Mr Speaker, but I do miss him. In his question, Alice has descended into the eighth circle of hell in Dante's Inferno, because he does not realise that the question he is asking is, with the very greatest of respect, utterly nonsensical; and it is nonsensical for a number of reasons.

1055 The word 'nonsense', Mr Speaker, means that what the speaker is alleging makes no sense. It makes no sense for this reason: he has accused us of not being transparent because of something that happened in public in broad daylight, and because of the record of that, which is available not just to every citizen of Gibraltar but to every citizen of the world on the worldwide web, 24 hours a day, on Christmas Day and on Jewish holidays – every single day of the year ...!

1060 The hon. Gentleman is saying to me that I lead a Government that is not transparent, not because the information is not public, not because the events recorded in the information did not happen in public, but because I, or one of the people employed receiving emoluments from the Crown, will not do the exercise for him of reading it all and making the list that he wants. That is not about an absence of maturity or democracy, or an absence of transparency; that is because of an absence of hard work on his part! It is because of an absence of his desire or 1065 ability to download the minutes, read them and determine whether the Town Planner has said in public these things; and why is that true as much of every project as it is of every Government project, Mr Speaker, because every Government project goes through that process.

At least, Mr Speaker, every Government project goes through that process now after the glorious revolution of 9th December 2011, because Government projects did not even go to the secret DPC in the old days. Government projects went to the Development and Planning Chair in which the former Chief Minister sat to determine what his Government did or did not do. It did not go through an environmental filter, it did not go through the DPC, it was not consulted on with Heritage or [inaudible] You found out in the press release, Mr Speaker, that the Government was going to do something and you had to make up your own mind from the press release and your own reading of the Development Plan whether it breached the Development Plan.

So, Mr Speaker, the hyperbole of the accusation that the Government is somehow not mature and not transparent does not stand up to a four-year-old's scrutiny, because the accusation is about something that happened in public and about a record of it that is in public. It is just about the collation of the information.

But, Mr Speaker, I may have said that he led for a short time, though it seemed like an eternity for him; perhaps it is that on this side of the House we were having so much fun with him as Leader of the Opposition that time just flew.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I?

Mr Speaker: Yes, one other supplementary.

Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much, Mr Speaker.

The analogy with Dante's Inferno, I am afraid, is more apposite to the way that the hon. Gentleman is insinuating, at times, the basic democratic principles and values in Gibraltar with some of the answers that he provides in this House and we have become accustomed to receiving across the floor of the House.

Mr Speaker, just so that I get it right, what the hon. Gentleman is saying – and I am asking him to confirm – is that he and his Government are simply not interested – not interested – in how many Government projects that have gone before the DPC for advice and guidance have been in breach of the Gibraltar Development Plan. Can he confirm that, because, quite frankly, that would be a most extraordinary state of affairs, it has to be said?

Hon. Chief Minister: He does test the limits of logic, Mr Speaker.

What is the basic democratic principle that is at stake here, because the hon. Gentleman has said that I am attacking basic democratic principles and he has attacked me for a lack of transparency? So which basic democratic principle of transparency is at stake in holding the meetings where the decisions the hon. Gentleman says he is interested in are made in public? Surely, the most basic understanding of transparency is to move something from behind a closed door to beyond a closed door, to the public arena. That is what we have done.

The hon. Gentleman says am I not interested, as Leader of the House and Leader of this Government, in knowing how many Government projects may have breached the Development Plan? I told him in an earlier Answer that he had perked my interest in that respect, but that I believed that there were none, Mr Speaker. If there is a Government project that has breached the Development Plan then advice in that respect, or notification in that respect, will be contained in the public minutes of the DPC meeting in which that project from the Government has been considered and all aspects of it determined.

So basic democratic principle number one, decisions should not be made behind closed doors where they can be made in the public domain: complied with after 9th December 2011, by taking the GSD's secret DPC and putting it in public. Basic democratic principle number two, records of meetings should be public where possible where it is not in the public interest that 1120 they should be otherwise confidential: complied with after 9th December 2011, in respect of minutes of those same DPC meetings.

Question from the former Leader of the Opposition: how many times have the DPC told you that a project breaches the Town Plan and how many times has the DPC told you that a Government project breaches the Town Plan? Answer to both: the information is available publicly online in the minutes of those now public meetings of the DPC and in the public record of those meetings, which includes the record of consideration of non-security sensitive Government projects.

I hope he now understands that the only basic issue at stake is his understanding of what is now public which was previously secret and which information is now available at his fingertips should he care to do the work. Therefore, Mr Speaker, all of the public in Gibraltar is able to know the answer to the questions he is asking and might even have known better than he has to ask a question about something that is already public.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1135

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, one supplementary? (Mr Speaker: On this?) On this. (Mr Speaker: Yes.)

Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm that it remains committed to sending and filing Government projects to the DPC for approval?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the answer to that question is that contrary to the advice of the former Chief Minister and contrary to the advice tendered by the party with whom he stood at the last general election, the Government remains committed to its policy to subject Government projects for guidance and advice to the Development and Planning Commission in its now public meetings, so that a public record can be maintained of the advice and guidance given to the Government in respect of each of those approaches.

1145

If I may say so, Mr Speaker, we have submitted to the DPC a number of projects which have resulted in guidance and advice from the DPC improving those projects and I am very happy that we failed to take the advice of the party that he no longer represents and that we have progressed that attitude of submission for guidance and advice of Government projects to date and will continue to do so.

1150

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can I just seek clarification from the Minister, reference Question 434, that the fixed penalty notices which I specifically asked for are the £100 fines, and whether he is aware, is that the sum total of parking penalties paid, or is it possible that that is just the fixed penalty notices and that there are another number of other regular parking tickets that may have been issued at a lower rate? Just to clarify that so I can understand whether this does represent a total of parking penalties at £100 or whether this is a mix of parking penalties or whether there is only one parking penalty now of £100?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware, this is a total amount of FPNs issued.

Hon. T N Hammond: Can I clarify that there are no other forms of fines for parking – it is only the fixed penalty notice now?

Hon. P J Balban: Parking fines are all fixed penalty notices, as far as I am aware.

Q438/2017
Chatham Counterguard –
Pedestrianisation at peak hours

Clerk: Question 438. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1170

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government considering pedestrianising Chatham Counterguard at peak hours?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1175

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): If the hon. Gentleman reminds me of the question number, because we have been back and forth on the Order Paper.

Mr Speaker: Number 438.

Hon. P J Balban: Number 438. Mr Speaker, Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar is currently considering various options for the area but no final decision has been made. There are many potential advantages from such a measure for the businesses in that area and their patrons. There are also many potential disadvantages for residents of the area of Irish Town, Main Street, Crutchett's Ramp, Ocean Heights etc.

1185

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q439/2017
Gibraltar International Airport –
Bus service

Clerk: Question 439. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1190

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to provide a bus service from Gibraltar International Airport?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1195

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, such a bus service is already provided.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, but as far as I am aware it is provided by a private company. I am asking whether the Government intends to provide a bus service which interacts and avoids having to have a service where people will have to swap providers and therefore purchase extra tickets.

1200

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the present bus service being provided actually goes quite a far distance; it goes all the way to Boyds Street, so it does cover a lot of Gibraltar. Normally in any city there is a requirement to change bus; no bus route will take you everywhere you want to go. So the service does amply provide for persons wishing to travel to other areas, and because the service is already being provided, be it so, by a private entity we do not feel at this moment in time there is a need to provide a route extension or an extra route with the Government bus service.

1205

Q440/2017
Calypso Transport Ltd –
Extension to route services and fleet

1210 Clerk: Question 440. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose the agreement reached with Calypso Transport Limited for the extension to their route services and fleet?

1215 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there has been no agreement reached by Calypso Transport Limited for the extension of their route services and fleet.

1220

Q441/2017
Rights for the disabled –
Stickers on municipal buses

Clerk: Question 441. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1225 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state the wording of the stickers removed from the municipal buses regarding rights for the disabled?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1230 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Yes, Mr Speaker, the sticker that the hon. Member is referring to concerning the use of the low floor seating area read as follows:

Important Passenger Notice

This is a priority area for wheelchair users and passengers travelling with prams.

This area operates on a first come, first served basis.

The bus driver has been instructed not to determine which of the eligible passengers is to use this area.

This sign will be replaced by:

Important Passenger Notice

This is a priority area for wheelchair users.

The bus driver has been instructed to require non-wheelchair passengers to vacate this area if required by a wheelchair user.

Q442/2017

Government-owned buses –

1235 Clerk: Question 442. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule of revenue collected by the Government-owned buses since December 2011?

1240 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is provided in the schedule that I will now hand over.

Q443/2017

South district parking at South Pavilion – Broken gate

1245 Clerk: Question 443. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state on which occasions the gate at the south district parking at South Pavilion has been broken and which company is responsible for its maintenance?

1250 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the exit gate to South Pavilion Car Park has been broken now since March 2017. Sheriff Electrical Contractors Ltd is the company responsible for the maintenance of the gate.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Hon. Minister know when the gate will be fixed or replaced and what the cost will be?

1260 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it was actually as a result of the cost that the works have not happened to date. When quotes were sought the cost was set out at £3,000.93, which was felt to be too expensive, so the company, Sheriff, was asked to come back with another solution, if possible.

1265 The other reason why we have not gone ahead with this is because as we are zoning the areas as we extend the residential parking scheme, one of the next residential parking schemes to take effect will be South District and the town centre. There may be a change in the use of this car park. Everything is being reviewed at the moment and if that were to go ahead then there may not be a need for such equipment at the entrance to the car park.

1270 Hon. L F Llamas: Does the Minister know, or can he give an inclination of, when the South District scheme may be coming into effect?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I would not like to risk committing to a date, but we are very advanced, in fact we actually move with both projects simultaneously – both the centre of town and South District. Really it is the case of whichever one is ready first.

1275 It is a lot of work involved in the mapping of the roads. We have to look at every single potential parking space; we have to see whether there are any areas that can be further developed to create extra parking spaces; we need to look at things like motorcycle parking spaces, disabled bays etc. So it is a very vast project which is difficult to put a finger on in terms of how long it will take to complete.

Q444/2017

Grand Parade –

Underground parking spaces

1280 Clerk: Question 444. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, has the Government considered alternative plans for providing further parking spaces at Grand Parade, such as going underground in accordance with the Gibraltar Development Plan 2009?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Yes, sir.

1290 Hon. L F Llamas: Is the Minister able to disclose its findings on these alternative projects?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, although it is technically possible to go underground at Grand Parade, if ground were to be broken we would have to see what is found underneath. The idea is to minimise disruption to the residents of the area and going underground will drastically increase, obviously, the time it is going to take to develop.

1295 If you look at the site itself you will notice that the Grand Parade is actually on a hill, so there is an element the car park will be partially underground. Towards the east side of the Parade itself is where the car park is highest and at that point the car park, I believe, is around a storey below ground level. So the project does include partial underground work, but it would not include, and it would not be considered to go, fully underground.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, has the Government costed the alternative of going underground versus the costing of building on top of Grand Parade?

1305 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the costs have been compared and it is a lot more expensive, clearly, to go underground and it is not something which we believe is feasible to do. So looking at all the options available to us, it is clear that this is the preferred option not only in terms of cost but in terms of disruption to the community, because the idea is to develop the car park in a way that is sensitive to the needs of the residents so they do not find themselves lacking in terms of parking for the duration of the works.

1310 So it is the best scheme that will mean that it will be done in stages to preserve the area and this is the best scheme that we have looked at.

Hon. L F Llamas: Is the Government able to disclose the comparison on each cost on going underground and above?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, absolutely not because the Government has not yet gone to tender to get somebody to develop this project for us. So we are not going to tell the hon. Gentleman what we think it costs because then we are going to be doing the taxpayer out of the advantage of competitive tendering in respect of this particular tender.

1320 But a lot of the work in respect of the economics of this project was done under the former administration and it was done also by a private entity, to such an extent, Mr Speaker, that there was no possibility of the project being viable without a public offering of bonds for the purposes of the public buying shares in this particular project to try to make it viable.

1325 That would mean also, Mr Speaker, that parking there would be very expensive indeed and that it would take a very long time indeed to develop the parking, and it will be very disruptive indeed. That is why the former administration did not start down the road of that development; that is why the private developer did not start down the road of that development; and further consideration of that macro-project underground would just mean that there is no development there whatsoever and the people who need parking in that part of Gibraltar, in particular at Alameda Estate, would be left without the benefit of having the parking that has been developed in many other residential areas in Gibraltar.

1330 So that is why the Government is committed to this project; that is why we think it is the right value for money; and that is why, Mr Speaker, we think it is exactly the right way to progress to proceed with this particular project now for that area.

1335 I must say, Mr Speaker, this is an area that has been tarmacked over for years and people now who do not live in the area seem to have fallen in love with that tarmac and do not want us to touch it.

1340 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, if I may, in light of the recent GBC report saying that Gibraltar has the highest amount of cars, has the Government thought about this in any way or decided to backtrack, perhaps, on more of these parkings? Are we not feeding these statistics and this culture and this way of life, which is obviously environmentally so unfriendly?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, there are many issues that follow on the Traffic Plan. When we look at the way forward and how we wish to progress we want to have a residential parking scheme, which is what many people are keen on and it is the way we are moving forward.

If you look at different areas of Gibraltar, there are areas of Gibraltar that benefit and boast of a lot of parking space relative to the households and the residents that live there, but there are other areas of Gibraltar which are found extremely lacking. So for us to provide an even playing field there are certain areas – and one of the worst areas is the centre of town and the Upper Town.

1350
The idea is that this car park will somewhat satisfy the requirements of those people living to the south of town and this is an area which obviously we are very keen on delivering for that purpose. There are other areas of Gibraltar which we are also looking at in terms of providing extra parking in that respect, but obviously the general principle, you are actually right, there are too many cars in Gibraltar, so that is something which the Traffic Plan has raised. But if we want to progress down the route of a residential parking scheme then it does not make any sense whatsoever to have certain areas of Gibraltar where they can have the privilege of ... look at Alameda Estate now – you can see it is clear that there is ample space for the residents of Alameda. When you look at people who live in the south of Main Street and even within the length of Main Street, and even the Upper Town, they are very short.

1360
So the idea is to try to, first of all ... the first thing that we need to do is to provide a little bit of an even playing field so that people have a chance to park at least one vehicle. Then obviously we need to look at multiple vehicles, which I think the problem in Gibraltar is the show of people owning too many vehicles.

1365
Another problem that we have is derelict vehicles. I believe that if we manage to control the amount of derelict vehicles in Gibraltar that will release a lot of parking spaces which at the moment are hidden out of sight because they are blocked up.

So that is the principle of the Plan in general.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: So, sorry, is the Government actively looking to introduce incentives for families and individuals to have less vehicles per household, for example?

Mr Speaker: I will allow you to answer that question, if you wish, but I am not going to allow a debate on a general policy regarding the number of cars that we have in Gibraltar, because what we have on the Agenda Paper is a specific question about Grand Parade.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, suffice to say that the Government is looking at all options with regard to car usage in Gibraltar.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, just going back to Grand Parade and the options that may or may not be available, and obviously not having the costs in front of me, I cannot really have any opinion on what the Chief Minister said regarding the possible projects. But it strikes me that it would certainly be far more desirable to have an underground parking facility at Grand Parade with the possibility even of turning the above ground area of Grand Parade into a park or something of that nature similar to what has been done at Commonwealth Park, where of course the party opposite envisaged having underground parking there. That did not transpire, but I understand technically it is far more possible to do it at Grand Parade because the water table is not an issue.

1385
So would the Government not – despite what the Chief Minister has said – go back and consider whether it is worth tendering for underground parking in that area, because clearly it would enhance the area to have something other than a tarmacked area at Grand Parade where cars park and would still provide the amenity and the necessity of parking in that area and other areas adjacent?

1395 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, yes, it would in fact be very attractive indeed.

What we envisaged would be very attractive; it would be a lawn – almost like Commonwealth Park – that led into the entrance of the Alameda Botanical Gardens; it would have been a magnificent area – there would have been very little area for cars, it would have provided an absolutely lovely area for tourists in the context of the cable car and the development of that facility; it would not just have been attractive, it would have provided another lung for Gibraltar. I defended having a central park in Gibraltar, which is now known as Commonwealth Park. I sought the possibility of doing a car park underneath; it was not economically viable.

1405 But there at Alameda what would really be attractive would be a magnificent park with additional trees, leading people either to the cannon area or to the other alternative entrance towards Alameda Botanical Gardens. It would have created a new area of greenery for residents of Alameda Estate and the areas around and I think would have been absolutely the best possibly option for Gibraltar, and very attractive indeed.

1410 It just is not economically viable. This is the problem; it is not economically viable. If it were economically viable, Mr Speaker, and if there were ways of making it economically viable then we would have done that, because that was our preferred option. It would still be our preferred option if there was any possibility of it being economically viable, but it is not economically viable.

1415 The question is, Mr Speaker, do you get £30 million of taxpayers' money and throw it away? Or do you do something which is economically viable and produces the facility that you need? In the context of Commonwealth Park, developing the facility going down would have cost well in excess of the – from memory, do not hold me to it – £18 million that the multi-storey facility cost. The multi-storey facility pays for itself because it is in the centre of town, it has rental parking available, it has sale parking available and the numbers work because building upwards allows you to reach the figure that you need to reach.

1420 Then what we did, Mr Speaker, was we restricted by one-third the size of the demise that Members opposite had given to the mid-town developers. So, for the same premium, they were left with two-thirds of their site, because we insisted that the deal done by them when they were in administration was not a good deal for the taxpayer, so we reduced their site by a third and on that third we built our multi-storey facility and we were able to deliver Commonwealth Park.

1425 I can have an absolutely attractive vision for that part of Gibraltar and I can fantasise about going down, but that is what it is in the context of the economics of delivery of a project like that. Unfortunately, I do not think that any Member of this House would think it is appropriate to begin a project simply because of the potential for an attractive area on top which is not economically anywhere near viable, whether there is a water table or tunnels and you can come in from Ragged Staff or not come in from Ragged Staff. In engineering terms, everything is possible; the question is the cost benefit analysis of the things that one does.

1435 Hon. Members opposite have been defined in the time that they have been in this House by seeking that the Government confirm that what it is doing is value for money, that we have the money to pay for it etc. – which we always do, to their chagrin and their insistence that there is no money and that we have frittered everything away. Well, we have not, Mr Speaker, but we have not because we do proper planning and we ensure that we deliver for the people of Gibraltar facilities that they need, and not the fantasies that they may have been persuaded to talk about for years but which has not delivered parking to the people in need, in Alameda Estate and in all that area.

1440
1445 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can I just ask the Chief Minister, because he threw out the figure of £30 million, whether that in any way reflects the actual cost of going underground, or whether that was a figure he plucked from the air? Because £30 million, whilst being a substantial amount of money, is not of course that different from what has been spent on the small boat marina, for instance, which was in that ballpark, or even, as you say, the above ground car park at mid-town.

So I just ask, is £30 million an approximation of the figure or is it just a figure that occurred to him at that moment?

1450

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I told him I was not going to give the figure. What I am saying is if you look at the cost of the mid-town car park – and that is going up – then that is the sort of order of cost that you are dealing with. But I think it is far in excess of that, Mr Speaker.

1455

There are many reasons why the hon. Gentleman will see that the small boats marina pays for itself in a different way, but given that the ink is not yet dry on what we will disclose how that is dealt with, I do not want to say more about that because I am otherwise criticised for giving the House information when the ink is not yet dry in respect of agreements that I might talk about.

1460

But this is completely different; this is a car park. So to pay for a car park you sell parking spaces, you rent parking spaces or you allow a daily parking and charge for it and you might have commercial units around. You cannot do that, Mr Speaker, given the order of costs of what going down would cost there, given the exercises that have been undertaken – and I do not have the numbers with me because we did not have notice of that being a question – given the numbers that we have seen developed at the time that hon. Members were there, it is just not viable, it does not work, there is no way that you can have a cost benefit analysis that demonstrates viability for underground parking in that area.

1465

Hon. Members now seem to have decided that their latest hobbyhorse is to say, ‘You should go down instead of building one-and-a-half storeys or whatever it is, two storeys, there,’ in the context of the project and whether it is going to go to the DPC for consultation. Mr Speaker, there is a lot we can do underground. Hon. Members have developed car parks in residential areas, all of which have gone underground and we could have provided magnificent play parks for our children in Arengo’s and at Willis’s Road and in all those areas, we could have gone down.

1470

But in engineering terms, is it financially viable? It is not. I would love it to be and I would love to be the one announcing the additional park being provided at Alameda and Grand Parade, and not the suggestion that we are not providing something that we could provide, which would be, in my view of course, more attractive – and I suppose in everybody’s view, more attractive. It is just not financially viable. But we won the election so we were the ones who were charged with making decisions and doing the exercises and looking at the cost and then deciding to present to people one option or the other.

1475

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q445/2017

Grand Parade residential parking scheme and pay and display scheme –
Total cost

Clerk: Question 445. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1485

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose the total cost to prepare the residential parking scheme at Grand Parade together with the pay and display scheme installed at the same location?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1490

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the total cost to prepare the residential parking scheme at Grand Parade together with the pay and display scheme was approximately £85,000.

1495 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does it not seem irregularly disproportionate to spend £85,000 in early 2017 to May and then announce a month later that they are planning to build a multi-storey car park or a two-storey car park at the same location? Is that not a waste of taxpayers' funds?

1500 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, with the previous question, we said that the idea of building the car park ... I did allude to the fact that the car park would be built in stages and the disruption will be minimal. So the residential parking scheme will continue regardless of the construction of the car park.

1505 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. L F Llamas: Just one more question, Mr Speaker, because it simply does not make sense. If you spent £85,000 plus all the manpower in getting all these permits issued and now you are going to go back to square one and portion up the – 1510 Mr Speaker: You are not going to be brought back to square one? The scheme continues. You have just been told the scheme continues.

Hon. L F Llamas: Yes, the scheme continues but the parking spaces, which have been prepared, are going to be developed upon.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the scheme will continue so the permits that were issued will continue and people will be able to continue to use their permits and the pay and display will continue being there, so obviously there will be a reduction in the total amount of parking space logically because parts of the Grand Parade will be developed at certain times. In that case, what will have to happen is we will have to take a view on the free parking, which is parking that is non-regulated, not part of the residential parking scheme in terms of permit use, and so the residents can fully enjoy the scheme even though there is going to be some disruption. But the plan is to keep the disruption to a minimum and obviously I am very sure that the residents will understand because they will then see at the end of the day something extremely positive come into the area.

Q446-448/2017

Devil's Tower Parking – Revenue collected; lighting and electricity bills

Clerk: Question Number 446, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1530 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state how much revenue is collected by Devil's Tower Parking by (a) general public vehicles, (b) private rental vehicles, (c) commercial vehicles?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1535 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with questions 447 and 448.

Clerk: Question number 447, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1540 Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule of the electricity bills for Devils Tower Parking since December 2011?

Clerk: Question number 448, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1545 Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the lights at Devils Tower Road car park are on 24 hours a day, and, whether the lights used are LED?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1550 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in answer to question 446, because the hon. Member has not given a timeframe for his question, it is not possible to answer this question accurately. The revenue collected by Devil's Tower Road car park based on a three-month average over the months of April, May and June 2017 are as follows: (a) general public vehicles – £8,910; (b) private rental vehicles – £6,553.84; and (c) commercial vehicles – £11,523.

1555 In reply to his question 447, the information requested by the hon. Member in relation to the electricity bills for Devil's Tower Parking since December 2011 are contained in the schedule that I will now hand over.

1560 In reply to 448, the lights used are indeed LED. The reason why all the lights are on 24 hours is that the company that installed the new LED fittings made an error with the fitting out which is currently being corrected. It was this administration that made the decision, immediately after we were elected, to ensure that these lights were not on all day, as had been the case under the former GSD administration. (Banging on desks)

1565 Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Minister just confirm when the LED lights were installed?

1570 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I think it was – I stand to be corrected though, it could have been – around April of this year, April or May this year sometime. He will have to either ask this question in another moment or he can obviously write to me and I will give him the exact date. Again, it is just my recollection, I cannot guarantee; I think it was sometime between April or May this year.

Mr Speaker: Next Question. (Interjection)

Yes indeed.

1575

Hon D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, since when have the lights been on 24 hours a day?

1580 Hon. P J Balban: Ever since the date that the works were completed. The hon. Gentleman just asked me the date and I said I think it is somewhere around April/May of this year, so it has been since then.

Once that fault is corrected we should hopefully see a decrease in the cost of electricity in the car park as a result of the installation of LED lights.

Q449/2017
Abandoned vehicles –
Locations and schedule for disposal

Clerk: Question Number 449, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1585 The Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of abandoned vehicles which have been identified for disposal and the location of such vehicles?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

1590 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is available in the Gazette.

Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, what is in the Gazette may be vehicles which are currently being disposed of. However, going around Gibraltar, you see abandoned vehicles left, right and centre. Even in Devil's Tower Parking, I must say, Mr Speaker, that there are abandoned vehicles which are evidently there for a number of years, stifling even taxpayer revenue.

Is the Government actually physically enabling a policy whereby these vehicles are being dealt with? Because it does seem to me that there is a backlog on abandoned vehicles.

1600 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the way this works is that there are campaigns and this is our main tool in this respect as a cleaning campaign, so we have a regular cleaning campaign that goes around different areas of Gibraltar and in those campaigns, the cars left behind, which generally are derelicts, are the ones that are gazetted for destruction and they are obviously placed in the Gibraltar Chronicle.

1605 If we had more space to actually place these cars – because there is a process; it takes quite a while to actually get a vehicle and dispose of it, I think it is around a six-week to eight-week lag, so if Gibraltar boasted a lot more space – we will probably get rid of cars a lot quicker, but unfortunately that is not the case, so we do find ourselves in some instances getting rid of the most derelict or those cars that we feel are most derelict. Unfortunately, issuing FPN's are leaving some cars behind, perhaps for the next cleaning campaign.

1610 So it is something which is part of, and is within, the ideology of the cleaning campaign. It is not just to clean around cars and keep our streets clean, which is obviously extremely important to us, but it is also a very good tool for us to be able to tackle the problem of derelict cars, which is quite a big problem in Gibraltar.

1615 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Can I unusually emulate Members of the Opposition and ask you for your indulgence in going back to a question? The question on fixed penalty notices. Because I noticed that the Member opposite has informed the public that the number of parking tickets issued this year is 16,000, amounting to £1.6 million in fines, which of course is wrong, Mr Speaker, because the assumption by the hon. Gentleman in that respect is that every one of those fixed parking notices has been paid at the full amount of £100 pounds, when in fact some of them may be paid at different amounts and therefore his tweet is factually incorrect. In fact, it is utterly baseless, Mr Speaker.

1625 I ask him, at least rhetorically, given that I am on this side of the House and he is on that one, whether he is a proponent of allowing people to break the law and park illegally without being fined? And if he is suggesting that as a policy, Mr Speaker, whether he might be prepared to propose that explicitly to the public in Gibraltar, especially to those of us who push prams on a daily basis and find people illegally parked on the ramps available for that basis; or the disabled in our community who need to have the ramps clear of those illegally parked and sometimes fined for being there, who will not otherwise be able to perambulate our streets, if he were to be honest enough to propose a policy of allowing illegal parking without fines being attached to such vehicles, Mr Speaker?

1635 So, both in relation to the entirely incorrect mathematics and in respect of the apparent policy of proposed anarchy and chaos in respect to parking, I would be delighted to hear the hon. Gentleman's views.

Hon L F Llamas: The second question was rhetorical.

1640 Mr Speaker: Yes, next question please.

Hon L F Llamas: I have one more supplementary on 449.

1645 Mr Speaker, since the Hon. Minister has identified that the cleaning campaign, which I am glad somebody is taking on, is due to the lack of space, would it not be possible to amend the legislation in order to leave the derelict cars where they are in situ and place a notice on them and advise that their cars are being disposed of and then, in accordance, Gazette them and dispose of them from the location, rather than have to take them in and dispose of them in a compound which has obviously outgrown its needs?

1650 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not possible because before you dispose of a person's property, before the state asserts a right over a person's property, we are required under rules of natural justice to give notice to the world; and in the context of Gibraltar, notice to the world is publication in the Gazette.

1655 We would really be taking an extraordinarily draconian step if we appropriated somebody's property which is not otherwise improperly parked – for example, if it is in a proper parking bay – without giving that notice to the world which then enables us to go, 'Unless you, within 21 days, remove it or tell us that there is a reason why you cannot remove it,' it would be very difficult to justify in the context of natural justice to do that.

Q450/2017

Speeding offences –

Speed cameras, speed caught travelling and procedure followed

Clerk: Question number 450, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1660 Hon L F Llamas: Can the Government provide a schedule of how many offenders have (a) been recorded by the speed cameras as having exceeded the speed limit, (b) the speed at which each offender was travelling, and (c) the procedure followed in each case?

1665 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the schedule I now hand over shows the number of speeding offences committed since the cameras went live on 8th May 2017, with the respective speeds indicated.

1675 The procedure is as follows:

For offences involving speeds not exceeding 100 kph the procedure followed is as follows:

(1) The registered owners of offending vehicles are sent a Notice of Intended Prosecution (Notice) informing them they have been caught speeding.

1680 (2) On receiving the Notice the owners are given the opportunity to declare whether they or another person was driving the vehicle at the time of the offence. They then have 28 days to respond.

(3) After 14 days if there is no reply from the first Notice a second Notice is sent.

1685 (4) The Notice is followed by a Fixed Penalty Notice that is sent to the driver or, in default, the registered owner. They have 28 days to pay the FPN in default of which the case is referred to the Magistrates' court for due process.

All offences involving speeds exceeding 100 kph, are processed directly by the RGP via the Report For Process method.

Q456/2017
Mount Alvernia – Relocation to the Rooke site

Clerk: We now move to question 456, the Hon. R M Clinton.

1690 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise if there are any plans to relocate Mount Alvernia to the Rooke site?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister.

1695 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, no, sir, there are no plans.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his answer. Are there plans to relocate it to any other site other than Rooke?

1700 Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government has no plans to relocate Mount Alvernia. My colleague, who is the Minister responsible, has just indicated that.

1705 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I know he is 50 but he does not have to worry about ...
[inaudible] (Laughter)

Q457/2017
Crown land or property –
Transfers and sales

Clerk: Question number 457, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1710 The Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide a schedule of Crown Land/Property transferred or sold via direct allocation and the consideration for each property?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister.

1715 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Yes, Mr Speaker, the vast majority of commercial property allocated by the Government since December 2011 has followed a public tender process or public expressions of interest.

There are exceptional instances when direct allocations may be made, if this is judged to be in the social and economic interests of Gibraltar.

1720 It is difficult to supply this information across the board dating back to December 2011. However, in respect of major commercial projects, the following information has been identified to date:

Gibraltar Wine Vaults Ltd	94 Devil's Tower Rd	£350,000	Lease Agreement/Lease
Holiday Inn Express	21-23 Devil's Tower Rd	£530,000	Building Lease

Q458/2017
Ragged Staff Gates car park –
Use of building

Clerk: Question number 458, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1725 The Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose what is the current use of the building in the Ragged Staff Gates car park and what is its intended use in the future?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister.

1730 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, I assume the hon. Member means the Ragged Staff Magazine.

The Government has been using the property for the storage of the bicycles and ancillary equipment for the new bicycle hire service. This storage continued until 31 May 2017.

1735 A tender for the use of the premises as an entertainment venue with transport memorabilia was finalised on 1st June 2016. We are presently waiting for the successful tenderer to submit planning proposals for the building so that the Government and the DPC may separately consider the matter further.

Q459/2017
NAAFI pool –
Handover to Government

Clerk: Question number 459, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1740 The Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose when the NAAFI pool will be handed over to the Government of Gibraltar?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Deputy Chief Minister.

1745 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, the transfer of the Nuffield Pool is dependent on the completion of the relevant works at Four Corners, which are estimated to be completed by January 2018. This is part of the Lands agreement.

1750 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should now adjourn to Wednesday, 20th September at 10 a.m.

Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn to Wednesday, 20th September at 10 a.m. in the morning.

The House adjourned at 5.50 p.m.

Order of the Day

SUSPENSION OF STANDING ORDERS

Suspension of Standing Order 7.1 –
Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997 –
Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) (Amendment of Benefits) Order 2017 – Motion carried

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Gilbert Licudi.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I beg to move under Standing Order 7(3) to suspend Standing Order 7(1) in order to proceed with a Government motion.

Mr Speaker: Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.
The Hon. Gilbert Licudi.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name which reads as follows:

“That this House approve by Resolution, pursuant to section 46 of the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997, the making of the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) (Amendment of Benefits) Order 2017.”

5 Mr Speaker, this Order seeks to amend the Social Security (Open Long-Term Benefits Scheme) Act 1997 by increasing the rates of Survivor’s Benefits, Guardian’s Allowance and Old Age Pensions by 2.7%, with effect from 1st August 2017, which represents the annual increase for that year.

10 These increases are in line with the announcements made by the Chief Minister in his Budget address. In that address, the Chief Minister said:

Old Age Pensions will increase this year in line with a rate of inflation of 2.7% so that the single rate for Old Age Pension would increase from £440.54 by £11.90 to £452.44 and the couple rate would increase from £660.85 by £17.85 to £678.70. The dependent rate will grow from £220.31 by £5.95 to £226.26, and the same cash differentials will be maintained with a Minimum Income Guarantee as in previous years.

As required by the Act, these changes can only be given effect by order which follows a motion which is approved by resolution of this House.

Mr Speaker, I commend the motion to the House.

15 Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port. Does any Member wish to speak on the motion?

I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.)
20 Those against? Carried.

Questions for Oral Answer

ENVIRONMENT, ENERGY, CLIMATE CHANGE AND EDUCATION

Q463/2017

Bluefin tuna – Tonnage caught last season

Clerk: We now return to answers to Oral Questions. We commence with Question 463 and the questioner is the Hon. T N Hammond.

25 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for the Environment state what has been the tonnage of Bluefin tuna caught during this last season?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

30 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the decision to halt the tuna fishing season was taken on Wednesday 13th September when the total was reported at 15.662 tonnes. The necessary administrative time to give effect to the closure of the season resulted in the final total being 16.109 tonnes.

35 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I thank the Minister for his response. I do note this year, due to the process, we are a tonne over and of course we have already increased the limits during this year by three tonnes, I believe.

40 Does the Minister consider in future – because we understand now, or we are starting to understand, that the time of closure of the season to the time of the reaction to that closure ... there is an interval – whether the dates should be anticipated in a way that may allow us to come closer to the actual figure that is permitted to be fished?

45 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the amount caught is 0.6 tonnes over the 15.5 tonnes total allowable catch. It is very difficult to tell because, as in everything else in nature, it is not totally predictable and there will be varying sizes of fish in the area at any given time and the weather will make fishing more or less possible. So it is very difficult to predict and therefore we always run the risk – you are never going to hit exactly 15.5 tonnes; we always run the risk that at the end of a particular day when the totals are tallied up you are going to be just over. Had the limit when this was reported on the 13th been, 15.4 tonnes, a similar decision would have been taken 50 and then if the weather had been bad the next day no more would have been caught.

So obviously we will try to fine tune, but because of the nature of the game it is difficult to hit exactly 15.5 tonnes.

55 Hon. T N Hammond: Could the Minister just provide me with his view reference to the overall figure and whether it would be better to always be a little under than a little over, if possible?

60 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, it would be nicer to be a little under than a little over, but it is not possible to fine tune it to that extent. One can only react to the figures that are ... obviously not me personally, but the team, when it arrives at a figure which is close or just over would report to me because I then have to issue the order to close the season.

So hopefully, as I say, in future, it may be possible to hit it a little under, but I cannot guarantee that 100%. I am just being honest about the reality.

Q464/2017
Gibraltar Nature Reserve –
Removal of invasive species

65 Clerk: Question number 464, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what work has been carried out by Government towards the removal of invasive species within the Gibraltar Nature Reserve?

70 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the removal of invasive species has continued as part of the routine operations carried out by the Nature Reserve Management Team. Areas that have been targeted recently include the main roads and firebreaks in the Upper Rock and Europa Advance Road.

75

Q465/2017
Dog fouling –
DNA test samples and resulting fines

Clerk: Question number 465, the Hon. T N Hammond.

80 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, how many samples of dog fouling have been collected for DNA testing and how many fines have been issued following on from such testing?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

85 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, a total of 67 samples have been collected for DNA testing. No fines have been issued to date as we are currently waiting for the laboratory results.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what is a normal turnaround time for the laboratory to provide the results?

90

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: We are told it is up to six weeks, but unfortunately the lab was closed during the month of August, which explains the delay in getting the results back in the time that we had expected. The collections are batched, so it is not that if you collect a sample today it is sent today; they are batched for a couple of weeks so that you have enough to send over to make it obviously more economic. But the delay has been that the laboratory in question was closed for the month of August.

95

Hon. T N Hammond: Forgive me, the Minister may have answered this but I did miss it. When do you anticipate then the results coming back to us?

100

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Sorry, we should get the first batch of the first sent over, I would have assumed, within the next week or two.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q466/2017
Sewage outflow at Europa – Bacteriological samples

105

Clerk: Question number 466, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to question 324 of 2016, can the Minister say how many bacteriological samples have been collected from around the sewage outflow at Europa, from where those samples were collected and describe the results of that sampling?

110

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the monitoring programme for the Europa Point outfall consists of five sampling points at different distances from the outfall. The locations are depicted in the schedule that I now hand over, for ease of communication. It is a map of Gibraltar with the sites. These consist of three investigative and two surveillance monitoring sampling points.

One hundred and two investigative monitoring samples have been collected since 2015. All investigative results obtained were within the applicable standards under the Bathing Water Directive.

120

In turn, 135 surveillance monitoring samples have been collected since 2015. One sample collected failed the applicable standards in December 2016, but it was not possible to attribute the exact source of this exceedance.

125

Q466 Schedule:

130 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Minister just clarify, I am not entirely clear of the difference between the investigative and the monitoring methodology.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Certainly, sorry, apologies if that was not clear.

135 The monitoring ones are the ones that are done continuously and regularly through the year. The surveillance monitoring are those that appear yellow in the attachment; they are routine. They are the Little Bay and Sandy Bay, and those are done throughout the year.

The other ones are additional ones that are carried out in order to see whether there is a problem with the sewage outfall. Those are done in batches, so if there has not been anything adverse over a period of time then we may not collect for the next couple of months and then we start again.

140 So we have got the routine ones. If the routine ones should show any higher than normal then we trigger off the others to see whether there is a problem. So they both work in tandem.

Hon. T N Hammond: I do thank the Minister for that answer and I note that there do not appear to be any collections points or monitoring points either to the south of the outfall, or indeed within 500 m. I presume there is a reason for that, but could the Minister explain?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, the experts tell me that the currents tend to move, on most occasions – obviously there will be occasions when things are different, but routinely would move – the outflow away; and clearly what we are doing here is monitoring. Any negative results would more likely affect bathers and therefore our main concern is what is working its way up the east side to our beaches, which is why the three points are between Europa Point and Sandy Bay, because we want to see if there is anything happening, we want to catch it on the way and that is why it is skewered to that direction.

150

It is most likely that the currents would move any water which was not acceptable in that direction, which is why we do it ... We obviously cannot sample continuously along so we have to pick and that is done in order to catch any problem that there might be making its way from the sewage outflow to the beaches. As you have seen, fortunately, there does not appear, certainly when we have done the monitoring, to be such a problem.

155

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I fully accept that the primary reason for monitoring would be to protect public health and the beaches and the bathing laws, to understand if there are any issues arising there.

160

But I would ask: would the Minister consider carrying out sampling perhaps at one or two points to the south for a more general understanding of the impact of our sewage outflow and its impact on the environment in general, rather than just on bathers.

165

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I do not think we have to take samples to know that there is faecal matter going into the sea. Therefore, clearly, if you sample just at the outflow you are going to get a high count, further away it is going to be less, and we know that there is going to be sewage there. All we are going to do is prove what we already know. We know that there is a problem there; we know we are committed to tackling it, as I repeatedly said, here and in other venues.

170

So the resources are going into seeing whether it is causing, or potentially causing, a problem to bathers. Clearly, there are other environmental issues which concern me as much as anybody else and probably more than a lot of others, but it would not be necessary because we know there is sewage going out there. So all we are going to do is show what we already know. I do not think that it would be an efficient use of our resources.

175

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I do not entirely agree with the Minister.

Clearly, we do know that there is sewage and faecal matter going into the sea. The reason I ask whether monitoring would be worthwhile in those other areas or areas to the south is more to do with an understanding of how those dispersal patterns happen, as you would with a smoke plume, perhaps, in an area. You want to know how quickly it disperses, whether it remains concentrated for longer, whether tides and currents affect it in a certain way, and really for scientific purposes in order for us to understand the impact on the environment.

I would again ask whether the Minister would consider allotting some resource – I am not suggesting we allocate the same resource, but some resource – to conduct in the scientific work that would be necessary – perhaps it is something the University can help with, I do not know – to better understand the environmental impact of that sewage outflow.

185

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it would be wonderful to have data on everything and clearly anybody who wants to undertake a scientific study would be more than encouraged to do so. Whether doing work which will state the obvious is a legitimate use of Government funding, is the question – particularly when it is a problem we know we will be solving. If it were in order to justify not wanting to treat sewage, that is one thing, but we are not in that game. Therefore, 195 obviously I will discuss it with my team if they see there is any value to it, but at the moment I think our resources would be better used elsewhere. That is just the view that I hold.

190

Mr Speaker: Before we move on, the last word that the Minister uses in his answer is 'exceedance'. I have always been very interested in correct English usage. I cannot find the word in any of these two small dictionaries. I would be grateful if he would let me know privately what 200 is the source of that word, 'exceedance'.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I will let you know publicly. It was drafted by the people who drafted my answer so I will pass the question on to them.

205 Mr Speaker: Maybe they found it in some American dictionary!

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Possibly, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Next question.
210

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, my prize possession is the 24-volume Oxford English Dictionary, which is now in its last edition in print and I find, in particular when playing scrabble, that any word one can come up with you will find exists – especially if it has an 'x' or a 'z' in it, will produce a lot of points. I shall look when I get back at the lunchtime adjournment in that volume to see whether 'exceedance' is there and, if not, I shall ensure that the hon. Gentleman corrects those who have come up with a new word or submit it for inclusion in the next edition! (Banging on desks)
215

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may, having access, as one has now, to Oxford Dictionary online ...
220

Mr Speaker: I am informed by the Clerk that 'exceedance' is now in the Oxford Dictionary!

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: He beat me to it, Mr Speaker, and I will now not have to reprimand the people who drafted my answer!
225

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q467/2017
Climate change –
Programme and action plan

Clerk: Question number 467, the Hon. T N Hammond.

230 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I was going to ask for the definition, if you did not mind, of 'exceedance', but as it is in the public domain, I suppose I will have to look it up myself! (Interjections and laughter)

Question 467. Mr Speaker, further to question 325 of 2016, has the Government published a climate change programme and an associated action plan?
235

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
240 Mr Speaker, the revised draft plan will be discussed by the Climate Change Forum, at its meeting on 19th October; and before the questioner asks me, the meeting had been scheduled before I actually had sight of the questions.

Mr Speaker: Next question.
245

Q468/2017
Climate and Clean Air Coalition –
Local initiatives

Clerk: Question number 468, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to question 20 of 2017, can the Minister say if any 250 local initiatives have been derived from the participation in the Climate and Clean Air Coalition?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
255 Mr Speaker, no, they have not, as the initiatives at the moment focus on projects in developing countries. This said, the Department continues to keep an eye out for initiatives that would be relevant to Gibraltar.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Minister just clarify what he means by ‘keep an 260 eye out’?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: We are in contact with the organisation. The Department receives emails and links and so on, so when there is a problem ... At the moment, the Clean Air Coalition is 265 mainly concentrating in developing countries where people who live in conditions which are, shall we say, not to Western standards, with open fires within the household and so on, and they are exposed to a lot of fumes and so on from fires, and that is where they are concentrating their efforts now.

‘Keep an eye out’ is in contact with the organisation and links to the website and so on. So if 270 they have a programme which would be relevant to Gibraltar, that is when we would link up to it. At the moment, fortunately, we do not have that kind of problem.

Hon. T N Hammond: Is the Clean Air Coalition an organisation that can be tapped into in any way for resource if, for instance, we wanted some independent advice on our own monitoring 275 capabilities or our own air quality?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, in the sense that they are a coalition of organisations and governments which have resources and expertise on a wide range of matters appertaining to quality. So I think the answer to that must be yes.
280

Hon. T N Hammond: In which case, does the Minister consider it might be worthwhile being fairly proactive and approaching the organisation to see what they can do for us, rather than waiting to see what they might be able to do for us in the natural course of their investigations?

285 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: We are constantly in contact with organisations and bodies to see what they can do for us. In this particular case, the team has not identified anything specific, but it is something that we are routinely doing. We are in contact with many different organisations, either formally or informally. Nowadays, by accessing the internet, one can scan what other organisations do. So it is a possibility.

290

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q469/2017
'In Town Without My Car' day – 2017 and 2018

Clerk: Question number 469, the Hon. T N Hammond.

295 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if an 'In Town Without My Car' day took place this year or is scheduled to take place this year, and whether similar is planned next year?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

300

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Yes, Mr Speaker, an 'In Town Without My Car' day is being planned for October.

305 We are currently in discussions with our colleagues at the Ministry for Transport as well as the RGP, to finalise the details which will be made available via the press in due course. It is the Government's intention for this to be an annual event.

310 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, while I appreciate you are still in the planning phases, is it being considered to actually conduct this on a weekday this year, as opposed to a Sunday? I would have thought the effect of the day would be more effective if conducted on a day where people actually have to go to town to commute rather than on a day where they may just stay at home to watch the Formula 1?

315 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I will need to check that. I believe the intention is to do it on the weekend. I know the point that the hon. Member is making, but I think that at this stage we are planning it on a weekend. But I would need to confirm that.

Q470-471/2017
Black carbon –
Monitoring and results

Clerk: Question number 470, the Hon. T N Hammond.

320 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, is Government conducting black carbon monitoring and, if so, when does it plan to make the results available publicly?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with question 471.

325

Clerk: Question number 471, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to introduce real time monitoring of PM2.5 particulates in the air?

330

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the monitoring of black carbon is not required under the Environment (Air Quality Standards) Regulations 2010 nor the Clean Air For Europe (CAFE) directive. However, we started monitoring as from 15th September 2012.

335

This information will be available online as from the New Year. I am happy to make the results public now. The annual average reading in ug m-3:

2012	2.94
2013	2.72
2014	2.49
2015	3.84
2016	1.87
2017	1.46 (so far)

340

In answer to question, 471, not at this moment in time. The Government is currently using the method approved by the EU for air quality compliance.

Q472/2017
Cooking oil –
Volume recycled

Clerk: Question number 472, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what volume of cooking oil has been collected for recycling since 1st September 2016?

345

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

350

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the total waste cooking oil collected for recycling from authorised waste exporters since 1st September 2016 is 40,062m3.

Q473/2017

Energy efficient home improvements – Fund and grants

355 Clerk: Question number 473, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to question 314 of 2016, has a fund for energy efficient home improvements, which should have been in place by 2014 according to the Environmental Action and Management Plan, now been established and, if so, how many grants to home owners have been provided through this fund?
360

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

365 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, funding continues to be available to residential estates in the form of soft loans, to fund projects that use solar energy to provide electricity for communal lighting, water heating and the powering of lifts and for the replacement of traditional lighting with LED.

370 Approved projects are eligible for loans of up to 10-years at an effective rate of interest of 1% per annum, with the Government funding the difference in the cost of finance by way of a grant. To date, no grants to homeowners have been provided through this fund.

Q474-476/2017

Production of electricity –
Monthly fuel burned by power stations; Commission of new power station

Clerk: Question number 474, the Hon. T N Hammond.

375 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what is the total monthly fuel burned by all power stations in Gibraltar for the production of electricity since 1st September 2016?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

380 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 475 and 476.

Clerk: Question number 475, the Hon. T N Hammond.

385 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, what is the total amount of fuel burned by the temporary North Mole power station since 1st September 2016 in order to produce electricity?

Clerk: Question number 476, the Hon. T N Hammond.

390 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, when does Government believe the new power station will be commissioned and enter into service?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

395

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the information requested is in the schedule that I now hand over. That is for Q474, Mr Speaker.

Fuel quantities per month in metric tonnes together with the corresponding kilo watt hours of electricity generated:

Total Fuel & Electrical units from Sep '16 to Aug '17
	Fuel (MT)	Units Generated (KWh)
Sep-16	4,666	18,084,120
Oct-16	4,390	17,363,420
Nov-16	4,459	17,784,160
Dec-16	4,615	18,450,530
Jan-17	4,721	18,503,700
Feb-17	4,449	17,917,570
Mar-17	4,298	20,456,505
Apr-17	4,006	16,701,860
May-17	4,280	16,998,689
Jun-17	4,572	18,020,982
Jul-17	4,382	18,482,666
Aug-17	4,824	18,839,468

400

In answer to Q475, as from 1st September 2016 and up until 31st August 2017, the total amount of fuel burned by the Temporary North Mole Power Station has been approximately 28,649 metric tonnes of automotive gas oil.

The new power station is envisaged to be commissioned and enter into full operational service in 2018.

405

Hon. T N Hammond: Just one supplementary, Mr Speaker. For my understanding, the burn of the temporary power station, the fuel bill was 28,000 metric tonnes; the quantities for all of Gibraltar are 4,600 tonnes, for instance, in September 2016; I am just trying to understand whether these ...

410

I withdraw. (Interjection) No, I understand now. Absolutely. I understand and that is absolutely fine. Thank you.

Q478-479/2017
T levels –
Proposed introduction

Clerk: Question number 478, the Hon. E J Phillips.

445 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, what steps have the Government taken in relation to the proposed introduction of T levels?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

450 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Yes, Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Question 479.

Clerk: Question number 479, the Hon. E J Phillips.

455 Hon. E J Phillips: How does the Government envisage introducing T Levels in the context of current training resources that are available?

460 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Government is working on a parallel vocational framework to run alongside GCSEs and A-Levels. The project is well underway and obviously tied to the launch of the new schools. It is not just about T Levels, the Government is considering other options, and will be announcing these when it is in a position to do so.

470 Hon. E J Phillips: In so far as other measures that the Minister has alluded to, do they relate to apprenticeships?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, not in the context of this question. I am talking about training within the schools and the plan is that there will be alternatives to GCSEs and A-Levels, which can be taken within the schools for vocational subjects, in order to increase the opportunities available to young people who may not want to progress in the traditionally more academic subjects.

Hon. E J Phillips: So, just to clarify, the purpose of this is to integrate vocational training in the context of the newly built schools, as they may well be in due course?

480 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is what we are working towards, Mr Speaker.

If I may add, Mr Speaker, it is a reflection of something that is happening also, although it is independent of, in the UK, with introduction of T-Levels, which wants to achieve more or less the same thing.

485 Hon. E J Phillips: Just to come back on that, the whole purpose of ... I think, in the Chief Minister's Budget speech he made reference to T Levels and apprenticeships; that is why I asked that specific supplementary. But if the Government has now abandoned this issue of apprenticeships then I am quite happy to accept that.

490 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not saying that the Government has abandoned anything; I am just saying that in the context of what we are trying to do in schools, we are not talking about anything other than what I have already explained.

Q480/2017
Energy drinks –
Age restrictions

Clerk: Question number 480, the Hon. L F Llamas.

495 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to regulate the age restrictions on energy drinks?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

500 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, at present, the Government has no plans to regulate the age restriction on the consumption of energy drinks.

Q481/2017
Cinema under the Stars –
Event not held

Clerk: Question number 481, the Hon. L F Llamas.

505

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the popular 'Cinema under the Stars' held at the Commonwealth Park has not been held, albeit in a different location such as the Alameda Gardens Theatre?

510

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

515

520

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, given that the whole community was attending these events and engaged with them in such a positive manner – most of us, and especially those with young children – and it has been circulated on social media as well that the viewings and screenings of films did provide for an additional nocturnal experience throughout the summer months, together with providing an additional – (Interjection) Yes, it was a good idea! – providing an additional event for tourists as well, is it not possible that, at least for the next summer, the Government could consider bringing these and engaging with the public, seeing if there is a demand?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am delighted that the hon. Gentleman feels so strongly about what was, in effect, an idea of this Government; and in fact – as the Hon. Minister Cortes was always keen to remind me the morning after the performances – it was my idea. When he was having to clean the park and deal with the problems of the grass, he reminded me it was my idea. I thought it would be a magnificent way of making the most of Commonwealth Park. Unfortunately, I was unable to attend any of the sessions, but I could see the benefits of watching Grease, or Airplane, or Superman, or Jaws, with a keen eye on the koi carp were doing in the pond, to make sure they were not attempting to imitate what was being shown on the wall!

535

But unfortunately the toll on the park was dramatic. In fact, at that time the party that he used to sit with started to say that we had made a mistake in the type of grass that we had chosen and that Commonwealth Park was a disaster that would not succeed because the grass could not prosper. Commonwealth Park grass was prospering perfectly well, until 2,000 people came to sit on it every Tuesday afternoon – (A Member: And Thursday!) and Thursday – to watch a movie.

540

545

Now, the hon. Gentleman might best understand this by reference to what happens at Wimbledon. If the hon. Gentleman watches the first round of the tennis at Wimbledon he will see the players on a pristine court which looks perfectly green, and if he watches the final he will see the players standing on a patch of sand at the back of each side of the court. Unfortunately, therefore, what I think was a magnificent idea, had a toll on the park which was just unacceptable in the context of the other use that the park has on a daily basis for all our children.

550

I am very keen to bring back cinema under the stars, but not necessarily in the park. So, to spare the Minister for the Environment the horror of the effects on his grass, it is something that the Minister for Culture and I are discussing and we would very much like to bring it back and we very much welcome his welcoming of our very welcome initiative.

Thank you. (Banging on desks)

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, can I just interject here?

555 I think that, from speaking to people, the issue mainly, one would say, is that when we get close to elections we see these sorts of gimmicky type of events; for example, the one on the beach where we had those jamborees in the sea that we have not seen since 2015, I think.

Would the Government not understand the electorate for wondering why these wonderful little incentives in the summer come and go once every four years?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mama Mia! Here we go again! Wouldn't that be a good film to show under the stars?

Well, Mr Speaker, I disagree with her, obviously, because we are not a Government of gimmicks. And the floating facilities which were provided at the beaches were provided, I believe, when Minister Costa was Minister for Tourism for two consecutive years; and on the second consecutive year they were so damaged that it was impossible to repair them for a third year and we had to make a decision about whether or not to once again invest in those facilities.

The Cinema under the Stars was unrelated to a general election and it would have gone on had it not been for the toll on the grass.

570 But, look, if what the hon. Lady is telling us is that we get better as we go along and in the fourth year of our Government we are at our peak, I think the public appreciate it and that is why, if she will allow me to remind her, she stood with the team that was massively rejected by the people of Gibraltar and by an electorate that is wise enough to look beyond a movie at a park and a floating lilo offshore. People understand why it is that they vote for the Government that they vote for and I think it has more to do with their depth of understanding of the experience and the commitment that there was in respect to the team that is now sitting on this side of the House, than there was presented by the other side, some of whom have even felt that they need to go off to further their studies instead of continuing in politics in Gibraltar.

580 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, can I just ask does the Chief Minister envisage the floating lilo to be fixed by summer 2019?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the current Minister for Tourism has stepped out and I do not know what it is that we will be doing in summer 2018, let alone summer 2019. But I can assure her that the Government will seek to mature all of its policies and deliver them to the electorate as soon as we are able to do so.

590 Some of them, whether in relation to lilos or otherwise, will peak in 2019. Some of them will peak after 2019, but I have no doubt that the electorate will look at what is on offer at any impending general election, and likely make the same decision, lilos or otherwise. I think, if she will allow me to say so, with respect, there are some on that side who are junior enough in this House that they still need to put their wings on before they are able to swim on their own, and I am not just referring to her, I am referring to some people who lead political parties, and who are, having said that, still very junior in parliamentary terms.

595 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q482/2017
Waterport Fountain – Inactivity

Clerk: Question number 482, the Hon. L F Llamas.

600 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide details of when the Waterport Fountain has been inactive and the reasons why?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

605 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the Department does not keep a log of every time – or did not keep a log of every time – the fountain is inactive. However, I can confirm that since the fountain was refurbished in 2013, it has only been switched off for maintenance work and during National Day.

610 At this moment in time, the fountain is undergoing maintenance works to one of the pumps, and I am going to depart slightly from the prepared answer – the prepared answer said it is due to be functioning again next week, that was for last week – due to be functioning again this week but I was told on Monday that they have identified an electrical problem and it is being repaired and it should be ready in the next couple of days.

Q483/2017
Swift bird nest webcam – Installation costs

615 Clerk: Question number 483, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state how much has been paid for the setting up and installation of the swift bird nest webcam and internet site?

620 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the cost for setting up and installation of the swift bird nature cam series is £1,581.53.

Q484/2017
Medusa nets –
Purchase costs since 2011

625 Clerk: Question number 484, the Hon. L F Llamas.

630 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of how much money has been spent on the purchase of medusa nets since December 2011 per financial year, detailing for which beach each purchase was for?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

635 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the overall costs are in the schedule which I now hand over. There is no breakdown available per beach. I am told that, because of the way the work is done, it is not possible to sub-divide into each beach.

Q485/2017
Fix my Street app –
Launch and cost

640 Clerk: Question number 485, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the 'Fix my Street' app was never launched, and the cost involved?

645 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

650 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the app has not been launched because it was superseded by the Environmental Feedback Section, now back in operation, and the Environmental Agency's app 'Gib Environ' which has the reporting facility. It was deemed that an additional app would have been confusing.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, was there any cost involved in the preparation?

655 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, not to the Department. I believe this was an initiative together with other work that was being done for the Government. As this was not proceeded, the Department has not paid for what was not published. Obviously, the other app for the Environmental Agency would have had costs but that is not the subject of this question.

660 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, the hon. Minister says that the Department has not had an incurred cost. Can he confirm that the Government has not paid, given that there was a website and a detailed availability on the internet of what the app was going to look like, and I am sure that some costs would have been involved?

665 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my information is that the cost for that particular app, which was not processed, was not distinguishable from other work being done on that project, but I can see whether I can delve into it and see whether it can be factored out but it may not be possible because it was part of a bigger picture but I will investigate.

Q486/2017

Dumping of household refuse –
Main Street and surrounding streets

Clerk: Question number 486, the Hon. L F Llamas.

670

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, how does Government intend to tackle the dumping of household refuse in Main Street and surrounding streets, lanes and alleys?

675

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, there has already been considerable improvement in a number of areas which had long been hot-spots.

680

Notably, rubbish accumulations have now totally disappeared from Chatham Counterguard, Turnbull's Lane, Mess House Lane and the corner of Governor's Street at the bottom of Prince Edward's Road.

We continue to review the whole waste strategy to bring about even further improvements.

685

Clerk: Supplementary to Q484.

690

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, looking at the schedule provided by the Hon. Minister, we can see that the initial purchase of the nets back in 2013-14 was £93,000, the following year was £48,000, 2015-16 was £30,000, 2016-17 was £36,000 and 2017-18 there is a rise again going up to £52,000 which is more than half of the initial purchase back in 2013-14.

695

Can the Minister explain if all these are new purchases or if there are repairs involved and whether there is a policy that can be put in place so that we do not have to spend so much on these nets? I say this, Mr Speaker, because up at the Europa Advance Road during the summer period there has been some of those medusa nets deposited at the recycling centre and obviously they are in a bad state, and I am not sure if it is a question that they are not being maintained properly or if they are actually being neglected, or if it is a position where they do need replacing after a couple of years.

700

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I will reply with caution, because the last time, in a constructive way, I said I thought that something was a toilet all sorts of things blew up.

A Member: Not the toilet!

705

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, the toilet did not, but I have to say that I am trying to reply in good will without the backing of factual information. So I am doing it with caution, because I do not then want to be challenged about saying something which I said in all honesty I thought was the case without having the information. I think I have to make that point.

710

These things clearly have wear and tear, and after a number of years there will be need for greater investment. If he wants a breakdown of exactly why it is somewhat more this year than the last couple of years, I would have to look into it. I suspect – and again with caution – that as the years go by you have to repair more. We are looking into how we can perhaps make this less expensive and hopefully will be able to do something in that respect next year. But if he wants any more detailed information then I will need to have either the question made or the hon. Member is quite welcome to write to me.

Q487-492/2017
Public area cleaning –
Schedule of flushing down; Government rental estates;
Contract with Master Services

Clerk: Question number 487, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule of locations and frequency regarding the flushing down of our public areas since December 2011?

720

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 488 to 492.

725

Clerk: Question number 488, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose its public area cleaning strategy in advance of the upcoming tender?

730

Clerk: Question number 489, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state how much it has spent in each financial year since April 2012 to date in the cleaning of public areas in Government rental estates, per estate?

735

Clerk: Question number 490, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose the contract entered into between Government and Master Services?

740

Clerk: Question number 491, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule since December 2011 of how much has been paid to Master Services for services in addition to their original contract and what the services were for?

745

Clerk: Question number 492, the Hon. L F Llamas.

750

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule since December 2011 of how much has been paid to Master Services as per their original contract?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

755

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will be referring to three schedules which I will hand over together at the end, I think, rather than make the Clerk staff go across three times.

760

The information in relation to Question 487 requested is in the schedule I will be handing over. The tender includes a more intensive cleaning programme, details of which can clearly not be revealed at this time, but will be published shortly. In addition, we are developing a review of waste management in general. This is part of the overall Master Service contract, Q489, and costs are not specified by area.

765 In relation to Q490, as the hon. Member is aware, the Government is in the process of issuing a tender and it would not be appropriate to disclose the current contract entered into by the GSD at this moment in time.

The information requested for Q491 and Q492 is in the schedules:

Mr Speaker: These are extremely lengthy schedules, so unless the hon. questioner has supplementaries on the other questions which are not the subject of the schedules ... if he has, we will proceed with that, otherwise I will allow time for the schedule to be considered.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I have a supplementary on Q490, which is not part of the schedules.

780 I understand, obviously, that the Government is unable to disclose details of the contract, but would the Minister be able to divulge or disclose to us whether within the contract does it actually specify which areas Master Services is responsible for and where the responsibility for cleaning lies?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The contract has schedules which define areas that need to be cleaned, so in that respect, yes. I do not know what more detail he wants?

Hon. L F Llamas: Would the Minister be able to disclose those schedules to us? Obviously, I understand that perhaps he might not have them here today, but he could perhaps email.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this has not been requested. I have provided the information that has been requested, except those which at this moment have to be confidential because we are in the process of preparing a tender document with a new schedule of duties and there is information that I cannot reveal in advance of issuing that tender. So I do not think I should provide any more than the copious information that I have provided already today.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if it is of any assistance, the tender will be public and the tender will contain the list of areas to be cleaned etc. So the hon. Gentleman will see it very shortly indeed. It is just a question of dotting 'i's and crossing 't's at this point, as far as I understand.

795

Mr Speaker: Let's move on to Q493.

800

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: I will allow – 805

Hon. T N Hammond: ... one supplementary not subject to ... (Mr Speaker: Okay.)

Mr Speaker, if I may just ask: does the Minister know when the tender may be issued; where we are in that process?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the tender document has just been passed to my office literally, I think, overnight. It needs to be seen by the incumbent of the Office of Chief Minister just to ensure that it is in keeping with the discussion I have had with ministerial colleagues as to what we want from the new contract. Once I am satisfied of that it will go for publication.

810

Q493/2017
Project Search –
Progress report

Clerk: Question number 493, the Hon. L F Llamas.

815

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details on the progress being made in relation to the Project Search including: (a) Persons pending employment; (b) Persons employed as a direct result of this initiative; (c) Number of persons identified suitable to channel through the project; and (d) Number of employees working on this initiative?

820

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):

825 Mr Speaker, the Government is following a model based on Project Search, which was founded in 1996 in the USA. The work is carried out by an officer in the Department of Education working with young people with special educational needs (SEN) across our secondary schools. At present, the main thrust of the work is to assist students with special educational needs attached to the LSFs (Learning Support Facilities).

830 The 2017-18 short/medium term plan involves working with eight Year 12+ students based at the LSF at Bayside and Westside, incorporating matched work experience placements in their free slots in their school timetables. Gibraltar College and St Martin's School are in the process of identifying which students will require work experience for 2017-18.

835 Employer engagement is accessed so that we can successfully place six LSF Year 10 students on the work experience offered to all Year 10 students as part of the curriculum. Assistance is also being provided in the transition process of four school leavers, supporting them with unemployment registration at the ETB, CV building, job applications, interviews and employer engagement. One college student has been successfully placed in employment.

840 The long-term plan is to offer a supported internship for those students who have peaked at full-time education and would now benefit from a clear-cut, year-long, work training programme.

Q494/2017

School classrooms –

Class sizes, children with special education needs, learning support assistants

Clerk: Question number 494, the Hon. L F Llamas.

845 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of the number of pupils in each class during each school year since September 2012 stating: (a) the year the class relates to; (b) the school the class belongs to; (c) the number of children with special education needs; and (d) the number of learning support assistants per class?

850 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the hon. Member demonstrates a very narrow understanding of Education – a conclusion that I come to for a number of reasons, which I will spell out.

855 I cannot provide him with such a schedule. Class sizes, issues relating to special educational needs, and indeed the consequent deployment of support are constantly changing. Classes shrink and grow, as children move across sets, enrol or leave midway through a term, complete core modules and are then subdivided to complete topics of choice. A child's needs today are different tomorrow; additional temporary help will be needed at different stages of a child's journey, and no stone is left unturned to ensure that this support is afforded every time. A snapshot of this, as requested by the hon. Member, is not only impossible but totally unnecessary and meaningless.

865 I am disappointed that such a question, which the Member opposite will have known would have required a great deal of research by many of the team in the Department of Education, should be asked at a time when the school term is starting, and professionals across our schools and at the Department are working extremely hard to ensure that the children begin the term and are completely settled and happy.

870 Is the hon. Member therefore suggesting that I should recall headteachers and advisors from schools in an attempt to answer an impossible question? This I will not do, Mr Speaker. I will, however, say that the average classroom sizes and the provision afforded are completely in line with our manifesto commitments.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I did not envisage this question being controversial or getting the Hon. Minister heated up on a question which was filed in good faith, I can assure him.

875 Mr Speaker, I would have thought, and I understand that classes can be expanded or smaller, depending on the time of the year, depending on the needs, I am fully aware of that; however, I do not envisage that it would be that difficult to table a schedule perhaps on the first day of each school year relating to the class sizes and the number of teachers and the number of learning support assistants in each class. I do not think it is that unreasonable of a question to 880 ask.

So, is the Hon. Minister able to answer this question if I file it next month in the next session and state that it could be a snapshot as at the first day of each educational year?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has mentioned good faith and I have to 885 take that because he said it, but I think recent events would justify me in perhaps not seeing that the good faith actually shows itself in the day to day. But let's leave that to one side.

Mr Speaker, if the hon. Member thinks I was heated up he should have seen the members of staff of the Department of Education when they read the question. It is, as I have explained clearly, a well-nigh impossible task and, to me, meaningless; and perhaps if the hon. Member 890 were to explain to me, certainly not now, what he wants to get out of this and what it is that he wants to analyse, it might be easier at least to have a discussion.

But certainly, going back to September 2012, looking at the number of pupils in each class, in each Year, in each school, how many of those have special education needs – which I have explained varies – and the number of learning supports in each class, when that can vary almost 895 on a daily basis, is not reasonable and is something that I certainly will not provide.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, unfortunately, the Hon. Minister judges my faith unfairly and I am quite disappointed at that.

Mr Speaker, it is not a question of what I want this answer to provide; I am factual and I 900 would like to get the answer that I am entitled to when I file a question. What the Minister is, therefore, suggesting – and I could understand that perhaps it is an added burden to the staff of the Education Department – is that perhaps they are under-resourced and this is why they are unable to answer this question. Is that the case, Mr Speaker?

905 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Absolutely, Mr Speaker. That is absolutely right.

Every Department of Government is under-resourced for dealing with questions that simply require that staff be set aside to compile meaningless statistical data which cannot be provided with any accuracy, in some instances, other than by seeking to rely on the memory of people as to what might have been the case five years ago in respect of data which has never been 910 compiled and where people will not, therefore, be able to give accurate answers.

Every Department is going to always be undermanned if we are asked to compile a list of how many paperclips have been purchased by each Department and how many were used in each day since 10th December 2011. It is impossible, Mr Speaker, to deal with some questions and it is very easy to put a question that cannot be answered. The political art, Mr Speaker, is to put a 915 question that can be answered and gets to the nub of a political issue that the Member feels he must hold the Government to account for.

But if the hon. Member is not able to conject questions which require information that is available to be provided, he can expect us to tell him that we are impossibly under-resourced to come up with the answers for the speculative questions that he might try to put, which require resources which have never been available to any Government of Gibraltar or indeed any government around the world.

Because some of the things that we have been asked for, Mr Speaker – and I do not want to refer to things which are coming up in the Order Paper – the hon. Gentleman is going to get the same answer that he has been given by the Hon. the Minister for Education – a Minister who, if I may say so, Mr Speaker, does not often get het up as we have seen him this morning, given the – I am sorry to say and I say it with the greatest possible affection to the hon. Gentleman; he knows I am very pleased to see him ... since the Budget debate in this House.

But the questions are in some instances just nonsensical in the sense that the data requested is not data maintained, or that it is reasonable to have maintained. In some instances, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman may ask us, ‘Look, I understand the position; could you kindly, going forward, keep a record of this and give me, monthly, these numbers?’ Well, that is relatively easy in some instances, Mr Speaker, but to go back and recreate from a point in time that happens to be 10th December 2011, without showing any interest in what has happened before – in any event, where things may have been worse and there may be an appreciable improvement after 10th December 2011 – is just an attempt to ask questions to show off about the numbers that have been filed, not to ask questions in a way that is designed to get to reasonably relevant information, in our view.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I will take it as a compliment that I am asking questions which have never been asked before; that means I am actually going deeper than any other Member has gone before.

Mr Speaker, what I am not clear on, and I do not believe that this question is unreasonable, otherwise the Hon. Mr Speaker would have ruled it out –

Mr Speaker: No, I do not rule questions on whether they are unreasonable or not; I deal with questions in accordance with the Rules which are stated clearly in the Rulebook, as it were. The question of reasonableness does not come into it as far as I am concerned. There are other considerations.

Hon. L F Llamas: Fine, Mr Speaker.

Would the Government be able to supply the information as at the first day of each school year, given that there has to be a compilation of information for each school, of how many students are going to be allocated in each class, how many teachers will be allocated in each class. Somebody must prepare this, otherwise it would be impossible to run an educational system. I am actually informed that it could even be the case that some of these registers are electronic, so I am amazed that it can be so complicated to compile and supply this information.

Would the hon. Minister be able to provide an answer to this question if I come back with this question next month?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, there is the nub of the issue. The hon. Gentleman now slowly seems to be reaching understanding. A snapshot on 1st September 2017 is probably something that can be provided. Going back and giving the snapshot may not be so easy. But he has to understand that is a snapshot and that by 15th September it may have changed, and that by 10th December the position may have changed too; and that going back is probably not something that can easily be done, or at least will not provide anything near information which is worth analysis. I think that is the point that the hon. Gentleman is trying to make.

So this is not about not giving him information which is easily possible to provide, and very likely, given where we are in the month, we could probably ask teachers to give us the start of 970 term figure and that going forward we could perhaps seek returns as to a monthly figure, or something like that.

Can I encourage the hon. Gentleman to speak to Minister Cortes offline and see what it is – as the hon. Minister has said – what it is him that he wants to understand. There may be another data collection method that may be able to assist him and which we may be able to provide which he can then put as a Written Question, or as an Oral Question if he likes, and then he can be receiving the information in a way that is meaningful to him, given what it is that he wants to provide.

975 I am not, Mr Speaker, able to say that he is going deeper than anyone has ever gone before; I think he is just going down a route that nobody has gone before, perhaps because it is statistically irrelevant to go there. I can assure him that if there was statistical relevance to a question the person sitting to my left would have been asking it since 1972.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may just add and thank the Chief Minister for that, the question is how relevant and how could you interpret the snapshot on 1st September, because particularly in the first few weeks there are going to be changes and if you are going to be wanting to compare year on year what conclusions can you reach from something which is perhaps not going to reflect the reality of the transition through the school year. I think it is a discussion that we have to have.

985 I was going to say, Mr Speaker, that I was sorry that the hon. Member was disappointed in me, but I am going to say the contrary because I was disappointed in him a couple of weeks ago. So that is one all; maybe we can make a fresh start.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just to facilitate and help my hon. friend in relation to this, the information I believe that the hon. Member requested is in fact online on the Government's website; however, the issue is, I think, the class size, which I think can be easily ascertained by asking the question about class sizes in reference to those particular statistics which the Government have supplied online. That would be a helpful answer from the Government's side, but I think if those numbers could be crunched one more time, rather than spending inordinate resources on this question, we could have the answer.

1000 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if my colleagues in the Department of Education and I had wanted to come up with figures I am sure they could have come up with figures, but this goes deeper than that. Because these figures change, because it would not give an accurate representation of what the issues are with special needs, it was felt that the exercise would have been futile as well as onerous.

1005 Certainly, we can look at it and I think the Hon. Mr Phillips' suggestion is helpful, but we have got to be cautious in how we interpret these snapshots, because snapshots do not reflect what is actually happening in the classroom, necessarily. That is the point I was making.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

St Martin's School – Portacabins, new school buildings and bus

1030

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of the specifications as at 1st September 2017 of the enhanced acoustic conditions and sound insulation of each classroom at the two-storey portacabin at St Martins School (walls, ceilings and floors) and confirm they are suitable for children with special needs?
1035

Clerk: Question number 498, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1040

Clerk: Question number 499, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm that as at 1st September 2017, adequate internal and external lighting has been provided at the two-storey portacabins at St Martin's School, including emergency lighting?
1045

Clerk: Question number 500, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm what will be the procedure during winter for children attending the two-storey portacabin to go to the main building for scheduled activities or play time?
1050

Clerk: Question number 501, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1065

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state the cost of each portacabin at St. Martin's School, their location, purpose and the provider?

Clerk: Question number 504, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1070

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, will the Government consider a more inclusive approach for children with disabilities short term in order to resolve the portacabin situation at St Martin's and long term so that all children are educated as per their catchment or choice rather than their abilities?

1075

Clerk: Question number 505, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state where they intend to build St Martin's School and by when will the project be completed?

Clerk: Question number 506, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Can the Government provide details of when it intends to provide a new bus as promised during the Budget of 2016 for St Martin's School?

1085

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the toilets are within the portacabin to the left as one enters the school site.

1090

There are six children per classroom, taught by one teacher who is supported by three learning support assistants in each of the portacabins.

The ground floor cabin roof has been insulated with 100 mm rigid expanded polystyrene (EPS) to improve sound proofing.

1095

In relation to 498, yes, I can confirm this.

Q499: all electrical installations, inclusive of lighting, are EU compliant and have been reviewed, and adapted, if applicable, by the Gibraltar Electricity Authority. External lighting is not required.

Protocols will be in place to guarantee the safety and wellbeing of all the children, even during transition, if this is required. Indeed, procedures are currently in place throughout our schools.

1100

The internal area of each mobile classroom is approximately 50 m². This is comprised of three modular units measuring 6.00 x 2.40 m (43 m²) and one WC disability specification toilet facility measuring 2.90 x 2.40 m (7 m²).

Specifications, as in surface area etc., have already been answered in my reply to Q501. I think there is a slight repetition in Q502.

The information requested in Q502 by the hon. Member is set out in the schedule which I now hand to him; however, as additional information, I can reassure the hon. Member that the modular units comply with EU regulations and are certified under ISO 9001:2008 and ISO 1404:2004.

In relation to Question 503, the total cost of both Portman portacabins amounts to approximately £75,000. The ground floor portacabin was installed in 2016 for a total cost of £35,183. The first floor portacabin was installed in August 2017 and the total cost will be in the region of £39,000.

The modular classrooms are located in the patio entrance to the school adjacent to the main building structure and serves as two classrooms with individual toilet facilities that are situated for children with disabilities. Both projects were undertaken by GJBS Ltd and they were purchased from Portman Ltd.

1120 In relation to Q504, the Government will consider no such approach. The hon. Member clearly fails to understand the meaning of inclusive education and I would ask him to read up on the literature. The Government will not deviate from the path it has traced out in terms of delivering a new St Martin's. We also make absolutely sure that the needs of current children at the school are met.

1125 In relation to Question 505, the Government will be making the pertinent announcements when it is in a position to do so. And in relation to Q506 – the bus – the procurement process is underway.

1130 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, just turning to the first question which is Question 495, the Hon. Minister has said that the portacabin that he was referring to was the first on the left, which I presume is the two-storey portacabin. Can he confirm this?

1135 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I have said where the toilets are and they are the ones that he has referred to, yes.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I ask this because obviously I took in good faith what he had replied to in answer to a question prior to the Budget; however, it does not coincide with what he has said on social media. I will read what he said on social media, which is why I am particularly confused, Mr Speaker:

Now on the subject of the new pre fab extension. Incidentally, the toilets I referred to in Parliament were another building altogether and had nothing to do with this.

1140 Can he confirm then, if the toilets and the prefab extension he was referring to have nothing to do with the two-storey building – at the time it was a portacabin classroom and now it is a two-storey portacabin classroom – where the prefab extension he was referring to in Parliament is?

1145 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, absolutely, because the toilet I referred to at the time had nothing to do with that. That is where the toilets are, which is what I have answered today.

If you recall, Mr Speaker, the thing is I think so much has been made ... this is why I have to be cautious, because I try to offer assistance. If we go back to Hansard, this was in relation to a question on increases in St Martin's School and then I am asked:

Mr Speaker, I would like to ask one supplementary. Therefore, the portacabin that has been placed in the car park, I take it that is for toilet facilities or is it for classroom facilities?

1150 I did not know what he was referring to and I said:

Mr Speaker, specifically which portacabin is he referring to? There are several on the site.

– which is not so; there are prefab buildings, but I was working from memory. Right. So I was referring to prefab buildings. Then he said:

I believe it is the one where the bus usually did a three-point turn just as you go in in the main entrance.

At the time, I thought he was referring to the outbuilding on the right-hand side, which I believed was the toilets. Then I said:

The portacabin at that level, I believe, is a toilet facility.

1155 This was a totally noncommittal answer in good faith, answering a question which had nothing to do with the original question, and I have clarified where the toilets actually are, and therefore I think that is all I can add.

1160 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, just for clarification before I proceed with another supplementary, the original question, Q328, had nothing to do with students and pupils; it was actually:

What modifications to St Martin's School and Early Birds Nursery are being carried out or being planned in preparation for September 2017?

So, Mr Speaker, the question I did propose originally was relating to any extensions or works being carried out, rather than – 1165 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, if I may clarify, the supplementary was referring to the increase because in my reply to the supplementary I referred to the increase in pupil numbers.

Hon. L F Llamas: In any event, Mr Speaker, regarding the lighting, the Minister has said there is no need for external lighting in the portacabin; is that correct?

1170 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is the advice that we have been provided. It appears that the lighting that is there anyway through other external lighting is such that it does not specifically require its own dedicated light. Should it be found that it is necessary then clearly that will be provided at very short notice. But that is the advice that I have.

1175 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I would like the Hon. Minister to please reconsider that. Having looked at the Department of Education in the UK, 'Advice on standards for school premises,' issued in March 2015, I will quote what they had to say on lighting for pupils with special educational needs, and that is, Mr Speaker, that:

Pupils with special educational needs, including visual impairment or other disabilities, may have additional lighting requirements and specialist advice may be needed.

1180 Mr Speaker, given that this is a building which has steps which are external, it would seem that it is pretty obvious that this staircase, in particular, has to be illuminated and floodlights to the area have to be provided in order to increase the accessibility and the procedure in arriving into the classrooms.

1185 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, specialist advice has been given and if the specialist advice changes and I am told that we have to provide additional lighting I have said this will be provided. The advice that we have at the moment is that, clearly, there is sufficient lighting for that purpose.

1190 General advice is not relevant to specific locations. I will, myself, go there. I go there regularly, but I will, myself, go there after dark to ascertain it for myself, but that is not specialist advice. I am not a specialist.

Q507/2017
School classrooms –
Adequate heating

Clerk: Question number 507, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1195 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Will an audit be carried out before the cold weather starts to ensure that all schools have adequate heating in all classrooms?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1200

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, we continuously monitor this and, consequently, there is no need for a formal audit.

1205 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, there were many complaints last year about the heating. If there will not be an audit, what other solution does the Minister propose?

1210 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, precisely because of the fact that there were complaints, we have been monitoring this and the team is preparing an assessment. It is not going to be a formal audit because we are getting information from the teachers and so on. But, as I say, we are monitoring this and we are hoping that the problems that apparently occurred in some classrooms last year will not occur again.

Q508/2017
School lunches –
Update

Clerk: Question number 508, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1215 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can Government give this House an update on the matter of school lunches?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1220

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, an implementation model is being discussed to coincide with the launch of the new schools.

1225 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can the Minister give us any idea by when this launch will happen?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The eternal word 'soon'! But it is soon. We are developing the presentation and you will hear about it, Mr Speaker, very soon indeed.

Q509/2017
Supply teachers –
Government policy

1230 Clerk: Question number 509, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: What is this Government's policy in connection with the supply cohort of teachers?

1235 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
1240 Mr Speaker, I am not entirely clear about what the hon. Member is attempting to ascertain. Government policy on the supply cohort is based on demand across sectors and subjects. We added 47 new teachers to the complement when we were elected in 2011.

But I am not sure whether that is the information that she was requesting.

1245 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I was asking the question in relation to the fact that, from what I understand, the supply teachers are tied down to waiting to hear when they need to step up, while at the same time they are on a zero-hour contract and, basically, I know that many of them feel like they are tied down without being able to pursue other jobs by being on standby daily and they are not earning or having anything to do.

1250 So my question really was getting at whether there are any other jobs in Government Departments; would that be a possibility so that they do not go stale, as such, waiting for that phone call to supply teach? These are young teachers who might be losing time and experience in waiting.

1255 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, that second part of that question is not something that I can answer, but clearly there would be difficulties in having people on standby, but that is something that I think would have to be addressed separately.

1260 In relation to people being on standby, that is the nature of being on a supply list. It is not a comfortable thing to be on, but obviously the Department of Education has to have a policy by which it has people available to call in at short notice. If we did not have such a supply list then, clearly, we would be failing the education of our young people. There is a policy on when supply teachers are called in and I would be very happy to share that, but I do not think that is the point the hon. Member is making. I think that anybody on a supply list, not just teachers, would have to be conscious of the fact that it is a supply list and that this is the nature of such an arrangement.

Health care –

Hospital escalator; Septicaemia cases; GHA Tertiary Referrals Board and sponsored patients; Cancellation of medical procedures; Chemotherapy treatment; UK GMC registration

1265 Clerk: Question number 510, the Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister provide details on the periods during which the escalator outside the hospital has been unserviceable since 1st January 2017?

1270 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with questions 522 to 528 and 535 to 537.

1275 Clerk: Question number 522, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1280

Clerk: Question number 523, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose since April 2012 a breakdown of each sponsored patient sent outside Gibraltar including: (a) the hospital centre attended; (b) the length of stay; (c) the care received; (d) the cost of the trip; (e) whether it was a first visit or first review?

1285

Clerk: Question number 524, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1290

Clerk: Question number 525, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1295

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm that all patients who have not been approved to be reviewed outside by the GHA Tertiary Board have had their medical cases formally handed over by the hospital or clinic they had been attending?

1300 Clerk: Question number 526, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain on what basis does their GHA Tertiary Board can conclude that a specialised consultant's surgeon patient care plan in a leading hospital in London, 'does not provide the optimal treatment for the patient's condition'?

1305

Clerk: Question number 527, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule of formal complaints filed against the GHA as from April 2012?

1310

Clerk: Question number 528, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm how many medical procedures have been cancelled since April 2012, and the reasons why?

1315

Clerk: Question number 535, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: What is this Government's policy with regard to where patients are entitled to have their chemotherapy treatment since the opening of the Ayling Buttigieg Chemotherapy Suite?

1320

Clerk: Question number 536, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1325 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Where does the GHA stand at present with the new regulation regarding the registration of doctors with the UK GMC?

Clerk: Question number 537, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1330 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, if I may, given that these questions are bunched up can I just say that I found out some of the answers to these questions in the press a couple of days after I had submitted the questions, which took me by surprise. I did not expect to find these answers in the press, but nonetheless I continue to ask them now.

1335 How is registration with the UK GMC going to benefit the population of Gibraltar when many specialists who are well experienced may not be eligible to register and revalidate?

Clerk: Answer the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1340 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the two escalators outside the hospital were unserviceable between 1st January 2017 to 15th February 2017. Currently, one of the escalators remains unserviceable since 31st August 2017.

1345 Mr Speaker, it is a disproportionately lengthy task to provide, since December 2011, the cases of septicaemia that have been reported together with (a) the hospital where first diagnosed and (b) the period a person was hospitalised, as this data would have to be manually retrieved and this would entail going manually through thousands of records.

1350 I hope the hon. Gentleman understands that, given the laborious exercise, it would have taken staff away from their principal role in the laboratory where these cases are recorded. I will, however, provide the hon. Gentleman with the information that has been retrieved over the last four days: there were 212 patients admitted via A&E between August 2015 and August 2017 with potential sepsis.

1355 In relation to the breakdown of each sponsored patient sent outside since April 2012, including (a) the hospital centre attended, (b) length of stay, (c) care received, (d) cost of trip and (e) first visit or review per individual, I am providing the hon. Gentleman with the only information the Sponsored Patients Department has been able to compile over the last four days. Once again, Mr Speaker, it would be a disproportionately lengthy task to provide the information that the hon. Gentleman requests.

1360 I hope that he understands that, given the high demands on the Sponsored Patients Department staff and their numerous duties, to collate the information requested would have taken them away from their principal role of ensuring safe travel and adequate care to the sponsored patient. I will, however, Mr Speaker, hand over to the hon. Gentleman a schedule with the information we have been able to retrieve:

Financial Year	Number of new patients sent	Number of review cases sent	Sum of cost for treatment and travel
2012/13	N/A	N/A	£7,922,909.51
2013/14	N/A	N/A	£10,667,162.77
2014/15	N/A	N/A	£13,094,326.65
2015/16	2624	4033	£14,372,871.97
2016/17	2786	3272	£18,085,482.18

Further, Mr Speaker, the GHA Tertiary Referrals Board makes its decisions based on all the available clinical information, which includes clinical reports, of course, from the other hospitals.

1365 It is the case, Mr Speaker, that all patients who have not been approved to be reviewed abroad by the GHA Tertiary Referrals Board have had their medical cases formally handed over by the hospitals or clinics they had been attending.

The Sponsored Patients Programme is designed to provide patients with clinical services that are not available in Gibraltar. Once patients complete their specialised treatment, follow up care will continue in Gibraltar, if the medical services are available locally.

1370 The information as to the formal complaints filed against the GHA, as from April 2012, is published on the GHA website.

1375 Mr Speaker, once again, it is a disproportionately lengthy task to provide figures for the number of medical procedures that have been cancelled since 2012, as this data would have to be retrieved from patient notes and this would entail going manually through thousands of records.

The number of medical procedures that have been cancelled since 2013, however, will be in the schedule that I will hand over to the hon. Gentleman:

	Patient Did Not Attend	Cancellations Medically unfit / Non-compliant with preparation	Cancellations Equipment Failure	Cancellations Refurbishment Works
2013	6	6	-	30
2014	12	22	10	-
2015	15	26	-	-
2016	43	15	-	-

1380 I hope, once again, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman understands that, given the laborious exercise, it would have taken staff away from their principal role in the Medical Investigation Unit where these procedures are performed.

1385 Mr Speaker, the Government policy with regard to where patients are entitled to have their chemotherapy treatment is first and foremost to provide the best possible medical treatment to our patients. It is precisely for this reason that the Government has invested in setting up the specialist unit to provide chemotherapy to patients locally. The unit has been hugely popular, to the extent that we are in the process of, in fact, expanding the service even further. Patients are entitled to receive the best possible care and we are proud to say that is exactly what they are getting at the Ayling Buttigieg Chemotherapy Suite.

1390 Mr Speaker, the regulation has been implemented in respect of the GMC as from 1st April 2017 and I am informed by the Gibraltar Medical Registration Board that the vast majority of practising doctors and specialists in Gibraltar have been licensed. There are a small number of doctors who are on transitional relief, most of whom are expected to obtain their licence before the end of the year.

1395 Mr Speaker, in respect of how the GMC registration will benefit our community – and, with respect, I do not accept the hon. Lady's premise of the question – the vast majority of doctors in Gibraltar, including specialists, have already been registered and licensed with the GMC. All doctors working for the GHA, for example, have been already licensed.

1400 The Government is supporting the remaining doctors to obtain their licences through membership of the Independent Doctors Federation and by other means. When the reforms are fully implemented, all doctors holding qualifications recognised by the GMC, whether they are GPs or specialists, will continue to be supported by the Government in maintaining their licences.

1405 These reforms are greatly important, Mr Speaker, for our community, as once the reform is fully implemented the people of Gibraltar can be assured that all their doctors have committed themselves to the UK standard of good medical practice, are undertaking an appraisal every year with a trained independent medical appraiser and are having their licences revalidated every five years, just as all doctors do in the UK.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I thank the Hon. Minister for his very courteous answer and – 1410 Mr Speaker: Before we deal with supplementaries there is a matter I want to clear up.

The Hon. Neil Costa spoke to me and has assured me that when his Department, the GHA, issued a press release on Tuesday – I think it was Tuesday of last week – on the question of GMC registration he had not seen that there were two questions on the Order Paper.

1415 I have accepted those assurances without reservation, but it gives me an opportunity to give Ministers some guidance. If Parliament meets on a Friday the questions are received on the previous Friday and the staff immediately email those questions to the Departments concerned. Obviously, on the first day that they are received, Ministers are not going to be working on the answers; probably civil servants in the Department will be dealing with at least the first drafts.

1420 But in order to avoid that we get a reoccurrence of when a press release is issued when there is already a question on the Order Paper, could I suggest that Ministers, that day, do have a cursory glance through the questions that they are down for answer, and that would give them an indication of the subject matter, and try to avoid issuing a press release in the interim.

1425 Having said that, there are going to be occasions when, because of an emergency, because of a question of public interest, the Government will need, on some matter or other, to deal with an issue that is the subject of a question and may have to issue a press release beforehand.

That is just by way of general guidance.

1430 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, if I may, just on a procedural point, in fact my understanding is that the questions do not go to the Department, they go to the Parliament team at No 6, that then distributes them to the Department. At least that is what I see from where I am sitting.

1435 In some instances, the procedure that the Hon. Mr Speaker sets out would be the best one to follow but, unfortunately, sometimes Ministers are busy throughout the day and will not get to see questions. But the House is ensured of the Government's goodwill in seeking to avoid issuing press statements about matters on which questions have been asked, where it is appropriate to do so.

1440 In this particular instance, I sincerely believe that there is the public interest in knowing that that particular deadline was up and that the application of rules in respect of doctors was applicable; and, as I understand it, this was something that was programmed to happen at that time regardless of the question.

1445 So I think this fits neatly within the exemption that Mr Speaker set out, which is a highly relevant one, of the public interest, where the Government cannot allow the Opposition to – and I will use language which I do not intend to be emotive or pejorative – gag the Government in respect of what the Government can say in the seven days or longer that may elapse before a question is answered, in respect of an item which may be of public interest, or which may be subject of what some people might regard as a ding-dong from Opposition to Government.

1450 So a press release is issued by the Opposition saying, 'The Government are terrible so-and-sos for a reason'; the same day the Opposition puts in a question, the Government cannot be prevented from responding that, 'Actually we are lovely blokes and not so-and-sos,' because the ding-dong is then subjected to parliamentary questions.

But other than that, I think we all endeavour not to pre-empt parliamentary questions being answered in the course of the issue of press releases.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Neil Costa.

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, just to, apart from associating myself with the explanation provided by the Hon. the Chief Minister, simply to say that certainly it was no one's fault other than entirely my own. I should have checked the questions before I issued the press release and I have no compunction in saying that I apologised to the hon. Lady when she brought it to my attention and I have no problem in doing so for the record across the floor of the House.

1460

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, thank you, I appreciate that explanation and I take it in good faith.

1465

Can I just ask a couple of supplementaries? I know that there were loads of questions bunched together, but if I just may.

On Q535, the chemotherapy arrangement, I understand that, from what I take from the answer, it seems like there is a slow process to migrate chemotherapy treatment to Gibraltar because of this new facility and I completely understand that. However, I was led to believe that at the moment existing patients had the choice as to where they took their chemotherapy treatment.

I have a few constituents who have come to me saying and showing me letters where they are not being given a choice and they are, effectively, being forced to have the treatment at this new facility in Gibraltar.

1475

It is causing them a lot of grief, because of course these patients have been having their treatment specifically somewhere else, whether it is Algeciras or Marbella or whatever, and they have developed a relationship of trust with their oncologist and it has caused them a lot of grief. They are spending a lot of time with dealing with emails and so on and so forth trying to convince the GHA to let them continue having their treatment where they are.

1480

Can the Minister give some assurances or something to the effect that these people do indeed still have the choice – existing patients?

1485

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I fully understand that a patient should wish to continue any clinical relationship with an institution abroad, but the hon. Lady should, I think, consider the context. The Government has spent capital and recurrent expenditure on repatriating certain services to be provided locally by the GHA.

1490

The reason being of course that when one is ill and has a serious illness like cancer, perhaps the last thing that one would want to do is add the unnecessary stress of travel, and it makes sense – it certainly made sense to my hon. predecessor, Dr John Cortes, and the Hon. Chief Minister – that where we can provide equal or even better services locally we should be able to do so. That was the aim of the Hon. Dr John Cortes and the Hon. Chief Minister inaugurating this particular chemotherapy centre.

1495

The hon. Lady should rest assured that any therapies that are not available in Gibraltar will continue to be provided by an institution abroad, but for those therapies, which include immunotherapies, chemotherapies, hormone treatment for adult solid tumours, that can be provided within the GHA, then it makes sense that they should be provided at the GHA.

1500

The Government having spent money on fitting out a state-of-the-art clinic and having trained and hired clinical professionals to be able to provide the service at home, it makes sense to provide it at home. Whereas, Mr Speaker, I certainly understand that each person is an entire world and some persons may prefer to go abroad, but in my experience when I had an operation my preference was to have had the operation done locally, had I had the choice, which I did not.

But it is a policy decision of the Government that if the same kind of treatment can be provided locally then we will be providing it locally.

1505 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I thank the Minister for this explanation. I just want to draw his attention to the issue of distance and making it more comfortable for the patient in Gibraltar because of lack of distance; but it is horses for courses really because there is the issue of trust versus distance. Some patients do not mind the trek to Algeciras for 20 minutes or HC, for example, in Marbella for 40 minutes, if it means they are seeing a doctor that has saved their lives over the last four years.

1510 Also I draw the Minister to a Chronicle article from 12th August where it says specifically that patients with cancers, including breast, prostate, stomach, lung and colon are given the choice of being treated at St Bernard's Hospital.

1515 So I think there is some sort of confusion, at least for the patient as to what the policy is. I would not be so assuming as to put myself in his shoes, but is it not obvious to perhaps take it as a policy that future patients or patients coming into the unfortunate world of cancer perhaps need to abide by this new policy, but the existing ones still should continue to have the choice until they finish their treatment?

1520 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I note the point the hon. Lady makes in relation to trust but unless the patient with cancer actually attends the Ayling Buttigieg clinic there will be no possibility for that patient to establish a relationship of trust with the doctor and nurses in Gibraltar.

1525 I can assure the hon. Lady that the patient who is having a service repatriated from the UK or Spain to Gibraltar is fully informed and advised, and I insist when I receive an email or a telephone call or a Facebook message, when people query the reasons why a clinical decision has been made to refer treatment to Gibraltar that the clinicians meet with the patient to fully explain.

1530 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, again, I thank him for the explanation, but it is at odds with this article which talks about the local suite, for example, 'only took on new chemotherapy patients as the GHA wish to refrain from interfering with ongoing treatment abroad.' It just does not add up. The Minister is not showing consistency.

1535 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am afraid she is reading the article out of context. 'For those treatments that are not available locally' – she is missing the second essential element of the definition. If the GHA provides a service locally and the taxpayer pays for clinicians, specialists, doctors and nurses and pays for all the clinical treatments, it would be, I think, a dereliction of us as the holders of the public purse to pay for all of that in Gibraltar but also pay for exactly the same treatment in the UK – in addition, and quite apart from the fact that every single clinician that I have spoken to has told me that certain patients should avoid travel at all costs and for the majority of cases of persons who live with cancer, they are certainly one of the persons who should avoid travel where at all possible. It is possible because we have the most magnificent chemotherapy suite established within the GHA.

1545 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I continue to see that the article conflicts with what the Minister is saying, but I will let that lie for a moment.

All I ask of the Minister is perhaps to establish better lines of communication with existing patients in order to assure them that their treatment is just as viable in Gibraltar if that is the way it is going to carry on.

1550 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I can assure the hon. Lady – I can assure her – that there is not an email or text or call that has come in to my office where I do not myself call the clinician, or my principal secretary calls the clinician, and insists that the patient and the families meet with them so that the process can be fully explained.

1555 We fully take the hon. Lady's comments that medical treatments are matters which need to be treated delicately and sensitively and compassionately, and that some persons will be happy to simply have the services repatriated from abroad to Gibraltar and there will be others who, because they have developed, as she said, a relationship of trust with an institution abroad, would prefer that the relationship continues.

1560 But, for all the reasons I have explained to her in this House, I can assure her that there is communication and if there is any example that she can point to me, either privately or across the floor of this House, where this has not happened, she only need tell me and I will make sure that a meeting is held with the relevant clinicians, the patient and the family.

1565 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I thank the Hon. Minister for his positive approach and it is very welcome.

Mr Speaker, the answers the Hon. Minister has given seem to suggest that there could be some value in perhaps reviewing the data-gathering practices of the GHA as to ensure that such data can be easily retracted, but beyond that can easily be processed and analysed by the GHA and the Government at large. Is this something the Government is committed to looking into?

1570 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I would not like to enter into a commitment across the floor of the House because I would first need to understand what it is that would be required. I can assure the hon. Gentleman that from the moment that we received the questions my office goes from fifth to sixth gear and have spent all week just working on the answers, and I have given him precisely all of the information that we have been able to retrieve without affecting patient care. You should not think for a second that I am trying to obfuscate or to be difficult. Indeed in one of the questions he asked from 2012 and I have given it since 2013. So it was not that back going ... but I can assure him that what we have available we do provide. I will go back and ask whether there is any way that we can better collate data to be able to provide to the hon. Gentleman.

1585 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, referring to one of the questions to do with sponsored patients and the way in which the board is analysing and deciding whether patients will be sent abroad or not, it has come to my attention, and I know the Hon. Minister is aware, that there are cases in which the patients are being declined the application to go abroad and it has come to my attention that there has been no interaction with the clinician abroad in terms of what the best way forward is, how best to treat the patient and whether they are happy to hand over the patient's care to the GHA and have a formal handover and discussion on what the care plan that the clinician in the UK, for example, had for that particular case.

1590 Is this something that is perhaps the odd case that is happening in the community or is this a policy that is being taken by the board?

1595 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think in the first place, given that this is a new reform – it was only started in May of this year – I think it is important to place the context. Of all the applications received for referrals to the UK, 80% have been approved – eight zero! – so the majority of referrals made by our GHA clinicians, once they reach the Tertiary Referrals Board, are actually being approved.

1600 So we are only talking about 20% of referrals that are not being approved and, as I have explained in articles in the press and also in press releases, the decision of the Tertiary Referrals Board is purely, solely and exclusively clinical. It is comprised of three senior clinicians, chaired by the Medical Director himself and basically the board considers whether or not the referral is necessary. If it is necessary then I can assure the Hon. Gentleman the cost is not an issue and the person will be referred.

1605 There will always be reports from the UK or Spanish hospital, and if there is not they would certainly request it; and if there are any questions then the board will certainly insist that the clinician calls, personally, the clinician in the UK or Spain to make additional contacts.

Indeed, it has been the case that due to further contact between the referring clinician and the UK or Spanish hospital, the GHA clinician has once again referred the matter to the Tertiary Referrals Board who have received additional information and has changed their view.

1610 So there is, in my estimation, seamless communication – although undoubtedly there will be cases where perhaps there are gaps in the data, but any gap in the data will be very easily resolved.

1615 Just one thing that he did say – and I am not trying to be picky – is that the UK or the foreign institution may or may not be happy to refer the matter to the GHA or release the care to the GHA. Remember that some hospitals to whom we refer our patients are privately run, so they will never be happy to refer the matter to us, because of course it will mean that they will stop charging us for those services.

Hon. L F Llamas: I fully understand, Mr Speaker, and the hospital I was referring to is one of the trusts with which the GHA has a reciprocal agreement.

Mr Speaker, also on sponsored patients, is the Minister, in light of the answer given to question 523 in this Chamber this morning, is he comfortable with the figures in the fourth column; that is the figures given for the sum of costs?

1625 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, unfortunately, yes.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, just going back to question 522 to do with sepsis, can the Minister confirm that there is a sepsis screening policy in place within the GHA on arrival at A&E?

1630 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the GHA has up-to-date protocols for the management of patients with sepsis and has used an electronic antibiotic guideline since 2016 to standardise treatment. The care of patients with life threatening sepsis or septic shock is managed by a multi-disciplinary team including A&E, the intensive care team, the medical team, the surgical team and our microbiology consultant, Dr N Cortes, who was appointed in 2014 – (Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No relation!) I say 2014 because he happens to be my cousin and I had nothing to do with it, and no relation to Dr Cortes.

1640 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries? The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Yes, Mr Speaker – and I am not entirely sure why my question, which was of a very technical nature and completely non-clinical, was lumped in with a lot of clinical questions which are obviously very important to those involved in those matters.

1645 Just going back to the escalator and the very first question that was asked – and I think the Minister said the escalator was at present out of service and had been since 1st August –

Hon. N F Costa: One of them.

1650 Hon. T N Hammond: One of them. Was it 1st or 31st August, I am not sure which. But could the Minister perhaps ... does he have any idea of when the escalator may be returned to service?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker. Simply to repeat, one of the escalators remains unserviceable since 31st August – I am advised that spares are due to arrive imminently with 1655 rectification works to commence on delivery; and the second escalator is still in service and has been set to remain in the 'up' mode until both units are operational.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I have a couple of supplementaries on the GMC questions.

1660 Regarding the 10% of doctors that are not yet registered, are these doctors within the GHA; what type of special assistance is going to be provided in order that they do register?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I advised the hon. Lady during the course of my answer, all GHA doctors have been registered and licensed by the GMC. As I have also explained to the hon. Lady during the course of my answer, the Government is supporting the remaining doctors to obtain their licences through the membership of the Independent Doctors Federation.

1665 The press release, to which she mentioned during the course of asking me the question, actually was issued because the Independent Doctors Federation arrives in the first week of October and we are alerting all private doctors who have been unable to register and be licensed by the GMC that we have this association coming to Gibraltar precisely to be able to help them complete their registration and licensing with the GMC.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Am I correct in saying – because the Minister has just said that all the doctors in the GHA have already registered – I thought, or I was led to understand, that 2% were not registerable; is that not correct, that 2% of doctors or two doctors were not actually registerable?

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, during the course of an interview I noted that there were three doctors who had not been able to register. Those doctors are receiving our support in order to be able to be licensed, but their issues relate to language difficulties. In other words, they have the qualifications obviously from the country next to us and they would be fully registerable here with us now, except that they have an issue with the language which we are helping them with and which we are entirely satisfied the GMC will accept – although I probably have jinxed it by saying that right now, but that is our sincere hope.

1685 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Regarding the fact that a lot of our patients go to Spain to receive treatment and of course there is no GMC licensing there, and considering how much emphasis and priority the Government has given to this body, how are these doctors going to be able to match up to such a body that we have the equivalent of in Gibraltar when our patients are receiving the treatment by Spanish doctors in Spain?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think it has to be put into context in the first place. The majority of doctors and specialists have already been registered and licensed by the GMC. Of course, as she will know, European Union legislation demands that a doctor's qualification in France be recognised in England and vice-versa, but each national jurisdiction has a right to add conditions which it thinks are important, such as being able to communicate in the language. So you may have the best neurosurgeon in Germany who wants to come and work in the UK, but if he cannot communicate in English then, in my estimation and indeed in the estimation of the GMC, it would make very little sense in employing the person because they would be unable to communicate with the patients.

1695 So we are in the situation which is exactly analogous to the one in the UK. A doctor who wants to register in the UK needs to become registered and licensed by the GMC and the only issue, if you are from the European Union and have a European Union doctor's qualification, is language. We would expect that doctor, whether it is in the UK or in Gibraltar, or indeed if it is a UK doctor going to France or a French doctor going to Germany or a German doctor going to the Netherlands, to speak the language.

So qualifications from Spain are entirely and automatically recognised here by virtue of our legislation and EU law, but it makes sense that they should also be able to speak in English.

1710 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Thank you for that. Another question: the time that it takes for this update and revalidation; will it have an impact on patient care, because it would take away some time from clinic work or surgical work? Has the Government put a plan in place in order for things not to end up ... there being a backlog that impacts on the patients as a result of this new requirement?

1715 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in the first place let me provide assurance to the Hon. Lady by saying that the GMC has now been regulating UK doctors for quite a long time and there has been no case reported or no complaint lodged that, as a result of the annual appraisal by the independent doctor and the revalidation every five years, there has been any backlog built up.

1720 I expressly, in fact, asked that question to the Medical Director and he assures me that will not be the case.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: One more, if I may. Will, effectively – I suspect that the Minister for Health will say no but I need to ask – will this not perhaps have a negative impact on doctors who do want to come to Gibraltar but really do not want to bother revalidating with the GMC? Would we lose doctors of high calibre as a result of this new scheme?

1730 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the whole purpose of GMC validation and revalidation is precisely so that the community knows that these are specialists and doctors who have been able to achieve high medical standards. Each GMC registered and licensed practitioner has to comply with a whole series of conditions and, of course, with principles. So the persons that we want in Gibraltar are, in fact, the GMC registered and licensed doctors, so the GMC registration and licensing will improve the quality of the medical care that we provide. (Interjection by the Hon. Chief Minister)

1735 Yes. Yes, the Hon. the Chief Minister brings up an analogy, which is that we would not buy a vehicle that has perhaps suffered failure of their MOT exam. So similarly we want to make sure doctors do pass their MOT and are happy and willing to submit themselves to such independent investigation and revalidation. (Interjection by the Hon. Chief Minister)

1740 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries? The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, actually I would like to thank the Minister for that last answer because it was interesting. I can see parallels in my own industry where, while you can travel anywhere in Europe with your licence, you do need to speak the language which is clearly a fundamental. So it makes perfect sense that that should be the case.

1745 However, back to the escalators! Just with respect to the last answer the Minister gave to the supplementary, that the parts are on their way, can I ask whether the escalators are still under any warranty or whether there is any additional cost in the current maintenance that is being undertaken?

1750 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the first instance of unserviceability of the escalators in January, we have not paid for that on the basis that the damage occurred due to heavy rains and our view was that they should have been able to endure the rains and therefore we were not paying it. In any case, the escalators at that point were under warranty period. The warranty period has now expired and I have not received any costing in respect of the spares or the works that will be required to be undertaken, but if he asks me on the next occasion I will be happy to provide it to him.

1760 Hon. T N Hammond: And, as is typical in any household, the warranty has always just expired when it breaks. Is the Minister satisfied that such a breakdown is acceptable in what is an expensive piece of kit? I think the total cost of installation of these escalators was in the order of £200,000, including the design obviously.

1765 Does the Minister find it satisfactory that shortly after the warranty should expire we found ourselves in a position where the lifts are out of service for the best part of a month, presumably, by the time that they are reinstated, and at further cost to the taxpayer?

1770 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, anyone who knows me will know the answer to that already. I shall be exploring every single legal avenue to ensure that we do not have to pay a penny for what has happened to the escalators.

Hon. T N Hammond: From which I assume the answer to the question is he is not satisfied then?

1775 Hon. N F Costa: Yes.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1835

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why they had communicated to the Supreme Court Judge on a three-year contract that his contract would not be renewed before the Budget, but failed to advise this House that the estimates being debated were in fact incorrect as they had been superseded by events in at least one Head?

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the Prison Superintendent has not yet issued the requisite notice under the Prison Act for the mandatory drugs testing of prisoners at Her Majesty's Prison at Windmill Hill.

I can confirm that the Parole Board now imposes drug testing as a condition of licence in those cases that it deems it to be necessary or desirable.

The legal fees paid by the Government in the successful appeal by the Minister in respect of the decision of the Parole Board were: his former firm, Isolas – £35,666.99; Blackstone Chambers – £68,590.

Given that the Judicial Service Commission is totally independent from the Ministry of Justice, question 514 should be addressed to the Chairman of the Judicial Service Commission.

Mr Speaker, the Government will make an announcement on the appointment of a Director of Prosecutions when it is in a position to do so.

The Gibraltar Courts Service does not retain information in a way that statistics can be compiled to ascertain the average time it takes from when the RGP charge an individual to full trial in the Magistrates Court.

Mr Speaker, the number of civil claims and the number of divorce, dissolution and matrimonial (DDM) cases issued at the Supreme Court each month from January 2014 to present is in the schedule I hand over to the hon. Gentleman:

The information as to RGP staffing levels is publically available information which is accessible to him in Parliament.

1880 Following a reassessment of the threat picture, the RGP reviewed its security posture and removed the armed officers on 17th July 2017.

In respect to the question the hon. Gentleman is asking on the Chief Secretary's communication to the former Supreme Court Judge, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the information already put in the public domain by press release 494/2017.

1885 Government is in receipt of a business case from the Royal Gibraltar Police, which deals with matters relating to human resources. Government is presently actively considering this business case in close consultation with the Commissioner of Police and the Royal Gibraltar Police Federation.

1890 The Government is actively looking at the possibility of alternative provisions for young offenders. Consultations are already ongoing between pertinent Government Departments and agencies with a view to finding a satisfactory solution.

At the present stage, we have identified a potential location, which we are actively considering, to determine if they are suitable to provide a secure accommodation and a detention centre.

1895 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just before we digest some of the statistical elements that the Hon. Minister has provided, just going back to question 511, I am quite surprised that requisite notice has not been issued. The question that was asked in January of this year relates to the mandatory testing of prisoners where the Minister said in response to that supplementary question I gave to him:

In respect of the mandatory testing of prisoners, I have now spoken with the Superintendent that it is in his view that there has to be mandatory testing working in tandem with voluntary testing.

1905 Given the statement that the Hon. the Minister gave in January 2017, is there any reason why the Superintendent has not issued that requisite notice, given the strong indication given by the Minister that these two bases for testing of drugs in prison should operate in tandem; and the fact that the requisite notice has not been issued in a huge delay from January? I would be grateful for clarification.

1910 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker. Without wishing to reprise the Q&A session we had on the last occasion that the hon. Gentleman asked me the question, I think that he knows that it is my view that we should have mandatory drug testing at the same time as we have voluntary drug testing – which, as he knows, is quite a successful programme at the prison.

He can rest assured that there is no one more eager than I to make sure that the Superintendent, who is the officer under law who has the power to issue the notice, does so as soon as possible. After various discussions with him, I am regrettably satisfied that he has not been able to proceed, for good reasons, which I will explain to him now.

1915 In the first place, we now have: an MDT suite, which means that they can include samples, they can process the samples; there is a sample storing area inclusive of a secure refrigerator; there is a computer and equipment store; and an adjacent holding cell that may be used to securely hold prisoners waiting to provide the sample.

1920 The reason why we have a voluntary drug testing programme and not a mandatory drug testing programme, I am sure he will have alighted on in his mind already, is that in the event that a mandatory drug test comes out positive then the law, in effect, empowers the Government – the Prison – to impose disciplinary proceedings; and to that extent we therefore need to make sure that there is – as he will know from his own defence of criminal cases – continuity of evidence, security of samples, even up to and including the laboratory and coming back. In other words, if there is a positive result which is then challenged in the courts and there are issues as to any of those legal matters – which I know that he is very familiar with – then that positive result may be challenged and the whole purpose of the system defeated.

1925 To that extent, I am advised by the Prison Superintendent that he is requiring meetings with the judiciary in order to be able to brief JPs so that once the programme is up and running they will be able to call a JP to be able to attend to the processes and make sure that any disciplinary process that is metered out – which could include adding to the sentence of the prisoner – is done absolutely properly and immaculately, procedurally and substantively. This is why it has not been instituted yet.

1930 On the other hand, the voluntary programme is simply a contract entered into between the Prison and the inmate, so the reason why the inmate is incentivised to enter the programme is because he will obtain an increased grade of privileges. But when the end result of a positive result is that you may have days added to your sentence, then he will be, I am sure, realising that due to constitutional and legal reasons, the manual that has been employed in the UK, which is, if he has read it or at least looked at it, quite a thick file that needs to be implemented properly. To that extent as well, I am advised that the Home Office in the UK does have permanent officials that deal exclusively and solely with the process of monetary testing in prisons.

1935 To that extent, the Superintendent of Prisons has advised me that in order for all of this to come together they will require an MDT co-ordinator, so that none of the different legal, constitutional and procedural pieces of the jigsaw puzzle are missed and then the whole effect and purport of the system is undermined by the fact that some important evidentiary piece has been missed and the positive result cannot be taken into consideration, and the JPs are not able to analyse the case and consider what is the appropriate disciplinary consequence.

1945 Hon. E J Phillips: I am grateful to the Minister for that full answer to the question regarding mandatory testing. Just to get to the nub of it, clearly we have the legal framework available to us to conduct mandatory testing in prisons; the difficulty is a question of resourcing and a watertight procedure that will lead to successful prosecutions possibly and also adding on of sentences.

1950 I understand that, but this legislation has been, in my respectful view, in place for a very long time. The Superintendent has confirmed, via the Minister in Parliament, that there has to be mandatory testing running in parallel with voluntary testing. When does the Government believe it will be in a position for these two systems to run in parallel, given the clear issues that the Prison has with facilitating and underpinning this legislative framework that we have had in place for some time?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am afraid that I am not in a position today to be able to give him a timeframe and do not want to do so when I know that we may completely fail that deadline.

1965 What I will ask the hon. Gentleman to do is – of course if he wishes – at the next session of Parliament ask me again and I will, as I always do, I meet with the Prison Superintendent at least monthly; and I will, when I leave the House as well, email him – I am sure he is listening to the exchange that we are having – to ask him to report on progress and see whether at some point soon I will be able to tell him: this is the date by which the MDT system will be in place.

1970 Hon. E J Phillips: I thank you for that answer.

Just so that we get the position clear in relation to question 512, the Minister did confirm that drugs testing conditions are being added on to those that are released on parole; but I am not too sure that he used the word ‘mandatory’; is it mandatory or voluntary arrangements? I was not very clear on the conditions. Will they be, I assume, mandatory conditions that are imposed as part of the release on the licence itself? It is just a matter that the hon. Member, Mr Feetham, asked me about a couple of months ago.

1975 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has alighted on the right answer: it is a condition of licence.

1980 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, in relation to the answer on manning levels in question 519, does the Minister agree with me that we should take seriously the statement by the Gibraltar Police Federation in respect of their statement that the RGP is woefully undermanned?

1985 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I really do not want to seem difficult, but on the basis that the hon. Gentleman clearly does not know the increase in levels, I do not think that it lies in him to ask me a question as to whether or not I agree with that analysis.

It is interesting that the Chamber of Commerce was able to extrapolate from the publicly available information that under this Government, RGP resources on manpower have increased by – they said – 30%. But the point is that there has been an increase under this administration and if he wants to ask me that, certainly, in a further session of the House when he has been able to consider the information, he is of course perfectly entitled to do so.

1995 Hon. E J Phillips: It is just the genuine concern in relation to, effectively, the Police union, the Federation, and its members releasing public statements about manning levels in our community of police officers – concerns that have been alluded to by the Chamber in relation to numbers of visible police officers on our streets, and indeed the RGP themselves who have said quite publicly that they are in discussions with the Government in relation to manning levels, but see the need for that increase.

2000 I am asking a genuine question: whether the Government now accepts that an entire review of the services that are afforded by the Royal Gibraltar Police in our community generally, given the fact that the RGP is a different beast to what it was 50 years ago ... We all have to accept that. They do much more work in terms of the fraud activity that they have done in terms of questions I have asked this House before.

2005 Insofar as the explosion of the internet and the particular forensic nature of the work that they conduct, it is quite clear that many of the representations that I receive privately in relation to this issue relate to manning level resources in respect of the day-to-day work of the RGP.

That is why I am asking the Minister if he would express his view, or express at least an indication of the Government’s view as to whether they agree with the Federation’s comments and also the comments by other bodies in our community.

Mr Speaker: The Minister is not required under the Rules to answer that question – whether he agrees with comments made in public. He can if he wishes to, but the Rules do not require that he do so. It is a matter for him.

2015

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, all that I will say to the hon. Gentleman is that on the basis of the fact that there has been self-evidently an increase in resources, recurrent expenditure and capital by this administration in respect of RGP resources and manpower, I think he can take comfort from the fact that when we receive representations from the RGP that different workstreams have increased or additional resources are required, that we do listen to them and it is self-evident from the amount of money that we are spending on the RGP and the increases year on year.

2020

In addition, I did say in answer to my question that we are presently actively considering the case.

2025

Hon. E J Phillips: Clearly, of course, the Superintendent himself has recently made statements in relation to the surpassing of the budget very quickly, in fact, that is provided to the RGP in relation to the funds that they have to run the RGP. That just causes many people concern about the way in which everyone is working, what we are meeting, the demands on our police service who do an excellent job in our community of keeping us all very safe. But those concerns are, with respect, quite genuine and I appreciate that the Minister may not want to answer entirely on this question, but I am grateful for his reassurance that this is under active review, given the resources that are required to man a security service that we have.

2030

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, given that the hon. Gentleman has referred to comments made by the Superintendent, I think it is important that I contextualise those remarks.

2035

The Superintendent was referring to the need to increase visible patrolling and security as a result of atrocities in different parts of the world, and therefore there was an increase in the overtime allocation. That was the only extent to which he was referring to the fact that there had been an excess in the spending of the Government on the Police for this financial year.

2040

I receive a monthly financial report from the RGP and there have only been instances following the atrocities in different parts of the world that there has been a need for an increase in presence for security and other reasons, and there has been therefore an increase in overtime.

2045

But that, as I understood the comments made by the police officer to the Chronicle, I believe it was, it related to the need for additional patrolling and additional security resources, and that only reflects as additional overtime. When we come to debate the estimates at the beginning of the next financial year, he will see that the increase only relates to that subhead.

2050

Hon. E J Phillips: I think one of the statements, just from memory now, is that the Superintendent himself confirmed that the redeployment in relation to unexplained deaths recently had caused an issue with that as well. I do not think it was solely related to incidents across the world relating to terrorism, but it also related to unexplained deaths, I believe is the more accurate version of that. But I am grateful for the answer and hopefully we can have further dialogue privately in relation to this matter.

2055

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman, in fact, is entirely right. From the financial report I received, there have been two occasions for overtime and for a particular investigation. He is right.

2060

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his response in respect of question 520, and that is the arming of RGP and local enforcement agencies at sea. If I understood the Minister correctly, that actually ended on 17th July following, what I think he said was, a security review.

2065 I would be interested to hear from the Minister in terms of the protection of these law enforcement agencies at sea where perhaps the threat level is not something that is covered by intelligence, obviously it will be something that they will meet on a day-to-day basis. I think there was a report yesterday in a local paper – although the RGP have denied the veracity of that report – as to shooting incidents and whether the policy ...

2070 Again, I would be grateful if the Minister could indicate who would make that kind of decision as to whether the marine services should be armed, whether it is a preventative or reactive policy; because obviously it may be that they will not know until they get out to sea what kind of threat they are facing.

2075 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman and the whole House, I am sure, will be delighted to know that those decisions are made by the RGP and has no input from the Government.

Q521/2017
Social care abroad –
Repatriation of service users

Clerk: Question number 521, the Hon. L F Llamas.

2080 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details as to when they expect to repatriate service users currently receiving social care abroad?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

2085 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I do not accept the hon. Gentleman's premise of his question, because it implies that there is an expectation that all service users currently receiving social care abroad are to be repatriated. The common denominator in determining if and when a service user is repatriated is based solely on what is in their best interests.

2090 Service users in UK have an Independent Mental Capacity Advocate allocated to them, who act as a safeguard in advocating on their behalf. Independent Mental Capacity Advocates play an instrumental part in making best interest decisions for people who lack the capacity to make specific important decisions such as where the person should reside.

2100 I can confirm that at present repatriation plans are underway for two service users who are currently receiving social care abroad. Both of these service users have transition plans in place, which are devised in partnership with both professionals and family members.

2105 Given the complexities of the transition process, and how each step is guided by best interest decisions, it is not possible to quantify whether this will happen. However, Mr Speaker, please rest assured that regular placement reviews, case conferences with family at a senior management level to look at short-, medium- and long-term plans for each service user periodically take place.

Q529-530 and Q534/2017

Primary Care Centre –

Online appointment cancellation; Calls to the centre; New health visitor

Clerk: Question number 529, the Hon. L F Llamas.

2110 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the online cancellation of appointments system is down, and since when?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

2115 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with questions 530 and 534.

Clerk: Question number 530, the Hon. L F Llamas.

2120 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a monthly schedule showing how many calls the Primary Care Centre has handled since April 2016 to date?

Clerk: Question number 534, the Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

2125 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Has the new health visitor at the Primary Care Centre been through the standard interview process before taking on the post?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

2130 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the online cancellation of appointments is functioning correctly.

We are only able to provide figures for calls handled since 13th March this year, as the volume of data required to store this historical digital information is enormous and quickly exhausts our data storage capacity.

2135 The figures for March to August, Mr Speaker, are as follows:

Month (2017)	Calls handled
March (13th to 31st)	6,709
April	8,154
May	10,493
June	10,158
July	9,372
August	11,056

Mr Speaker, the notable increase in calls handled from May 2017 onwards can be explained by the positive changes in the PCC, including having up to eight clerks staffing the telephone lines during the peak periods each day, and the addition of the telephone sick certificate line.

Mr Speaker, there is no new health visitor at the Primary Care Centre.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, just coming back to question 529, with regard to the online cancellation appointments system, is it possible then that perhaps the link, the web address given on the appointment schedules is wrong, because it does come up with an error message and it does not take you to the portal in order to cancel the appointment?

2145

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not know whether perhaps we are looking at different things. We tested it, as he would have expected, and the IT Department assures me that there has been no time during the course of which there has been any interruption to the service. Even when there was a migration from the old GHA website to what I think is the vastly improved current GHA website, the online functionality, I am assured, has been maintained.

2150

So perhaps behind the Speaker's chair he can refer to me to which link he refers.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, on 21st June, me, myself and Neil Costa, the Hon. Minister for Health, had a very heated discussion about this health visitor that had not been appointed yet.

Today, from my understanding, this candidate is sitting in the health centre – the old health centre, the new Primary Care Centre – and, from what I understand, the interview process has not yet taken place or rather was going to take place after she was sitting at her desk.

Is the Minister going to tell me that she was not appointed as health visitor at the time, because we are talking about the same candidate who is sitting at the Primary Care Centre prior to having had her interview?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the question asks whether the candidate has undergone the usual process and, again, I do not wish to relive the lengthy exchange that we had on the last occasion. I even went as far, Mr Speaker, to tell her that within the GHA, having different strands, the PCC, the hospital and Ocean Views, it makes perfect sense to me that if the Director of Nursing wanted to redeploy different nurses of different grades to different parts of the GHA she should be able to do so if there were clinical demands.

2165

In other words, if a particular nurse or particular nurses were needed in one ward over another or there was a need for additional nurses in Ocean Views for any particular reason, the Director of Nursing should feel entirely comfortable and free to be able to allocate the resources of the GHA where they are best needed. After all, nurses work for the GHA; they do not work for a particular ward.

2170

But the hon. Lady should rest assured that the GHA is following, in this case of health visitor, the regular route and an advert has been issued and the closing date has already gone by and interviews will be held.

2175

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, interviews will be held but this candidate is already sitting at the post, is that right?

2180

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, once again, we have had this sort of exchange before where the hon. Lady receives information and comes to this House asking me to verify information that she has received. We are not here, with respect to her – and she knows that I have great affection for her – we are not here to comment on what people hear or do not hear.

2185

What I am telling her, Mr Speaker, in answer to the question that she posed to me, was whether or not the usual advertising procedure for the post of health visitor has been followed or will be followed, and I have assured her that, notwithstanding that the Director of Nursing has every right to be able to allocate any nurse to any part of the GHA, we are following the usual vacancy procedure, the advert has gone out, the closing date has come and gone, and there will be an interview process.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I am sorry to labour this point, but I just want to say it for the last time, just to make myself clear that the issue that I have – and I think that most people would agree – is that it just looks like a complete mockery of the system when you have the post 2195 holder sitting at the desk prior to an interview, and let's see in a few weeks if that person gets the job. Basically, it is making a farce of the entire process. This is the question I was asking and we still do not have an answer. All we have to do, I suppose, is wait a few weeks, see if that person gets the post and then obviously will come back to the same thing.

2200 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, that was a statement and a repetition of statements, and not a question. But given that she has made statements, I will answer the assumptions that she wrongly makes.

In the first place, Mr Speaker, she is making statements on an assumption that I have not verified. I have already told her that I will not be drawn into comments and rumours that she 2205 hears in the street or whether she has heard it in the street or she has been written to.

Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady, with respect to her, should, I think, measure her words a bit more carefully. The GHA is full of consummate, dedicated, passionate, incredibly hardworking individuals and professionals, and in my 10 or 11 since that I have been the Minister for Health, and I have been honoured with that position, I can assure her that if there are people in this 2210 world who are going to go rigorously through processes and who are going to be whiter than white and above board, and follow processes, especially for the selection of candidates, it would be the GHA.

Let me state in this House, Mr Speaker, and anywhere else, that I have the fullest, the most wholesome, fulsome confidence in any person that sits at a selection board for the GHA – 2215 because I know for a fact that they will choose the best person for the job, be that person whoever he or she is.

Mr Speaker: I think as the Minister for Health has now finished answering his questions, this might be a convenient moment in which to – 2220

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Indeed, Mr Speaker. I now call on the House to recess until 3.30 p.m. this afternoon.

Mr Speaker: The House will now recess until 3.30 p.m. this afternoon.

Questions for Oral Answer

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND TELECOMMUNICATIONS

Q538-544 and 553/2017

Government Finances –

Public debt; Total liquid reserves; Revenue and expenditure; Community Care investments and accounts; New £1 coin; General Sinking fund; Housing estates mortgage spending 5 Clerk: We resume with Answers to Oral Questions.

Question 538. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government please provide the total Gross Debt, Aggregate Debt after application of the Sinking Fund to Gross Debt, Cash Reserves and Net Debt figures for Public Debt for the following date, being 1st July 2017?

10 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications (Hon. J J Bossano):
Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 539 to 544 and 553.

15 Clerk: Question 539. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government please advise the total liquid reserves figure and its constituents namely Consolidated Fund, Improvement and Development Fund, Government Owned Companies, deposits, contingencies and other funds for the following date, being 1st July 2017?

Clerk: Question 540. The Hon. R M Clinton.

25 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government please advise how total liquid reserves are invested/held giving details of all bank/savings bank accounts and cash held for the following date, being 1st July 2017?

30 Clerk: Question 541. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, will the Government confirm that it will, as per last year, provide a six-month statement of revenue and expenditure to 30th September 2017 and if so when is it anticipated it will be provided?

35 Clerk: Question 542. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise what financial oversight or monitoring does it perform over Community Care and its investments and what are the latest audited accounts of Community Care and its companies that are in the Government's possession?

Clerk: Question 543. The Hon. R M Clinton.

45 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise if it is to introduce a new design for the Gibraltar £1 coin given that the UK £1 coin is to be withdrawn in October 2017?

Clerk: Question 544. The Hon. R M Clinton

50 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise the balance on the General Sinking Fund at 1st July 2017?

Clerk: Question 553. The Hon. R M Clinton.

55 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise how much of the net £275 million raised from the mortgage of the housing estates has been spent and on what?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

60 Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, the figures requested for 1st July are:

Gross Debt	447.7
G. S. Fund	5.2
Aggregate	442.5
Cash	114.5
Net	338

The position regarding the total liquid assets composition when, where and how these are invested on a particular date chosen by the Member opposite continues to be as previously stated.

The six-month estimate of revenue and expenditure will be provided as per last year.

65 Community Care is an independent charity which was set up in November 1989 with the specific purpose of providing support to our senior citizens. No Government, since its inception, has ever introduced any financial oversight or monitoring of the charity and there is no intention to change this. Regarding the audited accounts of the charity, I understand that the most recent accounts are for the year 2014/15.

70 It is the intention to introduce a new design £1 Gibraltar coin.

With regard to 553 there has been no change since the answer to Question 298/2017.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his answer.

75 If I can start perhaps with the easy question, 543, the £1 coin. If he recalls we did touch upon this in December 2016 in a supplementary to Question 893 when there was a discussion about the use of coins in the coin machines in Gibraltar.

80 Can the Minister give an indication as to when this coin is likely to be introduced, given that obviously the banks in Gibraltar are having to deal with the withdrawal of the old UK pound coin and the new design, and of course the Gibraltar £1 coin looks very similar to the old UK coin and they have to literally eyeball these coins to separate them from the Gibraltar £1 coin.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the problem, as I mentioned at the time, is the availability of the blanks which are only available from the Royal Mint that produces them for themselves and sells them to the Tower Mint, which is the one that mints the Gibraltar coins. In effect, until they tell us that they have got a sufficient quantity to spare, we are not able to fix a date.

85 The position of the Royal Mint is, not unreasonably, since they have got a deadline of October after which their coins will no longer be usable in shops, they are clearly using all the available supplies in order to be in a position to replace the millions and millions of coins that will cease to become legal tender in October. Presumably, after October, the situation may improve because there will still be, it is calculated, several millions in the system that will be accepted at the Mint but will no longer be accepted in the retail trade. So hopefully, by the end of this year, they will have caught up with their own backlog sufficiently to make blanks available for us, and then it would be the 2018 coin set of Gibraltar that will include the new coin. In any coin set we do for the remainder of this year, we will be using the old design of coin.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his clarification.

100 Has the Government presumably already designed this new £1 coin? Obviously the volume in circulation in Gibraltar is a lot lower than in the United Kingdom so hopefully we should be able to get some blanks off the Royal Mint in the UK. But I presume you have already got the design prepared and it is just a question of placing an order? And how long does it take between placing the order and receiving in terms of the lead time to receiving coins?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, it takes a couple of months to get the design approved in fact because it is a lengthy process.

105 The designs are usually produced by the Mint, we do not have anybody doing designs in Gibraltar. We give the theme to the Mint, and the Mint produces a number of designs which are looked at by the Minister for Finance, who is responsible technically for coinage, and then it is sent to the Governor and then it is sent to the Palace, and then the Palace sends it back to the Foreign Office, the Foreign Office sends it to the Governor, the Governor sends it to the Minister for Finance, and then it comes to me and eventually the coin is done!

110 So the whole process takes six to eight weeks. And we are not at the start of that process because when we do the new coin it will not be the only coin we do, we will do an entire new set with that new coin and we will see if there are any other changes in the United Kingdom in the offing for 2018 which we will incorporate at the same time. But our coins clearly are going to be legal tender for quite a while yet.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his comprehensive response.

120 Just going on to Question 541, I am grateful that he will give another six month statement to rolling expenditure. In terms of when we could expect it, would it be January, as per this year?

Hon. J J Bossano: I am sorry, I did not follow. What is it you are expecting for this year?

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes, sorry, Mr Speaker, I will clarify.

125 Question 541, the six-month statement of revenue and expenditure: could we expect it in January 2018 as we did this year? I think we got it in January or February 2017.

Hon. J J Bossano: I think it was slightly delayed but the expectation is the same as the expectation of last year that it should be ... This is really driven by how late things come in, because in fact once the Treasury is satisfied that the figure for September is reasonably accurate in terms of how close it is to the estimates, or that it may be over the estimates in some areas, then they do not expect that there will be stuff in the pipeline which has to still be processed. But historically by December it has reached a point where you can be fairly comfortable about the level of accuracy.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, again I am grateful to the Minister for his confirmation on that.

Turning to Question 542, is the Government saying that in terms of the Community Care charity, which I recognise is an independent charity, that it does not receive information regularly from the charity? And did I hear him correctly in saying the last accounts were 2014/15 which I presume would be to June 2015?

Hon. J J Bossano: We do not receive information regularly because in fact the information that really we get from the charity is not so much about when the accounts are finished or not finished but it relates to the commitments of the payments that we have got and the number of people who are receiving payments. That information is based predominantly on us looking at what are the requirements they are facing in terms of their commitments for the Household Cost Allowance for Community Officers, for the widows' benefits – those are the things that they keep us informed about because monitoring that gives us the picture of the liabilities that are going to be the recurrent expenditures.

It has to be understood that we have got a commitment to provide them with money every year which we have to be confident will be over what they are likely to be spending because the commitment of this Government is to increase their reserves. Before, the position was that the Government of the GSD did not have the same commitment to maintain the reserves so their interest was to be sure that they were not running out of cash because they were not putting money in, unless it was that the reserves had been used up.

To my knowledge, the level of information that the Government gets today is the level that I used to get in 1989 and the level that was given to the previous Government in the intervening 15 years. It has always been thought important that the connection between the Government and the charity should be as minimal as possible for self-evident reasons.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister again. Just to clarify, the last accounts he has in his possession, would those be June 2015?

Hon. J J Bossano: To my knowledge the last accounts that they were auditing were 2014/15 but I am not saying it was in the Government's possession because I do not think it necessarily means that they actually give us an account every year. But I have asked what are the last accounts that have been done, and I have been told from the charity it is 2014/15.

Hon. R M Clinton: Finally, Mr Speaker, I do not want to go on too long about Community Care. But does the Government have any – I would not say would they issue any 'guidelines' – but have any expectations in terms of how Community Care would be investing its surplus?

Hon. J J Bossano: The historical position has always been that Community Care deposits its surplus funds in the Savings Bank; that is what it has always done.

Q545/2017

Government Approved Contractors Scheme – List of contractors and trades

175 Clerk: Question 545. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a list as at the commencement of each financial year of contractors on the Government Approved Contractors Scheme and their individual trades?

180

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications (Hon. J J Bossano): No, Mr Speaker.

185

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, may I ask why? I understand that perhaps going back to each financial year may be complicated but perhaps the Hon. Minister would be able to provide the list as of now, or as at the commencement of this financial year?

190

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I would not be able to provide him with the figure at the commencement of each financial year, unless I knew that it was each financial year since the last election, or each financial year since the previous election, or each financial year since 1972 when I came in, or each financial year since 1704 when we captured Gibraltar!

195

But in any event we do not do the list by financial year, that is to say when I have asked they tell me they are not able to tell me, for example, who was on the list six months ago – the list is added to or removed from. In addition at the moment the list is being expanded, in the sense that it started off as the hon. Member may know from questions that I have answered going back a couple of years, some since he has been here and some before, the original figure that we inherited in 2011 was 91 companies which were the companies that were on the approved construction list. That was a special arrangement that was introduced in 2010 where, in order to be able to get construction work from the Government, you had to be on a list and you had to commit yourself to keeping your accounts up to date, to pay your social insurance and to give priority of employment to unemployed persons provided by the employment service to the company. Unless those conditions were met you were taken off the list. That did not mean that you could not work as a construction company but you were taken off the list of the companies that could do work for the Government.

We found that this was not being universally applied and therefore we actually expanded the construction list in our time, some were because about 35 or 40 new companies were created by small people who were unemployed, who had been in the construction industry – mainly people who were in their 50s and therefore had difficulty in competing. We helped them to set up little companies and those 30 or 40 companies were added to the list.

Since then, the other issue which I have explained previously to the former leader of the Opposition when he has raised it with me, was that there are companies of course that are put on the list only for the period that they are doing work here, because they are non-Gibraltar companies that are allowed to come in on specific contracts, but we only put them on the list in order to complete the contract that they have obtained. So, for example, if we have got a contract that goes out and they bring in specialist subcontractors for the Marina, the contractor for the Marina has to become a member of the approved contractor list and instead of having a definite date it will say 'until the completion of the work on the Marina', and then he drops out of the list.

So there is nothing significant about the beginning of the financial year. What I can do is... At the moment in addition to this, there is the computerisation that is taking place with the 225 Procurement Office and we are going to finish up with one list which is electronic and which will cover every contractor and every supplier, and that may even be publicly available so that anybody can log in and see it; but if it is not, when that is ready I will provide the hon. Member with a copy. I have not got more now than I could tell him what 'It was a week ago', but that would not mean anything because it is in the process of being expanded and being put in the electronic system.

Employee numbers

230 Clerk: Question 546. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Employment confirm if the 'Scheme' still exists, providing numbers of employees, or if it has been replaced by employing individuals through a recruitment agency?

235 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, from the way the question is drafted I am unable to decipher what 'scheme' in particular the hon. Member has in mind, although it is not for me to teach her how to draft parliamentary questions.

240 Given that the clue is that it is a scheme that has something to do with employment, I am assuming that the question is about the so-called Vocational Training Scheme operated by the GSD Government which existed in December 2011, when I became Minister for Employment. I know of no other scheme related to employment.

245 The hon. Lady wants to know whether it is still in existence in 2017 and if that is what she wants then I must say I am astonished that she should need to ask the question. What I ask myself is, where was the hon. Lady in 2011? Indeed where has she been since 2011?

I appreciate of course that there is no evidence that before she arrived in this place by hitching her wagon to the GSD and shortly afterwards unhitching it, the hon. Lady took any interest in schemes related to employment or anything else happening in this Parliament. Now that she is unhitched from the GSD it appears that she sees herself as the future first female Chief Minister and believes that this would result from what she claims to have introduced, namely a new style of political debate in this Chamber, to the support of which our citizens are flocking in masses.

255 I have to acknowledge that she has brought something new to this Parliament exemplified by the contents of this question. This is a level of ignorance that I find unprecedented in the short time she has been here and indeed in the long time that I have. Given how little she knows about the fate of the defunct Vocational Training Scheme and how it came about, I will enlighten her so that at least in this area her knowledge will be enhanced.

260 Although the Vocational Training Scheme which was in place up to 2011 was linked to employment, it did not actually have any employees as such. There were a few hundred individuals who were placed predominantly in the private sector, but with a significant number in the public sector, who were not deemed to be in employment with anybody – that is, they had no employer and were not subject to Employment Law. They had no employment contract, they had none of the entitlements to leave or anything else that the law provides; they were paid an allowance instead of a wage which was, however, well below the national minimum wage. These 'students', for want of a better name, ranged from school leavers to, in one particular case, an individual in his 60s. When the students left the scheme, which generally was after six months but in some cases had lasted for several years, they had no guarantee of 270 employment and it was a matter for the private sector employer whether they chose to offer them a job or not. Those placed in the public sector were not guaranteed employment either, although a few did get taken on, but I remember one particular case where a person was terminated from the scheme after seven years and was not able to do anything about it because she had not been employed by the scheme.

275 All this was fully debated and argued in the public domain in the 2011 General Election, when one of the most debated policy differences between the parties was the defence by the GSD, then in Government, of the scheme that they had – the Vocational Training Scheme – and the commitment on our side that we would scrap it if elected to Government and replace it with a strategy which we called the Future Job Strategy. This, in effect, would create specific training 280 companies, pay the national minimum wage, and provide a contract of employment to all those then in the GSD scheme and to other people wishing to be considered from the unemployment list.

The training companies came into effect on 1st February 2012 as I had promised that they would during the 2011 election campaign and have been operating since, and continue in 285 operation. This is public information which the hon. Lady should know from the fact that questions have been asked when she has been in this House regarding the persons in the training companies in anticipation of getting jobs in the private sector, where the difference, apart from the fact that whilst in training they are employees of the companies, lies in the commitment on the part of the employer with whom the trainee has been placed to employ 290 them at the end of the agreed period. These are partnership agreements with firms in the private sector which have led to an increase in private sector employment since 2012 for locals in areas where previously employers might have relied on imported labour.

So the short answer is that the only ‘scheme’ that has ever existed which had a connection with employment was the Vocational Training Scheme which was discontinued in January 2012
295 and had been operated by the GSD administration. Those persons who were in the scheme in January 2012 were transferred into training companies and given contracts of employment in these training companies, and those training companies continue to this day. All this, of course, is not new and has been raised many times in the course of the last Parliament and since the 2015 General Election.

300 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I am sorry to see that the Minister for Employment and Trade has treated my question in such an unnecessary, defensive and personal style by bringing up my past, my future which he has decided I am gunning for – I do not know if the hon. Gentleman knows me well enough but he seems to – and my style.

305 I was also just told by the hon. Gentleman that I have all of a sudden developed an interest in employment. Let me just say to the hon Gentleman, as well as to every Member of this House, that my only interest – and I always repeat this when people try to trip me up, as such – is people. So whether it is swimming, flying, employment, health, education or finance that is where I will be, and that is what I think is my job, despite whatever the Minister is trying to 310 accuse me of.

The only scheme that I was actually talking about was the Future Job Strategy which is a scheme that this administration of today came up with in 2011. The promise to those youngsters and to those students was theirs, and it is those students who feel cheated and feel that they have been given false hopes in part, and these are representations that come to me. It is not 315 something that I am inventing and I think that the Minister, with respect, would do well to accept that these complaints are coming to me and this is why I am representing them in this Parliament.

320 These are the questions relating to the Future Job Strategy that I was bringing up; that was the data I was trying to gather and it is unfortunate that he has spent so much time trying to judge me and come up with things that I think are irrelevant to this question.

325 But the point I was trying to make was that there is a lot of discontent among youngsters and I would have tried to ask the Minister what is going on with the Future Job Strategy – is it sustainable, and why is there a correlation between the complaints of the Future Job Strategy with the increase in recruitment companies?

Hon. J J Bossano: Well, I regret to say that her supplementary only increases my conviction that she does not have a clue what she is talking about. I do not know what complaints there are.

330 The original question was asking for me to confirm if the 'Scheme still exists'. The Future Job Strategy is not a scheme, it is a label that we attach to the creation of a company that employs people who, before they were employed in that company, were previously unemployed. The concept of a 'scheme' is something that disappeared in 2012 – she does not seem to know that because otherwise she would not have been using terminology which is not applicable.

335 Secondly, she wants to know if it still exists. Well, there is no 'scheme' that exists. There is a company that exists and she should know that it exists because she has been sitting where she is sitting there, and sitting somewhere else before that, and heard questions about the fact that there are people there. If she has a doubt about whether it exists, that is in conflict with her supplementary that the people who are in the scheme – that she does not know whether it exists or it does not – go to complain to her. If it did not exist there would not be anybody there, and nobody could complain to her.

340 So I am afraid that the question does not make any sense because if what she thinks is that there are no longer people being taken on in the training companies, notwithstanding the fact that we provide figures here to show that there are, then the second part of the question does not apply, because obviously if she thinks that the training companies do not exist and have been replaced by recruitment agencies – which I find very strange – the answer is the training companies, if that is what she wants to know, still exists and I have already answered that in the original question.

345 There is no indication here of anybody complaining about anything, but if she had some complaint about something from somebody then I think if she had put a question originally which reflected the complaint that she had ... I am sure nobody has come to us to say, 'Ask if the scheme in which I am working still exists', because there would be something wrong with the person if they asked that.

350 So, she has assumed presumably that the training companies have stopped existing and that we are not doing it any more, and if that is an assumption that she has made then it is incorrect, and if that is something she has been told, then she has she been told incorrect information.

355 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, once again, the Minister accuses me of not knowing what I am saying, and perhaps when you do not know something it is a good time to ask the question, which is why I brought the question to Parliament. If constituents are telling me, or asking me, if this scheme still exists, if the Future Job Strategy is still viable because they are not hearing anything, and they are not going anywhere with it, and I come to Parliament to ask the Minister what is going on with that, I am sorry that the Minister answers me in this way. All I am trying to do is to give him the space to answer these questions for these constituents, and these are the types of answers that I get in return, so I do not think it is such a bad thing that I am coming here to ask further questions.

I still do not have any of the answers clearly, really, and now I will finish off with a question: if we are talking about the GSD as he said, your Government changed the scheme, you closed that side of the way that the GSD used to do things. Where is the training aspect that the GSD used to provide, which clearly is not happening today?

370 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member stands up and says things that either she knows are not true – and I do not want to say that because that is something we do not do in this House, we do not to say to people, ‘You are not telling the truth’, so I do not want to say that. Therefore, I am left with only one alternative: if she does not know that what she is saying is not true, it means she thinks it is true. And she says, ‘Where is the training that used to be 375 done with the GSD?’

Where was she? Where was she when I gave the breakdown of the training of the construction and of Gibdock that is going on when I was answering questions from Mr Phillips?
Where was she that she thinks we stopped that training in 2011, and it has been going on all the time? It was going on before and it went on after. We did not stop the training of the people in 380 Gibdock in the construction, we doubled the pay of the people who were there and we gave them a contract of employment. Before, they were treated as if they were in school with an allowance of £300 a month and we came in and we gave them the minimum wage which was then just under £1,000 a month, we gave them a contract of employment, we gave them the right to protection against employment injury, we gave them the right to annual leave, we gave 385 them the right to public holidays, we treated them as workers – in fact, we introduced a national minimum wage at the age of 15 and we are paying our apprentices in Gibraltar almost double what they get paid in the UK!

Now, I know they may be complaining to her about it, because people in Gibraltar are notorious for complaining irrespective of what they get, that does not surprise me. But the point 390 is that she seems to think, firstly, that we have discontinued training, notwithstanding the fact that the information is in the public domain and has been given in this Parliament; and secondly, she is speculating in her original question that the training companies have disappeared altogether.

I cannot understand how she can justify the nature of her questions on the basis that is what 395 people tell her, which she is bringing to my attention, because the question implies that people are telling her, ‘We are not being trained any more’. Well, if they are not being trained any more, certainly I will want to know because I am paying for them to be trained; or, ‘We are not being employed any more’, and then I would want to know what is happening with the money that I am providing for wages.

400 So people are getting paid every month and people are receiving training every month. Some of the training is in training centres and some of the training is on the job where an employer commits to taking on the person; and the commitment, as I have explained many times, is done on the basis that we guarantee the first month to everybody, irrespective of how little training there is, so that the person does not have the argument of saying, ‘Well, look, I have to ...’. For 405 example, in some areas employers have said, ‘I have to provide a uniform and then I find out that after the first few weeks the person is failing to turn up for work, and everything else, and I have got to take on a new employee’. So there is a very high turnover.

Many employers in the private sector say to us that the people from the unemployment list – we do not necessarily believe it, it may be in some cases they are but it is not true of everybody 410 – are less reliable than people who come across the border. Well, obviously, one thing that is true is that I have been an immigrant worker in the UK and when you are an immigrant worker somewhere else I suppose you are more worried about losing your job than when you are in your home territory. But the fact is that providing through the company for the payment of wages for a period of time while the person is being trained and acquainted with the nature of 415 the work, means that in the period when theoretically the worker is less productive because he is not familiar with the job, we provide the necessary financial incentive to encourage private sector employers to employ Gibraltarians.

We monitor that by looking at the degree to which we have got more Gibraltarians in the private sector in employment. It has not been a huge increase, firstly, because not everybody 420 wants to work in the private sector, and secondly, because there was not a huge increase of labour available anyway. But there has been an increase in the numbers working in the private sector. It is still happening and we are still employing people and we are still paying them.

425 If she was more specific in pinpointing what it is that she thinks is happening now which has led her to say whether the companies have been replaced, then I might be able to provide her with concrete answers to specific questions. But at the moment the things she has said in her last supplementary are no more accurate than what she said at the beginning. It is not true that we have discontinued training and it is not true that the companies are not employing people.

430 It is driven by demand, so we say to an employer when they open their vacancy, 'We have got a person here that may have some previous experience of working in this industry, and if you are willing to take him on instead of asking for permission to bring in somebody from outside, we are prepared to make that attractive for the company financially by providing financial help' ... some of it we do with our own money and some of it we do with EU money. That is what was being done before, during the GSD years, and it was being done by the GSLP who were the first Government in Gibraltar to achieve money from the EU from the Social Fund for Employment.

435 It was a GSLP Government that brought this to Gibraltar and it carried on throughout the years of the GSD and it has carried on with us. It was partly Gibraltar money and partly EU funding and it is still there and it will go on presumably until 2019, and then after 2019 what we have said is it will have to be 100% funded by us, because we are not going to stop it when the EU stops giving us money.

CHIEF MINISTER

Q460/2017

Information Technology – Works outside of ITLD and costs

Mr Speaker: We will move on to the next question.

Clerk: We now move to Questions to the Chief Minister. We commence with Question 460. The Hon. L F Llamas.

445

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule since December 2011 of information technology works carried out which have not been carried out by the Government Information Technology and Logistics Department and the cost of each work?

450

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, before I start to answer can I just point out for those who are not in the House that this is a question posed to the Hon. the Minister for Commerce, Albert Isola, who is away from Gibraltar and I shall be dealing with the questions posed to him.

455

Mr Speaker, the information cannot be provided in the time available since the question was asked. On many occasions, there is an overlap between the purchase of equipment and services provided by the companies that supply the equipment, making the determination even more challenging. To provide the information for one year alone is a challenge, to go back five years is considerably more.

460

Hon. L F Llamas: Would the Hon. Chief Minister guide me in rephrasing the question by perhaps providing a cap on the cost of the works? Could that perhaps provide an answer in the future if I table this question again?

465

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am not here to advise him but I will do what I can. For example, I would suggest to him that if he looks at the Estimates Book there will be the cost of the complement of this Department and then there will be funding available for other works. Perhaps if he asks us for a breakdown of the type of other works which are undertaken by that Department he might there be able to see what is work undertaken by the Department itself and work undertaken by third parties.

470

I used to carry this portfolio and I can tell him, for example, the way that Government accounting works you might find that the ITLD Department is paying the Gibraltar Electricity Authority for works which are done by the Gibraltar Electricity Authority. So he will see a lot of that in the context of that breakdown. That is likely to be easily accessible for the year just gone and the year which we are in, and that might be an easier way of understanding how that Department spends the money which is not spent on the salaries of the people in that Department, etc. who are the ones working themselves at ITLD.

Q461/2017
Gibraltar International Bank Limited –
Audited accounts for 2016

Clerk: Question 461. The Hon. R M Clinton.

480

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise if it has, as sole shareholder, approved the audited accounts of the Gibraltar International Bank Limited for the year ended 31st December 2016?

485

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

490

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his answer. Is it possible for him to explain why the Government has not yet approved the annual audited accounts?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, because the annual general meeting has not yet been called.

495

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister will be aware that the audited accounts obviously exist, the FSC has a copy, but they have not been filed at Companies House presumably because, as sole shareholder, they have not been approved. Does he have any idea as to when the AGM might be called?

500

Hon. Chief Minister: I do, sir.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I would be grateful if the Chief Minister could enlighten us as to when that would be.

505 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, because I have an idea of when it might be called, it is not something that is fixed in time, it might change and I do not want to give this House information which may turn out not to be correct.

510 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, as anybody who works in financial services will tell you, banks usually compete with each other to file their accounts promptly. Can the Chief Minister indicate if, in his thinking, this meeting would occur before the end of this year?

515 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not for my thinking, because I am not the person who is going to be attending the Annual General Meeting or whose timetable is relevant, but the information I have at the moment is that it will happen during the course of this calendar year.

Q462/2017

Gibraltar International Bank Limited – Capital restructuring approval

Clerk: Question 462. The Hon. R M Clinton.

520 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise why it approved the capital restructuring of the Gibraltar International Bank Limited such as to convert its authorised share capital into two classes namely an A class with voting rights and a B class with non-voting rights and what is the purpose?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

525 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the capital restructuring of the Gibraltar International Bank was carried out pursuant to advice received and with the approval of the Financial Secretary. As the hon. Member knows, the new shareholder with the Government of Gibraltar is the Gibraltar Development Corporation, a Government-owned company; and its investment in the Bank is entirely consistent with its objectives.

530 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the Chief Minister's answer, and indeed a filing at Companies House dated 5th September shows that the Gibraltar Development Corporation has indeed subscribed for £6 million of share capital, ordinary B shares, of the Gibraltar International Bank.

535 If I may ask the Chief Minister why was this money not routed through the Improvement and Development Fund?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, because the Government decided it should not be, and it should be routed in the way that it was routed.

Q547/2017

Runway Tunnel project – Projected completion date

540 Clerk: Question 547. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, could the Government say what is the latest projected date for the completion of the runway tunnel project, including associated roads?

545 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the situation has not changed since the reply given in answer to Question 223/2017 which is that the completion date for the runway tunnel project is expected to be in the first quarter of 2019. The associated roads will also be completed by that time.

550

Q548/2017
Cooking oil –
Quantity imported

Clerk: Question 548. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, how much cooking oil was imported from 1st September 2016 to 1st August 2017?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, cooking oil is presently imported under 'other foodstuffs' (OF) in the Customs tariff; for example, Morrisons imports most of its food products as other foodstuffs, or OF, otherwise their customs declarations would be very time consuming to complete and an administrative nightmare to check – just to give the hon. Gentleman an example. I am therefore unable to single out 'cooking oils' and extract that data for the hon. Gentleman.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, bearing in mind obviously the importance of recycling where possible products such as cooking oil, particularly as opposed to other foodstuffs of whatever nature they may be, would the Government consider actually separating out items such as cooking oil in this case, just so that we can monitor how much is coming in and compare those figures with the amounts being collected, and we can get an idea of what then is being disposed of by means other than the most appropriate means, which would be to recycle? I only ask that question for Government's consideration.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as I understand it, unless foodstuffs are specifically required to be declared, there is no ability to drill down into the foodstuff imported, so I could not answer the question today with more particularity in relation to cooking oil, as I would not be able to answer it in respect to cookie dough, for example, or Smarties – that is probably a brand name I should not have mentioned, but 'chocolates of a particular variety coated lightly with sugar and bright colours'.

575

The reasoning there is not entirely national thinking. There is an international customs tariff which under WTO-style rules applies between countries that subscribe to the United Nations tariff structure for customs purposes; and there is a centre of excellence in respect of the United Nations Customs practice at the Gibraltar University of which we are all duly proud.

580

It is not therefore entirely in my view, given what I know of the subject, which is superficial, possible to do that. But I will certainly go back and check whether it is possible, going forward, to seek to require specific declaration of an item and whether there is a good reason that we should do that in relation to cooking oil, something which I shall consult with the Hon. the Minister of the Environment in order to make an informed decision.

585

590

Q549/2017
Bus fleet –
Enaction of buy-back clause

Clerk: Question 549. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, has Government given consideration as to when it might enact the buy-back clause on the bus fleet and if so, when might that be?

595

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes, sir.

Hon. T N Hammond: So, Mr Speaker, from that answer I ascertain that consideration has been given. Is it that the Chief Minister is telling me that he is not willing to answer the second part of the question as to when it may be?

605

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, 'giving something consideration', which is what the hon. Gentleman has asked me whether the Government has done, is not to say that one has reached a conclusion or decision, and therefore it is not that there is a consequent 'if so, when?', which runs from the first part of his question.

He has asked us whether we have given consideration; I have given the answer that we have given consideration, there is no consequent 'if so, when?' that necessarily flows.

Hon. T N Hammond: I thank the Chief Minister for his answer and I only followed up in the way I did for clarification and clarity over the point I was asking.

Is there any limitation on the buy-back in terms of time? Does it expire at any point within the contract, or is it open-ended and would it be as valid 10 years from now as it may be at the moment?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, from memory I am not able to give that information. If the hon. Gentleman asks next time perhaps I will be able to come with the detail.

Q550/2017
Gibraltar ID card –
Validity post-Brexit

Clerk: Question 550. The Hon. R M Clinton.

620

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise whether the Gibraltar ID card will still be a valid travel document for entering the UK post-Brexit?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, at this stage in the Brexit negotiations it is not possible to answer this question beyond speculation. The issue will, however, clearly be a bilateral one for Gibraltar and the United Kingdom.

630 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I raise this question because as the Chief Minister may be aware, in a recently leaked UK government document they kind of indicated that national ID cards may not be accepted as valid travel documents in the United Kingdom. I would just ask the Chief Minister to bear that in mind in his future negotiations.

Thank you.

635

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am grateful that he thinks he needs to bring matters to our attention for the list of issues. This is very much something that has already been the subject of consideration and has been a matter which, for the past year and a half, we have been dealing with in the context of heat maps, etc. that were prepared by the Office of the Deputy Chief Minister with their usual efficiency.

640

Mr Speaker, if he does think that there is an important point to bring to our attention for the negotiations, can I just say to him that the best way to do it in the interest of Gibraltar is to pick up the phone and call us, or to write to me if he wishes to put one of his inevitable stickers on the letter about how parliamentary and how urgent the letter may be – it is up to him. But if something is important for Gibraltar in his view as he says this is, and it is for the negotiations between Gibraltar and the United Kingdom, if I may say so, with respect, putting a question in Parliament is not the best way to advance Gibraltar's position in respect of matters to be put on the list for negotiation.

650 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if I could remind the Chief Minister there is in fact a Select Committee where perhaps these matters could be discussed and I would urge him to convene it sooner rather than later.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am surprised that he feels the need to ask me here to convene the Select Committee and if he has thought it appropriate that we should have a meeting of the Select Committee that he has not approached myself or the Deputy Chief Minister and asked that we convene one. We have just come out of a period of recess in the United Kingdom, we have been in continued contact with colleagues in the UK. There may be material to brief, or there may not be material to brief, until after the party conferences. But, Mr Speaker, this does not obviate the point I am making to him: if he thinks something is important to Gibraltar then the best thing to do is to tell us about it directly and not put a question on the floor of the House, otherwise one is left with the impression that this is something that is important for him to highlight that he has highlighted.

Q551/2017

Gibraltar Constitution Order 2016– Research paper commissioning

Clerk: Question 551. The Hon. R M Clinton.

665

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, has the Government commissioned any research paper into the Peace, Order and Good Government clause in the Gibraltar Constitution Order 2016, and if so from whom, for what purpose and at what cost?

670

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government is undertaking work on an analysis of that aspect of the Constitution. The analysis is being undertaken by Dr Hakeem Yusuf at the University of Birmingham School of Law. Dr Yusuf is not charging for his work. Disbursement costs of research assistants undertaking the necessary ancillary work amounts to a total of £52,286.60.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his comprehensive response. I did not quite catch the purpose of the research paper.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is an analysis in respect of that aspect of the Constitution.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if I may ask the Chief Minister, why does the Government feel it needs such an analysis?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I would be quite happy to brief him behind the Speaker's Chair rather than here. If the hon. Gentleman thinks that it makes sense to have that debate across the floor of the House I do not think he knows what these words mean, or what they have been used for in the past.

Q552/2017
Gibraltar's 'Great Repeal Bill' –
Managing and consultations

Clerk: Question 552. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise how it intends to manage the introduction of Gibraltar's own 'Great Repeal Bill' in respect of Brexit and what consultations are envisaged?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government will make a statement in due course about how it intends to manage the introduction of a Bill in respect of the repeal of Gibraltar's European Communities Act. It would be premature to say more at this stage

Q554-555/2017
Affordable housing schemes –
Detailed announcement and updates

Clerk: Question 554. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, further to the Minister for Housing's June 2017 Budget speech, can the Government advise what were the technical difficulties in respect of infrastructure that caused a delay in the affordable housing schemes; what is the change in footprint and when will a detailed announcement be made in respect of the affordable housing schemes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer with Question 555.

Clerk: Question 555. The Hon. L F Llamas.

715

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide an update on its affordable housing and government rental projects?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, an announcement on the new affordable housing schemes will be made before the end of September. The changes and the technical issues that gave rise to them will be apparent then.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his answer.

Is there anything in respect of these technical difficulties that is in any way confidential that cannot be disclosed to this House now?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the technical issues that gave rise to the changes will be apparent when we make the statement; and when we make the statement the hon. Gentleman will be able to understand what the reasoning behind the decision to move away from the original designs and the geographic changes arises from.

730

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, would the Chief Minister be able to confirm that Hassan Centenary Terraces and Bob Peliza Mews are going ahead, albeit perhaps on a different footprint?

735

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, as I have already said – in fact I believe I confirmed that during the budget session to a question that was from the hon. Gentleman if not in identical terms then in almost identical terms.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, with reference to Question 557, the Hon Chief Minister states that the doors are wide enough to accommodate a wheelchair and pram, and suitable for the elderly. However, they are extremely heavy and only two nights ago on City Pulse we saw a wheelchair user trying to open the doors and saying that the doors were probably the heaviest he has had to manoeuvre with.

Is it not possible to adapt these doors, given that it is a new build and it should have been taken into consideration at the time that these doors should have been automatic, or with an 830 automatic feature on them in order to enable wheelchair users in particular, as well as the elderly and parents with prams to access the building in a much more friendly way?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I was struck by that and it is something that is being looked into. I do not think necessarily this is the sort of facility that is seen in car parks, because car park doors have particular characteristics which are a requirement as to fire retardant capabilities. But it is something that is being looked at in the context of ensuring that those types of difficulties can be married with the requirement for the doors to be of a particular weight and type.

Boats –

Numbers imported and import duty paid

Clerk: Question 565. The Hon. L F Llamas.

840

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose how many boats have been imported since they waived import duty on boats, and the value of each?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

845

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer with Question 566.

Clerk: Question 566. The Hon. L F Llamas.

850

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose since December 2011 how much import duty has been paid regarding the importation of boats?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, since 1st July 2014 a total of 907 vessel import licences have been issued, with a total value of £16,312,395 – that is the date of the waiver.

Between 9th December 2011 and the waiver of import duty, £207,895 was collected over those three and a half calendar years.

Q567/2017

Ocean Plaza construction and fitting out – Estimated import duty

Clerk: Question 567. The Hon. L F Llamas.

860

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose what the estimated import duty revenue would have been for the construction, fitting out and equipping of Imperial Ocean Plaza had it not been waived?

865

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, £440.66.

870 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, going back to a question asked back in June by the Leader of the Opposition, the reason for waiving the import duty was explained as having been paramount for the project to have succeeded. Surely £440 would therefore not have pushed the developer enough in order to complete the project.

Could the Chief Minister explain the rationale behind the £440, please?

875 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am told that Imperial Ocean Plaza is presently a derelict site and that the works done there have been of very little value and that the import of equipment, etc. has been very minor and therefore that is why the figure in £440.66. If it is any consolation I get very confused about the names of the Ocean Village Towers as well!

880 Hon. L F Llamas: Would the Chief Minister know what the estimated import duty would be for the project, and the figure that the Government considered at the time of whether they waived the import duty or not?

885 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not have that number with me. I do not know whether the calculation was based on Imperial Ocean Plaza or it was based on the gross development value and then extrapolation from there, which is not something that the developer gives us but that we consider. But it is not in respect of Imperial Ocean Plaza and its particular fitting out, etc. it is not based on a brochure or description of what this particular developer may eventually issue publicly as the fitting out that they will do there. I think it is based more on an analysis by the Financial Secretary's Office of what is the type of accommodation that is being designed, is it 890 the sort of accommodation for which we would approve Category 2 citizenship, therefore what is the m² cost and what is the gross development value, what is therefore the potential value of building materials that would be used, and therefore what extrapolation can you do from that. That analysis I do not have with me today for this particular project.

895 I cannot recall entirely, but if I may just remind the hon. Gentleman in respect of matters that were discussed at length in this place and in fact in the media, at the time that we were first elected and at the time of the 2011 General Election from memory – and relying also on the memory of the Deputy Chief Minister – but no more than that I would have to go back and look at it in detail. The waiver of import duty in respect of Ocean Village projects was a waiver entered into in a composite agreement entered into between the former administration and the 900 Ocean Village developers, not by this administration. So it may be that we inherited that aspect of the calculation and were persuaded to keep it either because it was relevant for the banking of the project, which all developers say these waivers are; and/or in addition because we might have had advice to suggest that this was a commitment already entered into on which the developer had detrimentally relied, which is the legal position. But I cannot exactly remember, 905 talking about this particular tower, what the issue was.

Hon. L F Llamas: I would just indulge one final time, Mr Speaker.

910 If I table the question for next month would the Chief Minister be able to provide the estimated figure for this particular tower?

Hon. Chief Minister: With all the caveats that I have given, Mr Speaker, to suggest that it may be something that it is in a 'D file', i.e. a file to which I do not have access, I will endeavour to do so if it is possible.

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

Legal Services Bill 2017 – First Reading approved

1005 Clerk: Bills – First and Second Reading.

A Bill for an Act to regulate the provision of legal services in and from within Gibraltar, to make provision for and in connection with the creation, membership and functions of a Legal Services Regulatory Authority; to make provision with respect to disciplinary matters in respect of the conduct of lawyers; to provide for, and in connection with, the incorporation, membership and functions of the Law Council of Gibraltar; and for purposes connected therewith.

The Hon the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1015 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to regulate the provision of legal services in and from within Gibraltar, to make provision for and in connection with the creation, membership and functions of a Legal Services Regulatory Authority; to make provision with respect to disciplinary matters in respect of the conduct of lawyers; to provide for, and in connection with, the incorporation, membership and functions of the Law Council of Gibraltar; and for purposes connected therewith be read a first time.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to regulate the provision of legal services in and from within Gibraltar, to make provision for and in connection with the creation, membership and functions of a Legal Services Regulatory Authority; to make provision with respect to disciplinary matters in respect of the conduct of lawyers; to provide for, and in connection with, the incorporation, membership and functions of the Law Council of Gibraltar; and for purposes connected therewith be read a first time.

1025

Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Legal Services Act 2017.

Legal Services Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

1030

Mr Speaker, as you know, a last minute amendment has arisen, notice of which I have given to you and copies of which have been circulated to Members of the House. As hon. Members will know, the Government has a long-standing commitment to reviewing the current system of regulation of legal services in Gibraltar to achieve a modernised and comprehensive system. That this review is necessary is not in doubt. The current law has not been fundamentally reviewed for 50 years and requires modernisation and amendment mainly because it has not kept pace with the growth of the legal profession and the current working environment. What is more, the current law does not fully reflect the fused nature of legal practice in Gibraltar nor does it cater for the clear regulation of persons providing legal services who are not barristers or solicitors in private practice, for example Government lawyers, in-house counsel, legal executives and law costs draftsmen.

To that end the Government consulted with all relevant stakeholders including the Hon. the Chief Justice and the Bar Council to ascertain how 50 years of reform could be undertaken. The Bar Council and in particular its Chairman, Keith Azopardi QC, have proved to be the driving force behind this much-needed reform and it is their work which culminated in the first draft of the Bill and which they submitted to me, which forms the backbone of this Bill which is before Parliament today.

1045

Mr Speaker, the Bill has been through two rounds of public consultation undertaken in conjunction with the Bar Council and it is a testament to the hard work and sensible approach of the Council that the final version is in very similar terms to the first draft they submitted.

1050

As I mentioned, Mr Speaker, the objective of the Bill is to provide an overhaul of the regulation of legal services. This will achieve an intelligible, comprehensive, modern and effective regulatory system which: defines the provisions of legal services; provides for the registration of authorised persons, being such persons as will be authorised under the Act to provide legal services; establishes a register of authorised persons to that end; places the successor to the Bar Council on a statutory footing; establishes a legal services regulatory authority; enables the making of subsidiary legislation to govern matters of discipline, conduct and practice for providers of legal services; provides a system of statutory exemptions in defined cases; and allows for the provision of legal services through an expanded form of structures not currently provided for in law.

As the lawyers in Parliament will know, the admission and enrolment of barristers and solicitors to the Supreme Court is governed by the Supreme Court Act 1960. The way the Act is drafted means that potentially there are people who may fall outside the current statutory regime but who are nonetheless arguably providing legal services in Gibraltar. The new regulatory system will therefore govern private practitioners, Government lawyers, in-house counsel, legal executives and a law costs draftsman. It also clearly provides that unauthorised and non-exempt persons cannot provide legal services. The Bill, however, does provide a system of statutory exemptions for persons regulated under the Act, regulated under other Acts or other specified persons to enable these to continue to provide core services within the scope of their respective professional activities.

Mr Speaker, the Bill is an umbrella piece of legislation under which subsidiary legislation governing professional conduct, discipline, Solicitors' Account Rules, practising certificates regulations and other matters relating to the provision of legal services will now fall under.

You will, for example, Mr Speaker, be aware that the Bar Council has already published a draft code of conduct for consultation purposes, so that they will be ready to hit the floor running when the Bill becomes law.

Given the fact that the Bill has in various forms been the subject to two rounds of consultation, I do not intend to go through the Bill on a clause-by-clause basis, rather I will summarise the main parts and highlights of the Bill.

Part II of the Bill and Schedules 1 and 2 to the Bill draw from the English Services Act of 2007 with amendments to adapt these to our particular local circumstances. In clause 3 there is an explanation for what falls under providing legal services for the purposes of the Act. Under clause 3 a person provides legal services if, not being an exempt person, he does all or any of the matters set out in the paragraphs (a) to (f) contained therein. These are very comprehensive and for the first time explicitly contain references to in-house lawyers, etc., Government-employed lawyers and legal executives. The definition of 'reserved legal activity' is contained in clause 4 and includes the exercise of rights of audience, the conduct of litigation, probate, the provision of legal advice or assistance on Gibraltar law in connection with the application of Gibraltar law, or with any form of resolution of legal disputes; and the provision of representation in connection with any matter concerning the application of Gibraltar law or any form of resolution of legal disputes.

The spine of the new regime will be the Register of Authorised Persons which is created and maintained under clause 6 of the Bill. The register consists of a number of parts to allow persons who intend to provide legal services to register as 'Authorised Persons'. The various parts of the register are as follows: (1) private practitioners who are in practice in Gibraltar; (2) foreign counsel called for specific cases; (3) Government lawyers; (4) legal executives who work for Part I lawyers; (5) in-house counsel working for companies, businesses, trade unions, statutory authorities or other bodies; (6) legal executives who work for companies, businesses, trade unions, statutory authorities or other bodies; (7) law costs draftsmen; and (8) EEA or registered European lawyers.

The Bill further provides that law practices can operate via partnerships, corporate entities, or limited liability partnerships, and must register in Part 9. Subsidiary legislation will set out more detailed provision in respect of Part 9 registration.

Mr Speaker, applicants for registration will require to pay a registration fee, which will finance the LSRA's and the Law Council's activities and will need to comply with any code of conduct under the Act. Registration under different parts of the register provides a tier of rights as set out in the Bill, with each part having different rights and duties. Exemptions are provided for by clause 7 of the Bill and particularly by Schedule 2 to the Bill. Persons who are regulated by other laws in Gibraltar, or other specified persons, are exempt from the provisions of the Act and may provide the services specified in Schedule 2 – for example, persons regulated by the Financial Services Commission and Accountants may provide certain services that would technically fall within the definition of legal services.

Mr Speaker, moving on to Part III of the Bill we see provision for the Establishment of the Legal Services Regulatory Authority. Its composition is governed by Schedule 3 to the Bill. The general functions of the LSRA are set out in clause 15. It will have wide-ranging functions including: powers to regulate the provision of legal services; to protect and promote the interests of consumers; to encourage an independent, strong, diverse and effective legal profession; regulate the provision of legal services.

1120 The regulation includes: the administration of rules in relation to practice, discipline or conduct of authorised persons; the application, registration and removal of authorised persons from the register; the application and issue of practising certificates to authorised persons; and monitoring the adequacy of anti-money laundering and anti-terrorist financing systems maintained by authorised persons.

1125 The process of investigation of disciplinary matters is governed by Part IV of the Bill. A full procedure for making complaints and investigating them is set out, and a new disciplinary tribunal is established which would perform its functions through disciplinary panels. The disciplinary tribunal may by way of an interim measure suspend, impose conditions on or revoke the authorised person's practising certificate and ban him or her from providing legal services, 1130 undertaking restricted legal activities in Gibraltar. In addition it may recommend to the Chief Justice and apply for the authorised person to be struck off the Roll of the Court; impose a fine on the authorised person; administer any reprimand to the authorised person; order the authorised person to repay or forego a fee; and order the authorised person to make a payment of or towards the cost of investigations capped at £20,000. Appeals from decisions of the 1135 disciplinary tribunal will lie to the Chief Justice or some other judge designated by him.

Mr Speaker, Part V, the final part of the Bill, other than transitional and consequential provisions, places what is currently known as the Bar Council on a statutory footing, renaming it as the Law Council. The change of nomenclature is not merely cosmetic but it is intended to reflect the fact that the 'Law Council', as it will become known, is the body representative not 1140 just of the Bar but solicitors, in-house counsel, legal executives and law costs draftsmen consonant with the regulation of the overall provision of legal services.

The Law Council will have diverse advisory, consultative and policy-making functions and, through its officers on the LSRA, decision-making powers. The LSRA will hold regulatory functions while the Law Council will retain its role in respect of representation, policy-making, 1145 promotion and marketing. Membership of the Law Council is automatic on registration in the register established under the Bill. The constitution of the Law Council is modelled on the current Bar Council's constitution with necessary revisions. It is included in Schedule 5 of the Bill.

Mr Speaker, in conclusion, the Bill provides a welcome and necessary update to our law in this area. The Bar Council and relevant stakeholders are confident that the fundamental review 1150 contained in the Bill ensures that our legislation regulating our legal profession reflects the fused nature of the profession and the numbers now involved at different levels and roles. It is, Mr Speaker, one of those occasions where all stakeholders are agreed that change needs to take place and the direction that such reforms must take. It is not change that makes life necessarily easier for the stakeholders, in fact it is important to note that those stakeholders are taking on 1155 duties and responsibilities which to date have fallen to others, and are doing so in order to ensure that our jurisdiction's legal profession is better regulated and fit for purpose with robust systems in place to protect consumers and the public, and ensure that international and domestic responsibilities are met.

Mr Speaker, the Bill is the culmination of much hard work, not least by members of the Bar 1160 Council, and two valuable and informative consultation processes where members of the legal profession all with a degree of positivity and a sense of awareness of the value of the exercise, worked together to produce this Government Bill.

Mr Speaker, I would like to take the opportunity to thank the Hon. the Chief Justice, the Bar 1165 Council, the Attorney General and all stakeholders involved in the Bill. It has been a true team effort and one of which I am extremely proud to have been a part.

Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill? The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

1170 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, before I make my short contribution on behalf of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition I must of course declare an interest in that my firm and the lawyers at my firm will of course be materially affected by this new proposed legislation. We, together with other law firms, have been closely involved in the consultation process on the Bill and have offered the Bar Council from time to time, as currently constituted, our views on the Bill and the codes.

1175 I was also a long-standing committee member of the Bar Council at various points in time when this Bill and the original concept of regulation hit the Bar Council and when it was floated before I took my seat in this House. The Bill – and I agree with the Learned and Hon. Minister for Justice – represents the most significant piece of legislation passing through this House to affect the legal profession in 50 years, and I am honoured and privileged as a Member of this House
1180 and a member of the Bar to support this Bill, and we on this side of the House will be unanimously supporting the Bill through its various stages today.

The way in which our legal profession offers its services has changed beyond recognition in the last 50 years and we need to respond to the community's and the profession's call for more modern and relevant framework for the regulation of the legal profession. It has been a long 1185 time coming. This Bill will, amongst other things, further strengthen the disciplinary powers that apply to legal practitioners, introduce a more modern regime for the continued education and training of legal practitioners, and it will also focus importantly – and to the Leader of the Opposition's delight, I am sure – on the involvement of lay people in the LSRA, which I believe is critical in the delivery of a modern regulatory regime which has at its heart the service to the 1190 consumer.

The Bill will also ensure that the LSRA will set and promote, in the public interest, standards of behaviour and professional performance. The above reforms represent a substantial change, Mr Speaker, in the way in which lawyers conduct their business. At the same time the Government has strengthened the law by the creation of a regulatory body to enforce 1195 professional standards and obligations. This approach to reform will result in a vibrant and robust legal services market that will be of benefit to the consumer, and at the same time will ensure that consumers are not exposed to any increased risk of inappropriate behaviour and poor performance. The Bill demonstrates that reform can be of mutual benefit to the legal profession, businesses, consumers and the community at large.

1200 Finally, Mr Speaker, we must thank the profession and the members of the Bar Council, past and present, for the work that has been done to produce an excellent piece of legislation, and in particular this House must record its gratitude to Keith Azopardi QC for his drive and determination in seeing through this reform in this area. We should also thank the legislative drafting team for their work, the Chief Justice and the Attorney General. Therefore we will join 1205 the Government in commending the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the Second Reading of the Bill?
The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1210 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, simply to rise on behalf of the office that I hold to thank all those that the Hon. Mr Costa has indicated have been of assistance in the context of preparing this Bill – without falling into the trap of campaigning for anyone who might be putting their name forward for any particular post – but to thank everyone who has been involved in producing a text that the whole House can get behind and which I think will provide 1215 for better regulation of the legal profession, and which is not something that happens every day.

This is, in my view, a seminal piece of legislation that will change the legal regulatory framework in a positive, modern and forward-looking way. And if I may say so on behalf of the Government, also to thank the Hon. Minister Costa for the work that he has done driving this legislative enactment in the way that he drives everything, which is also entirely positive and 1220 designed to produce a result that everyone can support.

Mr Speaker: Does the hon. mover wish to reply?

1225 Hon. N F Costa: Simply, Mr Speaker, to thank the Hon. Mr Phillips for the comments he has made and his fulsome support of the Bill; and of course as well, Mr Speaker, to thank my hon. Learned Friend, the Hon. the Chief Minister, for his gracious and kind remarks.

1230 Mr Speaker: And so I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to regulate the provision of legal services in and from within Gibraltar, to make provision for and in connection with the creation, membership and functions of a Legal Services Regulatory Authority; to make provision with respect to disciplinary matters in respect of the conduct of lawyers; to provide for, and in connection with, the incorporation, membership and functions of the Law Council of Gibraltar; and for purposes connected therewith, be read a second time.

1235 Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Legal Services Act 2017.

Legal Services Bill 2017 –
Committee Stage and Third Reading to be taken at this sitting

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I beg to give notice that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today, if all hon. Members agree.

1240 Mr Speaker: Do all hon. Members agree that the Committee Stage and Third Reading of the Bill be taken today? (Members: Aye.)

COMMITTEE STAGE AND THIRD READING

Clerk: Committee Stage and Third Reading.

1245 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the House should now resolve itself into Committee to consider the following Bill clause by clause, namely the Legal Services Reform Act 2017.

In Committee of the whole Parliament

Legal Services Bill 2017 –
Clauses considered and approved

1255

Clerk: Part II, clauses 3-5.

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clause 6 as amended.

Mr Chairman: Clause 6, a small amendment has been circulated which I think hon. Members have. I would just like perhaps to suggest it says in subclause 4 of clause 6, perhaps that should read in subclause (4). (A Member: Yes.) Alright? Change that to subclause (4) as circulated. Do all hon. Members support the amendment? (Members: Aye.) So we will move that.

1265

Clause 6, as amended, stands part of the Bill.

Clerk: Clauses 7-13.

1270

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

1290

Mr Chairman: Stand part of the Bill.

Clerk: The long title.

Mr Chairman: Stands part of the Bill.

Legal Services Bill 2017 –
Third Reading approved: Bill passed

1295

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to report that the Legal Services Bill 2017 has been considered in Committee and agreed to with amendments, and I now move that it be read a third time and passed.

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that the Legal Services Bill 2017 be read a third time and carried. All in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

ADJOURNMENT

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Well, Mr Speaker, in an attempt to be able to get back to monthly meetings of the House after the difficulties that we have had with the Brexit referendum where the House agreed that we would not be meeting monthly, and the aftermath thereof which has sometimes made meeting monthly difficult, it is the Government's intention to continue now the pace of monthly meetings that we had established.

1300 In order to do that this month, Mr Speaker, and to deal with the remaining motions and perhaps even some Bills that are on the Order Paper, we have to do a fairly tricky exercise given that we are straddling the happy period of the Jewish Holidays – Shana Tova, to our members of the Jewish Community in Gibraltar who will be celebrating the Jewish New Year tomorrow and on Friday. I understand from the hon Lady also Sukkot in the first week of October; and also 1305 attendance of Ministers at the Labour Party Conference and the Conservative Party Conference, and the SNP party conference, and also at the United Nations. So therefore I am going to propose, Mr Speaker, that the House should now adjourn to Tuesday 10th October at 10 a.m. while still in Bills and Motions.

1310 It is my intention that on Tuesday 10th October we will take the motions that are on the Order Paper and that as soon as we finish I will give notice of the next meeting. So I am expecting to deal with business on Tuesday 10th, adjourn sine die on Tuesday 10th at some time, and then immediately either during the course of that day or the next day give notice for the October meeting. So although we are going to have a session on 10th October for business relating to the September meeting, I fully intend to come back and have an October meeting as 1315 well. There, Mr Speaker, the issues that hon. Members would be aware of will relate of course to the celebration of the Gibraltar Day events in London which I understand are the last full week of October. We will have to try and see how we can marry the monthly meetings with all of that which I have set out and the events at the end of October, whilst fully intending to come back also for a full meeting in November and December this year.

1320 So, Mr Speaker, with that explanation which I hope is of assistance to you, and to the staff of the House and to Members opposite, I now move that the House should adjourn until Tuesday 10th October at 10 a.m.

Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn to Tuesday 10th October at 10 in the morning.

The House adjourned at 5.35 p.m.

Order of the Day

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

50th Anniversary of 1967 Referendum – Celebration of Gibraltar's right to self-determination – Debate commenced 20 Acting Clerk: Order of the Day, Government Motions. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

THIS HOUSE:

NOTES that 10th September 2017 marked the 50th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum when the people of Gibraltar voted overwhelmingly to retain their links with the United Kingdom;

WELCOMES the events that have been organised to commemorate this important anniversary;

CONSIDERS that National Day celebrates the Referendum but is also an assertion of our right to self-determination;

FURTHER WELCOMES that the National Day rally returned from John Mackintosh Square to Casemates in 2012;

ACKNOWLEDGES the enthusiasm of members of the public spontaneously dressing in the colours of the Gibraltar flag, red and white, on that day and recognises the contribution to the organisation of National Day by the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group;

BELIEVES that it is essential that a number of Members of the UK and the European Parliaments should be invited to Gibraltar during the year and more particularly on National Day itself;

AND THEREFORE DECLARES in the spirit of the 1967 Referendum, that the future of Gibraltar can only be freely and democratically determined by the people of Gibraltar in exercise of their right to self-determination.

25 Well, Mr Speaker, as we move into the autumn, we will all remember very fondly, no doubt, 10th September this year – 10th September 2017 – when we were able to celebrate that 50th anniversary of the referendum held in 1967. The fact that we have talked a lot about this issue in the past months and that it is not novel to get up and talk about commemorating and celebrating the 1967 Referendum, I think it is a credit to the Deputy Chief Minister, who is not in the Chamber today because he is travelling back from the attendance at the Conference of the 30 Scottish National Party, but he has been responsible for the organisation of the Referendum 50 events, which have enabled us all to refresh, in many instances, our memories of what happened in 1967 or indeed in the context of those like me, and most Members now who were not around in 1967, to learn a little about what happened in 1967.

35 So Mr Speaker, from the Pathé newsreels, we saw the excitement that there was in Gibraltar on 10th September 1967. We saw the passion that there was in Gibraltar to make the choice to remain British and we saw in the declaration of the result of the 1967 Referendum, the declaration of the 12,138 against 44. We saw the birth of a modern European nation – the nation of the British family of nations – that is the Gibraltar. And all of that, Mr Speaker, is something that we have rightly had cause to celebrate this year.

40 Mr Speaker, the images of Gibraltar in 1967 are memorable in part because of the carnival atmosphere that seemed to have gripped the place at the time and is the recollection that we are told by those who were then lucky enough to be around to make that choice.

All of the images show a Gibraltar bedecked in red, white and blue – a Gibraltar revelling in the opportunity that Britain put before it, as a territory on the list of non-self-governing territories of the Committee of 24 of the United Nations, that was going to be given the opportunity to exercise its right of self-determination.

Mr Speaker, we all know in Gibraltar, perhaps some should understand it in more depth, what came before and after that referendum in New York, in the context of the resolutions that were passed, generally in relation to the people of non-self-governing territories, and particularly about the territory of Gibraltar, and we understand that the context of 1967 was a different one to the context today. The choice that was put before the people of Gibraltar, in effect, was whether or not to continue with British Sovereignty or to take the offer that had been put before the people of Gibraltar by the then Government of Spain – in fact, it was an offer put to the United Kingdom, not to the people of Gibraltar. It was an offer to join a nation that was not even pretending to be a democracy. It was a nation that the world understood was a dictatorship under General Franco, a fascist dictatorship that had acquired power through civil war, and a more murderous dictatorship, Mr Speaker, there has not been in the context of our neighbour.

Mr Speaker, the choices that we made in 1967 were made by people who were staring down the barrel of the bully's cannon. They were staring down a bully who was making very clear that a no in the referendum to the choice that he presented would mean that there was going to be no easy ride. Indeed, the closure of the frontier might have seemed only like the tip of the iceberg of the attempts that Franco might take to repress the people of Gibraltar if they made the wrong choice in his view.

And yet, Mr Speaker, those Gibraltarian patriots, those men and women of Gibraltar in 1967 understood all that, and yet they made the choice that they thought was right for their nation and that they thought was right for their children, for the future generations of Gibraltarians. They had no thought for what might be their greater comfort. They had no thought for what might be their prosperity. They had a thought only for what was right for their children, and that is why they made the choices that they made, Mr Speaker.

And I make no apology for having explained this to the whole world gathered in New York last week at the General Assembly of the Fourth Committee of the United Nations, Mr Speaker, because they need to understand the choice that the people of Gibraltar made was not a choice to live in comfort, was not the easy choice; it was the hard choice, Mr Speaker. It was the hard choice that enabled us to reach the state of prosperity that we have reached today only by dint of further hard work and sacrifice, so it was not 'tick this box and Gibraltar will have the third highest GDP in the world in 50 years from now'.

'Tick this box to remain British and the frontier will likely close, your neighbour will take every possible negative measure against your people that it can and this is a future to choose the British way of life, the Gibraltarian way of life and the British rule of law, but it is a future that will be far from the most comfortable of futures' – and that is the choice that was made in 1967.

Mr Speaker, there was a different Chief Minister then; there was a different Leader of the Opposition then; but we will all remember the words of Joshua Hassan and of Peter Isola at that time, when they were defending the option of Britishness. There were other Members of the House who were equally active in their campaign. Gibraltar was entirely united in the choices that were being made.

And it is that Gibraltar, Mr Speaker, it is that difficult choice, it is that referendum generation that we have honoured – not just this year, on the 50th anniversary of the referendum – half a century, Mr Speaker. It is that Gibraltar that the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group sought out to honour 25 years ago, when it was a quarter of a century since the referendum, in 1992.

Mr Speaker, it was absolutely right that even just 25 years after that choice had been made, we were already ensuring that the memory of the choice that was made in 1967, the assertion of rights that was made in 1967, would endure in the memory of Gibraltarians, thereafter by commemorating that day every year, celebrating that choice and asserting – because we are still 95 on the list of non-self-governing territories – our right to self-determination.

And Mr Speaker, that is a political act. There is no getting away from the fact that it is a political act of commemoration, of celebration and of assertion of the right of self-determination of the people of Gibraltar and of the international community's obligation to recognise that right.

100 Twenty-five years ago, Mr Speaker, as ... I would like to say I was a schoolboy, but unfortunately I no longer was. I see Mr Isola smiling – at least, the Pathé newsreels show us what he looked like with hair!

Just as a university student, Mr Speaker, I enjoyed forming part of the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group and inflating red and white balloons when that was politically correct and acceptable, Mr Speaker, to celebrate the 25th anniversary of Gibraltar's referendum.
105

The Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group (SDGG) understood the importance of this and found in the Government a kindred spirit in the then Chief Minister, Joe Bossano, who quickly aligned himself with the objectives of the SDGG in ensuring the commemoration, the celebration and the assertion that National Day is about.

110 And National Day started in this place. It started in the Piazza – in the place where Hassan and Isola addressed the crowds when they returned from the United Nations in New York. It started in the place which is the heart of our democracy because of this Parliament being part of this area. But it moved quickly thereafter to larger premises as a result of its success, down to Casemates and Mr Speaker, on this side of the House, we are very clear that the home of 115 National Day is Casements because of the numbers involved. It is now impossible to take it somewhere like the Naval Ground where it was taken for some years under the former administration. But it is important that we have space for our whole community to celebrate, to commemorate and to assert its rights on 10th September when we celebrate the anniversary of the referendum and for that reason, Mr Speaker, it was absolutely right that shortly after the 120 first celebration of Gibraltar's National Day here at the Piazza, the events moved to Casemates, which is the home also of the Casemates Declaration.

And so Mr Speaker, in that context, I recall how National Day grew. I recall how it moved from a spontaneous day of celebration into a day that is now an annual day, with important political addresses, with important reflections on what is happening in the context of each 125 particular year, and how it reflects on the right of self-determination of the people of Gibraltar being recognised by the international community.

And Mr Speaker, in that context, I think it is absolutely right that the House should recognise the contribution of the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group in the establishment of Gibraltar National Day. Indeed, if I may say so, Mr Speaker, in the maintenance of National Day, even 130 when there have been attempts to deny National Day of its obvious political significance, the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group has ensured that through its organisation of events on 10th September, there is that significance maintained even in the context of attempts to undo the political significance of that day.

Mr Speaker, part of how we ensure that the international community, in particular the 135 Westminster Parliaments – both the House of Lords and the House of Commons – and the European Parliament, understand the significance that the people of Gibraltar attach to the international recognition of our inalienable right of self-determination, is to ensure that those who hold seats in other parliaments and have political responsibility beyond Gibraltar share with us in the celebration, commemoration and assertion of our right of self-determination.

140 Mr Speaker, therefore it is absolutely right that in the context not just of 10th September, but in particular on 10th September, we should be joined by parliamentarians from beyond our shores who leave Gibraltar better informed about the issues that matter to the people of 145 Gibraltar, and in particular better informed about the nuances of the international issues that affect Gibraltar and how they relate to the 1967 Referendum and our commemoration celebration and assertion of the rights exercised on that day 50 years ago.

150 Mr Speaker, I have no doubt that the House will therefore share the sentiments set out in this Government motion, and will want to join in declaring in the spirit of the 1967 Referendum that the future of Gibraltar can only be freely and democratically determined by the people of Gibraltar in exercise of their right of self-determination, as the motion says in its final paragraph, and that the whole House will understand the importance of 10th September in maintaining and enhancing the political edifice of the assertion of the right of self-determination that underlines that free and fair democratic choice about our future.

155 Mr Speaker, National Day is a day when Gibraltarians celebrate together. It is not a day when Gibraltarians should be divided. National Day is a day when Gibraltarians commemorate the referendum generation and the choices that they made together. It is not a day when we should be divided.

160 National Day, Mr Speaker, is no doubt in my mind the day when if we are to be taken seriously by the international community, we must assert the international community's obligation to recognise our exercise of the right of self-determination, in the past and in the future, whenever we deem it absolutely appropriate and necessary, and that is something which this Government surely will never waver on. The 10th September is a day, Mr Speaker, when the Gibraltarians assert who they are and they assert politically that we will be masters in our homeland forever.

165 I commend the motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister.

The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

170 Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

175 I do not think that anyone in this House can for one second, not identify with the spirit and the sentiment of the motion, as the Chief Minister has just laid out. Certainly it was very moving to see the black-and-white images of our forefathers and mothers exercising their right to determine what not only their future would be, but effectively what our future is today, as we sit here today.

The concept of self-determination is something that, chillingly, is becoming more of an issue on the international stage, on a daily basis. Any news channel you watch today, as we all know, will be full of the images of the way the Catalanian referendum was treated, and to see the images of people being physically pulled out of polling stations is shocking to say the least.

180 Watching those images in contrast with those of the 1967 Referendum which we held here, which was held peacefully and was recognised certainly by the United Kingdom, albeit not by the United Nations for their own reasons, it is stark contrast to what it is we hold dearest to our hearts, and that is the freedom to express our democratically expressed wishes and our right to self-determination. No-one can take that away from us.

185 We wait to see today what will happen in Catalonia, but there are other referendums happening around the world. I only read yesterday about the Kurds, about their right to independence, and that in fact was declared invalid by none other than the United States and the United Kingdom. So the ideal of having a referendum is fundamental and goes to the root of democracy.

190 The 1967 referendum is without doubt one of those defining moments in our Gibraltarian history, tantamount to the evacuation and any other matter which has cemented the Gibraltarian identity. It is entirely right and proper, Mr Speaker, that we in this House recognise the importance of that act of self-determination and that, politically, we continue to tell the world that we will continue to exercise that right, no matter what anybody tells us to do.

195 We as Gibraltarians in our hearts know what it is to be Gibraltarian. We know what it is to live in our own homeland. We know what it is to defend it. We know what it will take to defend it, and we all know that we will make the sacrifices necessary, if there are any sacrifices to be made, to do so.

Therefore, I obviously again agree with the sentiment expressed by the Chief Minister in that 200 we have to continue to make the international world know about what it is that we as a people feel.

Mr Speaker, the idea of the referendum I think is now becoming so important that I would like in the Chief Minister's motion and again in the spirit of his motion to perhaps give it more focus and more prominence for years to come. That is why, Mr Speaker, I have proposed an 205 amendment to the Chief Minister's motion – Mr Speaker, I am not sure whether we will take that when I sit down or at the same time or afterwards. But basically, Mr Speaker, what I would like to say is that I agree wholeheartedly with the Chief Minister – questions of physical location of the rally, really, I think are neither here nor there; what is important is the gathering of the people in whatever space is available.

210 But Mr Speaker, I really do believe that for generations to come, we should make sure that they remember the referendum and what it stood for.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, just for clarification, is the hon. Member moving the 215 amendment set out in his letter?

Mr Speaker: Yes, you have given me notice of an amendment. I think you should move it now.

220 Hon. R M Clinton: Right, Mr Speaker, that is what I was asking, yes.
I would like to move the amendments to the motion I propose.

Mr Speaker: Would you read it out, please?

225 Hon. R M Clinton: Certainly. Mr Speaker, the amendments to the motion are as follows ...
Sorry, I am on the wrong page.

Mr Speaker, I propose the following amendment to the terms of the motion standing in the name of the Hon. the Chief Minister:

In paragraph 2, after 'anniversary', insert 'and congratulates the hard work undertaken by the SDGG in that respect.'

230 Though obviously the fuller name, the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group might be more appropriate and we are happy to accept the amendment to that. I note that they already have a congratulations later on, but I think they cannot be congratulated enough.

Furthermore to delete paragraph 4: 'FURTHER WELCOMES that the National Day rally returned from John Mackintosh Square to Casemates in 2012;'

Frankly, Mr Speaker, the reason for that amendment ... I speak afterward, obviously, yes?

Sorry, I carry on.

Then:

In paragraph 5, after 'ACKNOWLEDGES' insert 'and applauds' and after 'white', insert 'and the flying and displaying of the Gibraltar Flag and Union Jack;'

In paragraph 6, delete 'essential' and replace with 'useful'; insert after the first word 'of relevant' and after 'parliaments' insert 'including the All-Party Gibraltar Group;'

235 Finally Mr Speaker:

Insert a new paragraph after paragraph 6:

'ASSERTS that a National Day holiday be reinstated as in previous years, to be called hereafter Referendum Day, in honour of the people of Gibraltar in 1967 who voted overwhelmingly for Gibraltar to remain British'.

Mr Speaker: Would you like at this stage to say a few words in support of your amendment? Or you do not feel that that is necessary?

Hon. R M Clinton: If I may, Mr Speaker.

240 As I said a couple of minutes ago, all I want to do by way of these amendments is perhaps reinforce the importance of the referendum held in 1967 and ensure that it is enshrined in our national memory.

The insertion after paragraph 2 – again as I said, the SDGG cannot be congratulated too much.

245 The removal of the reference to the National Day rally frankly is just a question of geographic location, and as the Chief Minister said, really is a question of available space, and I do not think generations to come will understand why that was inserted in the motion.

In paragraph 5 I note the comment about red and white, but I think we should also make reference to the flying of the Gibraltar Flag and Union Jack. I think the flying of flags all over Gibraltar, not just on National Day, at Casemates has become very much a part of the occasion and I think it would be remiss to leave that out.

255 And then in paragraph 6, as regards the visiting MPs I would not say it is essential because essential implies that we cannot have a National Day without them; I would say it is useful, and again relevant MPs, and I think it is right and proper that the All-Party Gibraltar Group be specifically referenced in the motion, given their continuing support for Gibraltar.

Then finally, Mr Speaker, and perhaps the most controversial element of it, is to reinstate National Day in our calendar and perhaps call it Referendum Day because we are all, I think, in agreement that it was a defining moment in Gibraltarian history and that we should, in honour and memory of the people in 1967 who have put us where we are today, in a much more favourable position compared to the decision they could have taken, that for here and after it should be called Referendum Day. You can still have your rallies, we can still do whatever you want, but I think that particular national holiday should always be called Referendum Day and also it should be as close as possible to 10th September to commemorate the event. So, this year it would have fallen on 11th September and not the 4th, as it was placed, some might say mischievously, next to the GMF weekend.

265 And so, Mr Speaker, that is the spirit and meaning of the amendments I propose. I would hope that the House will understand the spirit with which I move them and I would ask the Government to consider them in the spirit in which I propose them.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the amendment to the Chief Minister's motion as moved by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition and which has been circulated to all Members. What is now before the House is the amendment.

The Hon. Joseph Bossano.

Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano): I am not going to surprise the hon. Member opposite, Mr Speaker, because I am going to say no, so I stand to speak on the amendment and to recommend rejection of the amendment. I understand the spirit in which the hon. Member has delivered it but I think some of it fails to understand the history, in particular when in 1992 we decided to have a rally in the square here it was on the basis that it was going to be Referendum Day commemorating 25 years of the referendum, and that the next Referendum Day would have been in 2017 to celebrate the 50th anniversary, and that nothing would happen in between. That is how we as a Government saw it then and I hoped then that I would be here now to do it 25 years later, and as I recently said in Casemates, I hope I will be there in future when we do it in another 25 years' time! I think that is something that is part of our history. And you say, 'Well, look, we don't do it every year because it is a very special thing' and 25 years really is no different from 24 or 26 but people tend to celebrate things in quarters of centuries all over the world, in every relationship and in days and things like that.

What happened then was that it acquired a life of its own. The Government did not say to people dress it red and white. The Government thought let's see if we can fill the square downstairs, and in fact, in effect, what we discovered was that the feeling of national identity was stronger than we had anticipated – strong enough for us to say forget that it is 25 years, what is clear is that, just like, not just Spain and the UK have got national days, but Scotland has its national day, Cataluña has its national day and Andalucía has its national day because in effect they have the cohesiveness of a nation, even if they are not recognised internationally as a state. The United Kingdom is the United Kingdom of a number of nations, but the state is a state which is a unitary state and therefore Scotland clearly has got an identity as a nation which is different from England, but there is only one state because there was a referendum there and there was not a majority for separation from the United Kingdom.

We are a colony and the concept of a colony is, in effect, very clear in that a colony can only cease to be a colony either because it acquires the identity of a nation state or it links up with an existing nation state either in free association that can be unilaterally broken by other ... and therefore it can link up and then de-link, or be de-linked, or it chooses to become integrated. Given that in effect we, as a colony, in international law are an embryonic nation state with three potential outcomes under the Charter of the UN, everything that Spain has done, from the first time they appeared in 1964 to the last time they appeared a week ago, has been to deliver one single message and that is that we are not a state at all, we are an occupied part of Andalucía and the occupying power is the United Kingdom, and they cannot follow those of us in this room and those of us outside this room. In effect, saying the most important thing is to remind us of Referendum Day, is to remind us of the fact that on a particular day we rejected a proposal made by Spain to integrate us into Spain. I think we have now gone beyond that point because, independent of rejecting integration with Spain, what we are doing 50 years later is saying we are a nation but a nation that has not yet exercised self-determination; and a nation, until it exercises self-determination, will not be recognised as a nation. Therefore, this is a bigger issue than the narrow issue which was put before us in 1967.

I think many people do not remember what it is that made ... I remember very recently being asked by GBC why was something being celebrated ... well, not celebrated but being remembered, because Castiella had kicked the bucket and I wanted him to know who Castiella was. Well, Castiella was the guy who invented the Spanish doctrine and when he kicked the bucket my own reaction was 'not a day too early'! But the doctrine of Castiella lives today and was in fact repeated a week ago because every single argument that Castiella invented in 1964 was based on a premise, and the premise was that we are not a real people. Therefore, what we now celebrate in the rally in Casemates is, first of all, the identity of the Gibraltarian as a British citizen, but as a Gibraltarian British citizen as opposed to an Irish British citizen, a Scottish British citizen, an English British citizen or a Welsh British citizen. It is the Gibraltarianness that is being highlighted on that National Day.

So we are not just saying we celebrate that our forefathers – or, in my case, not my forefather because I was the one that was there – rejected the Spanish proposal, that we are 330 doing more than that. We are saying, as the hon. Member rightly said, in my view, one of the elements in the development of our identity as a people was not so much the evacuation but the fact that the evacuation which dispersed us did not result in us being assimilated in the places to which we were dispersed, and losing, they decided to come back to our homeland. I was shipped out when I was a few months old and I came back when I was eight years old. My 335 family did not want us to stay in Northern Ireland or in London or anywhere, and other people we knew did not want to stay in Jamaica or in Madeira; they all wanted to come back home. The fact that we knew where home was in 1946, and in 1947 when most of us came back ... I think we were one of the last to come back; the last cohort to come back were in 1947. Possibly the Foreign Office already had some idea what was happening. They let me come back and they 340 kept me amongst the last. So then I think we began to see that our people, after many years outside of their homeland ... A few settled but the vast majority wanted to get back home, and they kept, wherever they were, their Gibraltarian identity, just like whenever people migrated ...

 When I left Gibraltar in the early 1960s there were communities where Gibraltarians lived. There was a community in Fulham because, in fact, many of the Gibraltarians had been taken there 345 during the war, so even the ones that did not come back did not just stay there but kept a bit of Gibraltar alive there. Indeed, the whole movement during the closed Frontier days and the movement of chartering aeroplanes and coming back home from the communities that were in the United Kingdom was all centred around the communities in the area of West London, where the majority of them were.

350 So, what we have in National Day now is a reinforcement of that, and one of the fantastic things that has happened, I think, since the 25th anniversary in 1992, is that the reaction of our people in taking their babies in prams there, is that there is now a generation of 25-year-olds in Gibraltar who have only known life as being dressed red and white, even with red and white nappies, and that is embedded in their psyche, embedded in their brains and it gives them a 355 reinforcement of their identity and of knowing who they are and of knowing who or what we are collectively. We are collectively a family of people. We have quarrels with each other, because all families quarrel – you do not have a real family unless you are quarrelling, and we are a quarrelsome family by nature, anyway. But it is that.

I think that to say this is just because of the referendum, which is... no, it is in fact because of 360 the intervening 25 years, that what was seen by people like me as something ... ‘Okay, we need to do something because it is 25 years and then we need to something else in another 25 years,’ was the understatement of the century. The people wanted much more than that and the people did a lot – not the GSLP, not the Government, the people – have developed something else. I think that what the GSD tried to downgrade was a mistake, a political mistake, because it 365 failed to recognise the strength of the sentiment, and if that sentiment had not been there we would not have been able to have kept the rally alive in Casemates in opposition. People went to the Municipal Day jolly that was being organised at this end of town and then they went to the rally at the other end of town, where the political real business took place. I have no doubt in my mind that their main motivation was not that our constitutional relationship with the UK had 370 developed to a degree that we were no longer a colony; I think the main motivation, as far as I am concerned, was very clear. It was that the rally was something that was not something that pleased people in Madrid and that there was a view then in the leadership of the GSD, which I believe is no longer there, I hope is no longer there – I certainly believe it was not there under Danny and I hope that it is not there under Roy, and I hope if Roy is not there it will not be there 375 under whoever happens to be there; I hope it never comes back again – which is that asserting our identity and upsetting people in Madrid was gratuitously inviting trouble. The Catalans may be inviting trouble by declaring UDI, but nobody has suggested they were inviting trouble on 11th September every year by having a national day, which they do. Their national day is on 11th September because on 11th September they had the misfortune ... I do not know why they 380 celebrate it, because on 11th September 1714 they had the misfortune to be incorporated under the Kingdom of Spain, just a year after our liberation from Spanish domination and colonial subjugation was accepted by Spain as having ended in 1713. I suppose they consoled themselves by imposing on the Catalans what we had been liberated from.

385 So these are political issues, these are not municipal events, and I think the attempt to move the rally and then downgrade it was a mistake, and that is why we think it is right that we should want it to be back in the Casemates and want it to be a political rally, and I would want the hon. Members opposite therefore not to want to change it in the knowledge, which they may not have realised, of what the change meant, the significance of saying the political rally is not required because we are now decolonised, which is not correct in international law, we have not 390 been decolonised. And in any event, when we are decolonised, as we will be – we will be decolonised one day. As certain as night follows day, that day will come, and when that day comes our National Day rally will then continue celebrating the fact that we have been finally recognised as owners of our homeland and that we are a nation. So the National Day does not end because we cease to be a colony; the National Day, if anything, continues with even greater 395 sense and even greater significance after you stop being a colony. That is how it has been in every colony that has been decolonised.

But of course if you call yourself a municipality you are in fact doing what they want us to do in Madrid. The position of Madrid all the time has been ‘We talk to a nation and there is only one nation involved in this issue, which is the United Kingdom, and you can be present as the 400 local council and so can the local municipality of La Línea.’ And their latest version of the proposed committee to discuss how we can co-operate with each other – which we have rejected, of course, and I have rejected in the seminars – provides that there would be the United Kingdom and the Kingdom of Spain, and then Gibraltar as a local municipality and then La Línea, the mancomunidad, Andalucía ... I suppose they recognised that they would need half a 405 dozen of them to be able to counteract one of us, but I do not know why we, Gibraltar would want to go with so many other people there telling us what we have to do with our homeland, that there seems to be little...

So the answer has to be, just like I am critical of what the GSD did in removing the date, I am happy to acknowledge that what they achieved by having tripartite talks, where the three had 410 equal voices, was an achievement which we have wanted to not lose, because what we are trying to do is claw back what the GSD achieved under a socialist government in Spain. Probably it would not have been possible if the socialists had not been in in Spain, but they responded more favourably to the idea of recognising to a greater degree than anybody else had done before them or since them the separate identity and rights of the people of Gibraltar and the 415 right to be the only people who could speak about those rights.

That is why I do not support the amendment that we change the name or that we should not be changing the venue as we have done, and I would hope that the hon. Member recognises that I am putting arguments so that what I am saying is I would hope that if there is a future GSD Government – it is not that I hope that there will be one, but I hope that if there is one by some 420 mysterious accident – then that bit of the history which was a bitter quarrel between the two sides will not come back, and there is no need why it should come back, because just like I have said, they did some things which we did not agree with and they did other things which I think took us forward, and it would be a mistake to downgrade the rally or to bring it back from the Casemates and have it in the square downstairs.

425 I also think that in terms of how essential it is ... Well, look, we are going to keep on inviting people and it is essential that they accept the invitations. It will be a very bad day for Gibraltar the day that we invite Members of Parliament and they do not turn up. It is not just useful that they come, it is absolutely essential because whether Members opposite are aware of it or not, the reality of it is that everybody recognises that the most powerful lobby that exists in the UK
430 Parliament is the Gibraltar lobby, and when we had that regrettable episode with Hain ‘the Pain’ trying to introduce joint sovereignty, the fact is that what our friends in Parliament mounted in collecting enough signatures to have a motion to debate it, was sufficient to make the Labour government of the day, independent of the red flags and independent of anything else, question

435 the wisdom of what they were doing because the opposition was so strong inside Parliament and cross party.

The Gibraltar lobby, which we must nurture and support, is worth to us its weight in gold because there are 30,000 of us and we can mount a bigger lobby and have more influence than Wales has. As the Welsh Minister recently told me when he was in Gibraltar, was that in fact we have the ability to mobilise more support for Gibraltar than he has for Wales in Parliament. That is not because we give them a free holiday once a year; that is because when they see us on National Day in our national colours and with our commitment to our identity, they know that this is real. Nobody can come here on National Day and go away without knowing that this is not a fiction, this is not something we are making up. This is real. The spontaneity that was there in 1992 gets repeated every year. Nobody tells them they have to dress up their cats and dogs as well – they all do it.

445 I think understanding all that is something that I want to share with Members opposite so that on this occasion they know it is not simply because I like saying no to the hon. Member, but because there are sound reasons behind it, and therefore, without in any way affecting the affection and warmth of the friendship that I believe is mutual, I have to say I recommend the rejection of the amendments, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the amendment? The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

455 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I would like to speak on the general motion, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: On the amendment? (Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: No.) The amendment is what is now before us. If no other hon. Member wishes to speak, the procedure will be that I will call upon the mover to reply and then put the amendment to the vote.

460 The Hon. Daniel Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I did not intend to say anything in relation this particular motion but I think that Minister Bossano's words also require me to say ... I feel compelled to say something.

465 First of all, I would like to say thank you very much for his warm words about myself and also about the Leader of the Opposition, but what I want to do is just ... I feel duty-bound to explain, because of course I was part of the GSD Government that made the decision to move from the rally at Casemates to the John Mackintosh Hall civil occasion.

470 The hon. Gentlemen in this House will understand and will appreciate that in any political party there is always going to be differences of opinion, particularly on issues of this nature. Normally what happens, of course, is that it is debated internally, it is debated in Cabinet, a majority decision then prevails and everybody defends that majority decision. I am not going to stand here and divulge or break any confidence by basically saying how people voted or anything like that – that was the position of the party and I myself have defended that position on public television and also at the time when the National Day comes along and one is interviewed about National Day. What I will say is this: that it was a decision that was taken completely in a bona fide way in what the Government of the day felt was in the best interests of Gibraltar at the time.

480 It is important that we place that into context. We had had a new Constitution that had been adopted here in Gibraltar when we took a position that it gave Gibraltar the maximum level of self-government short of independence and beyond which there could only be independence. That the United Nations refused to remove us from the list of non-self-governing territories we took the view that actually that is a political decision by the United Nations but what it does not alter is the reality of the situation, which is that the United Kingdom and Gibraltar are not in a colonial relationship, because Gibraltar is self-governing. That is the reality of the situation. We can look at the Constitution and we can point to elements of the Constitution where there is a retention of powers by the United Kingdom and we can have an academic debate as to whether that is true or not true, but that was the position that we took at the time and I believe that there was merit in that position as to the consequences of the new Constitution.

490 So, as far as we were concerned, there had been the exercise of self-determination by the people of Gibraltar in the 2006 referendum adopting a new Constitution that gave Gibraltar a maximum level of self-government and that was an act of self-determination and indeed that that Constitution was akin, I think ... I will be corrected if I am wrong and I apologise if I am, but I think that the Hon. the Chief Minister has alluded in some of his speeches and public statements
495 to the fact that our Constitution is akin to a full solution, which is something that the hon. Gentleman the Father of the House, Minister Bossano, first came up with, I think it was, in the 1980s when he was either the Leader of the GSLP or the Leader of the Opposition.

For those listening to this debate, the fourth solution is that we have – fourth option, I beg your pardon – is independence. We have free association, as the hon. Gentleman pointed out, 500 we have integration, and we have a tailor-made model, fourth option, which is that we adapt our Constitution and our relationship with the United Kingdom to the needs of the local community and our relationship with the United Kingdom, but the reality is that the relationship is not constitutional and therefore we ought to be decolonised, we ought to be delisted from the list of non-self-governing territories on that basis. That is the view that we took and I believe to 505 this day that there is merit in that view.

The hon. Gentleman also quite rightly pointed out that part of the context was that we had also reached an agreement with the United Kingdom and Spain, which were the tripartite agreements, and for the very first time Spain made very significant concessions and I think that it is universally accepted, or virtually universally accepted, in Gibraltar that the tripartite 510 agreement was an agreement and a forum that was beneficial to Gibraltar and for the very first time allowed Gibraltar to basically talk directly to the United Kingdom, to Spain, and that that was of benefit to everybody.

In that context, bearing in mind that our view was Gibraltar has exercised our right to self-determination, we have a non - colonial relationship, one of the cornerstones of the policy of the 515 then Chief Minister was that it was desirable to, in as far as possible, achieve a level of normality in our relations with Spain and that Gibraltar should strive to seek normality in our relationship with Spain.

In the context of that referendum result, in the context of the tripartite agreement, the view was taken is it appropriate to be having a political rally that talks of ... Effectively, it is almost like 520 having a complex, if I can put it in those very simple terms, and that perhaps what we ought to be doing is celebrating a family day, a civic occasion in Gibraltar without having to be having a political rally talking about self-determination, which we have already exercised and which creates the impression that our relationship somehow with Spain and the United Kingdom is abnormal.

525 That was the rationale. I feel duty bound to put those arguments to the House so that the record shows ... I am sure that I have not done the argument justice, but so that the record shows what the argument at the time was.

When I became ... Well, indeed, when we lost the election in December 2011, the Government at the time, the hon. Gentleman's Government, took the view that they wanted to 530 reinstate – which was a longstanding policy – the National Day rally at Casemates.

In September of that year I was Deputy Leader of the GSD. I was invited by the Self-Determination Group to the rally. I took the position that it was important for me ... and indeed others also attended – it was important for us to attend, and we did attend. And then when I became Leader of the Opposition in February 2013, one of the first decisions I took was to make 535 it party policy for us to effectively support the National Day rally at Casemates. I took that decision because I think that it is important on issues of this nature for Government and Opposition, as far as possible, to present a united front. Indeed, unless the Opposition of the day cannot live with a policy of the Government on issues of this nature and really has to take a stand, I think it is incumbent on the Opposition of the day to attempt to support the Government of the day in its decisions of this nature, unless it is something that they really cannot live with.

Of course there is an element here – and I feel that I can say this, that there is obviously going to be an element of coming to the fore of a leader of the party's own personal views, which is only natural. Indeed, I speak only for myself but I have always believed that National Day is an important event, it is a statement of Gibraltar's right to self-determination, and until such time – I hope it arrives one day – that the international community and also Spain recognises that we have that right, that we have exercised it and that we can live in peace and prosperity on our own, governing ourselves, it is important in those circumstances for us to keep repeating the point.

I just wanted, in as fair a way as possible, to explain the policies of the GSD Government and also explain what happened afterwards, and I am very grateful, Mr Speaker, for your indulgence. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, just on the amendment that the Hon. Mr Clinton has moved. I will reply more fully to the part of his speech which did not concentrate on the amendment at the end of this debate.

Just on the amendment and starting with the issue of location, which the hon. Member said was not so important but constitutes part of what he has asked that we should change, I think Mr Bossano made it very clear why it is that Casemates for us is the right place to celebrate National Day. The issue of location has become tied in with a lot of the politics of National Day and the issues between the GSLP, the Liberal Party and the GSD before the 2011 General Election which led to our differences in this respect. So the location matters, Mr Speaker. Indeed, you might recall the phrase that estate agents favour, which is 'location, location, location'. Location matters in this instance because bringing National Day to the Piazza was, for the reasons that the Hon. Mr Feetham I think has fairly exposed, an area of great political difference between the GSLP Liberals and the GSD. Coming to the Piazza to offer torta de acelga, Calentita and soft drinks at greatly subsidised prices, which is what the announcement from the party opposite in Government was, was the attempt to move away from that raw political significance of the day, which the hon. Gentleman has recognised is important to us on this side of the House and, if I may say so, I think, is not unimportant to him given the way that he has expressed his views today, in particular the way that he has reflected the collective-responsibility aspects of how the decision was made and then subsequently defended.

Mr Speaker, it is very easy to fill a square with people if you tell them, in particular in Gibraltar, that they can have slightly subsidised food and drink. It has been done very effectively in Havana but it is not what we think is the spirit of the celebration of National Day, and this is where I think Mr Bossano put his finger on it. He talked – as history shows us Dennis Mathews talked in 1993 and 1992 – about the spontaneous nature of the support that there is for National Day. We do not need to offer people subsidised tinto de verano or torta de acelga for them to turn up on 10th September dressed in the expression of their colours of red and white in a small square or in a large square. This is not a celebration that the Government lays on and people attend; this is a celebration that comes from the people. It is a commemoration that comes from the people and it is an assertion of political right that comes from the people.

So we are not going to agree to a change of location, because the change of location is linked to the attempt to make municipal – 'civic' the Hon. Mr Feetham said – the nature of the celebration when this is a political celebration of the people and by the people. The congregation of people at Casemates is an important part of that, and indeed it is an important 590 part of some of the dynamic that I will come to now in the context of the leadership of the principal party opposite.

The Hon. Mr Clinton also wants to add an additional congratulation to the SDGG. If I may say so, I think there is a logistical reason why Mr Clinton has moved that. The motion that I moved in the House contains the congratulation to the SDGG; the motion that was published in various media does not, because it was the wrong version that was put out by the Press Office. The version that arrived here had the congratulations included and I am sure that therefore Mr Clinton has seen the published version in the media, not the version which was in the Parliament. Therefore he will likely agree that it is important, as the Government feels, to have the congratulations to the SDGG but it is not necessary to put it in twice, and in this context in particular because the Government, when we were first elected in 2011, moved a motion to endow Dennis Matthews, who had been the first Chairman of the SDGG, and Forty Azzopardi, who had been the principal organiser of all SDGG events related to National Day, with the GMH and the GMD respectively for their contribution, therefore recognising, congratulating and, rightly, in this Parliament reflecting the thanks of the people of Gibraltar for the work that they had done.

605 Mr Speaker, changing the name of National Day, changing the name of something that we have done for 25 years is not something to be done lightly and I think it is important to understand why National Day is called National Day. It goes to the root of what I said to the hon. Gentleman before: the referendum gave birth to a nation. That is why it is National Day, because that is the expression of the free will of the people of Gibraltar. That is the moment from which Gibraltar turns from a place British because it was conquered in 1704, or granted to Britain by treaty in 1713, to a place British by the choice of its people, freely and fairly determined in a referendum in 1967. The birth of a nation, therefore National Day.

610 That is the core of what we are celebrating, commemorating and asserting on 10th September on this side of the House and therefore we are not going to change our minds or our view on that. Indeed, if I may say so, I think it is something on which we have been ad idem with the GSD before. In the report of the 10th September celebrations for September 1993 the Chronicle of that day published an advertisement from a very fresh-faced and young-looking Peter Caruana – it is incredible what politics at the top does to you, Mr Speaker – headed ‘National Day Message’. It is an advertisement from Peter Caruana, and on behalf of the Gibraltar Social Democrats, then as Leader of the Opposition, he wished to ‘congratulate all the people of Gibraltar on the celebration of our first National Day’. This is the adoption, by the party that Members opposite represent, of National Day:

On this our National Day

– these are his words –

we commemorate also our historic decision, taken on Referendum Day on 10th September 1967, to preserve our close links with Great Britain, the first exercise of our right of self-determination.

625 So, Mr Speaker, a National Day advertisement by the party that the hon. Member presently leads in a caretaker capacity and purports to lead more fully. This desire now to change the name of National Day seems to be a little bit at odds with the position of the GSD, as it was at least in 1993, the first expression of the Opposition –

630 Hon. J J Bossano: The first at Casemates.

Hon. Chief Minister: The first Casemates rally, as I am rightly reminded by Mr Bossano.

Mr Speaker, I wonder what it is that is giving rise to this desire to change the name. The Government is not going to agree to change something we have been doing for 25 years at the motion of someone who has not been here for 25 months. He has to understand that there is a 635 historical significance to National Day, and when he understands that fully I put it to him he would not make a motion to amend a motion celebrating, commemorating and asserting our right to self-determination on National Day.

But I think it is a little bit more serious than that, Mr Speaker, and I think Mr Clinton's lack of understanding of some of the aspects of this motion which have led to his purported 640 amendments are a little bit deeper than appear at first blush. For example, the idea that it is not essential to have people here on that day as part of our lobbying effort throughout the year and that it is also useful is a reflection not of the things that he has told us today on their own, but also a reflection of some of the things he has said outside this place.

In the newspaper, on the week of National Day, the hon. Gentleman said this, and the 645 newspaper quotes him and reflects what he said in different measure:

While he agrees

– the hon. Gentleman opposite – that this year is an important year to celebrate National Day, with the 50th anniversary of the referendum, generally he is not such a fan of the tub-thumping and patriotic fever.

Well, Mr Speaker, I do not think that National Day is about tub-thumping patriotic fever; I think it is about something slightly deeper than that.

Once daring to wear a green shirt on the fated day, he believes it has become a day for 'political grandstanding'.

I am surprised, Mr Speaker, that he might have taken that attitude, given that, as we have 650 said, the expression of our colours, of our red and white, means so much to most people on that day that simply choosing to wear a contrary colour for the purposes of being a little bit more anti-establishment on that day does not really speak to most Gibraltarians, I would imagine, given that we all choose to wear red and white for a reason.

And then he says this, and this is a direct quote:

We got on perfectly well without National Day in the past. It is more an opportunity now for the government. It all goes a bit over the top. Half the dignitaries invited are just over here on a jolly. They don't really care where they are going.

655 Mr Speaker, more damaging words for the efforts of the Government in the essential lobbying that we do I cannot imagine. Many Members of Parliament who were here on that day picked up this free newspaper, which is available in hotel lobbies etc., and pointed out to me that they were not here on a jolly and that they staunchly defended the rights of their constituents, which is their obligation as Members of Parliament at Westminster, and 660 additionally defended the rights of the people of Gibraltar when that was relevant in debates in the House of Commons.

So, Mr Speaker, I think that there is a little bit more underlying the purportedly innocent amendments that the hon. Gentleman is moving and I do not impute that to the second speaker on behalf of the Opposition, to Mr Feetham. That newspaper which published a double-page 665 interview with the hon. Gentleman providentially that month had a full-page advertisement from the Social Democrats and that advertisement said:

The GSD is delighted to be celebrating the 50th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum.

It does not say 'National Day' anywhere on the advertisement, Mr Speaker. Perish the thought that I prefer an advertisement from Peter Caruana in 1993 to an advertisement by the GSD at least in its interim guise led by the hon. Gentleman this year. He says the speeches have 670 become too political for his liking. Well, I do not know whether he means the speeches between 1996 and 2007 when we were treated to speeches from Peter Caruana, or whether he just 675 simply does not like my style. I certainly remember very fondly the tears streaming down my face when Joe Bossano used to speak at National Days between 1992 and 1996. It was not too political for me or for the many thousands who were out there listening at that time. Peter Caruana did not quite move me to tears, but at least he had my full agreement when he came up with the definition of 'nation' from the Oxford Dictionary and demonstrated to the world watching that there was every reason why this nation of ours should be described in that way.

680 On a political day of a political re-vindication of rights, for a political leader to say that speeches have become too political is really, frankly, quite something, but it belies the motivation behind the allegedly innocent amendments that we are seeing to this motion to try and change the name.

685 So I think the hon. Gentleman's nomenclature amendment and the hon. Gentleman's change from 'essential' to 'useful' in the context of the lobbying amendment are much more the underlying attempt to continue to fashion National Day in a way that is contrary to the view of most people in Gibraltar than they are the innocent attempt to simply amend the motion to make it stronger.

690 Mr Speaker, from the man who tells us that he sometimes wears a green shirt on National Day, to see an amendment to encourage people to fly flags, assuming that he does not want to encourage people to fly green flags, is really quite something. It is a step change, so from saying 'a day when you wear what you like, not just red and white', to saying 'not just wear red and white, fly the flag' it seems that we are seeing a transformation that one might think is more related to trying to curry favour with Members in the midst of a leadership election than genuine understanding of what National Day is about.

695 But again, here the celebration is of the people. Nobody had to say 'wear red and white' in the Government press release in 1991 or in 1992. The SDGG said 'we invite those who might wish to do so to wear red and white' – the SDGG, not the Government and not the Parliament – and spontaneously it happened, and we would be depriving the people of Gibraltar of that spontaneity if we included in the motion the requirement or the advice that people fly flags. Therefore, we are not going to go down the Castro doctrine, which we might start calling the Clinton doctrine when it comes to flags but not when it comes to tee-shirts.

700 As for the idea that we need to – (Interjection by Hon. J J Bossano) Yes! There is a defence of some aspects of the Castro doctrine from my left! Mr Speaker, the idea that we need to reinstate the National Day holiday is utter nonsense because the National Day holiday continues to be on 10th September every year when 10th September is otherwise a working day. The only issue is how should the choice be exercised when 10th September is not a working day: where should the bank holiday move? This year the Government made the choice that people would prefer a second August bank holiday closer to a very large event like the MTV Music Festival than they would to National Day – which was a holiday anyway because... or not a working day anyway because it was a Sunday – given that National Day events for most families end much earlier than Music Festival events, which end later. But that is only because of the fact that National Day was on a Sunday. Next year, National Day is on a Monday and National Day therefore will be a holiday on the Monday –

705 simple. I do not think the hon. Gentleman has quite understood that, Mr Speaker. There is nothing mischievous about making a choice about the day you move a bank holiday to.

715 The context of the congratulations to the SDGG must also be seen in light of the reality of what was happening when hon. Gentlemen had the ability to determine policy as Government. Between 1996 and 2011 the SDGG was marginalised. The SDGG was prevented from organising more and more events until the rally left Casemates and the SDGG was told it could not organise an event, (Hon. J J Bosano: That's right.) to such an extent that I want to place on record in this House again – because we also granted him the Medallion of Distinction – the gratitude of those of us who believe in National Day being celebrated at Casemates to A B Massias for allowing us the use of the ICC to celebrate at Casemates, with the organisation of the SDGG. So it is a bit rich to see the attempt now at congratulations from the GSD to the SDGG.

725 Mr Speaker, the extent of the lack of affection, if I can put it no higher than that, that there was between the GSD and the SDGG led even to a boycott of the SDGG's Casemates event when we had become the Government and they were in opposition in 2012:

GSD declare boycott of SDGG rally and urge normal National Day.

730 That is 'normal' being not what had been done for 25 years but what had been done for three. Well, Mr Speaker, I think it is right to set things in a historical context and remind hon. Members opposite of the reality underlying the amendments that the Hon. the Acting Leader of the Opposition is trying to put to us.

735 Finally, Mr Speaker, I just want to deal with some of the things that the Hon. Mr Feetham said and reflect on how those affect the amendments. The hon. Gentleman, in telling us what the GSD policy was – and, I think, not defending that policy, he simply sought to set out what the policy was, as I understood from him – told us that the view that had been taken was that we should not be acting as if we had a complex. Well, what we have on this side of the House – and I think most Gibraltarians, and I include him in it – is a complex understanding of the UN doctrine in respect of non-self-governing territories, and we have a complex understanding of the attempts that there are to undermine us in New York at the C24 and at the Fourth Committee. We have a complex understanding, developed in great measure by Joe Bossano's demonstration of how it is possible to give effect to the C24's mandate to educate people of non-self-governing territories as to what the fourth option amounts to and how it can allow a non-self-governing territory that does not fit easily within the concept of territorial integrity or of independence an option to exercise its right of self-determination and emerge from colonialism, and one which I think most people in Gibraltar also fully understand.

745 So the context that leads us on this side of the House to say that the Constitution that we have today, the 2006 Constitution, may be a mechanism which can lead us to the fourth option, may be the maximum possible level of self-governance short of independence which is required for the fourth option to engage, is one that has led us to submit that Constitution to the Secretary General. In fact, the only surprising thing is that it was not done by the GSD in 2006. It had to be done by Joe Bossano, who I was proud to accompany to the United Nations in those days and to the Chairman of the C24 – so not just to the Secretary General but to the Chairman of the C24 – to say to them, 'Look, we think this could fulfil the requirements and the criteria of the fourth option – if you think it doesn't, tell us which parts of it would require further amendment.'

755 That is the nuance between us and them on the issue of the Constitution. They say it decolonises us, we say it could decolonise us, but we all realise – and the United Kingdom in particular because it does not co-operate with the committee – that management of the list is by a third party, the United Nations, and therefore their view matters in the context of this issue, even though we may not share their view and indeed even though they fail to express a view, which is even more complex. It is in that complexity that it was wrong, in our view, to abandon the political National Day, which is the Casemates National Day, in favour of the municipal or civic National Day for all of the reasons that I have set out and for all the underlying reasons that Joe Bossano set out at the time and has set out today.

760 Mr Speaker, 'Caruana proclaims a National Day for a new Gibraltar' was the headline in the Gibraltar Chronicle on Tuesday, 9th September 2008 – so not the year after the new Constitution. There was a hiatus of a year. "No need for political rally" says Caruana' is the headline on Wednesday, 9th September 2009, and I read to Members earlier 'GSD declare boycott of SDGG rally and urge normal National Day' in 2011.

770 Mr Speaker, we do not share that view. This is a fundamental difference of opinion. It is probably the broadest dividing line that there is between us and the GSD in respect of that particular policy as expressed in that way. I think hon. Members did the right thing, led by Mr Feetham in 2012 after he became leader, in lifting that boycott and attending National Day

775 with the rest of us, although they explained what their view continued to be. If I have a difference with the hon. Gentleman on this issue it is that his view continued to be expressed to be that there was no need for the political rally – although I recognise that when he had his own mandate after 2015 his position changed. So between 2012 and 2015 the hon. Gentleman set out a position in respect of National Day which was not to boycott the rally, to come to Casemates to show unity but to set out a caveat in his National Day messages which was, if I 780 may put it this way, the Caruana doctrine. In 2016 he took a slightly different position, which I also recognise, and I welcome that because this is hugely important and the narrowing of that red line between us is in the interest of every citizen of Gibraltar because we will achieve delisting and we will therefore achieve decolonisation. That day will come, as Joe Bossano has said. It will not be something that is put off because the GSD takes a contrary line, because I 785 think we have demonstrated on this side of the House that whether we are in Government or in opposition the people are with us on that, but it will come earlier if we are more united on this issue than we have been in the period between 2008 to 2015.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, I am in the strange position of wanting to align myself with a Peter Caruana advert of 1993 and with statements of Daniel Feetham in 2016, and in that way saying that the Government will not agree to the amendments that are being moved by the Hon. Acting 790 Leader of the Opposition.

Mr Speaker, I want to add one thing and that is that we were not alone at Casemates between 2008 and 2011. In those years, apart from having widespread support from the community and the strong support and encouragement, as ever, of our own membership, we were joined, in the chicken coop that the SDGG set up for us at the ICC, by Keith Azopardi QC, 795 who, as leader of the PDP, took the view that it was wrong to move National Day from Casemates and supported the SDGG and delivered tub-thumping, patriotically fervent speeches from the ICC to those who congregated with us at Casemates.

Mr Speaker, I wanted to be with the Leader of the Opposition on this motion. I wanted it to pass unanimously and I am sorry that I cannot give his amendments my support, but I am with 800 Caruana in 1993, with Feetham in 2016 and with Azopardi from 2008 to 2011 when I say that we should always ensure that we keep National Day at Casemates – location, location, location – and that the underlying politics of his amendments is the wrong politics for our future, and that I will never wear a green tee-shirt on National Day.

I will tell him one more thing: in that interview he said something about my wife that he did 805 not need to say. In all the time that we are in politics together I will never say anything about his wife, other than to say that I know her and she is an absolutely lovely lady. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Is there any other contributor to the amendment? I will call, then, on the Hon.
the Leader of the Opposition to exercise his right to reply.

810 Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Where shall I start ... First of all, I think I should start with the most constructive contribution we have had to the debate today, from the Hon. Mr Bossano. I am always grateful for his impeccable memory and his knowledge of events that some of us here in this House obviously 815 were too young to remember. I would again encourage him to write his memoirs sooner rather than later because it is something I think that generations to come will find invaluable.

Hon. Chief Minister: He hasn't finished making history yet!

820 Hon. R M Clinton: Well, he can make a start!

Mr Speaker, coming to the concept of National Day versus, for example, a Referendum Day, in which I sought to amend the motion, the French do not celebrate a national day, the French celebrate Bastille Day, because to them it means something; it was an event in history that defined their nation. It is for that reason that I think Referendum Day is perhaps a more 825 appropriate reference to what is National Day. Having said that, I could be persuaded by Mr Bossano's arguments, given the historical context and the rationale that he puts to it, but again we need to keep on reminding future generations as to what it is they are celebrating. As he quite rightly pointed out, there is an entire generation, 25 years, who have only known red and white, but we have to make sure that they remember that it is red and white and that it is 830 because of the referendum. But if he feels so strongly that changing it to Referendum Day is not appropriate, well, so be it.

Mr Speaker, I think the most remarkable contribution came from the Chief Minister. I know that for at least a month now – and I pity him for this – he has been positively straining to bring up that interview in the Olive Press. I know, because he has been sending me horse's-head 835 messages at lunches at the Governor's house and other little snippets elsewhere. But before he makes too much of this 'green' issue, what the interviewer failed to mention is that in fact I went out immediately and bought a red one, and the only reason I had a green one is I could not find my red one. So I am sorry to disappoint the Chief Minister on that score. And in fact, as he said only too recently, the future is green – although that is only for the Mediterranean Rowing Club 840 and not for the members of the Calpe. And so, Mr Speaker, I really do not believe that this green matter is that much of an issue as the Chief Minister would believe, and it certainly was not an act of defiance on my part but perhaps an oversight for not having done my laundry the day before; But I did nevertheless obtain the required red tee-shirt.

Mr Speaker, although the Chief Minister entered Parliament as Chief Minister in 2011 in his 845 New Dawn Government, the Chief Minister does not have a monopoly on what it is to be Gibraltarian or how to express that sentiment. The Chief Minister has not set 2011 to year zero and he, as Brother Number One, will tell us all in Gibraltar what is right and what is wrong. We are Gibraltarians in our hearts. We do not need to wear a shirt or tee-shirt or anything else. By all means let's celebrate it, but I think everybody should have the right to celebrate it the way 850 they want. As I said, I did go out and get the required red tee-shirt. But enough of the red tee-shirts.

Mr Speaker, also in my article I said, about any joint sovereignty with Spain, that our generation will have to die before any of that ever became a reality. My generation, part of his generation, that grew up with the closed Frontier will never forget and will never forgive, and 855 until my generation dies out there is no way that any of us will ever consider any proposals with Spain at all, (Hon. D A Feetham: Hear, hear.) and that I can guarantee.

Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister has finally made a confession about the National Day holiday.
He has told this House, 'Well, Mr Speaker, the National Day holiday we did on the fourth because people stay up later at the MTV.' This is not a holiday to accommodate a commercial 860 event, however successful or unsuccessful it may be financially, but is meant to be our national holiday. It should be sacrosanct. No one in Government should be saying, 'Well, actually, if we move it to this day it's better because I'll have a hangover, everybody will call it GMF hangover day, and then the day after National Day, well, that doesn't really matter.' I think if there is anything in my motion that the Government must see fit to support it would be to, at the very 865 least, respect National Day and keep it where it should have been. We all know in this House it should have been on 11th September and not 4th September. He has admitted that it was more convenient to have it next to the GMF because people are going to be up later – oh, and people will not be up later on National Day. Seriously, Mr Speaker, does he expect everybody to go to bed at 10 o'clock on National Day because that is what he does? I think it belies the fact that the 870 National Day holiday has been, unfortunately, usurped for other purposes and I would urge the Government to put it back to where it deserves to be.

Returning to the question of the MPs, I attended my first National Day rally on stage last year and I am sure it cannot have failed to have reached the Chief Minister's attention that one of those MPs that he had invited in his wisdom was actually an avid Brexiteer and probably made 875 history by actually being booed by the people in the square. So I would say he has to be a bit more judicious in his selection of MPs that he brings to Gibraltar.

880 In that respect I would have thought that the one amendment to his motion that would have been acceptable would be to include reference to the All-Party Gibraltar Group – after all, as he has quite rightly pointed out, they do sterling work for us in Parliament. So, rather than just referring to MPs in general – or MEPs, who may not be around for much longer anyway – I think there should be specific reference to the All-Party Gibraltar Group.

National Day means a lot to everyone. For some it means a good time to celebrate with family and friends; for others, and for us in this Chamber and certainly for him opposite, it is of political significance where there is a political stage and a political message to be delivered.

885 As regards the concept that there is some great divide between us, we may differ on style, but I think in terms of purpose there is not much difference between us. We all agree that we need to defend the rights and interests of the people of Gibraltar, however best we may do that. And so my amendments to the motion were really exactly, as I said at the beginning, in the spirit they were meant. There was no hidden agenda or particularly subversive element to him that he has read into it. But again, that is, I guess, his privilege.

890 And so, Mr Speaker, I propose the amendments to the motion and, by way of aside, if I have offended his honour and his wife I apologise profusely and I acknowledge the fact that indeed my wife is most wonderful.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

895

Mr Speaker: I will now put the amendments moved, in the terms moved by the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition to the vote. Those in favour.

900 Hon. Chief Minister: Can we have a division on the amendment?

Mr Speaker: We are voting on the amendment.

Hon. Chief Minister: Can we have a division?

905 Mr Speaker: You want a division? Then I do not have to ... Very well, call a division.

Voting resulted as follows:

FOR	AGAINST	ABSTAIN	ABSENT
Hon. R M Clinton	Hon. P J Balban	Hon. Ms M D Hassan	Hon. N F Costa
Hon. D A Feetham	Hon. J J Bossano	Nahon	Hon. Dr J J Garcia
Hon. T N Hammond	Hon. Dr J E Cortes	Hon. L F Llamas
Hon. E J Phillips	Hon. A J Isola
Hon. E J Reyes	Hon. G H Licudi
	Hon. S E Linares
	Hon. F R Picardo
	Hon. Miss S J Sacramento

Mr Speaker: The position is that there are 2 Members absent, there are 2 abstentions, 5 votes in favour and 8 votes against. Therefore, the amendment is defeated.

What is now before the House is the original motion of the Chief Minister. All Members, except the Hon. Roy Clinton, can speak on that motion. The Chief Minister has a right of reply, obviously, later. So that is now the motion before the House.

The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, this year 10th September was indeed an anniversary to be proud of. Our people enjoyed as we celebrated 50 years since that historical day when Gibraltarians put pen to paper and let the world know who we were and where we wanted to go. Events organised this year have indeed been momentous, but I still fail to understand why, among so many events and celebrations, we could not have had a bank holiday on 11th September, the day after National Day, to commemorate this 50th anniversary.

With respect, the choice to place the bank holiday after the Music Festival week as opposed to after National Day goes against the very message that this Government is trying to promote through this motion. On this occasion, I believe that Government has not proved to be in tune with what people wanted, and not allocating the bank holiday the day after National Day when it fell on a weekend this year contradicts the level of importance given to National Day in this motion before this House. The Chief Minister decided that placing it the day after the Music Festival was the best swap, but it should, when on a weekend, by default be moved to the nearest Monday to 10th September, just like any other bank holiday, regardless of other surrounding events a week or days before.

Furthermore, I regret to say that, as much as the Members of the UK and European Parliaments are welcome, in my humble view, to the National Day celebrations, that due care and sensitivity must be taken in the choice of delegates. Hard Brexiteers, for example, have not been well received in the past, causing embarrassment and discomfort when they have been jeered on stage, and it should not be a surprise, keeping in mind the 96% vote to remain in the EU last year, that sensitivity and due care must be taken. Similarly, other choices like far-right DUP representatives have also clashed with our views of tolerance which defines our National Day identity more than the colours we wear on 10th September. National Day should project Gibraltar's national identity as a multicultural and inclusive nation. Therefore I take this opportunity to restate the importance of choosing wisely and according to our values when inviting individual Members of Parliament to share a day like National Day with us.

Given these provisos and these caveats, which should be taken in the spirit of advice and consort, I shall still be voting in favour of the motion because I adhere to its general principles.

Mr Speaker: Any other speaker? The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. the Chief Minister for bringing this motion to the House. It is an opportunity for Members of both sides to engage in a discussion about a matter which is of fundamental importance.

I am reminded, as I touch upon the matters raised here today, of Jo Cox, the former Member of the British Parliament for Batley and Spen, who Members will recall was murdered in cold blood in the days running up to the worst day of June last year. I am reminded of her because certain words that she used in her maiden speech to Parliament barely a year before her tragic death resonate with the matter at hand in this Chamber and at this very moment today. No truer words can be said than, in respect of the issue of who we are as a community, our emancipation and our exercise of our inalienable right to self-determination is a matter in respect of which it is clear to me that we have far more united and far more in common than that which divides us.

There are, however, a couple of points which do divide us, although by the grace of God such sources of division are neither critical nor existential in nature. National Day this year had the special significance of being the 50th anniversary of that day in 1967 when Gibraltar came together, as it has done on so many occasions before in our history, to stand up to the challenge of its identity and to assert itself as one community united. We have much to thank our predecessors in this House for much of who we are today and because for such a long time now the political leaders of this community have pursued our interest in an international context as well as they have, that we can stand proudly in our red and white on 10th September each year as Gibraltarians, knowing that Gibraltar's identity as a people and our inalienable rights to our homeland have been and will always be defended.

I believe that Gibraltar has already determined its own path but that the United Nations' unreasonable stance keeps us on their list of non-self-governing territories. I agree with and hold true to the position established by Sir Peter Caruana's GSD in this regard, namely that Gibraltar's referendum adopting a new constitutional relationship with the UK was an act of self-determination. We have the highest form of self-government possible whilst retaining our links with the United Kingdom in a manner that is consistent with the democratically, freely and emphatically expressed wishes of the people of Gibraltar. National Day is therefore not, in my view, exclusively about us asserting our rights to self-determination but about celebrating our identity as Gibraltarians, an identity that over the years has naturally and inevitably been shaped by the peaceful and prosperous quality of life we have all come to cherish. That we commemorate or celebrate our exercise of that right to self-determination is, of course, also proper and correct, but it is not and neither does it need to be the central tenet of the annual celebrations of 10th September.

But there are some issues on which Members here do differ. It is a nuance, but the motion should note and not necessarily welcome the return of the rally at Casemates, because it must be clear that not everyone here is of the same view as hon. Members opposite, and that the policy of Members on this side of the House – at least that of the GSD and myself – is, as I have explained and as has been touched upon, that we hold the celebration of our identity on National Day in high regard but that a political rally is no longer required in the context of Gibraltar in 2017.

The House should also acknowledge that it is right, of course, that we invite foreign politicians who support us, but it must also acknowledge that it is right that we do so because the Government of the day has taken it upon itself to reinstate a political rally held under a banner seeking a right which we already have and exercise freely, and if it did not invite foreign politicians it would not be much of a political rally at all.

I presented a series of amendments to the Chief Minister behind the Speaker's Chair, which I commend to him, but I will not be presenting them formally on my own initiative, choosing instead to commend them to the Hon. the Chief Minister in the hope that he might be able to persuade or introduce some which he considers are not deal breakers in order that we may achieve the unanimous support of all Members present. The essence of the amendment I commend to the Chief Minister is that the return of the rally should be noted as opposed to welcome and that the invitation of foreign MPs should be done consequent to the decision to reinstate the political rally at Casemates. I trust the Chief Minister will give these matters some consideration and look forward to hearing his views on them.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Any other contribution from the Members on the motion? The Hon. Albert Isola.

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, very briefly, if I may, I have to say sitting here and listening to the contributions made by my friends on the other side of the House has left me feeling rather confused as to not what the position of the GSD is, because that seems to be confused in itself, but also of the Members who sit on either side of the GSD Opposition.

I remember the 1967 referendum as a very young five-year-old child. I remember the festive atmosphere. I did not know what was going on but it was a cracking time to be in Gibraltar and to enjoy the celebrations that were going on then, even though of course, as the Chief Minister has mentioned already this morning, it was a deeply political step that was being taken. In fact, the referendum generation, as the Chief Minister has now labelled them, took that decision in the full knowledge of what awaited them, and not just what awaited them but lived through the entire period that they suffered during the closed Frontier and the many restrictions, which were not limited to the closure of the Frontier, as we all know. And so to choose that day to celebrate National Day could not have been more appropriate 25 years ago. The response that we received from the people of Gibraltar in respect of that call could not have been more appropriate.

And so the significance of this motion is, in my view, totally undermined by talk of on what day is the bank holiday or on whether the arrangements should be in one place or another, because frankly, for the GSD leader to stand up and say that the choice of moving from Casemates or to John Mackintosh Square is geographical location when we all know that of course is not true, when he seeks to congratulate the SDGG when in 2011 his party was calling to boycott the SDGG, there is some substance lacking entirely in what the Opposition is saying in respect of this, what I consider to be a very serious motion.

I, like I know my colleague Ms Hassan Nahon, will be very proud of the roles our respective fathers took part in that day, and I think if they were listening here today they would be deeply disappointed with what they have heard today.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Joe Bossano.

Hon. J J Bossano: On the original motion, Mr Speaker, let me say that I do not agree that the decision that we took in 1967 was a very difficult decision which we had great courage to take. We happened to be next to a neighbour that was garrotting people like me. I probably would not be here to tell the story if a decision had gone the other way. Anybody who had any left-wing leanings had a very short lifespan. Most of the leaders of trade unions and political parties in Spain in those days only kept their heads if they went into exile. So the reality of it is that it was incredible ...

It is not that the British gave us a choice, because they did not have a notion of what we would decide until they gave us a choice. It is just that it would have been unprecedented in the history of western civilisation for any community that had free elections, free trade unions, the right to strike, a constitution protecting human rights and the right to elect a government of their choice to freely give all that up and join a military dictatorship created by a coup d'état. That was the choice. Forget about being British or being Spanish, it was about either being free or choosing not to be free. That is why when I spoke that day at Casemates I said the incredible thing is that 44 people chose not to be free, chose to be under Franco's dictatorship. It can only be because they probably were people who had links with the other side and knew where in the hierarchy of the dictatorship they would finish off and they would be better off under Franco – because the ordinary person would not have been.

So I think we need to understand that the people took the decision in the knowledge that whatever hardship the outcome would produce of a closed Frontier – before the closure the removal of supplies of oxygen for our hospitals, or removal of the flowers for our churches, all the things that they did – all those things could not possibly be compared with what we knew life under Franco was like every time people went across that Frontier on the 80 days a year, with the 80-day pass, that they were permitted to visit.

So let us be clear that what the British Government did was important in the sense, as the Chief Minister has said when we celebrated our National Day and since ... was that in effect they were saying 'The people of Gibraltar will say whether they want to be with me or not, even though I, as the administering power, have the right to decide.' And indeed the position in 1964 and 1965 which the UK took, which in my view was a mistake and which antagonised the Committee of 24, was not the position that they took in 1967 when they had the referendum but the position to say 'the Committee of 24 doesn't tell the British Crown what it does with its possessions – this is British sovereign territory and nobody is going to tell us what we do with our sovereignty.' In 1964 and 1965 the UK of 1964 and 1965 is not the UK of 2017 and therefore they said it on the basis of if the people want to go, then we will respect the people's right, but no foreigner is going to tell us that a British territory has to stop being British.

In fact, technically they were right in saying that the disputed sovereignty by Spain as a result of the retrocession clause in the treaty was not a matter for adjudication by the Committee of 24; if by anybody, it would be by the international court that adjudicates as between member states of the United Nations when there is a dispute over a treaty. Spain had no argument then and it has no argument now because the nature of the argument is that the territory that is owned by the United Kingdom as a colonial power, which is still the case. Whether Mr Caruana, as Chief Minister of Gibraltar, decided that we were not a colony or whether Mr Llamas believes today that we are not a colony is irrelevant because it is not in their gift under international law.

Under international law we are a colony, as Spain frequently says, correctly, because the British government decided to put us on the list as a colony. Ceuta and Melilla are not there, but Western Sahara was because the Spaniards decided to put Western Sahara but decided not to put Ceuta and Melilla. The United Kingdom decided to put Gibraltar, Malta and Cyprus but decided not to put the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man. Had they put them on the list ... because it was not the UN that drew up the list, it was the members of the UN who were invited to put on the list in the 1940s, in 1948 or 1949, and the list then eventually in 1854 was finalised but on the basis that territories could be removed or added. In fact, New Caledonia has been in and out and French South Pacific territories were included, if you remember, a few years ago.

So the reality is that this is the list and once you are put on the list the problem is that you cannot come off it that easily. The United Nations Committee of 24 has acted totally in breach of its terms of reference under the United Nations Charter because it has allowed Spain to argue that because they have not even a claim but a right of retrocession, then the people of Gibraltar are not able to exercise their right to self-determination.

But of course the argument of Spain in 1964 in the UN when we had our first referendum was that we were not a people, and therefore you cannot separate the fact that we are, at the rally in Casemates, declaring our right to self-determination and say, as Mr Llamas says, what we were declaring was the fact that we are the Gibraltarians, a people, because it is only because we are the Gibraltarians that we have the right to self-determination, and it is not because, like the Catalans, we are a region of anywhere. Under international law it is only and exclusively the territories that are under colonial rule and foreign domination, to use the colourful language of the 1960s, that entitle as a human right to exercise self-determination, and under the provisions of the resolutions of the UN of the 1960s and the one of later years, the criteria for being able to call yourself a people is that your identity should be distinct from the identity of the colonial power.

Therefore, if the administering power is the United Kingdom and the people in the colony are all settlers from the United Kingdom, then the settlers from the United Kingdom cannot really say 'we have got the right to self-determination', and therefore the people in Ceuta are not a colony because the people in Ceuta are integrated in Spain and they see themselves as Spanish. We do not see ourselves as Anglo-Saxons, we do not see ourselves as ex-pats. We have no other home; this is our home. And if we say we are Gibraltarians and we are celebrating our Gibraltar identity, then we are saying by definition we are celebrating the right to self-determination because only the people who can say the first can say the second. The people who choose to say the second and cannot say the first lose the argument in law because the interpretation of the United Nations of chapter 11 and of the resolutions are that only those with a distinct cultural identity of their own are entitled eventually to be owners of their own destiny, owners of their own land, and enjoy the right to self-rule.

Self-determination is the road that has to be followed to achieve self-government. It is the degree of self-government that we have got and that degree of self-government, in our view, can only be determined to be sufficient by the United Nations – because that is what the Charter of the United Nations says, not because we want it to be like that – because that is the only body of international law that exists. So we may be 99.99% of what is required and they would still say 'You stay on the list.' And they are entitled to say it. When the United Kingdom created associated statehoods for the colonies in the Caribbean, the United Nations refused to remove them from the list.

So we cannot celebrate our national identity unless we claim to be a nation, and we cannot claim to be a nation unless we are talking about being a nation which is not yet fully self-governing. Therefore, what we are celebrating is something that started as an event where we were not exercising self-determination. It was the closest we had been because before we had not had an opportunity to decide anything. But in 1967 what the United Kingdom said to us was, 'Look, these are the Castiella proposals – do you want to accept the Castiella proposals or do you want to continue as you are?' We voted to continue as we are in 1967, as we were, because we said it is better to be under colonial rule with the United Kingdom than free under Franco, because freedom under Franco was that you left every day with your head on your shoulders and you were not sure how you would finish that day. That was the freedom and it is a freedom that they seem to be having great difficulty in shaking, given the way they behave when people want to vote in Cataluña.

So the reality of it is that the assertion of our identity with which we are all clear carries with it a responsibility for doing the next thing – which seems to be difficult for some people – and saying this is ours, we take the decisions here, we are the owners of this place, nobody tells us what to do in our homeland, and we choose to be with the United Kingdom even as a colony because it is the lesser of two evils. That is what we decided in 1967 because that was the choice on the ballot paper. The choice on the ballot paper was 'Do you want to be decolonised by being put under a fascist dictatorship, or do you want to be a colony under a democracy?' Well, you had to be a very peculiar person to choose to do the second. But it was a self-determination. Self-determination requires that the people of Gibraltar freely choose independence, free association, integration or the fourth option, which we did not know existed and in fact we did not discover that had been there since 1971, even though we discovered it in 1992 when I first went to the UN. Nobody told us, and in those days there was no internet. Today they cannot keep anything away from anybody because all you do is you google it and you find the answer.

So, I think in supporting the motion, as I am standing up to do now, I do it in the context that we have moved away from the referendum because the referendum was a very narrow choice. We had the choice of being a colony or being under a fascist dictatorship, and I think the choice today, the result would be the same, for two reasons: one, because as a colony under our new Constitution, under British rule we have a greater level of self-government than Cataluña and the Basque Country, which are not colonies but have got less right to govern themselves than we have; and because even though they may have a democracy in Spain, they seem to have a tendency to choose very undemocratic leaders in the process. Therefore, there is no question about it: if the choice today were limited to be under a so-called democratic Spain or a British colony under the United Kingdom, the vote would be the same, even if it were that narrow.

But fortunately it is no longer that. Today we are able to celebrate that the United Kingdom has accepted our right to choose whatever we want – not whatever Spain may offer us, whatever we want – and the only argument that they have, which we think is incorrect, and not only do we think it is incorrect but the GSD think it is incorrect, because when the letter from the Foreign Secretary that introduced the new Constitution to Gibraltar was transmitted to Gibraltar it contained a clause agreed by Government on a position that we did not agree with the UK view, that the Treaty of Utrecht prevented us from choosing independence. We may not want to be independent, simply because we are sensible people and we know how long that independence would last – I am not sure if we would measure it in minutes or in seconds – but not because we do not have a spirit of independence in us and it is not because, as Margaret Thatcher told Felipe Gonzalez when she visited him in 1995, 'the people of Gibraltar in 1995 would be an independent nation today if it had been any other colony', because we are more advanced than many of their other territories that Britain has given independence to, 'and the only reason that they do not is because we say we respect the Treaty of Utrecht we have with you, and you should be thankful for that.' That is what she told him – because she had no problem in telling people things to their face.

So the reality is that we are now in a situation, when we are talking about the United Kingdom, that accepts that and that accepts a degree of control over external affairs that did not used to exist, in that they will not enter into talks about our constitutional development or about our future or about our sovereignty without our prior consent. That gives us a degree of control over external affairs which other remaining colonies – non-self-governing territories, as they are called nowadays – do not have.

But the fact that we are at that level has not decolonised us, because the 1964 Constitution of Bermuda is more advanced than the 2006 Constitution of Gibraltar – in 1964, and they are still on the list with that constitution. So we can say, if we look at the Constitution that we have got today and we compare it with the one of Bermuda, we should not be a colony – well, then, Bermuda should have stopped being a colony then.

The hon. Member, Danny, will remember that when we were in London and we asked for the same text as the Bermuda constitution, what we were told by the expert from the Foreign Office was, 'Nobody's ever going to get that again because that was a mistake that we made – we gave it to them in the 1960s because they told us that they were about to go independent, and then they didn't do it, and therefore we are not going to make that mistake again.' That is the reality. That is the knowledge we have to have when we make a judgement and an assessment of what it is that we are doing, and in the context of that knowledge I think what we are doing today is in fact taking our constitutional development a step further by moving on from the referendum to where we are already, where we have been as a result of what the GSLP did and as a result of what the GSD did and as a result of the new reality that the United Kingdom has accepted, a reality that will never again allow any Foreign Secretary in the UK or any Secretary of State in the United Kingdom to try and foist on to us joint sovereignty with anybody. The only joint sovereignty there is ever going to be in this place is British and Gibraltarian, and that is a day we will celebrate when we are finally decolonised. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Any other contribution? The Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, Joe Bossano has been following issues relating to the decolonisation of Gibraltar and its international status since before he came back to Gibraltar in 1972. His involvement with the IWBP – the movement first and then the party later – started when he was beyond Gibraltar and he has said on occasions in this House that what most motivated him to return to Gibraltar was forming part of the struggle in Gibraltar in relation to our international status.

What hon. Members have had the benefit of today is what Members of the UNC24 enjoy the benefit of every year in the seminar that is organised by the C24 before the session in New York. There, the UN invites only territory governments, it invites the members of the UN, the ambassadors who are members of the C24 and the secretariat. In the years when the GSLP Liberals were in opposition, Joe Bossano was invited in his own right as an expert on the right of self-determination, something for which he is recognised perhaps sometimes more outside of Gibraltar than he is inside Gibraltar.

Therefore, Mr Speaker, I associate myself with everything that he has said this morning in setting into context the National Day celebrations that were born at the time that he was Chief Minister and indeed at the time that he was returning Gibraltar to the UN and to our annual opportunity to defend ourselves against the annual opportunity that being on the C24's list gives Spain to claim our land. This is an important part of what I am going to say in reply.

Hon. Members might take the view that they have expressed what Mr Llamas said was the GSD view under Sir Peter Caruana that he still associates himself with. I do not know that the Hon. Mr Clinton was making that assertion, and indeed I do not know that Mr Feetham was defending that assertion – he told us he was just setting out what the position had been, and his position in 2016, when he had his own mandate on National Day, was different to the one that he had taken in the years between 2012 and 2015 when he had the mandate that the GSD took in 2011's General Election.

That is the reality, Mr Speaker: that every year in New York, because we are not decolonised, Spain gets to claim our land at the United Nations. She does it twice: at the C24, where she has to seek leave to make her claim and express it from the secretariat, which of course grants it because she is a member of the United Nations seeking leave to intervene in a committee; and at the Fourth Committee of the General Assembly in September.

Just so that hon. Members understand – and I do not understand this half as well as Joe Bossano does, given that I am almost half his age – the General Assembly meets in September; the session starts in September. Hon. Members will see the Pope, the King of Spain, the Prime Minister of the United Kingdom attend the session. It starts in September, the beginning of a new UN year. Then after that plenary, the UN divides into committees. The committee that has responsibility for non-self-governing territories is the Fourth Committee. It has an initial hearing in October and then sends to the C24 – which then will meet, after a seminar in May, in June – the issue of what is happening with the remaining listed territories.

At that Fourth Committee, whatever our Constitution says, the Spanish ambassador says, ‘United Nations, you said in the 1960s we have to negotiate with the United Kingdom the return of Gibraltar to Spain under the principle of territorial integrity, which was the applicable principle in terms of the decolonisation of Gibraltar. We want to start that process. Please tell the UK that we must do so.’ That happened in 1968, 1969 and 1970, despite the change of Constitution here; it happened in 2005, it happened in 2006 and has continued happening after 2006 whatever our Constitution says – whatever it says.

And so Hon. Members can stick their heads in the sand like ostriches and say we are decolonised, but in New York somebody will be planning to come and ram them on their behinds because they have got their heads stuck in the sand, because the decolonisation of Gibraltar has not happened where it needs to happen.

Colonisation is no longer an instrument in the national legal order of the United Kingdom. The concept of colonialism disappears from the United Kingdom legal order when we moved to Overseas Territories and the new constitutional structures, yes, in the 1960s and the 1970s, and whenever the United Kingdom has dealt with that issue. But it was never an issue in the national legal order, other than in the context of nationality. You could not have nationality if you were born in one of the colonies. The United Kingdom did not take the pax romana attitude of the Roman Empire and make citizens of those who it conquered. It created two classes of citizens, something that only the United Kingdom could do – like a P&O cruise, different classes; British Airways colonialism. Overseas Territories citizens were in those old days BOTCs, not full British citizens. Not until after Hong Kong did the concept of full British nationality for everyone come into the concept of British nationality.

It is therefore in that context that the battle for decolonisation starts. It starts in the 1960s when Sir Joshua and Peter Isola lead us at the United Nations. What they were fighting then is still the reality today. For national political purposes, if you get a great constitution and you want to say, ‘Yes, I’ve done it, I’ve achieved it, I did what Hassan and Isola could not do’ ... Of course you can understand that a local political leader might try and do that, but he is not going to pull the wool over anybody’s eyes who has bothered to understand what is happening. It might be what should have decolonised us – and this is the point that Joe Bossano has repeatedly made since 2006 – it should be very likely the maximum possible level of self-government short of independence that should amount to the fourth option, but whilst the C24 and the Fourth Committee do not recognise that, then whether we like it or not, in international law, which is the battle we started fighting in 1964, we are still a colony, and you cannot assert that you won the fight, that Hassan and Isola could not win, simply by saying ‘I’ve done something in Gibraltar.’ Well, look, if we could have done something in Gibraltar we would have done it in 1964, or we would have done it later. Maybe the UK would not have played ball in 1964. As Joe Bossano also said a moment ago, the UK of 1967 is not the UK of 2017. But the idea that we have won in New York that which we lost in 1964 is a nonsense which we cannot swallow.

All of that leads us to what happens in Gibraltar on 10th September. Have we won in New York? No. Then 10th September has to be a political act not with a view to the United Kingdom – I think we have won the argument with the United Kingdom. And not just Gibraltar; it has been won by all the Overseas Territories, but in particular by Gibraltar. What we have not won yet is the right that we started fighting for, and it cannot be right that Gibraltar is divided in half between ... not in half, 68-32, by those who are persuaded by the magical art of politics that we have won today that which we started fighting for in the 1960s but which we have manifestly not won.

I am half tempted, Mr Speaker, to ask the Hon. Mr Llamas to accompany me to New York in October or June. I am sure he would make a very convivial travelling companion. When we get there he will see the Spanish ambassador give the same speech today that they have been giving since 1962 – the same speech on the same legal principle. And therefore the re-vindication of our right, the assertion of our right in the context of the international battle that we are fighting, is as important today as it was then, and whether I am Chief Minister or not I will be at Casemates every 10th September for the rest of my life until in New York somebody one day has the courage to get up and recognise, as Joe Bossano has just said, that the people of Gibraltar are decolonised under this Constitution or a future constitution. But until then I will not tire of persuading people that although Peter Caruana and his negotiating team – which included Mr Feetham, included Joe Bossano and included the Deputy Chief Minister and included you, Mr Speaker – brought back a great Constitution from London in 2005 and 2006 ... But is it a decolonising constitution? The answer, Mr Speaker, is not yet.

That is why the nub of the issue, dealing with Mr Llamas's contribution, is not a nuance about whether or not we are celebrating or commemorating. I know that he came with a prepared speech, but I was very careful in what I have been saying all of this morning. I have been saying that National Day is about celebrating, commemorating and asserting. We are commemorating the generation that did what it did in 1967; we are celebrating the choice that they made – thank goodness the result was not otherwise, otherwise the people in this room might have ended up with their skulls cracked simply for defending different opinions; and asserting because we have to assert, at least internationally, that we continue to be of the view that Gibraltar's future will only be determined by its people.

Every year there is a consensus decision of the C24 and of the Fourth Committee that talks about the re-establishment of talks under the resolutions. That consensus decision has occurred, as I said, before and after the two Constitutions which are relevant in this debate, 1969 and 2006; it occurred after Sir Joshua and Peter Isola's intervention; it occurred in the years between 1969 and 1992, when Joe Bossano did not attend and there was no representation from Gibraltar; it occurred from 1992 onwards. The recitals to that declaration are different, so in different years different things have been added to it – the UK and Spain are in a trilateral process etc. – but the conclusion is always the same one about our homeland.

In New York – and this is where we had the great difference about Peter Caruana's decision as Chief Minister not to attend the C24 – in New York in June there will be a decision that says Spain and Gibraltar should start the process of discussing the reintegration of Gibraltar into Spain. Do hon. Members, and Mr Llamas in particular, think that we should not be there to put the point of view of our people? In October they do the same thing.

Hon. Members will know – because I learnt it from Joe Bossano – that I go to New York for 20 hours, Mr Speaker. I do not go for a week. I do not get a chance to have a great meal and I do not get a chance to do much shopping. I go for 20 hours because Joe Bossano taught me that we go to New York to do what we are there to do, not for a jolly or a holiday. Why do I put myself through that? Why did he put himself through that, even when he was not in Government? Why did Peter Caruana put himself through that, and continue to do so in respect of the Fourth Committee in October but not in respect of the C24? Because it is absolutely the first duty of whoever is the political leader of this nation to tell the international community when they are considering the issue of Gibraltar what the view of the people of Gibraltar is, because they are still stuck in the 1960s considering how we reintegrate this place into that place.

If there was anybody who in good faith heard the siren calls from Madrid in 1967 – there were 44 – in 2002, or indeed when Mr Montegriffo and others have made statements about reaching accommodations with Spain ... If there was anybody who heard those siren calls and was slightly persuaded and then sought to persuade the people of Gibraltar that we should accept any aspect of Spanish control of our sovereignty, then I genuinely believe that a week on Sunday, when Gibraltarians were watching their television screens, they understood that it was right that we chose not to allow Spain one foot in the door of our sovereignty and that it will not be necessary for the GSLP to be alone making the argument in the future with the Liberal Party, because the images on our television screens made that argument. Whether it is something as potentially light as making the argument that perhaps one day a Gibraltarian Chief Minister might recommend a modern Andorra-style solution to the people of Gibraltar, as Sir Peter said in Seville in December 2010, I do not think there will be ever any Gibraltarian leader now who will be able to persuade anybody to listen to him for a moment if he starts to make that argument.

All of this is connected. All of this is what Spain is pushing for in New York. All of this is what would be easier if we did not congregate as a people on 10th September each year to commemorate what happened in 1967, to celebrate the choice that was made and to assert that we will forever be the masters in this place and that we have the whip hand on the political future of Gibraltar.

So this is not something that we can consider to be in the bag and we cannot put our heads in the sand and our posteriors in the air, because there are people in New York planning how they are going to ram things down not our throats but anything else that might be exposed.

Mr Speaker, coming back to the contribution from the Hon. Mr Clinton, he said that the issue of self-determination today was taking a new prominence. Indeed, it is. It is in our daily newscasts – and not because of Gibraltar. Indeed, what I sometimes call during our Budget debates his ‘beige friend’ carries a headline today which is not usual for that particular publication, which is ‘Self-determination versus sovereignty’. It is a very good in-depth article about the collision of national sovereignty and the issue of self-determination. It is important that we do not allow anybody to confuse the issues of movements like the movement that there is in Cataluña with their seeking to find a right of self-determination and assert it, with our existing recognised international legal right of self-determination set out in the United Nations resolutions, especially in Resolution 1514 of the General Assembly XV.

Mr Speaker, that is an internationally recognised right. Spain says – and in the context of the debate that we have seen internationally on Cataluña in particular – the only internationally recognised right of self-determination is the right of the colonial peoples. And you almost feel like ramming yourself down the television when you hear somebody say that on a Spanish news broadcast, except although they do not articulate it in the context of the debate as it is today, the footnote is that the people of Gibraltar are not a people and therefore they do not have that right according to the Spanish dogma.

We need to understand this, because this underlies our conviction about 10th September and what it means and why it must be called National Day. We do not do this simply because we like to be hot at midday at Casemates – although Joe Bossano always loves to be out of air conditioning and in the sun, like every good rock scorpion – but we do this for a good, valid international political reason.

Mr Speaker, it is very important that people internationally understand that the people of Gibraltar are not nationalists in the dirty sense of that word. In other words, we are not seeking to expand the writ of the kingdom of Gibraltar beyond our shores, as some nationalists seek to do. We are defending our shores, our borders, our rights, our people. We are not seeking to secede or to go beyond. We are not expansionists. We are simply seeking to defend the part of the world that is ours.

In the Kurdish referendum that the Hon. Mr Clinton referred to there is an interesting example of a state not recently in democracy, the Iraqi state, dealing with an attempt at secession in a way more civilised than some who have been longer in democracy, because although there is no recognition of the result of that referendum – indeed, the Turks have taken a slightly more belligerent approach to the Kurdish referendum than the Iraqis – there was no repression of the ability to vote in it. I think that is an important juxtaposition to some of the things that we have seen closer to home where, without seeking to interfere or comment on the legality of a vote, I think people in Gibraltar have been shocked by the brutality of the repression of it.

I will put the issue to hon. Members in this way: do hon. Members believe that if the Scots had decided under Ms Sturgeon to vote in a referendum which had not been approved by Westminster, that the riot police would have been drafted in from all around the rest of the United Kingdom to stop the Scots from voting, that their ballot boxes and their ballots would have been collected and that their heads would have been cracked? I think all of us understand that that would not have been the case.

There is, in fact, an example when that happened within the writ of the United Kingdom, and that is Gibraltar. In 2002, with the support of this House, and with our support when we were on the other side, the then Government of Gibraltar organised a referendum on the joint sovereignty proposals that had been tabled by the then Minister Pique in the context of the shameful discussions between Tony Blair and Prime Minister Aznar of Spain.

The only difference that the GSLP have had with the GSD then in Government, was that we had thought it should have been a referendum called sooner, but it was absolutely right that again the people of Gibraltar exercised their right of self-determination in the context of that choice.

It is important that we reflect on that for three reasons: the international reason; the sporadic nature of the choice that had to be put; and third, the reaction of the United Kingdom. Let me go through those.

First of all, the international reason. We do not know when international politics is going to turn against us and we are again going to have to assert our right of self-determination over our land. We did not expect it in 2002. Just so that hon. Members understand, Tony Blair had been to visit Joe Bossano – when Joe Bossano was Chief Minister and Tony Blair was not yet Tony Blair, (Hon. J J Bossano: A backbencher.) a backbencher – with Cherie. They were in Gibraltar. Labour politicians supportive of Gibraltar and a Labour politician who had brought in the minimum wage before the United Kingdom etc. And yet in Government, for reasons related to the Iraq War etc., suddenly it is Labour that is presenting us with the sell-out that Hain and Straw etc. led on. Gibraltar galvanised itself, but look, we are very secure in our Britishness with the first part of our preamble as set out on the stalactite that we can see there, and yet we had to act, we had to assert our right of self-determination. But we asserted it in the context of a choice, not the sort of choice that a governing and administering power is required under the Charter to put in the context of a referendum on self-determination as required by the UN, which is to put the four options – or three options and a fourth option if a fourth option is relevant to that territory. But we exercised the choice. So therein another reason why we cannot say ‘we are done with the right of self-determination, let’s have a party’.

Second, it is absolutely important to reflect on the fact that the United Kingdom did not repress the referendum. There was no attempt, apart from political insistence that the referendum would not be binding, indeed that it was not legal – which leads hon. Members to understanding our Referendum Act, which was a manifesto commitment under our first administration, which is now on the statute books, which cured the legality going back and going forward of referenda ... The United Kingdom, despite saying that the referendum was not valid, did not crack anybody’s head open for trying to vote in it. Indeed, there was a huge demonstration of all the people of Gibraltar in 2002 where we were all able to march peacefully, as is the nature of the Gibraltarian community, and then we were all able to vote peacefully, as is the nature of every opportunity that the people of Gibraltar have been given to cast a ballot, whether it is in a General Election, however contested until the night before, or in a referendum. I think that demonstrates that we made the choice in 1967 which allowed us to continue to make these choices in an orderly and peaceful way.

All of that together demonstrates that the choices we made were the right choices and that the siren calls, even when they came, were the wrong choices.

I think this is the third point: the international community needs to understand in New York every time we make those choices, and needs to, under the Charter, also be kept updated about what is happening in Gibraltar now. We may not like those rules, but we cannot ignore them and we cannot pretend that they are not there, because pretending that they are not there leads you into a much more difficult political situation as the noose starts to get tighter around your throat. Imagine, 50 years after the referendum, if Joe Bossano had not come back in 1992, where the C24 and the Fourth Committee might be. Would that lead to action if the C24 reached a conclusion which was, 'Okay, the UK is not talking to Spain – we declare that Gibraltar is Spanish'? Would it lead to action? Would the tanks roll? Probably not, but the world is a much more dangerous place today than it was two years ago. We need to ensure that the noose does not tighten, that we are there to make the argument.

Mr Speaker, it is absolutely right, and I reflected this in my speech, that the referendum generation is in great measure also the evacuation generation, and indeed the evacuation generation, the referendum generation and the closed Frontier generation are hugely important in the creation of the Gibraltarian identity that we have today, that we are today and that we celebrate also alongside the assertion of our political rights. But we should not take that for granted. We should never take for granted that our nation has been forged by those generations without sacrifice. It has been forged in sacrifice and in deep debate about what our future should hold. We must never, however, allow anybody to believe that a challenge can be put in a way that will do anything other than strengthen us, because they evacuated us and we came back stronger, they put a choice to us in a referendum that was a threat versus opportunity and we faced that down, and then they closed the Frontier on us and we got stronger even then.

So, Mr Speaker, referendum generation, evacuation generation, closed Frontier generation, all of them have fought to deliver the Gibraltar that we have today. That does not mean that they are not all constituent parts of the nation that is Gibraltar and that does not mean therefore that just because there is a referendum generation that the 10th September should be Referendum Day.

It also does not mean, just to come back to the point, that where you put National Day is a point of geography, whether it is the Piazza or Casemates. It simply is not, for all the reasons I gave earlier in answer to the hon. Gentleman's amendments, for all the reasons Joe Bossano has gone into further. I would put it to him like this: a point of geography is when you move from the theatre at the John Mackintosh Hall into the Charles Hunt Room. One you go into if you have 350 people you have to accommodate; the other one you go into if you have 60 people to accommodate, a geographic move that hon. Members have recently done in the context of their annual general meetings. But if you have a clamour of the majority of your population who want to come out, it is not a point of geography to try and squeeze them into a smaller square; it is an attempt to prevent the demonstration of the wealth of support that there is for the position.

This is not about the French celebrating Bastille Day, but the French also gave birth to a nation on Bastille Day – the Republic of France. They moved from monarchy to republic and that became the French nation. The French nation before was the Kingdom of France. So they celebrate the moment of emancipation from the sovereignty of a monarch, a divine monarch with a divine right of kings, to the right of the people who created the French Republic. They are recognised by the United Nations as a nation and that is their moment of emancipation, but they do not celebrate 'Cutting off of the Head Day' – which is another way of saying Bastille Day, isn't it? They do not celebrate 'Guillotine Day'. They celebrate the place which they stormed – Bastille Day. This is different to Referendum Day versus National Day and the hon. Gentleman is not going to be allowed to get away with that sort of allusion, pretending it is going to persuade anyone of anything.

When he refers to Joe Bossano's reference to the 25-year period when Gibraltarians have only known red and white as a good reason to move back to Referendum Day rather than National Day because people might not remember the referendum, well, that is our duty. It is our duty that on 10th September people remember Referendum Day, and they always have in those 25 years. Whether, wearing red and white, they have had too much of the red and too much of the white and they cannot remember what the speeches were about is another matter, but 10th September, at least with a GSLP Chief Minister, has always been about the referendum and the choice and never been about la torta de acelga and the Calentita.

He said that I was positively straining to refer to his Olive Press speech. Well, I do not strain much; I have quite a good body clock in that respect and olives certainly do not make me strain. But what I thought was important was to point this out because the hon. Gentleman could not get away with setting things down on the historical record of a newspaper and not be challenged for it, Mr Speaker. It is important if he was misquoted, though, that he should clarify that. So, if he did not say 'Haha, I wore a green tee-shirt on National Day in defiance', he should write to the editor and take up with him the fact that he has been misquoted on an issue that is fundamental in the context of Gibraltar politics. Even John Cortes favours red and white over green on National Day, Mr Speaker, so he should not allow the editor of the Olive Press to misrepresent his position in respect of this matter.

I do not pretend that I have a monopoly on being Gibraltarian. Gibraltar is a diverse community. It is a community of different colours, it is a community of different beliefs, it is a community of different religions, it is a community of many different sexual orientations now that we recognise that, rightly, under the stewardship of Samantha Sacramento. It is a community that we are all proud to call home, and we all celebrate it in a different way. But that does not move us away from the objective reality of the laws that we are dealing with internationally and in New York, which, as I was telling the Hon. Mr Llamas a moment ago, that is an objective international reality. It is not a question of what colour we choose to wear.

Mr Speaker, to suggest that I am insisting on people wearing red and white and that I am trying to impose my view of Gibraltarianness while saying that he always wears red and white does not quite sit comfortably one along the other. It is almost as if to say 'Maybe I made a bit of a mistake in the context of the interview that I gave, and I am not going to allow Fabian to suggest that everybody must wear red and white on that day.' I wear red and white on that day because I believe it is right. If other people do not want to wear red and white it is up to them, but when they assert it politically let them defend it politically as well.

When he tells me that I do not have a monopoly on being Gibraltarian and what should be done or worn on 10th September, but yet he has tried to amend the motion to insist that people fly flags on that day, it is almost as if to say not 'Fabian, you don't have a monopoly on what being Gibraltarian means on National Day and it is wrong that anybody should assert it'; it is almost as if to say 'You, Fabian, don't have a monopoly on what should happen on National Day and what is Gibraltarian – I, Roy, do!' Well, we are not going to fall for that one either!

Mr Speaker, I was pleased to read that part of his interview where he said that in his lifetime there would not be a consideration of joint sovereignty. I did not for one moment suggest that he had said anything to the contrary and I am surprised that he felt that he had to say that in the context of this debate, but I am very pleased that he did because that means that we have moved on more considerably perhaps than people know, until today, from the GSD of Seville in 2010, although Mr Llamas still appears to agree with the Caruana convictions that the GSD of December 2010 is the GSD whose leader said 'I might one day consider the possibility of recommending a modern Andorra-style solution to Gibraltar.' I take it from what I have heard today that that is not his position, because for many of us that amounts to joint sovereignty. Titular or otherwise – but Spain has never really sought anything other than titular sovereignty – it amounts to joint sovereignty, so I am very pleased that he has said that that will never be the case under him.

There is a footnote to Keith Azopardi's book Sovereignty and the Stateless Nation – get it now on amazon.com – which suggests that the Andorra-style solution is not a joint sovereignty solution. I respectfully disagree with my friend Keith Azopardi in that respect. I believe it is a joint sovereignty solution and I am very pleased that by saying no to joint sovereignty today the hon. Gentleman is indicating positively his view that he is rejecting even the possibility of one day recommending a modern Andorra-style ... Ah, no, he is saying he is not so sure. I do not know ... He is not so sure. Okay, well then we have not come as far as I thought we had come, so I will abandon the point and allow him to be captured by it, Mr Speaker.

Then he came on to the issue of the National Day holiday. I do not think he has understood this and I think Ms Marlene Hassan Nahon has also not understood this, Mr Speaker. National Day is a holiday on 10th September every year when it is a working day. It is not a holiday on a Sunday because Sunday is a day off. So nobody has moved the National Day holiday. The National Day holiday was celebrated on 10th September. The holiday given in lieu of National Day, which only happens in two out of every five years, was this year given – because it is in the discretion of the Chief Minister – closer to summer and closer to the MTV Festival than on the day after National Day. So, on the days when it is given the week day after National Day, or before National Day depending on when it falls, this year we made the choice of moving it another way. We have not for one moment abandoned the holiday of National Day – because how could we expect people to go to Casemates on 10th September if it is a working day? So hon. Members have got it completely wrong on the holiday, completely wrong. The holiday has not moved. It will not move. We are the GSLP Liberals. We believe 1st May should be celebrated on 1st May, an important day to recall the sacrifice of workers. We are the first Government to have done that, from 1988 to 1996. The Government after us undid that and we reinstated it after 2011. We are the Government that introduced the holiday on 10th September for National Day. We will maintain it on 10th September every National Day. When it falls on a weekend, whoever is Chief Minister will be able to decide when to give it.

Hon. Members may like to have a discussion with me behind the Speaker's Chair of why it is not in anybody's interest to have a long weekend exactly the weekend of National Day on some occasions. I am quite happy to have that discussion with them behind the Speaker's Chair, but perhaps if they think a little bit about it and they talk to the SDGG, who are the ones responsible for organising the National Day celebrations, they might better understand what is behind that. Literally, as soon as we break I shall tell them what the issue is.

Mr Speaker, therefore not everybody should go to bed at 10 o'clock like I do on National Day, as the hon. Gentleman imputed to me. Well, unfortunately, although I have a pretty exhausting National Day, National Day weekend and National Day week, in particular this year, I do not get to go to bed at 10 o'clock, in particular on National Day. I am surprised that he has said so, because we were together at 10 o'clock on National Day – not holding hands, but watching the magnificent display of fireworks organised by the SDGG over the Bay of Gibraltar up at the cable car together with a collection of people who I think were here doing some fantastic work for Gibraltar and he thinks were here on a jolly. So even when the hon. Gentleman makes an assertion as to the time, hon. Members need to check with me before they take it from him.

910 And as to the issue that both the Hon. Ms Hassan Nahon and Mr Clinton took of who is invited as a Member of Parliament to come to Gibraltar, because we made the mistake of inviting some leading Brexiteers who were jeered and booed, in the same sentence as I have 915 been told to include in the motion a reference to the All-Party British Gibraltar Group, leaves me a little cold because the Brexiteer who was jeered last year was the Chairman of the All-Party British Gibraltar Group, Jack Lopresti. Is it that hon. Members did not know, or had forgotten that, Mr Speaker? So, on the one hand I am told 'You must congratulate the All-Party British Gibraltar Group, those are the ones who should come', and on the other hand I am told, 'Don't bring the Brexiteers who are jeering.' They are one and the same. Mr Lopresti is no longer the Chairman of the All-Party British Gibraltar Group, but he was last year and he got booed.

Mr Speaker, hon. Members need to have a better grasp of the detail of politics before they stand up here and make assertions which make fools of them, because they are saying one thing on the one hand and the opposite on the other hand about something as important as a motion 920 on National Day. Please, we need to be a little bit more cautious when it comes to the detail of these things.

He ended with an assertion that his wife is very nice; well, so is mine, but you see, the point is this, and so is the partner of everybody here, Mr Speaker, because they do not choose to be involved in politics, they do not choose to have to go to endless parties, they do not choose to have to put up with all of the rest of us. The point is that none of us – indeed the hon. Gentleman sitting to his right – none of us have ever thought that someone’s partner is a target through which to get at the other, never, until the hon. Gentleman gave an interview to a particular newspaper, and that, Mr Speaker, I think is a new low in Gibraltar politics. So his assertion in response to me that his wife is nice does not take matters further. What this House needs is an assertion that we are not going to be using each other’s partners, as we never have before, to try and get to one of us on an opposite side. We do not need to do that. This is about a contest of ideas, about what we each defend for the future of our nation, and if the hon. Gentleman wants to lead he should lead from the front and he should attack from the front and he should attack at the front. He should not try and attack from behind, he should not try and use a person’s spouse or partner in order to try and get at them. That is the point, Mr Speaker, because I make the assertion that my wife is as nice as his, his wife is as nice as he thinks she is and all of our partners are perfectly nice and they do not deserve to be brought into the political frame.

Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady was very pleased with the celebration that we held on National Day, except for the issue of the bank holiday, which I have dealt with already. I was particularly pleased to see her and her mother and to see Mr Isola with his mother as representatives of Sir Joshua and Peter Isola at the magnificent concert that we held at the Victoria Stadium where the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra played us into National Day with a patriotic Proms-style entrance to the celebrations, which I think everybody who was present on that day will never forget, and I think we have done proud the memory of the people who voted in 1967, the people who organised in 1967 and the political leaders who were part of that celebration. We saw magnificent video images of the day and indeed that small film then developed into a Viewpoint programme where we saw even more of what happened on that day and we had the opportunity of hearing from other Chief Ministers past and present, political leaders, about the significance of the referendum. Joseph Garcia is not here to hear me say it, but the work that he has done to bring to life the events of 1967 cannot be ignored.

Mr Speaker, the only point that I think is left for me to reply to in respect of the hon. Lady, apart from the issue of Brexiteers, is the issue of far-right DUP Members that she referred to. I have to take this point with her: is the hon. Lady saying that we should not seek to influence the group that holds the balance of power in Westminster? If that was the only reason we were doing it you might think, well, that is a bit mercenary, but nobody complained about Ian Paisley when Margallo was making it impossible for people to cross the Frontier and live their lives, when even the restricted mail, the diplomatic mail, between the United Kingdom and Gibraltar was being interfered with, when at that time Gibraltar needed friends and Ian Paisley stood up in the Houses of Parliament, in a style reminiscent of his father, and said, ‘What we should be doing is telling the Spanish Ambassador to get his sombrero and his donkey and go back to Madrid.’ Everybody clapped. Nobody looked at what his views were on equality. And yet now a person who has been coming consistently to support Gibraltar we are told is not somebody who should be welcomed. I do not know which barometer the hon. Lady chooses, because if it is the barometer of booing I do not bring the Chairman of the All-Party British Gibraltar Group, and if it is the barometer of cheering I do not bring those who are cheered but who have opinions which might be slightly different to ours. Ian Paisley Jnr, Bob Neill, Fabian Hamilton, none of them are members of the GSLP – they are all members of different political parties with different views. The hon. Gentleman might share views with Fabian Hamilton about nationalisation and not with Bob Neill about privatisation, or the other way round, and we might all share some views with Ian Paisley on issues relating to self-determination and sovereignty and none of his views in relation to equality, but the man has been there to support us so I think we need to be a little bit careful about how we criticise those who have consistently been there for Gibraltar and not take a more populist attitude that might simply satisfy one particular interest group on one particular day.

Mr Speaker, I was pleased to hear the Hon. Mr Llamas start with Jo Cox. I think Jo Cox is an emblematic politician. She was somebody who I was not aware of until she passed away, but going back to see what she stood for and some of the things that she said is a refreshing reminder of what politics should be about. This was a woman who was clearly against rancid nationalism, but who I think would have stood side by side by every Gibraltarian asserting our rights to defend our homeland and our right to self-determination.

980

The Hon. Mr Llamas, however, then told us that he held true to Sir Peter Caruana's GSD and its views about National Day in the celebratory aspects trumping the political aspects, so I am interested to see how that develops in the context of how the leadership of the party opposite might develop. I do not know whether being part of Sir Peter Caruana's world view in the GSD makes you a part of Roy Clinton's world view in the GSD and whether it excludes you from being in the world view of a potentially Keith Azopardi led GSD, because that, last time I checked, was all about Casemates. So I am watching with interest from the side lines to see how that develops, Mr Speaker. But for all the reasons I told him before, and I do not intend to take him through again, this is not about nuance; this is about cold, hard international law and the importance of ensuring that what we do in Gibraltar and what we do in our relationship with the United Kingdom dovetails into what needs to be done in international law and in New York at the United Nations. Otherwise, mental masturbation aside, we have not achieved what we need to achieve in international law, however much we might want to think that we have and however much somebody in the past may have wanted to sell us a pup in respect of that matter – if you will excuse the pun in relation to his particular hobby – because the pup was sold to us by the man whose world view in the GSD he still tells us that he believes in.

985

995

Mr Speaker, I want to end taking the House to somebody else's words, not to my own. I want to take the House to the words of the Chairman of the Self-Determination for Gibraltar Group in 1993, the year of the first National Day rally at Casemates. Peace broke out for a few moments there. There is an excellent photograph in that day's newspaper of Ernest Britto, then an Opposition Member for the GSD, with the magnificent Mrs Perez, the mother of Minister for Government Services then, Juan Carlos Perez, both of them enjoying the day at Casemates. So it is good to sometimes put our differences aside and enjoy ourselves together. They both looked magnificent on that day, Mr Speaker. The letter is called 'Identity' and it is from Denis Matthews, Chairman of the SDGG. It says this:

1000

If any doubts existed about the desire of Gibraltarians to be finally recognised as a people in their own right, then these must surely have been dispelled last Friday. The massive turnout and the overwhelming display of the Gibraltar colours have established a Gibraltarian identity in the most emphatic and least controversial manner.

Clearly that was not the day that someone strolled in wearing green.

Friday, 10th September 1993 will be remembered as the day Gibraltar came of age and the day that recognition of our rights by Spain began. In the words of the Chief Minister, the time will come when the Treaty of Utrecht and the Lisbon and Brussels agreements will be forgotten but the Casemates declaration will always be remembered.

The Chief Minister in that context was Joe Bossano and the reference to Spain was the reference to a group of Spaniards who came to Gibraltar to sign up to that declaration and recognise our right to self-determination.

The presence on the platform of Gibraltar's political leaders together with Spanish politicians, the President of the Amigos de Gibraltar, the Secretary General of the European Liberal and Radical Youth Movement and, last but not least, those old friends of Gibraltar who were able to recall that their last visit here at the time of the referendum, Lord and Lady Merrivale, made it a day of friendship and unity unequalled in Gibraltar's history. This was reflected also by the crowds thronging the streets, the young people at the Rock Concert and all the people later on at the fair. Everyone in festive, happy mood with not a single incident to mark the occasion.

As the organisers of the Gibraltar National Day celebrations, the SDGG wishes to thank all those, too numerous to mention here, to whom time and effort meant nothing when working for our National Day. Most of all we would like to thank the people of Gibraltar who turned out in such large numbers and by their mere presence made our first National Day the tremendous success it undoubtedly was. We now look forward to seeing you all again at next year's celebrations.

1010 Mr Speaker, we are not going to change the name 'National Day'. We are going to ensure that National Day endures. That is part of our political DNA on this side of the House. We hear the whispers of the women of the 1967 generation and the murmurs of the men and will never let them down. (Banging on desks)

1015 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Chief Minister. Is a division required?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker.

GOVERNMENT MOTIONS

Municipal cleaning services – Tendering for new contract –
Motion carried

Acting Clerk: Government motions.

The Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):

Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move the motion standing in my name, which reads as follows:

THIS HOUSE

ACKNOWLEDGES the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd have done and do in discharging their obligations to keep Gibraltar clean;

NOTES and acknowledges the recent complaints by the public generally and by the Government specifically, the latter made directly to the directors of Master Service, of the state of cleanliness of parts of Gibraltar, which is not satisfactory and which does not, in the Government's view, arise from any inaction on the part of the employees of Master Service;

CONSIDERS that such an unsatisfactory state of cleanliness is neither in the interests of residents nor of visitors to Gibraltar;

FURTHER NOTES the end of the period of the contract between the Government and Master Service, which contract was awarded by the former GSD administration without any competitive tender process having been followed;

FURTHER ACKNOWLEDGES and welcomes the decision of the Government to comply with European and National legislation in going out to tender for a new contract for municipal cleaning services which will be designed to transparently ensure that Gibraltar is provided with better value for money for the tax payer, a consistent high standard of cleanliness throughout Gibraltar and, additionally, that will provide stability to the employees of Master Service Ltd.

- 5 Mr Speaker, I feel that I am particularly qualified to table this motion. I have been known in some circles as el jardinero, and my duties as el jardinero included sweeping, collecting litter on a regular basis, emptying bins and taking them to the refuse dump on a regular basis, so I know how hard this work can be. Also I know how proud one can be having carried out these tasks, which some people may consider to be menial but are not menial at all because of the
- 10 satisfaction you get looking back on your work and seeing how an area improves and can be enjoyed by the whole of the community. So I have, myself, personally and regularly carried out a lot of the duties that the employees of Master Service carry out regularly day in and day out.

Mr Speaker, this last summer the issue of cleaning attracted a lot of attention. It is true that it is always at its worst at the end of the summer, with no rain and so on, but I am not arguing that this summer was not particularly bad. This was a concern of mine, indeed, and before it was on social media I had already met with the directors in order to require an improvement. It should not have required my direct involvement.

Let's, first of all, start by considering what causes dirty streets. The rubbish does not get there on its own; it gets there through the agency of humans, and I cannot emphasise enough that we must all work hard to make sure that that small minority that may be irresponsible litters even less. The type of litter is the traditional litter of crisp packets, bottles and so on dropped here and there, people putting out rubbish in the wrong place and at the wrong time or without the correct bags, irresponsible dog owners perhaps who fail to clear up. I repeat it is very much a minority, but sadly, as so often happens and as the workforce sees day by day, it only takes a few. Someone can work very hard in cleaning up an area now, and one irresponsible person can mess it up in an hour or two. But, as I say, it is the minority that has this effect.

We have to accept that we are not living in an ideal world and that there will be rubbish, and then the next step of course is cleaning. And of course it is the Government's responsibility to ensure that the rubbish that will occur, sadly but inevitably, is cleaned. Part of this responsibility was, of course, again back in 1999 contracted out to Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd. It was a type of contract that, by the very nature of the way that it was set out and the way that there were insufficient controls by Government worked into it, could go very wrong and could end up most literally in a mess.

Mr Speaker, the workforce of Master Service work long hours in a job that, again by experience, I know can be tedious, is not always pleasant and often can be most unpleasant, and it takes dedication and commitment to carry it out. Most workers have to work weekends, or are currently working weekends, including bank holidays. The worst times for the workforce in terms of workload are those following when we are celebrating National Day – they must all be wondering what they are going to have to clear up the next day. Absolutely normal. I know from experience when we had to clean up after functions once again in the Alameda Gardens, and of course Christmas and New Year when we are out there celebrating and taking time off, and Master Service's workforce has to be aware of the work that is coming their way.

It is especially hard for all sweepers through periods of intense rain and stormy weather, when even the best waterproofs – if they had the best waterproofs – are powerless, and in these conditions they sometimes have to be working in the cold, when they are wet under their waterproofs, causing them to suffer from colds and throat and chest infections, which they frequently do in the winter months. This is almost a characteristic of the trade but not something that we should take for granted, but is often forgotten. They start their working day extremely early, many workers starting their day at 6 a.m.

Some of the workforce are in fact very highly trained and qualified. For example, those who work in the Upper Rock and have to carry out duties from the treetops specialise in rope work and are qualified in rope work, in health and safety, first aid, in the use of chain saws, hedge-trimmers, strimmers, forklifts and other machinery. And some of the equipment that they use, like the water-pressure machines, can be very dangerous. There was an incident some time ago when a single worker operating one of these machines at 5 a.m., all by himself, had an accident and the machine blew up. Thankfully, this was at a reasonable distance and there was no serious injury. Having to deal with the recycling bins and being criticised and people saying no, they are not doing it right, and then having to wait up for one and a half hours to drop off cardboard and other recycling items ... Something that people may not appreciate is that when there is very heavy rainfall in the region and the rivers in the region burst their banks, the cleaning of the beaches becomes particularly difficult, including the possibility of animal carcasses being washed up. They have included baby whales, cattle and even, in 2003, the carcass of a donkey that had to be cut up before being taken to the incinerator by this workforce. This is hazardous work and sometimes they do not have all the equipment that perhaps they might need.

65 So, among other things, Mr Speaker, the workers involved clean the Town area, the Upper Rock, the beaches, estates and patios, parks, carry out the maintenance of the automated toilets and other public toilets, the Upper Town area, all the roads in the South District to Europa Point.
They clean bin cubicles after the rubbish has been collected, flush down the streets, do weeding 70 in green areas and pick up cardboard for recycling. It is all hard work and I can say, once again, that I know exactly how hard it is.

Mr Speaker, it can be heart-breaking to find your work undone, heart-breaking too if you do not have enough equipment or are not given enough time to do it, or if in your opinion those who manage you may not be prioritising the work in the way that you would with the experience that you have. We all have frustrations at work, but in the case of these workers 75 their frustrations, through no fault of theirs, can become the next post on Speak Freely or the next tweet by an Opposition MP. (Chief Minister: Here, here.)

Mr Speaker, this is simply not fair; nor is the Opposition motion by the Hon. Trevor Hammond which is down for discussion later on, which also, in the way that it is worded, could direct those who may not be aware towards the workforce. I would hope that in the light of this 80 motion that other Private Member's motion could be withdrawn. Making this sort of statement, criticising the cleanliness of the streets without qualifying it, without any explanations in the media, social media or in the press can, if you do not know the details, cast aspersion on those who do the work. This was simply not good enough and is one of the reasons precisely why the Government has brought this motion to this House, to clear the name of those who may be 85 blamed by those who are not aware of the facts, because what we cannot do is blame the workforce.

In fact, the workforce were here this morning, expecting the motion to be taken, in a very peaceful demonstration of their concerns – but I must add for the public record that they did that in their own time, using the time afforded to them for their lunch breaks and so on, and did 90 not prejudice the work which they always responsibly carry out.

Mr Speaker, a member of the workforce does what he is told. He works where he is deployed and he delivers his work in proportion to how he is provided with the means to do this work – equipment, vehicles, protective clothing – and also to his morale, and management has the responsibility to ensure that all this is available and that the morale is kept high by ensuring that 95 the workers are able to perform their duties to the best of their abilities, which as we have seen are considerable.

It is management that decides in this type of contract how the money is divided between the different aspects of the work and who decides what resources are put to the operational side, the administrative side and the company and directors. It is not the workforce. It is management 100 who must ensure that they have brooms, bags, gloves, protective clothing, equipment and vehicles so that the contractual duties can be delivered. It is management too who decide whether to go that little bit further in delivering what they have been contracted to deliver – a clean Gibraltar – both by supporting the staff and in response to a public outcry and to the direct involvement several times by the Minister. It is not the workforce.

105 Add to that an out of date contract, Mr Speaker, awarded by the GSD in 1999 without a tender process and then extended in 2004 on a month to month basis, and then in 2007 for 10 years with some adjustment but not reflecting the increasing needs of the community and without the mechanism to make it dynamic and ensure that it kept up with the times. Gibraltar is more populated, more areas need attention, more estates, more commercial activity. It is the 110 success of Gibraltar that leads inevitably to this and it is constantly under scrutiny. There is a lot more awareness. We are more demanding and have greater expectations, and rightly so. So a contract that requires an estate to be flushed once a quarter, which means just before and just after the summer, is simply not good enough.

The need also, because of the restrictive nature of the contract, to make extra payment for 115 extra work. While sometimes this is justified, it is not fair on the taxpayer, and again the worker is simply, obviously and most certainly not responsible for this.

In the face of all of this and of the legal requirements of the process, the Government has decided not to simply extend but to go out to tender. Many workers were upset. They came to see us, the Chief Minister and myself together and separately, wanting reassurance. They wanted reassurance on a number of things but on two main counts: (1) that their work output was not being questioned, and I think that the motion today clearly demonstrates that; and (2) on the uncertainty that being between contracts entailed.

In order to do away with at least some of the uncertainty I am happy to say, following Monday's Cabinet meeting, that the tender is now ready to go and will be published in the European Journal at the earliest opportunity – that is imminently, Mr Speaker – and that the document, and more importantly the contract that will emanate from it following the process, will contain all of the guarantees that the workforce and the GGCA in representing them have been asking for.

They deserve to be reassured because they really are proud of their work. They were disappointed, maybe even heartbroken, to see it apparently trashed on Facebook potentially by parliamentary motions and to feel that people may think that it is them, hard workers that they are, that are responsible. I must categorically say, Mr Speaker, that it is not a reflection on the workforce and that they have our full trust and confidence, mine and the Government's, which is why we have said from day one that they will be fully protected in any contractual transition and it is why I am proud to be bringing this motion today, (Banging on desks) and because it is only fair and it is only right.

Mr Speaker, the future is bright. There will be new specifications reflecting the current and future needs of Gibraltar, new areas covered at greater frequency and including a range of green areas which up to now have not been covered. So we must all look forward to a much improved, up to date and focused contract; a contract where all of the taxpayers' money will go towards cleaning our streets and our green areas and not that which can be decided by the contractors; a contract where the workers, ensuring a much cleaner and pleasant Gibraltar with their vast experience and dedication, will feel fully supported and valued, with the result that they and the whole of Gibraltar will be well and truly proud of their work and of the Gibraltar that they will help to define.

Mr Speaker, I commend this motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I would like to begin certainly by associating myself with some of the Minister's comments, which were very valid regarding the hard work done by people in the cleaning sector in Gibraltar, by the employees of Master Service. It is hard work, there is no denying that. The Minister mentioned that it is particularly hard work after days when others might be celebrating. That does not necessarily fall to the crux of the issue. It is always understood that after celebrations, whether they be National Day celebrations or whether they be the Cavalcade in Main Street, extra work is generated and certainly the whole debate that may have gone on in social media and elsewhere has been nothing to do with those special occasions but more about the underlying concerns, which I am pleased to say the Minister accepts in his motion regarding the general cleanliness of Gibraltar.

The Minister has, to some extent, put words into my Private Member's motion, which will hopefully be heard later today, regarding how that may impact or how it may be suggestive of somehow a lack of work on behalf of the workers of Master Service – and it could not be further from the truth. It is simply not the case. The motion that I put forward is purely about the cleanliness of Gibraltar and does not in any way subscribe or intend to apportion any blame in particular for the situation, but as will become clear when I make my speech to that motion –

170 because I will not be withdrawing it – it will be clear that no blame will be apportioned. Indeed, I work in an industry where we operate in what is known as a ‘just’ culture. It is a no-blame culture in that respect. We do not work in a space where if something goes wrong it has to be somebody’s fault; far from it. That appears to be where the Minister is coming from, which is 175 very sad because it is a very old-fashioned view. No one is to blame necessarily for the state of our streets. We need to look at the problem and we need to find the solution. That is what a just culture is about, not about pointing fingers at the management of Master Service, or the Ministers indeed, and certainly not the workers of Master Service. It is about having a just approach to how we deal with this and a just way of moving forward on this.

I do have an amendment to the motion, which I hope the House will find acceptable, and I would like to read that now, if possible, Mr Speaker.

180

Mr Speaker: Make a copy for me.

Hon. T N Hammond: Oh, has one not been provided?

185 Mr Speaker: Yes. You read it out, give me a copy and then we make copies of that and circulate it.

Hon. D A Feetham: It has already been circulated.

190 Hon. T N Hammond: I believe it has been circulated, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: It has been? Read it out.

195 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I propose the following amendment to the terms of the motion standing in the name of the Hon. Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education:

In paragraph 2 delete ‘the Government’ and replace with ‘Members of this House’, delete ‘the latter made directly to the directors of Master Service’, delete ‘Government’s view’ and replace with ‘view of the Members of this House’.

In paragraph 4 insert ‘(Gibraltar) Ltd’ after ‘Service’, and delete ‘without any competitive tender process having been followed’ and replace with ‘is imminent’.

In paragraph 5 insert ‘contract’ after ‘which’, after ‘stability’ insert ‘the recognition of the service’ and insert ‘(Gibraltar) Ltd’ after ‘service’.

I do hope I read that correctly.

200 Mr Speaker, I table my amendment to the Government motion in order to try and seek unanimity in this House for an issue that is not only vital to our community but an issue that affects the livelihood of many workers currently employed by Master Service who have done sterling work for Gibraltar over these past 17 years.

There is no question and all seem to be in agreement that the condition of our streets, their cleanliness, has been deteriorating over these past months. Indeed, were it not for some unseasonable rain during August the situation could have been a lot worse than it is now.

205 It is not easy to understand why this should have been. It is certainly not being suggested that there has been any lack of effort on the part of the employees of Master Service or even the company itself. On this I believe we are all agreed.

210 We are also all in agreement that the present state of affairs is unsatisfactory, as is stated in the Minister’s motion, and is not in the interest of those of us resident on the Rock, both because none of us wish to live in such an environment and it is not the impression of our beautiful and unique country which we would like visitors to take away. Indeed, in the long term such impressions can be damaging to our economy, as such impressions are shared and spread amongst visitors both by word of mouth and through online media. Our tourist industry has been struggling to recover since the lows of 2012. We do not wish anything to inhibit future growth, so something needs to be done and something needs to be done urgently about the condition of our streets. On that we all agree.

Mr Speaker, Government has decided that it wishes to retender the Master Service contract. This is of course within its gift and we have no difficulty in supporting this. Government says it will do this transparently and I certainly hope that this means full transparency with full consultation with all stakeholders affected, and once a contract has been awarded the ability to test that commitment to transparency in this House without Government falling back on the usual excuses of commercial confidentiality to avoid answering difficult questions.

It is, of course, the workers of Master Service who are most affected and most vulnerable during this process, and it is they who must be protected. I myself have been through a number of retendering processes in my own employment and am acutely aware of how unsettling, even unnerving, it is. It introduces uncertainty no matter what assurances are provided, and where one's employment is concerned uncertainty is never a good thing. Above all else, I ask that Government keeps this at the forefront of its thinking during this process.

Many of the employees of Master Service have provided many long years of dedicated service to our community. It is not an easy job, as the Minister has said, and it is a job for which we are very grateful to them for doing. Having done such a superb job over so many years, if that is now to change it needs to be ensured that any new service provider can provide the service to the same excellent standards as has been the case with Master Service, and that the current employees of Master Service are completely protected in every aspect of their employment. Indeed, to this aim I wonder if Government would commit to reviewing the concept of nationalising the service to ensure the protection of the workforce.

Mr Speaker, it is a given that the Transfer of Undertakings (Protection of Employment) Regulations, commonly known as TUPE, will apply to any changes in the contract provider and therefore not only employment is protected but all terms and conditions associated with that employment. However, those terms and conditions are not protected forever. Indeed, TUPE Regulations apply for a year after the transfer and it is vital that the Government obtain guarantees from any new service provider, should there be a new service provider, that they will not in the future, in order to improve profits or for any other reason, begin to erode those conditions of employment applicable at the time of transfer. A commitment of this nature will go some way to allaying the fears of the employees of Master Service regarding their future.

Of course, another significant factor which might affect employees in any transfer of undertaking is what any new service provider might be offering by way of a pension, and here we are not able to rely on TUPE for safeguards. Here we have to rely on Government ensuring that the provision of employee pensions is a part of the tender requirement and that whatever pension is in place under any new service provider it is at least as good as that currently available to the workforce.

Mr Speaker, we all look to the day of our retirement and we all plan for that day many years ahead in terms of our pensions and investments. None of us wishes to rely only on the state for our pensions and neither does the state wish its people to rely solely on it for a pension, as providing such is not easily affordable. It is in the long-term interest of this community that employees of Master Service continue to be given the opportunity to invest in their futures through a pension scheme and it is the least that can be demanded of any new service provider that it make this commitment to the workforce.

Mr Speaker, in similar vein, it is important that the contract for which Government tenders is for the services as currently provided by Master Service, that is the whole suite of services provided by that company, and that the Government does not attempt to break this down into a series of smaller contracts. If such were attempted it would do a disservice both to the community and to the current employees of Master Service: a disservice to the community

265 because the management and oversight of several small contracts is more complex than for a single large contract; a disservice to the employees as they will find themselves divided into penny packets across many companies and are in this way more likely to see their employment conditions deteriorate over time. The old adage of divide and rule would very much take effect to the detriment of the workers. Government must provide assurances that this will not happen and that there will be a single tender for one service provider to take over all of the services 270 currently provided by Master Service – and I say this without excluding the possibility that Master Service successfully bid for the tender.

Mr Speaker, I hope that the House can see that my amended motion is designed to facilitate agreement across this House – remove the politics, if you like, from an issue over which there is much, a great deal of common ground and provide a platform from which unanimity can be 275 achieved, because I am certain that all of us here support those basic principles set out in the motion that in the interest of the community our streets need to be cleaner, that the employees of Master Service have done and continue to do an excellent job and that their employment must be carefully protected, and that it is important to provide transparency and value for money for our community.

280 Mr Speaker, I commend my amendments to the motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now propose a question in the terms of the amendments moved by the Hon.
Trevor Hammond. I would advise hon. Members that if they wish to speak on the issues widely and not just specifically support the amendment they should wait until the amendment is dealt 285 with. These are relatively minor amendments, they can be dealt with specifically; however, if they wish to speak specifically supporting the amendment moved by the Hon. Trevor Hammond, they can do so and they would still be able to speak generally on the issue – but they have to be careful that they do not do both. I hope the position is clear.

Does any hon. Member wish to speak on the Hon. Trevor Hammond's amendment? The Hon.
290 the Chief Minister

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the introduction that we have heard from the Hon. the Minister for the Environment has set out the position of the Government in relation to the motion very, very clearly, and in doing so I think the Hon. Minister has dealt with a lot of 295 what the Hon. Mr Hammond now tries to undermine with this amendment. And so, without speaking on the general principles of what the motion seeks to deal with and which I will deal with in the context of a later intervention, seeking to deal only with the amendments and the things that Mr Hammond has said after he moved the amendment, I think it will be obvious to those who are listening that Mr Hammond has realised that he has made for himself a difficult 300 hook on which he started to hang when he moved the motion which is on the Order Paper under Private Members' Motions and which talks about the state of cleanliness of our streets, which he said in his Private Member's Motion was not meeting the standard that the community would expect, without identifying there that he was not somehow trying to besmirch the reputation of the good men and women who work at Master Service and who have been doing 305 the magnificent job that the Hon. the Minister for the Environment has highlighted in the course of his introduction and which Mr Hammond has tried to salvage in the context of what he has said.

Let's be very clear. Let us set in mind what was happening at the time that this opportunistic motion came as a Private Member's Motion. There was comment in social media, there was 310 comment generally about state of cleanliness. The Hon. Ms Hassan Nahon made a comment in this House that Gibraltar was 'smelly', she said, and then we receive this motion that does not identify and properly exonerate the men and women of Master Service from those circumstances.

Indeed, the hon. Gentleman now tells us that he operates in a culture of no blame, which he 315 appears to tell us is the sophisticated way of doing things, and blames us for not identifying that.

Well, has he ever been to a Question Time in this House when he is asking questions, or is he so detached from his own reality that he does not realise he spends most of his time in this House seeking to blame Ministers for things far beyond their political reach? But so be it, Mr Speaker. So be it. In the same way as we have been told that we should not be making announcements until the ink is dry, we will look forward to not being blamed for things and simply analysing during the course of Question Time how things could be improved without seeking to spread blame.

But what we are not going to be able to do in the context of a Parliament is not to be political. And so, when the hon. Gentleman says that the amendments are designed to take the politics out of the motion in the Gibraltar Parliament ... Look, I am sorry to say even the motion this morning where we were largely united in the end was a political motion. It is one thing to be partisan; it is quite another thing to be political. Everything that happens in this place is political. This is the political heart of our democracy. It is quite another to be partisan.

If what the hon. Gentleman intended to say was that he was trying to remove the partisan aspects of the motion, well then I would put it to him that what he is doing is actually trying to introduce a different spin on the partisan in the context of what he is trying to do. So what he is trying to do is to take out the fact from the motion that the contract was awarded without tender. This is, by Gibraltar standards, a huge tender. When it goes as one tender it is many millions of pounds a year. There are procurement rules – not Gibraltar rules, European rules which have now been transposed into Gibraltar law – which require under law that contracts like this are put out to tender. Why? So that there is not a failure of transparency in the award.

Gibraltar is always rife with rumours that tenders are going to be awarded to this friend of a Minister or that relative of a Minister, or this friend of an ex-Minister, or was given to an ex-friend of a Minister or a relative of a Minister. That is par for the course in Gibraltar and unfortunately it is constant that one hears those rumours. Under any administration you hear the rumours. Mr Speaker, it is one thing to hear rumours; it is quite another thing to see it happen, and what we are not going to do is to take out the reference in this motion that rightly condemns the former administration for having given a contract out of tender, in particular given the amounts that we are dealing with, which are required by law to go to tender, European tender.

So we are not going to remove that condemnation which is a core aspect of what is wrong here. We will not remove the words ‘without any competitive tender process having been followed’ because that is part of what the problem has been and it is right to identify that.

We are not going to agree that complaints should be reflected to be by Members of the House and not also by the Government, because the Government made specific complaint to the directors of the existing contractor about the state of cleanliness. It would be equally factually wrong to remove the reference of a lack of tender as it would be not to include the specific reference to the complaint from the Government to the contractor’s directors about their failings – not the failings of those who do the work at the sharp end, their failings as the contractor.

So is it that the hon. Gentleman thinks that he can persuade us to remove facts from a motion? Well, Mr Speaker, that is not to make the motion less political or less partisan; that is to make the motion less factual. Unless he gets up and persuades me that every Member on this side of the House and every civil servant that advised us missed the advertisement, we are not going to remove the aspect that says that it was not advertised and was not tendered. And because we know that the Minister made the complaint directly to the directors about their failures, not the failures of the men and women at the sharp end, we are not going to remove the factual reference in the motion to that complaint. It just does not make any sense that he should suggest that that is the case.

If he had said, ‘Look, I am prepared to withdraw my motion if this motion refers also, in addition to the reference to the Government’s own complaints, to the Members of the House’s view in addition to just the Members of the Government’ ... If he said, ‘Well, look, I’m going to 370 take away my motion,' – a motion which does not exonerate the workforce; I would be happy to see him withdraw it, because it does not exonerate the workforce – 'if you include also the complaints of Members of this House generally in the context of your motion,' well then we might have had an opportunity to work together. No, he does not want to do that. He wants to take out the reference to the Government's complaints and supplant for them the complaints of all Members of the House. That is not going to be acceptable to the Government, Mr Speaker.

375 And then he wants to add the words to provide not just the stability, which is our wording, and 'recognition of service to the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd'. He wants to add the word 'Gibraltar' – that is just about the name of the company. The company already appears with its full name in the first line – I do not think there is any need to repeat that.

380 So, Mr Speaker, we would, in normal circumstances, accept an amendment that said 'and recognition of service' but it is the height of hypocrisy for the person who has moved the motion that does not recognise the service of those individuals and simply complains about cleanliness to be the one to bring that amendment here. But we are reflecting that recognition in the context of the first line of the motion. The first line of the motion that the Government is moving today, that the Minister is moving today and that I am giving the Government's full support to, says:

THIS HOUSE

ACKNOWLEDGES the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd have done and do in discharging their obligations to keep Gibraltar clean;

385 Mr Speaker, I think that is, as clear as can be, a recognition. He just wants to add the words 'and recognition', but that is as clear as can be a recognition of the excellent work that the men and women of Master Service do that there can be in any motion brought to this House in respect of any subject.

390 I will tell him what I suggest, Mr Speaker: none of his amendments enjoy the support of this side of the House for the reasons I have given, but I commend to him that he add the first line of our motion as an additional first line of his motion – and if he does not move the amendment I will. So that when the time comes to consider his motion I will move an amendment, if he does not, so that it starts by reading:

THIS HOUSE

ACKNOWLEDGES the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd have done and do in discharging their obligations to keep Gibraltar clean;

395 because what these men and women do not deserve is that there should even be read in this House a motion which does not have that recognition in it.

For all of those reasons, Mr Speaker, the Government will not be supporting the amendments put in this House by the hon. Member. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Does any other Hon. Member wish to speak on the amendment?

400 I call upon the mover to reply.

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

405 First of all, I would like to say I will certainly consider the Chief Minister's suggestion for adding the first paragraph of the Government's motion as it stands at the moment to my motion if that makes him feel better.

Hon. Chief Minister: It's not about me.

410 Hon. T N Hammond: But the reality is that he has taken the motion out of context, the Government has taken the motion out of context in order to try and grandstand and suggest that those on this side of the House, certainly those of the GSD, are not supportive of the workers of Master Service, or even acknowledging the excellent work they do and, as has been 415 cited in my own speech, that could not be further from the truth. Indeed, I know neither the Minister nor the Chief Minister when he stood up – and I certainly hope it will come later on in their further interventions – have provided any of the assurances with reference to things like pensions or breaking up the contract that I sought in my own speech, which I think are very important and should be established today in this House.

420 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I said specifically ... The hon. Gentleman is now replying to my lack of reply to an aspect of what he said in respect of the main motion. I said I was concentrating only on the words of his amendment. I will deal with those issues in the context of my reply on the motion, and I think it is very unfair that the hon. Gentleman should say I have not given assurances. I have said specifically that I am dealing only with the wording of the amendment.

425 Hon. T N Hammond: Which is why I said, Mr Speaker, that I hope that is forthcoming in the interventions, because I have not heard such so far.

430 The Chief Minister accuses me of being opportunistic with my motion. Again, that is just laughable. Because there is an issue in Gibraltar, there are people commenting, there are people concerned about an issue and we bring it to this House, that is not being opportunistic; that is doing the job that we are paid to do. It is very simple in that respect. If you use that argument, then on every occasion that the Opposition say anything that has been brought to them by a member of the public they are being opportunistic. That is not opportunism; that is doing the job that we on this side of the House have been elected to do, and it is as simple as that. So why 435 the Chief Minister should accuse us, or me in particular, of opportunism in this respect I really cannot understand. What we are doing is listening to the people.

440 Again, I sensed that the Chief Minister was living in this blame culture and cannot get away from it. He says at Questions we blame the Ministers. No, I do not blame the Ministers for anything, that is not what it is about; what I do is I hold the Ministers to account because Ministers are accountable for what goes on within their portfolios. They are the executive, the buck stops there and they are accountable, and when they are failing they need to be held to account. That is not the same as blame. It operates on a completely different level and it really is high time that the Government understood the nuance of that, because it clearly is ... It is not a 445 modern way of thinking; it is just the way people think these days as opposed to the way they were thinking perhaps in the 1970s, where somebody had to blame for everything. We are not blaming people, we are holding Ministers to account, and we are certainly not blaming anyone for the specific condition of our streets as they are today. We all acknowledge it is not good enough, we all acknowledge something needs to be done to improve the situation, and that is enough, and achieving an improvement is enough. No one is to blame here. In this case the 450 Ministers are not to blame, the company is not to blame and the workers are most certainly not to blame. They do their job, they do the job they are paid to do and they do the job they are paid to do very well. It is a tough job and I think everyone in this House agrees with that.

455 I am disappointed that the amendment to the motion will not be supported by the Government, but I am not surprised. But I will certainly consider the Chief Minister's original suggestion of adding a line in order to make absolutely clear that my own Private Member's motion is not directed at blaming anybody for the situation, as will become clear when I speak on that motion, which will be purely about the actual conditions of our streets. It will analyse the condition in terms of the cleanliness and other factors, and I very much look forward to having that debate, hopefully later today. (Banging on desks)

460 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the amendment moved by the Hon.
Trevor Hammond. Those in favour? Those against? Can I ask how the hon. independent Members are voting? (Hon. L F Llamas: Abstain.) Abstention. (Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Against.) Against. So there are 5 votes in favour, there is 1 abstention, there are 2 Members 465 absent and 9 against. The amendment is defeated.

So we are still dealing with the original motion and only the Hon. Trevor Hammond has spoken on that, so anybody else can now speak on the motion moved by the Hon. Dr Cortes.

The Hon. Elliott Phillips.

470 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, thank you.

I just want to speak to the part of the motion that considers the issue of unsatisfactory state of cleanliness and raise an issue that has not been raised by the hon. Member the Minister for the Environment in relation to cleanliness, and that is of course the wider participation by the community and civic participation in cleanliness. Clearly, at the present moment in time Master Service have a job to do and in the future some other company may have a job to do, but without the participation of every single member of our community to keep our streets clean they will have to do a lot more work than they are doing now. It is a civic responsibility to keep our streets clean.

480 In fact, one of the questions that I asked the hon. Member opposite in September of this year was how many fines had been imposed on those that were littering our streets, also how many people had been prosecuted and how many fines had actually been paid, and the answer very simply was this: in 13 months, since August last year, only 70 fines had been imposed, only 37 of those fines had been paid and only 27 people had been prosecuted for littering our streets. That is, in fact, shameful.

485 What we should be doing is a question of enforcement. These gentlemen and these ladies that clean our streets and keep our streets clean – and not smelly, as the hon. Member next to me said – deserve to have the reinforcement of the law to protect our streets and make sure that people are punished for littering our streets. What we need is a more robust enforcement policy and that needs to stem and lead from the front by the Government.

490 That is all I have to say about that, but ultimately it is about enforcement and the question of public participation, civic responsibility and pride in our community, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

495 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I rise today to address the House in relation to this motion with mixed feelings. As the Chair will have gathered from the contributions by hon. Members, this motion comes to this House, chronologically at least, in the wake of a campaign that I designed to raise awareness of the very serious concerns I harboured about the disappointing state of cleanliness of our cherished homeland.

500 I had received many complaints and seen countless more on social media about this and it was gratifying to observe how, very quickly following the launch of the campaign under the slogan of Aquí no se limpia – we don't clean here – I began to receive news, anecdotally of course, of the improvements in cleaning in certain parts of the city. I am therefore thrilled to have played my part in raising awareness in the way the campaign did and that today, after a good few weeks, we are now debating this very important issue here in this Chamber.

505 A moment ago, however, I alluded to the fact that I was making this contribution with mixed feelings, and those mixed feelings are for two reasons: firstly, whatever has been done is simply not enough; but secondly, and more importantly, it is apparent to me, as it would be for anyone who has followed this matter online or in the press, that the Government has sought to offload responsibility again to the GSD administration which left office in December 2011 and that the matter therefore comes before us in debate with the inevitable partisan politicisation of the issue and the consequent lack of progress I worry that it might bring.

510 The Minister for the Environment has been quick to lay blame at the feet of the contractor responsible for cleaning our streets and public areas. The Government has complained that the contract awarded to Master Service, allegedly in a manner which they say was not proper, was agreed in such terms that the Government was not to blame, nor could they do anything about it. This has led the Government to effectively telling us that when the contract is now tendered out, only then will they be free to restore Gibraltar to the level of cleanliness which we used to take for granted, a level of cleanliness which is sorely lacking today and which causes an untold harm in the context of the impression that we give, not to mention the health hazard it instinctively causes.

I set out on this campaign to raise awareness intending only to motivate or compel the Government with the force of public opinion to act. The issue with cleanliness boils down to this, Mr Speaker, a very simple accurate observation I have heard uttered by many and with which I wholly agree: our roads and pavements used to get washed with water, hosed down on a regular basis, and it seems that just stopped with the advent of this New Dawn. This was the basis of the concern and this was the nub of the exercise to raise awareness.

When the campaign began, I was surprised to be rebuked by a number of people who were telling me that I was playing right into the Government's hands, that the Government had always wanted to get rid of Master Service and that raising awareness as I did would only give the Government the leverage it wanted over the situation. Such rebuke always invoked the same response from me: whatever the issue is, whatever the reason why we are living in such filthy conditions and whatever the reason why our home is no longer maintained to the very high standard we had known for so long, all I want is for the Government to act and for the problem to be dealt with. That is why I set out to raise awareness and that is why I am here today.

A week after starting my campaign the GSD Opposition filed a motion on the matter, one that was quickly followed by a countermotion from the Government. The filing of a motion in the House was something I thought about, but I thought it was likely to achieve little by way of an actual result. I thought it would do little to tackle the dirt and rubbish on our streets, serving only to kick off another Punch and Judy session in this Chamber.

And so it seems this is what it has come to pass. I do not know the ins and outs of the contractual arrangements between the Government and the supplier of these services in the community and I do not care much for talk of revolutions at some point down the line when all we need to see is water being used to hose our pavements. It is not even so much the streets, as these tend to be kept quite well; it is the areas where we walk, in particular the areas in proximity to the Port and the cruise liner terminal.

I do not want to hear about a revolution, Mr Speaker, because it sounds expensive. I do not want to hear about revolutions, because it sounds like something was pretty short of the mark already and they have been in Government for the last six years. If during that time the Government was so concerned with the quality of the service Master Service was providing, was the Government legally completely unable to do anything to remedy the situation? Was the Government unable to do anything at all or take any legal action either to enforce delivery of the contracted services or to seek damages? Was it powerless to do anything at all?

There is also this, Mr Speaker: the Master Service contract is one thing, but the contract for the Midtown car park is another altogether. The contract for the cleaning of that particular location was awarded by this Government, as confirmed in answers to questions in this House, and that location is also falling woefully short of the mark in terms of its upkeep and cleanliness. It looks rather oppressively kept and the responsibility for that contract falls squarely on the shoulders of this administration.

Whatever the answers to these questions, I remain committed to raising awareness of this issue because it seems that the campaign has at least part of the intended effect – the matter is being discussed and hopefully we will see progress sooner rather than later.

There are two things that have also become clear to me since the start of the campaign. Yes, the people in our community are clearly and rightly incensed about the state of Gibraltar, but secondly it is clear that we have to do our bit. However much Government does to clean up our streets and our public areas, nothing will change if the community at large does not keep Gibraltar looking like a million dollars. This is another element of the campaign that I have been working on, which is so critical. Year after year we see hundreds of people cleaning hot spots in 570 the same locations, and yet day after day we see people dumping their rubbish and unwanted furniture illegally, people throwing wrappers and other waste out of car windows because they say ya vendrá alguien para limpiarlo. It is just a question of zero civic pride, a lack of education, or the result of so many years of plenty for this community.

575 Whatever the reasons, shouldn't tackling these counterproductive attitudes be the subject of sustained and intense campaigning by the Government and its agencies? I know awareness campaigns do happen every now and then but the civic pride issue is one that deserves much attention. I do not wish to denigrate the Government, because we all see on TV and in our schools, for example, how it tries to get the message across, but it is more a fundamental malaise born of our affluence that we have not yet identified, much less begun to tackle.

580 Finally, Mr Speaker, no debate on this issue can be complete without reference being made to issues of enforcement. In the residential and commercial context the rear of many restaurants are absolutely filthy and teeming with vermin and other pests. We need all those who do not maintain a clean property or recklessly sully our public streets to be met with a robust enforcement policy which will ensure that they think twice before they act in reckless 585 ignorance of the harm they do to this community.

I believe my approach and campaign have engaged with the community in a way which can only be productive and effective, more effective than simply bringing motions to this House and initiating a mudslinging debate as usually occurs in these situations, sidelining the subject of the motion and the fundamental and substantial matters relevant to it. The public are having their 590 say without a party-political spat developing unnecessarily.

I also hope that the employees of the current contractor can be, as far as possible, protected and guaranteed by the Government.

I am optimistic that despite the party-political spat that has arisen as a result of it, that my campaign has caused the Government to pause for thought. I hope that it has given the 595 Government new life in pursuit of these objectives and that I am confident one way or another the community will not allow this issue ever again to be allowed to slip the public psyche for reasons other than the return of our beloved, clean, hygienic, attractive and beautiful Gibraltar.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

600 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister earlier said this is the heart of democracy. This is the heart of democracy, this House, and yet this morning the Master Service workers were not allowed in this Chamber in order to hear what the heart of democracy had to 605 say. (Banging on desks) I counted about 40 free chairs this morning, and yet people who are invested in this debate were not allowed in this Chamber, and I would think it would be proper to have an answer as to why they were not allowed.

Mr Speaker: Perhaps you will allow me to intervene at this stage, lest it be thought 610 mistakenly that we in Parliament had something to do with that prohibition.

Neither the Government nor the Opposition, nor I as Speaker, had anything to do with whether those people were allowed into the Chamber or not. As far as I am concerned as Speaker, members of the public, including the employees of Master Service, are very welcome here and will always be welcome, the only requirement being that they do not try to in any way 615 make any demonstration or interruption of the proceedings of Parliament. They are very, very welcome here and I am not aware as to the reason why that happened.

The only situation that I can bring to the attention of Members is this. The Precincts of Parliament were, by ruling of the Hon. Major. Robert Peliza, deemed to include the pavement on the western side of Main Street. Therefore, any demonstration which is going to be held outside 620 Parliament has to be on the other side, on the eastern pavement of Main Street. That is the only matter that concerns me, as Speaker, the ruling of Major. Robert Peliza, which I endorse most certainly.

625 I make it clear that the pavement downstairs is regarded as being within the Precincts of Parliament, but why members of the public have this morning not been allowed in to Parliament presumably by the Royal Gibraltar Police – I do not know, I have no idea – and I would say that it is a matter, if they so wish, for Members of this Parliament to ask the appropriate authority as to why that has been the case.

630 I would rather we did not take the matter any further. The point has been made by the hon. Lady, I have explained what the position of this Parliament and myself as Speaker is – let us have nothing to say further here and the matter, as I say, can be pursued outside this House.

635 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, I did not apportion blame to anybody. In fact, I raised this earlier with the Chief Minister and he seemed unaware of this, so I was just raising the point because I find it wholly inappropriate that they were barred from this House. And I will be asking questions; I do not shy away from asking questions, as everybody knows.

640 Mr Speaker, I was pleased to note that the initial paragraph of this motion acknowledges the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd have done and do. I hereby take the opportunity to also commend their effort and their constructive response to the recent controversy, as it seems to me that, so far, these workers have been treated simply like collateral damage. It is only fair that someone lays out their concerns on the map and that all parties accept their share of responsibility on the sub-par state of our streets.

645 The Government shows good judgement when it states that little or no responsibility for the lack of cleanliness of our streets and neighbourhoods can be attributed to the workers of Master Service, because in my view, given the dramatic decrease in manpower, as we say in Gibraltar, demasiado están haciendo.

650 It is a shame, however, that the Government have decided to hide behind yet another dig at the GSD administration for having awarded this contract to Master Service with no tender process. Is the Government prepared to take any responsibility for the current state of affairs? A few 'smelly' issues arise from this controversy. Firstly, for how long is Government going to look to the past to justify their questionable U-turns? This is getting a little tedious now after six years in office. Furthermore, how can this Government have the audacity to highlight a contract awarded by the GSD administration with no competitive tender when what it is doing now is pulling the plug on an operation with 100-plus employees – which worked, because say all you want about the GSD's time in office but Gibraltar's streets and neighbourhoods were squeaky clean and that was something we could all be proud of. So, in those circumstances it is a bit like that old saying 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it'.

655 So, what do we effectively have today? A dirty, grimy Gibraltar which today has no idea about what the future holds for its streets and the employees who clean them. Mr Speaker, there is a lot of uncertainty – an uncertainty which began when the new contract was announced and has definitely not been of the workers' making. The workers have continued to work to the best of their ability despite all this uncertainty and despite having been treated like pawns in this situation. In my view, this process which they have found themselves in should at least lead to a review of their working conditions.

665 Also, when the Government talks about stability, what do they mean exactly? Perhaps the Government mean stability in terms of longevity of the workers' contracts, but what is going to happen with regard to their terms and conditions? Does Government have anything more than what has already been generically said to better reassure this workforce after almost a year of insecurity?

670 For example, the conditions at the moment for the Government refuse collectors are much better than those of the Master Service employees. Furthermore, according to the Employment Act, the workers' pension entitlement is not overly protected, so I was pleased to hear Minister

675 Cortes's assurances today that the Government will ensure that their pension rights on a transfer of undertakings will be protected to a higher standard than is required by the law and that this socialist Government is going to protect the worker by increasing his or her rights in a dignified manner, given they now have the opportunity to do so.

680 But nothing is yet totally clear, Mr Speaker. And when Government talk about the new contract designed to transparently ensure that Gibraltar is provided with better value for money for the taxpayer, will Government be willing to make the new contract subject to public scrutiny in the name of this transparency they talk about? That would certainly be a departure from the past and very recent bad practices and would finally show some real commitment to more accountability in line with the Government's manifested aims in this regard.

685 In terms of budget, where little has been said in the Government motion, both Government and the Master Service directors have indeed confirmed that the Master Service budget did not increase in the last two years, something which has naturally had an effect on output and productivity. This is where my 'smelly' comment came from a year ago: smelly streets and services were only a domino effect of this tightening of budget.

690 Government has reflected on this by saying the workforce had nothing to do with the dirty state our streets are in. However, they have failed to mention that, contract or no contract, the budget is effectively decreasing in relation to inflation and expansion. Where is the ownership by Government for this colossal lack of judgement? Or was it part of the plan to dump a GSD undertaking literally in the trash?

695 Mr Speaker, I am afraid this motion does not deal with the key issues, which to me are in more certain, and specific terms, reassuring the workers on future terms and conditions, reassuring the electorate that the new contract will be awarded based on principles of transparency and efficiency and reassuring the citizens that Gibraltar will be clean and that there is a plan amidst all this uncertainty to make it clean. There is also a clear avoidance of responsibility on the part of Government for the underfunding and neglect of this service under the current administration.

700 So based on these facts, I will be voting against the motion.

705 Mr Speaker: Before we move on, I have been informed by a member of my staff that this morning the police duty officer informed him, the member of my staff, that an agreement had been reached by the Police, apparently, and the general secretary of the union representing Master Service, that only she and two members representing the staff would be present here.

Be that as it may, I am glad to see that in fact this afternoon we have not only the general secretary here with us but what I would term is a significant representation of the members of Master Service, and I repeat that they are very welcome here. (Banging on desks)

710 The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

715 This topic in respect of Master Service and the putting out to tender of the contract is something that has been going on since February 2017 at least, if not before, and the GGCA certainly in February 2017 were already expressing concerns about the anxiety this was causing their members and the uncertainty. And yet here we are eight months later, in October, and the Minister is saying to the employees of Master Service, 'We will be putting out the tender at the earliest opportunity, possibly imminently.' Could that mean 'shortly'? We all know what shortly means in this House.

720 Hon. Chief Minister: That's not what he said.

Hon. R M Clinton: So, Mr Speaker, in terms of their concern for the employees of Master Service, they have had eight months to address those concerns, and yet here we are today. I fear that this motion is nothing more than a fig leaf to cover their inaction over the last eight months.

725 In their motion they are very quick to blame others, but I see no solutions in this motion.
They say they have complained to the directors of Master Service. Well, what were the complaints? I am sure the House would be interested to know. I think even more interesting would be what was the response of the directors of the company. Could it be they said, 'Well, 730 look, we would love to do more, but you have cut our budgets and we have not got the budgets anymore – we cannot do this because we need more money,' or whatever the reason is.

It is certainly not the fault of the workforce, because at the end of the day they do their jobs as they are asked to do by a company, but a company can only do as much as it has the resources to do.

735 If what the Government is saying is the company somehow has been negligent in provision of this service and they did not know what they were doing, that is strange – they seemed to know what they were doing for the last 10 years and it is only recently that suddenly it has become a huge issue.

740 And so I would be very interested to hear what solutions it is that the Minister is going to propose, not just for the employees but for Gibraltar as a whole. We hear that there is going to be some magnificent new contract, but I really would like to know a little bit more detail perhaps as to what is it that is going to change in this magnificent new contract. Is it that they are going to double the budget? Or is it that there is going to be some new technology we do not know about? Either way, the employees would like to know, as would this side of the House. I find it unforgivable that eight months have gone past and we have had no tender gone out to resolve 745 the problems for the employees, the company and indeed this community.

When we talk about tender, I sincerely hope that when the tender does go out, albeit in the European Journal, that it does not appear in a local paper for one day 10 days before Christmas expecting a full proposal to be in just before the holidays, because that is hardly what I would call fair. And in that tender I would expect to see full details as to what it is the Government 750 proposes, and I sincerely hope that we will see a significant difference in this tender to what it is that Master Service already provides. I have heard no new ideas from the Government as to what it is that they will do to do things differently and I have heard nothing that the Government has said so far that provides any comfort to the people of Gibraltar as to how the services in respect of cleanliness will improve.

755 Of course the employees are entirely blameless in this; I think we can agree on this in this House. However, the Government cannot avoid its responsibility for the delivery of services, and in doing so they need to provide solutions. Today we have heard no solutions and I would invite the Minister to provide this House with solutions.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

760

Mr Speaker: Is there any other contributor to this debate? The Hon. the Chief Minister.

765 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, having dealt with the issue of the proposed amendments, I am now going to deal with the substance of the things that Mr Hammond said in the context of his speech.

770 When the Hon. Minister rose to introduce his motion he talked about the reality of what everyday life on our streets is. Whether it is a day of rain, whether it is a summer's day, a sticky Levanter day, a National Day, each of those circumstances produces a different sort of environment that needs to be dealt with, and it is very ably dealt with by the men and women who work at Master Service. That is the sort of complexity that people might not bother to seek to understand when they are simply on social media trying to make a point about an area looking better or less smart.

775 It is surprising that those of us who are elected to this House think that we need to run campaigns on social media and that bringing motions to this House is not worth anything, as the Hon. Mr Llamas has suggested just that we will have a political debate on it. Well, I commend to Mr Llamas that he should resign his seat, he should make himself a social media activist and allow those who are interested in coming to this House to make political arguments to do so, because that is what this House is about.

780 This is not about Aquí no se limpia; this is about Aquí se debate, Mr Speaker. Some of what we have heard said in the context of the past three quarters of an hour is really gobsmacking in the context of how people think that we are going to be able to conduct the political debate. All the senses are engaged, but surely we are not going to spend time thinking about whether something is smelly or less smelly; we are not going to spend time looking about our streets on an Aquí no se limpia basis/Aquí sí se limpia basis.

785 Indeed, if we are not going to fall into the culture of blame – which the Hon. Mr Hammond has invited us to do, although Mr Clinton has quickly brought the GSD back to its roots and said that it is all the Minister’s fault – what we are not going to do is sit here and pretend that all of this debate and the improvement of the quality of cleaning in our streets, when it comes, is down to Lawrence Llamas and his little camera and his Aquí no se limpia campaign. Even in the 790 context of what he has said, with the contributions from the opposite side, we can demonstrate that the position is not as he suggested, because Mr Clinton has said we have been having the debate about the tender since February 2017 and Aquí no se limpia was a short-run thing in late August, early September – and he admits that, Mr Speaker, when Mr Llamas says that shortly after he ran his campaign the motions came in, namely for the September session of the House.

795 So, even when it comes to trying to take credit the hon. Gentleman cannot get the chronology right, but this is a place to debate how we get things right and how we improve upon things – and Facebook, Mr Speaker, is a place where he can go and do that in debate with any other member of the community, and Twitter is a place where he can do it with any other member of the community, but in this place it is about something else. We have already had 800 Facebook and Twitter erupting in our Budget debate – let’s not bring it further into the proceedings of this House, Mr Speaker; it was not particularly edifying when it crept in then.

The Government dearly values the work that is done by the men and women of Master Service. The Hon. Minister has said so. He said that he himself has swept the streets at Alameda Gardens. Well, Mr Speaker, Joe Bossano became Chief Minister of Gibraltar and gave us all a 805 lesson this morning on international law and swept the streets of West Ham in London. On this side of the House we have family members who sweep the streets of Gibraltar – like I do, Mr Speaker – who have swept the streets of Gibraltar, like I do, and we sincerely and deeply value what that work entails.

That is why we will not denigrate it, and in particular we will not denigrate it – and this is a 810 point, I think, on which the whole House agrees – when people in our community fail to understand their personal obligation to keep our streets clean, be that with their children and teaching their children not to drop litter and not to litter generally, or be it themselves. I think it is disgraceful that a car with a Gibraltar number plate should be seen as a place from which people discard rubbish. It is absolutely disgraceful. (Banging on desks) It is the sort of thing that I 815 associate with number plates of another nation, not the number plates of the cars licensed in Gibraltar. The fact that people think that they can fly tip, which is also an issue that affects Master Service and the general refuse collection services of the Government ...

I think it is also important that we realise the fact that people do not clean up after their pets. That is not going to be fixed with two dog parks; it is going to be fixed by people taking 820 responsibility for their pets, and indeed it is going to be fixed by people sometimes thinking that they might not be able to own a pet if they have not got the facilities to ensure that they can clean up after them. I commend the Hon. Member for the Environment for the DNA testing facility that is going to, I think, make a difference in that respect, although it is not going to happen overnight. When people take their dogs out and allow them to urinate, in particular, and 825 defecate on the streets, in some instances people clean up after themselves, in most instances, even now, they do not. It is very easy to see where somebody has made a removal and the efforts have not been as successful as they could have been, but at least the person has tried to remove the defecation. But the animals still urinate and people do not take the vinegar and 830 water required to remove that, and that is endemic. Part of the problem on our streets is the urination of animals – owned animals and the not stray animals – and that is not something that the men and women of Master Service deserve to be blamed for. And it is not something that happens under the GSLP any more or any less than it happened under the GSD or indeed under any previous administration. It is something which requires civic pride, it is something that requires a deep understanding of what we can and cannot do as a community and what you can 835 or cannot do as a property owner.

Now, Mr Speaker, dealing generally with the issues, I think it is important that we understand that the number of fines there have been and the number of prosecutions there have been for littering etc. is, by the measure of the Hon. Mr Phillips, low. Seventy fines and 27 prosecutions he says is woefully low – I do not know whether he said ‘disgracefully’ low. (Interjection) In a 840 year, yes, every year. Mr Speaker, that is probably more than there ever has been in the history of Gibraltar in that period.

Hon. E J Phillips: That’s not the point.

845 Hon. Chief Minister: He says that is not the point. Well, Mr Speaker, the point is now, today, he wants a thousand fines for littering, and then when we have them Mr Hammond will get up and say, ‘Ah, Mr Speaker, a thousand fines multiplied by a hundred pounds – they made a million pounds because they are running out of money!’ (Laughter)

Mr Speaker, the hon. Members opposite have to know that they have to get beyond the joke 850 that they are making of this place, because it is absolutely right that the civic pride is linked, unfortunately, to the enforcement aspect – of course it is – and if he wants to see more fines and more prosecutions, fair enough, but can he at least acknowledge that there are more now than there ever have been and that this is progress? And if it is progress, can he commend the Government for that progress, even if there has to be more progress in his view?

855 Mr Speaker, I will say it to the hon. Lady, I will say it to him and I will say it to Mr Llamas: this idea that we are not allowed to put the clock at zero on 9th December 2011 when it is convenient to them ... When it is convenient to them, we are building on the legacy of the GSD, but otherwise everything has to be judged as it is under us without us looking back. Don’t they know that famous Churchill phrase: ‘It is only by looking far into the past that you will see 860 further into the future’? That affects everything that we are doing in relation to this matter. This is not Picardo trying to take it out on the GSD; this is Churchill, somebody who we all regard as demonstrating a deep understanding of the political makeup of our western civilisation. We have to look back not to make the same mistakes when we go forward, and the mistake is to give a contract to your mates, a large contract, a multi-million-pound contract, to your mates,
865 Mr Speaker –

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I must object to his reference to ‘mates’.

870 Hon. Chief Minister: I have not mentioned his mates, Mr Speaker, so I do not see what the objection is – he might like to tell us what it is.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, with respect...

875 Mr Speaker: A point of order, is it? No point of order.

Hon. R M Clinton: Sorry?

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

880 Hon. R M Clinton: Is there a suggestion of some impropriety?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, absolutely.

Hon. R M Clinton: There is?

885 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, definitely, and I will tell you what it is.

Hon. R M Clinton: And you will be able to substantiate that?

Hon. Chief Minister: Absolutely, yes. Mr Speaker, that is what my speech is about. It is 890 improper that, contrary to European rules and contrary even to national rules which transpose European rules, the GSD gave the contract for the cleaning of Gibraltar to their mates – I have said it a hundred times; I do not know why it is that he has not objected the first time I have said it – without a tender. Therefore, to now be told that it is hoped that we will not do the same 895 thing, when what we have announced is the opposite ... What we have announced is that we are doing a European tender for this project because the amounts involved are so high that they should never have been subject to being handed to one entity, a group of individuals or otherwise.

We are going to European tender, to the European Journal. It is a good thing we are leaving the European Union, Mr Speaker, because if Mr Clinton had to continue to grapple with the 900 European rules he would realise that there are specific periods of requirement of advertising which you cannot get out of when you do a European tender. So there is no question of something being advertised on one day for another in a local newspaper or otherwise; it has to be advertised in the European Journal for a specific period of time.

That is what is going to happen here, and then the hon. Lady will not be able to say that we 905 have been anything other than entirely transparent in the context of this tender, as we are in respect of all others, because when we do not grant something by tender we grant something directly to someone after a process of three quotes, which is a mechanism introduced by Members opposite when matters do not by law have to go to European tender. We do not willy-nilly hand out any contract and I resent the suggestion that we ever have in any instance. We 910 have debated the instance of the MTV Festival, which is the instance that she might be alluding to, which was an instance where it was absolutely right and in the public interest of Gibraltar that we leverage the possibility to advertise Gibraltar's services around the world as we did in respect of that particular contract, although I know that one of the people who appeared in the video with her was particularly against that. Well, Mr Speaker, it was the right decision 915 (Interjection) and it could not have been more transparent. The whole world has seen what we have done in Gibraltar with MTV on MTV, and that was the whole point. Everything we are doing is subjected to absolute and utter transparency, Mr Speaker, and if she thinks it is not the case, instead of attacking us with innuendo she should attack us with facts. She should tell us which are the contracts she says have not been granted with full transparency and then we will deal 920 with those issues, because that is the way that we must deal with things, not on the basis of 'rumourology', which is fast becoming her style. That is not fair. It is not fair, in particular, on the good men and women who are at the sharp end of the work that is done by Master Service under all parts of the contract – the contract granted in 1999, the contract renewed in 2004 and the contract then renewed again by the GSD in 2007 – for 10 years, by the way, I should say.

925 I was, frankly, this morning very disappointed to see that the workforce of Master Service had been denied access to Parliament and I am very grateful that you have clarified what the circumstances were, but when I walked downstairs I was met by members of the GGCA committee and by members of the staff of Master Service, who explained to me what had happened and I put the position to them exactly as you have today – that as far as I am 930 concerned, any member of the public is able to enter this place and they are subject only to the control of the Speaker in the context of public order in the Gallery. I am very pleased that some of them are here this afternoon. This is an issue that directly concerns them and that is why the Government has moved the motion that defends the work that they have done, and I am very pleased to see the new attempts at one-upmanship on the other side, where Members opposite 935 have tried to muscle in on the Government's defence of the work of the men and women of Master Service, having shamefully taken the position that they took in the Private Member's Motion that I have already alluded to, which does not mention the work of the men and women of Master Service.

Mr Speaker, the wider participation of the community is something which is essential and on 940 which I agree with Mr Phillips. We see every year how the Clean up the World campaign, when undertaken in Gibraltar by volunteers with the assistance in some instances of Master Service and materials provided by them, leads to the collection of the most impossibly huge amount of rubbish – every year – and you wonder how does this accumulate.

Well, we cannot blame the tourists. We cannot say it is simply the tourists who are coming to 945 Gibraltar and are discarding their rubbish because they do not care because it is not their home. It is absolutely true to say that there are Gibraltarians who are failing in their civic duty to this community to ensure that they do not litter. And beyond the men and women of Master Service, beyond the men and women of the Ministry for the Environment, what about the young children and the teams from around Gibraltar civic society who form part of the Clean Up 950 Gibraltar campaign? I have formed part of those campaigns in the past and I see children from our schools who have the civic pride to go out and give up a Saturday during their weekend to collect rubbish that should not be there in the first place. I see divers who get into the sea and pull out rubbish that has been put there and I see people who go into very hairy circumstances on the Upper Rock and balance where I would not be too keen to balance in order to collect 955 rubbish to clean up Gibraltar. You would have thought there would be less of this rubbish around and that every year there would be less because some of it looks like old rubbish and you think, 'Well, that's from a bygone era, we have more civic pride now.' No, Mr Speaker, every year there is the same quantity. That is absolutely not fair, it is absolutely the wrong thing to see happen in our community and it adds to the work that has to be done by the men and women 960 who are at the sharp end of this at Master Service, and it adds to what the Government has to seek redress for in the context of the contract that will go out to tender.

That is what hon. Members will see. The contract that goes out to tender now in the European Journal will be very detailed as to what it is that we are seeking to ensure is dealt with. That is the big idea and that is what has taken time. Hon. Members opposite seem to want to 965 see things happen quickly, but they do not realise that in order to do things properly it is sometimes important not to move with great haste but to move with a little bit more care – and that is what we are going to achieve.

In the context of whether choosing to continue down that road or whether to go down the road of nationalisation of the contract, I could not see a more populist move coming. Frankly, for 970 the Hon. Mr Hammond to say in this House that we should consider nationalisation, when what we favour actually is a successful tender which involves the men and women of Master Service in ownership of their own entity, is really their most populist measure I have seen deployed in this House.

It is impossible for the Hon. Mr Hammond to reconcile the position that he has taken with 975 the stated position of the Opposition under both Mr Hammond and Mr ... I am confused which one of them is vying for what position, they are all at it ... under Mr Feetham or now under Mr Clinton or, I expect in the future, under Mr Azopardi, because one of the things that they made the hallmark of their election campaigns and their position in this House is the growth of the public sector and the growth of recurrent expenditure. And yet now he is encouraging me, I 980 guess because it is popular, to take on another hundred into the public sector. Well, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for all of us that Mr Feetham is no longer in the leadership role, otherwise the explosion that we would have seen would have been tremendous. Maybe it would explain the burning that is going on, Mr Speaker! (Laughter) Parece un bandolero. It is just impossible to reconcile with the politics of the GSD of the past five years. Let us be honest and say 'We in the 985 GSD stand for whatever is popular at whatever moment in time we may be, depending on whatever audience happens to be in the room,' and if that is the case, people will judge you on that basis. But let us not also pretend to be consistent, because what there is is an encouragement by the hon. Gentleman for the Government to do the opposite of everything 990 particularly in the Health Service, included more people in the complement, all we have faced is constant attack for having done so. So either they have not just changed their policy on joint sovereignty and on Spain and on National Day, they have gone out to subscribe to the politics of the GSLP, or they are being wholly inconsistent.

Mr Speaker, this was a contract granted under their administration and it was put at arm's 995 length by their administration. I have said what I have said about the grant of it, but it existed as an arm's-length contract. The 1999 contract expired in 2004, it was renewed on a yearly basis for three years until 2007, and then it was renewed for 10 years under the GSD – for 10 years as a contract at arm's length. What is different now? That they are in Opposition and we are in Government? Because the Hon. the former Leader of the Opposition, who is with us in this 1000 House, was in that Government which granted the extension for 10 years outside of European rules, why were they not nationalising then? I do not understand how, with a straight face – I guess a blameless straight face – he thinks he can make the argument now.

Better to advance the cause of the men to favour the possibility, if they can do it, of them being part of the ownership of the entity that takes the contract in the future, because that 1005 would be better than just a few taking a handsome 10% profit on top of the cost of the contract, which is what the cost-plus contract that the GSD gave is all about. Just so that Mr Clinton understands this, the contract they gave outside of the European tender rules is a contract where what the contractor spends the Government must add 10% to. It is not a way of controlling cost; this is a way of encouraging more cost. That is what is wrong with the contract:
 1010 cost-plus. You, contractor, do the best you can to spend as much as you can and we will add 10% on top. And that does not go to the men, Mr Speaker. When you control the cost, I bet it is not the 10% that is controlled. I bet it is the men that suffer the loss of earnings, I bet it is the men that lose out on overtime; but the bonuses, those are not the ones reduced, Mr Speaker. The 1015 10% cost carry over, that is not what is reduced. It is the men and the women at the sharp end who suffer. That is what is wrong with this contract in particular, and if they were genuine on the other side about being concerned about recurrent expenditure, they would condemn every single one of the cost-plus contracts given by the GSD. (Banging on desks) That is an area where blame must attach.

This is not, therefore, Mr Speaker, about offloading responsibility to the GSD; it is about fixing 1020 the mistakes of the GSD. I do not recognise that Gibraltar is suffering filthy conditions and I certainly do not recognise that Gibraltar was squeaky clean under the GSD. How can you make that up? How can you even make that up?

I lived at Calpe all of my life until I moved away, and Calpe was not squeaky clean. It was not squeaky clean under the AACR, it was not squeaky clean under the GSLP, it was not squeaky 1025 clean under the GSD and it is not squeaky clean today. I would love it to be squeaky clean and every corner of Gibraltar, and that is what this tender is designed to try and do. But the idea that we create a halcyon past, a pot and king village, which is what Gibraltar was under the GSD – look it up – and we pretend that we have moved from that to where we are today ... Come on,
 Mr Speaker, aquí no se miente It is nonsense.

1030 The suggestion somehow is that there is now a failure in the service. We do not recognise that at the sharp end of the service there is a failure, and that is why we brought this motion: to defend the people who are at the sharp end of the service, Mr Speaker.

At Midtown, which is an area which is not cleaned by Master Service, it is true that there is a want of cleanliness on some occasions, but this is a car park cleaned every day, with exhaust 1035 fumes from diesel engines in there – we all hope one day there will be no exhaust fumes from diesel engines; it will be electric and then we will not have those issues – next to the biggest building site in town. If you judge cleanliness by what happens when there is building going on, then all of us have lived in places which are filthy because all of us, I am sure, have had works done either in a kitchen or in a bathroom and, however much we try at home, when there are works going on it is impossible to keep things clean. You know that you clean and a few hours later, even when there is not work going on, because the dust is settling it becomes again unattractive and we have to clean again. That is normal, unfortunately, because the Government does not have a magic wand to control dust from a building site – and we have the biggest building site in Gibraltar today, which is the Midtown development, next to the Midtown car park. So I would say the hon. Gentleman should judge the cleanliness of the Midtown car park once the biggest building site in town has moved on in that respect.

Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady, when she raised the issue of the ability of members of Master Service to come into the House, wanted to say that they would always be welcome here, and she was absolutely right to say that. You followed up and I associate myself with that. But the men and women of Master Service are not just welcome in this place; they are welcome in my office, where they have been on a number of occasions and received the assurances that hon. Members here are trying to seek and extract on their behalf. They have had those reassurances in meetings with me about what it is that the Government intends to do. They have had reassurances about this being one contract. They have had reassurances about the protection and improvement of the terms and conditions of employment. Indeed, they have had reassurances even beyond that, because the Government wants to see the men and women of what is presently the Master Service crew succeed in the future.

This is not therefore about a dig at the GSD or about U-turns. What U-turns? We are not pulling the plug on an operation that works; we are ensuring that we pull the plug on an operation that was created improperly and we are going to ensure that the contract is now granted properly and in keeping with the proper rules.

I do not think it is fair to say that Gibraltar is dirty and grimy, although I think Gibraltar must be cleaner in the future. Words like that create the image of a Gibraltar that I do not recognise and that hon. Members should not be seeking to propagate. We fall into the trap sometimes in politics of talking everything down simply because we are not in Government. That is bad for this community, it is bad for the future of Gibraltar and it is, in my view, not fair politics.

So, stability is what will come from properly tendering this contract and properly ensuring the future of those who work in this company for the future, subject of course, as I said to her, to the full glare of public scrutiny in a European tender. But again, this is not about underfunding. Where is the under-funding? Simply because we have not increased the amounts that we spent in respect of the Budgets? Is it that hon. Members do not see the increases based on inflation? Is it that hon. Members do not see the increases in other Departments, like Health, based on inflation? Or is it that hon. Members are suggesting, because it is convenient to them today and they are not bringing the arguments that they bring during the Budget debate, that we should somehow have increased the recurrent expenditure of Gibraltar, the opposite of what they have been saying to us that we should do?

So this is not about fig leaves, Mr Speaker, although I think the GSD is left not even with a fig leaf to defend the way it granted this contract in the mid-90s and then in 2007, not even a fig leaf of protection for the way that they acted. What there is is now a plan to ensure the tendering of this contract for wider services as one contract and to ensure that that provides the security that the men and women of Master Service deserve.

Has it taken some time? Yes, it has taken some time, Mr Speaker. It was brought to our attention in February that the contract was going to come to a conclusion and we have designed the new tender requirements. This is not easy. It is not easy in particular when the procurement department is digitising the service that it is going to provide, it is not easy when Ministers have to ensure that we act in keeping with European rules, and it is not easy if we want to act to protect the interests of the workers, because we need to ensure that in the way that the tender is constructed that it is provided for.

1090 So, Mr Speaker, I think that this is a new big idea, this is the new way of ensuring that Gibraltar's streets are cleaner than they have been in the past by giving the tools to the people who we ask to be on the ground, at the sharp end, doing that work in the context of the way that we tender for the contract and in the context of the way that the public's money is used in that tender, so that we are not doing cost-plus and that additional amount is a bonus for those 1095 who are not getting their hands dirty, getting wet on a rainy day and ensuring that they do their best and give their hardest work to keep Gibraltar clean, but to the people who sit round the board room tables reminding themselves of how they managed to secure this contract in the first place. That is what we are not going to do. We stand with them, Mr Speaker, not with those who took the contract contrary to European rules. (Banging on desks)

1100 Mr Speaker: Any other contribution before I call upon the mover to reply?
The Hon. John Cortes.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think it has been an interesting day – and there is a lot more to come, Mr Speaker – and certainly this debate has been an interesting one.

1105 I think I can say I have been disappointed by a lot of the comments coming from the Opposition benches, if only in that many of them were repetitive. I suppose the fact that we de facto have three different points of view in the Opposition is one that is reflected today and will be reflected in days to come.

1110 Mr Speaker, as the Hon. the Chief Minister has said, a tender of this nature is a long and complex process, and I am proud to say that there has been a great deal of consultation with stakeholders as well as commitment to the union and the workforce that they will be totally protected. They well know that my office and that of the Chief Minister have been open and continue to be open to discuss any uncertainties that they may have until this is finally concluded.

1115 Mr Speaker, we have gone over and over the schedules, we have been responding to the professionals and we have involved the Environmental Safety Group, who are the people who for many years, as the Chief Minister has said, have been spearheading Clean up the World in Gibraltar and doing excellent work. They have been involved in assisting us in drawing up the schedules because we want to draw on the experience that they have, and this has taken time.

1120 This debate cannot be a review of the whole waste strategy of the Government. That is something that we could debate another day and that is something that does turn up in our Budget speeches, but I must say that any suggestion that the question of cleanliness has somehow slipped attention until the Hon. Mr Llamas raised it on Facebook just does not hold any water. This is something that my Department has been working on very hard over the past 1125 years.

The Hon. Mr Phillips mentioned fines and the Chief Minister answered that point in the way that I am just going to repeat: how many fines had been issued in a similar period any time in the history of our community? It was this Government that introduced litter tickets, it was this Government that introduced litter wardens, it is this Government that reactivated the Litter 1130 Committee that meets regularly and discusses these things time and time again.

There has been a lot of work done in this field and the fact that we are now able to issue these tickets and that we have increased the number ... certainly not enough, and, as I always say, if anybody ever asks me is enough being done on any environmental topic my answer will always be no, because I will always aspire to more.

1135 Mr Llamas does not have the exclusive on seeing the state of our streets, and it is very easy to post on Facebook and do videos but that is very comfortable when you do not have to do anything other than that. We have already taken up the question of our streets.

People do have short memories. Let me just explain, for example, one of the issues that I tackled early on in 2012. This was the question of flushing the streets. People seem to think that 1140 the streets were being flushed during the so-called 'squeaky-clean' days of the GSD – when they were not. I remember attending the first meeting of the committee that I set up and saying, 'With what frequency are we flushing the streets?'

'Well, really, we cannot flush any streets because people won't remove the cars and then there is no point and we cannot really deep clean in this estate or that estate.'

1145 I got a Street Cleaning Committee together and when I raised it again ... 'Well, people don't remove their cars.'

'Well, let us now enforce the removal of cars.'

'But there haven't been any signs on the estates for years and therefore we cannot remove the cars because the signs in the estates have fallen off and they haven't been replaced.'

1150 So it was our initiative that we reintroduce that. Nobody had even bothered to replace the signs on the estates, so they could not even move the cars so they could flush. So this thing about squeaky cleanliness in the GSD days is simply not true. But in any case, when we started cleaning and heeding the signs that we eventually replaced, we were down to contractual obligations and, as I explained before, the contract was simply not good enough.

1155 Mr Speaker, the tender will now be published at the next possible opportunity in the European Journal. It is not putting it off sine die; it is at the next possible opportunity. It has to be submitted and published in the Journal and then the detail in its schedules and so on will of course become public knowledge. That has been the work of the last few years in which we have realised the shortcomings of what was being done.

1160 Mr Hammond tried to jump on our bandwagon and it seems that every Member of the Opposition now thinks that the workforce of Master Service is the best thing since sliced bread. Well, hang on, we were the ones who said it first. Mr Hammond had the opportunity to include this in his motion and he did not. Now he is considering the Chief Minister's suggestion that he should. It is almost like he said, 'Oops! The Minister is right. I've put my foot in it. I'd better look like I really do feel that the workforce is absolutely wonderful and I'd better put it in my speech, and now the Chief Minister has given me the opportunity to exonerate myself and perhaps accept an amendment.' Well, Mr Speaker, he did not put it in, so either he does not really mean that he thinks so highly about these men and women or it did not even occur to him that he should – and that is almost as bad if it did not even occur to him that he should mention the workforce.

1170 Mr Speaker, the workforce will be protected and they know they will be protected. Government will ensure that their conditions are guaranteed and their welfare is guaranteed and that they have security in the present and in the future, and this has been very clear throughout in all my dealings with them.

1175 I look forward to an improved contract for the benefit of Gibraltar with guarantees for the workforce and that next summer those people who like to post on Facebook will have something else to write about.

I commend this motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

1180 Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon. Dr John Cortes. Those in favour? Those against. I did not hear that. Those against? I think two. Shall we call a division?

Hon. Chief Minister: Shall we have a division?

Mr Speaker: Let's have a division.

1190 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I did not have the speaker on, but I was suggesting politely that we have a division precisely because I foresaw this confusion, more so for the benefit of the Clerk – I think she has done wonderfully today, being her first session, (Banging on desks) so it is up to us to make life easier for her.

Voting resulted as follows:

FOR	AGAINST	ABSTAIN	ABSENT
Hon. P J Balban	Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon	None	Hon. N F Costa

Mr Speaker: There are 2 Members absent, 2 have voted against the motion and 13 have voted in favour. The motion is carried. (Banging on desks)

1195 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I venture to suggest this may be a convenient moment to recess for 15 minutes before we deal with the next motion?

The House recessed at 5.25 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 5.50 p.m.

Calpe House – Declaration of support and confidence –
Motion carried

Acting Clerk: We continue with motions.

The Hon. the Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB.

1200 Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano):
The last bit was the GSB, not the GSD. (Laughter)

Mr Speaker, I beg to move the motion of which I have given notice, namely that:

THIS HOUSE:

NOTES that Calpe House is an independent charity which has been in existence since 1989 and that there has never been any involvement by any Government in the affairs of the charity.

THIS HOUSE further notes and rejects the reports and comments put in the public domain which appear to question the honesty and integrity of the trustees and suggests that the donations made to the charity by the public are unaccounted for.

THE HOUSE therefore declares its full support for and confidence in the honesty and integrity of the trustees and directors of the institutions set up by the Charity.

THE HOUSE furthermore wishes to express its appreciation to those involved in the work of Calpe House for the many hours of unpaid work they have given and continue to give to the institution.

THE HOUSE in addition fully supports the decision to invest in new premises in order to provide improved facilities and assist a greater number of sponsored patients when in London for medical treatment.

1205 Mr Speaker, in moving the motion and in speaking to the motion I am seeking the support of the Members opposite. I feel confident that I can count on the GSD Members to support this 1210 motion because I want to recognise that when some comments were made on an account on Twitter, in fact it was the Hon. Mr Feetham who immediately came to the rescue of the charity and criticised the campaign that was being mounted against the charity, which has done a fantastic job for patients in the United Kingdom. Indeed, when we started downstairs with a campaign for the raising of funds, he was the first one to personally put his money where his 1215 mouth is and say 'I support the campaign and I will do it by giving £100 a month to charity – a decision which we then followed by giving £100 every month just to do better than he did!
(Banging on desks)

1220 There are three entities – an anonymous entity, the hon. Lady opposite and the media – that have been involved in a year-long campaign which can only be described as one that has set out 1225 to undermine the charity. In moving this motion, what I am doing really is not trying to pick a fight with anybody – although I am a battle-scarred veteran who is not afraid of fights, but I am not looking for one – but I am defending something with which I feel very closely involved because it was when the GSLP was in Government that this institution was created, like many other things that were created during the GSLP administration of 1988-96, and it was created as 1230 a charity independent of the Government but with the support of the Government.

1235 That is what the first paragraph says and that is what happened in the eight years we were in Government, what happened in the 15 years that the GSD was in Government and what has happened since 2011 – that is to say no interference in the running of the organisation but external support to a charity which is very highly valued and has been highly valued by the GSD 1240 in its time in Government and by us in our time in Government, and of course in opposition as well, and I hope that will continue to be the case.

1245 I am not sure how the two former GSD Members will vote, given today's experience of their voting pattern. The motion seeks to defend the position and to express the support of the Government – not just mine – and, I hope, the support of the majority of the Members of the 1250 House.

On 1st August, a particular newspaper – I am not going to personalise it, I am not going to mention the paper and I am not going to mention the writer, but people will know where these stories have appeared – challenged the Government to make a statement and explain its 1255 position on what was allegedly happening with Calpe House. This motion effectively does that.

1260 Strangely enough, the very entity that on 1st August asked the Government to do this now criticises me for doing it. So I feel that I need first to deal with and dismiss that criticism, and also to use that criticism, which appeared the day after the motion was sent to the media, to demonstrate how in fact it is possible for a newspaper to do more than publish information and 1265 publish news and in fact seek to convert the news that it is publishing into something that is not what the news is.

1270 So, although there was a two-page spread in this particular newspaper saying 'the truth about the Calpe House charity', it was not about the truth at all. The truth is that I have brought a motion to Parliament which will explain the Government's position – as this newspaper said we should do on 1st August – and will explain why the Government supports the trustees and 1275 why the Government supports the charity, and why we reject the accusations that have been made.

1280 The newspaper has interpreted my motion as an attempt to sweep things under the carpet.
The motion does nothing here to tell anybody to sweep anything under the carpet. I am saying this live and people are listening to me, and nothing is being swept under the carpet. The article 1285 says:

It is as if he is against public information about charities, which include millions of pounds of public funds, that they should not be put in the public domain, as if he would prefer that the public be kept in the dark.

So the newspaper thinks that what I am doing by coming here and giving explanations is trying to keep the public in the dark. I hope the public stays switched on and keeps the light on.

In defence of its analysis of my position, which I reject totally, this newspaper says:

Public information contained in a letter on such and such a date to the Westminster Council ... says ... 'The three properties have been vacant for some time and are in a poor state of repair.' ...

Does Minister Bossano think that such information should have been swept under the carpet?

1255 Well, no, and nobody is telling them.

The article starts by saying that all the information that has been published in the last 12 months is all information in the public domain, available to the public. They did not need to buy the newspaper to find out; it was already in the public domain before it was published. That is what the opening paragraph says. And then it goes on to suggest that everything that they have published – which was already public knowledge, but they have emphasised it and interpreted it for the public, who clearly cannot be relied on to understand what they read without having it interpreted for them by somebody – is something that I am trying to prevent with this motion and sweep under the carpet.

1260 Well, what I am trying to do with this motion is in fact produce the truth about Calpe House and put the record straight about the things that have been said, which are not true and are wrong.

1265 One of the issues, for example, that has led to comments not just in the media but in what is called now the social media, on this thing called Twitter and the other thing called Facebook – which I know the Chief Minister said should not be brought in, and I do not normally bring it in because they are animals that I do not understand, but since they happen to be relevant I have no choice, I think, but to bring that to the attention of Members of the House and of the public who are listening – is that on 7th August the hon. Lady opposite made a statement in the media in which she said, and I quote:

When I last called for an investigation in Parliament in December last year, I was told in no uncertain terms by Mr Bossano that the Government had no involvement in Calpe House. We now know that HM Government of Gibraltar owned 51% of Calpe House Ltd at the time that I was given that answer by Mr Bossano.

1275 Well, Mr Speaker, that created and generated comment in the press and comment in the media on the assumption that the hon. Lady was telling the truth, but of course the hon. Lady was not telling the truth. In December 2016 when she asked me the question, the Government of Gibraltar did not own 51% of Calpe House Ltd. It did not own it then, it did not own it in August of 2017 when she said it, and it does not own it now.

1280 Clearly, the hon. Member opposite does not have a clue what a company limited by guarantee means, otherwise she would not have assumed that we own 51% of the company. It is only possible to own 51% of a company if you have got a company limited by guarantee and one guarantor has a guarantee which is 51 times what the other guarantors have. So, if you have got a company limited by guarantee and one guarantor has £1 and I am the Government and I have £51 as a guarantor, then you could say that I own 51%, although technically of course it would be incorrect because a company limited by guarantee does not have shares, so it is impossible to own 51% of non-existent shares. The closest would be if you were a guarantor of 51% of the guarantee and the other guarantors made 49%. That is not true, that is not the case, has never been the case and she could not possibly have learned that from anybody because one would have to be as ignorant as she is to have taught her that, and I doubt there is anybody that ignorant.

1290 So, what happens with that accusation is that it gets picked up immediately by what I assume is one of her newly formed movement participants – the people that are gathering around her – a certain Thomas Johnson, who on reading what she has said, that I had lied, in effect, accusing me of having lied in December 2016 because I said we had nothing to do with the involvement ...

1295 I will read what I said in December. It is a matter of public record, it is in Hansard, and nowhere in the debate that took place – or rather in the answers to questions, but almost deteriorated into a debate – do I say anything using the words that she attributes to me. What I did say was what is the first paragraph of the motion, what I have said happened in the 15 years of the GSD, and that is that in the running of the charity the Government is not involved; the 1300 Government is involved in giving support to the charity.

This particular supporter of hers ... and if that is not the case, even though he is very complimentary of her and very critical of me, she can put the record straight, but we live in a free society and people are entitled to have views of different politicians and of people who are not politicians. But of course the consequence of her saying that we had nothing to do with the 1305 charity and claiming, as she claimed, that at the time we owned 51% of the business that we said we had nothing to do with, is that this particular gentleman says:

You cannot trust a single thing that comes out of Bossano's mouth. I often ask myself how such a deceitful guy got elected.

For 45 years is what I am saying.

He later on goes on to suggest that the best thing for me is to resign over my not having told the Lady that we had 51% – which of course we did not have. I do not know whether after this 1310 debate he is going to ask her to resign for inventing the 51%.

I am afraid that it does not end there, because another of the companions of the new pristine movement that is going to be the model for Gibraltar joins in and a certain Kyle Pecino goes on to say that he does not mind being vulgar and blunt and that I am an evil four-letter word which I will not repeat.

1315 Then, Mr Johnson explains that I am responsible in the early 1990s for having targeted his grandfather and his pension because his grandmother is Spanish – I do not know if she is still alive – and I stopped it. Well, of course not everybody in this House will know what this refers to, but let me remind the Members that do and enlighten the ones that do not. In the 1990s what happened was that we had Community Care, and what was happening with Spanish people 1320 in Community Care was that they were claiming that they should get Community Care the same as people in Gibraltar should get it. In fact, a case was taken to court in the name of a Spanish pensioner by Messrs Triay and Triay and I brought the motion to this Parliament condemning that move – and in fact Mr Caruana, in order to distance himself from the action and save his political neck, left the partnership and set up his own office and his own practice as a lawyer.

1325 That is the context in which I am being accused of having refused a Spanish grandmother a pension, which probably means that she was unable to get Community Care in the 1990s, not because I said so but because the rules of that charity – also at a distance from the Government, as I said in an earlier question to the Leader of the Opposition – had rules which it was applying.
Some people benefitted from the rules and some people were worse off from the rules. But in 1330 fact the court case at the time was a test case taken in the name of the Spaniard, which in the event was a complete setup because the guy whose name it was allegedly being taken in did not even know it was happening. As a consequence of that in the 1990s here we are in 2017: that person thinks I should resign because allegedly I lied about the 51% of the company that we do not own.

1335 And it goes on. It does not just end with that. It then goes on, because these two individuals continue with their use of derogatory language, which gets worse with every line – in Facebook apparently they allow all these things; they are a very open media, everybody is free to call everybody else what they like and get away with it, and I think that since these gentlemen have put their names to it I would like the whole of Gibraltar to know it – and when somebody 1340 suggested to them 'Don't you think you should have a little bit more respect for somebody who has been 46 years defending Gibraltar?' they would become even more vulgar.

1345 I do not know whether there is anything anybody can do or have recourse to, to stop this kind of thing being done, but I suggest to the hon. Member that if those are the kind of people she is recruiting into her new movement, the sooner she distances herself from them the better and maybe she will have an opportunity of doing so today when she contributes to this motion.

1350 This is an illustration, Mr Speaker, of how you can build up a momentum behind something on the premise that you make a false statement which people do not question, and then you have got a whole situation where I am the target of having lied in Parliament to the Member opposite by saying that we are not involved in Calpe House when we are supposed to own 51% of a company which I have just demonstrated is impossible for us to own and we do not own.

1355 And what is the situation as regards the existing building, which has nothing to do with the debate about the new building? The existing building in fact was originally, in 1994, given a lease that was in the name of the Governor, 100% as the Crown, and the Crown held that property for the benefit of the Calpe House Trust as to 49% and for the benefit of the Government of Gibraltar as to 51%. For a lease to be held by the Governor for the benefit of the Government as to 51% and for the benefit of the Trust as to 49% does not mean that we have been using that 51% beneficial ownership of that building to involve ourselves in 51% of the decisions that the Trust has taken between 1994 and now, any more than in the 15 years when the GSD was the 51% beneficial owner they got involved in running the Calpe House Trust or taking any decisions as to who did and who did not go in or how money was spent or not spent. So one thing has nothing to do with the other.

1360 In any event, let me remind the hon. Member of what I actually told her, which is not what she claimed on 7th August. I told the hon. Lady:

I am of course very close to Calpe House, as the hon. Member may know, because the original idea was launched back in 1988-89. We are all putting £100 a month of our money in Calpe House, so we have got a personal interest in making sure that the money is being well spent for what it is intended. But of course this is a private charity and is independent of the Government, and it is not the Government that has to do investigations because that would imply we do not trust the trustees.

1365 The hon. Lady was asking us to carry out an investigation. The answer was that we do not run the charity. We are giving £100 of our own money and we are supporting the campaign to raise money, and if we thought the trustees could not be trusted then we would do something about it, but we do not need to investigate the trustees – the fact that we are involved in supporting it is evidence of our trust in the trustees; we think they do a good job. We continue to think they do a good job.

1370 Let me tell the hon. Lady that the charity clearly has always, when it has had to take decisions which require Government support, always consulted the Government in order to ascertain whether the support would be forthcoming, and that is what they did before they bought the building. Before they bought the building of course they came to us. They told us the different buildings they had looked at, they said what this building was like and they asked the Government if they went ahead with buying it would the Government support it, because they would not commit themselves to doing it if the Government was not going to be behind them. That is not involving themselves or interfering in the decisions or telling them what to do. We could have said ‘no, we are not going to support this’ and then they would not have proceeded because that would have been something that the trustees would not have wanted to take on without the backing of the Government.

1380 The Lady opposite has told people, including the charity, that we match pound for pound every pound that is raised in the campaign for the donations. This is not true. She has made that up. We matched pound for pound the money that was raised in 1989 – she is 13 years out of date. Nobody has matched pound for pound the money. Otherwise, the Government would not be putting £100 for each of us every month, because we are giving £100 to the charity every month, so there would be £100 from our pocket and £100 from the Government’s pocket – this is not happening. What we have done is make sure that if there is a shortfall we will be there to step in, but clearly we do not want people to think 'It doesn't matter, I won't give money to the charity because the money will be coming from the Government.'

1390 But I can tell the hon. Lady that the negative campaign in the media and the negative campaign which she has aided and abetted has had some effect and that the people who are involved in raising money are telling me that since that, because of the doubts that have been created, they have found some resistance and that when they have been ... For example, for a 1395 charity that is totally independent of this one, that has a flag day and they had a flag day not long ago where they were collecting – where they actually give financial support to the patients and their families that go there who are on very low incomes and cannot manage with the money that the Government pays ... When they have been out there collecting they have found a situation where, when they approached people to put in some money, they said, 'If this is for 1400 Calpe House, I am not putting the money in.' They explained to them that it is not for Calpe House, the money is directed at a charity that gives the money to the actual patient, who is part means tested and has difficulty in going to the UK and meeting the costs there. So you have got a situation where, on the basis of deliberate ... or misrepresentations based on ignorance – I think the two have been there – damage has been done, and the damage has been done as indeed Mr Feetham predicted was going to be happening when he entered into the Twitter 1405 account.

This Twitter account, we do not know who started it. All that we know is that there are people there who are castigating the GSD for not being more hostile, so there seem to be people who want the charity to have people hostile to it, and so far, the only ally they have been able to find is the hon. Lady.

1410 Mr Speaker, the wording of the motion is self-evident: we reject the reports and the comments put in the public domain which appear to question the honesty and integrity of the trustees and suggest that the donations made to the charity by the public are unaccounted for.
We reject this. We reject it because it is not true, because if it was true ... if we believed it was true that we had trustees that were dishonest and were pocketing the ... the first thing we 1415 would do is we would stop our own £100 – let's be clear – and then what we would do, as a responsible Government, would be to do something about getting to the bottom of what was happening with the money and taking action; and if in fact we were talking about criminal activity, then it would indeed be very serious, seeing as one of the trustees himself is the head of the Police.

1420 Mr Speaker, how can anybody think that the money is unaccounted for? Does the hon. Lady really believe that we do not know where the money has gone? Who claims that we do not know where the money has gone? I will tell the House who claims this: a lady who writes in a newspaper, who is an English lady who lives in Spain, who has no connection with Gibraltar other than writing in this newspaper, as far as I am aware, and who wrote an article in this 1425 newspaper on 24th August and the headline on the front page of the newspaper was 'Where has the money the people have donated gone?' This lady, as well as claiming that the money that the people have donated was not there because the company set up in the United Kingdom as a charity had a zero balance sheet, so therefore where has all the money gone ... Having said that en passant, she then took it upon herself to question the honesty and the integrity of Lord 1430 Hoyle. Lord Hoyle, who is older than I am, over 80, happens to be a man, like many, who when he was a trade union leader supported us 50 years ago, when he got elected to Parliament supported us, and when he left Parliament and got elected to the House of Lords continues to support us – more than half of his life supporting us. I am happy to say that the person who has criticised Lord Hoyle is not a Gibraltarian; it is an English woman. I am happy to say that because 1435 I would be ashamed of my own people if they had criticised Lord Hoyle unjustly and unnecessarily and rubbed out in this place, it seems ...

I do not want and I have never wanted any credit for anything I do. I enjoy what I am doing. I enjoy it now, I enjoyed it when I was on the other side, I enjoyed it when I was on the picket lines, I have always enjoyed it – I am very lucky – whatever I was doing. But I think this place can 1440 be very ungrateful to people, and people do expect some kind of recognition for their efforts. So you spend 46 years in Parliament and a newly arrived Member in Parliament says you lied and you said we had nothing to do with something when you own 51% of it – it happens to be untrue – so you should get sacked.

1445 Well, look, the accounts are not published on time in the charity and they are six months out of date or nine months out of date, so therefore everybody should resign. Well, then, by that definition the 15 years of the GSD should have been wiped out. We are doing the accounts of 1996 now, so how can it be such a terrible crime to be late with a set of accounts that people have to be castigated publically?

1450 Don't the people who do that understand that we do not have a huge queue of people volunteering to do unpaid work for the public good, and that if what people do when they do something for no monetary reward is find themselves pilloried we are going to have even less? Why should anybody spend their time doing work for Calpe House on a committee and not getting paid, and thinking, 'Well, at least the community to which I belong will see what a good guy I am,' and instead he finds himself effectively having his integrity and his honesty questioned?

1455 This article that appeared on 24th August is very strange because the question is: where has the money gone? The money from all the donations, where is it? All the person who wrote this on 21st August had to do was to go back to the edition of 24th July, because the same newspaper on 24th July said where the money was. On 24th July, the same newspaper says all the donations in Gibraltar are in an account in Gibraltar, in a different charity called the Friends of Calpe House, which is answerable to the charity commissioners of Gibraltar and not the UK.

1460 This is either a monumental level of incompetence or a determined effort to put doubt in people's minds, because if people read the article of 24th July nobody would have been worried about putting their penny in the box, it is in the Friends of Gibraltar account in Gibraltar. But if people read on 21st August the newly formed company in the United Kingdom, Calpe House Ltd, has zero money, well, 'Zero money? Where is my £100 going every month?'

1465 If that is not a deliberate thing, then it is the height of irresponsibility, and if the hon. Member is supporting that campaign then she needs to know what it is she is supporting. If she is so keen on the truth and on transparency and on explanations, then she should make sure that she checks what she gets told by people before assuming it.

1470 Mr Speaker, apart from the position that has been put in these articles, we have a situation where I am telling Parliament that the building was bought after the charity got the go-ahead from the Government. So, if you want to blame anybody, you blame the Government – all the Government, we are all responsible.

1475 If you have got a situation where you are buying something as opposed to selling it, is it so strange that the person that buys a house says it is in a very bad condition and the person who is selling the house says it is in a very good one? Or is that something so new that nobody has come across it before? Let me tell the House that when we bought the first Calpe House I went to see it, as Chief Minister, before we bought it. At that point we were putting up half the cash up front, pound for pound. I went to see it and it was dilapidated, and I said to the guy, 'When you go, look at every crack that there is in the wall and every leak – find as many faults as you can to try and bring the price down.' Nobody then said, 'Ah! Look how many faults Bossano has found – he's crazy to buy the house.' This is part of what you are doing when you are bargaining to buy something. If I had been selling the house, I would have said to the guy, 'Paper all the cracks and give it a coat of paint.'

1480 So you put motives into people. What is it that you are saying? That somebody deliberately bought something and paid more than they should? Are you then saying that the people who took the decision ... and the decision was not a decision taken by them in the sense that we had the opportunity which they gave us to say do not go ahead and do not buy it? But we said yes, so are we being told that we have been overcharged for that building, that the people we contracted in the UK are also taking backhanders and that they are getting a cut of what we paid?

1495 Listen, we paid it to the National Health Service, the Trust – that is the people we bought it off. Is it that the Secretary of State is also getting a brown envelope? He actually overruled the 1500 Trust when they asked for compensation. They asked for £5 million compensation for removing the nomination rights that there were, going back a very long time, because this is a building that has always been associated with the Health Service in the United Kingdom. The nomination rights allowed the place to be used for staff for St Mary's Hospital and for the whole of the Trust – the Imperial Trust or something like that it is called, National Health Service Trust. There was a 1505 company called Catalyst that owned 50% of the equity in the building and the other 50% was owned by the National Health Trust. In order to remove that nomination right, which we said ... The Trust came back to us and said, 'We don't think we should take this with the nomination right. They never used it very much, but if we do the place up and it is in a very good state and they come back with a nomination of right saying "now we want to stay put – people we are 1510 bringing from outside, doctors or nurses or whatever, we want to put them in your building," the building we bought – we cannot stop them. So before we spend money in... It may not be an attractive place in the state that it is in now because it is run down, so you may have difficulty making use of it, but if we are going to spend money in doing it up they may want to use the nomination rights, so we have got to say to them with the nomination rights we don't take it.' That is the advice they gave us and we said, 'Okay, we support what you are doing.'

1515 Ninety-nine percent of the time, frankly, everything that has happened has been on the basis of them telling us what the problem is, advising us what they think the answer should be to the problem, and 99% of it is us agreeing. So it is not that we tell them 'do it this way'; it is just that we look at what they say, we look at why they say 'do A and not B' and, because it makes sense, we say yes.

1520 So they went back and said, 'We don't want the building with nomination rights,' and then they were told the nomination rights were going to cost five million quid and the company that had other property interests and other commercial reasons for wanting to get out quickly and reinvest elsewhere, because otherwise they would have lost the opportunity of other reinvestments, said 'I am prepared to give my 50% of the nomination rights free of charge.' The NHS Trust, because they are also short of money, would not give it up without their half, without the £2½ million, understandably. In fact, one of the trustees, using the longstanding relationships we have got with Members of Parliament and our political lobby, managed to get direct access to the Secretary of State for Health and persuaded him to waive the £2½ million, 1525 and therefore we got something that had been valued at £5 million thrown in for nothing.

1530 Is this something that we want swept under the carpet? Is it that they pocketed the £5 million and charged us? It is not. It is that when people are doing a job they do not come up with press releases every day. Politicians might want press releases every day because they need to keep their profile out there in order to get voted for, but the people who are in the Trust are not in that business. They just get on with the job. They do things. They have problems and they find solutions.

1535 So the nomination rights were removed at zero cost to the Trust. What is the explanation? What is this mystery of the company? Well, look, this started in 2014. The first approach was made to the Trust in 2013 by their lawyers in the United Kingdom saying, 'The previous trust had the beneficial ownership of the property but the property was in the name of the Governor of Gibraltar, in the name of the Crown. You may have a problem with a trust which is not a body corporate actually owning property. You may have a problem with Capital Gains Tax. You may have a problem with VAT. If the property is not going to be owned by the Crown and if it is not going to be owned by ... it may be that a trust is not the best way to do it.' They suggested two 1540 different options. One was a company limited by guarantee and another kind of company which is not a limited liability company and is one I had not come across before, and they recommended the company limited by guarantee as the best option – and indeed the Financial Secretary at the time in 2014 made the same recommendation.

1545 Is this a secret that we have swept under the carpet? Or is it that we have to do a press release every day of every decision the Financial Secretary makes so as not to be accused of sweeping things under the carpet? If any Member opposite does not believe me, I will produce the email of the Financial Secretary of the time, if they think I am lying, when he said ‘I think this is the best way to do it.’

1550 When we make statements in the House we make ourselves responsible for the accuracy of the things that we are saying and we are not allowed to call each other liars because we are not supposed to lie in this place. The most we are allowed to do is to be economical with the truth, I think, but I am not being economical with the truth because I am willing to back everything I am saying if anybody puts in doubt what I am saying.

1555 So this is the point that I am trying to put across, so that Members will see that I am demonstrating factually; it is not blind faith, as the people in the Twitter account say – ‘Time to stop the blind faith.’ Well, look, it may be time to stop the blind faith if anybody has blind faith, but if we are going to replace trust by distrust then nothing will work in this place. If the people we have known all our lives we now cannot trust, even when there is no inkling, no indicator, nothing to show that money is missing or that anything is wrong, then what kind of society are we? What kind of people have we become in this place that people who have contributed their whole life ...?

1560 Lord Hoyle is being accused of being in a company that is fleecing people who are in debt – let me tell the House what the truth is – simply because seven or eight years ago, not now, a company was created in Chorley, where he was the MP, and he was a non-executive director for a short while eight years ago, and then some English lady from nobody knows where, who lives in Spain, has the temerity to put in question the integrity of the man who has defended Gibraltar and asked for nothing in exchange – except for the odd jolly on National Day – and defended us in the Commons, in the trade union movement, in the TUC and in the House of Lords. Well, we Gibraltarians know how to be grateful. We appreciate what people do for us –

Hon. Member: From the Labour Party.

1580 Independent of that, Mr Speaker, we have a situation, of course, that all this emanates from an original anonymous distribution of papers. Obviously, all those who are not interested in things being swept under the carpet and all those who are interested in everything being reviewed do not seem to be remotely interested in the identity of the anonymous so-called whistleblower – because they are not a real whistle blower because there is no whistle there to blow.

1585 But papers belonging to the charity were sent to the charity commissioners and the charity commissioners cannot ignore, even if it is anonymous, papers that are sent to them which say a building has been bought and there was asbestos and nobody looked at it. Well, look, if you buy a building for £8 million and you discover that there is asbestos, which you did not know was there before, and you spend a couple of hundred thousand pounds putting it right, it is £200,000 more than the £8 million. But of course if you buy a building for £4 million and you have to spend £4 million removing asbestos, then it is riddled with asbestos. ‘Riddled’ with asbestos is if it is costing you as much to remove the asbestos as the building cost you. That is riddled with asbestos, not that you find £150, 120 or £130 worth, which in any event, the only reason, as I explained already on 16th December, why the Trust was not going ahead with recovering it was because they were advised that the cost of recovery might be more than the cost of removing it in the litigation against the people who should have seen it before or should have noticed it before.

1595 So the charity commissioners in the UK look at this and they go through it and they say, 'Well, there are some things that we are not happy about, put them right, but at the end of the day I am satisfied that the trustees have acted correctly and that they have not done anything wrong.' If they had not been satisfied they would have taken action against Calpe House in the United Kingdom.

1600 But one of the things that they queried was: what have you done about the security, so that people cannot hack your computer or take your papers? That was the one thing the charity commissioners were left with, not what was in the paper but the fact that somebody who should not have had those papers had them and sent them. But that has not been questioned by either the Lady opposite or by the newspaper articles or by anybody else.

1605 So what is there about this entity which we do not know what it is? Well, I do not know if I can throw any light on this. It is somebody who has an email which is Leviticus 19:13 and for Members who are not as familiar with the Bible as I am, (Laughter) Leviticus 19:13 says you shall not rob your neighbour. That suggests to me that whoever decided to open that email thought that he had discovered that somebody was robbing his neighbour and that is why he shows that name.

1610 I do not know who that person was but I do know that in the newspaper that was carrying much of this material, a longstanding friend of mine, Emilio Duarte, on 20th September this year said he was very surprised at the GSD not voicing an opinion on all these issues that have come to light, commented on the article by the English lady whose name I will not mention, saying the Calpe House accounts which she had investigated had zero. So all the millions of pounds had disappeared; they were here, not there. 'Where has it all gone?' says Emilio Duarte and 'I congratulate Ms Hassan Nahon and the newspaper for pursuing this matter.'

1620 Well, I have known Emilio Duarte a long time ago. He used to be one of my shop stewards. I had not seen him for many years and he came to see me about a year ago – maybe a little bit more, eighteen months ago – to ask for my help because he had a personal grievance against one individual, who happens to be one of the trustees, and I did what he asked me to do and I have not heard from him since. I also know him to be a very religious man, so he will know what Leviticus 19:13 means.

1625 I think that because somebody has an issue with somebody ... I have had many issues in this Parliament with Peter Caruana and I had many issues in this Parliament with Sir Joshua Hassan and I would never have allowed any issues that I had at a personal level with either Sir Joshua or with Peter Caruana to put at risk Gibraltar, ever. Sir Joshua knew that he could get me to go outside there – he often did it and took me for a ride and said to me, 'Joe, this is very important for Gibraltar so please don't ask me anything,' and I did not – and maybe it was not so important, but it always worked.

1630 I think the same has to be true of what we do when we are talking about a charity as important as Community Care, which does a fantastic job and has done a fantastic job for so many years. So if you have got something on somebody or against somebody, or you suspect somebody, you go ... If you think somebody has put his hand in the till, you do what you should do: you go to the Police and you say, 'I've got this evidence,' and let the Police do their work, but you do not put innuendoes in the media, you do not put comments in the media and you do not tarnish people's reputations – you put your money where your mouth is.

1640 Therefore, if somebody has got a personal grievance – and I hope it is not Emilio, whom I have known many years – then ... Emilio should not have been a party, but I can tell Members that having known him almost all my life I cannot imagine him ever having been interested in any of the things in this letter if it was not because of the personal interest he had when he came to see me 18 months ago.

So, in asking Members opposite to support the motion, which has the support of the Government, of course, I am saying that the lesson to draw from this is that it is important to 1645 make sure that you have checked yourself what people are telling you before you embark on a crusade, because if you do not, you carry the same responsibility as the guy who started the thing, who lit the first match.

In Gibraltar it is very easy to walk down Main Street and say ‘I met somebody at one end of Main Street and he was coughing,’ and by the time you get to the other end the guy is being 1650 buried in North Front. Every time it is passed from one to the other the guy gets worse. That is something we have got to guard against, because we have got a responsibility, and more than the average person would have a responsibility if we have been elected by the people because people have got a right to expect that if somebody has been elected to represent them in this Parliament then they speak with greater authority, and speaking with greater authority does not 1655 mean that you come here with every rumour that you hear and then you endorse it with credibility because you believed it. You need to believe it because of the evidence that you have got.

There is no evidence in support of any of this. It is not true that the charity decided to buy the building and send us a bill. That is not what happened. It is not true that they suddenly decided 1660 to stop being a trust and became a limited company and that I am trying to sweep that under the carpet because I do not want people to know it – because it was public information that that is what was happening. We have not explained why; there is no reason why we should. We have seen the professionals that we employ, our Financial Secretary in 2014 agreeing with the advice given by the professional in the United Kingdom giving advice to the trustees. So the 1665 professional says to the trustees, ‘This is important, taking into account UK legislation, VAT and Capital Gains Tax, for the future.’ Well, I do not know if it is right or wrong but the Financial Secretary of the time says he knows and gives the same advice. So what are we supposed to do?
Say we are now going to tell Her Majesty’s Government Treasury in the UK that what we are changing is so as to lessen our tax liability and we will send them a copy of the press release’? Is 1670 that what we do?

There has to be an element of an assumption of honesty before you start alleging dishonesty.
You do not start from the premise that everybody is dishonest unless they prove that they are honest. There is not a presumption of automatic guilt and you have to prove your innocence.
That is the Spanish system, not the British system, not the one we have in Gibraltar

1675 Therefore, Mr Speaker, on the basis of the explanations that I have given, I hope I can count on the support of all the Members of the House and I hope that we can put this to bed once and for all.

As I started saying, I do not want to pick a fight with anybody, but I happen to think that this is one of my babies and I will fight to protect it to the end. (Banging on desks)

1680

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon.
Mr Bossano.

The Hon. Ms Marlene Hassan Nahon.

1685 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, everyone in this House knows that I have sent a letter to the Trustees of Calpe House with a list of detailed questions. If they have not yet read it, I suggest that they do so, or that they should have done, as perhaps the questions raised therein could have assisted them in deciding whether or not to support this motion. I have yet to receive a written response to my questions, as I have requested.

1690 I find it disconcerting that the Government should be so concerned with committing the Members of this House to a firm position with respect to the management of the Trust while these questions remain unanswered. It is my opinion, Mr Speaker, that Government should instead be investigating these questions itself. As I do not have all the answers that I seek on behalf of my constituents, I am not in a position to support this motion. Furthermore, in light of 1695 the serious concerns I have raised and which remain unaddressed, I believe that this motion is premature and unnecessary.

If I may turn to the first paragraph of the motion, it reads, and I quote:

Calpe House is an independent charity which has been in existence since 1989 and that there has never been any involvement by any Government in the affairs of the charity.

1700 Mr Speaker, I could not believe my eyes when I read this first point, as I could not understand how Government could base a motion brought to this Parliament on such a blatantly and demonstrably flawed premise.

Last December, when I initially asked questions about Calpe House in this House, I was told categorically by Minister Bossano, and I quote Hansard:

This is a private charity that is independent of the Government.

1705 I further asked Minister Bossano about the discrepancies between his statement and the written evidence available. For example: (1) the Gibraltar Government letterheaded correspondence with Westminster City Council; (2) the fact that the architect's website lists the Gibraltar Government as its client for the project; (3) the fact that the planning application to Westminster City Council reads, 'The applicant is the Calpe House Charitable Trust supported by Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar'; (4) the fact that the current Chairman of the Trust has acted not only as Calpe House trustee but also as Government representative, as can also be seen in letter-headed correspondence.

All these facts showed clearly that Government was indeed truly involved and invested in Calpe House. Despite this, Minister Bossano defiantly argued it was an independent charity.

1715 Mr Speaker, lo and behold, it did transpire that at the time I was told that Calpe House was an independent charity the Trust had already been wound up and a limited company had been created in its place, of which the Government of Gibraltar has 51% ownership.

The Minister calls me ignorant – an insult that I am now getting used to, as it is not the first time that he tells me this – but if I am ignorant perhaps I am not alone, because in the Chronicle of 7th August an article reads:

the Government will be responsible for 51% and Calpe House limited for 49% of the property and of the associated costs incurred.

1720 So, if I have mistaken a company limited by shares for a company limited by guarantee, it does not change the fact that ultimately Government is responsible for 51% of the property and the associated costs. It changes nothing in terms of his denial of Government involvement in Calpe House. Semantics, Mr Speaker, pure Semantics.

1725 I have now learned from the charity's latest set of accounts that Government has loaned Calpe House just under £13 million and that Government will not seek repayment of the loan for the foreseeable future.

Furthermore, if I may point Minister Bossano to the Chief Minister's own words in the Gibraltar Chronicle on 7th September this year, just over one month ago:

We have been appraised of all aspects of the acquisition and the proposed refurbishment at every stage.

And on the matter of the changes in Calpe House's structure, the Chief Minister also added:

these had been done with the support of the Government "and for good reasons.

1730 Furthermore, the Chairman of the Trust was cited in the same article in the Gibraltar Chronicle as having stated:

There was no step taken without the full consultation of the government.

Mr Speaker, I therefore wonder if, prior to drafting that first paragraph in the motion, Minister Bossano should have consulted the man to his right, the Chief Minister, because it is abundantly clear that they have two very different views with regard to Government's involvement with Calpe House.

1735 Government is a majority shareholder of Calpe House Ltd. If this, as well as all the other evidence I have just cited, is not proof of involvement of the Government in the affairs of the charity, then the Government must have a very unique interpretation of the word 'involvement'. I daresay Mr Bossano and the Chief Minister should have cleared this up among themselves before bringing this motion to Parliament.

1740 In our last parliamentary session Mr Bossano told me that in this House 'we do not say to people you are not telling the truth' and that therefore he was 'left with only one alternative', that being that I did not know what I was telling was untrue. In this case, Mr Speaker, I wonder whether it is possible that the hon. Member did not know at the time that his own Government was a majority part shareholder of the company and therefore did not know that what he was saying was untrue, because of course far be it for me to suggest that Mr Bossano himself is ignorant, as he accuses me of being, and was not telling the truth.

1745 Perhaps now would be a good time to rectify this in light of all the information I have just provided him with in relation to the Government's involvement in the affairs of the charity.

Mr Speaker, turning to the second part of the motion, it reads:

THIS HOUSE further notes and rejects the reports and comments put in the public domain which appear to question the honesty and integrity of the trustees and suggests that the donations made to the charity by the public are unaccounted for.

1750 The motion refers to 'the reports and comments put in the public domain which appear to question the honesty and integrity of the trustees'. For my part, all I have called for is an inquiry to establish the facts of how we have gone about the purchase, and in this regard even the trustees have accepted that things might have been done better.

1755 Moreover, it would be for others to decide on questions of honesty and integrity once the full facts are transparent. As it stands, even the UK Charity Commission has been chasing the Trust's financial affairs and only reinstated the charity back into their books a few days ago after striking it off for some time for lack of accounting.

1760 Similarly, an auditor of Friends of Calpe House Gibraltar, a Gibraltar-registered charity which is audited separately with annual accounts filed with the Gibraltar Charities Commission, recently stated:

There is no system of control. There were no satisfactory audit procedures to confirm the accuracy of income received.

Although the importance of this has been played down by some, the reality is that it is a grave situation for the Trust to find itself in.

1765 Also, although I do read the press, I struggle to see where the comments referred to have been made. It would be immensely useful to know exactly what publications, persons and comments are being alluded to in the motion.

Furthermore, if the Trust thinks that the trustees have been defamed, then surely there is recourse in law and not a matter for this House to be involved in.

1770 More importantly, Mr Speaker, I do not think that this House should be in the business of effectively criticising and gagging the free press, and I will not be the one taking this dangerously undemocratic step. Mr Bossano's attack during his speech just now on the press and that they do not just report facts but read into them and interpret them is totally unacceptable. That is free journalism, Mr Speaker. How dare the Minister chastise the press for having the audacity to do their job as the free journalists that they are?

1775 Mr Speaker, the research by the free press, as well as my own research that has followed, has in the last year pointed to a series of discrepancies which have raised alarm bells and worried many in our community. These discrepancies have been plentiful and are highlighted in depth in my lengthy letter to the trustees which I referred to earlier and which have given rise to a long list of unanswered questions, that long list of questions to the fact that the charity was struck off the UK's register of charities for 'repeatedly failing to submit accounts', and we have legitimate reasons to ask questions.

1780 Mr Speaker, I know that the hon. Members opposite do not like it when I or other Members on this side come to this House with what they call gossip or hearsay from Main Street, but we work for those people up and down Main Street and I give you my word that from the moment I began to ask questions about the workings of Calpe House in this House, the people of Gibraltar have inundated me with their own concerns on this issue.

1785 Following the publication of my letter to the trustees, I have been thanked by countless members of this community many times, many of these well-known distinguished public figures who, for whatever reason, do not or cannot voice their concerns publicly. I may appear to be a voice in the wilderness on this issue, but I can assure you it is not me alone who has reservations about the management of this charity; it is every second or third Gibraltarian – our employers, Mr Speaker – who demand the answers, who are entitled to the answers, because they are the ones breaking their backs all year round to raise funds for this worthy cause. So, when those who want to twist my motives say that it is disgraceful of me to call into question the workings of a charity, it is precisely because it is such a noble project that it should be open to scrutiny and that Government should facilitate such scrutiny to its main donors, the people of Gibraltar.

1790 I do, therefore, unequivocally agree with paragraph 4, which reads:

THE HOUSE furthermore wishes to express its appreciation to those involved in the work of Calpe House for the many hours of unpaid work they have given and continue to give to the institution.

1800 I wholeheartedly agree with that sentiment, Mr Speaker, and to all those trustees and fundraisers alike who have given so freely without remuneration I say thank you for the countless hours spent working for Calpe House, for your altruistic acts of kindness and selflessness; for standing in the rain and the wind in the winter and in the unbearable heat of summer; for organising events and, in some cases, achieving amazing feats of physical endurance in order to raise funds and keep the charity afloat, all in order to accommodate sick and vulnerable patients, many of whom may even be too weak to thank you themselves. So, from this corner of the House I say thank you, because without you Calpe House would not be what it is today. And precisely because of your hard and unpaid work, it is you who deserve to know that the funds and the accounts that come from your good work are honoured and administered cleanly and correctly, which is the only mission in my line of questioning and the least you deserve.

1805 So, in answer to Mr Bossano's previous comment that I have been involved in a year-long campaign to undermine the charity, nothing could be further from the truth, Mr Speaker. My aim is precisely the contrary: to protect the charity.

Paragraph 5 deals with the premises acquired by the former trust, now company. I quote:

THE HOUSE in addition fully supports the decision to invest in new premises in order to provide improved facilities and assist a greater number of sponsored patients when in London for medical treatment.

1815 Mr Speaker, I do not know anyone in Gibraltar who has disputed the need for new premises. We all know that there was a pressing need to be able to accommodate more patients. I have said repeatedly the issue was not about needing new premises but rather about the need to purchase an expensive dilapidated grade II listed building. There are clear questions about the decision to purchase these specific premises given the amount of problems, issues and questionable circumstances surrounding the purchase of this particular building.

1820 So again I point any genuinely interested Members of this House to my letter to the trustees, detailing my questions in relation to this purchase, and I ask Minister Bossano: given that there are over 40 reasonable questions in that letter, why on earth is this New Dawn and Stronger Foundations Government doing everything in its capacity to deprive the people of Gibraltar from getting the answers they deserve?

1825 The Government can no longer tell us they have nothing to do with the charity, given that they are majority shareholders. So surely, if there is nothing to hide there is no need to hide, and the Government is responsible for providing us with answers we deserve as beneficiaries of this Trust as well as the people who fund it both through our donations and through our taxes.

1830 Before I finish, Mr Speaker, I would like to make a point about the Opposition's reluctance to ask any questions about the matters affecting Calpe House, especially as they are so keen to establish Public Accounts Committees. Interestingly, I discovered that this House had a Public Accounts Committee which, in 1980, looked into a situation where a company called RYCA Supply Company Ltd was apparently selling goods to Government at inflated prices. The managing director of RYCA was the current Chairman of the Calpe House Trust. The Public Accounts Committee found that RYCA had not been helpful to the inquiry by 'consistently 1835 refusing to reveal to the committee certain manufacturers' invoices' that would have helped to establish the facts. Ultimately the Committee found that, from the evidence it had managed to obtain, it could 'not satisfy itself as to whether or not there had been malfeasance; however, an earlier investigation to possible malfeasance may have resulted in a more positive conclusion'.

1840 Why do I mention this? For three reasons. Firstly, because I fear that delays in examining the events around Calpe House will again leave us in a situation where we cannot ascertain the facts. Secondly, because this example from 1980 shows the service to transparency and efficiency of public institutions that an investigatory framework can perform. When there are serious and credible concerns surrounding the administration of large sums of public funds, a framework with powers of investigation can get to the heart of those concerns in a way that the 1845 press and my voice in the wilderness – that is this House – when it comes to this issue cannot.
We need a transparent investigatory committee that is fit for the present, not merely for the 1980s. I may not agree with the GSD on the mechanisms of Public Accounts Committees, but I agree with them wholeheartedly on the principles of openness, transparency and accountability.

1850 Seeing and hearing Minister Bossano fight tooth and nail to prevent an investigation only makes it more obvious that there needs to be a framework in place to ensure these principles are adhered to. You see, Mr Speaker, the irony of all this is that the GSD has repeatedly called on the Government to establish a Public Accounts Committee for the sake of transparency, an issue the GSD claims is very close to its heart. Instead, it is a conspicuous reality that to date the GSD has not said a word about the substantive concerns that have been raised by me and in the 1855 press. I urge the GSD and Mr Llamas, and even the hon. Members opposite: ask yourselves honestly, objectively – forget that it is me who is asking – do you not think that an investigation is warranted in light of all these discrepancies. Do a quick Google search and see the number of press articles surrounding the issue. Look at the facts, talk to people, read the press articles.
There are serious questions to be answered and my constituents, our constituents, people from 1860 across the community, supporters of every corner of this House, are approaching me with those questions and I do not have the answers for them.

Government should take heed because people are growing tired of things being brushed under the carpet and of legitimate concerns being ignored. We should learn the lessons history has taught us and see the benefits of having an investigative framework that can hold public 1865 institutions to account. This is something that the Opposition and I agree on and I cannot see how the GSD can claim to want that yet remain so silent on this issue, considering the level of public interest and concern.

I honestly hope that the result of the investigation is that there was nothing to be concerned about, but I would urge the GSD to put personal antipathies aside and take a position on this so 1870 they can substantiate. Otherwise, the GSD are just also about transparency à la carte,

Mr Speaker.

It is quite clear to me that the motivation behind this motion of Minister Bossano is silencing an Opposition MP and elements of the free press in relation to a clearly controversial issue and obstructing our work through demagoguery by attempting to make those of us raising our well-1875 substantiated concerns appear to be enemies of the charity and the work that it does for our vulnerable patients. Minister Bossano has brought this motion on the blatantly erroneous premise that Government has no involvement in Calpe House. He states this as a matter of fact.
It is incredible that the GSD should be silent on this issue and the concerns that flow from it.
Mr Bossano's word and that of his friends is not enough to give me or the community peace of 1880 mind and I am surprised that it is enough for the GSD.

Thirdly and finally, I raise the point about the RYCA inquiry because I have concerns about a potential conflict of interest following research that I have carried out as a consequence of learning of Calpe House's change in accountants from Grant Thornton to a firm called Cooper Young, who audited the accounts filed at Companies House UK a week ago. The revelation that 1885 Calpe House has changed accountants prompted me to do some research into the issue. It struck me as strange that Grant Thornton, a company described on its website as 'one of the world's leading independent assurance and advisory firms' should not have the capacity to file accounts on Calpe House's behalf. I was also slightly confused by the decision to appoint Cooper Young, which describes itself on its website as 'a growing independent accountancy practice' 1890 and, from what I can see from its website, only has two practitioners working out of its offices.

Considering the myriad of complications arising out of the purchase of the new building and the clearly complex financial structures surrounding Calpe House, together with the repeated failure to submit accounts and therefore presumably the great deal of backdated accounts information to be dealt with, I could not help but question the decision to appoint a small 1895 independent practice working out of London and with no apparent links to Gibraltar over an international accountancy firm with a local presence, of which there are several other than Grant Thornton. However, upon doing further research into Cooper Young I came across the following publicly available information, which might explain the decision to choose this firm of accountants.

On 13th May 1997, RYCA Supply London Ltd, a company of which Mr Albert Poggio was a director, was voluntarily wound up. The proceeds of the liquidation went to Barclays Bank and something termed the AAP Pension Scheme. RYCA Supply London Ltd's registered address was then changed to that of Cooper Young on 29th June 1995. Upon further investigation, I found 1900 another link between Cooper Young and Mr Poggio. Another company of which Mr Poggio was a director and to which it appears he retains close links is Antwerp Brokering Enterprises UK Ltd, known as ABE Ltd, which is in the business of selling pharmaceutical goods to the GHA. ABE Ltd has its registered office also with Cooper Young, who are also ABE Ltd's accountants.

There is therefore clearly a longstanding commercial relationship between one of the trustees and Cooper Young. The fact that Cooper Young have assisted the Trust's Chairman with 1910 the administration of two of his companies is a fact which I believe could lead to the perception that there might be a conflict of interest, Mr Speaker. Because of this potential conflict of interest and given the pressure from the Charity Commission, I would have thought that we would have wanted a leading set of accountants with an established reputation to complete the auditing work quickly and thoroughly, rather than a modest high street outfit, so I will be writing 1915 another letter to the trustees raising these questions in addition to those already posed in my first letter. I would have liked to have had the chance to raise this issue formally with the trustees prior to raising it in this House, but this motion has forced me to bring this issue to light here today before I have had time to contact them.

Mr Speaker, for all of the reasons I have touched upon, I cannot support this motion out of 1920 principle, difficult as that is when you are speaking of the worthiest of causes to be supported by us all. I am indeed grateful to the trustees, who give freely of their time. If questions remain 1925 unanswered after they respond to my letter and if there is nothing to hide, an investigation could assist in increasing the efficiency of an institution which, by the trustees' own admission and clearly from what we know about the financial management of the Trust, appears to be lacking.

1930 The trustees acknowledged in the Gibraltar Chronicle that demands for scrutiny are legitimate, given the public funds involved. I understand the trustees' frustration that their voluntary work is being tarnished and that this may be having a knock-on impact on the appeal. I would urge the trustees to see that the best way to stop their voluntary work from being tarnished is to encourage full transparency, and I am still hopeful that the response to my letter will be transparent and comprehensive and negate any need for an investigation.

1935 People have raised, donated and contributed millions of pounds and they continue to do so. Is it not also a disservice to the appeal not to take steps towards achieving more transparency and efficiency into the management of Calpe House, I ask. Minister Bossano just said in his speech he wants to produce the truth about Calpe House, and based on all these discrepancies I have highlighted and the press have highlighted the only way is through an independent investigation. So, as much as I would like to support a motion on such an honourable cause, precisely in order to protect the charity, those who selflessly work to run the Trust to raise funds, those who donated and those who need it, I shall have no option but to vote against the motion today, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Edwin Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker, sir.

1945 It is a memorable day today for me: I never thought I would actually have my dear friend Joe Bossano quoting from Leviticus, but there we have it. Joe, may I quote back another book of the Torah to you. The Torah means the law where the commandments are given, one of which is honour your father and your mother, and certainly today you deserve to be honoured as Father of the House for the detailed explanations that you have given as part of this motion. It certainly cleared up the air and any doubts.

1955 One thing that I have learned whilst being a Member of this House, nowhere near the number of years' service that the Father of the House has given, but certainly on this side it is only Daniel Feetham and myself, we are the two longest serving Members, and like many of you – Joe, the Chief Minister and others – we have served on both sides of the House. One thing we have learned is it is a special privilege to belong to this House, it is a privilege to serve the people, but one has to be careful in the service towards the people. Joe gave a very good and realistic example. You can start off, I think he said, at one end of Main Street saying that someone has a cough and by the time you reach the other he is dead and buried. That, Mr Speaker, I think you will agree you can multiply by 17 – the number of Members of this House – the way the exaggeration will take on board if a Member of this House just adds a little bit. What is a grain of sand coming from a Member of this House, given the respect that the electorate has, irrespective of who you voted for, that respect that we often show to each other and sensible people understand ... We have to be careful – a grain of sand for ordinary members of the public is actually a mountain if it comes from a Member of this House. Therefore, Joe, I think you gave a very good example.

1970 I used that because in the hon. Lady's contribution she has said more than once 'the GSD has kept quiet – I expected the GSD to do something.' Mr Speaker, from this side of the House I perhaps win the tournament for who has more white hair, and what one learns from that is if you have to say something, make sure it makes sense, make sure you know what you are talking about. (A Member: Hear, hear.) I was unsure on certain things about Calpe House. What I did was talk to certain individual trustees – one has the ability to do that in Gibraltar; you can have a cup of coffee with someone off the record – and those trustees allayed any fears I may have had towards any misappropriation of funds, so therefore there was no need for me, in the absence

1975 of facts, across the floor of this House ... More so, Mr Speaker – and I have double checked the date – after the due notice had been given by, like it says here, the Hon. Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB on the 18th September, I think it would have been improper for me to have tried to jump the gun and cast any further allegations without having given the hon. Member the chance that he had today and that I think he has used his intervention to clear up any minds.

1980 So, Mr Speaker, may I please contribute and stress in the record, in the Hansard of this House, that I could not agree more and wholeheartedly with the motion, especially paragraphs 3 and 4:

THE HOUSE therefore declares its full support for and confidence in the honesty and integrity of the trustees and directors of the institutions set up by the Charity.

And paragraph 4:

THE HOUSE furthermore wishes to express its appreciation to those involved in the work of Calpe House for the many hours of unpaid work they have given and continue to give to the institution.

The trustees do a lot of voluntary work, quite often, like anyone who does voluntary work knows, unappreciated, but I know they do go beyond the call of duty.

1985 I have a vested interest in making sure that there is a bigger and better Calpe House. Going back to the sad days of 1995, my family had the unfortunate experience that my mother was diagnosed with cancer and was sent to the Royal Marsden Hospital in January 1995 and she remained there until she died on Boxing Day of 1995, that is 12 months worth and during those 12 months I came across other fellow Gibraltarians – my colleague sat on my right was also there with his late mother. None of us could actually get allocation at Calpe House at that moment, so we had to rely on other charities but very much guided from the bottom of their hearts by members of Calpe House – constantly apologising; they even went overboard with apologies, ‘I am sorry, we simply do not have enough rooms.’ They knew it added to the burden of the family; they knew it added to the extra expense of the family. Luckily Mr Phillips and I shared many sad moments together in I think it was called Dame Unity House, like a little residence at the back of the Royal Marsden. But what a relief at the end of the day, when you have spent hours seeing your own mother slowly going away, to be able to meet a fellow Gibraltarian and to be able to talk in the way that we Gibraltarians can talk amongst each other. So, if we gain an extra room or an extra dozen rooms at Calpe House it certainly carries my full support.

1995 Just for the public record, like the mover of the motion said, there are many Members on this side of the House who also contribute through monthly standing orders. We even donate a whole month’s worth of salary because we believe it is a worthy cause.

2000 Long live Calpe House and thank you, trustees, for your hard work. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: Any other contributor? The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, perhaps I am the only one in this House who is uniquely qualified to talk about this subject, because I am, or have been, a professional auditor. I have all the pieces of paper to prove it. I have worked for big audit firms, including Price Waterhouse and KPMG.

2010 I find myself in a slightly unusual position of having to explain why the GSD Opposition do not engage in witch hunts. We have been silent on this matter because, frankly, we did not see there was anything to be said. However, that is not to say that I have not done my homework and done my own independent research on the subject.

2015 I have investigated frauds, I have investigated areas of concern in multimillion-pound cases. In this particular case, Mr Speaker ... and the hon. Lady will acknowledge that she had a conversation with me and I said, 'Look, if you have evidence go to the Police. (Interjection by Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon) Yes, sorry, say it on the microphone.

2020

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: If I ever had an issue to take to the Police, the Commissioner happens to be a trustee: there you have another conflict of interest.

2025

Hon. R M Clinton: Well, Mr Speaker, I also asked her to bring it to me, and to date I have had no papers at all.

I cannot accept any criticism from the hon. Lady as to what we have or have not done, because I have done my homework, I did go to the Charities Commission here in Gibraltar in May of this year and I did pull out the accounts that were available at the time in the Charities Commission.

2030

This is where I really wish I had a whiteboard in here, because then I could explain with one of my famous diagrams as to what the structure is. (Interjection and laughter) I will beg Members' patience and indulgence, because what I am trying to embark on is to draw the picture of what it is that we are talking about, and unfortunately it is, in parts, complex.

2035

The first thing the House has to understand is when we talk about Calpe House we are not talking about one entity – and I am happy to be corrected by the Hon. Mr Bossano. We are talking about the old, as it were, Calpe House Charitable Trust, the very original one which was set up to own the original building in London, and there is also another charity called the Friends of Calpe House. They are two separate charities and they both file separate accounts at the Charities Commission, and then later on, as it gets more complicated, we have the limited company, which is called the Calpe House Ltd, which is the company limited by guarantee, as Mr Bossano has so eloquently described.

2040

Throughout all this, what I am trying to do is to allay the general public as to any fears they may have, because if there were any fears I would be the first one to have them and, as the hon. Lady has said, I would be the first one in here demanding an investigation if I had the evidence. Otherwise, she would quite rightly call me a hypocrite; but if she is calling me a hypocrite, give me the evidence – because I see no evidence.

2045

The accounts that are filed at the Charities Commission in Gibraltar are the ones for 31st March 2015. I have heard a lot in the press about 'we need more transparency, where was the information, we did not know about this entity being created, this is terrible, we need more transparency and disclosure'. Mr Speaker, the information is there in the accounts at the Charities Commission. Anybody can walk in and look at them.

2050

The Calpe House Charitable Trust, which is the original Trust, quite clearly states in the trustees' report 'Plans for future periods' and it talks about the three buildings being bought and it talks about the financing arrangements and it talks about Calpe House Ltd – and that is in the trustees' report.

2055

If you go to the back, which is where most accountants start because that is the most interesting bit, there is something – the auditors and accountants listening will know what I am talking about – that is called the post balance sheet event note. Basically, if anything happens that is of such significance as to be fundamental to the understanding of these financial statements, you are required under the relevant accounting standard to disclose it. And quite rightly, here in the accounts, which are signed, there is a note 15 which says 'Post balance sheet events'. Again, Mr Speaker, I beg the indulgence of the House so that I can read this into the record:

2060

In July 2014, a company limited by guarantee was created, called Calpe House Limited. Calpe House Limited is considered a related party as the directors and guarantors of Calpe House Limited are the same individuals as the Charitable trust's board of management and trustees.

– which we all know –

On 19 May 2015, the Charitable trust purchased 3 buildings located in Norfolk Square, Paddington, London (the '19-23 Norfolk Square Property'). The purchase was supported by loans from HM Government of Gibraltar. The refurbishment of these buildings is expected to be completed in March 2017. The new buildings will enable Charitable trust to substantially increase its activities. In order to finance the purchase and to finance the refurbishment of the 19-23 Norfolk Square Property, Calpe House Limited entered into a £10 million term loan facility agreement. The Charitable trust serves as guarantor to the loan. The loan is secured by a mortgage over the 47 Prince's Square Property and a guarantee from the Charitable trust for £5 million as secured by a mortgage over the 19-23 Norfolk Square Property.

2065 And then, Mr Speaker, it says at the very end:

The Charitable trust intends to transfer its beneficial interest in both the 47 Prince's Square Property and the Norfolk Square Property to Calpe House Limited.

So there is no mystery there, Mr Speaker.

2070 The area of confusion – and I can understand the hon. Lady referring to the 51%... Under 'Tangible fixed assets' in note 8 – and, Mr Bossano, again, please do interrupt me if I get anything wrong here – in a footnote, and this is where it talks about the freehold land and buildings, this is the original building before the purchase, it says:

The registered owner of the freehold land and buildings is HM Government of Gibraltar. The Charitable trust received the rights, among others, to use the said property under the deed of trust entered into between the Charitable trust and HM Government of Gibraltar.

This is where it gets interesting, Mr Speaker:

Under the deed of trust, HM Government of Gibraltar retains the power to sell the property, postpone the sale, hold the net proceeds of the sale and net rents/profits until sale as co-owners with HM Government of Gibraltar holding a 51% share of the freehold land and buildings and the Charitable Trust holding the remaining 49%.

Well, of course, as Mr Bossano has explained, this does not necessarily mean that you control the charity. You may have an interest in the assets of the charity, but you do not necessarily control the charity.

2075 Mr Speaker, one of the reasons why I have no concern is certainly the accounts which were audited by Grant Thornton – and I should point out to the hon. Lady that these accounts have been audited; and again I stand to be corrected by Minister Bossano – these have been audited on a pro bono basis and they valued the cost of the audit, because what they would do is they would say 'technically the cost is £4,500, we will give you a donation of £4,500, net cost to the 2080 charity is zero'.

Mr Speaker, the audited accounts of the Calpe House Charitable Trust for 31st March 2015 is what we would call in my profession as a chartered accountant a clean audit report. It says quite clearly in their report to the trustees 'Independent Auditors' Report to the Trustees – Grant Thornton' and it concludes:

In our opinion, the financial statements:

- give a true and fair view, in accordance with Gibraltar Generally Accepted Accounting Practice, of the state of the Charitable trust's affairs as at 31 March 2015 and of the Charitable trust's incoming resources and application of resources, including its income and expenditure, for the year then ended; and
- have been properly prepared

2085 And then it says:

Opinion on other matters

In our opinion the information given in the trustees' report for the financial year for which the financial statements are prepared is consistent with the financial statements.

We have nothing to report in respect of the following matters where we are required to report to you if, in our opinion:

- the Charitable trust has not kept proper accounting records; or

- if information specified by law regarding trustees' remuneration or other transactions is not disclosed; or
- we have not received all the information and explanations we require for our audit.

This is signed by Frederick D J White, Statutory Auditor, Grant Thornton (Gibraltar) Ltd, Gibraltar. So Mr White, certainly when he signed this audit report on 10th March 2016, had no concerns whatsoever about the Calpe House Charitable Trust.

2090 Keeping on the Trust, if we go on to the other Trust, the Friends of Calpe House Charitable Trust, and the comments and again there has been selective reporting of the audit report. Those of us who work in the profession will understand there are degrees of qualification of an audit report which range from 'we have not had all the information' to complete disclaimer saying 'we cannot reach an opinion'. In between those extremes – from a clean audit report, as I just read you, to a report where there is a disclaimer – there are, to use a favourite phrase of the Chief Minister, shades of grey, and one of those shades of grey which this newspaper has picked up on is about the recording or controls over cash income. It says:

There is no system of control over cash donations, membership subscriptions or other income ...

But then, of course, what has not been given enough emphasis is that the auditor then says:

Except for the effects of the matters described above in the qualified opinion paragraph, the financial statements are said to give a true and fair view in accordance with Gibraltar ... for the results at 31st March 2016.

So what the auditor is saying is 'except for that particular item on which I cannot get any comfort, I don't have a problem'.

2100 Mr Speaker, I will confess I have not seen those accounts, because in comparison – or I have seen them, but I do not have a copy with me – in comparison to Calpe House Charitable Trust they are not of the same magnitude or scale, but what I will tell the House is that it is not unusual for charities to have great difficulty over controlling cash because, let's face it, if you put a collecting tin in a shop and then you pick up that tin at the end of the week, how do you know
2105 that all the money that has gone into that tin you have taken back? It is the same when you have a flag day. To get a completely unqualified audit report in that particular area you would need to have pretty tight controls – you would have to have sealed tins signed out by two people, monitored by two people, the opening monitored by at least two people and the banking and the controls ... So it is always an area of weakness for charities and certainly in Gibraltar, where 2110 people collect cash out of the goodness of their hearts. But certainly if you had to sign an audit report, could you get any comfort that it was complete? And so that is the context in which that particular audit opinion has to be looked at, not extracted by itself. What you have there is the Friends of the Calpe House Charitable Trust collecting money and then, as I understand it, donating it to the main charity.

2115 Then, Mr Speaker, what we have is, as I have already described – it is all there in black and white in the accounts for March 2015 – that there was an intention to transfer the property across. In the accounts which are now filed at Companies House there is the report of the new auditor. Let's address the issue of the auditor.

2120 For a charity of this scale to employ a big five accountancy firm would be, in my view, somewhat unusual because it is going to cost you a fortune. I can say that for something of this scale to use an audit firm – and I have to emphasise the Lady disparages this firm, but this is a registered firm of chartered accountants which is regulated. This is not some backstreet unregulated accountant; this is a properly registered chartered accountancy firm which is regulated. Whether the charity's trustees consider that, in terms of what it is they need,
2125 whether this particular firm is cheaper – because I see they only charged £2,000 for the audit, compared to the £4,000 that Grant Thornton would have charged in Gibraltar, and in London I would double that, so it would probably be more like £10,000 ... and also you would want a firm in London that is familiar certainly with the rules and regulations in the UK and certainly tax and VAT.

2130 Mr Speaker, I am now looking live at the accounts at Companies House in the UK – and again I beg the indulgence of the Members. ‘Principal objectives and activity’ – this is for the period ended 31st March 2017:

The principal activity of the company was that of other human health activities – which is a creative description but nevertheless true. And then it goes on to say:

Calpe House Limited, (a company limited by guarantee) was set up on 09 July 2014 and took up all responsibilities of The Calpe House Charitable Trust since 11 March 2016. The Calpe House Charitable Trust transferred all of its assets, liabilities and operations to Calpe House Limited. The Calpe House Limited is responsible for the control and administration of funds which may be available together with the administration and control of freehold properties at number 47, Prince’s Square and at number 19-23 Norfolk Square, Paddington, in the London borough City of Westminster.

The Objectives of the Charitable Trust are for the relief for sick persons who have been referred for treatment in the United Kingdom under the Government of Gibraltar Medical Health Scheme.

2135 Mr Speaker, the auditors ... and, in fact, technically there is no change of auditor because this is an entirely new entity in any case. What this auditor has written is quite simply ... funnily enough, he has given:

In our opinion the financial statements:

- give a true and fair view of the state of the charitable company’s affair for the year ended 31 March 2017 and of its incoming resources ...

– this is standardised boilerplate phraseology – including its income and expenditure, for the year...

- have been properly prepared ... in accordance with the requirements of the Companies Act 2006.

Matters on which we are required to report on by exception

We have nothing to report in respect of the following matters where the Charities Act 2011 requires us to report to you if, in our opinion:

- adequate accounting records have not been kept, or returns adequate for our audit have not been received from branches not visited by us; or

- the financial statements are not in agreement with the accounting records and returns; or

- certain disclosures of trustees’ remuneration specified by law are not made; or

We have not received all the information and explanations we require for our audit.

2140 This is a clean audit report and this is signed again by Cooper Young & Partners, Chartered Accountants and Statutory Auditors, fully regulated in the United Kingdom.

Mr Speaker, without wanting to go into too much detail, a cursory glance at the balance sheet of Calpe House Ltd will show it has tangible fixed assets valued at over, well £14.9 million, has cash in the bank of £230,000 net ... well, unrestricted funds, it says basic reserves of £2.1 million. And so what is it I am supposed to be concerned about? Frankly, I do not see what the issue is.

If we go through the notes:

Charitable status

The charity is limited by guarantee and has no share capital. In the event of charity being wound up the liability in respect of the guarantee is limited to £1 per member of the Charity.

They are there for everybody to see. I accept that tardiness in filing will never be accepted as an excuse by me, regardless of which company it was.

2150 There is again a long note at the end of it about the fixed assets in London of this company and a commentary, as the hon. Lady has just said, about the loans payable in more than five years’ time from the Government:

for the purchase and refurbishment costs of the freehold properties ... repayable on demand although HM Government of Gibraltar has indicated their support for the Charitable Trust and they will not seek repayment of the advances for the foreseeable future in the amount of about £12.9 million.

2155 It even has a detailed breakdown of administrative expenses, which amount to about 2156 £180,000. In auditing and accounting terms this is not a large entity that would require the expertise of a big five audit firm.

2160 Mr Speaker, what is it that the Opposition is reluctant about? I have been to the Charities Commission, I have looked at the accounts, I have looked at the accounts here, I have looked at the file at the Charities Commission and I see nothing that would warrant anything remotely like an investigation. If the hon. Lady has evidence, bring it to this House. If the hon. Lady has concerns of criminality, take it to the Police – unless she is suggesting that the Police in Gibraltar cannot be trusted, in which case I would suggest that she perhaps goes to Scotland Yard in London; maybe she will get more luck there. (Laughter) But frankly, Mr Speaker, to accuse this 2165 GSD Opposition to be lacking on precisely the subject matter on which I stood for election and which I will always pursue – and that is transparency and accountability – is frankly disappointing. I will always seek transparency and accountability in this House and outside.

2170 There is nothing that I have seen so far that would warrant any form of investigation, and so I have to wholeheartedly agree with the Hon. Minister Bossano's motion that this community should stand full-square behind Calpe House.

2175 If the hon. Lady has evidence, by all means pursue it. I will be first one who will stand up in this place and shout murder, but I need to see the smoking gun. I do not work on the rumour mill; I work on facts and figures – this is my bread and butter. To be told that I am somehow remiss in what is my area of expertise is frankly regrettable. But again, the hon. Lady, I am happy to help her – if she produces the evidence I will look at it. But if she has evidence, she should give it to the Police, give it to whomever and put pay to it. If there is no evidence, I really believe that she should stop doing what she is doing, because she is doing a disservice to this House and a disservice to herself.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

2180 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Daniel Feetham.

2185 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am extremely grateful, I have to say, to the Hon. Minister Bossano for bringing this motion to this House and for allowing this matter to be debated, and indeed for allowing Members of this House to show their support for Calpe House and for its trustees. Indeed, if Minister Bossano had not brought this motion to the House, I would have personally brought this motion to the House because I feel very, very strongly about what is a regrettable, lamentable and shameful campaign against an innocent charity and its trustees, inflamed and given vent to by the hon. Lady peddling her version of the rumour mill in this House and outside it without a shred of evidence – and I do not use the words 'credible 2190 evidence', because there is simply no evidence at all.

2195 It is the height of political hypocrisy for the hon. Lady to talk about how grateful she is to the trustees and how very much she appreciates the work done by the trustees and those associated with the Trust, when on the other hand she says that it is her mission – she said today – to ensure that the funds and accounts of the Trust are administered properly and cleanly.
What she is really saying is that there has been misappropriation of moneys. That is what she is saying. That is a serious allegation that the hon. Lady is making, because she would not be saying she wants to ensure that they are properly and cleanly administered – that the funds are administered in that way – if she was not really suggesting that it is uncleanly and improperly 2200 being administered. And she is doing so without a shred of evidence and indeed without any respect for the damage that it is doing to the reputation of people.

The people we are talking about are people like Olga Zammitt OBE, the Commissioner of Police Eddie Yome, James Neish QC, Lord Hoyle and Commodore Ian McGhie – and I do not leave anybody else out because I do not give them credit; it is just that these are very well-known individuals. The idea that any of these people would sit idly by whilst the money of the charity was being syphoned away or misappropriated or uncleanly administered is as fanciful as it is grotesque – because that is what it is: it is absolutely a grotesque allegation that is being made without a shred of evidence. Without a shred of evidence.

2210 My hon. Friend Mr Clinton said that he is an accountant and this is his business. Well, I am a lawyer; I have done many cases involving commercial fraud. You do not make allegations of fraud without having evidence, credible evidence, but there is not a jot of evidence of anything nefarious having occurred in relation to the funds in Calpe House.

2215 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I am being accused of making allegations. I do not think that is right. I am not a barrister like them, so I cannot bring you Hansard and points of order.

Mr Speaker: I do not think that there is anything which the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition is saying which transgresses any of the Standing Orders.

2220 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I am extremely grateful.

It is also aided and abetted by anonymous Twitter accounts. The Hon. Mr Bossano mentioned the Twitter account involving Calpe House and some of the tweets I ... in the context, of course ... because this is what the motion is about, the campaign against Calpe House. Let me read some of the tweets:

Time for a moratorium on fund raising.
Where's the money gone?

2225 There is a photo then of Nathan Payas and then there is a tweet:

Raises £6,700 for financial black hole in the Calpe House.

That is the kind of campaign that is being waged on social media against this charity and its trustees and it is absolutely disgusting. Absolutely disgusting.

2230 And then, simply because on this side of the House we do not agree that this kind of campaign should be made against innocent trustees, there is then tweets – presumably because they think that I am the kind of individual that is going to bend in the wind because of mafia-style threats, because it has to be said that is what it amounts to, mafia-style threats, there is then a tweet:

It's all starting to feel a bit like Baltic, Papa Baltica. Daddy knows best. Boys' club.

2235 Obviously the inference here is that because my father served with the Hon. the Father of the House, somehow that is going to influence me – me, who has ended up in this party campaigning against the party that my father founded; me, of all people ... that that is going to prevent me from basically taking a stand on what I believe, rightly or wrongly but on what I believe.

2240 And of course it is, as the hon. Gentleman Minister Bossano says, having an effect on fund raising and that is the sad sub-story which should be the main story about the Calpe House. It should be about the community coming together and raising funds for what is an extremely worthy cause. And because of the hon. Lady and the campaign on social media and in the press, it is having an effect on the ability of these trustees to raise funds for what is that worthy cause.

And that is regrettable, Mr Speaker, it has to be said, and it is indefensible. It is absolutely indefensible.

2245 Mr Speaker, I would like to drill down on some of the allegations that have been made. I disregard some of the statements made by the hon. Lady today about serious questions, serious concerns, discrepancies, need to investigate. As both Minister Bossano and my hon. Friend the Leader of the Opposition have rightly pointed out today, show us the evidence. Come and show us what the evidence of the discrepancies are. What is there? What is there for the need of an investigation to arise? I disregard that, but I want to drill down on some of the allegations that I have seen in the press that have been made.

2250 It is said that there is some nefarious objective or reason behind the change from a Trust to a company limited by guarantees. Mr Speaker, I am a litigator. A large percentage of my work is advising professional trustees and indeed litigating in relation to trust matters. In the last seven years that I have been in practice following our loss at the General Election in December 2011, I have not come across a situation where I have found individual trustees ... in other words, Daniel Feetham as a trustee. Nowadays what you have is former trustees being directors of a company that acts as trustees, and there are valid reasons for that. Minister Bossano has outlined a number of reasons; there are others. For example, it is a valid concern of trustees that of course they are personally liable – and let me just explain that to this House, how it could possibly arise. And remember that what we are dealing with here are people who are volunteers. They are not professional trustees, they are not being paid; they are volunteers, community volunteers.

2260 If you had a situation, for example, where somebody fell down the stairs in Calpe House, it may lead to a claim for under occupiers' liability in the UK, which is virtually strict liability. It does not depend on fault – strict liability. You could have a situation where the trustees are then sued personally. If I were a lawyer advising Olga Zammitt, for example, who is a volunteer, I would say, 'Olga, I know that you want to give of your time to this particular charity, but nowadays you structure charities through a limited company, not trustees personally.' That is the reality of the situation, Mr Speaker. There is nothing nefarious about that. It has been done, as the Hon. Minister Bossano has explained, on the advice of lawyers for very sound reasons.

2270 It is then said that there is something nefarious because the accounts were not filed. Well, one has to bear in mind ... and I do not want to excuse the fact that accounts were not filed and that there was criticism by the Charities Commission in the UK for the fact that accounts were not filed, accounts should always be filed, but let's bear this in mind and place it into context. This is a company that was incorporated in 2014. The activities of the Trust were only transferred to the limited company in March of 2016. Before March 2016 there were no assets in the company, so indeed, if the company was going to be filing accounts for that year and the year before, it would be filing a nil return. That is the reality, Mr Speaker. In fact, anecdotally, let me just relate a story to hon. Members of the House to illustrate how that can happen.

2280 Just a year ago, I was involved in commercial litigation representing a trust company. We got to trial and the only asset of this particular company – it is public knowledge because there is a judgment etc. – was a chosen action; that is a claim brought against another party. That is the only asset, so this particular trust company should have filed for the preceding years accounts nil returns – they did not have any other assets. We got to court and the other side waved a paper in front of me and said, 'This company has been struck off the register for failing to file accounts.' Of course I turned round to my client and I said, 'You stupid so and so, you should have filed,' but the reality is they could have been all right. You should always file accounts and it was stupid not to do so. My client said to me, 'But it's a nil return, there are no assets.' He should have filed them.

2285 But to go from the failure to file an account, which can be criticised, to then imputing some nefarious plot to really keep the affairs of this particular trust – because that is really the implication – away from the public eye because there is something really going on behind the scenes with the trustees ... Well, I am sorry, but that is disgraceful and that is a leap that nobody sane can possibly make, Mr Speaker.

2295 Then there is the other point that has been raised – it has been raised here in this House – and that is the question of asbestos. It is true that asbestos was found – as I understand it, between the floorboards and the floor – that was not picked up by the survey. I accept the explanation that has been provided by the Hon. Minister Bossano, which is the charity could 2300 but to put it right the cost was £130,000 and to actually sue the surveyors for professional negligence in England would have cost at least £½ million. Well, that is not the figure that he has provided. I can tell you, as somebody who practises, Mr Speaker – I apologise for using you, but I can tell Mr Speaker – as somebody who has an active practice certificate in England, who appears in the English courts, that that is what you are talking about: £½ million to sue the 2305 surveyors for professional negligence.

Mr Speaker, even if you had a situation where you could say actually the trustees are susceptible to criticism because they asked for this particular survey but they should have asked for a better survey, well maybe people make mistakes, but again to go from there to be scripting some kind of plot by the trustees, in my respectful submission, is something that cannot possibly 2310 be done.

I am just going through the four – and this is the last one – the four concrete allegations that I have picked up in the press in relation to this matter.

2315 Then it is said that the purchase of this particular property ... there is something not quite right with the procedure adopted for the purchase. Again, the Hon. the Minister Bossano has explained how the procedure was adopted, how this particular property was purchased, and I for my part am prepared to accept the explanation that he has provided. Again, the procedure might have been with the purchase of this property, but again you cannot make the type of leaps that the hon. Lady and those that are actively campaigning against the Trust are seeking to make.

2320 Mr Speaker, if the allegation is that anybody has taken some kind of hidden commission in respect of the purchase of this property then people should have the courage of their convictions to say so, not raise allegations in the hope that somebody might sort of pick it up from here or pick it up from there. Let's invite members of the public to add one and one and make 69: that is what is happening, and the reality here is that unfortunately this has turned into 2325 a bit of a kangaroo court as far as the trustees are concerned. That is why I am grateful to the Hon. Minister Bossano for bringing this motion, for allowing Members to debate this motion and for allowing us to clear the air and setting out what our positions are clearly.

Mr Speaker, that is all I have to say. (Banging on desks) 2330 Mr Speaker: Any other contribution? The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, what a curious session this is turning out to be.

2335 The hon. Lady, in her contribution, has managed to put Members on this side of the House and Members on that side of the House for the GSD into violent agreement (Laughter) – it does not happen often – in support of a charity, the value of which I think all of us agree on, including her. I think it is difficult for me to understand why it is that she has taken the route that she has in respect of these particular trustees, in respect of this particular charity. We have not yet heard from Mr Llamas, I do not know whether he is going to contribute in the debate, but 2340 certainly in respect of the position of the Government and of the official Opposition she is going to stand alone on this issue.

I think it is absolutely right – and I think in their contributions Mr Bossano, Mr Clinton and Mr Feetham have said so – that people should be free to ask questions of trustees, in particular of trustees of charities that are important to a small nation like ours; and in fact we have seen 2345 those questions asked in part by her, in part in sections of the media – indeed, she referred us to a lengthy letter that she has now written to the trustees that asks questions. Nobody is saying 2350 that she is not entitled to do that or that there is anything wrong with that, but when the questions tend to tarnish the very good work, here in particular, of the charity and of the trustees who make the charity a reality, then I think the hon. Lady needs to ask herself whether she may have allowed her questioning to get out of hand to the extent that it is now being interpreted – even if she does not intend it in that way – to become almost a questioning of the motives and the integrity and honesty of the trustees.

2355 I think that there are two ways of looking at this matter: there is the purely technical and there is the position that most people will take, which is the general political confidence that can be attached to the performance of the trustees and the performance of the charities.

2360 Joe Bossano has given us a technical analysis of the structure of the Trust, its operation and the reasons why there should be no technical concerns. He has given us an analysis of some of the media articles that have appeared and the answers that can be provided from reading indeed publicly available material and even articles published in that same media and other media which answer those very questions.

2365 And then there is the issue of what the public will think, and in the context of questions being asked the public sometimes will simply take the view that if questions are being asked there might be something wrong. I think, therefore, the position that the Government and the official Opposition are taking together is going to be an important one in demonstrating to the general public the confidence that they should have in the administration of the Trust of Calpe House and of the work that the charity is doing.

2370 The Hon. Mr Clinton in his own technical analysis has reached the self-same conclusions as Mr Bossano, and from another aspect – from the legal aspect rather than the accounting aspect – Mr Feetham has reached the same conclusions that Mr Bossano has reached. So, in that context and in the context of the reinstatement of the charity, which has been announced today, and all of the publicly available material, I think there is unanimity across the floor of the House between the principal party of Opposition and the Government and the parties in Government that there is that confidence in the operation of the Trust, in the aims and objectives of the charity and in the honesty and integrity of the trustees.

2375 Therefore, I think the hon. Lady needs to ask herself ‘is this the right issue for me to stand alone on?’ because politics can be a lonely place. Joe Bossano has stood alone in this House but he has stood alone on issues on which he has been proved right – for example, in the 1970s and in relation to the Lisbon process and the Strasbourg process and then Brussels etc. But on this issue I put it to the hon. Lady that she needs to read carefully what has been said in the context of the speech of Mr Bossano and in the speech of Mr Clinton and understand that a lot of the questions that she is asking she has had the answers to.

2385 This is not an easy area, trusts and accounts of trusts are not straightforward, but I think when people look carefully at what has been said in this House they will see that all of the answers are there and they are not answers that should raise concerns about these subjects – the operation of the Trust, the objects of the Trust, the work that the charity does, or indeed the honesty and integrity of the trustees in the context of the work that they do for the Trust.

2390 For that reason, Mr Speaker, the simple position of the Government and the simple position, as I understand it, across the floor of the House between the official Opposition and the Government is to say to the general public Calpe House enjoys the full support of the Government and of the Opposition.

2395 We have disagreements sometimes in areas where we should not have disagreements. The fact that we are passionately in agreement about this must send a message to the general public. We sometimes have disagreements about nuances on issues on which we agree in general. On this we do not even have a disagreement on the nuance and I think that is an important distinction and one that I commend that the hon. Lady should consider carefully as she analyses what should happen after today and when she considers how she should vote in the context of this motion.

Mr Speaker, in particular I think it is important that Calpe House should continue to prosper, and the idea of what Calpe House has done and will grow to do should be one that remains untarnished in the minds of Gibraltarians in particular and every resident of Gibraltar who would be entitled to use it.

Mr Speaker, for that reason and having heard what we have heard today, there is no reason why anybody should be persuaded by anything they have heard today that there is a need for an inquiry into Calpe House. If the Leader of the Opposition was saying across the floor of the House that the Minister for Economic Development and the Savings Bank had misled the House as to what is the publicly available information that he had reflected, or that there was something nefarious in the notes to the accounts and she was raising these issues that she is raising and not finding answers, which she is getting across the floor of the House in relation to a charity and in relation to a charity as important as this one, people might be persuaded that she was right. But the Government would not be persuaded because we can see the workings, we understand the workings and we have advice on the workings and we are told that this is working exactly as it should. But there is no such evidence that can lead her to that conclusion. Indeed, the interim Leader of the Opposition has said that in terms. So there is no need to carry out an inquiry, but simply calling for an inquiry creates a political issue that can send a message to people which then affects people's view of how a charity is operating and what support the charity should have.

I have just been shown by the Hon. Mr Bossano this account that the hon. the former Leader of the Opposition has referred to, and I must say apart from being shocked to see some of the things that this person hides behind the cloak of anonymity to say, I am shown a tweet of 31st August that says:

Donations to Calpe House must stop. Needs new management and transparency.

Mr Speaker, that is probably the most mendacious and pernicious social media post I have ever seen in respect of an organisation like Calpe House, which does such absolutely essential work. I am almost put in the position of thinking that ... That sort of tweet is something that I would never want to be associated with. I am sure the hon. Lady does not want to be associated with it. She should put distance between her questioning and this sort of social media campaign. But I am almost left with the impression that this is somebody, whoever he or she may be, who does not understand their own mortality, does not understand their own potential need for a place like Calpe House. Is it somebody who is so well off that they will never need to have a place to be looked after in London because they can afford a five-star plush hotel? Is it somebody who thinks that they will never be ill?

In the moving remarks from Mr Reyes, I was reminded of the times I have been to Calpe House and I have seen people using Calpe House, of the times that as Chief Minister I have been asked to intercede with the trustees of Calpe House when people need a place to stay in London and think that by calling my office I can somehow juggle around who is staying at Calpe House. This is work done by Sponsored Patients and the trustees of Calpe House, and if there is not room, there is not room – that is why we need a bigger Calpe House. The work that Calpe House does when people are at their lowest ebb in the United Kingdom is work that deserves the full support of absolutely everyone in our community, and frankly ... I have never said this before, I do not know if it is the said thing in relation to social media, but I wish the fingers of the person who wrote that would fall off, because that is frankly not the sort of attitude that anybody should be taking in relation to Calpe House.

It is important that we do not fall into the trap of bringing gossip or hearsay into this place and giving it the legitimacy of parliamentary debate. That is not, as the hon. Lady has suggested, a criticism of the press or an attempt to silence her. The press is the fourth estate; it is there to ask questions, usually of the Government, sometimes of other institutions also. But not agreeing with the press is not to suppress the freedom of the press. There are articles in the morning that

I enjoy and bring me a smile and there are articles in the morning that I do not enjoy and bring me no smiles – and they tend to be authored by Members opposite as press releases and carried by the media. There is no suppression of the freedom of the press in disagreement with an article that may have appeared in any particular press.

This language of attempted suppression of the free press is not language that fits in with the reality that we live in every day. I do recognise the Hon. the former Leader of the Opposition used to talk about the ‘ring of steel’, but he was wrong about that. The press is right to pursue any avenue it wishes to pursue and the Government, on behalf of the people, is right to challenge those avenues where necessary. But everybody is free to say what they wish to say.

2455

If I may say so, Mr Speaker, the hon. Lady is wrong also to say that bringing the motion is an attempt to stop her from asking questions, because the motion – and Mr Feetham said if we had not brought it he would have put it – is an opportunity for the Parliament to express its view. That is not just done in the context of the terms of motions; it is done in the context of the debate. So the motion actually gives her a platform to put the issues that she has put in the context of this debate, with which we are disagreeing but we are not silencing her to an extent we are creating for her the opportunity to say in this Parliament the things that she has said, even though we disagree with her and even though we will vote on terms of this motion which she appears to disagree with. But this is not silencing –

2460

2465

Well, Mr Speaker, let me come to that point. In fact, I am pleased that she prompts me to it because it is the next item on my list. There is absolutely not one hair’s breadth of distance between the things I am saying and the things that Joe Bossano is saying; they are identical, Mr Speaker. That is why I say to her that she needs to look at the Hansard and analyse carefully what it is that we are saying and look at what the various entities in this group do and what the old structure was and what the new structure is and what the transition from one to the other is. We are saying the same things.

2470

These are highly technical things in some instances and I think that it is important that she looks at what has been said in the context of the Hansard so that she can read what Mr Bossano has said and she can read what I have said and what I have said in the past. In most instances, what we say in relation to the Trust etc. we say on advice, because although this is an area in which I would have been in practice, when I am Chief Minister I am not practising this myself and I am taking advice on these issues. The advice is very clear and is authoritative and it is identical to the things that Mr Bossano has been saying to her.

2475

Calpe House will not fail. It will not fail because it enjoys the support of the Government, it enjoys the support of the Opposition, it enjoys the support of the community – which is what we are trying to ensure never falters – and it enjoys the depth of affection of the many thousands of people who have already benefitted from it. Therefore, most families in Gibraltar will have been touched by Calpe House in one way or another.

2480

I want to join the view that was expressed in this House of thanking the fundraisers – in fact, I think it may be that she raised this point of thanking the fundraisers for Calpe House and those who give to Calpe House, which includes most of the people in this room, I am happy to say – but to go a little beyond that and also thank the trustees, which I think Mr Feetham has done and Mr Bossano has done and Mr Reyes, and go a little bit further as well. I want to thank also those at the Sponsored Patients department of the GHA who co-ordinate so effectively with the trustees to ensure the smooth running of people accessing Calpe House. I want to thank Jaime, the man at Calpe House who ensures everything is clean, everything is ready and who is from Latin America but has become an honorary Gibraltarian in London in the support and work that he gives to Calpe House. The fact is that Calpe House deserves that full support and the trustees, who are in effect the embodiment of Calpe House, deserve the full support of this Parliament.

2485

The new Calpe House, when it is sold many years from now, will be worth a fortune compared to what we have paid, as the old Calpe House will be when we sell it, and if we were going back and looking at what we bought in 1988-89 we would say that we bought a rundown terraced property which, with Joe Bossano in the driving seat of the acquisition, was probably described as more rundown than it was in the context of the negotiations for the purposes of trying to get the price down, (Interjection by the Hon. J J Bossano) and we had bought a property that would be described as needing refurbishment. There was no question of us buying something that we could quickly move into. And so that aspect of the description of the new Calpe House is not something that creates discomfort to the Government; it is what we expect. We expect to purchase a property that we are going to do up to fit the purpose that we wish to see residents of Calpe House enjoy in the future. So that is not going to concern us in any way.

We were all no doubt disappointed that there was the issue with the asbestos during the works but, if I may say so, one of her earlier interventions in the House suggested that patients might be affected by the asbestos. This is something that was detected in the context of the works and this is going to be dealt with in the context of the works and it is going to add some costs to the refurbishment, costs that would have been there whether we had identified it or not at the time that the works were going to commence when the trustees were starting this work. Would we not have bought these terraced properties if we had known about the asbestos in the survey? The answer is we would probably have gone ahead with the purchase. (Hon. J J Bossano: Absolutely.) It would be very difficult to find a property in the United Kingdom, in London in particular, that does not have encapsulated asbestos. The only issue is have we been slightly delayed by the fact that it was found later rather than earlier. I think the philosophic calculus that would have been done in the context of whether to sue or not sue is exactly as the Hon. Mr Feetham has suggested, and therefore the decision has been made to just carry on and this is what it was going to cost us, whether we had known about it or not, to deal with. There is no additional cost; there is just a loss of time, which is unfortunate.

So, Mr Speaker, we are not silencing anyone. We are not suggesting that she should not take points and we are not for one moment trying to suppress her right to bring points, we are not silencing the media. All we are doing is disagreeing with her, which is a freedom the rest of us must continue to enjoy, and disagreeing with those sectors of the media that have taken the position that they have taken in respect of these aspects of the reporting. The same as we might violently agree with her on other matters and with those sectors of the media, we might be in violent agreement on other matters. That is not to affect the quality of our democracy and it is wrong to suggest that.

Mr Speaker, finally, we are never going to cover anything up. We are never going to align ourselves with any misappropriation. If I may say so, she needs to find a way of unpainting herself out of the corner into which she is painting herself in respect of a charity that deserves our full support in this House, including her full support. I encourage her to seek to re-establish a positive relationship with the trustees of Calpe House. I encourage her to look carefully at what has been said and what has been disclosed, so that she can see that there is none of the nefarious activity that she has suggested could be going on from anything that I have seen which is in the public domain, from any of my dealings with the trustees, from the announcements that we made with the Trustees early on about the purchase of this additional Calpe House, this new Calpe House, and that I am saying, on behalf of the Government, as Mr Bossano has said in bringing the motion, the Government gives the full weight of its confidence to the Trustees of Calpe House and to the charity that is Calpe House and to the work that Calpe House has done.

Mr Speaker, it would be disappointing indeed if Gibraltar had become a place where somebody can hide behind a cloak of social media anonymity and in some way therefore affect an institution as beloved and as important to the people of Gibraltar as Calpe House.

I commend the attitude that hon. Members in the party opposite have taken. We rarely agree on anything, and on this occasion we seem to agree on everything in relation to this motion. I think the hon. Lady should take notice of that, because if there were the slightest chance of us going at each other we would grab it and seek to bring conflict from the jaws of agreement – and if we are not doing so, she needs to think carefully about the position that she has taken in relation to Calpe House.

I commend the motion, as moved by the Minister, to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I call upon the mover, the Hon. Joe Bossano, to reply.

2555 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I am, on behalf of Calpe House more than anything else, extraordinarily grateful for the contributions from the Members opposite. In the 45 years that I have been here I have never seen the same not just commitment but the same emotion expressed in support of any institution. I think it is only when we have been talking about issues of sovereignty and Gibraltar that there has been that kind of level of commitment between the 2560 Government and the Opposition.

I am extraordinarily grateful, for the sake of Calpe House, for the sake of the people who are committed to making it work, that they will have, after today, the comfort of knowing that the Government and the main Opposition, the two parties that are represented in this House ... and I hope that we can count also on Mr Llamas's vote; I doubt that Ms Nahon is going to change 2565 hers. That will give them a lot of comfort and I think that it will be important because we want the people there to stay – we do not want them to chuck it in and say, 'I'm not here if all I'm going to get for what I am doing is having my name tarnished – I've got better things to do with my life.'

I think so many arguments have been put already by the Members opposite that there is little 2570 that I can add, except that certainly I cannot make myself to be as generous and kind as the Leader of the Government has been in relation to the attitude of Ms Nahon. I think my reactions to her attitude are closer to those of Danny Feetham than they are to the views expressed by the Leader of the Government. (Interjection and laughter)

2575 Hon. Chief Minister: We are all too tired.

Hon. J J Bossano: Okay. If we look at the Twitter account, the Twitter account started by saying in the first tweet that people should stop donating. When we all go at the end of this session, I shall make a point of looking in that corner to see if there are any fingers on the floor.

2580 I am sorry to say that my invitation to the hon. Lady to disassociate herself from the comments on Twitter and the comments on Facebook was not taken up. I invited her to distance herself and she has not; she has chosen not to. Well, that is fine. It is obvious that she, in principle, sees nothing wrong with the comments that have been made here, because I asked her to not speak and ignore what these people were saying because they are people who 2585 portray themselves as her supporters. In this new movement that she is starting, if this is the calibre of people in her new movement we are going to have fun and games in the next few years because I am certainly not going to stand for any of this nonsense from any of these people. That is why I started by saying I am not looking for a fight but I am not running away from one either.

2590 What is not acceptable in terms of the freedom of the press, which I am fully committed to, what is not acceptable is that if, for example, the Government gets a question saying what is the funding arrangement and we say we are hoping that ... which is, in fact, something we are very confident about, but the official who writes the answer says we are hoping that the money that will be realised from the sale of the existing Calpe House – which, by the way, was dilapidated 2595 and I persuaded the person selling, a Greek guy who was using it as student accommodation, that it was so dilapidated that he would sell it to us for £600,000, and we are now told we are likely to get £8 million for it, which is obviously ... If I had been doing the dilapidation speech, we might have done a better deal with the new one. We hope that the £8 million from the sale of that will mean that we will recover the money that is put in, but the commitment that we have 2600 given ... If the money is available because of the sales and we get it, that is fine. If we do not get it ... We are committed. The Government is committed to the extent that if the campaign to say to people 'don't donate' has an effect, then Calpe House will not suffer; the Government will 2605 make up whatever shortfall there is as a result of a campaign which is absolutely outrageous, as Danny Feetham said from the beginning, before any of us. He was the first one to respond to this Twitter business, in which he is involved and I am not, and of course he has been castigated.

Talk about freedom of the press! If you do not agree with what these people on Twitter say, you are then attacked, so you have to agree.

2610 So who is here trying to stifle other people's opinions? When we say to a paper we are hoping to get the money, the paper does not say simply the Government hopes to get the £8 million and make a profit, as it cost them £600,000; no, the paper says the Government is keeping its fingers crossed. We are not keeping our fingers crossed: their next article can say their fingers are now uncrossed – we are confident that we will get the money.

2615 I cannot accept that the freedom of the press is something that allows somebody to say, as she does echoing the things that she has heard, it is terrible that there should be no accounts submitted and that you should be deregistered. The Charity Commission says it is something that happens automatically, it is a computer programme; you get deregistered if the date arrives and there is nothing there. But, as the Hon. Mr Feetham has said, the account that was not submitted was a nil account, so now the newspaper discovers it is a nil account and what is the new story? 'Where has all the money gone? It's a nil account.' Well, it is a nil account because it 2620 is a company that is producing its first account from zero. You know where the money is because you said it yourself a month ago, on 24th July.

It seems to me that we have a situation here where there are people who do not want answers to their questions; they want answers to questions which will only lead to more questions. It is something I have accused the Leader of the Opposition of before, but after today 2625 I forgive him. (Hon. Chief Minister: For now!) For now, until the next meeting!

But that is what happens: she produces a list of questions. Well, look, she is entitled to ask questions which go somewhere, but if the question is 'Why did you buy the property?' the Trust bought the property because after doing what they were supposed to do, which is looking for alternative properties, this property came at a price which reflected the limitations on the 2630 property, and the limitations on the property we succeeded in removing so that the price that we paid, which was when there were limitations, is the price we paid after we removed the limitations. Isn't that something we should all be celebrating?

I am telling the hon. Member that the fact that they came and told us they were going to buy the property and we said go ahead and buy it when we looked at all the figures and we took the 2635 advice of our technical people and we sent Hector Montado over to the United Kingdom and the Financial Secretary looked at it, we did not come up with saying 'tomorrow we are sending Hector Montado'. That is not suppressing information and that is not sweeping things under the carpet.

2640 We just do work every day. I work seven days and I do not come out with a press release saying everything I have done every day since I opened the office at seven in the morning until I closed it at eight at night. But if somebody asks me a question and I give him the information or the information is put on the webpage, or if the information is available in the accounts, then it is not something you have discovered, it is something that is available to the public. If you get it and you then say 'Look, they don't produce accounts,' and then say 'The account has got no 2645 money in it, so where has all the money gone?' either you do not know what you are saying and you have not got a clue, or you know what you are saying and you know that you are deliberately misleading people.

I have to say that I take the generous view and I assume that the hon. Lady opposite does not have a clue, because the other one would be worse, but it concerns me that there is a reference 2650 to something that happened in 1980 in the Twitter account and in her statement today. I do not know how old she was in 1980 but this has happened on the watch of her father. The scandal of RYCA which she has mentioned today is mentioned in the Twitter account. What has that got to do with Calpe House, what has that got to do with the accounts and what has it got to do with anything? Is that not throwing more mud to make things look worse? Or should we now 2655 investigate what was it that the AACR administration did wrong in 1980? They were responsible for the public finances – what did they do wrong?

Mr Speaker, I do not expect the hon. Member opposite, the hon. Lady, to vote in favour of the motion, given that she has said what she intended to say as if I had not spoken. The fact that I said to her that we do not own 51% of the company does not stop her saying it is just a technicality because it is a company by guarantee and not by shares. It is not a technicality. It is that owning 51% of a building is not the same as owning 51% of a business. If she cannot tell the difference in that, then she does not understand anything at all.

2665 So, on the basis that I am not even trying to convince her anymore, I commend the motion to the House and I am very grateful for the warmth of the support that we have got from the Members opposite. Thank you. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now put the question in the terms of the motion proposed by the Hon. Joe Bossano. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against?

2670 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can we call a division, please.

Mr Speaker: Is there a need for a division? (Several Members: Yes.) Okay, if you want to take up another five minutes of a long day, we will.

PRIVATE MEMBER'S MOTION

Cleanliness of streets and public places –
Failure to meet expected standard – Amended motion carried

2680 Mr Speaker: Given that I understand the Government does not wish to proceed with any Bills, I think we can therefore move on to Private Members' Motions. I call upon the Hon. Trevor Howard – Trevor Hammond. Sorry, what did I say, Trevor Howard? I have raised you to the level of Mutiny on the Bounty! Trevor Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I fully understand, at this time of night, the confusion in name and I think on the same lines I beg the indulgence of this House to move the motion that stands in my name:

THIS HOUSE

NOTES that the Environment in which we live has a direct impact on the wellbeing of people as well as affecting Gibraltar's reputation in the eyes of visitors and that the cleanliness of our streets and public places is an essential part of environmental management and our tourism product;

AND THEREFORE CONSIDERS the current state of our streets does not meet the standards our community would expect.

Mr Speaker, I need to say right from the beginning that the motion is in no way aimed at apportioning any blame towards any entity specifically; it is purely a motion in order to debate whether or not we in this House consider the streets to be at an appropriate level of cleanliness and therefore what our views are in that respect. Cleanliness is next to godliness, so the saying goes, and, if true, then that maxim is being sorely tested at the moment in our own little piece of heaven.

Let me make clear again that this motion has nothing to do with the service delivery for cleaning the streets. It is broader than that and it has been made clear in my previous contribution to the Government motion that we on this side, representing Her Majesty's Opposition, believe that Master Service and its employees have provided outstanding services for many years. If there is an issue now, it does not rest at that door, and while not apportioning blame for the current public concerns regarding cleanliness, the only part of the equation that has changed these past 17 years is the Government, and many people who are attributing blame place it firmly at Government's door.

The environment in which we live has a direct impact on the wellbeing of the people, as stated in the motion; a truism that is often lost when discussing matters of the environment. Too often people think of environmental issues as being solely about conservation and protection of the natural environment. They do not make the connection between the environment and their personal health. Where the Health Services provide for us once we are ill, a healthy environment is the major factor in preventing us from getting ill in the first place. Whether it be air quality, water quality, noise pollution, waste management, urban planning or of course environmental cleanliness, all impact on our wellbeing. This can be directly, such as poor air quality leading to respiratory conditions and other diseases; or indirectly, like noise pollution causing stress, which can lead to a whole range of illnesses from heart disease to depression.

The cleanliness of our streets is certainly a factor causing stress for many at the moment and I think it has been agreed that our streets do not meet the cleanliness standards which our community demands. The causes are many. Air pollution – whether from Saharan dust or diesel exhausts from cars, lorries and even ships – certainly blackens our streets after it has blackened our lungs. Bird guano contributes, as do dog faeces or urine not properly removed by owners, chewing gum, littering, spillage from poorly disposed-of rubbish, items falling from backs of lorries or blown off lorries or from bins by the wind, to name only a few contributors.

Some of these, of course, can be helped with education and better self-discipline, as well as an appropriate regime of catching people and fining them. Fines for littering remain very few, despite the clear volume of littering that goes on. Campaigns to encourage people out of these antisocial behaviours are equally important and need to be persistent to work. I recall the Keep Britain Tidy campaigns of the 1970s, which really had an impact in changing the way that nation thought. We must campaign as vigorously and persistently here to try and achieve similar results. The same must be true of careless dog owners and we hope that the current DNA testing will lead to positive results in that respect.

2725 I know that the Chief Minister or indeed the Minister will argue in their replies that I am not an advocate of heavy fining. That is not true. I am an advocate of fining appropriately and I think whereas things like littering or leaving dog foul on the streets for me is a very black and white no and should not be tolerated in any circumstances, when it comes to parking I may have a slightly different and more reasonable view.

2730 I think Gibraltar has to move away, as has been alluded to previously, from the culture that there will be someone else coming along to pick up the mess. That needs to be ended. That is, of course, not to say that we should not have a good service in street cleaning and this should continue – it can only be more effective if we all play our part in reducing the dirt in the first place. Working together like this will lead to results and return us to the state of grace where our community was not stressed by the lack of cleanliness of our streets and visitors do not think less of our community because of the same.

2735 Sadly, it is not just dirt and litter which contribute to the general shabbiness of many areas of our community, and I now turn to the matter of refuse disposal, particularly that around the Town area. It simply cannot be acceptable to walk down Main Street just after seven in the evening – indeed, as we may possibly see this evening – and find the street littered with refuse which will remain uncollected until after nine o'clock. If you do this with a visitor it is very difficult to explain and, frankly, very embarrassing. Surely we can find a better way to do this through more efficient collection or by having proper covered disposal areas.

2740 Likewise, while it is laudable to have cardboard recycling areas designated – as, for instance, in the case of Bell Lane – the policy does not work if the piles of cardboard are permitted to accumulate to a point where the street becomes almost impassable and then others take advantage by adding their regular refuse to the pile. It is unsightly, it is unhygienic; it is not acceptable. I am frequently contacted by a businessman in Bell Lane, a Mr Den Bossano, who specifically asked that I mention him in this. He runs a bar there and his business suffers very badly as a direct result of the mountain of cardboard and other rubbish accumulated every evening outside his bar – no one wishes to sit amongst this to enjoy a beverage. I would invite anyone here to go and see for themselves. How it is allowed under the fire regulations I do not know. Mr Bossano, I am sure, is not alone in his concerns. Again, a solution must be sought: either more efficient collection or improved storage, or perhaps something else.

2745 All of these issues are more keenly felt in the heart of Town. In the very area where these concerns should be most effectively managed, they are least effectively managed. In the very area where thousands of tourists visit daily, certainly through the summer, Main Street should be pristine, clean and tidy. Many visitors love the quaint appeal of Main Street – let's not disappoint them but ensure that in every respect it looks as good as possible. Who knows, if it looks better we might get them spending some more money there.

2750 I have focused so far on the Town area, but what I have said is equally true of many other areas of Gibraltar. Our streets could be cleaner; they could be tidier. We can help ourselves as a community by ensuring we do not add to the problem, by acting responsibly in the way in which we discard our waste, but we need the Government to ensure that not only is the hard work of those who clean our streets provided with the proper support to do the best job possible, we also need to ensure that the general maintenance is conducted regularly. You cannot polish a ... well, I will let you finish that phrase. If an area is not well maintained, if paint is flaking – as indeed it does on the walls of certain areas of this House – if pavements are lifting, if roads are crumbling, it still looks like a pile of ... rubbish, and no matter how good a cleaning job you do, no matter how much effort you put into polishing that, it will still look bad because the maintenance simply is not good enough. Good maintenance is as important as good cleaning, and that is the point, and the standard of maintenance in many areas is simply inadequate.

2755 Winston Churchill Avenue – as you drive from the Frontier, the very first impression that visitors have and the welcome home we all receive – is falling apart. The road is crumbling. I know because we find parts of it on the runway often, it is that bad. There are very few roads that you can point to that are in any kind of decent condition. Markings are often faded, zebra crossings almost invisible. All this neglect adds to the sense of a lack of cleanliness. Even if it is clean, it does not look clean. Pavements everywhere are uneven and often challenging to pass. This too adds to the sense that they are not clean. This is directly a Government responsibility and I would ask that it is addressed.

2780 To conclude, Mr Speaker, there is public dissatisfaction with the cleanliness of our streets and the community itself, with guidance, can do much to improve this situation. Certainly those who carry out the cleaning are doing all they can, but there is a question mark over whether they have the necessary level of support from Government. Government could certainly do more to manage the perception that Gibraltar is looking shabby by improving the work it does to 2785 maintain our streets and highways. Let's all play our part in cleaning up, but let's see Government leading from the front.

Mr Speaker, I commend the motion to the House. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I now propose the question in the terms of the motion moved by the Hon.
2790 Trevor Hammond.

The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, normal service has been resumed, thank goodness, even if it is late in the day.

2795 I do not identify with much of what the hon. Gentleman has said is the state that Gibraltar is in today. Those who are, to take his last point, driving into Gibraltar through Winston Churchill Avenue will today be greeted first by a soon to be finished, refurbished, fantastic-looking Laguna Estate on the left and by a magnificent-looking Glacis Estate on the right refurbished from the shabbiness that there was before, and if they look up to the Moorish Castle not only will they 2800 see the magnificent Tower of Homage with the Gibraltar flag flying above it, they will see also Moorish Castle Estate fully refurbished. They will see, in many areas, repainting work that is being done; they will see in many areas resurfacing work that is being done – resurfacing that had been left undone for many years and is being done now, again a trademark of the time that the GSLP is in Government.

2805 Mr Speaker, for all of the reasons that I indicated this morning, a motion like the one that the hon. Gentleman has put is not a complete motion and is the wrong motion for us to have on the Order Paper if it does not, in relation to cleanliness, have a clause in it that acknowledges the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) have done and do in discharging their obligations to keep Gibraltar clean.

2810 It is not fair, in the Government's view, not to reflect the fact that the contract that has been in place to date is the contract that was granted by the former administration in 1999 and subsequently renewed, as I indicated this morning, without also reflecting that the Government is now moving to take cleanliness in Gibraltar to the next level by moving to a European tender for this service. And so, Mr Speaker, as a result of that, I have given you notice a moment ago, 2815 and I understand it has now been circulated to Members, of an amendment to the motion that the hon. Gentleman has put, to include a new paragraph by the inclusion, after the words 'This House', of the following:

ACKNOWLEDGES the excellent work that the employees of Master Service (Gibraltar) Ltd have done and do in discharging their obligations to keep Gibraltar clean;

I think there is a spelling mistake in the typing – it is 'do', not 'so', in that first paragraph, Mr Speaker.

2820 And, after the words 'Therefore considers' in the motion, delete all the words appearing, including the word 'considers', and add 'commends' and then what I have included in the reference. It will read:

And therefore commends the Government for now moving to, properly and in keeping with EU and Gibraltar procurement rules, go out to tender for the contract on cleaning Gibraltar, contrary to the position of the GSD, who when in Government granted the Gibraltar cleaning contract without competitive tender.

2825 Mr Speaker, I propose that those amendments should be included in this motion for all the reasons that I gave at length this morning when I was speaking on the motion that the Hon. the Minister for the Environment brought, which included the language of the acknowledgement of the Master Service employees' work and really was a motion where we set out in detail what it is that we are doing with the tender and why it is that we are going to tender.

2830 I do not think I need to take the House through that all again. We had the debate, it is fresh in our minds. It is now 10 to nine in the evening and I think Members will appreciate that I rely on their recollection rather than take them through all of the issues again. But amended in that way – and I do not know whether these amendments will enjoy the support of Members opposite – the motion will enjoy the support of the Government.

2835 So perhaps without more, I will allow others to give their views in respect of the amendment which I hereby move.

Mr Speaker: I now propose the amendment to the original motion as moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Does any Member wish to speak on the amendment?

The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

2840 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I will just speak very briefly on the amendment.

2845 I know the Chief Minister pointed out what he described as the magnificent work done on the estates, but the fact is getting to the estates is a messy business and the reality is the streets over which we have to travel, whether it be on two wheels, four wheels or indeed on foot, are not in a good state, and that is the impression that visitors receive on arrival and go away with, over and above whether they see a tower block that has received a relatively recent, although now some years ago, coat of paint. When they come around Main Street and this building – the centre, the heart of our political institution, our Parliament – they see flaking paint, and this is not the only public building that suffers such.

2850 I am not saying that every area of Gibraltar is in a state of disrepair, but there are many areas of Gibraltar which are in a state of disrepair and this does lend an air of shabbiness to the impression that visitors take away with them. It also lends an air of lack of cleanliness even when such does not exist, and this is an important issue.

2855 As the Chief Minister asked the question, clearly those Members of Her Majesty's Opposition on this side of the House, Members of the GSD, will not be able to vote with Government on this occasion in terms of the amendments that have been proposed.

Mr Speaker: The Hon Roy Clinton.

2860 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I echo the sentiments of my colleague, the Hon. Trevor Hammond.

2865 If the Chief Minister or the Government could see it in their way to using exactly the same language as in the motion this morning, instead of the one they are proposing, then perhaps we can come to an agreement and go home tonight. If we use the same language, I think it will provide exactly the same intent perhaps without the barbed comment that he has put in his amendment. I would urge the Government to consider using exactly the same closing paragraph as they used this morning.

Thank you.

Mr Speaker: Does any other Member wish to speak on the amendment?

2870 I call on the mover to reply. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I think we are going to go home tonight, whether or not we agree to the hon. Gentleman's language.

2875 Just on this amendment ... the streets are not in a good state of repair and need resurfacing: well, I have already said to the hon. Gentleman there is a resurfacing programme going on. The fact that the road that he may traverse each day is not the one that has been done yet is perhaps not so relevant, in particular given the fact that the hon. Gentleman knows and will be pleased to be reminded that the whole entry into Gibraltar is going to change. It is going to be diverted towards the east and into the underpass and will not be continuing in the area of the runway. So, although there will be a resurfacing, that is not something that is going to be relevant in the future when people go east.

2880 It is not true that a few years ago we gave the estates a coat of paint. We did a substantive refurbishment piece of work, which included cladding, not just a coat of paint. But it is also true that when we do work and we spend money we get chastised for it in this House. So we were chastised for the refurbishment of the estates because it cost too much, and we are chastised when we deal with flaking paint – or is it that they forget that one of the biggest areas of complaint for them was that we spent money fixing Convent Place? What is it – that there are some buildings they will tick off we should not have flaking paint on and others where we are encouraged to allow flaking paint simply because they happen to house Ministers? This level of contradiction is really becoming quite nonsensical. Would the hon. Members just like to give me a list of the buildings that they would like to see refurbished, and if I think I have any chance of satisfying them at any time I might point to them when it is that those buildings are in line for refurbishment?

2885 Is the hon. Gentleman saying that the Government owns every building and it is only Government buildings that have flaking paint and not in fact many buildings of private landlords that have flaking paint, and some buildings which belong to the Government and some buildings which belong to landlords which are in an excellent state of repair? You cannot have it every way.

2890 We cannot have everything looking fantastic all the time, Mr Speaker; it is just not possible. The hon. Member might know that if you own a slightly larger home, by the time you finish with one room you are back refurbishing the one you painted last. To an extent, we only have two and a half miles by one mile. These things matter. I call them trivial matters that are essential because there is that juxtaposition.

2905 The Government is doing as much as it can to ensure that we are refurbishing, that we are repainting, that we have Gibraltar in the right state of repair. Gibraltar is becoming a more attractive tourist destination, not a less attractive one. And this is not just about tourists. This is about those of us who live here and want to enjoy the benefits of living in a place that does not look like it is in a state of disrepair. But that does not mean that with the weather we have in Gibraltar etc. you are not going to have humidity in old buildings, in particular in the old Town, or that you are not going to sometimes have flaking paint etc.

2910 If this motion has become about flaking paint, then the hon. Gentleman needs to wonder what it is that the people of Gibraltar elected him for. They did not elect him to come here and say there is a bit of flaking paint on a Government building. That is something that needs to be dealt with but it is not something for a motion in this House, frankly.

2915 Mr Speaker, when it comes to the language that we are going to use ... I do not know whether the Hon. Mr Clinton knows what he voted on this morning but this morning the GSD Opposition voted in favour of a motion that says that the contract that we were dealing with was awarded by the former GSD administration without any competitive tender process having been followed. (Interjection) Yes, Mr Speaker. And here all we are doing is commending the Government for moving to, properly and in keeping with EU and Gibraltar procurement rules, going out to tender for the contract on cleaning, contrary to the position of the GSD, who, when 2925 in Government, granted the Government cleaning contract without competitive tender. It is the same fact, Mr Speaker. The first limb of that paragraph is exactly the same as the final paragraph of the motion this morning and the second limb of that paragraph is exactly the same as the fact recited in the second phrase of the fourth paragraph of the motion that they voted in favour of this morning.

2930 So, at the end of the day, they voted in favour of the fact being reflected and the fact has just been reflected again. This morning they voted in favour of a paragraph that says ... this is what the GSD Opposition voted in favour of this morning, that they further acknowledge and welcome the decision of the GSLP Liberal Government – it is not in there in those terms – to comply with European and national legislation in going out to tender for a new contract for municipal cleaning services which will be designed to transparently ensure that Gibraltar is provided with better value for money for the taxpayer, a consistent high standard of cleanliness throughout Gibraltar and, additionally, that will provide stability to the employees of Master Service Ltd. It is exactly the same.

2935 Maybe they are having second thoughts about what they voted in favour of this morning, but that is what I am proposing to them now, and therefore I propose that the House now take a vote on the amendment because it is an amendment that properly reflects the unanimity that there was across the floor of the House this morning on exactly the same issue.

2940 Let us at least end as we started at least the second part of the session this afternoon – with unanimity also in respect of this matter. I am going to start getting jealous, Mr Speaker, and I am going to grow Curro Jimenez sideburns myself to see whether I can get people to agree with me across the floor of the House.

2945 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, namely the amendment as moved by the Hon. the Chief Minister. Those in favour? Those against? It is carried by a majority.

2950 So we now have before the House the motion of the Hon. Trevor Hammond as amended by the Chief Minister. All hon. Members, other than the Chief Minister, the Hon. Trevor Hammond and the Hon. Roy Clinton can speak on the motion if they so wish. If not, I will call upon the mover to reply, which he is entitled to do.

The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

2955 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, the Private Member's Motion presented by the GSD is right to say that the current state of our streets does not meet the standards our community would expect. This is an issue I also put forward in my response to the Government's motion on cleaning earlier today. It is also right in saying that the environment in which we live has a direct impact on the well-being of people as well as affecting Gibraltar's reputation.

2960 However, Mr Speaker, I am afraid to say that this motion fails to address the other salient issue which has direct impact on the state of affairs: the plight of the Master Service worker. Both the poor management of these employees and the general mismanagement of the service in the hands of Government have a lot to do with the sorry state of our streets and this has not even been reflected or addressed.

2965 Another point that has not been addressed – and on this one it really is our turn, as citizens, to be honest and self-critical – is our share in the blame for this very sorry situation. The dumping of heavy waste by some members of this community, as well as a widespread lack of civic pride and responsibility in dealing with our waste, have a grave impact on the state of many of our street corners. I hereby encourage all Gibraltarians, myself included, to extend the display of national pride and civic engagement like the one we show on days like National Day to other aspects of our lives, like doing our share in the cleanliness of our streets and the well-being of our environment. We live in a place where people have no problem tossing out a sofa, a mattress or a broken-down washing machine on our street corners. We need to stop dumping rubbish and heavy goods on our streets because it looks terrible, it is highly irresponsible, it is unsafe and it is environmentally very unfriendly. This behaviour has been going on for years and it is about time we made a stand as a community to put an end to it.

2975 Of course, the main issues with both these motions have stemmed from the conflict with Master Service, but if we really want to analyse our mindset and our trends in relation to waste, we all need to take a good look at our neighbourhoods and ask ourselves whether we are being part of the problem or part of the solution. Perhaps we should take this opportunity to, as an Opposition, call for stricter measures to stop this habit of throwing out heavy goods – like more 2980 CCTV in rubbish dumping hot spots or other tools in order to be able to enforce fines for those who dispose of large pieces of waste on our streets and our street corners. Further, Mr Speaker, Government implementing easier access to the refuse department would, I am sure, facilitate citizens to dispose of their heavy waste in a correct and timely manner.

Having said all this, however, as Gibraltarians we should be aware that in Gibraltar, barring 2985 Saturdays, there is a daily collection of rubbish. Other places do not enjoy such privileges. In most boroughs in London or mainland England, for example, rubbish collection is every four to five days. We therefore have to be grateful, in the circumstances, for the resources we have on this front and educate ourselves a little more on how to deal with our waste and each do our bit, from throwing litter in the bin, to using recycling areas properly, to getting rid of household 2990 rubbish responsibly.

However, going back to the original motion, Mr Speaker, I shall be voting against it, given the fact that it does not mention the plight of the Master Service worker, which to me – (Interjections) This motion.

2995 Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker –

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: The original one?

3000 Mr Speaker: On a point of order?

Hon. G H Licudi: Yes.

Mr Speaker: Are you sure that it is a point of Order?

3005

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the point of order is on relevance. The hon. Lady is speaking to a motion that does not exist and therefore the point that she makes is not relevant because she should be speaking to an amended motion, which is what the House has now voted.

3010 Mr Speaker: But the amended motion does have an element in it, at least a paragraph, of the original motion.

Hon. G H Licudi: No, Mr Speaker, the amended motion mentions specifically Master Service, and what she says is she is going to vote against because the motion does not mention Master 3015 Service. So that is the point of relevance.

Mr Speaker: Well, that is a mistaken comment on her part.
Please carry on.

3020 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I beg your pardon, I was under the impression we were still debating the original motion. It is late and I am sorry. (Interjection) Sorry? (Interjection) I understand.

Mr Speaker, I shall be abstaining from this motion. Thank you.

3025 Mr Speaker: Anybody wish to ...? The Hon. John Cortes.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, I am, like the Chief Minister earlier, not going to go and repeat all that was said in the motion earlier on today. It is all, as again he said, fresh in our minds.

3030 Just to remark on two or three very, very brief points, one is that the Hon. Trevor Hammond, who in that motion he made – maybe it is not as fresh in his mind – said that he does not play the blame game and then proceeded to blame the Government. Once again, he introduced in his speech a retrospective recognition of the Master Service employee, which he had completely forgotten in his first drafting.

3035 But the main thing is that I will not let him get away with giving the impression that nothing is being done on cleaning Gibraltar, on litter and on rubbish. That would be unfair to all the staff of the Department of the Environment, the Environment Agency and all the different agencies – including environment monitors, including litter wardens – who work very, very hard.

3040 To remind the House of what I said earlier about reconvening the Litter Committee, about introducing laws which allow us to fine ... Six years ago there was not a single CCTV camera directed at any litter hotspot; now we are complaining that there are not enough. We introduced those cameras and indeed some of the fines that have been levied have been as a result of many hours of monitoring the footage on those CCTV cameras.

3045 On refuse disposal we have removed the hotspots of rubbish that we had at the corner of Turnbull's Lane, at Mess House Lane, at the bottom of Prince Edward's Road near what used to be known as the Three Roses Bar, at Chatham Counterguard, and we are now actually in discussion with the Chamber of Commerce in order to jointly tackle the problem of the rubbish and the out of synchronicity that we have with the putting out and the collection of rubbish in Main Street, and we will be hearing more about that very soon.

3050 Mr Speaker, we must all pull together. There are people here who do the unacceptable when it comes to littering our streets and placing rubbish, and there is of course more to do but I think, as we have established today, it will be done and it will be done soon. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Trevor Hammond.

3055 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I will be very brief because there are just a couple of points that I do believe need to be clarified or corrected.

3060 The Chief Minister spoke of Winston Churchill Avenue, the entry point into Gibraltar. I accept that in the future it will not directly be the entry point into Gibraltar, once the tunnel is completed; however, the tunnel is some way off. We know, in questions, that the tunnel is likely to be ready in the early part of 2019, but that is still the best part of 18 months away and in the meantime it is Winston Churchill Avenue that people traverse and it should not be allowed to deteriorate further. It really does need to be improved because, as I say, we do frequently find parts of it on the runway, which is never a good thing.

3065 I think the Chief Minister also started talking about refurbishment of buildings. I was not at any point referring to refurbishing buildings, I was talking about maintenance of buildings, and they are two very different things. If you refurbish a building it is usually far more expensive. Maintenance is a basic thing, a lick of paint – not cladding, not changing the dynamics, not changing the room sizes, not moving walls around; that is a refurbishment. All I am talking about 3070 is basic maintenance of civic buildings, which I think is important to give the right impression to foreigners and to tourists of our community. Whether the private sector and private buildings are maintained to the same standard, I do think Government should be setting the example on this.

3075 The Chief Minister also, to some extent, belittled the importance of maintenance, as if it is almost insignificant in many respects. Well, I can tell you there are aspects of maintenance that are absolutely critical to public safety – for instance, making sure that zebra crossings are clearly 3080 painted and marked. We have a lot of tourist vehicles on our roads – if they cannot see the zebra crossing... I know it is there, they do not know it is there – I go to cross, they do not stop. The Chief Minister might think it is a good thing that that should happen, but I certainly do not. The same happens with other road markings. If give-way signs are not clear, tourists are not aware of them and accidents will happen. This is the importance of maintenance. Apart from leading to a general shabbiness in our streets, it also leads potentially to accidents.

3085 I just wanted to make those points because I did feel that the Chief Minister did belittle the points I was making and they are important and they can have a direct impact not only on public perception but on public safety.

Thank you, Mr Speaker. (Banging on desks)

Mr Speaker: I will now put the motion as amended to the House. All in favour? Those against? Carried unanimously.

3090 The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is 10 past nine. This morning we started with a motion on National Day and news has come in on social media – sometimes useful for positive reasons – that the Gibraltar Football Association under-21 squad has won its first official international match 1-0. (Banging on desks) What a great way, with all of us banging our tables, to communicate to the young men of that under-21 squad the support of the whole House, and what a great way to end a day when we started with a motion on National Day.

3095 And so, Mr Speaker, reminding hon. Members that I said I would shortly be calling a House again, probably as early as tomorrow, for October, I move that the House should now adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the Chief Minister's motion that we adjourn sine die, I am going to crave the indulgence of the House for a few minutes. I think that after presiding over the debates of four motions since 10 o'clock this morning I am entitled to do so, and hon. Members will see why.

3105 I received recently an anonymous letter which is a serious insult against Members of this House and this Parliament. I showed it to some Members during the coffee break. How I wish that it was not so late, because then there would be perhaps a chance that this very brave individual who has written anonymously might have been listening to the proceedings of the House and might have heard what I am about to say. (Hon. G H Licudi: We are still online.)

The letter asks two questions:

Is corruption an integral part of politics?

And the second question, to me specifically:

As a Roman Catholic, have you pondered that you preside over a den of thieves?

3115 My answer to the first question is that I am not aware, I have no experience, since this legislature was created in 1950 ... as long ago as that I am not aware that any Gibraltar politician has ever been convicted of corruption. I think the writer of this letter may be following events in another country, but certainly not in Gibraltar.

3120 Now have a pondered? I have pondered a great deal today – I have had plenty of time. I have not done so as a Roman Catholic, I do so as Adolfo Canepa, and I have to tell this person that, I have come to the conclusion that, given that we have been debating four motions, during which there has not been a single occasion when the Standing Orders and the Rules of this House have been transgressed – and hon. Members know that I sometimes chastise them if they do not stick to the standards that I expect from Parliament – I have come to the conclusion that I am very proud to preside over the deliberations of the elected representatives of the people of Gibraltar,

3125 who today in this Parliament have done politics proud, and I congratulate you all. (Banging on desks)

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I, I think on behalf of all Members of the House, associate with the words that you have uttered and say that the refuge of the coward and the refuge of the corrupt is anonymity. (Banging on desks) 3130 Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn sine dine.

The House adjourned at 9.15 p.m.

Q577/2017

The Mount –

Update and proposed future use

Clerk: (iii) Communications from the Chair; (iv) Petitions; (v) Announcements; (vi) Papers to be laid; (vii) Reports of Committees. (viii) Answers to Oral Questions.

We commence with Question 577/2017. The Hon. L F Llamas.

15

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide an update on the Mount and its proposed future use?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Yes, Mr Speaker. The Government is currently in discussions with an interested party.

Hon. L F Llamas: Can the Hon. Minister explain or expand a little bit further as to what the proposed usage the interested party would be proposing to develop the area?

Hon. Deputy Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government is not able to do that at the moment because obviously the discussions are ongoing, but the information will be made available to the public as soon as there is something concrete to make public. We do not have enough detail to be able to do that yet.

UK Dormant Bank and Building Society Accounts Act 2008 – Plans for similar legislation for Gibraltar

30 Clerk: Question 578. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to introduce legislation along the lines of the UK Dormant Bank and Building Society Accounts Act 2008?

35 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Commerce.

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, the Government has no present intention to introduce such legislation.

40 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, is the Minister aware that the lack of legislation in this area has created a problem for a number of banks, particularly in a sector that is going through some reorganisation with some banks taking over other banks – there have been banks that have also exited Gibraltar – and during the course of that activity it has become clear that there are bank accounts, going back sometimes decades, where they have not been able to trace the holder of 45 the bank account and therefore those banks are then left with a situation where they need to go to court in order to get directions from the court and sometimes, for example, setting up trusts?

Let me explain to the hon. Member – if I may, with the indulgence of the Chair – by way of a practical example the difficulty in this area. I have recently been involved in a case – and it has been made public, which is why I refer to it – where there are three bank accounts going back to 50 the 1980s. The sums are relatively small: in total £115,000. The bank has been forced to go to court in order to obtain directions to set up a trust specifically in relation to these three bank accounts. You may say that banks make a lot of money, therefore what is the problem, but actually the problem is this: that under the UK Act, that money would have been, for example, donated to charity, so you could have had – (Interjection) Yes, after a process the money could 55 be donated to – (Interjection) Absolutely, after a process the money is donated to charity if you cannot locate these individuals through advertising etc. All that has been done by the bank in my example. The legal costs have been upwards of £60,000. There is a clause – (Interjection) Well, before my hon. Friend Mr Clinton says ‘Sixty thousand pounds!’ I have been involved in another case where a counsel has been charging £250,000 a week. The problem is that these types of 60 orders include a clause, for example, where there is then clawback in favour of the bank if these individuals are not traced. So, effectively, the bank comes out not a loser, it comes out the winner at the end of the day, and I just think that in this kind of situation it would have been painless and it would have been far more efficient for the bank just simply to go through the process that it has and then to have donated the money to charity, rather than ending up in the 65 pockets of lawyers and then, through a clawback, back in the pockets of the bank.

Therefore, does the Hon. Minister agree with me that there are distinct advantages in having legislation of this kind here in Gibraltar and that perhaps the Government ought to consider it?

70 Can I also say that I have drafted already a draft Act based on the UK and it is my intention to send a copy to the hon. Gentleman and then perhaps he can consider that legislation, because it is really painless from the Government's point of view – it is legislation that will have a positive effect with very little downside indeed.

Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, the position, as far as the Government is concerned, is that we are not aware of a problem. It has not been raised with Government by either the Gibraltar Bankers Association or indeed the Finance Centre Council. It is an issue that has never arisen before; this is the first time I hear it is a problem for us in Gibraltar.

75 I think the difficulty with taking the process that the hon. Member refers to is that it is very easy to pass legislation, but then it needs to be administered, managed and looked after. The way that the system works in the United Kingdom is that there is a not-for-profit organisation which is in charge of receiving the money, managing the money, investing the money and dealing with claims. The company is actually called Reclaim Fund Ltd – in 2014. When you have got the amounts of money that you are talking about in the United Kingdom, you may have sufficient critical mass of cash to be able to make that cost effective, but in Gibraltar, with the amounts that the hon. Member has conceded are particularly small, the cost of setting up this machinery to manage these funds could put that beyond the risk of reasonableness and common sense.

80 And so the question is not that we do not want to do it; the question is (1) that we have not had any approach from anyone in the private sector to do it, and (2) from our limited understanding – and it is limited – the cost of setting this machinery up would way exceed the benefit that it would deliver.

90 I think these systems make sense but the charitable donation, which is a little bit of a carrot, comes at the end of the rump, and even after the money has been taken into this Reclaim Fund Ltd and held, it is still able to be clawed back should a family relative or somebody with the legal right to that money make a claim at some stage in the future. So it is not just as simple as receiving money – not heard from them for 20 years, give it to the charitable fund and it is spent. There is a clawback from the individual who may be related to the very original account holder that they have not heard from for 20 years. So it is actually quite complicated and the extent of the work involved in doing this, in our view, at this stage, is that it is not worth pursuing at this stage, but I would be very happy to hear from the hon. Member and explore it further.

Q579-80/2017

e-Gov –

Cost to date; expected live dates for services

Clerk: Question 579. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of money spent on e-Gov in each financial year to date since December 2011?

105

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Commerce.

Minister for Commerce: (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 580/2017.

110

Clerk: Question 580. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a road map of which e-Gov services are expected to be live and when?

115

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Commerce.

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, we are unable to accurately provide the schedule requested within the limited time because what constitutes e-Government is extremely wide and could comprise software, hardware, websites, portals, design work, ITLD time and technical consultants. For example, servers and hardware are essential elements of e-Gov but they have not been purchased specifically for e-Gov, and the same applies to each of the other ones that I have detailed above.

125 With regard to Question 580/2017, our plans for e-Government are significant and exciting. They build on the successful introduction of the e-ID card in our first term, perhaps one of the most ambitious projects to hit the public service in a generation. I could spend a significant amount of time just going over the different facets of the project; however, in general terms we are focusing our efforts in two main areas: e-Administration and e-Services.

130 Mr Speaker, e-Administration is about investing in technology and innovation to create better and more efficient systems at the workplace, automating core business processes and repetitive tasks that can streamline procedures, minimise errors and facilitate better use of existing resources. We are developing the following systems, which are all at different stages of implementation: Source to Contract, or e-Procurement, which is at an advanced stage and we hope to complete by December of this year; Purchase to Pay, e-Invoicing, which we hope to test and roll out by March 2018; Enterprise Resource Planning, which is integrated finance, payroll and HR systems, which we will begin to implement in January 2018 and complete the entire rollout within 18 months; the central database – work has already commenced on the architecture and design but we do not yet have an estimated implementation date, but certainly within the next 12 months.

140 e-Services are about bringing Government services online. Government proposes to develop a new concept of e-Services, which will make public information and Government services available anytime, anywhere to citizens, businesses and officials alike. This is still work in progress. I can say that we are working on two systems, which again are at different stages of implementation: the e-Government portal and customer relationship management systems.

145 Mr Speaker, where I have given dates, at this stage these are best estimates on the information available today, but they may move – hopefully forward.

Vehicles emissions testing as part of MOT – Number of vehicles failing

Clerk: Question 581. The Hon. T N Hammond.

150

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, is vehicle emissions testing conducted as part of the MOT; and, if so, how many vehicles have failed this part of the test since 1st January 2012?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

155 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Indeed, Mr Speaker, vehicle emissions testing is conducted as part of an MOT. This is a legal requirement.

DVLD has never kept statistics of specific vehicle failures as a result of mechanical faults or any other reason for failure. It would be a very laborious task to keep these sort of statistics, requiring extra human resources.

160

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I have recently put two vehicles through the MOT testing requirements and neither was tested for its emissions, so I am slightly baffled to understand that it is a legal requirement to undertake such testing – unless I was very fortunate, or unfortunate, to be the only person not to receive testing. So could the Minister just clarify that every vehicle, regardless of its age, once it is subject to MOT testing must be emissions tested?

165

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that is in fact correct and if the hon. Gentleman's vehicle was not tested ... I would need to check that, but it is a legal requirement and all vehicles should be tested for emissions.

Q582/2017
Electric car charging – MidTown car park facilities

170 Clerk: Question 582. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government say whether there have been any unserviceabilities or failures of the electric car charging facilities at MidTown car park; and, if so, how often and for how long?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the electric charging points at MidTown car park have not been commissioned yet. No interest has yet been shown. As part of the requirements of the STTPP and the environment, Government is, however, currently planning on commissioning a few parking bays for this purpose in the very near future.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I am somewhat taken by surprise by the answer. My understanding was that the provision of such bays was to incentivise people to buy electric vehicles, in which case, if the facility is not available there is no incentive to buy, or there is less incentive, to buy the electric vehicle. My understanding was the commissioning of this would take place with the opening of the car park, which has now been open for well over a year and yet there is still no facility.

185

When does Government plan to introduce that facility and will an announcement be made accordingly?

190

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as far as I am being told, there has been no interest shown. It would seem an awful shame to have – I do not know whether it is 15 or 20 spaces perhaps which are dedicated for this purpose ... to have them empty and not used, just waiting for an electric vehicle to turn up. Therefore, this is the reason why they have not been commissioned.

195

As part of the original reply, we are now going to be commissioning just a few for this purpose, again based on the fact that our policy is that we want to incentivise people to buy

200 them. People are not not buying electric vehicles because there is nowhere to charge them; that is not the case. MidTown has nothing to do with that – it is not the reason for it. As part of our policy – our environmental policy and our STTPP policy – we will not only be commissioning some of the electric points within the car park, a limited number as I have mentioned, but we are also looking at places on the public highway itself to try to encourage this. But again, a very limited amount of parking spaces because we do not want to get rid of parking spaces for the regular user. That is the intention and hence that is why we will be commissioning these quite 205 soon. In fact, I am working together with the Ministry for the Environment for this purpose.

The actual machines in MidTown are ready to go, the system is in place and if anyone were to come in and request the facilities then this would have been accelerated and would have been done earlier. But I can guarantee the hon. Gentleman that that is the reason why and they will be rolled out very, very, shortly.

210 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, with your indulgence – it arises out of the answer the hon.
Gentleman has provided.

I understand the dilemma that the Government has, that if you are going to have 16 spaces at MidTown dedicated to electric cars, it is 16 spaces less for people to park.

215 I have noticed in recent times that the top two floors in MidTown car park have not been open for public parking for some reason. Has that been a recent policy change? I tell you why I am asking the question: in fact, I park at MidTown car park, in the public car parking spaces, and in the mornings, right up to quarter past nine, normally you can find parking at the MidTown car park. I think it is a wonderful resource, I have to say that to the Minister, but over recent times 220 there has been a difficulty, over the last week or so, with the public car parking spaces there, and I did notice for the very first time that on the last two floors there is a makeshift sign that basically says that those are private car parking spaces. They are not marked in red, as the ones below, and I just wondered whether there had been a change in policy in relation to those two floors; and if it has changed, when did it change?

225 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the very top two floors are monthly rentals and those are as a result of what used to be there before 2011 – the cars actually parked in that area when it was the old makeshift multi-storey car park. When the construction began, those cars were then moved on into the ICC and then brought back. So the top two floors of that parking area are for monthly rentals and have been like that for quite a while now.

230 The makeshift sign, if there is a sign there, could be because if cars have mistakenly made their way up there without reading the signage and have parked in someone's private space which is a rental space, and then you come along and want to use it and you are not able because there is another vehicle in your space ... That is probably the reason why there is a 235 makeshift sign, but the signage is extremely clear, or should be extremely clear, and these signs are to make things even clearer in that respect.

Q583/2017

Varyl Begg Estate –

Loading/unloading bay for residents of Royal Sovereign House

Clerk: Question 583. The Hon. T N Hammond.

240 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, on behalf of a constituent, can the Minister say if he would consider the placement of a loading and unloading bay in Varyl Begg Estate adjacent to Royal Sovereign House where there are currently red lines painted, in order to allow residents, many of whom are pensioners, greater facility in getting their shopping to their homes?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

245 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the existing red lines were painted following the completion of the resurfacing works at Varyl Begg Estate as a result of representations received from the tenants' association on behalf of garage owners who were then encountering problems entering and exiting their private garages.

I am advised that more recently the tenants of the estate approached the Traffic Commission directly and, as a result, a site meeting was held, including the Chairman of the Traffic Commission and the Highways Engineer, to consider how loading and unloading bays could be demarcated in the area of Royal Sovereign House to serve the needs of residents.

250 All requests of this nature are assessed by the Traffic Commission, who then advise on the viability of any proposal. The Traffic Commission have now identified several different locations where they propose loading and unloading bays could be demarcated in the future.

The Government would not have any objections to the provision of loading and unloading bays in this area, provided that the advice received is that this would be possible and not have a negative impact on garage owners – but the decision is one for the Traffic Commission.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I thank the Minister for his answer.

To put this in context, I was actually invited to attend that particular site meeting and that took place nearly 18 months ago now, so I think the Minister will appreciate the frustration of some of the tenants who are waiting and waiting and are being, frankly, put off by the Traffic Commission.

I did write to the Traffic Commission over a year ago, encouraging them also in the same direction. The response I got was that, because the letter had come from me on parliamentary letterhead, the matter was now political and I should refer it to the Minister, which is why I have raised this question.

270 I am pleased to hear that there appears to be progress, but could I ask whether the Minister could look into the matter and just ensure that it is dealt with in as expeditious a fashion as is possible from this point forward, bearing in mind the length of time that some of these residents have waited for an outcome to this particular issue?

275 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, although it affects, obviously, the people who live there are negative, it is quite a minor issue on which the hon. Gentleman could have picked up the phone and given me a call, and we could have perhaps discussed where it was or whatever and then I would have been able to perhaps give it a push in the right direction.

But having said that, it is not Government's intention to make life difficult for anyone, as you obviously can understand, and the reason why these red lines were placed there originally was because cars indiscriminately, unfortunately, parked opposite the garages, and while they are not being used there is absolutely no problem whatsoever but if you are unlucky and the moment you want to take your car out you cannot and you have to do a five-point turn to get out ... It is always that 'a momentito' in terms of approach – 'I'm just going to be a few minutes and take my food home' – but that can affect someone, and in fact we had a complaint from someone who had a member of the family who was very unwell, constantly unwell, a permanent issue that the person had, and they could not get out of the garage to get the person to their medical appointment, and that created trouble. That is why the red lines were placed there, to avoid this sort of thing from happening in the future.

290 Obviously, I can understand now that the other half of the coin says, 'Well, how can I take my food home?' and that is a thing that we live with on a daily basis. We do want to get our cars as close to the place we are going as soon as possible and as quickly as possible – that is the convenience part of things – but we are looking ... The reason why it has taken so

295 long is because the car parking spaces there are allocated to individuals and we obviously need to make sure that they do not affect ... there is always moving from one parking space and LPS manages that for us.

But as I said, it has got to be a happy balance – the bays that we find could well be too far away for this purpose. So it is not as simple as we get the bays closest to this property, 300 because there are other blocks which will also want the same thing. So it is a bit complicated in that respect as there are two sides of the coin, each requiring different things, and that is why I think we have been stuck on this for a short while.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, again I thank the Minister for his comprehensive 305 answer and I fully understand why the lines were painted originally; the irony is that now garage users are actually taking advantage of the situation – I have seen it for myself – and parking vehicles directly outside their garages, occupying an extra space, which defeats the object and actually is unfortunate and obviously creates further frustration for those who simply wish to have an unloading bay.

310 That is what we are speaking about. We are not talking about someone who has ... People should be fined if they park in the unloading bay and choose it as an overnight parking, but this is very much just for people to take their shopping or whatever other items out of their vehicle somewhere closer to their house, as I say, bearing in mind many are pensioners who may have parking spaces 100 metres or 200 metres away in the estate, and obviously that is 315 undesirable. At present, the red line means no waiting, which means if you stop at all, as the Minister knows, it is a £100 fine, which is quite concerning for those residents.

So, if the Minister can assure me, so that I can go and assure the people who have approached me, that the matter is being looked into as a matter of urgency, I will take that back to those residents and provide that assurance.

320 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the only thing I can assure the hon. Gentleman about is that there is a procedure, there is a way of doing things and it is via the Traffic Commission, which is the authority which will make the decisions, so obviously that is in course.

To touch upon a few of the things that you have mentioned, the red line is a red line for 325 everyone, regardless of whether the red line is outside your garage and you are the owner of the garage and you wish to park outside your garage to obstruct your own garage. It is still an offence. Red lines mean red lines for all. Obviously it is something that is quite naughty, to park your car outside your garage, because you are causing an obstruction, even if it is to your own property. If the authorities come round at that moment in time they will be dealt with, but 330 obviously we cannot have people everywhere at the same time and now, obviously, many people, the majority of people would get away with it – let's be frank.

A £100 fine: yes, the Traffic Commission decided that that should be the offence because that would disincentivise people from doing not to do that, because if you say it is just a regular FPN, and because you are caught so infrequently – because obviously you would have to have a 335 policeman there all the time – then it is well worth the gamble, whereas if it is £100 and you are caught once, you will say, 'Well, I'm never going to do that again.' So that is the reason for that.

Just to complete the circle, there is a Commission that deals with these things and obviously I will see where that is, but they will come back to me in a timely manner, I will ensure, and we will see what the way forward is.

Speed cameras –
Repairs following failure

Clerk: Question 584. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Government say whether there have been any unserviceabilities or failures of the speed cameras since their introduction; if so, how many and how long was it before repairs were effected, if those repairs were covered by warranty and, if not, what was the cost of the repairs?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is provided in the schedule which I will now hand over.

Development and Planning Commission –
Submission of Government projects for approval

Clerk: Question 585. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: When will the Government submit Government projects to approval of the DPC rather than for advice and guidance?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

365 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, contrary to the advice received from Members opposite, who repeatedly urged us not to even submit Government projects for guidance and advice, the new Town Planning Act which is currently being drafted requires Government to obtain approval from the DPC and not just recommendations.

370 Hon. D A Feetham: That is certainly welcome news from this side, ignoring the barbed comment that he made to start his answer, but can he give some kind of a timeline as to when that legislation will be completed and will be published?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, without actually wishing to pin myself down to a specific date – clearly, for obvious reasons – the Act is at the final stages. I can comfortably say it is virtually finished, but we are awaiting a response from the Government Law Officers on one aspect and there are also a few minor amendments that will need to be made before it is finally ready.

375 At the same time, they are also at the final stages of the draft and the regulations that will accompany this Act. So again, without wishing to say dates, I am told that ... again the word 'soon' is the word that we debate about, but it will be soon.

Private parking spaces –
Planning applications

Clerk: Question 586. The Hon. L F Llamas.

380 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide a schedule with details of how many planning applications to build private parking spaces or garages on private properties have been approved or refused, including (a) the area in Gibraltar, (b) the reason for approval or refusal and (c) the number of public parking lost?

385 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, this is publicly available information.

390 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, unfortunately, when you go on the Government portal, or even sometimes in the minutes, you do not actually get to see what parts of the application have been approved and which parts have not. That is the only reason why I have brought this question to the House, because there are aspects of the application which get refused but do not get recorded.

395 Is there any way that the Government could look into this and perhaps email in the future with a potential answer to this question?

400 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the answer provided is what is available: it is actually publicly available information. What is there is what is available for us to be able ... When the hon. Member asked the question I asked my staff to look for a reply and the reply is that. What is available publicly is the only information that we have to be able to give to the hon. Member.

Redibikes –
Service user information

Clerk: Question 587. The Hon. L F Llamas.

405 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since the Redibikes came into operation, can the Government provide a daily schedule with a number of users who use the service?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

410 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is detailed in the schedule that I will now hand over.

Mr Speaker: Let's move on to the next question and come back to the previous one, if necessary.

Q588/2017
Storm drains – Maintenance

415 Clerk: Question 588. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government carrying out year-round maintenance on storm drains? If not, when was the last time they were surveyed and resolved their conditions?

420 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban:) Mr Speaker, yes, sir.

425 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I am sure the Hon. Minister is aware – and I did file this question before we had the little downpour the other day – within 20 minutes many of the areas in Gibraltar started to flood and I am sure if you do take a walk around you will see that many of the storm drains are actually clogged up with sand, dirt, cigarette butts and what have you. Clearly, many of them do not seem to have had any maintenance in quite some time – years, or God knows how long.

430 Has an actual survey been carried out throughout the last year, or at least in the dry months, in order to prepare for the upcoming wet winter months?

435 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, this is done by routine. There is year-round maintenance of storm drains, the sewers and the culverts within the public highway. This also includes the cleansing of road gullies. Regular inspections do take place and that is carried out by the infrastructural section of Technical Services department. So, regardless of whether there is ... When it rains in Gibraltar it tends to rain quite aggressively for a short period of time, and even with the best of drainage there will always inevitably be some accumulation of water, especially at the beginning of the year. But rest assured that there is a very detailed maintenance scheme and the works that are carried out are extremely extensive. Whether a particular drain has had extra leaf fall, that could happen, but the maintenance is there and it is carried out on a routine basis.

445 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): I do not know whether it is helpful for me to rise and just assist in this respect, and I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman watched the scenes on the Spanish news bulletins in the past days – and I find the Spanish news bulletins these days compulsive viewing, not necessarily because of the meteorological occurrences – but he might have seen that in Jerez and in Malaga cars were floating in the streets. We live in a part of the world where it is such a privilege to live, but we suffer the same meteorological events as those towns around us, and although on particularly bad days the Rock acts like a storm culvert itself – and there is an area at the entrance to Main Street that no Government in our history has ever been able to deal with, other than perhaps thinking about the conversion to a swimming pool between the months of November to February – we have never seen cars floating in the streets in Gibraltar.

455 Our systems, which are dealt with by the Technical Services department, as the Hon. Minister has said, ensure that we have the ability to get as much storm water out into the sea as possible so that those events do not occur. So, where we have perhaps a couple of inches of annoying water above the soles of our shoes when the water is not moving as quickly as perhaps we would all like it to, in the towns next door vehicles made of metal are floating because that level of water is falling. So I do think we need to keep in perspective and understand the excellent job that is being done by the Technical Services department to ensure that Gibraltar has the benefit that it has in such meteorological events.

465 Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that answer and I do understand, obviously, that we do deal relatively well in terms of flooding. I am just saying that there could be more to mitigate, because it is not an isolated storm drain in the south district or the north district – there seem to be many which would possibly prevent ... and resource us better, so that we would never have to see those sorts of scenes that we see on Spanish TV.

470 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not agree, because we have never seen those scenes in Gibraltar. That demonstrates that the work that is being done is the right work.

A few cigarette butts and a few leaves do not mean that a drain is blocked. The first rains sometimes just completely deal with that. A packet of crisps on the street is an annoyance, it is litter and it should not be there, but it does not make for a blocked drain. I think this is what is important, that we put into perspective what it is that the issues in Gibraltar may be, we understand where we may be able to improve but we do not denigrate that which is being done, which ensures that we do not have problems of that sort. If our storm water drains were blocked, as the hon. Member is suggesting that they are, we would have those scenes, and not of a few centimetres of water sometimes at worst – we would have cars floating on our streets, which is something we do not have in Gibraltar. We do not have rubbish bins floating on our streets.

When that has happened and we have had a little bit of a few inches of rain accumulate, it has been for a short period as the water gets out through the storm drains, not because the storm drains are blocked – because the storm drains, which are relatively impossible to widen because they are laid when infrastructure is laid and roads are built, and going into the Upper Town in particular and under Queensway would be ... nothing is, in engineering terms, impossible, but almost impossible ... just cannot take that amount of water in a moment. They can take it sometimes in five minutes, they can take it in 50 minutes. The hon. Gentleman will know that Queensway, Saluting Battery, even the area in front of the old ABN AMRO premises at the entrance to Main Street, if it is flooded it is flooded for minutes, not hours, as the water goes. That demonstrates that it is not a question of a blocked drain; it is more a question of capacity and the impossibility of creating further capacity without major civil engineering works that would make it very difficult to act without seriously disrupting the life of the city. You have to put that in the balance of the context of a few minutes, on a very, very, very, rainy day, of water moving slightly more slowly than we might all like to see it moving.

But it is not blocked drains; blocked drains would not be undone. You could have an instance of a blocked drain – it is impossible to say that that is not the case – despite the maintenance schedule that we ensure is proceeded with every year.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I? Indeed, Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the Hon. the Chief Minister travelled, for example, just to the neighbouring town of La Línea on Wednesday and on the stretch of road towards El Higuero the entire area was in fact flooded because of the rain water that had actually fallen on that particular day. So, by way of supporting what the hon. Gentleman has said, by parity of reasoning, if our drains had been in exactly the same state as theirs, we would have had that kind of water in our streets and it did not happen here in Gibraltar.

Hon. Chief Minister: And if I may say so – I am grateful for the hon. Gentleman's route indication towards that particular area of the flat of La Línea – Gibraltar benefits from this beautiful, magnificent, monolithic Rock that we all call home, which in effect channels all water that falls on a particularly rainy day on the western side towards the flat. The area of El Higuero is completely flat and most of the water that falls is just falling straight on the flat.

We deal with the water that falls on the flat – namely Main Street, Queensway, Saluting Battery etc. – and with all of the water that falls on the Rock, which comes like a culvert down to the flat as well, and we deal with it much more efficiently than hon. Members have rightly indicated is the case in the context of the neighbouring town. And not just the neighbouring town, which hon. Members will have seen recently describe itself as long suffering and lacking in investment, but even in capitals like Malaga and Jerez. In Jerez they had to cancel operations in the hospital because their hospital was completely flooded, and they had to cancel all classes in schools for the rest of this week.

It is right that we want to ensure that our nation operates at the best that it can, but it is also right that we put in context a few centimetres of water. We had an incident last year where St Mary's was flooded for a day – we had never seen so much rainfall in 24 hours – but within 24 hours we were operating the school again. That was an engineering error that appeared to 525 have been made some time ago, literally a decade or so ago, when a new development was put up and a culvert was sent the wrong way, and on this particular occasion when it rained so much we found out where the culvert was pointing: straight at the school.

So we have to understand and put in context how we are dealing with these things. We are dealing with them very well. Where there is a problem it is an ad hoc problem. It must be dealt 530 with as soon as possible, but we must not allow ourselves to fall into the trap of thinking that we have a major issue here.

Hon. L F Llamas: If the Government were to simply have a look, for example, at the storm drains at the bottom of Bell Lane and Bedlam Court, obviously Main Street is pitched towards 535 the north and if those drains which are currently clogged – and I believe they still are, and they are full with sand and dirt so it is not just that you see it is moist, you can see it is really, really dry and it will take a little bit of manpower to unblock them ... If that water is coming down from Castle Steps, which is notorious for its rainfall and accumulation of water, and comes down through Bell Lane, there is nothing there to collect it because they are blocked and it goes on to 540 Main Street and Bedlam Court, which cannot cope either, and then all that water does end up at the north end of Main Street, for example, and instead of having five inches of rain whilst the drains that are at the northern end of Main Street try to manage the water that is pouring in, you have 10 inches because there is so much water coming in from different directions and there is nothing to mitigate along the way. That is simply my question for the Government

545
Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I think his question has been asked and answered by an act of God, because clearly his questions must have been filed before the rain, in good faith no doubt, but his supplementary must have been thought up before the rains as well because we had the rains this week. The water came down from what is known as El Caño Real – in other 550 words, it was itself the great culvert from the Rock down to that point at the bottom of Bedlam Court etc. and Bell Lane, and there was not an accumulation of inches of water, there was not, and there was – (Interjection by Hon. L F Llamas) But, Mr Speaker, this is what I am saying to him. Those same 20 minutes was the same meteorological event: it passed here and went eastwards, caused the flooding and the closure of the hospital in Jerez.

555 What looks to him, or whoever it is that he is working with these days, like a little bit of dry sand and a few fags – not an attractive sight; I know there are those who photograph aircraft and photograph trains, but I did not realise the hon. Gentleman had a fetish for the inside of drains – it is not an attractive sight, but one minute of rain clears it and if that were not the case we would have had a blockage, whether it was one minute, five minutes or 20 minutes of rain.

560 So I put it to him that he should go back and look at the drain which he has asked the supplementary about and he might be satisfied to see that those 20 minutes of rain dealt with it.
Otherwise, Mr Speaker, I will be left with thinking that his next slogan should be Aquí no se curra because he might like to sit for a while and think of questions but he does not follow up with the hard work of making sure that what he is asking about is right.

565
Mr Speaker: We move on, then, from the rain in Spain, or in Gibraltar, to the next question.

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you Mr Speaker, can I just go back to Question 587 on Redibikes?
Just looking at the figures, clearly August was a good month. The rest of the months around 570 August seem to be fairly steady. Did Government have in mind, when they introduced the Redibikes, what would constitute a successful ... or did they have in mind a target for the number of users on a given month? The figures are quite random, August definitely being a good month, which I presume is tourists but obviously I guess there is no way of knowing that. But around those months there does not seem to be any kind of rise in the use of the bikes.

Hon. Chief Minister: If you are so keen, we would be surprised not to see you on the bikes.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, in my mind any usage whatsoever is one trip less that is carried out by any other means – unless it is walking, clearly – and so we did not have any idea what we would expect to see in terms of numbers but clearly, we are aiming, our aim, and, through the work that we are carrying out, our intention is to promote this means of transport and we are hopefully expecting more usage.

We have, as the hon. Member is aware, clearly, recently reviewed the prices of Redibikes in case it was that perhaps people needed that little bit of incentivisation in terms of lowering the cost of usage, so what used to be a £2 daily fee has now become a £1 daily fee. But I think more than anything it is a question of really encouraging the mode of transport and trying to encourage people to use it. That is what we need to do. I do not think this is to do with price in that respect because I do not think the reduction in price has had that effect on usage. As you rightly say, the month of August is a good month and we can assume that there are more people who come across the border or on a cruise ship etc., tourists, who may be using the bicycles more.

But I am very happy with the progress so far. Clearly I would like it to be much, much more – that is what it is all about – and our efforts now will be to try to encourage the use of bicycles. In fact, tomorrow Redibikes will be used for the Peddling for a Cure event at Casemates. As well as in support of the charity, they are also there so people can use them, because it is imperative that people start using more sustainable modes of transport.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I certainly agree with the Minister that people should be encouraged to use other means of transport, but it does concern me that the Redibike scheme has been in place for coming up to six months now and there does not seem to be an upward trend in terms of the local usage.

The figures for July are probably slightly better than the figures for September, in fact, which seem to amount to about 70 uses of bikes for the entire month. That is just two bikes a day and, considering the number of bikes available, that would seem to me to be a very small uptake from the community. Clearly that to some extent takes into account the reduction in price, though as the Minister said, the reduction in price has not impacted.

It slightly goes back also to the question that was asked earlier reference the charging points – Government is indicating it has a policy but there is no demand. Are we in a position where we have again a policy but people are not being incentivised in a way that makes it a meaningful policy, and what does Government plan to do to further incentivise people, hopefully, to take to this mode of transport?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I disagree with the hon. Gentleman in terms that we are only looking at a few months' worth of statistics. I think we need to look at the much wider picture. If you look at the statistics for the month of May and June it went up in June. It was about 108 rentals in May and it went up to 140 in June, went up to 154 in July and 407 in August. So there has been an increase in usage. Now the first month has shown a decrease but if you look at this month, which is October, it seems to be on the up again because we have got statistics about midway and it is close to already reaching the full month of September. So again, I think looking at such a small window is unfair and I think we will need to have this analysis later on in the day, once we see exactly what the full year of usage is and maybe compare that in the future as well.

I myself am a cyclist, as you know. I see a lot more people out there cycling, a lot of people buying them... There is also the issue of bicycles being quite inexpensive as well, so they might try the Redibikes and say, 'Well, I'm going to buy one now, and that again will have an effect.' But I think we need to look at this in a much broader way, not just the results of a few months.

630 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I do accept that point by the Minister. I think it is reasonable to wait longer and we have limited statistics. It was just that I was slightly disappointed by the numbers presented, which is why I asked, and the way the Minister answered the last question made me think maybe there is a target figure or something that you would like to see after a year of use of the bikes. We have seen the figures rise and fall again, perhaps rising again.

635 Can the Minister confirm that there is no ballpark figure that they would like to see as a monthly usage for the bikes for them to consider the scheme to have been a success?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it is very difficult. We have no value. Remember that the question that has been asked ... I think you need to look at the comparison: how many people were using bicycles before. I think just to have a ballpark figure of what we expect ... We do not know what usage is generally, so we did not pin it down to a certain usage. The fact that we had 640 407 people using Redibikes in the month of August means that there were 407 people not getting other modes of transport, be it the bus, be it a taxi, be it walking – well, walking would have been even better, but a car or private transport etc.

645 So again it is very difficult to see where these originate from. Do people come in their cars, park their cars and then get a Redibike, or do these people walk across the Frontier, or do these people come off ships? Obviously, I would like to see this becoming extremely popular and I am pretty positive it will because I can just see the number of people cycling nowadays compared to just a short while ago. Even the number of bicycles you see, the number of bicycle racks we are having to place – the demand for bicycle racks is incredible recently, and still we are struggling because still people are having to park bikes elsewhere because they cannot fit them. As I said 650 earlier, it is the whole concept of cycling. Redibikes is just one of those vehicles, but this may encourage people to purchase bicycles and I think we are achieving our aim if they do go down that route as well.

Q589/2017

Foreign licensed vehicles –
Numbers towed for parking in restricted areas

Clerk: Question 589. The Hon. L F Llamas.

655 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011 can the Government provide a monthly schedule of how many foreign licensed vehicles have been towed away for being parked in a public parking during restricted times such as cleaning campaigns?

660 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is provided in a schedule that I will now hand over.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO 589/2017

*The above figures pertain to foreign registered vehicles which have been towed away for being parked on the public highway during such time parking restrictions were in place specifying specific times. This includes but not limited to cleaning campaigns.

Figures in bold sourced from GCPL/DVLD records; figures in italics sourced from GPMSL records Information prior to June 2012 is not available.

665 Mr Speaker: Could I ask the hon. Minister at his convenience to provide an explanatory note to be included in the schedule as to what GCPL/DVLD stands for, and GPMSL, at his convenience, and we will incorporate it into the schedule.

670 Hon. P J Balban: Just to address that point, GCPL is Gibraltar Car Parks Ltd; DVLD is Department of Vehicle Licensing – what is colloquially known as the MOT; and GPMSL is the company that runs the parking enforcement, Gibraltar Parking Management Services Ltd.

675 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, obviously we have seen a rise in 2017 of vehicles being towed, and I can talk from experience, having seen some vehicles towed the other day. I actually asked one of the employees of one of these companies why they were towing away and it was based on the cleaning campaign so that they could clean better. I could understand it if they were properly hosing down the area with water, but given that they were simply just using a broom and passing around vehicles, which is not going to do much in terms of cleaning the atmosphere, I could not understand why, apart from having to have the Fixed Penalty Notice, these vehicles were being towed away. And, Mr Speaker, what was even worse was they were being towed away whilst vehicles were returning to park in the area. I asked why, if the cleaning campaign had actually finished, why were they still being towed away – and they were unable to answer and said, ‘Oh, that’s a very good question.’

685 So I am concerned at the fact that so many tourists are actually being towed away rather than just clamped and made to pay the fee. Can the Government enlighten me as to why this policy is being implemented rather than just the clamping of vehicles?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, vehicles are towed away if they are causing obstruction to the public highway. If it is as a result of the street-cleaning campaign, generally the principle is that an FPN is placed and, to be able to achieve that FPN and to make sure that the vehicle does not 690 go across the Frontier and abscond in that respect, then a clamp is placed. The clamp has no extra charge, it is just to ensure, and that is the same policy that was used in the past.

Again, it is only if a vehicle is causing an obstruction that the vehicle would be towed away. Other than that, it is a clamp. If it is a vehicle which is presumed ... it could be a derelict vehicle and it is not moving ... then that could be another reason why a vehicle is towed away.

695

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, unfortunately, those that I have witnessed have not been as a result of derelict ... or causing an obstruction, other than impeding the cleaning strategy at certain areas. At £60 a pop I can understand that they would have to pay the Fixed Penalty Notice, but to additionally burden and place tourists having to find where the vehicle has been towed to, rather than just simply placing the clamp, as has always been the case ...

700

Can the Government investigate at least as to whether this is simply a one-off or whether this is happening on a weekly basis, and therefore this could seriously be impacting the tourist experience in Gibraltar?

705

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the policy is that cars should not be towed away unless they are causing an obstruction on the public highway, so I will obviously have a look at that and see why ... If the hon. Gentleman would like to give me further details as to where it was and the date, I can then –

710

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): We do not accept the argument on its own. He has to give us the details.

715

Hon. P J Balban: Of course, he needs to give us the exact details – let me know where it was and I will look at it, but it is not something that happens. Cars are only towed away when it is absolutely necessary that they are towed away. Otherwise, either an FPN is placed or a clamp is placed to ensure that the FPN is paid for, but otherwise there is no towing away.

720

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I shall gladly expand further behind the Speaker's Chair, but I can assure the opposite side that I could have recorded the conversation I had with the employees when I challenged it and they simply could not answer the question, other than they were doing it just to make extra money.

725

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is, if I may say so, a ridiculous thing for an employee of a company that is not receiving remuneration based on how much money they make to give to the hon. Gentleman and for the hon. Gentleman to believe it. There is nothing about the people who are involved in parking management and nothing about their remuneration – there is no bonus structure, there is no remuneration to the company – that is based on how much they fine or clamp or tow. So, if he is told that, then he should have the presence of mind to say to them, 'It doesn't make any sense what you are saying to me,' or to record them, as he has suggested he would do, to add to the telenovela that he is treating us to on Facebook of his daily grind.

730

Nobody must listen to this debate and think that there is a policy on the part of the Government of towing a car that is not causing an obstruction. Only cars that cause an obstruction will be towed.

735

But I must tell him as a pedestrian that it is absolutely right that cars that are causing an obstruction should be towed, because I push a pram every morning when I walk to work and it is disgraceful the number of vehicles, which are foreign and locally registered, that are illegally parked and causing an obstruction not just for other vehicles, because we must not just look at the possibility of other vehicles being obstructed but of pedestrians being obstructed, and that means people who are pushing prams, people who are on wheelchairs and their ability to traverse a road and their ability to get into town, and they must be the ones we stand with.

745 There is no question of this being done for the purposes of making money or raising funds or profit, and if he has been told that I would be very grateful indeed if he indicated to the Hon. Minister when he was told and at what time, so that we can determine who said it so that we can put them bang to right, because that is not the policy of the Government, and in fact if it has happened it has happened contrary to the policy of the Government, which is entirely unacceptable to the Government.

750 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, just for clarification, the Hon. Chief Minister is referring to the public highway and I would like to support the Government in the sense that obviously anybody who is obstructing the public highway, the pavements and so forth, should be reprimanded regardless – but my question was specifically based on public parking. That is why there is a little bit of confusion.

755 Hon. T N Hammond: If I may just ask one supplementary, Mr Speaker, I would just like to say I do endorse, regarding the public highway where obstructions occur, that certainly the vehicle should be removed from causing that obstruction.

760 I just wonder – and I will come back with a question if he does not have the answer: there is a spike in the figures for May 2017 of 101 vehicles being towed, which is about three times more than the monthly average. Is the Minister aware of any particular event or reason why the numbers are so high in that given month? If not, I will come back with a written question.

765 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, yes, there were a number of reasons why we saw a spike. In fact, a cleaning campaign was conducted at Western Beach, Bayside Road and Grand Parade, and that resulted in around 39 vehicles being towed away. Also there were pay and display areas ... they were actually within residential estates, general obstruction and mainly red lines.

770 So, in summary, the main reason was a cleaning campaign. When there are cleaning campaigns, obviously you will see an increase. There are various cleaning campaigns in a given month and if people leave their vehicles there, then obviously you will see a spike in that respect.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q590/2017

Electric hoverboards and scooters – Update re regulation

Clerk: Question 590. The Hon. L F Llamas.

775 Hon. L F Llamas. Mr Speaker, can the Government provide an update to Question 99/2017 relating to electric hoverboards and scooters?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

780 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, Government continues to work with HM Customs, the RGP and the Gibraltar Law Officers in relation to the importation and use of hoverboards and other similar self-balancing devices.

785 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, these talks with the law enforcement agencies have been ongoing for quite some time and obviously we are seeing an increase in further scooters and electric hoverboards being used on our streets and pavements without regulation.

790 This was first chastised by the Government in December 2015, together with the drones. We have seen that the Government is taking a far more serious approach to drones, given their importance; however, I would urge the Government to look into this, especially when we know from the media that there can be issues of fire and safety with certain products which are not up to European standards, and therefore these could be being imported and end up causing a fire hazard in some of our buildings.

795 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the position under the law is that all these devices are illegal imports. These bikes in Gibraltar are considered motor vehicles – their motor is an electric motor, but still it is a vehicle. They should not be driven. They should not be in Gibraltar in the first place, let alone be driven on a public footpath or even on the public highway. It is a matter of policing in that respect.

800 The legislation itself will see whether there is any potential use for these vehicles as part of Gibraltar. We were considering perhaps having areas for them and considering whether some could be classified as toys more than modes of transport. Some of these things really will not be able to work properly on the road because they are made for flat surfaces. Those are also illegal imports and those are generally the ones that have been accused of catching fire – the toy models.

805 But the biggest issue I think we have with the legislation is that these things are changing all the time. There is a massive evolution of types of vehicles and it is difficult to specify what these are. Recently I saw in Dubai the police testing a drone-type motorcycle, so things could even get worse if we continue down that line. But the way things are at the moment it is clear in the law that they are illegal imports, illegal on the highway and they should not be used.

Q591/2017

Gibraltar Music Festival – Vehicles hired by Government

810 Clerk: Question 591. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, regarding the transport arrangements in place for the GMF, can the Minister say if any vehicles were hired by Government to support the event; if so, how many, were the drivers employed Government drivers and what was the cost?

815 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, no vehicles were hired by Government.

Q592/2017

Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority – Vacancies

820 Clerk: Question 592. The Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, sir, can the Minister for Sport provide details of any vacancies which may currently exist within the Gibraltar Sports and Leisure Authority?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

825

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, at present there is an Administrative Assistant, GSLA Grade 9, vacancy within the GSLA.

830

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister clarify: I know in the past he has informed me that they were undergoing some type of staffing review and so on – would the Minister like to enlighten us as to whether this position has not been advertised because of the still-ongoing staff review, or has that now completed and then it is just a question of starting the recruitment process to be initiated?

835

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the restructure has already taken place, which is most of the managerial and administrative part of the GSLA. This is a post that was left vacant at the end because, as he can see, it is one of the AAs at the bottom of the scale of the management. As I understand it, we are trying to recruit someone within the GSLA itself to see if there is anybody interested in getting that post. If not, it will just go through the normal procedure that we have done with the other posts.

840

Hon. E J Reyes: So, just for clarification, Mr Speaker, when the Minister says ‘we are trying to recruit someone from within the GSLA’, am I right in concluding that an internal advertisement for the vacancy has happened and then, subsequently, subject to the interest shown and a suitable person being identified, it will become public or not?

845

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, sir.

Yes, the Minister has informed me in the past that something is available. For the record, on the day that I had to sit down and prepare this notice, the Government website said to me that it was undergoing maintenance and therefore I could not access any details whatsoever. Although I accept what the Minister has answered, he also has to accept my inability to obtain that information within the 48 hours one has in which to submit questions.

865

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, there is nothing much I can do if the IT department is doing a maintenance programme. All I am stating is that it is on the website, and if on that occasion it was not, well there is not much I can do.

Clerk: Question 595. The Hon. E J Reyes.

885 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, before I read out Question 595 – I know you will allow us to come back – can I ask a very quick question in respect of the schedule of 593, which was in respect of the sports grants or sports payments made.

I see here, on the second page of the schedule under the subheading ‘Hosting of Special Sports and Leisure Events’ there is an expenditure for ‘Cleaning of Gibraltar Music Song Festival’.
890 Is that just a one-off payment, or an additional payment despite some other grant that was made? I do not quite understand why the cleaning part – one takes it to be post the event – is specified here. Sometimes, for the ease of book-keeping references, it is detailed like that, but it brings that question to mind: is it an additional supplementary funding, or whatever?

895 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I will find out exactly why that is there, but I am assuming – but I will find out – that this is because the Music Song Festival comes under the cultural grants. What has happened, I assume, is that there have been issues with how they leave the Tercentenary Hall, and therefore the GSLA has seen it fit to get it under events, albeit that they are not sporting events but it is in the Tercentenary Hall. I will find out for the hon. Member 900 exactly why it is there, but I am assuming it is that.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, Mr Speaker, the Minister is right and I accept that he needs to look into it. One of the reasons why I brought it up is that two or three lines further down there is ‘Cleaning of Boxing event’ and obviously boxing immediately one connects with a sporting event 905 and automatically comes to mind the use of the Tercentenary Hall, which is where I think the Minister and I both agree. It was just that the Song Festival did stick out like a sore thumb and perhaps the answer could be that it was not left clean to a satisfactory standard and in order not to delay other sporting events that have been allocated you just bring in an external cleaning company and someone has to pay.

910 But I can wait patiently, Mr Speaker, and then the Minister may want to look up as well the boxing, just to double check on the event.

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, Mr Speaker, probably the CEO will do what they call a ‘JV’ in which the account is moved to another department. He might have got the money that time from there 915 and that is why it is in the list, and now he probably will claim the cultural side, those £192. But I will find out, thank you.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, just one supplementary.

920 The amount given by way of hosting special sports and leisure events for the world pool and snooker championships of close to £¼ million does seem in a different league to lots of the other grants – for example, Island Games, £98,000. Could the Minister explain to the House or perhaps give an explanation whether that close to £¼ million is purely costs, or was there an element of prize money in that number – and, if so, how much?

925 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, these are two major events. It is not only one, it is two. The only thing is that the company that runs these events is the same one. So probably it is one payment for two events. The hon. Member could well split that in two halves, because I do not know whether the hon. Member knows that the pool, for example, was live on Sky for four solid days and that is why it would cost around half of that. The snooker is the same, so these have a 930 lot of exposure for Gibraltar. They are very, very important tournaments, but they have been put together and that is why you are seeing it as a high expenditure. But if the hon. Member looks at, for example, the darts trophy, there is £132,000 there. These are, like I said, major events, very big events that are televised and have a lot of value. Pool and snooker I know are the same 935 company, and therefore it might have been paid together. So that is what it is, but they are two separate tournaments.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his clarification.

940 I just have two further questions: if he would be kind enough to identify what company he is referring to; and also, would he then expect that effectively the payment will cover any prize money paid out?

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, the moneys ... there is a whole list of things that it covers. For example, I can let the hon. Member know that when a snooker tournament is done here in Gibraltar, if he cares to go down to the Tercentenary Hall, they bring all the tables, they bring up 945 all the equipment, the cameras – everything comes from abroad to the Tercentenary. They take over the Tercentenary, they convert it into the tournament area and that is all included in the price, apart from any other things like the prize money and many other things.

The hon. Member must understand that, like I said, it has got a lot of value to have these here, and like, for example, the darts, the value of the darts is that there are many people now 950 coming to Gibraltar, so it is events-led tourism, whilst for the snooker and the pool the value is the exposure on television that there is. It is not so much ... For example, not many people from the UK come for a snooker tournament to Gibraltar, but it has a value because snooker is on TV for about four solid days – many, many hours – which is worth millions in the exposure.

955 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, again I am grateful to the Minister but I did not quite catch the name of the company that I was asking for.

Hon. S E Linares: Match Room Sports.

960 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, still on Question 593 – the Minister may know the answer now or may wish to inform us later on – under the heading ‘Hosting of special sports and leisure events’, the fourth line down is the Commonwealth Games. Perhaps I am being over critical in my narrative but we have never hosted the Commonwealth Games in Gibraltar, so perhaps some clarification of why does it come under the heading of host.

965 Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, it is the Commonwealth Games but it is the Commonwealth Games Association who brought over all the Executive Committee to Gibraltar and that is why it has been put as one of the events. So all of the executive came here, they hosted meetings of the executive here and therefore this is the expenditure. I think we had one reception and then 970 somewhere else, so basically some expenditure, which is £5,221, was what the Gibraltar Commonwealth Games Association applied to us to host these meetings here.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, Mr Speaker, then it would be correct for me if I were to amend this to either the ‘Gibraltar Commonwealth Games Association’ or ‘hosting of meeting’ or something, 975 just for any future reference? I know what can happen, Mr Speaker: come Budget time or whatever, I am looking back at some notes and then I am not clear on the actual meaning of ‘Commonwealth Games’.

Hon. S E Linares: Yes, I will do.

Q595/2017
Europa Point shooting facilities –
Plans for relocation

980 Clerk: Question 595. The Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Sport inform this House in respect of the Government's plans for the possible relocation of the shooting facilities presently sited at Europa Point?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, the Government is working very closely with the Gibraltar Target Shooting Association to relocate the association to adequate premises. An announcement will be made once the necessary plans have been finalised.

990

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, is the Minister in a position to at least identify possible areas that are being looked at?

995

Can he confirm as well that unfortunately, in trying to identify a location, there is a stipulation from the international regulations that these shooting ranges should now be sited north-south facing as opposed to the non-restrictions before, where we ended up with east-west – because that could enlighten the situation as to why some areas cannot be looked into as feasible?

1000

Hon. S E Linares: Mr Speaker, I can tell the hon. Member that this has been a very, very challenging exercise to try and relocate the Gibraltar Target Shooting Association and it is to do precisely with what the hon. Member is saying, because not only has it got to be facing south-north – the shooters are on the south shooting towards the north – but, imagine in Gibraltar, it has to be 30 metres by 70 metres, and therefore it has been a massive challenge. We have had many areas where we have tried, we have looked at it, you say, 'Right, okay, there's 70 by 30 here ... Oh, but no, it's not facing north-south.' So it has been very, very, very challenging to try and find an area. We have identified a few, we have gone through planning and then we have had to come back because it is not quite exactly what their needs are.

1005

But we are confident that, working closely with them, as in the answer to the question, we will get there and an announcement will be made very soon.

Mr Speaker: Next question. The Hon. Roy Clinton.

1015

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes. Thank you Mr Speaker. Could the Minister confirm that ... or at least advise the House if they are still seriously considering the top of MidTown car park for siting this range?

Hon. S E Linares: No, sir.

1020

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q596/2017
Victoria Stadium –
Government/GFA negotiations re sale

Clerk: Question 596, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1025 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government able to explain why the GFA and Government have not yet agreed on the sale of the Victoria Stadium.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

1030 Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, HM Government and the GFA are finalising lease negotiations in respect of the sale of the Victoria Stadium.

Q597/2017
Island Games –
Building of sporting facilities

Clerk: Question 597. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1035 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government confident it will be able to build the sporting facilities in time for the Island Games without the need to use taxpayers' moneys, as stated in their announcement?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport.

1040

Minister for Culture, the Media, Youth and Sport (Hon. S E Linares): Mr Speaker, yes, sir.

ENVIRONMENT, ENERGY, CLIMATE CHANGE AND EDUCATION

Q598/2017
Camp Bay –
Remedial works

Clerk: Question 598. The Hon. T N Hammond.

1045 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, are any improvement works planned to remedy the poor state that Camp Bay currently finds itself in?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1050 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, as in previous years, remedial works at Camp Bay and all other public beaches will be carried out prior to the 2018 official bathing season, addressing all problem areas and making these good in the best possible way.

1055 Further to this, extensive repairs and maintenance works will be carried out at the Camp Bay pools and its pumping, filtration and chlorination system. These works are scheduled to commence by the end of this month and once concluded the pools will be covered and prepared for the winter.

1060 A fully comprehensive resurfacing and refurbishment programme for the entire Camp Bay area is also being currently considered by Government. However, given the magnitude of the works required, works would probably have to be staggered over a period of at least two years.

1065 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I fully appreciate that there is a degree of routine maintenance and works that must take place. The reason I raise Camp Bay specifically is because (a) concerns have been raised with me directly about its condition and (b) because it is one of the areas that is not just used in the summer – of course there are playgrounds there, people take their children there to ride their bicycles and there are all sorts of other activities that take place there throughout the winter as well, which is why the concern was specifically raised about Camp Bay.

1070 I can fully understand the bathing season and its applicability to the other sandy beaches, but perhaps would Government consider bringing the works forward to at least make the area, first and foremost, safe but also user friendly to the users of Camp Bay over the winter months?

1075 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, it is precisely because the area is used regularly throughout the year that we will have to stagger it. Clearly, we will have to carry out any major works in the winter months because at that time you could perhaps section off areas, whereas in the summer, because of the massive use, it would be less likely that that would be acceptable.

1080 As I say, we are looking at a comprehensive refurbishment and I am hopeful that we will be able to make some improvements certainly before next summer. As to whether we will be able to do anything major, the thing is that obviously we are putting resources into the pools. The pools were in need of comprehensive restoration, of pumping, filtration and chlorination equipment, and at the moment we are concentrating on that, which clearly has to be carried out in the winter months.

Q599/2017
Laguna Estate –
Problems with apes

1085 Clerk: Question 599. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1090 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government provide details of what measures it intends to introduce in order to curtail the ever-increasing problems of apes roaming around the area of the Laguna Estate?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1095 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the recent arrival of a group of Barbary Macaques in the area, which includes Laguna Estate, is due to a splinter group from Rock Gun being pushed down by another group. This is part of macaque behaviour.

1100 Once at the base of the cliff, the group has been attracted by food being provided in the area near Eton Park. Steps have been taken to stop this. In addition, as part of a multi-faceted approach, the Macaque Management Team is being deployed on a daily basis to patrol Laguna Estate and push the macaques back into the nature reserve. Further to this, all the macaques that have been in Laguna Estate recently are being carefully assessed by the management team and selected individuals sterilised.

1105 Hon. E J Reyes: I am most grateful, Mr Speaker, that the Minister has at least informed us that the control team is there and so on.

1110 I do not think I need to stress but I want to put on the record the great concern that seems to have been expressed by residents there. There are all sorts of reports of, unfortunately, the macaques going into people's homes. As nature incites them to look for food, they seem to know their way into kitchens and parents with young children are particularly worried on this issue.

1115 I have no doubt that the team is going there on a daily basis. Could I urge the Minister and plead on behalf of the residents of Laguna Estate, if possible, to try and extend the number of hours that they attend daily, or at least go twice a day? We can comply with the letter of the law by saying 'I have been there on a daily basis', but sod's law says you go at nine o'clock and it is all fine and by quarter past nine there seems to be a disco party going on amongst the macaques themselves.

1120 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to my friend, the Hon. Mr Reyes, for reminding me of the problem that macaques can create in urban areas. He did not need to do that, because I spent the first two years of my time as Minister trying to resolve the problem that I inherited with macaques all over the place, so I am familiar with that.

1125 We have been successful in the last two or three years. The incidents of macaques in urban areas, which will always happen as long as we have them in Gibraltar, is greatly reduced. There is this problem of a splinter group of about 10 to 12 that was forced down due to their own internal aggression between groups. Certainly we are there as much as we can be, and it does not necessarily have to be at a particular time because they do move around the area.

1130 But I am quite confident, the way that we are dealing with this, that within the next few weeks the incidences of these monkeys within Laguna Estate will be greatly reduced. It is something we have to be monitoring constantly because, as we have often said here, these monkeys are free to roam and long may they be there, but obviously we are doing all that we can to keep them away, and I think with considerable success in the last couple of years, but I have never said that we could guarantee 100% that the odd group will not appear in a few areas.

1135 The problem was that when people who were using Eton Car Park, or the car park below Eton Park, saw them here they started feeding them and we had to send our litter wardens to ensure that that stopped, but obviously they were already comfortable in the area and we have had to then deploy people to move them up. But, as I say, I am fairly confident that the problem will not be long lasting.

1140 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just one question in relation to this point. The Minister has spoken about a multi-faceted approach – can he confirm what measures are employed by that multi-faceted approach?

1145 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, the deployment of staff to control the feeding is one that I have already mentioned; the litter wardens; ensuring that bin stores and so on are properly closed; being present to chase them up whenever they are in the area; and the assessment of the individuals so that we can see which of the females – and in the case of a group that you want to move away completely, it will be the majority of the females – should have contraceptive implants or should be sterilised in order that the group does not increase in size, because that 1150 would mean that we would have a larger problem in the future if they were to be chased down again. So that is four or five different aspects which are part of this multiple approach that I referred to.

1155 Hon. E J Phillips: Is relocation also considered in relation to the Barbary Macaques? And also just one further question that adds to that: are litter wardens also trained to deal with Barbary Macaques?

1160 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I will answer the second one first. The litter wardens are not dealing with the macaques; the litter wardens are dealing with the people who are feeding the macaques, so they are telling people, 'Don't feed them, it's going to attract them, and if you do it again we can fine you,' which they could do on day one but we try and persuade and encourage people not to do that.

1165 The relocation, yes, ideally, and we are still trying to find other locations outside Gibraltar where we could send the group, but relocation from the point of view of trapping them and moving them to the Upper Rock is a strategy that has been used before which we still try – with limited access, because a couple of hundred metres down a cliff for a monkey is nothing, but certainly we do try that as well.

Q604/2017
Moorish Castle –
Plans and progress update

Clerk: Question 604. The Hon. D A Feetham.

1240 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to Question 120/2017, can the Government please state what plans it has for those parts of the Moorish Castle complex which formally formed part of HM Prison and/or are currently not open to the public, and what progress has the Government made with those plans?

1245 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the area of the Moorish Castle complex that formerly formed part of HM Prison is in itself made up of distinct areas with different potential, so I will deal with them separately.

All areas in the complex have been cleared and asbestos removed, and this allowed for surveys of the area to be carried out.

The area containing the old dungeons and gallows is currently being considered as an extension to the tourist product. Feasibility studies have been carried out, but it is important that before final decisions are taken on its use the guarantee of throughput of tourist visitors is secured, as the site would require a substantial investment and the current trend is for few visitors to stop at the Moorish Castle complex as they tend to prioritise St Michael's Cave, the Great Siege Tunnels and Apes' Den.

We are also looking at using the link as a throughput for the Northern Defences, this ensuring the sustainability of both areas and further enhancing Gibraltar's tourist offering.

With regard to the old accommodation, mess halls and common areas, no decisions have been taken on their use, but one of the possibilities is as part of the World Heritage Gorham's Cave complex research facility and accommodation for visiting archaeological teams.

Government will provide further information as decisions are taken.

Hon D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just in relation to the latter part and bearing in mind that the Moorish Castle complex – and I include everything within that – is a wonderful resource and potentially a wonderful tourist attraction, those parts that are not open to the public, can the Government at least give a commitment that in principle there will be a presumption that all the areas within the Moorish Castle complex will be made open to the public at least during some months of the year and that we will not have a situation where parts of that complex are just going to be kept private for visiting professors and experts from outside Gibraltar, as indeed there are other potential tourist attractions which unfortunately are closed because of use in that respect?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, this is just a possibility and that would be for short periods. Different areas of the Moorish Castle complex will be suitable for different things and perhaps not all of them would be suitable for people to access on a regular basis.

Certainly the possibility of periodic opening so that people can perhaps on an accompanied basis, as was done with the Northern Defences during the course of the works that are currently still ongoing, is a possibility that I think is worth exploring.

Hon. D A Feetham: And is the Government also considering retaining, for example, some of the cells that were formerly used by prisoners at HM Prison, which potentially is also a tourist attraction in itself because it shows how the complex itself has been used over the ages? I myself visited the complex when I was Minister for Justice. In fact, I visited when it had prisoners and I found it absolutely fascinating how prisoners were actually kept in the Moorish Castle – not in the best of conditions, I have to say – before we decided to build a new prison at Windmill Hill. But it is part of the history of Gibraltar and, certainly wearing my historian hat, I would think that it would be a matter of significant interest to tourists as well to see how prisoners basically lived during what was a very large period of time that this complex was used as a prison.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am sure that can be considered.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, before we commence the next question, and whenever you consider appropriate, can I ask a supplementary in reference to Question 603, please.

Mr Speaker: Clearly the hon. Member is referring to the schedule.

1300 Hon. E J Reyes: The schedule, yes. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Can I ask for some clarification from the Minister for Education. I see that in the details provided for the schedule relating the parts to year 2016, areas of grants in respect of PGCEs – that is Post Graduate Certificates in Education – are recorded as mandatory. In 2017, the same thing, they are recorded as mandatory, except for application number 30 where it says 1305 ‘regret’. I interpret the word ‘regret’ to mean unsuccessful, but if they are mandatory, as the schedule shows for the previous year and for 2016 year and 2017 year, how can this one be a ‘regret’ if they were mandatory – unless there is some other information that disqualifies?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: I do not know specifically; I would have to look into it. I suspect that it 1310 probably was not mandatory or there was some other problem specific to that particular applicant, but I would need to research that and I am happy to do that and provide that information.

Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, please, Mr Speaker, whenever the Minister can, because unless there 1315 is a shift that PGCEs are not mandatory ... I am not trying to catch him out; I am just trying to be 100% clear. Are PGCEs now mandatory?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: It may be that the applicant would not fall into the category of 1320 mandatory but wants to do a PGCE maybe more years after a first degree than would normally be the case, in which case those would not be mandatory. So there may be an exception to that particular applicant who may have wanted to do teaching or maybe in a subject which was not ... I do not know the details. I can see a couple of scenarios where that could be possible, but without looking into the specifics of the case I cannot assist, and I undertake to do so.

1325 Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker, sir. I refer to you, Mr Speaker, directly now. The Minister no doubt will look into it as soon as possible. If he has an answer and is able to present it through you, Mr Speaker, during the course of this current meeting of Parliament, then it is recorded in Hansard. Sometimes, with the best intentions in the world, the Minister 1330 provides me on a private basis with information and then it is not recorded in Hansard. So, are you in agreement with me, Mr Speaker, sir, that if he does have the answer before we adjourn sine die it is then presented through the Chair so that it becomes part of Hansard?

Mr Speaker: Yes. If he can, it is obviously not a problem at all.
1335 I cannot help but comment that, really, I do not think any Members of the Opposition can expect the Minister to come to this House with detailed information about literally hundreds of scholarship awards. That is unrealistic and hon. Members of the Opposition should bear that in mind. It is unrealistic for the Minister to come with that information available, which is not in his domain in any case.

1340 Hon. D A Feetham: He did not ask that.

Hon. E J Phillips: He didn't ask that.

1345 Hon. E J Reyes: I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I certainly was not very clear. I did not have an expectation –

Mr Speaker: There is specific information that he does not have, which he can and he says 1350 he is going to make available to you. If he is able to make it available during the course of this meeting I do not mind, under the rules, allowing him to do so. That is not a problem.

Hon. E J Reyes: That is it, Mr Speaker, we are now both singing from the same hymn sheet. Thank you very much.

1355 Hon. D A Feetham: He is likely not to have the answer to this question, it is a long schedule, but perhaps just on the off chance that he might – and if he does not, I will look at it and ask a written question rather than an oral question next time round ... But what I do see is, for example, there are a number of entries in my area, which is law, which are discretionary grants, and you see it in 2015 at item 7, you see it at item 12, there is an item 10, and over the 1360 page again at item 3 in 2014-15. My understanding is that if you do a primary degree in law and you choose to do a Masters in law related, that would be mandatory. Does he have any information as to what this might relate to? Is this the conversion course from a primary degree, let's say in geography, and they choose to convert then to law?

1365 Hon Dr J E Cortes: There are various possibilities there, Mr Speaker, again without the specific detail. I am grateful to you, Mr Speaker, for your understanding of the fact that I have tried to memorise them but failed! No, but seriously, it is impossible to remember all the cases.

1370 There are a couple of scenarios. It could be a conversion from one course to another, which would need the approval of the Department, for obvious reasons.

The other thing is that postgraduate degrees and postgraduate courses as a rule are mandatory and the rule of thumb is within two years of the first degree. After two years, then they do go through a process of assessment. So, if somebody wants to do a postgraduate degree – not just in law but in general – of a subject more than two years after they have 1375 completed the first one, that is not necessarily given automatically. They tend to be given, especially if it is three years and not 10, but somebody coming back maybe 10, even 15 years afterwards would go through the selection procedure.

But again, I am happy to refer this back to the team in the Department to give me more substance in order to look at those specifics.

1380 Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, I would appreciate it, and perhaps there is no need for a question if the hon. Gentleman can phone me at some stage and let me know.

The reason why I ask is because there have been parents in the past who have come to me – in fact, last year I had a number of parents telling me that the Government was not funding the conversion course from a graduate to law, which is a year's course and which in fact has 1385 always been discretionary, even in our time, and it may well be that even in our time when the GSD was in office there was a change in policy to a much more stringent look at those kinds of cases because of the number of lawyers we have in Gibraltar. But certainly I have come across it and there have been representations that have been made to me, so if the hon. Gentleman 1390 could look at that I would appreciate it.

Chewing gum and cigarette butt littering – Plans to tackle problem

Clerk: Question 605. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1395 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, will the Government be looking to tackle the irresponsible littering on our streets of chewing gum and cigarette butts; and, if so, how?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, littering is an offence and throwing chewing gum and cigarette butts in the street is no exception.

1400

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): We should ban them.

1405

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Creating awareness and, where the perpetrators can be identified, enforcement of the law will continue.

1410

I want to add that littering shows a disgusting lack of civic pride. It is imperative that every member of our community pulls their weight and ensures that they do not litter. We must do better as a nation with all aspects of litter and waste and that means primarily rediscovering our civic pride. The Government roundly condemns all those who litter, all those who do not clean up after their dogs and all those who fly tip. As a community we must mature into extending the pride we have for the inside of our homes equally to the common areas of this small but great nation we call home. That is the only long-term solution and the only way to really help the employees of Master Service, who do such a good job, as the Chief Minister, I and all the Government reflected in our motion last week.

1415

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I could not agree more with the comments made by the Hon. Minister, but could he or the Government perhaps consider encouraging people and perhaps legislating that, for example, the people who are chewing gum or smoking on our streets do carry portable disposables to then deposit them rather than be allowed to throw them in the street? Obviously, it is very difficult to patrol – you cannot be patrolling absolutely everybody – but if at least the person who is smoking is asked whether they have a portable disposable ashtray with them, then at least maybe that could be a potential idea that the Government could consider.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is something we should all encourage. Whether we should pass a law that makes it an offence not to carry something like this is something that should be the subject of a larger debate, but it is something we should all encourage and it is not just something that the Government should do but each of us as individuals. The people we know who do litter and drop their cigarette butts and chewing gum and so on, we should make sure that it is not acceptable to us and is something that clearly we will continue to do.

Lighthouse at Europa Point – Plans and estimated cost

Clerk: Question 606. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1435

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain what the plans are for the plot of land by the lighthouse at Europa Point and the estimated cost involved?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1440

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, there will be a landscaped public area which will hold interpretation relevant to the World Heritage Site, as well as benches and paths. As an open area it will allow spectacular views of the Strait and will be enjoyed by residents and tourists alike.

The cost is estimated at £42,000.

1445 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I thank the Hon. Minister for the response and especially that progress is being made to beautify the area, which was very much in need of a little bit of TLC.

Does that mean then that the Government has abandoned the expression of interest which it invited in the community and will now pursue this venture instead?

1450

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, the Government took a view that, considering the construction, albeit low-scale and low-level construction, that there is going to be in the Europa Point area towards the west with the new sporting facilities, in order to maintain the open space at Europa Point, which had been the subject of a lot of public engagement during the time of the former stadium proposal by the GFA, we would like to keep this area open and available to the public. So the Government took the view that we would not progress on that and instead open it up, landscape it and use the bunker at the moment as an area where we will be placing interpretation panels in relation to the area and to the World Heritage site, and we feel that we are giving this back to the people as an open area.

Q607-608/2017

Maintenance of green and planted public areas – Contracts and payments to entities

1460 Clerk: Question 607. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of how much has been paid to each entity since December 2011 in relation to the maintenance of Gibraltar's green and planted public areas?

1465

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
1470 Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 608.

Clerk: Question 608, the Hon. L F Llamas.

1475 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, what contract exists between Government and entities for the maintenance of green planted public areas in Gibraltar, including the Upper Rock Nature Reserve?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1480

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is in the schedules which I now hand over.

1485 In relation to the second question, this is for planted areas excluding the Upper Rock as no contract exists for the maintenance of the Upper Rock other than some aspects of cleaning which are part of the overall cleaning contract that has now gone to tender. If I may just explain, the works on the Upper Rock are carried out by a team that is directly under the Department of the Environment and is not a contracted service.

Clerk: Question 609. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1490

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, before I pass on to the next question, when the Hon. Minister has answered his question on 608 and referred to entity A, B and C, is it that the Government is unable to disclose the names of these entities?

1495

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, it is normal practice when we are asked – and certainly I have done this before in relation to questions to do with the Upper Rock and people owing money and so on – not to identify the companies. I have no problem in doing that behind your Chair, Mr Speaker.

1500

Let me just, by way of clarification, say that entity A, B and C are the same entity A, B and C in the two schedules; it is not two different entities A, B and C. So it is the same companies that are identified as entities A, B and C in each of the schedules. But at this point in time and without notice to them, I would rather not mention them by name.

1505

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): There is no question, Mr Speaker, of the Government disclosing the identity of a debtor to the Government across the floor of the House.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, these are not debtors.

Hon. Chief Minister: Oh, sorry, I thought we were dealing with the debtors question.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No. If I may just clarify, Mr Speaker, the debtors were the subject of another question, where we have not identified. I am sorry if I misled the House – it was not intentional, it was just by way of example.

1515

So that is the reason. Perhaps we could do that. I would be more comfortable if I did not, but for no reason other than their own privacy and not having consulted them as to whether they particularly want this done. But it is not a secret and I am willing to share it.

Q609-10/2017

O'Hara's Battery and Mount Misery Glass Lookout – When open to the public

Clerk: Question 609. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1520

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government state since October 2016 which dates has O'Hara's Battery been open to the general public?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1525

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 610.

Clerk: Question 610. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1530

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government update this House as to when the expected opening date for Mount Misery Glass Lookout is and why the delay of over a year in opening it?

1535 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, in answer to Question 609, every day except 25th December and 1st January.

1540 And to Question 610, the Mount Misery Glass Lookout, known as the Skywalk, will open this year. The delay has been largely attributable to the fact that additional works have had to be carried out in the vicinity of the Skywalk in order to make the area safe for visitors.

1545 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, with regard to O'Hara's Battery, again I do not pass very often but I am told, other than when I do pass through there, that the gates have remained closed pretty much since October last year, and especially the exhibition I do not believe has ever been opened.

With regard to Mount Misery, does the Hon. Minister have an estimated date of when it will open in the coming months?

1550 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, in relation to O'Hara's Battery I am surprised that he has found the gates closed. The information that I have is that it has only closed in December and January. The exhibition specifically I will have to enquire as to that, but the question related to O'Hara's Battery as a battery and that is the answer I have prepared.

1555 With regard to the Glass Lookout, the problem there was that in assessing the surrounding area, which includes Douglas Path and some of the roadway in that area, with an expected increased throughput there were concerns expressed as to the safety of the path and we have had to carry out works, which has meant putting in some bannisters and so on just to ensure, without spoiling the natural look of the area, that it is not unsafe. I am told that most of the works on the path itself are now complete. There may be one or two other things that we need 1560 to do on the side of the road, but I could not be absolutely sure as to when that will be finished.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q611/2017

Moorish Castle, Great Siege Tunnels and St Michael's Cave – Visitor numbers

Clerk: Question 611. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1565 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011 can the Government provide a weekly schedule with statistics relating to the amount of persons who have visited (a) Moorish Castle; (b) Great Siege Tunnels and (c) St Michael's Cave.

1570 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1575 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I am able to provide this information only for the period since April 2015, since that is the date from which computerised records are available of this statistic. Manual compilation will take more resources than it is reasonably practicable to apply to such an exercise. Therefore, Mr Speaker, we are working on getting as much as we can and when we have had some additional years then I will be providing that, but I have not been able to do so because it would have been for a very short period. This is something that we will be taking on longer term and I have no doubt that the hon. Member will remind us if he does not receive it.

Q612/2017
Class sizes –
Projected numbers

1580 Clerk: Question 612. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of the projected number of pupils in each class as at the start of each academic year since December to September 2012, stating (a) the year the class relates to; (b) the school the class belongs to; (c) 1585 the number of children with special educational needs and (d) the number of learning support assistants per class?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education. 1590

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I am handing over a schedule to the hon. Member which contains information which is relevant to his question.

1595 However, as I mentioned to the hon. Member in my reply to Question 494, class sizes, issues relating to special educational needs and indeed the consequent deployment of support are constantly changing. Classes shrink and grow as children move across sets, enrol or leave midway through a term, complete core modules and are then subdivided to complete topics of choice. A child's needs today are different from tomorrow, additional temporary help will be 1600 needed at different stages of a child's journey and no stone is left unturned to ensure that this support is afforded every time.

The schedule provided will give the hon. Member a yearly snapshot of the students in each of the years in each of our schools, the total number of students with special educational needs in each school and the number of special needs learning support assistance deployed across our schools. 1605

Mr Speaker: This is a lengthy schedule. We can come back to it, if necessary.
We move on to Question 613.

1615

Clerk: Question 613. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1620

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, could I just ask, relating to Question 612 and the schedule we have just received, whether it is possible to get a breakdown per class rather than the year itself?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we had a fairly lengthy discussion last time. I suppose it is possible again to give a snapshot per class.

1625

I would very much appreciate, perhaps behind your Chair, if I understood what information the Hon. Mr Llamas wants to extract. If he then wants to throw something back at me, it is his perfect right to do so, but I am not sure how it would assist, and before I ask the team once again – after, despite our discussion last time, they have produced this one – to go back and divide all these into specific classes, which is again an onerous task ... I just do not understand the logic, but this is not perhaps for now.

1630

I will go back and enquire, but I am a little bit concerned, as we said last time, at the number of resources we would have to put into this at a time when we are trying to do other things with our education, even though the hon. Member clearly does not like the word ‘revolution’.

Q613/2017

Schools –

Annual health and safety checks

Clerk: Question 613. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1635

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm that as from January 2012 it has carried out annual health and safety audits of each school in Gibraltar? If so, can it provide the reports with the recommendations, including (a) recommendation resolved and (b) those which remain unresolved?

1640

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1645

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, the main health and safety audit for public school buildings was completed by the Health and Safety Officer for Technical Services in January 2013 as others had been carried out by the former administration.

The recommendations have been met or are in the process of being met. Smaller-scale reviews are carried out on an ongoing basis and it is not Government policy to publish these reports, which are of an internal technical nature.

1650

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Minister then confirm ... or is he saying there have not been annual reports and surveys carried out as they promised in 2011 in their manifesto?

1655

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there was one large report – ‘large’ is probably not the right word, but an intensive report – in January 2013, and then subsequently, on an ongoing basis, using that as a basis there have been smaller scale assessments. They have not been of the same level because there was a need to establish a base line, and following on that, the smaller scale reviews based on how we have moved on from there, what has and has not been done, are being carried out. I think that is the distinction I have to make between them.

1660

Hon. L F Llamas: And therefore, Mr Speaker, if smaller surveys have been carried out, can the Minister confirm that these have been consistently applied equally through all the schools and they have been done on more or less an annual basis?

1665

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not aware of the detail. The headteachers will, in conjunction with the relevant officers in the Department of Education, review any health and safety issues that there may be in the different schools. Quite what the format of that is I do not have all the details, but this is done on an ongoing basis to ensure that our schools are safe for students and staff alike.

1670

Hon. E J Reyes: May I, Mr Speaker, refer to the schedule the Minister gave out in reply to Question 612? On that schedule, except for the year pertaining to 2017-18, the academic year, that schedule at the very bottom of 2017-18 gives me figures for the Gibraltar College, but in all the previous years, although there is a list of schools there are no statistics at all provided in respect of pupils in the college. It could be an error, just outside the page when the printing was done, or the Minister has not been provided with it.

1675

Can I ask the Minister, if possible, can he search out the information in respect of the college and provide as and when humanly possible?

1680

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, it appears that the table has been truncated at some stage. The one I originally saw digitally I believe included them all. It may be that at some stage in the preparation or the printing the Gibraltar College has been left out and I will endeavour to have an amended one provided very soon.

1685

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, if I may, on the question of health and safety audits at the schools can I just ask the Minister to confirm that it is the case that, in normal circumstances, matters of health and safety at schools, and indeed in any building, are the responsibility of the management of that building and that therefore routine health and safety issues would be dealt with by the management and would certainly not be a matter that the Government would routinely have to become involved in, unless a matter of great importance or great cost were identified as being an issue?

1690

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, yes. It would be the headteacher in liaison with the Department who would deal with routine health and safety matters on a daily basis, and these things – and I am grateful to the hon. Member for having given me the opportunity to confirm this – would be dealt with on a daily basis. If any issue arises or if there was anything major which required more extensive assessment or more allocation of funds, then it would be taken at a different level, absolutely.

1695

1700

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just in relation to the questions that have been asked in relation to education and the statistics that have been presented by the Minister, is the Minister aware, given the statistics that he has presented, what the optimum class size is for our schools?

1705

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, my hon. Friend and former teacher has assisted me in this. This was the figure that I had in my head. It is 20 for first schools, 25 for middle schools, and in secondary schools it will depend, because clearly we are looking at different options and different scenarios and you cannot have a hard and fast one. That is the optimum that we certainly aim at.

1710 Hon. E J Phillips: I am grateful for the answer.

I appreciate that there will be a little give in relation to those numbers, plus or minus two either way, but is the Government satisfied, is the Minister satisfied, that there is not an oversubscription in those class sizes that would cause some concern?

1715 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the information that I have provided, because it is not divided into classes, is something that I cannot give the details – I have not been asked for that information.

1720 What I can say is that the population of young people in Gibraltar is increasing. If I may just give an example, when I became Minister for Health the average birth rate was about 400 and now it is closer to 500 consistently. So clearly the population of children in Gibraltar is increasing, which is something that we will absolutely assume in the new schools because we are building them looking towards the future and we do everything we can in order to maintain these ratios. How successful we are and how many may have a slight oversubscription I am not able to say right now because I do not have those figures with me.

1725 Hon. E J Phillips: I appreciate the answer to that question. I think it was a question that was alluded to by my hon. Friend Mr Llamas in relation to his question on class sizes. I think his question did ask about that and I appreciate the difficulty in obtaining statistics on that.

1730 The reason why I asked this question is that many of us do have young children in schools and many people I speak to and parents I speak to are concerned about classroom sizes generally. I am not saying that there is a concern but often a question that is asked is about classroom sizes, and that is why I asked whether the Minister was satisfied with the present situation, given the increasing numbers of students and particularly given, of course, the increasing complement as per the manifesto commitment on page 69.

1735 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Well, the increase in our population of children is something that, as I have said before, we must recognise as a fact, and this is why we are doing major reforms to provide new and refurbished schools which will take this completely into account within the next two years.

Q614/2017
Two-story portakabins –
Modifications

1740 Clerk: Question 614. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details and costs of modifications made to the two-storey portakabins after 1st September 2017 and when the instruction to make these modifications was given?

1745 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

1750 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, works to enclose a staircase were undertaken during the beginning of September. However, these modifications were commissioned as part of the modular installation and not after it was positioned. These include: (1) the staircase enclosure with window to allow natural lighting; (2) non-slip paint on stair treads; (3) air-conditioning.

1755 The only works requested by the headteacher after the modular installation are two gates that have been placed at the top and bottom of the staircase respectively. The costs of these modifications amounts to £12,773.

1760 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I would like to ask the Minister why, when this issue blew up, especially in the public domain, did he not provide parents and the public at large with assurances that ... not saying that I agree with the portakabins, but the main concern was the fact that the staircase was in the rain, the children were going to have to go up, it would be dark in the early hours of the morning, and more than anything the fact that obviously the staircase was in fact in the open air. Why didn't the Minister give these assurances at the time, rather than just defend the portakabins as a necessity of having to expand?

1765 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I really do not understand the question: why did I not ...? Mr Speaker, what gives the hon. Member the impression that he knows what I did or did not say to the parents when I met them?

1770 Hon. L F Llamas: Well, Mr Speaker, but publicly, at least, I have not been in any meetings with you and the parents, but publicly there has been no clarification on the fact that the portakabins had not yet been fully commissioned, even though they were being used, and that further modifications were on the way.

1775 When I asked last month with regard to the cost, again the Minister did not say that there was an additional expenditure pending in modifications which had to be undertaken which had yet not been finalised.

1780 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, there is a long list of things that I have not said, because I have not said more things than I have said. There are lots of things that I know about that I do day to day that I do not issue press releases on or that I do not do YouTube movies on – because I have actually got work to do. (A Member: Ooh!)

1785 Mr Speaker, the hon. Member is the only person who made a public condemnation of this situation and I was responding to the people who I answer to, which is the people of Gibraltar, the children and the parents of the school. I met with them – I had several meetings. I gave them my reassurances. I did not have to fall into the trap of just answering Mr Llamas on Facebook or whatever. I am satisfied that the meetings with the parents went well, they were given these reassurances and that I have executed my duties in this respect absolutely.

1790 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Clerk: Question 615. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Does Government have any updates in connection with –

1795 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am just conscious of the time and I wonder whether that might be a convenient moment –

Mr Speaker: There are questions for the Minister for Education – can't we deal with those?

1800 Hon. Chief Minister: I am afraid, Mr Speaker, that, given the time, there are other commitments on this side of the House that we have to attend to.

Mr Speaker: He has commitments now? Five minutes to answer the questions.

1805 Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, this side has –

Mr Speaker: The answers are very short.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I move that the House should therefore now recess to 2.30 in the afternoon.

1810

Mr Speaker: Two thirty, very well.

The House recessed at 1.00 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 2.30 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

ENVIRONMENT, ENERGY, CLIMATE CHANGE AND EDUCATION

Q603 and Q612/2017 – Further information; revised schedule

Clerk: The Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):

5 Mr Speaker, if I may, I have been busy over lunch as there were a couple of questions in relation to the schedules on education which I think I have been able to clear up.

10 The first one, if I may, was one PGCE which was clearly treated as non-mandatory. I am going to give generalities because, Gibraltar being the place it is and with the size that we are, if I give too many details as to subject, colleges and so on, people are going to know which student we may be referring to. So, in general terms, this was a person who had already completed a degree course and a postgraduate course on a completely different subject, was already in employment and applied for a PGCE in a completely different subject. They did not tick all the boxes, so it had to be treated as discretionary and the board did not feel that they could award it at the time. It was not a run-of-the-mill one.

15 In relation to the Law ones which were non-mandatory, they were in effect either conversions or similar requests for postgraduate work well after they had finished their first degrees, so they became discretionary.

Those were in relation to Question 603 and the schedule thereto.

20 In relation to Question 612, where the Gibraltar College was missing in some of the pages, this has now been amended and the revised schedule is being distributed now. My apologies for that oversight. Obviously it was just left out in one of the stages of dealing with the table on the computer.

25 Hon. D A Feetham: Can I ask a supplementary right now. Just in relation to the Law ones, I have noticed from the schedules that the hon. Gentleman has provided that prior to 2015, the Law ones – and indeed it refers to the diploma, so it is obviously a conversion course – those conversion courses, were discretionary, then afterwards they are mandatory as from about 30 2015. Is the hon. Gentleman aware of a policy change in relation to this?

35 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, Mr Speaker, I am not. I was not Minister at that time, so if there was a policy change, which there could have been, I was not responsible for that in the Department.
But I can enquire, and obviously not for today's session but I can provide the hon. Member with the information outside the House if he is happy with that; if not, I would be happy to answer it on another occasion here.

Q615/2017
Smoking in play parks –
Progress re banning

Clerk: We now move to Question 615. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

40 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Does Government have any updates in connection with its commitment from April of this year to look into banning smoking in play parks?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

45 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, no, sir.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, can I ask why the U-turn – a public statement that was made into reviewing the legislation has now stopped being under review?

50 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, there are no further developments. I know from my hon. Friend that the GSLA does not normally allow it anyway, although it is not legislated. We just have not progressed it. There has not been a decision not to do so.

We were looking, and I think I had some correspondence with the hon. Lady as to some of the areas which she did not feel ... I think Commonwealth Park the hon. Lady mentioned to me, 55 and I think that the hon. Lady tried to clarify with me that she was talking about the children's playgrounds. (Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Those enclosed.) Enclosed, yes.

So it is not that it is not happening or there has been a policy decision; it is just that it has not been progressed, but it is certainly on our to-do list and we will be taking it further.

Q616/2017
Supply list teachers –
Payment of on-call allowance

60 Clerk: Question 616. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Would Government consider paying an on-call allowance to teachers on the supply list?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

65

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, I apologise for being very short in both my answers to the hon. Lady, but the answer is, once again, no, sir.

70

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, my question is based around the concern for the supply teachers in the sense that they cannot apply for other jobs and they also cannot apply for unemployment benefit while at the same time they are being stuck every morning at the end of a telephone line.

75

From what I understand, other Government agencies do pay some type of on-call allowance fee in certain Departments, so perhaps ... I was just trying to enquire if this could be equalised or normalised.

80

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Lady is not correct in what she is saying. On-call allowances are paid to staff in the employ of the Government when they have to be available for callouts. Supply staff – we cannot really call them supply staff – are not actually directly in the employ; they are available to be called in and I do not believe there are any supply staff within the whole of the public service or associated to the whole of the public service who have an on-call fee just in case they are called in to work. It is a different arrangement to an on-call allowance proper, which is provided for in the public service. It is not the same.

Q617/2017

Number of persons registered unemployed – Question not answered

85

Clerk: Question 617. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm the number of persons registered as unemployed?

90

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, we will be proceeding with the Questions to the Hon. Minister Bossano.

MINISTER FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND THE GSB

Q621/2017

Technology-based apprenticeship – Plans to introduce

Clerk: We move to Question 621. The Hon. R M Clinton.

95 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to introduce a technology-based apprenticeship, and how does it envisage this working?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

100 Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, as the hon. Member is aware, the policy of the Government is to provide training for employment. The Member is also aware that my Department has written to all employers with five employees or more to ascertain whether they are interested in providing work-based placements for apprentices, and therefore any new apprenticeships that might be provided in future will depend on the result of establishing a demand for the skills in the private sector.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his response. I do not recall hearing an answer as regards the people registered as unemployed.

110 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, I was not answering that question; I was answering the other one.

Q622-625/2017 –
Public finances –
Figures as at 1st August 2017

Clerk: Question 622. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker. I now know where I am. Can the Government please advise how total liquid reserves are invested/held, giving details of all bank savings, bank accounts and cash held for the following date, being 1st August 2017?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

120 Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 623, 624 and 625.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise the balance on the General Sinking Fund as at 1st August 2017?

125 Clerk: Question 624. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government please advise the total liquid reserves figure and its constituents, namely Consolidated Fund, Improvement and Development Fund, the Government-owned companies, deposits, contingencies and other funds, for the following date, being 1st August 2017?

Clerk: Question 625. The Hon. R M Clinton.

135 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government please provide the total gross debt, aggregate debt after application of the Sinking Fund to gross debt, cash reserves and net debt figures for public debt for the following date, being 1st August 2017?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

140 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, the position as regards the total liquid assets composition when, where and how these are invested on a particular date chosen by the Member opposite, continues to be as previously stated.

The figures requested for 1st August 2017 are: gross debt, £447.7 million; General Sinking Fund, £5.2 million; aggregate debt, £442.5 million; cash, £106.8 million; net debt, £335.7 million.

145 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his answer. I still seem to be missing the unemployed numbers.

150 Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, perhaps I can explain to the Hon. Member that I am not supposed to be giving him the unemployment numbers. The question was called when the Minister responsible for employment was not here, but I would happily have given it to him if I knew it.

155 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, then I guess that question will still be pending and I apologise to the Minister.

Mr Speaker: We are going to have a short 10-minute recess to clear up one or two matters relating to questions which have not arrived.

*The House recessed at 2.50 p.m.
and resumed its sitting at 3.14 p.m.*

HEALTH, CARE AND JUSTICE

Q626/2017

Children in care –

Total number and number subject of care orders

160 Clerk: Question 626. The Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government say how many children are currently in care and/or the subject of a care order?

165 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, there are 36 children in care, of which 25 are subject of care orders.

Q627/2017

Health and Care Services – Agency workers

Clerk: Question 627. The Hon. E J Phillips.

170 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government state the number of agency workers currently working within our care and health services by reference to each company which provides workers?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

175 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the number of agency workers currently working within our care and health services is as follows: ADA, 110; Grand Home Care, 142; Gibcare, 1; S&K, 36; Beta Service, 12; JFM, 18; Meddoc, 42; Athona, 1; Head Medical, 1; National Locums, 2.

180 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, I wonder whether the Minister can help me with a supplementary question in relation to the impact of the Agency Workers Regulations 2012. In respect of those workers, of that total amount that the Minister has referred to with the various companies, how many have worked over the requisite 52 weeks under those Regulations?

185 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, we need notice of that question.

Hon. E J Phillips: I will ask it in the next session. Thank you.

190 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

195 Hon. D A Feetham: Just so that I understand the Government's view of things, perhaps he can answer this question. The Government's policy is, or their interpretation of the relevant provisions, is that if a worker is employed by a recruitment agency, is therefore not employed by the Government, that therefore the Regulations that provide that if you serve a period of time effectively you should then be engaged on a permanent basis ... that those do not apply to the workers of recruitment consultants or agencies because they are not employed by the Government directly.

200 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, that, as I understand it, is right, but the hon. Gentleman may want to go back in his recollection to a time before the last General Election when we had a number of discussions around this subject.

205 I am unable to cite the authority right now, but there is a European authority that provides such agency workers with the right to apply for internal vacancies in the places of work where they have been posted by those agencies if they have been there for a particular period of time. That period of time I think is a year, so once you are in an agency and you are placed in a particular period, although the four-year period may not be relevant to you because in those four years you may be working for that agency in different places, and although you may be working for the agency for four years you may not be placed in the same place for that period ...

210 if the agency places you in a place of work and you extinguish a period of more than one year in that same place of work you are then entitled, by the operation of this European authority, to be dealt with as an internal applicant for vacancies in that organisation.

215 I think that is the benefit that many who have been placed with employment agencies in public sector places of employment have had the benefit of in the time that we have been in office.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just one follow-up question in relation to that point.

220 I am grateful for the Chief Minister's intervention in relation to the right to apply for a vacancy. I was trying to direct my previous question as to the right of the individual concerned to enjoy the same rights as those permanent employees of the relevant organisations, such as the Health Authority, for example. So, would the agency workers enjoy the same rights – i.e. the rights to minimum wage, holiday/leave entitlement, sick pay and the rest of it?

225 Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, the agency employee will be bound by whatever contract they have signed with the agency, but whatever laws are in statute ... of course the agency cannot vacate the rights afforded to any person by statute. So anything that is in the law they will have to comply with, but agency employees are regulated by whatever contract they entered into with the agency company.

Q628-630 and 659/2017

Rehabilitation of offenders; updating of Gibraltar Courts Service filing systems; sexual offences complaints; HM Prison staffing levels

230

Clerk: Question 628. The Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, does the Government have any plans to amend existing provisions in our law in relation to the rehabilitation of offenders?

235

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 629, 630 and 659.

240

Clerk: Question 629. The Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Minister confirm whether the Government has any plans to move towards an electronic filing system for issues of claims and applications for the Gibraltar Courts Service?

245

Clerk: Question 630. The Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government say how many complaints relating directly to sexual offences have been made by citizens to the RGP; and, of those, how many resulted in charges being brought?

Clerk: Question 659. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: In accordance with this Government's manifesto promise, where it committed to increase manning levels in HM Prison with the numbers recommended by the Joint Working Group, has it decided yet how many officers they are going to employ and by when?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, there are no current plans to amend the existing provisions in our law in relation to the rehabilitation of offenders. This however, is an area of the law which is kept under review and one which in particular may be informed by the examination of local sentencing laws by the Law Commission.

265

The Government currently does not have any plans to move towards an electronic filing system for issues of claims and applications in the Supreme Court. However, as part of the e-government strategy and in close consultation with the Hon. Minister for Commerce, Albert Isola, we are looking at the possibility of integrating such a system at some point, should it prove to be financially feasible.

270

In relation to Question 630, the question does not specify dates for which the information is requested; however, since April of this year to date the RGP has received 27 complaints, of which three have resulted in charges being brought.

275 In answer to Question 659, Government should be in a position to make an announcement in respect of HM Prison staffing levels within the first quarter of next year.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 628, I am sure that the Minister will agree that there are certain barriers to employment and barriers to opportunity and access to those opportunities by those who have been convicted of criminal offences and have served a period of imprisonment. What they did in the United Kingdom was to lower the periods that we have in our jurisdiction to encourage more employers to take on those that have been unfortunately dealt with in that way insofar as a custodial sentence is concerned, and those changes happened in 2012, because I think the experience in that jurisdiction was that it did create significant barriers to employment and opportunity.

285 Am I right in saying that the Minister does anticipate that there will be a review of this process with the Law Commission?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman refers me to the changes in 2012. The Hon. the former Minister for Justice, Mr Licudi, came to the House in 2014 in order to make the rehabilitation of offenders provisions mirror those in the UK – (Interjection) Yes, it happened in 2014. So our provisions currently reflect those in the UK. Maybe the hon. Gentleman is referring to additional amendments in the UK with which I am not familiar.

295 I agree with him that the reason why the Hon. the former Minister for Justice attempted to mirror the UK provisions is precisely for the reasons that he mentions: we need to make sure that the period of rehabilitation is sufficient for the person to become rehabilitated but also quick enough so that the person can reintegrate and resettle into society. And, as he rightly points out and I think properly alights to, the most important condition for any person to be able to reintegrate into society is being able to be gainfully employed.

300 Hon. E J Phillips: With respect, I think the Minister definitely has the position wrong, but I am quite happy to have a discussion with him about those rehabilitation periods. I understand that obviously the law changed in 2014, but they do not reflect the position that was at in the United Kingdom regarding the top end. I am quite happy to have a discussion separately, offline, with him as it were.

305 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: If I may, a supplementary on Question 659, Mr Speaker.

Can I just ask the Minister whether with this new batch, the number that he will confirm, as he said, on the first quarter of next year ... will any number of this new complement be the same individuals who would eventually be a part of the new young offenders' facility centre, or would that be a different batch of individuals?

315 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, as I think I replied to the Hon. Mr Phillips in the last session, the issue of a secure accommodation for juveniles and the issue of a detention facility for juveniles – or it may have been the Hon. Mr Llamas, I am not certain; I think it was the Hon. Mr Phillips – is currently actively being looked at by different officials of the Care Agency, Her Majesty's Prison and other relevant agencies.

320 The options are being looked at as to whether it is possible to combine secure accommodation with detention facilities. I note that in the UK it has been possible to combine both, and therefore should there be a combined juvenile secure accommodation facility and a detention centre there would have to be an additional increase in resources, because currently the resources that exist do not cater for those facilities. And, as the hon. Lady and Gentleman will obviously realise, there will have to be a Bill, or certainly additional regulations, introduced – but most likely primary legislation – to cater for secure accommodation, which would be entirely new, and a detention facility, which would also be entirely new.

325

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q631-633, 640-647, 650, 653 and 655-656/2017

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of payments made and invoices pending payment to each foreign health establishment in each financial year since April 2012 to date in relation to sponsored patients?

395

Clerk: Question 653. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain how, since the implementation of the GHA Tertiary Board, several sponsored patients are being refused their continued care with partnership trusts in the UK without prior consultation with the specialist consultant in the UK, and only just now the GHA has made initial contact with their consultant surgeon in the UK asking for their professional advice with a footnote of estimated costs to be forwarded for consideration?

400

Clerk: Question 655. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm how many sponsored patients referrals have been approved by the GHA Tertiary Board since it commenced reviewing cases earlier this year, including (a) the cost of each referral; (b) the health establishment referred to; (c) the medical condition of the patient; and (d) the date the case was considered?

410

Clerk: Question 656. The Hon. L F Llamas.

415

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm how many sponsored patients referrals have been refused by the GHA Tertiary Board including (a) the estimated cost of each referral; (b) the health establishment referred to; and (c) the medical condition of the patient?

420 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, there has been a significant increase year on year, except for 2015, in the treatment and expenditure in establishments outside of Gibraltar. The reasons for this are multi-factorial and include: the rapid advance of medical technology and availability of new treatments and procedures; the increase in the population entitled to healthcare – resident population plus frontier workers; the changing population demographic, with a larger proportion of elderly members of our society. There are also non-clinical reasons, such as the decrease in the value of the pound versus the euro, which has caused fluctuations.

430 I can assure the hon. Gentleman and the House that improving the efficiency of the sponsored patients programme has been a top priority for Government. Working closely with the Medical Director and Sponsored Patients department's senior officials, the GHA has introduced improvements on the existing databases, which have resulted in the constitution of the Tertiary Referrals Board (TRB).

435 Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to my answer provided to Question W128/2017. The expenditure during the current financial year up to the end of September is £4,426,462.25 and invoices pending of £1,017,482.40

Mr Speaker, the GHA provides care to a relatively small community and this represents a unique set of challenges. We are able to deal with most common conditions and our clinical teams provide as much breadth of service as possible. There are many sub-specialities and complex treatments that cannot be provided locally and these treatments will need to be referred to specialist centres where the care of uncommon conditions is centralised. To ensure that standards are maintained, we will preferentially refer patients for care outside of Gibraltar to organisations with high clinical standards and robust clinical governance.

445 Patients are usually referred to the NHS in the UK. We have special contract arrangements, known as service level agreements (SLAs), with a number of UK NHS trusts where we preferentially send our patients. These SLAs allow us to monitor the quality of care delivered and, where necessary, work with that organisation to deliver the standards of care we expect. GHA patients also have access to non-SLA NHS centres for super-specialised treatments. These referrals will usually only be exceptionally approved when specific treatments are required that are not available in one of our SLA partner institutions.

We also refer patients to healthcare institutions in Spain. These institutions are either Spanish state hospitals or private hospitals with which we have a service level agreement. As is the case in the UK, GHA patients also have access to non-SLA Spanish centres for super-specialised treatment, and Clínica Universitaria de Navarra is one such centre.

455 The Board is tasked with monitoring the GHA policy for tertiary referrals. The current policy is as follows.

All patients having treatment outside the GHA need to have a named GHA consultant in charge of their care. This named consultant should provide treatment and follow-up locally, if possible. Where local expertise or necessary equipment is not available, the named consultant will refer the patient in the first instance to one of the visiting consultants if they have the necessary expertise. In cases where the necessary care cannot be provided by a visiting consultant, the named consultant will refer the patient to one of our contracted healthcare providers in the UK or in Spain. If the care required by the patient cannot be provided by one of our contracted healthcare partners, this will be sought in a non-contracted institution with the relevant expertise as determined by the Board members in partnership with the named consultant. Wherever follow-up can be provided locally, there is no clinical need for patients to travel outside of Gibraltar.

470 Mr Speaker, the Tertiary Referrals Board (TRB) for short, is composed of seven senior clinicians and clinical directors, whose specialities are varied. The names of the Board members are confidential to ensure objectivity and prevent any lobbying from interested parties.

Mr Speaker, in respect of Question 641, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the supplementary answers given to Questions 524-526/2017.

The terms of reference for the Tertiary Referrals Board are as follows.

475 The TRB ensures that all tertiary referrals are appropriate from the clinical perspective and in accordance with the applicable GHA tertiary referrals policy. The Board considers all tertiary referrals by way of a peer review process. All tertiary referrals, except for emergency referrals, are approved by the TRB before patients are referred to the tertiary centre. The Tertiary Referrals Board are convened and chaired by the Medical Director or his nominated delegate.
480 The Board members will be selected by the Medical Director, and these are senior clinicians. It is envisaged that the composition of the Board will change regularly and in accordance with clinical commitments of the Board members. Decisions are made by majority vote. In the case of a split vote, the chairperson has a casting vote. The outcome of the referrals is communicated to the referring consultant and secretary by email on the day, and patients are informed the next 485 working day.

Mr Speaker, the Board members are appointed by the Medical Director. The term of appointment is not fixed, as this is a new process for the GHA and a period of assessment, review and development is anticipated.

Mr Speaker, since the Board was set up on 4th May, the TRB has met 20 times, as follows:
490 4th May, 11th May, 18th May, 25th May, 1st June, 8th June, 15th June, 22nd June, 29th June, 6th July, 20th July, 27th July, 10th August, 17th August, 24th August, 31st August, 7th September, 14th September, 21st September and 28th September.

Mr Speaker, since 4th May the TRB has considered 550 cases, of which 466 were approved and 33 were not approved, as these did not meet the stipulated referrals criteria. Fifty one were 495 offered alternative care pathways, which resulted in either further local treatment or referral to another external centre.

I also refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I provided to Question 633/2017, which refers to referral criteria.

Mr Speaker, I also refer the hon. Gentleman to my Budget speech, where I announced the 500 efforts of my top GHA management team in repatriating as many services as possible to Gibraltar so that patients can be treated at home. This has been possible not only by the continuous endeavours of the team but also at a reduced expenditure trend compared to the spend last year to date, without compromising in any way the quality of care provided. On the contrary, I am sure that the hon. Gentleman would agree that receiving the same level of quality 505 and professional treatment at home is in the best interests of our patients.

I again remind the hon. Gentleman of the unprecedented number of surgery interventions conducted at St Bernard's Hospital, with a staggering 161 major surgical procedures requiring inpatient stay, conducted during the first four months of the year, nearly double the number performed in the same period last year. To date, a total of 340 major surgical procedures 510 requiring in-patient stay have been conducted. I again reiterate that there have been no cancellations of surgical operations due to lack of beds since January of this year.

Mr Speaker, this achievement cannot be underestimated, not least given the answers that I used to receive in this House when I was the Opposition spokesperson for Health, where I was repeatedly told by the hon. Lady Mrs Yvette Del Agua:

What will the Government do to ensure that operations never have to be cancelled due to bed shortages?
Answer, nothing. There is nothing that the Government can do to ensure that no operation will ever have to be cancelled because of bed shortage. Not in the GHA, not in the UK, not in the NASA Space Centre and not in the Houston Medical Centre. Nowhere. When the hon. Member has a slightly better, broader and deeper understanding of the health service about which he waxes lyrical at the moment, he will understand that it is a nonsense to call for a guarantee that no operation will be cancelled due to bed shortage.

515 (Banging on desks and interjection) Yes. This is, Mr Speaker, the sort of answers we used to get in the House.

In respect of Questions 655 and 656, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer provided to Written Question W128/2017.

520 Mr Speaker, up until 30th September 2017, five complaints have been made to the Ombudsman concerning the decisions taken by the Board.

Mr Speaker, if the referring consultant disagrees with the TRB's decision they may resubmit the referral with any additional information that the consultant feels is relevant and would assist the Board in its deliberation.

525 Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to answers provided in Questions 646 and 647 in respect of answer to Question 653.

In relation to the footnote, this is a standard inclusion in any referral letter and relates to the guarantee that any medical costs associated with the referral will be met by the GHA. This is purely for accounting purposes and is in no way a consideration of the TRB. All referrals are processed irrespective of costs. The footnote that is in all the referral letters have been there 530 since time immemorial.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, with reference to Questions 655, 656 and 650, the Hon. Minister is referring me to Written Question W128; however, in Question W128/2017 the answer is that the GHA will not reveal the amounts paid to each establishment for reasons of 535 commercial confidentiality.

I would like to refer the Minister to Q365/2016, which was June last year, where the Ministry undertook an enormous task under the former Health Minister and actually brought up to date that answer to June. So, given that we have the figures and the entities, the hospitals and the amounts paid, would it not be appropriate, unless there has been a change of policy by the 540 Minister, to provide an answer to this question?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I have no difficulty whatever in providing the totality of the amounts of the taxpayer spend to different centres. We are currently in a very active process of negotiations with different tertiary centres where we think that we can get more bang for our 545 buck in terms of different surgical, medical and clinical procedures. If we were to identify each tertiary centre with the amount that is provided, that may provide them with some clue as to what it is that we are paying other centres, and therefore it would be to shoot ourselves in the foot if we were to provide detail of the tertiary centre and the amount being paid.

550 Hon. L F Llamas: Will the Minister make an announcement when that process is completed?

Hon. N F Costa: With absolute pleasure.

Hon. L F Llamas: One more supplementary, Mr Speaker.

555 I do hope that this is an isolated case, although I do have two or three. Obviously when the Tertiary Board has been convened and started, I think there might be a transitional period where people are not receiving the appropriate care. There is a particular case which I have written to the Hon. Minister about and he has replied, but there has been further development on that and basically what I have and what has been given to me is a letter from 19th September this year 560 from the UK consultant surgeon to St Bernard's Hospital. I will quote, Mr Speaker, and it says:

I am writing regarding the above patient, whom I do not believe I have had any correspondence from you about. He is in the early stages of his follow-up and we are still managing his survivor's issues. He had an appointment with us last week at which he did not appear because his visit was not supported locally. This is all rather confusing. As I am sure you can appreciate, I would be grateful for some clarification from you so we can best support this patient during this ongoing treatment.

And then St Bernard's Hospital has written to the UK consultant – and this patient has a prostate carcinoma – and in this it actually asks the UK consultant:

We would be grateful if you could provide us with your expert opinion on this case.

565 So obviously this person is somewhat confused, stressed and obviously ill, and in the meantime is not receiving the care because he has still not been seen locally for his condition. At the same time he knows that he will have to undergo a further operation next year, which is what the UK consultant surgeon was telling him ... and is not being approved and he is not having the follow-up by the surgeon who operated on the first occasion and should be the one who could operate on the second one, having had, already gone and intervened.

570 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I say this to the hon. Gentleman and he can take the advice if he likes, or not, but given that he knows that he can write to me at any time and that I always reply to him, if he is going to read from a statement or a letter, the least he could do – just out of courtesy, not for ethics – is to show me the letter before, so I can take it to my professionals.

575 Having said that, I can assure the hon. Gentleman that I am au fait with this particular case and I am extremely loathe and concerned about talking about any particular case across the floor of the House, because given remarks made by a relative of this particular person, it is already in the public sphere, so anything that I say will necessarily cast a light on what we may think within the GHA are the actions of this particular couple. Therefore, I would rather take any electoral criticism that comes to me from the public than to start telling you what I think about any particular case.

580 Let me tell him, however, that given that there have been 550 cases considered by the TRB and that 466 have been approved, and when not approved there have been 51 cases offered alternative treatment, I think the percentage is 80% approved and 20% not approved. There have been five complaints to the Ombudsman and I have met, if I recall correctly, two or three of the persons who have complained. It is inevitable that when there is a change in process and you have such a big institution like the GHA, there will unavoidably be an adjustment period and it will grate with some patients.

590 I just told the hon. Lady in the last session I fully understand, entirely, when somebody who feels comfortable with any particular hospital – for example, the hospital that the Hon. Mr Feetham refers to me, which is the Pamplona hospital, where Gibraltarians seem to have an incredible amount of faith in this particular institution – and that when we say to them ‘we can provide you with exactly the same treatment at home and with our clinicians, and all the research indicates that persons who live with cancer should not travel and therefore we ask you that you please give us the opportunity to manage your care’, I understand fully that some people do not want to be treated here because they have been treated elsewhere. But I think that, as I told the hon. Lady on the last occasion, it is a process of give and take between the GHA and these patients. As a result, the TRB has invariably – in other words, in every single case – allowed for a period of adjustment in allowing the couple or the patient to go to two or three more consultations outside of Gibraltar, even though we can provide the treatment here, in order to ensure two things: (1) there is a proper handover; and (2) not to provide any stress to the patient.

600 As I tell him and as I told the hon. Lady, I fully understand the concern and the anxiety that will be caused by saying that treatment will be stopped in the UK and Spain and we are going to be providing it here, but the reasons we are providing it here are for clinical and medical reasons and because we are convinced that it is best to treat people at home if we can provide the treatment.

Hon. L F Llamas: Just one final supplementary on this, Mr Speaker.

610 Will the Minister agree to consider this case behind the Speaker’s Chair, where he may be able to go back to his advisers and review this case, given the evidence which obviously they are bringing to my attention?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman again knows that I am approachable and he knows that I reply, and if he wants to bring any particular case to my attention he is free to do so, but I think I need to make an important point. I am not a doctor and I am not a surgeon, and even though some people think that by becoming Minister for Health I have acquired the status of being a surgeon and I am asked about different procedures, if I have certain professionals telling me that a particular course of action is clinically indicated I cannot argue clinically.

620 However, let me give this assurance to the hon. Gentleman. If a clinical indication is that a person should be treated locally but there are wider considerations of compassion, of humanity, that require the person to be seen one or two more times by the tertiary centre, then the Tertiary Referral Board is very good to ask me, and of course it is a policy decision for us which we can take.

625 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, a number of supplementaries from me.

Just in relation to the exchanges that occurred a few moments ago between my hon. Friend and the Minister in relation to the breakdown of costs for foreign establishments in June of last year, it was my question and I think the hon. Gentleman – it was not the hon. Gentleman, it was in fact his colleague Minister Cortes – provided the cost in quite a detailed schedule relating to Xanit Hospital in particular, and I was actually surprised when last month I asked a similar question and, as has been pointed out, the answer was that for commercial reasons the Government was not in a position to reveal how much was being paid to each hospital.

When will the exercise be complete so that those figures will be provided to this Parliament?

635 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, it is actively being pursued and the hon. Gentleman should, I think, know that the sooner I can get to the end of the process the better, because I think that we can, as I said to the Hon. Mr Llamas, obtain better value for money. So it is something that I am actively pursuing.

640 Only yesterday I had a further meeting with my financial advisers and we are quite close to being able to proceed, but it will not be with only one tertiary centre, it will be with various. It will not be, as they say in the Spanish vernacular, 'frying an egg'; it will take some time, so I cannot give him today a date by which it will conclude, just to say that it is actively being pursued and if he wants to ask me again in a couple of months' time I may be able to give him a more definitive date.

645 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, in relation to the first question that I asked, which is the question about the explanation in relation to increasing costs, just to put it in percentage terms, from 2012 to 2016 excluding this year, the cost of treatment in foreign hospitals and medical establishments has gone up by more than 400%. Does the Government accept that what we are seeing – and I am not criticising it, I am just asking in as neutral terms as possible this question – does the Government accept that effectively during those four years none of the factors that the hon. Gentleman has outlined are sufficient to explain either individually or collectively an increase of over 400% in cost, and what we have seen over the last four years is perhaps an opening of the tap in relation to this area and the Government is now effectively trying to row back on some of that expenditure that we have seen increased by 400% over the last four years?

660 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think, in the first place, to say that it is important that Gibraltarians have the best and most varied access to tertiary centres both in the UK and in Spain. I came in as Health Minister, I suppose, with a fresh pair of eyes and perhaps looking at the cost of certain things from a more commercial perspective and asking the question of whether certain surgical, medical and clinical procedures ought to cost the Government as much as they did. Inevitably, the results came back that perhaps we were not obtaining the best value for money in respect of some of the procedures, which is why I told both hon. Gentlemen that there is an active review process in place.

665 I would ask them, please, for the sake of Gibraltar, not to press me anymore because these discussions are live and we do not want to prejudice what we hope will be obtaining a better commercial deal for Gibraltar that provides exactly the same number and variety of treatments, maybe even more, but at prices that we are being advised would be far more reflective of what other institutions pay to private institutions than what we currently pay.

670 I think it is important that I make the point that I think that the first priority for any health authority is to make sure that patients have the care that they need, and therefore that is what has been happening. I have come in later, once the system has been in place, and have been looking at it, I think, with the benefit now of the system having been established.

675 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister for his answer.

I do not believe I caught an answer to Question 644, where I asked for the cases but broken down by type of treatment or investigation, in that kind of detail; he has just given me an overall figure. Is he able or willing to give me that breakdown?

680 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has been listening to the exchanges that I have just had across the floor of the House. For the same reasons, I am not willing at this point to provide any additional breakdowns.

685 Hon. R M Clinton: I am sorry, Mr Speaker, I think we may be at cross-purposes; I am referring to Question 644, where I am talking about the cases referred to the Tertiary Referrals Board broken down by type of treatment referred and whether those have been approved, and why in each case.

690 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not know what the hon. Gentleman thinks he is going to glean from breaking the figures down.

There have been 550 cases referred by a clinician, by a consultant. Out of those 550, 466 were approved, 33 were not approved, and 51 were offered alternative pathways. The criteria, as I have explained in my answers today, in the last session of Parliament and also in my Budget speech, is that it is only not indicated when the procedure can be done in Gibraltar. So, the only reason why a referral would not be made is either because it is not clinically indicated or because the procedure can be provided in Gibraltar. So, if it can be provided in Gib then the person will not be referred to the UK or to Spain.

700 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am still none the wiser as to the type of treatment or investigation for which there is a referral. Is he willing to give me that, or is it just a blanket no?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, even if I were to tell him right now every single investigation and procedure it would not matter.

705 What I am telling the hon. Gentleman is that if a consultant refers a matter to the Tertiary Referrals Board and that clinical, medical or surgical procedure can be done in Gibraltar, then the Tertiary Referrals Board will, unless there are reasons why the person should go to the UK or Spain ... be dealt with either medically, surgically or clinically in Gibraltar. So the only reason why a referral would not happen is because the care can be provided locally.

710 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I perfectly understand what the Minister is saying, but again he is not answering my original question: broken down by type of treatment or investigation. Is he willing or is he not willing to provide the information?

Hon. N F Costa: I have already told him that it is irrelevant to the question that he is asking.

715 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, on a point of order, surely it is up to me to determine what is relevant to my question.

Mr Speaker: I am not in a position to give a ruling on this matter. I think hon. Members must understand that if 15 or 20 questions are being taken together I find it extremely difficult to keep tabs on what refers to what.
720

I can see that Question 644, from the overall answer that the Minister made, does not appear to have been answered specifically, in the sense that he has not given a breakdown. I do not see a breakdown here in respect of type of treatment. I do not think that it is irrelevant to ask that. Maybe the Minister is in no position to answer that type of question, or thinks that he should not because there are certain reasons why – dangerous, I suppose, that some patients could be identified. I do not know, I am not sure. He may have good reason as to why he has not answered it, but I am not in a position to make any ruling on this.
725

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the whole thrust of all of the questions I have received on the TRB is why the TRB makes one decision and not another, and the thrust of everything I have told the hon. Gentlemen is that a referral will take place if the care is not provided locally.
730

There have been 550 cases. If I were to ask the TRB to start going through every single file and provide every single surgical, medical and clinical reason, that would take away from the seven clinicians, who are all senior clinicians and are either operating or attending to their clinical duties, to provide the information. There may be some cases which will also be publicly known by the information that is being provided, but the reason why I have not provided that granularity of detail is only because to do so would take the clinicians away from the job.
735

If he really wants it, I will ask the team to do so in slow time and then it will take for as long as it takes, but what I am trying to tell the hon. Gentleman, without being obtuse or difficult, is that irrespective of what the procedure is, the answer will not change.
740

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker – and, Minister, I am grateful for your answer – there is a fuller answer to my question I would have expected, and if I may, by way of explanation, say that the reason I asked for this was I wanted to get a feel for what are the types of cases that will be referred – whether we are talking about cancer related, heart related, surgical ... some kind of general feel for what the profile is of the referrals. That is really what the thrust of my question was about: is it that 90% of the referrals are cancer related, or is it that 90% of the cases are cardiac related? It was just to get a general idea as to where the workload is in terms of tertiary referral, and then that in itself would later on perhaps spin off other questions in terms of, okay, we have 90% that are cancer – how are those being addressed in terms of selection of hospitals. That is where I am coming from.
745

I certainly understand what the Minister said in the first instance, but I would be grateful if at some point in the future ... I am sure the Tertiary Referrals Board must keep a record of what cases are coming before them – I am sure they have an agenda – and it is just a question of statistics keeping, which I am sure they must do at some level.
750

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, I think the hon. Gentleman alights on the point, but for a different reason that I will tell him.

Yes, of course they keep files on all of these cases and this is the point. If they were to go through the 550 cases he would not just receive information that said cardiology, urology, oncology – they would actually have specified the kind of treatment, the kind of surgical intervention. In other words, it would have been a huge task. If what he wanted to ask me were the general lines of medical inquiry – oncology, urology, cardiology – then of course that would be easily provided to him, Mr Speaker.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I would be satisfied with that kind of data without having to go too granular. If he is able to provide that to the House I would be very grateful.

Mr Speaker, while I am still on my feet, coming back to the general thrust of the questions, the questions I have asked the Minister are not because I have any particular curiosity myself 770 but these are questions driven from meetings with constituents who are expressing concern about the non-referral rate. I would ask the Minister, when he mentioned a change of process and that this Tertiary Referral Board came into being on 4th May 2017 ... The first question I have is why was there a change of process compared to what happened previously, what was it that happened previously, and does he think it is right that seven consultants, or hospital 775 appointees by the Medical Director, should second guess a consultant?

Mr Speaker, I will read here extracts from a letter sent to a patient where there is a responsible consultant named:

The Tertiary Referrals Board met on [such a date]. Your consultant referred you to another hospital for further medical treatment and/or investigation. A letter of referral was presented to the board for consideration. The board has not approved this referral. This decision has been reached by a board of senior clinicians who have considered the information provided in the referral letter. After reviewing your case, the board has determined that this referral does not provide the optimum treatment for your condition and has asked your consultant to review your treatment plan in partnership with you. We have organised an appointment for you to see your consultant in clinic as soon as possible in order to explain to you what the new treatment investigation plan will be. You will be contacted with details of this appointment in the next few days. Your consultant may request that the board reconsiders the referral by updating the board on any further relevant clinical information. Finally, I wish to assure you that whereas this may not be the decision you wish to receive, the board has carefully considered this matter with your very best interests at heart.

Mr Speaker, my question to the Minister is a patient in receipt of this letter who may be suffering from a chronic medical condition is not asking for a Disney cruise, they are asking for 780 medical treatment – and it is not even them who are asking for medical treatment, it is their consultant – so are we saying that the GHA consultants do not know what they are doing and have to go through another group of consultants to then say, ‘No, you’ve got this wrong, go back and try again’? In this process the patient is the one who seems to be none the wiser. Surely there must be a process whereby the consultant may at least have a peer-to-peer discussion 785 before making a referral letter. Or is it that the consultant does not know what he is doing? In which case, we need better consultants.

There is something there that does not quite work, in my mind. Certainly, yes, in the UK –
(Interjection) I beg your pardon? Yes. In the UK, certainly in hospitals, yes, there is a referral panel, but that tends to be at the GP level before they get referred to consultants. But once it 790 gets to the consultant level, the consultant is the one who determines the treatment. What we have here, it would appear, is consultants determining the treatment and then being overruled by another set of consultants. Surely there has to be a way to overcome this kind of problem.

I come back to my question: why has the process changed? In terms of the interests of the patient, which ultimately is what we all care about, surely we can come up with a better process 795 whereby patients are not subjected to this level of stress.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think that the hon. Gentleman has become the greatest political social climber since Cinderella. I know that he wants to be the new Leader of the 800 Opposition and he is therefore making political speeches.

Mr Speaker: I am trying to be liberal and allow hon. Members to have exchanges on matters which are of grave importance, particularly to people concerned, those who are ultimately sponsored patients. I have allowed the Leader of the Opposition to make a question lasting 805 nearly five minutes. You all know what the Rules say, don't you? And so we are debating, really; that is what is happening. So unless the Hon. Minister can answer also more succinctly, I suggest that we carry on and that either the Government or the Opposition make it their business to table a motion, when you can have a proper debate on the issue.

810 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman, in asking me his five-minute question, did present a whole series of inherent contradictions, which I will not address at the moment, but the point that he has to, I think, learn is this: if there were no quality controls within the GHA and if money was being spent willy-nilly, he would come to this House to accuse us of spending money without controls.

815 It is not at all unusual for one set of professionals to quality assure the work of another. If you go to any law firm or any other professional firm you have a firm of accountants and auditors – they come in and they check the work that is being done and they quality assure. A consultant will refer the matter to the Tertiary Referrals Board. This is one consultant, and therefore the Board will consider whether the referral is indicated at any particular moment. The consultant
820 may well have, without having to question the intelligence of the consultant or whether he knows what he is doing or not and all the disrespect that that entails ... is that he may have been unaware that, because of the pace at which we are repatriating services currently, that particular treatment is currently being provided by the GHA and that therefore the referral is unnecessary.

825 Mr Speaker, the TRB, in my estimation, has done an excellent job. There have been 550 cases only since May. Only 20% have been refused and, of that, alternative pathways have been referred. Therefore, if the Tertiary Referrals Board are there to ensure that the care of the patient is best provided and they are providing advice to the consultant of how best to achieve that, what is there to lose on the basis that 80% of all referrals are being approved and patients 830 are going to either Spain or the UK to receive their treatment? Quality assurance and quality controls are actually a very good thing.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I agree with the hon. Gentleman that any system of public expenditure needs quality controls, otherwise you end up in a situation where the taxpayer ... at 835 the end of the day, everybody, including those who are being treated in hospitals, ends up overpaying.

But the problem here is – and I return to the initial exchanges which the hon. Gentleman and I had, which have been placed in sharper focus, some of those exchanges, by the exchanges now with the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition – in 2012 we were spending £3.6 million; by 2016 it 840 goes up to £15.4 million, over 400%; this year, in October, up to now, it is £4 million with £1 million in the pipeline. I would expect on those kind of projections that it is probably going to come in at about £6 million or £7 million at the most. That is half of what it was in 2016. Therefore, are we seeing a reaction to over-expenditure in the past and the turning on of that tap ... I hesitate, because he takes things very personally and I would not want to offend him, but 845 a reaction to that turning of the tap on to the ‘on’ position when the hon. Gentleman, que es buena gente but at the end of the day, when we are talking about public funds, had stewardship over his Ministry?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I wish that his estimates of expenditure were correct, but I think 850 I am afraid he is going to be off by around £7 million, so there is not going to be such a precipitous decline in expenditure from one year to the next. I wish he were right, but he is not right in that respect.

Mr Speaker, I did say this during the course of the Budget speech, accepting fully that it was a very long Budget speech, that we have been repatriating services to the GHA, as indeed my hon.
855 colleague did with oncology, and oncology is one of those services where we have had cases where people felt, I think understandably, very attached to their particular institution in either Spain or the UK.

860 So repatriation of services will mean that there are less costs for escorts, less costs for the patient, less costs in terms of transport and travel; and of course, very unfortunately, as a result of the unexpected collapse of Monarch Airlines, prices, as the House will know, have shot up, so what used to cost maybe £120 now may cost £1,000 return. So, unfortunately, his estimate is going to be even more way off because of that.

865 But no, Mr Speaker, what the hon. Gentleman is witnessing is simply a consideration of the contracts that we currently have with our private providers just to see that we get value for money. I have already said that we are actively engaged in that process and also that as we increase the number of services being provided in Gibraltar, even if we have to recruit two or three consultants to provide that service, it is going to be infinitely cheaper than the millions that we spend on transport and escort patients etc. That is why if hopefully we come down on sponsored patient costs it is only because we are providing more services locally.

870 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, one final question. I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman has the information in front of him. I suspect that I know the answer, but are the ones that are being rejected referrals to the United Kingdom rather than Spain? I think that the logic of what the hon. Gentleman is basically saying, in terms of travel costs etc., is probably more applicable to the United Kingdom and elsewhere rather than Spain.

875 I ask this question because what we have seen ... if the hon. Gentleman looks at the answer that he gave me to Question 126, which is a breakdown of all the medical establishments and hospitals where people are being treated, in fact the numbers are static from 2015 to 2016 except for Xanit Hospital, where there is an increase in 2015 from 90 to 140 in 2016.

880 I just wonder whether there is a conscious policy of basically channelling many of these patients towards Xanit Hospital, to cut the costs in terms of travel etc., rather than the United Kingdom. Maybe I have got it entirely wrong.

885 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the short answer is that I do not have the information as to what centres the Tertiary Referrals Board has not approved, although I suspect that it would be both from Spain and the UK because it would not make any difference whatever on whether somebody was referred. All that matters is whether the referral is clinically indicated – in other words, the patient requires the medical, surgical or clinical treatment – and whether it can be provided in the UK, Spain or Gibraltar. If it can be provided in Gibraltar then it will be provided in Gibraltar.

890 Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary? Short?

Hon. E J Reyes: Short and to the point, Mr Speaker.

895 In the Hon. Minister's answers he had to refer to the quality control and so on. May I ask the Minister: is he aware, or can he take it on board to look into, that the quality of the communication between the local medical services and the patient who is affected are top quality? The main concern coming from all the patients is the delays in being communicated that you are not able to go.

900 If I can give you one very brief example, a patient goes away from Gibraltar, is seen to and a consultant says, 'I want to see you back in six months' time.' When there is only one month left for that patient to go and they turn up at Sponsored Patients only then are they told, in a very casual and public conversation over the counter at St Bernard's, 'Oh, no, you're not going – you've got to be referred to the Board.' It comes as a shock to the system. That patient has been back in Gibraltar for five months and there seems to have been no follow-up. There seems, I am not saying there has not – at least, the patient is not resting assured that the best quality treatment is being given to him.

Is the Minister aware of that, or can he undertake to look into it, please?

910 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, we have already had this exchange across the floor of the House. Obviously, the Hon. Mr Reyes did not hear us.

I have explained now at least three or four times that some UK hospitals, instead of writing to the GHA, write directly to the patient, so it is not that the GHA decide in an unseemly public, inarticulate way to tell them when they arrive, it is just that we do not know, and as great as the GHA staff are, they are not mind readers, and therefore, unless the patient who receives the letter from the UK or Spanish tertiary centre tells us the moment they receive it, we do not know. That is why. I have already had this discussion with other Members of the Opposition before.

920 Believe you me, Mr Speaker, if things were done differently, which is what the Tertiary Referrals Board, funnily enough, is achieving, and he has alighted on it but again through a different way ... is that there is a communication between the GHA and the referral centre, and therefore all communications are between us, as opposed to what used to happen before, only with some centres, that once the referral was made by the GHA they would write directly to the patient, thereby completely bypassing the GHA. Therefore, Mr Speaker, I want to assure the hon. Gentleman and anyone who has been listening to this debate now for the fourth and the fifth time, that if they receive a letter directly from any centre from outside of Gibraltar they need to please tell us immediately so we can get cracking.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, thank you. I will be very, very brief.
930 I would be grateful if the Minister could indicate to the House whether the creation of the Tertiary Referrals Board was an idea that came from the Medical Director or was it his own.

Hon. N F Costa: Neither, Mr Speaker.

935 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q634-639, 651 and 657/2017

Artificial limbs –

Patients; GHA staff; sourcing; fitters and physiotherapists; maintenance; amputees' clinic

Clerk: Question 634. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, how many service users are in receipt of artificial limbs at 31st August 2017 are control scheme and for which limb?
940

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): It's costing an arm and a leg.

945 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 635 to 639, 651 and 657.

Clerk: Question 635. The Hon. R M Clinton.

950 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am sure the members of the public will be delighted to hear the Chief Minister's joke.

Who in the GHA is in charge of and qualified (Interjection) to attend to patients with artificial limbs?

Hon. Chief Minister: It's costing an arm and a leg.

955

Clerk: Question 636. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, from where does the Government or GHA source artificial limbs?

Clerk: Question 637. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, with which medical authority specialised in artificial limbs does the Government or GHA work in respect of orthopaedic fitters, prosthetic fitters and specialised physiotherapists?

Clerk: Question 638. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise how many service users are being provided with artificial limbs as at 31st August 2017; and, of those, how many are in respect of congenital deficiency and how many are amputees and for which limbs?

970

Clerk: Question 639. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, what is the Government's and GHA's policy in respect of the provision of artificial limbs and their maintenance?

975

Clerk: Question 651. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the amputees' clinic has been discontinued locally and what is the procedure for service users to access this service moving forward?

980

Clerk: Question 657. The Hon. L F Llamas.

985

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, how much did the running of the amputees' clinic cost the taxpayer per financial year since April 2012 to date, and how many service users accessed the service per financial year?

990

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I am afraid that I am unaware of what is meant by the term 'control scheme'.

Mr Speaker, the clinical management of patients with artificial limbs is conducted via a qualified multi-disciplinary team and co-ordinated by the GHA physiotherapy department.

995

The GHA currently accesses specialist orthotic services from two providers, namely Opcare Ltd in the UK and Clínica Ortopedia Poyatos in Malaga. Artificial limbs are sourced from the latter.

Mr Speaker, as at 31st August, 16 patients have been provided with prosthetics, all of which were in respect of lower limbs. There are no patients currently accessing GHA prosthetic services as a result of congenital limb malformations.

1000

Mr Speaker, following amputation and on recommendation from the relevant multi-disciplinary team assessment, all patients requiring a prosthetic limb are provided with a suitable prosthesis by a qualified orthotics team. All prostheses are regularly reviewed and maintained.

1005

Mr Speaker, the regular amputee clinic was discontinued locally, due to the professional qualifications of the prosthetic services offered by prosthetic technicians in Spain not being compatible with the qualifications recognised by the Medical Registration Board at the GHA, namely Health Care and Professionals Council registration.

1010 Opcare UK currently provide two clinical sessions per year in Gibraltar.

I am pleased to report to the House that currently there are no patients waiting for a prosthetic limb.

1015 Mr Speaker, the annual costs in relation to the running of the amputees' clinic is in the schedule I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman. These costs include all orthotic services, including the provision of prosthetic limbs. This information is commercially sensitive and should be kept confidential.

1020 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, one supplementary with regard to the amputees' clinic. I understand the reason now for discontinuing the clinic; however, I am told that in servicing the artificial limbs, amputees have to travel to Malaga at the moment to undergo reviews and obviously this presents challenges to them, other than obviously having to lose a day out of their ordinary working day. Is this something that the Government is thinking of repatriating back to Gibraltar?

1025 Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, absolutely. In the first place, as I said, Opcare UK currently provide two clinical sessions per year in Gibraltar, but we are most certainly looking at repatriating the services.

1030 Mr Speaker: Are there any other supplementaries arising from numerous questions. No? In that case I am happy we can move on to the next one.

Q648-649/2017

Cardiac rehabilitation –

Referral of new cardiac patients; waiting list

Clerk: Question 648. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1035 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Government, by way of policy, refer all new cardiac patients to the Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1040 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the term 'cardiac patient' is very broad. Not all patients with cardiac – (Interjection) Oh, sorry, yes. I will answer this question together with Question 649. My apologies.

Clerk: Question 649. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1045 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of how many persons are on the cardiac rehabilitation waiting list; and, if so, since when they have been on the waiting list?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1050 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the term 'cardiac patient' is broad. Not all patients with cardiac disease have indications or are appropriate for cardiac rehabilitation. Therefore, and in answer to the question, it is not the policy of the GHA to refer all cardiac patients. The practice is to refer those patients who both have indication for and are assessed as appropriate to receive 1055 cardiac rehabilitation. This can happen either way at the point of discharge from hospital, by a consultant cardiologist at clinic review or by the patient's GP.

Patients' enrolment in the cardiac rehabilitation programme is prioritised clinically. There is, therefore, no defined waiting time for entry into the cardiac rehabilitation programme.

1060 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if I may just ask one supplementary on cardiac care. Again, I ask a simple question, the Minister may or may not have the information to hand.

What is the head count of the cardiac rehabilitation unit? Or rather, how many staff does it employ?

1065 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I am afraid I do not have that information with me. You will have to ask me again.

Hon. L F Llamas: Just one supplementary, Mr Speaker.

Then I take it, and I would like to confirm with the Minister, that there are no people waiting to join the rehabilitation programme?

1070

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, there are eight patients on the waiting list.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries? Next question, 652.

Q652/2017

Alzheimer and dementia residents – Level of care and access to amenities

Clerk: Question 652. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1075

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government confident all Alzheimer and dementia residents in the Elderly Care Agency receive the same level of care and have access to the same amenities?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the Elderly Residential Service consists of different long-term care units, which are currently Mount Alvernia, John Mackintosh Home, Calpe and Cochrane Wards in St Bernard's Hospital and Hillside, which 1085 caters exclusively for dementia patients.

Dementia, regrettably, is prevalent in our elderly residential population and therefore all these units have patients with varying degrees of dementia.

Each ERS unit has its own set of facilities and amenities and is run by qualified staff nurses with specialist knowledge of dementia. All units provide the same ratio of staff per resident. All the units have regular input from specialist doctors and consultant supervision from an elderly care specialist.

All units have access to activity programmes and equipment for dementia patients. However, depending on the particular unit, there are different levels of dementia support available and 1095 the activities will vary. Outdoor facilities – garden, terrace, and patio – are available in all the units and the use of which is only limited depending on patient safety.

If the Elderly Residential Service Multidisciplinary Team considers that a patient's needs are best catered for in a different unit, there are mechanisms for transferring patients in between units.

1100 Hon. L F Llamas: Does the Minister deem appropriate, perhaps, or even consider that moving forward it might be wise to consolidate these residents and provide a second specialised unit within Calpe? If you get all the residents who are scattered around the Elderly Care Agency and bring them all together, and ensure that there is the same sort of level of amenities and things as offered in Hillside, which is obviously the top of the range at the moment, is that something 1105 that the Government would consider moving forward?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, Gibraltar is blessed with many, many things. Land is unfortunately not one of them, so I do not think we will be able to find a plot of land or a building big enough to be able to centralise all the different John Mackintosh Home, Mount 1110 Alvernia, Hillside, and the different wards which are situated in St Bernard's Hospital into one place.

If I may, I think that what the hon. Gentleman is trying to get at is whether I am satisfied that the amenities in the different places are to the standard of Hillside. Now, Hillside is, as he correctly says, a top-notch home, because it has just been rolled out. It has just been built, and 1115 therefore it will have a very new feel to it.

But in that respect, we do have funds available and we are replacing furniture as furniture breaks in different parts of our elderly residential units. We are replacing them with furniture that is always dementia friendly, so even if the elderly person who goes to that elderly residential unit does not live with dementia, he or she will nonetheless have that state-of-the-art 1120 furniture, because unfortunately as we live longer, sometimes persons who initially do not have dementia or who have low levels of dementia, may develop moderate to acute dementia.

So it makes sense to us that as the disease progresses, our elderly person is in a unit that has all of the most recent amenities.

Interestingly, he says to me that Hillside is top of the range. I would agree with him, that it certainly is state of the art in terms of what a dementia home should be, but there have been cases in my experience where people do not want to go to Hillside and want to go to Mount 1125 Alvernia or want to go to other wards. So it does depend as well on the views of the patient, sometimes initially but also family members.

Q654/2017

Children's primary care clinic – Government commitment

1130 Clerk: Question 654. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government still committed to a primary care clinic, with dedicated GP resources, exclusively for children, with a dedicated waiting area for children and their parents only?

1135 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, yes. The Government is entirely committed to a primary care clinic with dedicated GPs for children, and we are planning in that respect, Mr Speaker, to revolutionise the care that we provide to children in Gibraltar.

1140 The Government, for the past 11 months has been working closely with the Medical Director and Senior Paediatric Clinicians in all departments to produce an integrated care of primary and secondary services to children in a family-friendly environment.

Q658/2017
Health and care wards –
Staff changes

Clerk: Question 658. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1145 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide details of wards within the health and care system which has seen a change in staff complement including (a) date complement changed; (b) former grades complement; (c) post change grades complement; (d) ward?

1150 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1155 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, in answer to this question, it is important to note that the schedule that I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman was comprised using a snapshot of staffing levels on one particular day, as statistics vary on a day to day basis, depending on annual leave, sickness, any other absenteeism or redeployment of staff for operational reasons.

Q660-662 and 644/2017
A&E staff, gynaecologists, ultrasounds, Hospice – Staffing and waiting lists

Clerk: Question 660. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1160 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Does Government accept A&E staff assertions that low manning levels in the department are leading to poor quality of care and staff feeling burnt out?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1165 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with questions 661, 662 and 664.

Clerk: Question 661. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1170 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can the Minister for Health state whether St Bernard's Hospital currently has an in-house gynaecologist or in-house gynaecologists to cater for the standard gynaecological appointments?

Clerk: Question 662. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1175 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Is Government satisfied with the waiting times for ultrasounds at St Bernard's Hospital?

Clerk: Question 664. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1180 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Will the Government be opening the Hospice they committed to be working on delivering with Cancer Relief as per its 2015 Manifesto?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1185 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I do not accept the premise of the hon. Lady's question regarding alleged staff assertions, of which I, for one, have not been made aware.

I can confirm that the A&E department is fully staffed, over and above the minimum recommended requirement. In fact, additional staff have recently been assigned to the department on 2nd April of this year, which has seen an increase of Sister/Charge nurses from one to three.

1190 Further, Mr Speaker, an experienced Senior Consultant has been recruited and is due to commence employment as from 13th November in the department, tasked with the overall management of A&E.

1195 As the hon. Lady may be aware from Press Release 533/2017, the A&E department has recently undergone a major expansion. The new area, fitted with the latest infection control furniture, includes five beds, a new nursing station with computer access and additional rooms and storage area. (Banging on desks) The department currently treats an average of 100 patients a day, which is a prominent increase in comparison to the number of patients treated when the new St Bernard's Hospital opened in 2005, where an average of 50 to 60 patients a day were treated at A&E.

1200 Mr Speaker, the GHA currently has a team of gynaecologists for all general gynaecological requirements in the community.

1205 Mr Speaker, the Government is constantly striving to improve access to GHA services and minimise waiting times for all patients. Urgent ultrasounds for inpatients continue to be performed within 24 hours. Urgent ultrasounds for outpatients are usually performed within three weeks.

1210 Since March of this year, waiting times for ultrasound services were recently reduced from 19 weeks to an average of 12 weeks, a reduction of over a third in terms of waiting times. A Radiographer has recently been tasked with conducting these services to assist in maintaining these reduced waiting times.

1215 Mr Speaker, the Government is at an advanced stage of discussion with Cancer Relief Trustees regarding the development of Hospice Services. I hope to soon be in a position to formally announce the next stage in the delivery of hospice care in Gibraltar in the new year.

1220 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: If I can take the supplementaries one by one, on Question 660, Mr Speaker, regarding the A&E staff assertions about low manning levels, I have heard these complaints from some members of staff themselves. Would the Minister continue to deny that these expressions are valid, because what we do not want in a department like A&E is to have serious incidents arising out of these low manning levels?

I appreciate the extensions, as he has just shown, but I am being told that at times there is only one A&E doctor on duty and it is something that I believe is relatively low and even dangerous. Can he expand on this?

1225 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I do not want to enter with the hon. Lady into the usual discussion that we have about Standing Orders and as to whether we can comment on things that we hear from other people. I am not going to enter into it.

The hon. Lady is keen and fond of hearing things and then coming to me to tell me about them, and I have already referred her to the various Standing Order provisions which she 1230 breaches. I have already explained to her that if we were in this House to answer to every rumour, allegation and assertion made by people in the street, we would not leave this House.

Therefore it is important, I think, that the hon. Lady opposite, if she can, not come to this House with what she hears, as opposed to trying to verify what it is that she has said, or at least ask me in a different kind of way.

1235 I have read to her the answer, which is that since this year there have been two additional staff nurses engaged. That has gone from one to three. I have told her as well that we have engaged a senior consultant from the UK, who has links to Gibraltar, to lead the A&E department to be able to perform a review.

1240 So, two additional staff nurses, which as the hon. Lady knows, is the top tier nurse. A consultant at A&E which I am told by the Medical Director has not existed before, and therefore there has been an increase in the complement of A&E.

1245 Now is it possible that on any particular day, one doctor at A&E has because of sickness not been in and there has been a shortage of one doctor? That is entirely possible and plausible. But that does not mean that there is under-staffing or that the complement is down. The complement is up and therefore we are very gratified with that. I think that having a consultant from the UK who has led an A&E department in a place which I think would see quite good crime in the UK leading a Gibraltar A&E department, which thankfully sees accidents and emergencies that are not of the type that you can see in acute settings in the UK would be a very good thing indeed.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: So Mr Speaker, would the Minister want to reassure the doctors that the way they feel is not valid or justified; or will he just leave it as is?

1255 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I thought that she was talking of staff members; now she tells me that they are doctors – alright. I am in fluid discussion with the current head of A&E, Albrecht Kussner, who I have to say, Mr Speaker, is absolutely magnificent. He has no problem in telling me what he thinks at any time, so I can assure the hon. Lady that if there were to be an issue, he would tell me. But as I say, with the best will in the world, and even after we have the consultant A&E managing the department, and even if he were to increase the staff nurses from one to 1260 five, there will inevitably be a day or two where there will be a huge rush of patients at A&E, and on that particular day, unfortunately one doctor is on sick leave and has not turned up, and there is very little we can do to remedy that, other than being told and calling somebody to come in. As I understand it, every time there is such absence at A&E, or CCU or other wards in St Bernard's Hospital, they do call people to come in.

1265 Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister is referring me to the 2011 Manifesto, where we said that we were committed to staffing in key areas and that there is a need for an A&E consultant which is a manifesto commitment that has now been completed.

1270 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, regarding the question on the situation with the gynaecologists, I have received various complaints. I am actually a little bit confused as to what I am or what I am not allowed to bring to this House, because I think that people's testimonies are –

1275 Mr Speaker: What the Rules require is that every Member should make himself or herself responsible for statements made in the House. So you make yourself responsible for what you say, or for what you are told.

1280 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I do make myself responsible for what I am told so therefore I do not think there is any harm in bringing these testimonies to the House – otherwise I do not know where we can get information, because actually when I have tried to get information from Government I have even gone as far as receiving an email recently from the Chief Secretary saying that Government workers are not even allowed to speak to me, so I don't know where I am supposed to get –

1285 Mr Speaker: What elected Members are not supposed to do is to contact heads of Departments, senior civil servants directly. If you want information, you either get it from the Minister or you may, in certain circumstances write to the Chief Secretary to ask for information. But what you cannot do is to phone a civil servant or a top Government employee, a manager and ask for information behind the back of the Minister. That is not allowed and has never been.

1290 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, that is fair enough, but I am bringing testimonies from constituents or members of staff, and I am also being told that again it is either 'rumourology' or I am not allowed to bring them here, so I am a little bit confused as to what I am entitled to talk about.

1295 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, if I can try and be of assistance to the hon. Lady, I think Mr Speaker has made very clear what it is that the hon. Lady can do with public servants. Public servants are not there to answer the hon. Lady's political questions.

1300 But if she hears something on the street and she wants to bring it here, what the Rules say is that she must be responsible for that. So if you bring something here which you hear on the street and that is not a reliable place to hear things and to base political action on, Mr Speaker, what we are saying is that you are making yourself responsible for that. The person in the street says what they want – in other words, they say what might be third-hand hearsay. They say what may be one half of a story, because people in the street tend to tell politicians only that half of the story which suits them.

1305 Usually what I would have thought would have been more appropriate and is the way that things have been handled hitherto – and I commend it not just to her but to all hon. Members – is that if you hear something, pick up the phone and call a Minister. The Minister may not be able to be on the phone immediately, but we will try and get back to hon. Members opposite as soon as possible, alright? Say, 'Look, I have heard this – is this true; is this not true?' The hon. Lady will then get a reply, which will either justify what she has been told by telling her the other half of a story, or will give her the full picture and she might take the view that there is another issue to raise in this House; or indeed confirm a position. She is then able to come to this House with that full picture and say, 'Look, I heard this, and the Minister has told me it is true, and she told me this for this reason, and I think that is wrong for this reason.' There may be a disagreement and a good reason for asking a question.

1310 There is nothing to stop the hon. Lady to come to this House and put to us what is put to her on the street. But very often that is just not going to lead to a debate – or a question and answer, because we mustn't debate – that is going to be edifying in any respect. It is just going to get her closer to reality and we can get to reality much more quickly, and then she can come here and make a political point about that reality, rather than simply hear us say, 'Well, look, that is what you may have been told in the street; but there was never a consultant before at A&E, it was our policy that there should be a consultant at A&E – how can that now be not 1325 enough consultants at A&E?’ and get closer to the nub of the issue and then ask a political question based on the nub of the issue.

1330 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I am grateful for that explanation, Mr Speaker. I just find it a little bit odd how it is always assumed that I am bringing issues from the street and it is assumed that I am not making myself responsible. I make myself responsible for everything I say and to the credit of the Hon. Minister for Health, I do consult him a lot, and I do write to him with issues from constituents, and he is always very helpful. So I am saying that openly, but that when I come with issues I make myself responsible. I just want that to be known – not to assume that they are from the street or third-hand. (Interjections)

1335

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, on a point of order. (Mr Speaker: Yes.)

Let’s just break this down. The hon. Lady asked me, ‘Does Government accept A&E staff assertions?’, right? Standing Order 17(1)(xiv) says:

a question shall not be asked as to whether statements [...] of private individuals [...] are accurate ...

1340 Therefore in my humble estimation, Mr Speaker, the question in fact is out of order, but the question has been permitted – entirely of course up to the Speaker’s discretion – and I have answered it, Mr Speaker.

1345 But the hon. Lady I think should be fair on us, because not only do I reply to her emails immediately, I always try to resolve her issues immediately, but also I am told that it has never been the case before that officials have briefed Members of the Opposition, and I have arranged for the hon. Lady to be briefed, because that is the sort of Government that we are – we are open, she has questions, and if we are not persuading her, for whatever reason, I have actually arranged for her to meet with my officials.

1350 So I think it is fair to say that the hon. Lady can ask me whatever she likes about anything at any time, and I will answer. But for the purposes of questions in this House, it is not appropriate to do so, Mr Speaker.

1355 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Thank you for that. If I can just pick up on the issue of the gynaecologists, I was told just now that there does not seem to be an issue with gynaecologists but I am making myself responsible for having been advised that there is a huge backlog and that there have been some rather pressing issues with people who have not been seen and have had to go away from the hospital because of the lack of gynaecological medical doctors.

1360 So I would like to know if there is a plan in place to add any number of gynaecologists and if this happens, will extra clinics be held in order to get rid of backlogs? Because I also understand that there is quite a significant backlog and many women are waiting to be seen.

1365 Mr Speaker: May I suggest that in that instance, what the hon. Lady should do is to ask a question. You ask the Minister, ‘Is there a backlog in respect of appointments to see a gynaecologist?’ instead of making a statement here in Parliament, for which you then have to ... you ask a question. You put the burden on the Minister to reply. Another question that you can ask: ‘What is the waiting time for patients to see a gynaecologist?’

That is your job. Your job is to ask questions during Question Time. Other than that, you bring a motion and we have a debate. But what we cannot have is a debate during Question Time based on what the hon. Lady is being told by somebody, which she then repeats here and makes herself responsible for that.

1370 Ask a question: you will get an answer from the Minister.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I appreciate that, but from my information, the backlog is due to patients being told that there are no gynaecologists. This is why I bring up the question, 'Are there gynaecologists for standard appointments?'

1375

Mr Speaker: I have here in front of me the answer to Question 661 – I imagine that this is what the Minister said – 'The GHA currently has a team of gynaecologists for all general gynaecological requirements in the community.' That is what the Minister has said. I imagine it is true.

1380

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, for the hon. Lady's reassurance, there are 3.5 full-time equivalents – in other words, full-time persons and a part-time gynaecologist – and by 2018, in the first quarter, there will be four full-time equivalent gynaecologists.

There have always been three gynaecologists in the GHA since 2011.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, may I? (Mr Speaker: Yes.)

Mr Speaker, just on that, may I draw the hon. Gentleman's attention to a question that I asked last month – it is Question 124/2017 – where I asked for waiting times for referrals from the primary care centre to the hospital and there the hon. Gentleman gave me an answer: the average waiting times for gynaecology is 16 to 20 weeks, which is in fact more than all the others.

All the others are, for example, general physicians, 6 to 8 weeks; orthopaedic, 8 to 20 weeks; ear and nose, 5 to 10 weeks; paediatrician, 8 to 12 weeks. But for gynaecology it is 16 to 20 weeks. So it does appear that at least in relation to this particular issue, perhaps some of the things that the hon. Lady may be hearing with problems getting appointments may be reflected in fact in the figures.

1395

How can he explain, in the light of the answer about the resources, in this particular Department as to why the waiting times for gynaecology are more than all the others?

1400

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think that in the same answer, I told him that all urgent referrals continue to be within two weeks, and therefore if there is a diagnosis that requires urgency and emergency, the referral is done within two weeks. We are talking about routine referrals.

I have also told the hon. Gentleman that whereas since 2011, there were three gynaecologists; now there are 3.5 full-time equivalents. I have also told the House that as a result of the fact that I am not happy with the amount of time stipulated there, because as he rightly points out, there has been a continuing reduction trend in all specialisms, we are recruiting another gynaecological consultant to provide resilience to that list.

Mr Speaker: Yes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I, please be patient with me if I get something wrong, because there were many questions collated there.

Am I right, did I hear correctly, the Minister said that in respect to the A&E department, there were provisions for three sisters? And if that is correct, can the Minister confirm that the three posts can be filled in or are any of them vacant?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, it would be extremely mischievous and misleading of me to say that there are three staff nurses at A&E but in fact they are vacant! Of course they are there and working.

1420

Hon. E J Reyes: The words I used was 'three sisters', Mr Speaker.

Hon. N F Costa: Alright, if he does not like the old terminology: three charge nurses.

1425

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I have an email here from a patient who even had to discharge herself from hospital, because there was no gynaecologist on top of her and she had two major cysts, 13 cm on each side, and ended up in Spain for treatment.

1430

So I do not know how the Minister can tell me that there is no issue in terms of the complement of gynaecologists, and I am happy to pass on this email, because the patient wants him to have it anyway.

1435

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, only the other day, the hon. Lady sends me an email; she writes to me to say, 'This is happening'; I see the email, I talk to my principal secretary – problem solved.

If there is an issue with this patient, she can tell me and I will look into it – but I cannot possibly comment on individual cases across the floor of the House! (Interjection by Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon)

1440

Hon. Chief Minister: He is not the gynaecologist!

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: It is retrospective – I did not know at the time. I have just received it after this happened, otherwise I would have sorted it out.

1445

This is a complaint that supports the point I am trying to make. I am not taking the advantage of somebody who I could have asked the Minister for help at the time. I did not know at the time. This has come to me after I put the question.

1450

Hon. N F Costa: Then why ask me now, across the floor of the House? Mr Speaker, it is just grossly unfair. I assist the hon. Lady with everything she gives me – everything – and she tries to embarrass me across the floor of the House by saying, 'But look at this!'

Mr Speaker: We are going to – 1455

Hon. N F Costa: If she only received it after the question, the hon. Lady should not have, on the floor of the House, in public, tried to embarrass me!

Mr Speaker: We are going to move on. That it. Next question.

1460

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, can I just... in an effort to ensure that we do not this sort of spectacle again, if somebody is already in hospital – the hon. Lady has referred to somebody who is an in-patient in the hospital – with an existing medical problem – I assume it is not today, because the person is obviously on Wi-Fi and able to send her material –

1465

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: No, I have had this email for a couple of days.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, in that case –

Mr Speaker: Hon. Members are going to sit down.

1470

I am getting a bit fed up and tired at the manner and way in which the Rules are being transgressed now. I have said that that is the end of that. We are moving on to the next question. (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) And let hon. Members take on board the reason why I am doing so. I do not want to have a repeat of this kind of spectacle again. It is not right that we should do so. Does the Hon. the Chief Minister not agree? Does he think he needs to add more to what I am saying?

1475

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I would be grateful if you indicated which of the Rules, I am transgressing, given that you have asked me to sit down. Which Rules did I transgress?

Mr Speaker: But is there any need for you to say anything else then?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am trying to assist the House to ensure that this sort of thing does not happen again, so that the hon. Lady understands that if she has a live complaint from a patient, there are ways of dealing with that, which is not to put to the Hon. Minister that the things that he has said cannot be true, because there is one case where somebody has a gynaecological problem that has not been dealt with. We would want, for the purposes of this community, to ensure that if there has been such an issue, we understand why it arose, because if we have more gynaecologists than we have ever had before, and we think that we are able to refer people who need urgent emergency treatment more quickly than before – which is what the hon. Member has told the Hon. Mr Feetham is the case, in respect of urgent referrals which are being done within two weeks – how can there be an instance, if that is true that the hon. Lady has referred us to in the course of that email?

Now, this is what I said to her earlier: very often, we only get half of the truth from a constituent – the truth as that constituent sees it. It may be that there is another half to the truth, or it may be that the constituent is absolutely and completely right, because medicine is not an exact science, and sometimes we find that we are not able to provide the care that we might like to see dealt with.

1495

But it is not something that we are able to resolve across the floor of this House, because this House at Question Time is not the Tertiary Referrals Board; it is not the board that is looking at the care of the individual in question. But we must be able to deal with it.

1500

Mr Speaker: The Chief Minister is perfectly right, and that is why I am saying let's move on to the next question.

Q663/2017
Hillsides Residential Centre –
Plans for zebra crossing

Clerk: Question 663. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1505

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Has Government got plans to – like it did with the Bella Vista Day Care Centre – implement a zebra crossing by the Hillsides Residential Centre as well?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1510

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, the Government does have plans to implement a pedestrian crossing at Hillsides, as it did at the Bella Vista Day Centre.

Senior officials from the relevant departments have been liaising these past months and proposals are being presented to the Traffic Commission for consideration.

Questions for Oral Answer

CHIEF MINISTER

Q696/2017

Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association – Government decisions

Acting Clerk: We continue with answers to oral questions.

Question 696/2017. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

10 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Has Government made any decisions yet in connection with the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association following the association's discussions with Government for the last six years and also following the general statements of the Chief Minister in his budget address of this year?

15 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I am very pleased to be able to inform the House that the Trustees of Community Care have now informed the Government that, in coming days, they will be making a statement specifically on the additional financial support measures 20 for pensioners in order to ensure that the standard of living of such pensioners keeps up with the growth in the economy.

The reason the statement has not been made before today is that this question has been pending answer in this House.

25 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I appreciate that answer, but as the Chief Minister might understand, we have seen assurances twice in the 2011 manifesto, 2015 manifesto, we have had announcements in the Budget, we have had union representatives making announcements on Viewpoint and GBC, also announcements in the May Day Rally this year.

30 How can the Pensioners Association be assured that this time these announcements are for real and can we have any idea of an implementation date as well?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am sorry to say to the hon. Lady that she is woefully confused.

35 The announcements by the union leaders that she is referring to relate to the introduction of the principle of pensions in the private sector for those who are working now. That is completely different to the issue on which she has asked me a question, supposedly on behalf of the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association – incidentally an association that my Government is the only Government to have entertained and an association with which we have had a long association.

40 But it is true to say that we have not been able to make an announcement before. What I have said is that it is very likely that these payments would not be payments which the Government would be responsible for, that they would be matters that would be dealt with at Community Care.

45 We have had discussions with Community Care. I said I expected to say something in September, which has not been possible. She filed questions in mid-October. That stopped the clock because if we answer questions once hon. Members have filed a question, they get upset that things happen. So what I am saying to her is: the minute this session is over, I understand that the Trustees of Community Care are ready to make that announcement.

50 But it is not an announcement which relates to the issues which union leaders have been dealing with and have been raising in programmes and have made other announcements in relation to, which we are also progressing on. This is a separate issue. It is about existing pensioners, not future pensioners, who are receiving amounts which in many instances are even below the minimum wage.

55 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Can the Chief Minister give us any idea of implementation dates?

60 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I always hesitate to deploy with her the sort of remark that I might deploy with others. But she should know that when it comes to Community Care, the Government is not in any control and therefore the Government is not going to be able to make a statement as to implementation.

65 The reason for that is not to try and avoid a question. The reason for that is not to try and avoid giving information to members of the Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association for whom I have the very highest regard and who have done a magnificent job in advocating for those who might be less well-off in our community; but because Community Care is an independent charity. And if it were perceived not to be an independent charity, then what it does so successfully for Gibraltarian resident pensioners, it might not be able to continue doing.

70 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, can the Chief Minister give us any assurances that he may ensure that things move on as independently as he can from that further position once he has told us that there will be an announcement? If we do not hear anything, can we hear something back from the Chief Minister?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well put it this way, Mr Speaker: the Chief Minister stands by what he says in this House. She is not going to get the opportunity to embarrass me by asking in Parliament next month whether what I said in answer to Question 696/2017 is going to materialise in December, instead of in November.

But the answer I have given her talks about the aspects of this that the Government had to deal with itself. That I have told her, in the context of this answer, has now been dealt with. Action now moves to an independent third party, who must remain independent for the reasons I have already indicated.

Now, if she will excuse me for saying, if she stops playing to the gallery and lets things just play out in coming days, as this statement I have just read suggests, she might find that the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association are very pleased indeed with the work that the Government has done on their behalf in the past six years.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

If I may ask the Chief Minister, the Scheme that is envisaged to be announced, is this going to be on the same form or structure as the previously discussed Universal Credit Scheme that was communicated to the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association?

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am grateful for that question from the person in a caretaker leadership capacity in the party that did not entertain them when it had the opportunity to do so as a government, because he too needs to understand that what I have said is that an announcement is going to be made by an independent third party. So therefore, it would not be an independent third party if I was making announcements on behalf of it in this House.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Mr Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, just to be absolutely clear, Community Care is an independent charity, it is run by independent trustees and the Governments on both sides of whatever political persuasion throughout the years have always defended the independence of Community Care.

Therefore, although this is an announcement that the Chief Minister is making in answer to a question from the hon. Lady, just to be absolutely crystal clear, this is an initiative from independent trustees who have made independent decisions to effectively pay this money at this particular rate but it is not a decision that is a decision of the Government.

There might have well have been discussions in the background but this is an independent decision from independent trustees out of the resources of that particular trust.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is absolutely right and this is an issue that is very topical. In fact in the news overnight, people may have seen the issues that now surround Lord Ashcroft in respect of the management of a trust beyond the reach of the trustees who should be making independent decisions according to what we have read in some newspapers and seen on some television programmes.

That is why the statement that I have read simply says that I am very pleased to be able to inform the House that the trustees of Community Care have informed the Government, because a question has been asked of the Government and I sought their views, that they will be making an announcement about what they have agreed to be paying.

125 It is true that we have made representations to the trustees on behalf of the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association which the hon. Member will have heard me say before in this House, but I entirely support the way that he has phrased the independent decision-making which must occur in the context of this trust, Community Care Trust, as there must be independent decision-making in respect of every single trust. That is why, Mr Speaker, no GSLP Chief Minister will ever consider Community Care as a ticking time bomb or anything like that.

130 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, just one final question on this. If for any reason the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association are not satisfied with the forthcoming announcement, to whom should they turn? Should it be the Government or Community Care?

135 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it certainly should not be to the party that had the opportunity of assisting them when they were in Government and did not.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I do not believe I had an answer to my question.

140 Hon. Chief Minister: Sorry, Mr Speaker. It certainly should not be to the party that had the opportunity of assisting them when they were in Government and did not.

145 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I know he may have been made a Bencher of the Middle Temple, but we are here in this Parliament and I have asked a very simple question on behalf of the people in this gallery – he does not even have to look at the camera; he can look at them directly. If he can turn to them and tell them, if they are not happy, who do they turn to?

150 Hon. Chief Minister: Oh I see, Mr Speaker, so the Leader – well, the putative or current or caretaker Leader – of the GSD has now taken to making representations for the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association, the group that they ignored when they were in Government. Well, I see.

Well, Mr Speaker, if that is the question, then what the Gibraltar Private Sector Workers and Pensioners Association know is that they can continue to turn to the only Chief Minister that has entertained them in the time that they have had an opportunity of doing something.

155 And I know that they are all there, they are very welcome, like every citizen of this nation, to come and see us and hear what we have to say, in particular when we are fulfilling our commitments to people – those commitments which we acquired when the party that he now leads failed to even meet them.

160 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Daniel Feetham.

165 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the Hon. the Chief Minister has indicated that the trustees of Community Care will be looking at 8% – sorry not 8%; 8% is the increase in GDP – increases in GDP. Does he know what would be the position, for example – or perhaps the discussions have not gone that far, bearing in mind that it is the trustees that make the decision – but if there is a slow-down in the economy and for example there is no economic growth, do we then envisage that there will be no increase in payments because of it?

170 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am quite surprised that the hon. Gentleman who was Minister for Justice in the Government that did not entertain this collective is now pursuing what would happen in the event of the economy not growing, given that when the economy was growing, he as Minister for what must now be referred to as injustice failed to address the issue.

But, Mr Speaker, I think from my own logic, what would not make sense is that there should be any group that might see their rewards grow when others do not. So if the economy were not 175 to grow, therefore if inflation were to be at zero, for example – and growth in the economy can be measured in many different ways, but one of the ways in which it is also determined is if there is growth by way of inflation – and if state pensions did not grow, then it would be surprising to see other benefits also grow which related to pensions.

But that would not be a matter for me. He is asking me a question that I should simply have 180 answered by saying it is entirely hypothetical because he is asking me in effect to do that which he warned me not to do, and put myself in the position of the trustees and make a decision for them, if only by way of indication, if not by determination.

In which case, if what he is asking for is by way of indication, not determination, that is hypothesis and that is not an appropriate question in this House.

185

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman, I have to say, even in my semi-retirement, manages to sort of lure me out of my semi-retirement state!

Hon. Chief Minister: Welcome back.

190

Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much.

Mr Speaker, there is and this is precisely part of why I asked the question that I asked ...

The hon. Gentleman has stood up; he has on the one hand attempted to claim credit for this initiative by answering the question from the hon. Lady. And then on the other, he has said, as 195 must be the case, because it is the trustees of Community Care of course – it must be the position – it is not the Government's decision; it is the decision of Community Care.

So he cannot have it both ways. He cannot claim credit and say, 'Because I have entertained and I am the one that should be gaining the credit for this – but it is a decision that has been taken by the trustees of Community Care.' If it is a decision of the trustees of Community Care, it 200 is a decision of the trustees of Community Care.

But he is wrong, Mr Speaker. He is wrong in his analysis and there is a serious point – forget about all the political toing and froing, there is a serious point here – and it is this: that you can have a situation where you can have rampant inflation, for example, and an economy that is contracting. You could have that kind of situation.

205 I am just trying to drill down into what would happen – now if he does not have the answer, he does not have the answer – but what would happen if there is a contraction in the economy but there is a growth in inflation and therefore effectively these individuals would be losing out – losing out because the economy contracts, but also losing out because inflation increases. I just wonder what the position would be in that situation.

210

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I miss him so much. (Laughter) I never thought I would, I really never thought I would.

Mr Speaker, I miss him because he manages to conflate and not clarify, in the process of seeking answers to questions.

215 There is a very important point here and the very important point, Mr Speaker, is that there are people in our community who do not have pension provision made available to them which allows them to have a dignified retirement. That was the point that was made to me in 2011 and that is the point that I have analysed with the Government in Cabinet and that is the issue which I told the House before we would be making representations to Community Care about. And 220 that is what Community Care have now, as a result of those representations, told us that they will seek to address in a statement that they are about to make.

Now, what the hon. Gentleman is asking me to do is to look forward to a situation which has not occurred and say how it will be dealt with. That is a hypothetical question. It is a question, Mr Speaker, that is not in order under the Rules.

225 But I will tell him, Mr Speaker, why it is also in my view, not a relevant question. Because in Gibraltar, at least in the time that I have been in office and indeed in the time that my predecessor as Chief Minister was in office, state pensions have always grown by the rate of inflation, not with a view to the growth of the GDP.

230 So, Mr Speaker, looking into the future is a mug's game and I will not do it. But by looking at the past, I can tell the hon. Gentleman that everything that relates to pensions in this community has gone up based on the growth of inflation, not on the overall growth of the economy.

235 Mr Speaker: May I point out to the Chief Minister that during the years when I was in Government, state pensions, old age pensions, were increased in accordance with the increases in average earnings. Just for the record – nothing to do with inflation.

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

240 I was not around then and I do not want to debate with you but those who were seem to recall that there might have been some instances where that was not quite the case, but we are not here to debate; it is Question Time.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q671/2017

Emergency Services hub at Rooke site – Government intentions

245 Acting Clerk: Question 671. The Hon. R M Clinton, on behalf of the Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm that it intends to create an Emergency Services hub at the Rooke site?

250 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this continues to be one of the opportunities potentially available.

255 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, just by way of clarification, would the Chief Minister then confirm that there is a project or there are plans certainly to move at least the Fire Brigade to another location?

Hon. Chief Minister: There is a similar question in the Order Paper later on, Mr Speaker.

Q673/2017

Bus fleet purchase agreement – Expiry date on buy-back clause

260 Acting Clerk: Question 673. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, can the Minister say if there is an expiry date in the purchase agreement for the bus fleet of the buy-back clause and if so, when that date is?

265 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there is no expiry date.

Q674-675, 693-695/2017

Fire Station; GBC; roof gardens; amphitheatre; domiciliary care – Government plans

Acting Clerk: Question 674. The Hon. T N Hammond.

270

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, when does Government intend to move the current City Fire Brigade Fire Station as proposed in its 2011 manifesto and to what location?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

275

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 675 and 693 to 695.

Acting Clerk: Question 675, the Hon. T N Hammond.

280

Hon. T N Hammond: Where does Government intend to move GBC to as proposed in its 2011 manifesto and when does it consider that the move might take place?

Acting Clerk: Question 693, the Hon. L F Llamas.

285

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why the roof garden displayed in their 2011 manifesto on affordable housing projects never materialised and confirm if they intend to provide roof gardens in the affordable projects recently announced where artist's impressions provide these?

290

Acting Clerk: Question 694, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, does the Government intend to construct the 400 outdoor amphitheatre promised in their 2011 manifesto?

295

Acting Clerk: Question 695, the Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, will the Government be expanding domiciliary care to include cooking, shopping and household chores as promised in their 2011 manifesto?

300

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, Questions 674, 675 and 693 to 695 relate to manifesto commitments of the GSLP Liberals for the 2011 General Election.

305

As a matter of principle, the Government will not subject itself to examination by the hon. Members about pre-Election facts and periods because in a democracy elections renew the mandate of the Government and they draw a line under the arguments of the Opposition up to that date because the electorate have expressed their judgement on those political arguments.

310

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, from that answer, can I just confirm with the Chief Minister that therefore all, or any, of the many, many many, non-delivered commitments of the 2011 manifesto will now not be delivered or that the Government will not in any way be accountable for their delivery, including the move of GBC and including the move of the City Fire Brigade?

315 Hon. Chief Minister: Is that despite having seen the expressions of interest announced in The Chronicle a couple of weeks ago, Mr Speaker?

Hon. T N Hammond: I do not think that answered the question, Mr Speaker.

320 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman has seen in the local press that there is an advertisement in respect of the relocation of GBC. So is he asking me the question in light of that public statement which he will have seen in the local press?

325 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I have not seen that advertisement in the local press and I do not know if that advert went out after this question was submitted or not. But perhaps the Chief Minister could clarify where it is the intention to move GBC, which is the nature of the question.

330 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, I am not here to answer questions about things which are public and the hon. Gentleman is expected to at least keep up with the local newspapers, Mr Speaker. And there has been an advertisement in the local press, not when hon. Members filed questions – it was not a statement; it was an advertisement seeking expressions of interest for a particular site in Gibraltar, including for the relocation of GBC.

335 Now, it is really quite something if a Member of Her Majesty's loyal Opposition does not read the papers, Mr Speaker.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, with regard to the City Fire Brigade, is it the intention to move or has an advert gone out in similar vein, because I missed that one as well.

340 Hon. Chief Minister: Well no, Mr Speaker, he did not miss an advert; he missed an answer a moment ago. Because the hon. the current acting Leader of the Opposition – let me rephrase that. The hon. the current Acting Leader of the current Opposition –

Mr Speaker: Let me clarify the position.

345 As far as I am concerned and therefore, in consequence Parliament, when the Hon. Daniel Feetham resigned as Leader of the Opposition, I was asked by the majority Members of the Opposition of the GSD to recognise the Hon. Roy Clinton as Leader of the Opposition.

Consequentially we have recognised him here in Parliament and he is being therefore paid by the Treasury the appropriate allowance in respect of that.

350 So as far as I am concerned, until I am told otherwise, Mr Roy Clinton is the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. Chief Minister: Except, Mr Speaker, he has referred to himself as caretaker and acting. But I have no problem, Mr Speaker, let me put it this way. The current Acting Leader of the GSD, his party, has just asked me a question about the emergency services hub at Rooke and I have just given him an answer about that.

He did not even have to read the papers – just had to keep his ears open.

360 Hon. T N Hammond: Yes and, Mr Speaker, I believe part of that answer was that there is another question on the Order Paper, which was specifically about the City Fire Brigade, not an emergency services hub.

So I am talking about the City Fire Brigade which was specifically committed to in the 2011 manifesto for it to be moved to another site.

365 Now, the other question I do understand, refers to an emergency services hub, I can see the two could go together. However, that was not clear and when the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition asked a follow-up question specifically to the City Fire Brigade, the Chief Minister replied, there is a further question in the Order Paper referring specifically to the Fire Brigade, which is why I am now asking questions specifically about the Fire Brigade, because it does not 370 necessarily follow that an emergency services hub would contain the City Fire Brigade, although of course it may do.

Hon. Chief Minister: It would.

375 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, the reason why I asked questions about the 2011 Manifesto is because the Government at the time gave the undertaking in the manifesto that they would complete their manifesto commitments within the four years.

However, there is part of one of the questions which is to do with the current manifesto and the plans that have been recently announced to do with the housing projects, whether those gardens, the roof gardens which did not materialise in the 2011 affordable projects – the 380 affordable projects done in the first term of office and we did not see them transpire – if those will be happening, given that they have been shown once again in artist's impressions and they did not materialise in the last parliamentary legislature?

385 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman told us in this House last time we were here, in a debate on matters relating to self-determination that he continued to be a disciple of Sir Peter Caruana and some of the things that he had set out when he was Leader of the GSD.

What I have read out to him, Mr Speaker, about how you account in this House is word for word Peter Caruana in answer to Question 627/2007. It is actually vintage Caruana if you had 390 seen the performance on the day and the hon. Gentleman, as an admirer of my predecessor, the former Chief Minister, would have enjoyed being in this House when he uttered those words.

So, Mr Speaker, in relation to the 2011 Manifesto, we have the obligations that we have. I think it is clear that we are continuing the process of delivering, but in relation to the current housing that the hon. Gentleman is talking about, all that we have seen at the moment are 395 outline designs, more about massing and look. It is not clear yet whether those will be the final architect's designs.

But if he looks at the architects designs announced at the time that the projects got underway under the last manifesto, they have been built exactly as those who were purchasers and saw the designs actually were led to believe at the time that they bought.

400 I would say something else in that respect, Mr Speaker, if he cares to look again, because he is obviously the person to have most recently read it from cover to cover, at our 2011 New Dawn manifesto he will see that Mons Calpe Mews has been built identically, almost, to the images that appeared in that magnificent manifesto for the 2011 General Election, which I am reminded we were in the process of fighting this month six years ago.

Q676/2017
Gibraltar Development Plan –
Plans to revise

405

Acting Clerk: Question 676. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, are there any plans to revise the Gibraltar Development Plan?

410 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes sir.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, can the Hon. the Chief Minister give an indication of when 415 the exercise of revising the Gibraltar Development Plan will be completed?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, I cannot give an indication.

Hon. D A Feetham: Can he at least inform the House as to whether the Gibraltar 420 Development Plan will be binding upon the Development and Planning Commission?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the position in respect of the Development Plan will continue to be the same under the current legislation, whether it is reviewed or not reviewed, and under the new legislation, provision will be made in relation to Gibraltar Development Plans 425 which is set out in that legislation. I have seen a draft and I expect it will be published shortly.

Hon. D A Feetham: Yes, thank you very much for that answer, but can he give any information as to whether there will be a tightening up of a requirement that the Development and Planning Commission basically adhere to the Gibraltar Development Plan.

430 I mean, there is a considerable amount of concern, certainly the people that I have spoken to from the Heritage Trust and indeed others, that there are a number of developments that have been built or are planned to be built, particularly within the walls of Gibraltar, that have been given the go ahead by the Development and Planning Commission that do not comply with the Gibraltar Development Plan and that it is important that there be clarity as to the legal status of 435 the Gibraltar Development Plan.

There is a school of thought for example that suggests that the Gibraltar Development Plan at the moment is binding. I know that the Government and certainly the Development and Planning Commission take a different view. But is there going to be clarity in relation to that and a tightening up of the requirement that the Gibraltar Development Plan be adhered to?

440 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is a matter that will be clearer when the Bill is published. There has been already a Command Paper which has led to a considerable number of representations made to the Government, the Government will publish a Bill that will take into consideration those of the representations which we have believed to have merit.

445 But all of these concerns, of course, Mr Speaker, that the hon. Gentleman refers to, do not equate to the considerable relief that is expressed to the Government by those who are very pleased indeed that the DPC now sits in public, that it publishes its minutes and that the debates of the DPC can be attended by any member of the public, and indeed that members of the public can make representations if they wish to object to a particular development because it 450 contravenes the Development Plan, the current GSD Development Plan which, from memory, I think was developed almost more than a decade after they took power.

And, Mr Speaker, all of that I think demonstrates that there is a better opportunity today to give vent to those concerns in the context of decision-making in front of the DPC than was the case when the DPC met secretly under the administration that he was a member of and did not 455 publish its minutes.

But if I may end on a more conciliatory note, Mr Speaker, I recall that in my early days of becoming politically aware, there were a raft of articles in a publication now defunct called The Democrat, I believe, which related to just this issue of the Development Plan. In particular in relation to a development over Rosia Bay, which I think became known as Rosia Plaza, and there 460 one particular practitioner from a firm he used to practice in set out in great detail in those articles his in-depth knowledge of planning law and whether or not the plan should be binding or not. I think that might have been – talking totally from memory – 1986 or 1987. It is a debate that has run and run and I expect that the Bill, when published, will deal with it.

Q677/2017
Official travel of Ministers –
Policy on air miles

465 Acting Clerk: Question 677. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Thank you very much. What is the Government's current policy in relation to who should have the benefit of air miles accumulated as a consequence of the official travel of Ministers?

470

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the position of the Government is set out in the Ministerial Code.

475

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, it is a Ministerial Code that as I understand it is still not effective.

Now of course, again not wishing to become unduly belligerent in my semi-retirement state, can I say that of course I recall, and he must recall as well, that when he was on this side of the House, he would almost – well it was not monthly, but every time that we had a session of Parliament, he would ask about this particular issue because he felt it was an important one.

480

And therefore, six years on, when can we expect that the hon. Gentlemen opposite take a leaf out of the Hon. the Chief Minister's discourse when he was on this side of the House and ensure that air miles that are accumulated as a consequence of ministerial travel go effectively for the benefit of the Taxpayer?

485

Hon. Chief Minister: Already, Mr Speaker, is the answer to that question, because that is the way in which this Government has behaved, even before we published the draft Ministerial Code, which I consider to be binding as far as I am concerned and indeed I think colleagues take the same attitude.

490

But in relation to this, as I said in Question 695/2008 to the then Chief Minister, I think the Taxpayer is entitled to the credit for the miles that are paid for by his/her pounds, shillings and pence and that is how we have acted from the moment that we were elected.

But not every airline gives air miles, Mr Speaker, and Ministers now do not ensure, as they might have done in the past, which he might remember was also one of my bug bears, that they fly with the airline that gives them miles even if it is more expensive for the Taxpayer simply because they are then able to spend them for themselves and their family, as was the case, Mr Speaker.

He will recall me saying, in the time that he was a Minister in the former Government – although I do not know what he uses his air miles for – but there was one particular individual who I was very fond of, Mr Speaker, although he was on the other side of me, who was notorious for the collection of air miles, the spending of air miles on his own family's travel and indeed, Mr Speaker, other practices in relation to travel which I will not deal with in the context of this answer.

500

But he can rest assured that I acted in keeping with my own views from the minute that I was elected in relation to this matter.

505

510 Hon. D A Feetham: Well, Mr Speaker, I am very glad to hear that and indeed therefore, the answer to the original question, it had nothing to do with the Ministerial Code because the Government as I understand it, all the Ministers that is the answer that the hon. Gentleman, correct me if I am wrong, all the Ministers of the Government have acted in accordance with that policy since they were elected in December 2011.

515 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, that is a discussion we had in Cabinet and the position we took in Cabinet.

By the way, Mr Speaker, we had that discussion reminding ourselves of what we called the 'lack of shame' of practices before our time.

Q678, 686-689/2017
Civil Service recruitment –
Grades, promotions, sub-contracts, vacancies

520 Acting Clerk: Question 678. The Hon. D A Feetham.

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, further to the answer to written question W119/2017, can the Government please explain why the recruitment process for those AA vacancies is still on hold?

525 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 686 to 689.

530 Acting Clerk: Question 686. The Hon. L F Llamas.

535 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, will the Government consider whilst it considers whether or not it is going to recruit AAs in the Civil Service of ensuring the persons who are covering these positions from recruitment agencies receive the basic scale of the post they are covering and the minimum leave entitlement of civil servants?

Acting Clerk: Question 687. The Hon. L F Llamas.

540 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule with sub-contracted workers in the public sector including (a) since when has the person been sub-contracted; (b) reason for cover; and (c) the Department providing services for?

Acting Clerk: Question 688. The Hon. L F Llamas.

545 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of officers in the public sector who were temporarily promoted including (a) the grade the officer holds; (b) the grade the officer has been temporarily promoted to; (c) date of temporary promotion; and (d) the department.

550 Acting Clerk: Question 689. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of vacant posts in the public sector including (a) grade; (b) dates since when the post has been vacant; and (c) the department.

555

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the GSLP Liberal Government is committed to maintaining the number of civil servants at the level at which the previous Government had left it in December 2011.

560

Between 2011 and 2015 the numbers were increased, not as a result of representations from the staff side, in the majority of cases, but in order to meet the demands created by the implementation of Government manifesto commitments and other policy decisions. These additional Civil Service numbers are spread over the whole of the service and are therefore above the threshold inherited in 2011.

565

As has been repeatedly stated, the Government is now undertaking an efficiency review in the light of changing working methods and technology, in particular the introduction of e-government which requires less manual processing of paperwork. The vacancies are therefore on hold to be reviewed once we see the effect of the implementation of the changes in technology.

570

Given that the GSD and in particular the former Leader of the Opposition regularly criticised us for having invested in and grown the size of the Civil Service, it is incomprehensible that he should now, in the light of his alleged impending departure from this Parliament, be pressing for positions to be filled when they became vacant. Indeed, I memorably recall, Mr Speaker, statements that, in the GSD's view, the Civil Service was bloated.

575

It is really quite remarkable, therefore, that they should now seemingly be asking us to further increase the numbers, unless they have changed their position on this also in the past few months.

As regards the rate of pay of supply workers, this is determined by the recruitment agencies that provide these workers; they are not employees of the Crown and will not be paid Civil Service salaries.

580

In fact, Mr Speaker, quite recently I recall the acting caretaker Leader of the Party opposite and Leader of the Opposition, saying 'Civil Service pay is not based on merit. There is no merit in it at all. There is just relativity', he said.

585

The Hon. Mr Llamas, having been a civil servant, knows that prior to 2011, shortages in Departments were not provided with supply staff. Departments were therefore expected to cope with shortages with the existing staff remaining. They had to cover the work of absent colleagues themselves or have individuals temporarily allocated to the departments where shortages were greatest.

590

Mr Llamas will also know that the introduction of supply staff was an initiative of the GSLP/Liberal Government in order to ease the pressure on civil servants in departments that were experiencing staff shortages for a variety of reasons.

I am not sure if this innovative and positive introduction of temporary cover is one of the things he was on about, when he said almost exactly two years ago that he had seen things in the Tax Office that worried him so much that he decided he had to stand for election with the party he has since left!

595

There is, of course, no shortage of candidates – if you will excuse the pun – for the supply list, given that being employed in the provision of supply services greatly improves the prospects of recruitment when vacancies arise. The experience gained is also useful when applying for vacancies that arise in the private sector.

600

The public sector as a whole includes the Civil Service and the employees of Government agencies, authorities, companies, etc. but does not have a complement of posts in the way the Civil Service itself does. As a result, there are no vacant posts as such.

605 That is to say, if one employee moves from one agency to another agency, authority or company, or within the departments of any such entity, it is not the case that he or she leaves behind a vacancy that requires filling.

This was in fact one of the great disadvantages that the GSD under Sir Peter Caruana put forward at the time that it decided to fragment the unified Civil Service and convert it into a range of different employers as separate Government agencies, authorities and companies.

610 The Hon. Mr Llamas has said that he still believes in the positions set out in a whole host of issues as set out by Sir Peter. I am, sure, therefore that the fragmentation of the Civil Service which I have alluded to must have enjoyed his support.

615 This Government believes that that fragmentation ushered in by the GSD has led to diseconomies of scale and ways are being explored of addressing and correcting this problem through the efficiencies which I have referred to at the beginning of this answer.

As regards the Civil Service positions, I will write to the hon. Gentleman in coming days to provide the figure requested.

620 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I have to say that I do not know who is the greatest disciple of Sir Peter Caruana – the Hon. Mr Llamas or the Hon. the Chief Minister! Today I have seen something that I did not think I would ever see and that is, quoting word for word an answer that Sir Peter had given when he was there and he prays in aid of that answer in order to answer us a question from this side of the House.

625 Mr Speaker, the reality in relation to the question that I have asked, the AA vacancies – and I am not commenting one way or the other about whether they should be filled or whether they should not be filled; I am asking a specific question about Government policy in relation to those vacancies – but the reality is that shortly before the General Election in 2015, the Hon. the Chief Minister made public statements and, if I may say, made a considerable song and dance about the fact that those AA vacancies had come out and that they were going to be filled and that here you had a situation where ‘This nasty Opposition, led by Daniel Feetham, wants to contract the Civil Service, whereas here we are in Government, led by me and we are releasing these vacancies.’

630 Now, that was over two years ago, because I think these particular vacancies, if my memory serves me right, were advertised either before December 2014, or just after December 2014. Therefore I think that the public deserve an answer as to how long at least will the process take for these efficiencies, so that we know one way or the other whether these vacancies are going to be filled.

640 Mr Speaker, may I also say this: that the position in relation to the public finances of Gibraltar and in relation to whether those public finances could stand increases in the Civil Service have been well known well before the 2015 election. The question therefore arises as to whether the Chief Minister was entirely candid with those people who were invited to apply for those AA vacancies just before the 2015 election.

645 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, a very nasty Opposition it was too – very nasty, Mr Speaker. (Interjection) So nasty in fact, Mr Speaker, that it made some of the elderly residents in our community fear for their savings in the Gibraltar Savings Bank because of investments that that bank or lending that that bank had done through Credit Finance. (Interjection by Hon. D A Feetham) No, no, Mr Speaker, I am sorry the hon. Gentleman raised the issue of public finances before the election and accused me of not being candid. I am going to deal with that point.

650 Mr Speaker: Briefly.

655 Hon. Chief Minister: And the lending that Credit Finance Company Limited had done to the Sunborn, Mr Speaker, which hon. Members said was a huge gamble that could go wrong,

Mr Speaker. I have not heard them say the word 'Sunborn' since that company announced that it had repaid Credit Finance entirely. (A Member: Hear, hear.) So, Mr Speaker, people will be putting the nastiness of that Opposition into its proper context, Mr Speaker.

660 But, Mr Speaker, it is true that I have quoted on two occasions Sir Peter Caruana as authority for a proposition in this House. I have done so advisedly, (Interjection) of course, because I am facing, in the context of this question in particular, the hon. Gentleman Mr Llamas who has said only in the previous meeting that he continues to believe in a place of hope called Peter Caruana and the way he used to do things, and I am dealing with the hon. Gentleman who is reputed to have said that Sir Peter Caruana was the greatest Gibraltarian of all time. (Interjection) Not of his 665 time or of our time, allegedly what he said, Mr Speaker, was that he was the greatest Gibraltarian of all time.

But I will give him a by on that because whether he said that he was the greatest Gibraltarian of all time, his time or our time, he thought him pretty good. (Laughter) And so what I do not want to do, Mr Speaker, is offend the hon. Gentleman's sensibilities by not quoting Sir Peter 670 with authority for a particular proposition.

Now, it also appears to me, Mr Speaker, that the only thing that unified them on that side of the House was Sir Peter Caruana and his iron fist, because nobody else seems to be able to keep them together, not even their common dislike of us sitting on this side of the House.

675 But having said all that, Mr Speaker, what I have answered is the question that he asked. 'Why are the vacancies on hold?', he asked. He did not ask until when, he asked why. That is Question 678/2017 and I have told him why in the context of my first answer.

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementary?

680 Hon. D A Feetham: Just one, Mr Speaker, because I do get a lot of representation. When?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I need separate notice of that question. That is not the question he asked.

Q679/2017
Developing the Rooke site –
London and Regional interest

685 Acting Clerk: Question 679. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, is London and Regional still interested in developing the Rooke site?
690

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, as drafted that question would appear to be one addressed to London and Regional.
695

Hon. R M Clinton: Well, Mr Speaker, I think the Chief Minister should be in a position to answer the question, in that he made a great big announcement during the Gib Day in London in October 2015, making a great big fanfare about London and Regional developing the Rooke site. Surely he can advise this House whether London and Regional are still interested in developing 700 the site.

705 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, he is not asking me whether we are involved in discussions with London and Regional or not. He is asking me, is London and Regional still interested in developing the site? Well, that is not a question addressed to me; it is a question addressed to London and Regional.

But perhaps, Mr Speaker, what I should do is instead of quoting Peter Caruana back at him, I should quote him back at him. Or is it that he has forgotten in the halcyon days when he did not carry the responsibility that he carries, perhaps for another few weeks or perhaps for longer, that he said before the summer, I would ask that we as politicians refrain from making 710 announcements until the ink is dry on the agreement and the money is in the bank.

So I am going to follow his advice, Mr Speaker, and now until an agreement is signed and the money is in the bank, I am not going to give him any information about what may be going on.

715 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I love hearing myself quoted back to me, it is always a good sign.

So, Mr Speaker, will the Chief Minister then confirm that he has no agreement signed with London and Regional?

720 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not think he needs to ask me that question because if I had, following his advice I would have made an announcement. So he might like to hear himself quoted back at himself, but he does not seem to pause to work out what it was that he said that is now being quoted back at him.

725 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, a very simple yes or no answer would be appreciated from the Chief Minister.

730 Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, you see the trained cross-examiner is me, Mr Speaker, and I am not here to answer questions in the way that the hon. Gentleman might wish.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I believe here on this side of the House we are the ones asking the questions, so therefore, Mr Speaker, I ask the Chief Minister once again: is there or is there not an agreement signed with London and Regional?

735 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, they are the ones asking the questions and we, Mr Speaker, are the ones answering them. Therefore, Mr Speaker, to use the parliamentary parlance used at Westminster, which he might be a little bit more schooled on by the end of the month, although it might or might not be of any use to him, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave a few moments ago.

Q680/2017
Blue Water development – Negotiations with Camoren Holdings Limited

740 Acting Clerk: Question 680. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, is the Government still in negotiations with Camoren Holdings Limited in respect of the Blue Water development?

745 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Now that is a better question, Mr Speaker, it is very easy. Yes, sir.

750

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, conscious of my previous statement about not saying anything until you have signed a deal, I assume that no deal has been signed yet with Camoren Holdings Limited.

755

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I refer the hon. Gentleman to the statements he made in lines 1715 to 1720 of the Hansard for this Parliament of Monday, 26th June 2017.

760

Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, I recall when I was a young boy, my grandmother used to tell me, El cuento de la buena pipita. When will this particular cuento de la buena pipita end, and when does the Government expect the process with Camoren Holdings – which is yet again, one of those which the hon. Gentleman announced with great fanfare before the 2015 General Election – when does he expect, if at all, that that process will bear fruit for the people of Gibraltar?

765

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, the problem is that the cuento de la buena pipita was one that I started to hear from the hon. the former greatest Gibraltarian of all time – (Interjection) Sorry, the former Chief Minister – he may still be the greatest Gibraltarian of all time in the hon. the former Leader of the Opposition's estimation – some years ago.

770

What I have told the hon. Gentleman is that we are in negotiations. When we are able to finish those negotiations in a way that is in the interest of the Taxpayer, we shall make an announcement. But, Mr Speaker, they cannot tell us not to make announcements until we have signed agreements and then press us to make announcements before we have signed agreements.

775

Mr Speaker, I do not tire of saying it although perhaps I have not said it whilst the current putative Leader of the party opposite and also of the Opposition has been in post, but this is starting to become reminiscent of Monty Python. They tell us to do one thing and then ask us to do another. I mean, it really is quite remarkable!

780

Hon. D A Feetham: But, Mr Speaker, does the Hon. the Chief Minister not agree that on this side of the House and indeed, by extension the rest of Gibraltar, can treat the announcements that he made in 2015 and this process now with Camoren Holdings Limited, with a huge, huge pinch of salt? Because you have a situation where this has now dragged on for more than two years and I think that people are entitled to a straight answer from the Chief Minister as to when he expects that process to be complete.

785

Or at least, for the Chief Minister to come to this House to say, 'Look, I made the announcement in 2015. Unfortunately there have been events that have overtaken that announcement and therefore I do not believe that this is going to happen.'

790

But this has now taken over two and a half years and certainly on this side of the House there is a significant amount of scepticism, even though of course we want it to succeed and of course we want it to come to fruition, but people are entitled to know, Mr Speaker, how long the Chief Minister thinks that this process is going to continue.

795

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, they announced two projects on the East Side development. The East Side Reclamation, as it was known until 1996 by those who were Members of the GSLP, was known as a rat-infested rubbish dump by the then GSD.

The morning after the 1996 election, that area became the East Side Reclamation also in their parlance, and then they did a deal with one developer and then with another, including Norman Foster Designs and for well nigh on the 15 years that they were in office they were telling us the 800 cuento de la buena pipita of the towers that Norman Foster was going to build on that land, right?

Now, in all of that time, I will recognise one objectively justifiable delay: the Joint Sovereignty issue, which stopped things for a considerable time in Gibraltar, it created uncertainty as to future investments in Gibraltar, because of course Joint Sovereignty with Spain does not create certainty that things are going to go better. Joint Sovereignty with Spain makes capital fly from the potential that Gibraltar might not be entirely British, as he and I completely agree.

805 Now, will he recognise that I have said beyond this House, on television on two occasions, that Brexit which happened months after we made this announcement has had a negative effect on the ability to deliver that project in that way and that therefore negotiations have been affected by that? Because I have said that already. I have said that already.

810 So we made one announcement about 24 months ago and something called Brexit happened about 18 months ago – at least the announcement by Mr Cameron of the referendum which halted everything and then the referendum more than 12 months ago, 16 months ago.

So, Mr Speaker, I have recognised that has had an effect on the Blue Water Development. Does he simply just want me to keep saying that? Because if he does, is it that he wants me to send out a signal of a lack of confidence in Gibraltar? Because I would have thought that in retirement, in semi-retirement or in active, what we all need to do is to demonstrate our confidence that Gibraltar is going to do very well in the future and that projects like Blue Water will not just take off; they will be a great success whoever is in Government to the profit of our whole community.

820 Hon. D A Feetham: Mr Speaker, of course everybody wants this particular project and many other projects to succeed. I am a partner in a business here in Gibraltar employing over 300 people. Part of the business belongs to me. If Gibraltar does not do well, I do not do well personally. I hope my children continue in Gibraltar, and continue to thrive and prosper in Gibraltar.

825 But I have a duty to discharge from this side of the House, as every Opposition Member on this side of the House has a duty to discharge, and that is to ensure that the Government is held to account through questions, particularly questions about projects of this nature, because people are entitled to know, Mr Speaker.

830 And therefore, I accept everything that the Chief Minister has said about Brexit – indeed, even before Brexit. If he reads my 2015 Budget speech, the Hon. the Chief Minister will see that I retraced the history of the East Side development. It was a particular project that when the Hon. the Father of the House was in Government, there was quite a lot of optimism that the first GSLP Government could pull off an East Side development and if they had, the economy would have grown even further than it did at the time.

835 But it is a particularly difficult project, it is not an easy project. There have been three Governments that have attempted to make this project a success. And all that, I accept. I accept all that.

840 But, Mr Speaker, I think that I am entitled on behalf of the people of Gibraltar the exercise of my role is to drill down and to see whether for example, it is envisaged that rather than having the Blue Water scheme, which is a rather grandiose scheme which the Government announced at the time would be worth £1 billion, whether it is now envisaged that there might be a smaller scheme worth significantly less.

845 And perhaps may I ask the Chief Minister, whether that is the position at the moment, whether the Government is trying to downscale or is talking about with the developers, the downscaling of this particular project from that £1 billion project to something that might be smaller, might be more manageable and then of course, we would be able to ask further questions and drill down further about whether that involves, for example, hotels, whether it involves a marina, etc.

850 But that is our job; our job is to ask questions in this House.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, really I always considered him a gift when he was Leader of the Opposition, and it is for reasons like this you see. He says in this tone of high representation and almost quasi-indignation, it is our role to ask questions, to get to the bottom, to dig. Whilst 855 he told us that the Budget speech from the now current Acting Leader of the GSD and of the Opposition was one of the best that he had ever heard. And in that speech we are told not to answer questions like the one that he has asked.

In other words, we are told by the one hand of the GSD make statements only when the ink is dry and we are told by him in righteous indignation, give us a blow by blow account of what is 860 happening on that plot. And he tells us that he has to come here to find out what is happening.

Well it may be, Mr Speaker, because he seems to have switched off a little bit from politics, that he is not watching quite as assiduously my Direct Democracies. But I have dealt with this question when I have had it asked of me by Members of that group of people that he used to consider the ring of steel, who nonetheless also honestly discharge their obligations as Members 865 of the fifth estate and ask me difficult questions. And I have given them the answer.

So I refer him, Mr Speaker to the detailed answers I have already given in public about the progress of negotiations in relation to the East Side and the potential for that plot to change, grow or to be in alternative use as it develops for the future for Gibraltar. It is at the end of the day a property lung for Gibraltar. It is an opportunity for further expansion and development, Mr 870 Speaker.

There is the opportunity that the plot might grow further, so that instead of there being a marina which houses boats, there may be more land which houses more properties for a larger development. So he need not, with his eye cocked on the gallery, hoping to see if he can persuade people that things may not be going quite so well, (Interjection) – the gallery is virtual 875 these days, Mr Speaker, it is not just current – that things might not be going as well, Mr Speaker, because look, what we all have to ensure is that things do go as well.

And Members on this side of the House, every single one of them works every hour that we have available in order to ensure that we do deliver on these and better deals for Gibraltar, across our geography and across our portfolios. Because that is our obligation and that is what 880 we will ensure happens and that is what will ensure that Gibraltar does very well, Brexit or no Brexit, Mr Speaker, for his children, for mine and for all future generations of Gibraltar.

Q681/2017

Mount Alvernia site– Potential sale to hotel developer

Acting Clerk: Question 681. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm if the site of Mount Alvernia has 885 been sold, or is being negotiated to be sold, for the amount of £53 million to a hotel developer?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I really do not understand that part of this question which goes to ‘or negotiated to be sold’ when that comes from exactly the person who asked me not to make any statements until things had been signed and ink was dry.
890

But, Mr Speaker, no sir, there have been no negotiations at all with any party at any time for any purpose or any price in respect of this site.

895 The hon. Member appears to have swallowed an empty rumour, hook, line and sinker. He should, however, have worked this all out for himself when we told him in September, in answer to Question 456/2017 that there were no plans to relocate Mount Alvernia.

Maybe he is getting forgetful, Mr Speaker, or maybe he just needs to learn not to believe everything he hears on his coffee mornings in Main Street and the bars and coffee shops of Gibraltar which he is happily sipping at Taxpayers' expense whilst Ministers are working hard for this community!

Q682/2017
Consultative Council –
Ad hoc membership

Acting Clerk: Question 682. The Hon. R M Clinton.

905 Hon. R M Clinton: Well, Mr Speaker, I thought it was part of my job description to meet the electorate, but never mind.

Mr Speaker, can the Government advise to whom it has written or communicated in respect of invitation to ad hoc membership of the Consultative Council and what was the selection criteria for each individual identified?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): It is his work description and all of our work descriptions to meet members of the electorate, which we all do, Mr Speaker. It is in nobody's work description to swallow rumours, hook, line and sinker – something of which they will happily accuse others in this House but do not realise they sometimes fall for too.

915 Mr Speaker, the Government will make a full announcement in respect of ad hoc membership of the Consultative Council in due course.

920 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if I may ask the Chief Minister, has he actually issued any invitations, as at today's date?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, sir.

925 Hon. R M Clinton: And, Mr Speaker, would he be willing to advise the House how many invitations have been issued?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, sir.

Q683-684/2017
Construction of affordable housing schemes – Financing

930 Acting Clerk: Question 683. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government advise how it intends to finance the construction of the three new affordable housing schemes announced on 28th September 2017?

935 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 684.

940 Acting Clerk: Question 684. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, how does the Government envisage to finance the affordable housing projects?

945 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the Government is considering a number of different options to finance the housing projects. As the House should appreciate, we are at an early stage of this process having only just sought expressions of interest that will help with the makeup of these buildings in the form of one-bedroom to four-bedroom properties.

950 This exercise will have an impact on cost, which will need to be included when financing the affordable housing projects. As is required for these large projects, we will be pursuing competitive procurement for this work. It is anticipated that the procurement notices will include a number of options including design, build and finance of these projects.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, if the Chief Minister would just indulge me, there is a question at the end of this.

960 Going back to the construction of the Aerial Farm site at Eastern Beach and the Coach Park site, in that development, those two developments, 944 units were created at a cost of about £115 million according to the press release in September 2013. That equates to about £122,000 per unit, add a bit of inflation, call that £133,000 per unit. For 1500 units, that would come to about £200 million.

965 Mr Speaker, what I would like the Chief Minister to advise is if with these ballpark figures – and again, they are ballpark – how would he intend to finance this construction? Is it by direct Government borrowing or will it be indirect Government borrowing, through Government-owned companies?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I do not do ballpark and I have already given my answer.

970 Hon. R M Clinton: Well, Mr Speaker, I will ask the question in much simpler terms. Does the Government intend to borrow directly in order to finance these projects?

975 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is not that I did not understand the question; it is as I told him, I do not do ballpark and I have already given the answer as to financing. It is in my first answer.

So as I said before, he will realise when he goes to the House of Commons what this phrase means: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave a few moments ago. It is already in that answer.

980 Hon. R M Clinton: So, Mr Speaker, if I recall his answer correctly, there was an element of design, build and financing. Can the Chief Minister then confirm that this design, build and financing will be with a Government company or with the Government of Gibraltar as the contracting party?

985 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, he just does not get it. The first sentence –

Mr Speaker: I am going to read out the first line of the answer.

Hon. Chief Minister: Exactly.

990

Mr Speaker: Maybe the hon. Member did not hear it.
The first line is:

the Government is considering a number of different options to finance the housing projects.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, it may be beneficial in future if we get a copy of that as well.
(Hon. Chief Minister: Exactly!) It is very difficult because you overpowered me with your wonderful speech.

995

Hon. Chief Minister: Thank you very much. It's the nicest thing you have ever said to me!
(Laughter)

1000

Mr Speaker: Any other supplementaries? We move on.

Q685/2017
Waterport Terraces purchases – Excessive delays

Acting Clerk: Question 685. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1005

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide details of the compensation paid to all who suffered 'excessive delays' in completing their purchases of Waterport Terraces?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1010

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the issue of delays on payment of compensation happened during the GSD administration, for which we are not accountable.

1015

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, this question has been filed as a result of their 2011 Manifesto where they pledged that they would be looking into paying out compensation. Therefore, can the Chief Minister confirm that this Government has not paid out any compensation to any purchasers of Waterport Terraces who have suffered excessive delays?

1020

Hon. Chief Minister: When this administration was elected, all those who had suffered damage had had the amounts paid to them or commitment to pay to them, entered into by the former administration which was the GSD administration.

We did a trawl, we sent out a notice, we received representations, we took advice and everybody who had suffered delays and had suffered loss, had had monies paid to them by then.

Q690/2017
Imperial Ocean Plaza –
Waiving of import duty for construction and fitting out

Acting Clerk: Question 690. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1025 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain whether it was this administration's decision to waive the import duty for the construction, fitting out and equipping of Imperial Ocean Plaza and if possible, the estimated revenue this project would have generated had the import duty not been waived?

1030 Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1035 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the certificate of exemption from import duty was signed by me on 3rd March 2017. The logic behind the decision is the same as has been the case in every instance that a Chief Minister has waived such duties – namely, to encourage development and economic activity and to ensure that such development occurs within a specific period.

It is not possible to gauge the level of import duty that would have been generated had it not been waived, as presently the site is still in its very early stages of development and very few imports have been registered.

Q691/2017

Question withdrawn

1040

Acting Clerk: Question 691. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I give notice that I have withdrawn this question. Thank you.

1045

Mr Speaker: This question has been withdrawn.

Q692/2017

Affordable home purchasers – Obtaining mortgages

Acting Clerk: Question 692. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1050 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government confident that eligible prospective affordable home purchasers will be able to obtain mortgages?

Acting Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

1055

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes sir.

Questions for Written Answer

Acting Clerk: Answers to Written Questions, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to table the answers to Written Questions numbered W131 to W188/2017.

1060

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): And, Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Hon. Mr Llamas for having withdrawn Question 691 after the discussion that he and I had earlier.

I now move, on a day that I note from a reference in that august daily Panorama is exactly 14 years after I left Hassans to go into politics in Gibraltar, as Leader of this House, it is now my pleasure to now ask that the House should adjourn sine die.

Mr Speaker

CONFIRMATION OF MINUTES

Clerk: Meeting of Parliament, Tuesday, 5th December 2017.

Order of Proceedings: (i) Oath of Allegiance; (ii) Confirmation of Minutes – the Minutes of the last meeting of Parliament, which was held on 20th October and 6th November 2017.

5

Mr Speaker: May I sign the Minutes as correct? (Members: Aye.)

Mr Speaker signed the Minutes.

10

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE CHAIR

Clerk: (iii) Communications from the Chair.

15

Mr Speaker: Hon. Members, yesterday the Hon. Roy Clinton formally signified to me his intention to step down as Leader of the Opposition.

In a parliamentary democracy such as ours it is the long-established convention that the post of Leader of the Opposition is held by that elected Member of the Opposition who commands majority support from his elected colleagues sitting on the Opposition benches.

20

I have also been formally notified in writing that the elected Members of the GSD decided yesterday morning that the Hon. Elliott Phillips should, as from today, discharge the duties of the post of Leader of the Opposition. Accordingly, I now formally recognise him and congratulate him as such. Consequentially, this Parliament will also now recognise the hon. Member as the Leader of the Opposition.

25

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, thank you very much for that acknowledgement of the role of Leader of the Opposition.

30

Of course, I should comment from the start that the GSD has had a democratic vote insofar as the leadership of the party is concerned and returned Mr Azopardi with 65% of its members and 60% of a combined vote between the executive and the membership. Therefore, our view is and will currently be from now on that Mr Azopardi will lead the GSD. However, I understand what Mr Speaker has said in relation to convention, practice and everything else that concerns the role of Leader of the Opposition in this House.

35 What I would say is this, though, Mr Speaker. I have no concern as to who addresses me as what; what I want to do is get on with the job that I have been asked to do and hopefully do it as well as I can and to the best of my abilities.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

40 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, it is my pleasure to get up to congratulate the Hon. Mr Phillips for being recognised as Leader of the Opposition, therefore as Leader of the GSD in this House, and to thank Mr Clinton for the way that he discharged his obligations as Leader of the Opposition in the short time that he did so. I think we enjoyed a combative on-stage and convivial off-stage relationship, which I hope I will also be able to emulate with 45 Mr Phillips. Mr Speaker, Bob Peliza had one, Joshua Hassan had four, you had one, Joe Bossano had two, Peter Caruana had two and I have got four, three in just one year – Leaders of the Opposition, that is. It is a pleasure to see that we are going to have now the opportunity to cross political swords.

50 What we are referred to in the context of this Parliament is important in the context of our parliamentary democracy. We have a system of laws which requires us to refer to each other by a particular way. Hon. Members are the first to grab Standing Orders when they think that we are imputing their motive or otherwise breaching the rules. We will not do so. We will recognise the Hon. Mr Phillips as the Leader of the Opposition in this Parliament and outside it, insofar as parliamentary precedence requires.

PAPERS TO BE LAID

55 Clerk: (iv) Petitions; (v) Announcements; (vi) Papers to be laid – the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to lay on the table the Audited Accounts of the Gibraltar Regulatory Authority for the year ended 31st March 2017.

60 Mr Speaker: Ordered to lie.

Questions for Oral Answer

INFRASTRUCTURE AND PLANNING

Q697/2017

Pedestrian experience – Measures to make safe and pleasurable

Clerk: We commence with Question 697. The Hon. T N Hammond.

65 Mr Speaker: I am glad to see he made it! (Laughter)

Hon. T N Hammond: Oh, barely caught my breath! Thank you, Mr Speaker.

What measures have been introduced since January 2016, and I quote, 'to make the pedestrian experience a safe and pleasurable one'?

70 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, there have been numerous pedestrian enhancements since January 2016.

75 Four new zebra crossings have been installed in several areas throughout Gibraltar, namely on Rosia Road by Bayview Terraces, Europa Road by Shorthorn Farm Estate, Europort Avenue at the entrance to the hospital, and by Midtown Coach and Car Park on Reclamation Road.

In addition to these zebra crossings we have also installed a much needed light-controlled crossing by Ocean Views facility on Europa Road to facilitate the users and visitors of the centre alike.

80 Following on from the highly successful countdown timers situated at the traffic-light crossing at the Line Wall Road junction by City Hall, we announced in July this year the installation of two new countdown timers to the light-controlled crossings in the area of Waterport Road, one by the eastern side of the Water Gardens complex and the other at Queensway junction with Waterport roundabout. Further enhancements to existing light-85 controlled crossings are planned to be rolled out at other crossings throughout Gibraltar.

With regard to improving pedestrian safety and encouraging walking, several schemes have been rolled out, which include the following: a new pavement along Governor's Street and the beautification and pedestrianisation of Wellington Front.

90 Main Street and Irish Town delivery times and restrictions have also been implemented successfully to limit the amount of vehicles entering and conflicting with the main pedestrian zone. In addition to this, three new commercial loading and unloading zones have been created at Fish Market Road, John Mackintosh Square and Main Street South. These loading and unloading commercial zones have effectively and positively segregated commercial vehicles from the main pedestrian thoroughfare, thus making Main Street and Irish Town a safer 95 environment for the general public to enjoy.

New pedestrian walking sign improvements have recently been installed by Waterport Road from the Waterport roundabout to the Cruise Terminal. These improvements form part of the sustainable travel initiatives to promote walking and accessibility around Gibraltar, which builds on already installed signage by the area by Midtown Car Park and city centre directional signage 100 by Waterport Road, Reclamation Road and by Corral Road. Walking time signs will also, in due course, be implemented at key locations showing approximate route times, which will aim to enhance and encourage walking and at the same time highlighting distances to key destinations to pedestrians who are unfamiliar with the surrounding areas.

105 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, the Minister has certainly read out an extensive list of, when you add them up, relatively minor things in terms of improving the pedestrian experience.

My experience in general, walking around Gibraltar – Main Street excepted, because it is a pedestrianised area – is that obviously the majority of Gibraltar is not pedestrianised and therefore it is noisy, with often polluted walks; pavements are usually uneven and difficult to 110 navigate also, particularly in the area of the Frontier, around Queensway, Rosia Road – in fact many of the areas where otherwise it would and should be a rather pleasant experience to walk, and the conditions at present do not encourage people to walk.

Does Government have a programme in place to improve pavement surfaces to make them more easy to navigate? And are there any plans to pedestrianise other areas in order again to 115 enhance that pedestrian experience?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it very much depends on which side of the House you are on, because in my mind there have been vast amounts of improvements in terms of pedestrian safety and comfort. Obviously, the hon. Member will look at things from the other side and try to find where the potholes are and where the nooks and crannies are; that is part of the game we play here. But I think no one can deny the fact that vast improvements have been made and the Government continues, as recently happened with Governor's Street – an area where there has traditionally never been a pavement, an area where you would walk out of a business, walk out of an establishment and find yourself right on the road ... In certain places around Gibraltar it is impossible to make small narrow roads safer in that respect, but every effort and opportunity possible is taken to make the pedestrian experience safer. We also look very carefully at areas where there are vehicles constantly obstructing. For example, the obstruction to pedestrian access on pavements: when cars are parked on pavements we make sure that these cars are removed, or fined, or taken care of in that respect. As part of general highways maintenance, Highways is constantly looking at improvements, especially when it comes to accessibility. We look at drop curbs we look at the studded surfaces before you get to zebra crossings to ensure that people with disabilities are also able to enjoy the public footpath.

As part of the Sustainable Traffic and Transport Plan, clearly we want to encourage people to walk, we want people to adopt that form of transport, so to speak, in preference to the motorised vehicle, and every effort will be made to make the experience better – as we have seen as well in Main Street, where the filling of the tiles in Main Street has also made that a much better and more comfortable thing to do for people, especially persons wearing high heels, and that is something which has been mostly carried out. I think there is a small area remaining, but it is another important improvement.

As part of the Traffic Plan, as the initial question did specify, the next stage is actually quantifying distances so people are aware that the town centre is only a mere five-minute walk and it is probably going to take you a lot longer to find parking, if that is what you are inclined to do.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I would just like to point out that I do not actually go out looking for pot holes; they tend to find me – because there are so many of them – if I just happen to stumble into them.

You did raise Main Street, Minister, and you mentioned the cobbles being filled in. Has that project been completed? My understanding is that there are still areas of Main Street which have not been finished.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, that project in fact should be close to completion now. A vast area has already been carried out. It has been done over two financial years. I have mentioned the project and I am pretty sure it is almost ready. I think there is a little bit of work left to do, but in the main it is almost ready. Obviously, if it is not ready, then it is very close to it.

Q698/2017
Vehicle MOTs – Emissions testing

Clerk: Question 698. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, having conducted a small survey with approximately 20 respondents, 90% of them indicated that their vehicles did not undergo emissions testing during their MOT. Can the Minister say why testing is not being conducted, despite this being a legal requirement, and how he reconciles this failure with Government's commitment to improving air quality?

165 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, in order to answer this question accurately it would be useful to see how the survey was conducted and how the questions were defined – for example, the class, type and propulsion of vehicles and the dates 170 on which those vehicles were tested at the Vehicle Test Centre. This is because, under our legislation, certain vehicles – for example, vehicles registered or put into service before 1st January 1980 – are exempted from the Opacity tests, or it may have been the case that a vehicle emission analyser may have had to be sent to Madrid to undergo major repairs or calibration due to the fact that calibrating the equipment is a requirement for emission testing.
175 Therefore, without approximate dates it is difficult to give you an accurate answer.

Notwithstanding, if it were the case that the gas analysers were out of action, as specified in our legislation, when this equipment is out of service vehicle testers undertake visual inspection tests in order to ascertain if vehicles have leaks which could affect emission measurements.

180 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, surely just a visual analysis would not actually give you any indication as to whether the catalytic converter is working, whether what level of emissions, whether there is a tolerable level of emission; it is just quite impossible to tell in that respect.

I can tell the Minister that my own two vehicles were a motorbike – a moped 125 – and a saloon car. Both underwent MOT tests this year, neither was tested, and that seems to be the 185 general response when people are asked: that vehicles are not tested.

I understand if the equipment is not serviceable it would be unfortunate that there is not any kind of proper way of measuring and that vehicles may get through the net that way, but certainly it would appear to me that it would not account for the volume of vehicles which are not undergoing proper emissions testing.

190 Of course, this is a very important matter because it does directly affect the quality of the air we breathe, particularly as pedestrians if we are walking around alongside a highway and we are breathing those fumes, so it is very important that vehicles are tested. Therefore, I would ask the Minister to look at the way things are done in that respect to see how tests are conducted, to understand how frequently these emissions-testing machines are unserviceable, if that is the 195 case, and certainly for the legislation to be applied to ensure that our air quality is as good as it can be with respect to emissions from vehicles.

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, a survey of 20 vehicles – of which two were the hon. Gentleman's himself, as he seems to have alluded to there – is not a very big sample. It is very 200 unfair to say that the tests have not been happening for a long period of time.

I think we agree that air quality is paramount to us and obviously to increase the benefits to those people who do decide to walk.

The catalytic converters ... as I said, because I do not have an exact date I cannot really say whether it was as a result of a piece of equipment that had been down or otherwise. In fact, 205 recently there was a situation whereby the test equipment was down because of our proximity to salt water and sand at the actual MOT venue. The wind blows – it is always a very windy environment – it gets into the system and they need to be serviced more regularly than expected. So that can happen, there can be a period of that and I think there was a period where perhaps both of the items were down. But again, do we stop MOTs? Do we put a halt on 210 everything? The best thing that can be done under the circumstances is to carry out a visual inspection and, as the hon. Member has rightly said, they will be caught up in the next one, but there is little more that can be done in that respect.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

215

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just one question in relation to that. It is an issue that has been raised directly with me by a number of young people who have not clearly taken part in this survey that my hon. Friend has conducted. What I would say is, given the fact that the Government is committed to the environment and certainly Dr Cortes has said to us on a number of occasions ... made submissions in relation to improving air quality – and I entirely agree with the Government's position with improving air quality – should we not encourage those that are working in the relevant Department to ensure that this legal requirement is conducted? Because the information that I receive from young members of the public who are interested in the environment, interested in air quality and improving it, is that they should be given that reassurance that the Government is doing everything it can to improve the air quality of our community.

220

225

Hon. P J Balban: Indeed, Mr Speaker, everything that can be done is done. The only issue is, as I said, because I do not have the dates in particular I do not know whether this 18 or 20-person survey ... whether these are the ones that you have captured as well within your membership, or not.

230

But if there is a moment in time when the equipment that is used is down – and it has to be serviced in Madrid and it is sent away regularly ... If the machine has broken down and there are none available of the two I think we have in our possession, then obviously for that short period of time while servicing or repairs happen there is little we can do. I am actually looking with the Department at the possibility of purchasing a third unit to be sure, but again you could have a situation ... Where do you draw the line? It is a bad environment, a lot of sea water, as I have said, a lot of sand and a lot of wind. They are very sensitive pieces of equipment. Particles get into the system and make the system fail, and once they fail, obviously they do not provide accurate results and they need to be serviced and they need to be repaired.

235

So I think it has been an unfortunate event that has happened because again this is not a complaint that has been happening or coming to us for a very long period of time; it has just been for a short period. As I said, I cannot specifically say without a time range whether it was to do with that.

Q699/2017

No idling signs –

Progress; introduction of legislation

245

Clerk: Question 699. The Hon. T.N. Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, has Government made any progress regarding the placement of no idling signs in key areas around Gibraltar, and does it envisage introducing legislation accordingly?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, yes, no idling signs have been installed before approaching the runway in both northern and southern approaches.

255

There are no imminent plans for introducing legislation at present, but this option is still a possibility.

Q700/2017
Government vehicle fleet –
Expression of interest re leasing

Clerk: Question 700. The Hon. R M Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, further to Question 101/2017 and Question 237/2017, can 260 the Government advise if it has made a decision in respect of the one expression of interest received for the leasing of its vehicle fleet; and if so, what are the financial terms agreed?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the answer remains 265 as set out to Question 101/2017.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I would be grateful if the Minister could indicate to the House 270 whether, given that the tender, I believe, was in December 2016, whether the Government now has abandoned the idea of leasing its vehicle fleet, seeing as we are now obviously in December 2017.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman and I have exchanged 275 views in respect of this on a number of occasions. In fact, I seem to recall that when the tender came out the hon. Gentleman said something about the Government obviously being desperate to sell every asset it had to raise money, including its vehicle fleet. Well, if nothing else, the delay shows that he was wrong about that, but the Government is considering the best possible options for the taxpayer. Making that determination is not an easy one because it is a fairly large fleet that we have, so it is not that we have abandoned the idea but it is not something that can 280 move very quickly and it is not something that the Government needs to see move very quickly, but it is an idea that is being analysed in great detail.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his intervention.

If I may ask him: what is the main consideration? Obviously value for money for the taxpayer 285 must be at the top of the list, but is there anything in particular in respect of the original tender that is causing the Government to consider it for over a year now? Or a year, let's say.

Hon. Chief Minister: And what a year it has been, Mr Speaker! Not just three Leaders of the 290 Opposition in one year, but also I worked out, once I was sitting down, that there are now more Members of the GSD in this Parliament who have been Leader of the Opposition than those who have not been. So, Mr Reyes and Mr Hammond, there are still two years to have a crack at the whip, so to speak!

That aside, the issue is value for money. Making the assessment is not easy, because we have 295 such a disparate fleet that whilst in respect of some vehicles in the fleet the leasing option may be a good one, when you start to get into the types of vehicles that we have it is not always clear that when you bring the whole fleet together the maths stack up on the basis of this being better value for money. Therefore, that is an exercise that has to be done in very great detail.

To give the hon. Gentleman some idea of the issues, if you are dealing with a vehicle like a 300 vehicle for conveying VIPs, that tends to have quite a long shelf life, it tends to be easy to look after that vehicle, and so changing that vehicle every three years, which is the sort of thing that a fleet option gives you, does not necessarily deliver the best value for money, depending on how that lease is structured and what you pay for the lease of that vehicle. When you are dealing with a refuse vehicle, then the turnover there might be slightly different but the vehicle is also a more expensive vehicle to procure. You can extend the shelf life of that vehicle with 305 very able mechanics, and the Government has very able mechanical abilities at its disposal either in house or bought in. So, doing the exercise of what we expect a vehicle to give us in terms of shelf life and the replacement of that vehicle, which then needs to work for whoever is 310 extending the fleet deal to us – they need to have something which is not just a wreck at the end of it, they need to be able to realise the value of that vehicle as well – is not an easy exercise, and that is what is taking time to determine. We could simply say, ‘This is too difficult, we’ll stop trying to do the exercise,’ but if the final conclusion of the exercise is that it is better value for money for the taxpayer, then we should not turn our backs on such an exercise simply because it is potentially harder to reach the conclusion that we might have wished or wanted that to be the case.

315 He can rest assured that there is no urgency in needing to hock the Government’s fleet of vehicles – as he might have, in a moment of madness, tweeted a year ago. The exercise is an ongoing one. It may be that it comes to a conclusion which sees no further action taken or it may mean that it comes to a conclusion that sees us act on the proposals put to us.

Q701/2017
Fixed Penalty Notices –
Updated schedule

Clerk: Question 701. The Hon. L F Llamas.

320

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, further to Question 450/2017, can the Government provide an updated schedule, together with (a) the number of FPNs paid, (b) the number of FPNs pending payment, and (c) the number of FPNs cancelled, together with the reasons why?

325

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the information requested by the hon. Member is detailed in the schedule that I will now hand over.

330 No FPNs are cancelled as the speeding offences, as captured by the static speed cameras, are vetted by the RGP before they go to the next stage in the procedure, which is the issuing of NIPs (Notice of Intended Prosecution). The RGP will filter out all foreign-registered vehicles, emergency service vehicles and front-facing motorbikes. They will also remove from the system offenders caught speeding over 100 kph, as they will go to them directly and arrest them for dangerous driving.

Q703/2017

Private parking spaces and garages resulting in loss of public parking spaces –
Technical Services' support or objections

Clerk: Question 703. The Hon. L F Llamas.

355

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide details of cases where the Technical Services department have supported or objected to regarding the development of private parking and garages being constructed which have resulted in loss of public parking spaces, including (a) the date, (b) the number of public parking lost or potentially lost, (c) the number of private parking/garages applied for, and (d) the reasons why the application was supported or objected to?

360

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Infrastructure and Planning.

365

Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, the Technical Services department is a consultee to the Town Planning department on all planning applications received by them.

370

Technical Services comment on matters relating to civil engineering, highways and sewerage infrastructure. They do not, however, maintain a database of the comments that they provide to the Town Planning department, as this is beyond their remit.

Since December 2011 there have been a total of 2,818 planning applications and 89 demolition applications and it would therefore be an extremely laborious task to check through all the applications and comments to identify those instances where the department supported or objected to an application regarding the creation of private parking spaces or garages.

375

Technical Services has discussed the matter with Town Planning, who hold the repository for applications, and they too have confirmed that checking applications for that particular information being requested would require a manual search, which would be laborious and time consuming. Minutes of the DPC meetings, which this Government made public and which are now online, may disclose some such information. The hon. Gentleman has access to those minutes and can review them for himself.

380

Notwithstanding the above, the Technical Services department can confirm that, as a general rule, if the application involves the creation of more car parking spaces within the property/garage than will be removed from the public highway, then the proposal would be supported on the basis that this will produce a net gain of parking – e.g. removal of one car parking on the public highway to create two or more within the property or status quo.

385

On a final point, whilst this is Technical Services' position on these matters, it is ultimately the Traffic Commission who have the authority on these matters and they in turn also advise Town Planning on whether particular applications are approved or not.

390

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, coming back to Question 701, can I ask what the Government is doing with regard to the unpaid FPNs, which seem to be quite a lot in some cases? There are more unpaid than paid, especially –

395

Mr Speaker: If we are going to discuss FPNs again, I think it would be useful for the general public who may be watching these proceedings to know that FPNs are Fixed Penalty Notices.

Hon. L F Llamas: Yes, Mr Speaker, you are right; unfortunately, we have become accustomed to calling the abbreviated version of it in this House.

Could I ask what the Government is doing with regard to the unpaid Fixed Penalty Notices going back ... from May, June and July in particular, which are quite high months, where the ratio is that there are more unpaid than paid Fixed Penalty Notices?

405 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, every effort is made to follow up and get offenders to pay for their FPNs. There are circumstances whereby it is extremely difficult because the addresses for the particular vehicle in question may not be correct and therefore the NIP may arrive at the wrong address because the person has not changed their details, for example, or a sale has occurred and the information is incorrect. There are quite a few occasions whereby we struggle to find the person in question, and that is predominantly, I think, one of the main reasons why fines remain unpaid, but every effort is made to chase up these records and, remember, these, do remain on file.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

415 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just a supplementary question in relation to that. It is a good question that the hon. Member makes in relation to unpaid fines because, clearly, if you cannot identify individuals within the system who should be paying these fines, you have an inordinate expense of trying to locate them, for one, and you have hundreds of fines out there unpaid, which are unlikely to be paid because the system clearly has not been updated to include the new addresses of individuals.

420 Does the Government consider whether there needs to be a legal requirement imposed on individuals so that they have to update their details with the relevant Department?

425 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, as far as I am aware, there is a legal requirement that when a sale takes place the owner should, in terms of the forms provided and the log book, pass on the details to the Department. If that does not happen, then obviously it is another issue, but it is obviously serious because we cannot track these people down. Clearly, it is something which we are looking at as a Department because it is not acceptable, this question of chasing these people in that respect.

430 Hon. E J Phillips: Just one other supplementary question. I agree, it must be extremely difficult, but we are looking at hundreds of fines here where people should really be paying their dues when they become due insofar as the fines are concerned. It is very difficult if you are just relying on the sale of vehicles in order to update the information, particularly when you cannot locate individuals, and it is likely – and I am sure the Minister would agree – that these fines are likely to be unrecoverable in the future.

435

440 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, it could be the case where a fine could be unrecoverable. Every effort is made, but it is a legal obligation. When you sell a car on you need to notify the Department and they should keep up-to-date records for this particular reason. But obviously there are quite a few occasions when this is not possible. As I said, the Ministry is looking at ways to improve this, but this is something which has been the case for years and years and we do accept it is something that we have inherited and it is something which has been a fact for many years. But it is a legal obligation. I think people are aware and the forms do state when you pass on a vehicle ... And it does happen. In all fairness, when you sell a car, some of it is that goodwill that goes on. You sign your part of the form and the person is meant to sign their part of the form, and that does not happen. So all that process is being looked at together.

445

450 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, I apologise, but just one more. Clearly, the example that my hon. Friend is giving, the Minister, is in relation to when a purchase is sold and bought by individuals, but what happens in the case where one just simply has a vehicle for years and does not sell it but does not update their details? Clearly there is an entire historical backlog of fines that remain unpaid. I appreciate that this may be something that he may have inherited from a previous administration, but clearly, in the context of that situation, surely there must be something that the Government can do to ensure that fines are paid.

455 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the whole matter is being addressed, but as the hon. Member rightly says, it is not just at the point of sale. People do move addresses, people do change addresses, and at every single MOT, in theory, that should be carried out and there should be a check of addresses.

460 It is very difficult because it does happen in Gibraltar where people remain at their parents' address even though they have moved away. There is a lot of that happening, where people remain at their old address because somebody related to them remains at that address, and that is a problem. But as I said, the Department is looking at all these issues.

465 Because of FPNs related to speeding, it is something which has come to light even more so in that respect because this is not a policeman at the end of the gun stopping you and taking down details, this is an automated system which takes a photograph of the car and then it is up to the Government or the officials to look and search for the person who committed the offence. As I said, the Department is looking at this to see how we can, if possible, update the log books, because it is an issue – and not just what we inherited, it is what the previous administration inherited themselves. It is something that has been the case for many years, but as a result of this new system of capturing FPNs automatically through machines, speed cameras, the 470 importance of it is being highlighted even more so.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Edwin Reyes.

475 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, if I may – and I know you like us to put things as a question – is the Minister fully satisfied that the best type of customer service relationship exists?

I have spent the last month having to help a particular constituent who received a Fixed Penalty Notice issued in his name to the proper address, claiming that there was an offence committed by registration number such and such, and it was identified as a vehicle of a particular colour. This constituent came to see me and said, 'The vehicle I own happens to be a 480 motorbike, not a car as stated in this fine,' and the colour obviously is now totally irrelevant and the location where the parking offence is supposed to have taken place is nowhere near an area where he frequents.

In trying to help this individual I picked up the phone and rang the office there. I was told in a very courteous – not rude, but very courteous – manner, 'In order to cancel that, you have got 485 to come here to the office, fill in a form and sign it.' When I relayed that message to the individual he said, 'I'm not going to take a day's leave to sort out what is an administrative error, because I have made this attempt to correct it.' So I said, 'Well, look, it's up to you what you do.'
Within a month he got another reminder letter. This time, I went in person and they said, 'Look, we know you mean well, but you are not the person named here. I am sorry, we cannot deal 490 with you.' So the matter remains pending and unresolved with the individual fearing that he is going to receive a notice to make an appearance in court for failure to pay a fine, having to take a day's leave to appear there to then find that the vehicle does not belong to him.

With a little bit of detective work, because Gibraltar is relatively small and we were able to find out, it now appears that because one has the model of the car and the colour we have 495 found that the registration number is a mistake – made by the officer issuing the parking ticket – with the letter at the end. This individual was able to do that in his leisure time. Surely those who are being paid could, somehow or another, go on the computer system and say, 'Have we made a mistake and put an A instead of a B or a C?' It is all to do with customer relationships that may or may not help us collectively to solve this problem. I pose that to the Minister.

500

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I thank the hon. Member for his positive contribution.

As I said, there is a cancellation process and sometimes ... This is the first complaint of that nature that I have heard, and undoubtedly there may be others but if Notice of Intended Prosecution is sent to you erroneously, then it should be possible to be able to sort that out 505 without having to go there. But if that fails, there is a process and the risk is that if the cancellation is not carried out there could be the situation whereby you could receive a letter or summons to go to court for that purpose.

I thank you for your contribution and if it is somebody specifically we can have a chat behind the Speaker's Chair and I will look into the issue for the hon. Gentleman, but I suppose it is something that can happen – I cannot say that it will not.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, if I may.

Mr Speaker: This is the last supplementary I will accept on this question.

Hon. T N Hammond: Thank you, and the question is not related to any question that has been asked so far.

Mr Speaker, during the Minister's initial answer to Question 701 he referenced the fact that the RGP screen a number of vehicles before sending out the Fixed Penalty Notices. I believe Emergency Services were one of those categories but I think he also said forward-facing motorbikes and I just want a clarification as to as opposed to a backward facing motorbike, or is that the aspect of the motorbike? Just a little bit of clarification. And is it the case, therefore, that motorbikes that are photographed by a speed camera in their forward-facing aspect are not being fined or cannot be fined, or are they taken down a different mechanism?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, I think we have had this discussion before in Parliament. There are cameras at the moment ... not all cameras can take pictures in both directions, so what happens is that if a person is caught with a motorbike forward facing there is no number plate in the picture; hence at the moment, depending on the sight, unless the motorbike is going at a horrendously high speed – which I have mentioned before generally is over 100 kph, whereby the Police will then look at it as dangerous driving or careless driving and they will go for the individual in question by other means – they will try to visually recognise the person without having to use the number plate.

There are a few cameras that will not take rear-facing pictures and in fact we have already received equipment to be able to tackle that issue. Remember, when we brought out the speed cameras it was a pilot study, it was something that was needed, something that we had never had in Gibraltar before, and they were placed in different locations trying to maximise the use of these cameras as far as possible. It is not possible to have a camera facing each direction because it would not be viable in that respect. Now we are looking at other methods whereby we can start capturing vehicles from the rear or from the front.

But the screening process does happen where the RGP actually look at the speed camera results, making sure that they are not emergency vehicles, making sure that they are legitimately offenders, they are not persons who cannot be traced or are emergency services attending to a fire emergency, or whatever. That is why there is a screening process.

Mr Speaker: I am going to allow the Hon. Lawrence Llamas to raise a matter arising from the schedule to Question 702.

Hon. L F Llamas: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Looking at the schedule from Question 702/2017, which relates to the foreign vehicles which have been towed away, the majority of these vehicles have been towed away from cleaning campaigns and pay-and-display parking areas. I wanted to ask the Government if they will review the towing away of vehicles because obviously people have failed to display their ticket in the appropriate place in a public pay-and-display area. It would make sense that if they are going to have to be fined and clamped, they do not then have to actually go and search for the vehicle because the FPN is going to exceed what the daily rate of that ticket would be.

560 Would the Government consider not having to remove the physical vehicles if they are not actually obstructing anything which can be avoided in terms of not having to tow them away and look at that policy so that the person does not receive a negative impact when they are visiting Gibraltar?

Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, clearly the fine, whatever that may be, will generally be more than the figure that they would have had to pay if they had done it properly and had paid at the pay-and-display machine, regardless of whether it is a ticket in the window for £25, whether it is a clamp which guarantees the same, or whether the vehicle is towed away.

570 If you look at the schedule, there are vehicles that are towed away but for different circumstances, different reasons. If there is a clear obstruction to the highway then it is towed away. If it is obstructing the cleaning campaign as well and the company involved, Master Service, cannot get round and do the cleaning, a decision is taken whether to remove the vehicle or not. It is impossible to clean if the vehicle remains there.

575 Just generally there are a lot of complaints, because there are both sides to the coin: those people who feel that this poor person has come across, a tourist, and they have been punished for illegally parking; and there are others who say, 'Well, if you just place a ticket on the window ... or a clamp on the car you immobilise it, but I cannot use that parking, it remains out of use for me.' That happens a lot as well and you get a lot of pressure from people saying, 'What do I do?' That has happened very often in residential parking schemes, for example, where there is a vehicle which is constantly offending and the residents are saying, 'This car has not got a permit. What's going to happen?' We will place FPNs and we will try to control it to a certain level and not any further, and eventually we need to tow the car away.

580 So it very much depends on the circumstances, but if you look at the schedule provided it is not that any particular area has been targeted more than others. There is a very clear idea that it is happening throughout Gibraltar and not necessarily just areas where you expect tourists to be.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

590 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker –

Mr Speaker: Well, briefly. We have to move on.

Hon. T N Hammond: I understand, but this is on Question 702 rather than ...

595 Mr Speaker: Okay.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, it is just to understand whether Government has a particular policy or has implemented a policy or provided guidance to the companies who operate the towing of vehicles, considering that back in May 2016 we appear to have one vehicle towed, in July 2016 one vehicle, and then we come to May 2017 and it is something approximating 100 vehicles towed, and that trend, although it subsides somewhat, continues after that point. Has Government actually given instructions for a ... And this is not a criticism in any way; it is just to understand whether Government has given instructions for more vehicles to be towed away or whether this has just happened organically in some way.

605 Hon. P J Balban: Mr Speaker, the company responsible for providing this service operate themselves; they are not told to clamp more, tow away more or whatever.

There are certain key dates, if you look at the chart, where certain things have happened which perhaps have led to an increase in the fines or towing etc., and it could be, for example, when a residential parking scheme comes into effect or when there is an area which is due for 610 cleaning and it is a big area.

So it very much depends on the date in question, but I do recall that around ... For example, if you look at May, there are quite a few that have come from cleaning campaigns. Again, cleaning happens generally once a month. If, for example, an area is being left dirty because cars are constantly parking in the same places or the same cars keep on offending, then obviously there 615 is a need to clear those vehicles up and it could be that they are towed away.

But generally what has been the case with the residential parking scheme is that especially with zone 1 there has been an increase attributed to that, and as we roll out the other residential parking schemes that will happen. There is also generally a period of grace, so we will start off, we launch the scheme, give it grace, and then we have to start acting because 620 otherwise, if we are very lenient, the scheme fails from the start. It does not perform the function we expect it to and that is to the detriment of all residents.

This is obviously a tool that we have. It is the only way that we can actually make a scheme a success – or just turn a blind eye and it will not work. I think it is the company's responsibility to actually ascertain, to look, review and see how they manage this for us.

Q704/2017

Sewage treatment plant – Technical specification; awarding of contract

625 Clerk: Question 704. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, further to Questions 449/2015, 8/2016, 332/2016, the Minister's speech during the Appropriation Bill and Question 630/2016, can the Minister provide 630 an update on whether the technical specification for the sewage treatment plant is now understood and when Government might be in a position to award a contract?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

635 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, yes, sir, discussions have commenced with a preferred bidder, but given the position of the former Leader of the Opposition that we should not comment publicly on contracts until the ink is dry on agreements, it would be inappropriate to say more at this stage.

640 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q705/2017
Urban Renewal Programme –
Update

Clerk: Question 705. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, what has happened to the Urban Renewal Programme announced on 13th June 2013?

645

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
650 Mr Speaker, much has already been done in respect of urban renewal in the Upper Town in pursuit of the programme. Hon. Members can see progress for themselves if they care to wander in our magnificent Upper Town, although there is undoubtedly much yet to do.

Hon. Mr L F Llamas: Does the Minister have a schedule of what has been done and what 655 remains to be done?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: No, sir.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q706/2017
Upper Rock –
Entrance fees

660 Clerk: Question 706. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the Government reviewing the Upper Rock entrance fees? If so, can it reveal what changes will be made?

665 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, yes, it is. Details will be provided in due course.

Q707/2017
Dance and performing arts courses –
Grants awarded

670 Clerk: Question 707. The Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Education provide details in respect of all grants awarded during this current financial year, other than mandatory grants, to any students in respect of dance or performing arts courses, indicating if these courses being followed will be 675 in the United Kingdom or elsewhere, as well as indicating the qualification expected to be attained upon successful completion of said courses?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

680

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
Mr Speaker, all of our students undertaking a dance or performing arts course this financial year have been awarded mandatory grants.

685

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I clarify – mandatory grants being restricted to those who have completed A-level or A-level equivalent type of education?

690

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, mandatory grants in the normal manner of mandatory grants as opposed to the discretionary awards, which are for those who maybe come into a course later on or have not quite got the grades. That is the difference, as the hon. Member is well aware.

695

Hon. E J Reyes: Therefore, Mr Speaker, can I ... perhaps the wording in my question because I have asked in respect of grants awarded ... It could have been that a grant has been awarded but a course has not yet commenced. Is the Minister in his answer covering that? Or maybe because of the way I have put ... the answer ... I am giving him the benefit of the doubt, sir.

700

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the team in the Department of Education have looked at students currently undergoing dance or performing arts courses and have checked against those who are actually undergoing it now whether they are mandatory, and the answer is that all of them are. Therefore, the ones that are not, the answer is zero, which is the answer that I have given.

705

If there is any specific course or any specific student the hon. Member is referring to, perhaps he could ask me separately and I will be very happy to look into any particular case, but this is the information that has been extracted from our database.

710

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, if I take your leave, perhaps it may be better and save parliamentary time if the Hon. Minister and I meet behind the Speaker's Chair later and then we can follow it up if required.

Mr Speaker: Indeed, because I seriously consider that the question as framed has been answered.

Q708/2017
School classes –
Number of pupils

Clerk: Question 708. The Hon. L F Llamas.

715

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule of the number of pupils in each class during each school year since September 2012 as prepared by the Department of Education in preparation for the commencement of each academic year, stating
(a) the year the class relates to, (b) the school the class belongs to, (c) the number of children

720 with special needs, (d) the number of learning support assistants, (e) the number of teachers, and (f) any other staff allocated to each class?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

725 Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes): Mr Speaker, questions (a) to (d) were answered by me in reply to Question 612/2017 as overall figures per school.

As I have explained previously, allocations can change on a daily basis and so numbers per class cannot be provided overall. This applies similarly to (e) and (f), in fact possibly more so.

730

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, we always seem to stumble on this question. I find it hard to believe that the Department of Education would not have prepared a certain figure for each class and the number of pupils who would be attending each class. I understand that things could fluctuate but I am asking for class figures in order to know what the statistics are in all schools and an overall figure will simply not suffice.

735

Is the hon. Member able to answer this question, albeit following this session by e-mail as he has done on other occasions?

740 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, the hon. Member has asked very similar questions repeatedly over the last few sessions, always with a slight difference in wording. I have asked him –

Mr Speaker: That is why it gets by the Speaker, otherwise it would not. It is because there is a difference and it is not quite the same question that I am allowing it, but I can recognise the problems that the Minister has in trying to provide the information to the questions.

745

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I was not at all questioning that they had got through because, as I said before in my answer, there are subtle differences in the questions. But I fail to see what the hon. Member is getting to. If he were to sit with me and tell me, 'This is my concern and this is why I am asking,' then perhaps I would be able to assist.

750

We get asked for huge quantities of information on a regular basis, all very similar, when I have explained that the classrooms themselves have to be flexible and particularly when we get to learning support assistance and special educational needs when, as I have explained before, some children are assessed and they move on to the SEN group and then perhaps issues are resolved and they move back. It is very difficult to give this information.

755

If there is a specific problem that the hon. Member wants to catch me out on, ask me point blank and I will try and assist him in catching me out, but it is very difficult to get the information together in this way time after time.

760

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I am not trying to catch the Hon. Minister out on anything other than to get the information which I think is relevant. (Interjection by Hon. Dr J E Cortes) Well, it is relevant concerns with which parents come to me about class sizes. (Interjection by Hon. Dr J E Cortes) Well, Mr Speaker, all I want to do is to get statistics in order to just allay those fears and just lay out what the statistics are, and I do not think I am asking for any information which is too difficult to compile when the Department would have compiled this information in preparation for each academic year.

770 Obviously, I do have to tweak the questions in order to get them through, because I am not getting the answers I want – and it is not the answer that I want the Minister to give me; I just want the answer of what the statistics are.

Mr Speaker: If the hon. Member is not getting the answer that he wants here in Parliament, I would suggest to him that he accept the invitation of the Minister, go and see the Minister and try to thrash the matter out, and then come back to Parliament if necessary.
775 Next question.

Q709-717/2017

New and refurbished schools –

Clerk: Question 716. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

820 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Will the existing schools that will be undergoing refurbishment be worked on while pupils are present in the schools?

Clerk: Question 717. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

825 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Following last week's – or actually a couple of weeks ago now, given the parliamentary postponing – attendance by the Chief Minister and Minister for Education at the general meeting held with teachers, can Government confirm whether teachers are happy with the proposed new schools as well as with the plans for the schools that will be undergoing refurbishment?

830 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education.

Minister for the Environment, Energy, Climate Change and Education (Hon. Dr J E Cortes):
835 Mr Speaker, construction of Notre Dame will be carried out next to the current Notre Dame, after which St Anne's will be built next to the new Notre Dame. Construction will be carried out in a timely manner with as minimum disruption as possible and plans are in place to achieve this. This will be done by September 2018 and 2019 respectively.

Current pupils are just as important as those entering the system in 2019 and therefore their educational journey will not be compromised or affected in any way.

840 In answer to Question 711, Notre Dame School, 8.45 a.m., Monday, 3rd September 2018; the remainder 8.45 a.m., Monday, 2nd September 2019.

In answer to Question 712, yes, it has.

In answer to Question 713, the Government is, of course, undertaking this.

845 In answer to Question 714, details of the options of how this is to be achieved are given in the published Co-Education Report.

In answer to Question 715, expressions of interest have been invited for these sites.

There will be occasions – in relation to Question 716 – when this is inevitable, although we clearly will keep disruption to a minimum and ensure in particular that teaching and examinations are not affected and that absolute safety is ensured.

850 In answer to Question 717, our guiding principle has to be whether the proposed changes will improve the education of future generations of children who will go on to become the citizens of tomorrow. We have carried out a wide consultation exercise, and every indication is that teachers and the general public at large are happy overall. With any major change process there will always be diverging opinions and I, of course, respect these.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Marlene Hassan Nahon.

860 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, if I may interject on Question 713 as a supplementary: considering the transport impact assessment, wouldn't it have been more practical to have undertaken this assessment before designs were put out, because at this point whatever result comes out is pretty limited anyway, considering that the schools are going ahead, so even if we get a very negative report how can we change things anyway at this point?

865 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are in a stage when we can still make changes to the actual layout, particularly in those that are being designed now beyond the concept stage. Obviously, we are limited to the sites we have available in Gibraltar and there will be a certain amount of adaptation, but I am confident that if any major problems are identified we will be able to address these in the best manner possible.

870 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, following up on Question 713, from my understanding the parking underground at co-ed schools, for example, is going to be sold off. Will the Government be increasing public transport links to that area?

875 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, this is one of the matters that will be assessed in time for the opening of the new school in September 2019.

880 Hon. L F Llamas: Given, for example, Mr Speaker, that we will now have two co-educational schools where 2,000 pupils will be in one location and then we are going to have St Anne's and Notre Dame both together in the new location, this is going to come with its own impact in terms of transport and access. Is this not something that the Government has already taken into account?

885 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, is what something that the Government has already taken into account?

Hon. L F Llamas: The access to these new schools.

890 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker, it is taken into account. We are now refining as to how we can ensure that there is only minimum adverse effect, if any at all.

895 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, in relation to Question 712, I did not catch whether the Government has consulted with experts. However, the Education Minister has stated that schools that cater for over 2,000 pupils are undesirable and therefore I would like the Government to explain how they have concluded that two co-educational schools within the same campus is any better and of more benefit to the students.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, because they are two schools and not one.

900 Hon. L F Llamas: Is there a model that the Government has based this idea on, or is it a concept that this Government has come up with?

905 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we have two comprehensive schools at the moment. The Government committed to that, as opposed to the party that the hon. Member stood with, who wanted to convert into one, and we are being consistent because that is our policy and that had the wide support of the teaching profession at the time.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, a point of order, sir.

910 Mr Speaker: Yes.

915 Hon. E J Reyes: The Minister has referred that the party on this side obviously referring to the GSD, wanted to merge them into one I disagree with that completely, Mr Speaker. I think if we leave that out then the Minister, the hon. Member, can continue answering the question, but to bring us into it with a fact, or with what is alleged as a fact, which I would then need to refute is just wasting parliamentary time.

Mr Speaker: As I understand it, the Minister is referring to the policy that was promulgated by the GSD – is that the correct position, or isn't it?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: That is what I said.

920

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, the policy that was announced during the last General Election was clear. The GSD was not a proponent of a mega-school, the language that was used by the Government. In respect of our policy it is quite clear what we decided we wanted to do and that was to create an option for co-education, and of course we would have consulted with those stakeholders in relation to education. There was never the inkling of one mega-school; that is completely wrong. There was a TV debate that I had with the Hon. Neil Costa in relation to that very issue and it was language that was used by the GSLP to denigrate the policy of the GSD in relation to the principle of co-education. This party had put forward the policy and it is the Government on the other side that has sought to copy the idea of co-education completely. Therefore, we commend them, of course, for taking on board our ideas on co-education, of constituting a committee to advise the Government in relation to co-education, but of course we commend them for bringing forward a GSD policy.

925

Mr Speaker: Which we are not going to debate. The GSD policy is not going to be debated. We have a number of questions seeking information. Information is being provided by the Government. I am not allowing a debate on the education policy either of the Government or of the Opposition at this stage.

935

If you want to have a debate, by all means put down a motion for the next meeting of the House. Perhaps it will be a very salutary thing to do, given the announcements which the Government has made. I invite you to do that.

940

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I think it is absolutely right that we should not have a debate on GSD policy because, first of all, we are dealing with an individual who is no longer in the GSD, although he stood with the GSD and the issues that were being put to him were the things that were in the GSD manifesto.

945

I think actually we are debating PDP policy, because I think the first to propose co-education were the PDP. I recognise that there is, in effect, what one newspaper this morning has called a takeover of the GSD by the PDP, so I would be delighted to pursue the issue there.

But let's be very clear, Mr Speaker: in our manifesto, the manifesto which people selected at the last election by a ratio of two to one, there was a commitment to look at co-education in the way that we have done.

And so, Mr Speaker, the only issue that really falls to be considered is whether or not – and this is the issue, I think, being explored by Mr Llamas and which I wish to give him comfort on from here, as the Hon. Minister has done – whether we are looking at a mega-school or whether we are looking at two schools. The policy that he defended at the General Election was to have one comprehensive. You cannot have anything other than co-education, Mr Speaker, if you only have one comprehensive, whatever consultation you may do, unless you have one comprehensive with classes just of boys and classes just of girls, and I think also including the college. We are not going down the route of one institution; we are going down the route of two institutions, two separate institutions.

Whether hon. Members want to get into a tug of war with the building and say, 'Right, if those two buildings are 500 metres apart, then I'm satisfied it's two schools; if they're half a mile apart, they are definitely two schools; if they're 450 metres apart, then I'm going to call it one school even if it is two schools.' I put it to the hon. Gentleman that that is what they are going to get into if they start looking at the geography of this issue. You have two institutions here. They are close to each other and they share one area, which is the library, and there is a simple reason for that in terms of the resources of this community: do you put cash into building two

965

970 libraries? Let's just say, for the purposes of this argument, you put £100,000 into building the libraries and you then put £200,000 into acquiring books for each of the libraries; or do you put one set of building costs in and have double the resources available to purchase books for the 975 boys and girls who are going to be in the institutions? That is what we have been consulting on, that is what we have been working on and that is what we think produces the best result; and it is a better result than a mega-school, which – the hon. Gentleman is absolutely right – is not what they said they would do at the last election. It is what we said they said they would do at the last election because we just had to look at the plans to see that the proposal that they were making created the sort of school that had been roundly rejected in the United Kingdom by the teaching profession as being bad for the pupil and being bad for the teachers. That is what we are not going to do, Mr Speaker.

980 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. E J Phillips: One question in relation to ... I am grateful to the Chief Minister for explaining his position in relation to GSD policy, but it is evident from the numbers of questions that have been asked by the opposite sides of this side of the House, Mr Speaker ... it is quite 985 clear that there is a genuine interest from parents and members of the community as to the detail of the Government's ambitious – in their own words – programme to deliver education for our community for the next 30, 40, 50 years for our community.

My question to the Minister is this: is he willing to explain more of the detail as to their programme on rolling out new schools for our community? It is quite clear from questions that 990 have been asked in this House, that not enough answers have been given by the Government in relation to schools.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, of course the details will be given. The details are being shared already. I have held meetings with teachers, I have held meetings with parents; the 995 Director of Education has had meetings with both. More meetings are scheduled. Some of the matters are currently under discussion; some of the more intricate designs of the comprehensive schools are currently being worked through in working groups of teachers. So of course the details will be made available and anybody who wants them, all they have to do is ask.

1000 I have answered the questions here. Every question that has been asked has been answered.
They may not like the answer or agree with what I am saying but we are hiding absolutely nothing at all.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, sir, arising from the Chief Minister's explanations, he said – I 1005 hope I deduced it correctly – the only shared facility would be that of the library. Can the Chief Minister or the Minister then reconcile why teachers of secondary schools are being told as recently as this week that, for example, for the teaching of a hairdressing type of course the students will only be set up in one school and the students have to commute? Is that not the same as sharing the facility?

1010 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, a point of order. Crossing the patio has never been described seriously as commuting in the English language.

Hon. E J Reyes: Sorry, Mr Speaker, then I amend that word as being that of taking a walk 1015 across a brief area.

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, we are currently involved in designing the precise allocation of space in the two new comprehensive schools, and we are currently involved at the same time in developing new vocational courses. Therefore, we have to consider in the two schools, where 1020 we do not believe there will be enough take between all the boys and girls to, for example, have two hairdressing facilities, which of the schools will host that, and then the other school will host possibly something completely different.

Hon. Chief Minister: As is the case today.

1025 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Exactly, as is the case today when there is a sixth form consortium. It only means that if we start vocational courses at the equivalent of GCSE we may have to have the consortium working further down for specific things which we should not, in a space the size of 1030 Gibraltar, provide two of, and the fact that the schools are different but close together means it is easier for students of the two schools, where there are two separate uniforms, to not commute but walk across the patio in order to make use of those facilities. It makes –

Hon. Chief Minister: Which is what happens today.

1035 Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Exactly, instead of going further. So, Mr Speaker, it makes absolute sense and it is being developed in conjunction with the teachers.

Hon. Chief Minister: And that was through consultation.

1040 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, the Chief Minister has referred to efficient use of cash and effective economies of scale, and the Minister has just referred to efficient use of resources. Can I ask the Minister whether his Department has undertaken any kind of economic impact analysis as to allocation of resources and indeed the funding of the schools? And does he have at this 1045 moment in time any indication of what the cost of building these schools would be to share with us; or if he were not willing to share that with us today, would he be willing to share that with us if I tabled a specific question?

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am asked by the current Leader – I will not say ‘temporary’, the current Leader of the Opposition – as to whether I am going to provide information, and the 1050 former Leader of the Opposition obviously did not hear information that has already been stated in the past. We have said that, because there is going to be a tender process, we are not in a position and we are not willing to put across in the public domain our estimated costs of the school.

1055 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Minister.

May I ask him just one supplementary on this? In his estimation, is it the Government’s expectation that the costs of construction less the sale of the existing land would effectively be cost neutral to the Government, or will there be a net cost to the Government – or you just do not know?

1060 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman seems to want to make everyone the Minister for Finance except the Minister for Finance and he is asking questions of the Minister for Education, who is very good at finance, what the issues of the financing of the schools are.
The answer to the question in relation to the financing of the schools remains as I set out in my 1065 answer to him in the last Parliament. But, Mr Speaker, that calculation that he wants us to do I do not think is a wise one for him to invite us to do if we are both keen to ensure that we get the best possible value for the taxpayer when it comes to the competitive process for the building of these schools that I have told him we are going to embark on.

1070 Mr Speaker: The Hon. Lawrence Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I would like to ask if the Government will be engaging in a formal consultation with teachers and parents in the coming months before the details are finalised.

1075

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Mr Speaker, I am not sure in relation to what – obviously not co-education; that is done and dusted.

Mr Speaker: Before the plans are finalised.

1080

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: The teachers are currently involved in developing and designing the content of the school, the detail, the allocation, and so the answer to that is yes; and I have already reached out to those schools which have a parents association in order to give an opportunity to discuss it with them.

1085

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I think this will be the final supplementary.

Did the Government consider providing secondary education at schools in other locations in Gibraltar – for example, in the north and the south?

1090

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: Yes, Mr Speaker.

Hon. L F Llamas: Would it be possible to know what other locations the Government did consider?

1095

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I have said publicly on a number of occasions and I will say again that one of the hardest things to deal with in politics in Gibraltar is the Rubik's Cube of where you put one thing and where you put another. So, when you consider an issue like this you consider every potential location, because even if hon. Members might think that there is something on it today, the Government is in a position to move something that may be there today or harry along those that may be there today with inducement or otherwise. So every possible location has been considered and this is the location that has been considered, for a number of reasons, to be the most appropriate.

1100

We are entirely committed to ensuring that we deliver on our manifesto commitment and the additional opportunities that we have identified; we think this is the right way to do it. The hon. Gentleman is now conducting that consultation exercise. He is taking people's views on board, whether they are teachers or whether they are parents. I do not know how many times we can say it, Mr Speaker, but if the hon. Gentleman simply wants to give us an opportunity to just reaffirm that, the Government is entirely committed to that process of consultation which we have indicated we are embarked on.

1110

Hon. E J Phillips: Just one question in relation to Question 712 in relation to the experts the Government has consulted, or taken opinions from, in relation to the new schools. Can the Government confirm who and what type of experts they are?

1115

Hon. Dr J E Cortes: This is in the form of visits to highly regarded schools in the UK and discussions with the education authorities in that part of the UK. Both a part of my Department's team and some teachers have attended meetings in the UK at those schools, which includes a – (Interjection by Hon. Chief Minister) Oh, yes, thank you, a very relevant point that had escaped me for a moment. Apart from the fact that the team has visited schools in the UK, the design models are based on the latest Department for Education modelling of school construction and design in the UK. So we have actually used the latest UK Department for Education types of modelling and we have been in touch with people in the Department for Education who design schools. So we have done both the general guidelines for design and also visited actual schools to learn from their experiences there.

1120

HOUSING AND EQUALITY

Q718/2017

Government rental homes – Urgent decanting of tenants

Clerk: Question 718. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1130 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many tenants required urgent decanting from their homes since the answer provided to Question 179/2017, indicating the reason why, the date when said decanting became necessary and the date when the tenants were able to return to their home?

1135 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1140 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since the answer to Question 179/2017, six tenants have required urgent decanting from their homes as a result of fires, substantial water ingress and major works. One was decanted in March, one in April, one in August and three in September. Except for one household, all tenants have returned to their flats in June, September and October.

1145 Hon. E J Reyes: And the one who has not returned, Mr Speaker, is the one who left the house in which month, so at least it gives an indication of how long that person has had to be away from their home?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: The remaining one, Mr Speaker, was decanted on the last day of September and is due to return imminently – hopefully this week.

1150 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q719/2017

Government rental homes – Eviction of squatters

Clerk: Question 719. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1155 Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing say how much expenditure has been incurred in respect of legal costs relating to the eviction of squatters from Government rental homes since the answer to Question 180/2017, providing a breakdown showing the number of homes involved and to whom payments were made?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1160 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, Triay & Triay have been paid a total of £1,045 in relation to evictions from two properties.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1165

Q720/2017
Government rental homes –
Expenditure re contracts for making suitable for reallocation

Clerk: Question 720. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1170

Hon. E J Reyes: Can the Minister for Housing provide details of all expenditure incurred since the answers to Question 181/2017 and Question W74/2017 in respect of contracts awarded for making empty homes suitable for reallocation, stating to whom payments were made, how much has been paid, the number of residential homes pertaining to each payment, as well as indicating the type or nature of repair works or cleaning services undertaken?

1175

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1180

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, details are as follows: Keyway, £17,227 for two properties; Accoria Services Co Ltd, £7,140 for one property; A&K General Services Builders, £35,933 for two properties; GJBS, £89,945 for 23 properties; Elite, £29,554 for two properties; Strait Overseas, £9,809 for one property; Ace Plumbing, £7,400 for one property; 501 Construction, £18,805 for two properties.

The works carried out by these companies were all for general refurbishment works, such as plastering walls, ceilings, taking down walls, painting, replacing floor tiles, doors, plumbing and electrical works.

Q721/2017
Government rental homes –
Number reassigned from returned stock

1185

Clerk: Question 721. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1190

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the answer provided to Question W161/2017, can the Minister for Housing provide details of how many of the 11 rental homes which were in the process of being cleaned and refurbished have now been allocated and/or assigned, inclusive of room composition of said homes, from the stock returned by new tenants who have recently moved into Charles Bruzon House?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1195

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, since the answer to Question 161, a further five flats have been allocated.

1200

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

I know from the previous answer that it was 11 and is now five, but I have asked here inclusive of the room composition of said homes. Looking at the answer I got to Question W161, where the Minister kindly listed all the 66, I have no idea of the room sizes or the composition of the 11 that had to be cleaned. Of those 11, five have been allocated but I have no idea what the size of those homes were, nor of the remaining six what the homes are. Perhaps the Minister has that information, just to satisfy my ... I need this answer in order to continue my talk with constituents.

1205

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is right: I do not have it in my answer, nor do I have it as a supplementary. I am sorry, but I will provide it to the hon. Gentleman. I apologise, it has not been provided to me.

1210

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1215

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I? You know that the hon. Lady and I quite often are able to exchange information behind the Speaker's Chair. Can we have that undertaking, that as and when she gets the information from her staff she just passes it on to me? If it happens to be during a parliamentary session, so much the better because I think the Speaker then allows it to be tabled. If not, I am as not finicky. It does not require to be finicky – I will even accept it at any other stage, but as soon as humanly possible, given that her staff could be quite close to having that answer.

1220

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, I certainly undertake to provide it, though unfortunately I will not be able to do so during the course of this afternoon because the staff have now left. But as soon as I have the information, I will.

Q722/2017

Mons Calpe Mews – Sign-off of remedial works

Clerk: Question 722. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1225

Hon. E J Reyes: Further to the answer provided to Question W191/2017, can the Government say if and when the Mons Calpe Mews management company or management committee signed off all the remedial works as duly completed to their satisfaction, indicating if the said signing off has been done by the individual blocks or in respect of the construction project as a whole?

1230

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1235

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, as in any construction project, it is the developer who signs off completion works and moneys are retained to ensure that any defects which may appear during the defects liability period are corrected. The management company or committee do not sign off on the works, although they are consulted and meetings arranged, if necessary, if they feel that there are problems that are not being solved.

1240

Hon. E J Reyes: Thank you, Mr Speaker. So the hon. Lady has at least corrected me in the right direction: it is not the management company who needs to sign it off. Could she indicate who it is that needs to sign it off? And if it is Government or a Government entity, what position are we at?

1245

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, Mr Speaker, of course. Government was the developer in relation to these projects and the contractor has not yet been issued with a making good certificate, so we have retained moneys in case anything arises, as is normal in the process of 1250 construction works, and we will deal with it as and when issues arise. As far as we are, I am satisfied that we do not have anything untoward or undue, but of course we will continue to retain these moneys until we are absolutely satisfied that there are no defects at all.

Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful for that part of the answer, Mr Speaker.

1255 So that I do not necessarily repeat this again next month, is the Hon. Minister in a position to say, 'I expect it to be in three or six months,' so that I can make a note in my diary of when to pick up the question? I know you, Mr Speaker, even prefer me not to repeat it quite so often, so if the Minister indicates that it should be perhaps within the first quarter of 2018 or the second quarter, I can then flag it up and we will have an official answer for the record upon completion.

1260 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: The issue that we have outstanding, Mr Speaker, relates to water ingress issues that arose last year. These have been rectified, but before we can be satisfied whether they have been rectified properly or not we need to await the rains to pass. So, in terms of a time frame, perhaps the hon. Member can ask me in early summer, once we know that the heavy rains have ceased.

1265 Mr Speaker: So, in other words he should put down another question before the summer recess?

1270 Hon. E J Reyes: I would like to say that, because the Minister has been extremely honest in the way she has answered that, I am going to interpret 'early summer' as being once winter has been completed. So probably straight after the Easter recess, if we have one, or whatever, could be a good time.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Q723/2017

Government rental homes –

Outstanding arrears –

Question withdrawn

Clerk: Question 723. The Hon. E J Reyes.

1275 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, I have spoken with you, but for the benefit of Parliament this question is withdrawn.

I will be honest: there was an error in the way it has been written, it makes absolutely no sense and I apologise if I have wasted the Minister's time in drafting what would have been a ridiculous question, knowing what both she and I know is a true fact.

1280 I apologise. I hope my maths teacher forgives me as well!

Q724/2017

Government rental homes –

Details of properties allocated since December 2011

Clerk: Question 724. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1285 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011 to date, can the Government provide a schedule with a breakdown of Government rental homes which have been allocated, including (a) the room composition allocated, (b) the date the applicant had originally joined the housing waiting list, (c) whether the property was handed over as a self-fix or Government furnished, (d) the points the applicant had, and (e) the date the property was allocated?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1290

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, of a total of 1,145 allocations that have taken place since 9th December 2011, 188 have been on a self-repair basis. I am handing over a schedule of the flat composition and dates of applications.

1295

Mr Speaker, while we wait, I would like to thank the hon. Gentleman in relation to the previous question. I must say that I was somewhat bemused as to what the angle could possibly have been.

Q725/2017

Government rental homes –
Applicants on social and medical lists

Clerk: Question 725. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1300 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule with the breakdown of housing rental applicants who are on the social and medical lists, including (a) the year the application was accepted, (b) the number each individual is on the list, (c) the room composition required, and (d) the number of points as at the end of each calendar year since December 2011?

1305 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, there are a total of 96 applicants who have a medical category and 31 applicants who have a social category. The breakdown is as follows.

1310 In terms year of application: two in 2011, three in 2012, six in 2013, 16 in 2014, 20 in 2015, 34 in 2016 and 46 in 2017. Their position on the list is fluid and it fluctuates.

In terms of room composition, this relates to 80 1RKB, 15 2RKB, 19 3RKB, 10 4RKB and three 5RKB.

1315 Points are calculated on the anniversary of each applicant's application date and therefore increase yearly. However, no points are allotted for the medical and social categorisation, so they will not have additional points.

1320 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, going back to Question 724, the question asked for a breakdown with room composition, the date the applicants joined the housing waiting list and so forth. On the schedule provided, unfortunately you cannot marry the allocation with the date the person joined, with the number of points the person has or when the property was allocated. Is this information that the Ministry is able to provide?

1325 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I do not agree with the fact that the question asks for that information to be married. I have looked carefully at the question and at the answer. The question is broken down in categories and the answers have all been provided in the answer.

1330 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, there is no way that the question has been properly answered. There is no column indicating when the dates of the property were allocated, the number of points the applicants had when they received the property, and there are other elements from this question which have not been answered.

1335 A question like this I believe would require that the components of the question be married so that you can properly analyse the allocation process that the Government has had since December 2011.

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, with the greatest of respect to the hon. Gentleman, I cannot possibly predict what it is that he wants or what he intends to marry, but the question is very clear and the answer is very clearly in answer to the questions as they are broken down.

1340 I am asked, for example, to include the room composition allocated – that is in the first box overleaf; the date the applicant originally joined the housing list – there is a box saying when applicants joined the housing list. Then I am further asked whether the property was handed over as a self-fix – I think he meant self-repair, which is the term that we use – or Government furnished, and that is answered as well. There is a question in relation to the points that is answered; and a date when it was allocated, and that is all answered, Mr Speaker.

1345 The hon. Gentleman needs to understand that the question will be answered in the way that it is asked. If he wants a different answer, then maybe the hon. Gentleman may wish to consider asking it a different way on the next occasion.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, the fact that the question is one question and not five questions I think in itself explains what the answer should be.

1350 With regard to points, there is no way that the Minister has answered that question because there is no way that from the 1,145 allocations it can be analysed the number of points the person had; nor can it be analysed the period that each person has been on the waiting list at the same time.

1355 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, in relation to the part on the points, that is not here but that is something that would be such a voluminous exercise to undertake in any event that it would be disproportionate for us to undertake, particularly in the period of time on the resources that are available.

1360 Again I maintain that the questions have been asked in a particular way and the answers have been provided in the way that they have been asked. As I said, the hon. Gentleman may wish to consider asking them a different way on the next occasion if he wants the answer in a particular way. I cannot possibly be in the hon. Gentleman's mind and be guessing what he is trying to get at and the format that he wishes me to answer.

Q726/2017

Purpose-built flats for the elderly – Allocation to non-Government rental tenants

1365 Clerk: Question 726. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide a schedule of non-Government rental tenants who have been allocated a purpose-built flat for the elderly, such as Albert Risso House, Charles Bruzon House etc., including (a) the reasons why in each case, and (b) whether or not the person was on the Government housing waiting list?

1370

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1375 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, everyone who is allocated a flat is a housing applicant and allocation of all flats is treated on this basis.

Current records do not provide a breakdown to show the extent of a successful applicant's previous housing situations and the task of looking through every single allocation of an elderly flat going back to 2011 would be unduly onerous on resources.

Q727/2017

Beach View Terraces and Mons Calpe Mews – Information received at time of sale

1380 Clerk: Question 727. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a schedule based on the information received as at the time of sale of Beach View Terraces and Mons Calpe Mews, 1385 including (a) family composition of applicant or applicants; (b) room composition purchased and (c) the purchased share?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1390 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Government does not hold a database of the family composition of purchasers.

The room compositions are as follows. There were 47 one-bedrooms, 312 two-bedrooms, 477 three-bedrooms and 59 four-bedrooms.

Trust deeds are required to be registered and, as such, they are public documents and in the public domain, Mr Speaker.

1395

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, given that the policy of the Government was that priority was given to housing applicants, surely the Government would have the information based on the family composition and the applicants were linked to the application being successful. Is this something that the Government does not have?

1400

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, I think that the hon. Gentleman has just answered his own question in that applicants were given priority and not the family composition of the purchasers.

1405

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, the Hon. Minister has said that they do not hold this information, but surely the Housing Ministry holds the information of the family composition of its housing applicants and which list they are on. Therefore, they should be able to provide an answer with the flat composition that they purchase in the end. Is this something that the Government seriously does not have?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, because it is not the Housing Ministry that deals with the sale or the allocation of these flats; it is the Government through Gibraltar Residential Properties Ltd.

1415 The hon. Gentleman does not seem to understand procedure and he is just huffing and puffing and saying 'for goodness' sake'. It may help proceedings if the hon. Gentleman were to inform himself of the procedure, because maybe by doing so he may be in a better position to formulate his questions if he wants to derive the answers he is seeking.

1420 This information is provided to me by Gibraltar Residential Properties Ltd. If Gibraltar Residential Properties Ltd tell me that they do not have this information at their disposition, then that is the answer I have been provided. It may well be that GRP would have to liaise with the Housing Department and go through all 1,000 applicants one by one to look at that, but that, I would say, is an unduly onerous use of resources in the circumstances.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. Roy Clinton.

Hon. R M Clinton: Thank you, Mr Speaker.

1430 I am not sure I heard the Hon. Minister correctly. Did she indicate that, rather than provide my hon. Friend with the information as to the purchase share, the information was available on the purchase deeds, which would be presumably registered at Land Property Services, but she is not prepared to provide the House with that information directly?

1435 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Well, Mr Speaker, only because Standing Orders provide for this situation. Where documents are publicly available – and these documents are publicly available on a public register that is available to the public – it is Standing Orders that are giving me this direction and I am merely following Standing Orders, which are the matrix that rule this House.

Q728/2017

Affordable housing – Action taken re subletting in contravention of lease

Clerk: Question 728. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide details regarding affordable properties where subletting has been identified contravening the provisions in the underlease and what action has been taken in each case, including the estate the property belongs to?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, when subletting is identified in estates where Her Majesty's Government of Gibraltar is or has been the developer, such cases are investigated. In the event that there is a breach of the underlease, appropriate action will be undertaken in accordance with the terms of the underlease.

In some cases, subletting has ceased upon receipt of our notification. In other cases, investigations are ongoing to establish the necessary evidence. There are no instances of illegal subletting where the tenant is the Government, as was the case prior to December 2011.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can she provide a breakdown of figures on how many follow-ups have been done by let and how many cases are currently being investigated?

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: No, Mr Speaker, because it did not form the body of the question, nor do I have the information, otherwise I would of course disclose it. From memory, I know it is a handful. In terms of the ones that have been brought to my attention, I would say roughly four. It may be a bit more, it may be a bit less, but no more than four I think have been brought to my attention.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I ask the Hon. Minister: I know that in respect of Government rental we did set up an anonymous hotline where members could report and say, 'I think so and so is not actually living in that flat,' and so on. Is there a similar sort of setup? I know we could be opening up a can of worms, but I am asking so that I may guide constituents in the future.

I have heard people within the co-ownership estate where I live – they tell me, 'Don't you remember so and so used to live there? The people who are there now do not even look like Gibraltarian belongers.' So there is a reasonable doubt whether that house is being ... because the management company ... If you are a shareholder within one of these co-ownership estates, the management company can disclose to you, as a shareholder, who the particular house belongs to, so we then have the police detective work to be done on is it being sublet or not.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I do not know whether the hon. Gentleman will recall – I think we were both Members of the House when, as a result of similar anonymous tip-offs resulting from similar identification, we brought to the House similar concerns only to find that a very candid former Minister for Health rightly put his hand up and said, 'Well, now that you mention it, the Government has been subletting those apartments for people of another origin who have come to assist the Health Authority.' The former, former, former, former Leader of the Opposition, Sir Peter Caruana, when he was Chief Minister, agreed in this House that he had just found out about that and that this should not continue.

So there are many circumstances where those things can arise and any information hon. Members have which they might be able to bring to our attention, I would ask them to do so,

1485 not in this forum necessarily but to please alert us to those. If there are breaches of the underlease, we need to know because these homes are provided at the low cost at which they are provided not for speculation, not for rental so that people can make a profit other than the capital value of sale; they are prepared in this way and there has been an agreement, between 1490 both the parties for some time that this should be the case since it was instigated by the Government led by Joe Bossano, that these homes should be for owner occupation so that we can house and grow Gibraltarian families, not that people can use these to turn a fair penny either by realising capital value or rental value. So any information hon. Members have they should bring to our attention. I do believe that there has been an edict from the day that we were elected that certainly the Government does not involve itself in renting these properties now in breach of its own underleases as was the case before.

1495

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Yes, indeed, Mr Speaker, as the Chief Minister points out, that is exactly why in my substantive answer I said that there had been no instances of this since December 2011. Having said that, the hon. Gentleman refers to a hotline which may have existed in the past – I do not know, I do not remember – but in the last six years I think that the 1500 need for a hotline has declined because it has all been overtaken by a phenomenon called social media, and you will find that in any event if someone finds out about anything untoward going on in anything you will find a post at some point on Facebook or Twitter or on something, and when it does not ... I am grateful to the hon. Gentleman that he once came across a post of some irregularity and he immediately brought it to my attention, and in the same way that he 1505 does, many people who come across this information in public fora do bring it to my attention.
And of course people do also contact the Housing Department in the normal way as well when they hear of irregularities or perceived irregularities.

So I am quite satisfied that the channels of communication in that respect work. We do of course follow them up and, where necessary, we do engage with the Police or the Borders and 1510 Coastguard Agency to go and investigate and verify occupants for us.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Hon. E J Phillips: Just one question in relation to that. Just out of interest, has the 1515 Government conducted analysis when individuals apply, for example, for residency, targeting effectively the question at those that acquire rentals in Gibraltar possibly from affordable housing, as to whether there is a joined-up system where the relevant civil status department would understand this individual is now renting in an affordable house? Is there a joined-up process by which they can acknowledge and recognise those individuals and therefore enforce 1520 the terms of the underlease and deal with that problem head on?

Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, the system is joined up in that respect, so the addresses are obvious because the Government has been the developer and promoter of those addresses, and whenever an application comes in from an address which should not house an 1525 individual that collects those characteristics that the hon. Gentleman has referred to, the individual's ability to reside in that address is questioned.

There are some circumstances where it is acceptable. For example, I can recall an instance, which the hon. Gentleman will be interested to note, of an individual seeking resident status from such an address when he had not been in Gibraltar for long enough to avail himself of 1530 residence in that address. It turned out he had arrived in Gibraltar as a child not many years before, because he had arrived, I think, after the age of 14 but before the age of 18. He had resided there as a result of a relationship between one of his parents and a local and was now emerging from that relationship seeking his own status, but he was rightly resident there and had not in any way been in breach of any underlease as a result. Therefore, it was accepted that 1535 he could be a person to use that address for that purpose. But in most instances the hon.

Gentleman will see from the detail I am giving him this is questioned, we understand what is happening, and if somebody is using that address for purposes of an application when he should not be resident in that address, it is spotted.

1540 The issue the hon. Gentleman refers to, which is one the Government is very alive to, usually arises in the context of private lettings, private dwellings, not in affordable housing estates, so usually in the context of areas which have never been the subject of Government development. Sometimes in the Old Town the hon. Gentleman will have heard the stories, as I have, of 20 or 30 people residing in one address. Those tend to be noted, because as we head towards computerisation it is immediately easier to say, 'Well, hang on a minute, you live in an 1545 apartment where there are two bedrooms and 40 alleged residents, so can you explain to us the miracle of the fishes and how you all feed yourselves each night, let alone sleep?' and that system is throwing up anomalies.

Q729/2017

Affordable housing projects –
Online application system

Clerk: Question 729. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1550

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, why did the Government not set up an online application system for the affordable housing projects?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1555

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the application phase has not yet commenced and the process is at expressions of interest stage, the questionnaire for which is available online.

1560

Hon. L F Llamas: Well, Mr Speaker, it is online but you have to download, print and then submit, and from what I have understood from Viewpoint there have been over 4,000 expressions of interest. Therefore, my question is: why was this not online as a form which you would have submitted and a database would have been created, rather than have such an onerous task of civil servants or Government employees having to go through each and every application for expression of interest?
1565

Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, the way that the form has been devised requires applicants to complete it in a way that we, as prospective developer, are analysing all these applications. One of the things that can happen, for example, is that people can forget to complete a particular box, whether there is a narrative required or ticking a box.
1570

This is the way that we have done it, Mr Speaker. We had to, in the interest of expediency as well, issue these forms which are expression of interest forms, which are available online, because we wanted to get them out and, at the time, to have commissioned and had a database in place would have taken us longer.

1575

It may be something that we consider for the formal application stage, but certainly it is working for us now because of the manner in which the applications have been returned. Some applications have been returned to us in a phased process because we gave quite a long time for applicants to return their applications and it has not been as onerous a process as the hon. Gentleman wants to make it out to be. It has been completely workable.

1580 The deadline has now just recently closed. The database is complete, so the manual entry of the database has not caused us any delay whatsoever and we are in the process of analysing the results of that process.

1585 Hon. L F Llamas: Then surely, Mr Speaker, if 4,000 applications is not an onerous task, provided in answer to 1,145 allocations, it should not be that much of an onerous task using the same benchmark the hon. Lady is using.

1590 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is mixing apples with pears and trying to see them through the same lens. It is impossible to explain to him again why these things are different.

If you have a tick box exercise, you can do it on a Google form. So people can be asked to fill in not a handwritten form and just on a Google form say how many bedrooms do you want etc. But this is a form that actually requires also an expression of some of the circumstances of individuals, and that is something that is being collated in the exercise that is being done for the purposes of producing better affordable developments.

1595 In the context of five days, which is the period in which we are to answer questions, going through 1,500 different forms to extract the information in the manner in which the hon. Gentleman has decided this month that he wants it is not something that is a worthwhile use of Government time that can be deployed in the time available to produce the answer available.

1600 We do not choose what information hon. Members wish to have. If they wish to have it and it is something that the civil servants can produce in the time available, we provide it to them. Members on this side of the House do not tell those who are in the Civil Service not to produce something. We do not tell them to tell us that it is onerous to produce it. They simply say to us, 'Look, it's impossible for me to produce an answer to this question without entirely paralysing the Department for three months in doing the exercise if we are going to be able to stand by the accuracy of the information.' That is the reality of the situation.

1605 The hon. Gentleman can continue to ask questions which pile up the requests for statistical information over an exceedingly long period of time, but we simply will not be able to provide it unless he prefers that the Government should stop work on everything that it is dealing with at a political and administrative level in order to answer his questions. I think everybody in this community would agree, probably himself included, that we should just get on with the job and not be side-tracked by some of the things that he makes us try to produce for him and which are statistically almost impossible to provide with accuracy.

1615 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q730/2017
Affordable homes –
Restrictions on resale

Clerk: Question 730. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1620 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, how will the Government ensure that affordable homes are not bought by those seeking to make a profit moving forward?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1625 Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, the Government is considering various measures to prevent those seeking to profit from resale primarily by reviewing the restrictions on resale.

Q731/2017
Charles Bruzon House –
Cars barrier

1630 Clerk: Question 731. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Is Government satisfied with how Gibraltar Car Parks is handling the issue of the cars barrier at Charles Bruzon House?

1635 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, initial teething problems with the barrier have been rectified. As far as the Housing Department is aware, no further issues have been reported.

1640 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, the barrier has already come down on some vehicles and individuals and on the head of a workman, but the response from Gibraltar Car Parks has been that they are not responsible for any damage, injury or theft. Can the Minister confirm whether this is the case; and if so, does Government make itself responsible for injuries in place of Gibraltar Car Parks?

1645 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government has not had notice of any person being injured by a barrier or any of the things that the hon. Lady has referred to. We do not answer questions in the hypothetical. If she wants to write to us with the information we will look into it, but if we have not received claims then it is impossible for us to be able to make any assessment.

1650 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I am not dealing in the hypothetical. These incidents have happened and the question remains: who is responsible for injuries? Can the Government say one way or another? Gibraltar Car Parks is saying that it is not them, so can Government confirm that they are responsible? Somebody has to be responsible.

1655 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, she may say that she is not dealing in the hypothetical, but we on this side are because what I am saying to her is we have not had notice on this side of the House and after her question those at the relevant Department have not brought to the attention of those on this side of the House any such claims.

If the hon. Lady has notice of when these claims were made we can go back and look at on what basis it is alleged that liability has been denied, but we are genuinely telling her that for us this is hypothetical because it has not happened.

1660 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, I have been in touch ... or rather the tenants association of Charles Bruzon House have been in touch with me because they felt that they were not being listened to. From what I remember, I think (Interjection) they have made representations. Excuse me, I would like to explain this, if anybody wants to listen. I think that they have made representations already and they have tried through Gibraltar Car Parks first and they have been told that they are not responsible.

I think that the question still remains, which has not been answered: who is responsible for injury? And why do I have to bring, anyway, a specific case to get an answer for that? Who is responsible for injury? If the Gibraltar Car Parks are saying that they are not responsible for injury, will Government confirm that they are?

Hon. Chief Minister: No, Mr Speaker, because injuries can arise as a result of many different circumstances, and depending on the circumstances different parties may be responsible for injury or for damage. Those issues are legal issues. Neither the Government nor Car Parks, nor Charles Bruzon House tenants association can get away from that; it is a straightforward legal issue. If you slip on a banana, the person who left the banana skin is the person responsible, but it does not mean that the Government is ultimately responsible.

1680

So if the hon. Lady is saying that a tenants association has not been listened to on something as serious as injury or damage, I put it to her that I would be aware of this because I would have had at least a letter from the tenants association that may or may not have been copied to her and to the Leader of the Opposition – whoever he or she may be at a particular point in time – to the Hon. Mr Llamas and to the Speaker. I get these letters all the time and I pay attention, whether or not they are copied to the hon. Lady or the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition from time to time, whoever he or she may be etc. (Laughter)

1685

I think there is a developing mutual frustration between the hon. Lady and this side of the House in respect of this question because she thinks something has happened and we are telling her we have not had notice. Can I just say to her, Mr Speaker, that we are happy to look into this with her and to try and address any similar situation she may say has arisen, but we do not have notice of Car Parks denying liability in respect of a tenants association claim for either injury or for damage.

1690

1695

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q732/2017

Fire retardants – Installation in Government estates

Clerk: Question 732. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

1700

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Can Government confirm whether they have any plans to install fire retardants in Government estates; and if so, by when?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Housing and Equality.

1705

Minister for Housing and Equality (Hon. Miss S J Sacramento): Mr Speaker, concrete, which is the main component in most modern-day buildings, and most certainly so in Government estates, is inherently a fire-retardant material. This together with other composite materials whose structural abilities are not debilitated quickly by heat and fire constitute the main build in Government estates, thus fire-retardant qualities are integral in this type of build.

1710

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, on 29th September I issued a press release, just after the Moorish Castle Estate fire in Keightley House, asking about fire retardants. I have been waiting for two months for an answer and I do not think I actually have received an answer.

1715

In the wake of Grenfell and indeed the Keightley House fire, and in view of all the money and the priority that this Government puts to other important elements of our society, like building new schools and refurbishing them, how is it that placing fire retardants – which are necessary, concrete or no concrete ... alarms and sprinklers are necessary, or will they be happy to tell tenants across Government estates that they are not needed or that they should rely on the two dogs who saved them in the last fire?

1720 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, two points here. One, a point of order: I answer to this House and I answer to questions in Parliament; I do not answer to press releases, because if I were to be answering every single press release that everybody from the Opposition were to issue, then I would not get any work done. I have my agenda, there are things that I have to do, so I find it completely unacceptable that I should be accused of not having replied to a press release in two months. I do not reply to a press release because I do not want to, Mr Speaker; I will reply to a question in Parliament. That is number one.

1730 Number two, Mr Speaker: I do not think the hon. Lady understands what a fire retardant is. Therefore, she may be asking me a different question but she has used the wrong language and therefore my answer is in relation to the language that she has asked. I think she wants to ask me a different question; she may want to consider formulating a different question on the next occasion.

1735 I can reassure the public that the Government is taking the issue of fire, fire risks and fire hazards extremely seriously. Immediately upon the disaster at Grenfell Tower, the Chief Minister and I met with key individuals from the Government Departments and we set up a working group that has looked into every single issue of fire in relation to our high-rise buildings and our estates. That has been an in-depth consideration of everything that may be relevant to fire, fire prevention, fire safety and fire awareness, Mr Speaker.

1740 The matter has been dealt with very responsibly, taken very seriously, and I am afraid that the hon. Lady is asking the wrong question.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just one supplementary question in relation to that point.

1745 Given that the Government has considered every single issue in relation to fire risk and fire retardants in relation to public housing, my question is: is the Government satisfied with the Government's response to this and indeed satisfied with the measures that are in place to reduce and in an attempt to eliminate that risk of fire?

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government is satisfied with the Government's response to this.

1750 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, is the Government satisfied that our housing estates are safe in light of the investigations conducted by the Government themselves and also in relation to the point that my learned and hon. Friend opposite said in relation to looking into every single issue?

1755 Hon. Chief Minister: Yes, Mr Speaker, absolutely, in particular in the context of the safety of the housing estates. But arising out of the question where we have been asked in respect of fire retardant aspects of concrete, as all hon. Members will know, concrete is not flammable.

1760 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: So, Mr Speaker, how would the Government answer the victims ... well, not victims in fatalities but those who were affected by the fire in Keightley House who ended up having to thank the two dead dogs who barked their way into their death and alarmed them? Wouldn't they have done better to have some fire alarms over there?

1765 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, we would answer those who have suffered fire by commiserating with them, by being delighted that there were no injuries, but in the same way as fires occur, unfortunately ... and not everybody has a smoke alarm, but not every Government property is going to be fitted with a smoke alarm by the Government. These are issues of, in fact, sheer intrusion.

1770 I do not know whether the hon. Lady is aware that modern smoke alarms even have the ability to listen into a property. Technology has developed to such an extent that most smoke alarms have the ability to communicate. If what the hon. Lady is saying is that every Government property should be fitted with a smoke alarm, then that is not where she started, and if she is making that proposal I will put it to her that it is something that not everybody will support and some will consider it entirely intrusive. But everybody has the right to fit a smoke alarm in their 1775 home if they wish to.

The rules in relation to sprinklers, fire alarms etc. apply to certain buildings of a certain height and the Government is satisfied that all of its buildings comply with those rules and that if there are changes to the rules, then we will ensure that our buildings comply with those changes to the rules. If there are changes in the United Kingdom to the rules, we will have an eye to those 1780 changes to understand whether they are changes which must be applied in Gibraltar as well, and if necessary we will make available funding to comply with those requirements. I think I already said to you within the context of my Budget speech that that would be the case, that the hon.
Lady would have funding available if she needed funding for that purpose.

1785 What I am very keen to do is that people should not be put to any unnecessary concern today because somebody had an accident x months ago and a fire was caused in somebody's home.
What we cannot do is ensure that there are no fires in anybody's homes. We cannot be on top of everybody's toaster, we cannot be on top of everybody's turkey at Christmas. Unfortunately, these things happen but we feel genuinely that the mechanisms are in place to deal with such exigencies when they occur. There may be accidents again in the future, and please God there 1790 will not be any serious injuries or fatalities but there is no mechanism to stop that if that is what the hon. Lady is pushing us to.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1795 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, if I may?

Mr Speaker: Yes.

1800 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, I know that the Government, in the very early stages of the initial concerns after Grenfell, were very quick to conduct analyses and reply to letters, certainly from me, with respect to concerns about areas such as cladding, and those fears were allayed. I understand Government was at that stage still only looking at whether any further measures ... and I know they have undertaken some other measures, like clearing the communal areas as well, which is something ongoing, controversial though that is in some places.

1805 As part of those exchanges the Government said they might look at the possibility of whether the fire risk assessments that were being undertaken in the Government-owned estates might be extended to those estates which were partially Government-owned, obviously the 50-50 the affordable housing. Has any progress been made in that area and has Government undertaken that analysis?

1810 Hon. Miss S J Sacramento: Mr Speaker, yes, as the hon. Gentleman says, it is indeed true that this committee has looked at all the aspects, made recommendations such as the clearing of anything that may cause obstruction in communal areas; and, controversial as it may be, it is the right thing to do – we are advised by the Fire and Rescue Service that this can cause risk to life 1815 and therefore we follow advice.

The Fire and Rescue Service have been working very closely with the Housing Department, advising us on several issues. There are some action points that we have as a result of that committee which we are working on, and one of the major ones is that we are soon to embark on an awareness campaign on fire prevention.

1820 In relation to moving on to estates that may be co-owned by Government, we have been liaising with them through the management companies, as is the proper structure to do so, through our agents, Land Property Services. So, insofar as covering our bases through that committee, I have to commend the committee for working extremely hard and looking at all the eventualities and advising us through the process.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

HEALTH, CARE AND JUSTICE

Q733/2017

St Bernard's Hospital – A&E charge nurse posts

1830 Clerk: Question 733. The Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, further to the answer provided through supplementary questions arising from Question 658/2017, can the Minister for Health say on which dates the three charge nurse posts at St Bernard's A&E department were filled?

1835

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, as I noted to the hon.
Gentleman in answer to his supplementary question, since the staffing levels in A&E were increased from one to three charge nurses on 1st April of this year, these posts have been continuously filled.

1840

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, so that we do not have any unnecessary misunderstanding, normally those who have dealt with trade union backgrounds and so on – I am sure the Father of the House would not mind perhaps clearing any misunderstandings we have – when we talk about a post being filled it is normally understood that that post is now being allocated to someone on a substantive basis, otherwise the post is just being covered.

1845

Let me try to explain. If the establishment covers for three nurses, whilst you choose those who are permanently going to be promoted to that grade and therefore take up that post, we say the post is being covered, whereas the terminology that a post has been filled means that three applicants have been successfully chosen through their applications and have been filled.

1850

Are we in the same language? If not, Mr Speaker, we are never going to clarify this. I understand and I accept and never doubted that three persons are physically covering that position, but that is very different to three persons who are actually filling that position. Can we clarify once and for all, so we do not necessarily lead to any misunderstandings?

1855

Hon. N F Costa: Yes, Mr Speaker, I think that the difference between the hon. Gentleman and I is one of terminology. When we talk about posts being filled by the GHA we are talking on either an acting capacity, on rotation or permanently. I think the hon. Gentleman, when he approached me after he asked me the supplementary question ... his question was 'Have boards been held and are these positions being permanently filled?' and when I went back to the GHA they advised that there have always been charge nurses occupying those posts but that the adverts were issued in July, the interviews were held on 9th November, there were seven applicants, and of course three were successful.

1870 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, great, and, Mr Speaker, taking that following 9th November this year – let's call it the board selection or whatever – three were successful, is the Minister aware, are they now already taking that post? Sometimes one needs a couple of weeks' transition – to vacate your old post you have to hand over to somebody. It is just so that I have an indication if they are already there permanently or about to become ... one would take it that it would be happening shortly.

1875 Mr Speaker: But by the same argument that you are making, the posts have been filled on 9th November. Interviews are held and on 9th November appointments are made and the posts are filled.

1880 Hon. E J Reyes: Yes, the posts are filled, Mr Speaker. No doubt – I am not disputing that. The posts were filled as from 9th November; I am just asking is the person in situ. Have they moved already to A&E?

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the successful applicants require approval from the Public Services Commission, so I am not certain whether the successful applicants have already been notified or not. The board, as I said, only took place quite recently, on 9th November.

1885 Mr Speaker: What that means is that boards have been held on behalf of the Public Services Commission, recommendations have gone to the Public Services Commission and then the Public Services Commission has to confirm those and then advise the Governor of the appointments.

1890 Hon. E J Reyes: And as and when the Public Services Commission advise the Governor it is filled as from then, not as from 9th November?

Hon. N F Costa: But to be clear, Mr Speaker, there have always been three charge nurses in those roles since the increases were announced on 1st April.

1895 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q734-737/2017

Offenders –

Number and ages of young offenders imprisoned; reoffending rates; young offenders not imprisoned or fined

Clerk: Question 734. The Hon. E J Phillips.

1900 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm the ages of young offenders who have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment from 15th November 2016 to 15th November 2017, i.e. in the last 12 months?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1905 Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Questions 735 to 737.

Clerk: Question 735. The Hon. E J Phillips.

1910 Hon. E J Phillips: Can the Government confirm the number of young offenders who have received custodial sentences from 15th November 2016 to 15th November 2017?

Clerk: Question 736. The Hon. E J Phillips.

1915 Hon. E J Phillips: Can the Government confirm the re-offending rates of the current prison population by reference to percentage over the last three years?

Clerk: Question 737. The Hon. E J Phillips.

1920 Hon. E J Phillips: Can the Government confirm how many young offenders received disposal by the courts other than financial penalties and periods of immediate imprisonment?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

1925 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I can confirm that during the past 12 months two young offenders were sentenced to imprisonment, one aged 13 and the other aged 14.

We are not able to advise of the reoffending rates of the current prison population over the time period required unless the reoffending has led to a prison sentence. In this respect, 21.6% of the current prison population have had previous convictions resulting in prison sentences during the past three years.

1930 I can confirm that seven young offenders' cases were disposed by the courts other than by means of financial penalties and periods of immediate imprisonment.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, with your leave, there is a reference I would like to make to the rehabilitation of offenders question that I put. I know I am not going to get an objection from my hon. and learned Friend in relation to this point but I can link it certainly to the reoffending rates, which I think is an interesting statistic, that 71% of the current population, as I understand the question, have reoffended but have had previous periods of custodial sentences served. I think that is the analysis that the Hon. Minister for Justice gave.

1940 Just linking it to the rehabilitation of offenders and the Government's programme to do that through employment, through work and through opportunity, I asked a question last time round in relation to whether the Government had any intention of amending the rehabilitation of offenders legislation and I just wanted to correct the record in relation to that question because I made the comment that the Minister may have been mistaken in relation to one aspect at the top end. The Minister was very helpful in that period of time. We have had a discussion about it offline, as it were, and the Minister is correct and I am grateful for the clarification that both he and his Department have afforded me in relation to that question. I am grateful.

1950 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in respect of the answer to Question 736, just to be clear that the hon. Gentleman has understood the answer that I have given him, what I have told him is that I am not in a position to advise him of reoffending rates unless the person who has reoffended is sentenced to a sentence of imprisonment. That is the only data available to us. By that measure, only 21.6% of the current prison population are serving an additional prison sentence over the past three years. That is not to say that there are 70-odd percent of the prison population who have not reoffended. In other words, the only measure that we have is that there are 21% of the current prison population who have had previous convictions resulting in prison sentences. We cannot provide any additional data other than that, but to be of further assistance to him, if you exclude the fine defaulters, there are currently 51 prisoners in custody as at the date that the answer was drafted. Excluding fine defaulters, the number of reoffenders goes from 11 to seven, which is 13.7% of the current prison population. Of these seven, three have reoffended once during the last three years in addition to the current sentence. So that is additional granular information for him.

Mr Speaker: Next question.

1965

Q738-739/2017
Substance abuse –
Breakdown of RGP arrests; cases requiring medical care

Clerk: Question 738. The Hon. L F Llamas.

1970 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since 2011, can the Government provide a schedule of arrests made by the Royal Gibraltar Police on drug-related offences, detailing (a) whether the arrest was in relation to possession with intent to supply, (b) personal use, (c) age, and (d) type of drug/s involved?

1975 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 739.

1980 Clerk: Question 739. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since December 2011, can the Government provide a schedule of substance abuse related cases requiring medical care from the GHA detailing (a) age, and (b) type of drugs involved?

1985

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, the information requested is contained in the schedule that I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman.

1990 Please note that the database for the year 1st April 2016 to 31st March 2017 had corrupt files, therefore rendering the information unreadable or, if readable, indecipherable. However, we have been able to extract some information over the time period 1st April to 31st March in a different format to the other tables.

1995 In respect of the answer to Question 739, the GHA is unable to provide the specific statistics for the period December 2011 to May 2015. The information requested from June 2015 to October of this year is contained in the schedule I now hand over to the hon. Gentleman.

Mr Speaker: These schedules are lengthy, so we are going to move on to the next question and if any supplementaries arise we will come back to them.

2000 Please call the next question.

Q740/2017

Access to justice –
Legal assistance reforms

Clerk: Question 740. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

2005

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Is the Minister for Justice confident that the legal assistance reforms he will enact will sufficiently expand access to justice?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Health, Care and Justice.

2010

Minister for Health, Care and Justice (Hon. N F Costa): Mr Speaker, I quote:

Although at this stage it is only a proposal for a pilot scheme, my sense is that it strikes the right balance between enhancing access to justice by those of limited means and not imposing an inordinate burden on the taxpayer. It is an exercise in lateral thinking which allows for the introduction of the much needed duty solicitor scheme.

Those are the words of the Hon. the Chief Justice at the opening of the legal year. I agree with his assessment of the proposed reforms. The proposed legal assistance reforms were circulated on 2nd October of this year as a consultation paper attached to Government Press Release 575/2017. This was a joint paper and proposal for a three-year pilot project in terms agreed between the Government and the Bar Council.

As set out in the consultation document, the proposed new statutory architecture would see an increase in the financial eligibility threshold for legal assistance from £5,000 – a sum set in 1990 – to over £14,000, being 50% of the average annual income in Gibraltar. This would, in effect, mean that persons in full-time employment and on the minimum wage would be eligible to receive legal assistance.

2020

The proposed new system also increases the amount of capital and the amount of equity in an applicant's home that the Registrar may disregard when deciding to grant legal assistance.

The reforms also include changes to the scope of legal assistance to ensure that taxpayers' money is not used in respect of cases where there is no strong or compelling public interest in making legal assistance available or where controls of expenditure are being introduced in the interest of the taxpayer by limiting the cost payable in certain cases.

I am meeting with stakeholders on Thursday to progress matters now that the consultation has been completed. I am certain that the changes agreed will sufficiently expand access to justice, especially when combined with the duty solicitor scheme that will be introduced at the same time for criminal matters.

2030

Mr Speaker, may I conclude by quoting a local Queen's Counsel, who said:

The proposed reforms to legal assistance and introduction of a duty solicitor scheme that form part of this consultation exercise are very far-reaching and significant. The proposed increase of the legal assistance threshold would increase the potential pool of applicants for legal assistance significantly and for the first time give financial assistance to many individuals who need access to the courts or who have been prevented in the past from recourse to the courts for determination of any dispute because they could not afford the cost of litigation. It will significantly improve access to justice. Likewise the introduction of a duty solicitor scheme has been longstanding and will secure advice and representation to persons in custody thus securing a basic fundamental right. The Council looks forward to responses to this consultation exercise.

Those, Mr Speaker, are the words of the then Chairman of the Bar Council, Keith Azopardi QC, on 2nd October 2017.

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Mr Speaker, thank you for that lengthy answer from the Minister for Justice.

What I am more interested in also is what will be done to correct and repair this perception of injustice which the community is feeling in the wake of a trial like the Marrache trial, which cost in the region of £12 million.

2040

I am aware of the difference between legal aid and legal assistance, but following a trial where millions have been made available just for one case when there are so many other cases of innocent people who are vulnerable and needy, will the Government be raising more public and community awareness about these reforms to make it evident to needy members of the community who might not be so aware and tuned in and need to know that these changes have been implemented?

2045

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, a few matters arise from the preface to the supplementary. In the first place, as the hon. Lady was quick to recognise, these reforms relate to legal assistance which relates to civil matters and not to criminal matters.

2050

Mr Speaker, whereas I was not the Minister for Justice at the time – at the time it was the Hon. Minister Licudi – if I recall the Cabinet discussion correctly, there was robust advice that said that legal representation had to be afforded to the defendants if it were not to result in a miscarriage of justice. Therefore the legal aid had to be provided appropriately to the Marrache brothers for there to be equality of arms, if I recall the advice correctly – and I stand to be corrected if the Hon. Minister wishes.

2055

Mr Speaker: Again, we are not going to have a debate about the Marrache case.

2060

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port: (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, just to clarify what the hon. Member has said in relation to the advice – and I have given this information to the House before. It is not quite that the advice was that this needed to be done to avoid a miscarriage of justice; this needed to be done to avoid the case being thrown out on an abuse argument with the courts. That was the clear advice we had from Triay Stagnetto Neish and therefore we acted in accordance with that advice.

2065

Hon. N F Costa: Thank you to the Hon. Minister.

Also, Mr Speaker, in respect of and focusing on legal assistance, as I told the House, this is now at the stage where the consultation documentation has been issued and the consultation period concluded.

2070

I am meeting with the Bar Council on Thursday as a result of representations received by some law firms, especially the smaller law firms, that have some concerns and we are meeting to discuss those concerns. But as I have pointed out by quoting the Hon. the Chief Justice and by quoting the words of the former Bar Council Chairman, we are all agreed that the reforms will in fact usher significant increases in access to justice for civil cases.

2075

2080 In respect of promoting the reforms further, I think that we will certainly be in a position to do so once we are in a position to finalise and agree the final product, which will require changes to our legislation. Certainly at that point a press release will be in order to once again explain how the reforms have been concluded and what the reforms mean in terms of legal assistance eligibility to the general public.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just in relation to the question that was posed in relation to legal assistance and access to justice, I agree with the Hon. the Minister that these reforms will potentially usher in potentially large swathes of access to justice, which has been long overdue.

2085 In relation to the confusion that is alluded to by my hon. Friend on this side –

Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: I wasn't confused. I have said that I know exactly –

2090 Hon. E J Phillips: I am not saying you are confused, but the confusion she alluded to in the public as to whether people get confused between legal assistance and legal aid. Only yesterday, Mr Speaker, there was a comment by a member of the public to me that ... why can't her daughter-in-law get access to justice, why can't she get legal assistance vis-à-vis why the Marraches have been afforded this gold-plated legal aid.

2095 There is a confusion amongst the public and although there is a clear distinction between the two funding arrangements – I think my hon. Friend now understands what I was getting at on that point – it would be helpful if the Minister would consider explaining the difference possibly to the public in relation to the differences between criminal legal aid and civil litigation which is funded by way of legal assistance. I think it is important to help and to assist the public in communicating that. I know that the Government has previously set out communiqués generally

2100 to members of the public, but I think it would be helpful because there is this underlying confusion within our community relating to those two points.

And just one question that adds on to his question in relation to the duty solicitor scheme. I too have been in correspondence with members of the Bar in relation to this very point, particularly those that practise in criminal law and how law firms generally, as proposed, those 2105 that have five members and above, will be obliged to take part in the duty solicitor scheme. Is the Government considering whether to target those that specialise in criminal law so that they can perfect their practice and actually increase their specialism rather than making an obligation on law firms that may well practise in commercial law – for example, property? My view would be that we should try to ensure that those criminal practitioners within our jurisdiction are able 2110 to develop their skills and to create that expertise that we need in our community.

Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, in respect of explaining the difference to the public between legal aid and legal assistance, I take the hon. Gentleman's comments on board and it may be that at the conclusion of the reforms and once the legislation is enacted there may be some 2115 benefit in having an explanatory note online and also producing leaflets to explain the eligibility of the public once the thresholds have been changed.

In respect of the question that he asks me as to the duty solicitor scheme, I refer the hon. Gentleman to page 5 of the consultation document and I will read from it:

A protocol to be introduced by the Registrar and thereafter adopted by the LSRA, once established, to enable the introduction of a compulsory duty solicitor scheme on the basis of a roster of law firms. All firms with more than four practitioners must take part. Firms of one to four practitioners can opt in.

2120 Hon. E J Phillips: I am grateful for the answer to the question, but it also builds in to ... Many lawyers and all of us in this room who have practised at the Bar have given of our time pro bono many times, I am sure across both sides of this House, in relation to the work we do for the public wearing our other hats. But I wonder whether the Government is going to encourage alternative forms of funding within our jurisdiction to also alleviate the public purse from

2125 possible pressures from these changes in legal assistance, because quite clearly there is a risk that many applicants will come forward to access that justice and create a bigger burden on the public purse. Is the Government considering other alternative forms of funding for litigation generally?

2130 Hon. N F Costa: No, Mr Speaker, we are not actively considering it at the present moment, because before we announced the consultation paper my Ministry in particular did a lot of work on what would be the estimated amount that the Government would pay once the reforms kicked in. As the consultation paper makes clear, we introduced scaled fees, and the hon.
Gentleman may know what I am talking about when I say that it is a known fact that one 2135 particular area of the law has incurred, in the view of the General Bar, a disproportionate amount of public funds relating to simple cases, and therefore in the consultation paper we make the point that for matrimonial cases where there are no children we are limiting the amount and capping the amount lawyers can claim. But those are not the only categories in which we are capping and limiting the amounts. There are other categories and I refer the hon.
Gentleman to pages 2 and 3 of the consultation paper where we introduce a schedule of fees – 2140 divorce proceedings where there are no children, probate and administration disputes – so that we strike the balance between those cases which are simple and which only require limited correspondence and perhaps one or two appearances in court, and other cases where you cannot, with the best will and intention in the world, be able to estimate until you get to know the facts of the case, how much a case is going to cost.

2145 So, having crunched those numbers and created new categories of cases which are scaled fees, we think ... and without being in the Hon. the Chief Justice's mind, I suspect that is what he meant when he said that in his sense there is a right balance between enhancing access to justice by those of limited means and not imposing an inordinate burden on the taxpayer in an exercise of lateral thinking. I think he may have been referring to that new category of cases, 2150 where we have introduced scaled fees to keep a cap on costs, which we know from experience and on hard cash analyses have perhaps produced a disproportionate amount of taxpayers' money previously in such cases.

2155 Hon. E J Phillips: In relation to the recent example of a single mother who was unable to access the system effectively and achieve access to justice so that she could fund her case, one of the criteria, I believe, is that the equity in the former matrimonial home is a key indicator for refusing access to justice and for refusing funding. It is a difficult one, I appreciate, because you may well have a mother living in a fairly valuable property when she is unfortunately estranged from her husband and therefore really cannot access the system because she does not have the 2160 means. I appreciate that it is a difficult subject, but quite clearly if someone on one hand has equity in their property but actually has to access a lawyer, who may be charging fairly large rates to conduct her matrimonial affairs not only in relation to the division of assets but also in relation to access arrangements with her children ... I am wondering whether the Government is working through those. I have seen the boundaries in the document that the Government has 2165 issued but it is obviously live to that point and the eligibility requirements for those where they have equity in the former matrimonial home.

2170 Hon. N F Costa: Mr Speaker, I think this is the third supplementary that I have been asked by the hon. Gentleman. I called him before to congratulate him on having become the Leader of the Opposition in Parliament, so I do not want to show him up by telling him once again to refer to the document which actually on the first page sets out the expanded limits which are disregarded for the purposes of being eligible. If he were to consider the very first page of the document, he will see that, without commenting on a particular case – because neither he nor I will have the full facts before us to know whether or not that particular mother would be eligible 2175 under the proposed reforms ... my instinct on having read, as he would have, the report in the 2180 Gibraltar Chronicle is that it is more likely than not that she would be caught by the reforms that we are proposing. But I make the point quickly that I am not commenting on that particular case because every case has to be determined on its facts and there may be many other reasons why a particular applicant, notwithstanding that she now fits in the new proposed thresholds, may fall foul because of other reasons. But from the little that I read on the report in the Chronicle it would appear that, given the amount of capital that we are excluding for the purposes of allowing eligibility to legal assistance, that particular case would have been caught by the existing rules.

2185 Mr Speaker: Next question.

TOURISM, EMPLOYMENT, COMMERCIAL AVIATION AND THE PORT

Q741/2017

LNG bunkering –

Ship-to-ship operations in vicinity of Gibraltar

Clerk: Question 741. The Hon. T N Hammond.

2190 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, has any ship-to-ship LNG bunkering taken place in the vicinity of Gibraltar since December 2016?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

2195 Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the question talks about the vicinity of Gibraltar and I am of course assuming that the hon. Member is referring to British Gibraltar Territorial Waters rather than anything else outside that which might be considered the vicinity of Gibraltar.

I can confirm that no ship-to-ship LNG bunkering operations have taken place in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters since December 2016.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, is there any particular reason for that? Is it just demand – there has been no demand? We were certainly led to believe before the last election that there would be significant demand for this. I seem to recall Ministers bobbing up and down on boats and telling us all how this was the future, but then clearly there has not been a significant uptake from that response.

2205

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, we have to distinguish between ship-to-ship operations and ... The question talks of ship-to-ship LNG bunkering. We have to distinguish between STS transfers, or ship-to-ship transfers, and bunkering operations; they are two very distinct things. STS transfers are essentially cargo transfers between two ships; those are distinct from bunker supply operations.

2210

LNG STS operations have happened. There have been transfers of cargoes involving LNG and there have been two operations that have occurred in March 2015 and June 2016.

2215

With regard to LNG bunkering, the Government has already announced that it is working with Shell in relation to developing the market following, in particular, the International Maritime Organisation's decision to reduce marine fuel sulphur emissions globally to 0.5% or less as from 1st January 2020. So that is something that we are working on and we are also working on regulations, changes to the legislation. The legislation currently refers to bunkering generally, bunkering rules. We have to provide specific rules in relation to LNG bunkering.

2220 No STS LNG operations have taken place in BGTW as from December 2016. There have been two STS operations but not bunkering operations. There have been no LNG bunkering operations at all in British Gibraltar Territorial Waters.

2225 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker – because I am not an expert in this field, I will admit, in terms of the semantics and the abbreviations used – can I just confirm that what the Minister is saying is that LNG has not been transferred from one ship to another ship; other bunkering or other transfer of cargo activities may have taken place between LNG fuelled ships, but not actually LNG moving from one ship to the other?

2230 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, the information I have is that LNG STS ship-to-ship operations have taken place on two of them and that although the hon. Member's question about transfer of cargo and not transfer of LNG puts a little bit of doubt in my mind, I have absolutely no doubt that this involved the transfer of LNG from one ship to the other. That is very different to bunkering, which is the supply of fuel, whether it is through LNG or other types of marine fuel.

2235 We do not have a base in Gibraltar. We do not have anybody in Gibraltar currently offering LNG bunkering. We have other types of bunkering which carries on in Gibraltar, but we do not have a base with tanks or a mother ship involving LNG for LNG bunkering. That will come and that is a market that is being developed; that is the future and that will happen. But cargo transfers involving LNG vessels have happened on two occasions.

2240

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q742-743/2017

Monarch Airlines routes to UK – Possible uptake by other airlines

Clerk: Question 742. The Hon. T N Hammond.

2245 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, is Government in talks with any airlines regarding the possible uptake of the routes to the UK lost with the demise of Monarch; and if so, when does Government envisage a new carrier commencing operations?

2250 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question together with Question 743/2017.

2255 Clerk: Question 743. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, following the collapse of Monarch Airlines, has the Government made any inroads with other airlines to increase our flight links with the UK?

2260 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

2265 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, since Monday, 2nd October the Government has been in contact with both existing airline operators to Gibraltar and other operators from not only the four airports that Monarch Airlines used to service but also other airports. The Government has also been in contact with the airports affected and also alternative UK departure airports. The Government has made a business case to all of these airlines and exchanged information with airports with the aim of recovering these links to Gibraltar left vacant.

2270 As hon. Members will know from two press releases that we have issued recently, on 27th November we announced that SuperBreak was conducting a series of charters next summer over a four-week period, twice a week from Belfast International Airport, Humberside, Exeter, Bournemouth, Durham Tees Valley and East Midlands Airport. That clearly is significant in a number of ways. It fills a little bit of a gap. It certainly does not go as long a way as we would like to in filling the gap left by Monarch, but it does fill a little bit of the void left there. Secondly, we have a geographical distribution of destinations which are now serving Gibraltar in package 2275 tours which we have not had before, including Northern Ireland, the north-east of England, the south-west of England, the east of England and the Midlands. That is particularly significant because if there is good demand for those seats from those regional destinations it may encourage either more charters or may encourage someone to say there is a market there which needs to be exploited and a route which might not otherwise have been available to Gibraltar.
2280 So that is a very significant development. The other issue about this particular package which is significant for Gibraltar is that these are package deals to Gibraltar. This is not just an airline filling seats and many of the people that come on seats, as hon. Members will know, transit into Spain; these are charters to Gibraltar on package deals, meaning hotel beds are also going to be used in Gibraltar. So that is significant from those various aspects.

2285 There was also an announcement on 28th November that easyJet, as from January of this year, are changing the types of aircraft operating between Gibraltar and London Gatwick and also from Bristol, which will mean that over 3,000 additional seats will be made available on these routes, increasing the Gatwick availability by 7% and the Bristol availability by 3%. Again, this does not fill what has been left by the unfortunate demise of Monarch – and it is worth 2290 recalling that the Monarch issue had nothing to do with Gibraltar.

We have had sustained load factors which are significant in terms of Monarch, British Airways and easyJet. We believe that there is capacity in the market, but as the hon. Member may well know with his knowledge of the airline industry, establishing a new route takes time and it is precisely as a result of engagement with airlines and with these tour operators that we have 2295 seen these developments so soon, particularly the charters and the increased availability in easyJet flights.

I want to pay tribute to the work done in this area by the Chief Executive of the Gibraltar Tourist Board, Nicky Guerrero, and also Stuart Finlayson, who works at the GTB and who specifically concentrates on route development. It is not a new role, it is something that he has 2300 had for a long time but he is particularly concentrating in this area now and they are working very hard in contact with airlines, the existing airlines and new airlines. We are making some inroads but this is a slow process. I do expect ... because there is clearly demand, and if there is a demand for seats on a particular route we will see additional aircraft, we will see airlines expressing an interest, but these things take time unfortunately.

Hon. T N Hammond: I thank the Minister for that extensive answer and of course nobody in this House is suggesting that the Government had any involvement or has in any way affected the outcome with Monarch, which would certainly be very unfair.

2310 Just regarding the discussions which may have taken place particularly with easyJet but potentially other carriers which operate to Gibraltar currently, I have good information which would suggest that those carriers have snapped up a lot of the slots out of the likes of Luton Airport and Gatwick Airport that belonged to Monarch previously. (Interjection) Therefore, I just wondered if we had specifically approached perhaps easyJet and asked them directly whether or 2315 not they would consider just using those slots out of those airports – Luton in particular, which currently obviously we are not being serviced by – and whether they would consider using those slots to provide a Gibraltar route directly.

Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, yes, and not just EasyJet. The hon. Member also mentions other slots. British Airways has come up with slots from Gatwick and certainly both easyJet and British Airways have been engaged not just generally, as we have done with them and with other airlines, but specifically in relation to those issues and our knowledge of the routes.

2320 As the Chief Minister has mentioned, there was a recent report in The Times about British Airways taking up some extra slots in Gatwick and certainly we would welcome those increased flights to Gibraltar. There is clearly also the possibility, from the British Airways point of view, of increasing the number of flights from Heathrow to Gibraltar, and that is something we are encouraging them to do as well.

2325 So, yes, we are having general conversations with them and other airlines and specifically as a result of the information we have received in relation to the slots.

2330 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, I wonder whether the Government can confirm whether they have been in discussions with airlines in relation to scheduled flights to Birmingham. The only reason I say that is, given the clear benefits of linking with Birmingham and the advancing HS2 project in which Birmingham has really ... I was there a couple of weeks ago and it has changed phenomenally in terms of inward investment and the clear links between Birmingham and Gibraltar that we could see. I was wondering whether the Government has reached out. I know the Minister said in his answer to the question he was looking at several airlines, but in particular I know that East Midlands is governed by the charter market for the summer that he described before, but whether they are linking out to the scheduled flights from Birmingham.

2340 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, most certainly Birmingham was a route that was attractive and it is one of the areas that the Government is working on. The hon. Member has mentioned the charter flights from East Midlands, but it is important, certainly from our point of view, to have a continued scheduled service from the Midlands as well as from the north and the south of England.

2345 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q744/2017
Small boats marina –
Berthing fees

Clerk: Question 744. The Hon. L F Llamas.

2350 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, since the opening of the small boats marina, can the Government provide a monthly schedule of berthing fees in relation to vessels docking on the power boat berths area, including (a) berthing fees charged, and (b) berthing fees collected?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

2355 Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, since its opening, superyachts berthing alongside the Mid Harbour Marina have been charged the following berthing fees. I have a table here which is part of the answer, but rather than reading month by month how much was invoiced –

2360

Mr Speaker: You are passing as a schedule.

Hon. G H Licudi: – I am making a copy of the answer available to the hon. Members opposite so that they can have it as if it was a schedule.

2365

Mr Speaker, can I just add, whilst the schedule is making its way to the hon. Members, that what this shows is that since its opening we have charged – and collected just about all of it except the last month, which is in arrears and still has to come in – but we have charged close to £¼ million from berthing fees for superyachts, which prior to the establishment of the small boats marina would probably not have been charged at all.

Small boats marina –
Rental costs re construction devices no longer in use

Clerk: Question 745. The Hon. L F Llamas.

2375 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, is the taxpayer incurring any rental costs for the construction devices, used to build the small boats marina, no longer in use; if so, can the Government provide details?

2380 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, the Government is not incurring any such rental costs.

Q746/2017
Small boats marina –
Plans re slipway

Clerk: Question 746. The Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon.

2385 Hon. Ms M D Hassan Nahon: Has Government got plans to build or make provisions for a slipway at the small boats marina?

2390 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port.

Minister for Tourism, Employment, Commercial Aviation and the Port (Hon. G H Licudi): Mr Speaker, it is simply not feasible to build a slipway at the small boats marina itself. The Government does, however, have plans for a service yard for boats at the small boats marina. I would refer the hon. Member to the answer to Question 202/2016.

2395 Hon. R M Clinton: Sorry, Mr Speaker, if I may come back to Question 745 and if I may ask the Minister: does the Government own the device that my hon. Friend referred to, or does it have an interest in that device?

2400 Hon. G H Licudi: Mr Speaker, that device was, I assume, rented by the contractor. We had GJBS, who won the tender for the small boats marina. They brought the equipment – I assume they rented the equipment that was required for that, so the Government certainly does not have any interest ... As far as I am aware, the Government does not have any interest in the device that was used.

2405 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): If I could be of assistance, Mr Speaker, as far as we know, the people who own that device thought that they would wait here until they determined where they would be gainfully employing it next, whether it was here or elsewhere. Gibraltar, being at the crossroads of the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, seemed to them a good place to remain and there is nothing to be read into that in terms of the Government owning any share or incurring any costs as a result.

COMMERCE

Q747-748/2017

Mail delivery –
Turnaround re parcels and letters

Clerk: Question 747. The Hon. L F Llamas.

2415 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a daily schedule with the average turnaround for parcels received from arrival in Gibraltar to delivery of the notification notice at the respective address?

Sorry, Mr Speaker, the notice of questions was wrong and it did not make sense. Can the Government provide a daily schedule with the average turnaround for letters received from ... in arrival to Gibraltar ... It does not read well at all.

2420 Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a daily schedule with the average turnaround for letters received from arrival in Gibraltar to delivery at the respective address?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Commerce.

2425 Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, after all that I will answer this question together with Question 748.

Clerk: Question 748. The Hon. L F Llamas.

2430 Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government provide a daily schedule with the average turnaround for parcels received from Gibraltar in Gibraltar to delivery of the notification notice at the respective address?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Commerce.

Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, letters, documents and parcels, goods from around the world, arrive either via the hubs of Madrid or London. The mail that comes from London is flown to Malaga Airport and arrives at the mail centre by three o'clock in the afternoon, Monday to Friday. Mail from Madrid arrives midday, Monday to Friday.

2440 The daily schedule for letter mail is next day delivery. The daily schedule for parcel mail is 48 hours after arrival as notification cards have to be produced. Any local letter posted before 7 a.m. is delivered on the same day.

2445 Hon. L F Llamas: Just one supplementary, Mr Speaker: is the Government confident that this timescale is being adhered to?

2450 Hon. A J Isola: Mr Speaker, we are currently conducting a review which includes the testing of that to establish how good or bad it is being. Obviously there are peak periods, particularly in respect of parcels, Christmas being one of the areas, so we are ensuring we have additional resources to enable us to meet the demand, and I am confident that we will.

We will be announcing in the first quarter of next year the results of the review we are carrying out into the postal service generally to see how we can use technology to improve and make the efficiency of the postal service even better.

2455 Mr Speaker: Next question.

DEPUTY CHIEF MINISTER

Q759/2017

MoD site behind Cross of Sacrifice – Handing over to Government

Clerk: We now move to Question 759. The Hon. R M Clinton.

2460 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, has the MoD handed over to Government the site of the hangar behind the Cross of Sacrifice on which it is projected to build a college; and if so, on what date?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Deputy Chief Minister.

2465 Deputy Chief Minister (Hon. Dr J J Garcia): Mr Speaker, no, sir.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, am I then to understand that the site of the college will be purely on the area between the hangar and the current Cross of Sacrifice, which encompasses the access road to the multi-storey car park? Would that be my understanding?

2470 Hon. Dr J J Garcia: Mr Speaker, the site of the college will not involve using MoD land in terms of its construction. There is an area about 1,000 square metres in front of the MoD fence, which is where we intend to construct the college.

2475 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I move that the House should now adjourn until tomorrow at 2.30 in the afternoon.

Mr Speaker: The House will now adjourn until tomorrow at 2.30 in the afternoon.

The House adjourned at 6.16 p.m.

Questions for Oral Answer

INFRASTRUCTURE AND PLANNING

Q701/2017

Fixed penalty notices –

Clarification arising from supplementary questions

Mr Speaker: Arising from supplementaries yesterday in Question 701, the Hon. Paul Balban wishes to clarify some information in connection with the fines that are apparently unpaid.

5 Minister for Infrastructure and Planning (Hon. P J Balban): Mr Speaker, thank you for giving me the opportunity to clarify a point raised by the Leader of the Opposition yesterday in one of his supplementaries, where it appeared on the schedule that there were a great number of fines which were unpaid. We went into a debate on why these were left unpaid and obviously my civil servants had told me it was mainly as a result of errors with addresses etc. and we went into 10 discussion on that account.

I chose to look into the figures a little more closely and in fact there are still ... The impression I gave yesterday was that a lot of fines are unpaid because people have perhaps not paid them for whatever reason. The truth is that a lot of them are still stuck within the system in the Magistrates Court. So, for example, the amount of fines that appeared unpaid total ... Around 15 400 fines approximately are still caught up in the referral to the Magistrates Court and that is the reason why they have not been paid, challenged or otherwise.

I thought it was important to clarify that point so that the correct impression is taken from that reply.

20 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, just one question. I appreciate he cannot identify exactly all of them, but does the Minister know whether they have been responded to positively by the individuals that are clearly being prosecuted for failing to pay, or are these significant numbers of challenges to the Fixed Penalty Notices?

25 Hon. P J Balban: I could not tell the hon. Member the exact reason, but of the total amount about 400-odd are in the courts. It could be because a summons has been sent and there has been no reply, and then obviously they need to attend or appear in court, or it could be that they are challenging the legitimacy of the FPN itself. So it could be for a number of reasons but there are quite a number of them caught up in the system as we speak.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, TELECOMMUNICATIONS AND THE GSB

Q749-750/2017

Young offenders –

Numbers registered as employed; schemes available

30 Clerk: We now proceed to Question 749. The Hon. E J Phillips.

Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm of those young offenders who have served custodial sentences and/or community punishment in the last 12 months, how many have successfully registered as employed with the Employment Service?

35 Obviously, the Minister will be asked here a question in relation to the previous questions I asked in relation to those young offenders.

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

40 Minister for Economic Development, Telecommunications and the GSB (Hon. J J Bossano): Mr Speaker, I will answer this question with Question 750.

Clerk: Question 750. The Hon. E J Phillips.

45 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, can the Government confirm what programme schemes are available to young offenders who have completed a term of imprisonment or community punishment to ensure that they are rehabilitated into the community and are assisted in obtaining employment opportunities?

50 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Minister for Economic Development and Telecommunications.

Hon. J J Bossano: Mr Speaker, persons, including young offenders, submit a terms of engagement form to register as employed with the Employment Services. They do not disclose whether they have served a custodial and/or community punishment in the previous 12 months when they register, and as such the Department of Employment does not hold any such records. However, from the support given by EDEC to such individuals, I can tell the hon. Member that 11 out of the 23 we have dealt with have found employment in the last 12 months.

55 As regards the programmes that currently provide assistance to persons who have served a custodial or other sentence, the position is as previously explained in answer to similar questions. I am happy to repeat the answer if the hon. Member has forgotten the explanation he was given.

Hon. E J Phillips: I am grateful, Mr Speaker, for the clarification that the Minister brings, although with a slightly tainted response in relation to Question 750. What I would say is that clearly the question I asked before was some time ago and I am grateful to understand that the scheme remains the same. I am grateful for that answer.

60 Just in relation to Question 749, if I have accurately got it, it is that the individuals concerned register themselves with the Employment Service. Is it the case that there is any active encouragement by either those in the prison or those who run the programmes or schemes, to encourage those individuals to register so that they can get on? I know it sounds like an obvious question, but given the fact that the Minister did say that it is up to them, is there an active encouragement by the system, effectively, generally speaking, to register?

75 Hon. J J Bossano: The counsellor that EDEC employs and sees people in the prison whilst they are serving their sentence and then subsequently, when they are released, keeps contact with them. Clearly, the ones who respond well to the approaches are the ones who then come and register with us.

As I have explained in the past, what we do – in using the criteria that are being used to encourage employers in the private sector to provide training or to be given a wage subsidy on the basis that there is a need to have the person on a job for a period of time to settle down, where there may be a high level of incentive at the beginning and that kind of thing – we do in the knowledge that the group of people we are referring to, as a matter of reality, although it should not be happening, tend to have greater difficulty in getting employment and we make the incentives more generous to compensate for it. So, normally, if it is somebody who has served a custodial sentence, we would offer an employer 50% of his wages for one year with the commitment that they would keep them on in the year; we monitor their performance during the year, we get reports during that year and the counsellor sees them.

What I am, in effect, saying is that we know of 23 that have come out in the last 12 months. I am assuming that the 'young people' is 25 or less, so that is the category of people. We have seen more people than this, but they were over 25. Even if somebody comes out and he is 50, he still gets the same support as the younger ... But of the people we are seeing in the programme, we have seen 23. There may have been more that have come out, but either they have not expressed any interest when approached to be helped or they have simply not attempted to find employment and they just disappeared. In some cases they are not people who are residents, who have gone.

There is no evidence, for example, that we are doing less well than we have done in the past. I asked whether the figure of the 12 months that the hon. Member asked about gave any indication whether we were being less or more successful and I am told that on an average our success rate is about 50% of those that we are monitoring and assisting, and in this case it was 11 out of 23, so it is just under the 50% but I do not think it is significant.

Also, I think in a way we need to be looking at a rolling average for the period, because in some cases out of the 23 there will be people who have been out for a year and the ones that are out for longer are the ones that are mainly in the 11, and there are people who have only been out, for example, since October and November and probably that is too soon for the scheme to be able to ... although some people get a job as soon as they come out, but there are not many cases like that.

I think probably what we need to do is see how these figures change if we take, for example, a 12 months that begins, instead of from November to November, December to December and then January to January and we see whether the pattern is maintained in the future, and I am happy to share whatever information I have got with the hon. Member.

Hon. E J Phillips: It is certainly interesting to hear further details about the 50% subsidy that the Government utilise to encourage business to take on individuals who have unfortunately fallen ... Insofar as that, can the Government give any indication as to the flavour of the type of work that individuals are doing where this subsidy is available? Is it across the board to any employment opportunity, or is it directed at specific industries or work places?

Hon. J J Bossano: No, it is available to any industry, and unlike, for example, the training that we provide, which is at the national minimum wage, this is 50% of whatever the wage is, and I think it also includes 50% of the Social Security payment of the employer. But in practice the kind of jobs that people are willing to take, people who come out from serving a sentence, are generally not positions of responsibility. That does not mean they will not get a better job later on, but I think that at the beginning they tend to go in at the bottom of the rung in whatever industry they go into. For example, security would be a good place to put them because there are a lot of security jobs, but it is one where they do not get past the vetting. So it is mainly in the construction industry and in things like cleaning companies and in areas like hotel and catering. Those are the three areas where it is easiest to get them in, where there is always a high turnover of labour and where the incentive is quite attractive because those are labour-intensive areas. So you are cutting the wage cost by half and it is an attractive proposition.

295 Hon. L F Llamas: Thank you very much for that answer.

Mr Speaker, with your leave, I would like to ask to study the answer that has been given and come back the following month with any supplementaries, given that it is a very long list that the Hon. Minister has read.

300 I would just like to ask the Hon. Minister: if subcontracted workers do not exist in the Civil Service, what do you call the temporary staff that are employed, so that I can bring this question back in the following month?

305 Hon. J J Bossano: Well, the terminology that has been used in all the other questions in this meeting and previously is supply workers. Subcontract workers are when you subcontract the work out to somebody – for example, if we give work to JBS and JBS subcontract it to somebody else and there is a contract. The supply workers are people who are being supplied and are deployed as and when, but they are not there for a particular contract and a particular job; they are sent wherever they are needed.

310 Hon. L F Llamas: I would just like to clarify that the confusion arose because in the Care Agency I had been told that there was nothing called supply workers and that they were called subcontracted. That was before the Hon. Mr Costa's time. That has been the confusion and obviously I referred to them as subcontractors rather than supply. I had always been advised that they are called supply workers.

315 Thank you.

320 Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, may I ask the Hon. Minister for a small clarification? When he was giving us the list, he mentioned that in No. 6 there is a Director of Education working there since September 2016. However, prior to that, when he had given us the list with the Department of Education, I may have it wrong but I noted that an SEA – being a senior education adviser, I take it – is in an acting capacity as Director of Education from September 2016 and I think the Minister said up to January 2017. Is that correct?

325 Hon. J J Bossano: [Inaudible] that date is that in that Department there are two people who have been promoted, one in September and one in January.

Hon. E J Reyes: So, for clarification purposes, as from September 2016 when the Director of Education goes to No. 6, we have a senior education adviser covering that post from September 2016 to date. Am I correct in that assumption?

330 Thank you, Mr Speaker, that clarifies it.

Hon. T N Hammond: I apologise to the Minister if he did capture this in his extensive answer, but is it the case that the current Captain of the Port is in an acting capacity as well? I understand he is, but I did not hear that in the answer and I wonder if the Minister could clarify that.

335 Hon. J J Bossano: I have not been asked about acting capacities; I have been asked for temporary promotions, and temporary promotion is something that happens after you have been acting for a period of time. When it is a very short period of cover it is called ‘acting’, and after a certain period of cover there are rules that say you are now temporarily promoted in that post, which carries different benefits.

Hon. R M Clinton: Sorry, Mr Speaker, I apologise in advance if I got the dates wrong: if the Minister could just confirm the Accountant General position was vacant from October 2015 and there is an SEO acting from June 2016. Is that correct?

345 Hon. J J Bossano: No, Mr Speaker, none of the dates are until; all the dates are the starting dates. All the people concerned are still doing whatever it is they were doing when they were temporarily promoted, because the question is asking who was temporarily promoted yesterday. They might have been temporarily promoted the day before yesterday or they might have been temporarily promoted 10 years ago, but it is still temporarily promoted as of now. So the answer that has been prepared for Parliament by Human Resources is on the basis that all the people on this list are still temporarily promoted in the posts that I have indicated, which shows what they were before they were temporarily promoted and what they are now as temporarily promoted. There is no end date anywhere in the answer.

355 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I thank the Minister for his answer.

In terms of the position of Accountant General, and given the importance of the position, how or at what point does he envisage that the individual undertaking that role at present will be made permanent and that position will be confirmed? It is a very important position to be left acting or temporary or for a short period. It is a pretty critical function to perform and I would expect that to be filled, pretty much the same as the Commissioner of Income Tax to be filled. Does he have a view as to when these positions will be made permanent?

365 Hon. J J Bossano: We do not actually get involved in these things of promoting them or deciding how long they stay there. I do not think the Accountant General has been as long as some of the others, but temporarily promoted is the terminology that is used, which the hon. Member is familiar with, which is more than just a short-term thing. You are deemed to be temporarily promoted when you have been acting continuously in a post, which is different, for example, from what happens where people are acting whilst others are on annual leave or sick leave, which happens all the time in many Departments, but when there is temporary promotion it normally means that the occupant has now left the service and probably the next person, the deputy, as it were ... In a situation like the Accountant General, it would normally be the person who has regularly been acting in previous absences who steps in immediately until the machinery of the Civil Service gets round to advertising the vacancy and promoting, selecting and all the things that happen before the jobs are cleared. Clearly, in some cases, some of these temporary promotions have been there for a very long time; in other cases, it has happened in November. But I think generally, in an area like the Accountant General, I would have thought there cannot be a detriment to the quality of the work that is done, because as a general rule the person that steps in may have been doing the stepping in for many years every time the person at the top went away on annual leave or sick leave. Normally, we are talking about a situation where in the Civil Service people have something like 30 days, which is six weeks, and then you have the public holidays, so for three months of the year the actor is acting, so by the time he becomes temporarily promoted he is probably fairly accustomed to doing the job, I would have thought.

385

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I have a question for the Government. I understand that the Government is undertaking an efficiency review and therefore many vacancies are on hold, even though some have been promised in previous sessions that they would have been covered, especially head of department posts. Given that the Government is still undergoing this review and vacant posts or long-term acting are allowed, would it be a policy of this Government to pass those temporary promotion applications through a PSC board and give a bit of fair competition rather than crowning somebody with a temporary promotion?

390

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, yes, we have a view and the view is not a million miles from what the hon. Gentleman has set out, but it is not our role. The hon. Gentleman has to understand that we do not decide who acts or who does not act. This is entirely a Civil Service matter, at least since the day I was elected, and therefore when these promotion posts will be advertised, in particular senior promotion posts, and whether the PSC has a role in the context of approving a secondment – which has never been the case before; it has always been an issue, really, for the Head of the Civil Service – is a matter on which the Government will not interfere. But we believe that the Public Service Commission has an important role to play in ensuring that there is a level playing field for all civil servants in the context of any promotions that they may aspire to and we believe that the manner in which things are handled now is no different to the way in which they were handled previously in the context of the structure. In other words, the PSC has never approved temporary promotions. But it should also be clear that the Government is not involved in making temporary promotions in the same way as we are not involved in making full promotions or employment decisions. All of those go through the independent and very rigorous Civil Service and Public Service Commission process.

400

410

Hon. J J Bossano: Can I just add, Mr Speaker, that in terms of the numbers, the number of vacancies is more or less at the level that it was in 2011, except that they are not the same vacancies as they were in 2011. That is to say the service is much bigger than it was in numbers – the party that he joined and then left disapproved of the increase in numbers of civil servants from 2012 on – and we have got, of course, as well, the supplies that provide support while the vacancies are there, which did not exist before. So in fact there are two issues here that need to be taken into account if you are comparing what there is now with what there was before: it is a bigger Civil Service and the number of vacancies is more or less the same, and there are supplies involved which did not exist before.

415

CHIEF MINISTER

Q760/2017

Ministerial Code –
Date of introduction

420 Clerk: Question 760. The Hon. T N Hammond.

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, when does Government believe that it will introduce the Ministerial Code?

425 Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Code for Ministers and the separate Code for all Members of Parliament will be introduced together after they have been discussed in the Select Committee on Parliamentary Reform.

430

Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, does the Government envisage calling that Select Committee together in the next three months? I do not believe it has met during this parliamentary term so far, so progress would appear to be fairly slow in that regard.

435

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the hon. Gentleman is right. It has not met in this parliamentary term for a reason. We have had to change the composition of that Select Committee already on one occasion as a result of one splinter group from the official Opposition and there has since been another splinter group from the official Opposition. We want everyone to be properly represented in respect of that Select Committee, which will affect Members of political parties in this place as much as it will affect Members of this House who are independent, and so we envisage once again bringing a motion to change the composition of that Select Committee. I do not know whether between now and then there might be other splinter groups or how things will play out. I am not pressing anything that I am concerned about on this side of the House, but that has been an issue.

445

I do not know whether the hon. Member remembers the history of this, but we came to the House with the Ministerial Code, ready to implement it. It was the former, former, former, former Leader of the Opposition, my predecessor as Chief Minister, who said from the position on the opposite benches that we should not go down the route of implementing the Ministerial Code. He had the support of what was then the GSD, aka all of the seats on the Opposition benches at the time, and I said, in accepting that advice, that as a result of the fact that this was something for the whole Parliament and not just for the Government side we would agree to go into a Select Committee. So we did not want this to go into a Select Committee; we were ready to make this parliamentary code binding immediately. We have gone down that road because it was suggested by the GSD. The GSD splintered once, then it splintered again, and so we are going to have to change the composition of the Select Committee.

450

But I think there is very little for us to argue about in the context of what is proposed in respect of that Code, because it is very much in keeping with the UK code, so we very much hope that it is going to become a binding instrument very soon.

460

Hon. T N Hammond: Well, goodness me, the Chief Minister listening to the GSD – not something that happens particularly often.

It is absolutely the case that presumably there will be nothing contentious, and of course I bring the question simply to understand what the timelines might be. I understand the reasons the Chief Minister has given, though I do believe there has been ample opportunity to call that particular sub-committee while it has been correctly embodied. That has not happened, regrettably. I do hope and would ask whether the Chief Minister is able to provide any information as to when they may be updating or requesting that the composition of the sub-committee is updated in order to provide appropriate representation, or whether even the Chief Minister would consider just discussing with various Members of the Opposition, pertinent 470 Members of the Opposition, what the Code would look like, providing drafts so there can be maybe a pre-agreement with respect to that particular Code, which, as you say, I do not believe will be contentious, particularly if it is following already-established lines.

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it is not that I was listening to the GSD. The hon. the 475 former, former, former, former Leader of the Opposition was then a backbencher who was representing that his views were views that he put for the good of Gibraltar and for the good of the whole Parliament; and I was not approaching this on the basis of Government and Opposition, because this is a Code for the whole House so I was approaching it really more as 480 Leader of the House, listening to a Member with considerable experience who was putting a point that I thought was worth taking into consideration.

In terms of providing a copy of the Code, there it is behind the hon. Gentleman. (Laughter) It has been there for two years, Mr Speaker. Like all the best magic tricks, they are not really magic, they are there. I am told by the Minister for modern technology that it is actually already online, so we could not do more, other than send him an audio book with me reading it to him, 485 (Laughter) in case he wishes to fall into his nightly slumber listening to my dulcet tones putting him to sleep. All the information is there. I am surprised he is asking us for things which he has already and he did not know that.

In terms of the timetable, as I told him, we were ready to move on this immediately that we brought the Code to the House. It is a Code that comes from a Parliamentary Commission that 490 Mr Speaker chaired, that had a number of former GSD Members, a number of independents, some of whom have since decided that they want to throw their lot in with the GSD; some of the independent Members have taken another view. So I do not think that this is contentious at all, but I think it would be unfair to Mr Llamas that he should not be represented formally in that Committee, although he is now an independent Member, although Mrs Nahon is going to be 495 represented in that Committee. Because this is a House issue and the House and those in it are the representatives of the people, I think it is important that all of us have been properly represented in that Select Committee.

I would hope that we will be able to deal with this during the context of the first quarter of next year, but I must say that the hon. Gentleman knows that estimating timings of things since 500 the United Kingdom took the decision it did, with us voting in the process, in the referendum in respect of leaving the European Union, it has become very difficult to stick even to one's own best instincts of what the right timing of things should be – and I will deal with another question now which will raise even that again.

505 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q761/2017
Eastside tunnel –
Routing of pedestrians

Clerk: Has Government made a decision on the routing of pedestrians once the ... Sorry. I beg your pardon. Sorry. (Several Members: Hear, hear.) (Laughter and banging on desks) I am sorry! (Laughter and interjections)

510 Mr Speaker: For once, the Clerk of the House has transported himself to the Opposition benches! (Laughter and interjection)

Clerk: Question 761. The Hon. T N Hammond. (Interjection)

515 Hon. T N Hammond: Yes, if I may take a moment to compose myself ... (Laughter) Mr Speaker, has Government made a decision on the routing of pedestrians once the Eastside tunnel project is complete?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

520 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, there am I, fighting those who say that the Opposition is in the Civil Service and not on the benches opposite!

The decision taken regarding the routing of pedestrians once the new runway tunnel is operational was presented to us upon our election into Government in 2011 as a fait accompli left over from the former administration. The decision was that pedestrians would use the pedestrian tunnel. We nevertheless continue to explore other options.

525 Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q762/2017
General Orders –
Publication of Government review

Clerk: Question 762. The Hon. T N Hammond.

530 Hon. T N Hammond: Mr Speaker, has Government completed its review of General Orders and does it intend to publish the results?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

535 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the review of General Orders is ongoing. A working group composed of members of the Human Resources department, the CEO of the Public Service Human Resources Business Support Unit and representatives from the three main unions – that is to say the GGCA the GTA (NASUWT and Unite) – have been working towards the new Public Service Code, which will replace General Orders.

540 The draft document is in its advanced stages and most chapters have been completed. We will be officially submitting the document to the trade unions in the New Year for a final consultation period prior to implementation.

545 On its introduction, the new Public Service Code will be published internally to all Departments and will be made available online to all public servants via HM Government's intranet. Training will be provided at all levels to ensure a smooth transition from General Orders to the new Public Service Code.

Q763-764/2017

Referendum Anniversary Eve concert – Contract and lack of Gibraltarian performers

Clerk: Question 763. The Hon. E J Reyes.

550

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, can Government say if the concert held at Victoria Stadium on Saturday, 9th September 2017 was awarded to the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra by a tender process or by what other means?

555

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I will answer the question together with Question 764.

Clerk: Question 764. The Hon. E J Reyes.

Hon. E J Reyes: Can Government say why neither a Gibraltarian orchestra conductor nor Gibraltar musicians nor any Gibraltarian soloist singers were offered the opportunity to perform at the National Day Eve Concert held at the Victoria Stadium on Saturday, 9th September 2017?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, the contract to perform at the Referendum Anniversary Eve concert was awarded to a British orchestra, the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra, that was available on 9th September to provide a Last Night of the Proms style repertoire. Additionally, it is the orchestra with royal patronage from the British Royal Family. The BBC Concert Orchestra was not available as the date clashed with their Proms dates.

The Government sought that the soloists that performed on the evening should have been Gibraltarians. Additionally, the Government sought that a Gibraltarian conductor of international renown should have conducted the Orchestra. Unfortunately, we were informed that it would have cost £20,000 per day for rehearsals required for the Philharmonic to perform with soloists or a conductor that it had not performed with before. That amount does not include the expenses of associated travel and accommodation that would have been incurred. A minimum of three days of rehearsals was required. In addition, no suitable studio for such rehearsals was available in the period and the orchestra itself was not available for rehearsals due to its heavy performance schedule.

575

The event was a magnificent celebration of the 50th anniversary of the 1967 Referendum and a fitting tribute to the Referendum Generation. The members of the Opposition who were present and who joyously joined in the flag waving will no doubt want to congratulate the Government on the organisation and planning of the event.

585

The Government itself would, in particular, wish to express its gratitude to Mrs Joyce Diaz and her team for their work in delivering the event and to the Gibraltar Choir Collective, who did us all proud. Additional thanks must also go to the Commanding Officer of the Royal Gibraltar Regiment for allowing the Corps of Drums and the Band of the Regiment to perform on the night, and in particular to their musicians for their magnificent rendition of the Gibraltar Anthem. Their contribution was tremendous.

590

Mr Speaker, I am particularly pleased that we were able to make the event truly affordable for all and that the £5 ticket price will be donated to that most worthy of Gibraltar's charities, namely Calpe House. I should add that the Government extends its gracious thanks on behalf of the people of Gibraltar to all of the sponsors who enabled us to have the orchestra in Gibraltar without public expense.

595

Mr Speaker, I am able to announce today that the Government will be donating £12,665 to Calpe House from ticket sales. I am also able to announce today that a DVD and a digital download of the Referendum 50 Concert by the Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra will be available in coming months as a perfect recording of the event for all to enjoy.

Hon. E J Reyes: Mr Speaker, thank you for that answer.

The Chief Minister did say about the non-availability of the BBC Orchestra and so on. I could deduce some things from there, but could he perhaps be a little bit clearer for the record: was it awarded to the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra via a tender process, or rather am I deducing it ...? If the Chief Minister can clarify any doubts I have – how did it end up going to this entity?

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, perhaps I should start by saying that the night before, we had a magnificent concert at Casemates where all of the performers were Gibraltarians: Gibraltarian musicians and Gibraltarian dancers. I know all Members of this side of the House were present and deeply enjoyed the event, and I am sure, although I cannot recall, that most if not all of the Members opposite were also present.

Although in my most fanciful of moments I see myself as a Simon Cowell style character, auditioning people and being remarkably affectionate to them in the context of their performances, we did not hold an X-Factor style attempt to choose the best orchestra. We were in contact with a number of British orchestras. There is no Gibraltar orchestra yet of the size of the Philharmonic and this was the Referendum 50 anniversary concert, so it was important to us that it should be a British orchestra because we were celebrating that choice made 50 years ago. Scheduling meant that actually there was no beauty parade to be had – there was one orchestra that was available that could do it on the day, and that is the orchestra that we had. If the hon. Gentleman wants to see it in terms of the three quotes system, for example, I think we looked at more than three orchestras, we were in touch with more than three orchestras and there was one that was available, so it was not an issue of tendering.

In any event, there was, as I said, no public expense in respect of the event because the sponsors – and hon. Members will have seen who the sponsors were; I cannot refer to one without referring to the many others, and I think there were approximately 50 sponsors – meant that this was an event that did not cost the public purse, and when there was a ticket price it was to ensure that we could allocate seating to everyone but with a very clear indication that the amounts collected would be donated to charity.

So I do not think it is the sort of event that is a tenderable event, but I was very keen to see Gibraltarians appear on the day on the big stage conducting – we know that we have at least one conductor of international renown in Gibraltar and a soloist, and we know that we have more than one magnificent voice in Gibraltar. Unfortunately, for the reasons I have given, although we pursued that quite vigorously, it was impossible to achieve that. Mr Speaker, I must say that the event, I think, was a magnificent one and that the soloists, despite the fact that they were not Gibraltarian, were not bad either.

Hon. E J Reyes: I am grateful, Mr Speaker.

Yes, it does clarify and put to rest what I had thought, and may I offer a few more supportive words to the Chief Minister.

I think it was particularly pleasing for those of us – and I can confirm that I was definitely there on the evening – where we could introduce an element of Gibraltarian participation, not only through the magnificent performance of the Royal Gibraltar Regiment Corps of Drums but also in the Collective Choir which helped to lead the chorus. I must admit I am tone deaf and although one tries to contribute in the animation of the singing, knowing that the choir was there and would certainly over drown my bad singing habit ... Therefore, I am really pleased that we succeeded in a fantastic concert with, to whatever degree or level possible, Gibraltarian participation, and the Chief Minister and his team can rest assured of my continued support in that respect.

650

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I am very grateful on behalf of the Government for those kind words, and perhaps we should end this part of the questioning in the same way as the concert ended, by remembering always that we stick with Britain because it is the land of hope and glory. We hope that it continues to rule the waves a bit more than it has until now, and God Save the Queen, Mr Speaker.

655

Hon. T N Hammond: If I may, Mr Speaker, not quite ending the questions, I would certainly like to congratulate all those involved in both events because they were fantastic events on both occasions, particularly I thought in the Casemates event the Hon. Mr Bossano's speech was superb and for me it really did crown the evening.

660

If I could just ask whether the Government is considering running a similar event next year, not necessary associated with the Referendum anniversary because clearly that will have passed, but certainly the event at Victoria Stadium has on the one hand not cost the public any money, has actually raised money for charity and was very well attended and clearly appreciated by all who were there. I just wondered whether the Government has any thoughts in respect of next year.

665

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, delighted to offer an encore to my speech of a moment ago.

670

The Hon. Mr Bossano is superb, as far as we on this side of the House are concerned, on every occasion, in particular in his Budget addresses. I am sure that probably the only person on the opposite side who has done this exercise is Mr Clinton but I commend to all Members that they should start with his Budget address of 1973 and see the consistency that there is there right up until 2017. But everything that Mr Bossano said on that stage at Casemates translates entirely to everything that Mr Bossano does in politics and I think it is an important point to make.

675

Sponsors were very generous in the context of the 50th anniversary of the Referendum; I do not know whether they would be so generous every year.

The hon. Gentleman should know that there is a plot afoot to continue to enjoy cultural events of that sort, but I am unable to say more at this stage for want of scuppering it.

680

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q765/2017

Supplementary Appropriation (2015/2016) Bill 2016 – Reason for delay

Clerk: Question 765. The Hon. R M Clinton.

685

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, can the Government explain why it has not yet proceeded with the Bill for an Act to appropriate further sums of money to the service of the year ended 31st March 2016, being B26/2016, which was published on 22nd December 2016?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

690

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, this has resulted simply from the exigencies prevalent upon the Executive this year as a result of the Brexit process.

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I have no wish to engage in a debate, (Interjection and laughter) but perhaps I could ask Mr Speaker's indulgence. The Appropriation Bill for 2015 –

695

Hon. Chief Minister: Will the hon. Gentleman give way?

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes.

700

Hon. Chief Minister: If it is of any assistance to him, I intend to take the Bill in about 50 minutes.

705

Hon. R M Clinton: Well, Mr Speaker, I am enormously grateful to the Chief Minister – it will save us all a lot of time. All I would say is that I am grateful that the Bill is being taken today, but obviously, given his comments last year and obviously it is nonsensical to have a supplementary appropriation after we have passed this year's Budget, I would be grateful if in next year's we try and keep to what he originally intended last year.

Thank you.

710

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, yes, indeed. He is referring to my own logic, it is something that I am very keen to see, but unfortunately the time of the Executive has been taken almost entirely, as he knows, in respect of the Brexit process. We have had fewer meetings of the House, they have had to be shorter and legislation has built up – this is one of the issues that has built up – but he knows, because I have said so and it is on the record, that it is my intention that these Bills be dealt with and with greater alacrity than has been the case until now, and unfortunately this year, having set that high bar for myself, I have not been able to surmount it because of the circumstances which have prevailed.

715

Mr Speaker: Next question.

Q766/2017
Three quotes system –
Works and supplies procured

720

Clerk: Question 766. The Hon. L F Llamas.

725

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, for the periods 1st April 2014 to 31st March 2016, can the Government provide a schedule of works or supplies procured by the Government using the three quotes system, including (a) the company or entity awarded; (b) brief detail of work or supply and (c) whether the award was the cheapest?

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

730

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo) Mr Speaker, this data is not centrally held. A schedule of all contracts awarded by Government by quotation for sums over £2,000 is readily available online on the Government website.

Q767/2017
Mons Calpe Mews and Beach View Terraces – Losses incurred to date

Clerk: Question 767. The Hon. L F Llamas.

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, can the Government disclose the losses incurred to date as a result of the development of Mons Calpe Mews and Beach View Terraces?

735

Clerk: Answer, the Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, the Government made a profit of £1,039,204 arising from the development of the housing estates that sold for £108 million.

740

Hon. L F Llamas: Mr Speaker, I would just like to clarify this question arose as a result from I think it was Direct Democracy, where the Chief Minister I believe said that they had made a loss due to not having taken into account the foundation work of those projects and the infrastructural work of those projects. Is that correct or did I misunderstand?

745

Hon. Chief Minister: Well, Mr Speaker, it depends how you look at it, if you look at it in terms of the development or you look at it in terms of wider Government expenditure. If you include every infrastructure upgrade that is required, then it is very likely that you would have a very long piece of string; but if you look at it as a developer, then that is the provision that I have given him.

750

A developer does not pay for every single aspect of the infrastructure update that may be required throughout Gibraltar as a result of a development. A developer pays a premium and then he develops, so that is not included in the context of the calculation; neither is the cost of the land included. So, for example, if you were to say we might have sold that land for £10 million, that is not factored in there because one of the principles of affordable housing in Gibraltar has been, since the concept was introduced by the GSLP Government and Mr Bossano, that you do not charge for the land but you are adding value to Gibraltar by having those homes for Gibraltarians. These are the issues that I was saying may need to be taken into consideration in the future and might tip that balance into loss.

755

But there are a number of examples of housing developments which have given rise to a loss. For example, on Waterport Terraces there was a direct loss – applying the same criteria, not involving infrastructure or the cost of land – of £7 million, also excluding the cost of infrastructure and the land. And in fact there is a claim against the Government of Gibraltar of €26 million presently being adjudicated in the Spanish courts in Madrid by Gibralcón, formerly Bruesa. The hon. Gentleman might remember that this is what I told Mr Bossino was the real legacy of the GSD when he told me that it was a golden legacy that we had inherited.

760

There was a loss of £19 million in respect of the development of Cumberland, Bayview and Nelson's, which was also a project they developed when they were in Government. That includes £4 million which was a loan that the former administration... the taxpayer directly gave to OEM, which has had to be written off. Just so that we understand that, the taxpayer has lost £4 million because the GSD Government gave OEM a loan which has been written off – not like the Sunborn loan, which has been fully repaid, as hon. Members will know, to Credit Finance Company Ltd. And there is additionally a £7 million claim against the Government – or there was – by Barclays Bank Plc through the liquidators of OEM.

770

So, Mr Speaker, there have been direct losses, even when you do the calculations the same way as I have done them, but not in the estates developed by this administration.

775

Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful to the Chief Minister for the answer to that question from my hon. colleague.

780

If I may ask, the £1,039 million profit on those two developments, he quoted a sale price – I may be wrong and have misheard him, and I am sure he will correct me – of £180 million. (Hon. Chief Minister: Eight million.) £108 million. Does that sale proceed include Government 50-50 or is that excluding Government 50-50? Is it all lumped together?

785 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, from the information that I have and from my knowledge of the estates, I think that would include the Government's 50-50 because of course, as the hon. Gentleman knows, that is value.

Questions for Written Answer

Clerk: We now move to answers to Written Questions. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the answers to Written Questions W194/2017 to W215/2017 be now laid on the table.

795

Clerk: Bills – First and Second Reading.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I move that the House should now recess for 15 minutes before we continue with the business.

800

Mr Speaker: The House will now recess for 15 minutes.

The house recessed at 3.44 p.m. and resumed its sitting at 4.03 p.m.

Order of the Day

BILLS

FIRST AND SECOND READING

Supplementary Appropriation (2015/2016) Bill 2016 – First Reading approved

Clerk: A Bill for an Act to appropriate further sums of money to the service of the year ended 31st day of March 2016. The Hon. the Chief Minister.

805 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo) Mr Speaker, it was not even half an hour, let alone 50 minutes.

I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to appropriate further sums of money to the service of the year ended 31st day of March 2016 be read a first time.

810 Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to appropriate further sums of money to the service of the year ended 31st day of March 2016 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Supplementary Appropriation (2015/2016) Act 2016.

Supplementary Appropriation (2015/2016) Bill 2016 –
Second Reading approved

815 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Bill be now read a second time.

The purpose of this Bill is to appropriate further sums of money to meet Government expenditure incurred during the year ended 31st March 2016.

820 Hon. Members will know that last year approval of supplementary appropriation was brought to this House in March 2016 ahead of the main Appropriation Bill for the following year. As I mentioned last year during the session of this House dealing with the Supplementary Appropriation Bill 2015, in order to enable the Principal Auditor to complete his audit of the annual audited accounts earlier and for these annual accounts to be laid in the House on a more timely basis, the Government decided to revert to the earlier practice of presenting the 825 Supplementary Appropriation Bills separately and earlier on in the annual parliamentary calendar. This was and remains our policy, and indeed I have confirmed that to the hon. Gentleman in the context of his question earlier in today's session. Indeed, the fact that the Supplementary Appropriation Bill for the year ended 31st March 2016 was actually published on 22nd December 2016, almost a year ago, shows our commitment to this.

830 Regrettably, due to the exigencies of Brexit, it has not been possible to find the ministerial and parliamentary time to deal with this important matter. Nonetheless, Members of the Opposition have been able to identify the supplementary adjustments required well ahead of the debate of the actual Appropriation Bill for 2017-18. They have also had the benefit of being in possession of the Actual figures for 2015-16 as disclosed within the Estimates Book for 2017-835 18.

To a large extent, the detail of this matter was in fact debated at some length during the course of the 2017-18 Appropriation debate in June this year. Mr Speaker will recall that the Opposition then took the unprecedented stance of voting against the Appropriation Bill, or at least some Members of the Opposition – the official Opposition, if I can call it that, Mr Speaker – 840 took that step, something which we had not experienced before. If they are to be consistent with that approach, the GSD Members of Opposition will no doubt therefore vote against this Supplementary Appropriation Bill too. It would really not make any sense to vote against a Budget for 2017-18 on grounds of lack of transparency but then vote for an amount spent in excess of an earlier year's Budget which has also been compiled and presented in the same 845 apparently objectionable manner that gave rise to the negative vote.

This Bill is therefore the annual Supplementary Appropriation Bill required to provide appropriation cover retrospectively for the actual figures for the year ended 31st March 2016.

850 Hon. Members should note that in the case of the £11.38 million required to cover the additional expenditure incurred under the Consolidated Fund, this represents the amount required in addition to the supplementary provision of £9 million that is already included in the approved Estimates Book under head 44, the supplementary provision head. As has always been the case, a full breakdown of the £20 million – that is to say the £11.38 million and the £9 million – of reallocations to be made from head 44 will be tabled in the House at the next session of Parliament. This will provide hon. Members with a full and detailed breakdown of the heads and 855 subheads for which this supplementary provision has been applied, although a simple deduction of estimate 2015-16 against the actual disclosed in the Estimates Book for 2017-18 for that year, for 2015-16, will identify the adjustments required.

860 Mr Speaker, I commend the Bill to the House and I will just note that I will be moving an amendment at the Committee Stage in relation to the date of reference of the Act.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill? The Hon. Roy Clinton.

865 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, whereas I recognise what the Chief Minister has said in terms of his intention for bringing this Bill earlier and that it is indeed going to be a Government policy to do so in future, nevertheless the fact remains that here we are a year later debating the Bill that was published in December last year.

870 It is a requirement of our Constitution under section 69.3 that the Minister with responsibility for finance come to this House to seek Parliament's approval for any departmental overspends in respect of the Consolidated Fund or project overspends in the Improvement and Development Fund as compared to the approved appropriation for that particular year. Section 69.3 of the Constitution reads as follows, and I quote:

(3) If in any financial year it is found –

(a) that the amount appropriated by the appropriation law for the purposes included in any head of expenditure is insufficient or that a need has arisen for expenditure for a purpose for which no amount has been appropriated by the appropriation law; or

(b) that any moneys have been expended on any head of expenditure in excess of the amount appropriated for the purposes included in that head by the appropriation law or for a purpose for which no amount has been appropriated by the appropriation law, the Minister with responsibility for finance shall cause a supplementary estimate showing the sums required or spent to be prepared and laid before the Parliament and the heads of expenditure shall be included in a supplementary appropriation bill introduced in the Parliament to provide for the appropriation of those sums.

875 Today, in this Bill, Parliament is being asked to approve overspends in respect of the financial year 2015-16, being the Budget approved in July 2015. There are exceptions within the financial year to this requirement which I have just outlined, which I will explain as follows.

In respect of Consolidated Fund Expenditure, there are two exceptions, one in the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act and the other under section 6 of the Appropriation Act 2015 in respect of the application of sums voted for supplementary provision.

880 Under section 45(1) of the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act, the Minister responsible for finance may, in respect of Consolidated Fund expenditure heads, allow a reallocation between purposes within a head provided that there is no increase in establishment of staff. The Act provides under section 45(2) that:

Any warrant issued under the provisions of this section shall be laid before the Parliament at the earliest opportunity.

Section 6 of the Appropriation Act 2015 reads as follows:

Notwithstanding anything contained in the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act, the Minister responsible for finance may direct by means of a warrant that the whole or any part of the sums appropriated under Head 44 Supplementary Provision shall be applied to any of the other Heads specified in Parts 1, 2 and 3 of the Schedule.

885 As the Chief Minister has already pointed out, the amount approved for head 44, Supplementary Provision, was £9 million under the Appropriation Act 2015. The description of the purpose of this head 44 in the Estimates Book for 2015-16 was as follows, and I quote:

A provision for the year ending 31st March 2016 for the funding of pay settlements and supplementary expenditure which can be reallocated to other departmental heads of expenditure, the controlling office being the Financial Secretary and the Minister being the Minister for Finance.

And now, Mr Speaker, as regards the Improvement and Development Fund:

Under section 33(2) of the Public Finance (Audit and Control) Act, but subject to any moneys provided by external agencies for specific projects, the Minister may similarly reallocate project moneys but without restriction as follows ...

Section 33(2) reads, I quote:

Subject to the provisions of subsection (1) the Minister responsible for finance, if it appears to him to be necessary to do so, may by means of a warrant under his hand re-allocate moneys between one development project and another of the same head of expenditure if he is satisfied that further provision is needed for the development project to which moneys are to be re-allocated and that there is, or is likely to be, a surplus in respect of the development project from which the moneys are to be allocated.

890 The total approved appropriation 2015 under head 102 projects within the Improvement and Development Fund was £78,891,000. As in the case of the Consolidated Fund, reallocation in section 33(3) in respect of the Improvement and Development Fund provides that 'Any warrant issued in accordance with subsection (2) shall be laid before the Parliament at the earliest opportunity.'

895 Thus I have now outlined the various legal requirements and exceptions so as to provide the framework within which this Supplementary Appropriation Bill for 2015-16 needs to be considered.

Let me say at the outset that I really do have great difficulty in supporting this Bill in the manner it has been presented to this House, and of course I also have taken issue with the timing of it coming to this House.

900 Let me deal with the latter point first. The Bill was published on 22nd December 2016, and despite being on the Agenda of this House for almost a year it is only now that we are able to debate it. Last year, the Supplementary Appropriation Bill for 2014-15 was published in December 2015 and debated in Parliament on 2nd March 2016. The Chief Minister, during that 905 debate on 2nd March 2016 – and he has acknowledged that – explained a change in the policy in the manner of presenting supplemental appropriations and the reason for it as follows, and I quote:

Hon. Members will take note that in past years requests for approval of supplementary appropriations have been brought to this House as part of the main Appropriation Bill for the year. For example, the supplementary funding requirements for the financial year 2013-14 were included as part of the main Appropriation Bill for the year 2014-15 and the supplementary funding requirements for the financial year 2012-13 were included as part of the main Appropriation Bill for the year 2013-14.

Because the main Appropriation Bills for the year are normally now debated in this House at around June or July of each year as part of the Budget session, this has meant that the annual audited accounts for the previous year have necessarily been delayed until the approval of these supplementary appropriations and the Principal Auditor has not been able to complete his audit of the annual public accounts until then.

In order to enable the Principal Auditor to complete his audit of the annual audited accounts earlier and for these annual accounts to be laid in the House on a more timely basis –something I am sure will be welcomed by some, Mr Speaker –the Government has decided to revert to the earlier practice of presenting the Supplementary Appropriation Bills separately. These will therefore no longer be included within the main Appropriation Bill for the year. The practice in future will be that the Supplementary Appropriation Bills will be published earlier and within the statutory nine months after the close of each financial year prescribed for the submission of the annual accounts to the Principal Auditor under section 52 of the Public Finance Control and Audit Act.

I welcomed the Chief Minister's statement at the time, and in fact his confirmation that it is still his intention today, but we have seen many Bills come to this House since December 2016
910 and, despite Brexit, I cannot see there has been a lack of time available for this House to debate it. It is particularly of concern to me since it causes a knock-on delay in the Principal Auditor being able to complete his audit of the annual public accounts. Delaying of the annual accounts in this House on a more timely basis is, as the Chief Minister will surely appreciate, a matter close to my colonial book-keeper's heart. More so, Mr Speaker, since the Minister for the 915 Savings Bank will not gazette the audited accounts of the Savings Bank that are already in his possession until of course the annual public accounts of the Government as a whole for that particular year are laid in this House.

And so, Mr Speaker, in the interests of transparency ... and again I am grateful to the Chief Minister for confirming that he will stick to this timetable that he announced last year and that 920 in future we will be debating the Supplementary Appropriation Bill on a more timely basis, because of course it is entirely illogical to have passed the Budget already for 2017-18 and yet not passed the supplementary for 2015-16.

925 Last year, Parliament was asked to approve a supplemental appropriation for £16.2 million for Consolidated Fund expenditure in the financial year 2014-15 in respect of what was head 43, Supplementary Provision. During the debate in March last, I pointed out to the Chief Minister that Parliament had not yet been provided with an analysis of the £16.2 million appropriation, despite my letter to him on 17th February 2016. In his response on 29th February 2016 the Chief Minister stated:

As regards the Supplementary Appropriation Act, I will be providing to Parliament in the normal way a breakdown by departmental heads of the £16.2 million required to meet additional departmental Consolidated Fund expenditure.

930 This information was not provided prior to the March 2016 debate, and in fact it was the Hon. Dr John Cortes, as Acting Chief Minister, who tabled the following documents in Parliament in June – in fact on 29th June 2016 – being the Consolidated Fund Pay Settlement Statement 1/2014-15, the Consolidated Fund Supplementary Funding Statement Number 2/2014-15, the Consolidated Fund Reallocation Statement 3/2014-15 and the Improvement Development Reallocation Statement 1/2014-15. I find it hard to believe that this was the earliest opportunity to present these schedules to Parliament, as envisaged by the Public Finance (Audit and Control) Act, well after we debated the Supplementary Appropriation Bill.

935 Mr Speaker, I have now since studied in depth how the head called ‘Supplementary Provision’ is utilised and I have come to the conclusion – and I have not come to this conclusion easily – that it really is contrary to the intentions and not the spirit of our Constitution.

940 In this year’s Supplementary Appropriation Bill for 2015-16 the House is being asked to approve an additional amount of £11,380,000 to head 44, Supplementary Provision, bringing it to a total of £20,380,000, given the original £9 million approved estimate. It is clear to me that head 44 is being used as a miscellaneous suspense account by the Government to fund Government departmental overspends, using the reallocation method under section 6 of the Appropriation Act. That cannot have been the intention of section 69(3) of the Constitution, which requires specific heads of expenditure to be identified where additional funding is required for parliamentary approval. Furthermore, head 44 is clearly identified as a provision in the Estimates Book for 2015-16, and as the Financial Secretary will know, it is not possible to overspend the provision: it is either utilised or not.

950 Mr Speaker, what the Government is inviting Parliament to do is to top up its general provision for departmental expenditure without identifying its purpose in the Bill. This is hardly a transparent way of conducting public finances and in my view it is entirely contrary to what is envisaged by our Constitution. Taken to its absolute extreme, if we follow the same logic, the Government need only allocate £1 to each head of expenditure in its Estimate Book and put 955 £453 million into head 44, Supplementary Provision, to allocate it as it sees fit during the year. (Interjection) And before the Chief Minister states the supplemental head was used by a GSD Government for the first time, let me point out that specific heads of expenditure were always identified when requiring a supplementary appropriation, as was the case in the Supplementary Appropriation Act 2012 and earlier.

960 Mr Speaker, whereas in the past I objected to a lack of information presented with the Supplementary Appropriation Bill, I now also object to the way head 44 is being used as a general suspense account for Government departmental overspending. I thus invite the Chief Minister in his role as Finance Minister to discuss this matter with the Financial Secretary and come back to this House with a redrafted Bill with the information in respect of Department 965 overspends by head, as envisaged by the Constitution in this Bill.

In addition, Mr Speaker, I will be grateful if the appropriation of £5,107,000 for the Improvement and Development Fund, which is only identified under Part 3 as being for head 102, Projects, could be expanded upon as in previous years.

970 In the schedules provided to the Opposition under Standing Order 43(1), this additional expenditure is identified as being in respect of tunnels and roads to the North Front with the explanation as follows:

Expenditure higher than budgeted. Parts of the budgetary overrun will be met through the reallocation of savings identified elsewhere within head 102.

975 Mr Speaker, I would also be grateful if the Bill could be amended so that head 102 will show the project being additionally funded. Let us be under no illusion that these are merely internal reallocations. The request for funding in the Improvement and Development Fund is a real additional expense, having exhausted any surpluses as provided by section 33(2) of the Public Finance (Audit and Control) Act.

Last year the Chief Minister went to great pains to underline that, in his view:

The hon. Gentleman has said something that I think is important I should deal with, which is that this is an overspend. I do not want anybody to go away with the idea that this is additional money. This is money that is moving from one part of the book to another part of the book.

980 Any supplemental appropriation by definition must represent an overspend when compared to the original estimate, even if there are departmental reorganisations. The Government's saving grace is that there may be compensating underspends in other heads that neutralise the overspend, but that cannot always be assumed, which is why Parliament needs to have full and detailed information in any Supplementary Appropriation Bill.

985 So, Mr Speaker, unless the Government considers redrafting the Bill, I am of the view that the Bill is defective as presented and it is certainly contrary to the spirit of our Constitution, and as such I will not support it and cannot support it and I will not recommend the Bill to my colleagues on this side of the House. And we can do without the Chief Minister's histrionics about hospitals shutting down and people dying, because this is obviously in respect of expenditure almost two years ago.

990 Finally, I again urge the Chief Minister to keep to the timetable he announced last year for the supplementary appropriations so that the Principal Auditor's work is not delayed unnecessarily in tabling the Government's annual accounts.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

995 Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the Second Reading of this Bill? Otherwise, I will call upon the mover to reply.

The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1000 Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it is good to see the Hon. Mr Clinton come back into his own and into his area of comfort.

1005 He started his address dealing with the issue of the delay in Parliament dealing with the Bill. I thought I had dealt with that, but it is becoming a characteristic of his time in this place that he delivers the speech that he arrives to deliver regardless of what may be said in this place, although I am grateful that he at least acknowledged, in an element of parenthesis in what he was saying, that I had already given the commitment that he was suggesting that he was seeking to extract. He also said that he recognised that we have the intention to move in the way that he suggested. This is a Government that is seeking to act in a way that is most transparent, which is now what Members opposite would also like us to do, despite the fact that they represent a regime which might not exactly have been doing the same.

1010 Taking us through the Constitutional requirement of section 69(3) on authorisation of expenditure, the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act, both the sections on relocations 45 and 33 for the I&D and the recurrent account, was no doubt riveting to accountants listening, but I do not think it took us much further. The Bill is based on an interpretation of those sections and of, in particular, the constitutional requirements, which is accepted in the context of the practice of this Parliament stretching back many years – indeed, even before I was here, let alone his recent arrival. So the Government is advised and considers it is acting in full compliance with the constitutional provisions and the provisions of the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act.

He said that he would find it very difficult, as he started his peroration through the Bill, to support the Bill, but indeed I would have thought he should have started somewhere else. I would have thought he should have started by telling us that he would find it very difficult not to vote against the Bill if he had wanted to, because of course part of what we are dealing with is in the book that they voted against in July, so I would have thought that it was now very difficult indeed for the hon. Gentleman to come to this House and perform the utter volte-face he would have had to perform to advise his colleagues to vote in favour of this supplementary provision. As he develops in politics he may be becoming more adept at the volte-face, but it is not something that fits in the logic of the way that he introduced his party's position on the Estimates in July; and indeed I am grateful to see that he has stuck consistently and doggedly to that approach, although it was in effect political hara-kiri for the former, former Leader of the Opposition to have taken his advice, but at least I applaud him as the former Leader of the Opposition in taking that position and advising the Leader of the Opposition that he should follow in the footsteps of those he had taken to the edge of political suicide.

1020

1030

So, Mr Speaker, in respect of the delay of the audited accounts, that is understood by this side of the House; it is why we moved to move more quickly in the context of these Bills. The Bill was published in keeping with the commitment that we gave; we have just not been able to deal with it in the time that we expected.

1035

He says many Bills have come to this House and we have been able to deal with much. We have, Mr Speaker, but he might care to look at the fact that apart from the Appropriation Bill, which requires a lot of specific preparation and we did toy with the possibility of dealing with the issue then, a lot of the Bills that have been dealt with in this House this year have not been Bills on which I have led as Minister for Public Finance – because of the unfortunate distraction upon which we are all embarked, which is called leaving the European Union.

1040

But he said something, Mr Speaker, which I think I must deal with head on. He said that, as a result of all of this inability to move in respect of the audited accounts, we have not yet seen the accounts of the Savings Bank, which are traditionally – not because of Mr Bossano wishing it to be that case, but traditionally – published once the audited accounts are published. Well, I agree with him. It is a pity we have not yet seen those audited accounts, because I think when we see them we will once again see why it is that this community looks to Joe Bossano as a magnificent manager of the funds that are the responsibility of those of us on this side of the House who manage savings money in the Savings Bank, or indeed taxpayers' money more generally. I do not think that the Government is dreading the day that the audited accounts of the Savings Bank are published; indeed we are very much looking forward to that day, but perhaps Members opposite might wish to rue that day a little, given some of the things that they have said in the past about the Savings Bank.

Mr Speaker, there is no breakdown in the normal way of laying on the table the follow-up requirements. Indeed, they can only be laid once the approval of this House has been given. There is nothing, therefore, that is contrary to the Constitution in what is being done. This action is in keeping with the advice the Government has as to how it must act and indeed with the practice in the past and entirely in keeping with the provisions of the Public Finance (Control and Audit) Act – if I may say so, Mr Speaker, in keeping with the practice not just under this Government but, as the hon. Gentleman ventured to suggest I might be saying, also in keeping with the practice of former Governments, even those led by the former, former, former, former Leader of the Opposition and the current Leader of the GSD when he was Deputy Chief Minister.

So, Mr Speaker, I commend him on his return to the role of colonial book-keeper. So often the colonial book-keepers got it wrong in respect of Gibraltar, and I think part of the most important history of Gibraltar starts when the Chief Minister of Gibraltar starts to deliver the 1065 speech on the Budget for Gibraltar, which happened in 1988 under the first Bossano Budget. I cannot resist but tell him that it was good to see him deploy in this place the riveting charisma and ability to persuade which led him to the results he had in his leadership election last week and to tell him that he need not fret about hospitals closing down or civil servants not being 1070 the Budget which would have had that affect, sensible heads prevailed on that side and sensible heads prevailed on this side and our hospitals stayed open, our law enforcement agents remained paid and Gibraltar did not fall into the bear trap that he sought to lay for our community.

Mr Speaker, with that, I commend the Bill to the House. (Banging on desks)

1075

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to appropriate further sums of money to the service of the year ended 31st day of March 2016 be read a second time.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, I will call a division in respect of this Bill.

1080

Mr Speaker: A division is required.

The Hon. the Chief Minister.

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 be read a first time.

1095

Mr Speaker: I put the question that a Bill for an Act to amend the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

1100 Clerk: The Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) (Amendment) Act 2017.

Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) (Amendment) Bill 2017 –
Second Reading approved

Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that the Act be now read a second time.

The purpose of this Act is to correct an error within the original Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008. The amendment is in fact a technical correction of a drafting error which was noticed by officials recently and which inadvertently altered the position which existed in 2008, and in fact as drafted does not make sense.

The Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 was introduced to replace existing funds as defined by the Statutory Benefits Fund. There exists a lot of legislation that refers to existing funds individually. Where other legislation designates moneys as receivable by existing funds, the purpose of the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 was to re-designate these such that they should be credited to the Statutory Benefits Fund.

Under the present wording of the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008, section 4(1) reads:

There shall be credited to the Statutory Benefits Fund and not to the Existing Funds– and then there is a list that follows, Mr Speaker. That list currently includes as a last point:

any moneys specified in any other law as being payable into the Statutory Benefits Funds.

1115 This section can only be intended to act as a catch-all to ensure that anything receivable by the existing funds is actually redirected by virtue of the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 to the then newly established Statutory Benefits Fund. By using the words ‘Statutory Benefits Fund’, all this section achieves is a circular approach, thereby defeating its original objective.

1120 There can be no need for a separate provision with the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 to credit moneys to the Statutory Benefits Fund where other laws refer to the Statutory Benefits Fund as the fund to be credited. The section only makes sense where other laws refer to the existing funds receiving money which should as from 2008 be receivable, by virtue of this Act, by the Statutory Benefits Fund.

1125 Mr Speaker, the amendment Act corrects a historical error and I commend the Bill to the House.

Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill? No.

1130 I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Public Finance (Statutory Benefits Fund) Act 2008 be read a second time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I have the honour to move that a Bill for an Act to amend the Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) Act be read a first time.

1150

Mr Speaker: I now put the question, which is that a Bill for an Act to amend the Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) Act be read a first time. Those in favour? (Members: Aye.) Those against? Carried.

Clerk: The Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) (Amendment) Act 2017.

Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) (Amendment) Bill 2017 – Second Reading approved

1155

Minister for Commerce (Hon. A J Isola): Mr Speaker, I now have the honour to move that the Bill be read a second time.

1160 As its title indicates, this Bill would amend the Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) Act. The amendments are required to support the Government's proposals for the regulation of distributed ledger technology (DLT), the technology which underpins decentralised virtual currencies but which also has a wide range of other applications in the financial services sector, such as clearing, settlement and other post-trade activities or claims or portfolio management.

Members will be aware of the work Government has been carrying out these past three years through three different consultation processes with the sector and the community more widely, 1165 both in Gibraltar and outside Gibraltar, to focus and explore the opportunities in DLT. Those consultations have led Government to believe that we should be one of the first jurisdictions in the world to introduce a regulatory framework for DLT businesses and providing the regulatory certainty that so many of them have asked for and we will now be delivering with effect from 1st January.

1170 Regulations have already been published and we know of a list of businesses waiting to file their applications with the Financial Services Commission on 1st January.

I would like to just briefly thank the working group – David Parody, Paul Astengo and Joey Garcia – for their work these past three years at no cost to Government, and of course the Financial Services Commission for their work, and Sian Jones, as well the rest of the private sector who have contributed and worked hard. We will be publishing, I expect next week, guidance notes on the nine core principles of the regulations that have already been published with the full support of the entire private sector, and I am grateful to all of them for making this happen.

1180 The Financial Services (Investment and Fiduciary Services) Act provides for the regulation of both investment services and a range of controlled activities. The Government proposes that DLT services will be regulated by being made a controlled activity under that Act. For that purpose, this Bill makes some relatively minor but nonetheless important amendments to the Act.

1185 Many of the Act's regulatory powers provide that they may be exercised where doing so is for the protection of investors. As the provision of DLT services is in essence the transmission or storage of value belonging to others, service users will be customers of a DLT provider but will not necessarily be investors within the meaning of the Act. Accordingly, clause 2 inserts appropriate references to customers into the relevant provisions, a term which is already used in the Act – for example, under section 12(2)(f), which refers to making for the protection of investors or customers. The term 'customer' is not defined in the Act and so is used in its ordinary sense to mean a user of goods or services purchased from a business. It is deliberately wider than 'consumer', which would exclude business consumer.

I commend the Bill to the House.

1195 Mr Speaker: Before I put the question, does any hon. Member wish to speak on the general principles and merits of this Bill?

The Hon. Roy Clinton, the Leader of the Opposition.

Hon. Roy Clinton: Former. Thank you, Mr Speaker.

1200 As the Minister will be aware, I have been following quite closely the development of DLT and block chain and the underlying technology. I, of course, welcome anything that will enhance the product offering that Gibraltar has in financial services and other services, and this is certainly an area in which we are really at the very beginning of this type of business. Indeed, the SEC and certainly the FCA in the UK are still getting to grips with concepts such as initial coin offering and how on earth that should or should not be regulated and even what it is that it represents, whether an ICO is a security or not a security.

1210 I appreciate and no doubt the Minister will emphasise that this particular Bill is not necessarily covering that type of financial ... or, not financial, the ICO concept, but I would be grateful if the Minister could clarify for the benefit of Members, certainly on this side of the House, when he talks about it being a Bill to protect investors, or rather extend the protection of investors to customers of licensees, what protection that would be.

1215 Is the Minister saying by extension that any customers of DLT-type licensees will be able to access the Investor Compensation Fund or some other type of fund? How will customers be effectively protected? Is it purely by way of regulation, or is it that these customers will be able to make a claim for compensation in respect of any losses? If so, on whom would that claim fall and how is it that the Minister would envisage that the potential new licensees would contribute 1220 to such a fund, if at all that is the intention, or is there some other intention by way a fund would be established for any potential claims – or is it to be completely unfunded and a call made on licensees individually or collectively? I would welcome any comment from the Minister in that respect. And, of course, if there is to be no compensation available to investors or customers, to what extent are we actually protecting them? Is there a risk to the jurisdiction, if anything does go wrong, that there would be a complaint that ‘we thought we were protected and we are not’?

1225 Hon. A J Isola: If the hon. Member will give way it might help him.

Hon. R M Clinton: Yes, certainly.

1230 Hon. A J Isola: When we talk about protection of investors we talk about what the financial services legislation does, and the regulatory powers that the FSC have, both in terms of licensing, regulation and supervision, are all focused on the protection of the investors. What we are doing in this Bill is simply saying that that regulatory oversight will now extend not just to investors but customers.

1235 So we are not talking about a compensation scheme. We are not going to compensate – nobody is. There is no fund, they do not have any access to the current compensatory schemes. We are simply extending the regulatory powers to cover not just investors but also customers. And why are we doing that? Because somebody who sets up a DLT business in order for it to be a controlled activity, they are not investors; these are shareholders, so they are customers. Somebody that a DLT firm holds or transfers an item of store or value, which is for example 1240 where a cryptocurrency could be – not only, but it could be a whole host of things – as customers of the firm that is licensed, the regulatory powers will extend to looking after them to make sure that the company they are customers of is regulated fully like any other financial services firm would be.

1245 So you must not confuse customers in the sense that what we are doing is offering compensation. What we are doing is expanding the power of the FSC to cover not just investors in a financial services firm but customers of a financial services firm. That is what we are doing by bringing it under the ambit of a controlled activity. If it is not a controlled activity it cannot be regulated. So the very small change we are doing here is by making DLT businesses which hold or transfer something of value as a controlled activity, it now becomes regulated – if that helps.

1250 Hon. R M Clinton: Mr Speaker, I am grateful for the Minister’s intervention, and certainly it does illuminate what it is that the Government is thinking in this respect.

1255 Having heard what he just said, of course I am conscious that there are all sorts of different types of licensees within financial services – for example, trust company managers may have a certain class of licence but are obviously not entitled to claim compensation from certain funds – but given that we are dealing with what are some very new concepts and that people may have not fully understood all these concepts, certainly not customers, or customers will understand what it is they are signing up to as this is new stuff and I think even the law is still being written on this, just perhaps a word of caution in future to make sure that there is a health warning that,
1260 although you may be licensed by the FSC, it does not necessarily mean that you are going to get any compensation, there is no safety net. (Interjection) Again, only a suggestion to the Minister. I am not saying he should do it; I am just saying given that ...

1265 Certainly from the contributors to the cryptocurrency conference in the summer – which was very interesting, having come from a highly regulated banking background myself – they have a rather, dare I say it, ‘wild west’ view of what it is that they think they can do with things like initial coin offerings: ‘Isn’t it great your grandmother can invest her life savings in this and they do not have to have a minimum $100,000 wealth to do so.’

1270 I am just a bit conscious that this is something new, this is something that we are all learning about and there may be some customers out there who may not fully understand what it is that they are covered for or not covered for, and this is something that ... I think it would be wise to make sure that whoever does have a licence does not put out on their main banner on whatever website saying 'Licenced by the Gibraltar Financial Services Commission' and there is an assumption that somehow we are on the hook for it. Again, only a suggestion. I am not saying that this is something that he has to do, but this is something new, this is something that we ...

1275 Again, I welcome the initiative of the Government to look into this, but as I said at the beginning, caution would be wise and I am sure that the Minister has taken advice on this and will continue to take advice on it, because this is obviously something that will change literally by the day in terms of how regulatory authorities around the world view this.

1280 Other than that, and given the Minister's intervention already, I have no further comments on the Bill.

Thank you, Mr Speaker.

Mr Speaker: Does any other hon. Member wish to speak on the Second Reading of the Bill? Yes, the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

1285 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, we on this side of the House welcome any action taken by the Minister for Financial Services in relation to the extension of the regulatory framework to DLT and, as the Minister said, in relation to underpinning decentralised currencies in relation to extending it for supervision, regulation and indeed enforcement.

1290 We would also welcome the focus and the exploration of opportunities that is being conducted by the Government in this field. I have been fortunate enough to speak to many law firms in London recently, particularly very large London law firms with American outfits, and their view is that Gibraltar really is trailblazing in DLT and this is a very welcome piece of legislation that extends the framework to DLT.

1295 And of course this House should also recognise, as the Minister has done, the work that has been done by David Parody, Paul Astengo, the FSC generally and also Joey Garcia as well.

1300 Therefore, we agree with the comments that the Minister has made in relation to DLT and the regulated controlled activities. From my perspective, in terms of wearing my other hat outside this House, I have had a lot of exposure to DLT insofar as the risk strategy, KYC and the many questions that people have in relation to this aspect of DLT, and many of those questions have been answered by the consultation that the Government has conducted.

1305 I take it from the Minister and what he is saying about DLT generally that as with gaming, although I do not link the two, that the Government is looking to attract blue-chip business to our community because that is what works here and our experience has shown that encouraging blue chip will only increase the reputation of our jurisdiction to attract good business into Gibraltar – and also we welcome it from this side of the House.

Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Chief Minister.

1310 Chief Minister (Hon. F R Picardo): Mr Speaker, I rise simply to, I think, highlight importantly the work that has gone into this, the amount of travel that has been involved to get out the message that Gibraltar is, as the Hon. the Leader of the Opposition has put it, trailblazing in DLT. That reflects the amount of industry that this has required on the part of the hon. Member for Financial Services, Gaming and Commerce and his team.

1315 The hon. Members have mentioned Parody, Astengo, Garcia, Sian Jones, and in particular it is right to mention also Isola. I think the work that the hon. Member has done is recognised as having got the Gibraltar message out there, and that message is producing an understanding of the exciting opportunities that Gibraltar now offers – especially once the Act is on our statute book – that has not been lost on the international business community.

1320 I think that our prudence, our understanding of cutting-edge technology and industry produce the opportunities that Gibraltar is now poised to take advantage of and I commend the hon. Member for the work that he has done and the importance it will have for Gibraltar, not just now but I think in the future.

1325 Mr Speaker, I say nothing more than that I think I heard two slightly different speeches from the other side, but I am pleased that they both concluded in commending the hon. Member for the work done and suggesting that they are going to be supporting the Bill. One was from the current Leader of the Opposition and one from the former Leader of the Opposition, but I did detect a slightly different approach in each of them.

1330 Mr Speaker: Does the mover wish to reply?

Hon. A J Isola: Yes, Mr Speaker.

1335 I am grateful to the Chief Minister for his kind words, and indeed the Leader of the Opposition for his clear and categorical support for the work that has gone in and what we are doing. If I can just deal with the points that he has made first, the philosophy behind this is to attract long-term sustainable business to our community. That, by definition, requires us to ensure that we set the bar at a high post where we will attract those quality operators, because what we have learned from the gaming experience is that if you attract quality operators they themselves attract new business. That is what has worked so well for us in gaming and we hope 1340 will work for us similarly in this space.

Like in the previous example, we are insisting that DLT firms have their mind and management in Gibraltar. There is no question of a firm having a shelf company with a licence operating from somewhere else. They will have to have their mind and management here in Gibraltar and the care that the FSC will take in reviewing these applications is a part of that blue-1345 chip process in ensuring that we attract the kind of firms that we want to be here and partnering up with us. That is a very important part of the work that will now start as we sift through the applications that are pending and will come in in the coming months and years.

It is an exciting time. We are trailblazing and we are doing so in the same way that we have done before, which is with enormous caution and with great care. However, when you start 1350 talking about ICOs, as the former Leader of the Opposition just did, we are talking about a totally different space and I would urge him not to confuse the two. What we are doing today is dealing with a block chain technology. Only last week the House of Lords issued a report in which they revealed that the UK government should consider adopting block chain for its own systems internally. There is a group of 40 banks with IBM, called R3, that are considering the further 1355 expansion and use of block chain, and every day in The Telegraph, in The Times and in the FT and all the business journals and newspapers they are reflecting an increased interest and investment in the technology – and that is what we are doing today. We are not talking about tokens; we are simply talking about DLT block chain technology and how that can be operated, and by definition it includes the holding of value in whatever form that may take.

1360 Now, tokens, I have to say that the extent of the number of token sales being done through Gibraltar is something that is causing us some concern. We are moving as quickly as we possibly can to regulate token sales too in order to ensure that those people who are dealing initially in token sales have a minimum level of corporate governance, have a minimum level of transparency of information with all the health warnings the hon. Member has referred to, in 1365 order that customers and consumers are absolutely clearly aware of the risks they are undertaking in investing in tokens.

I hope that we will be able to issue very early in 2018 the new proposed regulations for coin offerings, which will, I think, to some extent replicate what you have when you have an IPO either on the FTSE or on AIM, a Nomad or a sponsor, so somebody is going to take responsibility 1370 for the filing of that documentation which will have to confirm that it complies with the regulations that we will publish as to how we expect token sales to be made.

1375 That is the risk area. We are fully aware of that and we are working very hard to try and get there as quickly as we can, but it is complicated and it requires some significant drafting to be able to deal with that. But in respect of this, we are dealing with a very different kind of business and the two must not be confused with each other.

Hon. Chief Minister: Mr Speaker, it has been the longest year in many respects. Not only have we happily together celebrated the 50th anniversary of the Referendum, we have celebrated the 200th anniversary of this building.

1460 We come now towards the end of the year and I am about to move that the House should adjourn sine die. Before I do that, I want to wish hon. Members a happy Hanukkah and Festival of Light – I think it comes first – a happy Christmas to all on all sides of the House and a very happy, healthy and prosperous New Year to all Members of the House and all those watching in this community, and indeed to the whole of this community.

1465 Two thousand and eighteen will be as testing a year, no doubt, as 2017 has been, but with industry and with hard work Gibraltar will see us through. Mr Speaker, I hope to return here in January to see all hon. Members prospering in every way – except politically, as far as I am concerned, for those opposite – and having done my bit to increase the population of this place so that Gibraltarians keep on growing. (A Member: Hear, hear.)

I move that the House should now adjourn sine die.

1470 Mr Speaker: The Hon. the Leader of the Opposition.

1475 Hon. E J Phillips: Mr Speaker, I echo the comments, save for the last one in relation to whether we will flourish in Opposition; but I echo the comments insofar as wishing our community and Members opposite a very happy Christmas, a happy New Year and a happy Hanukkah to my hon. Friend to the left.

Mr Speaker: May I add my best wishes to all hon. Members and all other persons present here, including the staff of Parliament, for a very Happy Christmas and a peaceful 2018.

1480 The House will now adjourn sine die.

The House adjourned at 5.10 p.m.
